Care Center's heart benefit set July 19

Pledges are now being taken for Ruidoso Care Center's (RCC) "Rock and Roll Jamboree" fund drive for the American Heart Association July 19.

The six hour event will kick off with three hours of hot air balloon rides to any person willing to donate $10 to the cause. Beginning at 9 a.m., residents of the center will rock in rocking chairs and roll in wheelchairs for three hours, earning pledges for their efforts.

The event is sponsored by RCC residents and the Community Advisory Council for RCC, who have scheduled special entertainment during the morning.

All money raised will be contributed to continue the research and educational efforts of the American Heart Association, and all donations are tax deductible, according to Bill Karn, chairperson for the council.

Pledge sheets are available at RCC or can be made by calling 257-9071.

The village trustees Tuesday evening, on request by water superintendent Jim Goodman, continued the ban on all outside watering in Ruidoso until the ban is lifted when water reserves reach the point warranting this action.

Goodman advised the trustees "the people are cooperating by not watering their lawns, etc.," and "consumption was down over the Fourth of July weekend."

"We now have a 30 to 45 day supply of water, if the water is used at the present rate under the ban."

Mayor Lloyd L. Davis Jr., said, "When the rains start, and they always do, then we will have plenty of water."

The trustees authorized Goodman, working with village clerk Jim Hine, to "proceed with exploratory well drilling and other means" to provide the village with more water. Hine and Goodman were authorized to check possible drilling sites in Gavilan Canyon and report their findings to the trustees at the July 29 board meeting.

Goodman also advised the trustees that Boyle Engineering, Albuquerque, had submitted plans for a blending/chlorinating plant, at an estimated cost of $200,000, that would permit the blending of 100 gallons of water per minute from the Cherokee and Hollywood wells, into the present mains. "This would give us that much more water that would not have to come out of our treated water reserves," he said. The trustees took no action on this report.

The trustees, upon recommendation by Davis, did not discuss the feasibility of trying to obtain additional water rights that are transferable to the village.

Of this procedure, Davis said, "The most archaic water system laws in the world are in New Mexico. New Mexico laws prevent using drilled water, due to ridiculous laws. We can't do anything until there is an absolute crisis (in the local water supply) and we have no crisis in water."

In other business, the trustees:

—Were advised by planning and zoning officer Emory Hatcher that a complaint would be served Wednesday morning on Ralph Rush, operator of "Go Karts," as being in violation of Ordinance 9-7-7, Article C-1-D, pertaining to the location of the business, lack of adequate parking and method of operation.

—Accepted the bid of Rick's Welding and Metal Company, Las Cruces, in the amount of $3,790 for a 12,000 gallon aviation fuel storage tank. The other bid received was for $6,391 from Kohlhaas Tank and Equipment Company of Albuquerque.

—Due to delivery problems, canceled plans to purchase two refuse removal vehicles under provisions of the emergency purchasing law and to advertise for bids for the two units.

—Approved Resolution 80-9 pertaining to routine adjustments in the 1979-1980 fiscal year budget, as required by state law.

—Were advised by Al Junge, Lodger's Tax Committee representative, that the Lodger's Tax fund balance at the end of the current fiscal year, July 1, was $14,512.94. The trustees approved investing these funds in certificates of deposit or interest bearing certificates, pending the need to use them for authorized purposes.

—Authorized issuing a notice of sale of $500,000 in general obligation sewer bonds, with the bids to be opened at 4 p.m., August 26, for action at the regular meeting of the trustees at 7:30 that evening.

—Authorized village attorney Ron Harris to prepare a resolution establishing a rate schedule setting charges for cuts made in paved streets in the village.

—Refused a replat of Lot 2, Block 4, First Addition to Cree Meadows Heights, dividing one lot into three lots, each to contain 20,000 square feet, based on density (of population). This, Harris said, "is a valid reason for disapproving the replat request."

School board may sell land to upgrade track

The Ruidoso school district may sell a piece of property donated to the district by Don Driver, if negotiations with the state Department of Public School Finance can be closed soon.

Superintendent of Schools Pat Valliant told board of education members Tuesday night that the property, which has been listed for sale since early 1977, could be sold if the paperwork needed at the state level can be completed soon.

The property is located near Lake Buchanan in Texas and the interested buyer has offered a price accepted by the board for the property. The money received from sale of the land will be used to upgrade the track at White Mountain

Middle School, in accordance with the wishes of Driver, Valliant said.

Borden Products received the approval for supplying two percent milk to the district in the 1980-81 school year. Valliant said that while they submitted the lower of two bids, he wanted to know what kind of milk cartons were being used. "We had a problem with Clardy's last year because the cartons leaked and caused a mess, plus we had lots of empty cartons."

A representative of the company said the cartons were different and their bid of .1450 per half pint with an escalation clause, was accepted. Price's Creamery submitted a bid of .1475 with an escalation clause.

The board also:

—Hired Mary Lee Cates for Special Education Instructor.

—Approved a request from the Altrusa Club of Ruidoso for use of the White Mountain School gym later this month, subject to final confirmation of the exact date approved by school officials.

—Accepted supplemental bus contracts for next school year.

—Designated Valliant as Director of Finance, to report all federal activities to the board.

—Read a letter from Rebecca Delgado, Department of Public School Finance, who thanked the board and administration for their cooperation during the budget hearing, held in April.

Lodger's Tax backing next Summer Festival

The Ruidoso Lodger's Tax Committee (LTC) Wednesday agreed to commit $10,000 to the Ruidoso Summer Festival board of directors, in the hope that the village can acquire matching funds from the state Department of Development (DOD) for promotion of the 1981 event.

Representing the Summer Festival board at the meeting were Al Lane and Ken Green, who told the committee members they had requested that the village apply for the funds on behalf of the board, since the DOD might be inclined to "pay more attention" to a request from the village.

Green said that the advertising budget for the first festival, held in Ruidoso June 4-10, totaled more than $20,000, including last year's allocation of $10,000 in Lodger's tax funds. He added that he expected next year's promotional effort to cost between $25,000 and $30,000.

Green and Lane distributed clippings of stories to LTC members promoting the Ruidoso area and the festival, which appeared in newspapers nationwide. LTC chairman Ed Hyman said he would estimate that the area had received at least three times the value of their $10,000 contribution in advertising benefits through the articles.

The board plans to extend the Summer Festival to ten days in 1981, Green said, based on the success this year.

"We were overwhelmed by the response (to the festival)," he said. "And we feel it will be an ongoing thing and that it will grow." He said the board "raised and spent" about $100,000 on the project, and had a nest egg of $20,000 set aside to help promote the 1981 Summer Festival.

He said the group planned to "start earlier with the publicity" next year. He also invited representatives of LTC to attend a meeting with the public relations representatives from Carl Byoir and Associates, who handled the festival publicity this year.

He said the firm wanted to meet with community leaders, including members of the Chamber of Commerce (C-C) board, festival board, Lodger's Association and others, to discuss a proposed promotion for the next festival.

Green said there was no way to measure accurately the economic impact of the festival, but added he felt the festival "has the potential to develop into a major attraction of two to three weeks duration," over the next few years.

The LTC members also voted to approve participation in the Sun Country promotional package, outlined at the June meeting by Ray Walker of Las Cruces. They recommended funding of the promotion totalling $1,500, in a joint venture by a number of "centers of discovery" in the southeastern New Mexico area, including Carlsbad, Alamogordo, Las Cruces, Roswell, Artesia and El Paso, Texas.

The LTC had approved the promotion, contingent on the approval of C-C directors, with C-C executive director Ed Jungbluth reporting that the board had voted in favor of participating at their June meeting.

In other business, the LTC members:

—Approved the recommendation to provide $500 for regional advertising of the Ruidoso Art Festival, July 25-27.

—Approved, on a tie vote broken by Hyman, funding of $1,500 to finance the printing of a newcomer's guide to Ruidoso, published by Glenn Pike's Community Publications. The brochure will be mailed to persons who are interested in relocating to the village, Jungbluth said.

—Approved the recommendation of funding regional advertising for the Aspenade activities and the annual motorcycle convention, in the amount of $2,500.

—Were advised by treasurer Al Junge that the village board of trustees had approved the purchase of a certificate of deposit in the amount of $14,512.94, the 1979-80 balance of Lodger's Tax funds. The group hopes to build up a balance over the next few years, possibly to help finance construction of a civic auditorium for the village.

AIRPLANE PARKING SPACES were at a premium at Ruidoso's Municipal Airport July 5, and even scarcer July 4 when 120 aircraft jammed facilities, airport manager Tim Morris said, in noting that traffic on the Fourth "set an all time record for holiday plane parking."

Richard Lewallen dies in accident

Richard "Grover" Lewallen, 20, Ruidoso, died Wednesday night in a one-vehicle accident on the Fort Stanton Road.

A police spokesman described the mishap as a "freak accident." Lewallen and three companions were riding in a Jeep CJ-7 near the gravel pits, and close to the proposed site of the new airport when the vehicle overturned.

