A TANGLED ARRAY of wire, metal and plastic is about all that's left of the cockpit of the helicopter that crashed Thursday morning near Sierra Blanca Ski Area. Incredibly, all three occupants survived.

A helicopter on an archaeological survey flight near Sierra Blanca Ski Area crashed in an aspen grove Thursday morning, injuring the three persons aboard.

Injured were the pilot, Earl McIntosh, 46, Ruidoso, Bill Streeter, 38, Ruidoso and Mark Wimberly, 39, Tularosa. All three were admitted to Ruidoso-Hondo Valley Hospital (RHVH).

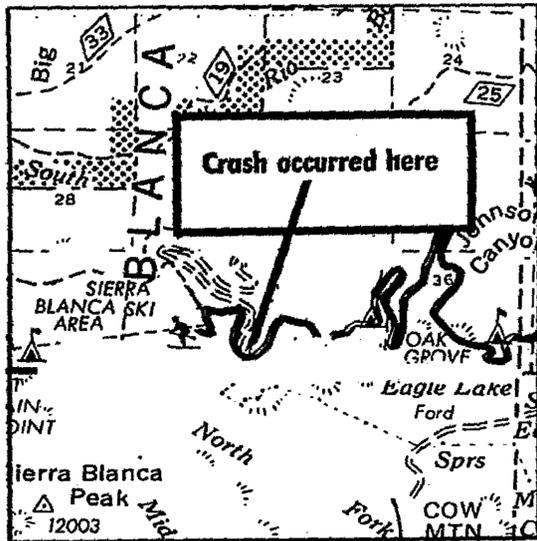

McIntosh came out of the crash almost unscathed, witnesses said, and was treated and released from RHVH. Streeter remained hospitalized Friday morning with lacerations and bruises.

Wimberly suffered severe head and chest injuries and was airlifted to El Paso's Providence Hospital. He was hospitalized and was in critical condition Friday morning.

The Bell 47 single rotor helicopter was leased to the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA), and was being used at the time to shoot pictures of possible archaeological sites on Buck Mountain, one of the rugged peaks near the ski area.

At about 8:50, McIntosh sent out a distress signal, saying he was having

Downs trustees meeting tonight

The Ruidoso Downs trustees will meet at 7:30 tonight at the municipal building. Major agenda items include acceptance of a contract for an emergency water line, proposed water rate changes, an easement request and a discussion of the upcoming annual Municipal League conference.

Home intruder, caught in act, not arrested

Just after midnight Saturday, Ruidoso police were advised that an intruder was in the home of Johnny and Wayne Nall at 136 Davis Drive.

The police immediately responded to the call and did observe the intruder in the Nall residence.

The officers made no attempt to arrest the intruder — a foraging, potentially ferocious, hungry, big brown bear.

The bear entered the Nall home through the east kitchen window. When the police arrived, the bear tore the screen on a north window to escape. Apparently he then sized up the opposition, because he made his retreat through the east entry window and disappeared into the forest.

The officers were of the opinion that as long as this intruder wasn't provoked into launching an attack, that they would leave well enough alone and bear up under whatever criticism might come their way.

June building permits totalled $699,780

Building permits for June totalled $699,780 in estimated construction costs, down $44,120 from May's permits, which were $743,900, according to Emory Hatcher, zoning officer for the village of Ruidoso.

Building starts are up from June a year ago, when permits totalled $548,560.

Permits issued are listed below by subdivision, type of structure and estimated total construction cost.

John Howden not cited in car accident

The News erroneously reported that John Howden was cited by Ruidoso police following a Tuesday car/motorcycle accident on Hull Road.

The investigating officer advised The News Saturday morning that Michael Cullens, 27, Ruidoso, would be cited under a "obedience to required traffic control devices," statute.

GOP endorses Lee for Senate

Lincoln County members of the Republican Central Committee, meeting Tuesday in Carrizo, unanimously approved Charles Lee of Alamogordo as their choice for a Republican candidate to replace State Senator John Conway.

The recommendation will be forwarded to the state central committee, which will make the final decision on a candidate to be placed on the general election ballot.

Dandy Binge wins Billy The Kid 'cap

Dandy Binge, a colt who was forced to sit out his entire three-year-old season due to physical problems, turned in a front running victory in Sunday's Billy The Kid Handicap at Ruidoso Downs.

The Billy The Kid, traditionally a testing round for the top handicap talent in the Southwest, covered seven furlongs and offered a $10,970 purse.

Dandy Binge got the lead in the first jump and never let go. He fought off a few mild attacks throughout the journey, then accelerated at the turn for home. It was an easy romp down to the wire. The colt, perfectly ridden by Wayne Buehrer, hit the tape with a 3/4 length lead.

The winning time of 1:29 flat established a new seasonal record. It was a full second faster than the previous mark. Dandy Binge a four-year-old, is owned by V. J. Gallaway of Hobbs. Billy Hitt does the training.

Dandy Binge went off as a 5-2 second favorite in the eight head field and collected $5,582. That pushed his 1980 bank account up to $5,816. His current mark stands at two wins from three outs.

Last year, the colt was kept on the shelf while being bothered by persistent leg

IT'S BILLY HIMSELF — Bill Shreengost, who plays Billy The Kid in the August 1-3 pageant at Old Lincoln, was in the winner's circle to make the victory award for the Billy The Kid Handicap at Ruidoso Downs. The trophy was accepted by V. J. Callaway of Hobbs, the proud owner of the impressive winner, Dandy Binge. Trainer Billy Hitt and jockey Wayne Buehrer were also on hand.

Mule Skinners' Festival program plans complete

Program plans for the Mule Skinners' Festival at Ruidoso Downs Race Track, September 26-28, have been announced by Ed Hyman, president of the Ruidoso Downs Mule Skinners.

The stakes races, open to the world, included:

Sierra Blanca Stakes, 400 yards, $750 added purse, September 26. Total purse with ten entries, $2,250.

Aspenade Stakes, 350 yards, $750 added purse, September 27. Total purse with ten entries, $2,250.

The Mule Skinner Stakes, four furlongs, $500 added purse, September 28. Total purse with ten entries, $1,500.

The Ruidoso Downs Stakes, 400 yards, $1,000 added purse, September 28. Total purse with ten entries, $3,000.

Nominations are being accepted for two special races this year:

Long Ears Derby, for three year olds, 330 yards, $1,000 added purse, September 27. Total purse with ten entries, $3,000. If more than ten mules are nominated, trials will be run September 26, with finalists selected by positions.

Four Year Olds Classic, 350 yards, $1,000 added purse, September 28. Total purse with ten entries, $3,000. If more than ten mules are nominated, trials will be run September 26, with finalists selected by positions.

The four stakes races, Derby and Classic will be run with 135 pounds. The purses in these six races will be split 50 percent to first, 25 percent to second, 15 percent to third and 10 percent to fourth.

All other races will be written to accommodate the mules on the grounds with races slated for non-starters, non-winners, two year olds, three year olds and four years old and up.

"The Mule Skinners," Hyman said, "will have races for any and all mules brought to Ruidoso Downs for our second annual Festival. The interest being shown by the owners of racing mules all through the Southwest means, to us, that we'll have a tremendous three days of mule races this fall."

"We also know that our purses are the largest being paid, anywhere, for mule races. The Derby and Classic, with $3,000 purses, will attract some of the finest racing mules, because the owners just don't get the chance to race their mules for that kind of money anyplace else."

"And this isn't taking anything away from the races that we'll write at the track. Some of these mules will do some surprising things, which is what makes mule racing the interesting sport it is."

Prior to the races, Hyman said, mules will make a timed qualifying run to put them into their proper rating group, A, B, C or D, with A being the fastest and D the slowest.

Chariot Races will be held each of the three days, with the schedule including:

September 26 — Mini Mules, 50 inches or less, 250 yards, with $350 added purse;

Mules, 51 inches and up, 350 yards, with $350 added purse.

September 27 — Mini Mules, 250 yards, $500 added purse; Mules, 350 yards, $500 added purse.

September 28 — Mini Mules, 250 yards, $500 added purse; Mules, 350 yards, $500 added purse.

Relay Races, with three mules to be entered by the racing team, will offer a minimum purse of $250 per race. "These relay races," Hyman said, "with the riders having to saddle and unsaddle the mules three times are one of the biggest crowd pleasers we'll have. Anything can happen, and always does, in a relay race."

Arena Events are scheduled all three days, with the action including heading and heeling with three steers, three loops, progressive after two; steer break away, barrel racing, cutting contest and halter class.

Local teachers salaries rank seventh in state

Certified staff members of Ruidoso Independent Schools have been given the seventh highest salary schedule within the state for the 1980-81 school year, according to figures released by the Department of Public School Finance (DPSF).

Bonnie Brock Wood, spokeswoman for the DPSF, said the average salary actually paid teachers may be higher in some schools because many of the teachers have taught in those districts many years.

She said Jal has the highest average salary, at $19,715 per year, with Lovington ranking second at $18,166. Other schools and their salaries, in order are:

Silver City, $18,927; Coora, $18,779; Los Alamos, $18,731; Deming, $18,688; Ruidoso, $18,632; and Hobbs at $18,502. The DPSF supplied The News with salary schedules from Raton, Capitan, Farmington, Alamogordo, Artesia, Deming, Las Cruces, Roswell, Taos, Lordsburg, Los Alamos and Ruidoso for the 1980-81 school year.

Salaries from all these schools are given for five years' experience under four columns (BA+15, BA+45, MA+15 and engine trouble. Apparently the engine stalled and the helicopter lost power, officials said.

The craft nosed into a grove of aspen trees, topping them before turning over and crashing upside down.

The helicopter was completely demolished, and little is salvageable, officials said.

"If you had told me nobody died in this, I wouldn't have believed you," said sergeant Vincent Hubbard of the BIA police.

The men were in the area about an hour before help arrived, officials said. Assistance came from Lincoln National Forest Service Rangers, Mescalero Apache Tribe Forest Rangers, New Mexico State Police, Lincoln County Sheriff's Office and Ruidoso Ambulance Service.

Rescue efforts were slowed by the rugged terrain and poor access to the crash site, approximately a quarter mile from the ski area. The helicopter was several hundred yards away from the highway and was in dense forest.

McIntosh was relatively unhurt, Hubbard said, and apparently directed rescuers to the scene.

Although the chopper's gas tanks were nearly full, there was no explosion. Streeter was able to move out of the helicopter without assistance. Wimberly was carried by stretcher to the ambulance.

Federal Aviation Administration officials came to the scene late Thursday to investigate the crash.

NEATLY TRIMMED by the helicopter's blades was this aspen.

INSPECTING THE WRECKAGE of Thursday's helicopter crash near Sierra Blanca Ski Area is Sergeant Vincent Hubbard of the Bureau of Indian Affairs police. The three occupants of the aircraft were injured, one critically.

THE AIRCRAFT flipped upside down and the cockpit — containing the three passengers — was practically buried. The pilot's seat is approximately a foot off the ground.

THE CRUMPLED FUSELAGE of the wrecked helicopter sits in a portion of dense forest near Sierra Blanca Ski Resort.

New airport commission eyes options

The Sierra Blanca Airport Commission (SBAC) held a brief meeting Thursday, in which the only official action taken was approval of the minutes of the June 20 meeting.

