ABSENTEE WRITE-IN VOTE REQUIRES X

Write-in voting is not hard

"It isn't hard to write in a name on a voting machine in the November 4 general election," Lincoln County clerk Jane McSwane said to The News Tuesday. Using the office of U. S. Representative District 2, as it will appear in the second column (2) on the voting machine, McSwane said the voter must:

1. Push the bottom of the slide in column 2, at the top of the voting machine, raising the metal cover to expose the paper.
2. Write the name of the person being voted for on the paper in the open slot.
3. Do the same thing for any other write-in votes.
4. Complete voting, then pull the big lever that will open the curtains in the voting booth and that will cast your vote. McSwane said, in the District 2 congressional race, the names of the announced write-in candidates must be written as follows:

Dorothy Runnels;
Or, to vote for Skeen, the voter must write his name, using one of these examples only, in the slot:
Joe Skeen
J. R. Skeen
Joseph Skeen
Joseph R. Skeen
Do not write "X" after a write-in name on the voting machine, McSwane said. Even by standing on a chair, stool or ladder, if a voter still can't write a name in the voting slot, the voter must ask an election official for help. The election official will complete a "Voter Assistance Affidavit," the voter will sign it, then the official will help the voter to cast the vote.

A blind voter, one in a wheelchair, or one who needs help for other reasons, may ask a member of the family, or a friend, to help. An election official will also help the voter, if asked.

To vote an absent voter's ballot, and write in a name, using the U. S. Representative District 2 as an example, McSwane said the voter must:

1. Write the name of the write-in candidate on the dotted line, the first one, below the name of David King.

2. Write the name as shown in the examples listed above.
3. To make the vote count, an "X" must be placed in the slot at the end of the dotted line.

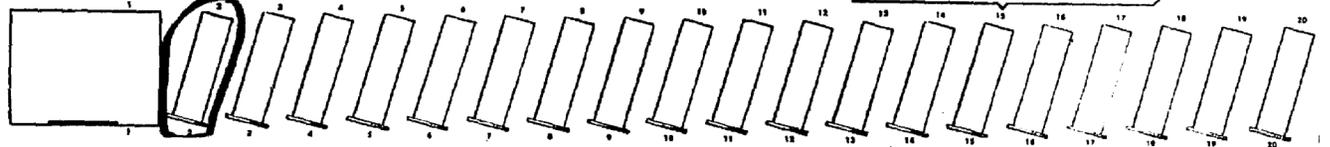

Absentee voter applications in Lincoln County must be in Post Office Box 338, Carrizozo, New Mexico 88301 by Saturday, October 25, and addressed to Jane McSwane, county clerk.

To vote absentee ballots in person, the voter has until 5 p.m., Thursday, October 30 to come to McSwane's office in the Lincoln County Courthouse, Carrizozo, to fill out the application and cast their vote.

To cast a write-in vote for any other office on the ballot November 4, the same procedures outlined above apply.

Voting Machine SAMPLE BALLOT GENERAL ELECTION

NOVEMBER 4, 1980 LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO

SLOT 2, outlined above, is the voting machine slot to cast a write-in vote for United States Representative.

WRITE-IN CANDIDATE: To write in the name of a write-in candidate, lift up the write-in slide cover bearing the numeral corresponding to the designated office and write in the name of the write-in candidate. Once a voter lifts a write-in slide, however, he cannot change his mind and use a candidate pointer in that office. This prevents over-voting.

CANDIDATO WRITE-IN (en español): Para escribir el nombre de un candidato write-in (en la lista) levante la lámina de write-in (en la lista) que tiene el número correspondiente al puesto deseado y escriba el nombre del candidato write-in (en la lista). Una vez que el votante levante la lámina de write-in (en la lista), no obstante, él no puede cambiar de opinión y usar un indicador de candidato en ese puesto. Esto lo previene over-voting.

Clocks b-a-c-k Sunday

Daylight Savings Time ends at 2 a.m., Sunday.

This means that when it's 2 a.m., Sunday, to have the correct time you must set your clocks, radio clocks, watches, grandfather clocks, or any other timepiece b-a-c-k to 1 a.m., to have the correct Mountain Standard Time.

Should the correct time addict prefer, all timepieces may be turned b-a-c-k one hour upon retiring Saturday night; with the alternative being to turn them b-a-c-k one hour upon arising Sunday... or any time at any person's convenience just so timepieces are set b-a-c-k sometime Sunday... set b-a-c-k ONE HOUR... 'cause there isn't enough daylight available for saving now... and won't be until the last Sunday in April, 1981, when it'll be that time again... to set your clocks a-h-e-a-d one hour.

As for sundials, 2 a.m., isn't the preferred hour for adjusting them... any time the sun shines Sunday will produce better, more accurate, results. Moon-dials may be adjusted safely at 2 a.m.... if the moon's shining... starlight hasn't proven to be reliable.

Federal foulup plaguing Downs

The state Board of Finance, chaired by Governor Bruce King, voted Tuesday to loan the village of Ruidoso Downs more than $69,000 in disaster funding it still expects to receive from the federal government.

The funds, already allotted to Ruidoso Downs by the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration (FDAA) have been held up by a computer error at the federal level, according to Bill Rives, head of the state office of emergency preparedness.

Because of the delay in funding, a lawsuit was filed against the village in early October by Burns Construction Company of Las Cruces, the firm which replaced two bridges destroyed in the December, 1978, flood.

The loan was approved by the state with the understanding that the federal government would reimburse New Mexico for the amount.

Village clerk Virginia Spall said Wednesday that the check from FDAA reportedly had already been issued, but could not be located. The check will then go to the FDAA's regional office in Denton, Texas, she said, before it is forwarded to the state office in Santa Fe.

After reaching the state capital, Spall said, the check will require "three to four weeks of processing before it is delivered to the village."

Spall added that the village received the last "advance payment" for the bridge construction in March. The total cost of the two bridges was about $200,000. An audit was performed in early summer and the final disaster forms were delivered to the appropriate agencies on August 1, Spall said. The final check, now reported missing, was to arrive in Ruidoso Downs September 1, she said.

The $69,000 called for in the lawsuit includes about $5,000 in interest on the final payment. Spall said she thought the village would probably be responsible for payment of that amount.

Lodgers table 'ski pack' ideas

BY CHARLOTTE FELLERS Staff Writer

Ski packages proposed Tuesday by board members of the Ruidoso Lodgers Association (RLA) were tabled by the 22 members attending the organization's monthly meeting.

Members may, instead, develop individual packages and work with their favorite ski shop owners and restaurant owners to offer packages to their customers.

Two ski packages were proposed and included budgets ranging from $3,700 to more than $10,000 for advertising the packages. The packs were based upon a week of skiing beginning Monday and offering a half price discount the third day for a three-day pack, or offering the fourth day free on a four-day pack.

Members complained that with the four day package lodgers will lose money because of high overhead costs in the winter months. Cabin owners were most opposed, since they often provide firewood and kitchenettes, which would be used free on the four day package.

One cabin owner, Richard Cull, suggested that "everybody in town offer a 'fourth day free' package — the restaurants, the ski shops, the ski area, and the lodgers. Until they do that, I sure don't want to."

Cull added that lodgers always have to absorb the biggest loss when such a package is offered.

A ski package offered last year by many Ruidoso lodgers, with the two ski areas cooperating, "failed miserably," Ed Jungbluth, Chamber of Commerce executive director, said.

He said of all the packages offered in the village, the most successful year was when each lodger had his own package.

"Let's think about selling quality," Paul Southwick, manager of Eagle Creek Ski Area, said. He said that to "advertise the weekend skiing, avoid the crowds," as many and maybe more people would arrange to visit Ruidoso in mid-week.

"You won't lose money and you'll be getting people up here," Southwick said. "If the snow's not here, it doesn't matter what kind of deal you have," Cull said. "When the snow's good, people come here." He said packages make little impact on his business, but the good snow makes a tremendous impact.

Some lodgers felt it was too late to get much mileage out of the package, since most major ski clubs and large groups have already scheduled their trips for this ski season.

Supporting the ski packages was Ray Held, manager of Ray Held's Ski Shop, who said that last year's various packages "sold $120,000 worth of rooms and this is nothing to be shunned." Held said at least $100,000 worth of rooms could be filled if a ski pack was offered this year.

The RLA agreed to begin plans this winter to launch a ski package for the 1981-82 ski season, which could be presented to the Lodger's Tax Committee in early summer for consideration.

In other business, the RLA: — Agreed to work with the Retail Merchants Committee of the Chamber to plan the 1981 Aspencade.

— Learned that Ski Ruidoso brochures are now being printed by Ruidoso Printing Company. The brochures will be available "in a few weeks," according to Mike Radziewicz, RLA chairman.

— Heard comments from Jennifer Dermer, who is opening Resort Reservations, a reservation service.

— Met Mike Morris, new owner of Mountain Pest Control.

Students suspected of Jimson weed seed use

Seven Ruidoso High School students were sent home or to the Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital Wednesday after they reportedly ingested the seeds of a Jimson weed plant before school hours.

Assistant principal Doyle Howell said that one of the students was apparently selling the fruit of the plant, which contains the seeds, to the other involved. Parents of all the students were advised as to the antidote, he added.

Jimson, which grows wild throughout New Mexico, is extremely poisonous, ingesting more than a teaspoon of the seeds can cause severe hallucinations and kidney failure.

Local police issued a warning to local students not to ingest any plant material "just because someone says it will get you high."

In the case of Jimson weed, vomiting may be induced within 15 minutes after the plant or seeds are ingested, police said. If more time elapses, another antidote must be given to counteract the kidney failure.

Arabian Horse Association will organize

The Sacramento Arabian Horse Association is now organizing, and persons interested in Arabian horses are invited to attend an open house Saturday from 1 to 5 p.m., at High Country Arabians, one mile past the ski area road on Highway 37.

Organizers emphasized that prospective members need not own horses, but simply have an interest. At 3 p.m., Saturday, the group will hold a performance designed to demonstrate how the horses are shown.

The purpose of the organization is to promote Arabian horses and activities in the area. Refreshments will be served and prizes will be given away at the open house.

Aspencade action to be on television

Ruidoso's Aspencade action will be featured Monday at 8:30 p.m., in the PM Magazine series over Channel 4, Albuquerque.

The filming crew was in Ruidoso over the October 1-4 weekend.

Pfeffer guilty of estray removal

David Pfeffer of Ruidoso was found guilty Tuesday in Carrizozo magistrate court on a charge of removal of estray. Magistrate S. M. Ortiz said Pfeffer was assessed a $100 fine, plus $10 court costs.

The fine was suspended, Ortiz said, on the condition that Pfeffer make restitution to the Harvey Talley family for the calf involved.

"IF EVERYBODY left this little slash, we'd probably have less restrictions in our fuelwood cutting areas," Mike Funston, timber specialist for Smokey Bear Ranger District, said. This slash is composed of leftover branches averaging about two inches in diameter and cut to within 12 inches of the ground. See page 10, this section, for story on wood cutting.

Altrusa's 'yellow ribbon' plan reminder of hostages

The Altrusa Club of Ruidoso has made a renewed appeal for community participation in their latest project, aimed at keeping the plight of the American hostages in Iran before the public.

On the first anniversary of the hostages' captivity, November 4, the club will place yellow ribbons on all the utility poles on Sudderth Drive, at a height of five feet.

Altrusa members are asking that individuals participate by placing ribbons on doors, fences, or some other object around their homes.