All the occupants of the jeep were thrown from the vehicle, which rolled over Lewallen, inflicting fatal injuries. The accident occurred about 8:30 p.m.

Funeral services for Lewallen are pending at Clarke's Chapel of Roses.

A 13-YEAR-OLD Ruidoso girl was injured Wednesday in a two car accident at the entrance to Innsbrook Village just off Highway 37.

The girl was a passenger in a car driven by Janine Leath of Ruidoso. Police reports said Leath was emerging from the Innsbrook driveway and struck a car driven by Karon Petty, also of Ruidoso.

Petty suffered no visible injuries, police said, but complained of some discomfort. The girl was taken to Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital, and Leath was cited for improper emergence from an "alley, building driveway or private road."

MICHAEL CULLENS, 27, Ruidoso, was injured just after noon Tuesday in a motorcycle-automobile accident on Hull Road.

A group of vehicles were following a pilot truck southbound in the northbound lane of the road, which is under construction. According to police reports, Cullen's motorcycle was northbound on Hull when a pickup driven by John Howden of Ruidoso attempted a left turn from Hull.

Cullen's swerved, but hit the pickup head on. He was treated for a possible broken wrist at Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital and later transferred to Roswell for further treatment. Howden was cited for violation of a statute regarding "obedience to required traffic control devices."

Two injured in helicopter crash this morning on Sierra Blanca

A helicopter crash about 8:50 this morning, just below the main ledge at Sierra Blanca Ski Resort, resulted in serious injuries to two of the three persons aboard. The News was advised by officers at the scene.

Wilson Barber of the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) office at Mescalero said to The News that there were two archaeologists in the craft, with the pilot. Barber said that the copter was under contract to the BIA. He also said that the names of the three individuals were being withheld, as of 10:15 this morning, pending compilation of preliminary reports on the accident.

The initial investigation of the crash was being conducted by officers of the Lincoln County sheriff's office and the Ruidoso Police Department, Barber said, "and investigators from the Interior Department of the Office of Aircraft Services left Boise, Idaho, immediately on notification of the accident. These investigators will take charge of the investigation upon their arrival."

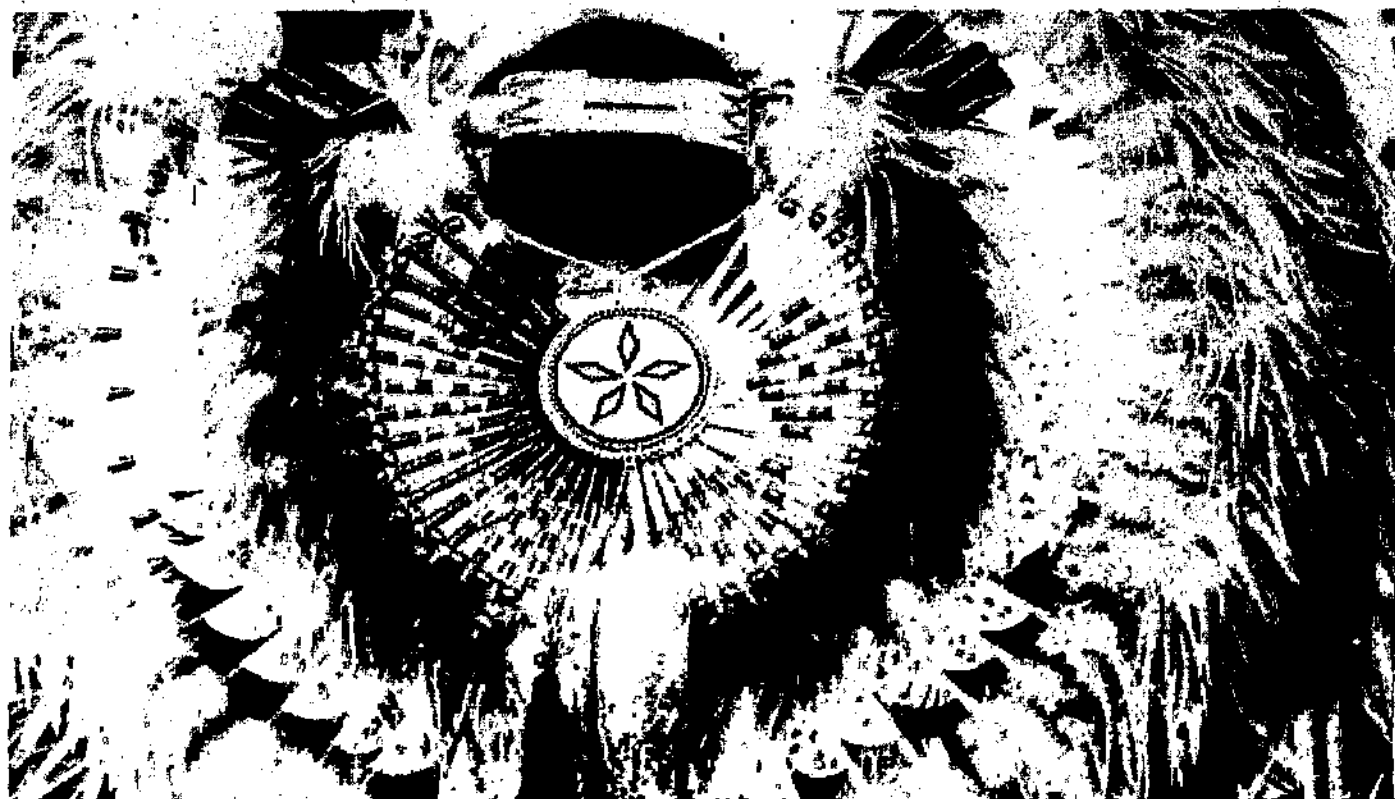

Barber also said that the purpose of the flight was "archaeological reconnaissance."

The two persons injured were transported to the Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital for treatment.

THE BUILDING housing the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce this week received a new coat of paint. When finished, it will be off-white with light brown trim. The building was last painted in 1975, when the addition was built.

A FIRE RETARDANT product was demonstrated Tuesday in Ruidoso, under the sponsorship of the Committee for Insuring Ruidoso's Environment (ComFIRE). Two simulated roofs were doused with gasoline and set fire at the same time, with the one on the left untreated, the one on the right treated. "We're not endorsing this commercial product," ComFIRE president Herb Brunell said, "but we want people to know this treatment is available and will soon be marketed in Ruidoso, as it seems to be very effective in keeping fire from spreading."

Scott Neal at national seminar

Where can a teenager quiz a corporate president on how he runs his business? Query a sports "superstar" on the subjects of health and longevity? Challenge the mayor of a major city on activities at city hall—all in one week? Scott Neal of Ruidoso is finding out this week.

More than 125 high school sophomores who are participating in the Hugh O'Brian International Youth Foundation Seminar, July 6-12, in Los Angeles, will be asking tough questions of such prominent leaders as mayor Tom Bradley; Jack Valent, president, Association of Motion Pictures and TV Producers; Robert Enders, regional director of the Federal Trade Commission; David Horowitz, consumer ombudsman, NBC-TV; Norman Cousins, lecturer and author; Donald Henriksen, vice president, ARCO; Tom Johnson, publisher, Los Angeles Times; The Honorable James Corman, Member of Congress. These well-known speakers are among the forty national authorities scheduled to participate in this year's seminar, held at the University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA) campus and at sites around the city.

Students and speakers will engage in intense but informal question and answer sessions on topics ranging from the national economy and freedom of the press to politics, business ethics, health, transportation and energy. In addition, students will make on-site visits to factories, harbor facilities, studios and corporate headquarters.

At least two high school sophomores have been selected from each of the fifty states and eleven foreign countries to participate in the week-long all-expense-paid educational program, which is sponsored by the Hugh O'Brian Foundation and coordinated by the UCLA Graduate School of Management. Seminar programs were developed by the School of Management with the Foundation to bring "future leaders" into contact with the leaders of today. Students were chosen at state conventions held in their respective states and by a national selection committee. All high school sophomores in the country were eligible and local winners were chosen from among the nation's 21,000 public and private high schools.

The Hugh O'Brian International Youth Foundation was established by actor Hugh O'Brian, who portrayed the legendary Wyatt Earp in a well known television series. O'Brian began the Foundation in 1958 after an inspirational visit to the famed humanitarian Dr. Albert Schweitzer convinced him to make a contribution to youth in his own way by providing opportunities for young people to recognize and develop their leadership abilities.

"Young people are the world's greatest natural resource," O'Brian said. "The Seminar participants return home with two years remaining in high school to make a positive contribution and to motivate not only themselves but their classmates to identify and use their emerging leadership talent."

J. Clayburn La Force, dean of the UCLA Graduate School of Management, said "One of my long time overriding concerns has been the lamentable lack of understanding among our youth about how the American economic system operates. This program will foster a greater understanding and appreciation of what I deem to be a particularly effective form of economic organization."

