Valley residents oppose realigning U. S. Highway 70

Hondo Valley residents have seemingly dropped their opposition to a four lane Highway 70 through the valley, if opinions expressed at Thursday's meeting in Hondo are any indication.

In fact, several are in favor of it, because they claim they need an improved road. But almost none of the 40 people present want the possible realignment of the highway, which would leave the present road at Riverside, travel along the mesa and reconnect at Tinnie.

Valley residents oppose that change, they said, because of personal feelings about valley landowner Robert O. Anderson.

"We need an improved highway," said Della Frescas Neris, a longtime resident, "but running the highway on the mesa will ruin us."

That highway would run right through grazing lands, she said, "and that would destroy us. We are fighting for our land." She added four ranching families "would be ruined."

One woman, Mrs. Gloria Mendiola, said, "That road skirts right around Anderson's house (near Riverside). If the road is up on the mesa, then he wouldn't be bothered by the noise, and he'd have his own stretch of highway. He planted a bunch of trees around his house to shelter it from the highway."

"Then after the road goes in, the ranchers on the mesa would go broke, and he could buy the land dirt cheap. The rest of us who have been on this land hundreds of years have to put up with this b.s. — because he (Anderson) wants peace and quiet at his home."

Richard Bokay of Riverside, owner of Riverside Bar and Restaurant, charged Anderson with moving a liquor license from Picacho to Tinnie, where the alternate route would join the existing highway. The alternate route would bypass Bokay's business, he said.

He also charged Anderson with donating three miles of land on the mesa to the state in exchange for having the alternate route, "so he can get peace and quiet around his house."

"And those families up there on the mesa will be wiped out," he said. "They've been ranching for years, but they'll be on

Texan claims $29,908 Big Q

Jim McGehee, a United States Department of Agriculture official at Seminole, Texas, collected a stunning $29,909 in Sunday's Big Q wagering at Ruidoso Downs.

McGehee, 33, wound up as the lone ticket holder in the Big Q pool.

It was the highest Big Q payoff in Ruidoso Downs history, and one of the

Police seek robbery suspect

Officers of the Criminal Investigation Division (CID), Ruidoso Police Department, are seeking a "clean cut" Spanish male in connection with the armed robbery of the Midtown 7-11 store at about 2:30 a.m., Friday morning.

The man, who escaped in a dark colored car with about $50 in cash, was described as being about 20 years of age, 5'7" to 5'10", weighing 135 pounds.

At the time of the robbery, he was reportedly wearing a blue tee shirt, pale blue jeans and a green and white cap. He was also reported to have a tattoo on his left hand.

highest in statewide history. "I'm tickled to death, and a bit surprised," McGehee said after his striking success. "I didn't think I'd wind up with the only winning ticket. I thought there'd be five or six of them."

McGehee, a regular Ruidoso patron, said he relies on the Racing Form for his selections. He wagered $200 on Sunday's Big Q, and had 10 "live" tickets going into the second half. "I had the top four horses hooked up in my selections in the second half, so I figured I'd get a good part of the pool. But I didn't think I'd take all of it," he said.

Suitably enough, Sunday's success marks the third time McGehee has wiped out the Big Q pool. He said he did it twice before, several years ago, at Sunland Park. "The first was worth about $11,000, the second around $10,000," he said.

McGehee is a director of the county office of the Department of Agriculture in Seminole.

McGehee hit Sunday's Big Q by hooking up Just One Wink (8½-1) and Scatta Buck (6-1) in the 11th race with Frosty Jlimmer (16½-1) with Efficient (8½-1) in the 12th race.

Bold Ego grabs Rio Futurity

Bold Ego kept his winning streak alive, handed fellow New Mexico-breds a severe whipping, and stuffed more money in his sock with a routine conquest of Sunday's 13th running of the Rio Grande Kindergarten Futurity at Ruidoso Downs.

The colt tore through his opposition like a hot knife through butter and ended the four furlong dash with a 2 ¼ length lead.

The Kindergarten purse amounted to $26,720, and Bold Ego's share came out to $13,360. That pushed his career earnings up to $109,522 and re-affirmed his position as the leading two-year-old thoroughbred in the Southwest.

He's now won five straight against no defeats.

For extra measure, he zipped over the Kindergarten's four furlongs in 47 seconds flat, establishing a new seasonal record. The colt stepped off the first two furlongs in a torrid 23 seconds on the nose.

Bold Ego, who made his mark at Sunland Park with 2½ length victory in the $206,359 Riley Allison Thoroughbred Futurity, is owned by the Double B. Ranch of Anthony. Cliff Lambert is the trainer. John Cushing does the riding.

RUIDOSO PATRONS HAD enough confidence in Bold Ego's Kindergarten chances to make him a 3-5 favorite. As a result, the mutual payoffs were $3.40 to win, $2.80 to place, $2.60 to show.

Dr. Me Up, a 15-1 longshot ridden by Salustio Burgos, gave the people's choice an argument down the back stretch. The lead changed hands several times in the early going as Bold Ego and Dr. Me Up held about a five length gap over the rest of the field.

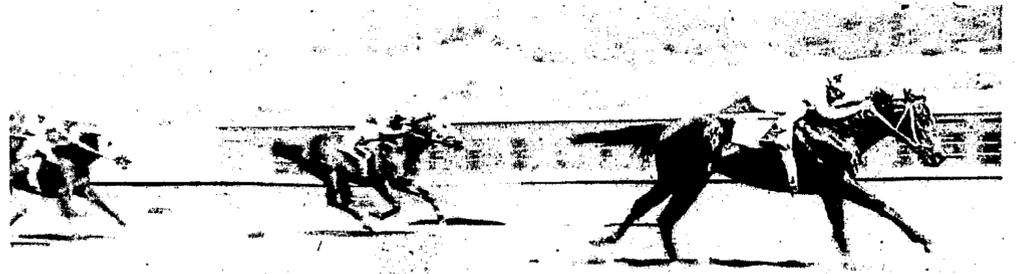

At the turn for home, Bold Ego stuck his head in front. He took a slightly wide arc, got a breather from jockey Cushing, then bolted into the clear at the head of the lane. Cushing put the whip to Bold Ego once at the top of the stretch. At mid-stretch, he waved the leather a few times.

BOLD EGO SHOWED his class by surging ahead in the final half furlong. The competition was pretty well hog-tied when Bold Ego flashed across the finish. He was piling up his lead with every jump.

Dr. Me Up finished second, ¾ lengths in front of the 40-1 darkhorse, First Away. Jimmy Hunt rode the latter.

Dr. Me Up returned $6.60 and $5. The show price on First Away was $5.20.

Dr. Me Up collected $5,344 for his second place effort, while First Away earned $2,939.

Festival ends Tuesday

The Ruidoso Summer Festival, featuring the Fort Worth "Texas Little Symphony," orchestra continues tonight at the Ruidoso Downs Racetrack sales arena, with a concert planned for family enjoyment.

The performance will begin at 8:30 p.m., and carries an admission tag of $1 per person. Conductor John Glordiano will narrate Prokofiev's classic "Peter and the Wolf," especially for the younger members of the audience.

Other selections at tonight's concert will include Introduction to the Orchestra by Miller; Hungarian Dance No. 1 by Brahms; Notacantata by Case and Hoe Down by Copeland.

The festival action will culminate Tuesday with the appearance of pianist/humorist Victor Borge at 8 p.m., at the sales arena.

At Thursday's performance, classical guitarist Pepe Romero delivered a stunning (and seemingly effortless) performance of Rodrigo's Fantasia para un Gentil Hombre and Concerto de Engras.

Romero returned for several encores, including the closing number which he improvised for the occasion.

At Thursday's performance, conductor John Glordiano also recognized Roy Browning Sr., and Roy Browning Jr., for conceiving the idea of a music festival in Ruidoso, featuring the Fort Worth group. Hundreds of music lovers also turned out for the free concerts Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

At the Friday noon performance, associate conductor James Simpson Miller led the orchestra in selections from Mozart, Brahms, Bach, Hayden, and a portion of the familiar Beethoven's Fifth Symphony.

Saturday's program opened with "Dance of the Comedians" by Smetana followed by "Water Suite," a piece "written to be played outdoors," according to Miller. After three movements of "Water Suite" by Handel, "Hungarian Dance Number Six" by Brahms rang a familiar note with the audience.

Karen Adrin was featured in a tune written for the piccolo, "Piccolo Concerto" by Vivaldi. On the lighter side, children of the orchestra members and one local youngster, Gregory Radzewicz, joined the orchestra for "Toy Symphony" by Hayden.

The children showed their talents on the nightingale, trumpet, rattle drum and kazoo. "We have some excellent toy players," Miller said.

Another light number entitled "Typewriter Song" brought smiles to the faces of everyone. Conductor Miller accompanied the orchestra on his Smith-Corona typewriter.

Eight movements of the "Comedian Suite" by Kabalevski was followed by Slavonic Dance to close the second of three outdoor performances.

Sunday's performance was highlighted with selections by Strauss and Bartok, including the Blue Danube and Rumanian Folk Dances. Several members of the audience responded to conductor Miller's admonishments to "get up and dance around the trees," and received a round of applause for their spontaneity.

The final movement of Mozart's Second Horn Concerto, with a french horn solo, was another high point of Sunday's performance.

