Sunday's Night wins Norgor

Sunday's Night reaffirmed her position as a fast gun among two-year-old thoroughbreds at Ruidoso Downs with a stirring win in Sunday's second running of the Norgor Futurity.

The gray filly, owned by Sam Henderson of Odessa, Texas, ended the four furlong sprint with a 3/4 length lead and pocketed $32,381 out of the gross purse of $65,416.

Richard Bickel was in the driver's seat. Sunday's Night, who now holds a career record of four wins from five starts, covered the Norgor distance in 47 seconds flat. The clocking was only four-fifths short of the seasonal record.

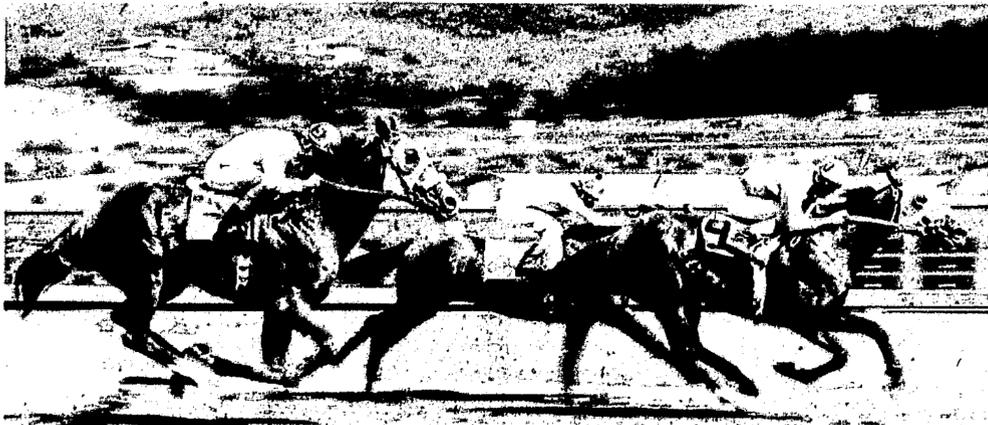

Dynamic Sesenta, a 26-1 longshot handled by Joe Martinez, finished second after fighting the winner most of the way. The gelded son of Master Sails earned $14,247 in a courageous try.

Third place money of $7,771 went to the 6-5 favorite, Dutch Luck, who got out of the gate sluggishly but turned in a high flying run down the backstretch. The chestnut colt must have made up at least a half dozen lengths after the final bend, and apparently would have nabbed the winner had he not run out of real estate.

Fans who backed Sunday's Night in the wagering took home returns of $10.40, $5 and $3. Dynamic Sesenta, carrying the colors of Melvin G. Riggs of Ft. Stockton, Texas, refunded $15 and $6.20.

Dutch Luck handed his backers a show price of $2.80.

Until Dutch Luck turned on that powerblast in the stretch, the Norgor was pretty much a two horse race. Dynamic Sesenta hustled into an early lead and was about a neck in front of Sunday's Night during the backstretch run.

Sunday's Night inched up steadily to reach a dead even position with Dynamic Sesenta at the turn for home. Some ominous moves were also turned in by Real Feather Bed, who settled on the rail, not far off the two pacemakers.

As the field swung into the stretch, Real Feather Bed made a few more brisk moves, then suddenly seem to lose interest in the affair. His stride went soft, and from then on he was out of contention.

At this point, Sunday's Night was

Smith draws one year in Ramirez death

In district court in Carrizozo Wednesday, Jerry Richard Smith, 22, was found guilty of aggravated battery and involuntary manslaughter, both designated "with firearm enhancement."

He had been charged in connection with the shooting death of Luis Ramirez and the wounding of his brother, Antonio, in an incident at Schoolhouse Park in Ruidoso, August 30, 1979.

Smith was sentenced to 18 months, suspended, on the aggravated battery charge and 36 months, suspended, on the involuntary manslaughter charge. The firearm enhancement charges carry a sentence of one year each, which are to be served concurrently in the State Penitentiary at Santa Fe.

A total of 64 days will be reduced from the year to be served, to allow for time already spent in county jail, according to a spokesman for Gordon Schnauffer, Smith's attorney.

Also charged in the incident was David Lee Adams, 21, who was acquitted on all counts. He was represented by Mel O'Reilly. Judge George Zimmerman presided in the case.

Jaycees' carnival July 3-6

The Jaycees of Ruidoso are sponsoring a carnival July 3-6 at the Ruidoso High School parking lot. It will feature 14 rides, and booths will be sponsored by local service clubs.

The Jayceettes will operate a concession booth, featuring cokes, popcorn and candied apples. The Ruidoso Jaycees and Elks will man entertainment booths.

"One night, all the proceeds from one of our booths will be given to the Muscular Dystrophy Association," Jaycee president Gary James said.

The carnival will be open from noon to midnight all four days and James said booths are still available to service clubs and arrangements can be made by calling James at 257-2133 after 5 p.m.

James said the national project for the Jaycees is to support the MDA through donations and promotions. Co-chairman for the local MDA-Jaycees drive, Ross Schwarz, said several other fund raisers including the carnival booth are being planned by the chapter to raise at least $5,000 to give to MDA. "Our goal is to send people to Las Vegas, Nevada, to present our donation to Jerry Lewis during his Labor Day Telethon," Schwarz said.

Schwarz said a dance is planned for late July or early August and several sporting events will be held throughout the next two months. Coin collectors have also been placed all over the area by Jaycees.

Muscular dystrophy is not one specific disease, according to brochures distributed by the association. The term designates a group of muscle-destroying disorders which vary in hereditary pattern, age of onset, initial muscles attacked and rate of progression.

Of every dollar given to the MDA, 83 cents is used to provide program services, including research, medical services, professional education and training and public health education.

The remaining 17 cents is used for fund raising and management. Schwarz said that more than $48 million was raised nationwide for the MDA cause in 1979 and expects that figure to be higher this year. He said more details of other MDA fund raisers will be announced.

Grants, loans to solve Downs' water problems

The village of Ruidoso Downs has received an $18,000 grant and an $18,000 interest free loan from the state Board of Finance for emergency water improvements, trustee Bob Power said Friday.

Power was in Santa Fe last week to meet with the board, Environmental Improvement Division personnel and the local government director of the Department of Finance and Administration.

The grant and loan will provide for construction of loop pipeline system in the Las Lomas subdivision, where "dead end" pipes now exist, and the purchase of other equipment.

Although the village had asked for a greater total amount to provide for the improvements, Power said, "I'm sure we can solve our water problems with the $36,000. This should give them (Las Lomas residents) water all the time."

Power said the village also received funds for their water system, on a grant and loan combination, totaling $106,000.

The trustee said he will propose a nominal increase in water charges per meter to be used for the sole purpose of repaying the loan.

Bounce, was tripped up. Herrera was unhurt but Alex Baldillez Jr., rider of Fast Bounce, suffered a broken collarbone. The spill occurred in the 16th race of the Rainbow Futurity elimination trials Friday.

WSMR Hall of Fame ceremonies set July 4

Six former range employees have been selected as the first inductees into the White Sands Missile Range (WSMR) Hall of Fame, in ceremonies beginning at 5 p.m., July 4 at the headquarters building.

To be inducted, for outstanding contributions to the range mission, are: Dr. Werner von Braun, Benjamin E. Billups, Frank S. Hemingway, Dr. Clyde W. Tombaugh, Colonel Harold R. Turner and Gabriel J. Brillante, formerly of Ruidoso.

The White Sands Missile Range released the following information upon which the late Mr. Brillante's induction into the Hall of Fame was based:

"Gabriel J. Brillante worked at White Sands Missile Range from 1953 through 1974, when he retired as Public Affairs Officer.

"He was the founder, and later curator, of Missile Park. He was instrumental in implementing much of the range's off-range public relations program, as well as improving it and developing it into what is considered one of the Army's best long range public relations endeavors.

"The off-range program, called 'Project Understanding,' was considered so outstanding that in 1968 WSMR was selected as one of the Department of the Army entries in the Silver Anvil competition.

"This competition, sponsored by the Public Relations Society of America, is regarded as the most prestigious recognition of public service and public affairs efforts in the United States.

"His widow, Francine, lives in Ruidoso."

The induction speaker will be United States Senator Harrison Schmitt, with the ceremony including a 60 gun salute honoring the nation, and retreat ceremonies.

The Hall of Fame, located in Building 122 on the range, will be open for inspection throughout the day. Photographs of the inductees, their commemorative medallions and certificates of induction will be on display in the hall.

July 4 is also open house day at WSMR, to be highlighted by tennis, golf, women and men's softball and bowling tournaments, in addition to a 10,000 meter run.

Three post swimming pools will be open to visitors all day and there will be food and beverage outlets, the crafts center will be open and there will be informational booths and live music in the midway area.

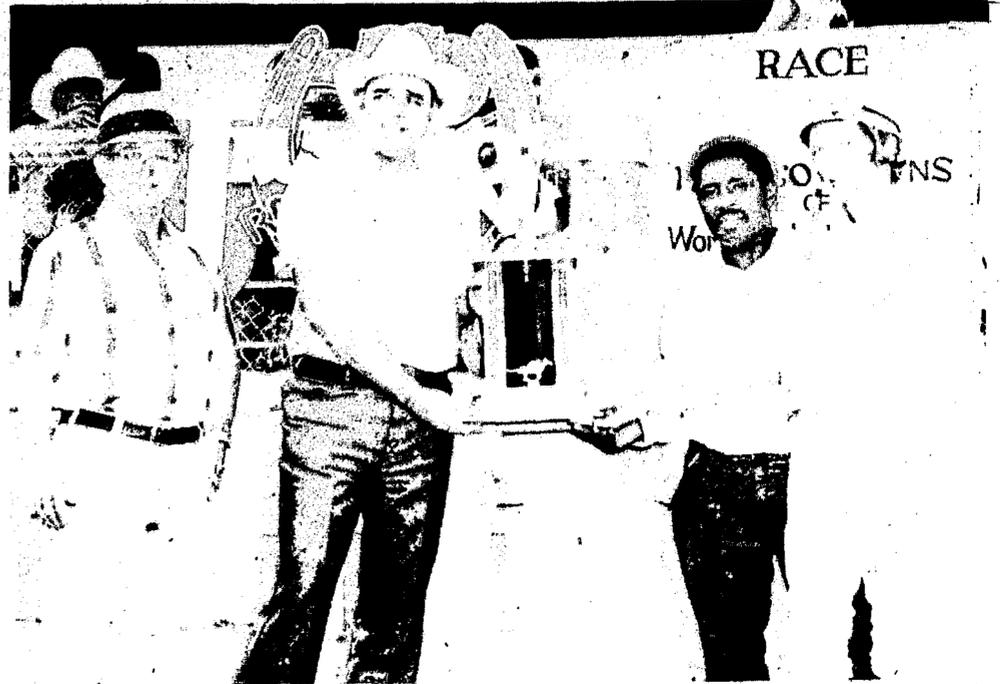

Other open house activities include: bus tours from noon to 2 p.m., and 6 to 8 p.m.;

GABRIEL J. BRILLANTE

Lance missile launch at 3 p.m.; Confederate Air Force aircraft display from noon to 6 p.m., with a flying demonstration at 7; sky diving exhibitions at 1, 4 and 8:15 p.m., a concert by the New Mexico Army National Guard Band at 8 p.m., and an aerial fireworks display of over 200 rounds at 9.

