COMMISSION TO APPLY FOR BLM ACREAGE

Mesa chosen airport site

WORK IS UNDERWAY to develop parking facilities to serve The Garden, The Sweet Shop and Ree's Boutique in midtown. The number of spaces to be available, on the three lot area at the intersection of Center and Spring Road, one block south of Sudderth, has not been announced.

The Sierra Blanca Airport Commission (SBAC) Thursday, without voting on the issue, opted to apply soon for 600 acres of Bureau of Land Management (BLM) controlled land on Fort Stanton mesa to utilize for a jet capable airport site.

As but three of SBAC's five members were present, chairman Richard Hall suggested that the meeting be limited to discussing alternatives to pursue to locate the airport on the mesa, with action to be taken at the April 3 meeting "when all of the board members could be present."

SBAC's past efforts to obtain between 300 and 1,200 acres, from the 26,000 acres under BLM control, were thwarted by the BLM, New Mexico State University (NMSU), Secretary of the Interior Cecil Andrus and, finally, by the 1980 state legislature, which failed to provide a $1.4 million appropriation for land acquisition and site preparation at an alternate location on the mesa.

Hall also suggested that future SBAC action be directed toward a "Fort Stanton airport site," where there are "existing runways on the mesa and work to develop the airport" at that location. Commissioners present supported that suggestion.

FURTHER SUPPORT of this SBAC action was voiced by Bob White, Federal Aviation Administration, (FAA) who said, "The cost of developing an airport on Site A (alternate location to the preferred site at the existing airport on the mesa) is economically unfeasible. Without the $1.4 million (in state funds) the amount to be raised locally would exceed the bonding capacity of the county." White's comments were directed to the fact that utilizing the BLM controlled lands leased by NMSU would not entail purchase of privately owned land to develop the airport.

Hall said the original plans for the airport at the preferred site had been revised and that "600 acres would be needed to develop the airport, according to the master plan, that would include Phases II and III." Initially, he said, "300 acres will be needed for Phase I."

A TENTATIVE OUTLINE of action to be taken was suggested by Hall:

- 1 - Follow administrative procedures by submitting a Fort Stanton airport site application to FAA and BLM. He said BLM would have six months to act on the request and render a decision and that "BLM will take the full six months."
- 2 - Lay the groundwork carefully and do all of the homework.
- 3 - Take a minimum of two months to prepare the new application and to determine the amount of support that could be obtained.

4 - Apply for the acreage after the support was determined. Contact the entities involved, the county commissioners, the Ruidoso, Ruidoso Downs and Capitan Trustees and the Mescalero Apache Tribe, to determine their support. Contact NMSU, the Cattlemen's Association and state offices concerned for guidance.

FOLLOWING THURSDAY'S SBAC meeting, the NMSU Board of Regents announced Friday that SBAC would be invited to meet with the regents to attempt to resolve differences over the location of the new airport.

Members of the audience Thursday offered suggestions to SBAC on measures to be taken to obtain the desired acreage on the mesa.

Fred Dantonio, land owner and mesa developer, suggested a "possible land trade, shifting the length of the runways and possibly eliminating the cross wind strips. We might be able to trade state land for private land in a deal we can live with."

The question of employing legal counsel at the onset of the new application was raised by members of the audience. Of this suggestion Dantonio said, "I will give $1,000 to be matched by SBAC funds to provide legal aid," for the attempt to acquire the necessary acreage to develop the new airport at the site of the existing airport.

SBAC TOOK NO ACTION on the utilization of attorneys, though SBAC member mayor Norman Wheeler of Ruidoso Downs said, "I think we should ask for legal advice before proceeding," with the new land acquisition attempt.

Earl Cook of Herkenhoff and Parsons, Albuquerque, developers of the master plan, advised SBAC that the "final status report on the alternate site would be ready in two weeks." Hall said the commission would evaluate that report "carefully and word by word" before taking any further action.

At the April 3 meeting, Hall said, "The commission will define the situation and decide how to proceed." He also said that SBAC should "take a minimum of two months to prepare the new application to BLM, and be certain that we have all of our ducks lined up."

Lincoln County manager Bill Billingsley said that he was "pro airport" and that he had determined, "in travels all over the county" that SBAC would have to thoroughly explain all aspects of the new airport, including the advantages to the entire county, to gain countywide support.

Camp inmate takes leave from local job

Frank Cottone, an inmate at Camp Sierra Blanca (CSB) adult Rehabilitation Center, was reported missing from that institution Sunday after he failed to report back from his work assignment in Ruidoso.

According to police reports, Cottone was in Ruidoso Saturday and opened a checking account at Ruidoso State Bank with approximately $20. He then purchased a car from Sierra Blanca Motors, paying for the vehicle with a bad check of about $700.

Sierra Blanca Motors personnel, discovering the check was worthless, also recovered the car from behind the Villa Inn motel just 15 minutes later, but Cottone had not been apprehended by early Monday morning.

Cottone was serving three concurrent two-to-ten year sentences for two counts of fraud over $2,500 and improper sale, disposal, removal, or concealing of encumbered property. He had been sentenced in June, 1979. Cottone was also the volunteer coordinator of the "Scared Straight"-type educational program for local schools.

Extend concert fund drive

The Ruidoso Summer Festival Incorporated (RSFI) announced Friday that an 11-day extension has been given the organization to raise the $95,000 needed to bring the Fort Worth Symphony Orchestra to Ruidoso for a week of performances.

The organization still has not raised the amount, but several board members said they haven't contacted everyone expressing interest in making a donation.

"I feel very confident that we'll make it now," Ann Denton, chairperson of RSFI said. "We all know of people who wish to contribute or make a pledge that haven't done so yet."

Pledge cards are available from Denton or other board members, Ken Green, Jerry Bigham, Mel O'Reilly, Alton Lane, JoAnn Butler, Maureen Ware, Jackie Spencer and Linda Swalander. Contributions can be mailed to RSFI P.O. Box 1338, Ruidoso, N.M. 88345.

Board members learned that because of a clause in the musicians' contracts, private bedrooms must be provided during their stay in the village. Arrangements have been made to have the 35-member orchestra housed at La Junta Guest Ranch and West Winds Motel. "It's important to keep them as close together as possible since we have to provide transportation," Green said.

O'Reilly said he contacted the Department of Alcoholic Beverages for the state, and found RSFI must use a liquor license already available in Ruidoso Downs if they wish to serve liquor at orchestra performances tentatively scheduled in the sales arena at Ruidoso Downs Race Track.

Gale Adams, owner of Sonny's Barbeque, said he plans to organize a chili cook-off with all profit earmarked for RSFI's fund drive. A western dance is being planned by Lee Marshall, owner of The Office, as another fund-raiser for the group.

Adams also said he will issue tickets to all members of the orchestra so they can eat at Sonny's Barbeque as long as they

Art Festival plans to be aired

An organizational meeting to kick off plans for the 1980 Art Festival will be held tonight at 7:30 at the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce conference room.

Chamber executive director Ed Jungbluth, said the Chamber-sponsored activity "can really grow into something big if we have a lot of people involved in the planning." Committee members will discuss expansion of the Art Festival to include musical entertainment, balloon vendors, and to make more food of "extremely good quality" available.

DECA project to national judging

At least three Ruidoso High School Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) students will be attending the National Career Development Conference in June in Miami, Florida.

The local DECA chapter submitted the only Pepsi Learn and Earn project for state competition. "Since we are the only chapter to enter that competition, we automatically get three delegates to attend nationals," Eddie Parker, sponsor, said.

The state conference will open Tuesday afternoon at the Hilton Inn in Albuquerque, with Ruidoso represented by about 70 DECA students and sponsors, Parker said.

"Every student attending the conference is required to enter some type of competition," Parker said. All members of the chapter contributed to the Pepsi project and another chapter entry, a creative marketing survey of the Ruidoso area.

"Although we automatically won the Pepsi project, we face stiff competition in the creative marketing category," Parker said. "There's only one other entry, but it's from Goddard High in Rowsell; they always enter a very sharp project." Students entering individual manuals include: Free Enterprise - Lou Ann Wilson; Food Marketing - Cody Browning and Shawna Holly; General Merchandise - Don Dale and Karen George; Apparel and Accessories - Bryan Ball and Tina Killen; Finance and Credit - Kim Prophet and Richard Woodul.

The top three manuals in state competition will be submitted to nationals except free enterprise, where the top two are selected.

"The kids are confident that they are going to win big at state," Parker said. "And as for nationals, they plan to re-type the Pepsi project so it will look really sharp for the big competition."

Easter Egg hunt all set

"This year's Easter Egg hunt is shaping up to be even bigger and better than before," Ed Jungbluth, executive director of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce, said Friday.

