Ski Run Road resurfacing scheduled

BY CHARLOTTE FELLERS
Staff Writer/Photographer

The State Highway Commission, meeting Thursday in Carlsbad, said they would make State Highway 532, referred to locally as Ski Run Road, a high priority project in their long range plans.

The Commission announced a project to repair the road with a four-inch base course and double penetration, beginning April 15. Buddy Hewitt, district engineer, said the project will take about six weeks and would include the five miles not repaved last year, from Highway 37 to midway on the mountain.

Hewitt said the life expectancy of the repairs will be five years.

Ed Jungbluth, executive director of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce, Benny Coulston, newly elected village trustee and Roy Parker, manager of Sierra Blanca Ski Resort, represented Ruidoso at the meeting.

Jungbluth said that in 140 days of skiing, 4,508,664 passenger miles were traveled on the secondary road which "connects with a parking lot on top of a mountain."

He said 59,878 cars with 3.2 people per car traveled those miles, basing his figures on 1978-79 attendance figures supplied by the ski resort.

"The 1979-80 season is running approximately five percent ahead of the previous season," Jungbluth added.

He said no other figures on travel during the other 225 days is available and asked "How many more million passenger miles are driven each year on one of the most deplorable roads in the state of New Mexico?"

Jungbluth cited the economic impact on Ruidoso and Lincoln County at a minimum $20 million. "The economic impact to adjoining communities is unknown; however, I believe Roswell applied for matching monies from the Department of Commerce and Industry to promote our ski season."

"We would like to work with the planning department to do whatever is necessary to plan for the future," Jungbluth said.

Commissioners noted that some parts of the road, "especially at higher elevations, may fall off the side of the mountain some year, halfway through the season."

Jungbluth said that could "shut down" Lincoln County for a season.

Coulston said "roads are expensive and will continue to get expensive, and if that road repair work is only going to be good for five years, we would appreciate your looking at another site for the road. We have one of the larger ski areas in the state and tourists will continue to come to Ruidoso," he said.

"We'll see what we can do further down the road. We will take a long look at it," Commission chairman Louis Whitlock said. He added that five miles of the road had crumbled because of "lack of good timing" when repairs were made.

"I certainly feel like this should be a high priority because of the income to the state. I think we should direct the department to use better judgement when they decide to repair that road, so it won't be damaged any worse. . . I hate to see this happen because it loses us money and it makes those skiers unhappy (to drive a bad road)," Commissioner James Cheney said.

Fred O'Cheskey, chief of the highway department, said a realignment of the road through Eagle Creek has been explored but because of the estimated $12 million cost, "no funds have been identified for this project." He said the road "should not be reconstructed on the present route" and said he has met with Wendell Chino, president of the Mescalero Apache Tribe, to discuss realignment.

Parker commented on the safety factor of the road. "The safety of the people traveling that road is at stake," he said. "It's very difficult to negotiate some turns without going into the other lane. . . and it seems to be getting worse because of the thaw." Parker added that "there's nothing to keep it from deteriorating further."

The commission also discussed the problem of keeping the stripes on Sudderth and Mechem, both state highways. Commissioner Sosimu Padilla said the problem of not having stripes visible "is a very serious one. If someone is in an accident, how can the state determine who is at fault?" He said that because "Ruidoso affects our state economy a lot," the problem of keeping stripes on the street should be solved.

Hewitt said street striping crews have interrupted their schedules numerous times to re-strip in Ruidoso, and stripes only remain visible for a few weeks, due to road film and dirt washed off unpaved roads.

He said the last application of paint, "a plastic paint," worked well but is hardly visible now. . . the abrasive effect of weather is the problem."

NEW MEXICO HIGHWAY COMMISSIONERS met in Carlsbad Thursday, where one topic of discussion was State Road 532, referred to locally as Ski Run Road. Commissioners

He has gained employment with the United States Forest Service and will become a fuelwood sales administrator and forestry technician.

Brink was fire management officer in Capitan, and served as the state's representative to the Committee for Insuring Ruidoso's Environment. His replacement has not yet been named.

Ski Report

Local teachers enjoying high salary scale

A comparison of teachers' salary schedules compiled with information received from the Department of Public School Finance shows that Ruidoso instructors enjoy one of the best schedules in the state.

In the March Board of Education meeting, teachers told the board they are $375 short of meeting all expenses each month, based on current salaries. They requested a 15 percent increase in salaries in addition to moving two steps vertically on the schedule (for experience).

For the 1979-80 school year, teachers received a seven percent raise and a $300 cost of living increment, with no steps on the schedule.

The News obtained salary schedules for teachers in Raton, Capitan, Farmington, Alamogordo, Artesia, Deming, Las Cruces, Roswell, Taos, Lordsburg and Los Alamos for the 1979-80 school year.

Comparing salaries given for five years' experience under four columns (BA + 15, BA + 45, MA + 15 and MA + 45), only one school, Deming, recorded a higher salary than Ruidoso, under any column. The following is a comparison of salaries:

The parents of an 11 year old Ruidoso girl, who suffered second and third degree burns in a March 11 accident involving an "air pump" thermos, plan to seek damages against the manufacturer.

Pam Craft, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Craft, was carrying the $15 container out of the house that Tuesday night. It was filled with hot tea.

"Then I heard this big boom, and my leg started hurting," Pam said. She went back into the house and removed her sock. The tea had seriously scalded her leg.

Her father, who was outside at the time, at first thought she had struck the door jamb with the container, but later noticed a rug had been stained by the tea, and it was some distance from the door.

"That thing exploded with force," he said. "It didn't crack, it exploded straight down," spraying tea and shattered glass outward.

The "air pump" thermos bottle is a relatively new idea in beverage storage. It is a regular thermos container, with glass liner sealed inside an insulating layer.

Instead of a removable top, however, it has a pump built in so the user can withdraw liquids without removing the top. Various companies have models on the market.

The glass liner was responsible for the slivers of glass, although fortunately Pam wasn't cut.

The Craft's thermos was three months old and was manufactured by Party Time, Incorporated. It was advertised as "working great for hot and cold stuff," Craft said.

"We used it several times for cold stuff," he said, "and it worked great. But I'm not too sure it works so well with hot stuff."

Pam was taken to the hospital's emergency room where preliminary treatment began. Eventually she was hospitalized, and her bandages must be changed every six hours, a painful process, she said.

The burned area is on her left shin, from just below her knee to her toes, and is about three inches wide. Her doctor might have to perform plastic surgery, Craft said, although it's still only a possibility.

"We have to go see the doctor today (Thursday) and find out if he'll have to or not," he said.

Helping Pam recuperate has been almost a full time job, Craft said, and he has missed several days work. That missed work, added to medical bills, will push the final price tag to several thousand dollars, he estimated.