For mind-boggling fun evening see...hear...Borge...here

The finale of the first Ruidoso Summer Festival, Tuesday at 8 p.m., will feature Victor Borge, as guest artist, appearing with the Fort Worth Symphony in concert at the Ruidoso Downs Sales Arena.

Tickets for this outstanding evening of musical entertainment, at $9 for cabaret seating and $4.50 for bleachers, will be available at the door.

Borge's repertoire, as his myriad fans know, will keep the audience laughing with and at him as he constantly promises, or threatens, to seat himself at the grand piano to play a piece at prestissimo that might not have been so written.

To refresh your memory about Borge's life and how he rose to claim acclaim as pianist and entertainer, The New offers the background information below.

Born in Copenhagen, Victor Borge was introduced to the piano at the age of 3 by his mother. His father was a violinist with the Royal Danish Symphony. At age 8, he made his concert debut in Copenhagen as a pianist, was hailed as a prodigy and given a scholarship to the Copenhagen Music Conservatory; and, while still in his teens, he was given scholarships to study with Frederick Lammond and Egon Petri in Berlin and augmented his income as an organist. As he was becoming established in Denmark as a leading personality of stage and screen, mixing comedy with concertizing, the Nazi invasion of Denmark occurred. Borge was performing in Sweden and, as he was noted for having satirized Hitler, he caught the final vessel to leave Finland for America. Unable to speak English, and with all his Danish belongings impounded, he arrived unknown and penniless in America in 1940.

His Americanization began with countless trips to local movie houses where he studied our "culture" and somehow managed to learn the language without being overly influenced by the abundance of westerns and gangster films. Through persistence and a little luck he landed his first professional appearance in this country, on the Bing Crosby Kraft Music Hall, and was held over for 56 weeks. "The Victor Borge Show," "Lower Basin Street," and other radio hits headed by Borge soon followed. In 1953 Borge began touring with his one-man show, making theatrical history when he climaxed the year at the Golden Theatre on Broadway, and made television history with his live specials and weekly programs.

Since then his "Comedy in Music" program and recordings have delighted the general public and won new fans for serious music. Even those who have not been privileged to witness Borge in person know of his genius and wit. His musical perception is that of a Master and few satirists have truly been able to master the subject of their spoof. But Borge has! As noted by the immortal pianist, Benno Moisewitsch: "With his touch, he could play for God."

Jasha Silberstein, first cellist with the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra after playing with Borge, stated: "Victor Borge is, of course, a magnificent pianist," a thought also expressed in person by Harold C. Schonberg of The New York Times in a backstage greeting to Borge.

At Butler University in Indianapolis several years ago, the Romantic Music Festival was facing a financial crisis. Gunnar Johansen, the famed Danish pianist, suggested that Borge be invited to be a guest conductor. Borge amazed everyone by having memorized every work on the program, received his customary standing ovation, and saved the Festival. Frank Cooper, music critic and founder of the Festival, said: "... it was easy to see that the musicians not only respected Borge, they loved him."

But Johansen best sums up the Borge phenomenon: "I marvel at the individuality of his style and his ability as a pianist. He is extraordinarily poetic, and one thing rarely mentioned — his downright outstanding pianistic gift as an improviser. With the prevailing humour it perhaps too readily escapes one as to how great a musician Borge is..."

As a maestro, he has conducted scores of leading symphony orchestras, including the prestigious Concertgebouw in Amsterdam, the Danish Royal Symphony, the London Philharmonic, and the Orchestras of Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Detroit and Cleveland. And he has saved the winter seasons of many others by persuading people, through his popularity and esteem, to subscribe for an entire season in order to hear and see Borge perform.

As an author, he has written, with New York Times critic Robert Sherman, the best-selling book "My Favorite Intermissions" for Doubleday, recounting incidents from the lives of composers, thereby broadening the general appeal of music for everyone.

As a family man, Borge spends his treasured, free time with his wife, Sanna, their five children, two sons-in-law and five grandchildren, in family homes in Greenwich, Connecticut and St. Croix, Virgin Islands. And he is an accomplished skipper, preferring to spend truly "free time" sailing with his family whenever his schedule and the weather combine to permit. In his own words, "With me, the three B's are Bach, Beethoven and Boats!"

In sum, Victor Borge, the musical magician, painlessly introduced the classics to many who would normally rebel at the thought of attending a concert; yet he elicits praise from the world's recognized master musicians. And Royalty responds in like manner: most recently, while in England, Borge was invited to perform at the Queen's wedding anniversary party, an annual affair given by Mady Zia Wernher, at Luton Hoo Castle. It was an especially memorable evening since, with the event restricted to an intimate family audience, the reaction of the Queen was immediately evident. Her virtually non-stop laughter and her occasional brushing away of the tears of laughter, provided an evening that is among the amazing Victor Borge's most treasured memories.

Bold Ego is by Bold Tactics out of Coya's Ego. He was bred by the Double B. Ranch, an operation owned by Margaret Barton and her son, J. D. Barton.

BARTONVILLE, a quarter horse ridden by Gary Sumpter, turned on a stretch burst and overpowered the thoroughbred, Draconic's Loom, in Saturday's headliner at Ruidoso Downs.

The sprint covered 870 yards and was the rubber match in a three race duel between Bartonville and Draconic's Loom.

Bartonville won the first encounter May 17, but Draconic's Loom squared the record in an 870 match May 25.

This time, Bartonville engineered a long stretch advance and nailed Draconic's Loom by a head, right on the wire. The winner is owned by Jerry Rheudasil of Lewisville, Texas. The mutual payoffs were $3, $2.80, $2.40.

Bartonville toured the 870 yards in 47.12 seconds.

Draconic's Loom refunded $2.80 and $2.60. Thirty Five, with Darrell Blevins in the irons, got in third for a $3 show payoff.

IF THERE WAS EVER a sure thing in racing, that had to be Pie In The Sky in Friday's 9th race at Ruidoso Downs.

The colt, who won the 1979 All-American Futurity, went into Friday's 350 yard dash with a staggering money line of $521,418 — 7th best in quarter horse history.

Pie In The Sky got away as a towering 2-

5 favorite, but victory eluded him on the last jump. Mito King Bee, a 6-1 shot, nabbed the people's choice right on the wire.

Mito King Bee covered the 350 yards in a headwind clocking of 18.34 seconds and returned $14.80 on a $2 win ticket. Bakcers of Pie In The Sky had to settle for $2.80 to place and $2.20 to show. The outing was Pie In The Sky's first since bagging first place money of $437,500 in the $1,280,000 All-American Futurity at Ruidoso Downs last Labor Day.

Irish Antics, the heavy favorite in Friday's six furlong feature, fared better than Pie In The Sky. The colt ran his heart out in the stretch to win barely in a three horse finish. The win payoff was $3.80.

HONOR JOHN, aggressively ridden by Betty Harless, squeezed through between horses at mid-stretch and won Thursday's 5 1/2 furlong headliner at Ruidoso Downs.

The even money favorite, Happy Irishman, failed to get rolling in the stretch and finished in the pack.

Honor John is owned by Elizabeth Smith of El Paso, Texas. The victory margin was a half length.

Fans who backed Honor John collected $14.60, $5.40 and $4. Warrior's Time finished second under John Arteaga and returned $5.40 and $4.80. Dublin The Green took third at 18-1 and returned $6.40.

Honor John toured the distance in 1:09 4-5 seconds.

For jockey Harless, the win was her second of the season.

Seating space available at photographic seminar

Seating space, for the Kodak Photographic Seminar, at the Holiday Inn, Wednesday and Thursday, is still available, Dave Wilson, sponsor, said to The News today.

The cost of the seminar, held from 7-10 p.m., both days, is only $25 per person, Wilson said. Tickets are available now at Dave Wilson's Camera Shop, 2538 Sudderth, and will also be available at the door Wednesday before the first seminar begins.

Kodak representatives Donald Chamberlain and Charlie Fischer will present the seminar, designed as a technique improvement tool for amateur photographers.

Seminar topics include: — Understanding Composition — Developing Good Camera-Handling Habits — Using Exposure Controls — Depth of Field Explained — Out Front with Lenses and Lens Attachments

— Close-Ups in Focus — The Many Facets of Outdoor Lighting — The Advantages of Existing-Light Photography — Picturing People Naturally — Planning, Producing and Presenting a Slide Show — Practice . . . It's Up To You. "This is one of the finest seminars for amateur photographers that has come to my attention," Wilson said. "I am certain that every amateur photographer will benefit from the explanations, these two Kodak representatives give, covering all aspects of photography to increase a person's abilities and to give that person new confidence to go out and take better pictures."

"The reason the seminar is priced so low, is to make this course available to every amateur photographer in this area. I recommend this seminar, without any reservations whatsoever."

welfare if we let this happen."

He also claimed Anderson would tie up construction of the highway "if he doesn't get that alternate."

Jack Higgins, representing Anderson properties, was heckled by the crowd as he read a prepared statement. "Progress is the American way of life," Higgins read. "We can't have progress without hardships, it seems. Highway construction always disrupts things. Why should we have all that machinery and other noise in the valley? Let's put it up on the mesa, and avoid all that."

In Higgins' statement, he seized upon several of the problems in using the current alignment. As it now stands, the Rio Hondo will be realigned at one point.