Neal is the son of Mrs. Richard Hall of Ruidoso.

Local students attending science class

Two Ruidoso High School students, Connie Howard and Lou Ann Wilson, are attending the New Mexico State University's (NMSU) summer science training program in chemistry, continuing through July 25.

"A Chemist's View of Energy and Industrial Processes" is sponsored by the State of New Mexico and the New Mexico Academy of Sciences. Staged by the NMSU chemistry department, the summer workshops are directed by Dr. Gordon Ewing, associate professor of chemistry.

The summer training programs are limited to students who will be seniors in the fall 1980 semester. Selection was based on grades and recommendation from high school instructors. Interest and ability in mathematics and the sciences must have been demonstrated although credit for previous chemistry course work was not required.

Workshops are designed to show participants how their lives are affected, both positively and negatively, by industrial processes and energy use. Two class sessions are scheduled during morning hours with an afternoon laboratory five days per week. A field trip is planned on a weekly basis with evening lectures to provide orientation in a number of other fields. Meals, housing, instructional and some travel expenses are provided by the program. Optional Saturday tours to area attractions are included in the schedule.

Haynes hosted large family reunion here

The first Bolding-Weir family reunion in 22 years was held here July 4, hosted by Mr. and Mrs. A. C. "Speedy" Haynes of Monument, at their summer home in Paradise Canyon.

Entertainment, under a backdrop of towering pines, was provided by family members, and highlighted by the eldest, E. S. Phillips, 91, playing his violin, accompanied by his daughter Janie Brooke of Lubbock, Texas, with the number dedicated to Rachelle Parsons, Ruidoso, Phillips' great granddaughter, and the youngest family member at 14 months.

Also entertaining was Kenny Haynes, Hobbs, playing guitar, bass and drums and singing with Kay Simer of Artesia, Carl and Rene Parsons of Ruidoso and Shane Wharton and Mele Perkins of Spring, Texas. Playing the piano were Johnny Wharton and Mele Perkins of Spring, Guin Bolding of Farmington and Janie Brooke.

Area residents attending included the hosts, The Rev. Carl Parsons, his wife Rene and children Preston and Rachelle, Bruce and Gale Haynes and son Tad, and Scotty Thompson, all of Ruidoso; and Larry and Nancy Schmidt, Doug, Charley, Jeff and Misty Schmidt and Steve Shuler, all of Mesquite. Family members from many cities in New Mexico and Texas comprised the balance of the 60 members of the family attending.

A new swingset, slide and teeter-totter will be made available to the children of Ruidoso, thanks to donations made by local businesses in a continuing fund drive sponsored by the Lincoln County Homebuilders Association.

In addition to these purchases, which will be placed in Two Rivers Park, the group is seeking to raise an additional $1,000 to purchase a merry-go-round for the same location. The equipment is expected to arrive in Ruidoso the first week in August.

Fund drive organizer Jim Wooldridge said Wednesday that donations may be sent to the Lincoln County Homebuilders Association, Box 564, Ruidoso, 88345, attention: Larry Langford. Potential contributors may also contact Wooldridge at 257-5296.

Wooldridge said the following businesses and individuals have already made donations to the project: Dorothy Kimsey, Security Bank, Gibsons, Jason's, Sierra Blanca Ski Enterprises, Leland Winkopp, Whispering Pines Restaurant, Gill Construction, D&J Services, Village Hardware, Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce, Ruidoso-Sunland Incorporated, Ruidoso News and KRRR.

Names of contributors will appear on a sign to be placed in the park.

The Plant Corner by Sally Black

This column is devoted to growing healthy indoor plants. Address questions to: Sally Black, The Ruidoso News, Box 128, Ruidoso, New Mexico 88345.

PIT GARDENING

One of the best sources of plants can be your kitchen. Save seeds and roots from the food you eat, plant them and enjoy the view. What makes this process even more interesting and exciting is knowing that you started out your project with the most basic ingredient, a seed.

A box of peat pot discs close at hand in a kitchen drawer can launch you on many months of garden pleasure. Any "Wonder-how-it-will-do" thoughts can be almost instantly translated into action. You will need the little peat pots to plant the larger pits such as peach.

Under the best circumstances, some seeds will sprout right away; others will take a long time; others never will. Each kind of seed has its own built in rhythm, a sort of protective time clock. Often a look into the origins of the plants can give you the right clues. Plants which cannot survive cold climate — the avocado and the citrus, for example — obviously need no cold treatment in order to sprout. However the apple and the peach do.

Most deciduous fruit and nut trees (those that lose their leaves in the winter) require a cold, moist period before germination. This treatment is called stratification, and it stimulates what happens in nature when the seed lives in a moist, cold environment. The kitchen gardener can "stratify" seeds by mixing a small amount of peat moss and sand together and putting it into a plastic bag along with the seeds and storing in the refrigerator a few weeks.

Below are listed some fruits whose pits and seeds thrive happily when planted in your kitchen. If you have any questions on how to plant and grow these pits, please write me. Avocado, citrus fruits, grapes, pineapple, sweet potato, chestnut, peach and apples.

The Reverend Jay Graves at First Christian Church

The Reverend Jay Graves has been added to the staff of the First Christian Church. Graves replaces Bob Batton as director of education and youth and will also be associate minister.

Graves is a graduate of Texas Christian University in Fort Worth, and received a Master of Divinity from Bible Divinity School at TCU.

Previous ministries have included pastorates at Christian churches in Amarillo and Paducah, Texas.

Graves said he hopes to expand all education and youth programs at the First Christian Church. "We have already outgrown our church's facilities for Sunday School—but we love it," he said.

Graves said Batton organized Sunday School classes when the church moved to its Hull Road location, "but he really didn't have time to get other programs underway," Graves said.

Graves said youths will meet all this week to plan special events for the summer, which will "probably include a few hikes, led by Ken Cole (church minister)," he said.

Graves hopes to begin a sharing group for divorced people and a fellowship group for young singles. He also plans to launch weekly meetings in the fall for youths in grades four through 12. "These will be fellowship and sharing meetings, in addition to Sunday School," Graves said.

Graves' purpose in applying for the associate minister's position was because "I wanted to understudy Ken," and added that "there aren't many senior ministers I've wanted to work under."

Graves said he is also "very interested in the total educational program in churches and in youth program development."

THE REVEREND Jay Graves, left, his son Nathan and wife Pam, recently moved to Ruidoso where he will assume associate minister duties at the First Christian Church. Graves will also be director of Education and youth.

... a column of opinion ...

by

Mark Bagby

We get some weird mail in newspaper offices — but seldom do we get anything as weird as what I got Monday.

Monday I felt wonderful — only had a 103 degree temperature, was nauseous, my head hurt, my neck was super stiff and my eyes hurt. I felt almost normal.

Anyway, I got this super-important looking piece of mail on my desk, from Adolph Coors Company of Golden, Colorado.

It's headed "FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE," in capital letters, just like that. Then it proceeds to unload tons of nonsensical info and schedules that nobody cares about — which is why it's probably in this column.

Firstname: "Eric Heiden, winner of five gold medals at the Winter Olympic Games in Lake Placid, has been invited to join the Italian cycling team in Colorado for the Coors International Bicycle Classic July 28 through August 3."

"The Italian cycling team, now famous for its role in the movie 'Breaking Away,' has been asked to participate in the Coors Classic (formerly the Red Zinger International Bicycle Classic)."

Honest, I'm not making this up.

"In drag boat racing, the 'Coors Light Special' driven by Cecil Florence, finished a close second at the Liberty County Dragboat Race in Liberty, Texas. Florence and the Coors Light Special compete in Tulsa June 28 and 29."

"Lee Trevino, Coors' goodwill ambassador, put on his third exhibition of the season June 30 in Wichita."

"The Coors Chute-Out, a special featured event of the Coors-sponsored Professional Rodeo Cowboy Association's (PRCA) 1980 season, is in full swing throughout the West. The seven world champion cowboys are being challenged at several rodeos by prize money."

"Tom 'Mongoose' McEwen brought his Coors-Corvette to its hometown, Denver, Colorado, for the Mile-Hi Nationals. McEwen has never raced in the thin air of Denver."

It goes on and on like this, but you get the idea. Some interesting questions come to mind — like what is Eric Heiden doing on a bicycle? In Colorado? With the Italian team? And why is it in Colorado?

How did Florence do in Tulsa June 28 and 29?

Since when did Lee Trevino become the Coors Goodwill Ambassador?

Who are the seven world champion cowboys?

What importance is lined to the fact McEwen has never raced in the thin air of Denver? And who cares about Denver having thin air? We've got thinner air than Denver.

The rest of this piece of tripe is a schedule of where the Coors Chute-Outs (I think that's cute) will take place, and then there's a list of "Coors sponsored sports events," real important stuff like a tractor pull in Colorado, a hot air balloon show, and my favorite — this is a sporting event? — "July 28-29 — Jim Busby — Sears Point, California."

