Mr. Afton Bug grabs Derby win

Mr. Afton Bug, a colt with modest career earnings of less than $17,000, plucked one of quarter horse racing's major plums Sunday at Ruidoso Downs.

In the process, he increased his worth immensely.

The signal win of his career — so far — came in the fifth running of the $212,850 Kansas Quarter Horse Derby — the first leg of the Triple Crown for three-year-olds.

Mr. Afton Bug, with hot-shot rider Jerry Nicodemus applying his talents to the fullest, rallied from well off the pace for a nose victory. Flying Passsem, running his heart out on the rail, was caught on the last jump.

Mr. Afton Bug, the property of Marvin Barnes of Ada, Oklahoma collected $103,925 and picked up tremendous momentum toward the next two stops on the Triple Crown — the $450,000 (est.) Rainbow Derby July 8 and the $1 million All-American Derby August 26.

H. Don Farris is the trainer of Mr. Afton Bug. Mutual returns came out to $8.60, $4 and $4.40. Flying Passsem, the property of Mildred Bowman of Alvin, Texas, earned $35,334 and dished out $6 and $6.20. Don Knight was in the saddle.

Third was taken by the 50-1 longshot, Miss Jetta Bar. Roy Brooks was up. Miss Jetta Bar ended the 400 yard dash 3/4 lengths behind Flying Passsem.

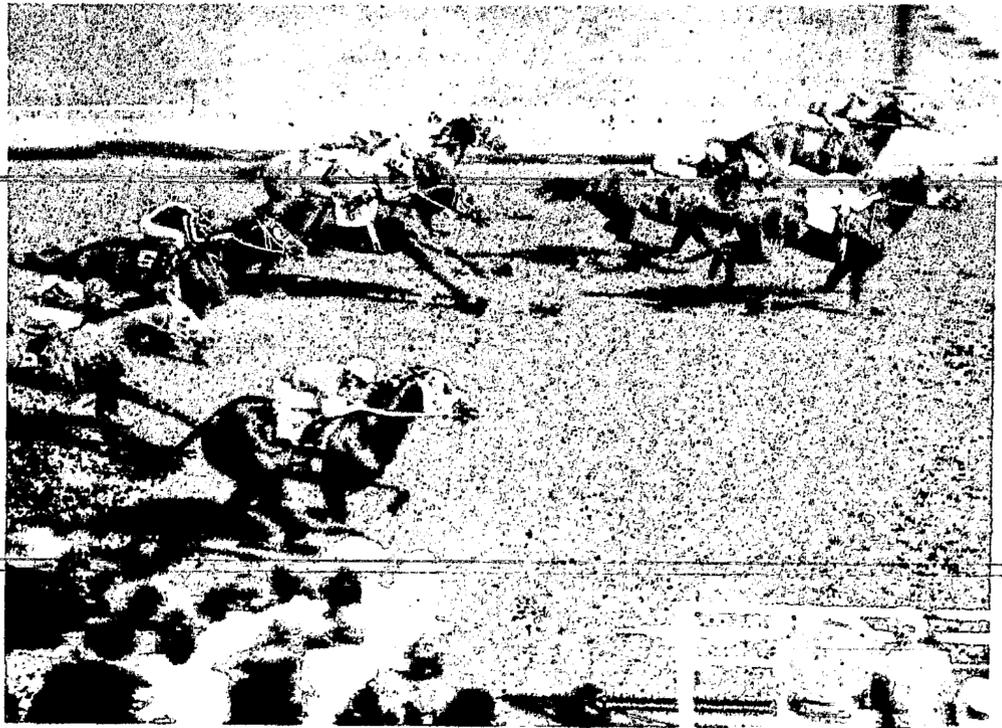

The winning time, on a fast track, was 20.52 seconds. A headwind was blowing.

The big disappointment was Vespero, the gelding who'd set the top qualifying time and carried a money line of nearly $240,000 into the Kansas Derby. The fans turned him loose as a 1-2 favorite from the No. 10 post. But Vespero was unable to deliver the goods. He broke well, was in contention in the early going, but appeared to toss in the towel when Jockey Terry Lipham asked for his best at the midway point. The handsome gelding had about all he could stand, sputtered badly, and got in a well-beaten fourth. He had to settle for a paycheck of $14,549.

Mr. Afton Bug, on the other hand, showed tremendous heart and awesome initiative while making up some three lengths. The colt broke in fifth place, and remained out of it until about the halfway point. Flying Passsem established a strong lead on the fall, and kept pouring on the speed right down to the wire. Mr. Afton Bug, running in the middle of the track, barely got up in time with that powerful late attack.

Flying Passsem earned $35,334 for second, and Miss Jetta Bar collected $20,785.

Fifth went to Pass Em West, who earned $10,392. The rest of the field: 6th — Rocket Lights, $8,314; 7th — Oh Greedy, $6,235; 8th — Song O My Heart, $4,157; 9th — More Excuses, $2,078; 10th — Pass Em Boy, $2,078.

THE $100,000 NOSE — Mr. Afton Bug, upper right foreground, barely noses out Flying Passsem to win the $212,850 Kansas Quarter Horse Derby at Ruidoso Downs Sunday. The win was worth over $100,000. Jerry Nicodemus rides Mr. Afton Bug.

MAPS ARE USEFUL in determining causes of fire, thus leading to possible prevention measures not already used. Ken Schein is employed by the State Department of Forestry to draw such maps.

ComFIRE's defense plan working here

He's a familiar face to many people in Ruidoso, but most aren't aware of all he has done for the area and especially for the Committee for Insuring Ruidoso's Environment (ComFIRE).

Ken Schein works for the New Mexico Department of Forestry and his offices are located in Capitan. Schein and a former employee, Larry Bandy, worked closely with ComFIRE in teaching the organization what a Red Flag Fire Alert program was and how one could be implemented. "Larry (Bandy) actually started the program, but was transferred so I took over for him," Schein said.

Schein's office was responsible for obtaining the large and small red flags used by cooperators during a fire alert and also arranged to purchase the magnetic signs which are displayed on vehicles during a fire alert.

"We became involved at the request of ComFIRE and Larry stepped in as a consultant because he is a Fire Prevention Specialist for the state," Schein said.

Bandy worked directly with the committee and helped divide the Ruidoso area into three sections. Schein worked with ComFIRE in designing evacuation maps which are now being circulated, showing evacuation routes out of town in case a serious fire threatens the area.

Schein and another state forestry staff member spent nearly a month canvassing Ruidoso, locating businesses that would cooperate with ComFIRE by displaying the red flags and, in some cases, displaying the magnetic signs on company vehicles.

When a Red Flag Fire Alert occurs, Schein, working with United States Forest Service personnel based at Smokey Bear Ranger District, call businessmen and women to inform them of the extreme fire danger and ask for their cooperation.

Schein was also involved in the ComFIRE/KENW-TV documentary filmed here recently. That film details the purposes of ComFIRE and conditions which warrant a Red Flag Alert.

The committee's outstanding program of defense against forest fire earned ComFIRE recognition "for outstanding distinction in forest fire prevention activities" in the state.