"Why realign a river when you have millions and millions of acres of dry land on either side of the river?" he asked.

Fred Pearson, the project director, countered Higgins' statement by saying the realignment would cost almost $11 million, requires extensive blasting and would contain a two mile section of six percent grade.

"If we stay on the present alignment," he said, "we would have only about a quarter mile. The present alignment is the way to go."

Dan Salas Jr., urged residents to write to the state Highway Department and express their disapproval with the proposed realignment. "All of Anderson's employees will be writing for it," he said.

But Ken Bower, of the Highway 70 development team, told the audience, "Unless we receive considerable support in favor of the realignment, we will drop it as an alternate." Applause greeted his announcement.

Mrs. Neria added, "Even if they put in the new alignment, nobody will use it. There's nothing up on the mesa. If they put it in, Texans coming here won't use it. Who wants to see rattlesnakes, sheep and cactus when they can see our beautiful valley?"

The comments about Anderson and the realignment came after an hour long slide presentation of the current alignment and proposed improvements and its impact.

During the presentation, several members of the crowd repeatedly asked questions, despite repeated pleas by Bower to hold all questions.

"All the comments you make must wait until after the slides," he said. "We're trying to tape these, and if you speak now, we won't have any record of them."

But his requests, for the most part, went unheeded.

The 37 mile stretch, from the Mescalero Apache reservation to RIVERSIDE, engineers said, will cost about $141.6 million and will require taking 299 acres of land and might require the acquisition of 12 to 17 buildings, including three residences.

But much of that information was lost amid complaints of right of way acquisition in Hondo.

To widen the highway to 114 feet in Hondo would require an additional 50 feet of right of way, engineers said. To the north are four businesses, and to the south is a park.

Federal law requires the development team prove there is no "feasible alternative" to taking land allotted for a park before that land.

"So you're gonna put four people out of business when you could take a few feet from a lousy park?" Bokay asked.

"Common sense tells us to take the needed land from the park," said Ki Sui Park of the team, "but the law says we must take the buildings if we can't find another way."

Bower said, "It's a matter of following the law. We shouldn't have any trouble proving taking the businesses would be worse than taking land in the park," which would be approximately six to 10 feet off the highway.

"Why can't we take federal land at the park when the feds are trying to sell us the damned sagebrush land?" Bokay asked.

"Move the park back," suggested Ron Winfield of Glencoe.

Highway engineers said they are contemplating realigning that section of highway north past the businesses, "and then we'll just avoid all this," Pearson said. But, he added, "we're just looking at it."

All opinions expressed will be processed by the state in making an environmental impact statement, the team said, which is scheduled for completion in September.

A public meeting in November will follow before any real design work is done, and construction is still "years away," Pearson said.

"Hell, let's let our kids worry about it," said Glen Crane.

The Plant Corner by Sally Black

This column is devoted to growing healthy indoor plants. Address questions to: Sally Black, The Ruidoso News, Box 128, Ruidoso, New Mexico 88345.

Dear Sally; What am I doing wrong with my Coleus? They can be perfectly beautiful when I get them and in no time I have a bunch of long spindly stems with small leaves. I pinch back unmercifully, but the end result is two long spindly stems instead of one. Thank you, Jacque Johnston, Ruidoso.

Dear Jacque; Common Coleus, "Coleus Blumei", for the most part are relatively easy to grow and care for, and do perfectly well out of doors in milder weather.

Coleuses are prized both indoors and outdoors for their colorful foliage. They have been so cultivated that now their leaves usually combine many shades of green, yellow, pink, red and maroon.

Coleuses do best where they get four or more hours of direct sunlight a day, or where artificial and natural light averages 800 foot-candles over 12 hours a day, but they will grow fairly well in bright indirect light, such as the reflected from light walls. Night temperatures of 65° to 70° and day temperatures of 75° to 85° are ideal.

Keep the soil barely moist at all times. They must not be allowed to dry out completely as this causes collapse and while they recover, some of the lower leaves are usually shed when this happens.

Good rich soil and weekly feedings will produce splendid plants. A good fertilizer would be 5-10-5 with a tablespoon of ground limestone per gallon added. Coleuses grow rapidly; to encourage dense but not all growth, pinch off stem tips at any time.

Propagate from stem cuttings at any season. Treat as annuals and discard when past their best; new plants are easily raised from tip cuttings. The pests which coleuses are most susceptible are the Whitefly and Mealy Bugs.

Jacque, I suggest you put your Coleus outdoors in a good protected area as soon as there is no danger of freezing, follow above instructions and let us know how you two get along.

Inspiration Corporation productions this week

BY CHARLOTTE FELLERS
Staff Writer/Photographer

Inspiration Corporation (IC) will present the third of six performances of "Reflections," an original production featuring music by Barry McGuire and Chuck Bolte, at 8 p.m., tonight at Ruidoso Care Center.

Other performances will be:
—Wednesday, Camp Sierra Blanca, 7:30 p.m.
—Friday, Circle B Campground, 7:30 p.m.
—Saturday, Cherokee Village Campground, 7:30 p.m.

The show stars participants in IC's two week long Christian music and drama camp, now in progress at the Nazarene campgrounds in Angus. Carlene Wadley, one of the founders of IC, combined music from "Bullfrogs and Butterflies" and other songs to create the show. Wadley directs the cast of 29 in the 45 minute program.

Now in its third year, the camp offers students from junior high age and up a chance to "get away" for two weeks of intense study of drama and music.

Included in IC's camp, which draws students from Carlsbad, Artesia, El Paso, Texas, Roswell, Las Cruces and Ruidoso, is room and board, private music lessons on an instrument of the student's choice, seminars and activities including horseback riding, swimming and shopping trips.

Cost of this year's camp was $180 per student, which, Wadley said, barely covers everything. But, she said, "we wanted to try to keep it the same as last year, which we did," at the expense of having pennies leftover.

Wadley said most camps similar to IC's now cost around $200 per week or double the cost of this camp. Wadley added that "meals are excellent" because "a lot of the kids are from the flatlands and we don't want them getting hungry... so we provide plenty to eat."

Wadley said budgeting 41 meals and 14 nights of lodging for $180 "is really hard." In addition, all staff members, which numbered more than 15 this year, are volunteers and do not pay for food and lodging. "So out of that $180 per kid, we have to plan the staff costs also," Wadley said.

She said last year the staff received token amounts at the end of camp to cover travel costs, but fears little will be left this year. "We also had money left over last year for a scholarship fund," but doesn't see that happening this year.

Still, staff members are easy to locate. Wadley signed some of the most qualified instructors ever for this year's camp. "They are all very professional and we feel very lucky to have them," she said.

Staff members, in addition to helping stage the show, must also be willing to give private lessons and act, more or less, as parents to the students.

Seminars are held nearly every day which teach students skills and discuss many values, but all teach Christian concepts.

The campers will attend at least one performance of the Fort Worth Symphony Orchestra while here, and will take in as much extra activity as they can while visiting this area.

Wadley said the future of the camp looks bright. "Each year we've grown, and I expect that won't change." She said inflation will probably force them to hike the price of the camp next year, "but we still will be a bargain," she said.

Rent at the Nazarene camp costs $3,500 for two weeks, but was an unavoidable expense, in Wadley's opinion. "There isn't anyplace big enough with the right equipment to have camp anymore. There are three pianos and two organs here, plus lots of space to put the show together," she said. Despite the expense, Wadley has already reserved the camp for next year "because we just keep growing."

Wadley said scholarships were found for near half the students this year "but we still had two kids who couldn't come because there wasn't money." Students from Ruidoso generally receive scholarships from local donors and out-of-towners are urged to seek scholarship money from their own communities.

The corporation was formed less than two years ago and is run by local businessmen. They have opened a coffee house on Highway 37 and will conduct a day camp for younger children later this month.

The corporation sponsors a Christian musical ever winter and usually draws cast members from nearly every church in the village. They hope to add to their credits their own camp and more offerings in the future.

Attending the camp from Ruidoso are Jeff Fargeson, Kerrie Prophet, Willie Dean, Scott and Angie Griego, Tracy Hamm, Danny Racher, Kelly Short, Wendy Walker, Stan Sluder, Eric Berg, Laurie Prophet, Cyd Wright and Jeremy Lane.

WENDY WALKER concentrates on remembering sign language, used in two numbers in "Reflections," a Christian musical being performed in the area this week.

STRIKING A mocking somber pose in one scene from "Reflections" are cast members Kerrie Prophet, Jim Lene and Kelly Short.

KELLY SHORT is just a little camera shy... as this photo was snapped, she forgot all about rehearsal.

"REFLECTIONS" director Carlene Wadley breathes a sigh of relief as the show starts to come together in one of the final rehearsals before opening night.

Summer sporting events? Ruidoso's got 'em all

BY MARK BAGBY
Sports Editor

Ruidoso has been criticized in the past for not having more sporting events in the summer.

But after you start looking at what's in store, you start wondering what the heck else you could have and when you could have it.

There's a wide variety of sporting events in the near and not-so-near future in Ruidoso. Here's a rundown of what's available:

Little League Baseball
The league — which is split into two divisions — continues play until June 20 in the minor league, and through June 24 in the majors. Teams play every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday nights, beginning at 5:30. There's a doubleheader each of those nights at the Little League ballfield, behind Ruidoso High School.