The hunt, scheduled April 5 at Two Rivers Park, is sponsored by the Retail Merchants Committee of the Chamber. Children will hunt 200 dozen eggs, including 100 plastic eggs featuring prizes donated by merchants.

one egg. We don't want any kids going home empty-handed," he said.

Merchants who wish to donate prizes should telephone the Chamber, 257-7395, Jack Reed at E-Z T.V., 378-4441, or Wilma Sandoval, Western Office Equipment, 257-2088.

Retail merchants will host an "Afternoon in the Park" Easter Sunday at School House Park.

"This will be almost identical to the afternoon in the park we hosted in October that was so successful," Jungbluth said. Hot dogs with trimmings will also be sold but the price will probably be "a little higher, because costs have risen. We don't plan it to make money, but we anticipate charging a quarter for a hot dog instead of 15 cents," Jungbluth said.

- Discussed first, second and back-up sites for outdoor concerts.
- Decided to admit two people per $500 donation to the Los Ruidos' membership party.
- Set every Friday at 4 p.m., as the regular board meeting date.

MYSTERIOUS THINGS are going on as far as Mother Nature is concerned. Dave McMath (he's the one at far left) raises mules, and his eight year old pure white mare, Boogie, foaled Licorice Lad eight days ago, and as you can see, he's black. (Opposites attract, or something like that.) Maybe it's because the father is Burt Reynolds—no, not the actor, the mule owned by Ed Hyman. Licorice Lad is owned and shown by Debbie McMath.

WHOOPS!

A statement in Thursday's Ruidoso News editorial supporting the efforts of Ruidoso Summer Festival Incorporated to bring the Fort Worth Symphony Orchestra here, for a week of concerts this summer, was misleading.

The confusion resulted from this statement: "To become a patron is simple. Join 'Los Ruidos'; the tab is any amount over $500."

"Patron", in reference to the performing arts,

Symphony needs all donations is generally construed as being a generous supporter. In this case, a patron would contribute $500, or more, for membership in "Los Ruidos", a group composed of only those persons joining this exclusive organization.

The facts are: The Ruidoso Summer Festival Incorporated will happily accept, and urges, contributions in any amount, from $1 up, as every dollar counts when the goal is $90,000.

P&Z approves plats, replats

Ruidoso's Planning and Zoning Commission (P&Z) Wednesday approved the final plat for Shangri-la Subdivision, subject to county approval. The county subdivision is within the three mile jurisdiction. Individual water wells have been approved by the State Water Engineer. P&Z approved the replat of lots 11 through 15, block 7, McCarty Subdivision, into three larger lots, provided a carport which encroaches onto the street, is removed. The change was requested because buildings were constructed without regard to lot lines. Also approved was a replat and change in zoning from R-1 (single family dwelling) to R-2 (multi-family dwelling), for lots 3, 4 and 5, block 10, Riverside Addition. A duplex will be built on the land. A replat of lots 3 and 4, block 1, Golf Course Estates, was approved, since a carport was built on the lot line.

Fire damages home Sunday

A structure fire Sunday morning about 9:45 caused an estimated $4,500 damage to a home located on Highway 70 across from the Elks Lodge, according to village fire marshal Derald Waltrip. Waltrip said the home was unoccupied at the time, and most of the damage was from smoke, but a hole was burned through the front wall and ceiling. Cause of the fire is not known, but is believed to have started from a sack of groceries leaning against the wall. The home belongs to A. B. Chitwood, Waltrip said. The fire whistle also sounded late Sunday night, but was a false alarm, according to authorities.

GOING STRONG

by Gerry Johnson

Woman, 84, One of Country's Oldest Libbers

Anyone who thinks the struggle for women's rights began in the 1970s hasn't met 84-year-old Hazel Palmisano of Midland, Michigan, who has been fighting for the liberation of American women since 1901. Mrs. Palmisano's inspiration was Carry Nation, the fiery Woman's Christian Temperance Union leader, who stepped off the evening train in Enterprise, Kansas and smashed one of the town's two saloons with her axe.

"The next day my mother took me to hear Carry Nation speak," Mrs. Palmisano told a writer from The National Council on the Aging. "There's a large picture in the Enterprise library showing me hanging onto my mother's skirt while I watched her speak." Mrs. Palmisano took her idol's crusade to heart, inventing a game in which she recreated Nation's saloon smashing by demolishing a row of fruit jars with her mother's kindling hatchet. In high school, Mrs. Palmisano attended WCTU meetings and participated in suffragette marches, courageous activities for a woman in those days. "I'll never forget the first time I voted in 1920," she said. "All the teachers in the school I was teaching at in Wichita marched down to the polls together." The outbreak of World War II provided a good deal of impetus to the cause of women's rights, Mrs. Palmisano feels.

"Because the men were away fighting the war, women entered the work force in huge numbers," she said. "They found out they could do a job just as well as a man. Of course, when the war was over the men took over our jobs and a lot of women were right back where we started from." As time passed, Mrs. Palmisano's views changed, just as the women's movement has changed. "Before World War II I thought women should work only if the family needed the money," she said. "Now I realize that some women need to work for a sense of fulfillment rather than just the income." She is a strong supporter of the Equal Right's Amendment (ERA), feeling that while "it won't really help me, I want my granddaughters to get the benefits of ERA. When I was growing up, women had few choices. We could get married, teach school, be a nurse, a telephone operator or a secretary. I want my granddaughters to have a wide variety of choices." After many years of activism, Mrs. Palmisano is taking life a little easier now, but still participates in church activities, the library, a humanities program sponsored by The National Council on the Aging and others. "But don't think I'm getting soft," she said. "If I see something drastically wrong, I'll still get out and fight."

Noted soprano appearing here

Linda Loftis Tobias, soprano, will provide an evening of musical selections Friday in the multi-purpose room of the Ruidoso Public Library beginning at 7 p.m.

The program, sponsored by the Friends of the Ruidoso Public Library, will include the following selections: "Seligkeit" by Schubert; "Als mir dein Lied erklang" by Strauss; "O luce di quest'anima" from "Linda di Chamounix" by Donizetti; "Three Songs to Poems of Edith Sitwell" by Walton; "I Whistle a Happy Tune" by Rodgers and Hammerstein; "I Could Have Danced All Night" by Lerner and Loewe and "If I Loved You" by Rodgers and Hammerstein.

She will be accompanied on the piano by Judith Solomon, an honors graduate of Rutgers University. Solomon holds a Master of Music degree in piano performance from the Yale University School of Music, where she was a student of Donald Currier.

Solomon studied further with the Brazilian pianist Guilomar Novaes and special accompanying study with Norman Shtetler in Vienna, Austria.

She is a native of New Jersey and is presently an assistant professor of music at Texas Christian University, where she teaches piano, accompanying and music theory. She maintains a performance schedule in her spare time.

Tobias is a lyric coloratura soprano who holds a Bachelors and Masters degree in Music from Texas Christian University.

She has studied voice with Arlene Sollenberger and coached with Madame Julia Drobner in New York, and with John Wustman at the St. Louis Conservatory. Tobias studied acting at the American Musical and Dramatic Academy in New York and studied in England in 1978 on a grant from the Dartington School of Music.

Tobias' career includes experience in opera, musical theater and recital as well as network television. She has made national commercials for television for RCA, American Motors, Pepsi-Cola and Toni. She has performed before West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard and former President Lyndon Johnson.

Tobias appeared on Broadway in the original cast of David Merrick's "Oh! What a Lovely War!" She was cast in summer stock productions of "Roberta," "Cinderella" and "The Desert Song." She has sung in operas, including "The Merry Wives of Windsor," "Orfeo," "Le Coo D'Or," "Boris Godounov," "Signor Deluso" and "Sweet Betsy From Pike."

Tobias has been featured twice with the Fort Worth Pops Orchestra and recently performed with Helen Hayes and Kirk Douglas in a national tribute to Lady Bird Johnson at the LBJ Library.

She is a resident of Fort Worth and has a summer home in Ruidoso.

Assembly of God presenting concert

Janie White and Son-Light will appear in concert Thursday at 7:30 p.m., at the Gateway Assembly of God church. The group, operating out of Dallas, Texas is on tour.

Burrows/Owen vows exchanged

Robin Burrows and Jim Bart Owen, both of Ruidoso, were married February 16 in a double ring ceremony at the First Baptist Church in Mexia, Texas. The Reverend Joe Eakin officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald H. Burrows of Ruidoso. The parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Owen, Ruidoso.

The church's altar was decorated with tall brass spiral candelabrum holding white tapers over arrangements of white carnations and chrysanthemums. Brass candelabra trees with white candles and urns filled with white gladioli graced the front of the church.

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Wayne Owen, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, sang "Through the Eyes of Love" accompanied on the organ by Mrs. Richard Bradley.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal designer gown of white sheer-ganza, featuring a Victorian styled bodice with pencil sleeves and a high neckline.

