the Iranians have held 50 Americans hostage. The ultimatum to the Ayatolla Khomeini must be the written words: "Let my people go."

CHARLIE WYMAN, ASSISTANT D. A.

Assistant DA assigned here

Charlie Wyman assumed duties last week as assistant District Attorney, replacing Dan Bryant, who resigned March 1 to enter private practice. Originally from Carlsbad, Wyman received a bachelor's degree from Rice University in Houston, Texas and was graduated from the Texas Tech law school in Lubbock, Texas in 1977. Since that time he has been employed by the public defender's offices in both Roswell and Carlsbad. He joined the District Attorney's office in Alamogordo in December, 1979. The office has also hired an investigator for Lincoln County, Leandro Vega, who will be based in Carrizozo. "Hopefully, Mr. Vega will help us move cases through the courts and help us in putting evidence together which should result in more convictions," Wyman said Thursday. He added that no policy changes are planned for the local office. "We will continue under the same guidelines as before," he said. "I'm looking forward to meeting as many people in the community as I can, and to cooperating with village and county officials," Wyman said. Wyman and his wife, Elizabeth, are living in Ruidoso.

RUIDOSO CLAIMS 77 OF 105 MEDALS DECA sweeps convention

Ruidoso High School's Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) students have, for the third straight year, qualified the largest delegation of New Mexico students for national DECA competition.

DECA sponsor Eddie Parker, said 20 DECA students will be attending the national Career Development Conference in Miami in June.

"We had students qualify in both individual and chapter competition. The Pepsi Learn and Earn Project automatically gives us three slots, and 17 other students had high marks on individual manuals or in competitive events," Parker said. Qualifiers were named at the state conference in Albuquerque last week.

Of the 105 possible district medals to be earned, Ruidoso claimed 77, followed by Las Cruces with eight. Ruidoso qualified four individual manuals for nationals and swept competency based events with 12 winners. This year's convention featured more than 1,200 contest entrants, with stiffest competition coming from Roswell-Goddard and Portales high schools.

"This is the first year we've had 100 percent participation from the chapter at the state convention," Parker said. Ruidoso sent 70 students and seven sponsors to the conference. Sponsors included Donna Parker, Janey Pritchett, Marie McCulley, Charlotte Fuchs, Linda Padia, Patsy McWilliams and Dorothy Dale.

Parker said DECA students will immediately begin fund raisers to earn about $5,000 to finance their trip to Miami. The newly-purchased activity bus will be used, with at least 25 people expected to attend.

Parker said about $10,000 in traveling expenses will be saved by driving instead of flying. "In past years, we've flown, but this year, costs would be prohibitive — nearly $17,000 — since we had so many people qualify for national competition." The following winners were named in

Chamber's Coffee Cart Wednesday

The Wednesday morning Coffee Cart, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, will be from 9-10:30 at Security Bank of Ruidoso.

The coffees are open to the public, to meet with Chamber officers and directors to discuss any matters that might concern the Chamber or the development of recreation and tourism in this area.

Ski Road airing set at Carlsbad

The New Mexico Highway Commission will meet Wednesday and Thursday at the Stevens Motel, Carlsbad. The commission briefing begins at 1:30 p.m., Wednesday with Thursday's meeting beginning at 9 a.m., including repairing of Ski Run Road leading to Sierra Blanca Ski Resort.

The Wednesday briefing will be conducted by Fred O'Cheskey, outgoing Chief Highway Administrator. Included on the agenda will be a report to the commission by Deputy Chief Highway Administrator Dona McCord concerning the financial status of the road agency. Other items on the briefing agenda include six studies of policy that will be brought before the commission. These include policy on personnel, civil rights, minority business, enterprise policy, policy draft on overweight vehicles, on urban drainage, on aircraft and a complete discussion of the list of policy issues. A closed executive session on personnel matters will be the final item of the Wednesday meeting.

At Thursday's session legislators, county and city officials who have been invited to the meeting will be introduced. Agenda items include a presentation by Senator I. M. Smalley, President Pro Tempore of the New Mexico Legislature, who will present to the commission further plans for the construction of a road from Anapra to Columbus. Julian Luna, Valencia County Commissioner will appear before the commissioners to request assistance with the widening of the Rio Grande Bridge at Belen, and Ed Jungbluth, executive director of the Ruidoso Chamber of Commerce will ask for aid on the repair of State Road 532, the Ski Run Road to the Sierra Blanca Ski Resort.

During the luncheon break, the Highway Commissioners will meet with Governor Bruce King and with members of the New Mexico Board of Economic Development to discuss matters important to both groups.

Downs' census plans set

To insure an accurate census in Ruidoso Downs, mayor Norman Wheeler has named a Complete Count Committee (CCC) to, he said, "encourage everyone here to be counted." Chairing the committee is Mrs. Marile Payton with Howell Pugh and Mrs. Don Rierson as members. "The success of the 1980 census count in Ruidoso Downs is vitally important," Wheeler said. "Not only does our community's political representation in the United States Congress and in the state legislature rest on census population totals, but large amounts of federal and state funds are returned to Ruidoso Downs each year based on census statistics. "For example, in the current budget year, we are receiving $32,906 in federal revenue sharing funds. The Office of Revenue Sharing of the United States

Treasury uses census population and per capita income figures to allocate these payments. "If everyone is not counted, it means our community will be shortchanged and we will not receive our fair share of these tax funds which, after all, come from our residents in the first place." Wheeler said the Ruidoso Downs CCC will undertake an intensive public education campaign to inform all residents about the importance of cooperating with the census. Census questionnaires will be delivered to each Ruidoso Downs household March 28. Householders are requested to answer the census questions and mail them back in the enclosed preaddressed envelopes April 1. "If a preaddressed envelope is not provided," Payton said, "householders are asked to complete the questionnaire and hold it until a census worker stops to pick it up." Payton said CCC members will explain the census to organizations in Ruidoso Downs, distribute census flyers and posters in the village and "strongly endorse public cooperation with the census at every opportunity." CCC will be active until June 30, with monthly meetings scheduled in the Municipal Building, where temporary offices are located. Organizations and individuals, Payton said, "interested in cooperating with CCC are asked to contact Mrs. Rierson, or call her at 378-4740."

Symphony plans jelling

BY GWYNETH JONES
Staff Writer

While fundraising efforts aimed at bringing the Fort Worth Symphony Orchestra to Ruidoso are progressing, the board of Ruidoso Summer Festival Incorporated (RSFI) Thursday voted to allocate $3,000 immediately for promotional purposes. Those funds will be directed to the public relations firm of Byoir and Associates of Houston, Texas. The firm had requested the advance of funds in order to insure that the planned week-long season of concerts could be covered by top travel writers for publications throughout the country. Members of the RSFI board agreed that they might be "losing some of the value of our advertising dollars," if the monies were not committed to the project now. The funds are needed now, according to the firm, because the writers are often "booked up" months in advance for various events.

The group reiterated their intention to refund all individual donations should the project fall through, and said the $3,000 in advertising funds could be covered by board member's donations and/or funds already granted by the Ruidoso Lodger's Tax committee, in that event. Most expressed optimism, however, that the fund drive goal of $95,000 could be met. RSFI chairperson Ann Denton also gave the board members an update on a benefit country-western dance which is being organized by Lee Marshall, owner of The Office. Denton said the dance had been scheduled for March 30 at the Chaparral, whose facilities and staff services had been donated for the purpose. Two bands, led by Lynn Martin and Grady Hobbs have also agreed to donate their services, Denton said. In addition, Marshall arranged for the donation of door prizes from local businesses and individuals, with 15 items already donated, Denton added. Admission price for the dance has yet to be determined, but may be set at five dollars per person, Denton said. In other business, the RSFI board: —Agreed to set up a system to receive memorial donations, to be made to the symphony project in honor of deceased persons. Memorial donations would be listed in the honoree's name on the festival program, along with other contributors. —Were advised by Maureen Ware that she is looking into the possibility of renting a grand piano from one of several music companies in Alamogordo. —Heard that Western Office Equipment had agreed to donate office supplies in lieu of a cash contribution. —Agreed to contact high school and service organizations to solicit services for valet parking and cleanup work following concerts. —Requested that member Alton Lane check into the possibility of using the grounds or facilities of the First Christian Church for one of the concerts. —Discussed possible dates and locations for a party to be held for members of Los Ruidos, an organization composed of those donating $500 or more to the project, with no action taken. —Were advised that member Jackie Spencer will meet with the board of Ruidoso-Sunland to request use of the sales arena at the Ruidoso Downs Racetrack for concerts. —Agreed to meet again at 4 p.m., Wednesday at Sonny's Bar-B-Q.

Jaycees of the Month

DANNY FLORES, music instructor for the Ruidoso High School Band and Chorus, was named Ruidoso Jaycee of the Month for January. Flores holds a Bachelor's degree in music education from Eastern New Mexico University. He has taught music here for two years.

WAYNE WARD, business manager at Sierra Blanca Motors since 1978, was named Ruidoso Jaycee of the Month for January. Ward, who is married and the father of two children, holds a BBA from New Mexico State University in business management and accounting.

Easter hat contest set

A homemade Easter hat contest will highlight activities being planned for an "Afternoon in the Park" Easter Sunday. The day in School House Park will be sponsored by the Retail Merchants Committee of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce.

Three categories of hats will be judged with the following prizes for each: Most original — $50 gift certificate from Brunell's, first; $25 gift certificate from the Galleria, second; and $15 gift certificate from A Place in the Sun, third.

Funniest — AM/FM digital clock radio from Village Hardware, first; $15 gift certificate from The Looking Glass, second; $10 gift certificate from Gibson's, third.

Worst looking hat - gag prize provided by Ruidoso Music.

Richard Sandoval, committee chairman, said rules are few. "The hats have to be handmade; you can buy the basic hat and decorate it, but we won't give prizes to people who just go out and buy a pretty hat."

Winners will be announced mid-afternoon Easter Sunday in connection with a slate of other planned activities.

Tools stolen from Ruidoso lookout tower

A Smokey Bear Ranger District spokesman advised The News that tools valued at more than $70 were stolen about February 28 from the Ruidoso Lookout Tower.

The stolen tools included socket sets, screwdrivers, hammers and wrenches. Persons with information concerning this theft are asked to contact G. Werther, Smokey Bear District office, Ruidoso, telephone 257-4095.

Sandoval said service clubs are joining with the Chamber to sponsor games for children and adults. A Dixieland band will provide musical entertainment, and hot dogs with trimmings will be sold at low cost to complete the schedule.

"We felt like everyone had such a good time at the last one we sponsored in October, we're really excited about this one," Sandoval said. He added that a short religious ceremony will precede festivities since Easter is a religious holiday.

Legion, Unit's spaghetti feed set Wednesday

Ruidoso's American Legion and the Auxiliary are sponsoring a spaghetti dinner, in traditional Italian Style, at the Ruidoso Elks Lodge Wednesday.

Serving will be from 11 a.m.-2:30 p.m., and from 5:30 p.m. The cost will be $3 per plate. Proceeds will be earmarked for the building fund, as the organizations are making plans to build a club house, designed for American Legion and Auxiliary functions.

Tree pruning procedure set near Hondo

Esteban Herrera, extension horticulture specialist, will demonstrate the correct procedure for pruning fruit trees at 1:30 p.m., Tuesday at the home of Clem Weindorf.

The home is located about one mile northwest of Hondo on the north side of Highway 380, next to Bert Ffingsten's. For more information on the demonstration, contact county agricultural extension agent Barry Herd in Carrizozo at 648-2471.

Census takers needed locally

Census takers are needed locally, the Las Cruces District Census Office advised The News Friday.

Persons willing to work on this year's census are asked to apply at the Ruidoso Employment Office, Gateway. There is a need for both full time and part time workers, as well as for those that will have standby status.

For more information on the demonstration, contact county agricultural extension agent Barry Herd in Carrizozo at 648-2471.

Drug robbers sought; $5,000 reward offered

With more and more law enforcement pressure being put on the smuggling and street sales of narcotics, drug addicts are turning to the pharmaceutical business as their main supplier of controlled substances.

