Warriors bound to halterbreak Colts

The Ruidoso Warriors and the Silver City Fighting Colts battle for the district 3AAA grid championship Friday night in Silver City, with a playoff berth also at stake.

The Colts, 6-2 on the year, 3-0 in district, are ranked third in the state. The 7-2 Warriors, 3-1 in district, are ranked sixth. There are a number of activities planned for the game:

— A pep rally, slated for 11:30 Thursday

— The Village of Ruidoso has proclaimed Friday "Ruidoso Warrior Day," and a proclamation signed by Mayor Lloyd Davis Jr., was given to Warrior coach Darrel Stierwalt and the football team . . .

— Warrior fans are urged to attend the Ruidoso send off, at 11:55 a.m., Friday, in morning, will be held in Warrior gymnasium. All interested persons are urged to attend . . .

the high school parking lot. The Warrior band and a bus sponsored by the Booster Club will also be making the long trip . . .

— Warrior fans attending the contest are asked to meet at the Holiday Motor Lodge on Highway 180 Silver City's east side, at 6 p.m. The Ruidoso cheerleaders will decorate cars there for a motorcade, which will leave at 6:45 for the Silver-La Plata Grid Complex . . .

— For those unable to make the 250 mile trip, Cablevision of Lincoln County will carry a live audio broadcast of the game from KSIL Radio in Silver City, with Jim Lawill doing the play-by-play. "Technical problems out of our control kept us from carrying the Deming and T or C games," Cablevision's Kent Battey said. "But we will have all our problems corrected before Friday's kickoff." The broadcast will begin about 7:15 p.m., on cable channel 6.

County votes Republican

Lincoln County's unofficial vote

Lincoln County voters Tuesday, with 3,380 Democrats, 2620 Republicans and 310 Independents eligible to vote, elected Republicans to all contested county offices.

In the county races:

- Incumbent county clerk Jane McSwane turned back the bid of challenger Michael Gray, 2642 to 1,219.
- W. Kay Allison won the county treasurer's office over Martha Guevara, 2,958 to 1,470.
- Julia Samora was named county assessor by defeating C. O. Rominger III, 2,156 to 1,593.
- Incumbent sheriff Ernest Sanchez won a second term by defeating Bill Elliott, 2,560 to 1,746.

The county vote on the six Constitutional Amendments and the hospital mill levy was:

	YES	NO
AMENDMENT 1	1173	951
Five commissioners in some counties
AMENDMENT 2	1543	849
Seven school board members in some districts
AMENDMENT 3	1674	750
Right to limit ball
AMENDMENT 4	1023	1390
Two consecutive four year terms
AMENDMENT 5	1173	1078
Change number of signatures to call a grand jury
AMENDMENT 6	918	1484
Increase reimbursement to legislators
HOSPITAL LEVY	1812	868

SIXTY-EIGHT PERCENT of Lincoln County's registered voters, 4,292 of 6,312, went to the polls Tuesday. In Ruidoso, 61 percent, 1,707 of 2,755 voted, with 409 out of 673, 60 percent, voting in Ruidoso Downs.

The unofficial tallies in other precincts include 517 voting in Capitán, 95 in Nogal, 651 in Carrizozo, 190 in Corona, 174 in Angus, 144 in San Patricio and 204 in Hondo. There were 405 absentee ballots cast.

County voters chose the Republican candidate over the Democrat in all national and county offices. The only Democrat winning the county vote was Wilton Howell over Republican Charlie Lee for the District 39 State Senate seat.

THE DISTRICT 39 Senate race ended with Republican Charlie Lee polling 5,145 votes to 3,393 for Democrat Wilton Howell.

IN THE DISTRICT 50 Legislative race, incumbent Republican John Bigbee defeated challenger Rich Sims, Democrat, by 881 votes, with Bigbee's margin of victory coming from Torrance and Lincoln county votes. The unofficial tallies:

	Bigbee	Sims
Guadalupe	709	1325
DeBaca	92	117
Torrance	1220	778
Lincoln	1963	883
Total	3984	3103

JOE SKEEN'S WRITE-IN victory over Democrat David King, was only the third time in the nation's history that a write-in candidate has defeated a person listed on the ballot. The other two write-in winners were Bill Alford, United States Representative from Arkansas in 1958 and Strom Thurmond to the United States Senate from South Carolina in 1964.

Judge impounds Otero ballots

Ballots cast in the portion of the 12th Judicial District in Otero County were impounded early Wednesday morning by order of District Judge George Zimmerman.

Zimmerman was acting on a request from District Attorney Steve Sanders, according to assistant District Attorney

Jay Rosenthal.

Unofficial results from Tuesday's general election indicated that Sanders was trailing his write-in opponent, James J. Weldon, by a vote of 4,654 to 4,106, in that portion of the district.

Rosenthal said impoundment of the ballots was "standard procedure when a race is that close," and was done "as a precaution." Rosenthal added that the ballots would be turned over to the Otero County canvassing committee today.

Sanders received 1,616 votes in Lincoln County, as compared with Weldon's 767, making Sanders the apparent winner, despite the Otero county totals.

Crosswalks on way out

The Retail Merchants Committee (RMC) of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce "has decided to withdraw our support for the crosswalks (in midtown Ruidoso) because they weren't installed properly," Richard Sandoval, RMC chairman, said Tuesday.

Sandoval said the committee insisted "from the beginning" that if "crosswalks were put in, they should be done properly and if they weren't done properly, they shouldn't be done at all."

He said pedestrian street signs and "no parking" signs were placed late and many have since "broken off" or disappeared, and are no longer visible. Sandoval also said "laws are not being enforced" in the crosswalk area, and added that yellow and white paint used to mark the "no parking" areas and crosswalks was too faded to be seen.

Ed Jungbluth, Chamber executive director, said "there truly has not been a combined effort by all people" to make the crosswalks work and now that "this is the time of year when the streets become pretty tacky," he said the crosswalks couldn't be seen anyway.

Ralph Bellon said there was also lack of cooperation "in publicizing the crosswalks."

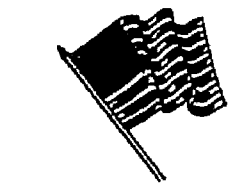

Bellon noted, however that "the state did make a survey and said they (the crosswalks) were working — they were stopping traffic and slowing traffic down."

"This is not to say we will give up — we will continue to work to make the downtown area a safer place to shop," Sandoval said.

Village manager Jim Hine said he "can't speak for the village council" but that the village hopes to work for installation of more traffic signals in Ruidoso, two one-way streets through midtown to ease the flow of traffic, reduced speed limits in the downtown areas, and continuation of studies to provide an alternate route through Ruidoso.

Sandoval said the traffic studies have indicated a need to lower the speed limit because the traffic in midtown was slowed as a result of the crosswalks. "If the speed limit is reduced, people will slow down," he said.

"It was tried. We'll give this report to the village council," Hine said. The crosswalk discussion will be taken up at the Tuesday meeting of the trustees, at Ruidoso Public Library, 7:30 p.m.

FOR 368 DAYS

the Iranians have held 50 Americans hostage. The ultimatum to the Ayatollah Khomeini must be the written words: "Let my people go."

SYMBOLIC REMINDERS of the plight of the American hostages in Iran were placed on utility poles in Ruidoso Tuesday, the first anniversary of their captivity. The placement of yellow ribbons is a project of the Altruza Club. Barbara Alcorn, a club member, is shown in action Tuesday.

Herrera files to recover nomination bid expenses

Otero County Democratic Chairman Johnny Herrera, who made an unsuccessful bid to have his name placed on the general election ballot for state senate, District 39, in place of the name of Wilton Howell, is asking that costs incurred in that attempt be paid by Howell and others involved in the suit.

Herrera filed a "notice of taxation of costs," with the New Mexico Supreme Court, asking the court to require the respondents to pay personal costs incurred as he attended state central committee meetings in August and a hearing before the state Supre Court in September.

The respondents include Howell, secretary of State Shirley Hooper, state Democratic Chairman Brad Hays, and the State Democratic Central Committee.

Among the expenses being requested are "business losses of $2,645," along with lodging, fuel and food expenses and other incidentals, totalling $5,391.33.

Howell's attorney, Gary Mitchell of Ruidoso, has filed a request for a hearing and motion to deny the cost bill submitted by Herrera.

The motion to deny is based on Mitchell's assertion that the "damages which the petitioner claims to have incurred . . . are improper and are not recoverable." Mitchell referred to Herrera's request as "absurd."

Madrigal Feast set December 3

Tickets will be available beginning this week for the Madrigal Feast, a fund raiser for the Ruidoso Public Library, sponsored by the Friends of the Library.

The Madrigal will be December 3 at Carrizo Lodge, beginning at 6:30 p.m., with a cash bar on the lower level of the Lodge. Dinner will be served beginning at 7 p.m., and the menu will include cheese, fruit and shortbread, sliced pork loin, cornish game hens with cold herb jelly, whole leeks and walnuts, sliced apple rings and pears with carob cream.

All of the 135 tickets will be for reserved seating, so those wishing to sit with a group should purchase all their tickets at once. "The tickets will be numbered so if you want to sit with a group, please buy all your tickets from the same person," Marian Elzi, public librarian, said.

Tickets will be sold at the library and by the following individuals: Maureen Ware, Ann Denton, Mady Holstein, Monica O'Reilly and Charlotte Fellers. Tickets are $30 each.

Wine for the wassail bowl, and to be served at dinner, has been donated by Security Bank of Ruidoso, with Nottingham's Deli and Catering serving the repast.

Milton Swenson, musical historian and Pat Rucker, head of the Eastern New Mexico University (ENMU) drama department, are working with local people to stage the evening's entertainment.

A choir composed of Ruidoso singers will join with players from ENMU to present a brass ensemble, recorder ensemble, dancing and mummer's play.

Artistic director for the performance will be Jean Steimbacher, who has had several years' experience as a costume designer at Brooks-Van Horn in New York City, the largest costume design shop in that area.

Steimbacher has worked in the costume department for the Santa Fe Opera and has designed costumes and sets for other theatrical organizations in the Santa Fe area. She also taught for some time at the North Carolina School of the Arts.

Steimbacher said costumes will be rented from New Mexico State University in Las Cruces, and some will be supplied by ENMU's drama department.

Dan Barrow is the drama director and Nancy Fleharty is donating all graphic art which will be used on the tickets and programs, according to Elzi. Local musical directors are Danny Flores and Glen Dunn.

Used toys of all kinds are now being collected by Boy Scout Troop 59, Ruidoso, to give to needy children this Christmas.

Toys should be taken to the Ruidoso Elks Lodge Saturday, November 8, 15 and 22 between 10 a.m., and 2 p.m.

Scoutmaster Rudy Flack said "this community service project for our Boy Scouts" is being conducted "to help make this a Merry Christmas for children who might not otherwise receive toys this year."

Scouts' big toy drive continues

BY THE TIME the polls closed at 7 p.m., Tuesday in Ruidoso, literally hundreds of people were still lined up to vote. Above, from left, Jean Whitwam, Jean Culbertson and Dr. Paul Whitwam, said the right to cast ballots wasn't going to preclude them from enjoying the normal dinner hour.

LONG LINES were the norm at polling places in Ruidoso Tuesday, with some voters waiting as long as four hours to cast their ballots. The voters above were passing the time at Precinct 14, Ruidoso High School.

P&Z okays, denies, rezoning requests

The Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission (P&Z) Wednesday denied a request for a change in zoning on a series of lots on First Street, near the Ranch House Restaurant.

The request would have changed lots one through six from single family dwellings to commercial. One person, Gary Barrett, attended the meeting to register a protest because he has seen no plans for development of the lots. Barrett owns lot seven and part of lot six.

Emory Hatcher, village zoning officer, said five others registered complaints with him prior to the meeting. All are adjacent lot owners, he said.

P&Z approved the replat of Lot 12, Block 4 in Young Heights Subdivision subject to the approval of the required number of adjacent lot owners. The replat divided a one acre lot into two half acre lots. The replat, requested by George Jackson, will allow for the building of two homes on the property.

The approval prompted the commission to seek written opinions from village trustees regarding dividing large parcels into smaller ones. "We haven't gotten any kind of direction from the council" on the matter, Mike Mulholland said. But, he added, the replat "is in line with previous actions of the commission."

John Schuller also asked that village trustees render an opinion on restrictions on re-zoning, which P&Z could use as a guide for future zoning requests.

The commission also:

—Approved the replat of Lots 29, 30 and 31, Block 12 in Golf Course Estates, submitted by Ben Lanford Sr., which combined three lots into two.

—Approved the replat of Lots 2, 3 and 4, Block 15 in Palmer Gateway Subdivision for Dr. Lynn Willard, which changed lot lines on property owned by Sonic Drive In and Willard.

—Accepted the preliminary plat for Vista Del Sol Subdivision in Camelot, subject to signatures of all utility company representatives and village utility department heads.

—Approved the final plat for Site E, multi family dwellings (MFD) for Lakeside Corporation, Alto Village. The plat provided for changing the public road leading to the Alto Lakes clubhouse to a private road, which was moved, and establishes dwelling site boundaries for the proposed MFD. This item is subject to approval of Lincoln County Planning and Zoning Commission.

—Approved the replat of Deer Park Woods, Unit Six for Lakeside Corporation, which involved replating of smaller lots and making the area a subdivision; also requires approval by Lincoln County Planning and Zoning Commission.

—Approved replat of a portion of Lot five, Block one, Silver Mountain Terrace and a portion of Lot five, Block H and Lot eight, Block H, White Fir Subdivision, so another home can be built on the property.

Judge denies riot film use in jury trial

A motion requesting permission to show jurors a television documentary about the New Mexico penitentiary riots was denied by Judge George Zimmerman in District Court Wednesday.

Gary Mitchell, Ruidoso attorney, had filed the motion in connection with the trial of John Stance Rushing and Kenneth Crawford, who walked away from their work assignments in Ruidoso while serving time at Camp Sierra Blanca Adult Rehabilitation Center just over one year ago.

The trial of Rushing and Crawford has been set for Thursday, November 13, in Carrizozo.

Lincoln County commissioners meet Friday

Lincoln County commissioners will meet at 10 a.m., Friday, at the courthouse in Carrizozo.

The meeting will serve as a public hearing for two proposed ordinances — one restricting mobile homes in Nogal and another relating to animal control.

Other major agenda items to be considered include a request from the town of Carrizozo for membership on the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission, a request from Captain to purchase a county owned motorgrader, a variance requested which would allow septic tanks in Deer Park Woods subdivision, and proposed expenditures for the Carrizozo Health Center.

