

Governor King speaking at Unit, Legion banquet

Governor Bruce King will be the banquet speaker Saturday evening, at the Ruidoso Elks Lodge, as a highlight of the state convention of the American Legion and Auxiliary being held today through Sunday in Ruidoso.

The Governor will address the conventioners at 7 p.m.

While in Ruidoso the governor will be guest speaker at the Southwest Peanut Shellers Association meeting's Saturday noon luncheon at the Inn of the Mountain Gods.

Business sessions of the Legion will begin at the Elks Lodge at 8 a.m., Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The Auxiliary's business meetings will be at 9:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m., Friday, 9 a.m., Saturday; with a memorial service Sunday at 9 a.m., followed by the regular session at 8:30. All meetings will be in the Holiday Inn.

Extra activities include a Mexican dinner, for all delegates, at the American Legion Hall, north on Mechem, from 6-8 p.m., Friday.

The executive committee of the Auxiliary will meet Thursday at 8:30 p.m., at the Ruidoso Legion Hall.

GOVERNOR BRUCE KING

Registration of delegates will begin at 2:30 p.m., today in the Holiday Inn.

Heritage Trust seeks to return Lincoln museum to state control

The Lincoln County Heritage Trust is presently engaged in negotiations with the state museum over the fate of properties which the Trust has been leasing from the state.

According to members of the Trust, that body plans to turn the leased buildings back to the state museum July 1. A meeting, to be attended by representatives of the agencies involved and possibly Trust members, has been scheduled for today in Santa Fe to iron out details of the transfer.

Phil Helmig of Roswell, Trust vice-president, said Wednesday that since the state museum has been "established as a separate state agency" and strong interest has been shown by Lincoln residents in maintaining the historical properties, the Trust believes the Museum is the proper agency for long-term management.

Helmig also gave a brief history of the management of the properties. The Old Lincoln Memorial Commission was originally in charge of all the state properties, which consist of "seven or eight" buildings, he said.

Between 1977 and 1979, a reorganization of state agencies made the commission an advisory board under the state museum, which was in turn placed under the department of education, Helmig continued.

"This left the museum and the commission in limbo," he said. At that time, the Trust, which "had the same objective as the commission — to preserve the state properties," leased the buildings from the state in an effort to "fill the gap" created by the reorganization.

The lease stated that the Trust would "operate, maintain and preserve" the buildings. With "the state museum now having jurisdiction over state monuments, Helmig said, "We feel our mission has been accomplished." The lease by the trust could have continued as long as thirty years, he added.

"Mechanics and details" of the property transfer include insurance and alarm systems considerations, the future of the Wortley Hotel, and so on, Helmig said. The Trust owns several buildings in the town, in addition to those leased. An agreement is also in the works which will allow visitors to state properties to tour the Trust buildings at the same time.

Ruidoso Downs Mule Skinners meet June 27

The Ruidoso Downs Mule Skinners will meet at 7:30 p.m., June 27, in the all purpose room of the Ruidoso Public Library.

Agenda items include a report on the local winners at the Durango, Colorado mule races; discussion on the condition book and advertising for the fall mule meeting as well as presentation of a current financial statement.

Sports Scene makes debut

There's a new face in sports — and it's in the 'Sports Scene' — in The Ruidoso News.

It will appear with reasonable regularity — and on a variety of sporting topics — if John Yang, 13, a seventh grader to be in the Ruidoso schools, works as diligently on future columns as his first, appearing in the sports section of this issue.

Jaycees set 'Youth Rap' this evening

The Ruidoso Jaycees will sponsor a "Youth Rap" tonight beginning at 6 at the Chaparral. The event is designed primarily for young people 18 to 20 years of age.

Purpose of the meeting will be to discuss the problems of youth and teenagers, including consideration of recent rape incidents in this area. The session will be headed by Albert Richardson.

Mescalero Apache Ceremonial July 4-7

Highlights of the July 4-7 Mescalero Apache Ceremonial include presentations of the Dance of the Mountain Gods, Dance of the Apache Maidens, the Puberty Ritual Ceremony and rodeo action the afternoons of July 4, 6 and 7.

Participants in the puberty ritual include: Rutalee, 14, and Angelita, 13, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Cisco Bob;

Rilynn, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Riley Chino; Roxanne, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donovan Bigmouth; and Sharon, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Kirgan.

The maidens will participate in ceremonies at dawn July 4, followed by the Dance of the Apache Maidens. Throughout the four days, the girls will be active in functions open to public viewing, while wearing their ceremonial garments.

Also of spectator interest will be the Dance of the Mountain Gods, presented at dusk each evening in the new ceremonial grounds at Mescalero. The dance portrays how two Apaches, very early in the tribe's history, one blind, the other lame, were rescued from a mountain cave following a dance by the Mountain Gods and returned safely to the tribe — completely healed. The two demonstrated the dance to the tribe and it was adopted as a ceremonial ritual. The afternoon rodeo performances, beginning at 1 p.m., features bull riding, calf roping, saddle and bareback bronc riding, bull dogging, team roping and barrel racing. All events are jackpot, with entries limited. The entry books open, at the rodeo arena, at 8 a.m., daily. An added attraction each afternoon, beginning at 4 p.m., will be Indian dances in the ceremonial arena. All persons attending the dancing and ritualistic portions of the ceremonial, desiring to take photographs, must have a camera permit and strictly abide by the rules imposed by the tribe. "Regarding the maidens," a tribal spokesman said, "the privacy and wishes of the participants and the family must be observed."

GOVERNOR'S RECOMMENDATION EXPECTED NEXT WEEK

Airport still not dead issue

Prospects for construction of jet capable, safe, airport on Fort Stanton mesa are still alive.

"The airport is still not a dead issue," Richard Hall, chairman of the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission (SBAC), said to The News Wednesday afternoon.

Hall attended the Airport Task Force committee's luncheon in Santa Fe Wednesday, meeting with Governor Bruce King; Bill Huey and Jim King of the Natural Resources Committee; Reuben Miera of the Department of Transportation; John Salvo of the Department of Commerce and Industry and Bob White, director of the Department of Aviation.

Though Hall did not remain for the committee meeting, he appeared before the group.

Hall's comments on his participation included:

"The governor allowed me ample opportunity to speak on behalf of SBAC and to state why the commission considers development of the airport so vital. I stressed that safety flight operations were our uppermost concern and that economic benefits would follow once the airport becomes operational.

"Dr. Bill Stephens (head of New Mexico State University's (NMSU) agricultural department and state Secretary of Agriculture) asked me this question: 'Has the airport commission considered all other possible sites?' I said, Yes, we have. Why are you asking the same question you asked over a year ago? You are not listening. There is no viable alternative site."

Hall stated he left time tables of Phase I, II and III, in accordance with the masterplan for the airport; "a realistic schedule and also a compromise schedule," with an agreement "spreading the time between Phase I and Phase II by an additional two years."

Three members of the governor's task force, Miera, Huey and Salvo, Hall said, "were to meet immediately following the luncheon session and then to meet with NMSU officials later this week, possibly Friday, to discuss compromises and to report back to the governor early next week."

Hall also said, "I think we can expect the governor's recommendation (to Secretary of the Interior Cecil Andrus) fairly soon next week."

An entourage of 36 airport supporters drove to Santa Fe Wednesday morning for a roundtable conference with Governor King, Ed Jungbluth, executive director of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce, said to The News.

"We had a good meeting with the governor," Jungbluth said. "Mayor Lloyd L. Davis Jr., spoke on behalf of the airport, including reading a prepared statement supporting it. Wendell Chino, president of the Mescalero Apache Tribe, also spoke briefly in support of the project."

"The governor told us that the final decision has rested at the 'Washington level' all along," and advised the group, "to try and get this (problem of land usage) resolved."

A wave of alarm swept through the community Tuesday afternoon with the announcement from Senator Harrison Schmitt's office that Secretary Andrus had, that day, denied use of mesa lands for the airport. Later in the day it was learned that the denial concerned the original SBAC request for 3,000 acres; the request denied by the Bureau of Land Management.

"To me," Hall said, "this means that the Secretary is still open to a compromise, utilizing less acreage and reducing interference with NMSU experiments to a minimum, that may still permit us to have our new airport."

Jungbluth's statement, following Wednesday's meetings, was, "I'm confident the task force members and NMSU officials will work out a good compromise that Governor King will be able to support and make a favorable recommendation to Secretary Andrus. We expect to have super news on our airport by the end of next week."

Grant assures sewer system

Construction of the Regional Wastewater System (RWS), designed to serve Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs, was assured Tuesday with the announcement by United States Representative Harold Runnels that a $4,527,503 grant for the project has been approved.

The Environmental Protection Agency grant will become effective with the signing of the application by Ruidoso's village officials early next week.

The total cost of RWS has been pegged, by Daniels Engineering, Alamogordo, at $8,026,666. The state's 12 1/2 percent share amounts to $750,000; with $500,000 to be paid by Ruidoso and $250,000 by Ruidoso Downs.

"This means that our struggle of several years, to finance RWS is over," village manager Jim Hine said Tuesday, "and that we can develop an adequate sewage system to serve our needs for many years."

Car burns; forest fire averted

A car caught fire Monday in a ravine near High Mesa Ranch, northeast of ARO, with quick action by fire fighting crews containing the blaze without significant loss of property.

The car was owned by Mr. and Mrs. Earl Cathers of Ruidoso.

Mrs. Cather described the incident: "We were trying to get our car up a steep hill, from the bottom of the ravine. I suspect that the catalytic converter could have ignited the brush, as we were in it quite a while.