At the very top of all this stuff is a toll-free number for more information, but heck, I'm afraid to call for fear I might get to talk to the fella who wrote all this crap. I just got my temperature down to 100 degrees, I don't need more problems.

Pick your best

Speaking of beer manufacturers, last spring, the Miller Brewing Company conducted a poll in conjunction with the beermaker's 125th anniversary. Sports writers and broadcasters, numbering 125, were asked to pick the all-time greatest athletes.

Top vote getter — Babe Ruth. Next: Muhammad Ali, followed by Jim Brown, Jack Nicklaus, Jim Thorpe, Joe DiMaggio, Arnold Palmer, O. J. Simpson, Wilt Chamberlain and Mark Spitz.

That's the top 10. The other 115 are the really interesting ones. Top woman was Baby Zaharias, 16th, followed by Billie Jean King, 21st. Nancy Lopez-Mellon was 72nd.

A few voters didn't take it too seriously, nominating John Travolta for dancing, Abraham Lincoln for wrestling, and Earl Scruggs for banjo playing.

Charles Atlas was in the voting for body building, and Karl Wallenda was nominated for tightrope walking.

Dead last was a four way tie between Willie Stargell, Frank Robinson, Terry Bradshaw and Phil Esposito. They finished right behind — hang on, folks, you ain't heard nothin' yet — Secretariat.

A horse on a list of all-time great athletes? Right.

Yawnathon

I tried to watch the Scott LeDoux-Larry Holmes fight Monday night, but heck, from what I saw of it, I'm glad I didn't. Looked rather dull.

Larry Holmes is okay, but LeDoux — every time I see him fight, I keep wondering why the man is in the fighting game. Does he ever win?

As I understand it, the crowd wasn't too pleased with Holmes' victory, since it was fought in LeDoux's home state of Minnesota. Muhammad Ali was there too, shooting his mouth off. And naturally, that wound up overshadowing Holmes' win, as usual.

If it had gone on much longer, I'd have thought the Republican convention was already in session.

Ruidoso Tennis Classic underway

BY MARK BAGBY
Sports Editor

The Ruidoso Tennis Classic officially began at Sierra Swim and Racquet Club Wednesday, but the main draw begins play today at noon, weather permitting.

"This rain we've been getting around noon the past couple of days will shut us down a little," said tournament director Dave Bryant. "We'll play some matches at night if we have to."

Many of the professionals who will compete have already arrived to adjust to the higher altitude, Bryant said.

Among those is Rick Myers of Abilene, Texas, who is seeded second among the draw. He admits he was surprised to learn he was ranked so high.

"I never expected to be that high," he said. "I thought there'd be more good players than me here."

Myers is a recent graduate of Texas Christian University (TCU) in Fort Worth, Texas. There, his last two years, he was seeded number one in both singles and doubles. Meanwhile, TCU's team was in the top 20 nationwide.

Now Myers is testing the professional ranks.

"I'm trying to play in as many pro tournaments as I can," he said. "How long I stay at it depends on how well I'll do, and how long my finances last."

He has played only one of the players in this tournament — and that's Bryant, who is seeded fourth. "But I played him five years ago, so I don't know how I'll do against him now," he said. "Three or four of the guys, I've heard their names before, but I've never played them."

A newcomer to the Ruidoso area, he said the area looks nice, "but expressed concern over playing in high altitudes."

"It'll have a lot of effect," he said. "I've never played this high before, and the air's thinner so you get winded faster, plus the ball comes off the serve real fast. That's why I came up here a couple of days early, so I can adjust a little better. Whoever adjusts the best will do the best."

At Sierra Swim and Racquet Club, Bryant has been having courts resurfaced with a very slow surface to take some of the zip off the ball.

"Man, you go down to some place like New Orleans and the ball comes at you so slow it looks like the guy served a can-faloupe," he said. "Up here, it looks like a B-B."

Four courts were to have been prepared for the tourney; three were completed, but the rain of the past few days prevented the resurfacing of the main court.

"It's still gonna be fast," Bryant said.

Opening matches are today, and finals will be played Sunday afternoon. The Ruidoso Tennis Classic, which carries a purse of $2,000, is the inaugural tourney in the newly formed Rocky Mountain Pro Tennis Circuit.

The tournament is locally sponsored by Don's Pharmacy, Marilyn Hart and family, Perfect-Parks and Associates (Janet Warlick, Judy Meyer, Kadi Flynn, Gary Caughron), Pro Ski Sports, Resort Properties Incorporated, Ruidoso State Bank, Western Auto, Dr. and Mrs. Paul Whitlam, Ski West Sports, Wild West Ski Shop and Thunder River Sheepskin Company. Also acting as sponsors are Don Grider Trucking and Ken Braden Motors of Sonora, Texas, and Penn Manufacturing is supplying tennis balls.

Those firms and individuals bought box seats for the tournament, which provided most of the purse.

Bobby Moffat soccer camp a busy place

"I love organization," says Bobby

Moffat. "I'd have made a good Prussian."

Moffat, a former professional soccer player with the Dallas Tornado, has been in Ruidoso all week conducting one of over a dozen soccer camps he'll hold this year. The local camp was arranged for by the Ruidoso Sertoma Soccer Association and its president, Butch Grantham, who is also coaching at the camp.

Though rain has slowed the proceedings somewhat, it hasn't dampened the enthusiasm of the 97 youngsters taking part. Or Moffat either, for that matter.

"Can you believe this?" he said. "All these kids out here, and soccer's been here a year. Incredible."

Moffat started playing professional soccer in the United States in 1970, after playing professionally in his native England for several years. He later retired after a great career.

Actually, a good argument could be built against describing him as "retired." Since "retirement," he has written two books on soccer, owns a soccer sporting goods store, "The Happy Jock," writes a column for "Soccer World" Magazine, had a television show on soccer, and spends his summers and weekends teaching soccer to anybody who's interested.

How did the summer camps originate? "Ron Newman (former coach of the Tornado) came up with the idea," Moffat said. "I'd been in professional camps in England, and they were sort of modeled on those. But we knew exactly what we wanted to do."

The first was held at Green Hill School in North Dallas, Moffat remembers, and he said either 60 or 100 children participated. "Those numbers are stuck in my head," he said, "but I can't remember which it is."

Regardless, it was a success, and the camps just kept growing. One camp had 206 participants to only three coaches. "We were a little busy," Moffat said, laughing.

Eventually, in 1976, Moffat's camps ended when he stopped playing and moved into the Tornado's front office. He later opened "The Happy Jock" and decided he'd like to start the camps again.

He began them as a means of supplementing his income.

"I can spend more time away from the store and still earn money," he said. "That gives me more time to devote to my writing and such."

The Ruidoso camp is a typical Bobby Moffat soccer camp, he said.

"Kids learn at my camp," he said, "because they're fairly strict. That, and also we're doing something all the time."

That's true. The kids are moving constantly. If they're not in drills, they're playing soccer games. If they're not playing games, they're watching films. If they're not watching films, they're in drills.

"I don't do a lot of coaching in the camps," Moffat said. "Unless one of my staff gets sick or something, or if I see something is going dreadfully wrong. Then I step in."

"But I organize everything and then supervise."

Moffat brought six coaches to Ruidoso with him: Richard Mungliol, head coach at Pearce High School in Dallas; Mike Anderson, Ken Siedall, Robert Addington, John Parks and Craig Klein. All but Mungliol are graduates of his camps.

"We started the camps up again last year, and this year's number is doubled over last year's. We'll probably add another 10 or so next year," he said, which would bring the number to two dozen.

After this camp, Moffat and crew return to Richardson, Texas, north of Dallas; for another camp. That's ironic, because Moffat started holding camps outside and the surrounding Dallas area because there were too many other camps.

"We'd reached the saturation point, and now we've got over 100 kids signed up for Richardson already," he said.

"Amazing."

Then it's back to England for a three week stay.

"I like to keep busy," Moffat said. But most of all I like to teach soccer to kids. I get a big kick out of it and so do they. I really love what I do."

Chances look very good for another camp here next summer, Moffat said.

"With the response we got this year," Moffat said, "we'll be back."

WATCHING FILMS is only one aspect of a Moffat soccer camp. The rest of the time is spent in drills and in playing soccer games. Response to the program has been "incredible," Moffat said, and he added another will be held here next year, "without question."

Softball field cleanup planned

All players in Ruidoso's Little League baseball program and the Women's Softball League are invited to participate in a "field cleanup day" at the Elks Lodge this Sunday, beginning at 2:30 p.m.

The new softball field at the lodge must be made ready for upcoming games, according to Elks member Tommy Hall.

Refreshments will be served following completion of the cleanup.

ARE DAMAGES TAX DEDUCTIBLE?

As a homeowner, expenses from damage or improvements may affect your income taxes. For instance: damage to your house from, say, fire or windstorm may be partially deductible as a casualty loss. After subtracting insurance compensation, deduct $100 for each accident and the remainder can be claimed as a tax deduction.

