Floats needed for Aspencade parade entries

Interest in float entries for the Aspencade parade October 4 have not been overwhelming, but Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce executive director Ed Jungbluth is certain that will change. "I'm sure we'll have a run at the last minute—we always do," he said. Presently, no businesses, private individuals or service clubs have submitted float entries. Jungbluth said five bands, a drill team/color guard, two Shrine clubs and four miscellaneous entries have been returned. The entry fee for this year's event is $15.

This year's parade theme is "Winter Wonderland" and trophies will be awarded in each of seven categories as well as a Sweepstakes trophy for the best entry.

Categories include commercial floats, service clubs, bands, Shrine clubs, individuals, bicycles and antique cars. All entries will be judged and decided prior to the start of the parade so viewers will know the judges' choice of winners.

Jungbluth said plans for the annual parade are coming along well. He said judges have not yet been chosen and he expects to announce who will be Grand Marshal within a week.

Four Ruidoso High School girls have entered the Aspencade queen contest, sponsored jointly by the Chamber and Beta Sigma Phi Sorority. Today at 5 p.m., is the entry deadline for that competition.

Jungbluth said the Aspencade queen will be awarded a scholarship to further her education as one of the main prizes, furnished by Beta Sigma Phi. She will be given a bouquet of roses and a crown and will ride the sorority's float in the Aspencade parade.

Also scheduled to ride the float will be the first runner up, who will reign in the event Miss Aspencade moves away or, for some reason, cannot fulfill her obligations.

Miss Aspencade may also be invited to represent Ruidoso with an appearance at the Sun Carnival Parade in El Paso, Texas, in November, and may ride in other parades throughout the year.

A panel of five anonymous judges will select the queen following a study of applications and an informal tea where judges will have the opportunity to mingle with all candidates.

Jungbluth said the afternoon will feature a rugby game at the high school football field, between the Albuquerque Brujos and New Mexico State University. The game is set to begin at 2 p.m.

Firemen continuing program covering hazardous materials

Although the current class on handling of emergencies involving hazardous materials is being sponsored by the Ruidoso Fire Department, fire department spokesman Danny Garcia said Friday, "We don't want to give people the impression that we're trying to turn them into firefighters."

The classes will continue tonight, beginning at 8 p.m., at the main fire hall, just behind Skateland, with three films dealing with the subject.

Garcia stressed that the classes are designed for all persons who would become involved in an emergency including medical personnel, police, firefighters, and employees of utility and communications companies, such as Community Public Service and Continental Telephone.

Tonight's session will include three films dealing specifically with how hazardous materials are classified and exactly what hazards these materials represent.

"Many of these materials pose more than one hazard, so they represent additional problems in an emergency," Garcia said.

"A hazardous materials accident will pose problems for everyone," Garcia added. "That's why we urge everyone to attend, and why we are working toward a county and community plan for such emergencies."

The programs will continue each Monday in September, and on October 7-9, Don Naylor of the State Fire Marshall's office will conduct further sessions on hazardous materials.

WMSR will meet Tuesday

White Mountain Search and Rescue (WMSR) has scheduled a regular meeting for 7:30 p.m., Tuesday at the Ruidoso Public Library. Members should bring an eight-foot length of rope, for a program to be conducted by Rex Skellett.

A training session will be held Sunday on rope work, river traverse, climbing and rappelling, beginning at 3:30 p.m., at Two Rivers Park.

Following the training session, a potluck picnic will begin at 6 p.m.

Alto Lake receiving water

Alto Lake, the village's water reservoir, is receiving water from the estimated five inch rainfall on the watershed early last week.

A village spokesman said Friday, "If the runoff continues at the present rate, Alto should be full early in October."

Village officials last week were considering alternatives to provide Ruidoso with additional water storage, as well as examining the potential water supply.

Ruidoso's sources of water are Eagle Creek, the Rio Ruidoso and Cherokee Park Well.

Though Cherokee Well can produce 12 million gallons per year, the water, direct from the well, is unsuitable for general use. To make this water acceptable, it would have to be blended with water of higher quality.

The village's entitlement from Eagle Creek is six cubic feet per second, with Fort Stanton having a .155 cubic feet per second priority, when that volume is available.

From the Rio Ruidoso, the village's entitlement is 70 million gallons per year, but not to exceed 300 gallons per minute at any time, or 48 percent of the stream flow, whichever is less.

Though the State Engineer gave tentative approval for village use of water from the exploratory Eagle Creek Well, tested at between 150 and 175 gallons per minute, later action from the State Engineer stated that the village has no right to divert or use the water.

In that original opinion, the State Engineer approved it as a supplementary well, with the condition that the combined diversion from the well not exceed surface flow at the stream gauge upstream from the well and granting permission to use the well only when surface water was available. Storage of the village's water entitlement, above normal usage, is one of the problems to be faced by the Water Commission as soon as it is functioning, a village official said Friday.

RUIDOSO'S WATER SUPPLY is being replenished from copious rainfall on the watershed last week. Village officials hope the reservoir will be filled early in October.

Lincoln County Commissioners meet Tuesday

Lincoln County commissioners will meet Tuesday at 10 a.m., in the courthouse in Carrizozo. Major agenda items to be considered include appointment of new members to the county Planning and Zoning Commission; a county ordinance relating to animal control; a discussion of the Carrizozo golf course; employment of an Emergency Medical Technician consultant; and an electric fence for predator control requested by the Arabela Livestock Association.

The meeting will also serve as a public hearing regarding the transfer of ownership of a liquor license from Incredible to Dorgan-Smith Enterprises, Inc. All commission meetings are open to the public.

Election deadlines announced

The following deadlines for the November 4 general election have been released by Shirley Hooper, Secretary of State.

September 23 — Voter registration closes at 5 p.m.

September 25 — First day that a voter may mark in person an absentee ballot in the county clerk's office from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

October 7 — Last day for county clerks to accept applications by mail from, and to mail absentee ballots to, persons temporarily domiciled outside the continental limits of the United States.

October 25 — Last day to accept applications by mail, and to mail absentee voter ballots to, persons temporarily domiciled inside the continental limits of the United States.

October 30 — Last day for voter to apply in person at the county clerk's office for an absentee ballot. Absentee ballots may be cast in person in the office of the county clerk up until 5 p.m.

November 4 — Election day, with polls open from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m.

THIS HALF-FILLED 18-INCH PIPE was pouring water into Alto Reservoir Friday at a rate that, if it continues, will fill the reservoir early in October.

Hospital receives equipment

Equipment costing more than $13,000 was recently added to the inventory at Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital. The two pieces of equipment were purchased by the Knights of Columbus and the Hospital Auxiliary "Pink Ladies" to update operating room equipment.

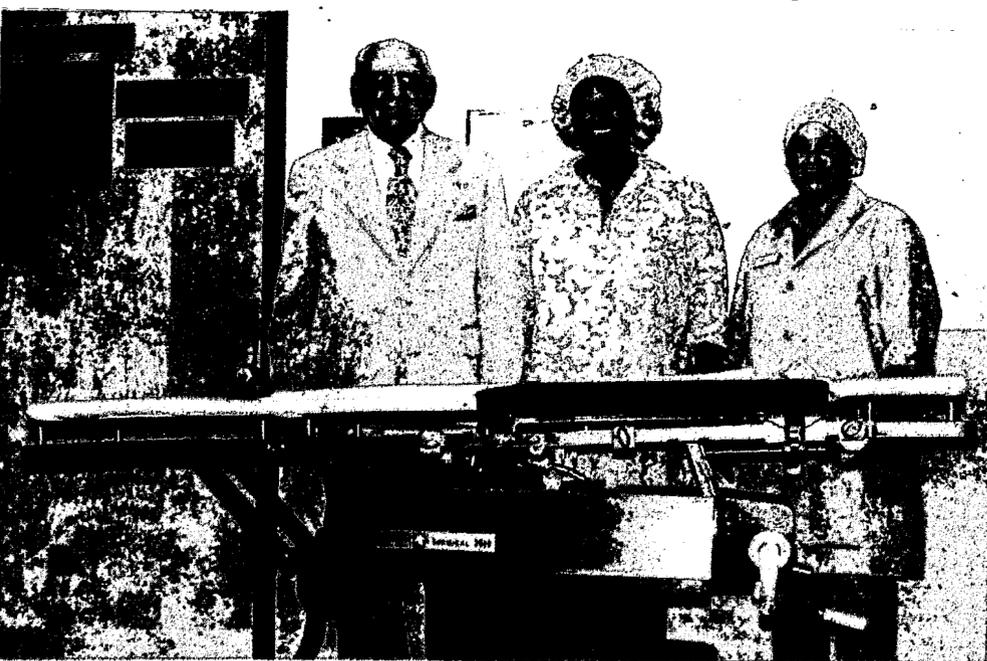

Laparoscope equipment, donated by the Auxiliary, is used in diagnostic procedures and gynecological procedures, "mainly sterilization on a one-day basis," according to operating room supervisor Anna Atwell, R. N.