Drug stores throughout New Mexico are becoming victimized at an alarming rate by addicts and this week the State Crime Stoppers Commission is offering a total of $5,000 in rewards for information solving a variety of crimes against the pharmacies.

In Albuquerque alone, four drug stores have been robbed in the first two months of 1980 — just two less than the total number of robberies against pharmacies for all of 1979. And there have been 24 burglaries committed against Albuquerque's drug stores during the past 15 months.

But Albuquerque isn't the only place where this kind of criminal activity is occurring.

A man and a teenaged woman were arrested in Hobbs in connection with the Christmas Eve sawed-off shotgun robbery of a drug store in Artesia.

Two men robbed a Farmington drug store on February 7, demanding drugs, not money.

And less than two weeks after armed robbers hit the Buckland Pharmacy in Belen, it was victimized by burglars. Some of these robberies have tragic and near-tragic results.

In Carlsbad, the wife of druggist Johnny Volpato was shot and killed by two armed robbers. Volpato was badly wounded in the robbery. Local citizens, the Carlsbad Crime Stoppers program and the State Crime Stoppers Commission have put together a $16,000 reward fund for information solving that case.

Albuquerque pharmacist Robert Lee was stabbed and critically wounded by three men during a robbery to his North Fourth drug store in January.

And a clerk at Community Drug in Albuquerque was shot in the abdomen during a hold-up on December 16, 1979. He has now recovered.

Burglaries have occurred from Raton to Las Cruces, more than 25 in all.

While there appears to be no organized link between the various robberies and burglaries, the offenders are after the same types of narcotics — Dilaudid, Demerol, Methadone, Dextedrine, Desoxyn, Preludin, Quaalude, Librium and Valium — all controlled substances.

Dilaudid, an analgesic, has many of the same effects as heroin and thus is a favorite of addicts. It can be taken orally or injected. Its popularity among addicts reached such heavy proportions recently that many drug stores now have removed it from their stock and have put up signs in the front windows saying they don't have it any more.

Quaalude, Librium and Valium are all depressants, while Dextedrine, Preludin and Desoxyn are stimulants. All of these controlled substances, when abused, have high physical and psychological dependence factors.

With the alarming increase in robberies and burglaries from New Mexico's pharmaceutical industry and with evidence of a growing number of physicians becoming involved in the practice of unlawfully prescribing controlled substances, local, state and federal law enforcement agencies recently banded together to create the Diversion Investigation Unit.

The highly specialized unit only investigates cases where legal narcotics are being diverted into illegal channels.

If anyone has any information which could solve this recent rash of drug store robberies or burglaries, they could become eligible for a substantial reward by calling the State Crime Stoppers Commission at its toll-free number, 1-800-432-6933. Callers do not have to reveal their identities and their calls are not taped.

State Crime Stoppers and the 32 local Crime Stoppers programs here in New Mexico also pay cash rewards for information leading to the solution of other crimes committed in the state and also for tips leading to the capture of wanted felons.

To date, a total of 119 cases have been cleared by the State Crime Stoppers Commission with the help of information provided by citizens around New Mexico. The cases solved range from arson to Medicaid and Welfare Fraud and Liquor law violations.

More than 1,630 crimes have been solved by all the local Crime Stoppers Programs since September, 1976, and a total of $1.82 million in stolen property and narcotics has been recovered.

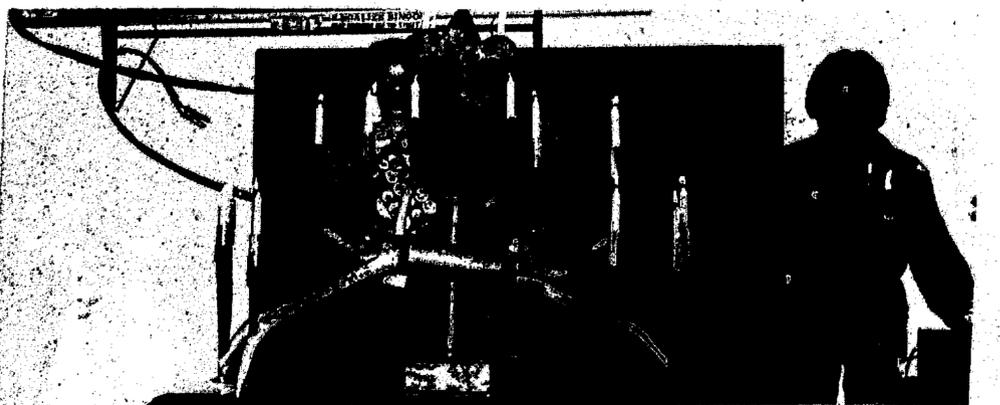

WMSR sets training session

White Mountain Search and Rescue will hold a training session and business meeting at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday in the multipurpose room of the Ruidoso Public Library.

Subject of the training session will be "Collapsed building rescue." Annual dues of the search and rescue organization are due by March 30.

Activities set for RCC residents

A variety of activities for residents of Ruidoso Care Center (RCC) are being prepared entirely by volunteers, according to Thomasine Pounds, social director for RCC.

Pounds said since the center opened February 4, 15 people volunteer regular hours each week to lead or assist in crafts, exercise classes, games, puppet shows, church services and birthday parties.

"We're so happy with the community support," Pounds said. "The volunteers make the daily program so much richer; and as we gain more residents, they will become an even more vital part of the operation." RCC now has 18 residents but has the capacity for 80.

- A belated Saint Patrick's Day party March 18, with Bill Mullins providing special music.
- A musical program featuring Carlene Wadley.
- Teddi Sullivan, a singer who accompanies herself at the piano, will perform March 21.
- Joyce Nix, local musician, shared her talents at the piano and violin March 14.
- Monthly "holiday" parties sponsored by Lincoln County 4-H Clubs.
- Weekly church services, provided by the Ministerial Alliance.
- Monthly birthday party, provided by women from the Church of Christ.

Kimbrell attended financial meeting

Lincoln County treasurer Mike Kimbrell attended a recent conference on local financial management in San Francisco, California.

The conference, Kimbrell said, focused on forecasting revenue and expenditures, tying together of budgeting, accounting and auditing and the use of performance measures and reducing state and federal Pounds said the first meeting of a Community Council will be March 27 at 7 p.m., at RCC. The Council is a 10-member board including seven people from the community, a resident of RCC, Pounds and administrator Ivan Westergaard.

"We are organizing the council to obtain input from the people of Ruidoso. We hope they will tell us the feeling the community has for the center, and if they feel our programs are encompassing the needs of everyone," Pounds said.

A residents' council will be formed in the future, to serve as a liaison between the residents and the administration.

barriers to the use of modern financial management practices.

The conference was sponsored by the Financial Management Capacity Sharing Program of the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development and, Kimbrell said, 12 major organizations concerned with local government financial management.

Pounds said more volunteers are needed, and "you don't have to have a special talent to volunteer your time. We need people who can play dominos or cards with residents; but if you have special talents, we can work them into the program."

Highlight of events happening this month include:

Janet Smith accepts theatre internship

Janet Smith, a Western Washington University, student Bellingham, Washington, has accepted a six month internship with the Seattle Repertory Theatre, Washington.

Smith, daughter of Ron and Alice Smith of Ruidoso, is a junior majoring in arts management at Western's College of Fine and Performing Arts.

She is combining her studies with positions as business manager of Full Circle, Western's Touring Theatre, and promotion, scheduling and box office coordinator for theatre/dance department productions.

Her internship will begin next September and run through March, 1981. During that time she will work within the theatre company's various departments, including subscription, press and public relations, box office, front-of-house, accounting and the executive administration offices.

"I'm really excited," Smith said of her upcoming internship. "It will be a very challenging learning experience."

Smith, who attended Alamogordo High School, plans to enter theatre business management field.

JANET SMITH

Spring bazaar at Mescalero's Elderly Center

The Mescalero Elderly Center will host a spring bazaar, chili luncheon and bake sale March 22 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., at the center.

Proceeds will be used to expand the elderly summer recreation program, according to Laura Enjady, center manager.

Items available for sale will include handmade shawls, cradle boards with dolls, Indian dolls dressed in native clothing, including one male doll dressed in buckskins, beaded key rings and assorted pieces of beaded jewelry.

Quilts, baby quilts and afghans, potholders, dish towels, Indian shirts, blouses and throw pillows will also be sold.

The chili luncheon is priced at $1 per bowl, with fry bread. Other food items available will include breads, cakes, pies, cupcakes, cookies, sandwiches coffee and Koolaid.

The Elderly Center is located adjacent to the Mescalero Hospital. Direction signs will be posted.

PEOPLE

Family life defined by students

Students in a Ruidoso High School Contemporary Problems class, when asked to define the most important components of a family, selected love and respect for one another as their answers.

The 15-member class were asked to participate in a survey being taken by the New Mexico Conference on Families, with input to be presented at the state conference and later at the White House conference on Families in July.

In an effort to determine what constitutes a family, the role of family life and specific laws which strengthen or weaken the family, hearings will be held Wednesday and Thursday night in Lincoln County.

Wednesday's meeting will be at the Ruidoso Public Library's multi-purpose room from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday the meeting will begin at 7 p.m., in the district courtroom, Carrizozo.

Other important components of a family, class members said, include the opportunity to constructively criticize each other, mutual appreciation, people who can be relied upon in time of need, people who can be honest with one another and guide each other.

Students felt that elimination of one or more elements allows the strength of a family to deteriorate, but added that the popularity of television interferes with family life in general.

Only three students said they are not allowed to watch television during the dinner hour, and some said their families often eat at the same time, but in front of the tube.

Students also recognized a more mobile, busier society today than existed 50 years ago as a factor contributing to a loss of closeness within the family.

"Divorce as a result of various tax laws, alcohol and gambling were cited as the major reasons for the break-up of traditional families.

Because of economics and a trend in society away from agriculture and toward industry, families have decreased in size and lost some of their importance in day-to-day living, students said.

Amaranth hosting grand officers

Ponderosa Court 6, Order of Amaranth, will host the official visitations of Grand Royal Matron Verbena Emery, La Mesa Court 3, Albuquerque; and Grand Royal Patron George Cole, Bandeller Court 4, Las Alamos, March 22.

Walterine Hughes, Royal Matron of Ponderosa Court, has announced that the grand officers will be honored at a 6:15 p.m., covered dish dinner at the Eastern Star hall and that the business meeting, including visitation ceremonies, begins at 7:30.

Hostesses for the evening will be Edna Hassinger, Gladys Knox and Inez Killebrew.

Serving at the wedding reception were Diana Isaacs, Linda Osbourn and Linda Thompson, all of Ruidoso.

District Five Legion, Unit named officers

Officers to serve District Five of the American Legion and Auxiliary were elected at the spring meeting in Carrizozo Sunday.

Legion officers named were James Hiles, Bent, district commander; Victor Cisneros, Carrizozo, first vice commander; Romeo Klein, Ruidoso, second vice commander; "Lou" Gomez, Tularosa, Sergeant-at-Arms and Tony Genta, Alamogordo, state executive committeemen.

Jovita Torres, Carrizozo, was elected president of the District Five American Legion Auxiliary with Mrs. G. Gordon Alamogordo, secretary and Nan Genta, Alamogordo, chaplain. Torres will announce the appointive officers soon. Ruidoso was selected to host the fall district meeting, at a date to be set in October.

Army band member likes Germany

Touring a foreign country, doing the work he likes most, and serving his country at the same time is the life of an Army bandsman from Alamogordo.

Spec. 5 James N. Taylor, son of Mrs. Sherry W. Taylor, Alamogordo, and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Walker of Ruidoso, is a french horn section leader with the 8th Infantry Division Band stationed at Bad Kreuznach, West Germany. This band provides music for all formal military events within the division, but that is just the beginning of their responsibilities. As part of the division's policy of being a good neighbor, the division band plays to appreciative German audiences at dozens of local festivals and parades and even travels to surrounding countries.

"Europe offers a lot in culture," said the 24-year-old soldier. "You can be exposed to more of the classics in music, art, architecture and history than at home. There is an abundance in horn teachers, which are available at very low cost. For classical musicians this is the land of opportunity and improvement."

Taylor isn't the only musician in the family. His mother is director of music for Alamogordo Public Schools.