Consequently, he is suing Party Time for expenses.

"We'd like to have the company make good on it," Craft said. "I don't think we have the right to take advantage of the situation and go on a million dollar trip."

And if the company wins the action?

"We'll just pay the bill, I guess, and that's it."

This isn't the first incident in Ruidoso of an air pump thermos bottle exploding. Kathy Weems, a teacher at White Mountain Elementary School, had a similar accident, although she wasn't sure if that thermos was manufactured by Party Time or not.

"It belonged to a friend of mine," Weems said. "We were making sandwiches a couple of years ago to go skiing. We put hot chocolate in it and left it in another part of the kitchen."

"It blew up and threw hot chocolate and slivers of glass all over the kitchen. We could've been hurt, but we weren't."

"My friend figured it was defective, so she didn't try to get a new one or get her money back. Then when I heard about Pam's accident, I told them my story."

"I guess it's not unusual for one of these things to act this way, and that's scary."

Craft said he has heard of several other incidents similar to his daughter's accident.

"It's a good thing that thing wasn't sitting on the counter," he said. "The way the bottom blew out, it would've taken off like a rocket. And suppose it had been on the back seat of a car with a bunch of kids when it happened?"

"Yeah, it was bad, but it could've been worse. A lot worse."

PAM CRAFT, 11, displays the "air pump" thermos bottle which exploded, spraying hot tea onto her left leg, requiring extensive medical care.

GOVERNOR BRUCE KING

Revenue fund sharing loss doesn't disturb governor

Governor Bruce King, addressing questions from the audience at a Carlsbad Chamber of Commerce luncheon Thursday, said that loss of revenue sharing funds to the state won't hurt New Mexico for several years.

King said the state previously received $13 million in revenue sharing funds from the federal government, but because of surpluses in the state's budget "it won't bother us for a few years. With a good general fund we can generate possibly one third the amount needed to run the government."

King was asked if he knew the problem within the state legislature that was causing so many key legislators to "call it quits."

King said three reasons contributed to the problem:

"They have long, hard working hours, particularly toward the end of the session. It's a tremendous load on the health and well-being of the legislators and they are trying to solve some tremendous problems."

"The pay is way too low. I feel we should improve the pay in the area of $100 per day. If you get the chance to vote to increase it to $60 a day, vote for it."

Legislators are now paid $40 per day. "I think we need to extend the sessions to 45 days and 75 days instead of 30 and 60 days. This would cut down on the time problem, even though it won't be totally alleviated," King said.

King said he does not plan to call a special session of the legislature for at least 30 days, but said he "would not hesitate" to call one if enough legislators requested it.

A NEW FLAG was presented to Ruidoso Girl Scouts Friday by the Noon Lions Club. Representing the Lions was president Rich Seeley, pictured above with Neighborhood Chairperson Jane Deyo, who also serves as first vice president of the Zia Girl Scout Council. Holding the new flag are Amy Slizler, left, of Brownie Troop Three and Carla Davis, a member of Junior Girl Scout Troop Four.

Shoemaker quits airport commission

George Shoemaker, Lincoln County's representative to the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission, has resigned that position effectively immediately.

In correspondence with Lincoln County commissioners, Shoemaker said he felt the SBAC should "think the whole airport project through again and determine what we really want."

"We need to let things cool down between us and the New Mexico State University board of regents," he added.

County commissioners will consider an appointment to replace Shoemaker at their regular meeting Tuesday in Carrizozo.

Shoemaker was appointed to the SBAC in 1978.

GEORGE SHOEMAKER

Commissioners meet Tuesday in Carrizozo

Lincoln County Commissioners will meet Tuesday at 10 a.m., at the courthouse in Carrizozo.

Agenda items scheduled for consideration include the replacement of George Shoemaker, recently resigned county representative to the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission, the 1980-81 fiscal year budget hearings schedule, subdivision and development of land in the Upper Hondo Conservation District, and the appointment of a county energy coordinator.

The commissioners will also consider a lease-purchase agreement for mobile radios, a water pressure system for the courthouse, recreation maps of the county and property tax protest board appointments.

Village's trustees to meet

The Ruidoso Downs trustees will meet at 7 tonight at the municipal building. Major agenda items scheduled for consideration include a report from the Planning and Zoning Commission, a proposed sign ordinance, a resolution dealing with the Public Employee's Retirement Association, budget requests and salary review.

The Ruidoso trustees will meet at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday in the Ruidoso Public Library.

Agenda items include a report on bids for a new cab and chassis for the Emergency Medical Services, proposals for the 1979-1980 Fiscal Year Audit, reconsideration of Shangri La Subdivision's final plat, report on a transfer system for solid waste and a contract with the Criminal Justice Division, serving southeastern New Mexico.

The trustees will meet at 6 p.m., Tuesday with the Planning and Zoning Commission in a workshop session concerning procedure on replats, subdivision regulations and architectural review. Workshops are for discussion only with no official action being taken.

Chamber's Coffee Cart Wednesday

The Wednesday Coffee Cart, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, will be at Don's Pharmacy from 9-10:30 a.m.

The public is invited to these coffees, to meet the Chamber directors and officers and discuss any projects that the Chamber might undertake in Ruidoso and area.

ComFIRE seeks to identify fire hazards

The Committee for Insuring Ruidoso's Environment (ComFIRE) decided Thursday to organize a campaign to identify fire hazards at individual homes.

The plan involves six to eight trained personnel who would travel by foot to private homes to physically assess visible outside fire hazards, such as pine needles on the roof, trash or slash in the yard and firewood stacked too close to the home.

A handout prepared by the Forest Service was presented for use in the project and included two telephone numbers for more information on the hazards and how to remove them.

"The average home would take about five minutes to examine, if no one's at home," G. W. Werther, forest service fire prevention officer, said. "If they're at home, they'll want to know what you're doing there."

Werther said four of his patrolmen would be assigned to help distribute the literature, and some members of Boy Scout Troop 59 have volunteered to assist the forest service.

ComFIRE chairman Herb Brunell said some means of disposing of trash should be devised. "We have a lot of people willing to clean up but have no way to haul it off," ComFIRE will explore possible controlled burn sites as a solution.

Guest speaker at ComFIRE was Emory Hatcher, village zoning enforcement officer. Hatcher discussed the possibilities of rewriting some present village fire safety ordinances and writing new ones.

"There are already many firesafe ordinances, but there are some we feel could be improved," Brunell said. He said ComFIRE hopes to require eight percent grades on all subdivision roads instead of the present 14 percent grades.

"We have a big problem with zero clearance fireplaces. Since he was hired, John Emde (village building inspector) has red tagged 19 fireplaces," Hatcher said. He said most builders know the correct installation procedures, but feel they can cut costs by installing fireplaces improperly.