Atwell said the operating table, donated by the New Mexico K of C, has an in-dwelling X-ray cassette, which means X-rays can be taken during an operation, if necessary. The new table also has a feature which makes it easier to position. Joe Koegler, past state deputy for the K of C, said Ruidoso was chosen for the new equipment "because a survey showed that patients from every county in New Mexico and many neighboring states have been treated at this hospital." Koegler said the state grants made by the K of C must be awarded according to such criteria.

He added that three handicapped equipped buses have been rented for use in Hobbs, Clovis and Artesia by the K of C, in another state grant award.

AN OPERATING TABLE for Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital was placed at the facility Wednesday. It was purchased by the New Mexico Knights of Columbus (K of C) at a cost of more than $9,000. Pictured with the new table, from left, are Joe Loegler, past state deputy of the K of C, Anna Atwell, R.M., and operating room supervisor, and Bridget Butler, operating room technician.

ComFIRE urging fire prevention

Members of the Committee for Insuring Ruidoso's Environment (ComFIRE) are encouraging property owners to get ready for winter by safeguarding their homes against fire.

A ComFIRE spokesman said, "the whole point to fire-proofing your home is to keep fuels away from the home—that means anything that will burn—so if a forest fire occurs, there is a lesser chance of the home catching on fire."

wood under the house. "The fuel is almost impossible to extinguish if it catches fire," he said.

One of the most common mistakes is that people stack firewood close to the home or other structures so it will stay dry. "ComFIRE recognizes that the wood should be dry, but this causes an extreme fire hazard," the spokesman said.

Free inspections of property are done as a courtesy by the United States Forest Service. To arrange a free inspection for fire hazards, call Smokey Bear Ranger District at 267-4065.

ComFIRE recommends that no firewood be stacked within 30 feet of any structure. Firewood should be stored in a separate shed or the wood pile; if left in the open, it should be covered with plastic to keep it dry. Property owners could also take a little wood at a time into the home so it will dry before it is needed.

The ComFIRE spokesman added that the two worst hazards are storing wood underneath a porch or patio and storing

Mentally retarded adults experiencing new life

Developmental Center in Carrizozo, where a group home for mentally retarded adults was established last month.

The group home, which accommodates eight adults, is located on the corner of 1st and 2nd streets in Carrizozo. The home is owned by the Carrizozo Developmental Center, which is a part of the Ruidoso Downs for Cancer Screening Clinic.

Raynene Greer, supervisor of the group home, said that the purpose of the group home is to provide a more self-sufficient environment for the residents. She said that the residents are given opportunities to work in the home's garden and to participate in other community activities.

The self-sufficiency comes through the shopping trips to neighboring communities.

arrangements are in the home. The residents are given opportunities to work in the home's garden and to participate in other community activities.

The home also has a laundry room and a beauty shop. A woman comes in to fix the residents' hair.

Raynene Greer said that the residents are given opportunities to work in the home's garden and to participate in other community activities.

The home is seeking donations of household items, all of which are tax deductible.

She said that the residents are given opportunities to work in the home's garden and to participate in other community activities.

"We have an excellent, very supportive and encouraging staff," Greer said. "Community acceptance is important. We invite interested involvement. Without the active support of the community, we can't make a go of it."

LIVING ROOM AREA at New Horizons group home includes a donated couch and color television. Although the home meets state licensing standards, the staff is seeking donations of items to increase the homelike quality of the facility.

New Horizons needs these items

- Items needed for New Horizons women's group home. All donations are tax-deductible.
- 2 metal pie pans
 - medium size plastic mixing bowls
 - 2 large metal cake pans, square
 - 1 large casserole dish with lid
 - 1 12-inch skillet with lid
 - 1 10-inch skillet with lid
 - 12 steak knives
 - 12 plastic juice glasses
 - 1 four-slice toaster
 - hand operated can opener
 - blender
 - slow cooker

- 1 large saucepans with lids
- 2 large plastic tablecloths
- plastic or metal canister set
- electric handmixer
- iron and ironing board
- 2 wall clocks
- 10 washable bathmats
- 10 twin bedspreads
- large area rug
- dining room table large enough for 10 people
- 2-3 easy chairs
- 6 small bedside lamps
- games and puzzles (for ages up to 12 years)

RAYNE NE GREER has been named supervisor of the New Horizons group home in Carrizozo. She is a former resident of Las Cruces, where she was involved in a similar program for the past three years.

A RESIDENT'S ROOM at the New Horizons group home affords more privacy and a more homelike environment than an institution like Fort Stanton. The women residents at the group home have lived in institutions for at least five years.

OPERATING ROOM equipment was recently purchased for Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital by the Hospital Auxiliary. Auxiliary member Sue Crews is shown with the laparoscope equipment which cost more than $4,000. The equipment has been in use about two weeks.

Correction: The correct telephone number in Ruidoso Downs for Cancer Screening Clinic information is: 378-4810.

THIS HOME OWNER has cleared his property and stacked his firewood several feet from his home. It receives protection from the two trees but could be covered with plastic to keep it completely out of the weather.

ALTHOUGH THE WOOD cut by this property owner will probably stay dry, it would be nearly impossible to extinguish if a fire occurred at his home. Firewood should be stacked at least 30 feet from inhabited structures or kept in a woodshed.

Eve Ball named to Who's Who's Ruidoso author Eve Ball has been notified of her selection to appear in the Twelfth Edition of Who's Who of American Women in 1980.

Lisa Ferguson, Carrizozo, State Fair Queen candidate

Nineteen-year-old Lisa Ferguson of Carrizozo will officially represent Lincoln County in the 1980 New Mexico State Fair queen competition, which began this week in Albuquerque.

Lisa is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Ferguson of Carrizozo. A graduate of Carrizozo High School, she is studying agricultural biology as a sophomore at New Mexico State University.

In 1979, Lisa was named a Sun Duchess. She is a member of Chi Omega sorority, Spurs, FFA and Rainbow for Girls. She's been rodeoing for two years, and rides Joe, her 11-year-old quarter horse. The entrant has green eyes and brown hair and is a slim 5-foot-8.

Candidates for the New Mexico State Fair Queen must be single girls between the ages of 18-21, and permanent residents

Cub Scouting kickoff tonight

The Cub Scouting program in Ruidoso will kick off tonight at 7, at White Mountain gymnasium.

All boys interested in joining the scouting program should attend the White Mountain Rally Night to enroll. Each Scout should bring money for registration and other fees, which vary depending on the programs in which they enroll.

of the county they represent. Entrants are judged 60 percent on horsemanship and 40 percent on personality in a series of competitions during the annual exposition.

The new queen, who will succeed Lisa Slegitz of Corrales, will be crowned in ceremonies just prior to the start of the All-Star Rodeo finals in Tingley Coliseum Saturday night, September 20.

Brownie Scout meeting tonight

Parents and guardians of girls intending to participate in Brownie Scouts this year, should attend a meeting tonight at 7:30, at Ruidoso Public Library. A registration fee of $3 for each enrollee must be paid at this meeting.

The Junior Girl Scout program will get underway Thursday at 4:30 p.m., at the Community United Methodist Church. This program is for girls in fourth-sixth grades and all interested girls are invited to attend the first meeting. The registration fee is $3.

A cadet troop will organize September 16. The girls can contact the Ruidoso office for information. An organizational meeting can be scheduled by calling a troop leader Susan Dodson at 257-2381.

The Plant Corner

by Sally Black

This column is devoted to growing health indoor plants. Address questions to: Sally Black, The Ruidoso News, Box 128, Ruidoso, New Mexico 88345.

Dear Readers; I have a question. How would you like to have a get-together and share cuttings and growing tips?

I thought you would like this idea, so just talked with Katherine Finley at La Junta Guest Ranch. She has invited us to meet there Thursday, October 9, 1980 at 10:30 a.m. Katherine will make the coffee and tea and we are to bring our own sack lunch.

Bring your cuttings in soft drink bottles, or the like, to conserve space and keep cuttings upright in an orderly fashion. You may exchange on a "Bring One - Take One" basis.

If you have a (small) sick plant, bring it along, we will try to determine its problem.

To find La Junta Guest Ranch go to Alto and follow signs from there. I do hope to see all you "plant lovers" there. If we have a good turn-out, perhaps we can make this an annual happening.

We would like to hear from you at P.O. Box #128, Ruidoso News, 88345, however this is not necessary, just come if you can. Sally Black Remaining classes, all beginning at 7 p.m., include:

September 17, Loans and Financial Statements, Gary Starnes, vice president, Security Bank.