White Sands Missile Range is 40 miles west of Alamogordo and 30 miles east of Las Cruces on Highway 70, with the site four miles south of the highway.

moving in high gear. The filly collared Dynamic Sesenta and stepped into the clear. Dynamic Sesenta held on gamely, but it was clear she wouldn't be able to hold back the winner.

Dutch Luck was in sixth place during most of the early fighting. When the colt settled down to serious running, Sunday's Night had already thrown a hammerlock on the field.

The also rans checked in this way: 4th—Real Feather Bed, 5th—Aminun, 6th—Impressive Winner, 7th—Leekell, 8th—Mr. Sham, 9th—Texas Troubadour, 10th—Bold Drill.

FASTIDIOUS FILLY, a 14-1 longshot, delivered a big closing attack on the far outside and pulled out a tingling nose victory in Saturday's renewal of the Jet Deck Stakes at Ruidoso Downs.

The 440 yard race put 10 quarter horses from the three-year-old and up category in a struggle over a gross purse of $7,395.

Fastidious Filly, ridden by Gary Sumpter at 116 pounds, collected $4,437 and returned mutual payoffs of $31.80, $18.40 and $7. The mare is owned by H. G. Melton Jr., of Ft. Worth, Texas.

Miss Thermolark, the 1978 world champion, grabbed an early toehold in the Jet Deck and looked like a winner as she neared the wire. But the mare couldn't hold off a cavalry charge toward the finish and faded to fifth.

Fastidious Filly, well out of contention most of the way, mustered a tremendous assault in the final jumps and barely managed to thrust her nose in front. She clocked the distance in 22.22 seconds.

Miss Deep Snazzy, a 24-1 longshot, also closed gamely and took second. Jimmie Hunt was up. The tote payoffs were $19 and $9.80.

Deep Night, off at just under 7-1, finished a half length behind Miss Deep Snazzy to take third. The show price was $5.40.

Oh Shoney, a top stakes winner in 1979, made his seasonal Ruidoso bow in the Jet Deck Stakes but finished a disappointing seventh.

FIVE ALIVE, a chestnut gelding who hardly knows the meaning of defeat, boomed in with an impressive win in Friday's program at Ruidoso Downs.

The high flying victory came in the 23rd of 24 trial sprints for the July 20 $583,000 (est.) Rainbow Quarter Horse Futurity at 400 yards.

In order to advance into the final qualifying round July 3, a hopeful had to finish either first or second in Friday's extended qualifying stanza.

Five Alive, owned by Milton and Doris Vondy of Burlington, Colorado, now holds a record of seven wins from eight starts. His only defeat came with a close third at 12-1 in the recent $504,500 Kansas Futurity. Kenty Koyle rides the Denver invader.

Launched as a topheavy favorite, he returned a low $2.60 to win in Friday's victory.

Two jockeys, Alex Baldillez Jr., and Larry Byers, took rough spills during Friday's program. Each suffered a broken collar bone. Baldillez went down in the 16th race. Byers went down in the 18th after Tell All, making his first start, veered into the rail. The colt, who brought $110,000 in last summer's All-American Yearling sale, had to be destroyed.

Pete Herrera, another rider, also took a rough fall, but appeared to escape serious injury.

Here are the 48 Rainbow semi-finalists, as determined by Friday's action: Native Tea, Bar Hemp, Rule The Deck, Gringo Billy, Juleos Revenge, Little Hurdy Gurdy, Pistol Popper, Lizzy Kats, Sinful Soul, Shiver Me Timber, Two Dog Moon, Dolls Dancer, The Gem, Easy Chula, Our Mighty Lady, Hot Summer, Posh Affair, Dance Till Dawn, Born Runner, Tommys Bug, Barging Miss, Movin Music, Flaming Pass Em, Camino Real, Ole Azzie Te, Leavem Lucille, Big Bad Boz, Say Chick, Ivory Crockett, Raise My Bars, Distinctives baby, Rockette Elaine, Heza Bunny, Jettie Rocket, Dolly Six, Good Flight, Bugged Connection, Mighty Pass Em, Ohh Lala Lala, Bear River Tom, Win A Folk, Ze My Jewel, Six Fols, El Rey Burner, Five Alive, On Target Jet, Champ Ms Dividend, St. Ignatius.

CLEVER BUG, winner of the $504,500 Kansas Futurity, survived Thursday's first round elimination trials leading to the Rainbow Futurity.

The Kansas Futurity is the first leg of the Triple Crown, and the Rainbow is the second.

Thursday's program consisted of 24 Rainbow elimination heats, with the top two finishers advancing into the second and final round scheduled for July 3.

The 48 survivors from Thursday's card are to be joined in the second round by the 48 semi-finalists from Friday's 24-race program.

The Rainbow elimination heats are staged at 400 yards.

Clever Bug, running in Thursday's second race as a heavy favorite, led from start to finish and hit the wire with a 1 3/4 length lead. Nickey Wilson was up.

Clever Bug is owned by Vaughn and Mary Watkins of Madison, Mississippi. The gelding has earned nearly $200,000 so far.

The Rainbow Futurity, which comes up July 20, will offer a record purse of about $582,000. The eventual winner gets about $202,000.

Here are the 48 semi-finalists from Thursday's stanza: Pajaro Chico, Midland Native, Clever Bug, Love Poem, Rusty Rockette, Stars Flaming Jet, War Sea, Secret O Pappa, Fly Little Angel, Mighty Duck, St. Rain Bar, Romana Rose, Mystic Eye, Count the Carats, Beckys Filly, Cletos Christie, Mighty Deck Three, Dean City, Bug Off Rio, Jettabelle Boone, Jet View, Aiot Quicker, Whizzer Smith, Mr. Boon Bug, Dancing Okie, Hempen Special, Easy Dusk, Tumbin Bug, Matly Mito, Longleat, Manly Morris, Hurry On Now, Moon Bunnys Flame, Go Get Em, Best Jet Smooth, Holme With Moolah, Moses Lad, Easy Fashion, Looking Forward, Joe Bally Oak, Gingham Queen, Fast Frenchie, Tiny Gay Bug, Disco Bunny, Easily Smashed, Swingsational, Pass Em Smooth, Go High Tymes.

are making entries at 671-4495. No entry fee is assessed. Klinekole said.

Klinekole said the 4-H Club and Extension staff are assisting in coordinating parade activities. Trophy winners will be announced at the rodeo July 4.

"Miss Rodeo Mescalero" entries must be in by Wednesday with the winner of that contest to represent the Mescalero Apache Tribe (MAT) in the "Miss Rodeo New Mexico" pageant in Albuquerque this fall. All entrants must sign up with Mary Pena at the Community Center in the Traditional Counselor's office. Contestants must be 13 to 19 years old, single, with no children, an enrolled member of the MAT, in school or planning to continue their education and able to compete in personality, appearance and horsemanship categories.

Indian dance contests will begin at 1:30 p.m., July 3-6 at the ceremonial grounds. Klinekole said members of the Plains tribe from Oklahoma, Navajos from Gallup, Pueblos from Albuquerque and the Ute Indians from Colorado, have entered the contest.

Categories for dancing will include gourd, social and group dancing and Southern only, with cash prizes awarded winners.

Ceremonial dance admission will be $2 for adults and $1 for children and one ticket allows free entry into ceremonial grounds all day.

Arts and crafts will be displayed at the ceremonial grounds throughout the weekend, with the various tribes represented showing beadwork, clothing and traditional Indian jewelry for sale.

Modern and traditional games will start at 9:30 a.m., all four days, also at the ceremonial grounds. Egg throw, gunny sack races, cow chip throwing, greased pole, wood chopping and softball throw are scheduled, and all nationalities and ages are welcome to participate.

No still cameras, recorders or movie cameras will be allowed at the ceremonial grounds, but will be welcome at the rodeo grounds and outside the ceremonial grounds, according to Dick Wardlaw, MAT spokesman.

Klus Flame died in stall

Klus Flame, a qualifier to the July 6 $560,180 Rainbow Derby, died in his stall the morning of June 26, according to trainer M. Dooley Guinn.

A three-year-old bay gelding, Klus Flame failed to digest his food Wednesday night and died at 4:30 a.m., Thursday of the resulting complications.

Klus Flame set the eight fastest time for the 440 yard Rainbow Derby in trials held June 20. He won his division by a neck as a 5-2 second favorite. Klus Flame will collect 10th place money of $18,876 for owners E. L. and Velma Webber of Anadarko, Oklahoma. Klus Flame was bred and raised by the Webers. He was by Flaming Jet out of Esters Little Klus. As a two-year-old, Klus Flame rolled up a 4-2-2 record in 14 starts and earned $17,364. He ran fourth in the Sun Country Futurity, seventh in the Juvenile Handicap and fifth in the Rillito Futurity.

"He was just beginning to find out what racing was all about," E. L. Weber said. "It was a great loss to our family. We'll accept it gracefully. We were proud of him as long as he lived."

Eve Ball feted Saturday eve

Eve Ball, noted authority on the Apache Indians and author of four books, was the honored guest at an autograph party Saturday at Ruidoso Public Library.

Her latest book, "Indeh: An Apache Odyssey" will soon be available nationally and is available locally from the author and at local bookstores.

The book is co-authored by Lynda Sanchez and Nora Henn, who assisted in obtaining material and compiling the more than 300 page book.

"Indeh" was begun in 1954 when the author interviewed the first of 138 Apaches used as references in her newest work. She said Saturday that she has spent many hours cross checking stories for accuracy and noted that perhaps one of her most valuable resources was Asa Daklugie, whose father Juh was the greatest of all Apache war leaders.

