Warriors suffer first district defeat

BY MARK BAGBY
Sports Editor

The Ruidoso Warriors suffered their first district setback of the 1980 season Friday night in Truth or Consequences on a 15-14 loss to the Hot Springs High School Tigers.

But to listen to Warrior head coach Darrel Stierwalt, you'd think the Warriors were their own worst enemies.

"T or C really didn't beat us," he said. "We had a heckuva lot to do with it."

True. Despite 379 yards total offense and 20 first downs, the Warriors penetrated the Tigers' 20 yard line five times yet produced only 14 points.

Defensively, the Warriors had similar problems. T or C scored on the first play of the game on a 67 yard pass from Bruce Evans to Harley Sheldon, and with the conversion, Ruidoso trailed, 7-0.

The Warriors were not daunted, however, marching back in a seven play, 68 yard drive immediately after, scoring on an 18 yard run by Scott Neal. Russ Fior banged over on a three yard run for the two point conversion and an 8-7 lead.

It stayed that way until the fourth quarter.

T or C was on the march when Neal caused the Tigers' John Garcia to fumble, and Steve Pietsch recovered for Ruidoso. An official, however, had blown the play dead and the down was replayed.

Four plays later, Randy Fitzgerald scored from three yards out, making the score 13-8. Evans passed to Sheldon for a 15-8 T or C lead.

On the next Warrior possession, though, Russ Fior (who had 157 yards rushing) put the Warriors back in the game with a 67 yard jaunt to the end zone, aided along the way with a terrific block by Steve Parks. That made it 15-14.

A try for two points, however, found Fior stopped short of the end zone, with 5:20 remaining. But the worst was yet to come.

The Warrior defense stopped T or C on its ensuing possession and forced a punt.

Neal caught the ball and returned it 20 yards. T or C was assessed another 15 yards for unsportsmanlike conduct on the play, and Warriors had a first down at midfield.

Neal hit Mike Dale with a 24 yard pass on the first play, but then the drive stalled after three runs by Ricky Dennis.

That made it fourth and three at the T or C 11 yard line.

Disdaining what would have been a 28 yard field goal, the Warriors lined up for a scrimmage play. The Tigers jumped off-sides, setting the Warriors up with a first and goal on the six.

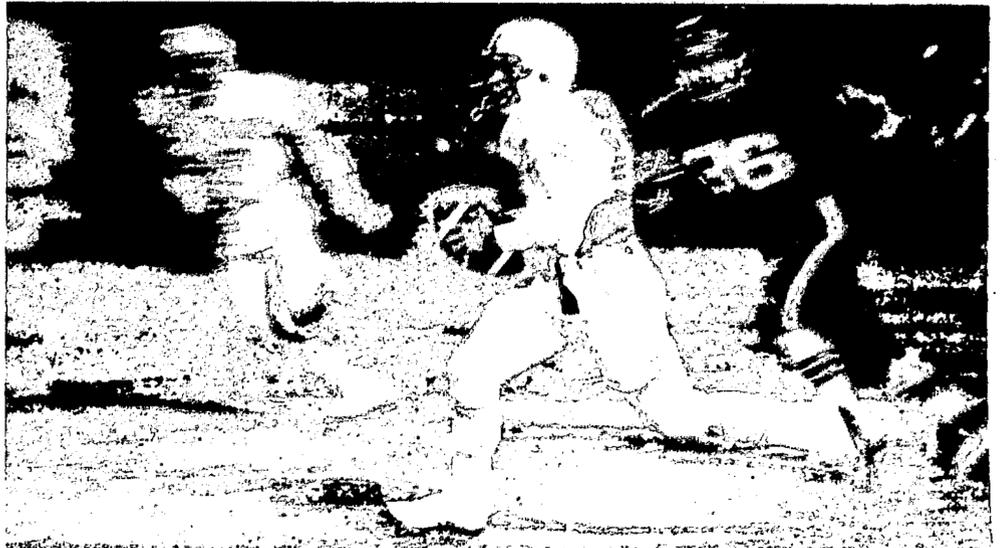

On first down, Fior ran for a yard. On second down, Evans broke up a Warrior pass play which seemed destined for a touchdown.

On third down, Dennis ran to the one yard line on a sweep to the left. But Ruidoso's Don Nunley was called for clipping, and the resulting 15 yard penalty pushed the Warriors back to the 20.

A Neal pass went incomplete, and on fourth down, Leroy Ramirez checked aboard for a 37 yard field goal attempt, well within the senior kicker's range.

With 19 seconds showing on the clock, Lon Nunley snapped the ball to brother Don, who set the ball perfectly on the tee. Behind good protection, Ramirez booted the ball — which fell five yards short of the crossbar.

[SEE PAGE SIX]

BREAKING INTO the clear for 15 yards is Warrior quarterback Scott Neal, who rushed for nearly 100 yards and scored first for Ruidoso on an 18 yard run. Alas, it wasn't enough, as the Warriors dropped their first district loss of the year to Truth or Consequences, 15-14.