September 25, Wills and Trusts, Mel O'Reilly, Attorney.

October 2, Insurance and Retirement Planning, Mel O'Reilly, Attorney.

October 9, Taxes, Ronnie Hemphill, Certified Public Accountant.

October 16, Investments, Guin Stone. A short question and answer period, with light refreshments served, follows each session.

For information call Eleanor Shockey, program coordinator, at 257-4611.

Ginger Tate State Fair award winner

Ginger K. Tate of Ruidoso won a first place award in the Adult Handicrafts Division of the 1980 New Mexico State Fair hobby show. Her winning entry was in the category for original design of rugs, hangings and pillows.

The 43rd annual New Mexico State Fair - The Biggest Show in New Mexico - continues through September 21.

Kirsch/Sprull vows exchanged

Janice Ireland Kirsch and Lafayette Lovell Sprull Jr., both of Odessa, Texas, were married by Magistrate Jim Wheeler, September 11, in the judge's chambers in Ruidoso.

The bride is the daughter of William J. Ireland of Odessa and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lafayette Sprull Sr., of Odessa.

Sprull is the manager of Time DC Freightlines and Mrs. Sprull is employed by Western Company of North America.

Tillman graduate school student

Cheri L. Tillman is enrolled at the American Graduate School of International Management, Glendale, Arizona. The daughter of Larry L. Tillman of Ruidoso, she is a graduate of New Mexico State University where she majored in Secondary Education.

MR. AND MRS. RICHARD PARSONS JR.

Smith/Parsons vows spoken

Terri Deason Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Deason of Roswell, became the bride of Richard A. Parsons Jr., in a double ring ceremony held September 8 at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Mount. The bridegroom is the son of Shari Parsons of Albuquerque and Richard Parsons Sr. of Ruidoso.

Father Delbert Achuff officiated at the wedding, and music was provided by Martha Bryant at the organ.

The bride wore a full length ivory gown, accented with a lace yoke collar and sleeves, and featuring lace ruffles at the shoulder and wrist. A matching lace hat with fingertip length veil completed her ensemble. She carried a bouquet of pastel roses and baby's breath.

For the traditional "something old," the bride wore an opal heirloom ring; her "something new" was a garter matching her dress. She borrowed a bracelet from the bridegroom's sister, and a blue garter fulfilled the "something blue" requirement.

Maid of honor was Layna Stroop of Andrews, Texas, friend of the bride. Serving bridesmaids were Karen Parsons Williams of Ruidoso and Shari Parsons of Albuquerque, sisters of the bridegroom. The attendants were attired in mint green floor-length dresses, with spaghetti straps and pleated skirts, and they carried parasols.

Led by a pair of Russ Fior touchdowns, the Ruidoso Warriors rolled to an easy 31-8 triumph over the Lordsburg Mavericks there Friday night, evening their 1980 record at 1-1.

Lordsburg fell to 1-2.

The Warriors amassed 392 yards total offense on the way to the five touchdown scoring spree, including 170 yards on 15 carries by Ricky Dennis.

Dennis also scored on a four yard run in the third quarter.

"The kids looked real good," head coach Darrel Stierwalt said, in understatement. "We did pretty much what we wanted to and controlled the ball. We completely controlled the game with our offense."

"We corrected a lot of mistakes."

That's true. Hard work by the offensive line, spent perfecting blocking techniques, paid off, leading to 301 rushing yards, and quarterback Scott Neal had ample time to pass, completing five of 10 attempts for 91 yards.

"We put it all together," Stierwalt said. "Our receivers ran their patterns a little better than they had been, the line blocked better. Everybody just did a super job."

Especially Dennis.

"Oh yeah, we had just a super, super game," Stierwalt said.

The game was never in doubt as the Warriors first got on the board on Steve Benway's 38 yard scoring run. Lon Nunley's point after touchdown try was good and the Warriors took a 7-0 lead.

Later in the first quarter, Fior scored from five yards out, but the kick failed.

It stayed that way through the first half.

"We sorta coasted in the second quarter," Stierwalt said. "We had a 13-0 lead and we wanted to see what they (Lordsburg) could do. At halftime we talked it over and then went back to work in the second half."

In the second quarter, the Warriors had only 31 yards total offense, but the third quarter saw the Ruidoso lads amass 107 yards.

Dennis added a touchdown in the third, and again Nunley's point after failed. Fior scored from a yard out in the early going in the fourth quarter, and Nunley's point after was again no good.

Claiming a 25-0 lead, Stierwalt began substituting freely, and finally, the Mavericks were able to score, getting six on a two yard plunge by Steve Reza. Leo Marquez scored a two point conversion.

Ruidoso added one more score with about 20 seconds left in the game. Reserve quarterback Billy Woodul pitched to backup halfback Steve Pietsch, who ran 65 yards for a final score. Nunley's conversion kick was again wide, but it didn't matter at that point.

The Warriors completely dominated the game, notching 21 first downs to Lordsburg's 12, 301 yards rushing to the Mavericks' 125, recovering four Lordsburg fumbles and losing only two, and being penalized eight times for 80 yards, compared to Lordsburg's 100 yards on eight infractions.

Lordsburg, which defeated Ruidoso 20-18 last year, had been highly touted before Friday's game, but Stierwalt was unimpressed.

"I personally didn't think they were as good as last year," he said. "I don't know why (Silver City coach George) James was so impressed by them. We did exactly what we wanted to do."

The only real gripe the Warrior mentor had about his troops' performances was the kicking game — or the lack of it.

"Anytime we punt once for 30 yards and miss four or five extra points, well, the kicking game was our biggest disappointment. We don't really have a kicking game right now," he said.

"In a big game it's going to make a difference. If we don't start getting it down on our extra points, we'll start going for two."

Otherwise he had no complaints.

"We have corrected a lot of mistakes we made, offensively and defensively, in the game with Gadsden," he said, referring to the team's opening 16-14 loss. "But if we keep improving the way we did, we'll be in fine shape."

MEMBERS OF the under eight United (striped jerseys) and Bandits seem to be just a little hesitant as to who's going to get the ball in Saturday's opening day action of Ruidoso's Little League soccer program. United won, 4-1.

Braves play season opener Thursday

White Mountain Middle School football coach Terry Wharton has an interesting problem with his 1980 squad.

He's got more kids than he has equipment.

"I've got 41 kids out right now," he said last week. "And there's just not enough to go around." More equipment has been ordered, especially safety approved helmets, but whether it arrives in time for the first game remains to be seen.

The Braves open their 1980 season this week with Roswell's Mountain View Middle School here at 6 p.m., Thursday.

Wharton will enter the game with untested troops, because a scrimmage with Captain was cancelled.

"We're going to try to play the high school's ninth graders, but everything may be too wet for a while," he said.

He added, "We're looking pretty good, considering. The kids who came out in the summer learn the offense and the defense, and then school starts and we get more out, and we have to start all over again."

Due to state rules, only about 28 players have practiced long enough to play in the opener, but the entire squad should be ready for the October 2 contest with Carrizozo.

Provided there's enough equipment.

"We're going to have to shuttle equipment back and forth on the sidelines — actually, our situation isn't that bad," Wharton said. "We never know how many kids we're going to have out, and this is the first year all the helmets have to be approved, and we got caught a little short."

The Braves will operate out of the Wishbone, although the true triple option won't be part of the game plan.

"That's just too complicated for junior high kids," he said. "When we pitch, it'll be a set play."

The passing game has not received much attention yet, and neither has the kicking game.

"We still have plenty to put in," Wharton said, "but I'd rather take a little time, teach it right and have the players run it right, than try to do too much."

The defense is also "looking pretty good," he said.

"The line and linebackers are doing pretty well," he said. "I've got some experienced kids there and three pretty good sized linebackers.

"The secondary is almost all new, but they're doing okay."

One basic defense, based on Ruidoso High School's multiple defensive set, has been installed.

"We'll have more defenses in before next week," he said.

The team overall lacks size, but makes up for that in quickness and enthusiasm.

"I've got only one kid who's over 150 pounds," he said, "but I'm not at all disappointed in what I got. We won't overpower anyone, but I think we'll win some games."

Wharton said his troops are generally ready for the first game, but admits he is worried about Roswell.

"They are notorious for the big play," he said. "They'll lull you to sleep and then bam! hit you with a long pass or double reverse or something," he said. "That's awfully tough in the first game, and that worries me."

The Braves have a six game schedule this year, three games at home and three away. After Mountain View and Carrizozo, the Braves play Tularosa here October 9, then face Roswell Sierra there October 16, Tularosa away October 23, and close the season with Carrizozo there October 30.

Volleyballers open season

The lady Warrior volleyball team opens its 1980 season Tuesday evening at Carrizozo, and head coach Margie Andrus isn't a bit nervous about it.