The minutes included four options which the SBAC is considering in their effort to locate a regional airport on Fort Stanton Mesa. These include:

- Continuing the effort to acquire Site A.
- Continuing to pursue Site B by invoking the Administrative Procedures Act, with the ultimate decision on acquisition of the site to be determined by the courts rather than New Mexico State University (NMSU) or the Bureau of Land Management (BLM).
- Requesting that the Mescalero Apache Tribe file a case to resolve the 1958 Administrative Procedures Act decision regarding management of the mesa lands.
- Waiting until the political climate changes.

At the Thursday meeting, commissioner Ben Hall quoted chairman Fred Heckman as saying that the SBAC would pursue the preferred SITE B.

problems. But as a two-year-old in 1979, he was a major stakes winner in the Southwest, collecting over $86,000.

The casual manner in which Dandy Binge polished off his Billy The Kid foes clearly established him as a major force in the current handicap picture at Ruidoso.

Vitenpost Jr., a double stakes winner at the meeting, was relegated to 14-1 status after conking out badly in the July 4 Governor's Handicap. But the four-year-old colt, nicely directed by Carlos Rivas, got back into the good graces of Ruidoso patrons by finishing second in the Billy The Kid 'cap. He settled in second soon after the break and refused to be knocked out of that slot. The runnerup purse amounted to $2,413.

Duquessa, a filly who's developed a reputation as an allowance specialist at Ruidoso, turned in a game performance as a 7-1 shot. She moved briskly out of seventh place to bag third place money of $1,097. She hit the wire only a length behind Vitenpost Jr. Leroy Coombs was up.

Dandy Binge returned tote payoffs of $6.80, $4 and $3.20. Vitenpost Jr., was good for returns of $9.40 and $4. Duquessa handed out a show price of $3.80.

The main disappointment in the Billy The Kid 'cap was Saurkraut, ace of the Jess Burner Stable. The gelding went into the affair with a three race streak which included a sharp upset in the Governor's Handicap.

This time, Saurkraut settled about five lengths off the pace, made a few mild moves down the backstretch run, but lacked sufficient closing wallop. He ended up fourth.

For jockey Buehrer, the Billy The Kid victory was a key success. It was his first stakes win of the meeting and his sixth victory since the start of the July 4th weekend.

Ruidoso racing resumed today at 1 p.m. THAT'S RANEY, the colt who ran into difficult times after earning nearly $145,000 last year, got back on the winning trail in Saturday's Zia Stakes at Ruidoso Downs.

But the colt had to run for all he was worth in order to pull out a silver-thin victory over the 8-1 outsider, Easy Dame.

The Zia Stakes, restricted to New Mexico bred three-year-olds, offered a total pot of $7,500. That's Raney collected $4,500 and returned tote payoffs, of $4.60, $3.40 and $3. Steve Fuller was in the saddle.

That's Raney, breaking out of the number 8 post position, wasted no time going to the front. But Easy Dame, handled by Jackie Martin in the number 2 slot, was also full of early run. With the two leaders separated by so much distance — one on the rail, the other toward the outside — it was difficult to tell which was in the lead.

As the field zipped down to the wire, Easy Dame seemed to take control, but was unable to hold off That's Raney in the final strides. It was a two horse race all the way.

That's Raney is trained by Hugh Tucker. The colt is owned by Tucker and Bill Redd of Abilene, Texas. The winning time was 20.55 seconds.

Easy Dame, owned by the Harriet Peckham Interests, of Roswell, collected $1,650 for second. The mutual returns were $5.80 and $4.

Power Swivel, a 40-1 longshot directed by Darrell Blevins, advanced out of fourth place to take third, ¾ lengths behind Easy Dame. The show price on Power Swivel was $8.

Brown Wind, the colt who ran last in the July 6 Rainbow Derby, was made a 5-2 shot in the Zia Stakes but never managed to get in contention. He ended up fourth.

BLACK AT THE WIRE, a colt ridden by Charles Mueller, took control at the midway point of Friday's headliner at Ruidoso Downs.

From that point on, it was no contest. Black At The Wire began pouring it on at the top of the stretch, and when he hit the wire, he was romping with a 3¾ length lead.

The colt covered the seven furlongs in 1:30 flat and returned mutual payoffs of $7.60, $4.20, $3. The consistent sprinter has now been in the money in nine of his last eleven spins. He's the property of Ellis Lee Ivey of Denver City, Texas.

Captain Double rushed well in the final half furlong to take second for payoffs of $4.40 and $3. Tree Topper, who flattened out a bit after moving briskly in the backstretch, got in third and paid $4.

Court Star, the lukewarm favorite, was never in contention and wound up fifth.

COUNTRY GAL gave his opponents no chance at all in Thursday's headliner at Ruidoso Downs.

The colt, owned by Norman Shell of Albuquerque, jumped into an early lead in the six furlong sprint.

At the half way point, he was four lengths on top, and going easily. The colt didn't require much encouragement from jockey Wayne Buehrer, but continued to pile up his lead anyway. He reached the wire with a stunning eight length win. The victory, his second in a row, was worth mutual returns of $4.80, $3.60, $3.40. He toured the distance in 1:16 2/5 seconds.

Lead Pipe Cinch, a 20-1 outsider ridden by Henry Uriegas, took second for returns of $12.80 and $6.20. The Lonier, an 11-1 darkhorse, moved well at the end to take third for a $5.20 show price.

Wagering record set

Another big wagering surge went through the Ruidoso Downs betting machinery over the weekend.

The fans bet a total of $1,879,346 during the four day period, a daily average of $469,836. Over the weekend 48 races were run for a stunning per race average of $39,153.

On the same weekend last year, $1,736,678 was wagered over the four days. That weekend comprised 52 races for a per race average of $33,396.

The daily average for the current weekend ($469,836) is up 8.2 percent over the daily average ($434,169) for this weekend last year. In the same period, the current per race average is a whopping gain of 17.23 percent.

So far this season (after 37 race days), the total handle stands at $15,927,515 for an average of $430,473. Last year at this time, 39 races days had been chalked up for an average of $411,517. The current average is up 4.6 percent.

So far this season, the fans are wagering $33,602 per race, which is a gain of 8.45 percent over the $30,983 at this point a year ago.

Doctors' seminar underway

Family doctors from around the country will gather July 14-17 to review some of the latest advances in the treatment of heart, lung and glandular diseases at the 23rd annual Ruidoso Family Practice Seminar.

The seminar, sponsored by the New Mexico chapter of the American Academy of Family Physicians (AAFP), usually attracts about 200 doctors to the Inn of the Mountain Gods.

Among topics slated for discussion are medical implications of nuclear energy, occupational medicine, exercise and cigarette smoking. The University of Kansas School of Medicine is host for this year's seminar. Five members of that school's faculty will conduct the clinical sessions and workshops. Two members of the University of Arizona Health Science Center will also address the group.

The national AAFP president, Dr. John S. Derryberry of Shelbyville, Tennessee, will speak at the seminar banquet July 15.

The president of the New Mexico chapter of AAFP is Dr. Warren Heifron of the University of New Mexico School of Medicine. Other officers are Dr. Jack E. DuBose of Hobbs, president-elect; Dr. John J. Smoker of Raton, vice president; and Dr. R. Kurt Nicewander of Albuquerque, secretary-treasurer.

Lodgers group meets Tuesday

The Ruidoso Lodgers Association will meet Tuesday at 9:30 a.m., at Ruidoso Public Library's meeting room.

Agenda items include election of a new board member to replace Bud Nickels, discussion of plans for the upcoming Arabian Horse Show, appointment of a lodger to the Aspenade Committee and representation of lodgers at monthly Lodger's Tax Committee meetings.

Three survived helicopter crash

engine trouble. Apparently the engine stalled and the helicopter lost power, officials said.

The craft nosed into a grove of aspen trees, topping them before turning over and crashing upside down.

The helicopter was completely demolished, and little is salvageable, officials said.

"If you had told me nobody died in this, I wouldn't have believed you," said sergeant Vincent Hubbard of the BIA police.

The men were in the area about an hour before help arrived, officials said. Assistance came from Lincoln National Forest Service Rangers, Mescalero Apache Tribe Forest Rangers, New Mexico State Police, Lincoln County Sheriff's Office and Ruidoso Ambulance Service.

Rescue efforts were slowed by the rugged terrain and poor access to the crash site, approximately a quarter mile from the ski area. The helicopter was several hundred yards away from the highway and was in dense forest.

McIntosh was relatively unhurt, Hubbard said, and apparently directed rescuers to the scene.

Although the chopper's gas tanks were nearly full, there was no explosion. Streeter was able to move out of the helicopter without assistance. Wimberly was carried by stretcher to the ambulance.

Federal Aviation Administration officials came to the scene late Thursday to investigate the crash.

NEATLY TRIMMED by the helicopter's blades was this aspen.

INSPECTING THE WRECKAGE of Thursday's helicopter crash near Sierra Blanca Ski Area is Sergeant Vincent Hubbard of the Bureau of Indian Affairs police. The three occupants of the aircraft were injured, one critically.

THE AIRCRAFT flipped upside down and was practically buried. The pilot's seat is approximately a foot off the ground.

THE CRUMPLED FUSELAGE of the wrecked helicopter sits in a portion of dense forest near Sierra Blanca Ski Resort.

New airport commission eyes options

The Sierra Blanca Airport Commission (SBAC) held a brief meeting Thursday, in which the only official action taken was approval of the minutes of the June 20 meeting.

The minutes included four options which the SBAC is considering in their effort to locate a regional airport on Fort Stanton Mesa. These include:

- Continuing the effort to acquire Site A.
- Continuing to pursue Site B by invoking the Administrative Procedures Act, with the ultimate decision on acquisition of the site to be determined by the courts rather than New Mexico State University (NMSU) or the Bureau of Land Management (BLM).
- Requesting that the Mescalero Apache Tribe file a case to resolve the 1958 Administrative Procedures Act decision regarding management of the mesa lands.
- Waiting until the political climate changes.

At the Thursday meeting, commissioner Ben Hall quoted chairman Fred Heckman as saying that the SBAC would pursue the preferred SITE B.

Dandy Binge wins Billy The Kid 'cap

problems. But as a two-year-old in 1979, he was a major stakes winner in the Southwest, collecting over $86,000.

The casual manner in which Dandy Binge polished off his Billy The Kid foes clearly established him as a major force in the current handicap picture at Ruidoso.

Vitenpost Jr., a double stakes winner at the meeting, was relegated to 14-1 status after conking out badly in the July 4 Governor's Handicap. But the four-year-old colt, nicely directed by Carlos Rivas, got back into the good graces of Ruidoso patrons by finishing second in the Billy The Kid 'cap. He settled in second soon after the break and refused to be knocked out of that slot. The runnerup purse amounted to $2,413.

Duquessa, a filly who's developed a reputation as an allowance specialist at Ruidoso, turned in a game performance as a 7-1 shot. She moved briskly out of seventh place to bag third place money of $1,097. She hit the wire only a length behind Vitenpost Jr. Leroy Coombs was up.

Dandy Binge returned tote payoffs of $6.80, $4 and $3.20. Vitenpost Jr., was good for returns of $9.40 and $4. Duquessa handed out a show price of $3.80.

The main disappointment in the Billy The Kid 'cap was Saurkraut, ace of the Jess Burner Stable. The gelding went into the affair with a three race streak which included a sharp upset in the Governor's Handicap.