Hatcher said another problem is electrical shutoffs, which are located inside most homes in the older subdivisions. "If there is a fire, they need to get into the house to turn off the current," Hatcher said. "They've gone to placing them outside some, but that is definitely a serious fire hazard for firemen."

Hatcher said most developers are very cooperative in cleaning up debris. With many people Hatcher receives complaints about, an initial letter will usually solve the problem. "We hardly ever have to take them to court," he said. "Most people call and tell us to get someone to clean it up and send them a bill."

ComFIRE will meet with the Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission April 8 to review ordinances.

In other business, the committee: — Learned that the State Forestry Division, Southwest Fire Council members and some sparsely populated communities have expressed support for a collapsible fire alert sign which would be designed and furnished by the state Highway Department.

— Learned that all cooperators are ready to display red flags and signs if a Red Flag Alert is called.

— Called a special meeting Wednesday to draft fire ordinances.

Local family conference decries draft, abortion, single parents

People speaking out in a public hearing sponsored by the New Mexico Conference on Families, said Wednesday that they oppose the draft, abortion and single parents.

These comments were recorded on tape by members of the Lincoln County Conference on Families committee, and will be forwarded to the New Mexico Conference on Families, to convene in Albuquerque in April, and the White House Conference of Families, which will convene in July in the nation's capitol.

The hearings were held to determine how people feel about the needs of families, their roles, and how laws could be written or changed to offer more benefits to the family unit. Recorded comments follow.

Francine Brilante said she felt state and federal positions should be created to establish counseling programs for the terminally ill.

Ruth Gardner said more needs of teenagers must be met and supports an effort to build a teen center in Ruidoso which would not have structured programs all the time, "but would give the children a chance to communicate their needs."

She said parents need to re-examine what they are teaching their children, and should spend more time together.

Bill Streeter feels it is unfair to allow single people to adopt children because "it isn't fair to the child. If a person chooses to be single, they give up that responsibility. It takes two parents to watch a child."

Streeter said parents have become weak in teaching their children the laws of the land and proper social behavior and have instead taught that "material things are more important than spending quality time with your children."

Streeter said people spend too much time "seeking moral pleasures" and feels "parents should be educated on how to raise a child."

Nell Parks said parents should support prayer in the schools and parents should have and exercise the right to enroll their children in religious classes. "Parents should visit their schools more too."

Parks said teachers are "teaching trash; they are presenting information to these first and second graders about things like lesbianism and telling them to decide for themselves if it's right or wrong." Parks is also opposed to federal interference in school policies.

Dorsey Grover said that "families are changing" and the government should respond to those needs. She said women seldom have the choice to work but have to work, so adequate child care should be provided, possibly by the community.

Grover said she's in favor of the Equal Rights Amendment because it would help the family and children.

Lynn Streeter said inflation has destroyed the ability of women to stay home and raise their children. She said the federal government should return to each state the right to make laws regarding child support, abortion and other child-related regulations.

Streeter feels elderly people are not well enough cared for, due to inflation and mismanagement of the Social Security system.

"The draft is wrong... it's bad enough that people have to send sons to war but to send people you expect to become your mothers and wives is wrong," Streeter said.

Bobbie LaMay, chairperson of the Lincoln County Conference, said no one should receive welfare. "People should be made to feel worthwhile. We were put on this earth to be productive, and contributing to society is not welfare." LaMay said she favors a strictly voluntary legislative body. "If we would get back to volunteers, people who are really dedicated are the only ones who would take the jobs."

Ellie Keeton addressed the issues of adoption and abortion. She said she is an adoptive mother and the adoption laws in New Mexico are "very stringent. Provisions are there for legal and private adoptions. There are very good laws."

Keeton said "abortion is murder and senseless slaughter of people." She said that although biological mothers may not want their children, "certainly these babies are wanted by other mothers." She feels "abortion means death to families."

Keeton recommended that no federal funding be allowed for abortions and that Pro-Life counseling be established to counteract abortion holiness "so women will have the opportunity to make a decision they will have to live with for the rest of their lives."

Noted educator hails teachers

"Our profession is for the children," Dr. Hiawatha Fountain told a group of educators Saturday. Fountain was guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Southeast District of the National Education Association of New Mexico, which met this weekend at the Inn of the Mountain Gods.

Fountain, who has been an educator for many years, is now an administrator in Montgomery County, Maryland. Public Schools. He spoke in Ruidoso in August at a two-day in-service training workshop for teachers and was invited back to speak at Saturday's meeting.

Fountain outlined some qualities of a teacher and said the future belongs to educators.

"The greatest teachers we know are Christlike; they capture the teachable moment, just as Christ did," he said.

Fountain called teachers "a rare bunch indeed. There is no other profession that touches as many minds and souls as education... educators are perhaps the most major influence on people's minds and get less reward than any other profession."

Fountain is an opponent of open education because, he said, "people need closure. There is nothing more destructive to a youngster than to sit him in a classroom, call the roll, and then send him on his way to 'do his own thing.' People need closure and if they don't get it they wander around through their minds trying to think of what made them a human being."

"We have to be aware of things around us like drugs, preservatives and television... television is one of the worst enemies of education... I just want you educators to know what we are up against," he said.

Fountain said he is concerned about the direction education has taken since 1965 when many experiments were launched to improve education, such as open classrooms and teaching methods of some noted educators.

Fountain said the achievement level of high school graduates has taken "a continuous nosedive. Graduates are now achieving at about a 9th grade level at our better schools."

He said book publishers are lowering the reading skill level in books to meet the lower grade levels, and yet, he said, "we're spending billions of dollars on education and we seem not to be getting the return we should. It seems the more we put into it the less we get out of our kids."

Fountain said teachers will regain the respectability they lost several years ago.

"Remember the word authority. Teachers will regain the authority to teach in the 1980's."

"Every 12 years, 75 percent of the new known information will change. In 1975, it was every 25 years. Education will have to develop coping mechanisms, such as problem solving, because knowledge is changing too fast to give facts," he said.

"Fear not, for you as a teacher make a difference. You are sometimes the only difference, the only hope a child will see for six hours a day. You give those youngsters the hope they might need to get through the day," he said.

"And there is nothing more important than having one of those children return to you five years later and thank you for that hope you gave them. That is your reward. Just remember this: Love is free and kindness is free... and that's what we have to bring back into the schools," he said.

Running for fitness: here's how to get started

[Note: The writer of this article received several requests for information on running, which he has done almost every day the past six years. In that time, he saw his body weight drop from 282 to 159 pounds, most of that going in the first six months. While the information presented here is not conclusive and shouldn't be taken as such, it might encourage someone who is thinking about taking up the sport.]