Little League Soccer
That league just wrapped up its regular season, but has three all-star games slated for Saturday, beginning at 10:30 a.m. They play on the soccer fields near White Mountain Middle School.

Although the season is virtually over, a week-long soccer clinic will be held July 7-12, with a 10 person teaching staff headed by former professional player Bobby Moffat. The clinic is $50 per player. Call Butch Grantham, 257-7731 for more details.

Men's Softball
The men's softball league has a busy schedule ahead. With an even dozen teams, the season, which began May 20, won't conclude until August 12.

The league has eight games a week, with double headers every Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, with the first game beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Championship games will be played in August following completion of the regular season.

Teams play on the diamond in Ruidoso Downs, located just off Highway 70.

Women's Softball
The ladies play but one night a week, taking the diamonds every Monday, at Ruidoso Downs, White Mountain School and Fort Stanton.

There are three games every Monday, beginning at 6 p.m. The league has a June 23 all-star game, and regular season play concludes August 11. There are two city tournaments scheduled for August 18 and 25.

Gymnastics
The summer program at Ruidoso Gymnastics Academy is in full swing, with special two week sessions all day long, Monday through Thursday, for youngsters of all levels of experience.

The next two week session begins June 16, and students may enroll by calling 257-5657. Classes are $12.50 a week.

Also, special Saturday clinics are in the works. Call the school for more details.

Tennis
Tennis lessons for youngsters ages 7-16 begin Tuesday at Sierra Swim and Racquet Club, with club pro David Bryant instructing. Classes will run for one, two and three weeks, with three days of instruction a week, from 9 or 10:30 to noon. Prices vary, but the 10 to 13 year old equipment is proper tennis gear and a racquet. The club is providing balls.

Courts at the club will undergo resurfacing soon, and the club's fourth Annual Tennis Open will be June 19. There are also mixed doubles, as well as other leagues, that play on a regular basis.

Call the club, 257-5176, for more details. The Inn of the Mountain Gods is having free instruction clinics Saturday, June 21.

and a big mixed doubles tournament Sunday, June 22. Call club pro H. F. Burkstaller for more details.

Swimming
The club also has a large pool, and will offer several classes this summer, from regular swimming lessons to more advanced skills. Instructor is Dick Klauft.

For more information, call the club. Non-residents may also obtain a summer membership at reduced rates.

Golf
With three area golf courses — Alto Lakes, Inn of the Mountain Gods and Cree Meadows — there's almost always something going on, and Cree Meadows just finished its Ladies' Invitational tourney.

The Inn and Cree Meadows are both open to the public, but Alto is a private course. It will have this summer, however, its "Snowcapper" tourney in July, for members and guests. There are other tourneys planned as well.

Both the Inn and Cree Meadows have several things planned, with the highlight probably the 32nd Annual Cree Meadows Invitational. Call either course's pro shop for more details.

For those who prefer shorter courses, you might try a round of miniature golf at either of Ruidoso's two fine courses.

Adult soccer
There's but one game left in the regular season for both the men's and women's leagues, and it's this Sunday, beginning at 1:30 at White Mountain Middle School.

Miscellaneous
There's a Tuesday night mixed bowling league... a skeet shoot scheduled August 16-17 at the Inn of the Mountain Gods... horse racing at Ruidoso Downs every weekend... roller skating... fishing... a newly opened go-cart track... a large baseball tournament, with details still forthcoming... and, last but not least, mule racing is just around the corner.

See? There's lots to do this summer... have fun!

Operation Game Thief in its fourth year

Operation Game Thief (OGT), incentive for the arrest or citation of 316 wildlife law violators who might otherwise not have been detected, began its fourth year June 1.

In its first three years, the program has paid out $25,500 in rewards—$10,200 last year—to citizens whose calls resulted in either arrest or citation of game violators. The cooperative Department of Game and Fish-citizen program has returned $30,640 to the State School and Game Protection Funds in fines and civil assessments for both big and small game violations or those involving game fish, birds and endangered species, according to Dan Pursley, OGT Coordinator. During its first three years, fines levied against violators have totaled $52,180; civil assessments, $23,460.

OGT has a 99 percent conviction rate, Pursley said, and one case in every four in which an investigation is warranted results in an arrest or citation. Seventy-five percent of the cases involve illegal possession of big game animals, with the other 25 percent involving small game animals, fish, game birds, raptors or residency cases, the coordinator said. "Dear cases are the bulk of the cases called in to OGT, followed closely by elk and antelope," Pursley added.

To date, OGT has investigated cases involving approximately 241 animals and birds—including bear, javelina, mountain lions, deer, antelope, elk, turkey and raptors.

Patterned after Albuquerque's Crime Stoppers program and adapted to statewide use, OGT has now been adopted basically intact by at least three other states, Pursley said, and two others are considering such a program.

Last year, the OGT Citizen's Task Force doubled the minimum reward for information on small game and fishing violations to $100 and upped the reward for information on violations of the state endangered species act to $250.

In its first two years, the minimum reward was $50 for information leading to arrests or citations in cases involving game birds, small game, fish and protected nongame animals, including endangered species. Rewards in big game cases remain as first set—$250. The highest authorized payment during OGT history was $1,100. Information on illegal commercial use of game birds, fish or mammals or on violations of the endangered species act could result in rewards above the minimum, Pursley said.

While OGT adds incentive to bring wildlife law violators to task for their crimes, the program is also seen as an effective deterrent, helping to curb violations. The increased likelihood that violators will be apprehended and severely punished deters others who may be similarly tempted.

As the program continues its growth and citizens become more aware of its objectives, OGT improves the otherwise low rate of reporting wildlife law violations—viewed as victimless crimes because there are no human casualties.

Donations are the primary source of OGT reward fund monies. In its three years, conservation minded citizens have given $44,528.23, including interest on a savings account. Donations are tax-deductible.

The Department of Game and Fish also encourages unsuccessful applicants for special licenses to donate their license fees (otherwise refunded) by checking the box provided on the special license application form. A citizen's board oversees the reward fund and sets reward amounts according to the kind of case.

Operation Game Thief provides a toll-free number—1-800-432-4263—for use by persons who have information on game law violations. Callers remain anonymous and are not asked to testify in court.

Sportin' Life

by

Mark Bagby

Ah, the warm (hot) weather is beginning to remind me, more and more, of that flat land to the east — Oklahoma.

(You know, where the winds come sewpin' down the plain and the wavin' wheat can sure smell sweet — with apologies to Dick and Oscar.)

But although for some it isn't inconvenient, for some it is. Please, we're in very extreme fire danger, which in this part of the country is bad news. A wildfire anywhere is bad news, but when you got 31,000 acres of forest around you — that means real trouble.

So please, please be careful with all fire. I saw a fellow throw out a litte cigarette the other day — I couldn't believe, he did that, especially since he is a Ruidoso resident. (He had a sign naming a local business on the side of his car.)

I hollered something obscene at him, to which he merely replied with half a peace symbol.

(Hitchhikers do the same thing. Have you ever noticed how their thumbs change to different fingers when you drive past without even slowing down?)

But please, please, please, with the conditions the way they are, we sure don't need a fire. If you're camping, be careful; if you're smoking, be careful. Let's keep them tall pine trees.

Nuff soapbox.
Fitness phreaks
I've been using the fitness trail lately. The fitness trail, you may recall, is a grueling ordeal dreamed up by the United States Forest Service and is located just off the road to Cedar Creek Picnic Area, which is on Highway 37, near Smokey Bear Ranger Station.

I don't know if you saw Charlotte Fellers' excellent article on the trail, but it's open all the time to anyone. It's a quarter mile loop, with various contraptions of lumber placed at intervals around it.

Here's how it works: you run a warmup lap around the quarter mile, and then on the second lap, you do the first seven exercises (there's 14 in all). These include pullups, running hurdles, set-ups, pushups, etc. Then you run a cooling off lap, and then you do the other seven exercises, like leg baskets, vaulting and leg raises. Then they have a distance trail you can run for a good ol' cardiovascular workout.

It's a pretty good workout, believe me. For those who — God forbid — prefer to do their exercising indoors, go talk to Pat Loomis at Diet Counsellors — Health Fitness Center, located up near the Post Office.

They have a full array of physical fitness equipment for men and women, including weight-training gear, a stationary bike and boxing equipment.

They also have a hot tub to ease those aching muscles, tanning salons, diet programs and 10-speed bikes for rent.

Pretty impressive array as far as...

concerned. Go check it out, and tell 'em you read it here.

Incredible but true department
I saw an article the other day which claimed Super Glue (or Krazy Glue or Eastman 910 or a bunch of other names) is "the most useful thing you can carry in your fishing tackle box."

Those glues, all of which are referred to by their brand names, are actually a type of adhesive called "cyanoacrylate." (Honest, I'm not making this up.)

If you've ever worked with this stuff, you know it will bond almost anything to anything, including skin to anything, and you have to be careful you don't get stuck up.

But anyway, a group of intrepid fishermen are now using it to glue live bait to hooks. That's right — just stick your minnow on the hook with a drop of Krazy Glue. (Or a worm, or whatever.)