Schein said his agency's job of covering more than 14 million acres of state and private lands also includes the Ruidoso area. He said the ComFIRE concept was very successful in other parts of New Mexico and when "various agencies recognized the serious fire problems in Ruidoso, we decided to try to organize a citizens group to control the situation."

consultants', to landowners in the eight county area covered by the Capitan office. Reformation, thinking and inventing of these are some services the office staff can provide expert advice on. "We can't actually do the work, but short of that, we can sure help in every other respect," Schein said.

Schein works fulltime as a fire planner, drawing maps which have become valuable in determining how fires occur and major fire danger areas in the southwest region.

He received a Bachelor of Science degree from Northern Arizona University in 1977 and spent the following summer working at the Rocky Mountain Forest and Range Experimental Station as a technician. In November, 1977, Schein was appointed to the Capitan post. He and his staff encourage inquiries about state forestry assistance programs, and can be reached by calling 354-2231.

ComFIRE meets this Thursday

The Committee for Insuring Ruidoso's Environment (ComFIRE) will meet Thursday at 4 p.m., in Whispering Pines Restaurant.

Discussion will center around the Red Flag Fire Alert, which was effective three days in May and on-going projects.

EID office relocates

The Ruidoso Environmental Improvement Office has moved to the downstairs office section of the Four Seasons Mall, 2500 Sudderth.

"We're open, as of today, in our new location," environmentalist Brown Edwards said, "and our telephone number, 257-4409, is the same as before."

Chamber's Coffee Cart Wednesday

The Wednesday morning Coffee Cart, a Chamber of Commerce project, will be at the Ruidoso State Bank from 9-10:30 a.m. The public is invited to attend these coffees, to meet Chamber officers and directors and discuss possible Chamber projects that could be developed to improve community services.

County cancels gas contract

During a special meeting of the Lincoln County Commission Thursday in Carrizozo, the county's gasoline contract with C.R. Petroleum of Capitan was terminated. An emergency resolution was drafted, subject to the approval of the state Department of Finance and Administration, which will authorize other sources of fuel for operation of county vehicles.

During a closed session, the commissioners interviewed three applicants for the county manager's position, vacant since April 16. However, a final selection for the office was not made.

The next regular meeting of the commission will be Tuesday, May 22 at 10 a.m., in the county courthouse chambers.

DOUBLE B EXPRESS failed as the people's choice in last week's Inaugural Purse at Ruidoso Downs.

But the gelding made amends with a rousing stretch run in Saturday's 5/4 furlong feature — a stretch run which ended with a narrow lead over the top stakes horse, The Drake.

Jockey Gary Sumpter did an excellent job of bringing Double B Express well off the lead and squeezing him through between horses in the final drive.

The Drake, who held the lead in the upper stretch, was fighting his way back on top when he ran out of ground.

Double B Express is owned by the Double B Ranch of Anthony. The gelding toured the 5/4 furlongs in 1:09 2-5 seconds and refunded tote prices of $6.40, $3.20 and $2.80. The Drake, piloted by Salustio Burgos, returned $4 and $3. The outing was his first of the year.

Nervino ($3.20) sailed in third.

FAVORITE PAST TIME, a chestnut filly owned by Jack Frost of Centralia, Illinois won a berth in the upcoming $225,500 Kansas Quarter Horse Futurity by impressively winning her first heat on Friday's program.

The filly flashed to a 2 1/4 length win in the second of fifteen elimination trials and clocked the 350 yards in 18.44 seconds.

That held up as the fastest of the day, and made Favorite Past Time the top qualifier in Saturday's action.

Out of some 150 horses who were in action Friday, only five made the qualifying cut for the Kansas grand finale slated for June 3. These five will join the five survivors from Thursday's elimination trials.

Favorite Past Time, who now holds a record of three wins from four career starts, is ridden by Harley Crosby.

Here are the four Kansas qualifiers Friday:

— Easy Tam, 18.47, owned by Darrell Kissee of Miami, Oklahoma.

— Washita Ted, 18.52, owned by Maureen and Lee Ware of Ruidoso.

— Tonya Jay Bar, 18.53, owned by Thomas Demmitt of Plains, Georgia.

— Pa Pa Wheelie, 18.53, owned by B.N. Adams of Houston, Texas.

SECO MIGHTY TALK, a 12-1 shot owned by David Cryan and Charles Weik of San Antonio, Texas, posted the top qualifying time in Thursday's first round elimination trials for the $25,000 (est.) Kansas Quarter Horse Futurity.

The filly sped to a half-length win in the fourth of fifteen elimination trials at 350 yards.

Seco Mighty Talk clocked the distance in 18.29 seconds, and automatically advanced into the grand finale scheduled for Sunday, June 3. Steve Fuller is the jockey.

Seco Mighty Talk's previous racing record covers only two starts, both at Val Verde, Texas. She won the first, then ran fourth in the encore.

Fans who backed her in Thursday's spin collected mutual returns of $27.60, $9 and $4.40.

Four other two-year-olds made Thursday's qualifying cut. Here they are: Rebel Killoqua, 18.35, owned by Wayne and Jewel Scott of Tahlequa, Oklahoma; Easy Azures, 18.39, owned by John May of Ft. Stockton, Texas, and Mack Yates of Cherokee, Texas; Charge It Papa, 18.45, owned by James Keng of Giddings, Texas; and Great As Chaffer, 18.48, owned by Leland Hutton of Jefferson, Ohio.

Adult Recreation Center serves our citizens well

BY CHARLOTTE FELLERS

(This is the first in a series of articles that will explain the functions of all departments of the Village of Ruidoso.)

Bette Romans, director of the Adult Recreation Center in Ruidoso since February 1, has worked with the center four years in planning adult recreational programs. The center operates as a department within the Village of Ruidoso and is governed by the Village Trustees.

Romans said retired people are the main users of the center, and most of the morning and afternoon schedules are designed to entertain that segment of the population. "The center is for everyone 18 and over," Romans said, and added that many opportunities exist for people to learn new skills.

The five main objectives of the center are to provide adult education, information and references, outreach services, recreation and transportation.

Romans outlined what services are covered by each objective:

Adult Education — Nutrition programs taught by the county home extension agent, book reviews by local citizens and classes taught by regular visitors to the center offer a variety of new skills.

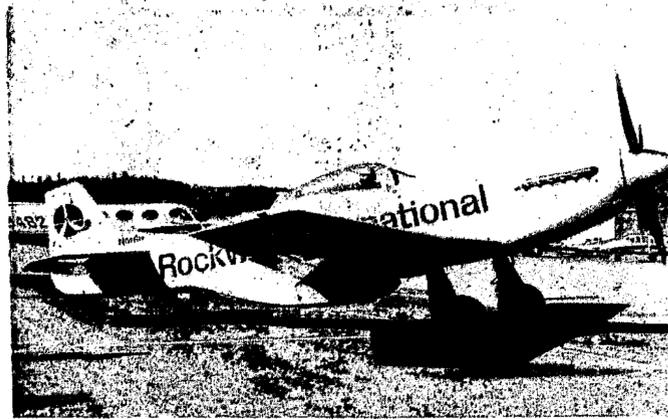

Last year, several senior citizens attended classes in Roswell on the campus of New Mexico Military Institute. Classes taken were silversmithing, gardening and Spanish.