October building $1,277,580

Building permits issued by the village of Ruidoso during October dipped slightly from the previous month, but still showed an increase over the same month last year.

October, 1980 permits totalled $1,277,580, compared to the September total of $1,528,356. In October, 1979, the permits totalled $820,880 in estimated costs of construction.

Ski insert scheduled

The Ruidoso News annual ski insert is being readied for distribution as soon as Sierra Blanca Ski Resort opens.

The deadline for advertising, to be included in the issue is Monday, November 17.

For information and advertising rates, telephone 257-4001 and ask for Carmen Edwards or Gena Johnson.

The insert will be included with the regular edition of The News, when it is released, with additional distribution scheduled during the peak of the season to acquaint skiers with Ruidoso's attractions and services.

Yule tree lighting set

The Village Christmas tree will be lit November 29 at the "Y" in east Ruidoso, with the Retail Merchants Committee (RMC) of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce in charge of arrangements.

Meeting Monday, the group finalized plans for commercial and residential outside lighting contests, which they will also sponsor.

A traveling trophy will be awarded to the winner in commercial competition and plaques will be given to all winners.

All people and businesses planning to participate in the contest must register, at no charge, at the Chamber office, or by calling the Chamber at 257-7395.

Commercial registration deadline will be December 1 but "we urge everyone to be ready to light their windows by November 29, along with the village lighting," Richard Sandoval, RMC chairman, said. Judging will begin December 6 and commercial winners will be announced the same week.

Residential registration deadline is December 10 and judging will begin December 15, with winners announced December 18.

"If we can build a festive mood in the business section of town, people will be more likely to stay here to shop," Larry Langford said.

Sandoval said that the village will decorate very sparingly this year, eliminating the street light decorations used in the past "because they are worn out." He said trees at the "Y" and the library will be decorated. "Because the village is cutting back, we hope business owners will pick up the slack," he said.

The group tabled a request for help in scheduling horse shows made by Ed Hyman, president of the Ruidoso Downs

Mule Skippers (RDMS). Hyman said the RDMS has "become a clearinghouse for all 'horse' activities" and the committee is now having scheduling and manpower problems. He said that in addition to the annual mule races, Arabian Horse shows and the Hunter-Jumper horse show, people connected with rodeos, cutting horse shows, Paint horse shows and Appaloosa horse owners, also hope to establish competitive events in this area.

Hyman sought manpower and help in organizing any future events, saying that many dollars will come into Ruidoso as a result of the various activities.

Ed Jungbluth, Chamber executive director, said the Chamber is currently planning to sponsor an antique car show the weekend following Aspenade and will assist in next year's Motorcycle Convention. The RMC referred this proposal to the Chamber board of directors for action.

UNM names dean of architecture

The current holder of the New York State Chair of Architecture at the State University of New York (SUNY), Buffalo, has been named dean of the University of New Mexico School of Architecture and Planning effective in the fall 1981 semester.

George Anselievicius will succeed former dean Morton Hoppenfeld in the post. Hoppenfeld resigned to return to private practice in Washington, D.C. The acting dean of the school is Professor Don P. Schlegel.

Anselievicius has taught at SUNY, Buffalo, since 1976. From 1973-76 he was chairperson of the department of architecture at Harvard University. From 1957-73 he taught architecture at Washington University in St. Louis, Missouri. He was also dean of that university's school of architecture from 1967-73.

He received a Diploma of Architecture in 1946 from the Leeds, England, School of Architecture. Born a Lithuanian citizen, Anselievicius became a United States citizen in 1954. He is a registered architect in Illinois, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri and New York.

In New York Anselievicius is currently an advisor to the mayor of Buffalo's Committee on Arts and Cultural Affairs and a member of the board of directors of the Community Planning Assistance Center of Western New York. He is the director of two studies dealing with the recycling of three Buffalo public housing projects.

He has been a planning and design consultant to the United States Department of State, Southern Illinois University, the East St. Louis Housing Authority and has served on numerous boards and commissions.

In 1976 he received an honor award for his design of the CEMREX, Inc., building in St. Louis. He has also received awards from the Guild for Religious Architecture for his design of the First Christian Church in Kirksville, Missouri, and from the National Design Competition for the Washington University law school and social science buildings.

Anselievicius has written numerous articles for professional journals on the man-made environment, architecture arts and aesthetics, city planning, housing and education.

Cafe rules changed

The Ruidoso Office of the state Environmental Improvement Division (EID) has announced changes in regulations for food service establishments, which will be in effect November 15.

One of the major changes involves the grading system for food services. After November 15, only two grades — "approved" and "unsatisfactory" will be designated. The grade emblems will be placed in a conspicuous location by an EID agent, according to the new rules.

The regulations also give the EID authority to take violators of this particular section to court, to insure better compliance.

Other changes in the regulations require the availability of both hot and cold water at each lavatory in the establishment.

New provisions have also been approved which govern the special mobile food service units and pushcarts.

The local EID office has also received updated forms for inspection reports, which emphasize certain areas of concern. These include wholesomeness and proper storage of food, cleanliness of personnel, water and sewage regulations, presence of insects or rodents and proper storage of toxic substances.

All of these have been designated as "critical" items, "requiring immediate attention," under the new rules.

Variances, which have not been allowed in the past, may be permitted in some cases under the new regulations, according to environmentalist Hari Mukhoty.

Copies of the new regulations may be obtained from the local office in the lower level of Four Seasons Mall, Ruidoso. The mailing address is P.O. Drawer 800, Ruidoso, 88345, and the telephone number is 257-4856.

Speeder nabbed here

Local police joined in a high speed chase early Tuesday morning, resulting in the apprehension of Randy C. Miller, 34, who was turned over to Alamogordo Department of Public Safety (DPS) officers on charges of reckless driving and eluding officers.

Joining in the chase, which began in Alamogordo, were the DPS units, Tularosa Police, Bureau of Indian Affairs and the Ruidoso Police.

Miller reportedly ran through a roadblock on Highway 70 at the 25 mile marker, driving in excess of 100 miles per hour.

He was apprehended after he hit a fence at the Texaco station near the Ruidoso Downs Race Track. He then fled on foot, but was captured near the service station.

MEMBERS OF the 1980 Ruidoso Little League Football Cheerleaders were awarded certificates at a party held in their honor Tuesday

Inspiration Corporation plans orphanage visitation

A group of representatives of Inspiration Corporation will make a trip to the Hogar de Emmanuel Niños, Juárez, an orphanage of 80 children ranging in age from 18 months to 18 years.

Inspiration Corporation has been the partial support of the orphanage since 1977. Donations of children's socks and undergarments, blankets, towels, apples, carrots and pumpkins are being sought for the orphanage.

Anyone interested in accompanying the group to Juárez is asked to be at the Fishmarket Coffee House on Highway 37 at noon, Sunday November 9.

Inspiration Corporation is headed by Tim and Carlene Wadley and a board of local Christian pastors and business people.

Legion, Unit's, 'Open House' scheduled for November 11

Members of the Robert J. Hagge American Legion and Auxiliary will host an "Open House" November 11, beginning at 7:45 p.m., in the Senior Citizens Building behind the Ruidoso Public Library.

"The Post and Unit," Legion commander Rick Simpson said, "is inviting the general public to attend this open house to learn more about our organizations. We're also inviting all area veterans and their families, so that we can become acquainted."

The Post is also asking for names and current addresses of local men and women now in the Armed Forces, and of their families. These may be mailed to the Service Officer, Post 78, Box 793, Ruidoso, New Mexico 88345.

Guests for the evening will be the 1980 Boys and Girls Staters and members of the Junior Legion Baseball Team, playing for the first time this year.

Refreshments will be served, a contest will be announced and door prizes will be awarded during the evening.

Flu vaccine on hand for senior citizens

Senior citizens in New Mexico can now get their flu shots, since the serum has been received by County Health Offices and physicians.

The vaccine is available free of charge in all county health offices and private physicians provide the vaccine free, but may charge to administer it, according to Lieutenant Governor Roberto A. Mondragon.

The shot should be administered to all people over 65 years old and those with chronic illnesses including heart disease, kidney disease, lung disease, diabetes and some forms of cancer.

Persons who wish to receive the flu immunization at the Lincoln County Health Office should make arrangements by calling 648-2412.

Library sets Children's Book Week

The Ruidoso Public Library will be sponsoring a Children's Book Week November 17-22, featuring guest speakers from foreign countries.

The speakers will include:
— Sonja Richardson, Thailand, Monday

— Ingrid Schmitz, Germany, Tuesday
— Plo Ruess, Switzerland, Wednesday
— Habib Rehman Khan, Pakistan, Thursday

— Julian Mirable, Mexico, Friday.

The speakers will be appearing from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m., during the week. Activities also will include dances, slides, movies, songs and stories.

School groups are urged to attend, and are being asked to register for the activities by Wednesday, November 12.

Snow funeral in Santa Fe Friday

Graveside services for Lieutenant Colonel James C. Snow (Retired), will be conducted Friday at the Santa Fe National Cemetery.

Mr. Snow, 59, formerly of Nogal, died November 3, at Oxnard, California, where he had been living.

Woman's Club sets meeting

A business meeting of the Woman's Club will begin at 1 p.m., November 12, in the club's quarters on Evergreen Road off Sudderth Drive.

The program will be on energy saving in the home and all interested women are invited to attend.

Entertainment at Coffee House

Musical entertainment and refreshments will be available at the Fishmarket Coffee House this Friday and Saturday, beginning at 7 p.m.

Temporary manager of the coffee house is Al Lane.

Retired School Employees meet November 13

The Lincoln County Retired School Employees will meet Thursday, November 13, at 2 p.m., in the north room of the old cafeteria at the school in Capitán.

The program will highlight experiences of the members in work other than teaching, led by Gladys Knox and Harriet McGinnis.

BUD DERHAM and LEANNA MUNCE

Munce/Derham wedding set

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Munce of Alamogordo have announced the engagement and impending marriage of their daughter, Leanna Munce, to Hugh "Bud" Derham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Derham of Anthony, Texas.

The couple will be married at 3 p.m., November 22 at the Christ Community Church of Alamogordo.

The bride-elect is a 1978 graduate of Alamogordo High School and is employed with Woodbridge Real Estate, Ruidoso. The future bridegroom is a 1978 graduate of Anthony High School and is employed by the United States Forest Service in Ruidoso.

Clark/Driver wedding set December 27

Mr. and Mrs. William Clark of Ruidoso have announced the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Ann Clark, to Don Driver Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Driver, also of Ruidoso.

The couple will exchange vows at 4 p.m., December 27 at the First Presbyterian Church in Hobbs.

The bride-elect is a 1978 graduate of Hobbs High School and is majoring in elementary education at New Mexico State University. The prospective bridegroom is a 1978 graduate of Ruidoso High School and will receive his bachelor of science degree from New Mexico State University in December.

$100,000 TAX SAVING ON HOME SALE
Prior to the 1978 Tax Reform Law, someone who sold a house and bought a new one within 18 months did not have to pay any tax on his profit unless the new one cost less than he got for his old one.
The new law now permits a one-time exclusion of up to $100,000 of profit on a home sale. To qualify, an individual must be 55 years old and have owned and occupied the house for three out of the previous five years before the sale. Also, profit on the sale is not subject to the minimum tax. These changes are retroactive to July 26, 1978.

The previous tax law limited homeowners to one tax-free "rollover" every 18 months. The 1978 Tax Reform Law now allows more than one tax-free move up to a more expensive home if the home owner moves for employment reasons.
The $100,000 — age 55 exemption replaces completely the previous tax break for owners over age 65 who sold their homes and were able to exclude the first $35,000.

Must win game for both teams

Warriors, Colts battle for AAA playoff berth

BY MARK BAGBY
Sports Editor

You'd think, what with all the elections and stuff, that would be enough excitement for one week.

But that was only the beginning. Friday night in Silver City, the sixth ranked Ruidoso Warriors play the third ranked Colts in a game that will decide the District 3AAA championship, as well as a playoff berth in the state playoffs.

It's a must win game for both teams, obviously, but just as obviously, both can't win. Instant dilemma.

Both coaches — Silver's George Janes and Ruidoso's Darrel Stierwalt — agree this is the most important game in the state, and not necessarily just this weekend.

"This one's for all the marbles," Janes said in a telephone interview Wednesday morning. "This is for the district chamionship. We've got to play our best." "We think we have a good game plan," Stierwalt said. "If we stick with it, we think we can win. But we've got to score or we can forget it."

If you listen to both coaches long enough, you begin to suspect neither coach really believes his team will win.

"We started trying to defend the wishbone this week," Janes said. "I hope we can figure out today (Wednesday) how to do it. We sure didn't yesterday."

"Silver likes to line up and run over you," Stierwalt said. "They don't do anything fancy. We know everything they do. The question is if we've got the people to stop them."

Janes thinks Ruidoso is awesome — Stierwalt thinks Silver is awesome.

They're not too far off in their assessments.

Silver City is third ranked in the state, with a 6-2 record. It's 3-0 in district play, with a 7-0 win over Truth or Consequences, the squad that beat the Warriors last week by a single point, 15-14.

Other opponents in common are Lordsburg (Silver won, 22-7, the Warriors also won, 31-8); Deming (48-0 Silver win, 34-0 Ruidoso win); Tularosa (14-0 Ruidoso triumph, Silver victory, 28-15); and El Paso Cathedral (Silver won, 16-0; the Warriors scrimmaged the Irish in August).

Both teams play basic football. Both teams like to run the ball, and pass only to keep defenses honest. Both teams play "hit and read" defenses, not trying to overpower anyone.

It has the makings of a classic. In fact, the Albuquerque Journal picked it as the game of the week on Monday.

"I'd have to agree with that," Janes said. "This game is so important — it could go either way. We haven't reached a peak and stayed there. We'll play great one week and then we play rotten the next. No consistency."

But Silver City has been playing consistently enough to lose but two games, by a combined total of seven points.

Defense has been the mainstay of the Fighting Colt success the past four years, and Silver City has won or shared four district titles and traveled to state playoffs the same number of times.

Last year's team was awesome in every sense of the word, losing (in a definite upset) to Portales in the state championship game. The score was 15-14.

"I guess you could say we've had some success," Janes said.

"Silver City is better than practically everyone else in our district," Stierwalt countered. "They've got 1,200 students, three times as many as we've had. They can run two plateau football — we can't. It's gonna be tough."

That is the understatement of the year. Defensively, the Colts rely on three players — linebacker Jerry Garieva, and tackles Joe Chapman and Jody Bosse. They average 215 pounds apiece.