A deep fluted bertha of Chantilly lace medallions sprinkled with seed pearls framed the neckline. The crystal pleated skirt, adorned with Alencon lace and seed pearls at the waistline, fell with a trace of a train.

The bride wore a veil of French illusion which was caught in an Elizabethan cap applied with Alencon lace and seed pearls. The bride's bouquet consisted of white orchids surrounded by deep red rosebuds and interspersed with baby's breath and English ivy.

Maid of honor was Debbie Ford, Ruidoso, and Kelly Taylor, Ruidoso, served as bridesmaid. Their identical floor length dresses of cranberry silk crepe featured jewel necklines and long raglan sleeves. Both carried bouquets of white chrysanthemums accented with wine tinted baby's breath.

Wayne Owen, Abilene, Texas served as best man and John Hall of Ruidoso served as groomsman. Lee Burrows, brother of the bride, ushered guests to their seats and assisted Hall in lighting candles prior to the ceremony.

The bride's mother was attired in a formal gown of pale blue silk crepe designed with chiffon caftan sleeves. The groom's mother wore a long dress of beige wool crepe styled with a round neckline and a buttoned bodice. Both wore white carnation corsages.

A reception followed the wedding at the Mexia Country Club. Receiving guests were the bride and bridegroom, their parents, and attendants.

Attending the bride's book was Eve Elliott of Frisco, Texas, cousin of the bride.

The bride's table was laid with a floor-length damask cloth centered with an arrangement of white carnations, daisies and forever yours gypsophelia in a silver Paul Revere bowl.

Silver candelabra holding tall white tapers intertwined with English ivy were on either side of the floral centerpiece.

The white wedding cake consisted of graduated tiers supported by fluted columns and was topped by a delicate arbor holding a miniature fountain.

The wedding cake and punch were served by the bride's aunts, Mary Francis Thompson and Mrs. Robert Elliott.

The bridegroom's table was covered with a floor length cloth of Belgian linen and was laid with brass appointments.

The floral centerpiece was a wicker basket filled with pom-poms and chrysanthemums. A variety of canapes and cheeses were served from this table.

Musical selections at the reception were provided by Bill Montandon, cousin of the bride, Austin. During the reception, a toast to the bride and bridegroom was made from a champagne fountain.

The bride's traveling attire was a mauve velvet suit with a beige blouse and matching accessories. Her corsage consisted of the orchids from her wedding bouquet. Following a short wedding trip, the couple are at home in Tulsa, Oklahoma where he is a student at Spartan School of Aviation.

A rehearsal dinner at Winkler's Restaurant in Mexia was held February 15, hosted by the bridegroom's parents.

Guests were seated at tables forming a U shape with an oval arrangement of chrysanthemums and statice interspersed with pomona fern and tinted gypsophelia at the head table.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Mrs. V. G. Rigby, the bridegroom's maternal grandmother from Quanah, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Owen of Abilene, Texas; Mrs. Billy McKaskle and Mr. and Mrs. Owen Morrison of Fort Worth, Texas;

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Goss, Mrs. Cleva Richmond and Robyn of San Antonio, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hurt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Richmond, Becca and Kyle, all of Moore, Oklahoma; Mr. and Mrs. Terry Woods of Baytown, Texas; Lisa Chapman of San Angelo, Texas; John Hall, Mike Pritchett, Kelly Taylor and Debbie Ford all of Ruidoso.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Azel, Kathleen and Lee of Houston, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Montandon and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Elliott; Jay and Eve, all of Frisco, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Bonner, and John Bonner, all of Blanco, Texas and Mrs. Eulalia Bonner of Teague, Texas.

Nelson/Green nuptials April 5

Walter Lewis Green and Debora Lynn Nelson have set an April 5 wedding date. Green is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James K. Green of Artesia. Nelson's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Gordon L. Nelson of Alamogordo.

The wedding will be held at Grace Methodist Church in Alamogordo at 1:30 p.m.

Green, co-owner of the Ruidoso News, is employed at the Socorro Defensor-Chieftain newspaper.

Says state athletics chief

High school athletics facing serious problems

BY MARK BAGBY
Sports Editor

The executive secretary of the New Mexico Activities Association (NMAA), the governing body of state school athletics, said here Friday inflation and energy are problems, but the biggest threat posed to athletics is overzealous adults.

James Odle, who has been the chief administrator for NMAA for 13 years, was in Ruidoso last week to oversee the running of the A-AA girls' basketball championships.

His views on New Mexico athletics are interesting.

"The energy situation and inflation," he said, "have forced many schools, especially the smaller ones, to start cutting their programs. I'd say overall, we've had about a 10 percent cut."

"Prices for everything—fuel, lodging, equipment—have gone up, and I'd say they might keep going up. Eventually, some schools may have to drop some of their programs. That's already happening in the smaller schools. Eventually it might happen in AAA and AAAA schools too."

Reductions in programs won't hurt the quality of sports, he maintains.

"Reduction won't make it mediocre," he said. "What will destroy high school athletics will be adults. The 'win at all costs' philosophy has become too prevalent. Fanatic fans will be the death of sports."

Too many parents, he said, are so determined to have winners they forget what athletics are really about.

"And tremendous pressure is exerted on coaches and players," he said. "Things just keep getting worse. It's a vicious circle."

Too many persons, he said, think of high school athletics as a way of getting an athletic scholarship.

No way, Odle said. "A study conducted in Missouri, I think, showed only one percent of all high school athletes get a scholarship," he said. "Now I don't begrudge any athlete who gets a scholarship. I think it's great."

"But if that is the only purpose of high school athletes, then it's a miserable failure."

Nor is it a training ground for Olympic hopefuls, he said.

"Only a very small percentage are even Olympic caliber," he said. "And if you look at Olympic athletes, they're very seldom of high school age. If you're using high school as a training ground, then we've got a miserable failure."

Most people have lost track of "the original purpose and meaning" of high school athletics, Odle said, which is "how kids learn how to get along with each other, and live and work together."

"There's not a better place to learn than that," he added.

In fact, he said, athletics, with other activities, might be more important than school work.

"Studies have shown dropouts, for example, are almost never involved in anything," he said. "They don't feel like they belong."

"American College Testing (ACT, a standardized test high school students take to determine if they are higher education material) did a study to see if they could predict how students would do in college, and they found participation in activities was the only factor that indicated how students would do in college. The ACT score and grades in high school weren't good indicators."

Odle said he is convinced of the importance of athletics, and is deeply committed to them. But the current state of affairs—especially in New Mexico, where travel is a must—might force some changes in high school athletics, and, in fact already has.

NMAA has cut back the number of events a team may participate in in some sports, and set limits in half a dozen sports which had never had limits before.

"You can't get away from travel in this state," he said. "If you're going to have districts and compete for state championships," he said.

Realigning districts to lessen travel is no answer he said, mainly because "I can't think of any way to realign the districts to cut down travel." So non-district competition has been reduced.

The only other solution, he said, would be to eliminate districts altogether.

"We proposed that to the A and AA schools," he said. "They voted it down. So it looks like we have to compete. But there's just so much distance between schools here. I think the travel is something we have to live with."

The answer, he said, might lie in multiple scheduling.

"A lot of schools are scheduling—in basketball, for instance,—both boys' and girls' varsity games for the same day, and then both squads go on the same bus. That's about the only feasible way to do it and make it work," he said.

Odle oversees a large staff which runs athletics, as well as other extracurricular activities such as cheerleading and drill team.

He and his assistants are on the road much of the time, either setting up or overseeing an event. In fact, Odle was here last October, when he and Ruidoso activities director Doyle Howell began planning the girls' tournament.

"Our office stays busy," he said. "We're on the phone a lot, answering questions about rules and regulations. We also oversee the officials, and handle their scheduling."

"But mostly we handle high school athletics."

And how did the A-AA championships go?

"Just great. Doyle did a heckuva job, and all his workers did real well too. It makes my job a lot easier."

AROUND AND DOWN they go, two skiers competing in Sunday's Yukon Jack-Sierra Blanca Pro Ski Cup. About 50 skiers began competition Saturday, but Frank Anderes of Denver, Colorado, won the race, claiming $700 in prize money. The race was the next to last in the Southwest Pro Ski Tour.

Denver pro skier wins Yukon Jack Pro Cup

Frank Anderes of Denver, Colorado won Sunday's $4,000 Yukon Jack-Sierra Blanca Pro Cup, capturing a $700 first prize.

The race, the next to the last stop on the Southwest Pro Ski Tour circuit, took place on the Capitan slope at Sierra Blanca.

Anderes, 23, had the top qualifying time and was nothing short of devastating. He beat his opponent, Duncan Cullman of Albuquerque, by almost eight-tenths of a second. He had better times than Cullman in both runs of the slalom event.