BY MARK BAGBY
Sports Editor

The return of warm weather brings about renewed interest in looking and feeling better. What better way to do it than exercise?

And what better exercise than running? The purpose of this article is not to convince you to run, because running isn't for everybody. Its purpose: to explain just exactly what running is, and let the reader decide for himself if he wants to do it.

And if he does, there is information on just how to get started.

Who should (or could) run? Just about anybody who wants to, that's who.

First, before we get any farther, you should answer these questions:

Are you 10 pounds or more overweight; do you smoke; would you like to lose weight or stop smoking or both, permanently; do you worry about the possibility of a heart attack; do you feel out of shape; do you want to get into shape; do you want to feel better; do you want to sleep more soundly; would you like to get along comfortably with less sleep; do you want to feel relaxed?

Then answer these questions: do you prefer to spend an evening by yourself, or perhaps with a close friend or two, than go to a party; do you feel like an outsider at large gatherings; are you generally happy when you're alone; and are you self-assured enough to not feel different from others?

If you answered yes to 12 or more questions go out and get your shoes right now.

If you answered yes to eight to eleven questions, you'll probably enjoy running. Five to eight, sorry, no guarantees. Four or fewer? Take up bridge.

Now, a little background—running is possibly the oldest sport known to man. The first Olympic Games in Athens 2,700 years ago had one event—a footrace. And man is marvelously well equipped for running.

But why running over other sports? What makes it so great?

Well, for starters, running (incidentally, the terms "running" and "jogging" are used interchangeably) burns from 800 to 1,000 calories an hour, depending on how fast you run.

Bicycling burns 650 an hour, if one rides at a minimum speed of 13 miles an hour. Swimming burns 300 to 650 an hour, tennis 400 to 500 and bowling and golf both burn less than 300.

What that means is, if you want to lose weight, running will help you lose it perhaps three times as fast than if you practice another activity.

Running clears out the cardiovascular system, strengthens the heart, increases the lung capacity, slows the resting heart rate, improves digestion, improves general fitness, and can help smokers kick the habit.

Those are just the physical benefits. There is no way of determining mental benefits, but, generally, runners are more self-confident, get angry less frequently, get along better with fellow workers and have a greater energy level and more stamina and endurance than do their non-running counterparts.

Sound interesting? Keep reading.

How to get started
Equipment isn't any problem and it's inexpensive—you need a good pair of running shoes. And that means running shoes—not tennis shoes, not Army boots, not high heels. And not black and white canvas sneakers sold in stores, with the advertising sign—"Jogging Shoes."

Buy running shoes with brand names—Adidas, Nike, Onitsuka, and others. You'll have to try several pairs until you find what is comfortable for you.

Take a pair of socks just like the ones you'll wear when you run to the store. Then try your shoes on over the socks. They should fit snugly, but not too tight. If they don't fit properly, then you'll let yourself in for a lot of foot problems.

They should have good arch support, and a layered sole (look at the outside of the shoe and you can easily tell if it's layered), and the heel should be about one half to three quarters of an inch thick.

Clothing is no problem, although you probably won't need warmups. You need something comfortable mainly, that allows complete freedom of movement. If you want a set of fashion warmups, go ahead. But you'll just sweat in them.

Other than that, you're set.

Where to run?
In this area, that poses a problem. Some people prefer running on a track, which helps them measure their progress. If you are so inclined, there is a 400 yard track in the large field east of White Mountain Middle School, and four laps equals a mile. It's the only track I know of.

But many people like to run across country, which means you can run on any street. Just remember to wear light colored clothes (light colors will reflect light, making you more visible and it also keeps you cooler). And always run on the left side of the road.

That's one of the biggest joys of running—you can do it anytime, anywhere.

Preparing to run
Now, chances are, unless you play a set or two of tennis every day, you're not in great shape, which is probably why you're considering running in the first place.

Before you begin, if you're really worried about your health, see a doctor and ask his opinion. (I'm not sure you need it—you know you're out of shape—a mirror can tell you that. Just take it slow and easy and you'll be fine. But if you want a doctor's opinion, by all means, get one.)

Before you run—or do any exercise—you should warm up. Warming up means you need to exercise mildly for 10 to 15 minutes. You need mostly to stretch the legs, although the rest of the body needs stretching too.

For the legs, definitely do this one—place your foot on a waist high support, and then slowly bend over as far as you can (try to touch your head to your knee—don't worry, you can't make it, but try) and when you get to that point, hold it for seven seconds. Then try the other leg.

Eventually you'll be able to put your head on your knee with no difficulty—just remember to keep your leg straight.)

Other effective exercises can be found in just about any woman's magazine. These are all good.

Now you're ready to run.

(to be continued in next issue.)

Variety of gymnastic programs offered

The new location of the Ruidoso Gymnastics Association (RGA) will be the site of a statewide gymnastics coaches' clinic April 26, RGA coach Blake Starr announced.

The purpose of the clinic is to upgrade the level of safety awareness, Starr said. He is a national certifier for the United States Gymnastics Safety Association.

"Coaches throughout the state will be here for the clinic," Starr said. "In conjunction with the clinic, we'll have some exhibitions that will feature some of the top gymnasts and coaches in the state."

The roster includes elite class gymnast Kelly Chapman of Albuquerque gymnastics school, and one of the top tumbling coaches in the country, Mike Dennison of Salt Lake City.

"The public is invited to watch some of our workouts," Starr said.

The new RGA building, the former home of Carpet Warehouse, is almost 70 percent ready for full use, Starr said, with about 30 percent left to finish.

"We'll be offering more classes once we get all the work done," he said.

Starr and RGA will offer several gymnastics workshops during the summer, each two weeks long. Each student's tuition will be $12.50, with a $2.50 discount for families with more than one student in the program.

Class four students' tuition will be $15, and advanced team tuition will be $20, he said.

RGA is currently preparing brochures to distribute around the state. For more information, contact Starr at 257-5957, or write RGA, box 2878, Ruidoso, 88345.

Local skiers take note: skiing season is about over, statewide.

The Ruidoso Ski and Recreation Area is closed, as are Cloudcroft, Powder Puff and Sugarite (at Raton).

Sipapu and Val Verde are planning on holding out until Easter Sunday, but since both lack snowmaking equipment, and both closed in late March the past couple of years, it's doubtful they'll last until then. Red River is closing Palm Sunday, March 30.

Angel Fire, Sandia, Santa Fe and Taos all are closing Easter Sunday, April 6—as are our own beloved Sierra Blanca.

And, for a ski report statewide, call 882-2419 (that's in Anthony). They'll compile the last report March 31.

Anybody in Texas can call the same location, but the number is 1-800-545-9876—that's toll-free, gang. And it runs 24 hours a day, seven days a week. The New Mexico pumper is reachable every day, but only from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. (Why do the Texans get a break?)