Also present Saturday was Alan Baker, director of a 30 minute documentary about the writer, whom he said has compiled an accurate oral history of the Apaches. Baker said his work will be offered on public television stations in New Mexico in the fall. He said it will be offered nationally and nationally later in the year and said the program was complete except

"I will re-edit for this" autograph party. The three authors announced that another book will be submitted for publication in October which outlines the remnants of the Apaches, the survivors of the 1886 wars. Sanchez said this book would be much smaller, and would include photographs.

Pamela Bookout receives NMSU scholarship

Pamela Jay Bookout of Clovis is the recipient of the annual New Mexico State University (NMSU) Alumni Association tuition scholarship for 1980-81.

Bookout, a graduate of Ruidoso High School, is a senior majoring in social work. She is an honorary little sister of Alpha Gamma Rho Fraternity and a member of the National Federation of Student Social Workers.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bookout, 117 Green Acres Road, Clovis.

Purpose of the scholarship is to provide financial assistance to upperclassmen who need it. The award provides the equivalent of two semesters resident tuition.

This is the first year the scholarship has been awarded to a student from the College of Human and Community Services.

Funding for the program comes from NMSU Alumni Association dues.

EVE BALL, right, signed copies of her latest book "Indeh: An Apache Odyssey" Saturday evening in an autograph party sponsored by the Historical Society of Lincoln County. The book's two co-authors, Lynda Sanchez and Nora Henn, were also present.

IT'S A HARD CLIMB up that hill, especially with heavy hand tools which Youth Conservation Corps members need to build erosion water bars. Above, the youths work on completing another in a series of water diversions which will eventually erase the scar left on a mountain above Ruidoso Downs in the 1960's.

WHEN COMPLETED, the water bars will channel runoff into adjoining vegetated areas while allowing new grass seed to germinate and revegetate a badly eroded area near Ruidoso Downs.

IT'S EASIER to pass the rocks down a line than to carry them one by one, according to these Youth Conservation Corps members building water bars on a mountain in Ruidoso Downs. The job will be finished by Wednesday.

Youths fighting erosion

Youth Conservation Corps (YCC) employees, working with Forest Service personnel, have nearly completed an ambitious erosion control project near Ruidoso Downs.

The crew of 12 youths between 15 and 18 years old spent the past two working days building water bars which will stabilize and prevent runoff of soil on a mountain formerly used to house a scenic tramway.

Located just above the Red Man Club in Ruidoso Downs, the badly eroded site has been one of the worst eyesores on Smokey Bear Ranger District for several years, according to YCC crew director Bob Palko. He said the erosion process began in the 1960's when a bulldozer cut straight up the mountain to install a scenic tramway. Part of the tram was located on private land but the majority used leased forest land.

Palko said when the tram went out of business, little was done to repair the damage to the scarred mountain. His crew was assigned the task, expected to take a week to finish, and when completed, will eventually result in total revegetation of the soil.

The YCC crew began at the top of the mountain building water bars, locating them "on a spot where they'll do the most good," Palko said.

The water bars are built by driving fenceposts into the ground, stringing fence onto the posts and backfilling with rocks and dirt. The bars are placed at a diagonal so the water runoff will be evenly dispersed onto a vegetated area. The entire area will be reseeded with various grasses to finish the project.

Palko said the crew's next project will be a three day excursion into the Jicarillas to build a wildlife spring development. "One of the experiences of a YCC crew is to go on one camping trip," Palko said. His crew will spend three nights in the mountains and build the spring during working hours.

Palko said they will take an existing spring and dam it to form a pond. By laying pipe in the dam, they will be able to run water from the dam into a wildlife trough. The entire area will then be fenced in to keep cattle out. "Because it's for wildlife, they'll be able to jump the fence, and yet we'll be able to keep cattle out," Palko said.

The project will improve the habitat for wildlife because water is scarce in the Jicarillas, Palko said.

Other projects the youths will complete during their eight-week employment include reseeding of some part of Hale Canyon, building site barriers on some forest land, and doing fireplace repair, trash cleanup and river crossings in campground areas. They also do some trail maintenance and trash pickup is done at every job, Palko said.

The YCC program is an interagency plan with the United States Forest Service, Bureau of Land Management (BLM), Park Service and State Park Service, Fish and Wildlife and other government agencies working together to spread the message of environmental awareness (EA) to the program's enrollees.

Palko, as director of the program, is responsible for arranging programs for the youths, who are required to spend 10 hours per week in EA sessions.

Palko said a program was given by a BLM representative explaining caves and insects that live in them. The group will visit Fort Stanton Cave one day, and Palko will invite resource people to give programs in their areas of expertise to the meet the EA requirement.

The youths participating in this program include Dennis Ray, Mike Kiskaden, Anthony Betancur and Duane Ray, all of Tularosa; Luz Hernandez and Ann Marie Adams of Capitan; Kyle Flack, Richard Vaughan, Robble Adams, Eric Greggerson and Dawn Ward of Ruidoso; and Kelly Sinclair of Ozona, Texas. Crew leader is Dean Hood of Ruidoso.

RICHARD VAUGHAN used a sledge hammer to drive the fencepost into the arid, rocky ground of a badly eroded mountain above Ruidoso Downs. Crew leader Dean Hood, right, directs his work.

The project is being undertaken by members of a Youth Conservation Corps, who will perform many conservation measures on public lands during their eight-week program.

ONCE THE FENCE is built, Youth Conservation Corps members must stack rocks and dirt beside it to form a diversion for water coming off the eroded mountain. Above, Anthony Betancur places rocks beside the fence.

JUST ONE OF THOSE DAYS — Gene Brock Ford second baseman Bronson Rue had a bad streak of luck at second base in Thursday's Gene Brock Ford-Security Bank matchup, in the final game of the 1980 season in Ruidoso's Little League. In the first picture, he snaps alert at the crack of the bat. In picture two, he drops to one knee to scoop up the grounder. Kirk Taylor comes roaring in from first in the third shot; meanwhile the ball got away from Rue. He looks helplessly toward the outfield in the final shot, as Taylor looks toward third. Security Bank won,

10-1, finishing the season undefeated and claiming a fourth consecutive championship. (Ruidoso News Photos by Mark Bagby)

Look out — here come the Bad News Pirates

BY MARK BAGBY
Sports Editor

"You can't keep a good man down," is the way American Legion baseball coach Vince Collins feels about his ball club. "We almost won a game Saturday," Collins said of his 0-8, newly named Pirates. After being embarrassed — badly — in Silver City last weekend ("I won't even tell you the scores, they're so bad," he said), the Pirates finally pulled themselves together here Saturday. They were in a doubleheader with Los Alamos, and lost the first game, 13-6. "We were pretty excited by losing by just seven runs lemme tell you," he said. The brightest spot of the first game was the moundwork of Wade Wilson. He pitched a couple of relief innings, so Collins started him in game two. Wilson pitched the Pirates to a 7-1 lead, which deteriorated to 7-3 in the fifth inning. "Then Wade ran out of gas in the seventh

(the final inning in American Legion ball), Los Alamos scored five runs and we lost, 8-7," he said. But Collins was ecstatic about the loss. "We played outstanding team ball," he said of his inexperienced troops. "We usually have about 10 errors but had only four in the second game. We had some good pitching, and Curt Temple, who is one of our leading hitters, had four hits in two games, which is about as many as our whole team gets most of the time." Collins also singled out Tim Riley for praise. Riley had a triple and drove in two runs during the second game. Next on the schedule is an away trip to Alamogordo this weekend, followed by games here on consecutive weekends with Los Lunas and Carlsbad. That will end the season for the Pirates, Collins said. "This is our fourth week," he said. "It's taken that long to find out who can play where. We've had to spend so much time on fundamentals, just learning what to do.

Everything is finally starting to come together." New players added to the rosters have helped things considerably, he said. Stan Capes at third base has "really shored up our defense on that side of the infield," Collins said, and outfielder Rick Mound has contributed his share of defensive plays too. And new pitcher Glenn Ryan may throw some outstanding ball when his sore arm heals, Collins said. "He just started and is out of shape for this," he said. But at times the level of play still looks like the "Bad News Bears," Collins admits. In fact, the team calls itself the "Bad News Pirates," he added. "We'll get five guys in the infield going for a pop-up, with no one covering the bases," he said. "Then someone will miss it, then we'll overthrow two bases and miss cutoff men, and suddenly someone has scored on what started out as a walk. It's pitiful."

They don't even have the satisfaction of being well dressed. The team has ordered gold and black jerseys, but those have not yet arrived. "We play in whatever we can find," he said. "And our jerseys may not get here until the last game. I hope they're here by then." But things are improving, he added. "I think we've made it," he said, "to where we're at least competitive. Like I told 'em at the first of the year, we're going to keep this fun. We're playing for next year and the year after." The team is still looking for sponsors, Collins said, to help defray costs, and additional players are always welcome. Anyone from age 10-19 may play, and should report to Ruidoso's Pony League field near White Mountain Middle School on Mondays, Wednesdays or Fridays at 5:30 p.m.

Fifteen openings are still available in the Ruidoso Soccer Techniques Camp, slated for July 7-13 at White Mountain Middle School.

The camp is conducted by former soccer professional Bobby Moffat, who played for the North American Soccer League's Dallas Tornado. Ruidoso's Sextoma Soccer Association (RSSA) is sponsoring the camp, and RSSA president Butch Grantham will join the 10 member coaching staff.

Moffat, an England native, came to the United States in 1970 and played for the Tornado, where he was nicknamed "Mr. Versatility" for playing every position except goalkeeper. Since his retirement, he has spent much of his time conducting soccer clinics and camps, including a very successful one in Ruidoso last fall. Classes will begin at 8:30 a.m., daily and end at 12:30. The staff will provide a special T-shirt, evaluation sheets, first aid, insurance and a certificate of accomplishment. Also, each student will be videotaped in action for individual analysis. Enrollment fee is $50, and enrollment is limited to 100 students. No special equipment is required, with the exception of a container of water and one soccer ball per student, which must be provided by the student. For more information, call 257-7731, or write Techniques Camp, care of RSSA, Box 593, Ruidoso, New Mexico, 88345.