Ruidoso's Gary Vogel finished fourth, in the consolations, edged out by Daniel Bergeron of Canada. Bergeron picked up a .243 second advantage on the first run, and Vogel had a .165 advantage on the second, which left him .078 seconds short.

The two day event featured qualifying runs Saturday, which whittled the field to 32 Sunday. Each skier was given two runs, one on each course. The overall best time would advance the skier to the next round.

The $4,000 purse was the largest on the tour so far this year. Next weekend's Jose Cuervo Pro Cup at Angel Fire Ski Resort will feature a $5,000 purse.

The local race was sponsored by Heublein, Incorporated.

Nunley competing in Junior Olympics

Lon Nunley, one of Ruidoso's Junior Ski Racers, is currently at Stratford Mountain, Vermont preparing for the 1980 Junior Olympics.

This is the second consecutive year Nunley has participated in the Junior Olympics.

A sophomore at Ruidoso High School, he has been skiing since he was six. He qualified for the event this year while skiing in the Governor's Cup races last week in Aspen, Colorado.

An ability class racer, he competes in class B. He finished first in slalom, sixth in downhill and 10th in giant slalom in Aspen, good enough to send him to Vermont.

There are 100 young men competing in the Junior Olympics. The country is divided into ten districts, and 10 youngsters from each district are chosen.

Nunley was the only New Mexico skier chosen from his four state district.

Today and Tuesday will be devoted to practice runs, and downhill competition will be Wednesday, followed by the giant slalom Thursday and slalom Friday.

His brother Don, also an accomplished skier, accompanied Nunley and will train with the 100 skiers but won't compete. Coach Chuck Bent also made the trip.

The boys are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. L. Ray Nunley.

CONGRATULATIONS

To the Ruidoso Warrior basketball team for another fine season.

Although you didn't go all the way to state, you did a fine job and provided a lot of thrills for the fans.

Special congratulations to Rodney Thomason, Clay Blank and Paul Kirkwood for making all district, and wait until next year!

Sportin' Life

... a column of opinion ...

by Mark Bagby

I was amazed, shocked, surprised and just generally bowled over to hear Muhammad Ali is shooting for a fourth world boxing championship.

Here we have the classic case of not knowing when you're well off.

Look at Ali — he's 38 years old, which is old by any sports standards, but especially boxing. Have you seen pictures of him lately? He weighed in at 251 pounds, about 40 pounds overweight. Let's see, the fight's in late June, which is about four months away, so he has to lose ten pounds a month.

That's two and a half pounds a week. I don't think he can lose that much and still be able to fight worth a flip.

He's gotten slower. The "Ali shuffle" is a thing of the past, immortalized yes, like the Babe's swing and Unlitas' arm. But the fancy footwork is gone, captured only on film and in people's memories.

Probably nobody did as much for boxing as Ali. He was a young, brash kid named Cassius Clay from Louisville, Kentucky who won the Olympic gold medal in 1960 at age 19, and then, after turning professional, knocked out Sonny Liston in the seventh round February 25, 1964. He was 22.

Then followed nine successful defenses of his World Boxing Association crown, including seven knockouts. But, refusing to be drafted, he had his title stripped, and he underwent a name change — from Cassius Clay to Muhammad Ali.

He went into exile for almost four years, finally returning to the ring, where he began devastating opponents again. He started the long road back, and finally recovered the title from "Smokin' Joe" Frazier.

But another Olympic gold medal winner, George Foreman, beat Ali and he lost the title again.

Then Ali beat Foreman, which gave him the title a second time. Later he lost to Leon Spinks, and there went his title.

Then Ali beat Spinks in a rematch, winning the title a third time, something no boxer had ever done.

Evidently, Ali wants to be the first to take a fourth title. He's supposed to fight WBA champion John Tate in late June.

That's asking for trouble.

Ali is a rich man, a very rich man. He's going to earn a lot of money for just stepping into the ring. (Must be rough.) But the money isn't why he's doing it, he says.

He told reporters he was doing it for the challenge of doing what everyone said couldn't be done. "Now, I don't miss the weight," he said. "I just want to prove everybody wrong."

Don't kid yourself, Ali. You miss the weight. Look at all the attention being focused on this fight, four months before they'll even step into the ring.

He probably even misses being interviewed by Howard Cosell. There's another case—Cosell would never have come to the forefront if Ali hadn't sparred with him verbally. He made Cosell's career.

Probably nobody has done as much for—or to—boxing as Ali. Boxing was a dying sport when he came along. It's impossible to be neutral about the man. When you watch him fight, you either want him to win or lose. There's no in-between.

He's won three world titles and rewritten the record books. He has a song about himself, and he's probably the world's most famous conscientious objector.

What more can he want? Come on, Ali—give it a rest. Stay retired after this fight, win or lose. Nothing is more tragic than an athlete on the comeback trail—who stumbles.

(Now just watch—he'll win this fight and defend it half a dozen times. Sheesh.)

Help wanted: umps and coaches

Ruidoso's Little League baseball organization is looking for people who want to coach or umpire this upcoming season.

Umpires have to go through a clinic, provided enough people show interest. Either way, whether you coach or umpire, it's only a few hours a week, and some little kids out there will love you for it.

While we're at it, they're looking for players too, for the new Pony League. Youngsters no younger than 13 and no older than 16—by August 1, 1980—can play, and they can register up to April 1.

To register or volunteer your services, give Alvin Lowrance, 257-4320, or Ralph Bellon, 257-2088, a boller. They'll be just tickled to help ya.

Futurity entries soaring

The 1981 All-American Futurity at Ruidoso Downs closed with a record total of 2,273 head.

That was a sharp improvement over the previous high of 1,992 head for the upcoming 1980 edition of the world's richest horse race.

According to general manager Woody Erwin, the 1980 All-American carries a total bonanza of $1,280,000. The winner gets $440,000. But in 1981, the windfall will be fattened to $1,530,000. The winner will collect a dazzling $528,000.

"The success of the All-American Futurity is fantastic, and it keeps getting better," Erwin said. "All of us connected with Ruidoso Downs are extremely pleased. I feel the Futurity will continue to grow, and I see continued beneficial effects for our entire racing program at Ruidoso, and for the All-American Sale as well."

Erwin also said he expects these beneficial effects to continue rubbing off on Sunland Park — particularly since a spinoff race, Sunland Park's All-American Sale Futurity, is scheduled to debut at Sunland in the fall of 1980 with the gross purse expected to easily top the original estimate of $125,000.

Dorothy Dillard, nominations secretary at Ruidoso, was the target of an avalanche of nominations for the 1981 All-American Futurity. When everything was tallied up, she had 2,269 nominations, plus four pre-pays — for a total of 2,273 head.

The original nominating deadline came up January 15, 1980. Horses who cleared that hurdle (at $50 each) were also nominated to the $1 million All-American Derby in 1982 and the $350,000 (est.) All-American Gold Cup in 1983.

The remaining payment schedule looks like this: $100 by March 15, 1980; $150 by June 15, 1980; $250 by October 15, 1980; $300 by December 15, 1980; $400 by March 15, 1981; $500 by June 15, 1981; $750 to enter the trials. The total outlay amounts to $2,500.

Additional sustaining payments are required to keep a horse eligible for the Derby and Gold Cup.

Under the prepaid plan, a 20 percent discount is possible by putting $3,200 in up front money. A horse is then paid up for all three races. Four head were nominated via this method.

Anne and B. F. Phillips Jr., of Frisco, Texas were the leading nominators to the 1981 All-American Futurity. They checked in with a total of 50 head — an All-American record.

The second most prolific nominator was Walter Merrick of Sayre, Oklahoma. Merrick is already a two-time winner of the All-American (Easy Jet in 1969 and Easy Date in 1974). Merrick entered 26 head.

Next is the 440 Ranch of Krum, Texas with 24 head. Gordon Howell of Sunland Park put 23 yearlings on the list. He's followed by Joe McDermott of Madisonville, Texas, and Ralph Shebester of Wynnewood, Oklahoma with 19 each.

H. C. Lewis of Lubbock, Texas nominated 15 hopefuls. Roy Browning of Fort Worth, Texas and Robert Moore of Oklahoma City each put 13 names on the list.

Other major nominators: Twelve head — Bobby Cox of Gardendale, Texas; Speed Farm of Alex, Oklahoma. Eleven head — Valton Cox of Lubbock; Mickle's Valley View Ranch of Weatherford, Texas; George Middleton of Florissant, Missouri; James Ragland of Oklahoma City; Mary Urschel of Canadian, Texas; Bob Welk of San Antonio, Texas.