Fly fishermen find it particularly helpful, the article said, because a fly fisherman can glue a grasshopper, say on the end of his leader, cast him where he wants it, and bingo — a moving, kicking dry fly.

Instead of knots, you glue your line to hooks — and it takes about 2,000 pounds of pressure to break the seal.

It's waterproof, so you can fix lures with it, and fix boat cushions — the list goes on and on.

This glue is such wonderful stuff, surgeons are now using it in some operations in place of stitches. Just lay a bead along the cut, press together and pfft! No more cut.

In silent flight the owl moves in for the kill.

It's dark, but never, it seems too dark for the night hunter. With extremely sensitive eyes, a head that can rotate 180 degrees, and an acute sense of hearing, he is well equipped to hunt at night.

With eyes picking up even the slightest amount of light, the ears tuning themselves to the softest sound and being able to pinpoint the whereabouts of the sound, the owl zeroes in on its prey.

Even the wings have been adapted to aid in the hunting process by having soft, fluffy borders on the primary wing feathers that muffle and dampen the sound of beating wings.

Adaptations like these are the trademarks of predators, trademarks of animals that kill for a living. As unsympathetic as that sounds, it is an essential and integral part of nature.

The predator, who in most of our minds is the mountain lion, the coyote or the eagle, also encompasses such unlikely animals as the robin, certain fish and many insects, among a host of others.

There are many methods predators use in order to capture their prey: speed, concealment, poisons, special weapons and senses, group hunting and others. Of course, many animals combine these methods in order to survive. Survival is not easy and is not always pretty, but it is necessary.

Predators are hated and loved. We alternately honor them as national symbols and despise them as a symbol of the devil. No matter who you talk to the prey is the underdog and we are a country that inherently roots for the underdog. There is no sympathy for the predator, only scorn.

Much of this attitude is founded on our lack of knowledge concerning these animals. We neither knew nor understood the intricacy of the specializations with which these animals had been endowed, specializations which basically fell into two categories, sensory and specific weaponry.

The sensory enabled them to find and identify prey while the weaponry enabled them to capture, kill, and consume prey.

As it turns out, the only predator that has superseded those natural limitations is man. But with advancement has come the knowledge and ability to manage, protect and conserve the wildlife that is so much a part of his heritage.

This past legislative session the bobcat, a predator, was placed under management authority of the New Mexico Department of Game and Fish. This bill was enacted because of the economic importance of the bobcat, but there is another issue to look at, that being the management, under one department, of all wildlife species in the state.

The department realizes no wildlife species exists in a vacuum. All are interrelated and intertwined. The predator is as much dependent upon the prey as the prey is dependent upon the predator. Anything and everything man does, either as predator or manager, produces ripples whose effect can be wide ranging in the ecosystem in which we live.

Management plans are developed and based upon two priorities. The primary responsibility is to the wildlife of the state (all wildlife) while the second responsibility is to the people of the state. In some cases compromises must be made and accommodated for in management schemes, but we will continue to work toward this end, the development and management of all wildlife so as to be held in trust for all citizens.

The public's education concerning the needs and demands of these animals will continue to be passed on so each of us may have that special part in the survival of our heritage.

Griego faces burglary rap

Anthony Griego, 35, Ruidoso, was arrested shortly before 1 p.m., Thursday at his home and charged with residential burglary.

The charges were made in connection with an incident earlier that day, at a residence in the Brady Canyon area. A radio was reportedly taken from the home.

Griego appeared Friday morning before magistrate Jim Wheeler, and posted a property bond of $10,000. A preliminary hearing in the case has not yet been set.

TIP FROM READER — It's surprising how many gun owners have accumulated several hundreds or thousands of dollars worth of firearms but have failed to record the serial number of even one. A record of the serial number is invaluable, even necessary, when trying to recover a stolen firearm. Record the serial number, with a description of each firearm you own, and store it in a safe deposit box or other safe place.

Along with this precaution, perhaps you should consider talking with your insurance agent about their insurance for your collection. The rates are usually very reasonable. Considering that guns nearly always appreciate in value, which makes them prime target for thieves, you may decide you can't afford to be without insurance.

Your collection will also be a little safer if you avoid storing it within plain view of windows and exercise good judgment in who you show it to or tell about it. Most gun thefts in the home were pulled off by people who knew where they were kept beforehand. Alvin C., Mississippi

TRAVEL TIPS

FROM PARSONS TRAVEL

Travelers' Rights

When you've been careful with your trip planning but something goes wrong, know your rights. Get the whole story from the airline, then act.

If you are "bumped" due to airline overbooking, the airline OWES you "denied boarding compensation." This is usually a free flight to your destination and/or a monetary settlement. Every ticket counter has a copy of compensation procedures; ask to see it.

If a flight delays or cancels for mechanical, schedule or labor reasons, the carrier is OBLIGATED to get you to your destination. Airline personnel will make every effort to reschedule you. When delayed over 4 hours, most airlines will provide meal vouchers, and in some cases, a hotel.

Weather problems are the most frustrating. Nothing can be done when nature has closed airports and grounded planes. The airlines will make you comfortable and arrange an alternate schedule. It has no other liability.

Even carefully marked luggage is sometimes mis-routed. Report a missing bag immediately. Most airlines issue money to cover your out-of-pocket expenses until the bag is returned.

Always be polite with airline personnel, these situations are not of their making, but they will do their best to help. Be polite, be patient, but be firm. You have rights.

Mockingbirds
Announce Visit
By Kia Folks

Now I know why the mockingbird came up from Texas on the traditional Memorial Day, June 30, and why another of these Texas troubadours moved in just the last few days. These beloved singers have been sending forth their songs all day and late into the evening, blending their notes with the humming of the warm west wind.

I knew that the mockingbirds were messengers of the warm weather (it is ninety-four in the shade here at the house, even with a cool breeze blowing; and yet I have had a feeling they have been trying to tell me something else.

Today is June the fifth, and last night I received a phone call from my great nephew, Andy Burnett, saying that he and his brother, Grady, were starting up this way for a visit.

These boys are the grandsons of our brother, Lynn, and his wife, Maxine, and the sons of my niece, Mrs. Carl Burnett, of Georgetown, Texas. She is named Lynette after Lynn, and is affectionately known as "Netale".

Grady graduated from Georgetown High school on June thirty; and Andy is in his first year at Rice Institute at Houston, Texas.

The last time I saw Grady and Andy, it must have been ten or twelve years ago, was when Netale and Carl came out and we had a grand visit with the family including the two girls, Lisa and Molly. It seems only yesterday that they were out here. Grady and Andy were little fellows, about six and ten years old. Now they are handsome young men, both over six feet tall.

While the mocking birds are singing through this warm western wind, I am looking forward with great happiness to the arrival of my great nephews, Grady and Andy Burnett, and I thank the mockingbirds for making the trip up from Texas to sing us their wonderful songs, and also for bringing me the message of the visit of my beloved kin folks of whom I am greatly proud.

The Weather Signs
Are Very Unusual

As I think I said before, this is the longest spell of west wind that I have ever seen in the month of June in my more than fifty years — off and on — here in the vale. It is mid-afternoon on June five, and the thermometer reads ninety-six in the shade. The wind is blowing a gale straight off the few patches of snow — rapidly melting in the shady reaches of the White Mountain. Still there is a bank of clouds lingering over the hill to the south, which from time to time reaches across the windy valley and partially hides the sun.

Then, no match for the western gale, it retreats back over the mountain, waiting its chance, surely.

June is supposed to be the dry month, and yet the biggest flood was in June, 1965.

The mockingbirds are the heralds of warm weather, and their message has certainly been true. Still I hear the doves who are sometimes messengers of rain — and the robins, traditional rain singers.

The constant blowing of the west wind very seldom fails to bring moisture from the east, after it blows itself out.

In spite of the dry wind, the oak brush remains wonderfully fresh and green on the mountain side. So we know that Mother Earth is in grand condition, well able to last through the dry month of June.

But will it be dry? There are several signs of rain in the air. So let us be ready for any kind of weather.

A Time
To Be Careful

We are almost into "The Good Old Summer time", with spring ending on the twenty-first of this month.

It is a joyful time of year, but we need to be very careful — especially of fire in this dry, windy weather. Be extremely careful in swimming; and with small children wading. During the summer the streams can rise rapidly after a sudden rain in the mountains.

When on a lake or river in a boat, always have a life preserver on everyone in the boat. Do not dive in strange water. And do not go swimming alone.

The water can be a great source of pleasure. But there are a thousand and one ways in which you must be careful around the water. Ever since boyhood, the first place I headed when the hot weather struck, was the swimming pool or creek, river or lake. Through the providence of the Good Lord and the guardian angel He has assigned me, I have escaped drowning two or three times.

So remember: be careful in all things during the summer and help others to be likewise. Remember, we are truly "Our Brother's Keeper".

Inside The Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE — Whoever the disgruntled ex-employee of Senator Jack Schmitt is who put out that recent newsletter, he or she is pretty bitter.

The publication, called "Splashdown Review" is being widely circulated in New Mexico—and it doesn't make our junior Senator look too swift.

Emphasis is on the fact that there are now, with Jack less than four years into his first term, at least 43 ex-employees from his various offices, enough to form a considerable alumni association. Implication in every line of the five-page publication is that their former boss is an almost impossible person to work for. (For instance, one of the "Horrorscopes" in the paper advises present Schmitt staffers to "get out. Should you stay, always look over your shoulder and under your desk, and tell her"—evidently the Senator's administrative aide—"she looks fantastic. Good luck.")