As the season winds down, I look back at some of the events they had this year—the Handicapped Skiers Race, the Sierra Blanca-Yukon Jack Pro Cup race, the Hot Tots, the Texas Cup.

Although there wasn't as much snow this year as last, things still came off pretty good, and the local economy is doing okay.

But most of all, a bunch of people spent some enjoyable times on the slopes, and after all, isn't that really what it's all about?

It's that time again

Every time about this year, two things cross most people's minds—income taxes are due, and hunting licenses expire—at midnight, March 31.

(You have a little longer to file your income tax return.)

All license vendors are supposed to have the new licenses ready for sale before that time, as well as the (thank God) revised hunting proclamation, which this year is a booklet rather than an unwieldy wall poster.

For the new year, there are a few changes in the rules. In fishing, there is a new daily bag limit of 16 trout per day, but only eight rainbow, cutthroat and/or salmon, may be caught per day. (That means any one species or any combination—three rainbow, three cutthroat and two salmon. Okay?)

Possession limit is 32 trout and only 16 may be rainbow, cutthroat and/or salmon.

Possession limit on northern pike has been raised from six to twelve.

So get out there and get your licenses and start cookin'. Time's a-wastin', like my grandpappy used to tell me.

And get your income tax filed too, like my Uncle Sam used to tell me, too.)

Umpires needed

The Ruidoso Men's Softball League is looking for certified umpires.

"We're tired of people threatening our umpires with bodily harm," new league president Dub Holt said. "Maybe this will take care of it. Of course everybody has the right to argue a decision, but this threatening people has got to stop."

Anybody interested? Call Ray Gann, 257-2011.

While we're talking about softball, the league had a meeting last week, wherein Dub Holt was elected president ("nobody else wanted it," he told me), Ed Hazel was elected vice-president, and Buddy Bundick was elected secretary-treasurer.

"We've got a lot of interest in it this year," Dub said. "There were 45 people at the meeting."

There's so much interest, in fact, that the league will have to limit itself to 12 teams this year, with the dozen teams to be named at a later date.

The league will have another organizational meeting Thursday at 6 p.m., in Security Bank. "All managers must be there," Dub said. But he wasn't too crazy about everybody else coming—

"45 people is just too many."

The season is still a ways off—the field at Ruidoso Downs the league uses had been seeded to grass, so they can't get on it until May.

SANTA FE—After a column we did on the problem of selling bonds from political entities in the state when the highest interest we are allowed to pay is 8 percent, there were two reactions.

First, State Treasurer Jan Hartke began to speak out on the subject. "I don't know why Governor King didn't ask the Legislature for an increase in the interest ceiling," he is now saying. "In a bond market which is already sluggish, some bond issues coming up around the state may be in serious trouble."

That's pretty much the way it looks from here—and it turns out it's also the way those bond attorneys who contacted us see the picture.

What's more, they pointed out another problem.

That was the attempt made by the King forces to change the whole student loan program during the session of 1980. If these folks know what they're saying, that effort sent a frisson of fear through the whole bond market.

That student loan fund is backed by bonds, and what the Kings evidently wanted to do was transfer all the power for such bonding from the office of the State Treasurer (the same Jan Hartke mentioned above) to a new and uncreated "student loan authority," which, you can bet your boots, would have been located in the portion of government under the control of the Governor's nephew.

What worried the bond people is that House Bill 206, which the Kings had introduced, would give this to-be-initiated "authority" the power to go back and "renegotiate, renew or terminate" all presently existing contracts. That's like permission to abrogate all existing bonds, purely on a unilateral basis. Such a thought does not impress those who have stood behind New Mexico's bonds with the stability and good financial sense of those at the top of our state government.

(You wonder why we're making all this stir about bonds? Well, think about this: Almost every big project approved by this Legislature is to be financed from severance tax bonds—and everything we say here, from complaints about the low interest ceiling to doubts bond people have about New Mexico, affects those.)

One person who knows the bond market well but does not want a name put on his comments (for rather obvious reasons; he's afraid he wouldn't get any more business if he were identified) says, "The only reason I could see for such an attempt to take authority away from the State Treasurer's office was some spirit of vindictiveness on the part of the Kings. They sure don't like Jan Hartke. If State Representative Fred Mondragon hadn't amended out that section of the proposed law, the bond rating of the state of New Mexico would have gone down the tubes, I can guarantee you."

Ironically it was Mondragon who introduced HB 206, with that section 31 which might well have done us irreparable harm. He did so at the request of the administration, and appears not to have been aware of the deleterious effect built into the bill until some folks who know their business called his attention to it.

So we walked through that minefield without harm, no thanks to those who head our government. But on the question of the marketability of municipal bonds with a ridiculously low ceiling of 8 percent interest we have no such fortunate solution.

Sense & Nonsense

U.S. Sen. Pete Domenici

"Change the oil," has become a common expression in American automotive jargon. Every time we take the old heap in, the service station attendant fills it up with fresh dollar-a-can oil. What you probably did not know is that he could have used 25 cent recycled oil ... and it would have been just as good, if not better, for your car.

Recycled oil is not new. It's been around for years, but only now are we getting serious about it. Part of the problem is that most of us really cannot believe that recycled oil is as good as new oil, and what makes believing that even harder is a Federal Trade Commission labeling requirement that recycled oil must be called "previously used" oil.

Those two words are enough to make you think twice about buying a can. There's also the added psychology that if it costs so much less it can't be as good as the real thing. Absolute nonsense—in fact many mechanics insist it's better than new oil, and the United States Air Force, including some of the nation's biggest trucking companies agree.

This past week I introduced in the Senate a bill that hopefully will spur oil recycling. The latest figures available from the Environmental Protection Agency show that well over 1.2 billion gallons of lubricating oils become waste every year. Of that amount, about half is burned—generally without any controls on atmospheric emissions—while about 35 percent is not traceable, and most likely is improperly disposed of. LESS THAN ten percent is actually re-refined.

Part of the problem is that federal regulations don't exactly encourage re-refining. The labeling requirements I mentioned earlier reflect a big part of that problem. Labeling oil as "previously used" creates a negative connotation in the mind of the consumer. I am proposing that we change the requirement so all re-refined oil is called "recycled" oil. That seemingly small change could do a lot to encourage more recycling. In addition this legislation requires that within a year labels on all cans of new oil bear words such as:

"Don't pollute—conserve resources. Return used oil to collection centers."

Of course that brings up another problem. Right now there are not very many places where you can take used oil for recycling. This bill will help change that by providing grant money to states for the purpose of establishing environmentally sound collection and re-refining programs.