Altrusa member Jeanie Whitwam said Wednesday that the club hopes to publicize the project through P.M. Magazine and other media. Anyone wishing to volunteer assistance on the project is asked to call Whitwam at 257-2539.

Futurity trials to run at Sunland Park Friday

Trials for the first running of the All-American Sale Futurity will occupy a good portion of Friday's program at Sunland Park.

Since the Futurity packs a remarkable purse of about $150,000, track officials were anticipating a long list of hopefuls, and a list rich in quality.

A total of 67 head passed the entry box for the 400 yard trials, prompting Racing Secretary Don Rausch to schedule seven trial heats. They'll occupy the fourth through tenth slots on the 12 race program.

Included among the candidates is the brilliant Easily Smashed, who'll go in the sixth race. His main opposition includes another heavyweight, Six Fols.

The racing weekend, as usual, extends through Sunday. First post Friday and Saturday is 1 p.m. But, due to the end of Daylight Savings Time, Sunday's agenda will get off the ground at 12:30 p.m. That 12:30 p.m., starting time remains in effect through February 15.

The weekend reaches a climax Sunday with the first leg of the Savannah Swinger Distance Series at 350 yards. The added money is $3,000. Rausch reports trainers have expressed plenty of interest in the race. Numerous horses — including some top stakes winners — are signing up.

The All-American Sale Futurity is restricted to those two-year-olds who were entered in the previous year's All-American Sale at Ruidoso Downs. What gives the race plenty of teeth is the fact the added money is a staggering $50,000. That makes the All-American Sale Futurity the biggest added-money event in this part of the country.

Of the 67 hopefuls taking part in Friday's trials, only 10 will qualify for the grand finale Sunday, November 9. In order to make the qualifying cut, a candidate has to chalk up a top-10 clocking in Friday's action.

Easily Smashed, a colt who's earned nearly $100,000 so far in his career, looms as the one to watch. Last spring, Easily Smashed made a name for himself with a nose victory in the finale of the $250,300 Sun Country Futurity at Sunland. The winner's slice amounted to nearly 90 grand.

Later, he shipped to Ruidoso Downs, where he handily won his trial heat for the $504,500 Kansas Futurity. He went off at 2-1 in the finale, but finished fourth to Clever Bug.

He followed up with wins in his two qualifying rounds for the Rainbow Futurity, made the consolation, then got nosed out as a 6-5 favorite. At the tall end of the season, Easily Smashed qualified for the first consolation of the All-American Futurity, and won by a neck as an odds-on favorite. He collected $24,300 out of the gross purse of $145,000.

Six Fols, a son of the great Easy Six, qualified for the Rainbow Futurity, then finished sixth as a 24-1 shot. But he was back for the All-American Futurity, and qualified for the nationally televised grand finale. He finished fifth and enriched himself by $45,000.

Jackie Martin, the regular pilot on Easily Smashed, will be back in the saddle for Friday's engagement. Gary Sumpter will direct Six Fols.

Ivory Crockett, a colt who's been running against top company both at Sunland and Ruidoso, is another fast gun in Friday's trials. He drew into the eighth race.

'Animal Health Week' will be observed here

The Ruidoso Animal Clinic will observe Animal Health Week, October 19-26, with an open house Saturday from 1 to 4 p.m.

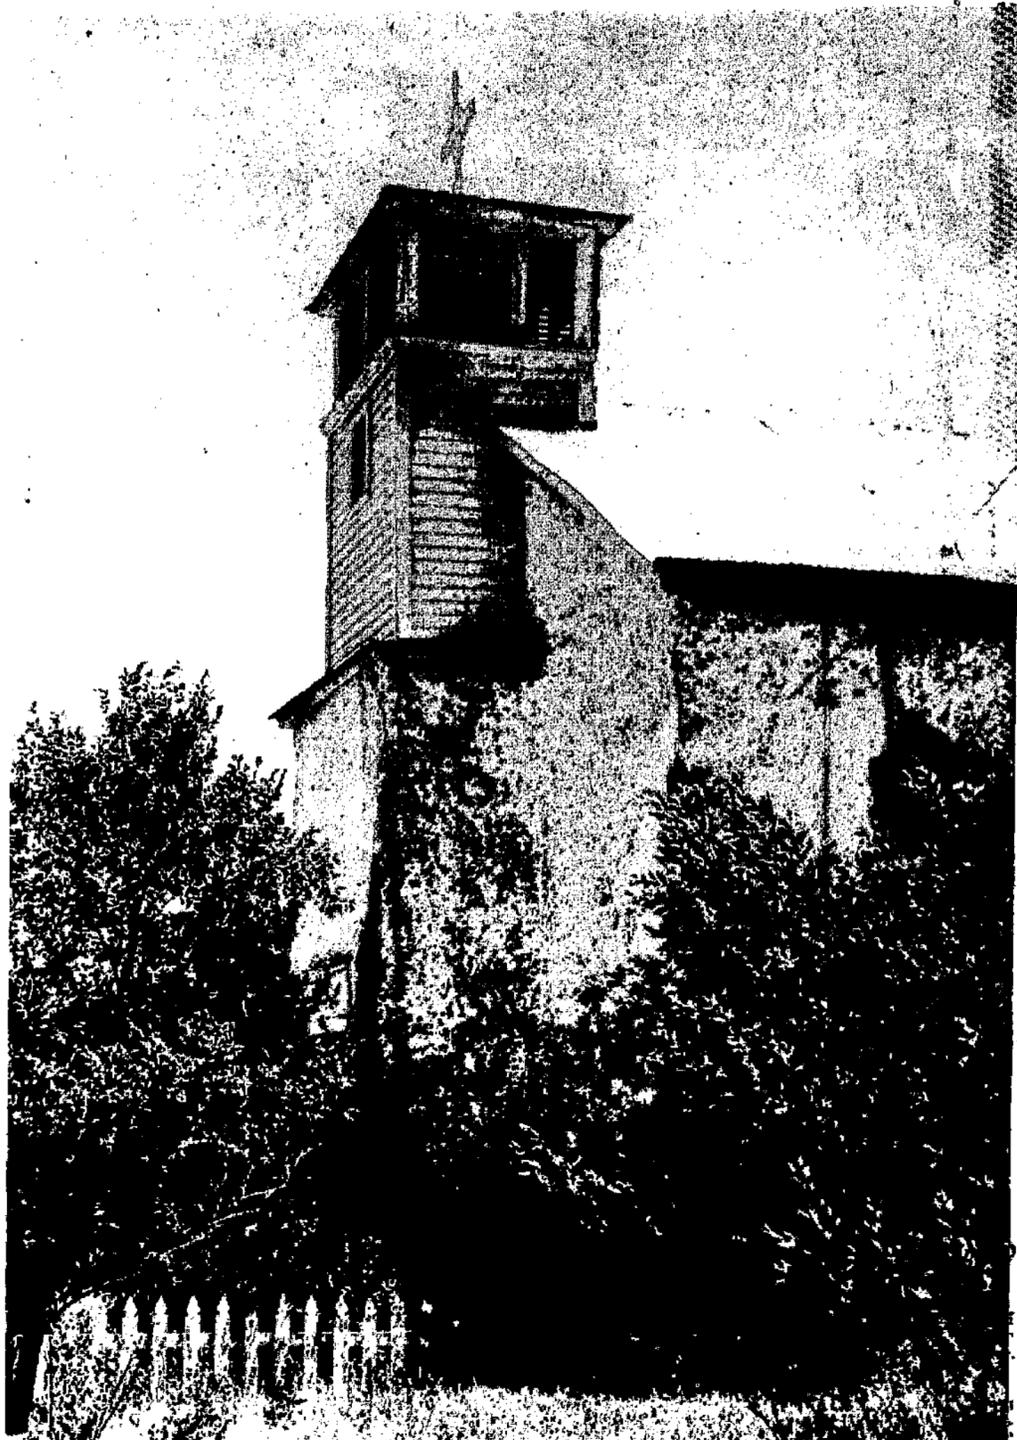

Tours of the clinic will be conducted, questions will be answered and displays will include information on diseases of animals.

Dr. Lynn Willard will demonstrate veterinary surgery at 2 and 3 p.m., and Denise Smith, registered veterinary technician, will demonstrate veterinary dental hygiene at 1:45 and 2:45.

David King to campaign in Lincoln County

Congressional candidate David King will be making several appearances in Lincoln County Monday. King will be at the multipurpose room of the Ruidoso Public Library from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m.

King will also make appearances, to talk with voters, at Fort Stanton, from 10 to 10:30 a.m.; at Capitan from 11 to 11:30 a.m., and at Carrizozo from noon to 1:30 p.m.

SAN JUAN CHURCH in Lincoln is due for restoration, beginning next month. The state Board of Finance Tuesday approved the sale of $100,000 in bonds which will finance the work.

Lincoln church restoration set

The state Board of Finance, meeting Tuesday in Santa Fe, approved the sale of $41.5 million in bonds to finance public works improvements in the state, including $100,000 earmarked for restoration of the old San Juan Church in Lincoln.

State Monuments Division director Tom Caperton said Wednesday that restoration work on the church will begin shortly after the bonds are sold in mid-November.

The church, built around 1885, will be completely restored, Caperton said. Exterior and interior walls will be repaired and replastered, windows renovated and a new roof added. Utility systems, which had been added piecemeal throughout the years, will be replaced, he said.

Interior furnishings will be refinished, the church organ will be put into working condition and a fire suppression system will be installed in the church.

Any area residents who are in possession of old photographs of the church are asked to cooperate in the restoration project. Historic photos may reveal features of the building which have been altered over the years, Caperton said. Persons wishing to assist in this manner should contact monument supervisor Ed Raventon in Lincoln, who will arrange for copying of the photographs.

Elks hosting benefit for fire victims

A benefit for Mr. and Mrs. Eston Fulson, who lost all of their belongings in a recent fire destroying their home east of Mesalero, will be held from 2 to 7 p.m., Saturday, at the Ruidoso Elks Lodge, Highway 70 west.

The family includes two young girls and an 18-year-old son.

All proceeds from these events will go to the family:

— Shuffleboard tournament, $2 entry fee, beginning at 3 p.m.

— All-you-can-eat fish fry, $4 per person, from 2-7 p.m., includes deep fried fish fillets, cole slaw, French fries and hush puppies.

Liquor reform aired at forum

Questions on liquor reform seemingly were uppermost in the minds of most of the 48 people attending the Lincoln County Christian Action Coalition's political forum here Monday evening.

State Representative John Bigbee, seeking reelection from District 50, fielded the questions and said he favored some type of liquor reform, including providing wine and liquor licenses for some restaurants. He charged that some of the church groups were lax in their efforts to promote liquor reform and that some legislators tended to vote against any bills with liquor in the title.

Questions asked of Bigbee and Wilton Howell, District 39 Senate hopeful, included one on local taxes, one on teacher's pay, one on problems of getting titles to wrecked cars and one of the functions of the Department of Transportation.

County candidates present were Jane McSwane and Michael Gray for clerk, Kay Allison and Martha Guvera for treasurer, Julia Samora and Charles Rominger for assessor, Ernest Sanchez and Bill Elliott for sheriff and Jim Woodridge for commissioner. The candidates outlined their goals with Sanchez and Elliott stressing that better law enforcement in the county would bring on better pay for qualified deputies.

Lincoln County voter registration 6,199

Lincoln County voter registration is 6,199 as of October 14, 1980, county clerk Jane McSwane has announced. This is an increase of 913 since March 10, 1980.

The tabulation below is by precinct number, name and political party.