That's about the way the rest of it goes. Examples: "Like the main character"—i.e., the Senator—"this issue will be short and confusing."

Or (advice to those who have been disemployed): "Think of it this way: never again, no matter what happens, will you have to listen to 'what it was really like on the moon.'"

Or (under "Miscellaneous"): "Rumor has it that an Albuquerque radio station offered $1 million to the first person who could name a successful venture executed by the Junior Senator. Numerous stations throught the State were reportedly furious that they hadn't thought of the joke first."

Get the idea? Bitter, bitter humor, welling up from a disgruntled heart.

But underneath the sarcasm there may be a genuine problem: Senators, like most other men and women who reach a certain level of competence, are expected to be at the very least passable managers. The Schmitt record would suggest that he is not that. His ability to handle people has not made itself evident, if indeed he has any.

That makes you wonder just a little bit about his ability to do the job we chose him for.

It's nice to be remembered, and Congress was doing its duty when it voted to name the main postoffice in Santa Fe after the late Senator Joseph M. Montoya.

The choice of buildings to be given this honor, however, might have been a little more tactfully made. It was a revelation about the Senator's long-time lease with the Post Office Department for a building of his in Santa Fe which made a signal contribution to his defeat at the polls.

Gary Blakeley, ex-Public Service Commissioner, stole a good state employee when he was back recently from Washington.

Blakeley, now federal co-chairman of the Four Corners Regional Commission, lured Rick Johnson, PSC economist, into moving to the nation's capital as his executive assistant. "He's a good man," Gary says, "and I figured he'd still be working for New Mexico in the new job."

Two things Blakeley says he finds most satisfying: The close working relationship between Senator Domenici and Governor King, and the unity among the whole New Mexico Congressional delegation.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

PEDESTRIAN KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE IN DOWNTOWN RUIDOSO!

This would make quite a headline but totally unnecessary if looked at in retrospect. The Retail Merchants Association initiated the idea of pedestrian crosswalk in downtown Ruidoso sometime ago. A meeting of the RMA was called and attended by a small group of the local merchants who set in motion plans to install the cross walks.

At several subsequent Village Trustee meetings the cross walk idea was discussed and matters such as: proposed locations, type of paint, state and village participation were considered. The initial work on the painting of the walks, installation of sign posts, and marking off of the no parking areas was completed. The use of the Pedestrian Crossings commenced and since then the state or the village has painted the street markers more than once.

There are, however, several major flaws in the Ped-X-ing program which makes the crossings very dangerous.

On June 3, about 10 a.m., I was driving west on Sudderth. I stopped at a Ped X-ing near the Wild Snail to allow a pedestrian to walk in front of my car from right to left. About that time a car (New Mexico plate), driving very fast, almost ran down the pedestrian and sped off after making no effort to slow down or stop. There were no police in sight. As I continued west I saw a Budweiser beer truck - some 40 feet long - parked completely across the Ped X-ing in front of the Wild Snail. I returned about 15 minutes later and the truck was still as before. Where were the police? - or worse, is it legal to park across a Ped X-ing?

Let's look at some facts - and here are the flaws in the Ped X-ing program.

(1) Ped X-ings deserve the respect of the pedestrian, the motorist, and the merchant. In other states to drive through an occupied Ped X-ing means sure arrest. Why not here? Merchants having Ped X-ings in their block should use the crossings as anyone else and not jay walk. Perhaps they jaywalk as there is no ordinance against jaywalking. This also includes anyone walking in the downtown area where crossings are available.

(2) Ped X-ings give the pedestrian a false feeling of security since many of those from other cities enter the crosswalk with a feeling that they have the "right of way". In Ruidoso this is not true and you enter a crosswalk at your own peril.

(3) There is no traffic control covering our crosswalks. During the heavy traffic months a patrolman should be hired to patrol the Ped X-ings. The input from traffic fines would pay his salary several times over and more important it would save lives along with building respect for the crosswalks.

(4) The painted striping is difficult to see and is short lived and since the motorist's attention is concentrated on the traffic in front of him he does not see the signs on either side of the street - so - he casually drives through the Ped X-ing in many cases not realizing that he has done so. This can be improved by the installation of metal buttons across each Ped X-ing. These brightly colored buttons are approximately six inches in diameter and are used in many states. These are bolted into the pavement and last indefinitely. The buttons are easily seen and eliminate the use of the painted stripes. They also have the effect of bumping when the motorist crossed in a vehicle and it doesn't take long for the motorist to recognize the Ped X-ings.

The idea of Ped X-ings is sound and will work if the job is completely done and controlled. To simply paint lines and put up signs is not enough and only invites disaster.

There is another alternative - if the job cannot be done completely with the cooperation of all concerned and with police in control - then - the crosswalks should be abandoned immediately before we experience a fatality which is bound to occur.

Accolades are due members of the Ruidoso-Ruidoso Downs Joint Use Board and to Quinton Daniel, Daniel Engineering, Alamogordo, for the perseverance enabling the Regional Wastewater System (RWS) to become a reality.

The board, and Daniel, successfully studied alternatives to the original project bids on RWS, determined which portions in the plans could be eliminated in original construction, then made a presentation to state and federal officials resulting in approval of the project.

Village of Ruidoso officials also worked diligently on this project, with these efforts culminating in the approval of an additional $900,000 in funding, the inflation factor, to insure the completion of RWS.

The Ruidoso Downs Trustees, working closely with Daniel, devised a means of providing sewer service to all but 30 residents included in the initial plan. Their's was yeoman effort, but the result, sewer service to most of the village; proves it was a worthy effort.

Within two years, the planned time frame for construction, both of these projects will be serving residents. And this does prove that adjustments can be made to attain services desired even in the face of funding problems.

We commend everyone concerned for a job well done.

Assurance of the completion of RWS and the Ruidoso Downs sewer system does, however, open up new challenges for both villages. The need for a continuing source of water, as apparent as it is now, will become increasingly important as the inevitable residential and commercial growth that will follow begins materializing.

Neither village has been dragging their heels in their quest for a stable water supply; but, with the incentive to be generated by future growth, both villages can now justify a concerted and sustained effort to secure adequate water reserves - a task we all need to wholeheartedly support. — CD

MORE NOSE COUNTING

Very interesting ... the census survey beginning here ... and in the county ... and state ... tomorrow ... 'cause the avowed purpose is to make certain that no one's nose is missing from the head count ... 'cause the Census Bureau doesn't want any no-count citizens wandering around ... doing their job ... collecting unemployment ... or fouling up the tallies ... that census workers toiled so diligently compiling.

So ... Grace Gordon ... she's the head counter of noses in these immediate parts ... figures her dedicated enumerators just might ... as they check homes for uncounted persons ... might knock on doors where the count has been done ... but she hopes that won't happen too often ... and that everyone concerned will cooperate ... to get the count counted.

The Las Cruces census office ... where the orders emanate from for this area ... issued some mighty confusing statistics in a news release concerning this checking the count. Those census workers in Las Cruces said that 129.2 percent of the census questionnaires have been collected in the southern part of the state ... and 147.4 percent here in Harmony Valley and adjacent locales. Now ... before you get to thinking this is maybe a mite difficult ... Grace explains those astonishing percentages of success in gathering forms, by saying that's the way the Las Cruces office is trying to say that the population is much higher here than they'd thought ... and they think it might even be higher than they thought after perusing those percentages ... so ... why didn't they say so ... and let it go at that?

The Las Cruces office also came a cropper of a statement, concerning the importance of an accurate census, that's probably truer than they'd care to admit. They talked of funding for crime prevention, programs for the elderly, health care, welfare, and other goodies ... with support payments contingent upon population. The not surprising statement was: With budget-cutting the order of the day, it's important to make sure this money is allotted equably ... Equably ... that's the word they used. Equably means ... roughly ... "little variation or change" ... and you can bet, so far as Lincoln County/Ruidoso is concerned ... future funds will continue to be dispensed equably.

GOVERNOR'S RACE ON

While Senator C. B. Trujillo ... from up Taos way ... tries to figure out why he got whipped ... by a county official ... for his senate seat ... and as he handles his duties as chairman of the Senate Finance Committee ... and other prestigious posts ... in the fashion generally accorded such grave responsibilities by a lame-ducker ... he might be counting his blessings ... 'cause he can't have any excuses ... now ... for not launching his full time campaign for governor ... in the 1982 election ... as he promised his constituents he'd do ... as he campaigned for reelection as senator.

'Cause you can understand C. B.'s consternation ... 'cause he didn't figure as how he could lose this primary ... just weren't no way ... 'cause he's been a good ol' boy and paid considerable never mind to his duties in the senate ... for years and years ... and, by Jinkies, he knew that the people of his district knew he was a good senator ... and ... by that token ... they shoulda knew he'd make an outstanding governor ... and all such assumptions.

Anyhow ... there's nothing to prevent him now ... politics wise ... from hitting the hustings ... campaigning on his record ... or on the record he'd intend to record ... and gird himself for battle ... 'cause there's a good chance he might be looking at doing battle with a winner ... Congressman Harold Runnels ... should good ol' boy Mud decide he wants to be governor ... an event that could just have C. B. taking a peek at the workings of the minds of those true leaders of the Democratic party in New Mexico ... those as makes the decisions as to who runs for which high office.