The center annually enrolls interested people in a home economics workshop at New Mexico State University in Las Cruces which involves spending a week on campus. Classes taught locally have included stained glass, acrylic painting, ceramics, leathercraft and lapidary. Two sewing machines are also available for use

ARTS AND CRAFTS are displayed in the Ruidoso Adult Recreation Center. Bette Romans, center director, said regular visitors constantly bring in new ideas and share them with others.

WORLD WAR II P-52 MUSTANG fighter plan was flown to Ruidoso Saturday from Los Angeles, California, by Bob Hoover, one of the nation's foremost aerobatic pilots. Hoover, who has been flying aerobatics since 1938, demonstrated the P-51's maneuvering capabilities to members of the Conquistadores del Iielo, aerospace manufacturers meeting at the Inn of the Mountain Gods over the weekend, in an exhibition above the waters of Lake Mescalero.

at the center. Information and Referrals — "We have a reassurance calling list of about 26 people who live alone, are bedfast or not in good health," Romans said. "We call them every morning to make sure they are okay and see if they need anything."

Outreach services — "Visits to people who are ill or confined to homes are a big part of our outreach program," Romans said. Blood pressure checks and weight screenings are conducted regularly at the center and if people need rides to the doctor's office or pharmacy, the center can provide transportation during the week.

Recreation — Card games, board games, dominoes, ice cream socials, covered dish dinners and picnics, cookouts, pool, exercise classes and dances every week attract many people who may have time on their hands. Some evening activities are planned regularly, such as dances every Thursday. Romans said other activities are added to the schedule when enough interest is shown.

Transportation — "We have a regular driver, Roland Moss, who spends all day Friday taking people from the Village of Ruidoso wherever they need to go," Romans said. The center uses a van for such trips.

Angelia Garms has worked as a secretary at the center since February. She is a former volunteer and part of her job is performing blood pressure checks. The center is located behind the Ruidoso Public Library and regular hours are 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., weekdays. The center is open evenings according to the schedule and all activities are free.

FREE BLOOD PRESSURE CHECKS are a service provided by the Ruidoso Adult Recreation Center. Angelia Garms, left, checks Claude Peterson's blood pressure. The service is offered during office hours of 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Downs police, firemen set benefit ball

The Ruidoso Downs Police and Firemen's Ball will take place May 25 at the Chaparral Convention Center from 9 p.m. to 1:30 a.m.

Dance attire is casual and proceeds from the country-western affair will be donated to the Ruidoso Downs police and fire departments. Advance tickets can be purchased from Ruidoso Jaycees or at the Chaparral Lounge.

Annual RC&D meeting set

The annual meeting of the South Central Mountain Resource Conservation and Development (RC&D) will be Thursday at 1 p.m., in the REA Coop Building conference room, Carrizozo. Bill Huey of the Natural Resources Department of the State Planning Division will be guest speaker. Agenda items include election of officers, annual reports and progress reports on RC&D measures.

Rape defense methods outlined

BY GWYNETH JONES
Staff Writer

Most of the information which has surfaced over the past few years on the subject of rape has dealt with the philosophical implications of the crime, legal aspects of prosecution or the proliferation of rape-crisis intervention programs across the country.

Somewhat less emphasis has been placed on prevention of the crime, and some "experts" now feel that much of the traditional advice given women in regard to avoidance of rape is "worthless." That was the term used by Frederick Storaska, author of a book entitled "How to Say No to a Rapist—And Survive." Classified under this category were such tactics as screaming, crying, pleading, struggling, the study of self-defense disciplines such as karate and the use of weapons—Keys, umbrellas or more conventional knives or guns.

Carrie Raventon, coordinator of the Lincoln County rape-crisis program, said the key point to remember in the event of an assault is that rape is a violent crime, not a sexual crime.

"You're dealing with an angry person who is prepared to be violent," she said. She added that this realization "should guide you" in your efforts to avoid rape or murder.

Also recommended by Raventon were the more specific guidelines set down in the Storaska book, which was compiled by the author after extensive interviewing of rape victims or near-victims to determine how they managed to escape relatively unharmed.

Storaska first set down three "laws of assault safety." The first of these is "Don't antagonize." Because the rapist is an emotionally disturbed person, any struggling, screaming, or fighting may cause the person to "explode" emotionally, with the result being great harm to the victim.

What one needs to avoid, Raventon said, is doing anything which will encourage the rapist to be violent.

The second law, according to the author, is "Make sure everything you do is reversible." A violent reaction by the victim, he said, will "set the ground rules for violent confrontation." The winner of the confrontation, Storaska said will be the one best prepared for violent action, usually the rapist.

Storaska's third law is almost a combination of the first two: "Whatever you do, make sure that either it will work all the time or at least it won't make things worse." The author admits that screaming, struggling, crying, etc., will make a prospective assaulter "turn and run . . . about 50 percent of the time."

The pointed question is, however, "What about the other 50 percent?" Storaska's answer is "That's when he smashes you with his fist, cuts you up with a knife, maims you, rapes you, kills you."

The author goes on to examine four commonly recommended tactics—screaming, struggling, weapons and running—and why each is usually ineffective.

The oft-cited case of Kitty Genovese is one of the most convincing arguments that screaming is not a sure-fire method for avoiding rape or injury, Raventon said. Genovese was attacked in a courtyard of a New York city apartment building. Forty-four people listened to her screams and later watched as the rapist knifed her to death. Not one of the witnesses bothered to call the police.

Another important fact to remember, Storaska said, is that the rapist doesn't want to hear screams, and accordingly, will make every effort to stop that screaming.

Only one unusual set of circumstances was set down by the author as a situation in which he would advocate screaming. The criteria stated were the victims' complete certainty that help is within hearing distance, that the help would respond, the help would be entirely adequate to meet the situation and complete certainty that the victim would not be killed before that help arrives.

Struggling or fighting, Storaska said, is also inadvisable, except in immediate defense of one's life. The victim may have acquired a first degree black belt in karate, but the author points out that the rapist may be a third-degree black belt.

He advised struggling only when the victim can be sure the rapist has no weapon or nearby friends, that the victim is as quick and can fight as well as the rapist and that the victim's abilities have not been dissipated by the shock of being attacked.

The "knee to the groin" or "smashing of the instep" as methods of escape are also refuted by the author. Differences in height, weight and body position almost always negate the effectiveness of these tactics, Storaska said. Raventon added that a victim must be able to incapacitate the attacker. "Otherwise he will become angrier, and more inclined toward violence."

A major problem with weapons, Storaska said, is that they are usually concealed in a purse, and in the surprise of an attack, the victim almost always drops purses or other equipment.

Containers of tear gas or mace can be turned against the victim, Storaska added that the amount of gas usually contained in the devices is so small that it usually does no more than annoy the rapist. The only lasting effect, therefore, is the further antagonizing of the attacker.

The initial search for a weapon often has the same effect, Raventon said; because the rapist usually realizes what a woman fumbling with her purse is looking for—something to help her fight back.

Running away from an attack sounds like the best strategy of all, but Storaska said this too, is unwise. In the first place, "most men can outrun most women." Secondly, he adds, the rapist wants to prevent the woman from running, and will very likely knock her to the ground and "keep hitting her until he's sure she won't run away again."