Jeep Party January 14

Invitations will be mailed this week to attend the January 14, 1981, Jeep Party, sponsored by the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce.

Invitations are mailed to people who attended the Cadillac Party in August, and those who supported last year's Jeep Party, both money making ventures for the Chamber.

This year's Jeep Party, at the Inn of the Mountain Gods, will feature cocktails at 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner, featuring a relish tray, sliced tomatoes and cucumbers, cole slaw, barbecue brisket, country style potato salad, corn on the cob, fresh fruit salad and assorted rolls with hot apple cobbler for dessert.

Only 165 tickets are available for the party, with the featured attraction being a 1981 Jeep Renegade CJ7. Tickets are $115 each and entitle two people to an evening of entertainment.

Those receiving invitations have until November 30 to reserve their tickets with the general public invited to purchase tickets beginning December 1. Ticket purchases must be made at the Chamber office.

DECA taking pre-sale sea food orders

Ruidoso's Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) Chapter is soliciting pre-orders on the seafood sale they will sponsor December 12 and 13 at Gibson's parking lot.

DECA sponsor Eddie Parker said pre-orders will be a key factor in this money making project. "We will receive 40 cents for every pound we pre-sell," he said. "We will receive 20 cents for all walk up sales, on a per pound basis. So by receiving as many pre-orders as possible, we can greatly increase our profit margin," he said. DECA students hope to pre-sell 4,000 pounds.

Parker said order blanks are available at Gibson's Discount Center or orders can be placed by calling Ruidoso High School at 257-7324 or Parker at 378-4884.

Seafood available includes pink salmon steaks, silver salmon steaks, whole pink and silver salmon, center cut halibut steaks, walleye, red snapper and cod filets.

Ling cod steaks, Alaska king and snow crab, small jumbo, extra large jumbo and breaded fantail shrimp (all precooked) and extra large lobster tails. Seafood batter mix will also be available.

Parker said this sale will be the Pepsi Learn and Earn project to be entered in state competition in March. "Because of this, we have many opportunities to practice selling points and do some additional preparation for the sale which will hopefully make it more successful."

Parker said, "This sale will be different, and Visa, for those wanting to make volume purchases, but who might, due to the holidays, not want to lay out the cash at the time they buy."

Parker pointed out that all seafood is individually quick frozen so "you don't have to use it all and use—you can take out what you need at once without wasting any."

Another selling point students will practice is that "seafood is very good for you—it also has very few bones or waste, which makes it a practical food buy."

All such selling techniques will be incorporated into a selling manual being written by students. It will be included in the project manual, and will be made available to the community after the sale.

Parker said proceeds will be used to help purchase a computer for the DECA classroom. "We received a grant from the state to pay for most of the computer, but the kids have voted to spend an additional $800 so we can buy extra features and one of higher quality."

He said the computer can be used in the classroom to teach modern retailing and marketing techniques. "Nearly every company in the United States today, except very small organizations, have some type of computer system which they expect their employees to know about. This will give our students an edge in the business world," Parker said.

Profits will also be used to help defray costs for students who will attend state contests and national competition, if they qualify.

"We would like to have as many pre-orders as possible by December 1, but pre-orders will be accepted until December 13, the first day of the sale," he said.

Orders will be picked up at Gibson's between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m., both days. Seafood is to be paid for when it is picked up, Parker said.

"We will probably not have another sale until May, if there are those who may want to stock up," he said.

Elks' 'Hides for Veterans' containers have been placed

The Ruidoso Elks' annual appeal to hunters to donate their big game hides to the Elks, to provide tanned leather for distribution to disabled veterans, is underway and containers for the hides are located at:

RUIDOSO: Gibson's, KRRR, White's Auto, Hughes Body Shop, Elks Lodge;

CAPTAN: Cummins Grocery and Rusty Anchor Bar; and MESCALERO: Tribal Chevron Station.

"The Elks," hide drive chairman Ron Percy said, "send all hides to a California tannery. The tannery then provides the disabled veterans in New Mexico with tanned cowhides, which are turned into leather items as one of their main sources of fund raising."

The Elks, Percy said, will accept all game hides as well as any other hides people are willing to donate. Any domestic animal hide is acceptable, Percy said, "and may be dropped into the game hide containers."

The Ruidoso Elks, Percy said, "has always been one of the largest collectors in the state, thanks to the cooperation of hunters. We are hopeful that the hunters will participate as generously as they have in the past, because of the help our disabled veterans get from this project."

Altrusa Club's yellow ribbons honor hostages

The Altrusa Club of Ruidoso will commemorate the first anniversary of captivity of the American hostages in Iran Tuesday by decorating utility poles on Sudderth Drive with yellow ribbons.

The ribbon will be placed on poles on Sudderth Drive, at a height of five feet. Area residents are being asked to cooperate with the project by placing yellow ribbons in a conspicuous location around their homes.

Anyone who wishes to assist with the project may contact Jeanie Whitwam at 257-2539.