Ten head — Wayne and Jim Johnson of Brownsville, Texas; L. D. Neumayer of Hereford, Texas; Harriett Peckham of El Paso, Texas; Hugh Preston of Burk Burnett, Texas; O. L. Scott of Wynnewood, Oklahoma; Travis Ranch of Norman, Oklahoma. Nine head — John Colville of Paramount, California; Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Littlefield of Booneville, Arkansas; Grafton Moore of Ortonville, Michigan. Eight head — Spencer Childers of Fresno, California; Gordon and Juanita Crone of Lakin, Kansas; Joe Kirk Fulton of Lubbock; W. L. (Bill) Jones of Abilene, Texas; George King of Fort Smith, Arkansas; John Trammell of Clayton, Missouri; Gary Pogue of Kenedy, Texas; San Carlos Ranch of Rio Grande City, Texas; Richard Winn of Pottstown, Pennsylvania.

The 1980 season at Ruidoso Downs, covering 66 race days, kicks off Saturday, May 10. Action continues each weekend through Labor Day, September 1. The basic pattern is Thursday-through-Sunday racing.

The most imposing stakes on a glittering schedule, in addition to the All-American Futurity and Derby, are the $225,000 Kansas Derby May 18, the $325,000 (est.) Kansas Futurity June 1, the $325,000 (est.) Rainbow Derby July 6, and the $500,000 (est.) Rainbow Futurity July 20. The All-American Derby, estimated at $1,250,000, will be run August 24. The All-American Futurity, with a total prize of $1,280,000, is set for Labor Day. Ruidoso's richest thoroughbred event, the Ruidoso Thoroughbred Futurity, is carded for August 31. The gross purse is projected at $125,000.

State's director of deaf, blind trainees slated to tour Europe

Mrs. Daisy Rice, Director of Communication Disorders for the Deaf and Blind at the New Mexico State Hospital, has been selected to go to Russia, Finland, and Poland March 15 for two weeks as part of the Citizens Exchange Corps (CEC). The group will tour Warsaw, Leningrad, Moscow and Helsinki. Rice was awarded the International Deaf Woman of the Year in 1978, and was the first runner up in the World Quota International Deaf Woman of the year award in 1979. She developed the Department of Communication Disorders at the New Mexico State Hospital over 8 years ago. She said the trip will be invaluable to her because she will be meeting professionals in the field of Education & Rehabilitation of the Blind and Deaf in other countries. This will give her an opportunity to learn of their programs which may benefit her own. "Before I go I will have to learn to lip read in Russian," she said.

The CEC Field Institute has sponsored over 50 study visits to Russia with the purpose of gaining a better understanding of the Soviet Union and to learn of the Soviets ideas about America. The number of people chosen is limited, but all must be professionals in their field. Rice said that she will gain a wealth of information although she is aware that she will be shown exactly what the Soviets want her to see. She said, "I will be told what they want me to be told. But I believe if a person has any insight, he or she will glean a great deal by looking and listening. I know I will see and learn a lot on my own."

She reflected that the United States Head Start Program was started after professionals observed similar programs of collective child care begun in Russia after World War II. The observers extracted the most positive aspects of the learning program and implemented them in the United States. Rice said she has had a lot of support. The Albuquerque Chamber of Commerce donated 200 hot air balloon lapel pins to be given to private citizens in Russia, Poland and Finland. Alice Boss, Communication Director of the Governor's Office, has supplied approximately 200 New Mexico emblems of the Roadrunner as well as a number of booklets on New Mexico. The patients at the New Mexico State Hospital are making several ojo lapel pins also to be given as gifts.

She hopes that in the near future the CEC in the Soviet Bloc and European countries will come to the United States, and hopefully visit the New Mexico State Hospital, to observe her Department of Communication Disorders as well as other departments.

It's no wonder, with so many fine new materials available to you, offered in such a dazzling range of colors and textures.

Among the man-made fibers, the acrylics are especially rugged and easy to clean, and they don't mat. The nylons, which are a current favorite, especially the long fiber continuous filament nylons, are very long wearing and so easy to clean, with no shedding or pilling. These take to vibrant colors beautifully.

Where economy and service are the most important considerations, there are fine cotton carpetings to choose from; the lowest priced carpets for comparable quality.

So the choice is wide and colorful... Stop in... for the answer to all your floor covering needs.

The Dreamer
BY DANNIE STORM

True March Weather

March, the meeting ground of Winter and Spring, is noted for its changeable weather which brings us days of all four seasons of the year. You may see in this month days of spring with the new grass and the early flowers and the songs of birds just flown in from the north. There will be days of driving snow and cold, and warm, still sunny weather just like the summer and fall.

However, there is one thing you can always be sure of in March "from the sunny banks of California to the rock-bound coast of Maine", to borrow a few words from the old-time political speakers.

The winds of March are long famous in song and story. No matter what other weather we may see, there will always be wind. It may lull for half a day, or maybe a full day or night. Still, it will always begin again as if called by a deep and abiding sense of duty. When the day comes that you do not see wind in March, then you can be sure Jack Frost and all the rest of the weather people up at the north pole have made some kind of serious mistake.

Here in the Land of the Pinon and Pine, March did not waste any time. On the very first day of this month, the weather echoed perfectly the words of the beloved New England poet, William Cullen Bryant:

"The stormy March has come at last,
With wind, and cloud, and changing skies;
I hear the rushing of the blast,
That through the snowy valley flies."
Today, on March six, gone is the snow from the valley but the rushing blast is here along with the clouds and changing skies.

"Who has seen the Wind?"
Every March the words of a poem from back in my early childhood come to mind:
"Who has seen the wind?
Neither you nor I,
But when the trees bow down their heads,
The wind is passing by."
Just to think of the great power of something you cannot even see! The wind, then, in its humble way tells us something of the power of things unseen. You may not see the wind, and yet you can see it doing its work, for example in the flying of the cedar pollen; and carrying through the sky of clouds of white from the White Sands.

Our Old, Old Friend The Wind

For ages past the wind carried our boats on the seven seas. On the wings of the wind, Columbus came to these shores. It pumped our water and ground our grain and furnished many kinds of power. Our old friend the wind is ever ready when we call on him.

One of the memories of my childhood is my love of the wind. I can see the little villages of my boyhood with the sky filled with kites of all colors and kinds. And the ponds full of toy sail boats, and laughing children, everywhere. Today, the wind singing its songs and strumming its chords through the trees, lifts my heart in many a happy memory.

Cedars In the Wind

One purpose of the wind is to wave the trees back and forth, loosening the bark so that the sap, awakening down at the roots, may flow the more easily up throughout the branches and limbs.

The Cedars are waving, bending, whipping, all in a happy dance to the tune of the winds of March. The Cedar is a dearly-beloved plant of the wind. The branches grow close massed, and down low, pressed against Mother Earth. In the strongest gale you can be on the sea side completely sheltered from the blast.

Little Groundie, the calf born on Ground Hog's Day, is lying next to her mother, in double shelter from the wind. Both are on the sea side of a massive and sturdy Cedar, the top-most branches bending and thrashing in the western gale. With its gold-red color and shining white face, the little calf is a perfect copy of its mother. The very picture of contentment, the little creature listens to the song of the wind overhead, full of love returned for its mother's fond devotion, and filled also with childhood's happiness in the windy days of March.

Keep smiling, and God bless you.

Inside The Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE — If the higher-ups in New Mexico's prison system learned anything from the January riot, it taught them precious little about getting information out to the public.

The Governor made them hold a press conference earlier this week, a full month after that most distressing occurrence, but what they told us came down to almost nothing at all.

They still do not know for sure how many people were in their custody at the moment the riot started. The total number they have given us has changed eight times in 30 days. When will we know for sure? "Within a week," says new Secretary for Criminal Justice Adolph Saenz, apparently unaware that this is the same phrase his assistants have been trying to fob off on us since the outbreak started.

They are "fairly confident" no one escaped during that bloody weekend, we are told. They only shift to "totally confident" when they note our consternation.

They proudly announce the start of a new training course for guards, to be held at the Law Enforcement Academy. Who will teach it we ask, being well aware of government's proclivity for talking about how it trains its people when it is only whistling Dixie. They don't know, it turns out—a rather embarrassing lack, since the teacher is the true heart of any classroom exercise. (One charitably refrains from asking what will be taught. They probably haven't worked that out yet either.) They proclaim that Criminal Justice is setting up its own inspections staff—but it turns out they don't know who will run it or what its duties and powers will be.

The grade for information-imparting that day has to be an embarrassing 0 minus, at a time when the public has the right to demand a full fledged A plus. About their explosive penitentiary, New Mexicans do not want to be conned, mollified or jollied along; they want the truth, bark and all, and they want it once for all.

This group of public servants had better learn that and learn it fast. If they do not, some may find themselves in a serious bind.