"They are the real core of their defense," Stierwalt said. "Garieva is the best linebacker we've ever seen. He's fast, strong. He reads the play well, he's hard to fool, harder to knock down. We'll have to double team him and park him if our offense is going to go."

On the plus side for the Warriors, Silver City has not faced a wishbone squad this year.

"We're going to try to triple option them to death," Stierwalt said. "Silver is extremely well coached, and we're going to

Warrior JV beaten by Goddard frosh

The Warrior junior varsity football squad ended its season on a losing note last week in Roswell, dropping a 38-18 decision to Roswell Goddard's freshman squad.

The Warriors defeated the frosh team the previous week here by a 44-8 count.

Ruidoso scored on runs by Grady Williamson and Kyle Flack, and on a bomb from Billy Woodul to Darrin Smith.

The Warriors finished the season with a 2-3-2 worksheet.

Volleyballers in district tourney

The lady Warrior volleyball team, 7-9 on the year, travels to Tularosa today for first round play in the District 3AAA tournament.

The Warriors play Cobra at 2:30 p.m., in the single elimination tournament.

Should the ladies win today, they will continue play Saturday, with the district champion and runnerup advancing to the state playoffs in Roswell later this month.

WARRIOR DEFENSIVE COORDINATOR Ronny Maskew has a word or two for middle linebacker Lon Nunley during last week's 15-14 loss to T or C. Nunley and the rest of the defensive troops will have their hands full this week in Silver City, according to head coach Darrel Stierwalt.

Celtic, Rowdies, Cobras win soccer championships

The under 16 Celtic claimed its second consecutive Ruidoso Sertoma Soccer Association (RSSA) championship Sunday afternoon with a come-from-behind 2-1 win over the Strikers at White Mountain Middle School.

The win avenged the only loss the Celtic had during the season, which was inflicted by the Strikers in the final week of league play.

The Celtic scored first in the first half when Gary Cregson powered an indirect goal kick into the Striker net for a 1-0 lead.

But the Strikers came back, tying the score 1-1 at the end of the half.

With about 20 minutes left in the match, Keith Pitkin boomed a 40 yard shot into the Strikers' net, regaining the lead.

That turned out to be enough, even though starting Celtic goalkeeper Carl Luera left the game with four minutes remaining, due to broken ribs.

In the under 12 championship played Saturday, the Rowdies rallied from a 5-6 halftime deficit to win 8-6 in the second half.

In the under eight bracket, the Cobras defeated the Celtic 1-0 in a tough defensive battle. That win was vengeance for an earlier game won by the Celtic, the only Cobra loss of the 6-1 season.

All six teams will participate in a tournament in Alamogordo November 15-16, and numerous members off these squads will be playing in RSSA all star games this Saturday.

Under eight all stars play at 11 a.m., followed by the under 12 division teams at 12:30 p.m., and the under 16s at 2:30.

All games will be played at White Mountain Middle School.

Sportin' Life

... a column of opinion ...

by

Mark Bagby

Well, it's almost all over, except for the game itself.

I'm referring, of course, to the Ruidoso-Silver City showdown, which will decide who goes to the AAA state playoffs.

(I'm not sure if everybody knows how this works — see, there's five districts — which means five champions — but you need four games, which means eight teams. Four games leads to two games which leads to one. Clear?

(Now then — with five champions — you need three runnersup to make eight teams. So two districts have to not send runnersup, or the bracket gets too full, and then you have to have a system of byes.

(To make things easier, the district set up a rotational thing, agreeing that each district, at one time or another in the next decade, would send only its champions. This year's rotation fell on 3AAA and 5AAA — Socorro will be coming out of 5AAA, and either Ruidoso or Silver City will be the 3AAA representative.

(Incidentally, the same rotation will be in effect in 1982, '85 and '87. And in case anyone thinks that's unfair, St. Pius isn't going anywhere either.)

Silver City is 6-2, with losses to Canutillo and El Paso Hanks, both Texas schools. They have district wins over Deming, T or C and Tularosa, for a perfect 3-0 mark.

Ruidoso is 7-2, 3-1 in district, with losses to Anthony Gadsden in the season opener, and last week's 15-14 district loss to T or C. (Incidentally — that one point loss, together with the 16-14 defeat at the hands of Gadsden — means three points separates the Warriors from a perfect year. Argghhhhh.)

But now — all of that doesn't really mean a thing. It all comes down to this Friday. Those games were just stepping stones to set up this game.

Last week, Silver played Tularosa and the Warriors were at T or C. Neither game really meant anything, unless Tularosa had beaten Silver City and Ruidoso had beaten T or C, then lost to Silver the following week. Assuming Silver beats Cobra in its last game, and also assuming Tularosa had beaten Cobra (which takes place this Friday), then a three way tie for the district lead would be the case, which would have meant the district coaches would have voted to see who was sent to state.

That almost certainly would have meant the Warriors would not have gone. Silver, Tularosa and Ruidoso would have voted for themselves — Cobra would have probably voted for Silver, T or C might have voted for Ruidoso — leaving the final vote to Deming — which probably would have voted for Silver City.

But all that doesn't matter, either. So now we have THE game.

This is Oklahoma-Nebraska, Texas-

Arkansas, UCLA-USC, Michigan-Ohio State. This is Dallas-Washington, Oakland-Kansas City.

This is it, the game that decides who plays football November 21, and who will be watching "Dallas" on TV the same night. And then, perhaps, who will be playing about Thanksgiving and the first week in December, and who will stay at home, eating turkey.

What it all comes down to — and as Darrel Stierwalt put it — "We have to beat Silver City. No questions. Period. That's it."

That was the only way a three way tie could have been averted.

But, since Silver beat Tularosa and Ruidoso lost to T or C — that thrust Silver into first place in the district and dropped Ruidoso into second, with 3-0 and 3-1 records, respectively.

T or C and Tularosa are tied for third, 2-2. Cobra is 1-2 and Deming is 0-4.

Ruidoso, if it is to have any chances of going to state, must beat Silver City. That would create a tie between the two, and, since Ruidoso would have the win over Silver — and each has a loss — the Warriors would go. (That's the way it works, folks — you take the victor of the matchup between the teams in a two way tie.)

The Warriors could win district outright, if Cobra beats Silver, and that should probably happen about two days after hell freezes over.

That's why the game at T or C wasn't that important. If Ruidoso had won, both teams would be undefeated — and whichever team wins the game between the Colts and Warriors would go to state, since Silver would probably beat Cobra.

And, if Ruidoso had won and Silver had lost, they'd still have to beat Silver City this week to win the district.

The choice is clear, and has been since September 5. Stierwalt said a long time ago to win district — this district — you have to beat Silver — if you don't, you probably couldn't win state anyway.

Hopefully, however, his prediction way back when — that the team that wins this district will also have to go undefeated in district play — will turn out to be only so much speculation.

Beat Silver!

Congrats
A quick word of congratulations to Butch Grantham and his lovely wife Suzanne; and Danny Flores and his lovely wife Teri.

Both couples had daughters over the weekend, I am told.

Butch, as you may or may not know, is the head honcho in the Ruidoso Sertoma Soccer Association; and Danny is the band director at Ruidoso High School.

A job well done, as far as I'm concerned. Right on!

Warriors, Colts battle for AAA playoff berth

try to take advantage of that." Offensively, Silver City runs from a wing set. They run a basic series of plays that are very simple, right out of Woody Hayes' playbook — three yards and a cloud of dust.

Leading the attack is senior quarterback John Galassini, who can throw when the need arises.

"We're really guessing on what they're going to do," he said. "One game they throw, next game they run, next game they do both. We're not sure just exactly what they're going to do, so we've got to be ready for everything."

Probably the leading rusher is Bobby

Burdette, a 175 pound senior fullback. Gerleve has also seen action at fullback, and he runs with authority, which is like saying Earl Campbell runs with authority.

"They're gonna be tough to stop, I'll tell you that," Skierwalt said.

The weakest part of the Silver attack is the kicking game, or the lack thereof. Silver has had numerous breakdowns in its kicking game, and that could mean the ball game for the Colts.

But Jones thinks injuries could be the key.

"We've got four starters out," he said. "We had two out before Tularosa, and we lost two more then. We had a pretty big win over Tularosa, and I hope it carries over this week. It's got to."

The Warriors, on the other hand, are in good shape, injury wise. Skierwalt is hoping his squad gets up for this game.

"We've got to approach this with the intensity we had when we played Tularosa," he said. "We played pretty poorly against T or C, and that was mostly not being ready mentally."

"The kids are high. We've had some intense workouts this week. I hope it pays off. The team that makes the most mistakes will lose. We can't afford to make any mistakes."

"We can't afford to get a penetration (inside the 20 yard line) and not get points on the board. That's what beat us at T or C."

"We've got to get on the board early and control the ball and the clock. Silver doesn't make mistakes. They'll blow us off the field if we start turning the ball over and getting penalties."

Kickoff is slated for 7:30 p.m., Friday, in Silver City's Silver-La Plata Grid Complex.

Assorted facts and trivia: the Warriors are 0-2 against the Colts, playing them to a 13-0 game in 1978 and suffering a 49-0 debacle last year. . . the Warriors have not yet scored a point on the Colts. . . Jones is having his fifth straight winning season at Silver City, after taking the reins there half a decade ago. . . Silver City has four returning all district players. . . colors are silver and blue. . . a sellout crowd is expected to be on hand for the game, which has attracted statewide coverage.

State ends wildlife control on Indian land

The state Game and Fish Department is discontinuing wildlife law enforcement and game and fish management on all New Mexico Indian reservations and pueblos, according to department director Harold Olson.

"We notified tribal governments late last week of our policy, which will remain in effect pending United States Supreme Court decisions on wildlife jurisdiction or signing of cooperative agreements with those tribes wanting continued state assistance," Olson said.

The policy, effective immediately, applies to all Indian lands with the exception of Cochiti Lake, where the department will continue to manage fish and wildlife in accordance with an existing agreement.

Olson said the department wrote the policy after reviewing, with the state Attorney General's office, the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals ruling that the department does not have authority to enforce state hunting and fishing laws on the Mescalero Apache Reservation.

The appeals court decision upheld an earlier ruling at the district court level and is being appealed by the state to the United States Supreme Court.

"We believe the decision as written actually pertains only to the Mescalero Reservation," Olson said, "but there is little point in inviting another suit of the same nature wherein we could expect the same results. Until the Supreme Court or Congress clears up the jurisdictional question, we feel we have no alternative to this policy."

As part of the policy, the department invited each tribe and pueblo to enter into cooperative agreements authorizing department officers to enter reservations to enforce state wildlife laws or conduct wildlife management programs. He said any such agreements will be announced when they are signed.

Discontinuation of state wildlife law enforcement within reservation boundaries does not mean a person could illegally take an animal on a reservation and be immune from prosecution, Olson said.

"Any person outside a reservation with game animals or fish he claims were taken on Indian land will be required to produce official tribal documents showing legal possession, or he will be arrested and prosecuted under state law," Olson said. "Those illegally hunting or fishing within reservation boundaries are subject to prosecution under federal laws."

Wildlife management programs on reservations can be handled under emergency or long-term agreements with the respective tribes, he said.

"Any departmental assistance in handling wildlife depredation against crops or livestock on a reservation will require a prior request from the tribal government and my approval before any action is taken," Olson said.

"Requests for assistance in management programs such as aerial game surveys or rough fish eradication will also require my approval, and may require State Game Commission approval as well, depending on the kinds or amounts of money involved."

There are 19 Indian pueblos and three reservations in New Mexico. State laws will apply to Indians hunting or fishing outside reservations.

Eberle reception scheduled

Ruidoso Gymnastics Association (RGA) is hosting a Sunday reception from 4-6 p.m., in honor of new coach John Eberle.

"All parents, students and anyone who's interested are invited to attend," RGA president Jeanie Whitman said.

Eberle became the new RGA coach November 1.

Recoding of deer hunt dates today

New Mexico Game and Fish Department officers will be available today in Ruidoso and Carrizozo to change deer hunt stratification dates for hunters.

Officers will be in the Ruidoso police department and the Lincoln County Sheriff's office in Carrizozo until 6 p.m., today, to change dates.

License vendors code deer licenses at the time of purchase, but hunters may change their dates to a more suitable time at a later date.

This year's hunts are November 8-9; November 12-16; and November 19-25.

Changes in the date can only be made by Game and Fish employees using special stamps, and must be made before the deadline, which is the day before the opening of the hunt period the license is coded for on November 7, 11 or 18.

Although licenses for the November 8-9 hunt can be recoded Friday, Bill Montoya, assistant department director, warns conservation officers could be hard to find at times other than today.

"Hunters who wait until deadline day to find a Game and Fish officer may be out of luck," Montoya said. "Our officers are often out of town and keeping odd hours due to night patrol and other types of work typical of deer season."

Wilderness Wisdom

with Wayne Calloway

READER COMMENT — I am a sportsman in every respect. I was raised with nature's way and to use wisely what it has provided. To consume and not to waste. But our Michigan deer hunting season is a tremendous waste. A waste of our dollars and of good meat. Pound for pound, I would exchange beef for venison.

Hundreds of deer (not an exaggeration) are shot and lost to hunters because of no snow. Our deer season is too early! When the first deer is lost after an endless search, more are shot, wounded, and lost by the hunter because they couldn't be trailed. This takes a heavy toll on our deer herd. Our season should be the second or third week of December, when snows usually prevail.

It is very disgusting to see deer lying to rot, until for use. Many hunters here have seen the same thing and share my feelings. I just wish they would voice their concern also. Rod R., Michigan

Dear Rod — I share your concern for such a waste of a natural resource, but I believe the real answer lies in better training of hunters. In my own state, snow cover during deer season is very rare, and in most of the southern states, it never exists. Even so, responsible hunters in these regions are very adept in tracking deer without benefit of snow and the lack of it isn't viewed as a handicap.

Most states set their deer seasons to coincide with the rut (mating season). This is definitely in the hunter's favor because deer are easier to approach at this time. With the passing of rut they become more cautious and alert.

I'm not trying to sidestep the issue because it can be a very serious problem. I do think that before a person accepts the responsibility of a deer hunter, he or she is obligated to acquire the skills needed to track a wounded deer should the necessity arise. Granted, a deer may be occasionally lost to the best hunter, but the number should be minimal. When a deer bounds into cover after a shot, don't assume that it was a clean miss. Investigate to be absolutely certain.