No.	Name	Democrats	Republicans	No Party	Total
1.	Capitan	437	242	46	725

17.	Hondo	109	187	9	305
TOTALS		3,325	2,551	311	6,199

Ruidoso's registered voter total is 2,718, with 661 in Ruidoso Downs, for a total of 3,379 out of the 6,199 voters in Lincoln County.

Open political forum tonight

Some state and all county candidates for offices to be elected November 4 will attend tonight's political forum at Ruidoso Public Library, slated to begin at 7.

The event is sponsored by the Friends of the Library and questions will be asked of any candidate by the audience. Some questions will also be asked by moderator Ed Hyman, owner of KRRR Radio. Refreshments will be served.

Runnels here Saturday for public coffee

Dorothy Runnels, write-in candidate for United States Representative, District Two, will be in Ruidoso Saturday to attend a 10 a.m., coffee at the Whispering Pines Restaurant.

Pilot Club conducting apple sale this weekend

Ruidoso's newest service organization, Pilot International, has announced a fund raising activity scheduled for Friday and Saturday.

The Pilot club, a business and professional women's organization, will be selling apples for $3.50 per shopping bag at three locations — the law offices of Payne, Mitchell and Quigley, the soccer field at White Mountain School and in front of the Village Jeweler.

Hours for the apple sales will be 1 to 6 p.m., Friday and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., Saturday. Proceeds will go toward the ultimate goal of establishing a program to benefit the youth of Ruidoso and surrounding communities.

The Pilot Club elected officers Tuesday and set installation November 6 at 7 p.m., at the Holiday Inn. Presiding over the installation will be Mrs. Fran Simon, Pilot District Governor, and initiation will be conducted by Sara Miller of the Pilot Club of Ruidoso. Other area Pilot members will be on hand to help formulate the club charter.

Students clean, winterize homes for elderly citizens in Ruidoso

Members of the student councils (SC) at White Mountain Middle School and Ruidoso High School (RHS) have donated time and labor, as well as funds, to clean up yards and winterize homes for elderly people in the village.

"We think we should do something for the community because it gives people a better image of the kids — and the kids want to do it," Judy Waldron, RHS sponsor, said.

Working with the Home Health Care program, Waldron found some people who needed help in turning over their gardens, cleaning up trash around homes and "winterizing in general." The SC purchased the winterizing materials to complete the job, and four homes were sprayed up and some winterized Sunday by some of the SC members. Waldron said students hope to do more as they find the need.

"Our next big project, though, is one we feel really proud to sponsor," Waldron said. The SC sponsors one big money making project within the schools each November and the money is used to purchase staples to be placed in huge food baskets and delivered around Thanksgiving.

The project continues through Christmas, with the two SC's adding money to the pot to also buy gifts for the people that "don't usually get remembered at these times," Waldron said. Most on the receiving end are in their 70's or 80's, Waldron said.

Last year, 10 food baskets were delivered and Waldron expects about that many this year.

Some students have signed to become volunteers at Ruidoso Care Center and a huge campaign to get blood donated in the next blood drive held here, is another project the two groups will sponsor.

The student councils also do service projects for students, Waldron said. "We sponsor all the school dances and Tween Week in the spring," she said. Both can become expensive since bands are usually employed to provide music.

"We get most of our funding from the two soda machines at the high school," Waldron said. When a large function, such as the Thanksgiving food baskets, is held, the councils sponsor class contests to raise money.

LOUISE COE HONORED: Louise Coe acknowledged her selection as a distinguished woman of the University of New Mexico (UNM) during Homecoming recently. A 1930 UNM graduate, Coe was New Mexico's first woman state senator and the nation's first female legislative majority leader. Bills she sponsored made major improvements in the state's public education systems. A longtime community activist in the Hondo Valley, Coe serves on the Lincoln County Heritage Trust. She was selected for the Homecoming honor by UNM's alumnae chapter of Mortar Board, sponsor of the Homecoming breakfast where the award was presented.

Warriors face district tilt with 'Cats

BY MARK BAGBY
Sports Editor

You'd think the Ruidoso Warriors, with a 6-1 record, coming off a big win over arch-rival Tularosa, rated in the top ten in both of the state's major polls and boasting a 2-0 district leading record, could take it easy this week.

After all, Friday's away game is with the winless Deming Wildcats. Should be a pushover, right?

Not soooooo way, warns coach Darrel Stierwalt.

"Hey, this is district, and we're ripe for an upset," Stierwalt told his squad in practice Tuesday. "We can win district, and maybe even go all the way. But if we don't beat Deming Friday, we can just hang it up."

Stierwalt later told The News, "I'm worried about our kids. Our biggest problem right now is getting them ready. Deming hasn't won a ball game, and it's hard to get fired up for a team that isn't one of the strongest in the district."

"Hey, our kids read the papers too, they know Deming hasn't won yet. We can't tell them Deming will be ready, and I can guarantee you they'll (Deming) be ready."

There's nothing they'd like more than to knock us off.

"We could, probably, still win the district even if we lost. But I don't want it to come down to that. We have to practice with more intensity and get more enthused about this if we expect to win."

"We blew Monday's practice. I don't know how we'll do today (Tuesday). But I do know if we practice crappy, we play crappy."

To listen to Stierwalt, you'd think Deming is 6-1 and Ruidoso is 0-7.

But it's the Wildcats who are winless, and with good reason. Coach Sim Willis has only one starter back from last season's 7-3 squad that beat the Warriors, 39-15.

Oddly enough, with 16 series in the lineup, inexperience is the chief problem the Wildcats have this year. Although Willis has that many starting seniors, most of them have little experience.

The one returning starter, Vince Alamanza, a 5-10, 200 pound senior, is good at both the offensive and defensive tackle positions.

But that seems to be about it, as far as experience goes.

The Wildcat offense runs out of a pro set backfield, but the running game has been ineffective (Deming had two yards rushing against New Mexico Military Institute earlier this year). Most of Deming's success in moving the ball has been through the air, as 6-3, 200 pound quarterback David Lara can throw the ball, and throw it he does. Often. And deep.

"Yeah, that's been our weakest defensive performance, against strong passing teams," Stierwalt said. "We've been working on it, or trying to. We'll just have to keep them from getting cranked up."

Defensively, the Wildcats have not played that badly. Teams move the ball on Deming, but that's mostly due to the fact the Wildcat offense cannot move the ball and the defense is on the field much of the game.

To make matters worse, the Wildcats do not have an adequate kicking game.

On paper and on the field, Deming has emerged as one of the weak sisters of District 3AAA.

So why is Stierwalt worried about an upset?

"We got to get this one," he said. "Deming might be a little bigger than us, but I think we're quicker. Physically, I think we'll be ready. Mental readiness is our problem right now."

That isn't the only problem the Warriors face. Several starters, including Mike Dale, Robert Langston and Von Rue, have been bitten by the flu bug, and then there's the biggest blow of all — defensive tackle Ronald Bell suffered a knee injury in Monday's practice, underwent surgery Tuesday and is out for the season.

"That stuff hasn't helped our practices any," he said. "A lot of this is understandable. We had a big win last week, we're still reliving it, and we're hoping it will carry over this week. But it won't."

Another thorn in Stierwalt's side is the long bus trip to Deming.

"I don't like to play on the road," Stierwalt said. "I ain't Willie Nelson, I can't stand to be on the road. I'd love to play at home anytime."

But all that's immaterial, he added. "It doesn't matter," he said. "You got to win at home and on the road, it's that simple. I'd rather play at home, but . . ."

"I think we can play without our sharpest intensity and beat Deming. But I sure as heck don't want to test that theory." Kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m., Friday, in Deming.

LEROY RAMIREZ kicks an extra point out of Don Nunney's hold during the Warrior-Cobre contest. The senior kicker is 14 of 17 on the year, and hopefully he'll get a chance to up that Friday night against Deming.

Junior Skiers planning races, other activities

Ruidoso's Junior Ski Racers have two races scheduled at Sierra Blanca this season.

A "B" through "G" ability race will be here January 17-18, and an age class race will be on the slopes at Sierra Blanca February 21-22.

Meanwhile, the Junior Skiers are raising money for the upcoming season. Chief among their fund raising activities is the "Snow Derby," a contest wherein participants make a guess as to when the first three inch snowfall descends on Ruidoso.

Tickets are $5 per guess, and buyers then select month, day, hour and minute. The closest guess is worth $500 to the ticket buyer, with second and third best guesses garnering $200 and $100.

Tickets are available from any skier.

Also planned are the annual ski swap, November 28-30, and the annual Casino Party, December 5.

There are about 30 youngsters signed up for the program thus far, in these brackets: "Hot Tots," 3-5 years; beginners, six and up (to age 18); age class, 13 and under; and ability class, 14-18. Age and ability class skiers are the ones who actually compete in races.

Fees for racing level skiers are $300 a season, which includes coaching fees and transportation. Beginners and Hot Tots pay $150.

No equipment is provided, but generally the Junior Skiers get sizable discounts on their gear.

Once into the program, each youngster skis an average of three days a week, and racers are assured of participation in at least 10 competitions.

But the beginners aren't forgotten, as basic ski instruction is emphasized more than racing.

Coaches for this season are Jamie Temple and Gary Vogel, with Cathy Allen handling the Hot Tots.

The Junior Skiers also hold regular meetings, with the next slated for October 28 in King's Restaurant at 7:30 p.m. Officers and board of directors will be elected, and all interested persons are invited to attend.

For more information, call 257-5641, 257-2391 or 336-4229.

Junior varsity footballers play here tonight

The Ruidoso Warrior junior varsity football squad has its final home game of the season tonight at 6 in Warrior Stadium.

They'll be taking on Roswell Goddard's freshman squad as they seek to boost their 1980 record, which now stands at 1-2-2.

The final game of the season will be a rematch with Goddard there next Tuesday.

Cree Meadows slates scramble

Cree Meadows Golf and Country Club is holding an 18 hole scramble Saturday at 12:30 p.m.

The foursome play scramble is open to all players, and entry fee is $10, which includes cart fees.

Deadline for signups is 11 a.m., Saturday.

For more information, contact Cree Meadows pro Bob Hickson, 257-5658.

by

Mark Bagby

I'm sick and tired of all this crud I've been hearing about how the Warriors are "surprising," and "upstarts" and "might have some say in who wins District 3AAA."

Those are all quotes from football stories around the state, describing the phenomenal rise of the gridiron Warriors into sixth place in the Associated Press poll and eighth in United Press International.

Some of us — there are very few — haven't been too surprised. You know what the biggest surprise of the season has been, as far as I'm concerned? A two point loss to Gadsden (which, by the way, don't mention to Darrel Stierwalt, 'cause he's liable to hit ya.)

Other than that, things have gone about the way I figured they would.

Why is it folks just won't believe? Is it so remarkable that a school in its second year in AAA could actually be a contender for the title?

Not in my book.

See, gang, the Warriors were really a pretty good ball team last year, only nobody — including the Warriors — believed that. So, consequently, a 2-7 season was the result.

After an off season weight lifting program, the Warriors are now a year bigger, a year stronger and a year smarter.

But people, for some reason, find that hard to accept.

Part of the reason, I think, might be the past seven or eight years' records. The Warriors didn't exactly have their finest hours in those days. But listen, really Ruidoso has a lot stronger tradition than you'd think.

Like I mentioned, since 1953, the Warriors have had 15 winning seasons, and have been state champions four times (1950, '55, '57 and '72), narrowly missed a state title (in '71), and also have the distinction of being the first team in the state's history to finish the regular season unbeaten, untied and unscored upon. (That was in 1955, when the Warriors scored 303 points in 10 games and gave up only 13 — one touchdown each in the state semifinal and final games.)

