County budget $954,503

BY GWYNETH JONES
Staff Writer

Lincoln County commissioners Tuesday approved a budget which provides for a general fund of $954,503 for county services for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The largest departmental sum was designated for the county road department, which will receive approximately $415,000, according to county manager Truman "Bill" Billingsley.

Approval of the document, which must now be sent to the state Department of Finance and Administration for final acceptance, came after a department-by-department review by the commissioners and manager during the meeting in Carrizozo.

The commissioners also clarified the county policy on salary increases. All county employees will receive a five percent cost-of-living increase as of July 1. Other raises will be granted in conjunction with promotions and at the close of the six-month probationary period for new employees.

Consideration of amendments to ordinances dealing with old Lincoln town was tabled, after a brief debate broke out among members of the Lincoln Historical Review Board, local rancher Ray Taylor and Dave Morris, who leases land near Lincoln.

Taylor said that a portion of his ranch had been included in the historical zoning after recent action by the townspeople at a public meeting. The action, which consolidated two historically zoned areas, was also approved at the time by the county commission.

The rancher objected to inclusion of his land in the area, saying he "didn't like anyone telling me what to do with my land."

Review board members confirmed that public meetings (protest hearings) had been held on the matter, and a general vote had shown the "overwhelming majority" to be in favor of the action. Taylor did not attend the meetings.

Morris, who stores heavy equipment near Lincoln, also objected to the zoning changes. Review Board members asked him to move his equipment to make it less visible from the highway. He said he had also planned to move a mobile home onto his rented property. The zoning ordinances place some regulations on the types of structures to be built or installed in the area designated.

The commissioners decided to seek legal advice on the matter, to determine if a compromise could be reached.

In other business, the commission: — Passed a resolution declaring the Baber Loop section of San Patricio a disaster area, and asking the assistance of the state for repairs, since the job was "beyond the financial capabilities of the county."

— Awarded the county fuel contract to LaMay Distributing Company, the only bidder.

— Authorized purchase, on a demonstration basis, of a water purification device for the county electronic data processing center.

— Appointed Bud Payne to serve on the county Road Review Board.

— Referred a request for a road vacation from Arthur C. Dolf to the county Planning and Zoning Commission.

— Tabled a request from Wynn-Bray for a cattergaul. Chairman T.P. "Cotton" McKnight said he felt that the road to the Lincoln sanitary landfill took priority over the Bray request.

— Approved Neff and Company as county auditing firm.

— Instructed the county manager to consult with department heads regarding hiring of summer CETA workers.

— Heard a request from Mary Ellen Payne and Bobby Dan Crenshaw for financial assistance for the Carrizozo swimming pool, which they said was used by various communities in the county and because the pool doesn't share in other recreational funding.

FOUR YEARS OF WEAR AND TEAR have finally caught up with the wooden signs in front of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce, so this week, Tom Rossleur, pictured, will give the sign a facelift by applying new paint. He said he'll probably apply at least two coats of oil base paint because "it's really soaking into the wood a lot." This is the first time the sign has been painted since it was erected in 1975.

Downs eyes traffic fine change

Traffic violators in Ruidoso Downs may no longer be required to appear in court and post bond for their offenses, if final approval is given a proposed amendment to the traffic code of that village.

Meeting Monday night in regular session, the trustees gave their approval to a proposal suggested by police chief Ray Garner which would allow traffic fines to be mailed to the village.

The new provision was one approved by the state legislature during the last session. Garner said there would be no money given directly to the officer writing the citation, and that there would be no question about the amount of fines, since the fine schedule would be printed on the back of the ticket.

Several trustees questioned Garner about whether out-of-state drivers would comply with the citations. The chief explained that "if the tickets aren't taken care of, the court has the right to notify the motor vehicle division of the driver's home state and 'put' their license."

"Pinning the license" he explained, means the driver will not be allowed to renew the license until the fine is paid. Following that assurance, the proposal was approved unanimously. If given final approval, the measure should take effect sometime in early July, according to village clerk Virginia Spall.

The trustees also heard from Rex Vaughan of the Hollywood Inn, who said he and his wife Marie felt they were being "harrassed" by the mayor and police of Ruidoso Downs.

He said, "It has been brought to our attention that we are out of accordance with Ruidoso Downs police — they say we're not abiding by the rules and regulations." He asked the council and police department to advise him "where we're out of compliance," so he could correct the situation.

Chief Garner agreed to provide the Vaughans with a copy of the current liquor laws for the state.

In other business, the trustees: — Accepted the firm of Stern Brothers as financial advisors on the upcoming election. Their function will be to prepare an election brochure to help inform the voters about the issue and to sell bonds in the event the issue is approved. Their fees will be paid from the bond proceeds, Spall said.

— Appointed John Norman to serve as alternate municipal judge during vacations or other absence of Briggs West.

— Awarded an occupational license to Trader Otis Wood.

Local woman gunshot victim

The Criminal Investigation Division (CID) of the Ruidoso Police Department Tuesday was conducting an investigation into the death of Nina Jones, 35, Ruidoso resident.

Mrs. Jones died, a CID spokesman said, "of an apparent self-inflicted bullet wound, fired from a small caliber handgun sometime after 9 p.m., Monday."

A neighbor at Mark Apartments, where the incident occurred, notified CID officers early Tuesday morning that Mrs. Jones apparently hadn't left her apartment. Officers, responding to the call, found the body.

Mrs. Jones' three children are with one of her sisters in Albuquerque.

In a separate Monday night incident, CID officers are investigating the report that a shot was fired into the Canopy, a new lounge on Sudderth Drive currently under construction. The shooting was reported by Canopy owner Larry Montero.

The pictures being sought include weddings and strictly personal photographs that someone in the area might find, as well as several rolls of exposed film.

Tribe delays school plans

The Mescalero Apache Tribe's plans to open their own school system have apparently been delayed by at least one year, according to Ruidoso Superintendent of Schools Pat Valliant.

Valliant reported to school board members in a meeting Tuesday night that he and board president Dave Parks met with members of the tribe last week to discuss the future plans of the tribe. "They plan to send between 130 and 150 students here next year, or about the same as this year," Valliant said.

Several years ago, the tribe voted to open their own school system and discontinue sending students to Ruidoso and Tularosa. In trying to plan for the future, the local board agreed to meet with the tribe in hopes of being updated on their plans to build their own system.

"When they decide to open their own school, it will mean we'll lose a substantial number of students, and would have to plan on cutting teachers," Valliant said, but added that no long range plans of the tribe were discussed at the meeting.

"They have a good grasp of our educational and mechanical problems," Parks said. "But we need a little lead in time to plan for the future." Parks said he felt "we had a good meeting, a lot of rapport and a lot of cooperation from the tribe." Parks said the groundwork had been established for long range planning. "We stressed the need for advance notice if they decide to form their own system," Parks said.

The board also approved a grant application for federal and state monies which could be used to build a new track at the White Mountain site.

According to Valliant, 50 percent of the money would come from federal sources, 25 percent from the state and the other 25 percent would be generated locally.

Estimated cost of the new track was put at $143,000, and the approximately $35,000 local support, Valliant said, could probably come from "in kind services and labor." He and the board said the track was badly needed and could be used by the public as well as the school.

Plans call for a fenced in six lane track with a multi-use area inside the track. No field house would be included. "If we could get it, we could let other schools in the county use it to host track meets here," Parks said.

The board also: — Accepted bids on five items: maintenance of office machines, Western Office

Jaycees announce plans

The Ruidoso Jaycees this week announced a series of community action programs and projects they will begin implementing in the near future.

The planned ventures, outlined by chairman of the board Jim Scott and president Jim Lowrance, include:

— Classes in Cardio Pulmonary Resuscitation (CPR), enabling qualifying students to employ CPR on victims until ambulance personnel arrive on the scene. Instruction dates will be announced.

— Governmental Affairs Projects with stress on improvements on the state highway system in the Ruidoso area.

— Energy and environment improvement projects in Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs, including village cleanup and removal of environmental hazards. The Jaycees would implement these programs with the cooperation of the trustees of both villages.

— Parents Anonymous will be assisted by the planned addition of a regional telephone hot-line to handle inquiries and increase use of Parents Anonymous in this area.

— Junior Athletics to increase youth participation in current baseball, basketball and skiing programs; with expansion into boxing and track activities for the younger children.

Local Jaycees to prepare for these programs, attended the June 9-10 officers' training session in Roswell. Participants included Albert Richardson Jr., Mike Gray, Lowrance, Scott and Frank Thomas, a member of the Ruidoso as well as Las Cruces Jaycees.

Airport possible

Following a public meeting of about 100 Ruidoso airport supporters Monday evening, Jim King, Santa Fe, deputy Secretary of the state Department of Natural Resources, met with the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission (SBAC) and elected officials, to announce that "New Mexico State University (NMSU) man (now) lean toward compromise" on the problem of locating a regional airport on Fort Stanton mesa.

King said this was "only my opinion" and that he "could not speak for NMSU or anyone else," but that "I believe we're in a position to bring about a final resolution," to locating the airport on the mesa, "if each side will give a little."

VARIOUS ASPECTS OF SAFETY, for White Mountain and Mid School students, for housing developments surrounding the present Municipal Airport, and the present danger of an aircraft disaster in Ruidoso or Ruidoso Downs, were voiced by persons speaking during the meeting. Some speakers asked that Governor Bruce King be fully informed on the dangers to human lives existing with the use of the present airport.

Other speakers pointed out the economic possibilities to the county and area that would result from the new airport.