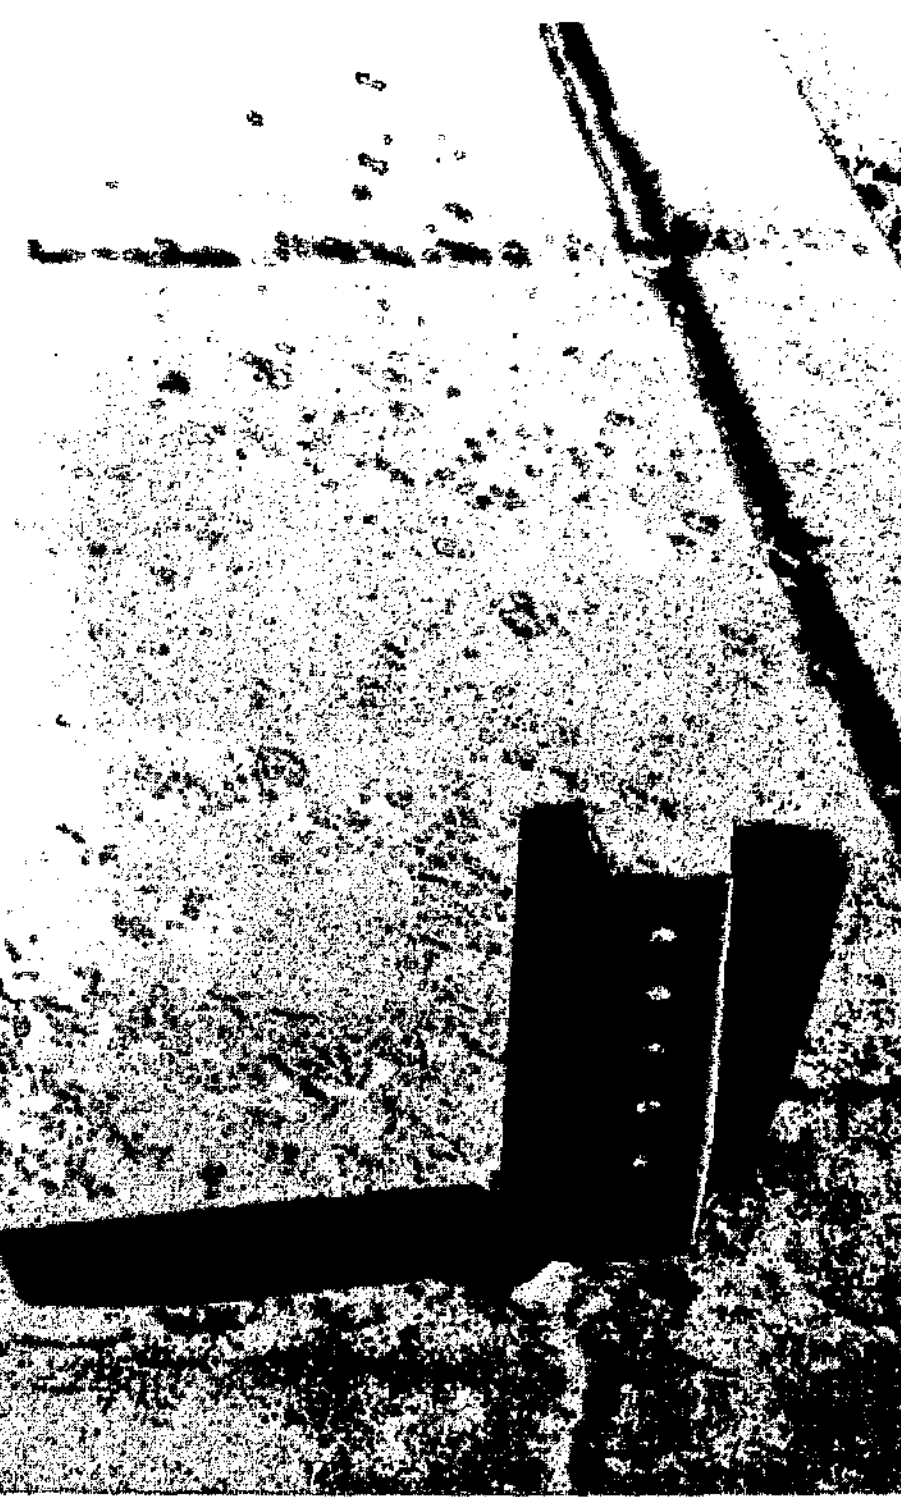

TIP FROM READER — Dove hunters know how difficult it can be to locate downed birds without a dog. Some might believe that if a bird is down but can't be located, it doesn't count against their total bag limit. Take a lesson from someone who knows! Whether you find the birds or not, if a game warden finds enough in the field to put you over the bag limit, including the ones you have retrieved, you're subject to a fine. And chances are good you'll be assessed one.

It makes good sense to use a dog when dove hunting, but for some reason only a minority do. Jack R., Maryland.

The best reason to buy a new Lindal.

Last year's price.

If you've waited to buy a new Lindal Cedar Home, you're in luck. Because for a limited time, we've rolled back prices on all Lindals to April 1979 levels. Here's how to qualify: Buy any Lindal Cedar Home before November 30, 1980, worth $25,000 or more. Take delivery before January 31, 1981. That's it. Plus, you'll earn 10% interest on your deposit from the day of order to January 31, 1981. Visit us for complete details on how to get this year's Lindal at last year's price.

Buying a Lindal before November 30 can save you thousands.

Birthdays For
Edith Coe Boyce
And Craig Whipple
Two fine folks celebrated birthdays in October, and just barely inside the blue and golden Indian Summer Month.

Mrs. Edith Coe Boyce, life-long pioneer resident of Lincoln County, and our great little neighbor, Craig Whipple, celebrated birthdays together on October thirty-one. The celebration took place at the home of Paul and Nellie Ruth Jones down at what the old timers used to call "The Narrows." The Narrows has some of the most beautiful displays of Indian Summer oak brush in the world, and this mountain tapestry was in full glory on the last day of October, celebrating the birthday of these two beloved people.

Edith is one of the famous Coe sisters, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Coe, early settlers in the Ruidoso Valley.

Nellie Ruth is the niece of Edith, being the daughter of the late and beloved Helena Coe Lemay.

Craig Whipple is married to Annell Jones, eldest daughter of Paul and Nellie Ruth. They have a fine young son, Jim Paul Whipple.

We wish Edith and Craig all God's blessings and many happy returns of the day.

A Message From
Vic Lamb

I received a cheery message the other day from Vic Lamb over in Sedona, Arizona. Vic says he misses the valley at this time of year with all the leaf colors and blue sky weather. After handing me a bouquet for cheering folks up, and pointing out the beauties of that "wonderful little corner of the world," he went on to say he had an idea for something to write about.

"It's Leroy Gooch, band teacher at Ruidoso schools, who has been an inspiration for hundreds of youngsters with his gentle persuasion to 'get into music.' He has hundreds of young people who remember him from their years under his baton — and he is still as patient and encouraging with every new class."

We all agree with Vic on this idea a hundred percent.

Leroy is certainly a valuable and greatly beloved citizen of Lincoln County.

He does a great deal of good in the world, not only with teaching music but in many other ways. I wrote a little something about Leroy years ago when he very kindly took time out of his busy life to write the music for me to a little song I put together about Billy The Kid.

Leroy has been written up many times in The Ruidoso News through the years, and we will have to follow up Vic's idea and bring out some more stories about Leroy, one of Ruidoso's favorite citizens.

My father and mother wanted me to write a little volume to cheer folks up, and I took the matter up with Vic when he was editor of The Ruidoso News, and he gave me every encouragement and support.

It is great to hear from Vic, and you can tell he has fond memories of Lincoln County.

Indian Summer
In Full Glory

The mellow Indian Summer days are still with us, with the warm weather through the day and crisp cool nights. This is one of the most beautiful times of the year, when we store up strength of body and mind to carry us through the winter. Let me say again, that apples are a great source of health, and there are still apples available up and down the valley.

The orchards down around San Patricio are especially pretty this year in their golden leaves, the pear trees especially, with a touch of maroon in the gold.

Let us thank God for Indian Summer Days and all our other many blessings.

Inside The Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE — Through the Department of Energy, the federal government got involved in developing that geothermal project near Jemez. Their intention was to learn what to expect in such developments, so they can pass that information on to others.

Now they know what to look for: confusion, contrived delays, and unnecessary but back-breaking expense.

At least that's what you get when you try to push such a project in New Mexico. The Public Service Commission has yet to rule on whether the project can go forward, though the DOE, in its quest for new energy sources, is willing to put up more than half of the $130 million the job is expected to cost.

Environmentalists who are opposing construction brag that it costs Public Service Company of New Mexico, one of the three partners in the development, $60,000 a day for each 24 hours the Public Service Commission defers its decision.

At that rate, PNM, as well as the third party at interest, Union Oil, through a wholly owned subsidiary, may well be considering throwing in their chips.

That would be too bad.

Union already has eight years invested in the project, which will take steam from below the surface of the earth to run turbines in an electrical generating plant. After the steam turns to water, it's returned to the area from which it came, 3,000 to 9,000 feet deep.

It's hard to see how a single generating plant in a site which is about 144 square miles in size is going to glop up the area too much, though that's one of the opponents' points of opposition.

They also speak sharply about the distasteful aroma of the hydrogen sulfide the project will generate, though interestingly enough they do not seem to find that same smell unpleasant when it comes from the hot springs in the area. Though the stink is man-made at one location and natural at another, the effect on the olfactory nerves is about the same.

Public Service Company has also developed a system for turning the hydrogen sulfide into elemental sulfur.

If that objection won't work, of course, oppositionists will find another.

Meanwhile, a plant which could be capable of producing electrical power for 50,000 people in a manner which is almost as environmentally acceptable as the generation of solar power waits and waits, as do the more than 200 jobs which would be added to our economy.

That's an annual payroll of about $5 million our state gets no benefit from and $3 million in annual purchases that aren't being made, because objection after objection is being raised as the opposing forces enjoy demonstrating their power.

Meanwhile, over in Grants, another uranium mine has shut its doors, victim to that mix of declining prices, higher costs and climbing taxes.

George Warnock, president of Todilto Exploration which operated the Piedra Triste mine, called the state's recently upped severance tax "the straw that broke the camel's back."

That makes about 1,000 miners and other whose jobs have been lost in the Grants area this year.

Where did that uranium boom we looked for go?

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

It is so important for us to exercise our right to vote but apathy and frustration snag a lot of registered voters before they make it to the voting booth.

I hate to think that inadequate information about the proper precinct in which to vote can add to that frustration. Since our precincts have changed, people are confused. The description you gave of the precincts was helpful but NOT ENOUGH. Further explanation and a simple map could have helped so much. I saw a dozen people waiting to vote being turned away again and sent to yet another precinct.

Please, let's not add to voter frustration in this way anymore. Your newspaper can be such a powerful tool — if only to help the voter get to the right voting booth, the first time!

'SENSELESS CENSUS'

The United States census, in its traditional form, may have just about outlived its usefulness.

The woeful inadequacy of the Census Bureau's data-gathering techniques is again a cause celebre among big-city mayors, who until recently stood to lose a bundle in federal grant money as a result of the 1980 short count.

Salvation (if indeed it comes) rests now with the federal courts. In Detroit a United States district judge has heeded the cry of the cities and has ordered an upward adjustment of the bureau's admittedly faulty figures to take into account the thousands of citizens — mostly minorities — who either did not return their census forms or were never discovered by the platoons of fieldworkers sent out to look for them.

The ruling is a godsend for most of the nation's urban areas, including Atlanta, which filed a supporting brief in the case. It means more money for the cities and also, in many cases, an end to fears that they might lose representation in Congress.

What all this means is that in the end we will wind up with a population count that is little more than a guess — a sophisticated guess, it may be, based on "statistically defensible" techniques — yet a guess nevertheless.

So what we have to ask ourselves is whether a guess — however sophisticated — is really worth the millions we are spending on it every 10 years. The Census Bureau has enemies enough as it is, without continually raising new questions about its wastefulness and ineffectiveness. Conservative critics have long charged the bureau with a violation of privacy guarantees inherent in the Bill of Rights. And many ordinary citizens have tended to agree, often refusing to return the forms regardless of how innocuous the questions may seem on any objective reading. Threats of criminal penalties against those who fail to comply are widely ignored, because everybody knows the Census Bureau doesn't really intend to press charges anyway.

Perhaps, then, the time has come for the bureau to abandon its traditional field worker approach to the population count. Statistical experts and computers can apparently do the job more accurately, and certainly with more efficiency and at much less cost, than the census takers themselves.

One does not have to take too seriously all those charges about invasion of privacy to wonder if this isn't one small way that we can indeed begin to cut down on the amount of federal intrusion into our lives. — News Bulletin, Belem

EMINENT TYRANNY

A blow for liberty was struck in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Four small businessmen in that city won an out-of-court settlement from giant P.P. G. Industries which, the businessmen charge was in cohorts with local officials.

P. P. G. wanted the land on which the four's shops stood. The storekeepers wanted to keep their stores. The Pittsburgh Urban Renewal body condemned the land so P. P. G. could build a skyscraper on it. As a result of the suit, P. P. G. will build them new stores around the corner.

Eminent domain, the government's right to seize private land, was conceived as a device to insure the completion of socially valuable public projects. Alas, over the years it has grown to represent a threat to citizens' rights. How can a person say he owns land, his home, a factory if at any moment an official group can seize them from him? Local school boards have made frequent — and often unjustifiable — use of eminent domain to condemn property because owners would not sell voluntarily, but perhaps the boards preferred the views from those sites. Ancient homesteads, valuable farm land and thriving shops have ceased to exist or have been buried under asphalt through this legal mechanism.

At least school boards are elected. Who elects the urban renewal boards that condemn so much private property each year?

No government should be able to seize private property if it is not willing to make a clear case for its need to do so, and be vulnerable to public dissatisfaction if its decisions are not accepted by the public. — Del Norte County News, Fort Sumner editorial

Governor Bruce King's charges that allegations of mishandling of the state's Permanent Fund was a Republican pre-election ploy, to discredit Democrats, is a little hard to swallow.

The investigation stemmed from charges leveled in July by State Senator John B. Irick, a Republican, that perhaps the fund was being mishandled.

The investigation was headed by Attorney General Jeff Bingaman, a Democrat, on Democrat David King's call for same, with Democrat John "Pete" Donahue as the chief investigator.

The allegations in the Attorney General's report are that Investment Officer Jose "Sam" Garcia accepted a bid of $18.75 a share on 240,000 shares of stock, when he had a firm bid of $19 per share. The twenty-five cents a share difference amounted to $60,000.