This time, Saurkraut settled about five lengths off the pace, made a few mild moves down the backstretch run, but lacked sufficient closing wallop. He ended up fourth.

For jockey Buehrer, the Billy The Kid victory was a key success. It was his first stakes win of the meeting and his sixth victory since the start of the July 4th weekend.

Ruidoso racing resumed today at 1 p.m. THAT'S RANEY, the colt who ran into difficult times after earning nearly $145,000 last year, got back on the winning trail in Saturday's Zia Stakes at Ruidoso Downs.

But the colt had to run for all he was worth in order to pull out a sliver-thin victory over the 8-1 outsider, Easy Dame.

The Zia Stakes, restricted to New Mexico bred three-year-olds, offered a total pot of $7,500. That's Raney collected $4,500 and returned tote payoffs of $4.60, $3.40 and $3. Steve Fuller was in the saddle.

That's Raney, breaking out of the number 8 post position, wasted no time going to the front. But Easy Dame, handled by Jackie Martin in the number 2 slot, was also full of early run. With the two leaders separated by so much distance — one on the rail, the other toward the outside — it was difficult to tell which was in the lead.

As the field zipped down to the wire, Easy Dame seemed to take control, but was unable to hold off That's Raney in the final strides. It was a two horse race all the way.

That's Raney is trained by Hugh Tucker. The colt is owned by Tucker and Bill Redd of Abilene, Texas. The winning time was 20.55 seconds.

Easy Dame, owned by the Harriet Peckham Interests, of Roswell, collected $1,650 for second. The mutual returns were $5.80 and $4.

Power Swivel, a 40-1 longshot directed by Darrell Blevins, advanced out of fourth place to take third, 3/4 lengths behind Easy Dame. The show price on Power Swivel was $8.

Brown Wind, the colt who ran last in the July 6 Rainbow Derby, was made a 5-2 shot in the Zia Stakes but never managed to get in contention. He ended up fourth.

BLACK AT THE WIRE, a colt ridden by Charles Mueller, took control at the midway point of Friday's headliner at Ruidoso Downs.

From that point on, it was no contest. Black At The Wire began pouring it on at the top of the stretch, and when he hit the wire, he was romping with a 3/4 length lead.

The colt covered the seven furlongs in 1:30 flat and returned mutual payoffs of $7.60, $4.20, $3. The consistent sprinter has now been in the money in nine of his last eleven spins. He's the property of Ellis Lee Ivey of Denver City, Texas.

Captain Double rushed well in the final half furlong to take second for payoffs of $4.40 and $3. Tree Topper, who flattened out a bit after moving briskly in the backstretch, got in third and paid $4.

Court Star, the lukewarm favorite, was never in contention and wound up fifth.

COUNTRY GAL gave his opponents no chance at all in Thursday's headliner at Ruidoso Downs.

The colt, owned by Norman Shell of Albuquerque, jumped into an early lead in the six furlong sprint.

At the half way point, he was four lengths on top, and going easily. The colt didn't require much encouragement from jockey Wayne Buehrer, but continued to pile up his lead anyway. He reached the wire with a stunning eight length win. The victory, his second in a row, was worth mutual returns of $4.80, $3.60, $3.40. He toured the distance in 1:16 2/5 seconds.

Lead Pipe Cinch, a 20-1 outsider ridden by Henry Uriegas, took second for returns of $12.80 and $6.20. The Lonier, an 11-1 darkhorse, moved well at the end to take third for a $5.20 show price.

Wagering record set

Another big wagering surge went through the Ruidoso Downs betting machinery over the weekend.

The fans bet a total of $1,879,348 during the four day period, a daily average of $469,836. Over the weekend 48 races were run for a stunning per race average of $39,153.

On the same weekend last year, $1,736,678 was wagered over the four days. That weekend comprised 52 races for a per race average of $33,396.

The daily average for the current weekend ($469,836) is up 8.2 percent over the daily average ($434,169) for this weekend last year. In the same period, the current per race average is a whopping gain of 17.23 percent.

So far this season (after 37 race days), the total handle stands at $15,927,515 for an average of $430,473. Last year at this time, 39 races days had been chalked up for an average of $411,517. The current average is up 4.6 percent.

So far this season, the fans are wagering $33,602 per race, which is a gain of 8.45 percent over the $30,983 at this point a year ago.

Doctors' seminar underway

Family doctors from around the country will gather July 14-17 to review some of the latest advances in the treatment of heart, lung and glandular diseases at the 23rd annual Ruidoso Family Practice Seminar.

The seminar, sponsored by the New Mexico chapter of the American Academy of Family Physicians (AAFP), usually attracts about 200 doctors to the Inn of the Mountain Gods.

Among topics slated for discussion are medical implications of nuclear energy, occupational medicine, exercise and cigarette smoking. The University of Kansas School of Medicine is host for this year's seminar. Five members of that school's faculty will conduct the clinical sessions and workshops. Two members of the University of Arizona Health Science Center will also address the group.

The national AAFP president, Dr. John S. Derryberry of Shelbyville, Tennessee, will speak at the seminar banquet July 15.

The president of the New Mexico chapter of AAFP is Dr. Warren Heffron of the University of New Mexico School of Medicine. Other officers are Dr. Jack E. DuBose of Hobbs, president-elect; Dr. John J. Smoker of Raton, vice president; and Dr. R. Kurt Nicewander of Albuquerque, secretary-treasurer.

Lodgers group meets Tuesday

The Ruidoso Lodgers Association will meet Tuesday at 9:30 a.m., at Ruidoso Public Library's meeting room.

Agenda items include election of a new board member to replace Bud Nickels, discussion of plans for the upcoming Arabian Horse Show, appointment of a lodger to the Aspenade Committee and representation of lodgers at monthly Lodger's Tax Committee meetings.

Summer squash ideal for hot weather meal

Outdoor barbeque time is magic time, especially if it features summer squash in a vegetable dish created with culinary imagination.

This unusual recipe begins by sauteing chopped onion and green pepper in melted butter, with a touch of oregano. There's no substitute for the flavor of real butter, especially with vegetables fresh from the garden.

After the onion and green pepper are tender, add the quick cooking zucchini which has been prepared by washing and paring into quarter-inch thick slices. When the zucchini is cooked to the crisp stage, stir in tomato wedges, and finally, shredded Cheddar cheese for a zesty addition to the vegetables. The ingredients are as follows:

ZUCCHINI MILANO

6 servings

2 tablespoons butter
1/4 cup chopped onion
1/4 cup chopped green pepper
1/4 teaspoon oregano

4 cups sliced zucchini (1/4-inch thick)
1 tomato, cut in wedges
1 cup (4 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese

Dairy Council home economists recommend that "Zucchini Milano" be part of a balanced meal which might include grilled sirloin steak, baked potatoes with butter and sour cream, baking powder biscuits, apple pie a la mode, and chilled milk.

A quick look at the menu items reassures us that all the food groups (from the United States Department of Agriculture's food grouping system) are included: steak from the meat group; potatoes, apples and squash from the vegetable-fruit group; biscuits from the grain group; milk, ice cream, and sour cream from the milk group; butter and pie from the high calorie high fat group.

Eating a variety of foods from the four main food groups ensures a nutritious diet, and the food grouping system provides an easy way to keep track of getting the nutrients you need.

Rhuberry ice cream pie tasty, tangy summer dessert

The rhuberry doesn't grow on trees and it doesn't grow on bushes. In fact, it's a refreshing hybrid whipped up in the kitchen especially for hot summer days. And what could be more refreshing than the flavor combination of rhubarb and strawberries?

These two favorite fruits, one tart, the other sunshine sweet, make perfect partners in a colorful, mouth-watering glaze to serve over cold vanilla ice cream — right from the carton — nestled in a crunchy butter crumb crust.

Comparing the two fruits nutrition-wise, one cup of frozen, sweetened rhubarb (cooked) is higher in calcium than the same amount of strawberries (211 mg. compared to 40 mg.); higher in potassium (475 mg. compared to 318); and about twice as high in vitamin A.

Strawberries, on the other hand, are an excellent source of vitamin C, or ascorbic acid. A cup of strawberries contains 151 mg. of the nutrient compared to 16 mg. vitamin C in the same amount of rhubarb. It's easy to see why this delicious recipe is such a winning combination of fruits: the ingredients complement each other in nutrition as well as in flavor!

RHUBERRY ICE CREAM PIE

1 1/3 cups vanilla wafer crumbs
1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter, melted
1 quart vanilla ice cream
1 1/2 cups rhubarb, fresh or frozen, cut in 1-inch pieces
1/2 cup sugar

1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon water
3/4 cup sliced fresh strawberries

Combine crumbs and butter. Press mixture firmly against bottom and sides of a 9-inch pie plate. Freeze. Slightly soften ice cream by placing it in the refrigerator on defrost for 1-2 minutes. Spoon ice cream into crust; return filled crust to freezer. In a saucepan over medium-low heat, heat rhubarb and sugar, stirring occasionally, until sugar dissolves and mixture comes to a full rolling boil. Meanwhile blend cornstarch and water; stir into rhubarb. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened; cook 2 additional minutes. Cool.

Fold in strawberries; chill thoroughly. Spread strawberry-rhubarb glaze over ice cream; serve immediately.

State Fair featuring country music stars

Five top names of country music are booked to headline the Tingley Coliseum all-star rodeo at the 1980 New Mexico State Fair.

The lineup is Loretta Lynn, Larry Gatlin, Barbara Mandrell, The Oak Ridge Boys and Jana Jae. Each will appear for two days at the 10-night rodeo September 11 through 20.

Loretta Lynn, the reigning queen of country music, has been under consideration to headline the fair for several years, and officials are very pleased to have finally booked her. She will appear Thursday and Friday, September 11-12.

Larry Gatlin, named top male vocalist of the year by the Academy of Country Music, will be in the coliseum spotlight the first Saturday and Sunday, September 13-14. It will be Gatlin's debut at the New Mexico fair.

Barbara Mandrell, a top country performer with crossover appeal, will also be making her first appearance at the fair. She will be the rodeo headliner Monday and Tuesday, September 15-16.

The Oak Ridge Boys, who first starred at the New Mexico fair in 1978, are slated to be on stage Wednesday and Thursday, September 17-18.

Arson plagues Chimayo

Law enforcement officials will tell you that arson is the fastest growing crime in America today.

But nowhere is the increase as devastating as in the small northern New Mexico town of Chimayo.

Since January 1, 1980, there have been five arsons in and around Chimayo, which numbers some 900 residents and is famous for its Sanctuary.

The State Fire Marshall's Office indicates the arsons could be connected, but haven't been able to come up with any motives.

On January 1, a double wide mobile home was gutted by flames, followed on March 3 when a vacant house owned by Jim and Robin Knight was completely destroyed by fire. There were two other arsons reported in March. A house at nearby La Puebla was damaged and on March 27 a mobile home went up in flames.

Then on May 25, still another mobile home was destroyed by an arsonist.

This week the State Crime Stoppers Commission and the Chimayo Crime Stoppers Program are offering up to $2,500 in rewards for information leading to the solution of the arsons.

More than $100,000 in property damage has been caused by the arsons.

The most expensive fire occurred to the newly constructed home of Jim and Robin Knight. The two story structure was being built along State Road 76.

Knight told investigators that on Monday, March 3, at around 9:30 p.m., he was having dinner and received a telephone call from an unidentified woman who said, "Your house is on fire and it has burned completely down."