He doesn't like everything about being in Europe, though. "I miss the beautiful weather in New Mexico and the hunting available at home. Hunting here is too expensive," he said.

Taylor, a 1973 graduate of Alamogordo Senior High School attended the University of New Mexico at Albuquerque for a year before he joined the Army in September, 1974, to get the GI Bill and to get married to the former Sandra Garofano of Alamogordo who is with him in Germany. He has two sons, James Alan, 3, and John Christopher, 1½.

"I'm getting out of the Army in July 1981, and I'm planning to go back to college, using my GI Bill, and get my degree in music education with applied emphasis on french horn," Taylor said.

"hopefully, to play professionally for an opera, ballet or a symphony orchestra, in a more band."

He also said he now owns a copper-gold alloy french horn hand-made in Germany to his specifications.

Bridge Club benefit Wednesday

The Ruidoso Bridge Club will join with other bridge organizations throughout the county Wednesday to sponsor an evening of competition for the benefit of the American Diabetes Association.

The public is invited to participate in the games, which will begin at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday at the Adult Recreation Center behind the Ruidoso Public Library. The Ruidoso club holds membership in the American Contract Bridge League (ACBL), which is organizing the Spring Continental Charity Game.

The competition is actually international, with players from Canada, Mexico and other countries taking part. A unique aspect of the play will be the fact that participants in every game in each city will play exactly the same hands under near-identical conditions.

Hands will be computer-dealt, and each person participating will be given a sheet showing all the hands played following the session.

Prizes will be awarded to the ACBL Continental winners as well as the victors in each of the 25 districts within ACBL. Additionally, master points will be awarded to those finishing well in every game.

Refreshments will be served by members of the Ruidoso Bridge Club. Local tournament chairperson is Hilma Collier, who will be assisted by committee members Mrs. Inez Killebrew, Mrs. Becky Garner and Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Latham.

More information about the session may be obtained by calling Rachel Kirkwood, publicity chairperson, at 257-5937 in Ruidoso.

Help asked to form Ruidoso 4-H Club

Anyone interested in joining, or helping organize, a Ruidoso 4-H club is being asked to contact the Lincoln County extension office in Carrizozo, 648-2471.

County extension agent Barry Herd said Friday that current 4-H members are now starting to sign up for projects for the coming year.

"4-H has much to offer, whether it be in agricultural projects, home economics, arts and crafts, indoor gardening, bike safety, and so on," Herd said.

Lincoln County 4-Hers participate in county, state and national activities," he said. Some upcoming competitions include a wool-judging contest in May, a district competition for junior 4-H members in June and a state conference for senior members to be held in Las Cruces in July.

In the past, a number of local youngsters have participated in page programs at the state legislature and in a "Citizenship Short Course," in Washington D.C.

In addition to the club activities and competition, Herd said, the youngsters receive the added benefit of becoming acquainted with other 4-H members throughout the county.

Interested persons may contact either Herd or extension home economist Mary Ellen Payne at the Carrizozo office.

CowBelles staging Beef Cook-Off

The New Mexico CowBelles are sponsoring a Beef Cook-Off June 21, at the Home Economics Department of the University of New Mexico, Albuquerque.

Entry blanks and rules for the state cookoff are available from Mrs. Neal Vaughn, chairperson, Box 226, Ft. Sumner, New Mexico 88119.

To enter the contest, original beef recipes must be typed or printed on a full sheet of paper, one side only, with no brand names used. Complete directions for preparation must be given, as well as the number of servings and the approximate cost of each serving. The entry deadline is May 1.

Recipes must use beef chuck, round, rump, fresh brisket or ground beef. The recipe must call for a minimum of two pounds of beef, a maximum of five pounds, and must be exclusively beef.

Ten finalists will be chosen by the CowBelles and notified to be at the Albuquerque cookoff. Contestants must furnish all ingredients, garnishes and equipment, with gas or electric stoves being provided by the university.

The state winner will receive $150, plus $200 expense money, to attend the National Cook-Off in Scottsdale, Arizona. The second place state winner will receive $75, third place $50, with $25 beef certificates to seven honorable mentions.

National prizes will be $1,500 for first, $750 for second, $500 for third with five honorable mentions receiving $100 each.

Ankle wedges 'in'

The "Retro" look of the 40s and 50s also affects footwear with the return of the ankle-strap wedge. Other popular shoe styles include jazz oxford, ballet flats and dancer heels with straps and curved King Louis heels. We'll also see all heights of heels from flat-flat to the tall-tall heels, say NMSU Extension people. Toe shapes will vary from slightly rounded to a touch of the pointed toe.

Focus on Small Business

by E. Maine Shafer

Dear Mr. Shafer,

It seems to me that the energy field is opening up many good business venture areas. Is there help from the Small Business Administration (SBA) to get started?

You can bet your photovoltaic cell there is.

A year ago, Congress added a Section 7 (1) to the Small Business Act authorizing a new Energy Loan Program. It has the advantage of not having an administrative limit on the number of loans made plus the fact that loans can be made at greater than usual risk.

The program started in January with $6 million available for loans. In four months, funds were exhausted. SBA earmarked another $13 million for these loans. In the new fiscal year that begins October 1, the Agency has asked for $45 million in loan funding.

In the first nine months of 1979, 123 energy loans totalling $16.2 million were made. Forty-six percent went to manufacturing firms, 22 percent to the construction sector, 11 percent to wholesalers, 10 percent to retailers, 8 percent to service firms, and 3 percent to firms in mining. The firms were located in 26 states.

Loans ranged in size from $10,000 to the statutory ceiling of $350,000; the average size of the loans was $115,000 and they typically went to the very young and new firms that have been in business for less than three years.

The largest users of the 8 (1) program so far are two industries: about 35 percent of the loans were made to firms involved in the solar energy industry as manufacturers, distributors, or installers of solar panels and other solar system components. An equal share of these loans are made to firms involved in the manufacturing and retailing of insulation materials, including cellulose, thermal windows and shutters, and roofing. The remainder of the loans were dispersed across a wide variety of energy producing and conserving industries such as wood stoves, heat transfer equipment, and general energy management systems.

To date, SBA has not had substantial participation in energy loans involving hydroelectric power, biomass, wind energy, or co-generation. But it has the statutory authority to assist, and expects to use this authority in the future.

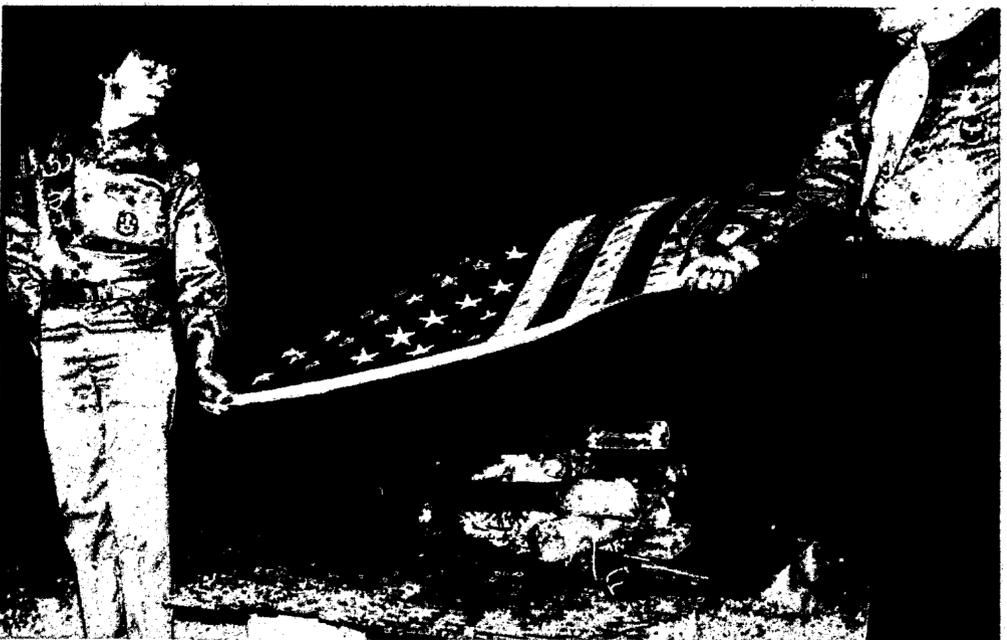

SBA's overriding philosophy is to learn what energy efforts, in both production and conservation, the free market will support and to tailor the Agency's efforts to assist the small business community to react quickly to the signals from the marketplace. The Agency has no institutional preference for production over conservation, for solar panels over wind-mills, for manufacturing as opposed to retailing.

SBA feels that small businesses will create a wide range of good business propositions that will need support, and the Agency is trying to get adequate financial resources and a delivery system for loans that is responsive to the needs of small business.

If you have an idea to pursue in the energy field, you can contact your SBA office at Small Business Administration, 5000 Marble, N. E., Albuquerque, New Mexico, 87110.

GENE VAUGHN, Conquistador Council Executive, of Roswell, right, congratulates Boy Scout Troop 59 scoutmaster Rudy Flack, who headed a move to reorganize the Scout Troop in January.

A FLAG BURNING ceremony was a highlight of the Troop 59 Court of Honor, held in Ruidoso Saturday night. When a flag becomes old and torn, the proper disposal is by burning. A tribute to "Old Glory" was read as Scouts Jimmy Frost (partially shown), Brent Davis, left, and Kurt Schluter, back, lower the flag into the fire.

Blake the guiding 'Starr' of Ruidoso gymnastics

BY MARK BAGBY
Sports Editor

What do you call a Wisconsin native who wrestled at the University of New Mexico while practicing magic and teaching gymnastics?

Why, you call him Blake Starr, of course.

Starr is the coach of the Ruidoso Gymnastics Association (RGA) programs. He's been coaching gymnastics for 10 years, which is almost half his 24 years of existence.

He was born in Milwaukee, but spent much of his life in Albuquerque, where his mother still lives. His father died when he was 13, which had a lot to do with his getting into gymnastics.

"My father never tossed us kids up in the air or anything like that," Starr said, "and always felt like I missed part of my childhood because of that."

So, at age 14, he and a friend became interested in gymnastics, but they didn't know how to get started.

Ma Bell's Yellow Pages came to the rescue.

"We got out the phone book and found the only gymnastics school in Albuquerque," he said. "We decided to take classes, and called and they let us in."

They began taking classes. Meanwhile, Starr's friends were going out for football, and he planned on doing the same. But his folks said no.

So I took the only other sport at school during the fall," he said, that being wrestling. He said he thought wrestling would be easier than football.

"Boy was I in for a surprise," he said. At the same time, he was still in gymnastics, where his hopes for a competitive career were cancelled by Mother Nature. "Most competitive gymnasts, if you took a poll," Starr said, "are about 5'6" and 145 to 160 pounds." Starr is neither, being substantially larger. Consequently, "I wasn't a very good competitive gymnast."

But his teacher noticed he seemed to know what he was doing—which was helping coach other gymnasts. When the teacher left the school and accepted a similar position at the Albuquerque YMCA, Starr went with him.

They started gymnastics classes at the YMCA with 15 youngsters. When he quit in December 1973, the program had 200 students, and it was the next to largest program at the Y.

He quit teaching gymnastics in 1974, his senior year in high school, to concentrate on wrestling.

"I was a lot better wrestler than I was a gymnast," he said. But wrestling ended the next year after a disappointing freshman year at the University of New Mexico. He did wrestle that year, but he didn't enjoy it.

He left school and helped John Charzuk, owner of Albuquerque Gymnastics School, develop the largest program in the state. That lasted about a year, when he obtained a job with a building firm. He moved to Las Cruces in 1976 and received a call from a gymnastics coach in Little Rock, Arkansas.

"He told me he was coming to Las Cruces and he wanted to start a gymnastics school," Starr said, "and he wanted me to help."

Together they began a school, but as Starr put it, "He was a good coach but a lousy businessman." The venture soon folded.

But parents of learning gymnasts wanted Starr to continue the school, so in April, 1977, he formed the Mesilla Valley Gymnastics School.

He was still working for the building firm fulltime and working for gymnastics fulltime, and it eventually became too much. He hired a coach and became his assistant.