Sportin' Life

Mark Bagby

Well, it seems you'll get to see bits and pieces of the Moscow Olympics — provided you get up early enough. NBC, which bought the rights to the Olympics two years ago, took out an insurance policy with Lloyd's of London just in case the United States team decided to boycott the Games. They did, so NBC got back 90 percent of its investment — but they still lose $15 million because the coverage ain't there. But NBC retains the rights — ABC and CBS can only show what NBC lets 'em — and NBC is taping every event, but only scattered highlights — like someone breaking Bob Beamon's long jump record or something like that — will be aired. And most of those will be on the "Today" Show, which begins at an awful time of (yawn) 6 a.m. The reason for this, according to Arthur Watson, president of NBC Sports, is the lack of interest in the 1980 Olympics. The Olympic Trials — why we're still having the Olympic Trials when we're not going to the Games puzzles the heck out of me — have been going on for a week in rainy Eugene, Oregon, and oldtimers like Brian Oldfield and Al Oerter — especially Oerter, the four time gold medal winner who mounted a come back try this year to prove he isn't too old and threw the discus 209 feet — have been performing. But nobody cares, Watson said. "The interest in the Olympic Trials has not been that keen," Watson said. So NBC has decided to limit its coverage of the Games to practically nothing — or even less. I thought this was the home of the brave and the land of the free — so why can a network retain the rights to an event even if they decide to do nothing with it? What if ABC or CBS wants to offer more complete coverage? They have to buy the rights from NBC before you and I can see it. In the vernacular, that reeks. Good riddance. Inflation is now affecting even little kids. Specifically, Ford Motor Company, the longtime sponsor for Punt, Pass and Kick, has decided to drop the program due to the expense. Just gotten too expensive. Good riddance is what I say. It all stems from way back when — when I was a kid about 8 years old. I remember looking in "Boys' Life" (do they still publish?) and seeing ads for Punt, Pass and Kick, or PP&K, as it's abbreviated. Boy, that's neat, I'd think. I used to go out and practice like crazy. I remember egging my dad to take me to Million Fore (in McAlester, Oklahoma) so I could compete. Finally, one Saturday morning, Dad took me, partly to silence me and partly to see if I was any good. Million Ford wasn't participating in PP&K. Never cried so hard in my life. I mean, those prizes — footballs, uniforms, a trip to the Super Bowl, national competition. Wow. Several years later — I was 12 — Million Ford decided it would enter the program. Awright, I thought. Almost my last chance to enter — I think the age limit is 13. Then I found out if I made regionals, I'd have to wear a — yuck — Dallas Cowboy uniform, because they were the sponsoring team for my region. I didn't enter. Consequently, ever since, when I see these little kids on national television throwing a football 40 yards and hear Frank Gifford or someone say, "Good toss, Toby," I get boiling mad. So I sure won't miss the program. I already missed it — twice. Quotable quotes Jack Nicklaus, on why his drives are so high: "After much practice and long experience, I have learned air offers less resistance to the ball's flight than dirt." Sam Snead, on sportswriting: "Sometimes I wish I was a political cartoonist. Then I'd only have to come up with one idea per day. But I think I'd rather be a sportswriter. Then I wouldn't have to come up with any ideas." I'd like to be a professional golfer so I could get quoted in sports columns. Then I could prove I wouldn't have to think. Wrap-up The Ruidoso Little League Baseball program wrapped up its season last week and has its Awards Banquet next Wednesday at Elks' Lodge at 7:30 p.m. Unfortunately for all those not connected with the league, it's strictly an in-house affair, as it were. By the by, I attended a Little League game Thursday evening, and heard the umpire caution the crowd on just what it could and could not say to the players... so what I'd like to know is, just why on earth doesn't the First Amendment to the Constitution, which guarantees us the right of free speech, among other things, apply at a baseball game? Anarchy is what I say.

Elks hosting vice president Rucker July 3

Ruidoso Elks Lodge 2086 will host an official visitation by Stuart Rucker, first vice president of the New Mexico Elks Association, Thursday evening, Jerry Story, exalted ruler, has announced.

The evening will begin with a social hour at 6, followed by a shrimp gumbo dinner, then the regular visitation meeting at 8.

Rucker is past exalted ruler of the Gallup Elks Lodge, was state convention chairman in 1972, was All-State Exalted Ruler in the state ritual contest in 1973 and served as trustee of the Gallup Elks from 1973 to 1978.

He is science department chairman at Gallup High School and is also the football and baseball coach.

Cancer fund drive will reach goal of $3,000

Ken Moore, crusade chairman for this year's local American Cancer Society fund drive, announced Thursday that the goal of $3,000 will probably be met because of the "generosity of so many people who pledged money in the Longest Day of Golf," Moore said.

The East Lincoln Chapter (ELACS) expects to submit around $3,150 to the state treasury, all collected over the last six months. Moore said the largest single donation for the golf fund raiser was made by Ruidoso State Bank, a $250 pledge. "In addition, they gave $100 earlier in the fund drive," he added.

The ELACS will not meet again until September, when new officers will be installed and committee chairpersons will be appointed.

New officers will be Rose Peebles, president; Edna Morris, vice president; Charlotte Feders, secretary; and Dottie Quaid, treasurer.

Mule Skinners meet Tuesday

The Ruidoso Downs Mule Skinners will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., in the Ruidoso Public Library.

Agenda items include setting purses for the September 28-29 mule races and arena events and forming working committees.

"Anyone interested in promoting mule racing here," Mule Skinners president Ed Hyman said, "is welcome to attend Tuesday's meeting and become an active member. Dues are only $10 a year."

Sewer bond bid opening set at Downs

The Ruidoso Downs trustees will hold a special public meeting at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday at the municipal building, to open bids for the purchase of general obligation bonds, in the amount of $500,000, which are to provide for construction of the new sewer system.

OPEN HOUSE
Welcome to a new living experience
A Deck House goes beyond excellence in design and materials, beyond the security of good shelter. It is a unique living experience, at once exciting and satisfying.
This newly completed Deck House is now open for your inspection. Examine for yourself the tasteful blend of natural materials which enrich the living environment, yet require little maintenance - richly grained ceilings of cedar decking, the liberal use of solid mahogany in window frames and interior stairs, and siding of clear red cedar heartwood.
See for yourself!

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE—A federal court jury in Roswell has found most of us not guilty. Our surrogate in this case was Norman Ellenberger, a former basketball coach at the University of New Mexico, whose defense was pretty much that he was only doing what most of us wanted him to do.

Now it may have been clear to that jury that Storzmin' Norman was not guilty of the various things with which he was charged, including five counts of mail fraud, one of wire fraud and one of interstate travel in aid of racketeering.

From the evidence, however, it would not seem to a casual observer that Ellenberger was guiltless of any fault.

Under oath, for instance, he said of his assistants' plan to forge a transcript, "I let them. I felt sorry for the kid. It wasn't his fault. It was for one game."

That is a paragraph which bears some study.

The implications in those words would seem to be these: 1.) It's okay to forge things if you do it because you feel sorry for somebody; 2.) the situation in which the world finds itself is in no way the fault of basketball players; and 3.) forging papers is okay if you only do it once.

All that from the same man who said, "It is impossible for a coach to abide by the NCAA."

Translation: We in collegiate athletics must be allowed to say we accept certain rules while we are in fact violating them. Some would call that lying and cheating—though others, obviously, would only call it being a successful athletic coach.

And being a successful athletic coach seems to be what most people value above being a successful (that is, an honest) human being. Most of those who, as the press accounts put it, "erupted into cheers and applause" after the verdict was delivered in Roswell, must believe that a won-loss record, as recorded in the books, is more important than a truth-tell record. They seem to prefer glamour and excitement, which Ellenberger brought vicariously into their lives, to pedestrian virtues of the kind universities were once supposed to inculcate.

That's how come the jury found most of us "innocent when it brought in its verdict on Ellenberger. A good part of his skillful defense, at least by implication, was that he was only doing what we wanted him to do. He produced winners, after all, which is clearly what he believed we all wanted.

As his legacy, he left, along with his sweeping statement that no winning coach can abide by the rules to which he claims to be committed, a lingering doubt. Like Samson, he seemed to say that if he was going down, there were others he would take with him, principally the officials of the university he claimed to serve. He and his attorney managed to sow within minds even less cynical than this one the question of how all this could have gone on without active and positive participation by those outside the athletic department of UNM.

And he didn't leave that school much room for defense before the NCAA when it comes up to answer the charges against it. Here was the ex-head coach saying, "It is impossible for a coach to abide by the NCAA"—which means, "We didn't."

We hope those who applauded so lustily when this former leader of men was found not guilty realize the message which was delivered in their clapping.

KENNY IN 1984

There's a growing belief in Washington that Senator Ted Kennedy is, in reality, campaigning today for the 1984 Democratic nomination. That may be why the Massachusetts Senator refuses to get out of the nomination race, though it's now considered by many of his supporters to be a hopeless effort.

It's also conceded there's no love lost between Kennedy and President Carter, and that Kennedy wouldn't be totally distraught if Carter were defeated in November. Of course, the Senator will not desert his party and will certainly endorse Carter in the end. But the bitterness of his words and sharp criticisms will not all die out or be forgotten at once.

If Carter is defeated in November, Kennedy will have been, in a sense, proven right — or so it would seem to his supporters. He will feel first in line — as the number-two delegate winner in 1980 — for the 1984 nomination. If Carter is still in office in 1984, it will presumably be harder for Kennedy to win the nomination. Carter will not have forgotten 1960, and might well favor Vice President Mondale.

The basic strategy question for Kenney, who at the beginning of the year was a heavy favorite in the public opinion polls, but now has lost much of his popularity, is whether 1980 was the right year for him to make his bid. Some feel he has this year lost much of his nostalgic advantage. But only events over the next four years will answer that question with finality. — The News, Santa Rosa

DEEPENING CRISIS

The situation in the Holy Land is deteriorating rapidly. One act of terrorism follows another. The violence escalates. Attitudes harden into hate. Blood flows. New martyrs are created. And the peacemakers on both sides are pushed aside by the extremists.

That is the picture, and it is hard to overemphasize the threat that it poses to the vital interests of the United States. This country and its people are committed to defending the territorial integrity of Israel as it existed before the 1967 war. But our government has never recognized Israel's claim to the Arab lands it occupied after the war. And the issue of the occupied lands threatens us with another Arab oil boycott and other Middle East war.

In Tel Aviv, Ha'olan Hahaz, an Israeli weekly, has a close-up view of the situation in the occupied lands:

"On the one hand, imposition of curfew, collective punishments, demolition of houses, mass arrests with torture, banishment of persons, establishment of settlements, firing at demonstrators—the whole well-known list of a collapsing colonial regime, along with a few original Israeli inventions.

"On the other side: demonstrations, general strikes, undergrounds, clashes with security forces, ambushes, killings—all the well-known list of a population in revolt against a foreign regime along with a few original Palestinian inventions. "Blood, hate, death. All for nothing." — News Bulletin, Belem

editorial

Village administrative assistant Frank Potter made an interesting statement during last Tuesday evening's meeting of the village trustees:

"Garbologists aren't noted as being the world's best truck drivers."