'Sold' signs weekend work of pranksters

It looked as though there might have been some heavy wheeling and dealing in Ruidoso this weekend.

Early risers who drove through midtown Ruidoso may have been taken aback to see "Sold" signs, like those used by realtors, posted on building fronts at Ruidoso State and Security Banks, Pioneer Savings and Loan and the Cablevision company.

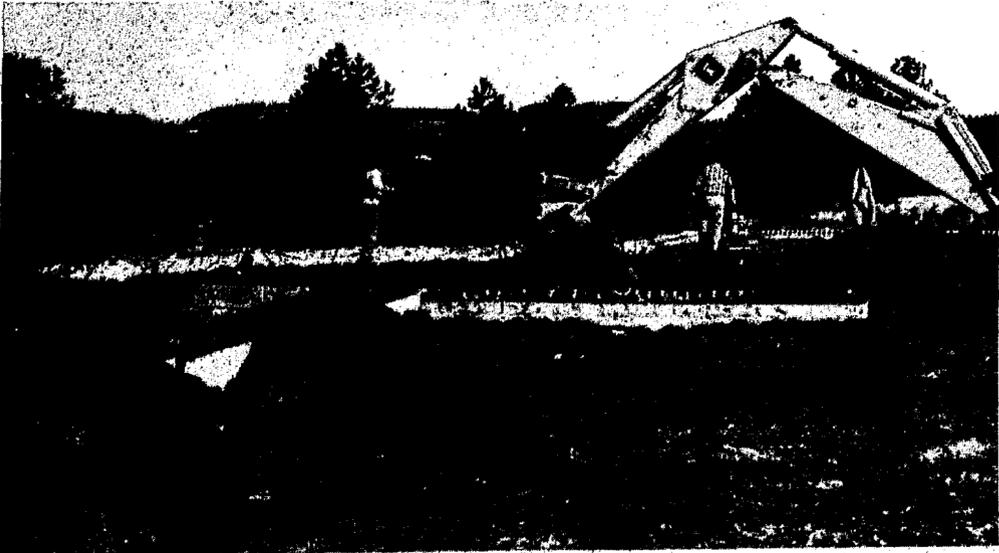

Police were removing the signs Monday morning from those and a few other locations, while checking with local real estate companies to determine if any breaking and entering had taken place over the weekend.

No such evidence was found, and no signs had been reported missing as of 8:30 a.m., Monday.

Police arrest wanted man

A Hereford, Texas, man, who is wanted on charges of theft by check and felony forgery in three Texas counties, was arrested late Sunday night by officers of the Ruidoso Police Department's Criminal Investigation Division (CID).

James Brent Sweny, 27, was arrested at a local motel about 10 p.m., Sunday night, a CID spokesman said. Local police are contacting Texas authorities to determine the exact charges against Sweny.

CONSTRUCTION CREWS will complete fill work and pouring of a cement slab at the site of the new village administrative building, within the next two weeks. The site is just off Airport Road and will be completed next spring.

Sixth graders sample life as it was lived yesteryear

A BACKPACK WITH LEGS??? Nope, this is a young lady whose backpack literally covers her entire backside. The other side of the pack would reveal Vicki Kiser, a sixth grader at White Mountain Mid School, who didn't let her size get in the way of the pioneer spirit.

The beauty of the mountains surrounding Ruidoso has drawn many people to this area to make their homes. But many, once here, seldom have time to enjoy the gift of nature.

Frank Cannella, sixth grade teacher at White Mountain Middle School, is trying to reverse that trend, at least for students in his classes.

Each school year, Cannella leads students on an overnight backpacking trip into the hills above Sierra Blanca and just off the road to the ski area.

While the trips are fun, they are "a true learning experience" for the students, Cannella said.

In previous years, he has planned the trips on weekends. That has also changed.

"We purposely did this during two weekdays," he said. "Because of the things they learn, we decided it is okay to miss the actual classroom experience two days."

This year's backpacking trip became two, with about 15 students on each excursion. Cannella said Mid School principal Sid Miller escorted one trip and a parent, Nita Bettingfield, accompanied the other.

"With smaller groups, you can really see a lot of things you wouldn't otherwise," he said. A previous trip included nearly 60 people, with students and sponsors. "There wasn't any way we were going to get a glimpse of a deer — we were so noisy, we probably scared them all off."

One experience students get on the trip is to walk a trail by themselves. "This gives each kid a chance to really observe what's around him in the forest — there are no distractions."

A filmstrip illustrating survival skills, such as how to build fires with flint and steel, cooking and finding food and finding water, was shown before the trip.

Cannella teaches several other concepts on each trip including map reading and orienteering, increment boring, tree identification, creative writing, character development, archeology and construction of basic A-frame shelters.

Cannella said students had to depend on one another to build fires, cook, protection and "just general survival."

"These trips illustrate that you need to appreciate the environment here and enjoy it — become familiar with it," he said.

Over the two day period, the students had an opportunity to "see how people lived in the days of yore." Cannella said that in an age of "instant gratification, it was good for them to see how it used to be — waiting two hours after you get hungry just to eat."