Also of interest is the fact that the $18.75 per share stock was priced at $19.37 a share at closing time the day of the sale. The next week this stock carried a $23.75 per share value. That $5 per share increase put the stock's value at $1.2 million more than the state realized from the sale.

If the allegations prove to be true, Garcia's action cost the state $60,000 on the day of the sale. It remains to be seen who had knowledge that there was an excellent chance of the stock increasing in value $5 a share in a week after the sale. Such inside knowledge is not unheard of in financial circles.

The problem we're having with Governor King's statements, considering that the action was instigated by Democrats, and the findings released by a Democrat, is his charge that the affair was a Republican campaign maneuver.

What's really interesting about this situation is speculating on what the initial report of findings would have been if they had been released by a group of Republican fact finders determined to hang Governor King's hide from the closest political fence on the eve of this year's election? — CD

HONEST HOBGOBLINS!

I just gotta speak out in defense of a few young and frightful hobgoblins who were out en masse Halloween ... 'cause they gave my hopes for the future ... with it lying in the hands of these youngsters ... a tremendous boost ... convincing me that all is not lost, so far as these youngsters themselves are concerned.

Came about this way. I couldn't be at home to heckle the wee ones as they munched their "Trick or Treat" ... so, under a bright light, and based on dispersals of Halloween past ... I did deposit 18 candy bars ... on the stoop ... trusting the treats would be taken ... and that no tricks, due to being in absentia on this memorable occasion, would result.

Upon returning to the domicile about 9:30, I espied, upon the stoop, exactly eight candy bars ... with no evidence of tricks.

Now I ask you ... if'n this fr instance isn't enough to buoy your possibly fading faith in the younger generation, I'm certain nothing would.

And to those young hobgoblins who availed themselves of my largesse ... taking only what they'd have received if'n I'd been home ... my thanks ... and who says that temptation can't be overcome ... even when those tempted just could have been harboring a sweet tooth ... now THAT'S incredible.

A REAL SKIN GAME

There's going to be a skin game flourishing in Capitan Friday beginning at 7 p.m. ... in the County Fair building ... a real, honest to goodness, skin game ... all about skinning fur bearing beasts.

John Henley ... who has been known to catch sizeable rattlesnakes ... and run a trap line or three ... is interested in having anyone interested in a skinning demonstration attend ... and the guy doing the demonstrating is coming from Las Cruces ... just to teach trappers how to skin out the pelts of animals they catch in their traps.

The sponsors of this skin game are the members of the Lincoln County Trappers Association ... a group interested in promoting trapping on a humane basis ... and harvesting the pelts ... which tends to reduce the number of predators to kinda keep nature's scheme of things on an even keel.

HOPES FOR THE HOSTAGES

Monday's news, on the 365th day 52 Americans were held hostage in Iran ... on the whim of the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini ... set forth four conditions for the release of the hostages ... with no assurance once the conditions are met that there might not be more forthcoming.

At the best, the news was heartening ... for the hostages ... 'cause it could mean that freedom is merely days away. At the worst, we'll have to wait to see what'll happen to other of our embassies in small nations ... 'cause others just might start getting ideas as to how to further embarrass the United States ... and well they could, 'cause they have the established precedent that our government is powerless to help themselves when it comes to dealing with the seizing of our property and personnel in little nations ... possibly even in world powers ... a situation that should cause those in a position of power to deal with such crises to lose both a lot of sleep and a lot of face.

CHILD OF THE MONTH

For some months now The News has carried releases from the Human Services Department in Alamogordo, featuring pictures and information about foster home children available for adoption.

Out of the last nine children available for adoption, two have been placed ... three are more than likely to be adopted ... an Indian tribe has expressed interest in adopting two children ... and two little girls have several adoptive families showing more than casual interest in their future.

The surprising thing about this interest ... and participation ... by people ... is that the agency hasn't pulled any punches about the hangups of these children ... they've stressed that each child will require a lot of love ... and understanding ... and cooperation ... from their adoptive parents.

The disadvantages of dealing with a disadvantaged child has been made apparent ... and, based on the success record, there are people with love to share with a child ... people who want to help a child develop so that they may make their way on their own ... who says compassion went out with the dodo bird?

BRIEF BIT: The trouble with the recent electioneering being passed is that the next go round is just a short 16 months away ... CD

THE LAMP OF LIBERTY

Wilderness Wisdom

with Wayne Calloway

Dear Wayne — Quite a few rods are being written today about "no-kill" fishing. There are more and more streams and rivers that are being placed in the catch-and-release category. Sometimes this is done because the fish may be unsafe to eat, other times because fish populations are depleting.

While I'm not really against such a program, I wonder if fish populations are really enhanced by this practice. I suppose one reason for my skepticism is because I have read that many caught fish are doomed to die even if they are released. If this is true, it would have little effect. Would you comment on this. Ben B., Virginia

Dear Ben — "No-kill", or release fishing, has been practiced for many years on some heavily fished trout streams, and there is no doubt of its success. This practice has stabilized or increased fish populations that would have otherwise been depleted. It does work.

I have long advocated returning fish to water if they weren't going to be used. I have seen stringers of fish that I knew were not going to be used in any way except to build the angler's ego. I really believe these displays are much less fashionable today than they were several years back. Few people are impressed by an endless stringer of dead fish that will serve no more than to fertilize a small spot of earth behind somebody's house. If the fish can be used as food, that's great.

aren't seriously injured by the hook or the angler they stand a pretty good chance. Certainly infinitely better than if they aren't put back at all.

No-kill fishing is rapidly gaining popularity, even in areas that do not require it. As fishing pressure increases, so will the need to release the catch. But then, many anglers have been releasing their catch for years, unless it represents a trophy or a mouth-watering meal. I think this practice is only common sense. If more people willingly followed suit it probably wouldn't be necessary to pass a law to demand it.

Dear Wayne — I have seen pictures of tents which were equipped with wood burning stoves, complete with stovepipes. I am interested in winter camping, but somewhat afraid of a stove in the tent. Isn't this a dangerous practice? Lem S., Minnesota

Dear Sam — It certainly can be. Stoves are most often used in fairly large wall tents, and even then only for an outing of several days.

The stovepipe hole is in the back of the tent and is fitted with an asbestos collar. The outside portion of the pipe must be sufficiently secured to insure no contact with the tent. The stove must have adequate clearance on all sides. This will severely limit useable space in all but the largest of tents. The fire should be kept low and should not be left unattended for very long.

There is no doubt that some fish caught and released won't make it, but if they

Emergency Feed Program extended through May 1

The Emergency Feed Program (EFP) has been under way in Lincoln County since August, according to Allen K. Trammell, County Executive Director for the Lincoln County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee.

The Emergency Feed Program feeding period was to have ended October 31 but the Lincoln County ASC Committee has extended the program. In some areas of the county the recent rains came too late to permit development of sufficient forage. The new feeding period has been set at November 1 — May 15, 1981.

The program has been authorized to provide financial assistance for purchasing livestock feed in quantities larger than the livestock owner normally would purchase. To be eligible for assistance, the person must have suffered a 40 percent loss in feed normally produced for such person's livestock. To apply for assistance during the feeding period of November 1 —

May 15, a Lincoln County livestock producer's range conditions must be at least 40% below normal as of November 1.

County personnel are currently making on-farm visits to verify the information furnished by the EFP applicant. Spot checking is required to assure that the program is being offered as specified in the enabling legislation. Spot checking will also include the verification of sales receipts of feed purchases from feed dealers and individuals selling feed.

The amount of EFP assistance is based upon the amount and cost of feed purchased. Applicants are required to furnish original or carbon copies of feed purchase receipts to the county office before any payments are made.

An applicant may lose all program benefits for three years and be subject to federal and civil fraud statutes and up to $10,000 in fines if feed receipts are altered or false data is supplied to obtain program benefits for which the person is not entitled.

I-n-s-i-d-e the Outdoors

by Gary Dollahan

Have you found yourself waking up well before sunrise here lately without the aid of an alarm clock?

As you walk or drive to work, do you find yourself looking to the skies for the familiar V-formation of cranes and geese?

Once at work, do you find yourself often daydreaming of being in the fresh smelling woods, drinking a cup of coffee while huddling close to a small fire? Or perhaps daydreaming of walking through a field with your faithful hunting dog?

If your answer to each of these questions was a "yes," then you will probably be one of more than 20 million Americans who will take advantage this year of at least one of the many hunting opportunities available in our nation.

Now, most of these hunters realize after the seasons have come and gone, and after they have met substantial expenses for licenses, gasoline, food, lodging, etc., the cost per pound of meat brought home will be far more expensive than just about anything purchased over the grocery counter.

In fact, the majority of those big game hunting will not kill anything, and the majority of those bird hunting will kill far fewer birds than allowed by law.

For example, in New Mexico last year, eight out of every 10 big game hunters hunting deer with a rifle did NOT get their deer. In addition, that same year almost 22,000 hunters hunted quail during a 65 day season which allowed limits of 16 quail per day, 30 in possession.

Even so, the average number of quail killed per hunter for the ENTIRE season was 13.

Yet, these people will buy their licenses, year in and year out, and continue to go hunting. But why?

Well, there are those among the anti-hunting peers who say hunters are unstable individuals looking to "set aside family responsibilities — spit on the floor, forget about shaving, drink their whiskey neat, and gross each other out with their tail tales."

These anti-hunters view hunters as drunken, girl-chasing, blood thirsty individuals who kill cattle, horses, sheep, and mules on a regular basis.

Fortunately for all of us, such is not the case. Sure, there are individuals who do hunt that deserve such criticism, but there are just as many characters participating in other sports, whether it be horse racing, skiing, or whatever. Even so, you can't condemn the whole lot.

So, what is a hunter?

A hunter is an individual, male or female, who dedicates a great deal of time and money to the sport of hunting and to all species of wildlife. A successful hunt for such an individual does not have to be one in which a game animal was bagged.

Instead, all hunts for this individual are a success.

Success is having good hunting and camping partners. Success is seeing and enjoying all of nature's wonders — the vegetation turning colors, the beautiful sunrises and sunsets, and the mysterious sounds of night.

Success is enjoying all the wildlife, not just the game animals. There are the squirrels chattering at you from above, the birds singing overhead, the rabbits scurrying off, and the coyotes howling as if for no reason at all.

There are the deer and the elk that might stand motionless for a brief moment when first spotted, before disappearing as if by magic.

There are the antelope that can gracefully cover a great distance in a short time. Some successful hunters are even lucky enough to see a bald eagle soaring overhead.

The real sport hunter should be proud of his sport, for he has obtained a great deal of first hand knowledge about wildlife and the out-of-doors, and has contributed much to them.

For the sloth hunters, those who have given all hunters the drunken, blood-thirsty image, let us have confidence the law will deal with them.

Social Security information

EVIDENCE REQUIRED FOR GETTING A SOCIAL SECURITY CARD

Procedures requiring evidence of age, identity, and United States citizenship for social security number applicants are no longer new. Even so, avoidable processing delays are still being encountered by applicants for new and replacement social security cards. They are surprised and disappointed when they find it will take as long as six weeks for the card to be issued. For this reason, persons applying for a social security number should do so well before it is needed.

Everyone who applies for a new number, including young children, needs evidence of age, identity, and United States citizenship or lawful admission status. In addition, a person applying for a replacement card or changing his or her name must provide evidence establishing his or her identity.

The best evidence of a person's age is a birth certificate or a church record of birth or baptism recorded before his or her fifth birthday.

Evidence of identity which is acceptable may include just about any document which has your signature, photograph or physical description. Acceptable proofs of identity include: driver's license, voter's registration, marriage record, divorce decree, insurance policy, draft card, military identification, United States passport, or any other document showing identifying data.

Parents sometimes have difficulty providing evidence of identity for their children. Documents which will establish a young child's identity include: report card, school identification card, baby's hospital wrist band, newspaper birth announcement, baby book, clinic or doctor's record, vaccination certificate, day care or nursery school record, or membership card.

This is not an exclusive list, so if none of these are available, people at any social security office may be able to suggest other evidence that can be submitted. To summarize, at least two documents must be presented — one to establish age or citizenship and one to establish identity. Only original or certified copies may be used.

For more information, contact any social security office for the free leaflet, "Applying for a Social Security Number." The address of the Roswell Social Security Office is the Federal Building at the corner of 5th and Richardson Streets. The telephone number is 625-7780.

Scientists see 'positive' effects in eruptions of Mt. St. Helens

In the area around Washington's Mt. St. Helens, the future looks bleak. As a result of the volcano's devastating eruptions, more than 70 people died or disappeared, 240 miles of woodland were obliterated, 28 lakes were destroyed, nearly 11 million fish and 1.5 million other animals were wiped out.

The losses, estimated at more than $1 billion, are hard to exaggerate and the short-term prognosis seems grim.

But according to National Wildlife magazine, some scientists foresee "some positive long-range effects" of the blasts after nature has worked to restore the area. Among them:

—Volcanic ash will eventually enrich the soil and some new plant species will probably appear.

—Changes in wildlife habitat should enhance the populations of many creatures. For example, the mountain bluebird, which is attracted to snagged trees, is expected to flourish.

—Scientists will have, as one of them put it, "a rare opportunity to see how the earth regenerates itself . . . In some places, everything must start all over again."

And finally, not listed by the scientists, but noted by Washington state business leaders, the area will become a tourist attraction. The United States Forest Service reported more than 4,000 daily visitors to the Mt. St. Helens area in August.

Meanwhile, scientists are looking for signs that the area around Mt. St. Helens is beginning to heal. According to the report in the current issue of National Wildlife on the volcano's effects, some insect populations — vital links in the food chain — are already showing signs of recovery. And Forest Service biologist Bill Ruediger told the National Wildlife Federation's bimonthly publication that he believed deer and elk will return to the region rather quickly, "particularly around the edges of the blast zone where there is adequate cover."

While Washington officials mourn the devastation of the 145-mile Toutle River, one of the few remaining undammed rivers in the Northwest, they feel sure that the river's flow will return to normal and its huge population of salmon and trout will return. Biologists have discovered that some salmon have already navigated through the high levels of silt in the Cowlitz River — another waterway that was severely damaged.

One factor which makes scientists optimistic about the damaged region's recovery is history. "In geologic terms," explains National Wildlife, "Mt. St. Helens is a relatively young volcano, just one in a string of 15 major ones in the Cascade range that runs from British Columbia to northern California." During the past 200 years, eight of these mountains have erupted; the most recent was California's Mt. Lassen, which blew more than 170 times between 1914 and 1921.