That statement, or words to that effect, indicates that, in his opinion, the drivers of the village's two solid waste collection trucks, emptying the village owned dumpsters located throughout the village, and driving these units to the Fort Stanton dump site, might not be exercising due care in the operation of these units.

Potter, by innuendo, suggested that a sizeable portion of the $24,000 in maintenance costs the past two years, on the present units, was allegedly due to careless driving habits employed by the drivers of the garbage collection trucks.

The village, due to the present trucks, in Potter's words, "being about shot," will soon purchase two new diesel powered, less complicated to operate, garbage pickup trucks, valued at about $40,000 each.

If Potter has proof of driver negligence, damaging the present trucks, or causing unnecessary maintenance due to careless operation, he should immediately present the proof to village officials, Should Potter's allegations be shown to be fact then the village should replace the errant drivers with qualified drivers.

Who knows but that qualified, conscientious drivers might save the village enough in unnecessary maintenance costs to justify paying these garbage truck drivers a salary that would encourage them to operate them with due care.

This is a situation that village officials should immediately investigate. — CD

ON GABE'S ACCOLADE

If you remember Gabe Brillante ... the feisty Italian with a zest for living ... the white mustachioed, bristly goateed, basso voiced hustling, bustling much traveled gentleman of the world ... you can count your blessings ... because you rubbed elbows with one of nature's noblemen.

Gabe was the public relations man for White Sands Missile Range before retiring ... to enjoy life amidst the tall, cool pines ... and in that capacity he did as much for the missile program at White Sands as any man ever did ... perhaps a little more than that. He also inaugurated many innovations at White Sands Missile Range ... changes that made things easier for all concerned.

This July 4 ... at the Missile Range visitors center ... at 5 p.m., ... Gabe will posthumously receive recognition for his outstanding achievements as public relations officer ... if you knew Gabe ... you'll enjoy attending the ceremony marking his induction into the Hall of Fame, an honor reserved for a select few who so well served White Sands Missile Range.

SYMPHONY OPPORTUNITY

Betty Shrecengost ... who is in the midst of a lot of the action, when there's action, in Old Lincoln Town ... has come a cropper of an idea to bring some added culture to the old stamping grounds of Billy the Kid.

Betty recalls ... some years ago ... a man named Aaron Copeland wrote a symphony ... "The Billy the Kid Suite" ... and that she thinks it'd be a capital idea if some orchestra'd practice up on this music ... and, maybe ... like next summer ... present it in a performance in the pageant arena at Lincoln.

Betty says it's a fine piece of music ... and it'd be a crowd pleaser ... and make for a mighty fine evening's entertainment ... and all ... and give The Kid a little cultural recognition ... and also, provide another gathering place for those appreciative of symphonic music.

Will probably take some doing ... on someone's part ... but if you, or anyone you know, might be interested ... give Betty a holler ... 653-4693 ... she'll work with you all the way to bring this musical venture to fruition.

HAVE A RUNNING FIFTH

If you survive the Fourth ... and'd be in shape for a fifth that's different ... you might want to get down La Luz way ... 'cause there's a big eight mile friendship race planned ... in the cool of the morning ... 'cause the racing begins at 7:30 a.m.

And if that won't get you off to a running start on the fifth, nothing will. Anyhow ... there's six classifications for men ... from 15 to 51 years ... and over ... and two divisions for women ... 20 and under and 21 and over ... and there's eight miles to run ... with water sponge stations along the route ... and all this is the brain child of the La Luz Lions Club ... none of whom'll probably be running those eight miles ... 'cause it's a well known fact that no lion ... over in Africa, anyhow ... ever runs eight miles.

So ... if you've any muscles as got tight on the fourth, and you'd like to limber 'em up on the fifth ... give Don Stoneking ... 437-7913 ... a call ... he'll guarantee you a roaring Lions' welcome at the finish line ... even if you finish a little late.

KID'S HOT SEAT

What with the Fourth upcoming ... and hotter'n hades weather likely ... the state's Traffic Safety Bureau thinks folks as has little kids in their autos should remember that vinyl seats and metal hardware in cars parked in the summer sun can ... and will ... get hot enough to seriously burn young children. Just an idea to help keep your kids cool ... and unburned.

YOU'RE MOVING FAST

If you've ever got to thinkin' ... as you was sittin', thinkin' as how you ain't getting nowhere ... think again ... 'cause as you sit there ... thinkin' ... not movin' ... thinkin' you ain't goin' nowhere ... you're movin' through space ... at 66,000 miles per hour ... and the seat you're sittin' thinkin' on is movin' 700 miles per hour as the world turns. That, alone, is enough to make a person want to slow down and savor a refreshing glass of ice tea ... yes?

BRIEF BIT: The way the weather's been of late ... here and in Texas ... just ain't no way you can't have a real hot time celebratin' the Fourth ... CD

No fireworks in forest in July 4 celebrations

Extremely high risk of fire throughout the Lincoln National Forest, because of prolonged dry weather and high temperatures, makes it more important than ever that pre-4th of July celebrations, including fireworks, be held somewhere else.

George C. Green, Assistant Fire Management Officer for the Forest, said that campfire and smoking restrictions are still in effect. Visitors are reminded that shooting fireworks on any federal land is prohibited.

The official order, prohibiting the use of firework or other pyrotechnic device, within National Forests located in Arizona and New Mexico, is prohibited. Violation of this regulation is punishable by a fine of $500, or six months imprisonment, or both.

Forest residents and visitors are looking forward to July 4th celebrations next week at Capitan and Mescalero. "Memories of Smokey" will be the theme of the Smokey Bear Stampede at Capitan, New Mexico,

July 4-5, which will include a rodeo and a parade.

At Mescalero, the Annual Mescalero Ceremonial will be held July 3-6, also including a rodeo 4-6.

This week on the Smokey Bear Ranger District, at Ruidoso, all campgrounds are open with the exception of Oak Grove, which will re-open when road construction is completed.

South Fork Campground received heavy use all week. The other campgrounds are receiving heavy use on weekends. Bonito Lake is full and fishing pressure is heavy. Motorists are reminded to watch for construction equipment on State Highway 37, which is being paved near Forest Road 107, State Highway 532, to the Sierra Blanca Ski Area, continues to be closed Monday through Friday for repairs, and is open on weekends only. Trails are in good condition and fuelwood areas are open.

The Cloudcroft Ranger District reports all camp and picnic grounds are open.

Silver, Saddle, and Apache Campgrounds received heavy use all week. Pines, Deerhead, and Sleepy Grass Campgrounds are receiving light to moderate use on weekdays and heavy use on weekends.

Road conditions are good. Repair work is still underway on Highway 82, between Mayhill and Cloudcroft. Trails are in good condition and two fuelwood areas are open.

At Carlsbad, the Guadalupe Ranger District reports Sitting Bull Falls Picnic Area receiving heavy use. Road conditions are good; however, repair work is underway on State Highway 137, and on Forest Road 276 leading to Sitting Bull Falls. Trail conditions are good and fuelwood areas are open.

James Canyon, on the Mayhill Ranger District, was receiving heavy use last week. Roads in the District are in good condition. Visitors are urged to watch for snakes. Fuelwood areas are open.

State now stocking Los Esteros Lake

The Department of Game and Fish is beginning to stock several species of fish in the state's newest warm water reservoir, Los Esteros, located seven miles north of Santa Rosa.

The United States Corps of Engineers started impounding water from the Pecos River in the reservoir less than two months ago, according to Steve Henry, Department of Game and Fish conservation office in Santa Rosa, and the department's Fisheries Division at that time planted 300,000 walleye fry in the reservoir from Rock Lake Rearing Station in Santa Rosa.

In addition, the department has recently stocked the lake with 75,000 largemouth and 100,000 smallmouth bass fingerlings and approximately 1,500 white bass four to six inches in length.

Crappie from the Logan area were also transplanted, Henry said.

The Department of Game and Fish has been stocking the river in the vicinity for the last year with bluegill, channel catfish and white bass.

"We expect the lake to be a major fishery in a couple of years," Henry said. The new reservoir, started in the early 1970s, is currently holding 28,000 acre feet of water and has a 400,000 acre foot capacity. In full, the lake would be about two and a half times the size of neighboring Sumner Lake.

Los Esteros Dam was constructed primarily as an irrigation and flood control reservoir, and a name change to Santa Rosa Dam is pending in Congress, Henry said.

Heavy fines for fireworks on forest land

"Possessing, discharging, or using any kind of firework or other pyrotechnic device, within the National Forest located in Arizona or New Mexico, is prohibited," an official Forest Service regulation states.

Referring to a small fire started last week by someone shooting off bottle rockets, George C. Green, Assistant Fire Management Officer for the Lincoln National Forest said, "Apparently some people don't know that it is illegal to shoot fireworks on the Forest."

Green said violation of the regulation is punishable by a $500 fine or six months imprisonment, or both. He urged everyone to please help spread the word about the regulation to their friends.

The danger of fire in the Forest is currently rated as "extreme," and campfire and smoking restrictions are still in effect.

Honest camper does surprise forest clerk

The folks who visit and enjoy using National Forests are generally pretty fine people. Here's a good example.

Last week, a young man walked into one of the Lincoln National Forest Ranger District offices and plunked down a dollar bill and a campground stub from last year, explaining to a surprised clerk that when he camped here last year, he only had one dollar to put in the fee envelope. He wrote the envelope at the time that he would pay the other dollar when he came back in a year. And sure enough, he did! The clerk commented that it "kinda renews our faith in people, doesn't it?"

The Dreamer

BY DANNIE STORM

"The Good Old Summer Time"

We are just a few days into the season of summer, and yet the season of hot days lost no time in showing its colors. Some of the colors of summer are the brilliant sparkling colors of the cactus blooms; the shining solid mass of pure scarlet flowers, in rounded form, from one foot to three feet across, of the cliff cactus decorating a sheer rocky rampart, a sight like something in a dream — something in a class by itself in the flower world; the pure lemon yellow of the large prickly-pear bloom; the magenta blossoms, close massed on the tall cholla, brightening up the dry, dry fields, mesas and foot hills — a display of unbelievable beauty and colorful majesty in a land where it would seem nothing could grow — much less thrive and blossom forth in glory — in such drought and such burning heat. We are seeing during this heat wave, the miracle the mysterious wonder of the seemingly boundless vitality, the great strength called forth in greatest adversity of the plants of the desert. The cactus and other dry land plants, blooming cheerfully during the record heat wave, send a heartening message to your spirit, strengthening your soul. You see the dry weather plants flowering forth ever more beautifully the harder the sun beams down. And you know that the Good Lord has given to you and me sources of boundless reserve deep in our being, equal to any test or adversity.