At least, not yet.

"It's too far away now," she said last week. "I'll get nervous Tuesday though."

Both varsity and junior varsity squads were selected at the end of the week, based on practice performances.

"We had some girls who were disappointed by the selections, but not everybody can get on the teams they want to be on," she said.

"We've had some good practices, we've had some bad practices. You know, we're the only thing that's going to stand in our way. We have the talent to be a really good team."

She agreed Carrizozo and Cloudcroft, the first and second opponents of the 1980 season, have always played the lady Warriors some tough games.

"They always get fired up for us," she said, "and we let them intimidate us, which doesn't make any sense. If we can beat Alamogordo and Roswell (which they did in a recent scrimmage), I know we can beat Carrizozo and Cloudcroft. If they want it, they'll win, if they don't — we won't."

The lady Warriors play at Carrizozo Tuesday at 6 p.m., and then open the home season Saturday at 6 p.m., with Cloudcroft.

Roger Staubach for President?

Yup.

There's a movement going on in the Lone Star State — Texas to you — to get ol' Roger Dodger into the White House, where presumably he'll scramble his way into and out of trouble.

I must admit, given the choice of candidates we have this year, that might not be too bad a selection, although I would personally prefer Sonny Jurgensen as my starter.

But there's no question the Jolly Roger's morals are above questioning. No kidding, he's so clean, on a recent televised game, he talked of a running back who runs "heckbeat for leather."

Heckbeat?

And he answers the phone with a cheery "Hecko," right?

Enough of this nonsense.

Upset Special

How do you like that, here football season is merely a week old, and we've already had the entire year's greatest upset.

I refer, of course, to the incredible 25-21 New Mexico victory over Brigham Young. If ever there was a team rising to meet adversity, it's the Lobos. First you fire the coach, then the whole program comes under official scrutiny, then they have to forfeit games, then break in a new coach right in the middle or recruiting.

Wow. The idea that Joe Morrison could take such a ragtag bunch and lead them to such a victory in his first outing — double wow.

I think the Lobos may surprise a few people. I know one who was very surprised.

Rugby, anyone?

Anybody ever hear of a game called rugby? It's sort of a cross between soccer and American football, and is actually the forerunner of football.

It all started way back in the 1880s when a soccer team in the Ivy League — I forget who — was getting clobbered by another Ivy League team. Then this one player — his name was Rugby — who was very frustrated by his team's inability to score — picked up the ball and ran with it, which is a no-no.

He almost made it into the goal too, until a couple of guys chased him down and clobbered him. Then they all jumped up and decided hey, this is fun.

Thus rugby was born. (I'm not kidding, I read all that somewhere.)

Anyway, the game hasn't changed much since then. It's basically 30 people on two teams on a field 100 meters long and 75 meters wide beating the crud out of each other. There are two 40 minute halves, each almost non-stop. You can run with the ball or kick it, and you can pass it laterally, but no forward passes.

Ruidoso residents will have an opportunity to watch two New Mexico rugby teams in action Saturday, October 4, at Warrior Stadium. The whole thing is tied in with Aspencade, since the game's organizer (and Albuquerque Brujo team member) Pat Lamb is a former Ruidoso resident.

"We just like it here," he told me "I knew about Aspencade and thought we might be able to tie it in. I think it'll be a lot of fun."

The Brujos (in English it means Warlocks — shudder) will be playing the New Mexico State University team, not exactly a great rivalry — they've tangled four times.

Of course, NMSU has won all four, and the Brujos will be out for revenge.

It's an interesting game, rugby. A try — the equivalent of a football touchdown — is worth four points, and you actually have to put the ball on the ground in the end zone, which is why we call a score in football a touchdown.

Then there's a two point conversion kick, which you have to boot through the uprights, just like in football. There's also a penalty kick, which is sort of like a field goal, and if you make that, it counts three points. Any you can dropkick the ball (yes, dropkick) from anywhere on the field. It too is worth three points, provided it's good.

The game will be affected "a little bit" by playing on a 53 yard field rather than 57, but that's the breaks, Lamb said.

"The field's pretty good," Lamb said.

"It's not big enough, but we'll make do."

Actually, although rugby may seem weird, it resembles football more than you think. The ball is similar, although rounder. They run and people tackle each other (no blocking allowed, though), but, like soccer, there's no pads on the players.

Only they hit just like they had them on. If you want to see these guys kill each other, go to Warrior Stadium October 4 at 2:30 p.m., and I hope blood doesn't bother you.

Listen, these guys are crazy — crazy but fun. How many people do you know have bumper stickers that say "Give blood, play rugby," or "Rugby players eat their dead?"

Sheesh. See you at the bloodbath.

CHECK IN TO WHAT'S GOING ON AT HOLIDAY REALTY!

Children of the Month await permanent home

James and Jeforie are young brothers moving swiftly into their final years as children. They have lived together in a number of foster homes, always hoping that they could return permanently to their mother. Now, however, they have been released for adoption, and they eagerly await a chance to become part of a real family.

At 18, James is the elder of the two brothers. He is a friendly, talkative teenager, a senior patrol leader in his Boy Scout troop who loves to play football and basketball, enjoys fishing trips, and is a good looking young man. Although he is a leader among his friends, he has problems with some subjects in school, often performing below grade level, especially in language classes. When the subject of adoption first came up, James helped convince an initially reluctant Jeforie that an adoptive family would be best for them.

Like his older brother, Jeforie is a fine athlete and a below average student, although he tries hard in school and does well in non-verbal subjects. But Jeforie, almost 14, is also quieter and sometimes more emotional than his older brother. He likes to paint and draw, enjoys his fishing and Boy Scout expeditions, takes his Catholic religion and altar boy role seriously.

"Have you heard anything about a family for us?" Jeforie recently asked his adoption worker. The brothers have thought and talked a lot about being adopted, and they are anxious now that their wishes for a permanent home be fulfilled. Perhaps some of their problems—the academics in school, an underlying sadness in James, emotional withdrawal in Jeforie—would clear up if they found the love and security that every adolescent needs. Handsome, healthy, friendly, the brothers would fit well into almost any loving family, says their social worker, who adds, "They're just real nice boys."

People interested in adopting James and Jeforie, or in learning more about the many other older children available for adoption in New Mexico should contact Susan Washam at 437-0030 in Alamogordo.

Specialist offers clothing guide for working women

Young, middle-aged, older, rural and urban women are entering the work force in unprecedented numbers. Regardless of their reason for working, they want to communicate their full capabilities to potential employers, fellow workers, clients and customers.

"One of the best ways to communicate this is in the way you dress for the job," said Susan Wright, Extension clothing specialist for New Mexico State University. "A recent study found that appearance can make as much as eight to 20 percent difference in starting salaries. When women are confident about their appearance, it shows."

The secret is to develop a fashionable wardrobe and a personal style, the NMSU specialist said. Being fashionable does not mean buying a new wardrobe every season or wearing extreme styles.

"It does call for an assessment of your strengths and figure characteristics, some research about fashion trends and a fair amount of imagination. The results can be a look that is pleasing and uniquely individual," Wright said.

Your wardrobe should be built around your most complimentary color. Color groupings, even in limited numbers, can be mixed and matched and will accommodate any new item that might be added.

Some jobs call for clothes that adapt to both day and evening. Quality garments with simple styling — the kind of clothes you can dress up with accessories — can create both day and evening looks. A wide range of accessories can create the illusion of variety.

Check your accessories. Shoes for work should be shined and well cared for — no clunky or very casual styles, no very high heels. Jewelry should be simple — nothing dangling, clanking or otherwise distracting. Buy the accessories you need to complete your wardrobe.

"As a working woman, you need to use your time, as well as your dollars, efficiently," Wright said. "Select garments that are easy to care for to cut down on the time required to keep your wardrobe in order."

The Dreamer

BY DANNIE STORM

The Sun Comes Smiling Through
This message is being sent to you in the early afternoon of Thursday, September eleven, and all the green mountain world is glowing in an answering smile up to the golden sun beaming down upon mountain, hill, dale and valley — after being completely hid for one week behind clouds of rain, mist and fog.

Is it not wonderful to live in a land where we are so happy to see the rain, and delighted too, to see the sun return with its golden smile? All the world is basking in the warm and mellow rays shining down from the white and blue heavens like a fond benediction upon good Mother Earth. The song birds have all returned from their shelters where they have been hiding out all during this rainy spell. The only birds you could see during the wet weather were the swallows, and once in a while, the martins, two of the tamest of our winged friends. When the rain was not falling too rapidly, the swallows would be sitting on the power lines taking a shower. When the rain would let up just a little they would be gathering into little bands acting as if they were ready to make a trip to some place where the sun was shining.