"When we noticed the flames, Earl got out and tried to pull the burning brush from under the car. Within minutes, the car was in flames. The car was an absolute loss.

"If the gas tank had exploded, instead of rupturing, I think we'd have had the biggest forest fire in this area in history.

"The wind was very strong there Monday. The High Mesa Ranch, everything else around there, could have gone up in flames.

"Thanks to the quick response by the Bonito Fire Department and Forest Service fire fighters, there wasn't a forest fire, though it took them about two hours to really fantastic." Cathers sustained minor burns and abrasions in attempting to remove the burning brush from beneath the car. Mrs. Cathers, who went to summon aid, was uninjured.

Bonito Fire Chief Rudy Luker reported to The News Wednesday that the fire burned "four or five pine trees and some ground fuels covering an area of about 25 feet. The fire took us between one and a half and two hours to extinguish.

"The fire was in a ravine on a road branching to the left of the entrance to High Mesa Ranch. It looked as though Cather tried to get his car out of the ravine, and that it got overheated and caused the fire."

THIS CHARRED BODY is all that remains of the Cather car following Monday's fire.

Evening Lions now collecting flag contracts

The Ruidoso Evening Lions, who raise and take down United States flags in the business district on holidays, announced Wednesday that contracts for the service for the coming year are now due.

The contract price continues at $25 for the year extending from July 1 this year to June 30, 1980.

The fee may be mailed to: Evening Lions, P.O. Box 518, Ruidoso, New Mexico 88345.

"This year's contract includes flag service beginning July 4, committee member Roy Ratcliffe said Wednesday. Information on this community service program, Ratcliffe said, is available by calling me at 378-4481; Don Parsons 257-7361; Dr. Lynn Willard 257-4027 or Roger Marshall 257-2835."

Schools' custodial staff spends summer laboring

Unlike students, the custodial staff in the Ruidoso school system doesn't get the summer off.

Except for a two-week vacation, the eight custodians, maintenance supervisor and in-house carpenter spend the entire summer preparing the school buildings for the school year.

The 16 school buildings in the district are valued at almost $8 million, according to Superintendent of Schools Pat Valliant, who said "It becomes quite a job to keep the buildings up to standard."

During the school term, the custodial staff is assigned specific buildings and their main job is to keep them clean and maintained, including outdoor grooming. "They really have to be a 'jack of all trades' to do the job," Valliant said.

The district employs eight custodians, a maintenance supervisor, Wayne Gipson, and Mike Michaels, a carpenter. Michaels spends most of each day "building anything that's needed and repairing furniture," Valliant said. During the atternoons, Michaels doubles as a custodian at White Mountain Elementary School.

The summer months allow the staff to give all buildings a thorough cleaning. Working together, they give classrooms a coat of paint, rotating so each is painted every four to five years. Kitchens are painted twice as often so they will conform to state health standards.

The biggest job the custodians have is to clean the floors of all buildings. "This turns into quite a job," Valliant said, "because they have to move all the furniture out, do the floors and move it all back in." Tile floors are stripped and re-waxed and carpets are shampooed.

The two gymnasium floors are resurfaced each summer, a job which takes about two weeks for each floor. In all, custodians spend two weeks cleaning Nob Hill Elementary buildings, three weeks at White Mountain Elementary, three weeks at White Mountain Middle School and about two weeks at the high school. The high school gym floor is the last to be reworked. Each summer, a basketball camp is held there, so "we like to wait till they're gone so it will be new for our students," Valliant said.

Meanwhile, the maintenance supervisor spends his summer doing preventive maintenance on equipment at the school. He cleans every heater, checks and cleans the motors which drive the heaters, cools and cleans the boilers and checks all kitchen appliances.

The summer crew is also responsible for mowing all lawns on school property, a task assigned to one man, who works full-time with gardening equipment during the summer.

Expenses for summer maintenance cost the district about $25,000, including cleaning supplies, paint, replacement parts, equipment and salaries.

Within two weeks of the beginning of school, custodians are again at their original posts to assist the principals in getting rooms ready for the influx of students each fall.

4-H elimination events held

BY GWYNETH JONES
Staff Writer/Photographer

The Lincoln County 4-H elimination contests, held Tuesday in Capitan, featured competition in livestock judging, dress review, consumer decision making, public speaking, demonstrations and crop judging.

Senior 4-H members (14 and older) who won the top honors in their contests will advance to the state competition to be held in Las Cruces July 8-13. Junior (9-13 years) winners will go on to compete in the district contests in Hobbs June 27.

Entering the state contest in livestock judging will be seniors Tena Proctor and Rodney Montoya, both of Capitan. Junior winners in that contest were Mary Jane Ferguson, Carrizozo, Todd Proctor, Capitan and Troy Herd, Capitan. In the novice division of livestock judging, Dale Booher took the blue award and will compete in Hobbs, also.

Other livestock judging awards (red ribbons) went to Linda Booher, Doretta Burchett and Rhonda Montoya, all of Capitan.

In Consumer Decision Making, one of the newer 4-H categories, the senior representatives will be Matt Ferguson, Debbie Kay Gallacher, Stephen Payne and Johnny Bob Sterns, all of Carrizozo. Terry Nickason will be the only junior contestant in the consumer category.

In the county contest, the participants were asked to choose the best toy for a four-year-old child from a group of four items and the best snack food, also from a group of four. In the state contest, the 4-H'ers also will be judging tee shirts and study lamps.

Stephen Payne, the only entrant in the public speaking contest, will proceed to the state contest. The title of his speech was "Moving Out, Moving On with 4-H."

Two junior members, Ronald Joiner of Capitan and Steve Copeland of Corona will be making demonstrations for the district meet. Joiner demonstrated the setting of a trap, while Copeland constructed a rope halter. Both received blue ribbons for their work.

Crop judging winners, who identified seeds and plants and made an analysis of a barley seed sample, included Tracy Herd in the novice division, Tena Proctor, senior division; and Troy Herd and Todd Proctor, junior division. All are residents of Capitan.

The clothing review competition attracted the largest number of entrants. Senior winners were Della Kimbrell of Hondo and Debbie Kay Gallacher of Carrizozo. Other participants in the senior division were Melissa Sanchez and Cindy Montano, both of Hondo.

In the Fun with 4-H Clothing I division, Janice Sanchez and Johnna Patterson took the top awards and will compete at the district contest. A red award went to Beverly Bell of Corona, and white awards went to Christina Herrera and Gabriela Gomez of Hondo.

In the Home Living II project, Julie Vega of Carrizozo won a red award.

In the Mix and Match competition, blue ribbons were won by Missy Jones and Yvonne Montes, both of Capitan. Red awards went to Audrey Joiner and Hemita Trujillo of Capitan. Irene Sanchez of Hondo won a white award in the category.

Alice Booky and Doretta Burchett of Hondo will represent Lincoln County in the district competition of Teen Wardrobe and Design. Also taking a blue ribbon was Rhonda Montoya of Capitan. Sylvia Montano of Hondo won a red ribbon.

Adults who will be accompanying the 4-H members to district contest will be Mrs. Jerry Burchett and Mrs. Ernest Booky of Hondo; Mr. and Mrs. Walt Jones and Mrs. Pat Joiner of Capitan; Mrs. Ernest Copeland of Corona; Lee Vega of Carrizozo; county agricultural agent Berry Herd and extension home economist Mary Ellen Payne.

Pictures of the contest activity appear throughout this issue, with cutlines identifying the participants or action.

TAKING A CLOSE LOOK at the seed samples in Tuesday's 4-H crop judging contest in Capitan are Troy Herd and Todd Proctor. The entrants were required to identify seeds and plants and make an analysis of a sample of barley seed.

THE DUST FLEW and the audience was awed as Ronald Joiner demonstrated what happens when a pre-set trap is disturbed. Joiner received a blue ribbon for the demonstration at the county 4-H contest Tuesday in Capitan.

THE VIRTUES OF ROPE HALTERS were cited by Steve Copeland of Corona during his demonstration at the 4-H county contest Tuesday in Capitan. Above, he holds the finished product. Copeland will go on to the district contest in Hobbs later this month.

A RED AWARD was won by Renita Trujillo, above center, who made the print-lace and ribbon-trimmed skirt she models. The contestants also participated in a style show during the day, with commentary provided by extension home economist Mary Ellen Payne.

George/Gunter vows recited

MR. AND MRS. TERRELL W. GUNTER

Nancy George and Petty Officer Third Class Terrall W. Gunter were united in marriage May 30 in Terre Haute, Indiana at St. Benedict Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Elmer George of Terre Haute and the late Mr. George. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ab Gunter of Ruidoso.

The Reverend Hubert Kobunski, assisted by the Reverend Joseph Wade, officiated at the ceremony, attended by the families and close friends of the couple. The bride wore a floor-length sleeveless dress of white chiffon and lace with a cathedral-length train. Lace beaded with seed pearls formed the high neckline and decorated the sheer yoke and bodice of the gown and emphasized the empire waistline.

Beaded lace appliques were scattered over the cathedral-length veil of silk illusion, which was secured by a beaded cap of lace and flowers. The bride carried a crescent-style cascade arrangement of white roses, stephanotis, baby's breath and springer. The veil also featured a headband of baby's breath and stephanotis.

Maid of honor was Maria Nevothy of Mesa, Arizona and bridesmaids were Julie and Kathy George, sisters of the bride. Toni Hyatt served as flower girl.

Petty Officer Third Class James P. Nevis was best man and the brothers-in-law of the bridegroom, Frank Potter of Ruidoso and Holly Hyatt of Buffalo, Montana were groomsmen and ushers. Ring bearer was Chad Potter.