The Heat Waves

Other colors of the summer are the rich green of the river trees, joyful with their feet in the cool water, contrasting with the softer shades of green of the pinon, cedar and small pine on the hill sides. These sturdy little evergreens, dwelling half way between the desert and the mountain, have learned to hold their growth in reserve during the hot dry spells. And yet here and there on the hill slopes, you can see new shoots of growth on the pinon branch tips at the top — little green and golden beginnings of the forming of pinon cones. Our state tree, the pinon, through the years, is learning to thrive in drier and drier lands, taking lessons from the cactus, mesquite, yucca and other staunch dwellers of the drier regions.

There is another color of summer. Really it is no color at all. It is the colorless shimmering, dancing heat waves. We are not talking about the heat waves that have brought record temperatures of 111 to Dallas and 114 to Wichita Falls. We are talking about the desert heat waves that become so massive that they mirror the features of the land into grotesque scenes called mirages.

You seldom see a heat wave in the land of the pinon and pine. Yet two days in a row the twenty-fourth and the twenty-fifth, the temperature rose four degrees above the record here at the house — one hundred and four in the shade. During this heat you could see the heat waves dancing over the fields, mesas and knolls. And you could feel their warmth as they rose up from the ground, little waves of summer heat telling you we are in the depth of summer weather.

The East Wind

Today, June twenty-six, our kind friend, the east wind, has been blowing through the vale all day, and now in the beginning of late afternoon, when the tree shadows are beginning to reach out a little to the east, the temperature is at ninety four, and it feels much cooler than the one hundred and four of yesterday. Really this is just a pleasant summer day. The east wind has brought in a cloud from the west. It is hovering over Storm Mountain. Now I hear the thunder, and up the way the little gray and purple rain streamers are drifting down. There is the thunder again. The east wind, as always, is taking care of us by bringing the rain.

Keep smiling, with the green and golden smile of summer, and God Bless you.

AFTER A WEEK OF HOTTER THAN HOT, if the thought of cooling off under this tumbling waterfall doesn't bring you ecstasy, then perhaps envisioning the bountiful snows that will encompass these mountains and green valley this winter will.

Energy potential interest on rise on public lands

PUBLIC LANDS HAVING ENERGY BOOM

Interest in the energy potential of federal public lands in southeastern New Mexico and in Texas seems to have doubled since last year, according to an official of the United States Bureau of Land Management (BLM).

BLM Roswell district manager James "Smokey" O'Connor said his office has already processed 948 competitive and non-competitive oil and gas lease applications during the 1980 fiscal year (October 1, 1979, to September 30, 1980), nearly twice the number processed in fiscal year 1979. He said this number would grow even more during final months of the fiscal year because of competitive lease sales this summer of part of the federal minerals his office manages in Texas.

The BLM's Roswell district office manages federal minerals in Chaves, Guadalupe, Quay, Curry, DeBaca, Roosevelt, Lincoln, Eddy and Lea counties and nearly 4 million acres of federal minerals in Texas.

O'Connor said his office has already received 425 applications this fiscal year for permission to drill and 252 applications for rights-of-way for pipelines and other facilities on public land. In contrast, the office received only 400 applications for permits to drill and 270 applications for rights-of-way during the entire 1979 fiscal year. A 40 percent increase in sales of caliche, sand and gravel from public lands also indicates increased energy activities, he said, because the materials are used extensively for building roads and drilling pads in oil and gas fields.

Another indication of the "energy impact" on the area is the construction of parts of two major pipelines totalling about 1,650 miles, most of it across public land. Mapco, of Tulsa, Oklahoma, is laying one of the lines, which will stretch from Rock Springs, Wyoming, to the Hobbs area and will carry refined oil and gas products. A plant slated for construction east of Roswell will process casing head gas and sell much of the finished product to Mapco for use in its pipeline system. The plant will probably employ 22 to 26 workers. Shell Pipeline Company is constructing a second pipeline from Durango, Colorado, through New Mexico to Denver City, Texas. The pipeline will carry carbon dioxide gas. The gas will be injected into wells to help recover oil.

According to Mapco and Shell, about 150 workers will be hired during the construction phase of the pipelines and probably will be based in Hobbs or Roswell.

NMSU names head of energy institute

Dr. Larry Icerman has been named director of the New Mexico Energy Institute at New Mexico State University (NMEI-NMSU), according to an announcement from Dr. Harold Daw, NMSU associate academic vice president. Daw served as acting director of NMEI-NMSU until Icerman recently assumed duties of the position.

Icerman previously held the rank of associate professor of technology and human affairs with the School of Engineering and Applied Science at Washington University in St. Louis, Missouri. He described the assignment as "short on teaching and long on research."

Icerman's research interests encompass the scope of activity under supervision of the NMSU-based institute, including solar, wind and geothermal energy sources and applications as well as energy policy and conservation. He commented, the institute represents "a whole new ballgame for me in terms of magnitude."

He was with Washington University, St. Louis, from 1976 until accepting the NMSU appointment. Previous experience included post graduate research engineer and research assistant with the University of California-San Diego Energy Center, research engineer at San Diego State University, and research assistant in the Aerospace and Mechanical Engineering Sciences Department, University of California-San Diego.

Icerman is coauthor of two books: "Energy: Demands, Resources, Impact, Technology and Policy" and "Energy: Non-Nuclear Energy Technologies." Additional credits include nearly 50 papers, reports and articles accepted for publication. He holds active memberships in a variety of professional organizations.

The new director of NMEI-NMSU completed his bachelor of science degree in aeronautics and astronautics at Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1967 and received the master of science degree in applied mechanics from the University of California-San Diego a year later. He earned the master of business administration degree in finance from San Diego State University and completed requirements for the Ph. D. in engineering sciences at the University of California-San Diego in 1976.

Focus on Small Business

by E. Maine Shafer

Dear Mr. Shafer,

"Chrysler Corporation is the latest giant company to get a government guaranteed loan. Small businesses also are beneficiaries under guaranty loan programs. I wonder if the size and amount of these loans might be getting out of hand and whether the loss rate is too high?" True, small businesses do get help under a Federal guaranty program. Such help, made in cooperation with local banks which do the actual lending, is the cornerstone of most Federal aid to small businesses.

It's also the prop for home mortgage programs of the Federal Housing Administration ($111.2 billion in loans outstanding) and the Veterans Administration ($99.5 billion outstanding). Other United States guaranty programs — some 100 different ones — help students pay for college, help family owned firms, help foreign governments buy American military equipment, help pay for electric generating plants in rural areas, and aid Indians, minority business owners, and such industries as commuter airlines, shipbuilding and railroads.

Without such guaranty programs, unemployment lines probably would be longer than they are, and there probably would be less homeownership, less stimulation of research and development, less demonstration of new products, less production, and less conservation.

All told, the Federal Government by next September 30 will be liable for $343.8 billion in loan guarantees, according to estimates from the Office of Management and Budget. That's more than double the 1972 level. Nearly $72 billion in new Federal guarantees is likely to be issued this fiscal year alone.

A study by the Congressional Budget Office shows that much of this growth has been unplanned and uncontrolled. The President's latest budget recommends that lawmakers place dollar limits when they pass spending bills for agencies.

The United States Small Business Administration (SBA), the largest Federal backer of loans to small business, has about $8.2 billion in guaranty loans outstanding. While banks insist there be collateral in back of each loan and that the loss rate be less than one percent, SBA, (which is mandated by Congress to be lender of last resort) in the last fiscal year, had a loss rate of 3.51 percent.

Many factors enter into this loss rate, including the general economic climate. Guarantees cost taxpayers money when borrowers don't repay. Student loans and public-housing projects are notorious for defaults. The earliest guaranty programs, such as the FHA home mortgage insurance, date back to the 1930's. They were designed to encourage banks to offer individuals long term housing loans with low down payments. The idea was to provide borrowers with money that otherwise would be difficult or impossible to get.

That's still the purpose behind the government guaranteed loans. We each can have our opinions of whom should be getting or not getting these types of loans. What is considered "fair" according to one person's opinion often will differ from someone else's opinion.

THE DANCE OF THE MOUNTAIN GODS, being presented evenings at Mescalero, July 3-6, is very impressive in the eerie light of a huge campfire that highlights the dancers' movements.

Woman's slayer sought

The little girl told investigators, "Big bang. Mommy fell."

The words provided a haunting legacy to what appears to be a senseless shooting which took the life of 23-year-old Christina Campanella.

State Police reports show that Mrs. Campanella was spending the Memorial Day weekend in Cimarron with her husband and daughter. They had lived in Cimarron for four years, then had recently moved to Vail, Colorado.

On the afternoon of May 25, Christina had taken her two-year-old daughter Lanise for a walk along the Cimarron River.

At about 4:30 p.m., someone inexplicably fired a shot from a .22-caliber rifle at them. The bullet hit Christina in the forehead and lodged near the base of the brain. She fell backwards, with her head near the river's edge.

When she didn't return from her walk, Christina's husband initiated a search for her. He found her the next morning at five o'clock. Their two-year-old daughter had remained with her mother during the entire time.

Miraculously, Christina was still alive when her husband found her. She was rushed to Parkview Hospital in Pueblo, Colorado, but doctors attempts to save her life were in vain. She died the afternoon of May 27.

State Policeman Ronald Hensinger said his investigation indicated the victim was neither beaten, raped or robbed.

"She had on a brand new gold bracelet and some other jewelry on her wrist and it was still there when they found her," Hensinger said.

"There is a possibility that the initial shooting was accidental. There were a lot of people with small caliber weapons in the river area the day of the shooting. But whoever shot her had to have known that he had hit her. And by not getting help for her, he contributed to her death."

This week the State Crime Stoppers Commission is offering a $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and indictment of the person or persons responsible for the death of Christina Campanella.

Anyone having any information which could help solve the case is asked to call State Crime Stoppers at its toll-free number, 1-800-432-6833. Callers do not have to reveal their identities and their calls are not taped or traced.

The State Crime Stoppers Commission also offers cash rewards of up to $5,000 for information leading to the solution of other major crimes such as arson, fraud, narcotics trafficking or cattle rustling.

Last week 14 persons were indicted by a federal Grand Jury in El Paso, Texas, in connection with a highly organized illegal alien smuggling ring. The indictments followed an extensive investigation by the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service after the State Crime Stoppers Commission received a tip from the El Paso, Texas, area regarding the ring's operation. The federal investigation is continuing.

To date, a total of 165 major crimes have been solved with the help of tips called into the State Crime Stoppers Commission.

Dear Wayne — I am in the market for a sleeping bag which will probably be used quite a bit during colder weather. Having decided upon the type insulation I want, the only question is whether it should be of conventional or mummy design. I know the mummy bag takes less space and is lighter, but I'm not sure the difference is significant. What would be your choice? Billy T., Pennsylvania.