It was while King was meeting with SBAC and other officials, after the public session, that facts on land use were pointed out to King, including:

— The initial acreage requirement would be 275 to 300 acres. Construction time was pegged at two to three years and that this tract would serve the jet capable airport for a minimum of five years.

— The runways would be lengthened, as the next step in the airport development, when needed to accommodate air traffic. This phase would also require two to three years of construction and would again suffice to serve all but the largest aircraft for a minimum of five years, once it was fully operational. The additional land required for this step would be 100 acres.

This projection of land use for the airport — a total of 400 acres out of the mesa's 26,000 — would extend through 1999 and, chairman Hall said, "possibly several years into the next century."

King was advised that the final phase, calling for 13,500 foot runways, would require full utilization of the 2,000 acres SBAC seeks for developing Sierra Blanca Regional Airport to its full potential.

It was also stated to King, even when the 2,000 acres were in use for the airport, that there would still be acreage within the airport's boundaries that could be used for some of NMSU's herbage experiments and measuring moisture.

Bill Howard of the Federal Aviation Administration, (FAA) Albuquerque, advised the group that adherence to FAA requirements concerning buildings in the vicinity of the airport would have to be observed once the airport attained maximum size. Howard said this pertained to the height of structures and their usage. Schools or classrooms would not be permitted within certain distances of the runways.

Howard also said, "Chances are slim for environmental approval of Site A," due to present developments near the area. "It is my opinion that Site A (rejected by SBAC as too costly and not as safe as Site B) would not be approved," by the FAA.

King advised the group that he was to meet Wednesday and today with NMSU officials and "I hope to bring about a compromise," when he discusses Monday night's meeting developments with Dr. Gerald Thomas, NMSU president, and Dr. Bill Stephens, NMSU, Governor King's Secretary of Agriculture.

JIM KING RESPONDED to pointed questions.

Cancer crusade underway in area

The East Lincoln Chapter of the American Cancer Society kicked off their crusade this week in Lincoln County with substantial pledges already received from some businesses in town.

The cancer crusade was not scheduled to begin until Friday, but Ken Moore, crusade chairman, said he contacted businesses this week and has received a good response.

The group has decided to place red, white and blue cans marked "American Cancer Society" in supermarkets, restaurants and motels in Hondo, Capitan, San Patricio, Glencoe, Ruidoso Downs and Ruidoso, instead of canvassing neighborhoods.

Because Ruidoso is so spread out, door-to-door solicitations will not be extensive, but volunteers may be calling in some neighborhoods, according to Louise Hansen, public information chairman for the chapter.

The goal of $2,300 for this year's crusade will hopefully be reached through donations in cans and through the "living" memorial.

Treasurer Dottie Quaid said living memorials can be made to the ACS through her. Contributions can be sent in memory of a friend or relative who has died from cancer and a card will be sent to the family informing them that a memorial was given.

Quaid said memorials are tax deductible and can be sent to the East Lincoln County Unit, P.O. Box 3354, Hollywood Station, Ruidoso, New Mexico 88345. Be sure to include the name of the person the memorial is made for and the name and address of the family to whom a card should be sent. A tax deduction card will be sent to the donor upon receipt of a memorial.

"We feel the success of the campaign will depend on can donations," Hansen said.

Crusade chairman Ken Moore said money collected during the crusade will be used to further research and outreach programs sponsored by the ACS.

Since its formation in April, the local chapter has taken over the cancer screening clinic in Ruidoso, with local doctors volunteering hours every Thursday to keep the clinic in operation.

The Hospital Auxiliary is managing all administrative work at the clinic and the only charge for a complete screening is $4 for Pap smears. Appointments can be made by calling the Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital.

Volunteers are still needed to help with the crusade and people who can give a few hours' time are invited to contact Hansen by calling 257-7381, Extension 64. Pamphlets will be distributed again in the community at Gibson's Discount Center, Ben Franklin and Safeway, and volunteers are needed for this task.

Other literature is available in the hospital lobby every Thursday, while the clinic is in progress.

PEOPLE

THIS LUNKER TROUT didn't get away from Alaskan Jim Burns, who sold of it, "It's just over" a keeper. They have to be 28 inches or they throw the book at you." Burns is a former administrator of Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital.

and currently administrator of Bartlett Memorial Hospital, Juneau, Alaska. Burns, with his wife Ellen, will spend a week in Ruidoso beginning June 20, and will be house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Stephens.

Pink Ladies plan Thrift Shop

The Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital Auxiliary, known as the Pink Ladies, have announced plans to open a Thrift Shop July 3, at the Midtown Mart on Sudderth Drive.

The shop will stock trinkets and treasures, clothes, furniture, household items and appliances, a spokesman said, "including all those articles included in White Elephant, rummage or garage sales."

Contributors are asked to telephones 257-4862, 257-7144 or 278-4819 for information on when donated items may be brought to the Thrift Shop.

In the event of contributions of large furniture or appliance items, the Pink Ladies will make the pickup at the donor's residence or place of business.

All proceeds from the Thrift Shop will be used by the Pink Ladies to provide articles for Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital.

The first goal of the members is to defray the cost of installing a new intensive care unit (ICU) in the local hospital.

"We feel," a spokesman said, "there is a great need for this ICU unit in our hospital to provide the immediate care and attention required by heart patients."

"Over the years the Pink Ladies have put every penny we've made into furnishings and equipment for our hospital, with our contributions amounting to well over $20,000."

"The support of folks throughout this area to donate items to our Thrift Shop, as well as purchasing articles themselves, will insure the success of this venture to improve the quality of patient care and services available at Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital."

Six Rainbow girls attend state meet

Six members of Rainbow for Girls, Ruidoso, attended the Grand Assembly of New Mexico at Eastern New Mexico University, June 7-9.

Representing the local chapter were Patti Neal, Andrea Haddix, Phyllis Deal, Pam Parker, Darla Lathan and Jonetta Montgomery, Grand Representative to Wisconsin.

Two Ruidosoans pass broker's test

Judith F. Cotburn and Fred B. Heckman Jr., were among those passing the April-May Broker's Examination conducted in Albuquerque, the New Mexico Real Estate Commission has announced.

Garden Club meets June 19

The Ruidoso Garden Club will meet at 10 a.m., June 19 in the home of Mrs. Paul Whitman. She will also present the program, "From around the world - the garden in my windows."

A guided tour to the Whitman home will be provided for members, who should meet at the library at 9 a.m.

Final plans for the tour of homes and drive through gardens will be made, so a large attendance is important.

Hostesses for the meeting include Mrs. A.G. Weber, Mrs. W.B. Winniford, Mrs. L.C. Crews and Mrs. Roland Bauer.

Junior Girl Scout Kathy Gomez wins Zia Council camping trip

KATHY GOMEZ

Kathy Gomez, 10, a member of Junior Girl Scouts troop 4, Ruidoso, has won, for the second year in a row, an all expense paid trip to Camp Mary White, Mayhill, currently underway.

Kathy, in Zia Council competition, for the second consecutive year was awarded the two weeks camping junket for her record in selling more Girl Scout cookies within the council area than any other member.

She sold 418 boxes of cookies in 1978 and this year "didn't do so well," selling only 397.

"I want to thank those persons in Lincoln and Chaves counties," she said, "who bought their cookies from me, making my trip possible."

Kathy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe R. Gomez, Ruidoso.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, located adjacent to Nob Hill School, has more than 60 members and the congregation is growing steadily.

Ruidoso's Presbyterian Church dedicated to youth service

BY CHARLOTTE FELLERS
Staff Writer/Photographer

The First United Presbyterian Church in Ruidoso, organized in 1948, serves 60 active members and is still growing.

The church's charter members numbered 28 and the group first met in homes, school buildings and the American Legion building until the church building, located on Sutton Drive near Nob Hill School, was completed in February, 1955.

The church was dedicated March 27, 1955 with services held in the new sanctuary. The first sermon in the new building was given by Reverend John H. Justus of the El Paso, Texas, Manhattan Church.

As the church grew older, the membership slowly grew larger, and weathered a number of turnovers in the ministry of the church. Between 1950 and 1966, the congregation watched six ministers come and go, with the Reverend William B. Holmes Jr., staying the longest, seven years.

Then, in 1966, the present minister, the Reverend Frank Crown, moved to Ruidoso and has remained.

Crown said when he first arrived to take over as minister, the membership was not very high. It had stabilized around 40 members and he saw a challenge in trying to encourage more people to join the church, especially young people with families.

When the church was expanded in 1962 to include an educational building to house church school classes, the members felt a change was coming. The complex is still there and is used for church school every week.

It also is used by church youth groups of all denominations for retreats on weekends. The upstairs of the church is equipped with showers, restrooms and space to sleep 60 people. The social hall area of the church accommodates a large kitchen and dining area, which can also be used as a meeting room.

While many younger people have chosen to attend other churches in Ruidoso, Crown said, "We have a tremendous ministry to youth, even though they aren't youth right here in town." He said that last winter, the retreat center was booked solid during the main ski season, and most of the groups were young people.

In his 13 years of ministry to the Ruidoso church, Crown has watched the membership creep upward. Last year, it grew from 45 members to 60, a jump of 25 percent. Crown said he expects that number to be topped this year; already 11 new names have been added to the roster.

In 1969, Crown began serving as pastor of the churches at Nogal and Ancho in a yoke ministry and also serves as coordinator of Camp Chimney Springs in Cloudcroft.

Crown has served as church pastor longer than any other minister in Ruidoso, and has been in the ministry 39 years.

The most recent historical change the church made was in 1972, when it was one of five churches in New Mexico to affiliate with the United Presbyterian Church of the United States of America.