Tony George escorted his sister to the altar in a garden setting of ferns and white chrysanthemums. Large candelabra entwined with white mums, carnations and baby's breath held white cathedral tapers, and the kneeling bench was trimmed with white mini-carnations, pompon chrysanthemums, statice and baby's breath.

The maid of honor wore a floor-length gown of peach chiffon over peach satin, with a square neckline, full chiffon sleeves and full skirt. The bridesmaids were attired in pastel green gowns of the same design.

The attendants wore picture hats with headbands of miniature peach carnations, stephanotis and baby's breath. They carried bouquets of the same flowers.

A reception followed the ceremony at Lingen Lodge, the Hulman farm. The lawn and lodge were decorated with arrangements of exotic flowers such as Japhet orchids, white anthurium and rhubrium lilies. A large floating arrangement of anthurium, birds of paradise, statice, carnations and ti leaves was surrounded by floating gardenias in the lodge pool.

After a wedding trip to Cancun, Yucatan Peninsula, Mexico the couple will make their home at Chesapeake, Virginia. The bridegroom is stationed at Norfolk, Virginia with the United States Navy.

Capitan Extension club sponsoring art, craft classes

The Capitan Extension club will be sponsoring a series of arts and crafts classes throughout the week of June 25-29. Registration fee will be $1.50 to cover the cost of refreshments. A pollock luncheon will be held each day from 11:30 to 12:30, between the morning and afternoon sessions.

Morning classes will run from 8:30 to 11:30 and afternoon sessions from 12:30 to 3:30. For information and registration, contact Jan LaRue at 354-2668 or Lorene Kaywood at 354-2605 in Capitan.

Class schedules are as follows:
Monday morning, How to Fit a Pattern.
Monday afternoon, the One-Yard Shirt.
Tuesday morning, Off-Loom Weaving.
Tuesday afternoon, Needlepoint and Window Treatments.
Wednesday, all day, Candle Making and Furniture Refinishing.
Wednesday afternoon, Dough Art.
Thursday morning, How to Applique a Quilt Block.
Thursday afternoon, Crocheting Granny Squares.
Friday morning, Batik and Handmade Gifts.
Friday afternoon, Crewel Embroidery.

W. J. Pierces note sixtieth anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. W.J. Pierces of Ruidoso celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary June 16. The Pierces were married in Weatherford, Texas, in 1919 and moved to Ruidoso from Midland, Texas 20 years ago.

Pierces is an independent builder. Mrs. Pierces is a charter member of the Ruidoso Hospital Auxiliary (Pink Ladies) and is also active in the Woman's Club and Garden Club.

Rainbow Girls receive awards at state session

Three Rainbow Girls from Ruidoso, Patti Neal, Jonetta Montgomery and Andrea Haddix, attended the "Life's Miracles" session of the Grand Assembly of New Mexico, International Order of the Rainbow for Girls June 6-9.

The session was held at Eastern New Mexico University in Portales. Neal, Grand Outer Observer and Montgomery, Grand Representative to Wisconsin, concluded their year-by-performing at this state meeting. Haddix, present Worthy Advisor of the Ruidoso Assembly, was selected to serve on the Grand Cross of Color team next year.

Iserne Pomper, Grand Worthy Advisor, presided over each session using the theme of Life's Miracles and the motto, "Anything is Within Your Reach." Her symbols were the sunrise over the ocean and the sunset over the mountains.

As a Grand Officer, Neal wore a yellow dress and represented part of the sun while Montgomery wore a blue dress and represented the sky.

Among the awards presented by Pomper was outstanding Worthy Associate Advisor, given to Haddix and Honorable Mention Outer Observer to Neal. Recognized during the Friday session were Montgomery, Ruidoso's Girl of the Year, Haddix, Worthy Advisor and Daria Lathan, Mother Advisor.

In addition to the assembly delegates, two new members, Pam Parker and Phyllis Deal were able to attend the entire session.

Cancer Society's benefit dance Tuesday evening

The East Lincoln Chapter of the American Cancer Society (ACS) will sponsor a benefit dance Tuesday evening at the Chaparral Lounge.

The dance is one of several fund raising plans being used by the local chapter to help reach their goal of $2,300 for this year's cancer crusade.

The dance is scheduled to last from 9 p.m. to 1:30 a.m., and tickets can be purchased at The Hair Affair or by calling Louise Hansen at 257-7381, Extension 280. Cost of tickets is $5 per person.

Bands scheduled to play include the "Martin Music Company," "Sundance," and "Kim Blakey's Last Roundup." Proof of age must be presented at the door and those under age will not be permitted without an adult guardian.

Hansen said this year's fund drive, which began June 15, got off to a good start with donations from many businesses in Ruidoso and surrounding towns. Donations also are placed around the county. Memorials can be mailed to the East Lincoln Chapter, P.O. Box 3354, Hollywood Station, Ruidoso 88345. Donations are tax deductible, and upon receipt of a contribution, a card is returned to the donor as a receipt.

The crusade in Lincoln County ends June 29 but donations are accepted year round at the mailing address.

Altrusa supporting new airport

MARY RAY, District Two second vice governor for Altrusa Clubs, attended the Tuesday meeting of the Ruidoso Altrusa Club. She is pictured opening a gift from the club.

The Ruidoso Altrusa Club decided Tuesday to adopt a resolution supporting the relocation of the Ruidoso airport.

The resolution was signed by all club members attending and was presented to Governor Bruce King Wednesday.

The club received a visit from Mary Ray, currently serving as Second Vice Governor for the district. Ray said she was impressed with the large number of young women in the club and stressed the importance of keeping membership active.

Dr. Dave Rouleau, captain, spoke to the club concerning the need for a well developed Emergency Medical Technicians program in the county. Currently, there are several EMT's in the county but, according to Rouleau, there aren't enough to have an effective emergency program in the county.

He said a class for EMT's could be conducted in the area if at least 20 people chose to enroll. The class costs $125 per person and is an 81-hour course.

The Altrusans referred the possible community service proposal to a committee for consideration.

Katherine Finley was recognized for her year as president of the club and presented with a rose.

Maranathal concert here Saturday evening

KAREN LAFFERTY — Guitarist/songwriter

Guitarists/songwriters Karen Lafferty and Bob Bennett will appear in a free public concert Saturday at 7 p.m., in the Ruidoso High School gymnasium presenting their testimony and love for Jesus Christ in song.

This performance is the first of four free concerts scheduled this summer, under the sponsorship of Maranathal Mountain Ministries of Ruidoso.

Lafferty, an Alamogordo native, is a recording artist with Maranathal Music, a California-based company. She recently appeared in concert in England, Holland and Germany with Saturday's performance being her first since returning to the United States.

"Her easy listening music and gentle manner has been one factor in retaining her seven year career in contemporary Christian music," Tyler Laird, of Maranathal Mountain Ministries, said. Bennett's first solo album with Maranathal Music is scheduled for release this fall. "His intricate guitar work and strong voice," Laird said, "has been featured on four other albums released by the same recording company."

Gallegos discusses alcoholism problems

BY GWYNETH JONES
Staff Writer

When Paul Gallegos speaks about the progression of alcoholism, he not only calls upon five years experience in alcoholism counseling, but also on more than 30 years experience as an alcoholic.

Gallegos, who is employed by the counseling centers in Ruidoso and Carrizozo, calls himself a "recovering alcoholic." He uses that particular term, he said, because he is "constantly aware" that he is an alcoholic, "always working on my sobriety," and he believes, based on his experiences, that the only effective treatment for the disease is to abstain from drinking.

Not everyone takes the same progression through the stages of the disease, Gallegos said. An example is the "functional alcoholic" who may be able to maintain a certain level of intoxication without drastic effect on career or family life. This type of alcoholic drinks throughout the day, keeping liquor in his office or car. After ten to 25 years of this type of drinking, Gallegos said, the alcoholic may die of a heart attack, rather than moving into another stage of the disease.

But for others, in the chronic state, alcohol becomes the most important thing in the person's life. "All they think about is where the next drink is coming from. Nothing else matters," Gallegos said. "My own progression toward becoming chronic meant becoming a loser," Gallegos continued. "I was unable to advance because I was unreliable."

At the same time, he said, he was also becoming "neurotic and paranoid," losing all self-confidence and self-respect, and developing a hate for himself. After several encounters with police and judges who were involved in his convictions for driving while intoxicated (DWI), he began to transfer the self-hate to those authority figures.

In addition, Gallegos said, "I was a mirror-carrier," meaning "I thought of myself what other people said of me." The opinion of those others wasn't good, and after sixteen years of federal service Gallegos was forced to resign his job. He has since found that "most alcoholics have to lose everything before they start to work themselves out of the gutter."

The "road back" for Gallegos took eight years, and was marked by extended periods of sobriety (up to 11 months) and also by more DWI arrests, ultimately resulting in the loss of his driver's license. During those periods of sobriety, he said, "I had a chance to touch on reality, to look at myself, think for myself and begin to blame myself instead of the judges and policemen I hated."

In 1973, he was picked up for DWI on two consecutive days. For the last charge, he was sentenced to six months in jail.

However, during the first days of his sentence, he talked to a woman counselor who urged him to enroll in a 61 day alcoholism treatment program at Fort Lyons, Colorado.

He spent two months at the veteran's hospital waiting for an opening in the program, during which he said he "found a reason to stay sober." He "got to looking at the mental patients" at the hospital and decided "I didn't want to become a statistic like them." At this point, he said, "I was in reality and what I saw, I didn't like."