Cannella said for many, it was their first trip into the forest. "I think people need to get out in the woods more . . . It's really important to expose and encourage the kids to do this — it can be a lifelong hobby."

As for the kids, "They love it; they were tired, but they realize that it was good for them to have a wilderness experience," Cannella said.

NOT THE EASIEST way to start a fire, but it works in a pinch. Corey Garner, left, uses flint and steel to produce sparks to get the fire going while White Mountain Middle School principal Sid Miller looks on.

READY TO GO on an overnight backpacking trip are some students in Frank Cannella's sixth grade class. The trip has turned into a yearly event for students in his class and each year, the trips get better and better, Cannella said.

Text and photographs by Charlotte Fellers

FRANK CANNELLA, center, points to the spot at Wizzard's Roost where the winter solstice takes place. The site was found and marked by Indians many years ago, Cannella said. This is one of many sites sixth graders saw on a recent backpacking trip.

A PRIMITIVE SHELTER made of tree branches, which are used like shingles, pine needles, trees and grass, was built on a backpacking excursion recently by these sixth graders, from left: Emmitt Autrey, Sammy Parra and Colby Day. The shelter has leaves on the top and floor to further weatherproof it.

Officers to check on camp fires

With hunting seasons opening this month, Forest Service officials issued tips on building and extinguishing campfires and warning fires.

"Unless we get rain between now and the end of the hunting season, we are expecting it to be relatively dry in the forest," Guntram "G. W." Werther, Fire Management Officer on Smokey Bear Ranger District, said.

"We request that these basic things be done to insure a good hunt and green forests:"

—Do not build campfires in stump holes or in fallen logs. A fire which occurred on the forest October 10 started in a stump hole and traveled to surface fuels through the roots. The person cited for this offense was held liable for suppression costs and a fine, Werther said.

—As a general rule, clear to the ground a five foot radius so the fire will be separated from fuels. Do not build the fire under overhanging branches. The amount of clearance will depend upon the wind and adjacent fuels.

"More clearing may be required on certain days," Werther said. "On windy days, we request that no fires be built because of the danger," he added.

—Before leaving the campsite, douse the fire with an adequate amount of water, stir ashes, douse and stir again, if necessary. Feel the coals with the back of the hand to make sure they are cold.

"We want to emphasize that the forest will have extra patrols working through hunting season to watch for abandoned fires. We will be coordinating our efforts with the Department of Game and Fish," Werther said.

Law enforcement officers on Smokey Bear Ranger District have solved about 70 percent of all fire which occurred on the district in recent years, with citations issued and guilty persons assessed for suppression costs, which sometimes run as high as $1,200 per acre, Werther said.

Howell talks to teachers on Right to Work

Wilton Howell of Ruidoso, candidate for state senate, District 39, met with local teachers Thursday to discuss his views and answer questions regarding such issues as right to work, the Sagebrush Rebellion, revision of the Juvenile Code and legislative reapportionment.

Howell charged that an advertisement in the Ruidoso News, placed by the New Mexico Citizens for Right to Work had stated wrongly that he had failed to answer their questionnaire on that issue.

Howell said he had returned the questionnaire, and "obviously, they didn't like my answer." He told the group that the voters, rather than the state legislature or the governor, should make the decision on right to work.

The teachers questioned Howell on the Sagebrush Rebellion, because they said he and his opponent had differed greatly in their opinions on that subject in written questionnaires, which were filled out by both candidates.

Howell argued that if federal public lands, such as Bureau of Land Management (BLM) acreage was turned over to state control and sold at auction, only a small number of large landowners would be in a position to bid.

He also pointed out that the state receives funds "in lieu of taxes" for the federal lands, and that BLM land is about 90 percent accessible by the public, compared to state lands, which are 90 percent closed.

Howell also called for reforms in the Juvenile Code. He suggested that teachers and administrators have some input in those reforms.

Under the present code, a first offender juvenile can be given no more than six months probation, no matter what the offense, he said.

The candidate said he would favor three classifications for juveniles, which would possibly separate petty offenders such as truants, from those who have committed serious crimes.

Howell repeated his stand that New Mexico should seek to comply with Public Law 94-142, which would allow acceptance of federal funds for special education. Every state except New Mexico is currently complying with the law.

Failing to accept the funds, he said, "is an injustice to the children of New Mexico."

Howell also addressed the issue of reapportionment, which he said was likely to be raised in the next legislative session.

He said one of his reasons for seeking the senate seat was he felt Lincoln County should have a resident representative in Santa Fe.

ONE OF THE MOST ORIGINAL costumes at the Library's Halloween party Friday was worn by this pre-schooler, who sported a beard, mustache and a heavily padded paunch.

How to cast Congressional write-in vote

Secretary of State Shirley Hooper has advised county clerks, in the Second Congressional District, that the following methods of writing the names of write-in candidates should be accepted and counted:

- Joe Skeen
- J. R. Skeen
- Joseph R. Skeen
- Dorothy Runnels
- D. F. Runnels
- Mrs. Harold Runnels

To cast a write-in vote for either candidate, it is necessary to push open the slide in Column 2, then write in the name, using one of the examples shown above.