About a year later, the coach resigned, Starr quit his building job, and assumed the reins of the school.

He produced three state champions there, and also handed former employer Charzuk his first loss in four years.

"Albuquerque Gymnastics hadn't lost a meet in four years," he said. "But we beat them. And in the state meet, we finished second to them, but it was the best showing any team had ever done against them."

But personally conflicts in Las Cruces — namely with parents who decided they were better coaches than he was — made Starr start looking for another job.

"I had heard about the RGA forming at the time (July, 1979), but I had already accepted a job in northern California. But I came up and interviewed for it, really liked Ruidoso and wanted to stay in New Mexico.

"I had the job two weeks later."

Where he's been ever since. He has taken a group of Ruidoso youngsters who had no previous experience in gymnastics, and in a few short months he has produced some phenomenal results.

"I've had kids here with no experience who learned more in six months than anywhere else I've been," he said. He attributes his success to complete trust between coach and athlete.

"A lot of coaches believe in not forming personal relationships with their athletes, but not me. I think by making friends and working together the kid profits and you get more out of the athlete.

"But the key is trust. Gymnastics is a dangerous sport, and if the athletes don't trust you, they won't do something for you.

They have to trust you. They rely on you completely.

"It's harder on the instructor to do it this way, but I think it's best in the long run. I enjoy working with kids. There's real satisfaction in seeing them learn something."

And there's a lot to learn in gymnastics, Starr said.

"Gymnastics is what I call an 'individual team' sport because you're competing for yourself and your team."

"But each time you're out there, it's just you. If you make a mistake, you have to live with it. In most team sports, someone can usually cover for you. I think gymnastics and wrestling are two of the most difficult sports for that reason."

"Also, gymnastics is a training ground for all other sports, plus it helps children deal with real-life situations — like falling down. If you can teach a kid how to fall without hurting himself, you've accomplished something."

What does he do in his spare time? Well, he has been a hot-air balloon enthusiast for a while, but his chief love has been prestidigitation.

"I saw a magician on television when I was seven, and decided I wanted to do that. I checked a book out of the library on card manipulation, read it, and decided there was no such thing as magic."

"Then when I was a sophomore in high school, a friend got me interested in it, and I started practicing from three to five hours a day, and then I decided there was such a thing as magic."

He started performing and has earned quite a bit of money at it. It also — like about everything else he does — helped his gymnastics.

"The best gymnasts are entertainers," he said. "You are performing, and the better you perform the better the judges will score you. So magic taught me how to perform."

He is also one of 48 members of the United States Gymnastics Safety Association — the youngest member, by the way — and does volunteer work in the emergency room of Ruidoso-Hondo Valley Hospital.

"I also have training to know what to do should a gymnast get hurt during practice or something," he said. He has an Emergency Medical Training degree too. Starr is a man of unbounded enthusiasm for just about anything he gets his hands into.

"I think you'll see some changes in our program over the next couple of years. Now that we've moved into our own building, I think we'll have a high degree of professionalism a lot of programs can't have."

"In a couple of years, this program will be one of the best in the state."

And with Blake Starr leading the way, you know that's no idle boast.

Sportin' Life

... a column of opinion ...

by

Mark Bagby

They say turnout is fair play. (Have you ever wondered just who in the heck is "they?" Me too.) Well, Butch Grantham is learning all about it.

Last fall, the Alamogordo soccer league challenged the Ruidoso soccer league to come up with a squad for a game. Butch did so, but when they played, Alamogordo's squad violated a few rules, and consequently, the game ended with flared tempers and not a little dislike for one another.

Well, Alamogordo called Butch a couple of weeks ago and asked him (and Bob Gregson, another local soccer bigwig) to conduct a March 22 coaching and rules clinic down there.

"I'm lovin' every minute of it," Butch said.

Meanwhile, local soccer is getting hot. The league has been increased from 12 to 14 teams, with possibly more on the way.

Butch is conducting coaches' clinics here every Saturday at White Mountain Middle School gymnasium about 4:30 p.m. Those are for anyone who thinks they might like to coach soccer.

And finally — on Wednesday night, March 26, at 7, in the multi-purpose room at Ruidoso Public Library, there will be a meeting for any and all adults, men and women, interested in forming adult soccer leagues.

"We've had a lot of requests," Butch said, "for an adult program, and now's the time to do it."

There will be two leagues, he said, a men's and a women's, and no previous experience is necessary. All training will be given during the season.

And, Butch said all the games will be totally sanctioned, which means they'll have referees and all that.

Oh yes—the name? "The over the hill soccer league." Hmhmhmhmhmhm.

Men's softball
Figgy Griego at Security Bank said anyone, including coaches and players, interested in playing men's softball this summer should go to Security Bank at 6 p.m., Thursday, March 20. It will be a general, organizational meeting.

Warmups and money needed
Darrel Stierwalt, who coaches track at the high school, informs his squad is in dire need of equipment.

"We had more kids come out than we anticipated," he said, which means there isn't enough stuff to go around.

They don't even have enough warmups for everybody. That situation should be alleviated a little by contributions like the one the Noon Lions made last week. (They gave $100 to the team.)

Any loose change you can donate would be appreciated, I'm sure. The girls' squad needs money and equipment, too, as I understand it. So give to the team of your choice.

Golf squad in need too
The Warrior golf team needs money too, for overnight trips and all that.

So, it's sponsoring the Warrior golf scramble March 23 (that's a Sunday) at 12:30 p.m., at Cree Meadows.

Only 60 players can enter, and to do that, you need to pay a $10 entry fee—and then foursomes will be formed, with the 20 members of the golf team—which means 20 foursomes, right? And all the fees go to the golf team.

To enter, call 257-2212. (That's Cree Meadows) and tell 'em you saw it here.

Speaking of golf
Speaking of golf, area greens rate among the best in the state, says the New Mexico Activities Association.

The Inn of the Mountain Gods course is ranked 69.1 for men, and 71.0 in championship play. Alto Lakes was right behind them, with a 69.8 for women, 67.2 for men and 69.2 for championships.

Cree Meadows ranked 70.0 for women (which is higher than Alto), 64.8 for men and was unranked for championship play.

(Oddly enough, the Inn of the Mountain Gods course is not ranked for women why is that, I wonder?)

Some other ratings around the state—the University of New Mexico southern course is a 73.4 in championship play—Vista Hills down around El Paso is a 72.3 and New Mexico State's course is a 72.3.

Most courses in the state ranked at or below the local greens. But they don't tell you the rating system. Oh well. How about that?

Let High Country Outfitters Outfit You!
Bob Palko is one of the nicest guys you'll ever want to meet. And he's quite an outdoorsman too.

In fact, he runs a guide service and stuff like that. He'll take you snowshoeing up in the mountains, rent you a pair of snowshoes, take you through the Fort Stanton Cave, or just guide you through the Smokey Bear District of the Lincoln National Forest so you can look at the scenery.

For prices and info, write: High Country Outfitters, care of Bob Palko, Box 2012, Ruidoso, New Mexico, 88345 or call him at 505-257-7184.

Green squad crowned basketball champions

In championship play Sunday of Ruidoso Sertoma Club's Little League basketball, the green squad, coached by Greg Stewart, defeated the purple, coached by Bob Bridges, 31-24.

The purple team led team standings at the end of the regular season, but lost the championship Sunday afternoon, culminating three days of playoff games.

For the winning team, Randy Reynolds led the scoring with nine, followed by Shawn Steadman with eight, Jason Bigham with seven, Jeff Slatton with four and Omar Dix with three.

Also seeing action were Philip Wright and Doug Clements.

Russel Easter was scoring leader for the purple squad with 12, followed by Tahnee Doak with six, Mike Williamson with four, and Shandon Gwyn with two.

Also seeing action were David Ordorica, Scott Perteet and Debra Gonzales.

King proclaims New Mexico Wildlife Week

Citing wildlife's importance to man and its need for good habitat in order to survive in numbers and variety, Governor Bruce King has proclaimed the week of March 16-22 New Mexico Wildlife Week in conjunction with National Wildlife Week.

Theme for the observance, coordinated by the National Wildlife Federation (NWF) is "Save a Place for Wildlife." Actor Robert Redford, an environmental activist, is honorary chairman of the observance for the fourth consecutive year.

In representing Wildlife Week, Redford stressed the importance of balancing the needs of wildlife with the needs of people.

"If we are to continue to have a wildlife population in this country, then we must preserve and maintain adequate wildlife habitats — places where wild animals can find food, water, cover and a place to raise their young," Redford said. "We can meet our human needs — for water, timber, oil and other natural resources — without needlessly and recklessly destroying wildlife habitat."

Redford said one of the great challenges of the 1980s will be "to meet our demands for resources without jeopardizing one of our greatest resources — our wildlife."

During National Wildlife Week, the National Wildlife Federation distributes 394,000 Education Kits, 65,000 student kits, and more than 1.3 million Wildlife Week posters to students, teachers and conservation-minded citizens throughout the United States and Guam, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

NWF has sponsored Wildlife Week for more than 40 years, since its first proclamation in 1938 by President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

GOVERNOR BRUCE KING, right, has proclaimed this week as New Mexico Wildlife Week, 1980. Harold Olson, director of the Department of Game and Fish, received the official proclamation for the March 16-22 observance, theme of which is "Save a Place for Wildlife."

Warrior duffers finish fourth in Artesia meet

Ruidoso's golf squad "didn't do too good" in a five team match at Artesia, said coach Leroy Gooch, even though it did finish higher than it did the previous week at Alamogordo.

The Warriors placed fourth, just ahead of Artesia, with a team score of 355. New Mexico Military Institute won the meet with 313. Lovington and Jal finished second and third with 323 and 326.

Paul Kirkwood led the Warrior scoring with 83 strokes, one shot off his previous play at Alamogordo.

"If we can get all our shots down to about there," Gooch said, "we'll do all right."

Todd Perteet was next best with an 86, followed by Mike Dale with 89, Don Dale with 97 and Kyle Kannady with 99.

Also, Victor Armijo, who started playing golf only three weeks ago, made the trip and played the course, although his score didn't count. He finished with a remarkably good 120.

"I think he'll do some good someday," Gooch said. "He did a lot better than I expected."

The Warriors travel to Socorro Friday for a two day tournament.

Forest Service noting 75th anniversary

The Forest Service of the United States Department of Agriculture is 75 years old this year and is asking the American people to help plant 75 million trees as part of the celebration.

Southwestern Regional Forester M. J. Hassell said the national goal is to plant 75 million more trees this year than were planted in 1979. He suggested planting a tree to mark special events such as birthdays or other significant milestones during the year.

While the nation's 184 national forests are scattered throughout the country, most are in the western states, and much of the venerable agency's history was written in the West, including the Southwestern Region, Arizona and New Mexico.

The modern Forest Service came into existence February 1, 1905, the result of more than a century of congressional and private concern with the reckless exploitation of American forests. In 1891 Congress authorized the withdrawal of forest reserves from the public domain, to be administered by the Department of the Interior. President Benjamin Harrison set aside the Yellowstone Timberland Reserve, now the Shoshone and Teton national forests in Wyoming, in 1891, and by the end of his term had proclaimed 12.4 million acres of forest land. His successor, Grover Cleveland, added 25.9 million acres more.

In 1898 Gifford Pinchot, America's first native professional forester, was named chief of the Division of Forestry. Congress, in 1905, transferred the forest reserves from the Department of the Interior to the Department of Agriculture. The Bureau of Forestry became the Forest Service. Two years later, to emphasize that the forests were for use, the name "forest reserve" was changed to "national forest." Administration was decentralized to take maximum advantage of local judgement. Pinchot, with the help and support of President Theodore Roosevelt, set the new agency on its course of multiple use management and sustained yield.

When Roosevelt took office, Pinchot found an important conservation ally. The lumber interests had supported some Pinchot policies but when the President began reserving new millions of western acres for national forests, they were alarmed. An Oregon senator got a rider on the 1907 agriculture appropriation bill, giving Congress a veto over creation of new national forests in several western states. The bill passed February 25, 1907 and the President had until March 4 to sign it.