Yup ... that 1982 governor's campaign might be an attention grabber ... if'n C. B. decides he can whomp Mud ... who just might be a tougher fighter ... more astute campaigner ... and more popular figure that that guy what up and whomped C. B. ... in his home territory ... in Tuesday's primary just past.

Whatever C. B. decides ... on running for governor ... don't count him short ... 'cause he's too tall to be short ... with a thought being ... a knock-down campaign between Democrats might get us a Republican governor ... no?

I-n-s-i-d-e the Outdoors

by Gary Dollahon

"Ugh, I've got it, that dreaded disease. I try to work, but my mind is at ease."

Yep, it's that time of year again — spring. As always, along with spring come strong winds, greening vegetation, bugs and spring fever. The latter is a highly contagious disease which spreads like wildfire among the lovers of the great outdoors.

It doesn't matter if you are a fisherman, a hiker, a photographer, or a whatever, the warming weather has a tendency to lull you away from your major responsibilities by tempting you with pleasant outdoor memories of springs past.

Spring is not only an excellent time of year to get rid of your winter blues, but also an excellent time to beat summer vacationers to your favorite outdoor places. It's a whole different world out there in the great outdoors when you are but one of a few in a beautiful camping spot.

Now, since gasoline prices will be limiting your traveling whims and fantasies somewhat, you will probably be utilizing the diversity that occurs in southern New Mexico alone.

If spring fishing is your bag, consider Bonito, Quemado and Snow lakes as the ones to try for trout. All three are scenically located and noted for producing fine catches of trout. Bonito lake opened April 1, but Quemado and Snow lakes are open year round.

Stream fishermen should consider our own Ruidoso River and the Penasco River for trout. These waters can let an angler take advantage of the new bonus bag limit for orange-spotted trout (browns and brookies). Remember though, only eight trout of the new 16 trout bag limit can be rainbows.

For a real stream fishing trip take the time to travel to the Gila Wilderness in southwestern New Mexico. This stream-laden country offers a variety of trout fishing in a variety of waters.

The lower portions of the Gila River offer excellent fishing opportunities for both bass and catfish. In fact, three of the state's record smallmouth bass have come from this stretch of river. An early or late spring float trip, avoiding the high run-off periods, can be a memorable and productive fishing trip.

Horsebackers, backpackers and photographers will love the Gila's beauty.

Closer to home, the Sierra Blanca area, also known as the White Mountain Wilderness, is an excellent area to "pack" into. Photographers can find endless scenic and wildlife attractions to capture on film including deer, bear and elk.

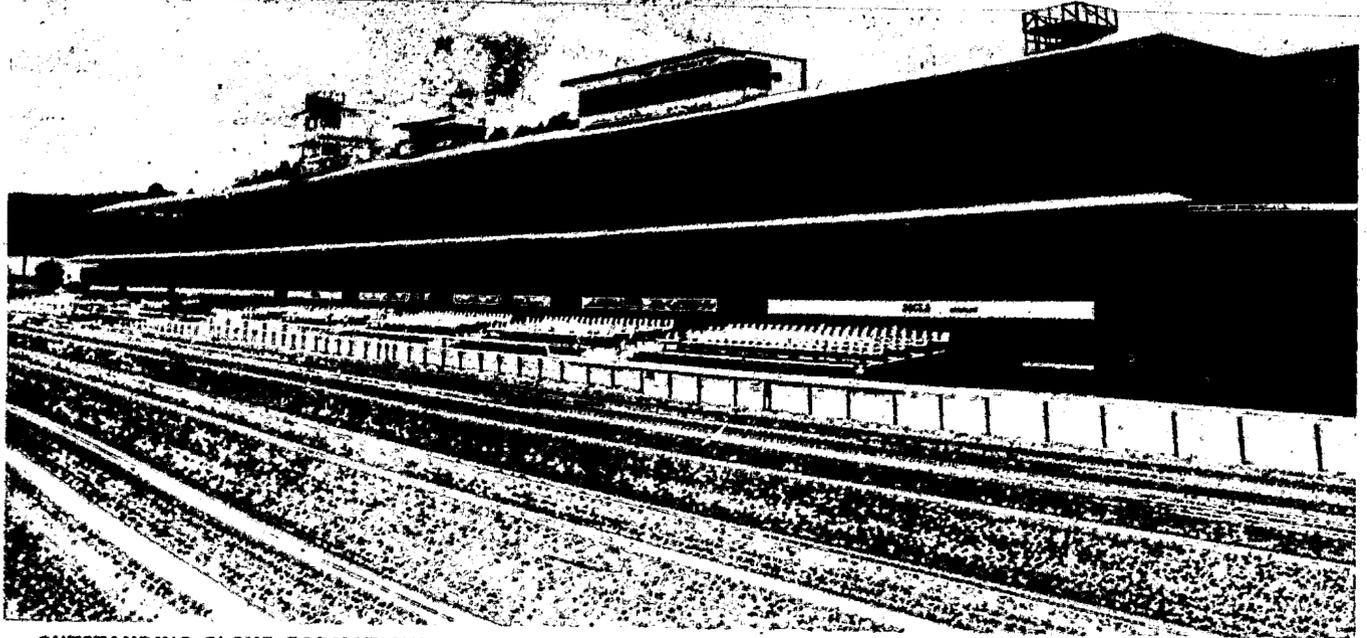

If you are one who prefers open country, large bodies of water (and big fish) Ute, Conchas or Sumner Lakes should be your target. All three can offer mixed stringers of catfish, walleye, bass and crappie. Be prepared for wind and take lots of suntan lotion to these lakes.

Bitter Lake National Wildlife Refuge also appeals to the out-of-doors people. Its lakes opened to fishing April 1 and should be good for catfish. Shutterbugs wanting good shore bird and spring song bird shots should take advantage of these spring and summer "residents" at the refuge.

Camera crews wanting a good variety of wildlife photos should concentrate their efforts in the Sacramento Mountains near Cloudcroft. Deer, elk and turkey can often be seen along the forest roads in the mornings and evenings.

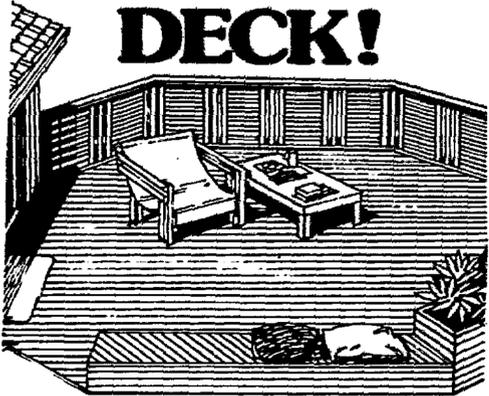

Needless to say, these ideas and suggestions are just a few as New Mexico has more than 32 million acres of public lands. Two-thirds of the state is dominated by mountains that range up to 13,000 feet. The other third of the state is of a high plain nature more than 3,000 feet in elevation. So, pick what you want and get after it.

Regardless of what activity you do choose to enjoy in the outdoors, be conscious of your impact on the surroundings you are in. Try to disturb it as little as possible. Be particularly sure not to litter. Let's keep our state clean so we can continue to enjoy "The Land of Enchantment."

Dr. Susan Wilkerson has joined the scientific staff of Sacramento Peak Observatory, which is sponsored by the National Science Foundation and is operated by the Association of Universities for Research in Astronomy (AURA), Inc. Dr. Wilkerson is on active duty as a second lieutenant in the United States Air Force, and is assigned to the solar physics division of the Air Force Geophysics Laboratory (AFGL-PHS). This division is located at Sac Peak Observatory.

doctor's thesis was based on a study of the structure of spiral galaxies. While at Sac Peak she plans to work on problems related to the variability of the sun and

UNM seeking bomb makers

A quick check of the University of New Mexico's (UNM) curriculum indicates it does not offer a class in the manufacture of explosives.

Apparently some people at UNM have been doing some private research.

On March 4, 1980, a bomb of undetermined origin exploded in Coronado Hall — a men's dormitory at UNM. Fortunately no one was injured in the blast, but it caused extensive property damage.

Then on May 17, a chemical bomb was exploded at Alvarado Hall. This time a janitor was injured when he moved the device, which apparently had been intended for a dormitory counselor.

This week the State Crime Stoppers Commission is offering a $1,000 reward for information leading to the solution of both bombings.

UNM police reports indicate the March 4 bomb ignited on the exterior door knob to a second floor room at Coronado Hall.

One investigator indicated the bomb "might have been a prank that backfired. One student at the dormitory told police that throughout the year residents at Coronado 'have been blowing off firecrackers'."

While the March 4 incident might have been an intended prank, the May 17 incident apparently was not.

A container of chemicals had been placed outside the room of a counselor at Alvarado Hall, apparently with the intent to do him bodily harm. Before the counselor had a chance to be injured, a janitor came across the device and was hurt while trying to move it.

Police say they have developed suspects in both bombing incidents. But more information is needed before arrests can be made.