Warriors suffer district loss

"The snap and hold were good," Stierwalt said. "I guess Leroy just kicked too low on the ball. He doesn't do that very often."

It seemed to be a night of things the Warriors didn't do very often.

"I thought we were ready to play," Stierwalt said. "Every time we got close (to the goal line), we just seemed to bog down or make a critical mistake and stop ourselves."

"T or C caught us at some critical times too. Like that first play."

On the very first play from scrimmage, Tiger quarterback Evans dropped back to pass. Under a heavy rush, he hit Sheldon with a perfect strike. Sixty three yards and several missed tackles later, Sheldon scored.

Evans finished the night six of eight for 157 yards, a touchdown and a two point conversion.

"We knew they'd be throwing the ball," he said. "We had a good rush on and almost got him. I still don't know what happened in the secondary. I guess they just caught us flatfooted."

That and an inadvertent whistle did the Warriors in.

Least anyone think the breaks were all one sided, the Warriors got a break in the third quarter when Garcia bolted for a 57 yard scoring sprint. That, however, was called back on a motion penalty.

"The officials did a good job," Stierwalt said. "Even on the clip they called on Don. He did clip, he got him right in the back. He felt rotten about it."

Also, the Warriors had one first half drive end in an aborted field goal try and ran out of downs on another.

"Those scores we didn't get really bothered me," Stierwalt said. "I told the team at halftime I hoped those missed scores didn't come back to haunt us."

But — they did, Stierwalt noted.

"I had a dream the night before the game that we would lose by one point," he said. "First dream I've had all year." Pause. "I hope it's the last."

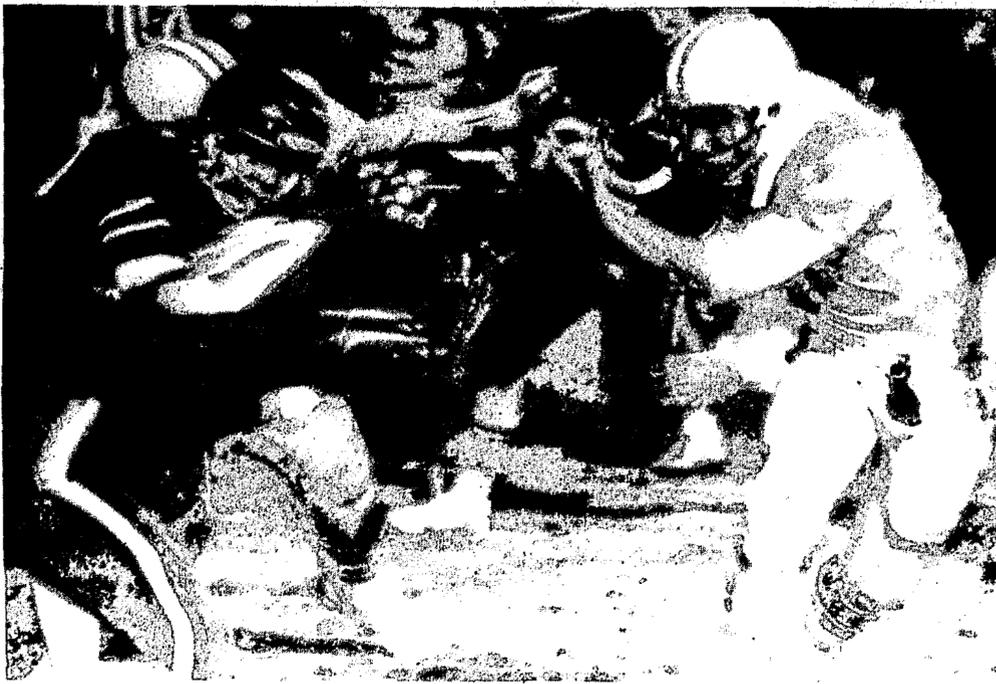

The loss, only the second of the 7-2 season, gives Ruidoso a 3-1 district record, dropping them into second place in district 3AAA. That means the winner of next week's clash between Silver City and the Warriors will decide who goes to the state playoffs.

T or C (7-2 as well) improved its slate to 2-2, tying them with Tularosa, who also went to 2-2 Friday night, losing to Silver, 23-13.

In terms of district standings, the game with T or C didn't mean much to Ruidoso — it all comes down to Silver City anyway. "But it still hurts to lose," Stierwalt said.

"I don't like to lose," he said. "I guess you could say I was disappointed. We didn't play very well. Our defense played pretty well except for two breakdowns."

"Offensively, we didn't block very well, and we made some key mistakes in crucial times. We only had 40 yards in penalties, but we had 15 yarders when we're two yards away from scoring. We can't do that next week.

RICKY DENNIS prepares a stiff arm for two T or C tacklers, who were able to bring the tough Warrior halfback down before he gained much yardage. Dennis finished the night with 57 yards rushing and one pass reception for minus five yards.