The current board of trustees includes Bob Chamberlain, Clarence Craft, Mrs. Frank Crown, H.S. Fitzgerald, Robert McDaniel, James Morris, George Shoemaker, Lillian Silkwood and Bill Wilson.

Services are held every Sunday at 11 a.m., and Sunday school is at 9:45 a.m.

REVEREND FRANK CROWN has been the minister at the First Presbyterian Church 13 years, longer than any minister in the church's history.

A NEW ORGAN, left of altar, was installed this year at the First Presbyterian Church.

Downs' handle may become record breaker

[SPECIAL TO THE NEWS]
The quality of horses now campaigning at Ruidoso Downs is the best in the track's history, and general manager Woody Erwin expects the current season to be another record-breaker.
Indicative of this trend, Erwin notes, was last Sunday's handle of $482,593—which was a solid gain over the $446,567 recorded on the same Sunday last year.
"The current season, from a mutual standpoint, is going very well, and we feel last Sunday's mutual strength is an indication of things-to-come," Erwin said.
So far this season, the gross handle, from 18 race days, stands at $6,641,109—which is a gain of $261,588 over the gross handle recorded last year at this time. Last year, of course, was the best season, mutual-wise, in the track's history.

At this point last year, Erwin noted, 17 race days were run, and the total handle stood at $6,379,521.
The only differences between the 1978 and 1979 schedules during this period was the fact the current season began on a Friday, rather than a Saturday.
"In order to get an exact comparison between the two seasons, one could discount the opening Friday of the current meeting, thus comparing a 17-day period with a 17-day period," Erwin said.
"On this day-to-day comparison, the 1979 meeting is actually ahead of last year's record-breaking pace," Erwin pointed out. "The current figure reflects a gain of $13,688."

Inn hosting mixed doubles tennis play

The Inn of the Mountain Gods has announced that a Lipton Iced Tea Mixed Doubles qualifying tournament will be held at the Inn's tennis facility in Mesalero, June 24.
"This is a unique opportunity for mixed doubles teams in this area to match their skills in a progressive, national tournament and I hope they take advantage of it," Herman Burkstaller, Inn of the Mountain Gods tennis pro said.
The winning team of the Lipton Iced Tea Mixed Doubles qualifying tournament will be eligible to compete in a regional tournament to be held in Santa Fe, during July-August. Thirty-two regional winners, their spouses and their hometown tournament director will be sent with all expenses paid to the National Finals at Woodlands Inn and Country Club in Woodlands, Texas September 13-16. The amateur championships are held during the Lipton World of Doubles which also includes the $150,000 ATP Men's Professional Doubles Tournament.
Players of all levels may compete in the Lipton Iced Tea Mixed Doubles which is part of the National Tennis Week program. Designed to encourage participation in the sport, National Tennis Week originated six years ago. National Tennis Week is sponsored by Thomas J. Lipton, Inc. and conducted by TENNIS magazine. This year more than 2,000 Lipton Iced Tea Mixed Doubles Tournaments, local NTW Tournaments and free clinics given by USPTA pros will be held throughout the country during the week of June 23-July 1.

Racquet Club will host special tennis matches

The Sierra Swim and Racquet Club has been chosen as one of two sites for eliminations in the Equitable Tennis Challenge, a nationwide series of matches sponsored by the Equitable Life Insurance Company.
According to David Bryant, Sierra Racquet Club's tennis pro, the event is designed to include all members of the family.
Matches are set up for different combinations of family members: father-son, father-daughter, mother-daughter, mother-son, and husband-wife teams are eligible to compete. No entry fee will be charged.
Bryant said the matches Saturday will bring competitors from all over southern New Mexico, with between 30 and 40 families expected to participate. Winners will receive medals and top placers will advance to the next eliminations round, scheduled sometime in July, also at Sierra Swim and Racquet Club.

Sectional eliminations will be held in Denver later in the summer, with winners advancing to the United States Open Tennis Tournament, held in New York. Sectional winners will receive an all-expenses-paid trip to New York.
Bryant said he was contacted in January by organizers of the tournament seeking a possible site for eliminations, mostly because Ruidoso is centrally located and because the facilities at the club are above average.
In a social match held over the weekend, Sierra Swim and Racquet Club hosted the Vista Hills Racquet Club of El Paso. In the dual match, Vista Hills defeated Ruidoso by one point, 11 to 10.

OGT rewards increased

Operation Game Thief (OGT) Citizens' Task Force has doubled the minimum reward for information on small game and fishing violations to $100 and upped the reward for information on violations of the state endangered species act to $250.
OGT board chairman Tony Pearson, Santa Fe, said the board voted to put the new system into effect June 1, beginning of Operation Game Thief's third year of operation.
"The $100 minimum rewards should increase the number of calls the Game and Fish Department gets regarding fishing and other violations," Pearson said. "By raising the minimum reward to $250 for information on endangered species act violations, we hope to put a crimp in illegal commercial traffic in rare animals."

Minimum rewards for information leading to arrests or issuance of citations in cases involving game bird, small game, fish and protected nongame animals, including endangered species, was $50 during the last two years. Rewards in big game cases remain $250 or more; highest authorized during OGT history was $1,100. Pearson said information on illegal commercialization of game birds, fish or mammals or of endangered species could result in rewards above the minimum.

Man serving six months on illegal elk possession

A 21-year-old man is spending six months in the Catron County Jail at Reserve on charges of illegally possessing an elk, according to arresting officer Mike Robertson of the New Mexico Department of Game and Fish.
Robertson said Vincent A. Schuster, formerly of Pasadena, Maryland, and recently of Reserve, was cited when Robertson and State Police Officer Jim Cousland found him scraping the hide of a recently killed yearling elk.
Schuster, who also uses the name Vincent Ryan, told officers he was going to make a coat from the elk hide.
The animal was believed to have been killed on about May 20 or 21. The meat from the animal was not found; it may have been eaten in a communal barbecue, officers believe.

Schuster pleaded guilty to illegal possession of an elk before Quemado Magistrate Judge Mary Ella Lee, who sentenced him to six months in jail in lieu of payment of a $1,000 fine. The Game and Fish Department will assess $300 in civil damages for the state's loss of the elk.
Fines for criminal charges in game cases go into the state school fund. Civil damages go into the Game Protection Fund.

Mark Dutton, All State kicker and punter from the 1978 Ruidoso High School football team, has signed a letter of intent to attend Western State College, Gunnison, Colorado beginning this fall.
Dutton will seek a roster position with the 1979 Mountaineer football team as punter and kicker.

Inn tennis pro Burkstaller sponsoring free tennis lessons

USPTA Professional H.F. Burkstaller has announced that free tennis instruction for players of all abilities will be offered at the Inn of the Mountain Gods as part of the local celebration of the sixth National Tennis Week, sponsored by Lipton Iced Tea and conducted by TENNIS magazine, June 23-July 1.
"Here's the chance to pick up a racquet and join the fun," said Burkstaller. "We're going to help those who never played... and those who do play to play better during the National Instruction Day Clinic at the Inn."

National Instruction Day, officially designated as Saturday, June 23, is one of the three National Tennis Week activities. Members of the United States Professional Tennis Association (USPTA), the organization which certifies and rates its teaching tennis professionals, donate their time as a public service to conduct National Instruction Day Clinics and launch National Tennis Week.

Swimming lessons starting June 18

First season swimming lessons begin June 18 and continue through July 6 at the Sierra Swim and Racquet Club.
Information on this Red Cross instruction is available at the club or by telephoning 257-5176.

Calls to OGT, rewards paid, show increase

Rewards paid Operation Game Thief (OGT) callers during the program's just-ended second year increased by about 55 percent over the first year, according to OGT coordinator Dan Pursley.

That figure, an increase of about $3,900 in rewards between the first and second years, indicates a growing awareness among New Mexico residents of the effectiveness of the program in protecting the state's wildlife game resources, Pursley said.

Money paid OGT callers from the inception of the program in June 1977 to May 31, 1978, totaled $7,500. During the second year, through May 31, 1979, OGT authorized payments of $11,400 in rewards to those OGT callers whose tips led to arrests or citations. The program began June 1, 1977.

"One in every 4.5 cases in which an investigation is warranted results in an arrest or citation," Pursley said. Seventy-five percent of the cases involve illegal possession of big game animals, with the other 25 percent involving small game animals, fish, game birds, raptors or residency cases, the coordinator added.

"Deer cases are the bulk of the cases called in to OGT, followed closely by elk and then by antelope," Pursley said. To date, OGT has investigated cases involving approximately 180 animals and birds.

Pursley said 99 percent of the 193 defendants charged with 227 violations to date have been convicted, resulting in $36,790 in gross fines (not including suspensions) and $20,880 in civil damages assessed by the Game and Fish Department for loss of wildlife.

Fines assessed in magistrate court totaled $15,010 from June 1, 1977, to May 31, 1978; $23,780 from June 1, 1978, to May 31, 1979. Civil assessments totaled $9,650 and $11,230 for those periods, respectively.

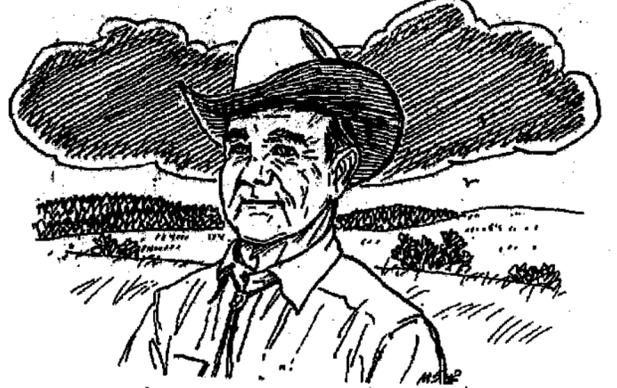

Fines collected go to the State School Fund; monies collected from the civil assessments go to the Department of Game and Fish Game Protection Fund.