Improvements, such as a porch, garage, finished basement, and so on cannot be deducted. However, they can be added to the cost of the house when figuring profit on the sale. So, keep good records of such expenses. Try to preserve cancelled checks and receipted bills. They will help substantiate the figures if necessary. I'm just scratching the surface here. If this situation applies to you, I suggest you contact your nearest Internal Revenue Office for a copy of their pamphlet #530 "Tax Information on Deductions for Homeowners." It may save you some money.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at DEVON DEVELOPMENT, INC., 2904 Sudderth Drive, Box 1860, Ruidoso. Phone 257-5511. We're here to help!

The Silver Lining

BY DANIEL AGNEW STORM

The Breaking Of The Great Drought

There is an old saying that it is "darkest just before the dawn." During half a century and more here in the valley I have noticed that it is always darkest just before the rain.

Every year before the rains, I can tell they are on the way by a sort of uneasy feeling. It seems a little difficult to get my breath, and there is within me a sense of anxiety and a slight depression of spirit. Then when the rain comes, I am in a new world, right next to heaven itself.

There is a deep and valuable lesson in this.

Many times through my life I am reminded of an expression of the British, that always gives me a smile and also a great lift to my spirits. No matter how discouraging and difficult things may be, the philosophy of the British it to "muddle through" and things will come out all right.

I remember a fellow telling me how in an English Hospital during World War II, a British officer came visiting the soldiers going from to bed saying:

"There's a stout fellow. Muddle through. Muddle through. Chin up. Chin up. Stout fellow, muddle through."

These words seemed to have a magical effect upon the ones in the hospital, giving them a new grip on recovery.

After the record days of heat, on Sunday the sixth it seemed the heat and the drought were closing in, trying to make the world beg for mercy. Then on the morning of the seventh the world was cloudy overhead and it seemed there was a weight upon me and the feeling in my stomach of anxiety was greater than at any time I can remember through the years, of this strange foreshadowing within me of the approach of the rain. I welcomed this feeling, uneasy though it was, for I knew it meant rain on the way. Yet there is always the little voice saying, "There is a first time for everything. Maybe this is the one time when the signs will fail."

The Song Of The Rain Crow

About mid morning of the seventh I called up Ernest McDaniel and he told me that he had heard a Rain Crow, a strong and almost certain sign of rain.

With the news of the little Rain Crow telling us to "muddle through," I watched the skies and: sure enough an hour before high noon the clouds gathered in the southwest. Then the stream of rain, broad and purple could be seen falling on the way. Never did the smell of rain on dry grass reach you with such a welcome message. Never did the sound of thunder ring sweeter on your ears.

Giant drops came pattering to the earth sending up little clouds of dust. The spell of the water on the thirsty ground revived your spirits as it brought new life to the dry grass, bushes and evergreens. In a twinkling of an eye, the whole world was changed. Grateful for the shower, the vale stood beaming, sparkling, rejoicing.

Muddy Water

About mid afternoon, over at the crossing the stream was running a reddish brown. Never did muddy water look so beautiful. Oftentimes you can tell where a rain shower has fallen by the color of the water. The red in this little flood made you think that some of the rain had fallen in that country north of Ruidoso Downs. The main shower had indeed fallen around the neighborhood of Ruidoso Downs, bringing welcome and refreshing relief to a large area of mountain land.

Today, on the eighth, there was a grand rain down the valley, falling, it appeared, around Hondo and Picacho. So let us all thank the good Lord for the coming of the rains.

Birthday For Gerald, Geraldine Tully

Saturday the twelfth of July will be the birthday of our good friends and neighbors, the twins Gerald and Geraldine Tully who were born on this day in 1903 in Fort Stanton and who grew up at the Tully Ranch in Glencoe where Gerald still lives. Geraldine is Mrs. Murray Morgan of Alamogordo. It seems only yesterday that Geraldine met us at the post office in the James V. Tully store and post office, just across the river from the home.

Gerald and Geraldine moved to the home place in the year 1905. The years have not slowed Gerald down a bit, as he continues his life long career of ranching and rodeo roping in which event he has risen to the very top.

Our great friend, Eve Ball, tells me there is an article written by herself about Gerald for True West Magazine. We will all wait with interest to read Eve's story of Gerald, and meanwhile we wish Gerald and Geraldine many happy returns of the day and all God's blessing.

Retail Merchants Committee appoints two new members

The Retail Merchants Committee of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce Monday welcomed newly appointed members Tom Kelham, owner of Ruidoso Gift and Fireplace, and Nadine Walizer, high school representative.

The group also head a proposal made by Dick Shaw, who hopes to begin publication of a magazine similar to the old "Ruidoso" magazine formerly published by Glen Pike. Shaw sought input from merchants regarding advertising rates, publishing dates and content of the publication.

Roswell Highway District names maintenance engineer

Douglas Ditto, an engineer in the drainage section of the state Highway Department's general office in Santa Fe, has been appointed maintenance engineer for the Roswell district.

MOVE NOW. GET THIS YEAR'S LINDAL AT LAST YEAR'S PRICE.

If you've been waiting and waiting for the new home market to take a turn counter to inflation, bless your patience.

Because if you buy a custom design or any one of the 60 different Lindal Cedar Homes before July 15, you can pick it up for the exact same price we offered in Spring of 1979. In addition to our price roll back, we're offering 50% off on all energy saving options. Which, if you're counting dollars, could add up to a savings of $5,000.

Our only other requirement in this offer is that you take delivery on your new 1980 Lindal before September 15. That's it.

With inflation, there won't be a better time to move than right now.

Inside The Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE—If you remember that Watergate was once described as "just a third-rate burglary," you know that scandals sometimes begin with a cloud on the horizon no larger than a man's hand.

There are a couple potential ones in state government at the moment you just might want to keep your eye on.

One which has already swollen, even as we talk, has to do with the Family Resource Center in Albuquerque, which is a part of the Human Services Department. It includes accusations of hanky panky of various kinds, such as some purchases that can't be accounted for and some suggestions of the kind of activity we can't talk about in this family newspaper.

Whatever has gone on there may be hard to prove, our sources tell us, because some people will have to go on the stand and spill the beans for the whole story to come out. That means there are few real traces in the bookkeeping system and other objective places; much of whatever evidence there is is that of people who, say, opened doors at inconvenient times.

Since potential witnesses can sometimes be convinced that it is in their best interests not to appear, parts of this one may be successfully swept under the rug.

Does your state government want to do that?

Well, one indication might be the extent of the ire created in Larry Ingram, who runs Human Services, when he thought the first story of this little debacle had been leaked to the press by some of his people.

His words to Levi Romero and Margaret Larragoite, two of his top-ranking assistants, were sharp, precise and not at all flattering.

Mrs. Larragoite in turn has been accused of walking down the hall and liberally committing an assault and battery on the DHS public relations chief, Madeline Dunn, apparently in the belief that the leak may have come from Dunn's operation.

It might be noted that Ms. Dunn, former wife of Albuquerque DA Ira Robinson, is about a head taller than Mrs. Larragoite, and also has her best in reach and weight.

We wouldn't tell this kind of titillating story just for the pleasure of it, but the Albuquerque Journal has been running it, and the wire services have picked it up. And it does illustrate our thesis that some distasteful items which start small can grow and grow and grow.

Like whatever scandal there is in the way homes in certain counties in the North were treated when they were supposed to be weatherized or rehabilitated. The Governor assures us everything the state had to do with was fine, and so does Herman Grace, the man under the Governor who was in direct charge of some of the work that apparently didn't come out as it should have.

Senator Pete Domenici, who unleashed the feds to investigate in the area, also says state and federal officials are not at fault. That lays the burden on the head of the locals in the areas in question—but weren't the state and federal people supposed to be overseeing these local operations?

At the very least, you might be inclined to believe that supervision was a little loose, and to suggest the two big governments might just have something of a mea culpa to say, as well as doling out punishment to the people actually on the scene who may have committed the sins.

We don't think the world has quite heard the last of this one either—which makes two potential embarrassments for the King administration which those inside wish would go away.

COURT INEQUALITY

Principal functions of the courts are to interpret the law and see that it is carried out. In discharging these functions as to civil rights law, the courts have played a key role in strengthening equal job opportunity.

It is thus no small irony that the courts themselves have set a poor example in this regard. This was brought out by Chairman Don Edwards of the House Civil and Constitutional Rights subcommittee as the panel opened a hearing on the subject. Information supplied by the courts, Edwards said, shows "that with few exceptions employment practices in the federal judiciary have excluded minorities and women in all but clerical and secretarial positions."

State courts are generally no more sensitive on this score, other studies show. "Such findings," Congressman Edwards noted, "compel the conclusion that the judiciary, state and federal, lags behind private industry and other government sectors in insuring equal employment opportunities."

Federal District Judge Elmo B. Hunter of Missouri played the part of apologist in his testimony as spokesman for the Judicial Conference of the United States. His thesis was that it is not "deliberate insensitivity" that makes for this situation, but a heavy caseload which prevents the courts from "reaching for new initiatives" as vigorously as they might.