Dear Billy — I'm not sure that what is right for me would suit you, but I think the mummy bag offers more advantages if you can get used to its feel. And that can be a big factor, because some people can't adapt to them. As you know, the mummy bag is made in smaller proportions than a conventional one and it tapers to narrow measurements at the foot area. A number of sleepers can't adjust to the restricted foot movement and the generally limited freedom of movement that is characteristic of the mummy but I believe most could adapt if they would suffer out a couple of nights.

The mummy bag offers enough advantages that it should be at least seriously considered when buying. Aside from the obvious advantages that you mentioned, namely compactness and light weight, which in themselves are quite significant, these bags are warmer than conventional ones of equal insulation. This, of course, is due to the fact that there is less inside air space to be heated by the body. I won't say you would like a mummy bag, only that you should seriously consider its assets, as well as its one disadvantage.

TIP FROM READER — If you have done very much fishing, it's almost certain that you have at some time experienced a hopelessly tangled bird's nest in a length of monofilament line. But what happened to it after you snipped it off? And what did you do with the tangled mess you found along the shoreline? Hopefully, you thoughtfully tucked it away in a pocket or in the tacklebox until it could be disposed of properly.

Such entanglements can be lethal traps to unsuspecting birds and fish, besides being a genuine nuisance to other fishermen. The next time you have the misfortune of creating a bird's nest, think twice and leave your fishing grounds as clean as you found them — or more so. Raymond L., South Carolina.

Pink Ladies Thrift Shop sales success aids hospital

The Ruidoso-Hondo Valley Hospital Auxiliary's Thrift Shop will enter its second year of operation this week. The success of the shop project during its first year has been so great that the "Pink Ladies," will be keeping the shop open "indefinitely," outgoing chairwoman Jody Keyes said Wednesday.

"By the end of July," Keyes said, "the shop will have cleared over $10,000," which is channeled to the hospital for equipment purchases.

"We opened a year ago July 4," she added, "not knowing whether we would continue it." The shop, staffed by volunteer auxillary members, first opened on a three month trial basis. After that time had passed, the experiment was extended another six months. By then, it was obvious the shop would be successful.

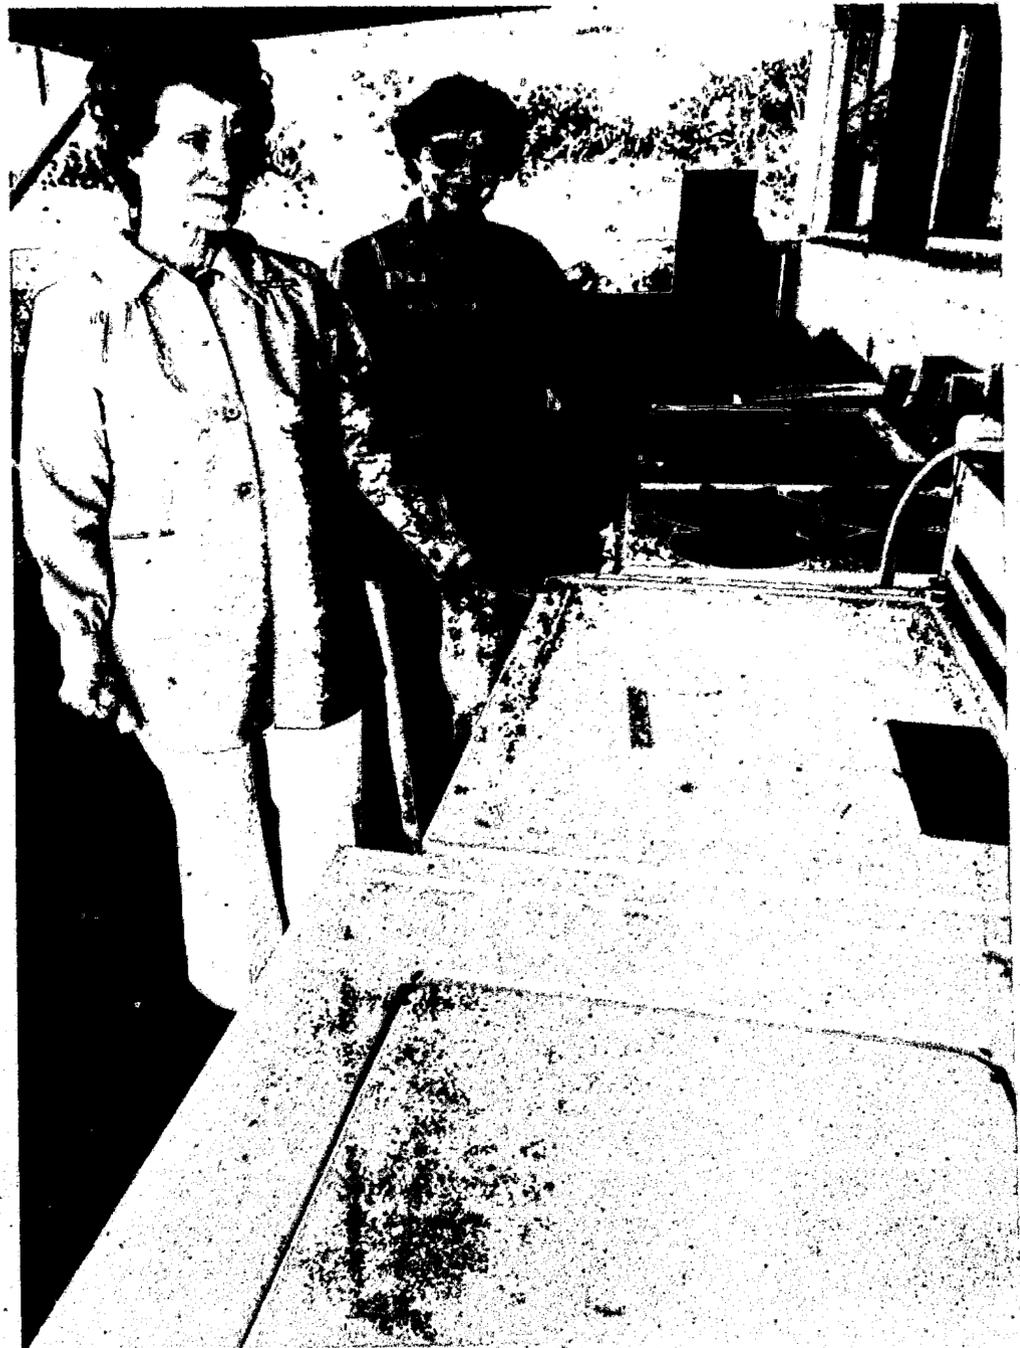

The Thrift Shop is located adjacent to the Mid-town Mart on Sud-derth Drive. Previously owned clothing makes up a major portion of the inventory, but the shop also provides used appliances, housewares, knick-knacks, and so on.

All materials for sale are donated by area residents, and just about anything usable is accepted. This year's co-chairwomen for the Thrift Shop project are Gladys Sadler and Mary Ann Jennings. Anyone who wishes to donate items for sale should contact Sadler at 257-2442 or Jennings at 257-4717. The group will pick up the items if transportation is a problem for the contributor.

The Pink Ladies are also seeking donations of building materials, in order to expand the shop. Anyone who wishes to donate such materials also should contact one of the chairwomen.

Keyes said she wanted to express thanks to "everyone for donations and help given to me during my year as chairwoman." The success of the shop, she said, "has been fantastic."

I-n-s-i-d-e the Outdoors

by Gary Dollahan

I don't know if it was the squirrel chattering or my wife elbowing me (or vice versa) that woke me unusually early one Saturday morning. Regardless, being the light sleeper that I am, my eyes popped open wide as I clutched a portion of my rib cage that felt like it had been hit by a Mack truck.

My senses apparently were extremely acute this morning as it took me only a minute or so to deduce that it was time to get up. I dragged myself out of bed and started my usual morning ritual.

First, I got dressed and staggered to the front door and looked out the little window to see what kind of weather the day had in store. It was a calm, warm, sunny beautiful morning.

Next, I found my way to the kitchen where I greeted my wife with a good morning kiss and gave my dog a pat on the head, or vice versa.

I commented to my wife how ambitious she must be to already be so deep in a load of laundry this early in the morning. She was quick to point out that this was her third and last load and that it was already 11 a.m.

Intuition warned me this was probably not the proper time to suggest we spend the rest of the day fishing at the local lake. Nevertheless, I did so anyway.

Now, my wife has a great sense of humor and a sharp wit, both of which were exemplified in her spontaneous response of "HA!" I acknowledged her clever reply with a little "heh-heh" of my own.

When she grabbed me by the ear and headed toward the front door with me, I knew we were about to play one of our favorite games, called "I want to go fishing, but no you're going to work around the house."

Now, my wife is a great actress. She can really look serious when she points to the lawn mower, then to the trees that need trimming, then to the storage shed that needs cleaning, then to the car that needs washing, and so on. That acting attribute, accompanied by her vivid imagination for all those things needing to be done, sometimes give her an alight edge in the game.

Of course, we all have a little acting ability in us. Therefore, I am proud of the way I can break into tears, throw myself on the ground, and carry on like a blubbering idiot. My wife recognized this ability.

"You blubbering idiot," she said. "We went fishing last weekend, the weekend before that, and you have even been a couple of times during the week, so, why can't we stay home this weekend and get some chores done around the house?"

It was at this stage of the game that she would begin to employ some unfair tactics. She would pretend to get tears in her big brown eyes and make her voice sound shaky.

Her downfall though, was when she began referring to petty items not at all relevant to the issue on hand, things like having only $50 in checking while the refrigerator was empty, the cupboard was bare, the dog has been out of food for 3 days already, and it was still 10 days to pay day.

She would also comment on the expense of the gasoline needed to make the trip to the local lake (editor's note - the local lake in this case is 100 miles away).

I counterpointed with the fact we would have fish to eat until pay day, the dog could beg off of the campers at the lake, and I could use my credit card for gasoline. And, more importantly, we would still have $50 with which to buy books, minnows, and some of the hot new bass plugs.

It was also good logic to point out to her this might be the last day of good fishing weather all summer, so we might not get another chance to go.

I can always tell when my logic would soak in and she was ready to admit defeat in the game, because she ran sobbing to the bedroom and slammed the door behind her, screaming all the while for "Mother." Oh, she's a great loser, in addition to being a great actress.

So, first I loaded all the fishing gear in that gas guzzling pickup to get ready for a fun day at the lake.