Except for newly hired Secretary Saenz, everyone here—Felix Rodriguez, Jerry Griffin, Michael Banks and John Ramming—was in a position of authority in our corrections system prior to the time when 33 grisly murders took place. It will be difficult for them to totally separate themselves from responsibility for those events.

If they had any sense of what the public requires, it would probably not be they who sit down with reporters. What we would like is to hear some facts from a totally objective and completely outside source. To believe that these men might not shade the truth somewhat to save their own careers—just as the Governor and the Attorney General, in charge of the investigation, might be tempted to do—is to believe in fairy tales.

Sometimes we in Santa Fe covering state government allow ourselves to get caught up in cynicism, which Walter Lippman rightly said is "the curse of journalism." But if the old-timers among those listed above are counting on that to protect their reputations, they have another think coming.

The dread events of January at our State Pen do not lend themselves to cover-up in any form. We deal here with matters of life and death.

Sense & Nonsense

U.S. Sen. Pete Domenici

March 28 the Census Bureau will be mailing out questionnaires to more than 86 million American households. More than nine million pounds of paper will be shuffled in the process, and the end result will be a report totalling some 300,000 pages.

It will cost us about five times what it did in 1970 to count ourselves—probably $1 billion, and the General Accounting Office figures the amount to be higher than that by the time the last piece of paper is run through the computer.

There is no doubt but that it is a monumental task... perhaps almost too monumental, but still the end result is generally useful information. The final numbers will be used to redraw congressional districts, for example. But people is hardly all that the 1980 census will involve.

The more than 275,000 census takers hired to do this task will also find themselves counting furniture, television sets, cows, chickens, radios, houses, cotton gins and stills.

Uncle Sam is not the only one who finds this information useful. Corporations are making increasing use of census data. When 3-M developed a spray designed to keep dirt off upholstered furniture they contacted the Census Bureau to find out how many pieces of upholstered furniture can be found in America.

Beer manufacturers plan on using census results to find out where the heavy beer drinkers are. Obviously therefore the Census Bureau is under a good deal of pressure from special interest groups wanting various questions included. For example, swimming pool builders wanted to know how many people had backyard pools and pet food manufacturers want to know how many dogs and cats are running around. Fortunately the Census Bureau decided such questions were not relevant and would only clutter already complicated forms. An example of the complication was revealed recently in Camden, New Jersey where it was discovered that the Census Bureau's shock that most people couldn't understand the questions. Only 41 percent bothered to return the forms compared to double that number in 1970.

There have been other problems too. Last year sprinkler systems in the Census Bureau headquarters in Suitland, Maryland accidentally went off drenching the entire computer system. Hair dryers were used in a futile attempt to dry the circuits.

Despite all these problems, census officials assure me that the census is not all wet, and they have asked me to use this column in an appeal to fill out your forms and not slam the door on the census taker. As you can see they've had enough problems—and they are, after all, in the Census Bureau's own words, "counting on you."

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

I would like to publicly express my thanks to Danny Flores and the Ruidoso High School Warrior Band students for allowing me to accompany them in their solo and ensemble competitions March 1, in Las Cruces. It was an honor and a privilege to work with such a fine group of intelligent and hard working young adults.

Their director, Danny Flores, has done an excellent job in the short time that he has been in Ruidoso, to prepare these young people to be able to participate in many types of musical competition as well as to excel in musical careers after high school.

Congratulations to all of you on your excellent performances!

Martha Bryant

INFLATION HITS BOSS

Things-are-tough-all-over note: By and large, the pay of business executives has not kept pace with inflation. Whereas the consumer price index shows a cumulative increase of 110 per cent during the decade just past, says the American Management Association, business bigwigs' total compensation has gone up on the average by only 45 to 70 percent.

In one area, utility firms with revenues of $500 million to a billion, top executive compensation has even sagged, from $151,600 to a mere $140,400. But whether it's all a sad indicator of declining opportunity, or just a kind of shakedown to more realistic levels of pay for management skills who can say? — Alamogordo Daily News

GRAND PIANO NEEDED

A grand piano. Like a Steinway. Not a baby grand. Which isn't to mean babies ain't grand... but it's a grand piano as the folks ramrodding the Ruidoso Summer Festival be needing... 'cause they're in a pinch... or maybe even a blind... 'cause they ain't got no grand piano nohow at all.

So... if'n you have a grand piano... you know, the kind where the top props up... and it needs lotta room to occupy... mostly to make the dusting chore easier... kinda stashed away someplace... or properly displayed... even played properly... and often... that you'd like to loan to these music minded folks... who need a grand piano... give Ann Denton a call... it'd be music to her ears if'n you have a grand piano she can borrow.

The grand piano in needed, you see, for the concert series to be performed here by the Fort Worth Symphony Orchestra... seems, by jinkies, as them there orchestra folks is flat refusing to haul their grand piano up here to Harmony Valley from the Fort Worth flatlands... but you'll notice they ain't asking for no piccolos.

'Course, if'n you have a grand piano... especially one you'd be overjoyed to loan out for this most worthy of causes... memorable even... these summer festival folks'll move it, tune it, care for it, return it and tune it again... 'cause they're hurting for a grand piano... and what's a symphony performance without a grand piano? Let's hear it for Spike Jones! In case you missed it... call Ann Denton 336-4372... tell her you've got a grand piano for her... grand piano deal, that is... and Ann'll take it from there... not the piano, she ain't in the grand piano moving business... but she knows them as is. And think of all the joy your generosity will bring to thousands of music lovers... including, even, the grand piano player from the symphony... and maybe even the piccolo tooter.

IT'S ROTARY'S 75TH

Rotary International is observing its 75th anniversary... making 1980 sort of a diamond jubilee for Rotarians... even though they ain't forgetting it's the Year of the Monkey in China... which must give the Chinese Rotarians at least two reasons to be jubilant this year.

Ain't heard much about what Ruidoso Rotarians are up to, in the way of a year-long celebration... but you can bet they'll do a lot of observing sitting down, shoveling in the victuals... 'cause they figure they can't dream up activities, as'll benefit their favorite charitable causes, on an empty stomach.

So... when our Rotarians get cooking... cooking their enchilada feeds, that is... with the proceeds going to such causes as Search and Rescue, who might be called upon one day to save your life... do keep in mind, as you enjoy their enchiladas... that you're helping a wonderful buncha guys help a lot of other folks... mainly by the sweat of their brows... 'cause these guys just don't monkey around when they get cracking... even if the winner's got to buy his own liniment.

ROASTING MacGILLIVRAY

Just in case you've got a spare fifteen bucks... and you like a fun time dinner party... March 18, beginning at 6 p.m., in the Four Seasons Hotel in Albuquerque... there's a buncha folks from the Duke City, and other places, as is gonna roast Finlay MacGillivray... might even toast him a time or three... with the occasion being his retirement as manager of the New Mexico State Fair.

Now... there's a local angle to this roasting of MacGillivray... 'cause he's taking over April 1... no fooling... as chief honcho operator/manager/boss of Ruidoso Downs and Sunland Park race tracks... and just in case you'd like to extend the glad hand of welcome to him in his new position... and let him know you're happy he's gonna bulld Ruidoso Downs into a bigger'n better racing operation... you might kinda mosey up Albuquerque way for his roast. Can't do no hurt at all.

If'n you decide to go... send your $15 per ticket to: Finlay MacGillivray Roast, PO Box 8514, Albuquerque, 87196... and do hurry, you got until March 12... that's the deadline for reserving your seats for the roasting of MacGillivray's life.

Store robbers sought

Convenience stores long have been a favorite target of New Mexico's armed robbers.

Although the amount of cash available to the gunmen is relatively small, the stores' hours of operation make them attractive not only to honest citizens but also the dishonest.

One of the latest robbery victims was a Circle-K store in Alamogordo. On February 8, 1980 two white males entered the Circle-K at Washington and Indian Wells Road. The clerk placed the time at 6:30 p.m.

The lone clerk on duty at the time said the two men entered the store together. While one of them stood at the front of the showcase just inside the front door, the other offender casually walked through the store apparently to reassure himself no other customers were inside.

The clerk asked them if she could be of help.

"Give us the money," they replied. When the clerk asked, "What did you say?" one of the offenders responded, "Give us the money and the money under the reports."

The clerk obeyed their command. She filled a paper sack with all the cash in the registers and was ordered to lay on the floor.

The two men then ran out of the store, heading northbound.

They were described as being in their late teens. One was 5-6, 135 to 150 pounds with blond, shoulder length hair. He was wearing blue jeans and a green plaid flannel shirt the night of the robbery.

The second offender was 5-5 to 5-6, 135 pounds, and had dark brown or black collar-length hair. He was wearing wire frame glasses, a black cloth jacket and jeans.

This week the State Crime Stoppers Commission is offering a $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrests and indictments of the two offenders involved in the robbery.