The State Fire Marshall's Office said in its report that fire damage to the structure was extensive.

"All wood structure components were consumed," investigator Tom Langhorst said in his report. "Two piles of lumber next to the house also were completely destroyed. And the adobe walls were damaged by intense heat. In addition to the house, a table saw, a radial saw and building materials stored within the structure were also destroyed."

Langhorst noted that there were no utilities connected to the house and that arson appeared to be the only logical cause.

The arson situation in Chimayo has become so intense, that citizens in the area recently formed their own Crime Stoppers program, aimed primarily at nabbing the culprit.

Anyone having any information which could solve any or all of the arsons is asked to call the State Crime Stoppers Commission at its tollfree number, 1-800-432-6933. Callers do not have to reveal their identities.

The State Crime Stoppers Commission and the 32 local Crime Stoppers programs also pay cash rewards on a regular basis for information leading to the solution of other major crimes in addition to the "Crime of the Week."

Crime Stoppers seeking killer

Most murder victims in America are killed by people they know.

Detectives feel John Roller, 18, of Placitas, was no exception. Roller was found shot to death in his trailer home in Placitas by his father on June 7.

Sandoval County Sheriff's Deputy Charley Potter was able to piece together the following facts about the murder: —Roller was last seen alive on June 6 around 10:15 p.m. by a friend.

—About two or three in the morning, someone driving a car with a small engine pulled up near space three at the Roller Trailer Court, where the victim lived.

—Roller, apparently recognizing the person knocking on his door, let the early morning visitor inside.

—Roller was then struck several times on the head, possibly with a gray Radio Shack flashlight — which disappeared from the trailer after the shooting, although five batteries and a plastic lens were found on the trailer's floor.

—The murderer placed Roller on the bed, wrapped the victim's hands with a blue and white nylon rope and then fired one shot from a large caliber pistol into the back of his head.

—Roller's trailer was ransacked by the killer, who took four guns, including a .380 caliber automatic pistol, a 12 gauge pump shotgun, a Ruger single action stainless steel .357 magnum pistol and a Ruger .223 caliber rifle with a four power scope.

—Before leaving, the killer also paused to take a Masonic sword with a chrome finish and ivory hilt, a Selko watch with a large face, blue dial and a steel band and $300 in cash.

Despite piecing together all this evidence and information, the Sandoval County Sheriff's Department has run out of definitive leads to identify the killer.

This week the State Crime Stoppers Commission is offering a $2,000 reward for any information leading to the solution of this murder. The Roller family is offering an additional reward.

The State Crime Stoppers Commission also offers cash rewards on a regular basis for information leading to the solution of other major crimes.

The State Crime Stoppers Commission toll free number is 1-800-432-6933. Callers to either the State Crime Stoppers Commission or any of the 34 local Crime Stoppers programs do not have to reveal their identities.

To date, a total of 1,843 crimes have been solved with the help of tips called into the combined local and State Crime Stoppers programs and more than $2.3 million in stolen property and narcotics have been recovered.

UNM's solar pond sets world hot water record

A solar pond at the University of New Mexico (UNM) has set a world temperature record for an open body of water heated entirely by sunlight by reaching 227 degrees Fahrenheit.

The temperature record had been held by Israel, where a solar pond near the Dead Sea reached a maximum temperature of 217 degrees Fahrenheit.

Previous experiments with the UNM solar pond have shown it to be capable of supplying the heating requirements for a 2,000 square foot house in Albuquerque for several months at a time.

The most suitable heating use for solar ponds at this time would probably be with apartment complexes or other relatively large scale space heating application.

Because the UNM pond has shown that high temperatures can be achieved by solar ponds, electrical generation is also a possible use for the heat.

The UNM solar pond works through high concentrations of table salt dissolved in the lower depths of the pond. When sunlight reaches these depths and heats the water there, the water remains on the bottom because of the weight of the salt instead of rising to the surface where the heat would be lost.

Eventually the water in the bottom of the pond becomes hot enough to be used to heat buildings, or even to run an electric generator.

"For the last few days we have had the highest temperature pond in the world," said Howard C. Bryant, professor of physics at UNM and principal investigator on the solar pond project.

He added, however, that the high temperature may cause the layered effect of water in the pond to become unstable, with the hot salty water from the bottom eventually rising to the surface and losing its heat.

Efforts are now underway to try to stabilize the pond. If this is successful, Bryant estimates that he and other researchers will be able to operate the pond at the present temperature level for about two more months.

Although the pond is hot enough to boil water under normal conditions, the water in the pond appears relatively quiet. One reason for this, Bryant said, is that the water at the bottom of the pond boils at a higher temperature than tap water because of the pressure of the water above it and because of its high salinity.

Another reason for the apparent calm is that any boiling which does occur starts with bubbles formed in the hot, lower depths of the pond. As the bubbles rise, they reach cooler layers of water where the steam in the bubbles is condensed back into water. The bubbles therefore mostly collapse before reaching the surface.

Powdery mildew attacks variety of home plants

Powdery mildew has been quite severe on cucumbers, roses, apples and other perennial plants this year. The disease can be quite devastating on other plants, such as zinnias, blue grasses, beans, grapes and cucumbers, said Emroy Shannon, Extension plant pathologist for New Mexico State University.

Mildew is commonly found when days are warm and nights are cool. Poor air circulation and damp, shaded locations also contribute to the cause of the disease.

Powdery mildew is caused by a fungus which spreads from plant to plant by windborne spores. There are several species of fungi that cause powdery mildew. Some species can infect only a few closely related host plants while others can attack many unrelated plants.

The fungus appears as white to gray moldy or powdery patches on leaves, stems and buds. The mildew spots may enlarge until they cover the whole leaf. Mildew is most severe on the young growth of foliage and stems. Many leaves will curl and become distorted.

The fungus can be kept under control by spraying with certain fungicides whose labels specify that they will control powdery mildew. These fungicides include Funginex, Systemic Fungicide with Binomyl, Actidione PM, Benlate, phalitan, karathane, parnon and sulfur. When spraying edible crops, make sure that the product is labeled for such use.

Spray at the first sign of the disease and repeat at 10 to 14 day intervals as long as the disease threatens to spread.

You can avoid the devastating effect of mildew by planting varieties resistant to mildew, Shannon said.

Robertson-Bryant take doubles

Waldman wins Tennis Classic title

BY MARK BAGBY
Sports Editor

Alan Waldman of Miami, Florida, defeated Rick Meyers of Abilene, Texas, in straight sets 7-5, 6-3, to win the singles title in the first Ruidoso Tennis Classic, played Sunday afternoon at Sierra Swim and Racquet Club.

Ruidoso's Dave Bryant and Collin Robertson of Sydney, Australia, won the doubles championship over Waldman and Meyers, going to split sets and two tiebreakers — 7-6, 4-6 and 7-6.

The championship matches were the culmination of four days of professional tennis in the first tourney of the new Rocky Mountain Pro Tennis Circuit.

"It was a pretty good tournament," tourney director Bryant said. "Response was about what I expected, since this is our first year. I think we'll have a better tournament next year, with better players."

Meyers chimed in, "No, don't get better players. The ones this year were tough enough."

Meyers, who graduated from Texas Christian University in May, gave the top seeded Waldman about all he could handle in their singles match.

Waldman, formerly ranked 14th in the United States and currently ranked in the top 200 in the world, used his powerful two handed backhand to good advantage in the first set, but Meyers played extremely well.

In fact, Meyers led 5-4 at one point and looked like he might win. But Waldman scored the first two points of the next game and then the game, tying it, 5-5.

The slim Waldman handily dispatched Meyers in the next two games to win the first set, 7-5.

The second set began similarly, with Meyers winning the first game, and Waldman tying it. They traded wins to tie it at three games apiece, and then Waldman won the next three, although Meyers forced the final game into deuce three times.

But Waldman triumphed to win the $500 first prize money.

In the doubles match, Robertson and Bryant had quite a bit of trouble with Meyers and Waldman. The first and third sets each went to twelve games and had to be resolved by 12 point tiebreakers.

In the first set, each team traded games until it was tied 6-6. Robertson-Bryant won the set, however, by winning the tie breaker 7-4, when a Waldman backhand went into the net.

Meyers and Waldman had little trouble in the second set. Waldman's uncanny placing of shots, which had deserted him at times in the first set, returned in the second, and an error-plagued Meyers lost his troubles for a while.

But Robertson-Bryant won the first game after an incredibly long exchange. Meyers-Waldman tied the set and each team traded wins until the ninth game, won by Meyers and Waldman.

The final game was a breeze, as Meyers-Waldman went 15-0, 30-0 and 40-0 before the winning point.

The problems of the first set came back for Meyers-Waldman in the third and final set, but once again, the set went to 12 games and a 12 point tiebreaker.

Robertson-Bryant had a chance to win it without the tiebreaker. With the score tied, 6-6, and down love-40 in the 11th game, they rebounded to win the game and took the lead, 6-5. It appeared momentum was on their side.

But Meyers-Waldman won the next game and forced the tiebreaker.

That was won by Bryant-Robertson, 7-5, and they won the set and match, 7-6, 4-6, 7-6.

Once again, Bryant expressed his thanks to the tournament sponsors: Don's Pharmacy, Marilyn Hart and Company, Thunder River Sheep Skin Company, Resort Properties Incorporated, Security Bank, Ruidoso State Bank, Perrett-Parks and Associates (Judy Meyer, Janet Warlick, Kadi Flynn, Gary Caughron), Pro Ski Sports, Western Auto, Dr. and Mrs. Paul Whitman, Wild West Ski Shop, Ski West Sports, and Ken Grider Trucking.

"Without the, we couldn't even have had the tournament," Bryant said.

Many of the pros will play in a tourney in Albuquerque next week, the second stop on the circuit.

ALAN WALDMAN of Miami Beach, Florida, won the first Ruidoso Tennis Classic singles title by defeating Rick Meyers of Abilene, Texas, 7-5, 6-3. Waldman and Meyers, however, lost the doubles crown.

Sportin' Life

... a column of opinion ...

by

Mark Bagby

Oops, pardon me — Leighayn Green, The News' classified advertising lady, took exception to my incredulity at Eric Heiden being invited to join the Italian bicycling team.

I figured having an Olympic champion speed skater on a bike was a horse of a different color, if you'll pardon the mixed metaphor.

Wrong, says Leighayn. Seems ol' Eric narrowly missed qualifying for the United States bicycling team for the Moscow Olympics, although now since they ain't going, he didn't miss too much.

(I presume she meant summer Olympics — riding a bicycle on the ice isn't easy, although it would make a heck of a sport to watch.)

Also, she told me, I shouldn't be so surprised that he and the Italian team are riding in Colorado. After all, the Red Zinger Bicycle Classic is known the world over among cycling aficionados. Obviously, I'm not one of 'em.

Then, on the other hand, Leighayn didn't know Abraham Lincoln was a famous wrestler. So was Theodore Roosevelt, while we're nitpicking.

How about them apples?

A job well done. Had the opportunity to talk with one of my favorite people last week, former soccer pro Bobby Moffat.

Moffat was here, of course, to conduct one of his famed soccer camps, and a success it was, to say the least. Sierra Swim and Racquet Club opened its facilities to the coaching staff Moffat brought with him, and local soccer buff Butch Grantham was beside himself.