Anyone having any information which could solve these cases is asked to call the State Crime Stoppers Commission at its toll-free number, 1-800-432-6333. Callers do not have to reveal their identities.

The State Crime Stoppers Commission and the 32 local Crime Stoppers programs also pay cash rewards for information leading to the solution of other major crimes committed in New Mexico.

Since Crime Stoppers was originated in Albuquerque in September, 1976, a total of 1,733 major felony crimes have been solved by the combined reward programs in New Mexico and $1.93 million in stolen property and narcotics has been recovered. Additionally, of 567 persons prosecuted on Crime Stoppers related cases, 566 of them have been convicted.

Astronomer conducting star mass study at Sunspot observatory

Dr. Anthony G. Hearn, professor at the Sterrewacht Sonnenborgh of the Astronomical Institute of Utrecht in the Netherlands, will be at Sacramento Peak Observatory through August 1980, studying star mass. Sac Peak Observatory is located at Sunspot, New Mexico, at an altitude of 9,200 feet in the Lincoln National Forest. It is sponsored by the National Science Foundation, and is operated by the Association of Universities for Research in Astronomy (AURA), Inc., to perform basic research on the sun. Sac Peak has some of the world's best solar telescopes, and attracts numerous visiting scientists from within the United States and from around the world.

accompanied by his family during his visit at Sac Peak.

DR. ANTHONY G. HEARN

Dr. Hearn is an authority on the problem of mass-loss from stars. Many, perhaps most, stars lose mass in the form of high velocity "stellar winds" that carry material away from the stellar surface back into interstellar space. In some stars this process proceeds so rapidly that it has a significant effect on the star's evolutionary history. The sun loses mass (at a very slow rate) in the solar wind, which starts in the sun's million degree corona, and flows into the interplanetary medium, bathing the earth in a high temperature, high speed plasma. Professor Hearn has developed a theory of stellar coronae and winds, and has advanced the idea that these structures are self adjusting in such a way as to minimize the energy flux that emerges from them. While he is at Sac Peak, Dr. Hearn will study just what produces mass loss from stars, and try to resolve some of the outstanding problems among various theoretical models.

Dr. Hearn received his degree at Cambridge University in England. He worked for nine years on problems of plasma fusion with the United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority. He has taught and done research at several universities in the United States, Australia, France, Germany and the Netherlands. He is

SALUTE TO CHAMBER MEMBERS

This is a regular feature in the Monday edition of this newspaper to introduce the members of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce

THE STEWART MOTEL, located at Park and Sudderth next to the Ben Franklin store, has been managed by Don and Jo Yates, pictured, for the past 18 months. The motel opened more than 20 years ago, and is a longtime member of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce. The motel offers kitchenette and regular rooms, all fully carpeted and equipped with tub/shower combinations and color television. In addition, the motel is "one of the cleanest in town," said the Yates. Facilities are open year round, and reservations may be made by calling 257-2504.

CRUCIS ART BRONZE AND THE FOUNDRY GIFT SHOP, located at 524 Sudderth Drive across from the village swimming pool, is owned by Walter and June Rawley and D. J. Scraggs, pictured. The bronze foundry, in which bronzes by Rawley and other artists are cast, opened four years ago. Some bronzes are offered for sale in the gallery, and Rawley also does woodcarvings on a commission basis. Demonstrations of bronze pourings are presented periodically by Rawley, who has held membership in the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce for about three years. The gift shop opened about one month ago, and features jewelry, antiques and local handcrafts. The gift shop and gallery will be open 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., daily for the summer.

'The Empire Strikes Back' with a crescendo

by J.T. Yurko

'The Empire Strikes Back' from 20th Century Fox. Executive producer George Lucas. Directed by Irvin Kershner. Starring Mark Hamill, Carrie Fisher and Harrison Ford. Rated PG.

Review

Rarely in the history of the cinema has a film been more eagerly awaited than the follow-up film to 'Star Wars'—entitled 'The Empire Strikes Back.' Unless you have been living in Siberia for the past three years, you know that 'Star Wars' is the top money-making film of all time, and in Hollywood one of the chief laws of filmmaking is that success must beget sequel.

It is also an unwritten law in Hollywood that the sequel does not always beget success, and the reasons for this are varied and often unclear to the filmmakers themselves. Whether it's a change in personnel, less financing, a different director, an inadequate script, or any number of other factors in this most complex of arts, the sequel rarely makes it critically or financially.

There are exceptions of course, and when they occur it is usually because the film had the same chief guiding hand as did its predecessor. An example would be 'Godfather, Part 2,' made under the guiding hand of Francis Ford Coppola.

In the case of 'The Empire Strikes Back,' one might say that this film as well as 'Star Wars' had as its Godfather—George Lucas. Although he wrote as well as directed the original film, he produced this sequel, and thus insured that even if he didn't do everything himself, it was done according to his master plan.

'The Empire Strikes Back' is a success on every level, a roaring, soaring, laser-firing, wonder-inspiring film. Once again this is a story set for kids from age 3 to 103, with enough action to please the most demanding action-film buffs, and a story to satisfy the critical appetites of sci-fi purists.

Comparisons to the original are unfair; one would not say that this is 'better' than 'Star Wars' or it is simply a solid continuation of what happened in the previous story. Luke Skywalker advances in his 'force' training with his instructor 'Yoda,' a little green gnome who also trained Obi-Wan Kenobi. Han Solo still wants to be out on his own, but something always pulls him back to the fight. And perhaps the most important reason he comes back is the stern but definitely appealing Princess Leia.

As the legend of 'Star Wars' grows more complex, the story ranges over more characters, but also goes into greater depth on each of their respective backgrounds. The screenplay by Leigh Brackett and Lawrence Kasdan provides rich material not only for action and conflict, but contains soap opera elements with dramatic twists and personal revelations. But if any of it ever becomes melodramatic or heavy-handed, the perfectly timed humor comes in to remind us that this is fantasy at its best.

One of the most remarkable things about 'Star Wars' is the repeat business it did at the box office, that is, people who came back three, four, or even fourteen times to see the rebel forces destroy the Death Star. The same should happen to 'The Empire Strikes Back' with Darth Vader's return.

Jack Nicklaus and Hale Irwin, two of the greatest names in golf, are among the top contenders in the U.S. OPEN, one of the most prestigious competitions in sports. Periscope-packing spectators (left) won't have as good a view as those who watch the U.S. Open on ABC Sports, June 12, 13, 14 and 15.

Television Schedule for the Week of June 9 through June 15

by Joey Sasso

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT: Is TV's favorite bad guy, namely J.R. Ewing of 'Dallas,' planning on pulling a disappearing act come September? That's the rumor making the rounds in Glitter Gulch. As regular viewers of 'Dallas' know, in this season's final episode, J.R. was shot, perhaps fatally, which led to all the whispers in Hollywood that Larry Hagman's future with 'Dallas' might be equally perilous, if he or his agent turns 'difficult' at contract time — which, it just so happens, is now. But Hagman, with whom I spoke briefly, very politely and firmly refuted the reports that he or his character is destined to soon quit 'Dallas.' "That would be like killing the golden goose," said Hagman, laughing. "The series has been wonderful for me. I also happen to have a contract with Lorimar (the show's producers) that I'm happy with now. I think this whole thing got started in the tabloids. Perhaps what helped start the rumors in the first place was the recent news that Hagman had signed an agreement with NBC, reportedly at network chief Fred Silverman's personal request, that once Larry is no longer a part of 'Dallas' on CBS he can write his own ticket at NBC as far as TV movies and even a new series are concerned. But with the sky high ratings still gushing in for 'Dallas' that might not come to pass for years.

TV TICKER: Mary Richards used to Mr. Grant. Mr. Grant to death on the old Mary Tyler Moore Show. But in real life Edward Asner was right after all. The epitome of easygoingness on that show. Asner recently told Dick Cavett he won't tolerate being called Eddie by strangers. Unless you're an old friend or relative, it presumes familiarity and a casual acquaintance dare not do that. Linda Lavin, who plays the waitress title character in TV's Alice, is a strong believer in the rights of the working woman. And she believes in strengthening those rights through her TV characterizations. Lavin told me, "It behooves us in television to reach out to educate people and to reflect life accurately. And I can disseminate information through my work about this terribly underrepresented group of people (working women) with whom I identify. Last year she won 80 Per Cent Award of the National Commission of Working Women for the most realistic depiction of a working woman on television."

TV CLOSEUP: Good news for Baretta fans. Robert Blake is returning to TV in another police series. This time he says he'll play a cop even tougher than Baretta. Howard Hesseman of WKRP in Cincinnati smokes two packs of cigarettes a day but says he counteracts their effect by swimming a mile each day. Jose Ferrer is set to co-star with Vince Edwards in NBC's new version of Vince's vintage Ben Casey series. Europe's most popular premium beer, Kronenbourg, celebrates its 316th birthday on June 9th on the heels of a $2 million ad campaign designed to crack the U.S. market and topple other imports from the front ranks, with the more than $200 million a year imported beer market at stake. Actor Mircha Carven, son of late screen idol Clark Gable, will act as spokesman for Kronenbourg in TV commercials for the beer, perhaps the most tasty import to date if I can be a judge of character. If your favorite bar, deli or supermarket doesn't have it yet, put them in touch with Kronenbourg in Greenwich, Connecticut.