In these energy conscious times this kind of policy makes good conservation and environmental sense. However, since 1965 the re-refining industry has declined from 160 companies to about 25. In terms of production the industry has gone from recycling more than 300 million gallons annually to recycling less than 100 million gallons. My hope, and that of the Senators cosponsoring this bill, is that this legislation will change that. But changing attitudes is equally important—and for that I count on you.

So next time the gas station attendant looks under your hood and tells you that you are down a quart, tell him to put in some recycled oil. Your car won't know the difference—but your wallet will.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

Your account of the meeting of the governing body, Village of Ruidoso, held Tuesday evening March 11, 1980, was accurately and honestly reported.

Profanity or anything other than concise language has no place in a public meeting or really anywhere else. I extend my apology to those present at the meeting, the readers of The Ruidoso News and especially to the author of a letter directed to "Letters to the Editor" as published in The Ruidoso News edition of Thursday, March 20, 1980. I do not change my opinion (held for many years) that Community Public Service Company in its administration actions from Ruidoso and Fort Worth, Texas, has not been cooperative with the policies adopted by the Village of Ruidoso and our Planning and Zoning Commission especially concerning underground utilities.

Dear editor,

Ed Jungbluth has become the target for some pretty tough accusations and insinuations attacking his integrity and motives. Doesn't the saying go "Innocent until proven guilty?" I know of no satisfactorily documented evidence to show that Mr. Jungbluth has done anything other than perform his job honestly and faithfully. He is certainly not doing it for the money as he took a cut in salary to take the job. Let's not quickly "give him a fair trial and string him up" based on gossip.

In a letter written by Mr. Warren Tucker on 3-20-80, a question was raised about Mr. Jungbluth's competency as Chamber of Commerce director. Obviously, all of Mr. Jungbluth's actions and decisions regarding Chamber of Commerce matters will not please everyone all the time. The person able to please everyone all the time hasn't been born yet. We live in the Upper Canyon and have some cabins ourselves. Although I don't know how every single Upper Canyon owner feels, I don't know any who think Mr. Jungbluth is not doing a good job.

Mr. Tucker was "wondering if the people would like to change managers of the Chamber of Commerce." Apparently, quite a few are satisfied with the present arrangement. The Chamber of Commerce has enjoyed a substantial increase in membership since Mr. Jungbluth assumed the position.

Yes, Mr. Jungbluth is enthusiastic in his efforts for the betterment of Ruidoso. It is enthusiasm that gets things done. Unfortunately, when something gets done for the good of most, there are often a few who object. This is a fact of life, but our alternative for a Chamber of Commerce director is a deadhead who we make sure steps on nobody's toes.

THANK YOU, GORDON!

The News carried a story last Thursday advising us that artist Gordon Shidow has granted Ruidoso Summer Festival Incorporated the right to use his "Eying the Catch Hand" gold medal winning painting to assist in bringing the Fort Worth Symphony Orchestra here this summer for a week's performance.

The copyrighted painting depicts a cowboy, with rope in hand, eyeing a fast moving band of horses, in dawn's earliest light, with the avowed intent being to lasso himself a mount for that day's riding of the range. The painting's eye catching aspect, with the horses not yet in the sunlight, is one borne, with the whites of its eyes literally bulging from their sockets, that is eyeing the cowboy, perhaps more intently than the cowboy is eyeing the bronc.

Enough drive! ... the fact that's extremely interesting is that Gordon is giving the symphony boosters 450 limited edition prints ... these prints will command a price of $100 each ... which just has to break down to mean that Gordon's contribution amounts to a whopping $45,000 ... and that's a hunka loot.

So ... being's there's nothing much that can be said to Gordon for his generosity ... why not just lay an appreciative "Thank You!" on him, next time you see him ... being's it'd be a little hard to do if'n you don't see him ... but then, there's always the telephone. Leaving as the poser ... how can you express $45,000 in gratitude in just two words ... but don't let that bother you ... Gordon will understand ... after all, he lives and paints in Ruidoso.

RETIRES! SIGN UP!

The other day I was chit-chatting with Bob Power ... he's one of the new trustees at Ruidoso Downs ... over lunch, it was ... sans an ice tea ... when he opined that it'd be a good idea if all of the retirees in this area possessing special skills and knowledge would sign up to volunteer their services to Ruidoso Downs and Ruidoso ... to save both villages time and money.

There just have to be lots of folks here who have had years of professional and business experience ... engineers, contractors, road builders ... you name it. Anyhow, Bob sorta figured that if'n all these folks would sign up ... like a! maybe the Chamber of Commerce ... listing their specialties ... then when either village had a project pending ... they could peruse this list ... and maybe get a whole bunch of valuable suggestions ... that'd cost nary a dime.

Besides ... if'n these specialists in our midst were of a mind to ... they could even kinda oversee some of the smaller projects ... and get things done right ... which'd certainly enhance the quality of living in these parts.

ON TEACHERS' SALARIES

Ruidoso's teachers will receive a substantial increase in stipend in their next contract ... 15.66 percent for certified personnel and 16 percent for non certified staffers. Superintendent Valliant won't fare that well ... he'll get 9.5 percent, which ain't too shabby ... and the principals'll get 10.5 percent ... and that ain't to be sneezed at.

What this means is that a Ruidoso teacher with a Bachelor of Arts degree ... that ain't never had no teaching experience ... will be paid $11,705 ... which is some better than lotsa bachelors is making.

But the BA's with no experience is some better off at Tularosa ... 'cause Tullie's gonna shell out $12,000 for the beginners ... and that's after granting a 16.67 percent across the board increase to teachers ... which should put their superintendent in another tax bracket.

If'n this percentage increase for teachers is brought to Our Jimmy's attention, he's liable to start frothing at the mouth ... 'cause he seems to be figuring that large pay raises sorta tends to help build inflation which Our Jimmy's plumb set against ... actually, the way it appears, the only thing he really wants inflated is his ego ... and from the way his plans have been kicked around, he sure could stand another ego builder ... considering the main thing he's got going for him right now is that he's making good on his threat of what he'd do to Teddy, if'n he had the temerity to run against him. Which must leave Teddy wondering about all those Irish Catholics up in Jane Byrne country that obviously voted for a good ol' Baptist goober grower.

BRIEF BIT: There's only one word needed to encourage the free enterprise nations of the world to keep church and state separated ... Iran ... CD

SALUTE TO CHAMBER MEMBERS

This is a regular feature in the Monday edition of this newspaper to introduce the members of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce

VILLAGE OF RUIDOSO was incorporated as such in November, 1945 and has been a member of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce since 1971. The Chamber actually predates the village, since it was formed several years prior to World War II. Pictured is the current mayor, Lloyd Davis. The village is a full service municipality, with 103 employees in eleven departments—water, sewer, sanitation, police, fire, emergency medical services, maintenance shop, airport, library, recreation and streets.