"This is great," he kept saying, over and over. "The kids get all this stuff in the morning, and then we have coaches' clinics at night."

Those clinics were something else, I'm told. Moffat had the audacity to make those old guys work. Hard. Constantly.

"But it'll pay off in our program," Butch said.

If you've never had the opportunity to talk with Moffat, it's quite an experience. He just sort of bubbles at you, sticks out his hand and starts calling you, "My friend." It's sort of overwhelming... but he's a terrific guy. He also thinks Ruidoso is great and said he'll be back here for soccer camps and clinics as long as folks here want him.

Come on back, Bob — we love ya.

Other side of the coin

Then, on the other hand, there's the man you love to hate.

Howard Cosell. The name brings awful memories to mind. The times he's insulted folks in the past few years, and the idiocy he's perpetuated on the tube give a bad name to sportscasting.

And now — now — there's a — incredible but true — fan club for Howie.

Arrrrgh.

Membership consists of a certificate, signed by the club's president and vice-president, and a membership card and a five question test and opinion survey on you-know-who.

And don't forget the club's motto, which is proudly printed on bumper-stickers for those too shy to proclaim it to the Four Winds — "Kiss my Howie!"

This is for real, folks, and membership will cost you $5. It's located in Napa, California. Contact president Ron Greenslate, Box 3288, Napa, California, 94558.

(But even the officers don't take this too seriously — in the survey, you have to pick five words which best describe Humble Howard — here's the list — "egotistical, caustic, intelligent, erudite, verbose, sarcastic, pompous, loveable, narcissistic, overbearing, supercilious, entertaining.")

(A free ice tea to the person who can recite the meanings to all those words without looking them up.)

Thanks, Don

A big thank you to Don Driver, who donated a piece of land to Ruidoso Public Schools with the stipulation that any money earned from a sale of said land go to upgrading the track facility at White Mountain Middle School.

I've never met you, Don Driver, but thank you very much. Maybe now the Warriors won't have to go out of town for every track meet. And maybe they won't have to practice on a football field — during track season.

The news of that unselfish act made my day. Thanks again, Don.

Alto golf tourney set

The Snowcapper, the seventh annual member-guest golf tourney at Alto Lakes Golf and Country Club, tees off at 8:30 a.m., Tuesday with a mixed scramble.

Eighty teams are entered this year, forming four flights. The field is so large, tournament officials say, that the flights are split into two tee times — 8:30 and 1:30 each day.

Each flight will have prizes for the first five places, plus two cars for holes in one on number five and 11. Other prizes will be awarded for closest to the pin.

A variety of activities are planned for the week for those attending, including an afternoon at Ruidoso Downs, a luncheon at Holiday Inn, a casino party and a Friday evening awards dinner. Final play is Friday afternoon.

UGH! Trying to get a piece of the ball is Abilene, Texas, professional Rick Meyers. Meyers had a rough Sunday — he lost the singles title in the finals, and then was on the losing side in the doubles championships.

Says NMSU's Weldon Drew

Problems only beginning for college sports

BY MARK BAGBY
Sports Editor

The head basketball coach at New Mexico State University (NMSU) said last week he thinks college athletics are in for hard times.

Aggie head coach Weldon Drew was in Ruidoso last week to conduct a basketball clinic, and he said college athletics are feeling the pinch of inflation, facing the ever-increasing scrutiny of college officials and the "burden" of Title IX.

"Yeah, things are going to get interesting," Drew said. "Take recruiting, for example. We feel like we had a tremendous recruiting year. We got almost everyone we wanted to get, with the exception of Bubba Jennings (Cloviss star who signed with Texas Tech.)."

"A lot of the reason we didn't get Jennings is because we just don't have the budget to recruit, and it's getting more and more expensive. Most of our athletic budget is actually devoted to team travel. We have to travel to two time zones to play most of the schools in our conference."

"We can't really cut back on team travel, unfortunately. We have cut back on our recruiting budget, among other areas. That has hurt us. Someone like Wichita State may have $200,000 to recruit, and we have only $20,000."

But the Aggies still had a good recruiting year, Drew noted.

"We had five starters graduate," drew said. "That meant we had nine scholarships open, and we filled seven of them. We had three freshmen who were really coming on strong at the end of the season. With a little more experience, we think they'll be super ball players.

"But we had to have more experience now, so we went to the junior colleges more heavily than I like to. But I think we have a pretty good team in store for next year."

No matter where the players come from, Drew said, he demands academic excellence from them.

"What all this is about," he said, "is getting an education. If you're going to excel on the court, you've got to excel in the classroom too."

The education a college athlete receives will probably be examined more closely in the future, Drew said.

"I think they'll be taking a closer look at the academic situation from now on," Drew said. "I don't think anyone wants another situation like they had at UNM (University of New Mexico)."

"We had to keep identifying ourselves to a lot of people when we were recruiting," he said. "They'd hear 'New Mexico' and think, 'I've heard of these people.' I think it hurt our recruiting a little."

Another problem facing athletics, Drew said, is Title IX. Title IX is the recent federal ruling that decreed programs for men must be matched by programs for women.

"I don't have any thing against girls' sports," Drew said, "but something has to be done. A lot of schools — us included — can't afford to have two identical programs."

This has forced many schools to drop a program because it can't afford both. Then, "everybody loses," Drew said.

But finances will never be as great a problem at NMSU as at some place like UCLA, he said.

"We've never had much money," he said, "so we won't have to learn how to get along without it."

Although he admits he isn't crazy about Title IX, Drew is doing something positive about it. He's expanding his camp next year to two weeks, with the first week devoted to girls only, taught by an all-woman faculty. The following week will be roughly the same as this year.

"We've been spending the mornings working on fundamentals and skills," he said, "and I'm really pleased at the response we've been getting. The kids are learning very well, and I'm amazed at how fast such a large group (56 players) picked up what we've been trying to teach."

"Also, the people in the community have been tremendous, and all the school personnel have been so nice — it makes our jobs a lot easier. We're looking forward to coming back next year."

WITH THE BUY

MOVE NOW. GET THIS YEAR'S LINDAL AT LAST YEAR'S PRICE.

If you've been waiting and waiting for the new home market to take a turn counter to inflation, bless your patience. Because if you buy a custom design or any one of the 60 different Lindal Cedar Homes before July 15, you can pick it up for the exact same price we offered in Spring of 1979. In addition to our price roll back, we're offering 50% off on all energy saving options. Which, if you're counting dollars, could add up to a savings of $5,000.

Our only other requirement in this offer is that you take delivery on your new 1980 Lindal before September 15. That's it. With inflation, there won't be a better time to move than right now.

The Dreamer

BY DANNIE STORM

Services were held at ten o'clock July eleven at the Coe cemetery in Glencoe for our life-time friend, Robert Lee Boyce. Father Delbert Achuff, minister of the Episcopal Church in Lincoln County, led the service.

Bobby, as he was affectionately known to his hosts of friends and his loved ones, was a member of a pioneer Lincoln County family, and was born October twenty-two, 1918 at the Bonnell Ranch in Glencoe to Bob and Edith Boyce. He was called home by Our Lord from Alamogordo on July Fourth of this year.

His mother, Mrs. Edith Rigby of Alamogordo, is the former Edith Coe, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Coe, prominent in pioneer Lincoln County history.

Bobby graduated from Hondo High School and then went on to the New Mexico Military Institute where he graduated from Junior High School.

Of an extremely friendly and helpful nature, Bobby was gifted with a cowboy-type western wit which often brought a smile and a chuckle from friend and stranger alike. His cousin, Mrs. Paul H. Jones (Nellie Ruth) remembers how Bobby told of his football days at Hondo

High. "We didn't have uniforms," says Bobby, "we played in cowboy boots and Levis." During World War II Bobby was a captain in the Tank Corps, and took part in the great battles in Africa and later Italy.

After the war, Bobby came home and helped his mother run the Navajo Lodge in Ruidoso. The Navajo Lodge was a famous landmark in the early days of Ruidoso. It was a community center and meeting place. Before there was a church in Ruidoso, Episcopal services were held in the Navajo Lodge. Bobby was a life-long member of the Episcopal Church.

During the last few years, Bobby lived in Alamogordo, where he was engaged in heavy equipment work. A great lover of horses and horseback riding, Bobby made a trip to the top of the White Mountain with his father and mother on his own horse at the age of five.

He is survived by his mother, Edith Rigby; his daughter, Mrs. Jan Dean Reardon; and granddaughter, Courtney.

Bobby will be kindly remembered always by his many friends and loved ones, and we all take comfort in knowing that our dear friend is safe and happy with Our Lord in Heaven.

Juvenile caught with stolen money

Commissioners meet Tuesday in Carrizozo

Lincoln County commissioners will meet at 10 a.m., Tuesday in the courthouse in Carrizozo. Major agenda items to be considered include the hospital mill levy for Ruidoso and Carrizozo, a request from Nogal residents to ban mobile homes in the townsite, and opening of bids on culvert pipe and comprehensive general liability insurance.

A local juvenile was arrested Wednesday afternoon in possession of $75 in cash that had been stolen from a resident of the Barbara DiPaolo Apartments.

The apartment resident returned unexpectedly during the afternoon and she saw the youth, obtaining an accurate description. A Criminal Investigation Division officer of the Ruidoso Police Department recognized the culprit from the description given him. The youth was arrested shortly thereafter, with the missing money in his possession.

SANTA FE—It's been hot up here in the capital city, just as it has been wherever you are reading these lines.

And when the weather goes on making us suffer, day after day, sensitive folks get up tight.

Among the sensitive folks in this world—though you may not believe this—are the politicians.

(You think they have skins like rhinoceroses? Not so. What they want above all is to be loved—a gentle and soft desire which is seldom satisfied in this life.)

Example: Governor Bruce King. Observers here, looking at him from a variety of points of view (newspapers, old-time politicians and just general Roundhouse observers) feel he is a man who wishes he had not run for governor the second time.

"Weary of it all, and wishing he could fade silently away" is the way most of those folks see him as he moves toward the completion of half his current term.

None of us ever knows what the Governor's private life is like; all we are sure of is that, like all of us, he has one. Probably, like all of us, his is not one of unalloyed pleasure.

But we can see his public life—and that, despite his attempts to make it seem everything is just hunky-dory, is not going well at all.

Items: —This is a man who is so sick of the word "penitentiary" you can't believe it. He never meant for that place to blow up, and, while the heat scalds us all, he worries (rightly) that it just might blow up again.

—Here is a guy who is stuck with Jimmy Carter, whom he could not gracefully repudiate, while the Georgia Peach is more or less going down the electoral toilet. If, just by way of example, Bruce has his eye on the United States Senate in 1982, a crushing and embarrassing defeat for the Democratic candidate in his own state in 1980 will not be considered a positive thing. Yet what else has Jimmy got to look forward to here?

—There is something which might be called male political menopause, and the Governor is now experiencing it.

Let's say you have had one full term as head of the state of New Mexico. You sort of resurrect yourself when you come back to run again, and those who join you in that second run don't always have the spirit and joie de vivre of those who pushed for you the first time. Some of them, to put it simply, are a little bit bored—with you, the candidate, and with public life.

Now you've completed almost two years of the second term—with no known destination after this political job is over. Would you blame the folks in your top ranks who start looking for a place to jump to? (In any sensible group, those who start considering this possibility first are the smartest folks; the dummies, who give little and take much, will stick around forever. That, whether the Governor realizes it or not, is where the Bruce King administration finds itself at the present time.)