But, when you get right down to it, all of that doesn't amount to a hill of beans. Not even a small hill.

It's this year that counts, and the Warriors are 6-1. They face Deming, part three of Stierwalt's five part plan to win the District 3AAA crown, which in itself is just a step on the way towards winning state.

That's what makes football (or any sport where you're competing for a championship) so hard to play — you have to keep psyching yourself up to play harder each week, because every victory is just a step closer to the ultimate goal.

This is starting to sound very Knute Rockneish — which is not my intention — but Stierwalt and his coaching corps made it very clear to the team they wanted to win the state championship — and that was last April or so.

I think once they got the squad to believe in itself, the rest was easy. And slowly, but surely, they're making believers of everyone else — like Jal, Dexter, Estancia, Cobre, Lordsburg, and yes, even Tularosa.

The Warriors have finally erased the "but" in "The Ruidoso Warriors? Oh, they're okay, but . . ."

The next three (at least three) weeks will be very interesting as far as the gridironers are concerned. Those three weeks will see if the Warriors go traveling around Thanksgiving, or if they stay home and eat turkey.

But whatever happens, I know a few folks around the state who are currently eating crow.

The thrill of victory and the agony of a haircut

A lot of people got pretty excited about the Ruidoso-Tularosa game. And Darrel Stierwalt even lost hair over it.

Naw, he didn't pull it out — seems he went to his friendly neighborhood barber the Saturday morning after the 14-0 Ruidoso triumph.

They got so busy talking about the game, the haircutter didn't exactly take note of just how much hair he was clipping.

Oh! Darrel probably won't have to get his locks trimmed for about six months now.

That's what he gets for being a cut up, you suppose?

Mumble Night Football

For the first time in ages, I had a chance to watch Monday Night Football this week.

I didn't realize how bad it has become. My favorite part was Frank Gifford insisting Oakland's Mark Van Eeghen had not scored, while the official is standing there with both arms straight up in the air.

"He did not score, the Pittsburgh defense held on fourth down," Gifford blurted out. But the official had the final say.

How long has it been this rotten? No wonder ABC's Monday night game ratings are down. It's gotten about as interesting as a political commercial.

No, I take that back — that's an insult to political commercials, which are insulting enough as it is. Won't November ever get here?

HOW MUCH HOT WATER?
One of the items frequently overlooked when remodeling or buying a new home, is the capacity of the hot water heater. First notice of this oversight normally is discovered while under a hot shower when it turns ice-cold prematurely. But, then it is too late. So, here's a short course on the subject.

The capacity of storage water heaters is rated in two ways and is usually imprinted on the nameplate of the tank. One number tells you the capacity of the tank, and the other number shows the recovery rate per hour. The sum of the two numbers gives you the number of gallons of hot water a tank can supply in one hour.

A tank of 50 gallons capacity with a recovery rate of 40 gallons will supply 90 gallons an hour which should be plenty for family of five in a home with two baths and an automatic dishwasher and clotheswasher. A family of four without the dishwasher should be able to get by on a 30 or 40 gallon tank with 30 gallon recovery.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at DEVON DEVELOPMENT, INC., 2904 Suddarth Drive, Box 1860, Ruidoso. Phone: 257-5611. We're here to help!

DAVID KING ADDRESSES THE ISSUES

- Education
Education is and should be the primary responsibility of local school districts and the state, with the federal government strictly in a supportive role. As your Congressman (whose wife has been a public schoolteacher in the Second District), I will work for federal legislation that helps states and districts meet their obligation to provide education and against federal over-regulation and interference.
- Agriculture
Agriculture is a vital, basic segment of New Mexico's economy. As a partner for 16 years in a large farming and ranching operation and as an individual active in cattle and farm organizations I have the background and experience to represent agriculture in the U.S. Congress.
- Energy
It is imperative that the United States free itself from dependence on foreign oil. That means stimulating the oil industry here, which means freeing the industry from government controls, regulations and red tape which impair development.
- Environment
I believe we can have both orderly growth and development and a clean environment. I believe my record as State Planning Officer from 1971 to 1974 shows that I worked actively and consistently in both areas.
- National Defense
I am deeply committed to a strong national defense, which is vital to this nation's security. We are in danger of seriously falling behind the Soviet Union and I believe we need to strengthen our armed forces to a point of U.S. superiority over the Russians.
- The Family
I am deeply committed to preserving and strengthening the sanctity of the family, which generally means keeping the government out of it. I favor proposed legislation in the U.S. Congress which moves in this direction and which would repeal the so-called "marriage tax". Any federal government policy that disrupts the American family needs immediate review.
- Small Business
A major ingredient of economic life in this country is small business, especially in New Mexico. I am concerned that small business increasingly bears the burden of bureaucratic red tape and other obstacles caused by government. I will work to help alleviate these problems.
- Senior Citizens
I am strongly committed to the integrity of the Social Security system, adequate old-age benefits, and inflation indexing.

Focus on Small Business

by E. Maine Shafer

Dear Mr. Shafer: I think my small business has to fill out too many government forms. The paperwork is killing me. What's being done about this?

More than you might think.

The overall Federal paperwork burden on business has been trimmed by 15 percent since 1977. In this reduction, special efforts have been made to reduce the paperwork and red tape burden heretofore placed on small firms.

One good example is the Regulatory Flexibility Act, recently passed by Congress and signed by President Carter. This law requires all regulatory agencies — agencies like OSHA, the Federal Trade Commission, Federal Communications Commission and Interstate Commerce Commission — to anticipate the impact of their rules on small business and to tailor their regulations to the size of businesses affected, whenever this can be done without sacrificing basic regulatory goals.

OSHA (Occupational Safety and Health Administration) has exempted 40,000 "low-risk" businesses from reporting requirements. The FAA (Federal Aviation Administration) cut the time small plane pilots and owners (many of whom are small business people) spend on paperwork by two-thirds; the ICC has cut a 70-page report required for 13,000 smaller carriers down to eight pages and the Department of Energy used sampling techniques to eliminate 5.1 million hours of reporting burdens.

President Carter issued an Executive Order a year ago establishing an annual "paperwork budget" for all Executive Branch agencies to make them more conscious of the burdens they are imposing. This order forces agencies to set priorities and cut back on the number of forms. It also requires them to "tier" their forms for small businesses and to provide a justification every five years for each requirement.

Deregulation also has helped trim the small business paperwork and red tape burdens. This deregulation, initiated for the most part by the Carter Administration and agreed to by Congress, has freed up the airline, railroad, trucking and radio and TV industries. Paperwork requirements also have been reduced in the securities field.

THEA HASSELL was honored at the fall board meeting of the Jayceettes held this month at Las Vegas, New Mexico. Hassell was given a plaque for chairing the Muscular Dystrophy Dance A Thon benefit held in Ruidoso in July. The Ruidoso Jayceettes Chapter also received a certificate of appreciation for sponsoring the dance a-thon and won the travel award for traveling the farthest to attend this month's meeting.

Mud Mountain footrace scheduled for November

The Second Annual Mud Mountain Cross Country Run in Truth or Consequences (T or C) has been scheduled for Saturday, November 1.

The 7.3 mile race will start at Hot Springs High School at 9:30 p.m. Entry fee is $15, and race day registration is from 8 a.m. to noon, Saturday, at Jiffy Boot and Shoe, 413 Date Street in T or C.

Afternoon registration will be from 2:30 to 3:15 in the high school parking lot, a block west of Ace Lodge-Los Arcos Steak House, on the north side of T or C.

There are two courses — the 7.3 course combines jeep trails, rocky hills, arroyos, gullies and sandy soil, and a 3.7 mile race covers much of the longer course.

Age group divisions, male and female, are 13 and under, 14-19, 20-29, 30-39, 40-49 and 50 and over.

Thirteen and under runners may enter the 3.7 mile bracket only.

All participants will receive a certificate. Age bracket winners will receive custom T-shirts.

First place male and female runners in the 7.3 mile race will be awarded a dinner for two at Los Arcos Steak House and a pair of top model running shoes from Jiffy Shoe and Boot.

First place in the shorter race will receive day packs from Jiffy and a large pizza from Pizze by Joy.

For more information, contact Jeff Hickman, 413 Date Street, Truth or Consequences, New Mexico, 87901, or call (505) 894-9967.

Laundry room fire causes minor damage

A fire in the laundry room of Redbud Cabins in Upper Canyon did minor damage at 7:50 Saturday morning, according to Ed Eardley, a part owner of the complex.

Eardley said the fire occurred when he put a load of laundry in and when attempting to transfer it to the dryer, noted "a wall of flames." He attempted to smother the fire with some old rags and bedspreads and also with water. Then Eardley telephoned the Ruidoso Volunteer Fire Department, "which was very prompt" in arriving at the scene.

Eardley said the only items lost were "a bunch of old rags and a tool box." Apparently the front was left off the water heater "and when it lit to do the laundry it caught fire," Eardley said.

Talent to Burn

Pryography is the fancy name for a longtime hobby of 81-year-old Gus Shankey of Plymouth, Massachusetts.

He calls it woodburning and says "it is simple. You just get some wood — white pine is best — make a pencil drawing of whatever you want and trace the drawing with an electric needle."

The needle burns the image into the wood which is then covered with a clear shellac or other preservative. "It makes a nice wall plaque", Shankey told a writer for the National Council on the Aging.

This hobby, marksmanship — he was a Sharpshooter in World War I — and undoubtedly his early sports career, make Shankey a popular man at Plymouth's Camp Norse Boy Scout camp this summer.

The job is an outgrowth of the Plymouth Council on Aging's "jobs with dignity" project which is designed to provide suitable part-time employment for retired people.

Shankey, an engineer, is retired from the Federal government where he and his family spent much of his career overseas.

He and his wife Mona cultivated their relatives in New York State and in 1978 moved to Plymouth to be near their two daughters and seven grandchildren.

"Wanting to avoid the rocking chair", Shankey sought something to do to keep busy. He responded to an advertisement of the Plymouth Senior Center and "went to check it out."

He found it interesting and is enrolled in an oil painting class. But they soon discovered his talents and put him to work teaching woodburning to other seniors.

He spends most mornings at the center and the afternoons "working out" — jogging at a nearby soccer field.

Physical fitness is important to Shankey, the athlete. He played baseball and football for New York's Fordham University where he had an athletic scholarship. It was there that he played ball against Lou Gehrig, of Columbia, soon-to-be famed star of the Yankees, and Frankie Frisch, Fordham's hero.

When he later played semi-professional baseball, he knew the immortal "Babe" Ruth.

There's little question that Shankey's background and expertise is "suitable" for his work with the Scouts.

The Scouts are benefiting from his crafts and marksmanship classes, and it is also highly likely they enjoy after hours memories of the greats of baseball.

Over Easy, a TV program for older audiences hosted by Hugh Downs, has been awarded a grant by the Luke B. Hancock Foundation to conduct a substantive study on the needs and concerns of older people. The study will be based on more than 150,000 letters received by the program which reflect how older people perceive the issues they face. The study, which, due to the highly personal nature of the letters, is expected to reveal problems which have not surfaced in more traditional studies. Confidentiality will be maintained, of course, and the results will be submitted to the White House Conference on the Aging scheduled for late 1981.

A GRAND PROCESSIONAL was held Sunday in Roswell for Cub Scouts participating in the Conquistador Council's Pushmobile Elimination Derby. Local winners will be competing again this Sunday against Scouts from across southeastern New Mexico.