OGT calls on big game which result in arrest or citation pay the caller a reward of $50, the coordinator said. Small game and fish case rewards were increased from $50 to $100 June 1. Calls involving endangered species also pay the callers $250 if they result in arrest or citation.

Donations are the primary sources of OGT reward fund monies. To date, donations have totaled $35,174.90, a figure which includes bank interest, according to Pursley. The balance remaining in the account as of May 24 was $17,069.80.

Operation Game Thief provides a toll-free number for those persons wishing to report possible violations of New Mexico game or fish regulations. That number, listed in the telephone directory under the New Mexico Department of Game and Fish, is 1-800-432-4283.

Callers are not asked to give their names nor to testify in court.

The Silver Lining

BY DANIEL AGNEW STORM

"A Cold Day in June"

There is an old saying that has been running through my mind the last few days. Folks used to say, "It will be a cold day in June...." Meaning that something was very unlikely to happen.

Well the last few days have been the things for unusual things to happen—according to this old saying—because the last three or four days have been cold. (I am writing this on June eleven).

Of course I do not mean really cold—just cold for June. The North wind has been blowing cool over the green land for three days now. And a fire has felt good in the fireplace the last three evenings. This is the first time I can remember having a fire in the fireplace in June.

In a normal year the temperatures are up in the nineties in the daytime, and the nights are pleasantly warm and mild with just a cool wave in the early morning around daylight.

On June the seventh, the wood pecker on the hillside began giving his call for the approach of cool weather. You do not generally hear this call until sometime in November.

I thought maybe the woodpecker had received a wrong signal. What kind of cold weather do you have in June? I watched the cow and the little calf for signals of a weather change, and they gave none that I could read.

Then some thunder rattled in the west over the hill, and here came a brief little rain shower with big drops. Then out came the sun. The cow and calf were grazing peacefully. I thought that the summer shower was over, but here another and still more—one after the other from different directions. It seemed that the Rain Spirit was playing games, trying to make you guess what it was going to do. About mid afternoon there was a very light sprinkle of rain over Sunrise Mountain to the southeast. The sun shone bright in the west and the hill was arched over with a double rainbow. The rainbows seem so close, and their colors so pure and airy against the green mountain and the light grey sky that you stand in a spell of delight. A rainbow gives you feeling of reverent joy everytime you see this miracle of heart lifting beauty. God sent the rainbow to give you a little glimpse of Heaven.

The rainbows' celestial colors faded from the sky, and the cow and little calf began edging toward the cedars at the upper end of the field. I happened to look into the North and here coming just over the hill was a leaden grey cloud touched with light grey and white. It moved toward the Vale rapidly over the hill sending you a message as it came charging down. As you took a deep breath it seem you were inhaling cool moisture—so charged with water was the air. Closer came the cloud hurrying across the river, making a rushing sound like a river flowing through the sky.

The cow and calf ran under the thickest cedar they could find, and with a roar the rain and hail fell upon the house as if poured out of a giant bucket from the sky. The rain came not in drops but in streams and sheets, softening the blow of the hail. Now the road in front of the house was a flowing stream.

The green meadows were full of lakes of water swimming with the white hail. Larger drops of hail now came down as if fired from a rifle, beating upon flooded grassy fields, so that the splashing caused a white moist mist to arise and float all through the driving storm.

So sudden came the storm, with no warning of thunder and lightning, quietly charging in as the colors of the rainbow hardly had time to fade from the peaceful summer sky. Harder and harder fell the driving hail and rain as if trying to spread itself up the valley and not pour all the moisture in one place. Then, as if exhausted with carrying such a heavy load, the storm clouds overhead stopped still in the sky and poured down all its watery and hail-laden burden upon the splashing, flowing mountain world.

Then suddenly as it came, the storm was over. The sun beamed down from the sky as the clouds sailed away, shining on the glistening hail and the numberless tiny lakes and the rainwater streams and waterfalls flowing everywhere.

Such a wonderland of water from the sky I have never seen in many a day. Surely it is as heavy a down-pour as I have seen here in the Vale.

Today, the eleventh, in mid afternoon, the sky is a cloudless rain-washed blue, and the hills and vales and mountain meadows are turning greener still before your eyes.

The birds have begun singing their melodies, and the flowers are ready to present the most colorful display in many a year. Let us thank God for the green summer and all our other many blessings.

LINDAL PUSHES PRICES BACK.

With home prices everywhere going up, up, up — at twice the rate of inflation, we have just rolled back prices on every Lindal cedar home.

Why? You already know that the best way to combat inflation is to invest in a quality home. By lowering our prices, we are going all out to stop the ever upward spiral in housing costs. And this means savings of up to several thousands of dollars for you. Also, by buying a Lindal home of quality now, you will insure that an already good investment becomes an even greater investment.

Come in and talk to your Lindal distributor today. This offer has to expire July 15, 1979, because, after all, even we can't afford to hold off inflation forever.

Inside The Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE—In your capital city, even a so-called "quiet" week yields grist for the newsman's mill. These were the things they talked about here this week.

TUNNELS: Some folks, including Senator Pete Domenici, want to take a closer look at MX missile plan the President is about to come out for, reportedly as way of convincing some Senators they should vote for his SALT II treaty. Plan calls for eight to nine thousand missile silos, connected to one another in some way, so that missiles can move from one to another, presumably leaving Russians or other potential enemies baffled as to their exact location. . . Nowhere but here in the West is there space for such a massive installation—so big that at one time potential plans would have had Department of Defense buying all of Deming and Lordsburg for the purpose. . . Sometime those military minds get wilder and wilder.

BIG PARTY: More than 700 people, at $25 per, turned out for "appreciation" dinner for Senator C. B. Trujillo in Taos. Trujillo, who heads powerful Legislative Finance Committee, is reportedly eyeing a run for governor in 1982, though, as he admits, he has to get himself reelected to Senate next year to deserve consideration for bigger run. . . Decision on making statewide race is much harder than it once was, since prices for high-class television ads, most effective campaign tool, continue to skyrocket. Those who think of making the big runs ought to talk to those who have done it, who can tell them how expensive, how time-consuming and how downright exhausting such a race is.

MOONSHINE: Supreme Court judges, miffed that they didn't get a pay raise during last legislative session, issued some changes in the canons which guide judicial conduct. Though it has long been agreed that judges can't engage in private practice of law while they're on the bench, new code would let them act as "consultants." Many folks asking what anyone would consult a judge on except the law—which would put him back into private practice. Almost any other "consultation" for which a judge would be paid appears to many to be in the nature of influence-peddling by the persons doing the consulting. . . Predictions from here are that justices will re-think their situation and go back to the old limitation—maybe after getting a promise that next legislative session will listen with sympathy to their pleas for more dough.

QUESTIONING: Many observers think it's about time somebody looked into that $13 million and more the state has pumped into supposed energy research and development in the last five years. . . As long as money came from income earned by severance tax funds, nobody seemed worried; we just gave out $2.5 million a year. But now it comes from the general fund, which led the Legislative Finance Committee to tell its staff to do some digging and come up with a comprehensive report on what we've gotten for our money. . . Larry Kehoe, cabinet secretary for energy and minerals, indicates some past projects may not have been so super, when he says, "We are not at the point where we can criticize the past. All we can do is insure that things are better in the future."

POSTAGE: Governor King, we were told at a recent Cabinet meeting, takes an armful of letters from constituents home with him to read at night. . . He says they help him while away the long evenings in the Governor's Mansion, and they let him in on what voters out there are saying.

VOLUNTEER MILITARY

If ever this country required the best possible intelligence from abroad, now is the time.

Tensions between China and the Soviet Union are such that a Sino-Soviet war is at least conceivable.

Iran and other states in a vast crescent stretching from Pakistan to South Africa are threatened in varying degrees by Soviet ambitions and, or internal political crisis — developments which bear directly on vital American and Western interests.

The sustained Soviet military buildup during the last 15 years promises Moscow a position of strategic military superiority by the early 1980s.

Peace remains elusive in the Middle East tinderbox.

The gathering storm throughout Southern Africa threatens to drag that region into the maelstrom of direct East-West confrontation.

How the White House and Congress react to these events will be based in large part on the adequacy of the intelligence assessments received from the Central Intelligence Agency. Faulty intelligence will yield faulty decisions.

And how goes the CIA? It isn't necessary to break any secret codes to discover that the agency continues in terrible disarray. A new wave of resignations and early retirements reflects the sagging morale in CIA ranks. Taken together with last year's purge of more than 800 officers of the CIA's clandestine service, the most recent turmoil must further reduce the effectiveness of an agency whose performance has long been suspect.

From the mid-1960s to the mid-1970s, the CIA consistently understated the dimensions of the Soviet military buildup by a factor of 50 percent. Add to that catastrophic failure the deficiencies of agency assessments of successive crises from Vietnam to Iran and scope the costs of CIA mistakes become apparent.

Despite these chilling realities, Congress had demonstrated a sense of misplaced priorities to match the CIA's multiple disasters.

The Senate Select Committee on Intelligence has labored for the last two years to draft an Intelligence Reorganization and Reform Act, the chief purpose of which is to prohibit the CIA from exceeding Marquis of Queensbury rules in gathering information.

Granted there is a need to exert some control over the activities of agents whose zeal has sometimes surpassed the boundaries of propriety. But in a world of mounting threats to the security of the United States, there is a far greater need to nurture a CIA that can and will provide information essential to this country's survival.