Pinchot dashed over to the White House with his arms full of maps. Legend says that the lean forester and the stocky President spread them all over the White House carpets and spent nearly all night squinting over one and then another, while Pinchot outlined possible new national forests.

His autobiography says he got Roosevelt's "enthusiastic consent" and Pinchot set his staff to work drawing up detailed proclamations.

"As the proclamations were finished, I sent them to the White House," Pinchot said. "The President signed them, and sent them to the State Department for safekeeping. And when the job was done, more than 16 million acres (in 21 new national forests) were rescued from passing into the hands of private corporations. Then, and not until then, did T. R. sign the agricultural bill."

The President's action brought the national forests to more than 150 million acres. The present total is 188 million acres. When Roosevelt took office there had been fewer than 50 million acres.

The philosophy of the new agency was simply stated by then Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson in a letter to Pinchot. "In the administration of the forest reserves," Wilson said, "it must be clearly borne in mind that all land is to be devoted to its most productive use for the permanent good of the whole people, and not for the temporary benefit of individuals or companies. Where conflicting interests must be reconciled the question will always be decided from the standpoint of the greatest good of the greatest number in the long run."

To provide use of the public forests, rangers issued permits for grazing of livestock and made the first sales of mature timber and other forest products. As money came in Congress decreed that part of the receipts should go to the states for schools and roads in the counties where the national forests were located. Other receipts were set aside for roads and trails within the national forests.

Research, essential to progress in any field, received more attention as new field locations became available. The first forest experiment station was established in Arizona in 1908.

Cooperation with state forestry departments in fire protection was begun, in 1911. This was the forerunner of what were to become longtime relationships and cooperative efforts between the Forest Service and state foresters.

With the Forest Service came the concepts of multiple use management, sustained yield, and in 1924, wilderness. The nation's first wilderness — a part of a national forest set aside to serve as an example of primitive America — was established in New Mexico's Gila National Forest through the efforts of Forest Officer Aldo Leopold.

Through the years more than 11 million acres of wilderness were established, mostly in the West and they served as the foundation of the Wilderness Preservation System created by the Wilderness Act in 1964.

Outdoor recreation has surged into a major use of the national forests from a slow beginning. In the 1920's, a nation on wheels found that camping, hunting, fishing and viewing scenic wonders were good excuses to tour the country and try out new cars and new roads. In 1924 the chief forester reported, "As a matter of fact, the most insatiable inventory of the national forests would have to set down recreational assets as scarcely less valuable than their economic resources."

However, the first appropriation for recreation facilities was $10,000 in 1923. It was obviously far less than the amount needed for essential sanitation, fire prevention and other protective measures. Rangers, already burdened with work they considered more important, were hard pressed to accommodate their pleasure-seeking visitors.

In the 1930's the Civilian Conservation Corps, the Works Progress Administration, and other emergency labor programs produced camp and picnic grounds, group shelters, ski areas, trails, access roads and many other facilities on a scale never remotely approached in earlier years.

Today the products of the national forests are the same — wood, forage, water, wildlife, recreation and wilderness. Management aims to use the resources for the good of the American people, but only at a rate that can be regenerated so that generations to come will have the same or more.

What Gifford Pinchot said during his tenure as chief is starkly true today: "Without natural resources life itself is impossible. From birth to death, natural resources, transformed for human use, feed, clothe, shelter and transport us.

Upon them we depend for every material necessity, comfort, convenience and protection in our lives. Without abundant resources prosperity is out reach."

New Mexico's National Forests include Apache, Carson, Cibola, Gila, Lincoln Santa Fe and the Portales Forest Reserve.

Energy saving hint

You save energy every time you turn off your radio, TV or record player. Children should also be taught to turn off these utilities when they are not using them. When purchasing a television set, remember that the smaller the screen, the less energy it takes to operate. And black and white sets take less energy than color sets, say NMSU Extension people.

Charges filed on theft of wood

A Ruidoso Downs man was arrested, and two Lovington men cited, by officers of the United States Forest Service last week, on charges of illegal removal of timber and forest products from Lincoln National Forest.

Melvin (Boots) Nelson, Ruidoso Downs, was arrested on a federal warrant Friday morning at his home, with sheriff's deputies assisting Forest Service officers. Nelson was charged with the theft of approximately three-quarters of a cord of wood. He pled no contest to the charge in Alamogordo's Federal Magistrate Court and was fined $40.

The Lovington men, Carlos Sandoval and Homer Saenz, were cited for removing four live conifers from Sierra Blanca Ski Resort April 9. Action is pending on the petty misdemeanor charge.

A Smokey Bear Ranger District spokesman said Friday that unauthorized removal of forest products, valued at more than $100, is a federal felony punishable of a fine of not more than $10,000 or imprisonment for not more than 10 years, or both. Civil penalties may also be imposed. Commercial, as well as personal use, wood permits are available at Smokey Bear Ranger Station, Ruidoso, and at all Forest Service offices in New Mexico.

The Silver Lining

BY DANIEL AGNEW STORM

[Editor's note: Due to a set of circumstances best known by Daniel Storm, this "epistle," to have appeared last Thursday, didn't find its way through channels. However, operating on the theory that it's better late than never, The Silver Lining was printed, with the thought being, Dan's thoughts on March and Saint Patrick's Day are worth perusal.]

Valley around Riverside, the blossom parade began a few days ago with the opening of the apricot blooms. And in the Vale of San Patricio the apricot trees are sending forth their delicate white blooms - touched with pink, all across the fields and orchards making harmonious matching colors of early spring along with the first new green of the weeping willow trees leafing out in time to celebrate Saint Patrick's Day on March seventeen. These blossoms and leaves, always the leaders in the blossom and leaf parade of spring, are much later than usual, thanks to the cool weather that the ground hog and Jack Frost have brought us through the first eleven days of March. This is a good message for the fruit crop this year. If the cool weather continues, we may have a grand apple crop and also a good supply of other fruit such as peaches, plums, cherries and pears.

March Begins To Step Up Its Pace

The month of March is marching right along, stepping more lightly day by day and setting an ever-faster pace as it leads us to the first day of Spring.

In early Roman times, March was the first day of the year, until the adoption of the Julian calendar in 46 B. C. It remained the first day of the year in England until the first month in 1564, and Scotland in 1599.

The early Anglo-Saxons called March the "loud and stormy month" and also the "lengthening month" on account of the rapidly lengthening days. In the early days of England and Scotland there was an old saying that March borrowed its last three days from April, and so they called March "The Borrowing Month."

Today, March eleven, you can feel that March is borrowing this day from April because all day since early morning, light showers have been falling all through the vale carried through the land on a light western breeze. Between showers the sun comes shining down from the heavens, and smiling through the sparkling showers bringing us a bright and cheerful world.

And oftentimes in a way, it does seem that March is the beginning of the year. The world begins to awaken, and the days lengthen faster and faster in their race to catch up with the nights. Then when the days and nights become equal on the first day of spring—then the world truly begins to move.

San Patricio, And Saint Patrick's Day

The story goes that in the early days, a young priest from Ireland arrived at this pioneer Spanish settlement before it had a name, and just when the people were building a new church, and were trying to decide upon its name.

At that time of the year the hills and vales of this mid-land of the Ruidoso Valley were out in finest green after abundant spring rains. So the young priest said,

"This land is so green that it reminds me of Ireland. Let us name the church in honor of Saint Patrick." The idea was welcomed by the people, and the church and community became San Patricio, Spanish for Saint Patrick.

For years, special services were held at the old Church of San Patricio, and later at the new Church of Saint Jude. On the seventeenth of March there will be celebrations all over the world in honor of the patron Saint of the Emerald Isle. And the community of San Patricio here in our midst, brings a special meaning to us on the birthday of Saint Patrick. Keep smiling and God Bless you.

Happy Saint Patrick's Day

This message will reach you on March seventeenth, Saint Patrick's Day, a day of world-wide celebration of the patron saint of Ireland, land of the harp, fondly known the world over since ancient times as the "Emerald Isle."

Somewhat, on Saint Patrick's Day, the whole world feels more closely its brotherhood; for on this day at heart we are Irish, one and all. Second only to the one in Dublin, the parades in New York and Boston are the largest in the world. One time our dear friend, Doc Savage said:

"When you are in Boston on Saint Patrick's Day, you had better be Irish if you know what is good for you."

This is a joking way of saying that the Irish welcome you into their celebration with open arms and all their heart. There has always been an abiding tradition among the Irish of friendship and good will toward all men. And all the world loves the people of this green and glowing island land. On Saint Patrick's Day in all lands folks wear the national color, and especially little replicas of the three-leafed Shamrock, a favorite national plant of Old Erin.

Irish Tradition
Strong In America

From their tiny green island home the Irish have wandered to the far corners of the earth and have left their mark on all continents especially America. The Irish were already here among the very first settlers on these shores; and after the birth of our nation began crossing the Atlantic in greater numbers reaching a peak in the 1840's. They have done great work in the development of our nation, have become a prominent element in our population, and have left their mark upon the personality of our country.

In the Irish nature the qualities of national pride, patriotism, love of family, and devotion to God are deep and abiding.

The Irish have played a great role in the life of our great neighbor state, Texas. One of the most colorful parades in the nation is held every year at Shamrock, Texas, a city founded by pioneers of Irish descent.

And here in Lincoln county the spirit of San Patricio is celebrating Saint Patrick's Day with a special service at the Church of Saint Jude at five in the evening. "So long live the Emerald Isle, and thank God for Ireland."

A Message From Jack Frost
Dear Friends in Lincoln County:

I wish you all the most happy Saint Patrick's Day. This morning I came by the Ridge Runner's house and there was the American flag flying, and I would not have been surprised to see a green flag with a gold harp upon it flying just under the stars and stripes. For the Ridge Runner is proud of his drop of Irish blood. And of course, aren't we all?

I notice the Vale of San Patricio is all dressed up with the new green of the weeping willow leaves and the pink and white blooms of the apricot in honor of Saint Patrick's Day. And tonight the traditional service will be held at the church closing by the procession around the church with the beautiful little statue of Saint Patrick being carried in the lead.

Today, as the song says, "Irish eyes are smiling" and the whole world is smiling along with them, and singing and laughing too; because the Irish were born under the star of happiness.

Ireland, besides the shamrock and the harp, is the land of the rose. I guess nowhere on earth do the roses bloom as fair and sweet as in the Emerald Isle. And here at home one of our treasured flowers is the wild Irish rose of song and story. So we have a bit of Ireland here in the land of the pinon and pine.

The songs of Ireland are almost without number. Here is a line from the song Kilarney:

"Bounteous Nature loves all lands.
Beauty wanders everywhere.
Footprints leaves on many strands.
But her heart is surely there!
Angles fold their wings and rest
In that Eden of the West.
Beauty's home, Kilarney,
Ever fair Kilarney."

Let us all be happy in the spirit of green and flowery Ireland.
With every good wish and prayers for God's blessings,

I remain as ever, your friend,
Jack Frost

SANTA FE — That famous WIPP installation near Carlsbad must be on its way to setting a new world's record.

That sucker has been declared officially dead more often than Dracula in the movies has had a stake driven through his heart. Yet, like the Transylvanian with the dental problem, it just keeps on getting resurrected.

Is WIPP dead or alive? We've all read the headlines which said things like "Rescinding of WIPP Funds To Be Asked in Carter Request to Congress." According to our particular and personal orientation, such headlines have cheered or discouraged our spirits.

But headlines of that sort, firm as they sound, apparently do not tell the whole story. As a counterpoint, there are the ones which say, "WIPP Work Continues, Despite Carter Opposition."

"Despite Carter Opposition"? You mean in America a President doesn't get what he wants?

Apparently not. Here's Don Schueler, project manager for that proposed Waste Isolation Pilot Project, saying, within the last few days, "As far as we're concerned, the project is still alive."

"We." Who's we? And who declared it still alive?

You find that confusing? Try this on for size: "Although President Carter has submitted to Congress his request to rescind funding, Schueler said the President has 'left the door open' for future development of the WIPP site."

What does all that mean, in plain English? Apparently that the federal government wants and does not want the WIPP installation to go forward. That this position is contrary to the Principle of Contradiction, which holds that a thing cannot be and not be at the same time and under the same aspect, does not seem of any great moment to the federal government.