Early this morning (September eleven) they were nowhere to be found. All the forenoon they were out of sight, and I thought surely that they had all bought tickets on the "Mexico and Pacific" air lines. This would mean an early autumn and winter, for these "Messengers of Summer" never make a mistake.

No! Here they are flying around the house at two in the afternoon. So it looks as though they are going to stay all summer. Fall begins on the twenty-second.

The Color, Green, Brings Out The Features Of Mother Earth
This time of year we begin to be aware of how much color means in our life. The power of the blue sky, the white clouds; the colors of the sunrise and sunset and the flowers by the wayside — all have their good influence on our spirits.

Right now we feel in our hearts the magic of that wonderful color, green. With every shade of emerald glowing on every hand, a message comes to us that "God is in His Heaven, and all is right with the world."

The mystic color green, is one of the colors of life itself — of the renewal of the world in the glowing health of grass, trees, herbs, shrubs — all promises come true of food for all the creatures of the world.

There is something about the color green that is a nourishment to your eyesight, a balm to your soul, and a lifter of your spirits. The color green is always welcome, and your eyes seem to long for the sight of it.

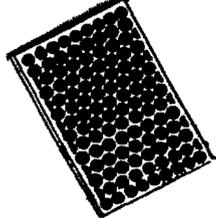

Here in our mountain land, the magic of the color green brings out the beautiful and beloved features of Mother Earth. A new world is opened up to us as we look out over mountain, valley and hill, and meadow. We see things we never noticed before. In other words, the green color adds new power to our sense of vision.

Here is that shining little green shelf near the top of the mountain. That little glen at the head of this canyon — you had forgotten it was there. With the new power lent to you by this magic color brought to us by the rains, you are able to see into great distances.

The mountains appear in their true majesty, and the mesas and foothills show up ever so plainly mile on mile. So, the wondrous color, green, brings you a new love and appreciation of our mountain home land. Let us thank God for our green and glorious days.

Insurance for farmers in recreation

Today's demand for outdoor recreation means that many farmers can earn extra money by providing facilities for hunting, camping, fishing, swimming and picnicking. But when a farmer opens his gates to the public, he is also letting in an added range of legal responsibility, said Jose Herrera, Extension community development specialist for New Mexico State University.

For example, a farmer can be held legally responsible for injuries his paying guests receive while on his property. Under law, the farmer must exercise "reasonable" care to protect the lives and property of others while on his land.

The basic insurance contract that covers the farmer's legal liability to the general public is called an "owners, landlords and tenants policy." This policy provides legal aid to the farmer and pays damages awarded by the court — up to the limit of the policy.

Under it, commercial enterprises, such as archery ranges, boats for hire, skeet and trap shooting ranges and ski lifts, as well as farms, may be covered.

Herrera said that a farmer interested in opening his property for public recreation contact his insurance agent to get more definite information regarding premium rates and coverage.

SANTA FE—Lots of headline writers got it wrong. David King isn't on the ballot again. He's on the ballot still.

David never got off, simply because nobody told the Secretary of State in time that he wanted to resign from the race for Congress from the second Congressional District.

None of us at the press conference where he said he wanted off the ticket had any reason to doubt his sincerity. That day, he looked like he meant what he said, and he sounded like he meant what he said.

On the other hand, the speech he made to the Democratic Central Committee a few days later after some members demanded that he come to Santa Fe in person and pledge an active campaign had much more of the ring of pure old political rhetoric ("Tell 'em what they want to hear").

No wonder some of us old skeptics found it a little hard to believe.

There was lots of pure old political hokum at the Central Committee that day.

First of all, the state chairman of the party told us how "open" the meeting was going to be—after which a pre-planned motion was quickly made, seconded and bulled through so as not to give participants time for any doubt or scrutiny.

We were also told that David King is the most capable and best trained man this state has ever nominated for Congress, a thought that gave some of the older members of the congregation a little pause.

No matter what you thought of Joe Montoya, you have to admit he had served an apprenticeship almost two-thirds as long as David King's life, as legislator and administrator in state government, before he made his first run for national office.

And then there was Clint Anderson, the man more responsible than any other for the King family's recent dominance of statewide Democratic politics. He was 45 years old had earned his own fortune and worked his way up through the lower echelons of the Democratic party before he made his first request for our votes to send him to Washington.

Jack Schmitt had even been to the moon. Only the young, with their short memories, would consider such facts to be totally irrelevant.

And, if they were like the young state chairman of the party, they would chide us of the media for calling such historical events to your attention. When reality doesn't prove what they want to demonstrate, they crybaby that it is unfair to their chosen one.

Too bad the Republicans can't just sit back and let all this happen. Now if ever would be their time to follow the advice of Napoleon Bonaparte: "Never interfere with the enemy when he is in the process of destroying himself."

And now this commercial message:

If you're one of those who think harsh words like those above are an expression of some kind of habitual harding of the heart from this columnist toward the King family, you should have been at the Central Committee meeting that day.

That's when Ben Alexander, the old fox who is now Democratic national committeeman, complimented this writer for being just as bastardly to the Republicans as to the Democrats.

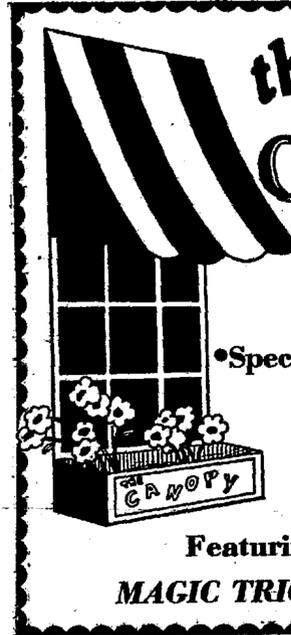

That man knows how to turn a pretty phrase.

DOUBLE-TALK

George Bush's meeting with Chinese leaders set the tone for what we may expect from a Ronald Reagan administration in the field of foreign relations.

Bush was in Peking trying to convince the Chinese that the United States, and the Republican Party in specific, has no plans to re-establish diplomatic relations with Taiwan. Reagan, meanwhile, was in Dallas saying he wants to extend some form of diplomatic recognition to the Taiwanese government.

It's the diplomacy of double-talk at which Reagan is a past master. It served him well in California, where he could say one thing and do something else — and get away with it.

Reagan used that ploy on everything from budget reform to welfare issues in his home state. He talked tough, but the actions didn't always match the words.

It is inconceivable that Reagan could send Bush to China without clearly informing his running mate of his policies. If Bush told the Chinese that Reagan had no intention of setting up a government liaison office on Taiwan, that's obviously what Reagan told him to say.

To believe otherwise is to believe George Bush is not a man of integrity or that Ronald Reagan is grossly incompetent. We believe neither is the case.

What Reagan is trying to do is what he did for so long in California. He knows, obviously, that it will be impossible to re-establish diplomatic relations with Taiwan if the U. S. is to preserve the delicate balance of world power forged with China under the Nixon administration. Yet he continues to talk about Taiwanese recognition to maintain his reputation with the Republican right.

In essence, Reagan is using the same kind of double-talk about Panama, where he wants to get the canal back in U. S. hands in some unspecified way; about Cuba, where he would somehow out the Soviet combat brigade; about the Soviet Union, whose expansionist designs he would somehow contain; and about Iran, which he would force in some unspecified way to free the American hostages.

It's mostly talk. But China isn't California; neither is Cuba, Iran or the Soviet Union.

CLAY HAS MORE HELP AT HOLIDAY REALTY!

In world politics, a leader is expected to back up his words with actions. If Reagan fails to do that — indeed, if he has no intentions of doing what he says — the rest of the world will write him off as a big-mouthed featherweight.

The leap from the California political pool to the sea of intentional politics is immense. We have serious doubts about Reagan's ability to make the transition. — Ben Windham, Raton Ranger Second Congressional District voters may yet have a choice when they vote for United States Representative November 4.

Republican Joe Skeen, thwarted in each move he's made to get on the ballot, is thinking of appealing the decision of United States District Judge Santiago Campos Wednesday denying him a place on the general election ballot.

Skeen is also considering the option of campaigning as a write-in.

Independent Dorothy Runnels is awaiting Judge Santiago's ruling for a spot on the general election ballot. Since she missed the August 20 filing deadline, she's seeking to have the deadline extended so she can be on the ballot.

Both Skeen and Runnels are waging a fight of desperation at this point, but apparently it's a fight they are going to continue.

Meanwhile, David King, the Democratic party's nominee, is assured of having his name on the ballot. In the process of his dramatic withdrawal from the race, and his triumphant return after the Democrats announced King couldn't withdraw because he waited too long, he picked up a tremendous amount of publicity.