And there, in that last parenthesis, is the whole thrust of this column: They're about to leave you, Bruce—the good ones, the ones that matter—because you have concentrated too hard on pleasing some of your subordinates.

Too bad. This time you could have made a super record as governor, if you could only have kept your eye on the ball.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

When the idea of crosswalks first surfaced at the Retail Merchants Committee of the Chamber of Commerce it was presented to that committee by some downtown merchants who were concerned with the safety of our citizens and visitors who for years have had to cross Sudderth Drive at random dodging traffic.

The committee approached the village council and asked permission to have the safety engineers of the State Highway Department make a feasibility study and report back to the village council.

The village fathers gave their consent, the study was made and the engineers reported back to the council that their findings were that we needed six crosswalks and indicated their choice of placement. With the blessing of the village fathers the crosswalks were born and for the first time some order was given to crossing Sudderth and with the crossings limited to six places the police were assisted in enforcement. My personal experience is that when you step into a crosswalk the majority of motorists will stop for you. Those that don't would try for you regardless of where you are.

Then the prophet Cale Dickey appeared on the mountain and he lifted his arms and waved his staff over the valley of the Ruidoso and declared that his expert knowledge of such matters exceeds that of the safety engineers; that it is easier to police hundreds of crossing places than six; that all motorists are roaming Sudderth Drive looking for a victim.

So prolific was his pen that the Retail Merchants Committee became notorious and it is rumored that its chairman, Richard Sandoval, is being considered for the number two spot on the Republican National Ticket.

Could it be that when the bush was burning on the mountain it temporarily impaired the faculties of the prophet? Perhaps he should come down from the mountain and walk among us; soak his head in the cool waters of the Rio Ruidoso and cool it for a while.

Dear editor:

HOW HOT WAS IT?

To those who asked this question about the month of June weather — yes, it was hot and a lot hotter than last year.

Several years ago I started to keep a daily record of the weather — and — it's like eating peanuts — once you start you can't seem to stop.

Looking back at the month of June it turned out to be a lot hotter and drier than last year.

In 1979 June did not produce a 90 degree day. In 1980 there were 13 days where the temperature reached 90 degrees or more.

The average high temperature in 1979 was 77.1 degrees — in 1980 — 87.1 — exactly 10 degrees higher than last year.

In 1979 June showed 10 days of precipitation — only two showers in June 1980.

Let's hope that July 1980 will match last July when he had rain on 19 days.

We need the water.

MORE SUCKER BAIT

A SUCKER never learns. Yesterday in flipping through the mail we got our usual mailout from the Department of Sweepstakes from the Reader's Digest in Pleasantville, N.Y.

Finally wise, both consciously and subconsciously, to the folly of chasing the "You May Already Have Won" mailings, these regular mailings have of late been tossed straight into the waste basket without even being opened.

But this one was a switch. Peering at us through the glassine opening was a check with our name on it.

Now over the years we have carefully cultivated the ability to throw away mail unopened. This skill does not come easy and you have to rise above the nagging feeling that carried out to the trash may have been a $100 bill or at least an opportunity to get rich in all that junk, but rationally we have been able to realize that in so doing we have save a tangible 15 minutes a day for a very intangible will of the wisp that in the course of a whole lifetime would never be realized. We figured it's a good swap.

However, in all our years of practicing this discipline, we have never been able to bring ourselves to consciously throwing away a check. It plainly said it was for only 10 cents but by golly we just had to pull it out and have a look at it.

Sure enough, the check was real, and could be cashed at will with no strings attached, provided we got it to the bank before December 13, 1980. No, wait read the fine print. We don't put it in the bank, we send it back to Reader's Digest. For that they send us a 288 page book catalogue, and a chance to participate in, oh no, the Reader's Digest $275,000.00 Sweepstakes Contest.

Taken in again! After that sucker plunge we managed, but just barely, to resist opening the smaller shining gold envelope inside that promised, "Inside for you . . . a gold bar that could bring you $18,000.00 in REAL GOLD." The old nausea was returning, and we welcomed the urge toretch.

DeWitt and Lila Belle Wallace, who found the world's most successful publication are two of our very favorite people. Their success story is one that we greatly admire. We like the way they think, what they believe in, their philanthropies, and just about everything about them except for the corny/carney comeone they use to sell subscriptions.

With 28 million circulation in 50 countries you would think they wouldn't have to stoop so low. — Hop Graham, The Lovington Daily Leader

Several cities in the state, including Las Cruces, Alamogordo, Roswell, Carlsbad, Grants and Gallup, are registering complaints about the low population initial census figures show.

Some of the cities plan to challenge the validity of the 1980 census figures.

One complaint, voiced by Sandy Peticolos, Las Cruces city planner, could be valid. She has stated that census workers in the past have been paid by the hour; whereas this year they were paid on the basis of the number of census forms turned in.

Peticolas assumes that census workers would work longer if paid on an hourly rate. And it's possible they might work more diligently, which could result in a more accurate count of the population. True, an hourly wage scale would be more costly, but what's a few million dollars to Uncle Sam's Census Bureau?

Ruidoso's preliminary census figures indicate a population approximating 3,800. In view of the fact that building permits issued in the past five years, based on a $20 per square foot cost factor, approximates $40 million it's possible that the village should also challenge the validity of the preliminary census figures for Ruidoso.

If sufficient hue and cry is raised in New Mexico, and assuredly this is a matter that will have the other 49 states likewise complaining, there is an outside possibility the Census Bureau might change their tactics and make an effort to come up with an honest census by the end of the government's fiscal year, October 1, 1980. If for no other reason than an accurate nose count would mean the bureaucrats would have more money to dole out, assuming these bureaucrats enjoy being called "fat cats." — CD

RIGHT ON, HAROLD!

Every now and again ye olde Stuph and Junker reads a column . . . penned by a columnist with tongue in cheek . . . which deserves to be passed on to you . . . with the latest being the following, written by Harold R. Couland . . . under the heading "Headlight's Beam" . . . In the July 7 issue of the Deming Headlight . . . of which Harold is editor . . . and assistant publisher . . . which do tend to keep him outta mischief the five mornings a week he does labor to get the Headlight into the hands of his myriad readers.

Without further ado . . . read on to say what Harold has to say . . . bearing in mind he has never been known to duck any issues:

"How's the old saying go? 'If it looks like a duck and waddles like a duck and quacks like a duck — then it must be a duck!'"

"Frankly, folks, I'm not sure whether what I'm about to describe should be an item for a column, a front page story, or the funny papers. But if it looks like a story, it must be one!

"Let me start at the beginning. A week ago Saturday, Realtor Steve Marlowe (normally considered a sane individual) and I (not always considered a sane individual, being addicted to that strange business called newspapering), got to talking about a rather strange event he heard was taking place at the Long Branch Saloon in North Las Vegas, Nevada — duck racing.

"Finding the subject particularly apt for puns, I was chortling so much I was about to fall off the coffee counter stool. Steve shunted aside my jibes about his being 'quacked up,' however, (about as easy as water off a duck's back, it seemed), and posed the question of whether such a race could be staged here.

"I forgot about the matter until Laina County farmer and all around gold ol' boy Bernie Green hopped in the Headlight office last week with a news release prepared in cahoots with Steve Mallard (er, Marlowe), about a planning committee meeting Thursday night at the Country Club for the first Great American Duck Race here.

"Not being one to miss a good laugh, I showed up. There were Steve, Bernie, restaurateur Jim Worthan and none other than super talented artist Bill McKinley of the Hanging Tree. Bill had drawn a sketch of a tiny lizard peering over a rock at a rather strange sight: a duck wearing track shoes.

"With symbol in hand, the friends of feathered friends pecked away at plans for a Duck Ball Saturday night, August 30, with the duck races Sunday, August 31 — the day before Labor Day (when the ducks presumably would rest from their labors).

"Steve (now wearing an orange T-shirt labelling him "Chief Quacker") and cohorts also discussed a best dressed duck contest, a barbecue (not of duck, though — unless some of the losers really get roasted), and a queen contest (any local belles want to be known as Miss Deming Duck Race?).

"Moreover, the event will be promoted widely with bumper stickers and posters and T-shirts. Steve awaits official rules from Las Vegas (he's heard the official course is 20 feet long, with four ducks at a time competing, if they're willing).

"They also figured some preliminary ground rules (No Russian ducks will be allowed unless the Soviets withdraw from Afghanistan).

"A $5 entry fee for ducks. A $1,000 purse. Deming, the duck racing capital of the Southwest?

"Who knows where the webbed feet will lead? But stand by for more about the duck dash.

"Meantime, Ruidoso Downs, eat your heart out!"
There you have it . . . a genuine, bonafide, for real duck race . . . at Deming August 31 . . . should be a quacking blast worth entering . . . leading to one question . . . know anyone with a short necked goose?

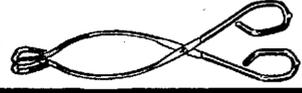

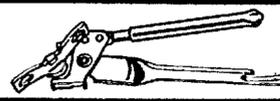

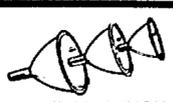

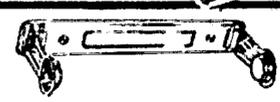

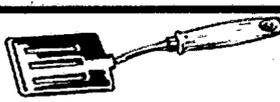

ON CUBAN REFUGEES

'Acid rain' hot energy issue for environmentalists

A hot issue in energy and environmental circles these days centers around "acid rain" — rain containing sulfuric and nitric acids which are accused of killing fish in mountain streams, destroying man-made structures and monuments, and reducing crop productivity.

Environmentalists say much of the acid rain falling in the country, particularly in the Eastern states, is a result of burning coal for energy production. The United States Environmental Protection Agency is considering stringent new regulations which would require coal to be "washed" to remove the sulfur and nitrogen compounds which ultimately contribute to acid rain.

All of which could have a significant effect on the development of coal-fueled energy production in the Western states.

There are still many basic questions about acid rain which must be answered before we begin to understand the whole process, according to James R. Gosz, a professor of biology at the University of New Mexico. He has been studying the interrelationships between precipitation and forest productivity in New Mexico mountains for several years.

Gosz said it may be another 40 to 50 years before enough research data has been accumulated to evaluate the effects of acid rain. The reason for this, he said, is that it is very difficult to show a cause and effect relationship between acid rain and crop productivity change.

He said it is possible that the declining productivity which has been shown to accompany acid rain in some types of environments could be a result of other factors, such as the release of heavy metals into the soils because of the acid conditions, rather than a reaction of the acids on the plant tissues themselves.

"Trying to develop a technique for really quantifying what nutrients are coming into an ecosystem is one of our first goals," he said. "Our studies to date have been designed to quantify precipitation and its chemical content."

Until these kinds of basic research questions are answered, much of the discussion of energy development effects of Western environments must remain conjecture. But Gosz points out that some educated guesses can be made about the effects of nutrient cycling on mountain forests and the contribution rain, acid and other variables may make on these cycles.

"It may be that dust has the greatest potential effect on acid rain in the West," he said. "Since that dust is fairly alkaline, it tends to neutralize the acid content in rain."

This would reduce the chance of acid rain occurring during dusty seasons, while the chances might be much higher during the winter and other non-dusty times of the year.