It is true that the courts are burdened. But is this an acceptable excuse for their not putting into practice what their rulings preach? We think not. The Judicial Conference has approved a plan for ending discrimination in court employment. If the plan is not implemented—and at a pace a good deal above "all deliberate speed"—the courts will lay themselves open to charges of talking one way and acting another. — Alamogordo Daily News

LET THEM EAT CAVIAR

Some rulers learn nothing from history. Extravagance in the palace coupled with hunger in the streets has contributed to the downfall of more than a few kings, assorted potentates and self-appointed national saviors.

Haiti's pudgy President-for-Life Jean Claude "Baby Doc" Duvalier seems bent on nominating himself as the next candidate for convulsive recall.

Recently, the dictator, who presides over the poorest country in the Western Hemisphere, lavished some $5 million in public funds on a spectacular bash celebrating his marriage to a glamorous, 27-year-old product of Haiti's minuscule elite.

Following the wedding ceremony in the capital of Port-au-Prince, Baby Doc and his bride retired to the sprawling Duvalier ranch where 5,000 guests picked over caviar, lobster and cases of champagne until dawn.

This is a country where the annual per capita income is $230 and 80 percent of the population can neither read nor write. Indeed, conditions in Haiti are so dismal that the revelry at the ranch no doubt coincided with the departure of another boatload or two of Baby Doc's destitute subjects bound for the Florida Keys and illegal entry into the United States.

During the last year, a deepening economic crisis has driven as many as 40,000 Haitians to abandon their homeland in search of opportunity elsewhere, mostly in the United States.

Baby Doc's penchant for frivolous extravagance amid such desperate poverty can only prompt many Haitians to hope that the next boatload of exiles includes their president-for-life. — News Bulletin, Beles

A CARDIN CADDIE

Many of us find money a little tight these days. It goes for this and that, and all of a sudden the end of the month's at hand and the bucks are not.

But isn't it heartening to know there are folks around eager to shell out $55,000, and up, for a copy of Pierre Cardin's hand-crafted "Evolution I" Cadillac? Cash only, of course; Pierre Cardin Automotive does no financing. The firm expects no trouble selling the 300 it plans to turn out as the orders come in. They are: 150 all told so far, 50 in the United States. Money may be tight, but it seems to be looser in some quarters than in others. — Alamogordo Daily News

Yours and Ours

editorial

It is obvious that President Carter has learned that one-upmanship is the name of the game in his bid for a second term.

Somebody, Jody Powell maybe, got his ear long enough to advise Carter to drop his favorite facade of being the guy next door and to embrace the tenets of political strategy to upstage his opponents at every opportunity.

His actions lately indicate he's starting to run scared. In view of his record of non-accomplishments in office, perhaps being forcefully brought to his attention by the majority of political cartoonists in the nation, it appears as though he is now accepting the fact that politics, and nothing else, will determine his future.

In view of the rebukes he has suffered at the hands of a Democratic Congress, it would seem he'd have made moves of appeasement and attempted to convince the powerful Democrats that he was indeed a party man.

To date, though, he is still bowing his neck and apparently seeking a large increase in gasoline taxes in the wake of the election year defeat in Congress of his 10-cent-a-gallon hike. This action clearly demonstrates he has not yet accepted the "scratch my back and I'll scratch yours" doctrine that produces results in Congress.

There's no question but that Jimmy Carter's a nice guy. Considering Kennedy's actions and Anderson's determination to make a race out of this year's presidential race, and not discounting Reagan's efforts, it's beginning to look as though nice guy Carter has so many problems that he might be another of those nice guys who run last. — CD

ON MAKING BELIEVERS

Someone's always trying to make a believer out of someone else ... and, sometimes, the harder they try, the more they try to become.

Take cholesterol ... those as know from whence comes the butter they slather on their bread, are proclaiming animal fats are good for you ... them as gets their support from cholesterol foes are adamant in their declarations that animal fats is bad for you.

Adding to the confusion ... on making believers out of people ... is the government's attitude on cigaret smoking ... the guys watching out over the public's health are fighting for our lives to get us off the weed ... those as has charge of the doles keeps dishing out support payments to the tobacco growers, 'cause the spenders of public monies needs the tax revenue tobacco brings to the treasury.

Considering that too much of anything good to eat could be bad for your health ... and too much of anything that's bad for your health could worsen it considerably ... it seems to break down to a simple fact ... you listens to whom you pleases ... then you does as you pleases ... and all back until one side or the other proves their point ... then you can either pat yourself on the back ... or invite a friend to kick you in the seat of your pants ... but, in view of the fun all opponents and proponents are having, adding to the confusion of the masses, it doesn't seem as now is the time to make book on the outcome of what's good or bad for you ... 'cause it do seem likely that well buttered guns is less likely to rust than those as is facing the elements with no protection.

Then there's those loudly proclaiming that the price of gas'll drop at the pumps, 'cause Americans is not buying it no more like there was no tomorrow ... all that rot about supply and demand. What do seem like a distinct possibility ... if'n there's no place to store gas ... is that the producers'll start peddling it to nations which is short of gas ... probably to the point where we're short of gas ... 'cause those as want it'll pay through the nose ... and when the gas rationing ogre again raises its head ... chances are you'll be a believer that gas at $1.75 a gallon's a real bargain ... yes?

WHAT PRICE JUSTICE?

Monday it was ... and justice was meted out by an El Paso judge ... 'cause after Barry Chvarak up and pleaded guilty to killing five people in an El Paso bar ... the judge up and handed the killer five concurrent life terms in the pen ... which Chvarak can serve in 20 years ... and maybe gain parole.

Now comes an assumption ... those 20 year'll cost the taxpayer in the neighborhood of $400,000 ... now if'n Chvarak decides to get himself some education ... like maybe become a lawyer ... or a psychologist ... and really hits the books ... he can come out of prison with an education costing about a half million bucks ... and maybe, if'n he's of a mind so to do ... he can maybe devote the rest of his life to helping those as got into trouble as he did ... which could lead to whole bunches of guys getting those expensive educations ... which'll keep them off'n the streets while they learns ... which do put a pretty high price on justice ... to say nothing of the price being set on the value of a human life for those as who don't put much value on it.

It's things like that as could have people campaigning for office in the Lone Star State on the issue of capital punishment.

TRAFFIC ON SUDDERTH

If'n you've been harboring any doubts about the tourist season being in full swing ... in case you didn't drive on Sudderth over the Fourth ... all you gotta do is try and drive 30 miles per hour on Sudderth along about 5 p.m. ... if'n you can do it ... you'll be a likely prospect for a reckless driving citation.

RAINY SEASON'S DUE

Some of us gotta taste of rain Monday ... there was those with buckets in the yard as collected about three inches of downpour ... and those as didn't get enough to dampen the dust in their poole patches ... gadzooks ... just like old times ... raining here in town ... not raining there ... with the happy thought being ... where it rained the spirits of folks wasn't dampened none.

So now we can all anticipate the daily rains coming ... which'll mean muddy feet tracks on the rugs ... which is better'n forest fire ashes.

BRIEF BIT: If'n Our Jimmy can keep those unemployment checks coming ... and rising ... that's one voting block he won't have to campaign for ... CD

Wilderness Wisdom

with Wayne Calloway

Dear Wayne — I'm a salt water fisherman and do most of my fishing in the surf. I'm bothered with a recurring problem that I'm sure many other people experience.

All of my rods except one are of two piece construction. Since I transport them in holders on my pickup, there is no reason to take them apart. At the season's end, I break them down for cleaning and storage. The problem is they stick so tight at the ferrules I have difficulty getting them apart. What can I use to prevent them from sticking? Tom C., South Carolina

Dear Tom — The best advice is to keep the ferrules clean and free of corrosion. It would help considerably if you would break the rods apart more frequently than once a season and clean the ferrules.

The male ferrule can be rubbed through your hair to coat it lightly with oil. Too much oil, however, should be avoided because it collects dirt. A very light film of soap also works well. But the best solution is to prevent a buildup of corrosion by frequently cleaning the fittings.

Dear Wayne — I understand that a bear can give birth to cubs and nurse them during hibernation. Does this take place while the female bear is sound asleep? David D., New Mexico

Dear David — In cold climates, bears may sleep for nearly five months, but not necessarily without interruption. Many reptiles, and the animals that truly hibernate, experience a drastic drop in body temperature. A decline of 50 degrees or more is not uncommon. During their sleep, they drift into a state that may be compared to unconsciousness and become oblivious to all around them. Not so with the bear. Its body temperature drops very slightly and it is awakened by even a minor disturbance. In fact, it will leave the den upon any sign of danger, but will return to continue the nap after trouble has passed.

The bear does not, however, eat during its long slumber. A few weeks before beginning the sleep period, it will drastically increase its food consumption. During this time, the bear spends extra hours foraging and may eat three times the normal daily ration.