As a more recent headline says, "WIPP Site Test Approval Sought By Energy Dept." The story under that one indicates two 2,000-foot shafts will be drilled at the nuclear waste site, if the state says okay.

Like lots of observers, this writer has often had the uncharitable thought that the "No Nuke" folks, the ones who march on the WIPP site with names like the Clamshell Alliance or whatever, are both shrill and untrustworthy in their paranoia.

We have occasionally given vent to such judgments in the cold spaces of newspaper columns.

Recently, however, we have begun to have this sneaking suspicion that many of those things they say about how you cannot trust our federal government may indeed be true. If dealing with the people of a state is any indication, those persons on Pennsylvania Avenue, along with the ones on Capitol Hill, have not been examples of perfect candor.

Is that too much to expect — that our government, which we support with our taxes, should level with us? Is honesty too much to ask for?

Maybe what we need is a simple true-false test, with one question: "The federal government plans to store nuclear waste in the salt beds near Carlsbad, New Mexico, whether the people of New Mexico agree with that decision or not. Circle one: True . . . False."

We need an answer — but who'd believe it?

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

The village trustee election is over. Congratulations to the winners.

Statistics prove that with so many candidates in an election, the incumbents, in most instances, win the race hands down. Had Ab Gunter been able to spend more time in his campaign his 47 vote deficit would have been easily overcome. Five of the 13 candidates received 61 votes or less. Had these candidates really had the future of the village at heart all would have withdrawn in order to give the stronger candidates a real chance to fight it out. This did not happen and the wide spread of votes was the result.

What is generally not known is that Ed Jungbluth did not plan to run in the election. Within a couple of weeks before the filing deadline when it appeared that no one had indicated they would file, he filed as a last resort. Then the dam burst and almost everybody filed. After so many filed and when it became apparent that so many filings would play havoc with an orderly contest he offered to withdraw in order to give the other candidates a better chance in the election. In fact, he asked that another candidate join him in withdrawing. The suggestion was refused. So, Ed Jungbluth stayed in the race.

Many voters were inclined to favor Ed

Jungbluth but were reluctant to add responsibilities to his already busy schedule as executive director of the Chamber of Commerce. They feared that his accomplishments at the Chamber might be in jeopardy or that there might be a conflict of interests if he were a village trustee.

So, in retrospect, those not voting for Ed Jungbluth for the reasons just stated, were, in fact, showing a strong mandate for his less than two year record as executive director of the Chamber of Commerce.

Ed Jungbluth joined the Chamber of Commerce about two years ago, leaving a position at that time for less money here in Ruidoso, simply because he wanted to live and work here. He is still making less money, not counting the two years of inflation since his coming here. He took an ailing Chamber of Commerce, added new members, and improved its finances greatly, for which he should have our thanks for a job well done — perhaps now is the time for the directors to recognize his worth to the community and to make adjustments accordingly. His decision to move to Ruidoso was a sacrifice and, hopefully, not in vain.

J. A. "Al" Junge

editorial

Last Tuesday's meeting of the Ruidoso trustees may have set the tone for the sessions over the next two and four years.

Re-elected trustee George White was most explicit in defining his stand against providing Lodger's Tax monies to help the Chamber of Commerce promote the June Pow Wow, a production sponsored by the Mescalero Apache Tribe.

Benny Coulston, as president of the Chamber of Commerce, was equally as explicit in his denunciation of trustee White's stand, and in his statements, as a personal opinion, of the reason for White's actions and words at the trustees' meeting.

There are few Ruidoso residents, knowing White over the years, who would question his integrity or his sincerity in pursuing a cause. He tends to be vocally forceful when he's speaking on a subject he is pursuing, if, in his opinion, that subject is in the best interests of Ruidoso.

Coulston, as president of the Chamber, hasn't pulled any punches in his efforts to promote tourism, Ruidoso's life blood, in this area.

The point is, with two capable men elected as trustees, we trust that the friction apparent at last Tuesday's village board meeting will not carry over to the next four years White and Coulston will serve as trustees. We trust the two of them will act maturely, giving each the credit for being man enough to stand up for their convictions, and establish a rapport that will permit both to work diligently for the betterment of Ruidoso. —CD

FORD'S RUNNING HARD

Judging from news reports regarding Ex-President Gerald Ford . . . he is running harder for President than Teddy Kennedy ever did in the moments when he was not a candidate.

Should Ford pursue his efforts . . . and it has been said that he can enter the race late this month and go into the GOP convention with more delegate votes than Ronald Reagan . . . he has a lot of fences to mend before the infertile Republicans across the nation will forget his pardoning of Ex-President Richard Nixon, thus getting Nixon off the hook for being guilty of nothing more than political chicanery . . . and getting caught at it.

There's this to be said about Ford . . . he's thoroughly familiar with the way the Congress operates. As to Reagan, it is almost a cinch bet that he hasn't learned one thing from Our Jimmy's faux pas in trying to convince the Congress that they should cooperate with him.

Our Jimmy, apparently, still hasn't learned how to cotton up to the Congress . . . and it's a cinch that the skulduggery perpetrated by the Russians in Afghanistan has him confused . . . to say nothing of any concrete results stemming from his efforts to make the Egyptians and Israeli's buddy buddies . . . Ergo, Ford should be some sharper than Our Jimmy.

It's sort of a mess, so far as the GOP candidates go . . . Anderson should know something about the Congress . . . Reagan can only know what he's read or heard about Congress . . . which leaves Ford kinda out front . . . 'cause Anderson just isn't a household name.

Therein lies the dilemma . . . for the voters . . . if'n Our Jimmy gets the nod to run for re-election . . . and if'n Ford comes through as the GOP standard bearer . . . how'll it be possible for anyone to vote their convictions?

BIG SPAGHETTI FEED

The American Legion and Auxillary . . . to raise some funds toward a permanent building . . . are sponsoring a spaghetti dinner Wednesday at the Elks Lodge . . . and there's plenty of work going on behind the scenes.

For instance . . . Francine Brillante's whomping up the Italiano sauce . . . and keeping her hand in the meat balls, dispensing Italiano seasoning . . . and then there's the garlic dumper inners . . . and those as is figuring out just exactly how the spaghetti should be cooked . . . which'll all combine to mean this spaghetti dinner should bring "Mama Mia" expressions from all devotees indulging their palates in heaping platefuls of same . . . and, no, by jinkies, the Dago Red ain't included in the price of the tickets . . . and that's a shame.

FUZZ TYPE OPENINGS

The New Mexico State Police are accepting applications for Patrolmen until July 1 . . . and if'n you're 18 to 35 . . . have the smarts of a high school grad . . . ain't had no serious problems with the law . . . can see at least 20/40 with the naked eye . . . you can write NMSP, Training Division, Box 1628, Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501 . . . soon like . . . and get the dope.

As a recruit, you'll draw $1,056 a month . . . plus $82.40 subsistence . . . which'll be a mite difficult to subsist on . . . which, considering you put in a lot of hours sitting on your duff . . . behind the wheel of a car that'll do 140, or better . . . it'll help keep life interesting . . . and, if'n you can pass muster . . . and cut the mustard . . . seems it'd sure beat unemployment.

Besides . . . maybe some NMSP officer's ticked you off in the past . . . and this'll give you your chance to show speeders . . . and others not guilty of heinous crimes . . . how a courteous NMSPer should act . . . no?

Come this fall Lopez Portillo . . . Our Jimmy's counterpart in Mexico . . . will receive an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from the University of New Mexico . . . which'll make him an honorary L.L.D. . . . which might help make him less onery in dealing with the United States for some of that Mexican oil.

Seems good ol' boy Lopez . . . statesman, university professor, attorney, philosopher, economist, novelist . . . will be the first recipient of an honorary doctorate from UNM . . . and, by jinkies, if'n his L.L.D., results in his jarring loose from whole bunches of Mexico's oil and natural gas reserves for our benefit . . . this honor just couldn't happen to a finer feller.

In any event . . . congratulations Lopez . . . on your new motorboard.

BRIEF BIT: If'n you survived St. Urho's Day yesterday . . . be of good cheer on this festive date, St. Patrick's Day, and the Luck of the Irish to you. . . CD

Arts unit held election

The Chaparral Council for the Arts, Inc. elected officers recently at its first full meeting of the board of directors. President of the council for a two year term is Dr. Martin R. Rice of Alamogordo, who spearheaded the development of this council of artists and arts organizations.

Vice president is Lyn S. Capes of Alamogordo, second vice president is Karen Conway of Alamogordo, and third vice president is Bill Mayfield of Bent. Jo Ann Butler of Ruidoso was elected secretary, Jo Ann Haden of Alamogordo is corresponding secretary, and Glenn Heaton, Alamogordo, treasurer.

A total of twenty serve as directors, elected from the total membership of the council. Other board members who also serve on special committees are Walter Raleigh, Ruidoso and Sue Burroughs, Alamogordo, Membership; Kathy Flores, La Luz, Publicity-Promotion; Dee Ann Woodruff and Sonya Hamm, Ruidoso, and Jeanette Wingo, Alamogordo, Master Calendar; Sherry Taylor, Alamogordo, Arts Directory; Al Potter, La Luz and Helen D. Tays, Alamogordo, Arts Festival, Arts Center, and Workshop committees. Completing the board are Angela McGregor of Alamogordo, Dance Representative; Scott Ehlers, Tularosa, Drama; Barbara Frazier, Cloudcroft, News Media; and Keith Holder and Jo Ann Greenlinger, Alamogordo, members at large.

Many Otero and Lincoln county arts organizations are represented on the Council in addition to individual artists, musicians, painters, dancers, actors, sculptors, crafts persons and others. From Otero County, groups include the Otero Music Association (Community Chorus, Community Orchestra), Desert Arts League, Gallery La Luz, Sun Spirit Gallery, Alamogordo Community Band, Alamogordo Public Schools music department, NMSU-A theatre and music department, Jr. Women's Club, Alamogordo Players Workshop, Alamogordo Music Theatre, the Opera Guild, Adobe Daubers of Tularosa, and individuals. The Ruidoso Community Chorus and individuals are from Lincoln County and a membership drive is currently underway there. Cloudcroft has two members at present and is promoting the Council locally.

Membership in the Council is open to any individual, artist, arts or other organizations, and businesses and civic groups. Individual membership fees are $10 per year; for businesses and organizations, $100; and for patrons, $100 or more. Membership applications may be obtained from members of the Board of Directors, or by writing to the Council at 2704 Highland Drive, Alamogordo, 88310.

The next meeting of the board of directors will be held at 7 p.m., April 2, at the Ruidoso Public Library. Following the board meeting, an open house will be held beginning at 8, for prospective members from the Ruidoso area, and to inform the general public of the purpose and projects of the new Arts Council serving two counties. Any individual or organization interested in strengthening and encouraging the cultural arts is cordially invited to attend the open house.

Community choruses to sing 'German Requiem'

A New Mexico Arts Division mini grant of $986, has been awarded to the Otero Music Association sponsoring the Alamogordo and Ruidoso Community Choruses' combined performance of the "German Requiem", by Johannes Brahms.

According to conductor Dr. Martin R. Rice, the grant monies "are the first ever awarded to a performing arts organization in Otero or Lincoln Counties. The funds will be utilized to offset travel expenses by choral and orchestral musicians traveling to the two communities for combined rehearsals and performances."

The combined resources of the two music organizations will total approximately 80 singers and 30 instrumentalists comprising the orchestra and choral forces needed for this exceptional musical masterpiece. Musicians involved will rehearse at the First Christian Church in Ruidoso tonight, and will be performing there March 23 at 8 p.m. Alamogordo rehearsal date is set for Friday, March 21 at the First Baptist Church and the performance at that location on Saturday evening, March 22 at 8 p.m. Such a masterwork involving intricate musical writing and requiring months of rehearsals could not be successfully presented by any single resource in either community.

Co-sponsoring the travel aspect of this project is the Immaculate Conception Catholic Church of Alamogordo, Rev. Jose Ignacio Eschave, pastor, for the administration of the grant monies. The church already has the appropriate non-profit tax letter on file required of grant recipients. Both choral groups have applied for a similar status but await the long procedure involved.