Periodically, these mountain peaks have poured vast rivers of mud into surrounding areas. One such mudflow descended Mt. Rainier about 600 years ago, smothering the Puyallup River. When the first white explorers arrived in western Washington 400 years later, the Puyallup was stocked with chinook, steelhead, cutthroat and coho. And its banks were crowded with big timber.

So the Puyallup did recover. "And the same thing will happen around Mt. St. Helens," Washington Department of Game official Jon Gilstrom assured National Wildlife. Until then, scientists will be watching carefully. "We're going to learn how to plan ahead for such blasts, how to cope with the ash, what to do with plugged-up waterways," a federal geologist told the magazine.

Obviously, there is no way to prevent volcanic eruptions. As Gilstrom concludes in the National Wildlife report, "What happened at Mt. St. Helens has happened a thousand times before in the Pacific Northwest and will surely happen again. Nature has a way of taking care of herself."

Roses subject to winter injury

Rose gardeners, beware. Winter injury to your plants could be just around the corner.

Should you protect your plants? "That's hard to say," said James Sals, Extension horticulturist for New Mexico State University. "There are experts who believe that the less protection the better, while others go through painstaking extremes to provide protection."

Winter injury simply means damage to plant tissue from low temperatures. Parts of the plant, usually the exposed portions, may be killed immediately or hurt so badly that they gradually die.

Cold temperatures alone don't kill roses, Sals said. A steady cold with gradual temperature changes often will not damage mature plants.

However, rapid temperature fluctuations, alternate freezing and thawing

Cotton exports higher than in past 53 years

United States cotton exports from August 1979 to July 1980 reached the highest level in 53 years, said Tom Kerby, Extension cotton and weed control specialist for New Mexico State University. "Exports totaled 8.6 million running bales, 50 percent above the amount exported last year."

Foreign demand was strong as world consumption increased two million bales to total 65 million bales during the season.

Last season the United States harvested a large crop and sold to both domestic and foreign buyers. Russia, the second largest exporter, reported a record cotton crop, but was a reluctant seller in export markets, Kerby said.

China sharply increased purchases of cotton and is now America's largest foreign cotton market. China has the largest textile industry in the world and is expanding its foreign-exchange earnings through textile exports.

American exports to Japan, the largest United States market in 1979-80, rose to 1.5 million bales. Korea took 1.4 million bales. "Together these three oriental markets absorbed 58 percent of United States cotton exports," Kerby said.

"The 1980-81 export outlook is promising, but will probably not be as good as last year," Kerby said. The supply-demand balance is tight because of lower beginning stocks and a smaller 1980-81 United States crop. "With such a short crop, and United States cotton prices running above the world market price, exports may drop to six million bales," Kerby said.

and exposure to wind may actually be more damaging to plants than a steady cold. New Mexico often has great temperature fluctuations.

One of the best defenses against winter injury is proper summer care. Vigorous, healthy roses are better able to withstand winter injury. Don't over-stimulate roses with fertilizer late in the season. Be especially cautious of nitrogen fertilizer which may prevent the wood from maturing. Also avoid pruning late in the season since it often stimulates new growth.

The simplest way to protect roses against winter injury is to pile the soil in a cone or hill at the base of the plant, covering the canes 8-12 inches above the ground. Don't scrape soil from the rose bed to make this mound. This practice exposes the root system of the plant. Instead use fresh soil from another garden location or well-rotted compost.

Add organic mulch to the mound for even more protection. The mulch, hay or straw should be added after the first hard freeze, Sals said.

If you live in an area with very cold winters, buy special rose caps that fit over the entire bush. Tie the canes together and prune them to fit under the cap.

You can make your own rose cap from a cylinder of tar paper or chicken wire mesh, Sals said. Fit the material around the bush and stake it to the ground to keep the wind from blowing it over.

In both cases, use the protective soil mound. Fill in the remaining area in the cap with mulching material.

Protect tree roses by covering them with straw and wrapping them in burlap.

Don't get too anxious to remove the winter protection next spring. Roses begin to bud out quite early in the spring, although cold weather may still be in store. Keep some extra straw or similar mulching material on hand to cover plants in the event of severe late spring frosts, Sals said.

M-X power sources sought by Air Force

The Air Force will seek Congressional approval to begin an estimated $202 million project to design and develop alternate power sources for the M-X missile system.

Known as the M-X Renewable Energy Systems (M-X/RES), the project is jointly sponsored by the Defense and Energy Departments. Its goal is to reduce United States dependence on fossil fuel by accelerating development of commercial versions of solar, wind, geothermal, and biomass (waste-to-energy) electrical generating plants.

If Congress approves, experts will assess, during 1981 and 1982, renewable energy resources available in the proposed M-X deployment areas. The project will also fund a design competition among approximately 25 contractors to develop systems which can provide the average 100 megawatts needed for all 4,600 M-X shelters and other support facilities.

Besides powering the M-X system, the proposed project will speed up development and demonstration of marketable systems for commercial use.

Plans call for building prototypes of the most promising designs in mid-1982. Prototypes will be tested at Hill Air Force Base (AFB), Utah, Nellis AFB, Nevada; and other suitable bases in the Southwest. If successful and approved by Congress, large scale production for M-X use will start in 1984.

Planners see the proposed system of small generating facilities, colocated with M-X protective structures and integrated into M-X operating base designs, as better suited to the desert environment. In addition, the system can reduce M-X's life-cycle costs and vulnerability to sabotage.

The successful renewable energy system can be used at other Air Force and Defense Department installations. Project designs will include how the system could be used commercially to help reduce United States dependence on imported oil for electrical power.

New assistant district manager named by BLM

Richard Bastin, a veteran of 20 years of service with the United States Bureau of Land Management (BLM), is the new assistant district manager of the federal agency's Ruidoso district office.

Bastin, 43, will assist district manager James "Smoke" O'Connor in directing multiple-use management on about 3.5 million acres of federal public land surface and 3 million acres of federal minerals in Chaves, Roosevelt, De Baca, Lincoln, Quay, Guadalupe, Curry, Eddy and Lea counties and all federal minerals in Texas.

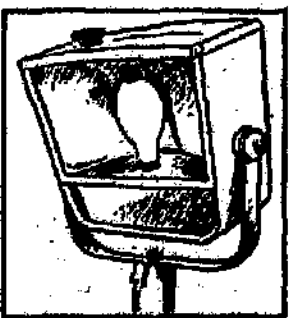

A native of Cloverdale, Indiana, Bastin received a bachelor of science degree in forestry from Purdue University in 1959. He began his BLM degree that year in Prineville, Oregon. Later assignments were in Coos Bay and Roseburg, Oregon; Folsom, California; and Cheyenne, Wyoming. He has worked as a forester, project engineer, access specialist and budget analyst.

Leased Floodlighting

directs light where your business needs added safety and security

With outdoor leased floodlighting, you can help prevent accidents on your business property by directing light where you need it most. No more stumbling in the dark around poorly lighted stairways, loading docks and parking lots! Your employees will appreciate the safety and convenience and, good outdoor lighting also helps discourage vandalism. Leased floodlighting is automatic — on at dusk, off at dawn, protecting your employees and your property for just pennies per night. To get the added safety and security of leased floodlighting for your business, just give us a call.

Water skiers add color to Sunland horse races

BY MIKE MAGDA

Once the lake in the middle of Sunland Park Race Track was developed after digging unexpectedly struck an underground spring, it attracted the anxious minds of a few young water skiers from the El Paso area. What better way, they felt, to complement the unusual lake in the desert Southwest than to form a ski club? "There was just a bunch of us who enjoyed water skiing at the time," said Phil Barrett, one of the charter members when the Sunland Ski Team formed in 1960. "We went to the track management and offered to help them out if they would help us."

The club's original proposal was to develop shows and perform for the track patrons on weekends in return for financial assistance to purchase equipment. The lake would also become the private training facility for the Sunland Ski Team.

"Most of us had been skiing at Ascarate Lake," said Barrett, who now operates a refrigeration company. "This was the first opportunity to learn to jump and perform on our own without interference from other boats."

The original 23 members were received enthusiastically by the early crowds with their shows that were sometimes performed in snowstorms. None of the charter members continue to perform, but the club is still doing well every weekend for the spectators' enjoyment.

"Our objective is to ski all winter and promote water skiing as a winter sport in the Southwest," said ski team president Gerry Ramsey, who is beginning his ninth year with the club. "All of the members like to keep active and we all enjoy skiing. You have to enjoy it to ski in the winter."

The ski team's color guard, flagshow and human kite flying act have become routine acts for the Sunland crowd. Other feats involving pyramids, barefoot skiing and ballet movements have been featured in various performances.

Ski jumping used to be the show's highlight. But repairs to the jump became too costly for the act to remain. Ramsey said she hopes the money may be raised soon for repairs, or even possibly a new jump. "That used to be one of the most exciting parts of the show," said Ramsey.

"We've had to make other repairs to the boat and purchase some new equipment, so right now we don't have the money."

There are 14 senior members of the team this year as Sunland Park is into its 21st season. Most are students at the University of Texas at El Paso and have been with the club less than two years.

"In 1978 we lost six senior members," Ramsey said. "We had to go out and recruit a lot of young blood. It was tough during their first year, but I think we've put together an outstanding show."

A tribute to the rebuilding came this summer when the team was asked to perform a 1 1/2-hour show at Del Rio, Texas, for two days. The team has also performed annually at Garishad for the past six years.

"This is a real honor to be asked to perform for other cities," Ramsey said.

Besides Ramsey, the other veteran of this year's team is Clifford Strachman, an accountant who has been with the club for 13 years. He is the pilot of the kite that lands on the racetrack after flying over 300 feet above the grounds. Strachman, 50, is also an excellent freestyle skier. The Odessa native doubles as the team's treasurer.

Ramsey, 42, is from Ward, Colorado, and is a county tax appraiser. She first started skiing on a challenge from a friend eight years ago and has remained with the club since. She develops the ballet routines.

Here is a quick look at the remaining members:

— Barbara Scott, 24, from El Paso. She has been a member for one year and is majoring in physical education at the University of Texas at El Paso.

— Greg Brown, 22, from Denver, Colorado, one of the new members, he is a graduate assistant football coach at UTEP and is majoring in physical education and history.

— Craig Ritchey, 19, of Phoenix, Arizona. A one-year veteran, he is majoring in physical therapy at UTEP.

— Sandi Miller, 17, of Agoura, California. She has been on the team for six months and is a senior at Eastwood High.

— Pamela Clark, 22, of Del Rio, Texas. A former high school tennis standout, she is a three-year veteran of the team and is a graduate assistant in P.E. at New Mexico State University.

— Ben Avalos, 23, from El Paso. He is a P.E. major at UTEP with one year experience on the team and he's also a UTEP racquetball champion.

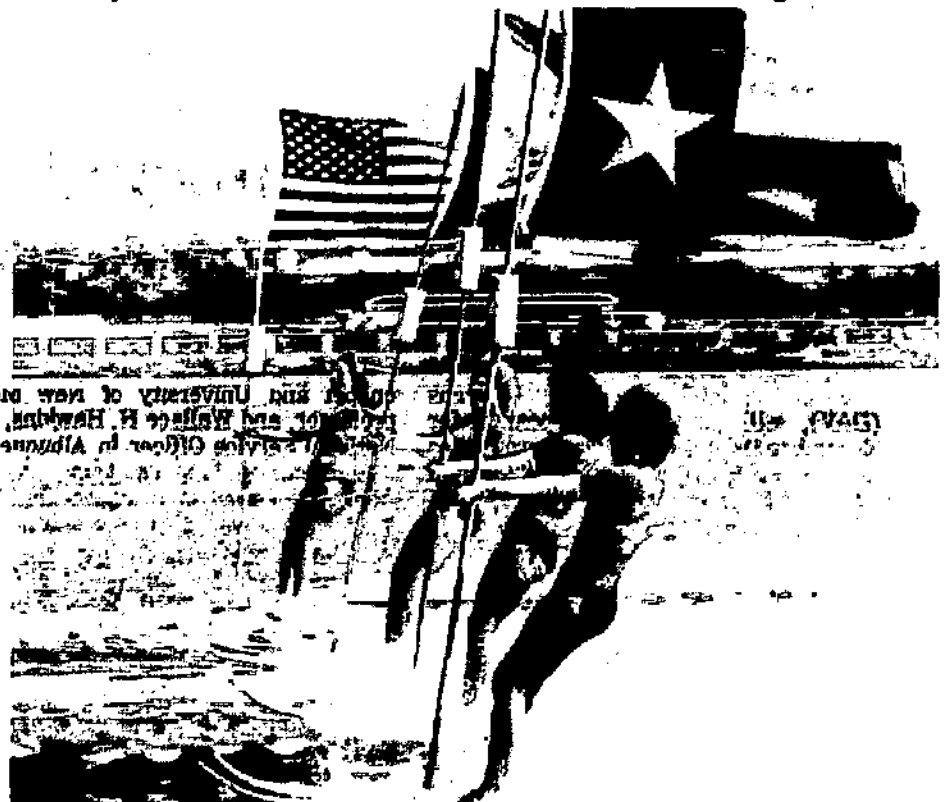

— Pattie Leon, 21, of El Paso. Entering her second year on the team, she is a nursing student and is assistant editor of the Texas Nurses Newsletter.

— Steve Williams, 25, of El Paso. A new member, he is an El Paso attorney.

— Dusty Mayfield, 24, of El Paso. Another new member, she is a nursing student.

— Bruce Bennett, 18, of El Paso. A member for one year, he is a business administration major at UTEP.

— Grant Ritchey, 15, of El Paso. He has been a member for one year and plays football at J.M. Hanks High School.

Sunland Park Hoofbeats

BY MIKE MAGDA

A Sunland Park track record Big Q payoff of $24,877.20 was handed out to the holders of one ticket after Saturday's race. The payoff shattered the old record of $18,794 set May 6, 1978. Saturday's return went to a partnership of four. There were only 97 live tickets going into the second half of the Big Q when 54-1 longshot Muchomori Disco won the 10th race followed by 3-1 choice Latasa Lu. The 11th race was won by 4-1 selection Stevie's Wonder followed by 17-1 longshot Forever Man.

A seasonal record win payoff of $269.50 was set Friday when 134-1 longshot Uncle Lew won the mile-long second race. Uncle Lew also returned seasonal high place and show returns of $79 and $29.80, respectively. Jimmy Hunt was aboard the William A. Thompson trained charge. Uncle Lew, a 10-year-old gelding who had never finished better than sixth in six outings this year, was in last place by as much as 13 lengths down the backstretch before making his move in the turn. He rallied in the stretch to nip 2-1 favorite Winds Of The East by a nose. The Daily Double was $362.40.