The fact is the Congress has yet to address the real intelligence scandal — the appalling failures of the CIA and its even more alarming deterioration in the last several years. Since taking office, the Carter Administration has demonstrated its own inability to restore the nation's eroding intelligence capabilities.

In the absence of proper leadership from the White House, it is left to Congress to begin the task of rebuilding an adequate intelligence organization. A long second look at the Senate Select Committee's "reform" legislation would be a good first step. — News-Bulletin, Belen

CLIMATE THREAT

For one reason or another, an occasional news story of major import gets far less attention in the press than it deserves. Such stories commonly lack the tonic element of immediacy, hence are played down even though their long-range implications may be very grave.

This is no mere philosophical observation plucked out of the blue; we have in mind an example. Writing in the London Observer, Norman Lewis reported on something that "could ruin life on Earth". That is strong stuff, but so far few Americans have gotten more than a smidgen of what Lewis had to say.

His summation of what is going on in Brazil's vast Amazon River basin does not (judging by sparse wire service dispatches) appear alarmist. His main thesis has been discussed for years by ecologists. It is that stripping the Amazon forests for timber and to clear farmland threatens to alter the planet's climate in devastating fashion.

Those seemingly endless forests generate enormous quantities of oxygen. This retards the buildup of carbon dioxide which industrial countries spew into the atmosphere. "We are," Lewis quotes an expert in Brazil as saying, "threatened with possibly the greatest ecological disaster in world history." That, we submit, is news to make the world sit and take notice. — Alamogordo Daily News

Governor Bruce King should be apprised . . . and forcefully . . . that New Mexico State University's professed claim that locating Sierra Blanca Regional Airport on Site B on Fort Stanton mesa would rip "the heart out" of their agricultural experiments has little basis in fact.

Following the adjournment of Monday night's public meeting on the current airport hassle, at which not one word of opposition was voiced, Richard Hall, chairman of the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission, advised Jim King, deputy secretary of the New Mexico Department of Natural Resources, that the following experiments are being conducted on the 300 acres required for Phase I of the airport:

Herbage growth, including grass and weeds;

Measuring the growth of cholla cactus;

Recording amounts of moisture falling on the mesa.

To protect these experiments, the airport commission offers to make adjustments in locating the landing strips to keep the herbage test area intact. The commission suggests that rain gauges could be moved a few hundred yards from the 300-acres required for the airport and still accurately record amounts of moisture; and that there is a sufficient growth of cholla cactus elsewhere on the mesa to measure its growth.

Jim King, who is meeting with Dr. Gerald Thomas and Dr. Bill Stephens of NMSU this week, told the airport commission that he is of the opinion the two men "are leaning toward" working out a compromise for peaceful coexistence on the mesa.

In view of the facts, we certainly hope so. — CD

JACK COATS BLEW IT

The front page of Tuesday's Rio Grande Edition of the Albuquerque Journal contained this headline: "Ruidoso Votes To Seek New Airport Site."

The first paragraph of a two paragraph story . . . bearing the byline of Jack Coats of the Journal's Las Cruces Bureau . . . stated: "More than 200 Ruidoso residents voted Monday night to send a delegation to Washington, D.C., to seek a way to locate a regional airport on land near Fort Stanton currently under lease by New Mexico State University."

The second paragraph, equally short, had no bearing on the first.

It's this way . . . there weren't "more than 200" people present . . . and if'n there hadda been, about 100 would have had sore shoulders Tuesday morning . . . in addition to those who'd a been hump-backed.

Secondly . . . no vote was taken to send a delegation to Washington, D.C.

Thus endeth today's lesson in responsible journalism . . . leaving Jack's editors with one obvious statement: "Jack, baby, you blew it."

HOPES RISE FOR AIRPORT

After listening to Jim King . . . Governor Bruce King's deputy secretary of the state Department of Natural Resources . . . and no relation . . . chit chat Tuesday evening about the possibility that Dr. Gerald Thomas of NMSU . . . he's head cheese . . . and Dr. Bill Stephens, ramrod of NMSU's agricultural department . . . just might be about to consider talking compromise on building up the use of about 300 acres . . . 275 actually . . . on Fort Stanton mesa for a regional airport . . . local folks now have a shot in the arm that there just might be a jet capable airport on the mesa . . . in maybe two or three years.

Jim displayed the expected aplomb as he listened to the comments of the crowd . . . somewhere between 75 and 100 . . . state their views regarding the safety that'd be provided by the new airport . . . and other expressions of concern . . . with none getting their dander up . . . appreciably.

Seems Jim's armed with facts about the airport's development plans . . . that less than 300 acres'll be used over the next eight or so years . . . and another 100 acres'll be needed for a like, or longer period . . . postponing until about 1999, the need for the 2,000 acres ultimately to be required . . . with a whole bunch of that 2,000 acres still being suitable for NMSU's experiments in growing grass and weeds, measuring how fast cholla cacti grow . . . and determining how much moisture those acres receive.

Jim also proved he's a diplomat . . . and, if'n he attains any semblance of success in arbitrating with NMSU's men of the hour . . . and he voiced the opinion that he figures there's a good chance of a compromise being reached . . . though he admitted he couldn't speak for anyone but himself . . . ergo . . . our hopes are buoyed that one day we may have our regional airport.

This leaves the situation on the airport hassle like so . . . the airport commission has outlined exactly where they'll give . . . and how much . . . and considering all the facts on the usage of that initial 275 acres by NMSU . . . it'd appear, in all reasonableness, that there should soon be a friendly round table meeting to get the whole shebang settled . . . with everyone in agreement . . . and reasonably happy.

ON OUR DOWNTOWN

If'n you think there's a lull in tourism this summer:

Try ambling across Sudderth, anytime between 7 a.m.-7 p.m., without paying any attention to the traffic . . . which'd be an excellent method of determining how good your hospitalization insurance is.

Eyeball the license plates on the cars . . . discount all those from Texas/Oklahoma, 'cause they're more or less home folks . . . and if'n you think people are worried about no gas in the pumps, you sure think funny.

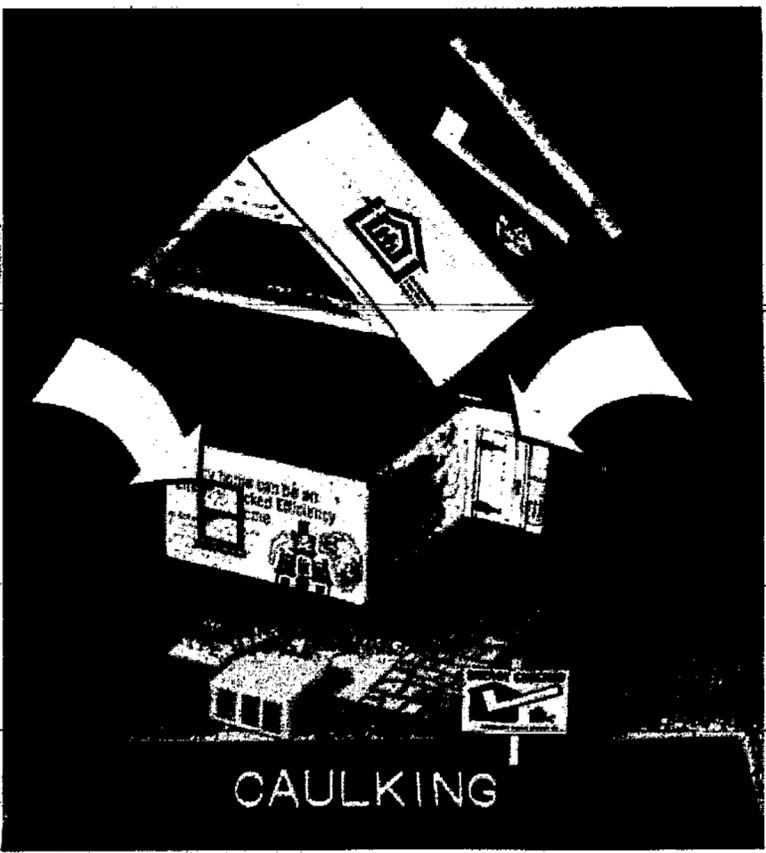

Consider that we've had the wettest May/June in recorded history . . . and still there's more non New Mexico license plates on our street than local. Ergo, when the word gets out that the sun's shining in Harmony Valley . . . girl! yourselves.

Ruidoso Downs quarter horse yearling sale will set record

BY MIKE MAGDA

Well over $6 million worth of quarter horse yearlings will be sold this year in the Ruidoso Downs All-American Select Sale, breaking yet another sales record, according to sales manager Richard Thompson.

A total of 713 head — another record number — has been catalogued for the August 27-29 sale, which will be held in the All-American Sales arena located on the track grounds. Included in the sale are a number of yearlings out of stakes winning mares, and sired by all of the leading stallions.

Last year, 540 head went through the sale and brought a resounding $5,245,600. It was the 12th consecutive year in the 17 year history of the sale that the total sales set a record.

Thompson estimates with the 32 percent increase in the number of head to be auctioned off, the total sales will soar over the $6 million mark for the first time.

"We're proven now," Thompson said. He has been with the sale since 1970.

It's quite a boost from the early days when the sale was held in a tent on the Ruidoso Downs parking lot. Only 68 head went through the initial 1962 sale, bringing in just under $213,000. The average price per horse was a mere $3,132.

Growing slow but steadily, the sale passed the half-million dollar mark in 1968. The sale's turning point occurred in 1970 when 228 horses were sold for $1,142,200. It was an increase of 41 percent in the number of head and a huge 69 percent in the total dollars spent from previous season.