Otero Music Association president Mrs. Jo Ann Haden expressed elation when the grant award news was received today: "It's so good to be recognized by the State Arts Division for our growing professionalism, and to receive this support towards our total budget for this most beneficial concert," stated Mrs. Haden. OMA was founded in 1963 as a non-profit arts organization devoted to strengthening and encouraging musical arts development in the Otero County area. It supports the Community Chorus, newly developing Community Orchestra (both conducted by Dr. Rice), a Youth Recital Series, other recitals, and a scholarship program for outstanding youth named in honor of Kenneth Bender. The Ruidoso Community Chorus was organized last fall by its conductor, Bill Braudt. It performed to a standing room only audience during the Christmas season in its debut presentation of Handel's "Messiah." Conductor Braudt holds a music degree from MacMurray College and is an experienced church choir director and soloist.

"The idea of combining the two choral groups in joint performances has led to the formation of the Chaparral Council for the Arts which involves artistic resources in both counties," Rice said. "We envision many other combined efforts to strengthen, encourage and promote arts activity in our area, and hopefully we can schedule other combined choral performances in the future."

The concert is open to the public, by admission. Tickets are available at the door on concert nights, from chorus members in both communities, and at area businesses at $3 for adults, $1 for students. Earned income from ticket sales and advertising offset, in part, organizational operational expenses and provide funds for the scholarship program.

I-n-s-i-d-e the Outdoors

by Gary Dollahon

The state Game Commission met earlier this month and established the big game hunting seasons for the 1980-81 license year. Since the proclamation pertaining to these seasons will not be available until April 1, let's go over some of the new dates and regulations for those who need to schedule vacations now.

The deer hunts were reverted back to the statewide three period stratified hunt system as used in the 1978 season.

Dates for the hunts are as follows: D-one — November 8 and 9; D-two — November 12 through 16; D-three — November 19 through 25.

Again, deer hunters will be required to select either a bow, muzzle-loader, or a modern firearm and hunt only during the seasons designated for their selected weapon. Therefore, deer seasons for bow and muzzleloader hunters will differ from those listed above.

Bow season will run in the north from September 8 through September 19, and in the south from September 13 through September 21. It will open again generally statewide January 3 and will run through January 11, 1981.

The muzzleloader deer hunt opens generally statewide September 20 and continues through September 23, except for portions of southeastern New Mexico. Southeastern New Mexico will have a primitive weapon hunt (open for bow and muzzleloaders) in the Sacramento and Guadalupe Mountains October 25 thru November 2.

Elk season will consist of six hunt periods again this year. The north, southwest, and Sacramento Mountains are open October 4 through 6. The north and southwest only will be open again October 9 through 13 and October 16 through 20. Only the north will be open for the three late season elk hunts of November 23 through December 2, December 5 through 9, and December 12 through 16. A special hunt for wheelchair confined persons on the Vermejo and Moreno Ranches is October 30 through November 4.

Bow only elk hunts will be September 6 through 19 in the Jemez Mountains, Mt. Taylor and Pecos areas, while in the Luna and San Mateo areas the dates are September 13 through 21.

Muzzleloader elk hunts will be open in the Mt. Taylor, Luna and San Mateo areas October 4 through 6. Also, these same areas (plus the Corona area) will be open to muzzleloading elk hunters October 9 through 13.

Antelope seasons have been established as August 23 through 25 for the northeast, and September 27-28 for the southeast and southwest. Bow hunts for antelope will be August 9 through 17 at Tres Piedras; August 23-24 and August 30-31 on the Ft. Wingate Army Depot.

The muzzleloader antelope hunt at Orogrande is September 20 through 22.

The Barbary sheep season was opened generally statewide outside the Largo and Canadian River canyons. Hunters with both a deer license and a B-3 sheep license valid for the season in which they are hunting can hunt deer and sheep simultaneously. Weapon restrictions applicable to respective deer hunts apply to coinciding Barbary sheep hunts.

The B-3 license is also valid January 10 through 18, generally statewide outside the Largo and Canadian River canyon areas.

The Largo and Canadian River canyon Barbary sheep hunts are application hunts. Application deadline is October 1 and season dates are January 10-18.

The spring turkey hunt is April 12 through 27.

Hopefully, this article has given you those dates you might need prior to printing of the proclamation. For more specifics on dates and areas, contact the office in Roswell, 622-2681.

As a final reminder for those who have youngsters planning on hunting this year, get them in a Hunter Training class NOW! The commission passed a regulation requiring persons under 16 years of age to pass this, or another state's course, BEFORE applying for or purchasing a hunting license. With tighorn sheep and antelope deadline applications being July 23, enrollment in spring classes is a must for those youngsters wanting to hunt these species.

Wilderness Wisdom

with Wayne Calloway

Tip From Reader — Anyone who is well acquainted with axes knows that sooner or later the wood handle loosens a bit inside the axe head. The possibility of the steel ax taking leave from its handle poses an extremely dangerous threat to a chopper or onlooker.

The axe handle can be tightened by driving small steel or wooden wedges into the head end of the handle, but perhaps a better solution is to soak it in a bucket of water once in a while. This causes the wood to swell and fit tightly inside the head. After removing it from the water, dry the head and apply a coat of oil to prevent rusting. Tim H., Michigan

Dear Wayne — I frequently go ice fishing and skating during our long winters and, sometimes, I'm a bit disturbed about the serious consequences of falling through thin ice. Particularly so when I'm alone. I know there is on the market a set of spikes with handles that would enable a person to grip the ice and pull out after a breakthrough, but I can't find the supplier. Do you have any information on such a product? Darren Y., Minnesota

Dear Darren — I'm sure there is more than one such product available, but I do have information on one supplier. The Polar Ice Claw Company, 6 Nesaquake Ave., Port Washington, NY 11050, makes a set of "ice claws" to assist one in crawling out of a breakthrough. The claws are actually a pair of tough plastic-like handles, each with a pointed steel pick embedded in it. The handles assemble into a single unit which shields the points and are equipped with a neck lanyard. The claws are orange for good visibility and they float. They sell for $9.95. I'm sure an enterprising individual could fashion a homemade set which would work quite well but, considering that your life might sometimes depend upon them, the price of a commercial set seems fairly reasonable. Even so, these ice claws shouldn't lull you into false security around thin ice. If the ice around a breakthrough isn't sufficiently thick to bear your weight the ice claws will do little good. The best insurance is to always ice fish or skate with a companion, and even then use extreme caution around marginal ice.

Floor Fashions

CARPET TILES are among the newest boons to the homeowner who wants to "do-it-yourself" and enjoy extra savings. You can not only carpet a hall, a "strip" or an entire room in an afternoon, but you can exercise your artistic imagination as well.

Carpet tiles work just like the new self-stick hard surface tiles that you can install yourself. You can use one color. In anything from a thick shag texture to a closely-packed, flat woven surface, to create the effect of a solid expanse of carpet. Or you can experiment with different colors and create a checkerboard, a geometric design, or your own Mondrian pattern on the floor.

With a little adhesive you can use carpet tiles on walls or other surfaces, too, to create new decorative effects, to cover up old windowsills or benches, to add color and texture almost anywhere.

Use carpet tiles over concrete, wood, linoleum or hard surface tiles. The individual tiles are readily cut to go around fixed objects or fit neatly along the walls. And you can do a complete 12x12 foot room yourself for as little as $45 or so.

Want to try carpet tiles yourself? Come in and see our selection. You'll also see the most complete array of quality carpets for every need in our showroom, in a price range to fit your budget.

Arts unit held election

The Chaparral Council for the Arts, Inc., elected officers recently at its first full meeting of the board of directors. President of the council for a two year term is Dr. Martin R. Rice of Alamogordo, who spearheaded the development of this council of artists and arts organizations.

Vice president is Lyn S. Capes of Alamogordo, second vice president is Karen Conway of Alamogordo, and third vice president is Bill Mayfield of Bent. Jo Ann Butler of Ruidoso was elected secretary, Jo Ann Haden of Alamogordo is corresponding secretary, and Glenn Heaton, Alamogordo, treasurer.

A total of twenty serve as directors, elected from the total membership of the council. Other board members who also serve on special committees are Walter Raleigh, Ruidoso and Sue Burroughs, Alamogordo, Membership; Kathy Flores, La Luz, Publicity-Promotion; Dee Ann Woodriddle and Sonya Hamm, Ruidoso, and Jeanette Wingo, Alamogordo, Master Calendar; Sherry Taylor, Alamogordo, Arts Directory; Al Potter, La Luz and Helen D. Tays, Alamogordo, Arts Festival, Arts Center, and Workshop committees. Completing the board are Angela McGregor of Alamogordo, Dance Representative; Scott Ehlers, Tularosa, Drama; Barbara Frazier, Cloudcroft, News Media; and Keith Holder and Jo Ann Greenlinger, Alamogordo, members at large.

Many Otero and Lincoln county arts organizations are represented on the Council in addition to individual artists, musicians, painters, dancers, actors, sculptors, crafts persons and others. From Otero County, groups include the Otero Music Association (Community Chorus, Community Orchestra), Desert Arts League, Gallery La Luz, Sun Spirit Gallery, Alamogordo Community Band, Alamogordo Public Schools music department, NMSU-A theatre and music department, Jr. Women's Club, Alamogordo Players Workshop, Alamogordo Music Theatre, the Opera Guild, Adobe Daubers of Tularosa, and individuals. The Ruidoso Community Chorus and individuals are from Lincoln

County and a membership drive is currently underway there. Cloudcroft has two members at present and is promoting the Council locally.

Membership in the Council is open to any individual, artist, arts or other organizations, and businesses and civic groups. Individual membership fees are $10 per year; for businesses and organizations, $100; and for patrons, $100 or more. Membership applications may be obtained from members of the Board of Directors, or by writing to the Council at 2704 Highland Drive, Alamogordo, 88310.

The next meeting of the board of directors will be held at 7 p.m., April 2, at the Ruidoso Public Library. Following the board meeting, an open house will be held beginning at 8, for prospective members from the Ruidoso area, and to inform the general public of the purpose and projects of the new Arts Council serving two counties. Any individual or organization interested in strengthening and encouraging the cultural arts is cordially invited to attend the open house.

Community choruses to sing 'German Requiem'

A New Mexico Arts Division mini grant of $986 has been awarded to the Otero Music Association sponsoring the Alamogordo and Ruidoso Community Choruses' combined performance of the "German Requiem", by Johannes Brahms.

According to conductor Dr. Martin R. Rice, the grant monies "are the first ever awarded to a performing arts organization in Otero or Lincoln Counties. The funds will be utilized to offset travel expenses by choral and orchestral musicians traveling to the two communities for combined rehearsals and performances."

The combined resources of the two music organizations will total approximately 80 singers and 30 instrumentalists comprising the orchestra and choral forces needed for this exceptional musical masterpiece. Musicians involved will rehearse at the First Christian Church in Ruidoso tonight, and will be performing there March 23 at 8 p.m. Alamogordo rehearsal date is set for Friday, March 21 at the First Baptist Church and the performance at that location on Saturday evening, March 22 at 8 p.m. Such a masterwork involving intricate musical writing and requiring months of rehearsals could not be successfully presented by any single resource in either community.

Co-sponsoring the travel aspect of this project is the Immaculate Conception Catholic Church of Alamogordo, Rev. Jose Ignacio Eschava, pastor, for the administration of the grant monies. The church already has the appropriate non-profit tax letter on file required of grant recipients. Both choral groups have applied for a similar status but await the long procedure involved.

Otero Music Association president Mrs. Jo Ann Haden expressed elation when the grant award news was received today: "It's so good to be recognized by the State Arts Division for our growing professionalism, and to receive this support towards our total budget for this most beneficial concert," stated Mrs. Haden. OMA was founded in 1963 as a non-profit arts organization devoted to strengthening and encouraging musical arts development in the Otero County area. It supports the Community Chorus, newly developing Community Orchestra (both conducted by Dr. Rice), a Youth Recital Series, other recitals, and a scholarship program for outstanding youth named in honor of Kenneth Bender.