Running is effective only when the woman becomes aware of an attack before it actually occurs, and genuine safety is within a few feet, Storaska said.

In another section of his book, Storaska looks at strategies or methods which have been used by women who escaped without injury and often without being sexually attacked. A future article will deal with these methods.

A luncheon kicking off the fund raising campaign for the newly-formed Ruidoso Chapter of the American Cancer Society will take place Thursday noon at K-Bobs.

Public relations coordinator Louise Hansen, said the society usually sponsors fund raisers in April and May. "Since we were just formed, we are having ours later in the season. We hope to get some response from the seasonal residents, too," Hansen said.

More information will be forthcoming as the local chapter continues to grow, Hansen said.

Girl scouters hold awards ceremonies

Ruidoso's Junior Girl Scout Troop and two Brownie Scout Troops joined in a special awards ceremony Wednesday evening at White Mountain School.

Third grade Brownies "bridged" into Junior Scouts, and Brownies received their "Brownie B" patches for accomplishment in their areas of activity. Several Junior Scouts received badges for special interest achievement. All girls received their year pins.

Jane Deyo, first vice president of Zia Council and Ruidoso chairman, brought greetings and thanks from the Council to leaders for their year's work with Brownies and Scouts.

Plans are now underway for next year's Girl Scout programs and summer leadership training is scheduled for all leaders in Ruidoso.

Leaders the past year included Kay Snodgrass, Sonja Crown, Kathy Foster and Linda Autrey.

Kindergarten pre-registration under original estimates

With the first kindergarten pre-registration finished, Nob Hill principal Don Weems said only about one third of expected enrollment pre-registered.

"We have a projected enrollment of 100 children for next year's kindergarten," Weems said. He said the figure is derived from traditional enrollment figures for the last five or six years.

Weems said 33 people had brought their children in for pre-registration at the close of school Friday, which compares to about 60 in past years. "It's a start, but we really need more children registered to set up next year's bus routes," Weems said.

"I really appreciate the parents bringing in the birth certificates and shot records. The nurse checks the shot records and if the child doesn't have all the required shots, they will have all summer to get caught up," he said.

Weems said a final registration will be held in late August.

Inspiration Corporation sets music, drama camps

Inspiration Corporation will provide a music and drama day camp for children age four through 10 this summer.

The sessions will each last one week with rehearsals from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m., and performances scheduled for Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The first session runs from June 10-17; the second July 1-8 and the third July 22-29. Cost for one child is $20. The second child from a family may enroll in the program for $15 and the third for $10. Parents may sign their children up for more than one session.

Application blanks may be picked up from the principals of Nob Hill and White Mountain Elementary schools or from God-Spel on Sudderth Drive. For more information call 257-5903 or 257-2111.

Family Night at Woman's Club

The Woman's Club of Ruidoso resumes their summer schedule of Family Night entertainment Thursday at 8 p.m.

"This special evening is hosted by the Woman's Club," a spokesman said, "during the summer season as an added attraction for our visitors as well as our year around residents."

LEVEL LOOP CARPETS are very much "in" from commercial installations in your favorite stores and supermarkets to the most luxurious homes.

What is a "level loop" carpet? Well, it can be any carpet with looped rather than cut pile...but wide usage today refers to the low, dense level-loop carpets created for especially hard wear as well as moisture and stain-resistance.

Such carpets are often called indoor-outdoor carpeting, with olefin fibers being most popular. The olefin fibers have great virtue of being completely non-absorbent. Kitchen spills are easily wiped up...and outdoor moisture won't affect the carpet.

The versatility of these carpets shouldn't make you think they belong only outdoors or in special rooms like kitchens. There is probably a perfect place for a durable level-loop carpet in some room of almost every home, especially very active rooms like dens, family and recreation rooms.

You'll find these exciting carpet developments in our big display, in beautiful new prints as well as striking colors. It's our business to bring you the best of today's carpets...and we'll even bring samples right to your home. Call now!

Warriors' seasons revisited

BY JOHN NEYLAND

The Ruidoso High School All-Sports Banquet Monday was more than an awards giving ceremony. It was a time for coaches, players, parents and fans to reflect on the past season. All concerned preferred to focus on all of the ups of the past season instead of the downs.

The coaches will readily admit that their won-lost records weren't as impressive as they would have liked. But one bad apple doesn't spoil the entire bunch. And the coaches weren't about to let a few downs spoil the ups. It went something like this.

The Ruidoso football team spent most of the season looking for its legs. They came close to finding them more than once, only to have them chopped off at the knees by the likes of Carrizozo, Animas and Hatch. But the Warriors never gave up. Proof of that was their less-than-expected 13-0 loss to Silver City.

There were times when the Warriors found their legs. It usually belonged to senior kicking specialist Mark Dutton. Dutton kicked a 43 yarder in the season opener. He added some other long shots in later games. His prowess gained him all-state honors as both a kicker and punter. There were other bright spots, although Truman Bob might not agree. He was injured most of the time. But he still played. He was named outstanding defensive lineman at the banquet. His presence on the field was cherished by coach Darrell Sterwalt.

The brightest spot was, of course, the lone win of the season against Cloudcroft. As was the case in most of their losses, Ruidoso's win was by the narrowest of margins. Considering it came at a time when Sterwalt said his team was nearly out, it was a very big win.

And then there was the girls' volleyball team. They didn't fare as well as coach Sergio Castanon expected. The volleyball team rode the spiking of Kristi Perryman and Ellen Bizzell to a so-so record. Castanon was perplexed most of the season concerning his team's shortcomings. He waited and waited for signs of improvement. They showed themselves fleetingly, like a mermaid in the sea.

Castanon's crew was ousted at the district tournament. Castanon looks to the future. The boys' basketball team opened the season with high hopes. First-year coach Barry Nelson planned a run and gun offense. We may not win, he said, but we'll be exciting. After a couple of one sided losses, Nelson opted for winning over excitement. The Warriors changed to a patterned offense. The fast break was brought out of mothballs only occasionally. When Ruidoso defeated district leader Hatch convincingly, the Warriors were en route to the championship themselves. A not-so-funny thing happened on the way to the throne, however. Underdogs like Animas and Lordsburg bombed the Warriors, sending Nelson into a depression. He knew then that, unless his team shaped up, they would be shipped out. They shaped up, but a last second point-loss at the hands of Animas sent the Warriors into retirement.

The girls' basketball team followed its male counterparts' lead. They were up and down all year. When the season ended, they were up, almost as high as they could go. Only a nine point loss to impressive Questa kept the Warriors from a berth in the state finals. Coach Castanon juggled his lineup at times in search of a winning combination. He got it at the district tournament. Ruidoso beat Lordsburg and Hatch by one point, thereby earning a spot in the regional tournament. The following loss to Animas in the finals of the district tournament did nothing to dampen Castanon's spirits. The surge with which the Warriors finished the season left, as Castanon said, a good taste in one's mouth.