Next, I went into the back yard to get the dog, which apparently was waiting in ambush for the first free meal to come her way. She instantly attached her mouth to the fleshy part of my leg below the left knee.

I eventually was able to tear her loose, and decided to go ahead and buy her a can of dog food to hold her until we got to the lake.

The last chore was to get my wife from the bedroom where she was still sulking (I guess from losing the game) and get her into the pickup. After I promised to do a few chores around the house when we got back (if it wasn't too late, heh-heh), she decided to go as I carried her in a half nelson hold to the truck.

So, there we were, all loaded and ready to go. Just one big happy family on the way to a local lake for a day of fun. But, then that's another story.

[Editor's Note: In an earlier column, Gary Dollahan wrote of his efforts to plan a fishing trip, against his wife's wishes. What follows is the account of the trip itself.]

I have always prided myself on my ability to prepare of a fishing excursion in just a matter of seconds. Those fake tears (what a clever gal) in my wife's eyes had hardly begun to dry when I had already loaded seven rods and reels, five tackle boxes, two minnow buckets, a minnow seine, a portable aerated live-well, a 12 volt battery, an ice chest with ice, a fish basket, two fillet knives, and the dog.

After a quick stop at a local shopping complex to get my wife some aspirin, my dog a can of food, and myself a half dozen of those new sure-fire bass plugs, we were finally on our way.

As we left the city limits on our 100 mile drive to the lake I said, "It's a perfect day for fishing. That clear sky, warm temperature, and no wind should really have those big fish biting."

Ten miles further down the road we hit a head wind that seemed to blow the gas gauge right off of the dash. At about the halfway point, the main tank gave its final cough of exhaustion and I switched to the auxiliary tank. My wife slipped little lower into the seat and appeared to be breaking into a cold sweat.

I asked her tenderly if she was getting car sick. The look I got could have curled the whiskers on a catfish. I immediately changed the subject by saying, "It's a perfect day for fishing. That hot, strong wind should really stir the big fish up." The conversation subsided for the remaining miles.

Nearing the lake, we could see the only cloud in the sky had firmly planted itself over the lake. It was a dark, wet looking cloud. We proceeded around the lakeside to pick up our boat which we leave parked at a friend's house. In just a matter of minutes, I was backing our rig down the launching ramp.

Upon slowing to a stop to make final preparations for the launch, our dog jumped from the back of the truck and headed straight for a handful of people who were braving the cloudy sky and strong winds for a swim.

I don't know if it was my frantic shouting of the dog's name or the awesome view of a black headed Labrador, slobbering freely at the mouth (she's always been a big slobberer), heading straight toward them that caused the panic. Now the dog has always liked the water and the commotion was just more than the two year old canine could stand. She hit the water in a flying leap.

Again, I shouted her name while pleading for obedience. "Jaws, come!" "No, Jaws, no!" It was no use though, the dog wanted to join the swimming party.

The dog was gaining rapidly none on the wildly shrieking mob which was beating the water to a froth. What happened next you may not believe, but it's the truth.

A handful of people outswam the dog, made the shoreline and took refuge in a variety of available cover. The only person who didn't outswim the dog took to the top of the water, broke into a run, hit the shoreline without breaking stride and disappeared over the horizon.

Jaws decided this wasn't so much fun anyway and came back to the ramp. As the swimmers began to come from their hiding places, the dog and I were in the boat and my wife was backing the rig into the water. Encouragement from both myself and the mob prompted her backing maneuver and the boat was afloat.

The whitecaps pushed the dog and me toward the middle of the lake as I searched for the key. Finally, I found it, put it in the ignition and turned the key. Nothing happened, the battery was dead. I grabbed the paddle and started fighting the waves back to the ramp. It seemed like days before I was able to reach the courtesy dock where my wife was standing.

I looked up at her as I rubbed my sore arms, now the size of bass bellies, and I saw a smile form on her lips. We got the battery jumped, the motor started and headed for my favorite shoreline.

I commented, "It's a perfect day for fishing. The cloudy, cold, windy day should really make the big ones bite."

Now my boat isn't one of these high angled bass boats. It's merely a tri-hull that has been altered to accommodate bass fishing. I've added a platform with swivel chair, an electric trolling motor, a depth sounder, etc. (I guess you'd call it a half-bass rig.) Anyway, I pulled my boat to a stop and began selecting a plug.

I picked a newly purchased one with a photo finish of a gizzard shad that had rotating eyes, a vibrating tail, a super sonic rattle, and a deep diving lip. My wife selected one I heard her call "a cute little guy" (disgusting, huh?) It was an old beat-up plug that resembled a chrome plated popsicle stick with hooks. I laughed to myself.

Her first cast bounced off the shoreline, fell on a rock, snagged some moss and disappeared with a splash into the water. Again, I laughed, but was quickly silenced when she said, "I got one." Her rod bent double as she pulled a big bass to the boat.

In the next three hours she boated seven nice bass to my one little sunfish. She offered me her plug. I sheepishly refused it. Soon it was time to go home. I mean, a guy can only take so much of all this fun.

Despite my wife's pleas to stay a little longer, I loaded the boat on the trailer, left it at my friend's house, and started our journey home. My wife relived the battle of every bass she caught. I pretended to ignore her and pouted as I solemnly drove.

The next morning (Sunday) my wife woke me with her comment, "It's a perfect day for fishing. I'll bet we could really catch some big ones today."

I explained to her that people can't fish all the time. After all, the lawn needs mowing, the trees need pruning, the shed needs cleaning, the car needs washing, and so on.

News maven Marash on 20/20

Investigative reports by Dave Marash appear regularly on '20/20,' the ABC News prime time weekly magazine program. Mr. Marash joined ABC News as a New York-based correspondent in April of 1978.

Illustrative of the '20/20' investigative stories he has done over the last year, is a probe of a Suffolk County, N.Y., sewer scandal which gave one of the clearest pictures on television of how a graft system works. The American Bar Association is now using a cassette of the report for seminars on white collar crime.

Another Marash report covered Great Britain's Jeremy Thorpe affair, that nation's biggest political scandal in years. Afterward Scotland Yard announced that the examination of a chief prosecution witness, Andrew Newton, which aired on '20/20,' was so damaging to the state's case, that Scotland Yard recommended that he not be used as a prosecution witness.

Mr. Marash came to ABC News from WCBS-TV News where he co-anchored 'The Eleven O'Clock Report.'

In 1976, Dave won the New York Area Emmy Award for 'outstanding feature news reporting' as writer of 'Dave Marash's Mideast Journal,' a ten-part series on the Arab-Israeli conflict. His other honors include the 1972 Overseas Press Club Award for his coverage of the terrorist invasion of Israeli quarters at the Olympic Games in Munich. The Brandeis-Kallen chapter of the American Jewish Congress honored Mr. Marash with their 'Realism in Media Award' in March, 1975.

The versatile reporter has a Bachelor's degree from Williams College in English literature and has done graduate work in that subject at Rutgers University. Born in Atlanta, Georgia, and raised in Richmond, Virginia, Mr. Marash lives with his wife and three stepsons in New York City.

The Harts (Robert Wagner and Stefanie Powers, rear), with the help of Max (Lionel Stander), invade the psychic world as a fortune teller and a cheap detective in order to trap a murderer whose victim had a psychic link with her twin sister in 'Sixth Sense,' on ABC-TV's detective/drama series, HART TO HART, Tuesday, July 1.

BOUND FOR GLORY

The story of folksinger Woody Guthrie is told in 'Bound for Glory,' starring David Carradine (pictured), to be broadcast for the first time on network television on 'The CBS Tuesday Night Movies,' TUESDAY, JULY 1 on CBS-TV.

'Bound for Glory' was awarded an Oscar for its musical score, based on Guthrie's own music, and one for Haskell Wexler's cinematography. In addition, it was nominated for best picture, best screenplay based on material from another medium (Guthrie's 1943 autobiography), film editing and costume design.

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT At 63 Dean Martin says he's lonely and looking to get married again. And though most of his fans see him as a swinger, Dean confesses that he's not that way at all. "I'm a stay at home," he told me in Hollywood. "My idea of an evening's fun is playing cards or Scrabble or Monopoly. I'm not really interested in dating a whole bunch of women. I guess you could say I'm old-fashioned." Dean says the girl he'd like to marry must be the Italian type of woman whose whole life revolves around her husband. "I don't want to look like Sophia Loren, but she must be a pal—cook superbly and spoil me. I'd be the center of her world." Martin, the Mr. Cool of TV, has been married three times and he's the father of seven kids. "No more kids," he emphasizes. "I love 'em. I've got 'em, but I'm too old to put up with 'em anymore. I just want a good woman to look after me." Jim Palmer will not only be pitching curves for the Baltimore Orioles, but for Jockey International's underwear and sportswear lines as well. The three time Cy Young Award winner has already created a stir among the country's female population with his award-winning form, and I don't mean pitching. Watch out Bert Reynolds.

CONSUMER NEWS WIRE Look for former Charlie's Angels star Shelley Hack to join the Dallas clan on CBS next fall. A source at Lorimar Productions, creator of the top-rated prime time soap opera, reveals Shelley has been offered the role of a super-bitch who gives Larry Hagman's nasty J.R. character a run for his money. Which lends credence to the persistent rumors that Mary Crosby's saucy Kristie character is destined to disappear from the Dallas cast early next season. And that, in turn, might indicate she was the one who shot J.R. in the show's cliffhanger final episode of the season last March. The battle over Battlestar Galactica has finally begun with Star Wars director George Lucas suing Glen Larson, producer and creator of Galactica. Lucas charges the TV show is a direct imitation of his movie and the case will go to court in July.

TV CLOSEUP Wayne Rogers may be famous for playing TV doctors in House Calls and M*A*S*H, but he doesn't believe in Dr. Kildare types. He says, "I'm a firm believer in holistic medicine. I think most illness is mental. I think the only reason John Wayne lived so long is that he just refused to die." Things are looking more serious between 'Dukes of Hazzard' co-star John Schneider and his girlfriend Melinda Naud, who starred on Detective John. John has taken Melinda to meet his family and the two lovebirds are now living together in the same nest. "Nobody could be as stupid as Perkins on 'The Misadventures of Sheriff Lobo,'" says Mill Watson, the actor who plays the dumb cop. In fact, Perkins' stupidity started as a joke between Watson and Claude Akins, who plays Lobo. "Claude and I were filming the first episode and just kidding around," Watson said. "The cameraman kept right on filming what we were doing. The next thing I knew the brass had seen it and it was written in the scripts. After that it was a complete character change. In the first show I was mean—one of the nastiest characters you've ever seen. But after that one show I became a buffoon."