It's not inconceivable, in the event Runnels and Skeen launch a write in campaign, that the voters just might think David should be allowed to keep out of politics until his uncle's out of office. — CD

$1,000 SEWER TAP?

If you think the $1,000 water tap fee's gonna cause plenty of talk at the September 30 meeting ... brace yourselves, it's possible that one of these days that'll be the price tag of a sewer tap.

Possible, that is ... not that it's all that likely ... still, considering Ruidoso's water problems ain't been solved ... and considering that the new sewer system's gonna cost a bundle ... the sewer tap fee just might be forthcoming.

Anyone for a Chic Sale franchise?

WHAT PRICE WATER?

Once the Water Commission ... to be comprised of five members ... gets approved by the village trustees ... and into the saddle ... and the updating of our Comprehensive Plan's done ... and the commission can get the water picture ... there'll probably be just some hunting going on ... for water.

From the way I hear tell ... there's some water flowing down Eagle Creek and the Rio Ruidoso that we're entitled to ... but can't bottle up ... and that'll be one thing the water commissioners'll be getting their feet wet over ... storing all the water we're entitled to.

Now ... the water could be stored in lotsa five million gallon tanks ... which'd cost a heap ... or maybe they can build a dam somewhere and back it up ... to provide us with water when it ain't raining/snowing as it should ... which'll cost a heap ... with one thought being, depends upon how thirsty a person gets, just how much a drink of water's worth.

WATER/SEWER FUNDS?

If'n everyone understands the situation correctly ... it'll be no surprise that water fees might have to be hiked ... that if just might cost more when that new sewer system's put to use ... in a couple/three years ... whenever ... and if'n more money's needed by the village ... then those of us as is village residents is gonna have to pony up ... which is how it goes.

Your guess is as good as mine as to where any needed money'll come from ... and I don't think it'll help none to sew your money pocket shut.

Cheer up ... Ruidoso's voters ain't never not passed a bond issue.

SHEEP PAYMENTS

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service allows as how they ponied up $1,296,628 in incentive payments to 2,470 producers of sheep in New Mexico for wool marketings during 1979.

Of that amount, $281,910 was shelled out to 97 Lincoln County sheep producers ... coming to something like $2,900 on the average ... which is a sum they probably welcomed ... 'cause it's better'n getting nothing ... no?

And if'n the sheep people weren't especially impressed with that payment ... you can rest assured the sheep also weren't ... though there was probably plenty of bleating going on.

NATIONAL 4-H WEEK

Our area 4-Hers ... them as learns about livestock raising ... and how homemaking goes ... and all those good things ... will be participating in National 4-H Week, October 5-11 ... and who'll have the most fun getting ready for the observance ... the leaders of the 4-Hers ... or the 4-Hers being led ... could make interesting speculation.

Anyhow ... the 4-H program is a good one ... lotsa kids benefit from it ... so if'n you happen to see some 4-Hers getting with it ... during that week ... won't hurt none to stop and chit-chat with them a mite ... and give them some encouragement ... and maybe offer some congratulations ... which just can't hurt none at all ... and it might even help some of the members.

FOUR-DIAMOND RATING

The Inn of the Mountain Gods ... on the shores of Lake Meacalero ... is thought of so highly by the American Automobile Association that they up and gave the Inn their highest ranking for quality ... Four-Diamond rating.

It's this way ... the more an establishment exceeds the AAA's basic standards ... the more diamonds they get ... and the AAA says that having even One-Diamond rating ain't to be sneezed at ... so if'n a place earns Four-Diamond rating ... the accommodations can't be too shabby.

Next time you see Wendell, congratulate him.

with Wayne Calloway

Dear Wayne: Over the years I have sold or given away a number of hides from deer that were taken during the hunting seasons. I've always wanted to try tanning one and make simple articles such as moccasins, knife sheaths, etc. Can such hides be satisfactorily tanned at home with generally available supplies? Kenny P., Michigan.

Kear Kenny: Yes. The process isn't that complicated but there is a fair degree of work necessary to produce good results.

Since you are interested in rawhide, we won't consider tanning with the hair left on because the process is a bit different. I'll get into that another time, if you wish.

Hides have been tanned with ashes, tree bark, urine, and animal brains, but here we will only consider the use of salt and lime since these are readily available materials.

Before you begin, you'll need a wooden barrel of about 50 gallon capacity or similar size, and a place to store it out of the sun.

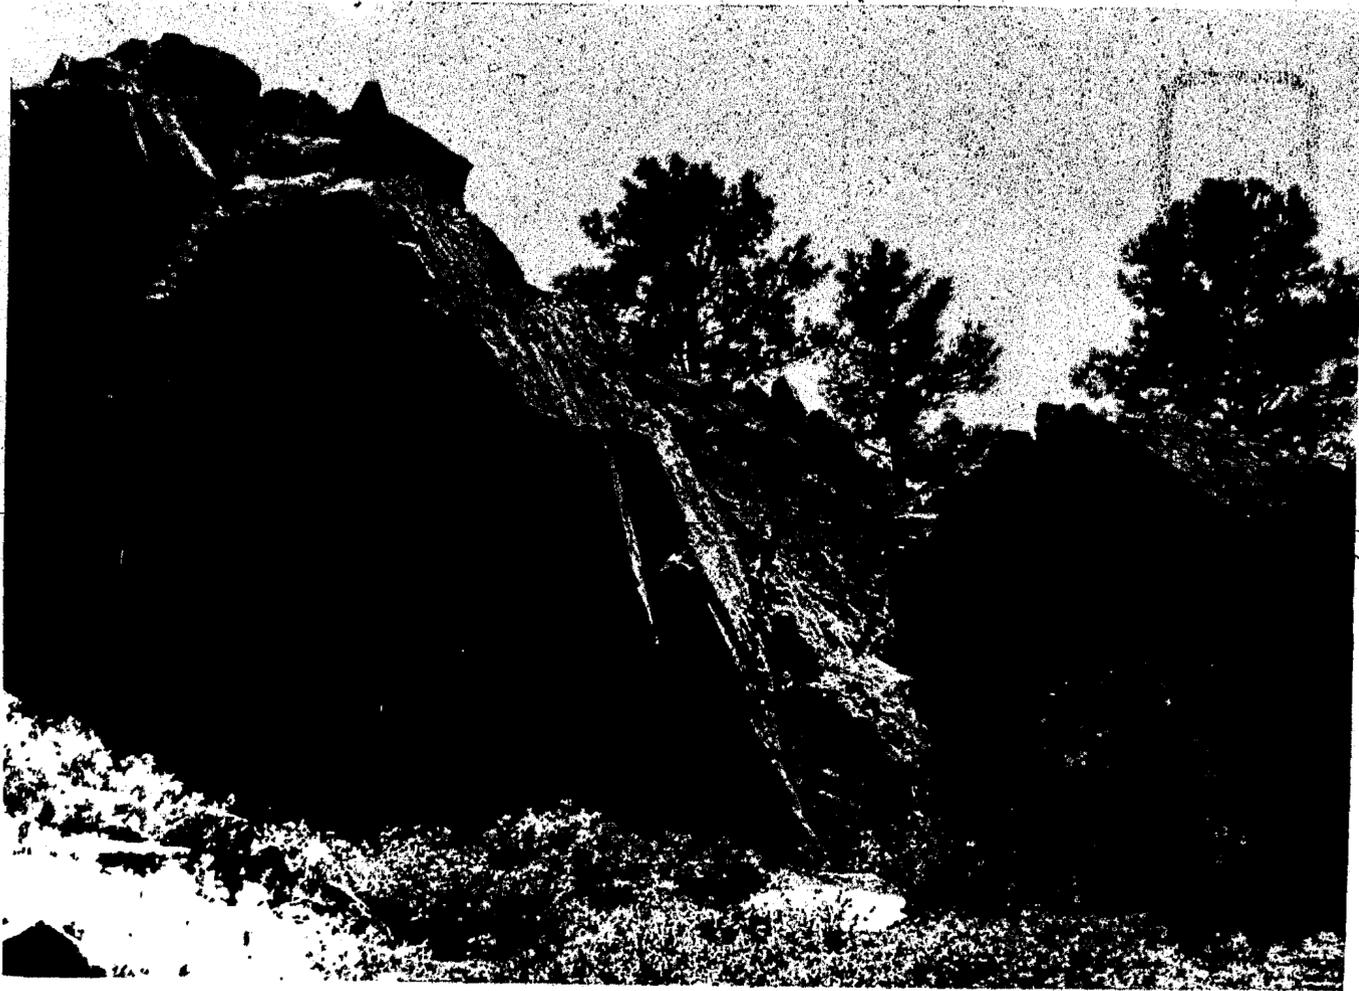

If you are ready to begin the tanning process after skinning the animal, so much the better. If, however, it is to be stored awhile, remove as much of the fat and flesh as possible and clean it of blood stains. Rub a generous amount of salt into the flesh side, roll it loosely and store in a cool place that affords good ventilation. When you are ready to tan the hide, soak it in a solution of five pounds of salt dissolved in ten gallons of water. Rainwater works quite well for this purpose. Soak for 10 to 12 hours, remove and drain, and once again rub salt into the flesh side. Roll the hide and store for a day. At this point, the flesh and fat should be loose enough for removal. If you begin fleshing (scraping the hide).