VILLAGE OF RUIDOSO DOWNS was incorporated in October, 1947. The name of the village was originally Palo Verde, but the name has changed several times, through the years, to Greentree, Hollywood and finally Ruidoso Downs. The final change came about in 1968 when the racetrack located in the village. Eleven persons are currently employed by the village including 10 in the financial, sanitation, water/streets and police departments and one municipal judge. The village became a member of the Chamber in 1970. Nearing completion is the town's All American Park, which will be equipped with basketball and tennis courts, a baseball field and playground. Pictured above, from left are police chief Ray Garner, village clerk Virginia Spall, mayor Norman Wheeler, water clerk Gini Bonilla and bookkeeper Martha Euchler.

The Dreamer

BY DANNIE STORM

Spring Is Here

This is being written to you on March twenty, the first day of Spring, in mid afternoon. After having shared the day with Winter all morning up until high noon, Spring, the Queen of Seasons, is in full possession of the vale.

Yesterday on the last day of Winter, the season of ice and snow made its presence felt very strongly with a cold north wind all day long and heavy clouds all in the west, moving against the wind, and once in a while dropping cold rain almost turned to snow.

The Spirit of Winter made us one last fond visit lingering to the very last in this land that it loves; and yet you could feel Spring gently smiling through. The north wind was laden with the incense of countless Cottonwood buds opening all down the winding valley to the west. Two young blue birds stood on a bare apple limb out in the middle of the cold blast of the wind, happy on the eve of spring, and proud of their delicate new colors of many shades of blue, cherry red and soft white. I looked at them through the binoculars our brother Lynn gave me for Christmas. You could see how the wind lifted their smallest and softest feathers just a little so that they vibrated in the wind shining forth rainbow colors.

Around the house, that early summer visitor, the Phoebe made his little call, all through the day, his notes little serenades of Spring amid the loudly-calling gale of winter.

Down along the old road, our proud State bird, the Road Runner of Paisano, crossed your path in rapid stride, friendly and tame, splendid in his shining green crest. This is good fortune to have the Road Runner cross your path, and a certain sign of Spring, and a wet Spring according to the old sayings.

A Call Born On Saint Patrick's Day

This year's calves have been born on holidays. One was born on Ground Hog's day. And on the Day after Saint Patrick's Day in the evening I went up to the Knoll, and one of the cows walked up, proud of a one-day-old calf walking close by her side.

He is a little bull, born on Saint Patrick's Day, so we will call him Patrick. He had a light and springy step, and his eyes were wide with wonder at this critter who got out of this blue contraption on wheels. Before I could catch it, the pick-up door caught the wind and slammed with a loud bam. Little Patrick was off like a shot flying across the field and did not stop till he got to the foot of the hill — a sprint of one hundred and fifty or two hundred yards. He looked back over his shoulder, and when he saw his mother was still in the same place, he came walking back, much as to say,

"If mother's not afraid, there must not be any danger."

You never saw a day-old calf run so fast. As my old friend, Dr. L. B. Boellner would say, the little calf has the "running spirit." So now little groundie, who was born on Ground Hog's day is delighted with her little half-brother who is running and playing with her on this first day of Spring.

Snow Birds And Bees

In mid morning on the first day of Spring while Winter still lingered, welcoming spring into the land. There were several bees out at one of the stone Metates which are the bird watering places. There is a round, grind-rock on the edge of the metates upon which the birds perch before they come down to the water. This metate has a gradual-sloping wedge which the bees like because they can drink without getting beyond their depth in the water. While some of the bees were buzzing around the water and some drinking, here came several snow birds to drink along with them — a perfect picture of the meeting of winter and Spring.

After the Snow birds had drunk and flown away, a speckled orange lady bug, a true messenger of summer, came and lit on the round stone near the metate. There came a fall in the wind, and its song changed from a hymn of winter to a serenade to Spring. The lady bug, a very helpful little creature in the plant world, flew away. And the mellow sun shined down. The day grew warmer and warmer until the temperature reached sixty. The oak brush hills turned to wild-rose pink as they shined in glowing gem-like radiance against the blue sky.

The hills and fields of the mountain land cast faint tints of their green, gold, purple and rose into the air, so that the world is under an enchanted benediction on this first day of spring.

Let us thank The Good Lord for the good winter and the glorious Spring.

Mayor Wheeler issues census proclamation

Ruidoso Downs mayor Norman Wheeler has issued a proclamation designating April 1, 1980 as "Census Day" in Ruidoso Downs, in order to encourage participation in the census.

Cooperation with the census workers is urged by Wheeler, because, "the information collected serves many useful purposes, among which are apportionment of representation in the United States Congress, measurement of the economic well-being of the community, allotment of certain federal and state tax revenues and determination of future needs for public services," according to the document.

CARPET CLEANING is something that is often let go from year to year. Perhaps when the home is put up for sale professional cleaners are called in... and it's amazing how "new" your carpets can look when they're restored in this way.

But the point is that it costs very little to keep your carpets looking this way from year to year. Most of us become so used to seeing soiled areas of heavy traffic, or the spot Junior left on the carpet last summer, or the time so-and-so spilled a drink or ate upset some mail polish, that we don't really SEE the soiling. Unfortunately, visitors to see it... and your home doesn't look its best.

An annual cleaning will keep any carpet looking fresh, its colors bright and clear. Moreover, the carpet will last longer, because grit and soil imbedded in the fibers cause extra wear.

All this means cleanliness is one of the properties you should look into when you select a new carpet for your home. That goes for "spot cleaning" when accidents occur, as well as overall periodic cleaning to make the whole carpet live longer and better.

We have the experience to advise you on the clean-ability of different carpets, as well as other factors of beauty and wear. And we have the wide selection by famous carpet manufacturers that you're looking for. Come in... to the carpet people.

by Steve K. Walz

Every week this column reviews the merits or demerits of a network series, miniseries, movie or special. More importantly though, we'd like you, the viewer, to get involved with the column by sending in your opinion about a certain show so we can register your tele-pulse. We'll pass on some of the more interesting comments to the network honchos in New York.

THE DAY CHRIST DIED

On Wednesday, March 26, CBS will present a three hour tele-flick entitled 'The Day Christ Died.' The story taken from a book that was penned in 1952 is, according to CBS, "based on biblical record and historical interpretation and is a dramatic reconstruction of the troubled world of ancient Jerusalem at the fateful time when Jesus entered the city to face the events which changed the course of the world."

This is yet another attempt by a major 'web' to present a story on the life of Jesus. 'Mary and Joseph' was lambasted last year for its 'Hollywood' storyline, while 'Jesus of Nazareth' was given ecumenical acclaim for showing the 'ethereal' Jesus. This production, though, is sure to spur the most controversy since it focuses on the political intrigue surrounding Jesus, the Temple Sanhedrin (the Jewish court) and Pontius Pilate. Unfortunately, very little is known about the Nazarene era, due to the upheavals which took place in ancient Jerusalem.