The wrestlers opened the season with lots of question marks. Most centered on the inexperienced squad Gerald Ames fielded. What they lacked in maturity, however, they made up for in heart. Senior Ray Herrera inspired the team to previously unattainable heights. Dirk Strassburg won the district championship in the 98 pound class. Wes Atkinson, undefeated in regular season, lost the district championship by one point. The defeat soured his season, but he accepted the loss. Ronald Bell, Greg Lane, Byron Wright and Marlin Randall performed well at the end of the season. Bell and Lane earned spots in the state tournament. Monday night Ames said he believed Lane could be Ruidoso's first state champion in wrestling. That may have been an impossible task a few years ago. But Ames has the kids believing in him. More important, the kids believe in themselves.

That brings us to track, where Ruidoso had a few that excelled. The girls started strong but by the time the season wound down, only 12 girls were on the team. Coach Castanon said that made it difficult to field any strong relay teams. Still Tammy McCulley, Rita Bob, Kristi Perryman and Toni Scarborough earned spots in the state track meet.

The boys' team had more people out for the team than ever before. Although it didn't pay off in a district championship, Ruidoso was represented in the state meet. Stan Cape, Mark Dutton, Jovian Smith and Joe Almager took the trip to Albuquerque. None placed, but they improved their past performances.

The golf team, even more so than the wrestlers perhaps, suffered from a lack of experience. Coach Leroy Gooch said many of the players on the team were holding a stick for the first time this season. In each outing, they improved. Gooch said if they will keep practicing, next year could be a banner season.

Monday night Galen Farrington, who bears the unofficial title of coach of the bicycle team, asked for a few moments on the podium. He said his only team member, Mike Collier, had done a grand job this season. The improvement he made was more than significant. It was fantastic. All he lacked was experience. Slowly, with the hundreds and hundreds of miles he logged, Collier became a class rider. Collier wasn't awarded any trophies. But Farrington knew he deserved one.

Speaking of next season, Ruidoso will be competing in class AAA. Although Ruidoso competed against many AAA teams this season, the step up will be noticeable. But don't count the Warriors out before the gun sounds. Athletes have a way of rising to the occasion, especially when they've been down. The competition will make them better. They will win more games next year than this year.

Proposed soccer league in the works

The foundation for a new children's soccer league is currently being laid by two men who have played the game for most of their lives.

Butch Grantham and Bob Gregson, two men weaned on soccer, are providing one hour clinics to students at Nob Hill Elementary and White Mountain schools. The purpose is to acquaint the kids with the sport so they might have enough interest to register for the proposed league in September.

The clinics are offered to each class by grades, which is how the league will be structured if enough teams register. If not, Grantham said, age groups will be combined.

Both boys and girls will be allowed to compete in the league, Grantham said, with each competing in separate leagues.

Both Grantham and Gregson said they hoped enough teams would register so the league could last six weeks. If there are only a few teams, the league will likely last only four or five weeks. In addition to the season beginning in September, a spring league will be formed. When that season begins depends on the weather. It probably will start in March or April, Grantham said.

Thus far, Grantham and Gregson have spoken to approximately 700 kids about the proposed league. They said the attitude has been receptive.

The biggest problem in establishing a new league, Grantham said, was getting together a group in town that would set rules and sit on the league's board. Seroma decided to back the plan. Grantham said their support has been unequivocal. Grantham also said five local businesses have agreed to sponsor teams for next season.

Despite the fall schedule, Grantham said playing soccer would not prevent a child from competing in Little League Football. The only conflict that might arise would be if both leagues scheduled games on the same day.

As of now, the soccer league doesn't have a field to play on. Grantham said, however, that there are plenty of open fields in Ruidoso that could easily be converted into soccer fields.

Eubank inks letter of intent to play next season in Hawaii

Former Ruidoso High School star Kirk Eubank signed a letter of intent to play the 1979-80 basketball season at the University of Hawaii. Eubank played with New Mexico Junior College last season.

Eubank, one of the finest shooters in the junior college's history, selected Hawaii after narrowing his choice from 20 offers to Hawaii and New Mexico State University. The 6'5" forward chose Hawaii because of its horticulture program, the beauty of the land and Hawaii's entry into the Western Athletic Conference next season. Hawaii assistant coach Dave Deets was on hand at Hobbs to sign Eubank. He said Eubank would fill Hawaii's need for a small forward who could shoot from the outside.

Carlsbad man fined for illegal deer kill

Persistent investigation into an illegal deer kill, discovered when a Las Cruces motel reported someone has butchered the animal in a rented kitchenette, recently came to an end with a guilty plea and $510 in fines, civil damages and court costs.

Game and Fish Conservation Officer David Roybal, Las Cruces, said the motel reported the incident the morning of February 13. The defendant, Brant L. Logan, 25, of Carlsbad, was located despite having registered at the motel under a fictitious name.

Logan was charged with one count of killing deer in closed season and one of illegal possession of deer. Appearing before Las Cruces Magistrate Ben Rios, he pleaded guilty and was assessed the statutory $400 fine on each count, with half suspended, plus $10 court costs. The Game and Fish Department assessed $100 civil damages for the state's loss of the deer.

Roybal said the deer was believed to have been killed in the Aguirre Springs area February 12.

He said the investigation involved the help of conservation and police officers in the Las Cruces and Carlsbad areas and the facilities of the State Police and Federal Bureau of Investigation crime laboratories.

Lawsuit hindering department dismissed in District Court

A suit that threatened a major federal funding source for basic wildlife research by the New Mexico Department of Game and Fish and all other state wildlife agencies has been dismissed without prejudice in United States District Court, the department has learned.

"We have viewed the suit since its inception as a harassing action by anti-hunting organizations aiming to disrupt funding flows to state wildlife agencies," said Harold Olson, Game and Fish Department director. "The plaintiffs, Defenders of Wildlife and the Committee for Humane Legislation, alleged that projects funded under the Pittman-Robertson (P-R) Act worked solely to the benefit of game animals and hunters at the expense of nongame animals and nonhunters."

"It's ironic that two of the projects they targeted in New Mexico are among the ones working most directly to the benefit of species with no hunting value — the Nongame Studies and Waterfowl Areas Development Project," Olson said.

The action taken by United States District Court Judge Charles R. Richey, Washington, D.C., leaves the way clear for renewal of projects that expire at the end of the fiscal year and for federal reimbursement to the states for work already completed, Olson said, although the plaintiffs may reopen the suit at any time, targeting individual projects.

Approximately one year ago, Olson said, the Committee for Human Legislation and Defenders of Wildlife filed for an injunction against funding of all of more than 600 research and conservation project funded by P-R monies. They contended that the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service had failed to comply with the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) and that Environmental Impact Statements were necessary on each individual project.

"Environmental Impact Statements (EIS) are required of 'major federal actions significantly affecting the human environment,'" Olson said. "For most of our projects, we have filed statements of negative declaration, meaning that environmental effects were so small as to be inconsequential. On others, such as land acquisition and development, we have presented Environmental Assessment Reports, which are less detailed than statements but which we felt were quite sufficient. None of our projects is of a magnitude requiring the full Environmental Impact Statement the plaintiffs demanded."

After a series of hearings and negotiations, the plaintiffs reduced to 182 the number of projects they flagged as requiring full EIS, Olson said. Four of those were in New Mexico.

"After reviewing the ones picked, we think it apparent that the plaintiffs simply selected from a fourth to a third of projects from each state, at random," Olson said. "Several from other states were purely administrative in nature, and the four selected from New Mexico appear to have nothing in common except size — they are among those receiving the largest amount of federal aid."