"Offsides or a motion penalty, anything else and we would have been in almost certain field goal range. But nope, it was clipping."

The game could have been ruled a Warrior win. In district play, a tie counts as a win for the team with the most penetrations. And after the Warriors scored on Pior's run in the fourth quarter, Stierwalt eschewed an almost certain extra point kick, which would have tied the score.

The Warriors, then, with five penetrations to T or C's three, would have been declared the winner.

"If I had it to do over again," he said, "I'd do it the same way. Nobody likes to tie, even if it had counted as a district win."

"I thought we could put it in, there was so much time left, and we were moving the ball, I felt if we didn't get it, we still had time to score again."

Unfortunately for the Warriors, his prediction of the situation was not completely accurate.

"Well, it all comes down to next week — it did before the game even started," he said. "We got to shake this one off and get ready to play next week."

"That's the one that counts."

Volleyballers lose final district games

Ruidoso's lady Warrior varsity volleyballers' district record fell to 2-3 Saturday as they dropped matches to Silver City and Cobre.

"I don't understand it," said head coach Margie Andrus. "We're a better team than that. I just don't know why we don't win." The loss drops the over all season record to 7-9.

"There's no reason for us to be last in the district," she said, "but we are. We haven't played our very best, but we should be doing better than we have."

The lady Warriors lost to Silver City 8-15, 8-15, and to Cobre, 11-15, 15-9 and 11-15.

The junior varsity gained its second win of the year with a two game victory over Silver 15-11, 15-8, but lost to Cobre in three games, 15-9, 13-15 and 4-15.

Against Silver City, a squad the Warriors beat earlier in the year, the varsity was never really in contention in either game.

Cathy Jones had four points in the first game to lead Ruidoso scorers, followed by Karen Boone with two, and Lisa Shaw and Patricia Cardenas with one each.

In the second game, Cardenas served five points and Gleda Bob had three to account for the Warrior scoring.

The junior varsity was led by Dodie Baldonado with five points, followed by Claudia Brannum with four, Lisa Williams with three, Kristy Dunlap with two and Karla Sears with one.

Sears and Baldonado scored four each in the second game, Dunlap and Williams tallied three each and Brannum hit one to round out the Ruidoso scoring in the win.

Cardenas scored seven for the Warriors in the Cobre varsity contest, followed by Jones with three and Lori Morel with one. The first game, which the Warriors lost 11-15, saw Ruidoso climb up from a 0-6 deficit. The Warriors handily took care of the Indians in the second game, led by Cardenas' six points and Jones' five.

Boone had three and Morel added one to finish the scoring.

In the final game, Jones had four and Cardenas had three, and Boone, Morel, Irene Sanchez and Bridget Almaguer had one apiece to finish the scoring.

The junior varsity losses easily handled their Cobre counterparts in the first game behind Williams' nine points, and three each from Baldonado and Brannum.

In the second game, however, Ruidoso fell behind 2-10 at one point, but rallied before losing, 13-15. Brannum had six points in the game followed by Williams with three, Baldonado with two and Lopez and Mary Cadena with one each.

The tight second game seemed to take the wind out of the Warriors' sails as they dropped the final game, 4-15.

Baldonado had two to lead the Warrior scoring, followed by Williams and Sears with one each.

"We didn't play very well against Silver, but we did against Cobre," Andrus said. "Our serving didn't hurt us, and we were playing good defense."

"We weren't playing our offense. Everybody's spikes were off."

"Our biggest problem was not communicating. We weren't talking to each other, and that hurt us."

The Warriors were also called for numerous illegal hits.

"It's my opinion we get better officials in that part of the state," she said. "They call the game tough, but they're consistent and fair. I wish we had officiating like that all the time. It would make us a better team."

The matches ended regular season play for the Warriors, who now face Cobre at 2:30 p.m., Thursday in Tularosa, in the first round of the district 3AAA tournament.

"There's no doubt in my mind we can beat them," she said. "We could beat any team we wanted to, if we just want to."

The winner and runnerup of the tournament travel to Roswell for the state tournament the following weekend.

... a column of opinion ...

Mark Bagby

First, a quick apology — Brynn Rene Castanon spells her name like that, not Brynn Renee as I wrote some time ago.

I don't think it upset anyone, but I like to set the record straight.

(And believe me, if you want to play it on your stereo, you have to set the record straight, which ain't easy to do, considerin' records is round.)

Energy conservation?

I was sitting around the other day thinking about ways to conserve energy. I started by sitting around.

But New Mexico is on this energy cut-back kick, even in (heaven forbid) high school athletics.

That's why Class A and Class AA will soon be playing no more than eight game schedules. That's why Class AAA, which has five districts, each year allows only one team each out of two districts to go to the state playoffs, with the other three districts' champions and runnersup.

That's eight teams, four games — they could have 10 teams, but two teams would be drawing byes. More games means more travel, so

The next step, of course, is in basketball, which follows football. Schedules have been cut back, some long distance games have been rescheduled to let girls' and boys' teams play their counterparts on the same day (thus one trip only), et cetera, et cetera.