The 1970 sale was highlighted a few days later when Mr. Kid Charge, a colt who was purchased for under $5,000 the previous year, won the All-American Futurity.

"From then on we've had steady success," Thompson said, citing age and timing as the keys to the sale's improvement. "It takes years to establish a great sale. This is our 18th edition. Plus, the timing is perfect. The All-American Futurity is the key to the sale."

All of the horses consigned to the sale have had the first three of seven nominating payments to the All-American Futurity made. It will be up to the new owners to continue the payments once the yearling is purchased. Beginning this year, all horses will be eligible to the Sunland Park All-American Sale Futurity, which will debut in 1980 and the 1982 All-American Gold Cup.

"So many good horses go through this sale," Thompson said. "The buyers have confidence in this market."

Mr. Kid Charge was the first of big money winners to come out of the All-American Sale. The 1976 sale produced the bargain horse of the century, Hot Idea. Winner of the 1977 All-American Futurity, Hot Idea was purchased for $4,000.

Other notables purchased in the sale include 1978 Kansas Futurity champ Gentlemen's Feature, 1978 Rainbow Derby winner Billy Pass, 1978 Kansas Derby champ Esue Move and 1978 Bay Meadows Futurity winner Sizzle Te.

Buyers from every state and numerous countries will attend the three day sale, which will begin at 12 noon each day to accommodate the huge increase in numbers. Last year, the average price paid per horse was $9,730. A record was established when Easy Dimple — a filly by Easy Jet and out of stakes winner Chuck's Dimple Too — was purchased for $100,000.

Numerous horses by the nation's leading sires have been catalogued for this year's sale, including Easy Jet, Azure Te, Mito Paint and Tiny Charger.

"This is the finest group of horses I've ever seen in a sale, breeding wise," Thompson said.

Jockey/Trainer of the week

BY MIKE MAGDA

After winning the final two races Sunday, Bob E. Arnett captured the Trainer of The Week honor at Ruidoso Downs. Young Danny Summerow continued to be the hottest rider around by taking the Jockey of The Week honors for the second straight week.

Arnett scored four winners over the weekend, the same as Hugh Tucker, but was awarded the title based on more second and third place finishes.

The final tally showed Arnett with two runnerup finishes and five thirds. Tucker finished with one second. Arnett had two winners going into the fourth day of the weekend, then doubled that figure with a pair of wins in the last two races.

Summerow, meanwhile, blistered the track with seven victories, including four in one day. Chasing Summerow was Charles Mueller, who finished with six winners.

Now with 13 victories in the past two weeks, Summerow recorded the best single day performance Saturday when he rode four winners. The clincher was in the feature race when he guided 9-1 outsider Pious Mary to the winners' circle.

In the overall standings, Summerow moved ahead of Gary Sumpter, who has held the top spot for the past two weeks. Summerow now totals 18 wins while Sumpter follows with 17. Mueller and Richard Bickel trail with 13 wins each.

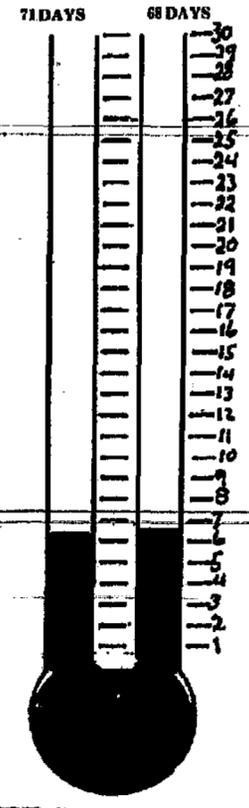

William F. Leach brought home one winner to keep the lead in the trainer's standings, despite Tucker's impressive weekend. Tucker narrowed the gap between first and second to just two with his four wins. Arnett moved into third place with his wins.

Ruidoso Downs Hoofbeats

BY MIKE MAGDA
After trials and a shake, the field is set for the 12th running of the Rio Grande Kindergarten Futurity, which will be staged June 17. A total of 37 head entered last Friday's trials. The top two finishers from each heat advanced to the finale with a shake held the following day to determine which two of the third-place finishers would complete the field. Gross purse for the Kindergarten will be $37,155 with $12,577 going to the winner. Distance is four furlongs.

Catonie, a bay filly by Draconic, recorded the fastest winning time in the Kindergarten trials. Running in the first division, Catonie covered the four furlongs in 46 4/8 seconds, which is the fastest time of the season. Catonie defeated Flareta Bend by one length. Star Route came in third and made the finale based on the shake. In the second division, Major Mel won by 1 1/2 lengths over Post Toasties Girl in a time of 47 and 3/8 seconds.

The first dead heat of the season for first place occurred in the third division of the Kindergarten trials. Court Time and Jo Jo's Pet could not be separated in the photo finish, advancing both to the final. Time was 47 4/8 seconds. It was the fourth dead heat of the season. Previously, there have been two third place dead heats and one for second place.

The fourth division of the Kindergarten trials was won by Tee Up, an impressive filly who placed second in the Riley Allison Futurity at Sunland Park. Tee Up defeated Fashion Boy by a neck in the time of 47 2/8 seconds. Finishing third was Byers Hope, who advanced based on the shake. Making the also eligible list were Ski Mask, Comet Mix, Draconic's Chick and Special Ranger.

Holme Maid, third place finisher in the 1978 All-American Futurity recorded a 102 speed index (as established for Ruidoso Downs by the American Quarter Horse Association) last Friday. Running 350 yards in the 10th race, which was dedicated to the New Mexico State Fair, Holme Maid shattered the field in a time of 17.72 seconds. That time was almost three-tenths of a second better than the previous seasonal high. Ridden by Jackie Martin, Holme Maid won by 2 3/4 lengths. The track record is 17.24 by Van Too Too. Holme Maid is trained by Hugh Trecker.

The lowest Big Q of the year was cashed Thursday. Winning ticket holders received only $153 when the results were shown on the tote board. Men In Blue (7-2) and Brud's Boy (5-2) came in first and second respectively in the 12th race. Then Draconic's Spy (3-1) and Sign Here Jr. (10-1) followed in the 13th race. A total of 66 tickets were cashed in.

When 3-1 shot Supply Boat Johnny won the eighth race Saturday, he became the second horse to capture three races this season. Cut Shot, winner of the Norger Futurity, was the first. Supply Boat Johnny was behind a group of six leaders around the final pole of the mile race when jockey Danny Summerow guided him along the rail for the win.

Summerow became the first jockey to win four races on one day last Saturday. Summerow won the second, fifth, eighth and eleventh races. In the feature, Summerow led Pious Mary, a 10-1 outsider, to the winner's in a time of 1:28 3/8 seconds. It was a seasonal high and posted a 90 speed rating, one of the best so far this year. Six jockeys, including Summerow, have won three races on one day. They include Richard Bickel, Jerry Burgess, Jerry Nicodemus, Steve Fuller and Jackie Martin.

Lurk, a bay gelding entered in the fifth race Thursday, posted a possible threat in his race. At the start, Lurk reared up in the gate, hitting his head on the top supporting bars. Lurk stumbled to the ground, tossing jockey Joe Martinez to the front (he was not hurt), and appeared to have knocked himself unconscious. The race was set for six furlongs, which put the starting gates just off the final turn. The gates were moved out of the way in time as the horses came around the final turn, but Lurk was still lying in the path. Fortunately, he was far enough into the middle of the track and the field stayed clear. Moments later he recovered enough to walk to his stall. Apparently, Lurk was not injured as he is entered in this Thursday's races.

Jockey Henry Uriegas may be out of action for 1-3 weeks after suffering a separated shoulder in a spill Friday. In the sixth race, Uriegas' mount, Rich Little Toot, fell, throwing Uriegas. The spill also caused Arturo Vallejo to be thrown from his mount, Boogie On Down. Both jockeys were taken to the hospital and released. Vallejo came back to ride in the 11th race, but Uriegas was excused from his mounts the rest of the weekend.

In stewards' rulings; Jockey Steven Fuller was suspended three racing days (June 7-9) for causing interference, resulting in his mount, Seco Mighty Talk, being disqualified from second to third place in the Kansas Futurity June 3. Jockey Richard Bickel was fined $25 for unsaddling his mount, Miss Jubilation, after the fourth race June 3 before the finish result was verified. Trainers Brooks D. Claridge, James E. Smith and Ralph S. Henson were fined $25 each for being late to the paddock for their respective races. Trainer Terry A. Walker was fined $25 for failure to conduct his business in a proper manner.

DANNY SUMMEROW

Jockey fought to make it big

BY DICK ALWAN
Danny Summerow is only 22, but he's been a jockey for seven years, and for most of that time, it was a hopeless situation.

"It was so bad, a lot of the time I couldn't even find a horse to gallop," he said. "I kept getting more depressed. A few times, I threw my hands up and told my dad I wanted to quit. He told me to keep on trying. But I was disgusted, my attitude was bad. I didn't think I could make it. I blamed it on the breaks. But, it wasn't the breaks. It was my lack of ability."

After about five years of going no where, of scrounging up only a handful of rides a week, Summerow began to think he was at the end of his ropes. His pop — former jockey John Summerow — would patiently give him pointers. He'd tell him how to sit in the saddle, how to move with the horse, how to get in rhythm, how to use the whip. But telling is one thing. Doing is another. "I'd make all these mistakes, I'd look bad in the saddle, and I wouldn't even know the difference," Danny goes on. "It was all subconscious. It took a long time to find my style."

About two years ago, Danny began seeing the light at the end of the tunnel. Around that time, he turned in a fine ride on Defiant Envoy and won the Memorial Day Handicap at Ruidoso Downs. "Defiant Envoy was a longshot," he recalls. "I went to the lead. They were all coming at me at the wire. I won by a nose. That was one of my best rides."