A Matter of Degree (s)

Next year Alfred Friedlieb, 72, will cap his life-time learning career with two Masters degrees.

Two disciplines — music and ancillary medicine — have fought for supremacy in the life of the Florida and New York retiree. Both happily won. The versatile student is studying simultaneously for a Masters in Fine Arts and in Public Health. He obtained a B.A. in Psychology several years ago.

Music came first, and naturally to him, when at age five he made his way to the piano and just started playing. He has never stopped. He studied with Charles Houbiel, a prominent instructor from the Julliard School of Music in New York City, near his home on Long Island.

Pharmacy was to be his life work, however, as his father, a druggist and 1897 immigrant from Palestine, prevailed and the young Friedlieb entered the Brooklyn School of Pharmacy in 1924.

"But", he told a writer from the National Council on the Aging, "I was not about to give up my music." And, in order to supplement both his interest and his income, he played the organ at "some of the grand old movie palaces." He played New York's RKO, Warner and Roxy theatres until the advent of the "talkies", which ended such recitals.

Friedlieb and his brother operated a retail pharmacy in Lawrence, New York until Alfred retired, formally at least, in 1970. The restless druggist pursued his studies over years and took many liberal arts courses.

In addition, just after World War II, he obtained a license as a real estate broker. "It was very interesting and lucrative. The post-war boom had just begun," he noted enthusiastically.

Now with an apparently comfortable income, Friedlieb has become a "snowbird", a winter resident of Florida. He and his wife, Sid, live in a condominium in Delray Beach. He summers at Far Rockaway, Long Island.

Winter or summer, it makes no difference. Friedlieb pursues his studies and those degrees. His snowbirding scheduling takes him to four different campuses a year — "I go wherever I can get the courses I need," he says with grit.

Serving two masters — music and medicine — makes for variety in his life. He alternates classes of humanities, composition and piano practice with physiology, biology, and death and dying.

Meanwhile, both disciplines provide a source of entertainment and comfort to the residents of the condo.

Wearing his musical hat, Friedlieb organizes and directs musical shows. A recent minstrel talent show involved some 50 residents and the proceeds benefitted medicine — the local Cancer Fund.

In addition, Friedlieb is a member of a club of retired doctors, pharmacists and nurses who provide diagnostic health services and he is able to perform blood pressure readings for the residents.

When the snowbird migrates to his Long Island home, he and his wife enjoy frequent visits with their son, daughter and three grandchildren who live nearby.

A man of seasons, a man of reasons.

AVERAGE BILLING PLAN

JAN. FEB. MAR. APR. MAY JUN. JUL. AUG. SEP. OCT. NOV. DEC.

TO SMOOTH OUT YOUR ELECTRIC BILL!

THIS IS HOW YOUR AVERAGE BILLING AMOUNT IS FIGURED:

FIRST MONTH MOST RECENT 12 MONTH ACTUAL USE + 12 = AVERAGE BILLING AMOUNT

EACH MONTH THEREAFTER MOST RECENT 12 MONTH ACTUAL USE + 12 + ACCUMULATED DIFFERENCE = AVERAGE BILLING AMOUNT

*15% of accumulated difference is added when prior to the current bill, the accumulated amount for electricity used is more than the accumulated amount billed under the Average Billing Plan.

NOTE: If you have less than 12 month's history at your present address, the "average" will be based on the number of months available.

When you receive an unexpectedly high electric bill in the mail, it can really be a jolt to your budget. You might even have to delay a special purchase you were planning just to pay your electric bill that month. Community Public Service Company's Average Billing Plan can help you avoid this problem by averaging out the amount you pay over an entire year. This way, your bill won't put an abnormal strain on your budget, even during months of extraordinarily high electricity use such as August. Your bill may vary some from month to month, but not to any large degree. Your total annual electricity expense will stay the same while you enjoy the extra ease of averaged bills. If you think the convenience of the Average Billing Plan could help you plan your budget better, call Community Public Service Company for details.

It's fuelwood cutting time in the Lincoln National Forest

October is the peak month for cutting fuelwood in the national forests, and Lincoln National Forest is no different, according to Mike Funston, timber specialist on Smokey Bear Ranger District.

Funston said September and November are tied for second most popular wood gathering months, and added that this year's forest fuelwood users are observing regulations much to his satisfaction.

In an intensive law enforcement drive one weekend in September on Smokey Bear district, "over 90 percent of those cutting wood have permits, are in the proper areas and are trying to comply with all the regulations," Funston said.

If this trend continues "we won't have to tighten the regulations as much and we will be able to continue with personal fuel usage." Funston added that "our priority is to protect the national forest, but by managing it effectively, we can make this type of use available to the public."

Co-operation from the public has come from an attitude change, Funston believes, when people realized the "pioneer" ethic of using anything on forest land at any time was no longer acceptable. "People are aware of the limitations now — there are more people and they have to share more," Funston said.

One of the worst abuses in the fuelwood cutting program is done by people who buy personal use permits and then re-sell the wood for much profit. "They ruin the program for everyone," Funston said. When a fuelwood permit is issued, the holder pays $5 per cord and is given a permit and map to help locate the cutting area. He does not have to report back to the district office, but forest officers patrolling cutting areas can ask to see the permits at any time.

WOOD THEFT has been curtailed because of intensified law enforcement but because it does occur "because we have to concentrate people in specific fuelwood areas," Funston said.

"When a person is cutting wood illegally in a no cutting area, it's easier to spot," he added. People who may want to return to their favorite area every year can take heart though, because "we attempt to rotate the areas so each three or four years any given area will be open."

FOREST OFFICIALS sometimes receive complaints that people must now pay for wood when it used to be free. "It costs money to limit the impact on forest lands," Funston said.

Of each $5 per cord collected, all but 25 cents remains in the district and is used to open and close roads, control erosion, clean up trash, make directional signs and maps, treat slash and enhance the regeneration of new trees. Wildlife habitats are also preserved with some of the money collected.

"We have people who are unhappy with the fuelwood situation because the most accessible areas were cut 20 years ago," Funston said.

The crops of what most consider to be the best firewood, such as juniper and pinon are "fast diminishing," Funston said, which means that wood is only available in less accessible areas or not available.

"People must learn to use fuelwood more efficiently," Funston said. He said the future will find people cutting wood widely until now will increase in popularity, such as ponderosa pine, spruce and fir.

Funston expects fireplaces to be more efficient and older units will be replaced by wood stoves. Fireplace inserts will be installed in many traditional fireplaces. These measures, according to Funston, will result in controlled drafts which "makes for more efficient fuel combustion and they burn all forms of wood better including small diameter logs."

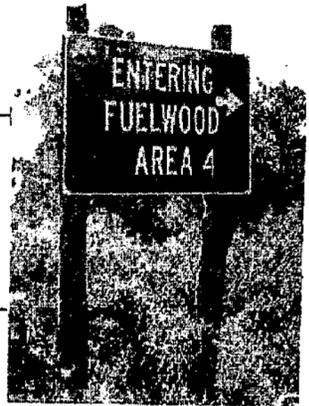

He said switching is "three fourths of the battle. Refinements made recently in this industry can bring the efficiency of firewood from ten percent to 60 to 70 percent, which means you could get the same amount of heat from one sixth the firewood."

Funston said firewood will hopefully always be available "as long as use is controlled and we can protect the forest."

THIS SEEDLING will, over a very long period of time, help reforest fuelwood cutting area four, Mike Funston, timber specialist, said. This is one criteria for selecting a fuelwood cutting area, Funston said.

SIGNS like this were erected in the national forest to direct fuelwood collectors to designated fuelwood cutting areas. The signs were a $1,000 investment, according to Mike Funston, timber specialist for Smokey Bear Ranger District.

WASTED WOOD like this may someday cause the United States Forest Service to clamp down on the public's use of fuelwood. This stump, which should have been cut about 12 inches from the ground, was found in fuelwood cutting area four on Smokey Bear Ranger District. Pictured for perspective of the size of the stump is forest timber specialist Mike Funston.

"People must learn to use fuelwood more efficiently," Funston said.

THIS FUELWOOD was probably left by someone "who filled up his pickup after cutting this choice tree," according to Mike Funston, timber specialist on Smokey Bear Ranger District, Lincoln National Forest. Funston said he doesn't think this wood will be wasted though, because "people will come in here and see this for what it is and take it."

LEAVING TRASH BEHIND in the national forest's fuelwood cutting areas is another reason forest officials are becoming concerned about allowing the public to use the wood for private homes. "One guy probably left all this trash and the whole population has to pay for it," Mike Funston, timber specialist for Smokey Bear Ranger District, said.

SLASH should be cut to about knee length or 12 inches from the ground, as shown by timber specialist Mike Funston. He is standing next to a tree which was left in fuelwood cutting area four on Smokey Bear Ranger District, which lay about six feet in height.

WITH THE BUY

The best reason to buy a new Lindal.

Last year's price.

If you've waited to buy a new Lindal Cedar Home, you're in luck. Because for a limited time, we've rolled back prices on all Lindals to April 1979 levels.

Here's how to qualify: Buy any Lindal Cedar Home before November 30, 1980, worth $25,000 or more. Take delivery before January 31, 1981. That's it.

Plus, you'll earn 10% interest on your deposit from the day of order to January 31, 1981.

Visit us for complete details on how to get this year's Lindal at last year's price.

Buying a Lindal before November 30 can save you thousands.

The Silver Lining

BY DANIEL AGNEW STORM

Harry Eckert
Our hearts go out to the friends and loved ones of our dear friend of many years, Harry Eckert, who was called home by Our Lord on October thirteen.

Harry has always been an inspiration to all of us by his great courage, and his love of life, as he battled through the years against the odds yet remained always cheerful, always uplifting, smiling through sunshine and shadow.

I remember Harry in the early days, around the middle 1930's, and his brother, Claud — how they always cheered us up whenever we met them, with a hearty greeting and a friendly smile.

For many years, Harry was a main stay at The Ruidoso News, working gathering news, taking photographs, and working in the back shop with getting out the paper. Of a helpful and friendly nature, Harry won countless friends for The Ruidoso News helping bring the paper up to the high position in the public esteem that it now enjoys.

Later, Harry went over and worked for Charlie McClellan at Ruidoso Printing. "Harry and I worked together off and on for forty years," says Charlie, "and he was always a top hand and we were always close friends."

Hardly could you find a man with more friends than Harry Eckert, and we all take comfort in knowing that he has now gone on to join his brother, Claud, and other loved ones with Our Lord in Heaven.

Happy Birthday
Joe Lopez

On October the seventeenth, I was up at Sierra Blanca Motors having a little work done on the pick up, and there was Joe Lopez, who has been in the parts department almost forever, it seems.

Joe flashed his million-dollar smile, which is his trade mark, and looked at me steadily a moment.

"Do you remember that you were up here this same day last year?" he asked. I said that I remembered being up some time around this date.

"This is my birthday," said Joe. Then I did remember that I was there last year on his birthday, and wished that I had remembered.

He told me to wait around that there would be birthday cake. Sure enough, presently here came Mrs. Lopez, their daughter Dena, and son, Chris and Mrs. Gary Myers. They made me welcome at the little birthday party for Joe, and handed me a piece of birthday cake.

Joe has made countless friends doing a cheerful and helpful job in the parts department for Sierra Blanca Motors, with the help of his faithful lieutenant, LeRoy Chavez.

We wish Joe Lopez all God's blessings and many happy returns of the day.