The federal aid monies come from excise taxes, paid at the manufacturing level, on firearms, ammunition and reloading components, Olson said. They are distributed to the states under a formula weighing each state's size and the number of hunting and fishing licenses sold in it. A similar program, created under the Dingell-Johnson (D-J) Act, taxes fishing equipment and is distributed for fisheries research and development.

The Fish and Wildlife Service distributes the states money for approved projects on a 74 percent federal-25 percent state matching basis.

"The $940,000 designated for the four projects flagged as needing EIS constitutes more than 46 percent of the total $1.8 million in P-R funds allocated to New Mexico this year," Olson said. "We have now filed Environmental Assessment Reports (EAR) on these and all other projects, including those funded under the D-J Act and the Endangered Species Act. The plaintiffs still have an opportunity to ask for an injunction against funding or renewal of the projects if they declare they need an EIS."

SANTA FE—Among laws which take effect on July 1 or earlier are some which will change things in our courthouses, as well as possibly overcrowding our scanty penal facilities.

Exact effect of these changes is hard to predict, but some things are clear already.

For those found guilty once the new laws are in effect, no more parole as we know it today. The only way a prison sentence can be reduced is by earning "good time," at a maximum of 12 days for each month served, and only if good conduct warrants it.

That means that eventually the parole board will also fade away, once those imprisoned under the old rules have been taken care of.

And some folks who get sentenced under the new system could find themselves being guests of the state for a longer time than in the old days, though hardly long enough to satisfy those who want to throw all prisoners under the jailhouse and toss away the key.

Here's what the changes will bring into being.

First, something called "presumptive sentencing." That's different from the "determinate sentencing" we were originally scheduled to get starting this summer, because the 1979 Legislature decided that left too much in the hands of judges, about whom they had some qualms and doubts.

"Determinate" means the law set a specific time to be served by those guilty of specific crimes, like 10 to 25 years for a first-degree felony. But the judge could still make a choice of any number of years between 10 and 25. Legislators thought that gave him or her too much discretion.

They gave us instead a system which sets a specific term to be served for each class of prisoner—18 years for a first-degree felony, nine years for a second-degree felony, three years for a third-degree felony and 18 months for a fourth-degree felony. But, so as not to lock the judges in too tightly, they allowed for judicial discretion to increase or decrease that basic sentence by no more than one third, depending on mitigating or aggravating circumstances.

All that got into law by way of a bill introduced by Rep. Brad Cates of Bernalillo county. Along with it came a companion bill from first-term George Banister of Clovis which changes the way sentences are to be calculated for habitual criminals.

This one too cuts back on the judge's discretionary powers by telling him just what to do: add one year to the basic sentence for anyone convicted of a second felony, three years for anyone on a third rap and eight years for anyone with more than three findings of guilt. And, it says, don't you judges suspend or defer any part of that sentence, just as you may not suspend or defer any part of the "enhancement" for committing a non-capital crime with a firearm, which is an extra year for a first offender and three years for a repeater. As for basic sentences, judges may suspend or defer all or any part of those, just as they may today.

All that makes some people predict that our prisons will be spilling over with "residents" after July 1. Maybe so; maybe not; there's no real way of telling. In the end, it all still depends on the judges, just as it does today. And they are a marvelously variable lot—some tough, some lenient and some now one way and now the other.

And of course we got a new death penalty, which many consider barbaric and over-cruel and which probably will be used infrequently if at all. It's not mandatory, and the spirit of the times makes it unlikely that it will be used except in the most blatant of cases.

Clipped Comment

SKELTON ULTIMATUM

If Red Skelton sticks by his guns, it may be a long time before we'll see him on television again. Recently he was said in Knoxville he wouldn't return to TV until (as one reporter put it) "it's been purged of sex and violence." That's almost like saying "never."

We would not put up any big defense of TV's overindulgence in those ingredients. Like many others, we have very little patience with the standard "copout" of throwing in some violence and/or sex to hold audience interest when dramatic imagination fails.

But the villain of the piece is not the use of these elements per se. The fault lies in excess — excessive, gratuitous sex and violence that have little or nothing to do with the drama. The level of programming would go up markedly if producers were to show more restraint in this regard.

A "purge" of televised sex and violence is not likely; nor is it desirable, since sex and violence are a part of life and thus have a legitimate place in drama. But maybe, given all the public clamor in recent times, these elements will be used more discriminately. Let's hope that will satisfy Red Skelton and encourage him to return to TV and approve re-runs of his old shows. He's been too long absent. — Alamogordo Daily News editorial

We don't know too much about the national Pepsi Learn and Earn competition in Houston, but we do know that the Distributive Education Club of America (DECA) students of Ruidoso High School rank second in the nation for accomplishment in that project.

There can be no question but that these DECA students, working on the Pepsi project, were inspired. And as number two nationwide, that's a mighty big number two.

No small measure of the success of our DECA students has to be attributed to the guidance of sponsor Eddie Parker. He obviously taught his students well and imbued them with the desire to win — backed up with the knowledge, and how to employ it, to earn this honor.

The lasting advantages of this individual and collective achievement will yet surface. Some of these students, as a result of DECA, may enter and become successful in the business world. All stand to benefit from the competitive drive, the desire to succeed, aroused in them through DECA.

The $1,000 in Pepsi-Cola stock must be considered as frosting on the cake. Parker has stated the stock will not be sold, but held. This could become an investment that will enable future DECA students to equal or exceed the successes attained by this year's Ruidoso High School DECA class.

We congratulate everyone concerned — the students, Parker and the other sponsors — for bringing new recognition to Ruidoso. — CD

HOW NOW SENIORS?

Now that the seniors of Ruidoso High School ... class of 1979 ... have Baccalaureate ... and the admonitions accompanying that function ... under their belts ... all should be inspired to tackle the pleasures and perversities of adulthood ... blithely and with beatific verbose grandiosity ... which could lead them into a state of discombobulation. It's this way ... at Baccalaureate the man on the podium spoke to you idealistically ... stressing ideology ... to begin your preparation to face the idiosyncrasies of the fuliginous world of reality lying ahead.

At Commencement Friday evening, once again the speaker will endeavor to infuse the graduates with a sense of self responsibility ... perhaps not clearly delineating the repercussions ... and resulting turmoil arising within the individual ... associated with literally cutting the umbilical cord that has heretofore provided a measure of security. To those continuing their education ... regardless of the field of endeavor ... the actualities of facing realities will be postponed until once again the calendar contains nothing but tomorrows, the enigmas of which must be confronted solely by the individual facing them.

Some may seek the educational possibilities offered by any of the various armed services ... and any veteran can attest to the fact that there are unlimited opportunities to become educated ... some of which could conceivably cause the individual to fervently wish that that solid contact with a lack of responsibility ... the umbilical cord ... had not been severed with the anticipatory pleasures generally associated with casting aside the restraints of youth, to assume a role in the adult world ... wherein pitfalls lurk, that were not spelled out previously, that tend to result in consequences that deflate the ego.