At last, he was home free. With a stakes win like that, trainers and owners would look up. There'd be much more work. "But it didn't help any," Danny says. So he was back, more or less, in the same soup. "Trainers kept remembering me as an apprentice who didn't know what he was doing," he laments.

Now it's a different story. Danny Summerow, the youngster who spent so long going nowhere except into a blue funk, has become a brightly-glowing star among Southwest jockeys. He gets about nine rides a day. He's in second place in the jockey standings, and breathing hard on the leader, Gary Sumpter.

And from the way the kid is riding, he could easily take Sumpter's measure in the weeks ahead and go barreling into the lead. If so, that would be one of the best turnaround stories in recent years. Considering where Danny has been, his success is something like the story of a guy who signs up as janitor and works his way to president of the company.

About a week ago, Danny — this lean, hungry-looking kid with yellow hair — got a fat badge of honor pinned on his chest. Willie Hayhurst, a shrewd, headhunter among jockey agents, sat down with him in the jockey room at Ruidoso Downs and put it to him plainly. What Willie wanted was Danny for a client. He'd line up his mounts, provide whatever fatherly direction and support an agent gives a jockey, and take 25 percent of his paycheck.

When Willie fingers you out to be one of his boys, you're in a select circle. Willie, who's been an agent for 21 years, has represented such stars as Larry Byers, Willie Lovell, Bobby Harmon — when each was in his prime. More recently, he's been the man behind Don Howard. About two weeks ago, Howard took a nasty spill at Ruidoso, and is now recuperating and taking it easy in Colorado, and that left a void in Willie's schedule. Which is where Danny Summerow comes in.

So when Willie put that proposition to Summerow a week ago in the jockey room at Ruidoso, Summerow didn't take more than a millisecond to answer: "Sure."

Willie later explained his reasoning to this reporter: "For the past two years, I've been watching Danny ride. He's just now coming into his prime. His disposition is right, he's an easy-going boy, he's got what it takes. He's going to be right up there."

Having a super-hustler like Willie Hayhurst on his side is another push in Danny's suddenly up-and-at-'em career. "I've never had an agent before," he explains in that half-shy farmboy way. "I just couldn't do it. I haven't got the 'talk.' With Willie, I should be getting better horses, and riding in more stakes."

So what happened in Danny's life — what magic changed him from a pauper to a prince? First of all, he tells you in that oddly lucid way, his career got off to a troubled start because he started too soon, and didn't know what it was about. Take the whip, for example. "I'd murder a horse with it," he says, smiling at his incompetence. "That's a mistake a lot of young jockeys make. Do that to a horse, and he'll quit on you."

The breakthrough began coming, about two years ago, when he developed an ability to "feel" a horse. He puts it this way: "It takes 'clockwork' — knowing how much speed you've got, and how much speed you've got to catch. In the first quarter, I'll know how fast I've gone — within a fifth of a second or so. I've studied that for the past three years. Now it's pretty much automatic. When you're in a race, it's all concentration. You've got to know where you are, and plan your moves.

Your mind's got to work, it's got to keep clicking. If you let your mind drift, you're not going anywhere."

The hardest thing for a jockey to learn, he says, is the "time." In other words, a jockey must have that clock ticking away in his brain — that secret sense which tells him how fast his horse is going, how fast the opposition is going and how much zip his animal has left. Put all that computerized info together, and a savvy jockey supposedly knows when and how to make his move.

It doesn't make any difference to Danny whether he's on the lead or coming from off the pace — so long as that clock is ticking accurately in his head.

But he tells you, with all the surety of a veteran, that it takes a long time — and lots of trial and error — to get that clock wound up and going.

Danny Summerow now has a piece of advice for young jockeys scrambling for a foothold. "Take a lot of time, and don't worry," he tells them.

INFLATION FIGHTING ideas

"Say Cheese"

Cheese, we're reminded by the U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs, is an excellent source of protein, calcium, certain vitamins and minerals and it comes in many forms. Depending on how you intend to use it, you may be able to save money by purchasing one of the less expensive varieties. For instance, a sharp cheddar costs more than a mild cheddar, primarily because it's aged longer. Processed cheese costs less than "natural" cheeses and may be preferable in cooking such favorites as Macaroni and Cheese since it melts more easily. It takes only a very little effort to cut, slice or shred your own cheese, and you will save money by doing it.

Safeway's cheese selection is one of the most varied, ranging from near-legendary imported cheeses to the finest domestic types. The U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs recommends that you include cheese dishes on your menus often. You'll be serving delicious food and fighting inflation at the same time.

Playwright would change Billy the Kid's image

LEW HULEN — Champion of Billy the Kid

BY GWYNETH JONES
Staff Writer/Photographer

Lew Hulen of Capitan is a man with a cause.

Disgusted by the Hollywood portrayals of Billy the Kid as the ultimate "bad guy" and further annoyed by the many inaccurate or insufficient historical accounts of the Kid's life, Hulen is determined to reveal what he calls "the other side of the ledger," and set the record straight about Billy's attributes once and for all.

Hulen hopes to accomplish his goal through the writing and staging of a series of plays which will trace the life of William Bonney from his schooldays (when he was known as Henry McCarty) through his participation in the Lincoln County War to his premature demise at the hands of sheriff Pat Garrett.

"I'm only interested in the facts," he said, "and Hollywood won't give them to us. They've told everything but the truth."

In his quest for the facts of Billy's life, Hulen has spent countless hours researching the quantities of literature available on his subject. In fact, Hulen said, more has been written about Billy the Kid than all the other famous western "outlaws and desperados" put together.

"It takes a lot of studying to separate the fact from the fiction," he said.

Hulen has found only two works which he considers to be historically reliable. One volume was produced by Maurice G. Fulton and edited by Robert Mallin, and the other was written by an Albuquerque attorney named Kelsner. Although the men were working separately, their accounts of the Kid's life are "almost identical," Hulen said.

Reading these histories has convinced Hulen that "Billy's life doesn't have to be fictionalized; he has the drama in his life." And he adds, "He was a Robin Hood, whether Hollywood keeps putting him down or not."

Indeed, the Kid is often portrayed as "a street urchin or a beggar," which Hulen said, "is not true at all." To prove his point, he pulled out a booklet which reproduced a school days portrait of Henry McCarty. He is neatly dressed, with hair combed and even sports a ribbon-tie, in the style of the era.

First-person accounts by contemporaries of the Kid have also been helpful to the playwright. "That's where you get the human element," he said.

In delving into the character of Billy, Hulen said he discovered that the Kid "had a super amount of courage. He never ran away—that's why he died so young." Billy also possessed "a lot of human dignity," and his actions revealed his loyalty to his friends, Hulen said.

While dealing with the subject of Billy's friends, Hulen pointed out that the Kid was "well-known by presidents Garfield and Hayes," as well as Lew Wallace, an early governor of New Mexico.

"He could ride into town and socialize with the most prominent citizens," Hulen said. "And not because they were afraid; they were his friends."

Stories of Billy's murderous tendencies have also been exaggerated, Hulen said. "He never killed a good man in his life," he added, and was blamed for many such incidents in which he had no part.

Hulen's interest in the Kid dates back to his high school days in Texas, an interest which was formented by numerous trips to Lincoln County. He worked for many years as an engineer and tool designer for the makers of the Saturn and DC-10 aircraft, and is certified as an inventor by the U.S. Patent Office.

His first play, "An Evening with William Bonney," or "Nine Renegades and a Girl," was begun in 1949. He has since rewritten the play, which was once in rehearsals onstage at a Santa Monica, California little theatre. Hulen cancelled the production when he saw that others involved were not interested in keeping it true to character. "They were making it corny," he said.

Through the years, Hulen never abandoned his hopes of clearing Billy's name, and after retiring and moving to Capitan in September 1978, he decided to pursue the project again.

He has completed research for the series of three plays and about half the writing of the first. At present however, he is concentrating his efforts on the production of the "Nine Renegades" play sometime this summer, possibly in Old Lincoln Town. He has already recruited most of the cast, composed totally of local residents.

He is also in the process of writing a screenplay, and hopes to find a New Mexico public television station interested in such a production.

He describes the completed play as "just a little melodrama," an imaginary incident in the life of the Kid. But it does portray him as loyal to his friends, in keeping with the facts, Hulen said. The later plays will deal with the factual events of the Kid's life.

The planned production also will be an opportunity for local aspiring actors to gain experience. As Hulen said, "You've got to start somewhere." He added he would like to hear from anyone "who is interested in theatre, or can get interested in it."

As he resumed work on the project, Hulen said he was surprised to find the young people of the area "all for it." He said he was also surprised to find that "they didn't know any more about Billy the Kid than most New Yorkers."

And as much as he respects the efforts of those who have preserved Lincoln as a state monument, he feels that many tourists who pass through and read the historical markers, "go away just as confused (about Billy) as they were when they got here."

These realizations however, seem to have strengthened his resolve to even the score in Billy's behalf. "I'm dedicated to the little guy," he said. "You know what Shakespeare said—the evil that men do lives after them; the good is oft interred with their bones."

The States and the Indians — who has more power?

By Dr. Michael L. Olsen
Chairman, Department of Humanities
New Mexico Highlands University
Relationships between Indians and the state in which they live are especially important in New Mexico. At least two out of every 25 New Mexicans are Indians, and important mineral, water and recreational resources are found on the lands which they control—lands covering eight percent of the state.

These Indians have certain privileges which non-Indians do not. But they are also citizens of the state. The difficulty for them and for the state is where to draw the line between these two areas of interest.