Stretch the hide over a wide, smooth plank that you have rounded the edges on and, with a dull edged implement, scrape away all fat and flesh. Rinse the salt the hide and immerse it in a lime and water solution of five pounds of lime to 25 or 30 gallons of water. The lime should be mixed by adding a little water and a little lime until thoroughly mixed, then add the remaining water. Soak the hide in this solution for about ten days or until the hair pulls off readily. The same board used for fleshing can be used to scrape away the hair and thin membrane that is next to the hide on the hair side. Next, add about a gallon vinegar to 30 gallons of water and soak the hide for two or three days to remove the lime. Remove and wash thoroughly in water to remove the vinegar. Be sure to wash your hands after contacting the lime solution.

The hide is now ready to be softened. It must be stretched and pulled until it is very pliable. The process will now be complete unless you wish to make it waterproof. This can be done by smoking it over a low smudge hardwood fire for a day or two.

Focus on Small Business

by E. Maine Shafer

Dear Mr. Shafer,

One important way for a small business to save and conserve cash is to exercise control over its inventory. Any suggestions on how to bring about better inventory control?

One technique is to purge slow-moving products from the inventory. For example, a retail chain president recently listed three rules to follow:

1. Develop a monthly schedule for returning inventory items to their manufacturers. Target a new set of suppliers each month to receive excess inventory in their product lines.
2. Never introduce a new product into inventory without first purging another product from stock.
3. Monitor "fad" purchasing closely. When demand begins to soften for items which once were "hot", cut back on inventory.

Many large retailers have developed rules of thumb for the levels of inventory to be maintained in different product lines. Small business managers can master similar rules. For example, one drug store consultant offers two rules of thumb for his clients: Stock only one month's inventory in the best-selling 100 drugs, and, second, stock only enough for one large prescription in the slowest selling drugs.

A Harvard Business School professor suggests that firms now using FIFO (first-in, first-out) accounting consider LIFO (last-in, last-out) accounting. Under LIFO, the cost of inventory sold is valued, not as its original purchase price, but at the price of the latest good added to inventory. For example, a retail clothing store may stock identical sweaters, some purchased earlier in the year for $10 and some purchased more recently for $15. LIFO accounting values every sweater at $15 regardless of its original purchase price. The net effect is to increase cost of goods sold and, thereby, decrease taxable profits. Actual profits remain the same.

As changes in inventory pricing practices are subject of IRS regulation, professional counsel is recommended before any changes are instituted.

PLAN FOR RETIREMENT

People who are thinking about retiring at the end of the year should start making some serious plans now, Don Austin, social security district manager in Roswell said recently.

And Austin said those plans should include social security. There are several factors a person should consider.

First, a person under 65 considering retirement should remember that his or her social security benefit will be permanently reduced if received before 65. The amount of the reduction depends on the number of months a person gets benefits before 65.

The reduction amounts to 20 percent at 62, 13 1/2 percent at 63, and 6 percent at 64. The reduction is figured by the number of months a person is under age 65. Future cost of living benefit increases will also be reduced by the same amount.

Other factors can influence a person's decision to retire, Austin said. Availability of a company pension could be a factor. So could the person's ability to continue working.

At any rate, a person should apply for social security retirement check 2 or 3 months before he or she reaches 65 even though he or she has no retirement plans.

This will ensure that the person has full Medicare protection at the earliest possible time.

A person should have certain information ready when applying, Austin said. A person needs his or her social security card or a record of the number. Next, proof of date of birth is needed. An official record of birth or baptism recorded early in life is preferred. If this is not available, a person should submit the best evidence available.

Forms W-2 (Wage and Tax Statement) or self-employment tax returns for the past 2 years should be available. These are needed so that all of a person's earnings can be considered in figuring benefits.

A husband or wife who is also applying should have the same documents. Birth certificates of any eligible children are needed.

Do not delay applying if any evidence is not available. Call the Roswell social security office. The people there can tell what other evidence may be used.

A free leaflet, "Thinking about retiring?" is available at the office. The office is located in the Federal Building at the corner of 5th and Richardson in Roswell. The telephone number is 622-7760.

NMSU staffers study Egyptian agriculture

"If you can imagine trying to feed and house some 33 million people with only the land in the Rio Grande Valley, you are just beginning to realize the challenge facing the Egyptian people," said Dr. Angel Gomez after he had worked for a month in Egypt.

"Agriculture in Egypt is centered along the Nile Valley and, to make matters worse, most of the farm work is done by farm family members and draft animals. In addition, the country looks to agricultural products for export to maintain a good balance of payments."

Dr. Gomez, assistant director of the Cooperative Extension Service, and Dr. George Dawson, head of the Department of Agricultural Economics and Agricultural Business, both from Mexico-State University (NMSU), worked on a four-man team in Egypt to amend the design of a $30 million dollar Egyptian Major Cereals Improvement Project, currently in operation.

At present, the project, which involves numerous NMSU faculty, is working to improve the production of the country's major cereal grains - including corn, wheat, sorghum and barley. This is about one-third of Egypt's agricultural production.

But increasing the production potential of these crops will not necessarily improve the situation, Gomez said. There needs to be an improved system of agriculture technology transfer in the country.

Methods to accomplish this were recommended by the four-man team after viewing the agricultural industry as it now operates in Egypt. The team also recommended that the project include forage and edible legumes in its programs.

"We felt there is a real need for a stronger tie between researchers and the Extension agent in the field. At present this link is almost non-existent in Egypt. Yet, because of the strong Extension-research interrelationship which we have here at NMSU, we know how vital it is to have the Extension agents teaching the latest farming techniques and, in turn, to have research generating new knowledge to resolve the tough problems the farmers are currently facing," Gomez said.

This tie-in would enable researchers to consider each proposed new plant variety or production method in relation to the farmer's other crops, his use of family labor and his scheduling of all farm operations. A more thorough approach based on a total farm system analysis would also offer a greater chance of increasing the small farmer's income.

Finally the team recommended that forage crop production, involving a plant called berseem, be included in the research. The crop covers one-half of the agricultural land in the winter and indirectly provides meat, milk, draft power and cash income to the farm family.

Currently the variety used in Egypt does not adequately supply forage needs for livestock and cannot be stored for summer use even if there was a surplus after the winter grazing. This means that livestock production is far below the potential levels, due to near starvation of the herds in the summer.

"All in all, we felt that the proposed changes will help to solve some serious problems in Egypt's agriculture. It was a very rewarding experience to be involved with a project which could soon affect the lives of so many," Gomez said.

GOING STRONG

by Gerry Johnson

A Stage of Life

"You can't sit around the house and drive mother crazy," Carol Rosofsky told her father when he retired.

Ed Rawson, an 80-year old resident of Chicago, Illinois had to be cajoled by his daughter and his wife, Dorothy, four years ago to attend a workshop at the city's Free Street Theatre.

The workshop, designed as a vehicle for intergenerational communications, lasted four weeks during which people 65 years or older of widely diverse backgrounds shared reminiscences with young actors.

More than 50 hours of memories were taped and became the genesis of Free Street Too, one of the nation's leading theatres of older people.

Rawson's reluctance was not lack of creative ability, says his wife of 55 years, but rather "a slightly reserved nature. Ed has always had an ability to weave stories for children."

But, she told a writer from the National Council on the Aging, the workshops "turned him on. He blossomed and now he's the biggest ham in the group."

Free Street Too's first production was "To Life", a dramatic and musical celebration of the oral histories which evolved from the taped workshops. The production was a smash and was later televised as an award-winning documentary by a Chicago broadcasting station.

Both the fame and the concept of the intergenerational theatre and its production spread, and the troupe is now "on the road". It performs in other cities across the country and provides how-to workshops for cities considering similar programs.

The Free Street Theatre, the parent company, had been founded in an effort to "counteract the alienation so common to modern urban life". Free Street Too is creating the light of understanding about the contributions of America's older citizens.

Clearly, the theatre experience has added new dimensions to the lives of the Rawsons. An engineer has turned actor and his wife has found new outlets for her talents as a pianist.

But more than that, says Dorothy Rawson, "We feel we have something to give and one of the greatest joys has been the relationships we have developed with the young people. They soon realized that creativity and productivity have no age limits," she says happily.