The next step after that, I think, will almost have to be a revamping of districts.

Take Ruidoso's district 3AAA, for example. Members are Silver City (260 miles away), Deming (180 miles), Truth or Consequences (175 miles), Cobre (230 miles) and Tularosa (33 miles).

Now when you start figuring the costs of taking a busload of football players, plus their gear, plus a van full of statisticians, film gear and cheerleaders — to all those distances — whew! As Fran Tarkenton would say, "That's incredible."

And then when you have to do it five or six times a year — arghhhh, my wallet hurts just thinking about it. And that doesn't include meals.

So don't be too surprised if districts get changed around here pretty soon. Oh, for the good old days, when Ruidoso was in the same district with Carrizozo, Capitan and Tularosa.

I guess it could be worse — Ruidoso, at one time, was in the same district with Lordsburg, which is way the heck over by Arizona, so I suppose it could be worse.

(Sidelight: I understand Deming, which isn't too far from Las Cruces, which isn't too far from El Paso, Texas, played its first grid game of the season away. And I mean AWAY away. Like in Shiprock. Do you know how far that is? Shiprock, by the way, is almost in Colorado.)

Forgetting district revamping for a moment, another good idea is scheduling different opponents. And, as I understand it, Lordsburg has been dropped from the 1981 football schedule, as was Anthony Gadsden. New Mexico Military Institute in Roswell has been added, and negotiations are underway for a game with Artesia.

But that only helps with the non-district schedule, which, for example, is but half the games the Warriors play.

The real answer, though, will have to be in district changes. Districts will have to be more tightly knit, and since only district games count, perhaps fewer games will be played before district play begins.

It's something to think about — until we have hydrogen powered cars and buses, anyway.

Now that's an ARM

Quick, who's the best passer in the NCAA? Jim McMahon or Mark Herrmann? Maybe Stanford's John Elway?

Nope. None of the above.

Ever hear of Neil Lomax? You will. He plays for Portland (Oregon) State, and in his three-plus seasons, has thrown for 11,757 yards. No other NCAA quarterback has thrown for over 8,000 yards, so his record would seem to be intact for a while.

He holds a ton of records, including his newest one — he just broke Doug Williams' (now playing for Tampa Bay) career TD passes record of 98, hitting four last week for his current total of 99. With three games to go, even.

I understand the Dallas Cowboys are interested in him, which is quite understandable. Too bad if they draft him, though — he'll languish on the sidelines for 10 years so Danny White can play.

(I still think the Cowboys draft people like Lomax just so they won't have to play against them, but that's immaterial.)

And in case anyone thinks because Lomax is coming out of a small school means he can't play bigtime football, I would remind him Terry Bradshaw came out of Northeast Louisiana.

Nuff said.

RUIDOSO can claim that it has good neighbors, or at least Millie Alcorn, right, thinks so. Several weeks ago, Alcorn was working on his roof and fell unconscious. He was lucky, he thinks, because it happened about noon and Pat Crawford, left, was on her way home for lunch. Crawford, sensing something was wrong, found a ladder, climbed onto the roof, and administered first aid to Alcorn. She also called an ambulance and hailed passers-by to assist her. "She's the reason I'm here today," Alcorn said. "If you look hard enough, you can still find good people."

MANY YOUNG PEOPLE like to spend Halloween night "soaping" windows or deflating tires ... but there are some youths in Ruidoso who have found something better to do. They have built a "haunted house" the past four years in the front yard of the Larry Roberts home, and it has become well-known among people with young children, who visited the "house" Friday night for a scare. Pictured are some of those who built the house. Back, left and right are Mike Clarke, Matt Roberts; front, left to right are Robin Roberts and Bill Uihlein. in our opinion

My Time! by michael swickard

This is not a happy column, mainly because I am not a happy columnist.

It seems some things are not going as well around these parts as they could.

First, I was very dismayed to find the Lincoln County News name all over an advertisement for a candidate for District Attorney, Steve Sanders.

I would like to make it clear for those that wondered, the NEWS did not and does not endorse Mr. Sanders. In fact it was a cheap trick to use my name on his ads.

You see, I will usually publish just about anything that a candidate wants said when he announces his candidacy.

Mr. Sanders gave me a very long statement slinging mud at his opposition, and telling of his virtues. With mixed qualms I published it, because it is usual to publish candidates' statements.

Now I see the article cut out of the paper and the Lincoln County News Mast head together on a flyer as if to say that the NEWS endorses Sanders.

Several people asked me if I did, and so the people will know, "I do not."

In fact I like his opponent's tactics which seem to be business as usual and very little campaigning. Frank Wilson I thank you, Steve Sanders, you are a low down dirty rat. MS

The second thing that has me a bit stirred up was the Council special meeting Tuesday Night. The council had the right to remove me from the office (volunteer) of recreation board along with

... about White Oaks, Adam Varnish and the Golden Era." We talked a little history and a little book publishing. He like most others in this area are eagerly awaiting Leroy Acker's new book, "Porque."