Lastly there's that determined group that ... by jinkies ... are going to get a job ... be on their own ... and get about the serious business of living ... without fear of recrimination ... at least, from their peers. It's this last group that immediately must prove themselves ... to their employer ... because that's the person in control of the new high school graduate ... solely in control ... because employers have that nasty tendency to believe they are entitled to a day's productive labor for a day's pay ... a not unreasonable request.

The immediate disadvantages ... high school seniors, slouching that diploma ... include rent ... utilities ... wheels and gas ... insurance ... dentists ... doctors ... clothing ... recreation ... and lastly, food. Yup ... your outlook on life can change with the realization that the necessities and luxuries you need and want are there ... only now, it's up to you to provide them.

On the thumb hand side ... however ... there's the comforting thought that you're looking the world right smack dab in the eye ... and not flinching.

No matter which group of graduates you will be in ... the challenges lying ahead are the same ... to make your own way ... facing the same questions that presidents, governors, managers and foremen have always faced ... as they stood where you are now standing ... Quo vadis ... which don't mean full speed ahead without direction.

There are the rewards of making it on your own ... not the least of which is respect for yourself ... a commodity that shouldn't be in short supply, if your life is going to become what you want it to be.

Then there's the satisfaction ... as time passes ... of doing a job well ... of realizing that you did it ... and knowing that those apparently insurmountable mountains on the horizon all offer some means of climbing them ... it's merely a matter of determination.

As the future unfolds ... and you are hanging in there tough ... there are always "the Joneses" to be kept up with ... only, now, you can decide which of the Joneses you want to keep up with ... or become better than ... or merely forget about entirely.

As each challenge is met, the thing that keeps life interesting is that nothing surfaces ... or should. There's another like a little problem or three to keep life from getting boring.

So ... seniors ... remember, your only limitations are self-imposed. BRIEF BIT: If your life could be a rose, and you'd squeeze it until the petals fall ... it'd behoove you to remove the thorns before squeezing ... CD

Brother Lynn Visits Our Home in the Vale

Our Brother Lynn came up from his Ranch in Dripping Springs, Texas for a day here in our home in the vale. He arrived the afternoon of Tuesday here in the land of his boyhood and youth, and many a fond memory was shared as we strolled over the sacred ground where we and all the family have spent so many happy days.

Our Father's love of photography has been passed down to brothers Lynn and Mark and they have both taken some rare pictures of the scenes around the Storm Ranch here in the land of the Pinon and pine.

Lynn and I climbed the little hill southeast of the house looking for a spot from which we could see the White Mountain. From time to time Lynn would take a deep breath, smile, and say, "Ah, that air. That air."

It was the incense of the pinon trees welcoming him home again.

"It is the pinons I recognize first," he said. "We have the Cedars down at Dripping Springs."

While we were climbing the hill we stopped to get our breath and have a view of the little house in the vale and the valley winding up through the hills, and the top of the white mountain streaked with snow showing over the hill beyond. We both stood feeling that thrill of joy that the sight of our mountain always brings to your heart when you see it suddenly appear—especially when it forms a crown of glory beyond a long-familiar scene.

Then from amongst the pinon trees farther up the hill there drifted down to us a clear bird call—like a little bugle note, echoing down the hill and across the valley. Lynn's face glowed with a look that carried him back through the years and transformed him for the moment once more into his boyhood.

"A pinon bird," he said, "How I love that sound."

I told him that I never heard the pinon birds, calling as they called in a blue flock, that the early days were not called back to mind. We all remember how much he loved the pinon birds as a small boy here at the home. We have called the Pinon bird Lynn's "Tolcan."

The totem is taken from the lore of the American Indians. Your totem is your special friend and companion among the creatures of the wild. Surely the Pinon Bird is the totem of all of us here in our homeland in the hills.

The land of the Pinon and Pine has always formed much of the inspiration for the paintings of our brother, Mark. Hardly a day passes that I do not see one or more scenes that would make great treasures as paintings.

Lynn took several such scenes during his stay here. The other evening, the sun was just on top of a hill to the northwest of the house. The whole sky was ablaze with the last burst of the sun's glory. Down in front of the gate, patiently waiting to welcome me home, lay Solo Vine, the black dog who had come to the house almost starved to death in a snow storm.

Here was a scene full of so many things: The joy of coming home in the evening; the faithful, trusting nature of a dog, and his patience and devotion; the sacredness of the home—all these were in this evening picture. Now the main material of this scene is in one of Lynn's photos.

Lynn brings the rain.

You remember how the wind blew from the west steadily for five or six days. This is very unusual in May. However whenever the wind does blow like this for a long spell, there is bound to be rain coming soon from the other direction.

As Lynn was leaving about noon on the sixteenth, the little new born calf was asleep under a cedar bush while his mother grazed nearby. From time to time the mother looked to the east.

After Lynn left I walked back from the river to the house, and on the way I saw the little calf running and kicking from one end of the field to the other. Whenever you see this, you know that the rain is on its way.

Soon the thunder rumbled and the sprinkling clouds moved in. Lynn had brought some rain with him from down Texas way. A slow rain falling late into the night has brought us a different world today on the seventeenth. The very air is glowing from the green reflected from the hills and fields.

You look out upon the green world under the blue sky washed pure by the rain, while the white clouds sail overhead. The more you look the greater your eyeright delights in the scene and your soul is filled with more and more joy each minute.

The visits of my brothers always reawaken so many happy memories. I look forward this summer to visits from Mark and Lynn and many other loved ones. On these beautiful days our hearts are filled with gratefulness. Let us thank God for all our blessings.

I-n-s-i-d-e the Outdoors
by Gary Dohlan

We New Mexicans often don't realize how fortunate we are. Where else could you sit in the comforts of home and still visit Arizona and California by way of spring winds? Perhaps, we will get enough changes in wind direction this year so that we might also take a look at Texas, Oklahoma, Colorado, Utah and even Mexico.

Such a means of travel must be some consolation for the pain of sky-rocketing fuel prices. Now, speaking of prices, let's take a look at the cost of hunting and fishing licenses.

Every year about this time I get to listen to the moans and groans of people coming in our office to buy their new hunting and fishing licenses. I feel compelled to sympathize with their reactions, for a few minutes anyway. Then, I walk back out into the world of reality.

I think about the prices of those things I have to have in order to survive on a day to day basis. There are my house payments, my utility payments, my grocery bills, my vehicle payments and my gasoline bills, just to mention a few.

Sure, you can cut corners on some of these items, but usually to no significant extent. You can probably think of several other things also on which you spend your money, such as clothing, medical bills, birthday gifts, greeting cards; and this list goes on and on.

Sooner or later though, you are going to find on this list an item called recreation. Ah, good of recreation, the things you can enjoy that will take your mind off of all these money matters.

There is bowling, golfing, skiing, movies, hunting, fishing and more. But wait, these cost money, too! In the Roswell area, bowling costs 75¢ a game, and a dime more than that on weekends. A person can golf 18 holes on our city course for $2.50 during the week and $3.50 on weekends.

Or, your interest might be in skiing, whereas you can go to Sierra Blanca and get a lift ticket for $12.50 a day. If that's too much, you can stay home and take in any of the movies showing at a local theatre at $2.50 a head for adults.