Anyone having any information which could help solve the case is asked to call the Commission's toll-free number, 1-800-432-6933. Callers do not have to reveal their identities and their calls are not taped or traced.

The State Crime Stoppers Commission

also offers cash rewards for information leading to the solution of other major crimes committed around the State of New Mexico.

Curry County and Mora County became the two newest programs to join the Crime Stoppers family in New Mexico. The Curry County Crime Stoppers Program began operation officially last week. Their Crime Stoppers phone number is 763-7000.

Mora County Crime Stoppers also began operation last week. The program, which uses the State Crime Stoppers toll-free number 1-800-432-6933 to receive calls, set something of a record. Its first call resulted in the arrest of two persons in Ocate on charges of livestock theft in connection with some mule rustling.

State Forestry office offers tree seedlings

The New Mexico Division of Forestry still has trees available through their 1980 Tree Seedling Program. The Division provides seedlings to landowners at a very reasonable cost. Seedlings must be used for conservation purposes, such as erosion control, reforestation, windbreaks, shade around homes or Christmas trees.

Seedlings that are available are bareroot deciduous or containerized conifer (evergreen). Species of deciduous trees available through the program are Green Ash, Hackberry, Native Plum, Russian Olive, Lombardy Poplar and Skunkbush Sumac.

Russian Olive and Native Plum are small trees that are excellent for planting in windbreaks or used for erosion control. Wildlife also like these trees, since they both produce small fruit. Russian Olive is very resistant to drought and cold weather.

Green Ash and Hackberry are small to medium trees. They both do well in the central rows of windbreak plantings. They are also very good for single-row windbreaks.

Lombardy Poplar grows rapidly into a fairly tall tree. They can be planted fairly close together, and do well in the middle row of windbreak plantings. Lombardy Poplar will give you fast results in a windbreak while waiting for the slower species to grow in.

The available coniferous species available are Ponderosa Pine and Afghanistan Pine.

To be eligible to participate in the program, landowners must own at least two acres. A minimum of 100 bareroot seedlings must be purchased. The cost is $18.00 per hundred. Containerized seedlings are $40.00 for 98, which is the minimum order.

Applications for trees under the seedling program may be obtained by writing the Department of Natural Resources, Division of Forestry, P. O. Box 2167, Santa Fe, NM 87503 or by calling 827-3182.

Women can study construction work

New Mexico women, who are interested in learning about building construction work, should contact their local Employment Security field office before March 18 to learn if they qualify to participate in a special six-week construction orientation program to be conducted in Roswell from March 31 to April 9, 1980.

Candidates for the training program must be at least 18 years of age, have a tenth grade education and must meet specific income criteria through the Governor's Office of Employment and Training Administration. The program is intended to prepare interested women to enter the building construction apprenticeship programs.

During the training, participants will receive information about the various skilled occupations utilized in the construction industry and will participate in actual small construction projects. They will also be trained in first aid and safety, tool identification and use, and will practice aptitude testing done by the apprenticeship programs.

Persons interested in additional information should contact the New Mexico Commission on the Status of Women, Suite 811, Plaza del Sol, 600 2nd Street, NW, 842-3141 or 1-800-432-9168 outside Bernalillo County (toll-free) or the Women in Construction Project of the New Mexico Building and Construction Trades Council, 4400 Silver, SE, 255-4256, in Albuquerque.

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT: Linda Kelsey, who sometimes reports on protests in her role as a newspaper reporter on the "Lou Grant" TV show, has joined a real life one. Kelsey, who appeared three years ago in a coffee commercial, is taking part in the boycott against that company for its promotion and advertising of infant formula in Third World countries. She told me she has become aware that some of the sales promotion discouraged breast-feeding, causing malnutrition and death in some of the developing nations. "I began to feel very strange about the commercial," she says. "There's nothing wrong with the formula per se, but it just can't be used in the Third World." As a result, she is donating all proceeds from the commercial to the Infant Formula Action Coalition, the group sponsoring the boycott. . . . Forget the retirement talk. Johnny Carson won't be quitting "The Tonight Show" for a long time yet, say his best friends. Carson reveals in his TV superstar role so much that he'll still be on the air at the end of this year, says his straight man Ed McMahon. The talk show king's lawyer, Henry Bushkin, bets that Carson will still be the pride of NBC in 1984. Life hasn't always been so peaceful for the boyish-looking comic. According to top Hollywood agent Irving "Swifty" Lazar, Johnny was a "blackout drunk" before 1972, when he moved "The Tonight Show" from New York to Los Angeles. "A couple of drinks was all it took. He could get very hostile," says Lazar. Says Johnny, "I gave up drinking a couple of years ago. I couldn't handle it."

TV TICKET: Don't be surprised if Robert Blake winds up as a judge on the forthcoming Miss America contest. He has already put out feelers that he would like to serve on the panel. The Miss America people would probably like him to serve as a host, replacing Bert Parks. But there is no chance of that happening. . . . The next big television star could well be Christina Wayborn, the lovely brunette who has the much sought-after role of Greta Garbo in NBC's forthcoming mini-series "Movieola." . . . Alan Alda has put his father Robert and brother Anthony in an upcoming segment of "M*A*S*H." Alda, who wields tremendous power on the show, will also write and direct the episode. . . . There will be plenty of lovely ladies in NBC's six-hour mini-series "Beulah Land." Hope Lange, Dorian Harwood, Jenny Agutter and Meredith Baxter-Birney all have featured parts in the NBC special due to air in May. . . . Marilyn French's best-seller "The Woman's Room" will be turned into a movie by ABC. It will star Lee Remick, Patty Duke-Astin and Colleen Dewhurst in the top roles.

TV CLOSEUP: CBS coughed up $2 million for the TV rights to "Rocky II." And producer-star Sylvester Stallone will rake in a smashing $5 million for himself, insiders say. . . . Filming has been completed on MCA TV/Universal's "The Gossip Columnist." The production, which stars Bobby Vinton and Robert Vaughn, and guest stars Conrad Janis, Joe Penny, Martha Raye, Dick Sargent, Bobby Sherman, Sylvia Sidney, Lyle Waggoner and Kim Cattrall as the gossip columnist, is the story of a young and idealistic journalist who is almost seduced by Hollywood's standards. "The Gossip Columnist" will be aired on more than 90 Operation Prime Time stations in March. . . . In the past, their off-screen squabbles have made headlines, but Cindy Williams and Penny Marshall are skating along merrily these days. In fact, they are considering a joint business venture: disco roller skating club.

TO RACE THE WIND

A young law student uses his wits and a sense of humor to fight an endless battle to be treated normally by a sighted world in 'To Race the Wind,' a new motion-picture for television starring Steve Guttenberg (pictured), Randy Quaid and Mark L. Taylor, to be broadcast on The CBS Wednesday Night Movies, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 12.

Harold Krents (Guttenberg) is an independent, determined Harvard student with a philosophical outlook on his blindness. Wanting to be accepted as 'normal,' he is wary of any special treatment. He strategically devises unique and often hilarious systems to keep pace with his roommates and the often wild and demanding life of a college student.

LOU GRANT

When the "Mary Tyler Moore Show" had run its course, CBS sought to spin off some of the program's integral characters, save for Gavin McLeod who ended up at the helm of ABC's "Love Boat."

They were all failures except for Ed Asner's "Lou Grant" character. After working on a major TV station, Lou Grant was asked by the head of a great metropolitan newspaper (Los Angeles Tribune), in dire need of a shakeup in order to cut losses and boost circulation, to come in and be a firebrand in the fourth estate environment. Although he lost some of his gruffness in the changeover, Grant's departure was typical of what is taking place in the journalism field today.

The newspaper business and TV news game are interchangeable. Without digressing too much, let us take a closer look at "Lou Grant." For one thing, it's not a runaway Nielsen hit, but it has a loyal following, not just in North America but in places like Australia and Israel. It has also won several Emmys for writing and acting.

Therein lies the key for the program's success. "Lou Grant" is the closest thing we have to understanding how the newspaper business actually works. Sometimes we'll see an episode where Mrs. Pyncheon (Nancy Marchand), a Katherine Washington Post Graham clone, huddling with Lou and people from the advertising staff who may want the tough editor to lay off a certain "hot story." The female owner of the paper must then choose between Grant's bold move to bring respectability to the paper or drop the story in favor of much-needed advertising revenue.

In another instance, we may see Lou debating with his two crack reporters, Billie Newman (Linda Kelsey) and Joe Rossi (Robert Walden), about the approach they've taken to an assigned story. There isn't much realism left on the tube these days, but shows like "Lou Grant" give us hope for TV's future.