He then found another source of help. "I went to the chapel and asked Jesus to help me — and He did," he said. He decided to become an alcohol abuse counselor at that time, but he said, "It took a lot of psychological treatment for me to get to the point of thinking positively and striving for goals." He set two major priorities: abstain from drinking and to "come home and get my high school diploma" to qualify for a college level counselor's training program also available in the Fort Lyons area.

In 1975, he returned to Lincoln County to begin his new career, at that time, with Southwest Mental Health. He has not had a drink in over five years.

At the counseling centers in Ruidoso and Carrizozo, the program is aimed at the psychological side of the treatment for the disease. Depending on the state of mind of the client, Gallegos sometimes recommends a hospital-type treatment program in addition to counseling.

Gallegos said reality therapy, Gestalt therapy and transactional analysis all play a part in his work, combined with "common sense and my own experience."

Each client is treated as an individual and Gallegos said he strives to be open minded in all treatment. He may work with other counseling center staff members in a program designed to help solve family or job problems which often accompany alcoholism.

"There is effective treatment for alcoholism," he said, "and, working as a team, that is what we intend to provide."

At the same time, he said, he was also becoming "neurotic and paranoid," losing all self-confidence and self-respect, and developing a hate for himself. After several encounters with police and judges who were involved in his convictions for driving while intoxicated (DWI), he began to transfer the self-hate to those authority figures.

Handicapping brain wins over solid state computer

BY DICK ALWAN

It was the classic confrontation—the computer against the brain.

The computer, a $39.95 job, belonged to Ken Brodnax, sports editor of The Odessa American, Texas. The brain belonged to Eric Alwan, the 14-year-old cerebral type who touts the horses at Ruidoso Downs and Sunland Park under the penname of Eager Beaver.

The duel, staged in the pressbox, was supposed to decide whether a ruthlessly logical computerized system (of sorts) could outdo flesh-and-blood brain cells and raw intuition. At least when it comes to picking horses. A day's racing program seemed adequate enough to decide the issue, and Brodnax—whose computer was the gift of some attorney pals back home in Odessa—showed up awash with enthusiasm.

A few weeks earlier, Brodnax had given the little solid state gizmo a trial run at Gulfstream Park in Florida, and the gadget, a hand held affair with all the looks of your standard K-Mart calculator, had acquitted itself well. "It's fairly accurate," he said. "And it doesn't always come up with the favorite. Obviously, it was conceived by people who know a little about racing."

Besides, there's the psychological aspect, Brodnax reports. "It makes you think the calculator is doing a lot of the work for you." Anyone who's tried to handicap the horses appreciates all the help he can get.

"But would the little gizmo really pick a winner? That's what we needed to find out."

Take a look at one of the ads running in their magazines and you'll think The RaceTrack Computer (as it's called, with "race" and "track" running together), is really a little handicapping Einstein. Any track-weary horse picker will be relieved to know this track computer uses a computerized performance rating, which the advertising folks call the "C.P.R." The device has levers which utilize a "new micro processor-based engineering design," and that certainly sounds like it ought to do the job.

And if that's not enough to win you over, the ads claim: "The CPR Rating System is amazingly accurate, as proven at several major derbies." Sure, this all sounds like advertising double talk, but what the heck. Nothing's perfect.

There's a certain amount of info the RaceTrack Computer needs. You have to punch in the weight on each horse, the last speed rating, and each horse's best speed rating from his last three races. Put all that together, and your little gadget produces a numerical assessment—which is the adman's C.P.R. The nag with the top grade is the one you can load up on.

So finally it came time to clear the decks and have at it, and in the first race, Eager Beaver, utilizing his brainpower to the fullest, picked Pistol Ball, a 7-2 shot in the six furlong run. Pistol Ball flopped to sixth. The computer fared much better, launching Big Time Four to a second place finish at just under 4-1.

In the second race, the Beaver went with Blaze Gummo, who conked out like a lead balloon. The computer ran into an emotional roadblock and couldn't produce a selection, since the race was for baby two-year-olds, almost all devoid of any previous races.

The third race was a clear victory for the human race, as Eager Beaver struck with Tony Passum By, a two length winner at 8-5. But that was a quarter horse race, and the RaceTrack Computer, having never heard of the breed, declined the issue. So matters were still a zero-to-zero tie.

In the fourth race, the battle was aborted once again. Another two-year-old race, one lacking in sufficient grit for the computer's mill. In the fifth race, Eager Beaver finally got the edge, rubbing Chakee (3-2) into the computer's electronic nose. Chakee frolicked in by nearly four lengths, while the computer, symbolically perhaps, opted for All Downhill. This dismal failure got in three notches from last place at 6-1.

"When Chakee shot out of the gate on the outside, I knew I had it," the Beaver said with more bravura than was necessary. "I love getting the early lead." But was he worried about a late rally from the computer? "Not at all. I've got him now."

The computer, despite its C.P.R. and dodes and electronic know how, really failed Brodnax in that one. Shouldn't it have known that Chakee is owned by Robert Hillin of Odessa—Brodnax' home town?

The sixth race was another no show—since it was an unprogrammable quarter horse race. The seventh, though, was luscious revenge for the computer, thanks to Tuff Bear, who came through by a half length at a gorgeous 3-1. The beaver went for Rebel Sea, the people's choice. He ran third. The beaver quickly lamented: "I was stunned. I couldn't believe it. Tuff Bear didn't figure as well as my horse. I'm a little worried now. This computer looks tough."

In the eighth race, both the Beaver and the computer went down the tubes with Marinka, so it was still a 1-1-1 tie. The 9th, an 870 yard race, had to be skipped to accommodate the computer's intellectual range. The 10th was a failure for both man and computer. The Beaver stubbed his toe with Lusty Viking. The computer struck out with Alzeenero.

In the 11th, the stalemate was shattered as Eager Beaver thumped the tub with Desert Falcon, a 2-1 beauty. The computer took third with O.K. Bandit, so that put the Beaver on top with a shaky 3-1 lead with one race still to go.

Matters wrapped up sweetly for flesh-and-blood thinking as the Beaver struck again, this time with De Elsie's Girl, at 3-1. The computer howled out, wounded and aggrieved, with the 5-1 shot, Relwof.

But the Beaver had some kind words for his foe. "I think it makes some good decisions, considering the limited information it works with."

Brodnax, though, felt the computer really missed the boat on De Elsie's girl. "The filly was moving up in class," he said. "That's a factor the computer doesn't take into account."

Which goes to show the RaceTrack Computer is only human.

Cree Meadows ladies tourney June 28

The 1979 Cree Meadows Ladies' Partnership Invitational golf tournament will tee off at 10 a.m., June 28, club owner Bob Hickson has announced.

The $40 team entry fee includes cart fee, coffee, juice and rolls at 9 a.m., lunch following play and a seat in the All American Club for the second round of the Cree Meadows Invitational at Ruidoso Downs Race Track. All flight winners will be honored in the Winner's Circle, following the feature race.

Players will be flighted, Hickson said, by the lower handicap of the team, with no more than eight strokes difference allowed. Low gross and low net will be awarded in each flight.

The entry deadline is June 26, to H.L.J. Golf, Inc., P.O. Box 2274, Ruidoso, New Mexico 88345. Reservations may be made by calling 257-2212.

Wilderness Wisdom with Wayne Calloway

Dear Wayne—During the coming year I plan to visit the northwoods of Canada. I've heard rather unpleasant stories about the insect pests of these regions. While they may not be as bad as some of the stories portray, I'd like to be prepared to counter their attacks. Is insect repellent a satisfactory answer or must other measures be taken? John D., Iowa

Dear John—There are times in the north country when mosquitoes, black flies and biting gnats are especially ferocious. And this problem isn't limited to Canada. Our own northwoods areas share the same plight.

Insect repellent should be considered a must item. Even so, some kinds won't work against all insect pests all the time. You would do well to choose a reputable, well tested brand.

Three may be times when a headnet, long sleeved shirt, and gloves are very desirable. Don't use smelly hairsprays, shaving lotions or ointments when insects are a problem. It has also been found that mosquitoes are attracted more by dark colored clothing than that of a lighter, more subtle shade.

Don't let the thought of insect pests dampen your enthusiasm for the trip. There is scarcely an area of the country where such pests aren't found at one time or another, but only rarely will they completely ruin a vacation.

A few years ago I spent a couple of weeks camping in different areas of Alaska. A week had passed before I was bitten by a mosquito, and we were only then bothered a couple of days by what I deem very light attacks. I was, in fact, pleasantly surprised by their absence.

Before returning home I mentioned this to a resident, who ironically, had lived until the age of 13 near a salt-water marsh in my own state, less than 25 miles from home. He soon informed me that Alaskan mosquitoes couldn't hold a candle to our own.

The point is, Alaska has a reputation for heavy mosquito infestations, and it's well deserved—in some regions—some of the time. But most other regions also have their share of insect pests.

The local Sports Scene

by JOHN YANG

One of the most refreshing and cool things to do in the summer is to go over to the Ruidoso Municipal Swimming Pool. Take these safety precautions:

- Don't run on wet concrete.
- When diving, make sure everything is clear.
- Don't eat before swimming;
- Don't play in the water; and
- Don't leave a small child alone, when taken swimming.

A word about eating before swimming: If you eat before swimming wait an hour; if you don't, that Hostess Twinkie urge will give you cramps.

When you swim don't wear cutoffs; it may possibly cause clogging of the drain. Wear a regular swimsuit.

Just because your child can swim two times around the wading pool, don't throw him/her into the deep water.

Respect the public swimming pool for what it is. Look at all the advantages. You don't have to build your own pool. You get to meet a lot of nice people. It's very low cost and it's a good way to get cooled off.