Other Birthdays
I have already received some beautiful and very cheerful birthday cards for my birthday which comes up October twenty-seven. This is also the birthday of Mrs. Robert Beavers (Judy).

And it is the birthday of one of our greatest and most beloved presidents, Theodore Roosevelt, affectionately known as "Teddy." Teddy brought this nation up to the position of a world power, and is remembered among other great works, for the building of the Panama Canal.

One birthday card came from our dear friends Mike and Wanda Dunn of Healdton, Oklahoma, and Ruidoso. They always say how much they like to see the flag flying across the vale. And they say that after a long drought they have had ten inches of rain on their ranch and their stock tanks are all full. We all rejoice along with Mike and Wanda Dunn.

A beautiful card came from our beloved pioneer lady over on the Bonito, Lula Runnels. She says that her son Robert's dog, Chico Bolch, is recovering well after his operation. It is always wonderful to hear from Lula, Robert and Chico. By the way, Lula's birthday is November nine. Let us remember that date.

Another card came from that dear lady, the great friend of pets and creatures of all kinds, Mrs. Maxine Royce of Los Angeles, California. Greetings came also from her three devoted pets Shance, White Princess and Danny Dear.

Along with the card came some money for special food for the Storm Ranch Dog, Solo Vino, alias "Solo", alias "Soley", alias "Soley Boy." It is always a blessing to hear from Maxine Royce.

Indian Summer
Arrives in the Vale

On October twenty Indian summer arrived in the vale. Early that morning I knew that Jack Frost had passed through, because he fired a blast of cold air, sort of joking like, into my room, causing me to pull up another blanket or two. Then by midday, the oak brush was all touched with crimson, orange, purple, gold and all the other colors of Indian Summer.

Then all through the air, the incense of many a leaf and herb lent October magic to the world. And you felt that great surge of vitality all through your being — that thirst for life, the uplift of your heart and soul which is the spirit of October and Indian Summer.

Let us count our blessings over and thank the Good Lord for these glorious days.

SANTA FE—A few days ago Governor King gave us a look at the tax-relief package he'll be sending to the Legislature.

It's touted as a $160 million tax cut, largest in the state's history—but before you start dancing in the streets, there are a couple of things you may want to notice.

In the first place, the state couldn't afford to cut taxes by $160 million unless it was already over-taxing us by at least that amount. Actually the overage is much more than that; it will be at least $182 million by the end of this fiscal year, and some people say it will be a whole lot more.

In the second place, when you examine the King package closely, it won't put a whole lot more money in your personal pocket or purse.

Oh, sure, we'll take what we get, but still

The part of it which cancels all occupation and franchise taxes, for example, does little or nothing for individuals. That's a sop thrown to business, to make up for the fact that King doesn't plan to lower property taxes on commercial buildings. In the case of some of those franchise taxes, it's a pretty big sop, as a matter of fact. But big or little, it won't help the individual citizen a bit.

As far as that noble gesture of relief to taxpaying homeowners goes, it may actually turn out to net you nothing. What it says is that the state will give up its share of the property tax on homes, which comes to $8.50 for every $1000 worth of assessed valuation on property. That means the state will not collect this money, and will indeed have to reimburse the school systems from the general fund for that portion of the $8.50 which went to their support.

But the King plan has a kicker in it: It allows the counties to take over that money — which means you are probably not going to get to keep any of it. Your tax will likely remain the same, in other words, only part of it will be going to the county instead of the state.

That's about the same way the reduction in sales tax the Governor is calling for will work. It puts money back in your pocket which somebody else will then take.

Instead of the state charging you an amount equal to four cents on every dollar's worth of things you buy, it will kindly reduce its toll to only 3.75 cents. Once again, however, it allows another governmental entity, in this case the municipality, to come in and claim what it has so graciously given up. Net result to you will almost certainly be that you don't save a dime.

Only on income tax can you look for much help in this plan. How much? You can't tell. That's just where things start getting vague. They talk about "compressing the tax rates within each bracket," which they guarantee us will result in a reduction in the amount each of us pays. How that will come about nobody we have talked seems to understand. We're all just taking it on faith that some relief will be forthcoming.

And there's one other gloomy note which still must be added. That is that the property tax-relief measure may be tied up in court for years if the Legislature passes it at all. There's a neat constitutional question about whether residential property may be singled out in such a measure, and you can bet some businesses will want that settled by a judge.

In other words, no free lunch . . .

Sense & Nonsense

U.S. Sen. Pete Domenici

As some of you probably already know, my father, an Italian immigrant to this country, was a grocer. He and his brother worked in a small corner grocery store called Montezuma Grocery, on the corner of 3rd Street and Copper. In what was then the small community of Albuquerque. Through their hard work and enterprise, they were able to build this small business into a thriving and profitable wholesale operation. I saw for myself, growing up in this family atmosphere, the long hours of dedication that my father and his brother put into the store to make it a success and when they finally retired in 1954, after 48 years in business, they felt a sense of pride and accomplishment in a job well done.

I sounds much like the success story that has been repeated time after time in America — the small businessman, disillusioned by his situation in his native land, comes to America, and is subsequently rewarded for his sacrifices, industriousness, and resourcefulness. I know this story from personal experience, however, because I owe a large part of my success to the hard work and sacrifices of my parents in that small corner grocery store.

Unfortunately, this American dream that my parents were able to realize would be difficult, if not impossible, to accomplish today. The things my father offered in his small business to attract his customers and keep their trust — good service, competitive prices, and honest goods — would not be enough in this day and age.

First of all, he was small, and therefore the potential prey of the very large supermarket chains. Indeed, the very large are not hurt as much by the regulation-bound climate of today, it's the small entrepreneur that has been forced out. My father could never have afforded a bookkeeper or a lawyer to make sure he had complied with the constantly changing, ever-growing list of capricious federal regulations, nor could he have afforded to make costly, mostly cosmetic, changes in his workplace to satisfy a bureaucrat in Washington. No, sadly enough, I suspect that my father, for all his hard work and honesty, would have failed in this climate.

Government regulation touches every American's life whether we realize it or not. Originally intended to aid Americans and insure fairness and equity in the free enterprise marketplace, government regulation has become a monster, stifling innovation, ingenuity, technological advances, and effectively shackling free enterprise itself. Government regulations in 1977 cost business $75.4 billion, most of which were passed on to the consumer in the form of higher prices.

The worst part is that the American taxpayer pays for the yoke of excessive government regulations now choking the free enterprise system. The tax burden of these regulations falls upon business, but especially small business. I have constantly urged Congress to adopt changes in the tax code to help small business, because if we do not initiate these changes soon, small businesses could literally disappear in America.

Therefore I will be proposing a bill before Congress which will double the size of corporate tax brackets, thus aiding the small businessman by offsetting the past five years of inflation. Since about half of the small businesses in this country are incorporated, this would allow these businesses to get a tax break that is long overdue.

The rest of the small businesses (partnerships, proprietorships, etc.) would be able to benefit under my already proposed Small Business Revitalization Bill which would reduce the burden of individual taxes that these businesses now have to bear.

Providing a more graduated rate of taxes for corporations and easing the burden of individual taxes now paid by small businesses will accomplish the objective that I have wanted for years — taking the money out of wasteful and unnecessary government programs and putting it back into the hands of the responsible small business owner. Without this additional capital at their disposal, small grocery store owners will be unable to make the technological improvements and expansions necessary to remain competitive with the large national supermarket chains.

I admit there is much more that needs to be done to aid small business, but at least this is a step in the right direction. My father always believed in working hard, and that hard work would always be rewarded in the end. Now, if we could only convince Congress to reward the hard working small businessman in the same way.

editorial

The Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce is arranging a meeting with:

Wendell Chino, president of the Mescalero Apache Tribe;

Louis Whitlock, New Mexico Highway Commission chairman;

Buddy Hewitt, highway department secretary; and to discuss the problems of maintaining State Highway 532 to Sierra Blanca Ski Resort — and the possibility of building an alternate route.

An encouraging word on this forthcoming meeting is that Chino is willing to listen to proposals, as well as comments, to be voiced by highway officials and Chamber members.

A safe, easy to maintain, road to the ski area is necessary to aid commercial development in Ruidoso, to permit the tribe to expand their facilities and to ease the cost of maintaining the road to the highway department.

We're certain there are no insurmountable problems to prevent construction of a new, safer road to the ski area.

We're likewise certain that harmony can prevail when this group meets — and we wish them well in their deliberations. — CD

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

NOT THE RIGHT WAY!

The Ruidoso News editorial of October 16, 1980, suggests that the best way to face the problem of a write-in ballot is to obtain an absentee ballot and not bother going to the voting place to vote in the regular way.

Absentee ballots serve a real purpose in allowing voters who expect to be absent (out of town) to vote in an election where otherwise they would be denied a vote. To circumvent this by falsifying under oath in order to obtain an absentee ballot is bad advice indeed. Write-in ballots, while not as easy to handle as the simple pulling of a lever, are not complicated and those wishing to vote a write-in can easily do so at the regular voting place.

Precinct personnel will be on hand to assist those who need help and all should be able to vote their preference in a normal way.

The problem does not lie in the mechanics of voting but rather in the small number of us who care to vote at all.

GUESS ON FIRST SNOW

Ruidoso's Sierra Blanca Junior Ski Racers ... you know, those youngsters displaying derring-do in their speed runs down the slopes ... have a deadline going ... guessing the month, day, hour and minute when first will accumulate three inches of snow at Ruidoso's village hall ... it's all a matter of speculation ... with said speculating to cost you $5.

If you speculate correctly the first prize is $500 ... second is $200 ... third is $100 ... which ain't all that had a return on your investment ... If you're one of the winning speculators ... bearing in mind that it's our junior racers as'll be the beneficiaries of your speculation.

As to the contest itself ... it's that "hour and minute" that are interesting ... like can't you just visualize a couple/three Junior Ski Racers ... hunkered down on their haunches ... eyes glued to a ruler ... as of 3:17 a.m., of a snowy, cold morning ... after so doing for maybe 3:17 hours ... to catch the exact minute three inches is recorded ... THAT'S dedication.

SCOUTS THANK TOMMY

Seems Ruidoso's Boy Scouts were having a little trouble with wheels ... the wheels on their bus ... seems a couple wheels needed tires ... and the Scouts lacked the wherewithal to provide some ... and there was much gnashing of teeth ... and much tiring talk going on ... about no tires.

After being advised of this problem, Tommy Hall ... who is just some interested in the Boy Scout program ... stepped forth ... and the Scouts did become the proud owners of two bus tires ... and the Scouts are most thankful to Tommy ... who, assuredly, didn't do it for the thanks ... he did it because he likes Scouting.

Comes now Scouter Larry Frost who opines if'n there's someone else as has a couple tires that'll fit that bus that the Scouts'll be mighty receptive to having them donated ... 'cause it do seem as though a couple more of the present tires are fixing to maybe go flat ... if'n they plumb don't just up and blow their casings ... which'd leave the Scouts again wheelless ... and if'n they ain't got wheels ... how can they wheel and deal somewhere where there's wheeling and dealing going on, to show other Scouts how Ruidoso Scouts wheel and deal.

LOTSA BLOOD DONORS

Last Friday it was ... at Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital ... that United Blood Services of El Paso drew 95 pints of blood from donors ... and that's a lot of blood ... well ... 95 pints, anyhow.