Jockey Tommy Swan, one of the nation's leading female quarter horse riders, won her first race at Sunland Friday aboard 7-5 favorite Stray Bullet. Swan competed at Santa Fe over the summer and was the ninth leading rider overall. She had the highest in-the-money percentage of any of the top 12 riders with 48.6 percent.

The season's second dead heat involving horses in the money occurred Sunday in the fourth race. Legs Diamonds, with Tommy Swan up, and Fancy Factor, ridden by Danny Summerow, could not be separated for second place at the wire after a 400 yard dash. Burdon Hasty Moon was the winner. The dead heat forced two quintels payoffs of $36 and $175.00. The only other dead heat this season was for third in the Blue Fly Stakes.

Richard Bickel will have his choice of three horses to ride in the $40,345 Sunland Fall Thoroughbred Futurity November 16. Bickel rode two of the three winners in trials held Friday, then placed third in the final heat. The top four finishers from each trial advanced to the final. Bickel was the only jockey to qualify more than one horse. Bickel's winning horses were 3-3 favorite Super Champ in the first division and 4-5 favorite Intoggytsauk in the second division. He finished third on 3-1 pick Dynamic Sessenta.

Super Champ, owned by the Five R. Enterprises, Tornillo, Texas, won the first division by a nose in a time of 1:12 1/5. He was followed by Amassunquon, owned by Dr. John Sheets of Odessa, Texas; Blue Gazi, owned by W. E. Fore (lessee) and Raymond L. Jones (lessee) of San Antonio, Texas; and Dark Castle, owned by the Alamo Ranches of Seguin, Texas.

Intoggytsauk, owned by T&R Racing Stables of Las Cruces, won the second division by four lengths in a time of 1:13 1/2. He was followed by Sir Vivian Ivan, owned by Jo Mann and Evelyn D. Lewis of Coleman, Texas; and Up The Pay, owned by Fletcher Hall of Captain.

Fill Mads Cup, owned by Mack Yates of Cherokee, Texas, won the third division by almost three lengths in a time of 1:13 1/5. He was followed by Irish Eyes, owned by Carlos E. Alexander of Lovington, Dynamic Sessenta, owned by Melvin G. Riggs of Ft. Stockton, Texas; and Peaceful Success, owned by Charles E. Mattox of El Paso, Texas.

The three winners in the trials were geldings. There were six geldings to qualify, three fillies and three colts. Irish Eyes is a half-sister of Happy Irishman a runnerup in the 1978 Fall Futurity. Three of the five supplemental nominees—Super Champ, Blue Gazi and Dark Castle — qualified. The supplemental fee was $2,500. The biggest disappointment came in the third division when 6-5 favorite Shalies Dancer finished sixth. Peaceful Success, a 64-1, was the tallest longshot to qualify.

Hiram Valentini is back in the stewards' stand as the state steward. Valentini had been state steward the recently completed fall meeting at the Downs at Santa Fe. John Phillips, the previous state steward, will remain on as a track steward while Bobby Harmon becomes an assistant steward and placing judge.

Taconeando and Festos ran what appeared to be an instant replay of their earlier meeting when the two hooked up Sunday. Going a mile, Taconeando hit the wire with just a head advantage. Last time out the two went a mile and challenged each other with the same stretch duel. Again, Taconeando won by a head. Louie Figueroa was aboard Taconeando, an Argentine-bred horse owned by Alan Antwell of Hobbs.

Going into Saturday's fourth race, Dito Mito had been claimed in his three previous starts. Moving up to the $4,000 level, Dito Mito remained in the same hands for the first time in the past two months. He was first claimed for $3,200 then $2,000 and $2,500 at Albuquerque and Santa Fe. He and two of those starts but failed to light the board last Sunday.

The leading post positions over the three-day weekend were the Nos. 4 and 8. Each produced seven winners. From a seasonal standpoint, the No. 2 is on top with 22 winners. Here are the seasonal totals: No. 1 — 18 wins; No. 2 — 22; No. 3 — 20; No. 4 — 17; No. 5 — 14; No. 6 — 15; No. 7 — 6; No. 8 — 16; No. 9 — 14; No. 10 — 30.

Rappid Action stakes winner

Rappid Action turned in a knockout performance in Sunday's first staging of the Plenty Old Match Maker Stakes, winning the distaff tussle by 8 1/2 lengths.

It was a kayo in every sense of the word — since none of the other nine contenders ever managed to get a foot in the door.

Rappid Action, well handled by John Cushing, came barreling out of the No. 8 post and headed in front with the field reached the halfway point of the six furlong sprint.

From that point on, it was all downhill. Ameriana, a 11-2 longshot, and Court Time, a 6-1 favorite, had about all they could stand and began pulling back. Rappid Action bolted into the clear and quickly held a two length gap.

During the rush down to the wire, the four-year-old filly was put to no pressure, but kept building up her advantage nevertheless. She was merely cruising when she hit the wire in an alert clocking of 1:10 2/5 seconds. That was only a fifth off the seasonal mark set by Festos (a four-year-old gelding) in the Don Lewis Inaugural Handicap October 5.

Rappid Action is trained by Jess Alley for Alan Antwell of Hobbs. The filly raced at just under 4-1 and returned mutual payoffs of $9.80, $4.20, $3.80.

The win was her first of the season and boosted her 1980 money line up to nearly 10 grand. October 11 Rappid Action made her first outing of the season and tipped her hand with a closing second to the stakes standout, Thirty Five.

Carmoline, an 8-1 shot handled by Richard Bickel, moved gamely in the final stages to finish second. The five-year-old mare earned $1,100 for the CS Ranch of Cimarron. The tote returns were $6.20 and $6.40.

Court Time, the property of Margaret duPont and Margaret Bloss of El Paso, Texas, held on stubbornly in the stretch to take third. The sophomore filly was a length behind Carmoline at the wire.

Missy's Partner, who's made over $160,000 so far, raced at just under 3-1 in the Match Maker Stakes but it clearly wasn't her day. She broke in fourth place, moved up briefly to third, then sputtered badly at the turn for home and slumped into a seventh place finish.

The top three finishers earned a free breeding to the stallion, Plenty Old.

Alan Antwell, the owner of Rappid Action, enjoyed quite an afternoon at the races. His colors were carried by Taconeando in the mile co-feature, and the six-year-old — for the second time in a row — outdueled the stakes-winning Festos by a head.

Sundays action resumes Friday at 12:30 p.m., with a Ladies Day program.

National DAV commander speaking at Eagle Nest Veterans Day rites

Stan Pealer, a Vietnam era veteran and National Commander of the 675,000-member Disabled American Veterans (DAV), will be the principal speaker for November 11th Veterans Day ceremonies at the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Chapel, Eagle Nest.

Pealer heads up the list of state and national dignitaries scheduled to participate in the day-long event beginning at 10 a.m. In addition to leaders and members of various veterans organizations from throughout New Mexico, southern Colorado and west Texas, other guests will include General Frank Miles, commander of the New Mexico National Guard; General William C. Drummond, commanding officer, Fort Chaffee, Arkansas; Colonel Jack Sheppard, United States Air Force, Kirtland Air Force Base (AFB), Albuquerque; Paul D. Clausen, director of Philmont Boy Scout Ranch, Cimarron; and The Reverend Thomas J. Meersman, DAV National Chaplain, Salt Lake City, Utah.

Invitations have also been extended to New Mexico Senators Pete V. Domenici and Harrison H. Schmitt, as well as to Presidential candidate Ronald Reagan.

Arrangements for the 1980 Veterans' Day events at the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Chapel are being coordinated by Mrs. Jane Sanchez of Albuquerque, president of the board of directors for the chapel and University of New Mexico professor, and Wallace H. Hawkins, DAV National Service Officer in Albuquerque.

A principal role is also being played by Victor Westphall of Springer. Dr. Westphall and his family began construction on the chapel in 1968 as a lasting memorial to their son, David, a Marine Corps platoon leader who was killed along with 12 of his companions during an enemy ambush in Vietnam. The chapel was the first major memorial in the United States for victims of the war in Vietnam.

The vast, gull-like structure was dedicated by the Westphall family "to all veterans of the fighting in that Asian nation, particularly the maimed in body and spirit, and most especially to those who gave the most precious gift of all — life itself."

Financial assistance in the amount of $10,000 annually for 10 years is being provided by the National Headquarters of the Disabled American Veterans to help in expenses for maintenance, utilities, further construction and other requirements.

Highlights of the November 11 events at the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Chapel will include a fly-over by Air Force planes from Kirtland AFB, a United States Army Band and a color guard from Kirtland AFB. Also on the schedule for all guests and visitors is a Mexican-style barbecue and entertainment by local Indian dancers.

Special welcoming ceremonies for DAV National Commander Pealer will be held at the Albuquerque airport Sunday afternoon, November 9. He will be met by local leaders of the DAV and other veterans organizations, as well as by a representative of Albuquerque Mayor David Rusk's office. A press conference with Pealer will follow at the airport for newspaper, television and radio reporters. Richard M. Wilson, DAV Assistant National Adjutant from Cincinnati, Ohio, will also arrive Sunday afternoon to accompany Pealer to the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Chapel.

Library showing free music film Wednesday

Two free showings of the film "Music in the Art of the Renaissance" will be held at Ruidoso Public Library Wednesday.

The first showing is at 2 p.m., and the second at 7 p.m.

The film examines the large role music played in Renaissance art. It shows how the moods created by the new harmonic melodies are reflected in the graphic arts, how frequently instruments and musicians are depicted in paintings, how music is used in Shakespeare's plays and how music and art reflect the new humanistic philosophy of the era.

The 30-minute film is part of a multimedia exhibition prepared to introduce the public to the Folger Library exhibition of Shakespeare memorabilia, which includes rare books, manuscripts, art works and other items never before permitted outside the private library.

The exhibition will be on display at six major museums in the United States through September, 1981. The items discussed in the film are on display at the Dallas, Texas, Museum of Fine Arts, until January 4, 1981.

The film is the first of a series that will be shown as they become available, Marian Elzi, head librarian, said.

Workshops set on solar hot water use

Today's smart buyers are looking for homes with energy-saving designs and dollar-saving features such as solar pre-heated water, according to Dr. Roger Farrer, head of the Information and Education Division of the New Mexico Solar Energy Institute at New Mexico State University (NMSU).

Farrer said that in order to assist builders and contractors in learning how to install, operate and maintain solar domestic hot water systems the NMSU will present a series of workshops, sponsored by Western SUN, and co-sponsored by the Home Builders Associations in Roswell, Albuquerque and Las Cruces. A fee will be charged to help defray the expense of a 120-page solar domestic hot water manual for professional builders, a meal and coffee breaks.

The first workshop will be held in Roswell at the Roswell Inn, November 14; the second will be in Albuquerque at the Hilton Inn, December 6; and the third will be in Las Cruces at the NMSU Corbett Center, December 13.

Subjects to be covered besides installation, operation and maintenance include the types of solar domestic hot water systems; selection of systems; financial considerations; codes and standards; tax credits; recent developments and experiences.

Farrer says that builders can add substantially to the value of their product by offering home buyers solar features which, when existing tax credits are applied, are economical today and can help conserve energy.

For further information about the workshops contact Dorothy Sullins, Information Specialist, NMSU, Box 3 SOL, 89003 or call (505) 646-1846.

Veterans education pay will increase

Bigger checks for veterans training under the GI Bill in Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, New Mexico and elsewhere was one of the provisions of a law to increase veterans benefits signed by the President October 17.

A 10 percent increase in educational allowances was made possible by the "Veterans Rehabilitation and Education Amendments of 1980," noted the Veterans Administration (VA) Regional Office directors in Denver, Cheyenne, Salt Lake City and Albuquerque.

Education checks which were due November 1 for an estimated 600,000 veteran-students and dependents in training will include a five percent boost. The balance of the 10 percent hike will be reflected in checks due next February 1. Payment for training taken after January 1 will include the full 10 percent increase.

Single veterans who are full-time students should receive a November check of $327 — $16 more than the October check. Beginning February 1981, these students will get $342, or a boost of $15 over their October checks.

Monthly payments for veterans with one dependent will be increased from $370 to $389 in November and to $407 in February, and for veterans with two dependents, from $422 to $443 to $464. For each additional dependent, the extra allowance will rise from $26 to $27 to $28.

The legislation also calls for major improvements in VA's vocational rehabilitation program for service-connected disabled veterans. They include a 17 percent increase in monthly allowance in the November check of about 11,000 trainees and increased job counseling and placement procedures.

The new law also increased VA tutorial assistance payments by 10 percent and changed the amount VA can pay under correspondence or flight training for students who enroll in these programs after late September 1.

For them, VA can pay 70 percent of the total charges for correspondence training or 60 percent of those for flight training. These changes in rate of payment were effective last October 1. Students who enrolled last September 1 or earlier will continue to get 90 percent of the total charges throughout the course.

For the first time, however, flight training students will be eligible for education loans based on need of up to $2,500.

Also in the legislation was a change in the way VA will pay veteran-students training while in jail. Veterans imprisoned on a felony conviction will no longer receive monthly educational allowances but will be reimbursed for training expenses.

Guideline instructions on these program revisions are now being developed at VA Central Office in Washington, D. C.

Coffee drinkers take heed

BY TAMARA DETRICK
UNM STUDENT WRITER

The Arabs and Persians called it a gift from the gods ...

A wife in seventeenth century Turkey could gain a divorce on the grounds that she was denied her fair share of it ...

Some theorists believe it helped produce the American Revolution ...

And today some medical experts believe it represents a health hazard.

The great determiner in these situations is not money or political power or sex, but an ancient and potent drink now called coffee.

Coffee is a common beverage whose major chemical ingredient — caffeine — acts as a mild stimulant, and in mild doses produces restlessness, insomnia, tremor, nervousness, headache and diarrhea.

Today, medical specialists are investigating the possible tied between coffee in large doses over a prolonged period of time as a significant contributor to heart disease, cancer of the lower urinary tract and breast tumors.

Tests and research conducted to determine just how dangerous coffee can be are conflicting.

According to Dr. George Schwartz, professor of emergency medicine at the University of New Mexico (UNM) and author of "Food Power," caffeine and coffee are only as dangerous as you make them.

"The effects of caffeine depend on individual tolerance," he said. "I'm sure that large amounts of caffeine are deleterious to some people and may cause tumors. But too much of anything can be dangerous. Too much love can be dangerous."

Dr. John Peter Minton, an Ohio cancer surgeon, claims that xanthines — a chemical family that includes caffeine — can cause breast cancer in some women. According to Minton, xanthines increase the growth of cells in the breast by blocking a crucial enzyme in the body.