The public swimming pool is a good place to teach your child to swim because there are swimming and diving classes. If your child has scuba gear, make sure it is functioning properly. When you swim and need to hold your nose, try some nose clips.

If you are afraid you might possibly get an ear infection, try some ear plugs. If you can't swim, that doesn't leave you out of the fun.

You can take swimming classes starting with I, beginner swimmer; II, advanced beginner; III, intermediate; IV, swimmer and V, advanced.

All courses provide instruction needed to be an overall good swimmer. And if you want to add a little variety, take the diving classes.

The "swim and stay fit classes" are good if you are overweight.

Our pool also offers classes in life saving, basic water safety, basic rescue and advanced life saving. Try them, they're fun!

To help you swim better, the pool provides lifeguards, swim instructors, diving instructors and other staff people. So, all in all, this fun filled place provides a big pool with high and low diving boards, wading pool, bathrooms, toilets, showers and a snack bar.

The pool is open Sunday through Saturday from 12 to 5 p.m.

Ruidoso State Bank was just one year old when Ethel Carroll joined the small staff in the bookkeeping department 24 years ago. And she's helped us hold onto the original, friendly service we began with during our growth into a major banking concern with four branch offices.

She's helped us grow, because she believes the most important responsibility she has is keeping our bank working on a person-to-person level with you.

A native of Brady, Texas, Ethel and her husband, Ogden, who is employed at Sierra Blanca Motors, have been Ruidoso residents for over 30 years. Two married daughters, Cheryl Hale and LaRickie Adams, also call Ruidoso home.

"I love my job," Ethel commented. "I enjoy the challenge. And I still learn something new almost every day!"

Ethel has worked in nearly every department and knows the banking business inside out... and most of our customers by name.

All the employees at Ruidoso State Bank take pride in giving you the kind of friendly, personalized attention you expect. And now our main bank is open longer hours to serve you even better!

LINDAL PUSHES PRICES BACK.

With home prices everywhere going up, up, up - at twice the rate of inflation, we have just rolled back prices on every Lindal cedar home.

Why? You already know that the best way to combat inflation is to invest in a quality home. By lowering our prices, we are going all out to stop the ever upward spiral in housing costs. And this means savings of up to several thousands of dollars for you.

Also, by buying a Lindal home of quality now, you will insure that an already good investment becomes an even greater investment.

Come in and talk to your Lindal distributor today. This offer has to expire July 15, 1979, because, after all, even we can't afford to hold off inflation forever.

Inside The Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE—As the capital city began to fill with its summer supply of tourists, politicians continued to go their own way and do their own things. For example:

TIGHT SUPPLY: There wasn't much cabinet secretary Larry Kehoe, our man in charge of energy and minerals, could tell the Legislature's new Interim Energy and Environment Committee in two hours on the stand except that things will get a lot worse before they get better. Gasoline supplies to the state are down at least 6 per cent this month as compared to same month last year, and likely to remain at least that much down until September. Kehoe says gasoline supplies will fluctuate—now tight, now slightly looser—for at least the next ten years. It will be interesting to see what if anything a legislative committee can do to ease that situation.

GRACEFUL RETREAT: Judges of Supreme Court voted unanimously to reverse themselves on that new rule which would have allowed judges at all levels to moonlight to increase their income, as long as they didn't practice law. Outcry from public and straight talk from some of their legal brethren apparently helped to speed decision on this subject. Look for judges, through newly established New Mexico Judges Association, to mount strong lobbying campaign for increased pay for themselves and court employees.

LITTLE HELPER: Governor Jerry Brown of California did not attend the Western Governor's Conference in Idaho. He can't leave home, because he can't trust his Lieutenant Governor, who is a Republican. Governor Bruce King has a Lieutenant Governor who is a member of his own party, but who likes to go off on his own. Last time he was acting governor, he declared state of emergency, for first time in state's history, over something which hadn't happened yet. This time, he commuted sentence of a prisoner in the pen, admittedly a friend of his family, though Governor thought he had made it clear he thought the commutation was a bad idea. Governor King's undoubtedly right when he says, "We're going to have to have some understandings."

WARNING? Ex-governor Jerry Apodaca used to threaten anyone who mentioned the existence of some wiretap evidence that crooks were using his name with severe damage, including libel suits. He seems to have mellowed a little. Last week, in an interview, he said on the subject of these mysterious FBI tapes: "They're not hard to understand. Just a small-time hood bragging to a bigger one to impress him. When you're in office, your name gets used. Anybody who's ever been elected to an office worth having has had that experience."

TOTE BOARD: Chances that Harold Ruppels will run for governor, once thought to be 50-50, have now moved up to 95 per cent, according to Ruppels' friend Ben Alexander of Hobbs, whose word you can believe.

YES OR NO? Governor King says he vetoed that Right to Work bill passed by the last Legislature. Attorney General Jeff Bingaman agrees that the Governor did everything all nice and legal. But there's one man who still disagrees. He claims we now have a Right to Work law in effect, as of last Friday. He's House Speaker Gene Samberson of Lovington, who says he's studied the matter and studied it and, no matter what Bingaman says, the Gov's veto was invalid. Samberson, who was a Right to Work supporter himself, says he has no plans for going to court to test his position, so the two—Governor King, who keeps saying "no no no," and Samberson, who keeps saying "yes yes yes"—may end up holding those positions for some time to come.

Sense & Nonsense

U.S. Sen. Pete Domenici

WASHINGTON, D.C. — What we seem to have here on terra firma is a classic example of the rock and the hard place. With the human race squeezed between them.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) last week issued a report on the dangerously increasing amount of carbon dioxide in the earth's atmosphere.

As NOAA Director Richard A. Frank noted, "Over the long term, much of this increase comes from the burning of fossil fuels. We are concerned that humanity may be adding enough carbon dioxide to the atmosphere to force dramatic changes in climate, creating an environment tomorrow that will be less hospitable than today's."

Stripping that statement of the bureaucrat's Mr. Frank doesn't paint a bright picture. As was reported in the media upon NOAA's report, the global increase in atmospheric carbon dioxide from 1977 to 1978 was 1.5 parts of carbon dioxide per million parts of air.

With those figures, the average global proportion of carbon dioxide in the air is about 335 parts per million, the result of an average increase for each of the past 19 years of 1.3 parts per million.

Interpreting those statistics in frightening layman's terms, the carbon dioxide in the air can trap the sun's rays, increasing the temperature of the atmosphere and raising temperatures on all points of the globe.

The polar icecaps could melt, flooding vast areas of the world and leaving a parched earth in its wake.

Therefore, how do we counter this growing phenomenal menace?

The world revolves on fossil fuel, but the more we extract and burn the more carbon dioxide we have, with the added worry that by one day extracting it all Mother Earth will look like a prune.

Alternative energy sources must be developed. And "sooner or later" no longer applied. It's much later than we think already.

Solar power, which I have long advocated, seems a natural considering these latest data from NOAA.

And nuclear power is an option, despite its real or imagined problems at present.

As was reported, experts estimate that global burning of petroleum, coal, wood, or any other combustible fuel, will cause the level of carbon dioxide in the air to double some time between the years 2025 and 2075.

That will result in an increase of up to 5.4 degrees Fahrenheit, which carries the potential for calamity.

A stepped-up program of research and development begun now could bear fruit in the solar energy realm in the near future, perhaps harnessing those trapped sunrays and filtering them into energy.

Fossil fuel appears to be the immediate answer to our energy crisis. And I strongly advocate its exploration.

But to overlook the long term risks for the short term relief is folly, in all forms of energy.

Increased emphasis on all known and potential power sources may one day save the human race the hindsight of peering from caves and muttering "Our grandparents should have seen this coming and done something about it."

THE ELECTRIC CHAIR

The resumption of capital punishment in the United States emphasizes clearly, again, that most states utilize obsolete methods for executions. Shooting one to death (as in Utah) or electrocution (in a special chair, as in Florida) are not the best ways to remove a person from society if that must be done. Hanging is no better.

Surely there could be no serious objection to forms of death which are painless. An injection or gas, while the condemned sleeps, or a poison vial, which produces instant death, are but some possibilities.

The public seeks not revenge in capital punishment, but protection for the rest of society. There is something barbarous and medieval in executions witnessed by the public and press. If they are to be, they should be conducted in private, in a painless manner, with only the clergy and perhaps an official witness or two, present. And they should be painless. There is no point in any suffering if death is the victim's fate. — Santa Rosa News

editorial

The heavy traffic on Sudderth these days should tell us something.

The number of out of state license plates on the vehicles should tell us something.

What we're being told appears on road signs throughout New Mexico: Courtesy Pays.

The burgeoning economy of Ruidoso is due, in large measure, to out of state people. That's because tourism is our industry. That's because we have so much to offer tourists in sports and leisure time activities.

True, it takes the permanent residents to make tourism boom; but it'd not be boom, but bust, if those tourists didn't come.

A quick check with local Realtors will disclose that there are huge numbers of non-residents buying property, homes and investing in businesses in Ruidoso. You might ask the contractors who they are building for — residents or non-residents — mainly.

As for this year, the word must be out that gasoline isn't in short supply in New Mexico — nor in Ruidoso.

Perhaps everyone dealing with tourists should receive an infusion of Courtesy Pays. If a tourist is treated better in Ruidoso than any where else during his vacation trip, he might linger longer to enjoy the courtesy received. He might return next year, to get more of the same. He might entice others to come here.

It wouldn't hurt any if, by word of mouth, Ruidoso gained national fame as the vacation spa where everyone's byword is: Courtesy Pays. — CD

JUST ABOUT ALMOST

A surefire combination ... kids 'n matches ... brought our fire fighting crews out en masse Monday morning ... to control a budding conflagration up on the pine covered mountain above Zuni Trail ... that's within spitting distance of downtown Harmony Valley's business district.