Now ... Pink Lady Dottie Quaid ... who kinda helped ramrod this blood drive ... was hoping that there'd be one hundred and one donors ... 'cause, she said, "There's a nice ring about one hundred and one." ... But Dottie ... being she's such a good Pink Lady ... really ain't complaining ... not one iota ... about getting 95 donors ... which ain't about to stop her from waging another appeal ... one of these first days ... to try and reach that 101 ... and you can bet she's gonna keep trying ... she's dedicated to the cause.

ON BEATING TULLIE

The Warriors gridders have been picking up all sorts of bouquets on their 14-0 defeat of Tullie last Friday ... 'cause the Warriors has been on the receiving end of a short game tally for the past eleven meetings of these two teams ... and our kids has just gotta be thinking: "How sweet it is."

'Course 10 of those 11 straight losses had Tullie as AAA and Ruidoso as AA ... and it's sorta generally accepted that AAA's is better'n AA's ... and if'n the AAA's lose to AA's, it ain't no feather in the AAA's cap ... no?

So ... one way of figurin' this fray of long standing is that the two teams ... both as AAA ... is now standing at one and one ... and all that long list of defeats of the Warriors by Tullie's past history ... and it's a whole new ball game lying ahead ... and, by jinkies, but future Warrior squads'll be geared up to take Tullie on ... as will Tullie ... which should result in some really good football games ... with standin' roan crowds ... and lotsa cheering ... and the spirit of competition prevailing that keeps high school sports the interesting aspect of getting an education it is.

Yup ... we sorta can expect that there might not be such a string of long standing victories ... by either team ... though there really ain't no reason for Warrior fans can't hope that such a situation will develop ... no?

BRUTE BIT: The icing on the pumpkin Tuesday morning wasn't composed of eggs, butter and XXXX sugar ... as you posted, if'n you looked ... CD

ART, DINING AND ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE

Datan One wins Cutarusty Stakes

in the center of the group. The winning jockey is Joe Martinez. At right, Mr. and Mrs. Mattox' son, Matt. Their daughter, Autumn, is second from left.

It was a dark, dreary, drizzling afternoon, but the grim weather conditions didn't bother Datan One in the least. The gelding gave a bright, heads-up performance in Sunday's renewal of the Cutarusty Stakes and established himself as one of the top three-year-olds on the grounds.

Datan One easily shook off his foes at mid-stretch of the 5 1/2 furlong dash and highballed under the wire with a comfortable length lead. The gelding was ridden by Joe Martinez for the partnership of Chuck Mattox and Morris Cannan of El Paso, Texas.

The Cutarusty offered a gross purse of $4,335 and put $2,601 into Datan One's account. It was the gelding's third straight win, two of them coming at the current Sunland meet.

Despite the steady rain, the track was still in fast condition, and Datan One zipped over the 5 1/2 furlongs in a very alert 1:04 flat. That was a seasonal mark, clipping three fractions off the clocking established by Thirty Five a week ago.

Fans who supported Datan One in the wagering pulled in payoffs of $8.40 to win, $4.20 to place, $2.50 to show. The Lonier, off at just under 7-1 with Denny Summerow calling the shots, gave a good performance while getting in second. The Lonier had every opportunity of overtaking Datan One at the top of the lane, but was unable to whip up enough firepower. The Lonier was running out of steam at the end. The payoffs: $7, $3.20.

Missy's Partner, a 8-5 favorite who went into the Cutarusty with career earnings of over $161,000, didn't get rolling until late in the stretch. By that time, victory was clearly out of reach. But Missy's Partner moved well enough to take third, 3 1/2 lengths behind the Lonier. The show return was $2.40.

Datan One was in the thick of things right from the start. Jockey Martinez kept him within arm's reach of the lead slot down the backstretch run. As the field turned for home, the Lonier managed a slim lead.

Datan One glided into the lead when he hit the straightaway, and gave the impression of having plenty left in his reserve tanks. For a few strides, the Lonier tried gamely to regain the lead. At the half-way point of the stretch, it was apparent Datan One was too tough to control. Fans who linked Datan One and The Lonier in the quinela got back $28.20. Sunland Park action resumes Friday at 1 p.m.

HE'S THE ONE—Datan One, ridden by Joe Martinez, flashes across the Sunland Park finish line Sunday with a length lead in the 5 1/2-furlong Cutarusty Stakes. The Lonier got in second.

Sunland, Ruidoso Downs change futurities format

Two thoroughbred futurities at Sunland Park and three at Ruidoso Downs are being linked together in a new nominating format.

The novel idea, according to general manager Finlay MacGillivray, will cover the 1982 runnings of the $300,000 (est.) Riley Allison Futurity and the $50,000 (est.) Sunland Fall Thoroughbred Futurity, plus the 1982 editions of the following Ruidoso classics: the $40,000 (est.) Rio Grande Kindergarten Futurity, the $100,000 (est.) Norgor Futurity and the $125,000 (est.) Ruidoso Thoroughbred Futurity.

"A single $25 nomination fee will make a yearling eligible to all five races," MacGillivray said.

Deadline for the original nomination is February 15, 1981.

In addition to the five futurities, a yearling also becomes eligible for the 1981 Ruidoso Thoroughbred Yearling Sale, plus two derbies in 1982 — the Norgor Derby at Ruidoso and the new Riley Allison Derby at Sunland. The added money for both the Norgor Derby and the Allison Derby is $12,500.

If the February 15, 1981 deadline for the original $25 nomination fee is missed, an owner can get aboard the bandwagon with a $100 late nomination payment made by May 15, 1981.

Here's the remaining payment schedule for the 1982 Allison Futurity: $250 due by November 1, 1981; $500 due by February 1, 1982; $750 to enter the trials.

Horsemen who wait until November 1, 1981, can still nominate their yearlings for the 1982 Allison Futurity via a $500 supplemental payment. In this case, the remaining two payments ($500 by February 1 and $750 to enter the trials) must also be paid. The distance of the Allison Futurity is five furlongs. The added money is a beefed-up $25,000.

Here's the remaining nominating schedule for the 1982 Rio Grande Kindergarten Futurity: $150 due by November 1, 1981; $300 due March 1, 1982; $500 to enter the trials. Late supplemental nominations can be made on November 1, 1981, with a payment of $300, or by a payment of $2,500 at time of entry to the trials.

The Kindergarten is restricted to New Mexico bred and will cover four furlongs. The added money is $15,000.

The remaining schedule for the 1982 Norgor Futurity shapes up this way: $150 due by November 15, 1981; $300 due by March 15, 1982; $500 to enter the trials. A supplemental payment of $300 may be made by November 15, 1981, or $2,500 at time of entry to the trials.

The Norgor will cover four furlongs. The added purse is $15,000.

Here's a look at the remaining payments for the Ruidoso Thoroughbred Futurity: $200 due by November 15, 1981; $350 due by April 1, 1982; $500 to enter the trials. A supplemental payment of $2,500 may be made at time of entry into the trials.

The Ruidoso Futurity is run at six furlongs. The added money is $25,000.

The remaining payments for the 1982 Sunland Fall Thoroughbred Futurity: $150 due by June 1, 1982; $300 due by August 1, 1982; $500 to enter the trials. There are two late supplemental avenues: $300 by June 1, 1982, or $2,500 at time of entry to the trials.

According to MacGillivray, owners can take advantage of the simplified nominating schedule to name their yearlings, with one payment, to five of the biggest futurities in the Southwest. That $25 payment, MacGillivray said, translates into quite a savings. For example, the next regular payment for the Allison Futurity is $250. If that $25 payment had not been made, and if an owner had also skipped that $100 payment on May 15, 1981, he's have to go the supplemental route for the Allison, starting with that penalty fee of $500 on November 1, 1981.

The same pattern also applies to the Rio Grande, the Norgor Futurity and the Sunland Fall Thoroughbred Futurity.

A full color brochure, giving extensive details on the new project, is now off the presses and being distributed to owners and horsemen. A copy can be obtained by writing to Sunland Park at Box One, Sunland Park, New Mexico 88063.

Sixteen-year-old apprentice Blui Byers won his first race on a recognized race track Friday, urging 5-1 pick Iverny to a wire-to-wire victory in the 12th race. Iverny, a five-year-old gelding with only one victory in 1980, held a three length lead with two furlongs left in the 1 1/16th mile route for $2,000 claimers, then held off a late charge from Winds Of The East to win by a neck. Finishing third was Byers' father, Larry. Friday's outing was the third start for the younger Byers.

Another record purchase has been made by the Nigrelle family, according to an article in the Daily Racing Form. The story said that Frank Nigrelle, owner of the Commanche Creek Farms of La Mesa, purchased the nine-year-old mare Virtuoso, Dam of 1980 Kentucky Derby Winner, Genuine Risk, for a reported $2 million. Earlier in the summer Margaret Nigrelle purchased a sorrel quarter horse filly for $277,000 at the All-American Select Yearling Sale at Ruidoso Downs. Both purchases are industry records. The Nigrelles also purchased a weanling full brother to Medley Glass for $300,000, another record, at the Buena Suerte Summer Sale at Roswell.

Bald Whistle, a 10-year-old brown gelding who ranks as one of the all time winningest quarter horses, suffered his first finish out of the money in 12 starts this year last Friday. Running in the fifth race as a 2-3 favorite, Bald Whistle could not recover from a shaky start and ended up seventh. Going into the race Bald Whistle had an impressive record of 8-2-1 in 11 starts and was riding a three-race winning streak. Overall in his career Bald Whistle has 31 victories, which should put him in the top 30 on the all-time list.

Azure I Routine, one of only two horses to run in all three of the Savannah Swinger Distance Series last year at Sunland, looks like a strong candidate for the 1980 editions. In Friday's eighth race, the four-year-old gelding won the 400 yard dash by a neck as a 6-2 second favorite. It was his first victory since last December. Darrell Blevins was aboard the Michael Joiner-trained charge. The first Savannah Swinger Distance, which covers 350 yards, is set for this Sunday.

Payment Deferred, the winner of the first two Savannah Swinger Distance Series races last year who later opted for California instead of trying for the third jewel, was also a winner over the weekend.

With Louie Gomez up, Payment Deferred captured the seventh race in 17.76 seconds as a 4-1 outsider. The beaten 6-5 favorite, Fastidious Filly, won the third edition of the Savannah Swinger Series a year ago.

Scout Leader was the dominant sire over the weekend as three of his get won races, including two in a row Friday. Super Champ started the string with a 1 1/2 length win over six furlongs in the ninth race, then Ernest Scout captured the tenth race by a length. Thirty Five won the eighth race Saturday for the third victory. There were seven Scout Leader offspring starting over the weekend for a .871 winning percentage. Scout Leader stands in New Mexico.

The popular thoroughbred Dancing Man made another appearance on the track in the eighth race Saturday. The grey gelding, who won over 30 races in his career, led the post parade for the race named in his honor. Dancing Man was trained by Ike Danley, and winner of the eighth race, Thirty Five, is trained by his son, Fred. Dancing Man won numerous stakes races then closed out his career against quarter horses on the 870 yard circuit.

Another retired Sunland favorite, Cutarusty, returned to the track to lead the post parade Sunday before the Cutarusty Stakes. Cutarusty is the Ruidoso track record holder for 1 mile.

Livemup became the meet's first three time winner Friday when the 10-year-old captured the 11th race. Running as an even money favorite, Livemup finished 3 1/2 lengths in front. Danny Summerow was up. Livemup won an 870 yard race opening day, then captured a $4,000 claimer two weeks ago. His last victory came against $4,000 claimers. It was Livemup's sixth consecutive victory and eighth of the year. The season's first dead heat involving horses in the top three took place Saturday. In the eighth race Pierre The True rallied strongly on the rail to tie with What An Addition for second place in an 870 yard allowance race. Thirty Five was four lengths in front of both. What An Addition, with Joe Martinez up, was the 3-2 favorite while Pierre The True, ridden by Alex Baldillez Jr., was 6-1.