The problem, called fibrocystic breast disease, completely disappeared in 13 of 20 women who gave up coffee, tea, colas and chocolate.

Studies of caffeine use among psychiatric patients in a United States Army Hospital in West Germany have found that 34 patients who were classed as "high users" of caffeine (more than five cups a day), were diagnosed as having a higher incidence of psychosis than the other patients. The study was reported in the American Journal of Psychiatry.

According to Schwartz, there is no "safe" amount of caffeine. "Each individual must determine that for himself. Caffeine content varies in coffee prepared in different ways, with instant containing about 66 milligrams (mg.), percolated 110 mg., and dripulated 148 mg.

Recent tests on caffeine content of beverages have refuted evidence presented by earlier tests which claimed that black tea contains more caffeine than coffee. It has now been found that black tea at most contains only 46 mg. per cup. Cola beverages contain 47 mg. and cocoa 13 mg.

Researchers point out that caffeine dosage is often related to body size or weight. For instance, when a child drinks a 12-ounce can of cola, his caffeine intake is comparable to an adult drinking four cups of instant coffee.

"The effects of caffeine depend on its form and use," Schwartz said. "Whether it's a drug or a food. An unsafe daily dose would be about 800 to 1,000 mg. ... or eight to 10 cups of percolated coffee."

Schwartz stressed that coffee need not be called dangerous simply because it is sometimes abused. Caffeine, he said, induces creativity, and planning and social interaction, and has been an honored part of many religions.

Data released by the American Health Foundation (AHF) shows no permanent detrimental effects of caffeine under normal circumstances. Studies on 1,101 male patients show an increase in coffee consumption generally coincided with an increase in cigarette smoking, and in that respect posed a health hazard.

Individual tests reported in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute have shown that caffeine consumption becomes a more significant factor in cancer of the lower urinary tract (LUT) and in heart disease when combined with cigarette smoking. The risk of LUT cancer was 1.5 for women who smoked compared to a risk of 1.0 for those who never smoked.

And, according to Preventive Medicine magazine, coffee consumption contributes to the cause of heart disease only when combined with heavy cigarette smoking.

Finally, Nutrition in Health and Disease magazine admits considerable controversy over the role of excessive coffee drinking as a coronary risk factor. It is generally agreed that heart disease is caused by many factors, that coffee drinking is among the minor ones, and according to some doctors, may not be a significant factor at all.

Schwartz lists coffee as a major social stimulant, important in social gatherings where talk and communication is valued. He notes that the notoriety forced upon caffeine over the centuries has also been forced upon tea, chocolate, alcohol, tomatoes and potatoes at one time or another.

"Coffee is associated with the American consciousness," he said. "We have a 'push on through' society, and coffee is a part of that."

In "Food Power," Schwartz states that "coffee drinking increased after the celebrated dumping of tea of the Boston harbor in 1773. Coffeehouses became the meeting places where the American Revolution was plotted."

Ernie Roche finds challenges, rewards in the fine art of carving

Growing up in the days before television was around to provide its questionably worthwhile but constant stimulation, people turned to other activities and sources for their amusement.

Some of those sources might be described more accurately as resources, which may emerge as creative energy.

That was the case with Ernie Roche, who spent his early years on a ranch in California. "I had a pocketknife," he said, "and that's where it all began." The word "it" in this case, refers to a successful career as a wood carver and sculptor.

By the age of 12, Roche was hooked on carving and received his first set of carving tools as a teenager. He still has his first creation, a small wooden totem pole, on display — but not for sale — at his studio and workshop, the Woodshed, in Ruidoso.

Roche continued to carve as a hobby, throughout his stint in the Marine Corps during World War II, and later employment in lumber camps and as a carpenter, painting and repairing towers and smokestacks.

After his marriage, Roche entered the restaurant and fast-food business in Ruidoso, remaining in that field until his death, eight years ago.

The difficulties involved in making that career were minimized by the emotional support given him by his wife, Neva, and their son.

Roche was his greatest source of encouragement during those early years, he said, and his son remains "my biggest fan."

Roche said he never had "the advantage" of training, "but really, I think I would have been a disadvantage, because I might have gone into another career."

Roche said he read all the books he could get his hands on, and learned the mechanics of carving from them.

He has also attended "any number of" workshops, and ink and charcoal drawing.

Roche's specialty is a type of light relief carving, which is my own technique entered. All his carvings and sculptures depict scenes of the rural southwest, and all are "actual places," he said. He may use some "artistic license," he said, to "remove brush or trees" from the design, "for the sake of composition."

He travels with a sketch pad and 35 millimeter camera, composing the scenes in his mind and recording the images on film and paper "from different angles."

The sketches and preliminary layout, he said, are more time consuming than the actual carving. But once the sketch is complete, there are "still a lot of hours involved" in the work.

A recent sculpture took about three months to complete, but Roche said, "I wouldn't work three months straight through." Working on a piece constantly for that length of time could be detrimental to his purpose, he said.

"Sometimes you get so close to your work that you can't see it," he said. "If you can get away for a few days, you get a new perspective."

His carved relief pictures are of pine, and he uses basswood from Arkansas for his sculptures. After the carvings are completed, he gives them a three-dimensional quality with stains he mixes himself.

Pine frames, similarly stained, are an integral part of the art work, since the elements of the picture often extend onto the frame.

In some ways, "wood carving is the same as it has been for the last few hundred years," Roche said. "I can't improve on the old style; I just hope I can perfect it."

After becoming a full time artist, Roche began entering shows, including the early ones at the Buckhorn, staged by Tom and Dorothy Knapp, and other Ruidoso shows.

As his work gained acceptance by the public and other members of the artistic community, he began to receive invitations to major shows in the central Texas area where he lived.

His carvings were exhibited at the St. Theresa's Show in Austin, Texas; the Texas Art Classic in Fort Worth, Texas, and he was the guest of honor at the Bond's Alley Art Fair in Hillsboro, Texas. He was one of the "Texas Wild Bunch," a group of central Texas artists who frequently showed together.

Roche said he had "fallen in love with Ruidoso" the first time he saw it, and he and his wife moved here in April, 1960.

And Roche said he's "here to stay — it took a lot of years to get here." He doesn't miss that Texas heat, of which he said, "You have to be a third generation Texan to stand it."

But it wasn't only for the "weather and the people," that Roche chose Ruidoso. There were other, more practical concerns.

"It's also the middle of my market," he said. "My major market has always been West Texas, and it seems like everyone from West Texas comes up here. If they don't have a cabin or a condo here, they come up for the races." He said he saw a number of his "old customers" in town this summer.

Since moving here, Roche said, response to his work has been "three times what I had hoped for." The recognition has been "very satisfying," Roche said. Some other artists are now beginning to copy his technique, he said, "which is nothing but a compliment to me."

But Roche doesn't intend to rest on his past accomplishments.

"You're never too old to learn," Roche said. "And you have to keep learning. Every time I do a piece it has to be a challenge."

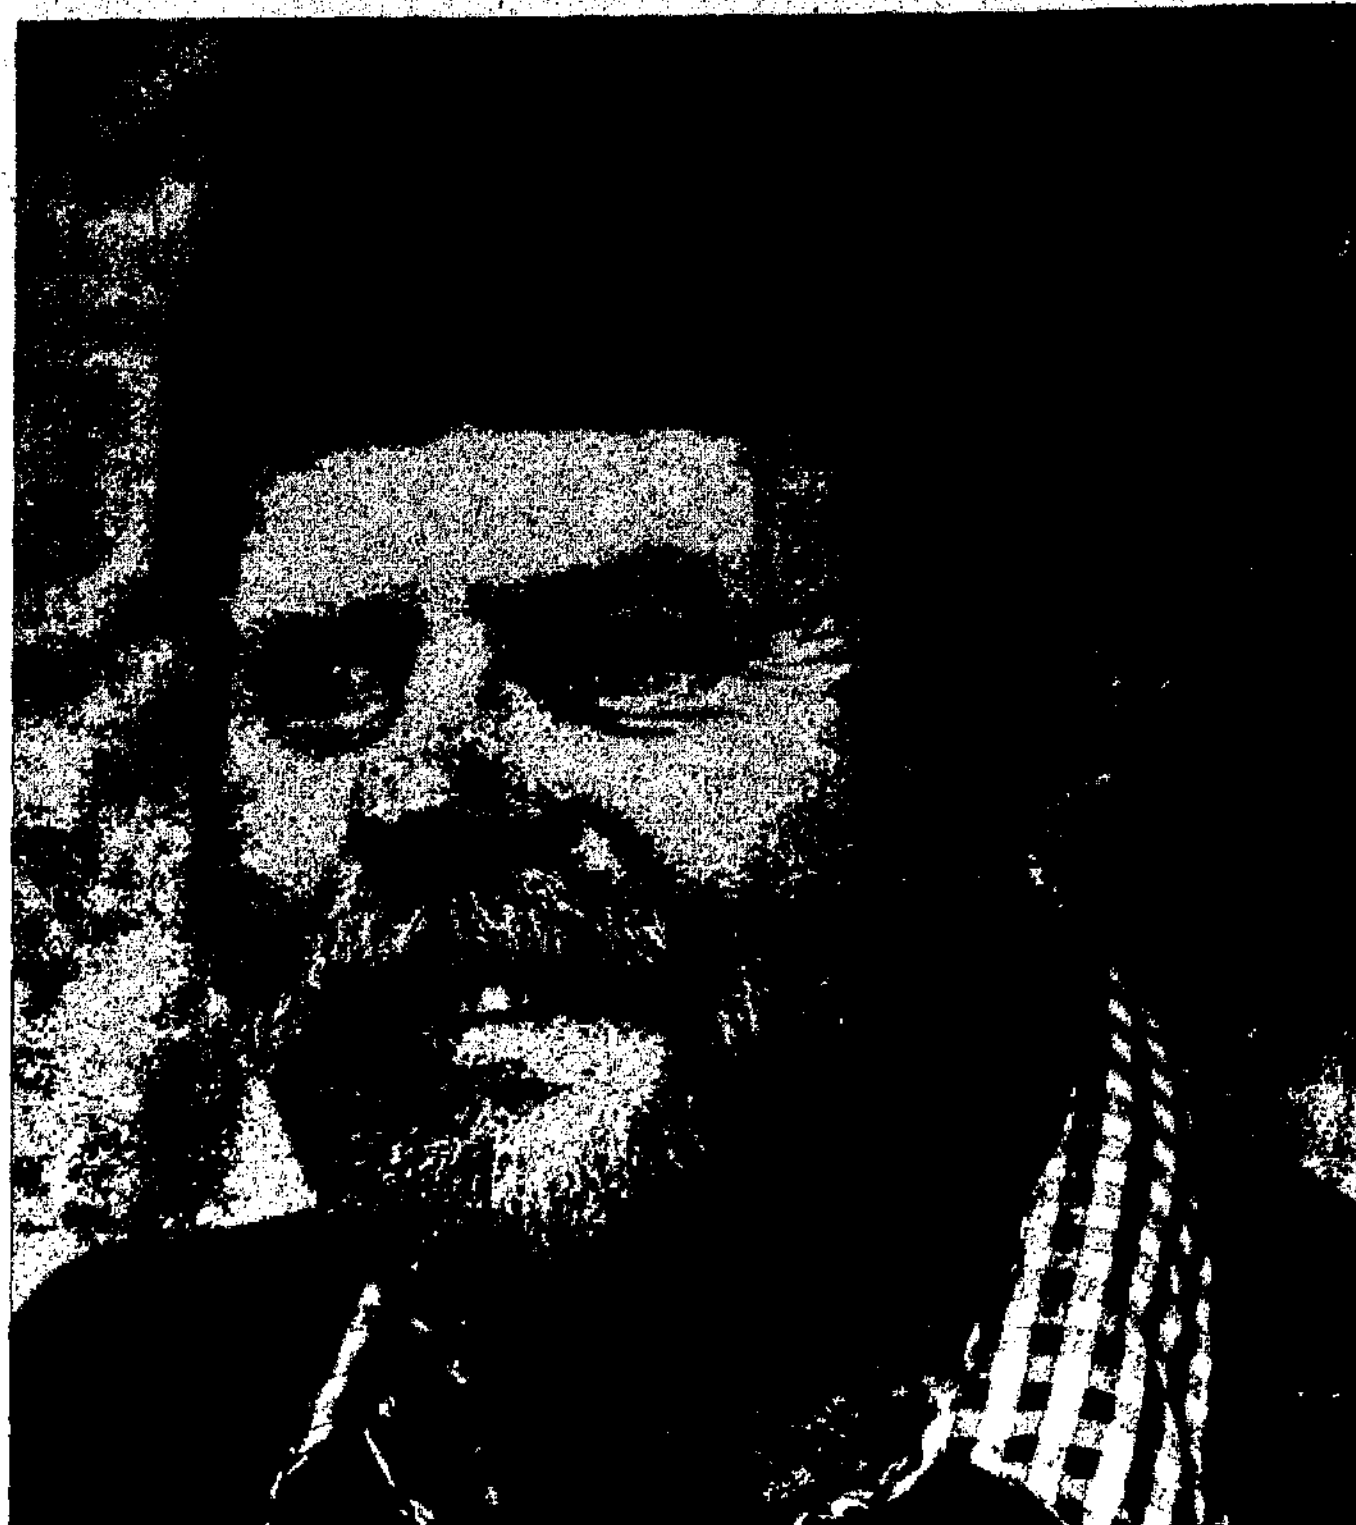

"As an artist, if you don't constantly improve your technique, you're dead on the vine. I know I could never make it as a carver if I just did carving," he said.

"Each one had to be a work of art to command a good price, and I think every artist owes it to his collectors to see that the work appreciates."

Roche said an overriding goal in his artistic life has been to "keep carving in the fine arts category." His dedication to that goal is made more apparent by the level of quality to which he aspires.

"In wood carving, you can't make that first mistake," he said. If you get near completion and you do make a mistake, all you can do is cry a little.

"I've never sold a piece that was patched. Ever."

ERNIE ROCHE of Ruidoso owns and operates the Woodshed in midtown, where he creates, exhibits and sells his wood carvings and sculptures.

AT WORK in his shop on Sudderth Drive, Roche is surrounded by the tools of his trade.

"As an artist,
if you don't constantly
improve your technique, you're dead on the vine."

SOUTHWESTERN SCENES like this are the specialty of Ernie Roche, owner of the Woodshed in Ruidoso. He uses a light relief carving technique which he has perfected, involving controlled staining to achieve depth.

CHARACTER STUDIES in wood are created at Roche's home studio.