Dear Wayne — Having been bitten by the varmint shooting bug, I would like to have a varmint rifle custom built. A number of the shooters I know use wildcat cartridges. Those who do swear that there are wildcats which are far superior to any factory load. Do you believe this is true? Randy W., Ohio

Dear Randy — For those who don't know, a wildcat cartridge is one which is not normally commercially available. It is fashioned by a gun buff through the alteration of a commercial cartridge case to different dimensions and, oftentimes, to a different caliber. Several of the standard commercial cartridges were developed as wildcats by individual shooters. The large manufacturers saw enough merit in these cartridges to mass produce them.

While there is a bit of satisfaction to be had from a good wildcat, I believe the wide selection of factory cartridges available offer choices that are as good as, or better than, most wildcats. After all, the major manufacturers maintain teams of experts that make it their business to know.

RUTH AND GEORGE CLOVEN are pictured with two of their pets, Stanleigh the raccoon and their dog Blue, which appear in a children's book about raccoons, which was released this week in Ruidoso.

Specialist calls touted canning method extremely dangerous

Recently, you may have read an article in a magazine about a method of canning okra and squash which heats the vegetables in a solution of vinegar and salt. Mae Martha Johnson, Extension food and nutrition specialist for New Mexico State University said that this is not a safe method.

The article recommended simply boiling the vegetables in a solution of six tablespoons of vinegar and two and one half tablespoons of salt in a gallon of water.

This is not sufficient acid for the vegetables to be treated as a pickled product. Okra and squash, as well as other vegetables, are low acid foods and must be pressure canned to be safe from the danger of the often fatal botulism.

Clostridium botulism is extremely dangerous in these low acid foods. If it is present and the heat treatment is insufficient, it can grow and produce the deadly toxin in the sealed containers, Mrs. Johnson said.

Pressure canning raises the temperature to 240 degrees Fahrenheit. This temperature is necessary to kill the botulism organisms.

If you are going to can foods at home, make sure that you have reliable, up-to-date instructions from the United States Department of Agriculture, your county Extension service or a major canning supply company.

(Editor's note: George and Ruth Cloven have lived in Ruidoso as summer residents and have also raced quarter horses they own at Ruidoso Downs Race Track. Many of their friends in Ruidoso have been able to see their pet raccoon, Stanleigh, in action at the Cloven home.)

A celebrity of sorts spent Independence Day weekend in Ruidoso. He's a two year old raccoon named Stanleigh, and his owners, residents of Estes Park, Colorado, hope the animal will soon be a well known face on posters across the country.

Stanleigh's first poster was released in March, and the family pet of George and Ruth Cloven is the subject of a children's book which just became available in bookstores. "But Not Stanleigh" tells the life story of the animal in the words of Barbara Steiner, a children's author from Boulder, Colorado. The photographs which appear in the book show Stanleigh in many different settings, some of which use scenery around Ruidoso.

Stanleigh is the second raccoon owned by the Clovens. He was found in a bird feeder when he was five weeks old. The Clovens had made friends with Stanleigh's mother, who had babies and had to abandon one because she already had her hands full with four others. The couple now devote fully a third of every day to caring for the animal, and will spend the summer completing an ambitious nationwide tour to drum up business for Stanleigh's products.

The Clovens are devoted to the preservation of raccoons, which are considered the fifth smartest of all animals. "Raccoons are being trapped — 80,000 died in Kentucky last year. We feel that with the book and posters we can create a personality that children will fall in love with," Ruth Cloven said. She said that because children usually have a lot of impact on adults, "their parents will work to stop these unnecessary and painful deaths of raccoons."

Cloven said this year is "the year for wearing raccoon furs." She said more than 40 raccoons must die to make one fur coat, and hopes the products will reach children, who will condemn their parents for destroying the animals.

"We belong to all the wildlife organizations we know of and we will work with them to promote the idea that raccoons are very smart and have great personalities as well," Cloven said.

Although the Clovens have raised one raccoon and have owned Stanleigh since he was very young, they do not encourage people to take in the animals as pets. Because raccoons require so much more attention than most domestic pets, they are unsuitable pets for most families, Cloven said. They are also very temperamental, and still wild.

The couple no longer have regular jobs—they now devote all their time to a limited partnership called The Stanleigh Company, and to taking care of their pet.

The couple reside on a small ranch near Estes Park, isolated enough to attract many wild animals which they feed on a regular basis. The couple care for 80 chipmunks and eight squirrels, and for a few months, they cared for a black bear which had become sick. They plan to sell their ranch and move closer to Denver because of the business concern. "We won't sell to anyone who doesn't love wildlife. That's the first question we always ask a prospective buyer."

The couple also own quarter horses which they usually race during the summer. This year, however, they will only visit race tracks so they can devote more time to promoting Stanleigh. "Of course we have to make a living, but we really feel very, very strongly about preserving raccoons."

The Clovens have been in creative merchandising 13 years, and have sold several of their concerns to other outlet owners. Most have survived and are extremely successful. The couple said they said "because we got tired of the same thing after awhile." They vow never to rid themselves of The Stanleigh Company. "This is one thing we'll hold onto. We're in this one for good."

Lorene Caywood inspired by rustic symbols of the Old West.

LORENE CAYWOOD of Capitan specializes in typical scenes of New Mexico and the Southwest, while working to increase interest and knowledge of the arts in her community.

If it hadn't been for her aversion to dissecting frogs in biology class at Vaughn High School, the recognition of Lorene Caywood's artistic abilities might have been postponed for many years.

In Vaughn, as in most of the isolated, rural communities of New Mexico, human energy of necessity must be directed toward providing the essentials: food, clothing and shelter; and "making a living" takes precedence over encouragement of artistic talent.

Art was not a part of the school curriculum, but Caywood discovered that her pictures of "snakes and flies," compensated for her lack of interest in dissection, by getting her "good grades" in the class.

Over the years, her interest in art remained strong, but after her marriage and the subsequent arrival of four children in six years, "there wasn't much time" to develop her talent.

She worked at various crafts, utilizing different materials, including wood and leather, "after the kids were in bed." And once the youngest had entered school, about 15 years ago, she began to paint.

The Caywoods were living in Chino, California, at that time. She took a few lessons from a woman who owned an art supply store, and the Spanish missions of that area were her first subjects.

When the family moved back to New Mexico in 1972 however, she found that the popular interest in pictures of California missions was negligible. So she began to paint the landscapes of New Mexico, concentrating on the dilapidated wagons and windmills which "are my favorite — I love to do old rustic things." They also struck a friendly and familiar note with the New Mexico natives and visitors.

She began entering her paintings and craftwork in county fairs and local shows, and began accumulating blue ribbons and other honors. Her paintings have taken "Best of Show" designations at the Valencia and Lincoln County Fairs, and her work was displayed last year at the national Woman's Club Convention in Albuquerque.

She has also been designated New Mexico's art chairwoman for the 1980 Woman's Club programs, which will emphasize the artistic endeavors of the handicapped.

Her paintings are now displayed at the Mountain Man Gallery in Cloudcroft, Mountain Wood Craftsman in Capitan, the Torreon Gallery in Lincoln, the Picture Show, just outside Socorro, and in private collections in "five or six states," and at least one country in the Middle East.

Reproductions of two Caywood paintings — a Pueblo scene and a log cabin interior — have been reproduced on stationery and she also paints miniatures which are sold as gift items.

Caywood said she likes to paint "every day," if possible, usually in the studio next to her home, which is situated on a ridgetop just south of Capitan. The studio was planned to take advantage of the "good north light" and dramatic views of Sierra Blanca and the Capitan range.

A twisted, weatherbeaten tree outside one window has also been the subject of paintings, and was another factor in the studio's location.

Currently, the studio is crowded with work of her students. Since last year, she has been providing instruction in painting for a total of 26 students, which are divided into two classes at the Artisan Shop in Ruidoso and three at her home.

Caywood likes to work from photographs, but she insists that her students master some basic drawing skills before they take up painting. She also introduces them to the color wheel, color mixing and potential pleasing combinations — all of which she considers vital elements of instruction which were neglected by her early teachers.

She paints along with her classes, guiding them and explaining her techniques as she paints. It pleases her that each student's work is different, despite the fact that they are all working from the same photograph, clipped from an Arizona Highways magazine.

Larry Caywood always has been supportive of his wife's involvement in the arts, she said.

"I used to paint on the kitchen table," she said, "Larry would come in at noon and I'd say, 'This is going good — don't bother me.' And he'd fix his own lunch and let me go on working."

He is also turning out frames for her paintings, she said. Framing used to be "a major expense," she added, until he "took a pin out of a tractor and made a shaper," for the frames, which are stained to complement the rustic style of her work.

During vacation trips, Caywood stocks up on film and stops "at every old windmill and wagon." Working from photographs enables her to avoid some of the problems encountered by "on location" painters, such as high winds, blowing dirt and "inquisitive cows, who walk right up to see what you're doing."