Fortunately ... the smoke riz ... was discovered ... pinpointed ... and extinguished ... without any painful damage ... unless the young ones involved got their bottoms warmed a bit, after the flames cooled.

Thus it is ... now's the time ... to impress upon the impressionable minds of the little guys ... who seem to take to matches as does a rabbit to carrot patches ... from the top of their heads in, or the seat of their britches up ... that they shouldn't play with matches in these tree covered mountains.

It's this way ... the rains have temporarily ceased ... the day time temperatures are in the 80's ... and may go higher ... the winds blow willy nilly and in gusts up to 30 and 40 miles per hour ... with all factors combining to bring about high fire danger in these hills.

Perhaps, even, some of us as ain't younguns should maybe watch a little out about starting forest fires ... like with cigaret butts ... cigar stubs ... pipe ashes ... fireplace and barbecue ashes ... 'cause hot coals and dry pine needles, when combined, tend to burst into flame.

Then there's the campfires ... like for roasting marshmallows and weiners ... even searing a slab of old dead beef ... that can cause a forest fire if'n said camp fire ain't dead out before you leave it.

Our fire fighters can't do much about fires that are started ... whether by nature ... or man ... exceptin' put 'em out soon's possible.

"Tain't no one can do much about fires started by lightning ... blown down electric wires ... or such uncontrollable circumstances.

However ... when it comes to kids 'n matches ... and us adults as is sorta unthinkin' ... there's nothin' like an infusion of common sense ... and bein' careful not to leave nothin' on the ground that the winds can cause to burst into flame ... to prevent man caused forest fires.

PETE'S POKE'S PUNY

United States Senator Pete Domenici ... our senior senate sifter ... has released figures pertaining to his finances, advising us that he's $9,011 poorer at this time this year than he was at this time last year.

'Course, this don't mean we all gotta rush out and start passin' the hat for Pete ... 'cause his poke ain't all that puny ... unless you consider a net worth of $203,558.62 as bein' at poverty level.

Pete's income for last year ... probably before taxes ... he pegged at $85,147 ... which is $78 more'n he made the year before ... so he showed an income gain ... which was blasted by him winding up some $2,000 short in the final accounting ... which probably hasn't left him crippled financially.

Anyhow, one thing's obvious ... our Pete's getting took ... just like the rest of us ... with another conforing-thought being ... our Pete's not on the take ... 'cause if'n he had a been, he'd not been about to do any financial disclosin' that could cause someone to start digging into his affairs.

Welcome to the deficit spending crowd Senator Pete ... and it's conforin' to know that you, too, gotta spend more'n you take in to live these days ... or at least, according to your figures, it seems so.

But there's a sobering thought about all this ... if'n Pete keeps losing out at that rate, it'll take him at least 20 years before he can qualify for food stamps ... and find out, first hand, how those government programs work ... and all without consulting the Senator from Alabama.

CARTER/BREZHNEV PACT

Our Jimmy done up and did it ... got Leonid Brezhnev, the whip cracker of the Soviets ... to sign the SALT II ... that's Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty ... that Our Jimmy termed "a victory in the battle for peace."

The Soviet parliament, without question, will approve the pact. The United States Senate might have a lot of questions. Thing like that could have Our Jimmy pacing the White House halls ... and might.

BRIEF BIT: Scatfebbut has it's mighty tough getting-up-in-the-air over an airport and still keep both feet on the ground ... CD.

Jockey/Trainer of the week

BY MIKE MAGDA

Leroy Coombs more than doubled his season total number of wins, earning the Jockey Of The Week title at Ruidoso Downs. J. Doyal Roberts topped the conditioners by taking the Trainer Of The Week honor.

Coombs had only four winners during the first five weekends of racing, but rallied to enter the winner's circle five times over the four day span.

Thursday, Coombs rode two winners: He went through a dry spell Friday and Saturday, but picked off three winners Sunday.

Coombs won the final race Sunday, breaking a tie between five jockeys with four wins each. Trailing Coombs were Joe Martinez, Charles Mueller, Jerry Nicodemus and Danny Summerow.

Roberts scored solo wins Thursday, Saturday and Sunday. His biggest victory came Sunday in the co-feature where 10-1 longshot Chili Pepper Pie won by a nose over favorite Mr. Clyde in a mile route. Don Howard, just coming back to action after recovering from injuries suffered in a spill three weeks ago, was up.

Roberts had only two wins entering Thursday's races.

William F. Leach maintained his lead in the trainers' overall standings, but Hugh L. Tucker narrowed the gap once again. Tucker scored two wins while Leach brought in just one, leaving a margin of one victory separating the two.

Leach has 16 wins for the season with Tucker holding 14. Four others trail far behind with seven wins each.

Danny Summerow, who was the Jockey Of The Week for two consecutive weeks before Coombs broke open, continues to lead the overall standings. He now has 22 wins on the season with the four he scored last week. Gary Sumpter and Charles Mueller trail with 17 wins each.

Finally reaching the standings was Salustio Burgos, who has had a frustrating time with 19 runner-up spots already.

Racing continues today with a full 13 race card in effect. Friday, quarter horse racing's biggest money winners—including Moon Lark, who is the richest active quarter horse with earnings nearing $700,000—will be in action. Qualifying trials are on tap for the Rainbow Derby, which packs a purse over $450,000.

Saturday's action is followed by the Flying Charm Stakes, an 870 yard test for quarter horses and thoroughbreds Sunday. Added money of $7,500 awaits the field.

A 1 p.m. first post is in effect for all four days.

Thursday kicks off four days of racing action at Ruidoso Downs. Post time for Thursday through Sunday is 1:00 p.m.

Trials for the $450,000 (est) RAINBOW DERBY will be run Friday. Three-year-old Quarter Horses will battle it out over a 440 yard course. Sunday's highlight is the $7,500 added FLYING CHARM STAKES. This 870 yard event pits Quarter Horses and Thoroughbreds against each other.

Why not come out to Ruidoso Downs for first class racing action this week?

Ruidoso Downs Hoofbeats

BY MIKE MAGDA

KEITH ASMUSSEN returned to his familiar role as a jockey Friday, to display his winning way in a most impressive manner. Riding 7-2 shot Public Affair in a two-year-old allowance dash covering 400 yards, Asmusen entered the victory circle for the first time since December when he suffered a hip injury. Public Affair won by an easy two lengths. Asmusen is gearing up for Friday's Balahow Derby trials where he will ride Vespero, who is trained by his wife, Marilyn. He also rode to a fourth place later in the day.

JOCKEY TERRI ALLEN won her first race on a recognized track, guiding 27-1 longshot True Lace to the winner's circle in Thursday's feature race. Allen kept True Lace back in the pack in the early going of the six furlong sprint, then bolted along the rail to whip Rebel Leader by a neck. Jerrle Pleasure was third. It was Allen's first mount of the year at Ruidoso.

JOCKEY DON HOWARD was back in action last weekend after a 2 1/2 week layoff, recovering from injuries suffered in a spill May 25. Howard rode once Saturday and twice Sunday. In Sunday's 10th race, Howard, who was winningest jockey at Sunland Park this past spring, rode 9-1 outsider Chili Pepper Pie to a victory in a mile race. Chili Pepper Pie defeated favorite Mr. Clyde by a nose at the wire. Howard was sidelined when he was thrown from his mount, who fell during one of the Norgor Futurity trials. A trailing horse struck Howard in the head, but no serious injuries were sustained.

SCOTT'S COURTHSHIP set one of the season's highest speed ratings when he won the feature race Friday. Listed as a 6-1 outsider, Scott's Courthship broke slowly, then took the lead around the turn. He finished a length ahead of Honor John and Final Drive. Scott's Courthship's time of 1:08 4/5 seconds over the 5 1/2 furlongs equaled a 92 speed rating. Reynold Borne was aboard the Victor Karnis trained charge.

A TOTAL OF 547 HEAD remain eligible to the Rainbow Futurity, which will be staged July 22. The third nominating payment was due June 1, and 511 made the final payment. There were 31 supplemental fees of $3,000 paid and there were two pre-pays. Two of the supplemental nominees are Pa Pa Wheelie and Washita Ted, second and fifth respectively in the Kansas Futurity. Kansas champ Favorite Past Time and betting favorite Easy Azures are also eligible. Trials for the Rainbow, which sports an estimated purse of $450,000, will be held in two stages June 28-29 and July 6.

SEVEN RUIDOSO DOWNS employees were certified by the American Red Cross after completing a Cardio Pulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) course, courtesy of the Ruidoso Police Department. The 12 hour course was taught by Paul Lukens, chief of Police, and Rosser Schwarz. Completing the course were Beverly Kerry, Jockey Club; Tim Watts, security; John Baker, assistant starter; Connie Madrid, track superintendent; Harley H. Bechtol, security; Houston M. Mings, security and Vance Farrel, Jockey Club. CPR has been attributed with saving numerous lives during heart and breathing emergencies. The course included written and practical examinations in detecting such problems and procedures to maintain life until further help can be obtained.

TWO-YEAR-OLD thoroughbred and quarter horses stepped up in distance for the first time this season. Thoroughbreds covered 5 1/2 furlongs Saturday in the first race. A 7-1 shot, Quit Your Quacking was timed in 1:10, winning by two lengths over King Of The Game. Charles Mueller was up.

THERE WERE THREE 400 yard races for two-year-olds who are preparing for the Rainbow Futurity. GIVE ME BOGON, ridden by Steve Fuller, was the fastest of the three, clocking in 20.81 seconds. Other winners were Worthington (20.84) and Ericue (21.19).