The Greek and Roman historians have written their accounts of what happened, as have the Jewish scholars and the Christian Disciples. This production assumes too much and takes far too many liberties in telling the trials and tribulations of Jesus. What worries me even more is that because television is such a powerful medium, a picture of this magnitude can change one's mind on what he/she perceives as being the 'Story of Jesus.'

From a production value standpoint, 'The Day Christ Died' is an exceptionally made film with top-flight acting and directing. But that's where my praise ends. With all of the questionable events that are depicted to enhance the political theme of this movie, one wonders whether 'The Day Christ Died' will open old wounds between Christians and Jews. I think it will, and if there is one thing we don't need today, it's more religious controversy.

Profile

Beau Bridges hits a homer with 'United States'

Beau Bridges, who stars as Richard Chapin on NBC-TV's new comedy series 'United States,' was born into a show business family and had an early start as an actor, but didn't become committed to it until he was a young man.

Beau, the son of actor Lloyd Bridges and the brother of Jeff Bridges, made his first movie at the age of five. "I had a small part in 'The Red Pony' and then did a film called 'Zamba,' but then little league baseball became the big thing in my life, and I didn't act again until I was 19 when I appeared in my dad's show, 'Sea Hunt.'"

He was a baseball and basketball star at Venice High School, and played freshman basketball at UCLA. But watching the giants on the varsity team made him realize that he couldn't compete against them. He later transferred to the University of Hawaii as an English major who still spent many hours at sports. But the die was cast when he turned down a tryout with the Los Angeles Dodgers to take a stage role—he has been a respected actor ever since.

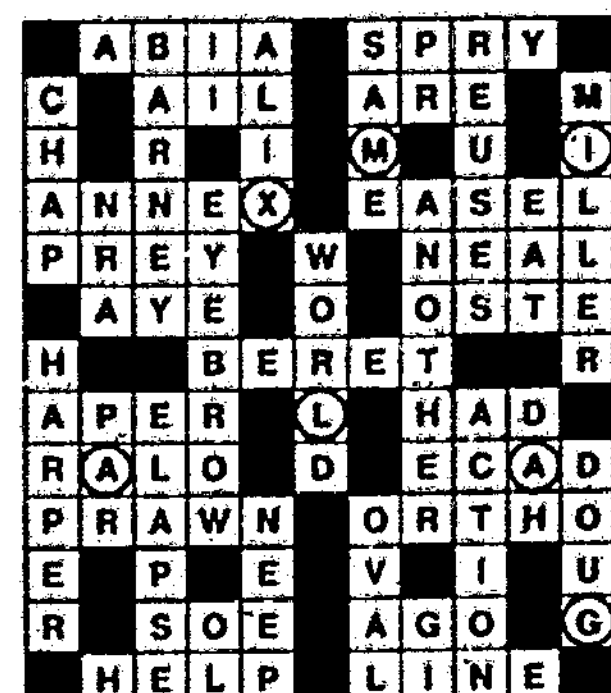

His most recent motion picture credits include starring roles in 'Norma Rae' and 'The Runner Stumbles,' which were preceded by such films as 'The Other Side of the Mountain,' 'Lovin' Molly,' 'For the Love of Ivy,' 'Gaily, Gaily' and 'The Landlord.' He has since guest-starred on dozens of major television shows and starred in such television movies as 'The Child Stealer,' 'The Stranger Who Looks Like Me,' 'Man Without a Country' and, starring with his father, 'The Whirlwind.'

Bridges is a relaxed, easy-going man who never lets the tensions of the business bother him. "I never have any problems sleeping," he says. "I can fall asleep while I'm standing up."

Although he's no longer aiming at a sports career, he is still a very physical man. He enjoys swimming, surfing, diving, sailing, tennis, and has a strong interest in music.

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT Valerie Bertinelli refuses to guest on any variety show. The One Day at a Time star explains: "Every time I've gone on a variety show, the host wanted me to sing. Well, it just so happens that I'm not a good singer and I'm not going to take singing lessons just to appear on a variety show." Alan Alda has just signed up for another year of M*A*S*H and he says he'll continue it definitely on the series. "I have no intention of leaving the show just as long as it maintains a high quality," he said. "As soon as I see where things are going, I'll quit."

Diana Canova may have her first and last in Soap if the pilot she's making is successful. In the new series, Diana will portray a recently fired blue collar worker who moves into her father's home with her one-year-old daughter. ABC refused to give up on The Lazarus Syndrome, which starred Lou Gossett. Audiences have rejected it twice. Now the network has rewritten the format and will try again. Dr. M. D. Wayne Rogers is back about the success of his show. House Calls. "Every one knows," he says, "that you have a tremendous built-in advantage following M*A*S*H on the same day. We've benefited greatly from it." Larry Hagman is making a wonderful salary as star of Dallas. But even if he were unemployed he'd still be living like a king. And the reason: His wife Maj grosses $1 million a year designing and selling custom spas.

TV TIKER Pernell Roberts is a loner and a rebel and he's living every minute of it. That's because I've always done what I wanted to do. The 51-year-old Roberts told me. Roberts says he takes one day at a time and if the show he's in isn't going in the right direction, he'll just leave, no matter how high it is in the ratings. Even now, in the midst of success with his hit CBS TV series, Trapper John, M.D., there's talk that Roberts won't be back. In 1965 he walked out on the hit Western, Bonanza, after six years and missed out on being a millionaire. Steve Forrest has been signed to star and Arte Johnson, Dane Clark, Linda Cristal and Larry Bishop have been signed to guest star in M*A*U*U*s Operation Prime Time four-hour two-part presentation of John D. MacDonald's best-seller, Condominium. Scuttlebutt is that Joe DiMaggio is upset about a proposed TV special on his former wife, the late Marilyn Monroe. Jolin Joe apparently is demanding script approval on any material mentioning him.

TV TIPS OFF Everybody loves that wacky WKRP in Cincinnati, going but few people realize that there's a real station in Cincinnati with almost identical call letters and staff that's almost as crazy. They don't mind being confused with the TV show at all at WKRC in Cincinnati. And strangely enough, there are more similarities than the call letters between the fictional station and the real one. We love the show here and with good reason. Randy Michaels, program director of WKRC, told me. Michaels explained to me that when WKRP first started on nationwide TV, the producers showed the real station's management the first few episodes to make sure that no legal problems would arise. We get an awful lot of mail addressed to WKRP, says Michaels. It's a bit of a problem because our ratings are based partially on the amount of mail we receive. Our similarity with WKRP has been a very good thing for us. We've had a huge amount of spin-off publicity.