Photography also allows her to isolate subjects in unpleasant surroundings, so that later she is free to add lighting and landscape features from her imagination.

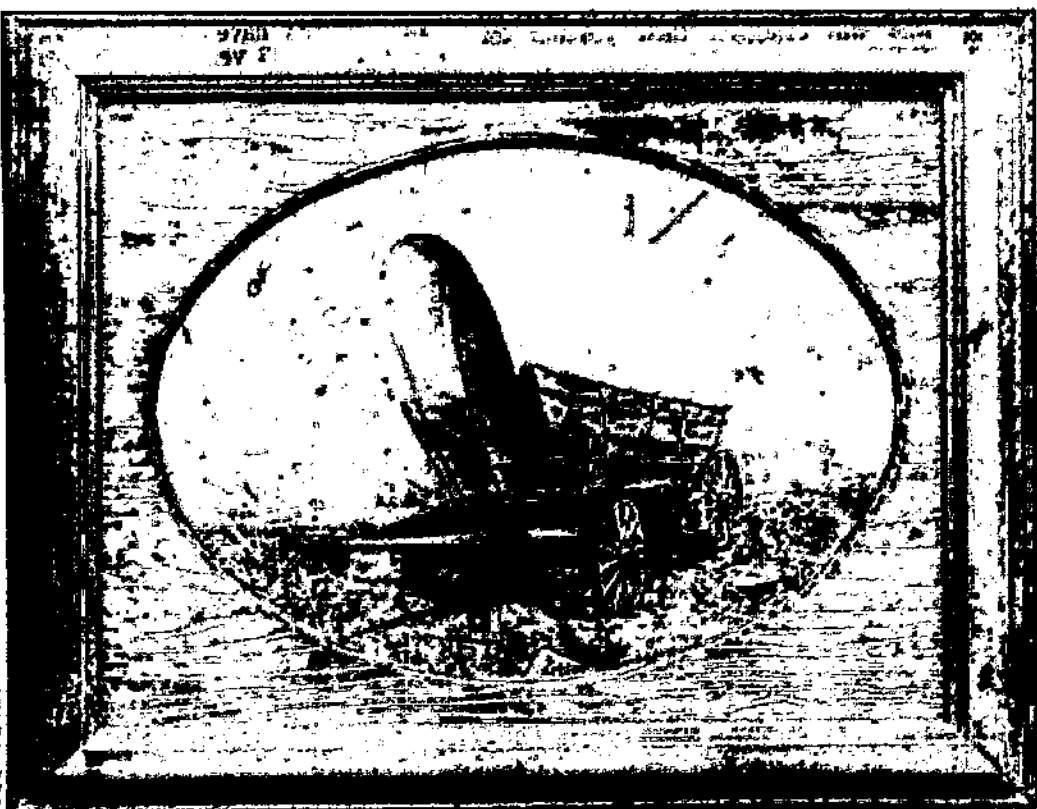

Sometimes, more study is needed to satisfy her desire for accuracy. Her first attempts at painting wagons, she said, didn't measure up to her expectations because her photographs, "didn't show the undercarriage, and I couldn't see how it was all connected." That was solved by the acquisition of her own wagon, which is parked between her home and studio, and always available for inspection.

A charcoal sketch is the next step for Caywood, who said she usually has "at least three paintings going at once," so that while one is drying, she can work on another. She has worked exclusively in oils for the past two years, but uses a variety of techniques and materials. For the past year, she has been experimenting with painting on aspen chipboard, now one of her trademarks.

This year, in addition to her classes, the Woman's Club programs and supervising the art section of the Lincoln County Fair, she is pursuing a continuing interest in the promotion of art through the schools. And making the community as a whole, "more aware of art," is an ongoing goal.

Her enjoyment of her chosen vocation is obvious and, like many artists, the financial rewards seem to be a secondary consideration.

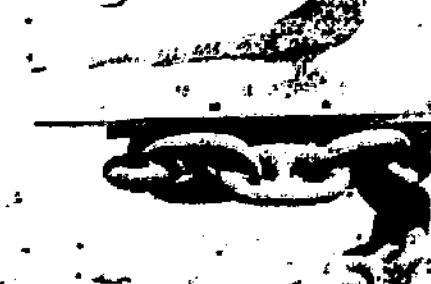

"The main thing," she said, "is that I love art, I love teaching," and through the profession, "I've met so many lovely people."

PAINTINGS ON CHIPBOARD have become one of Caywood's trademarks.

Caywood

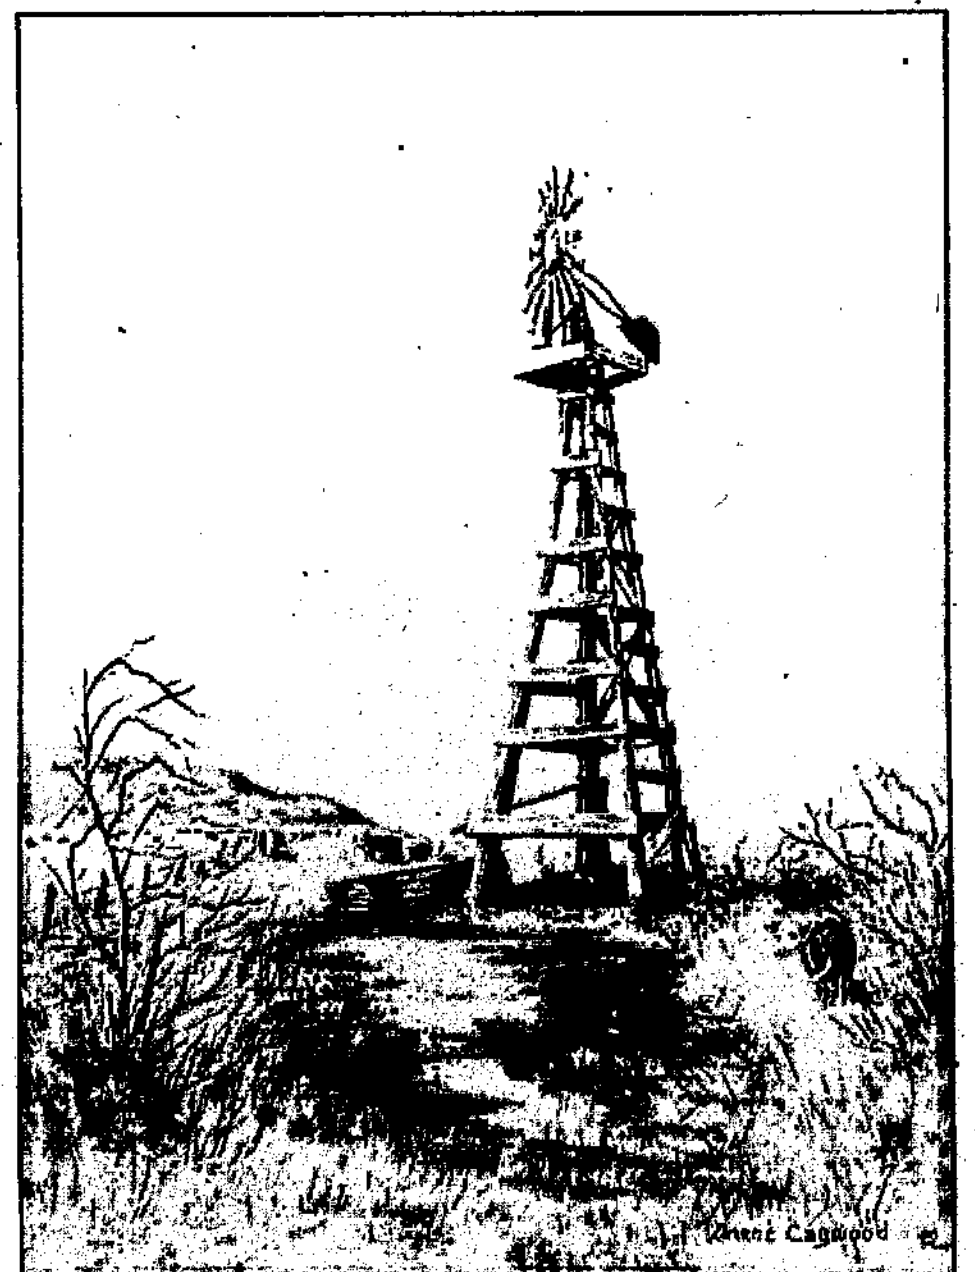

TAKE AWAY HER CANVAS and chipboard, and Lorene Caywood will find something else to paint.

INSPIRATION for Lorene Caywood's paintings, comes from the ever-present reminders of the "Old West," found throughout New Mexico. Having your own wagon parked next to your studio doesn't hurt.

HER STUDIO is crowded with the works of her students. Caywood currently is teaching five classes with a total of 26 students.

WINDMILLS are a favorite subject for Caywood, but despite their presence in so many of her paintings, "You could never paint two windmills exactly the same."