JOCKEY PETE HERRERA had quite a ride in the second race Saturday. Herrera was aboard Lady Bug Rebel in a 400 yard dash when his mount stumbled leaving the gates. Herrera was thrown over the right side, but managed to hang onto Rebel's neck and mane. Lady Bug Rebel got up and continued the run with Herrera barely hanging on. About 30 yards down the stretch, Herrera managed to work himself upright although the saddle had slipped off. Bouncing all the way to the wire, Herrera guided Lady Bug Rebel to a ninth place finish.

SPECIAL VISITORS over the weekend included Eric Culver, who served as president and general manager of La Mesa Park from 1965 to 1974, and president and chairman of the board of Ruidoso Downs in 1969 and 1970. Culver now owns and operates a real estate firm in Raton. He and his wife, Billie, made the trophy presentation for Sunday's Kindergarten Futurity.

THE SEASON'S HIGHEST Daily Double payoff was returned Thursday when Lovely Eyes won the first race and Tiny Yava captured the second. Lovely Eyes, with Alex Baldillez up, scored a 2 1/2 length win in a 5 1/2 furlong maiden at 8-1 odds. Tiny Yava, a 33-1 outsider, outdistanced the field in a 400 yard dash by a half length. The combination returned $1,306.40, breaking the old mark by almost $900. The Ruidoso record stands at $1,790.20.

THE FOURTH HIGHEST win payoff of the season was recorded Friday when 35-1 longshot Great Bright Hope won an 870 yard race. Great Bright Hope, owned by Bettie and Gene Brock of Alamogordo and trained by J. Michael Welch, went wire-to-wire for the victory, his first in the last two years. Tony Trujillo was up. The bay gelding returned $72.40, $30.20 and $29.20. The highest win payoff of the season is $136.40 when Go Billy Winter (67-1) won by a nose. The next two highest win returns are $95 and $92.60.

IN STEWARDS' RULINGS, trainer Carl D. Wooten was suspended and referred to the New Mexico Racing Commission after a report from the Official Racing Chemist said a urine sample taken from the horse Wake Me - winner of the third race June 6 - proved positive for the drug Ritallin. Wooten is denied privileges of the grounds of New Mexico race tracks and all horses owned and trained by him are denied entry pending transfer to a trainer approved by the stewards. The horse was later reinstated.

Jockey Salustio Burgos was suspended three racing days (June 21-23) for careless riding, resulting in his mount Satan's Windfall being disqualified from first to second during the running of the sixth race June 15.

Trainer Terry A. Walker was fined $25 for failure to sign a test card.

Trainer Michael L. Stratton was suspended and denied privileges of the grounds and his case referred to the New Mexico State Racing Commission for non payment of fine ruling #49.

Jockey agent Ronald S. Stewart was fined $50 for naming a rider for which he didn't have a call.

The horse Oh Lawton Oh was reinstated after a report from the American Quarter Horse Association confirmed his true age.

Trainer J. Doyal Roberts was fined $50 for failure to have the horse, Beauban, taken off the Lasix Master List.

Pony boy and groom Leonardo A. Beltran and groom Rene B. Beltran were suspended and denied privileges of the grounds and their cases referred to the State Racing Commission for violation of rule 16:07 - being in an altercation in the stable area, conduct detrimental.

The following trainers were fined $25 for being late to the paddock for their respective races: J. Michael Welch, Victor N. Karnis and Marilyn M. Asmusen.

Jody Miller compares music to horse racing

BY MIKE MAGDA

Jody Miller is qualified to compare the recording industry and horse racing. And from her experiences, she finds the two similar in their hardships, disappointments and successes.

One of the queens of country and middle-of-the-road music, Jody Miller has been close to horse racing, particularly quarter horses, since her marriage to high school sweetheart, Monty Brooks, now a trainer. Blending the two major parts of her life, Jody is campaigning a colt appropriately named Song O My Heart. Although Song O My Heart's record cannot challenge Jody's chartbusters, he retains a special place in Jody's own heart.

The songstress of the All-American Futurity telecast ("The Star Spangled Banner") for the past three years, Jody assumed the title to Song O My Heart for publicity purposes on the recommendation of her husband. But business was not the only reason for her attraction to the colt. Jody's fundamental knowledge of racing, linked with her affection for the colt's mama, will always provide Song O My Heart with a faithful fan.

"It's because of the mare, Orphan Song," explains Jody about her tender feelings towards her pet. "Her blood to me is very important in quarter horse racing. She just happens to cross with Ichibon very well."

Orphan Song was a moderately successful thoroughbred sprinter. Brooks bred her to one of his top studs, Ichibon—a colt who showed promise but was forced off the track after an injury.

Orphan Song's first foal was lost, but the next year's foal sent Jody searching for a name.

"I liked Orphan Song's name and I just remembered the old cliché, 'Song O My Heart,'" said Jody, admitting the name is confusing with a filly. "Although Song O My Heart is a colt, the name fits because the owner is a woman."

No question the auburn haired Jody is a woman, and a song about the distaff side catapulted her career.

"Queen of the House" was a Grammy winning single that put Jody on radio playlists all over the country. It was a response to Roger Miller's (no relation) hit, "King of the Road," and established a solid foundation on the charts.

"When 'Queen of the House' hit, everything came together at the same time. That song is still working for me," Jody said.

The Phoenix born entertainer began singing when her father invited Jody, the youngest of six daughters, to join along with his fiddling when the family would get together in Blanchard, Oklahoma now her home. She sang with a small group in high school but her profession didn't bloom until she was heard by another recording artist.

With encouragement from Monty, Jody began singing in a coffee house on the Oklahoma University campus. There she was spotted by Lou Gotlib, a member of the Linnelights. He suggested she pursue a recording career, but Jody declined for the moment.

Jody and Monty decided to vacation in southern California and look over the singing possibilities. After making the rounds of numerous producers' offices, Jody visited with actor Dale Robertson, a friend of Monty's and a horse racing enthusiast.

Robertson was impressed with her singing and a few phone calls later, Jody found herself with a recording contract.

Soon came "Queen of the House" and then Robin, now Jody and Monty's beautiful 14-year-old daughter. Her career has now spanned 15 years with hits like

"He's So Fine" (a Grammy nominee), "Baby, I'm Yours," House of the Rising Sun, and "There's A Party Going On."

While Jody was busy in the recording studio, Monty continued training and racing horses, a calling he has pursued since being raised on a ranch.

Jody didn't grow up with horses but learned to love them along with Monty. In fact, she doesn't even ride. "I do love them and love to see them run," she said, smiling. "Watching yearlings grow up, is quite a thrill."

But both the recording industry and horse racing have their valleys to go along with the peaks. Jody parallels the track to the studio along these lines.

"It's a lot like the record business. It's a very risky business and if you don't get a hit, you don't make any money. Every year you're wanting a hit. It's just like comparing it to horses—every year you hope you have that runner."

"You've just put a record out and it doesn't make it. You have so many hopes and dreams behind it. The same thing when you have a little filly or colt out there on the track and say, 'Boy, I'm riding with you,' and they don't turn out," she said.

Song O My Heart hasn't come across with the big win yet. He made the finals of the Kansas Futurity and Derby, but finished fourth and eighth respectively.

Aside from watching her horses run, Jody's biggest thrill at the track comes on Labor Day when the $1,200,000 All-American Futurity is staged in the cool pines of Ruidoso.

Before a national television audience and 10,000 in attendance, Jody sings the National Anthem before the running of the big race.

"I'm really proud of it. I hope the people here at the track will continue to ask me back because I take so much pride in it," she said.

The singing took a special meaning two years ago when Jun Jun Ni, another colt by Ichibon made the finals. "I was really emotional about singing then because we had a horse in it. Then last year it was Moon Lark."

Trained by Monty's older brother, Jack, Moon Lark won the All-American and now is the richest active quarter horse with earnings approaching $700,000.

Jody is just coming out with a new single after a brief rest. She recorded "Lay A Little Loving On Me" in Los Angeles instead of Nashville recently, and Jody hopes it will be accepted on the pop charts.

Also, Orphan Song has another baby running around Monty's Oklahoma ranch. More hopes and dreams will follow for both the record and yearling, who Jody hopes to name, "Cool Jazz."

LOOKING FOR A HIT—Lovely Jody Miller, popular country and western singer, shows off Song O My Heart, a quarter horse that she has been running in high-priced-stakes races. Jody's husband, Monty, is a trainer at Ruidoso Downs. Song O My Heart has qualified for the Kansas Futurity and Kansas Derby.

MEASUREMENTS are taken each time a new artifact is uncovered to allow archeologists to reconstruct the excavation site once they return to the lab. Because the site near Ruidoso will be destroyed, this job becomes doubly important.

ARTIFACTS are carefully handled and saved in separate paper sacks, along with surrounding dirt, which could prove useful in dating pieces of old pottery. Once the dating process is finished, artifacts will be on permanent display at the Museum of New Mexico in Santa Fe.

THE SLOW PROCESS of scraping small amounts of dirt to protect artifacts cost archeologist Robin Farwell, Museum of New Mexico, many hours. The investment paid off, however, with more than 20 whole pots and various other artifacts uncovered in the dig.

Archeological dig produces

BY CHARLOTTE FELLERS
Staff Writer/Photographer

An archeological dig near Ruidoso, which lasted from February to June, has uncovered more than 20 pots, several burials and what could have been a community of homes inhabited more than 600 years ago.

These findings were released Wednesday by Robin Farwell, Museum of New Mexico and archeologist at the site, located a few miles west of Angus.