Many questions arise. How do state laws apply to Indians and how do tribal laws apply to non-Indians? Do Indians pay state taxes? Are non-Indians subject to tribal laws on reservations? Can Indian tribal police arrest and the tribal council indict non-Indians committing offenses on reservations?

These and other conflicts have existed for over 150 years. As early as the 1830's the state of Georgia tried to take over the lands and government of the Cherokee Indians. These people lived within the boundaries of the state but had their own constitution, legislature and elected officials. When Georgia attempted to extend its laws over them, the Cherokee went to the Supreme Court.

The court ruled, "The Cherokee Nation... is a distinct community, occupying its own territory, with boundaries accurately described, in which the laws of Georgia can have no force..." This decision is still the most important ever made in disputes involving states and the Indians.

Besides this court decision, many treaties made with the Indians specifically prohibit states from interfering on the reservations. And since federal treaties are "the supreme law of the land," states cannot contradict them.

In New Mexico there are further restraints on the state's relationship with Indians. When New Mexico became a state, Congress outlined various conditions in an "Enabling Act." One of these required that the state would never seek to control Indian lands.

The result of these developments is that today Congress seems to retain control over most Indians, their lands and affairs. But when specific cases are considered, the law often proves unclear.

For instance, one major question is whether or not some state laws are in effect on reservations. Off the reservation Indians generally have the same status as any other citizen. But on the reservations it may be different. The taxation of Indians is an example.

Indians are subject to most federal taxes, like income tax. If they earn their living off the reservation, they must also pay state income taxes. But if they are paid a wage for work done on a reservation, they usually do not have to pay state taxes on it.

The Supreme Court set these guidelines in the case of Rosalind McClanahan, a Navajo woman in Arizona. In 1967 Arizona withheld state taxes from wages which she earned on the reservation. She sued the state.

The court ruled that because of existing laws and treaties the state did not have the power to tax in this instance. But the court also concluded, significantly, that she did not have to pay because she was an Indian. As such she and other Indians had a status separate from that as citizens of Arizona, a dual status which of course is never accorded to non-Indians.

As the court noted, "It must always be remembered that the various Indian tribes were once independent and sovereign nations, and that their claim to sovereignty long predates that of our own government."

Another area of special interest to New Mexicans involves the status of non-Indians on reservations. Can they be subject to tribal laws? Since a number of state roads as well as interstate highways in New Mexico cross reservations, non-Indians often may be on Indian lands and not know it.

So great is the concern of some non-Indians in this instance that a few Indian leaders have had to offer assurances that non-Indians will be safe on reservations.

Indian people who depend on the tourist trade fear that the trade will decline if non-Indians believe that some minor infraction of tribal law could lead to trials in tribal courts.

Indians have had the power to make laws on their own lands and enforce them with their own police since the nineteenth century. Originally these laws were enforceable only against other Indians. State or federal courts tried non-Indians.

Recently this division of powers was tested. In the case of Oliphant vs. Shile in Washington State, two non-Indian men were arrested by tribal police on Port Madison Indian Reservation and charged in a tribal court. The dispute involved speeding and assaulting a tribal officer. In March, 1978, the Supreme Court ruled the men could not be so indicted because the Indian tribe lacked authority over non-Indians.

One step toward avoiding such difficulties is through "cross-deputization." In New Mexico the legislature has permitted Navajo tribal police to be sworn in as deputies of the state while the Navajo Tribal Council has empowered state police to enforce tribal law.

The practice spread to other reservations in the state, but in the fall of 1978 the New Mexico Attorney General's office declared these additional "cross-deputizations" illegal. The legislature had authorized them only in the case of the Navajo. As a result only the state police can enforce state law against non-Indians on Indian lands, except on the Navajo reservation.

State versus Indian control of liquor licenses on the reservations has also been controversial. New Mexico has asserted that Indian tribes must get state licenses to serve liquor in establishments on their reservations. The Mesquero Apache, in the southern part of the state, have refused to obtain the licenses. They have extensive tourist facilities which serve liquor and claim the state has no jurisdiction—by virtue of the Supreme Court doctrine going back to Cherokee vs. Georgia. This dispute is on appeal in federal courts.

The rulings on "cross-deputization," the Oliphant case, as well as the liquor controversy, have been regarded as setbacks for Indians who had hoped to increase the legal power they have within their reservations.

At present one solution to these conflicts might be continued litigation. Indians could challenge individual cases, hoping to receive court rulings favorable to them.

Negotiation might be another alternative. Recently, a national Commission on state and tribal relations was formed for this purpose. This commission, jointly sponsored by various Indian organizations and the National Conference of State Legislatures, hopes to reduce the need for legislation or litigation by bringing states and Indians together to discuss common problems.

That such a commission is needed emphasizes the situation's seriousness. The outcome, whether by legislation, litigation or negotiation, will affect every citizen of every state—Indian and non-Indian.

Red River flooding cut trout production

Damages caused by Memorial weekend flooding at Red River Hatchery will probably cut total production at the state's largest rearing facility by 50 percent until late next summer, according to Dick McCleskey, assistant chief of the Game and Fish Department's Fisheries Division.

The flooding forced immediate stocking of approximately 250,000 six- to nine-inch trout that had been scheduled for stocking later this summer and will reduce mid-summer stocking schedules by about 30 percent.

"We were forced to stock the fish or lose them," McCleskey said. "Sit from runoff and loss of spring water put us into an emergency situation."

McCleskey estimated the facility, located below Questa, may be repaired to allow full production capabilities by early in the summer of 1980, but that next spring's fish would not be stocking size until late in the summer.

The flooding was caused by a runoff from a twice-normal snowpack and rain runoff into the Red River, which washed out and broke three of the five pipelines feeding spring water into the hatchery. The five pipelines carry water required for trout hatching into the hatchery at a rate of 5,550 gallons per minute. The three broken lines cut the input in half, forcing shut down of ponds fed by the three broken lines.

The 250,000 catchable and sub-catchable trout originally scheduled for stocking late this summer were planted in northeastern lakes. Another 500,000 sac fry — very young fish — were transported to Lisbon Springs Hatchery at Pecos.

McCleskey said weekend planting of fish is against department policy, but was necessary to prevent them from being suffocated by silt being carried into the facility. There were reports of some people taking advantage of the situation, hooking or netting over-limits of fish immediately after the stockings, and Game and Fish officers increased patrols to help curb the poaching.

Because of the muddy, high waters in most of the northern trout streams, the rescued fish were planted in lakes. About 20 Department of Game and Fish personnel and all available fish trucks from throughout the state were called in for the emergency planting of the trout at McAllister, Cabresto, Charette, Clayton, Chloesa, Storrie, Maloya, Santa Cruz, Maxwell 13 and Eagle Nest lakes.

McCleskey said about 1.5 million fish of the total inventory were saved, including those remaining at Red River Hatchery. At normal capacity, the hatchery rears 200,000 pounds of the 500,000 pounds of trout produced annually by the state's six hatcheries. Inventory at the hatchery, with about 125 rearing ponds and raceways, was about 80,000 pounds prior to the flooding, McCleskey said.

Wilderness Wisdom

with Wayne Calloway

Dear Wayne — I have a general complaint that I'd like to air if you will provide space.

A neighbor has a large dog, of unknown ancestry, that runs loose around the entire neighborhood, as well as the fields and woods. I'm certain that there are others besides me who have seen him while caught in the act of watering shrubs and making deposits on the lawn.

There is also another side to the problem besides my own property. The dog has been seen on one occasion chasing a deer across an open field, and I'm sure other wildlife has succumbed to his marauding. The dog isn't mean, but he's a general nuisance. His master (???) has been asked a number of times to restrain his pet, but the plain fact is, he doesn't give a hang.

I own a dog myself, but he doesn't leave the property unless I'm with him. I firmly believe that anyone who can't, or won't, control a dog doesn't deserve the company of one. Howard T., Georgia.

Dear Howard — I agree. And the same goes for cats. Most owners wouldn't believe their pet feline would stalk and kill a young rabbit or bird. But most will — even when they aren't hungry.

Dear Wayne — After several weeks of spare time effort I am nearing completion of a rifle stock. It is my first effort and I'm rather pleased, with one exception.

The stock is sanded to the point of applying the finish, but when it is rubbed a certain way it doesn't feel as smooth as I think it should. Will the finish seal and smooth it out? Russell T., Idaho

Dear Russell — From what you say there is probably one step you haven't completed. And that would be whiskering the stock. These minute hairs of wood must be raised above the surface in order to sand them off.

To do this, turn a front surface element of your electric sander to high and allow it to heat until red hot. If you have a gas range, that's fine, but you may not need to use the highest setting. With a moist cloth, dampen an area of the stock, then hold it above the heat until the small wood whiskers raise above the stock surface. Of course the stock shouldn't be scorching or heated excessively. With a very fine grit wet or dry sandpaper the whiskers can be clipped off by moving the sandpaper against them.

When you have completed this procedure the stock will be truly smooth.

Tip from reader — As most tent campers know, guy ropes should be loosened during rainy spells, otherwise the wet ropes may shrink and pull the tent pegs out of the ground, or rip the fabric loops from the tent. There is, however, nothing pleasant about leaving a warm sleeping bag and going outside in the rain to slacken tent ropes.

A dandy cure for this problem can be had by cutting several two inch wide loops from the inner tube of a car tire. These loops are obtained by cutting across the tube.

When tied between the fabric loops of the tent and the guy ropes, they will stretch to counteract any shrinkage of the ropes. And they are excellent shock absorbers during windy periods. Chester D., Alabama