Last but not least, there is hunting and fishing. You can buy a general hunting and fishing license for $25.00. This entitles the holder to hunt for deer, bear, turkey, dove, quail, crane and squirrel during their appropriate seasons. This license holder can fish for trout, catfish, bass, perch, walleye, northern pike and many other species of fish for 365 days a year (license year April 1 - March 30) in most of New Mexico's waters. All of this opportunity is available at the same rate a week and a half of golfing would cost in Roswell.

However, if you don't want to take in all of the hunting and fishing opportunities, you can buy your special interest licenses at lesser costs. For example, a big game license (for deer, bear, and turkey) costs $12.50, which is the same price for that lift ticket for one day of skiing at Sierra Blanca.

If you are a bird hunter only and want to take part in these seasons which usually run about 9 1/2 months consecutively, not including an earlier one month dove season, you can buy a small game license for $8.50. That is cheaper than four trips to the theater would cost you.

A fishing-only license costs $11.50 and entitles the holder to take all species of game fish in cold and warm waters alike. A fisherman wanting to fish only in waters designated as non-trout waters can buy a $7.50 fishing license. Even if you fished just three weeks out of the year that license cost only 3¢ for each of those 21 days. Remember those 75¢ a game bowling fees?

The point is, hunting and fishing are forms of recreation. These are privileges and not rights. Your license fee money goes back into the game and fish activities for this state.

So, the next time you buy that hunting or fishing license, bow about just winning. Save your complaints for those gasoline and grocery bills, you HAVE to pay them.

GREATEST HEROES OF THE BIBLE

Actor-singer Ed Ames stars as Lot, the righteous man spared by God in the destruction of the pagan cities of 'Sodom and Gomorrah,' the Tuesday, May 22 edition of NBC-TV's 'Greatest Heroes of the Bible.' The starring cast also includes Gene Barry, Dorothy Malone and Peter Mark Richman. Suzanne Reed (pictured left), Leslie Parrish (right) and David Opatoshu co-star.

To avoid internecine friction, Lot reluctantly parts from his uncle, the great Hebrew patriarch Abraham, to lead his followers in search of better pasture and more fertile farmland. Regretably, he chooses a site under the enslavement of cruel King Phagon, the despotic ruler of two immoral, barbaric and menacing cities—Sodom and Gomorrah.

Aware of Lot's virtue, two powerful angels allow only him, his disbelieving wife and their family to flee the fiery holocaust-unleashed by God to obliterate the wickedness of Sodom and Gomorrah.

DUKES OF HAZZARD/ DALLAS

On Friday, May 25, CBS-TV will present encore telecasts of "The Dukes of Hazzard" and "Dallas."

"The Dukes of Hazzard," starring Tom Wopat, John Schneider and Catherine Bach, recounts the triumphs and misadventures of the Duke cousins. Tonight, Bo and Luke pick up a pretty hitchhiker, to add to their woes while trying to escape from the highway patrol in a moonshiner's car.

In "Dallas," starring Barbara Bel Geddes, Jim Davis, Patrick Duffy, Larry Hagman, Victoria Principal and Charlene Tilton (pictured), a severe thunderstorm forces the Ewing plane with Bobby and J.R. as its sole passengers to crash into a swamp, leaving the Ewing women waiting to hear if they are alive or dead as they try to keep the news from Jock because of his recent heart operation.

A BOY NAMED CHARLIE BROWN

Confronted with familiar words like "insecure" and "failure" and "incompetent," which he feels must have been invented to describe him, Charlie Brown is a surprise smash hit in a school spelling bee, which he was dared to enter, in 'A Boy Named Charlie Brown,' the first motion picture starring the Peanuts, which will be rebroadcast Saturday, May 26, on CBS-TV.

Snoopy, Linus, Lucy, Schroeder and the rest of the spunky little Peanutsland inhabitants also star in the film adventure.

When Charlie Brown becomes his school's spelling bee champion, Lucy and the lady Peanuts are suddenly faced with the fact that he could quite possibly be a money-making celebrity. With dreams of sharing in his fame, Lucy then convinces Charlie that he must enter the national special competition.

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT 'Laverne and Shirley' star Penny Marshall has dumped her husband to get it on with 'Heaven Can Wait' co-star Charles Grodin. Penny, whose marriage to former 'All in the Family' star Rob Reiner has been on the rocks for months, was spotted at various Hollywood restaurants and film premieres hugging and kissing Grodin. "Oh, I've been caught," Penny confesses, blushing and smiling. "Well, there's nothing to hide. I've just had it up to my ear lobes with Rob, honestly!" Being labelled one of the world's most beautiful women is driving Lynda Carter ('Wonder Woman') insane, according to her mother, Jean Carter. "Many men seem to resent beautiful women. They're compelled, for whatever reason, to put down an extremely attractive girl. My daughter can't handle that sort of thing. She also is having trouble coping with all the people who simply gape at her as if she were some goddess instead of a normal, talented young woman who happens to be extremely lovely." There's big changes in the works for 'Mork and Mindy.' ABC executives reveal Conrad Janis and Elizabeth Kerr, who play Mindy's father and grandmother, will be removed, and wild and crazy Jim Belushi, who starred in 'Who's Watching the Kids,' will become a regular. "Robin needs someone he can improvise with and the combination of Jim and Robin together is something you have to see to believe," the exec grins.

INSIDE LOOK AT TV: Lovely Linda Kelsey plays a macho chick on 'Lou Grant,' but in real life she's a sweet, feminine pussycat. She sits amid the delicate antiques and pink walls of her California cottage denying any similarity between the real Linda and the tough but effective character she plays. "Billie always wears jeans, but I prefer dresses and skirts." Jean Stapleton, who torpedoed 'All in the Family' when she retired, may return thanks to the blizzard of protest mail she's received. "If they can come up with something new in the way of lines for Edith Bunker, I may reconsider," she hedges. Suzanne Somers has stopped making scandal and has started to make money. The wacky star of 'Three's Company' has inked a contract with CBS to star in specials and her own 13-week show, to enrich her by $3 million. She's the first TV star to shine on two networks at once. The long-awaited crack in the Kate Jackson-Andrew Stevens marriage has finally appeared. Kate fled to Las Vegas alone after a fight with Andy, and sought comfort from old boyfriend, 'Battlestar Galactica's' Richard Hatch.

BEHIND THE SCENES: Former 'McMillan and Wife' star Susan Saint James and mate Tom Lucas have split, but they insist they'll never divorce. "I don't plan on getting married again, and I don't think divorce is necessary," Susan spacy explains. "Tom and I are modeling our separation on that of Shirley MacLaine and her husband, who've been apart for years but still are considered married." The love bug has finally bitten Grant Goodale, 26, who plays sexy David Bradford on 'Eight Is Enough.' The handsome, charming Grant recently took the marriage dive with beautiful photographer Debby Ketchum. And surprisingly, Grant admits he might never have considered marriage if it wasn't for his 'Eight Is Enough' co-stars. "I really wasn't ready for marriage, but my co-stars knew I would lose her if I didn't make a move towards the altar. They thought I'd be miserable without her so they fast-talked me into it." The World Invitational Racquets Championship will air on CBS-TV June 10. Featured in the sports event are tennis star John McEnroe, table tennis champ Dan Seemiller, racquet ball champ Marty Hogan, squash champ Sharif Kahn and badminton champ Chris Kinard.