In stewards' rulings last week, jockey Charles Mueller was suspended seven calendar days for careless riding, resulting in Super Champ being disqualified from first to second in the ninth race October 12.

Racing Secretary Don Rausch reminds horsemen that November 1 is a key date. That's when the nomination deadline for the 1981 running of the $250,000 (est.) Riley Allison Thoroughbred Futurity to be run May 3, the final day of the 1980-81 season. Yearlings nominated to the 1981 edition will also be eligible to the first running of the Riley Allison Derby in 1982. The Derby will pack added money of $12,500 and will be run at a mile.

The best post position over the weekend was the No. 2 slot with 10 winners. The seasonal totals look like this: No. 1 — 12 wins; No. 2 — 12; No. 3 — 12; No. 4 — 6; No. 5 — 7; No. 6 — 11; No. 7 — 3; No. 8 — 7; No. 9 — 10; No. 10 — 5; No. 11 — 9; No. 12 — 6.

Craftsmen's grant deadline established as December 19

December 19 is the deadline for craftsmen to apply to the National Endowment for the Arts for its $12,500 Craftsmen's Fellowships.

These non-matching fellowships are designed to enable professional craftsmen—metalsmiths, potters, glassblowers, weavers, jewelry-makers, woodworkers, etc.—of exceptional talent and demonstrated ability, and of any age or aesthetic persuasion, to set aside time and/or to purchase materials and generally to advance their careers as they see fit. A limited number of $4,000 fellowships will be awarded to emerging craftsmen. Students are not eligible for these fellowships, however.

Interested craftsmen may obtain information, guidelines, and application forms from the Director, Visual Arts Program, National Endowment for the Arts, 2401 E St. N.W., Washington, D. C.

2606. Information and applications are also available from the New Mexico Arts Division, 113 Lincoln Ave., Santa Fe 87501. The Arts Division's telephone number is 827-2061.

Margie Renfro enjoys training race horses

BY DICK ALWAN
In 1959, Margie Renfro was fresh out of Ruidoso High School, infatuated with the idea of training race horses, and, as she now puts it, "dumb enough to think I could make a go of it."

As anyone around Sunland Park and Ruidoso Downs can testify, Margie now ranks among the best trainers in the Southwest. The proof is the long list of stakes winners she's developed.

But maybe all this success might not have fallen into place quite so impressively if Margie hadn't run into some lean times early in her career. It was back in the 1959 season at Sunland when one of Margie's horses came down with colitis — an inflammation of the colon and a frequently nasty thing to wish on a racehorse.

So Margie called in Dr. Joe Miller, and after four or five days of tender loving care, the filly was saved. But Margie got a bill large enough to put a struggling young trainer in a catatonic state. Lacking the green stuff to retire the debt on the spot, Margie did the next best thing. "I went to work for Dr. Miller as part-time clerk, typist, bottle-washer and secretary," she said.

Margie Renfro is still working for Dr. Miller, but she's no longer a secretary. Since 1970, she's been Doc Miller's trainer. Somewhere along the line, she says, the original vet's bill was wiped off the slate.

Margie was first bitten by the racetrack bug when she was in Ruidoso High, and someone gave her two sisters a racehorse. He was called Bracero, he had a bad cut on one leg, and he probably couldn't run much on a good day. But Bracero gave Margie the idea of becoming a trainer.

Later, she and sister Della saved up $2,000 and claimed the filly, Running Trail. That was in Tucson in 1958. Running Trail came through with six straight wins, the two grand was recovered, and Margie was off and flying as a trainer. So what happened to Bracero? "He never won a race for us," Margie said. "But we fed him and carried him around with us for two or three years."

Later, when Margie hooked up with Doc Miller, her breakthrough success came with the filly, Tahshatah. "She was the first horse to win the New Mexico Futurity and the New Mexico Derby," Margie said. That was back around 1972 and 1973. The filly was also responsible for getting Doc Miller's outfit, Ho-Jo Farms, on its feet. Tahshatah wound up making $63,000, and later produced Washatah, who's made over a hundred grand so far.

Another of Margie's early stars was Binareo, who won the New Mexico Achievement Stakes at Santa Fe. Later, Margie brought out Webelo, and raced him as a two-and-three-year-old. As a four-year-old, he was claimed at Hot Springs, and now races back east. Webelo's made about $137,000 so far. "He's the first horse I had who made over a hundred thousand dollars," Margie said.

In 1979, Margie raced the sensational Banquero. He won the Rio Grande Futurity at Ruidoso, the New Mexico Futurity at the State Fair, and the Fall Futurity at Sunland. He's made almost $100,000.

Table Policy, winner of the New Mexico Breeders Stakes at Sunland, was another of Margie's disciples. The filly was later sold, sent to Kentucky and bred to Secretariat. Tee Up, who ran second in Sunland's Allison Futurity last year (and made some $63,000 as a two-year-old), also operated out of Margie's barn.

But if you ask Margie to name her all-time favorite, her eyes light up like the star atop a Christmas tree. The love of her life, she said, was Squaw Bread. "She was the best I've ever had — the fastest, anyway."

Squaw Bread was a rising star at Sunland last spring, finishing third at less than 4-1 in the $206,359 Allison Futurity. But injuries cut her career short, and just recently, her life was snuffed out by intestinal ailments. Squaw Bread came down with both colic and colitis.

Colic, as Margie tells us, can be caused by poor feed, over ingestion of water, a case of nerves. There's even a type caused by worms. What it boils down to is a bad case of indigestion. "Colic scares me to death," Margie said. "You can never tell the severity. It can result in anything from flight indigestion to death."

Colic, as we get the picture, can produce a kind of gas trap in a horse's intestines. He'll start twisting and rolling around to relieve the distress, and he can twist an intestine and suddenly you've got one terrible problem leading into another. If a ruptured intestine results, that could be the end right there. In Squaw Bread's case, surgery revealed a 180-degree twist in the intestines, and a loss of blood supply to about 2½ feet of intestines. The filly was unable to withstand the stress, the pain, the shock.

Colitis, as Margie points out, can often result from colic. But the medics aren't certain what really causes the problem in the first place. Certain stress factors could be at fault. Depending on the horse, stress could be running in a race, or suffering pain, or being kept in a stall. Anyway, there's a sudden kill of normal bacteria in the intestines, toxic gases are created, and you can use your imagination to figure out the long list of ensuing complications.

In Margie's case, she's got a big ace up her sleeve. All she needs to do in emergencies of this sort is yell for Doc Miller. She doesn't even have to worry about the bill.

RUTH ARMSTRONG, author of the New Mexico Magazine's travel guide, Enchanted Trails, presents a copy to Governor Bruce King in the governor's Albuquerque service center.

UNM obtains doctor training grant

The New primary care curriculum at the University of New Mexico (UNM) School of Medicine has been granted $89,340 to broaden its program of training students as family doctors for small towns and rural areas.

The United States Department of Education's Fund for the Improvement of Post-Secondary Education (FIPSE) awarded UNM the grant because, among other considerations, the primary care curriculum fits federal standards as a cost-effective, problem-solving program designed around the needs of the students.

Dr. S. Scott Obenshain, director of the primary care curriculum, said the money will be used to develop ways of allowing more of the faculty to participate and create an overall management plan in preparation for making the program a permanent part of the school of medicine. Currently the new curriculum is in its second trial year.

The grant will also fund information gathering activities and the development of a system for accurately recording faculty members' participation.

Dr. Stewart P. Mennin, director of the basic sciences curriculum for the primary care curriculum, said, "The awarding of this grant is a real bonus for the program and a boost to New Mexico. The federal government is recognizing us for medical innovations and growth at this medical school."

This fall 15 new students began medical training in the program. Last year's beginning class of 10 students recently finished clinical clerkships in Cuba, Silver City, Santa Fe, Alamogordo, Ruidoso, Capitan, Espanola and Las Vegas.

FIPSE has awarded grants since 1973 to stimulate innovation and reform in higher education. Mennin said UNM's grant is one of 73 awarded nationally by the fund this year. FIPSE has received about 1,500 applications.

National Science Foundation operating Sacramento Peak

United States Senator Harrison "Jack" Schmitt has announced the completion of the formal transfer of the Sacramento Peak Observatory (SPO) from the United States Air Force to the National Science Foundation (NSF). In addition, the former United States Air Force Electro-Optical Satellite Tracking Facility at Cloudcroft has also been transferred to the NSF.

The Sacramento Peak Observatory is one of the world's major solar observatories and under NSF control it has been transformed into a vialling scientist-oriented National Astronomical Research Center. The observatory facilities are available to all qualified scientists for research programs on solar phenomena. The observatory scientific staff and a resident group of Air Force scientists also conduct studies of the physics of the sun and the observatory regularly monitors solar activity of interest to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, NASA, and the Department of Defense. Sacramento Peak Observatory is operated by the Association of Universities for Research in Astronomy (AURA) under contract with the NSF.

The Cloudcroft Observatory is now managed by the Sacramento Peak Observatory and is dedicated to a program of research to improve knowledge of solar variability and the connection between physical processes in the sun and the stars. These studies include monitoring planetary brightness variations and the long term study of selected stars which will aid in understanding the variability of the sun and other solar-stellar problems.

Schmitt said: "The continued operation of this major installation in New Mexico will be of enormous benefit not only to our own nation, but to mankind throughout the world. The NSF has my fullest support with this vital work now that the formal transfer has been completed."

Forest Service cuts fuel use

The national forests in Arizona and New Mexico, the Forest Service's Southwestern Region, have recorded substantial fuel savings through more efficient vehicle use and building heating and cooling.

The savings, part of a government-wide effort to conserve energy, earned a commendation from Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland for the Southwestern Region and the entire Forest Service. For the April-June quarter, the agency reduced vehicular fuel use by 33.3 percent compared with the same period in 1979, "far exceeding your assigned target of 25 percent," Bergland said.

The Arizona-New Mexico region reduced motor vehicle mileage by 31 percent during the quarter from 5,270,000 in 1979 to 3,653,000 in 1980. Building and facility fuel use, including electricity, natural gas, fuel oil and liquefied petroleum gas, dropped 23 percent.

Regional Forester M. J. Hassell noted that the National Energy Conservation Policy Act requires agencies to make all cost-effective energy saving building modifications. The Forest Service program is divided into three phases: Audit, survey and retrofit which means adding materials or making changes in buildings for greater energy efficiency.

The region completed the energy audit on all facilities in June. The next task, Hassell said, is to survey each building to determine which savings opportunities are cost-effective. The surveys are to be completed by December. All cost-effective retrofit measures are to be performed before 1990. Low cost energy saving maintenance items that are identified during the survey will be completed immediately. Hassell said the comprehensive program is designed to assure energy savings of at least 20 percent but "we believe that a 35-45 percent reduction in energy consumption is possible, saving the region some $200,000 a year."

The region has existing solar heated facilities at the Albuquerque Tree Nursery and passive solar designs are under way for Forest Service offices in Pecos and Ruidoso, New Mexico.

The region also is involved in the Federal Photovoltaic Utilization Program, installing photovoltaic panels to power remote facilities by solar generated electricity. Projects approved to date include well pumps, lookout tower electrical systems, vault toilet vent fans and portable crew trailer electrical systems.