The Ruidoso Community Chorus was organized last fall by its conductor, Bill Braudt. It performed to a standing room only audience during the Christmas season in its debut presentation of Handel's "Messiah." Conductor Braudt holds a music degree from MacMurray College and is an experienced church choir director and soloist.

"The idea of combining the two choral groups in joint performances has led to the formation of the Chaparral Council for the Arts which involves artistic resources in both counties," Rice said. "We envision many other combined efforts to strengthen, encourage and promote arts activity in our area, and hopefully we can schedule other combined choral performances in the future."

The concert is open to the public, by admission. Tickets are available at the door on concert nights, from chorus members in both communities, and at area businesses at $3 for adults, $1 for students. Earned income from ticket sales and advertising offset, in part, organizational operational expenses and provide funds for the scholarship program.

I-n-s-i-d-e the Outdoors

by Gary Dollahan

The state Game Commission met earlier this month and established the big game hunting seasons for the 1980-81 license year. Since the proclamation pertaining to these seasons will not be available until April 1, let's go over some of the new dates and regulations for those who need to schedule vacations now.

The deer hunts were reverted back to the statewide three period stratified hunt system as used in the 1978 season.

Dates for the hunts are as follows: D-one - November 8 and 9; D-two - November 12 through 16; D-three - November 19 through 25.

Again, deer hunters will be required to select either a bow, muzzle-loader, or a modern firearm and hunt only during the seasons designated for their selected weapon. Therefore, deer seasons for bow and muzzle-loader hunters will differ from those listed above.

Bow season will run in the north from September 6 through September 19, and in the south from September 13 through September 21. It will open again generally statewide January 3 and will run through January 11, 1981.

The muzzle-loader deer hunt opens generally statewide September 20 and continues through September 22, except for portions of southeastern New Mexico. Southeastern New Mexico will have a primitive weapon hunt (open for bow and muzzle-loaders) in the Sacramento and Guadalupe Mountains October 25 thru November 2.

Elk season will consist of six hunt periods again this year. The north, southwest, and Sacramento Mountains are open October 4 through 6. The north and southwest only will be open again October 9 through 13 and October 16 through 20. Only the north will be open for the three late season elk hunts of November 23 through December 2, December 5 through 9, and December 12 through 16. A special hunt for wheelchair confined persons on the Vermajo and Moreno Ranches is October 30 through November 4.

Bow only elk hunts will be September 8 through 19 in the Jemez Mountains, Mt. Taylor and Pecos areas, while in the Luna and San Mateo areas the dates are September 13 through 21.

Muzzle-loader elk hunts will be open in the Mt. Taylor, Luna and San Mateo areas October 4 through 6. Also, these same areas (plus the Corona area) will be open to muzzle-loading elk hunters October 9 through 13.

Antelope seasons have been established as August 23 through 25 for the northeast, and September 27-28 for the southeast and southwest. Bow hunts for antelope will be August 9 through 17 at Tres Piedras; August 23-24 and August 30-31 on the Ft. Wingate Army Depot.

The muzzle-loader antelope hunt at Orogrande is September 20 through 22.

The Barbary sheep season was opened generally statewide outside the Largo and Canadian River canyons. Hunters with both a deer license and a B-3 sheep license valid for the season in which they are hunting can hunt deer and sheep simultaneously. Weapon restrictions applicable to respective deer hunts apply to coinciding Barbary sheep hunts.

The B-3 license is also valid January 10 through 18, generally statewide outside the Largo and Canadian River canyon areas.

The Largo and Canadian River canyon Barbary sheep hunts are application hunts. Application deadline is October 1 and season dates are January 10-18.

The spring turkey hunt is April 12 through 27.

Hopefully, this article has given you those dates you might need prior to printing of the proclamation. For more specifics on dates and areas, contact the office in Roswell, 622-2881.

As a final reminder for those who have youngsters planning on hunting this year, get them in a Hunter Training class NOW! The commission passed a regulation requiring persons under 18 years of age to pass this, or another state's course, BEFORE applying for or purchasing a hunting license. With highborn sheep and antelope deadline applications being July 23, enrollment in spring classes is a must for those youngsters wanting to hunt these species.

Tip From Reader — Anyone who is well acquainted with axes knows that sooner or later the wood handle loosens a bit inside the axe head. The possibility of the steel ax taking leave from its handle poses an extremely dangerous threat to a chopper or onlooker.

The axe handle can be tightened by driving small steel or wooden wedges into the head end of the handle, but perhaps a better solution is to soak it in a bucket of water once in a while. This causes the wood to swell and fit tightly inside the head. After removing it from the water, dry the head and apply a coat of oil to prevent rusting. Tim H., Michigan

Dear Wayne — I frequently go ice fishing and skating during our long winters and, sometimes, I'm a bit disturbed about the serious consequences of falling through thin ice. Particularly so when I'm alone. I know there is on the market a set of spikes with handles that would enable a person to grip the ice and pull out after a breakthrough, but I can't find the supplier. Do you have any information on such a product? Darren Y., Minnesota

Dear Darren — I'm sure there is more than one such product available, but I do have information on one supplier. The Polar Ice Claw Company, 8 Nesaquake Ave., Port Washington, NY 11050, makes a set of "ice claws" to assist one in crawling out of a breakthrough. The claws are actually a pair of tough plastic-like handles, each with a pointed steel pick embedded in it. The handles assemble into a single unit which shekles the points and are equipped with a neck lanyard. The claws are orange for good visibility and they float. They sell for $9.95. I'm sure an enterprising individual could fashion a homemade set which would work quite well, but considering that your life might sometime depend upon them, the price of a commercial set seems fairly reasonable. Even so, these ice claws shouldn't lull you into false security around thin ice. If the ice around a breakthrough isn't sufficiently thick to bear your weight the ice claws will do little good. The best insurance is to always ice fish or skate with a companion, and even then use extreme caution around marginal ice.

CARPET TILES are among the newest booms to the homeowner who wants to "do-it-yourself" and enjoy extra savings. You can not only carpet a hall, a "strip" or an entire room in an afternoon, but you can exercise your artistic imagination as well.

Carpet tiles work just like the new self-stick hard surface tiles that you can install yourself. You can use one color, in anything from a thick shag texture to a closely-packed, flat woven surface, to create the effect of a solid expanse of carpet. Or you can experiment with different colors and create a checkerboard, a geometric design, or your own Moudrian pattern on the floor.

With a little adhesive you can use carpet tiles on walls or other surfaces, too, to create new decorative effects, to cover up old windowseats or benches, to add color and texture almost anywhere.

Use carpet tiles over concrete, wood, linoleum or hard surface tiles. The individual tiles are readily cut to go around fixed objects or fit neatly along the walls. And you can do a complete 6x12 foot room yourself for as little as $45 or so.

Want to try carpet tiles yourself? Come in and see our selection. You'll also see the most complete array of quality carpets for every need in our showroom, in a price range to fit your budget.

TOM SYNDER'S CELEBRITY SPOTLIGHT

Tom Synder (pictured) probes the personalities of four popular performers—three of them being statuesque Loni Anderson ('WKRP in Cincinnati'), comedian-writer Chevy Chase, and actor-director Jack Lemmon—when he originates the second of his new prime-time specials, 'Tom Synder's Celebrity Spotlight,' from locales in New York City and Los Angeles for presentation on NBC-TV, MONDAY, MARCH 17.

Synder's interview with Chase takes place at NBC-TV Studio 8H in New York City. Segments focusing on Ms. Anderson and Lemmon will originate in Los Angeles.

Profile

These ladies are in the pink

The smash recording duo Pink Lady is comprised of two graceful and charming Japanese singers named Mie (left) and Kei (pronounced 'Me' and 'Kay') who attended the same junior high and high schools in their hometown of Shizuoka City, Japan.

Although they are not related (and prefer not to divulge their surnames), Mie, 21, and Kei, 22, have shared many common experiences on their way to becoming the world's biggest-selling female recording artists and stars (with Jeff Altman,) of NBC-TV's 'Pink Lady,' airing Fridays.

Their big break came in 1976 when they auditioned for a network program, 'Star is Born.' After winning the show's top award, Pink Lady was immediately signed to Japan's Victor Records. Their first single—'Pepper-Keibu' ('Sergeant Pepper')—was issued in August, 1976, and the girls were on their way to superstardom in Japan.

Since then, Pink Lady has had 14 (at last count) consecutive top five singles, 10 number-one singles, and eight number-one albums. Every single has sold over a million copies, with the total gross exceeding $100,000,000.

Mie and Kei's concert appearances are no less spectacular. Total live receipts are over $20,000,000, owing in part to their performances before as many as 140,000 fans in two outdoor concerts at Korakeun Stadium in Tokyo.

Furthermore, Pink Lady is the first Japanese singing duo in English to have a record on the American charts (1979's 'Kiss in the Dark'). They made their motion-picture debut in 1978, starring in 'Pink Lady's Great Motion Picture'—a science-fiction, western-adventure story.

Though they have a basic understanding of English, the girls must learn their lines and songs phonetically. During their brief time in the United States, Mie and Kei have sought to rectify this by studying English when time permits.

Television Schedule for the Week of March 17 through March 23

by Joey Sasso

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT: The end of the line isn't far off for America's favorite TV family, 'The Waltons.' A combination of fickle network executives and ill and dissatisfied actors could spell the end for the 8-year-old series about a clean-living family in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia. Unlike real-life families that have children to carry on the family name, the Waltons could end up in the TV graveyard, with no offspring. But not if the father of The Waltons, Earl Hamner, can help it. He's the writer who created the Walton family from his book, Spencer's Mountain, about the experiences of his own family from the same Blue Ridge Mountains. "I don't want the show to just peter out," he told me. "But it's up to the audience and CBS." The Waltons have not fared well in the ratings lately. The family show competes head on with wildly popular 'Laverne & Shirley' and 'Buck Rogers in the 25th Century.' Most of the time the show has been hovering just below the magic bottom line 30 percent share of the audience. CBS executives won't make any decisions about 'The Waltons' until April, according to the network. The TV hit 'Vegas' isn't billed as a comedy, but that's what the show is to real-life private investigators and police detectives in Las Vegas. While the series' writers and producers say they're out to "thrill, surprise and entertain," Detective Robert Leonard, a six-year veteran of the Las Vegas Police Department, thinks they're really making a crime show into a sitcom. Leonard and fellow officer Jim Hulsey, a 10-year veteran, find the show funny because of the glaring differences between what they actually do and what Dan Tanna, played by Robert Ulrich, gets away with on the boob tube.

TV TICKER: Redd Foxx, former co-star of 'Sanford and Son,' has returned to NBC, minus the son, to star in 'Sanford.' He's still a junkman, but this time he marries a rich widow and moves to Beverly Hills. What was it about the new version of 'Sanford' that lured him back to TV? "Money," he said. "They made me an offer I couldn't refuse." The strikingly beautiful Loni Anderson of TV's 'WKRP in Cincinnati' is giving '10' star Bo Derek a run for her money. A group of Las Vegas promoters thought that if Bo can be rated a 10, then there must be an 11 out there! They organized a contest at Las Vegas' fabulous Frontier Hotel and invited any of America's more-than-perfect misses to compete in the ultimate beauty contest. To their amazement, scores of letters have poured in nominating Loni Anderson as America's '11' girl! "I like the idea," Loni's Hollywood press agent, Mickey Freeman, told me. "It's a tremendous compliment. I'm sure she'll be stunned when she hears the news. She'll be delighted to be an '11'."

TV CLOSEUP: Reporters are told to never bother Barbara Bel Geddes for an interview. The 'Dallas' star is extremely shy, and gets upset when talking to writers. Joanne Woodward will turn on TV for her next project, 'Happy Endings,' a story about a divorced mother and her teenaged daughter on a bicycle tour of Europe. Fifteen-year-old Lori Loughlin revealed to me over dinner at New York's favorite French bistro, La Bonne Soupe West, that after graduating from the Barbizon School of modeling back home in Pennsylvania less than a year ago, she moved to New York and made the rounds of modeling and talent agencies. She is now shooting her first movie, Sly Stallone's 'Hawks.' Why not phone, toll free, 1-800-228-2222 and ask for Dept. S. They'll send you, free, a copy of the booklet 'Training to Be a Model—or Just Look Like One.'