Ed Rawson had not wanted to retire. In fact after he was forcibly retired at age 65 when his company liquidated, he lied about his age in order to find another job. He subtracted nine years and was hired as a consulting engineer.

Montano Chemical Company then took over the company and required Ed to produce his birth certificate for insurance. "They nearly died when they found out how old he was - he was so alive, so vigorous," Dorothy laughs.

While they could not give him insurance, the company needed his experience and expertise and kept him on to teach the younger engineers.

He retired the last time at 76 but, as Dorothy says, "You don't retire from something, you retire to something."

Something turned out to be Free Street Too and last winter found Dorothy in Washington, D.C. testifying before the U.S. Congress on the value of the arts for older people. "More recently, Ed auditioned for and got a part in "Enemy of the People", a Henrik Ibsen play which had a seven week run at Chicago's Goodman Theatre.

The considerable publicity which has accompanied their creative careers also led to the Rawsons being featured in a newspaper ad as "a little old couple, setting a vintage car."

IN RHODE ISLAND, a new Election Reform law enables residents 65 and over to vote by mail. Applications for mail ballots are obtained from local board of canvassers' offices and the completed applications are either notarized or witnessed by two registered Rhode Island voters. Mail ballots are sent one week before the election and returned to the State Board of Elections on Election Day.

Allowing older persons to vote by mail makes it considerably easier for those with health and transportation problems to vote, thus assuring a larger voter turnout. It also gives voters more time to study the various issues and candidates on the ballot and reduces lines for other voters, thus speeding up the entire voting process.

Energy usage down

American households are using less energy, said Charles Hohn, Extension agricultural engineer for New Mexico State University. A recent survey found that 75 percent of the 1,400 households surveyed were reducing energy consumption because of higher energy prices. Lighting and heating reductions were most frequently adjusted, but air conditioner use in summer and laundry practices were also changing. Households also reduced the use of dryers and the temperature settings on hot water heaters, too.

The most common energy adjustments in the kitchen were reduced oven and dishwasher use, Hohn said.

According to the research, higher income households were making more changes in energy use. This is because these homemakers have more household appliances and therefore more adjustment alternatives, Hohn said.

The most adjustments were made by the lower middle-aged group with a higher education. The elderly with an elementary education were least likely to change energy usage, even in the event of a 25 percent increase in energy prices.

What are the implications? Because low-income, less-educated and elderly made the least changes, there seems to be a need for widespread energy conservation education programs, Hohn said. However, the results may imply that these groups have already made all the changes in energy consumption they can.

The findings point to the need for motivating the middle and upper income groups to further reduce their energy use. Energy prices that continue to increase as fast or faster than income may be an adequate incentive for reducing household energy usage, Hohn said.

Behind the Scenes

Richard Chamberlain trained like an athlete

Every role is a challenge to Richard Chamberlain, but few will ever match the physical and emotional demands of playing Blackthorne, the shipwrecked English navigator who becomes a samurai warrior in James Clavell's 'Shogun.'

NBC-TV's epic 12-hour mini-series about 17th Century Japan will be broadcast over five consecutive nights starting Monday, September 15.

"Before I even got the part I knew they wanted somebody bigger than I generally am, so I started going to a gym for several months before coming out for meetings with James Clavell. I put on a lot of weight—about 12 pounds of muscle—and I really felt great.

Richard Chamberlain

"Unfortunately, I lost most of it during filming, but I worked real hard to keep up my stamina. I knew I had to be in real good shape because it was a very physical role."

One big advantage was the fact he enjoyed Japanese food.

"It's tremendously nourishing. I tried to eat well, sleep as much as I could, go running and get a lot of exercise. I had sort of a little gym with barbells set up in my room."

Chamberlain remembers the oppressive summer heat in Japan as a major problem during the filming.

"The heat was relentless, especially when we were doing the boat scenes in Nagashima. I found I had to just sit very still in a chair, or hold an umbrella over me so the sun wouldn't scald me. It was the only way to conserve my energy.

"I noticed some of the actors would horse around the set and when it came time to do a scene they wouldn't be able to remember their lines because they were so tired."

Chamberlain says total concentration became the key to his performance.

"It was a great test because with all the technical problems of the armies running in and out there was so little time for rehearsal. Hours were spent of lighting and staging all the extras.

"And then there was the language problem. There were so many endless translations, by the time they got around to the actors you were expected to be right on the mark.

"It became like a game, which I found fascinating. It was like somebody was putting hurdles in your way, moment to moment, day after day, to see if you could deliver in front of the camera."

PBS in the spotlight

'The Tempest' again weaves its spell

Michael Hordern (right) stars when William Shakespeare's magical fantasy, 'The Tempest,' returns to PBS stations on Wednesday, September 17.* This comedy-romance, written in 1611, is generally thought to be the Bard's final complete play, and it is certainly among his richest and most beautiful.

Written just prior to Shakespeare's retirement to Stratford from London, the play details Prospero's plot to return home to Milan from the enchanted island on which he has been shipwrecked.

As a powerful magician, Prospero exerts a control over events like a playwright constructing a plot; he 'stage-manages' the actions of the other characters, arranges encounters, and dictates their outcome. Hence, many critics have identified the old sorcerer—bidding farewell to his enchanted isle—with Shakespeare, saying goodbye to the magical world of the theatre to return home to Stratford.

Also starring in 'The Tempest' are Pippa Guard as Miranda, David Dixon as Ariel (left) and Warren Clarke as Caliban. The production features original music by Joseph Horowitz and was directed by John Gorrie.

'The Tempest' was originally presented on May 7, 1980, during Season Two of THE SHAKESPEARE PLAYS. The series is made possible by grants from Exxon Corporation, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company and Morgan Guaranty Trust Company, and is a co-production of BBC-TV and Time-Life Television. It is presented over PBS by WNET, New York.

Television Schedule For The Week Of Sept. 15 through Sept. 21

through channels

by Joey Sasso

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT: Hottest news from 'Dallas'... Lucy Ewing will be married off around episode seven of the world's favorite soap opera. Having recently scrapped her real-life wedding plans, Charlene Tilton's screen heartthrob will be newcomer, Leigh McClosky... Meanwhile, 'Dallas' stars are upset about so many scenes showing them in swimsuits. "What are they trying to do, make us like 'Charlie's Angels'?" demanded one of the leading ladies. Well, it may keep our minds off who shot J.R. ... 'Lou Grant' star Ed Asner got so angry over actor Daryl Anderson calling him Poppa that he exploded. Anderson says Asner gets even more upset when friends call him Lou. He likes to be known solely as Ed, yet that hasn't deterred Anderson from inventing a new nickname—Uncle Wobblif... Larry Hagman played his evil J.R. role for real while shooting 'Dallas' scenes in a restaurant. He stormed out of the place complaining there was no ventilation fans. He jumped into his car drove downtown and bought the largest fan he could find. Before resuming work, Hagman stripped to the waist and spent twenty minutes cooling off. "It's bad enough being out here in this terrible heatwave," said Hagman. "Working indoors under lights was just impossible."

CONSUMER NEWS WIRE: With all the talk we've heard for decades about how 'the tube' will change our lives, the recent opening of a 52-channel system outside Detroit promises to really do it. The Jerrold subsidiary of General Instrument Corporation which is a major supplier of the hardware necessary for cable reception, tells of some of the marvels of technology that will fill these channels (not just re-runs of 'I Love Lucy'). You'll be able to play complicated and realistic video versions of football and baseball, checkers, chess and even backgammon, through a system they've tested together with Mattel Toys, called 'PlayCable.' There's an experimental home security system connected to police and fire departments. In London, there already is something called 'ViewData,' connected to the Post Office by which subscribers can use their sets to call up articles from financial newspapers, check restaurant reviews, and even make restaurant reservations.

TV CLOSEUP Tom Wopat, the real-life country boy who plays Luke on CBS-TV's 'The Dukes of Hazzard,' says he isn't into the Hollywood social scene. He'd rather just stay at home with his girl. His girl is Maryellen Aviano, the stand-in for co-star Catherine Bach. Tom and Maryellen have been seriously involved since meeting on the 'Hazzard' set nearly a year ago and he admits they've talked of marriage. "She's the reason I'm happy," Wopat revealed. "Even though I want to be a big success in this business, sometimes I'm the happiest when I'm away from my life. I think it's important to have a normal, stable home life. I want to have a house with kids and horses. I need a solid lifestyle. Look, I know this business can make a mess of your personal life, so you have to make time for that life and work at it." Police were called when burglar alarms went off at the beachfront home of the late David Janssen. It turned out the alarms were triggered by his mother Bernice, who claims she was photographing the area for evidence in her lawsuit contesting his will. Her legal action is against the actor's widow, Dani, who is now romantically linked with Sean Connery.