Mystery! moves to the race track

by June Rosner

Sherlock Holmes on a horse? Well, not exactly, but Sid Halley, ex-jockey turned super-sleuth, comes pretty close with his crime solving at race tracks. You will see him and his Watson-type sidekick, Chico, on April 8, in "The Racing Game," the first of three one-hour thrillers on PBS. The programs are part of the 15-week Mobil MYSTERY! series dramatizing some of the most exciting blood-chillers ever written.

Halley is a survivor. When an accident cost him an arm, ending his racing career, it did not dampen his competitive spirit. He is a tough, quick-thinking man in the mold of the "hard boiled" private eye—he accepts his handicap and makes a fresh start in life.

Sabotage, swindles and suspicious gambling are the mysteries he and Chico specialize in solving. In one episode, he traces a losing streak of one stable to the name of one of its horses, New Year's Lad. In another case he exposes the reason why a gambler is betting huge sums of money on a horse that continues to lose every race. Then, there is the freak accident where a tanker truck spills acid across a race track causing races to be postponed.

The stories are typical of the "hard-boiled" private eye mysteries that began to emerge in the late Thirties. They portrayed the world in a more realistic, raw language than ever before, moving murder out from the prim neatness of the drawing room and into the blood and guts of the back alley. The back alleys were rough places, peopled by mobsters, racketeers, punks and thugs. The element of mystery was still there, but instead of a plain puzzle, these tales are fleshed out with multi-faceted characters and complex plots.

To help you and your family fully appreciate these mysteries, Prime Time School Television (PTST) has prepared a special guide. The guide offers more than just a synopsis of each program. It presents a history of mysteries as a literary genre and a discussion of some of its most popular forms—the gothic, the "hard-boiled" private eye, the police procedural and the pure detective.

To receive your free copy, write to: MYSTERY!, PTST, 120 S. LaSalle Street, Chicago, IL 60603. (Write now, supplies are limited.) Better still, become a PTST member by sending $10 to the above address and receive all of our regular program guides on public and commercial television programs.

Concentration camp memories still vivid for Roswell woman

BY CHARLOTTE FELLERS
Staff Writer/Photographer

The horrors of World War II are history for people under the age of 35, but for some, the memories are as vivid as ever. Josephine Orlinski, 60, of Roswell, recently recalled the years she spent in Poland as a two-year resident of a concentration camp. The stability of her life today scarcely resembles her youth, she said.

Mrs. Orilnski's children include Barbara Kizer, Ruidoso; five that are scattered throughout the United States and her oldest daughter, Jan, with whom she was reunited in Poland last year, after a separation of 37 years.

Barbara left home when she was 21 and married Mack Kizer in 1974. The couple, who own and operate Sierra Cleaners in Ruidoso, has one son, Chad, nine.

Orlinski tells the story of her life in broken English. It begins in the early 1940's in Poland, her home for many years. When Nazi Germany took the country in 1941, Orilnski and her husband were separated from their eldest daughter, Jan, when the Gestapo "came and got us." Jan was left with Orilnski's mother and an aunt to be raised. Jan was 18 months old at the time.

Jan's parents were transported to a camp called Hale-Ande-Sale, which housed mostly Catholic Polish people. Looking back, Orilnski said she thinks her religion saved her. "We were treated better than the Jews," she said.

But she was still scared. Each day for two years, she was taken to a slaughter house to work and never saw her husband except if, by chance, she caught a glimpse of him on her way to work. He was sent to dig underground tunnels, used by the Nazis for protection from enemy fire, and later worked on a farm.

"We butchered anything edible — cows, horses, goats," she said. "We had to put the food in cans which were rationed out to the soldiers, and some was put in storage houses. After the war, the Americans found eight storage units full of food. The soldiers weren't getting any of it."

The slaughterhouse was privately owned by two brothers. "They treated us good; they bought clothes for us and the wife cooked enough food to feed all of us, but we had to keep quiet about it . . . If the Gestapo found out, they would kill them," she said.

The Gestapo never found out. One day, Orilnski said, "We brought home some lard . . . they let us bring home anything we could eat. We shipped lard to my family through the mail sometimes." She said being a resident at the concentration camp wasn't as bad as it could have been. "We got mail with food stamps in it. . . they never screened our mail. The slaughterhouse was only a few miles from a restaurant. We went to the restaurant and had food when we had money. We could ride a streetcar . . . there were good and bad people there . . . the good people brought us food or stamps, but we could never even say thanks.

"They never let us go to church . . . but we could have dances once in a while. We worked every day but Sunday because (on Sundays), all the factories closed down," she said.

Those in the camp slept in three tier bunks that were infested with vermin. "There were a lot of sick people in there. They had a couple of rooms they said were a hospital, but if you got in there, they gave you stuff until you died," she said. "We knew when they put somebody in there, they were never coming back . . . they let us go to funerals a few times."

Orilnski was grateful for the food smuggled to her and her friends while working at the butcher shop as the food provided at the camp was meager, she said.

"They gave us what they called soup — there was one potato chasing the hot water around the bowl. They gave us a half loaf of bread, a little piece of sausage, a little piece of meat and a little piece of butter — and that was supposed to last a week."

In 1943, the ordeal was over for Orilnski and her husband. "When the Americans came they gave us guns and told us we could do whatever we wanted to. We took them and shot the Gestapo," she said.

Storage units for food were opened and Orilnski helped herself to some bread and other food. "I took it to my boss at the butcher house . . . because he was so good to us during the war."

Once the Allied Forces arrived, Orilnski said, things were different. "The Americans broke down doors and let us go into the (clothing) shops and get whatever we needed," she said.

Following the war, the couple worked on a refugee camp farm until 1951. While there, two more children were born. Though the family was not reunited, five years after their release from the concentration camp they learned where their oldest daughter was living.

In 1951, the couple and their two younger children obtained passage to the United States on a ship. Their trip was paid for by the Catholic Relief Fund and Orilnski said the ride was very crowded and "pretty rough at times."

She said the Catholic Relief Fund paid for many people, of every faith, to travel to freedom. There was one requirement: "If you weren't married in the church's eyes, you couldn't come," she said.

The ship docked in New York, and the Orilnski family was put on a train for New Mexico. Orilnski said none of the families had a choice about where they would live, but each was sponsored by an American family. Upon arrival in Santa Fe, the family was asked if they would move on to Roswell, where a sponsor was readily available. At that time, Barbara was born, and after that, the family moved to Indiana for a short time. While in Indiana, the Orilnskis became the parents of twins.

They returned to Roswell to work on their sponsors' farm, where their last child was born.

The Orilnskis settled in Roswell, and the two children born in Germany and their mother later became United States citizens. Mr. Orilnski never gained United States citizenship and still does not speak English.

In July, 1979, Orilnski made the trip to Poland and found the country was much different than the one she left 35 years ago.

"In Poland, everyone has electricity, butane heaters, and water heaters in the bathroom. Most people have outdoor toilets . . . now they have a lot of tractors, plows, combines, and buses for commuting," she said. Most of the churches have been restored, but "lots of the houses are still not repaired from the war."

Orilnski found her daughter living on an eight-acre farm, and employed as a crafts person, making wicker furniture and baskets. Her husband works in a dairy so the family has access to all the dairy products they want; otherwise, dairy foods are in short supply. "She's lucky; she has a lot of friends who can get her good meat and other things. If you don't, it's hard to get it," she said.

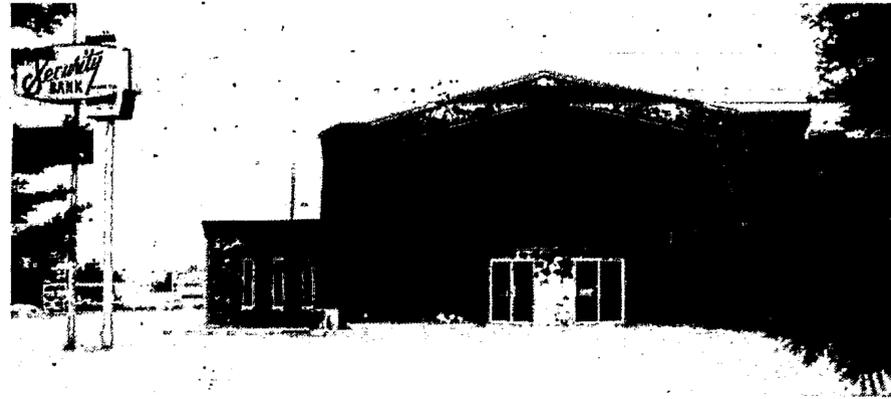

Fiats are the only cars in abundance in Poland, and Orilnski's daughter used one to drive her mother around Europe for several weeks.

"I want to go back; I didn't stay long enough," she said.

That's a privilege her husband will never have; because as he is still a Polish citizen, he could enter the country but never leave it.

JOSEPHINE ORILNSKI, a native of Poland, was recently reunited with her eldest daughter after they were separated for more than 35 years as a result of the Second World War.