In addition, geography might produce a concentrating effect, he said. Power and other pollution producing plants tend to be located in the lowlands, where there is relatively little rain.

Airborne pollutants travel long distances to mountains, where they rise into cooler regions and precipitate out as rain and snow. Here, the effects may be compounded because mountain soils tend to be from hard rock or granite formations which have little neutralizing or buffering effect on acid rain, compared to the greater buffering effect of the sedimentary and limestone soils in the lowlands.

The effect of acid rain on mountain environments therefore "might be perhaps the greatest effect here in the Western states," he said.

Another factor which complicates the issue is the filtering effect coniferous forests have on airborne nutrients, including the nitrogen and sulfur compounds in acid rain.

A conifer forest filters the atmosphere because of the shapes and density of the needles, Gosz said. The air coming out of the forest is cleaner than that going in. Also, the forest tends to retain the materials it filters, rather than losing them to streams and similar processes.

In fact, most of the nutrients contained in these environments seem to have come from the atmosphere over a long period of time rather than from weathering of the underlying mountain rock. "This is surprising even among the people who do this kind of research," Gosz said.

The mountain environments of New Mexico and Arizona are unique, Gosz said, because they are surrounded by semi-arid lands which give rise to considerable dust, they possess conifer forests which can filter the air, and they are composed of hard rock or granite geology.

"It throws a whole different light on how we look at forests and forest nutrition here," he said, adding that about 10 times as much of the nutrient content of these forests comes from the atmosphere as in forests in other parts of the country.

It is also possible that in the West, acid rain "may under certain conditions increase productivity," he said.

"The effects are not necessarily always bad. There might be some damaging effect from acid rain on the plants that intercept it. But overall, it might have a fertilizing effect, particularly on sedimentary soils."

But these and other questions will not be conclusively answered, he emphasized, until considerable additional research has been conducted to determine more about nutrition and other chemical relationships in Western environments.

I-n-s-i-d-e the Outdoors

by Gary Dollahon

Ask any group of people what poaching is and most of them will tell you correctly that poaching is "to take game or fish illegally."

Next, ask these same people what Operation Game Thief (OGT) is and only a few of them can tell you OGT is New Mexico's answer to poaching.

It is both surprising and disappointing to discover a large number of people are not aware of this program, despite its having just celebrated its fourth birthday in June.

The program went into effect in June, 1976 as the result of an intensive study of poaching conducted in 1975. The study revealed our state could be losing as many as 34,000 deer, and up to 3,000 antelope per year, to poaching. Just as shocking a discovery was the fact the public would not report wildlife violations they observed.

Needless to say, the results of the study greatly alarmed the New Mexico Department of Game and Fish, as well as the state's numerous wildlife interest groups. After much thought and consideration from all concerned, including input from the public, OGT was born.

Although the "stop poaching" campaign was patterned after a very successful "Crimestoppers" program, it was the first of its kind to address its efforts toward wildlife violations and on such a broad scale as an entire state.

A toll free number was obtained, a reward fund was established entirely with donations, and a statewide six member citizen's board to administer the fund and rewards was formed.

Persons having information concerning a wildlife law violation can call toll free 1-800-432-GAME (4263) and give all the information possible pertaining to the case, for example, names, addresses, ages, descriptions of vehicles and suspects, license numbers, type of violation, when and where it occurred, etc.

The caller does not have to give his name or testify in court. Instead, the caller will be given a unique code name.

If the information given results in a citation or arrest of the offender, the caller will be eligible for a reward of at least $250 for big game cases, and at least $100 for small game and fish cases. Once the case is made, the Department will publicize the caller's unique code name, requesting him to call the toll free number again so the arrangements for the reward payment can be made.

Is the program working? The answer is a very positive "yes." From June 1, 1977 through May 1, 1980, Operation Game Thief has resulted in 316 citations or arrests, with a conviction rate of 99 percent.

The apprehended violators have paid $51,700 in fines and $28,360 in civil assessments.

The reward fund has paid $28,500 to callers leaving a balance of $16,048.23 in the fund.

The primary animal involved in the closed OGT cases has been deer with 106 cases. Next is elk at 51. Other cases involving raptors, fish, antelope, bear, mountain lion, javelina, turkey, and game birds have also been made.

Of every four and a half cases in which an investigation is warranted stemming from an OGT call, one results in an arrest or citation.

It is interesting to note that both a considerable number of callers eligible for their rewards have refused to accept the reward (donating them back to the reward fund), and a large number of these cases would probably never have been prosecuted if not reported by concerned individuals.

Operation Game Thief does work, as some wildlife law violators can already testify. To continue to work, it needs the financial and moral support of everyone who cares for wildlife.

Ruidoso couples combine creativity to produce showplace home

One of the most unusual homes in Ruidoso is the result of the combined creativity of two Ruidoso couples — John and Gwen Blaney and Earl and Martha Pior.

The Blaney's home, located in the Town and Country North subdivision, originally (and unbelievably) was a double wide mobile home perched on a hillside.

Today, thanks to "hard work and novel ideas," the home is a showplace in itself and a showplace for the natural wood handmade furniture which Pior has been turning out for some 30 years.

The Blaney home was a "family project from the start," including the four Blaney children, Kim, Joe, Dwight and Tommy.

With only the youngest living at home now, Mrs. Blaney said she "didn't realize how much help they (the three grown children) were until they left."

The Blaneys started with landscaping and earthwork, putting in a driveway and then a deck. Then came the addition of the master bedroom, for which the Blaneys did all the work themselves, including bricklaying and installation of a wood-burning stove.

Next came the installation of trusses, and a new roof covering the old mobile home roof, providing added insulation. The project has been ongoing for the past three years.

The Blaneys are "Texas-born Okies who got enchanted," by the Ruidoso scenery. They visited Ruidoso from their home in west Texas for years, bought the mobile as a "summer place" and now they "commute" from Amarillo, where John Blaney is involved in the geologic service business.

He designed the rooms, including a loft office/bar, where he can "spread out his papers," and work. Below the loft, plants surround a miniature waterfall. The Blaneys even have their own live "Christmas tree," a fir growing through the floor, and bougainvillea is being "trained" to provide decorative cover for the open rafters near the loft.

Windows, skylights and a huge rock fireplace provide all the heat for the living room and loft. Eventually, one window will be replaced with a shadow box replica of the village of Ruidoso and a greenhouse will be built to house more plants.

The Blaneys were "looking for a plant stand" when they met Earl Pior. They found the plant stand, and a number of other creations they couldn't live without.

"We built one whole room around his tables," Blaney said. Pior uses stumps, roots and trunk sections of trees native to the Ruidoso area to make unique furniture. A huge walnut root, topped with a large piece of glass, serves as the Blaney's dining room table.

Elsewhere, there are occasional tables, bar stools and other items fashioned from native woods. A lamp of alligator juniper burls, topped with an apple bark shade provides lighting in the living room.

Pior began making his wood creations in Arizona as a hobby, and continued to do so after moving to the Ruidoso area in 1954. Some of the pieces are sanded and most are treated with a plastic or varnish finish to preserve the wood.

Knowing how to age the pieces to prevent cracking and other deterioration is one of the "trade secrets" he has learned from experience. And he always has his eye open for unusual configurations.

The Piors scour the forest areas near Ruidoso, using primarily dead wood to cut down on the length of the aging period. Occasionally, armed with a United States Forest Service Permit, they will cut green wood.

His furniture is becoming popular in the area, Pior said, and people tell him that "if I wanted to move to someplace like San Antonio, Texas, I just wouldn't be able to turn it out fast enough. But I don't want to get back into that kind of rat race."

"Mr. Pior is really an artist," said Blaney, and Pior is equally admiring of the Blaney's interior design abilities — "They've come up with such novel ideas, and they do beautiful work." Of his own creations, Pior said he's just "doing what comes naturally with wood."

THE LOFT AREA of the living room serves as a bar, equipped with stools handmade by Pior. The living room boasts a pit seating area adjacent to a large rock fireplace, and is furnished with several other examples of Pior's work.

THE MASTER BEDROOM of the Blaney home was constructed completely with family labor, including the brickwork.

APPLE BARK, for the shade, and juniper burls, for the body, were combined in the construction of this unique lamp, made by Earl Pior.

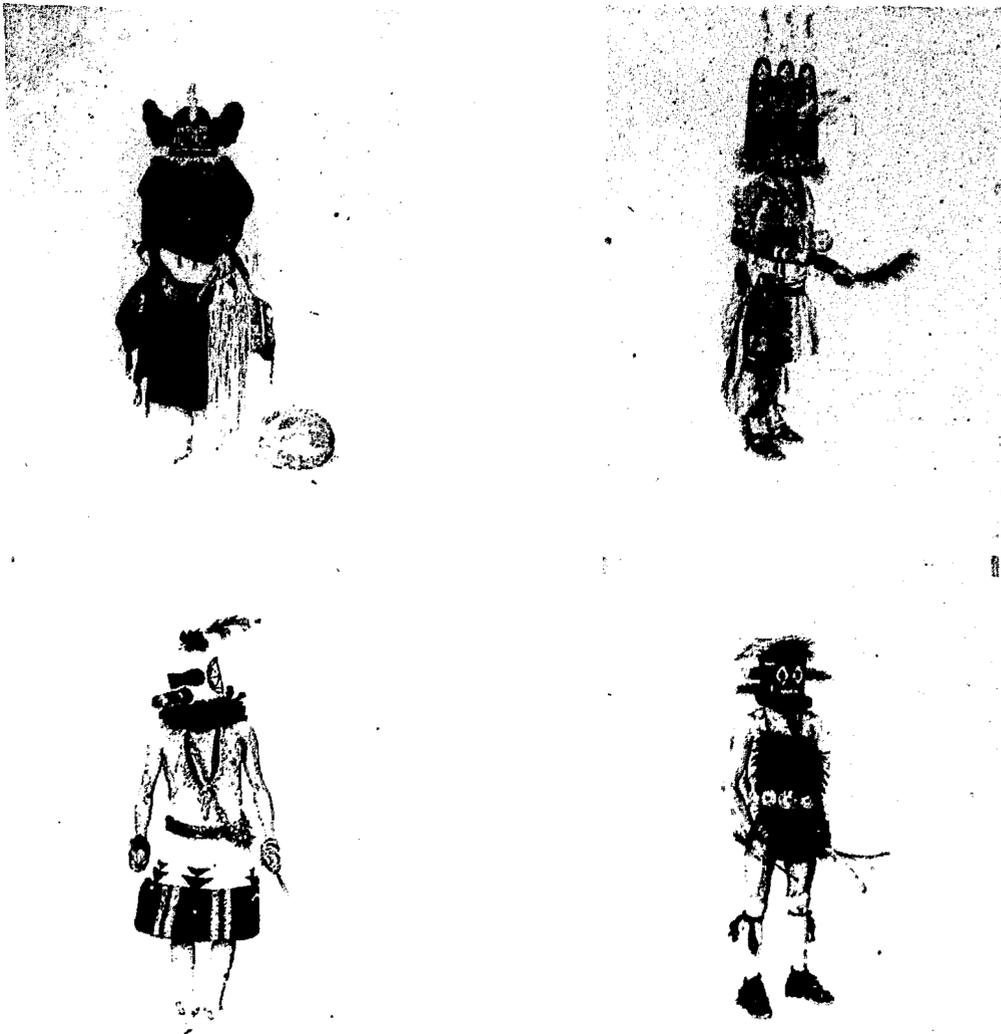

NATIVE WOODS, found in the forested areas near Ruidoso, are the primary components of Pior's creations. An end table in the Blaney home, above, is a sample of his work.