Farwell said the reason the dig was performed was to comply with state and federal laws protecting cultural resources which would be damaged or destroyed if the surface is disturbed.

Before the highway to Nogal could be completed, a surveyor was sent to the site to determine if a dig should be performed on any of the five miles of land affected by the road.

Farwell said she surveyed the area, looking for changes in vegetation, surface changes or pottery and other tools which may have surfaced. Then, a budget was submitted with an estimate of how many people were needed and approximate number of months required to excavate all artifacts.

Local people were hired to assist Farwell and three other museum staff members to excavate the site.

Farwell said most of the artifacts appear to date back to 1150 - 1350 but more accurate dating will be made over the next eight months.

"The only thing we have now to date the sites by is the pottery types. We have uncovered two pottery types — Chipadero and Black on White," Farwell said. Both have been found at other sites around the state.

Ancestors of the modern day Pueblo Indians, the Jornada Branch of Mogollon, probably lived at the site because the structures appear to be similar to those of the Pueblos.

Because of the time limitation, a backhoe was used to do major digging. "That's probably the worst thing you can do; we found two burials that way," Farwell said but the backhoe helped Farwell's team uncover three pithouses they wouldn't have found otherwise.

Farwell said indications that houses were erected using posts for support are evidenced by post holes around the outer edges of the original walls. She said walls can be reconstructed because of color changes in the layers of dirt and clay.

"I think a pithouse village was here. We've uncovered a large room which was probably used for ceremonial purposes and several small rooms, which were probably dwellings.

GRINDING STONES were found in at least two pithouses. The one pictured was uncovered in what was probably used for a trash pit more than 600 years ago by ancestors of the Pueblo Indians.

"It seems to have been occupied at several intervals. It's possible that the inhabitants spent only one season a year here, which would account for the different ages of the pottery," Farwell said.

Two pithouses appear to have been used as trash pits. Farwell said these were probably inhabited at one time, but in later years, they were used as "garbage dumps." In these pits, numerous artifacts have been uncovered, mostly scraps of pots, weapons, kitchen utensils, animal bones and grinding stones. "Nothing is in sequence, so this is why I've determined it was a trash pit," Farwell said.

Six skeletons, or burials, were found, with the bodies buried in a fetal position. Farwell said all dirt found around these skeletons is saved in hopes that it will help in discovering the approximate age of the bones.

"The only other dirt we save is that we find around artifacts which we may need for dating purposes," Farwell said.

One pithouse contained more than 20 whole pots, which Farwell said were probably kept at the houses, not moved when the people moved. The pots are now in Santa Fe, along with all artifacts found, and will be valuable tools in the dating process.

Farwell said one small area of burned adobe was discovered which could be used in dating the site, but tree ring dating is preferred when the tree samples are obtained. None were found which can be used, Farwell said, but several pieces of burned material were recovered that can be dated using the Carbon 14 method.

"Carbon 14's problem is that it dates pretty broadly — about 100 years, give or take," Farwell said.

The only major problem encountered with the excavation was pot hunters, people who rummage through the sites collecting artifacts.

"We had a group of pot hunters at one house that disturbed everything. It's hard to right this wrong because nothing makes sense now," Farwell said.

The law protects archeologists from such hazards, making it illegal to claim artifacts. However, Farwell said the law didn't stop some from doing a lot of damage.

The site was abandoned June 22 but Farwell said several more rooms could have been uncovered, had there been time. "With this many rooms uncovered already, I'm almost sure there are a lot more if we had time and money to find them," Farwell said.

UNCOVERING BURIALS wasn't one of the most pleasant tasks, but various dating methods can determine within at least 100 years, the age of the skeletons.

BY DANIEL AGNEW STORM

A Joyful Visit To the Talk Timber
Last Saturday Ken and Mary Green took two jeep loads of us on a picnic in Little Bear Canyon in the Bonito River Country. All the mountain world was dressed up in its green and flowery best, after the recent heavy rains, to welcome us into a mountain glen, that is like something out of a story book.

Along on the trip were Ken and Mary's daughter, Leighann; Mel and Monica O'Reilly and the twins, Mel Dylan, and Colin Bryan, and little brother Patrick Brendan; and Jerry and Marilyn Bigham, and their sons, Jason and Jeffrey. Also in the happy gathering was the Green family basset hound, Bascombe, who brought many a smile from us with his quaint antics and his great appreciation of all the charms of the mountain out-of-doors.

As we turned off the Bonito Valley, the Greens carried us safely up the green vale of Little Bear Canyon. Ken led the way and Mary followed over a trail that would put the best pack mule to the test. All the stream beds showed evidence of the terrific amount of water that came down the canyon. Masses of huge boulders were all through the creek bed, and in places the stream was lost to your sight and the water ran under the avalanches of rock and gravel to reappear farther down stream.

There were many places in the canyon where giant fir, spruce and balsam and other evergreens blocked the way of masses of huge boulders which would have done untold damage on top of the considerable trouble already caused by the flood. Some monarchs of the forest, after having stood a hundred years or more of lightning, flood and tempest had fallen in the charging of the torrent and the rocks, and lay in the stream bed a protection against further flooding.

A Mountain Paradise
One idyllic spot, after another we passed going up the washed out trail, sometimes almost meeting ourselves - as the saying goes - so sharp were the turns and so steep the climbs.

After the long stretches of the flood-ravaged Bonito Valley, the worst anyone can remember in that section, the spot where we finally stopped was in contrast a fairland of natural beauty - a miniature mountain paradise. A little green glade appeared among the lofty whispering giant evergreens. And everywhere in the sunlit patches and the gently moving shade made by the branches on high of the Douglas Fir, spruce, and white pine - everywhere on the green and mossy forest floor wild flowers smiled. Here we saw fern and flower favorites of all North America and also the temperate regions throughout the world.

That love and appreciation of God's growing things which is so deep in us all was re-awakened in all of us on this trip. The pure white of the snow drop was bright against the green of the forest floor. And their companions in color, the strawberry blossom and the wild white violet, were looking up smiling among the ferns and strawberry plants.

Here in this little enchanted dell, and all the way through the glen of the Little Bear Canyon, your eye would catch a glimpse of pure purple-lavender blooms on stems about a foot high - the pride and joy of the western mountains, the wild iris. The sight of this flower always brings a little thrill of delight to your heart. All of us gathered flower specimens for Marilyn Bigham to be pressed in her book of wild flowers. Beside the snow drop, the wild violet, and the wild iris, the spring daisy, and the Alpine Forget-Me-Not we gathered other little flower treasures that I could not name, but remembered from years past in the northern regions.

One yellow flower I thought was a buttercup, but Ma O'Reilly showed me that it was not. He remembered the buttercup from his native New England. So now we have a new flower to name.

Like all of us, Ken Green is a great lover of flowers and has seen and admired them in many lands. He tells me he plans to raise orchids one of these days in their home overlooking the White Mountain.

All too soon the hours sped by and we all turned our way down the trail. I started to say, "Turned our way home." Yet, truly, the Bonito country and all our mountain land is really all of it our home. On our way back we saw evidences on every hand of the people along the Bonito, little by little winning their courageous struggle to overcome the troubles of the flood. We wish them all good fortune and God's blessings.

I deeply appreciate the trip to Little Bear Canyon with all these good friends, and I will long remember the day with happiness. There is nothing like a journey into the high forest land to renew your spirits and bring gratefulness to your heart for all God's blessings.

Always brightest of the memories of this day is the happiness of the children, who always respond so joyfully with their angelic natures to God's many wondrous charms out in Nature's many wonderlands.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Simms Retire

Our good friend of many years, Floyd Simms, drove up and stopped beside me up town the other day and told me to "get in" that he had something to tell me.

What he told me was certainly a surprise. I thought Floyd would be at his Ruidoso Food Mart forever and a day. His store there in Skyland with his wife's beauty shop next door and their home adjoining have been land marks for us here through many years.

When I got in his car, Floyd was silent for a minute then he said, "I've said it."

He then went on to add quickly that he was going to stay and live in Ruidoso. We certainly hope so, for Floyd and his family have endeared themselves to us greatly through the years here among us.

Since 1961 Floyd Simms has run his grocery store in Skyland, always friendly, always helpful, kind to everyone, especially children. His sunny smile always beaming for friend and stranger alike, Floyd is a typical American, always ready to give more than a square deal, and to help anyone in need. Like "The Village Blacksmith" in Longfellow's beloved poem, Floyd's store has always been a place where everyone is welcome, and where the charm of true friendship cast a benediction all through the neighborhood.

Floyd's goodness of heart shows up in his kindness always to children who love him dearly; in his great consideration and appreciation of his pets.

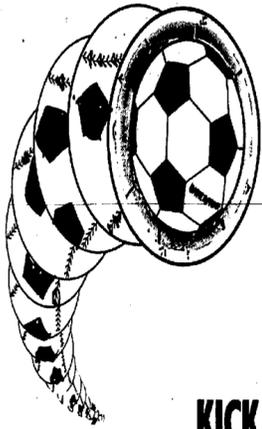

Floyd's wife, Carla, has run her beauty shop there next to the grocery store, and has been a great favorite among us for many a year.

Carla has been under the weather recently but is recovering well through her own courage and the devotion of all her family. We ask God for her complete recovery.

The Simms have three children: Gary, employed in public relations with the telephone company here in Ruidoso; Phillip, chief engineer in charge of maintenance for the Alamogordo T.V. Cable; and Mrs. Sharon Howard of Kettle Falls, Washington.

We wish Floyd and Carla every blessing in the retirement, and we are happy that they will live here where we hope to see them often.