A WATERFALL and plant corner is a favorite spot in the Blaney home. In the foreground is the Blaney "Christmas tree."

Slide show on Hopi Indians set Friday at Episcopal Church

A public slide show of the original photographs and watercolor paintings of Hopi Indians in ceremonial dress by Joseph Jacinta Mora will be presented at 10 a.m., Friday at the parish hall of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Mount.

The show will be aired by Jack Wilson of Oklahoma, owner of the prints and photos. There will be no admission charge.

Mora was a Massachusetts artist who lived and worked among the Hopi Indians from 1904 to 1906. His work is a part of the Smithsonian Institute's traveling exhibit for 1980, which has been designated "The Year of the Hopi," by the museum. The Smithsonian show is currently in Boston, Massachusetts, and will open in Midland, Texas, on July 23.

Mora left Boston in 1903, with the aim of capturing with paint and camera, the last vestiges of the "Old West." Following his arrival at the Hopi villages in Arizona, he became interested in the ceremonial costumes of the tribe, which he and others feared would soon become "victims of progress," and be lost to future generations.

With that impetus, Mora took on the task of recording the costumes in a complete collection of 39 watercolors, paying careful attention to detail.

Several years after Mora's departure, the Hopis banned all photographing and painting of their ceremonies.

Wilderness Wisdom

with Wayne Calloway

Dear Wayne — My wife and I enjoy hiking in the mountains and we most always take along quite a bit of photographic gear. I have fashioned a makeshift shoulder bag for this equipment, but it's cumbersome and uncomfortable to carry. Do you know of a backpack that is well suited for carrying cameras and lenses? Albert B., W. Virginia

Dear Albert — I'm sure many backpacks could be altered to fit your purpose quite well, but there is at least one that is designed specifically for photographic gear.

The Windago Shutterpack from Ultimate Experience, Post Office Box 2118, Santa Barbara, California 93120, is available in three sizes to accommodate a variety of accessories. The largest version will carry two 35MM cameras, several lenses, filters and a generous supply of film. The Shutterpack includes an internal aluminum frame, foam rubber dividers, zippered side pockets and the pack shell is water repellent. It is reportedly quite comfortable and sufficiently durable.

Query the supplier for information about different models and prices.

Dear Wayne — In my home state, the costs of hunting licenses and stamps have been continually increasing in recent years. I'm sure other states have been raising their fees also. To add further to the already near prohibitive charges, it is now necessary to purchase a separate permit to hunt on state public lands. This is outrageous. We are already subsidizing state land through taxes. Is there no end to their quest for money?

I am in favor of hunters' reaching an agreement to forfeit their hunting privileges for a year by refusing to purchase a license. If this effort was large enough, maybe the state officials would get the message to lower license costs or suffer revenue loss. Page R., Maryland

Dear Page — A valiant idea, but it won't work. First of all, you can't persuade all, or nearly all, hunters to abstain from hunting for a year. Even if you could, the lost revenue would likely result in an increase in fees rather than a decrease.

Every sportsman is aware of continually rising costs, but the various governments declare it necessary in order to properly maintain game habitat and associated costs. I, like most, do believe some of the fat could be trimmed from such budgets without appreciable loss to man or animal.

Rising health costs difficult to contain

Health care expenditures have increased twentyfold since 1950, and they continue to climb at a dramatically fast rate, according to Steve Madsen, Extension health specialist for New Mexico State University. While total private and public spending on health care in 1950 was $12 billion, it is estimated that the total health care costs will climb to $229 billion in 1980.

Although health care strains individual budgets, consumers aren't the only ones concerned about the rising expenditures. The government is showing signs of worry, too. Almost nine percent of this country's gross national product is spent on health care. Money needed for other programs may have to be reallocated for health care in the future, Madsen said.

There are many reasons for the rising health care costs. Demographic changes in the population, including the fact that people live longer and require more medical assistance for the chronic diseases and health problems of old age, help account for some of the increase.

The Medicare and Medicaid programs, which offer medical assistance to people who may not otherwise be able to afford it, also have contributed to the rising expenditures by making health care more available.

The tendency to center health care in hospitals also accounts for part of the increase in spending. As health care becomes more institutionalized, it also becomes more labor intensive and expensive. Hospital equipment and employees must be paid even when their services are not being used. Hospitals become very expensive places in which to provide care.

Another factor is the increasing availability of health insurance which reimburses patients and health care providers for health care costs. If health care costs are prepaid by insurers, the price constraint is diminished and people use more services. This change is magnified by the fact that insurers can pass cost and price increases along to consumers in the form of higher premiums.

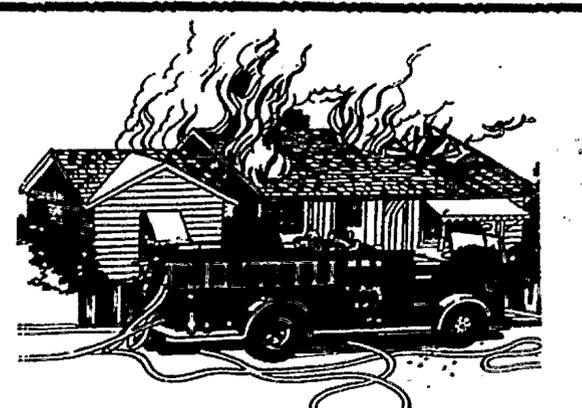

Double digit inflation is also partly to blame for rising expenditures. But even after taking inflation into account, health care spending has quadrupled over and above the increase in expenditures due to inflation, Madsen said.

"What it all adds up to is a problematic attitude towards health care that aggravates rather than alleviates the problem of rising expenditures. Neither the patients, doctors nor institutions have sufficient incentives to try to economize," Madsen said.

Consequently, the health care system emphasizes illness medicine, not prevention. Unlike other goods, consumers don't shop around for medical service. For many patients there aren't many choices because of an absence of competition, the specialist said.

Jerry Reed has been in the studio creating his own version of the Charlie Daniels' classic 'The Devil Went Down To Georgia,' using a pick and a Peavey instead of a bow and fiddle.

The song not only takes on new sounds with the unpredictable Reed at the controls, but it is rumored that the artist is considering a new ending that would alter the outcome of the famous duel between the Devil and Johnny. After picking both parts, Reed professes that (unlike the original version) the Devil is technically the hands-down winner of the musical conflict.

Jerry Reed

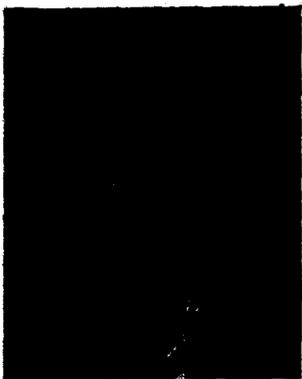

Dolly Parton, straight off the set of her upcoming feature film 'Nine to Five,' held all eyes as she walked onto the center stage of Nashville's Grand Ole Opry for a surprise homecoming visit. But as the fans clicked cameras and surged to the front of the stage, little did they realize Dolly's co-star stood inconspicuously among a group of backup singers, joining in on the chorus of 'Applejack.' It was a blue-jean clad Jane Fonda beneath the Martha White flour sign, in town to visit Dolly and get a one-of-a-kind introduction to country music.

Backstage, the two actresses joked and discussed the movie, with Fonda adding, "I've made 35 films, and this is the one I've enjoyed the most. Dolly has a lot to do with that... She's a little bit of Harlow, a little bit Monroe, and a whole lot of...naughty," she laughed.

After the show, Dolly and Jane left for east Tennessee and the Ozarks and Missouri, where the Sevierville native plans to help Fonda research her next film in which she plays an Appalachian wood carver. Dolly's plans include a return to the sound stage also, playing lead with Burt Reynolds in the film version of 'Best Little Whorehouse in Texas.'

'Nine to Five' will be released next Christmas.

Susan Anderson

From our records to watch department: Susan Anderson on B&B Records. This is Susan's first attempt at the record grooves, and although this outing won't see the top ten, the young lady shows definite promise with a down-home country style that's free and easy. She should prove to be a first-rate.

Her initial effort is titled 'Givin' Up Easy,' a Jerry Foster and Bill Rice song. The session was produced by Greg Trampe.

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT: Did Dusty do in Nasty? That's what my contact is saying. According to him, villainous J.R. Ewing of the 'Dallas' TV series, was shot by Dusty, the boyfriend of J.R.'s wife, Sue Ellen. "As of now, the killer is definitely Dusty, but nobody around here will admit to it," quoting a source at Lorimar Productions. But, says the source, "None of the cast, including Larry Hagman (who plays J.R.), knows the gunman's identity." ... Life on the set of Laverne and Shirley is just as zany as the hit TV show itself, says the girls' landlady Betty 'Edna Babish' Garrett. "These two girls (Penny Marshall and Cindy Williams) are absolutely amazing. The directors go crazy just trying to get them on the set. It's organized chaos, that's exactly what it is." Betty says she loves the kooky pair both personally and professionally. "I guarantee that in, say five or ten years, a lot of the routines they do on their show will be remembered just like Laurel and Hardy are remembered," she told me. "They will be cult figures. Organized chaos seems to be the climate the girls need because out of it they do a lot of improvising."

TV TICKER: Young Valerie Bertinelli may be living 'One Day At A Time,' but the co-star of the TV series is still very worried about her future. "I'm running scared," the 20-year-old actress admitted to me. "I'm terribly afraid I'll never get another acting job after 'One Day At A Time' ends. I mean, I've been stereotyped. Everyone thinks of me as sweet, young Barbara Cooper." No one knows I can act in other roles as well. However, Valerie is quick to admit she's a lot like Barbara. "Ninety percent of me is Barbara," says Valerie, "though I think I'm ten percent more mature than she is. And I have to admit I like her being sweet and innocent. Producers of the show have decided to keep Barbara pure and virginal and I'm glad." Pernel Roberts, the moody star of TV's 'Trapper John, M.D.,' keeps his weight just under 200 pounds by jogging three miles every day and eating fresh vegetables from his garden near the 'Trapper' set.

TV CLOSEUP: Andy Rooney, the resident wit of CBS's '60 Minutes,' gave us these appraisals of his colleagues: Mike Wallace—"Bright, brittle genius at what he does. He goes for the jugular vein like nobody in our business—not only goes for it, but cuts it. And for some reason, he does not seem to make all that many enemies." Morley Safer—"Bright, easy-going, literate, good reporter. He has an inquisitive mind." Dan Rather—"He did public-service reporting that exceeded that of perhaps any other television reporter during the years he covered the White House." Harry Reasoner—"My closest friend of the four. He, in pure intellect, is the brightest correspondent in the business." Andy Rooney—"He's the least intellectual of the lot. But a really sweet guy." "I love being a doctor, don't you?" actor Jack Klugman of TV's 'Quincy' asked the 119 graduates of New York's Mt. Sinai School of Medicine. Klugman, whose career was saved six years ago when a Mt. Sinai doctor removed a tumor from his throat, cautioned the new medics. "If I ever walk into one of your offices... don't be so quick to put a stethoscope on me. Take a few minutes to listen to me. I might tell you what's wrong with me."