Leroy's book should be off of the press around July first. I have read the book and find it to be one of the most interesting books I have read from several different areas, such as Mexican History, Adventure, humor, and others. I have more to say, the closer we get to the release date of the book. MS

The Dreamer BY DANNIE STORM

Wonderful November The Thankful Month
 This message is being brought to you on the last day of the blue-and-golden month of October, and all the mountain world is decorated for Halloween, that traditional holiday for children. The oak trees have all turned a pumpkin yellow, a harmonious matching color for October's blue sky. It is a wonderful delight to your eye sight to be under one of these golden oak trees and look up on this perfectly still day, past the glowing leaves and on to the pure blue sky which seems right next to the bright foliage of the autumn oak tree. The oak brush all along the mountain sides has come out in its full Indian Summer colors with the deep apricot yellow and golden orange dominating the vast hillside tapestry of mingled crimson, maroon, lilac, purple, pink, lemon yellow all blending perfectly so as to give your eyes a last glorious look at October at its best, on Halloween.

How well I remember Halloween in my childhood, especially in Juneau, Alaska. Everyone knew everyone else in the town, and we were all like one family. Governor Strong was a great hand to walk through the town having a friendly word with all he met.

On Halloween, I do not remember "trick or treat." We went from house to house carrying Jack-O-Lanterns made of a candle arranged in a tin can, or in a pumpkin with eyes, nose, and mouth cut so the candle light would shine through.

In each house there would be a Halloween party going on. We played little games like diving for apples in a big tub of water, or biting at an apple blind-folded, with the apple swinging on a string from the ceiling.

There were lots of home made cookies, candy, apples and oranges (brought up from The States) on the boats) pies and cakes, and store bought candy (jelly beans and taffy and stick candy) — more of these things than you could possibly carry home. You had to make two or three trips.

Birthday Month Of Brother Lynn
 This message will reach you on the third of November, The Thankful Month, also the birthday month of our brother Lynn. Lynn was born some few years ago in Juneau, Alaska, on November twenty-eight.

During the birthday month of my people, I have formed a habit through the years of thinking of their outstanding qualities of character, and trying to draw them to myself.

One of Lynn's many great qualities is his lightning-quick action in an emergency. He has displayed this God-given ability time and time again. In November of 1971 I had determined to keep this quality of Lynn's character always in mind.

On November ninth of that year I was working on the highway down at Glencoe, on a dusty windy day, and before I knew it a giant dirt mover was almost on top of me. I made the jump of my life, and although I spent one hundred days in the hospital, this jump saved my life, and I knew that I owed this escape to my brother, Lynn. Lynn and Almighty God.

With a little luck I will get to see Lynn on or around his birthday, also some more of my kin folks.

By the way, November ninth is the birthday of our dear friend, over on the Bonito, Lula Runnels.

The American Point Of View
 A number of years ago an editor of a newspaper sent a young writer to Europe to write feature stories.

Everything was new and strange and he sent back colorful accounts of the historical buildings, strange costumes and picturesque villages.

His editor wired him "Your pieces are great, son. Keep them coming."

After a year or so, the young writer began sending back messages of a different kind saying that we Americans are too puritanical, we spend too much time chasing the almighty dollar, and we were on the wrong side in the last war, and so on.

His editor wired him, "You might as well come back home, Kid, we can not use your stuff any more. You have lost your American point of view."

The American point of view springs from the ideals and traditions that we hold dear.

During the thankful month of November, let us cherish and hold fast to our hearts more than ever these foundation ideals of our beloved nation. We all know what they are: Love of our country, pride in our flag, devotion to the family, belief in liberty and justice for all, decency, readiness to defend our land, devotion to world peace, belief in helping the helpless, and a reverence for all human life, including the life of the unborn child waiting to see the light of day.

Let us thank God for our arrival once more into the thankful month of November, that sacred time of year in which all the promises of the other seasons have come true.

They're Here! They're Here!

 Is Proud To Introduce
Ray And Robbie Beardsley and the Sierra Bake Shoppe to Ruidoso

Modern GROCERY

The Beardsleys are remodeling the Modern Grocery building as Ruidoso's only full-line bakery. They will offer all types of pastries, rolls, breads, pies, cakes, doughnuts, cookies and more! [Advance orders for decorated cakes are being accepted now.] When finished, the shop will seat about twenty people for coffee and doughnuts or hot apple pie with cheese or ice cream.

Ray "grew up" in bakeries and has been in the business for over 35 years. Ruidoso residents will be interested to know that his father was the first pastry chef and baker for the Chaparral.

About 10 years ago, after being in the bakery business in Texas and New Mexico, Ray and Robbie on a visit to Ruidoso decided that they should open a bakery here. But five years ago they moved to Florida where they owned and operated the Island Bake Shop in Sanibel Island. Recently, however, they became just too homesick for the mountains and moved to Ruidoso.

They hope to open in about three weeks.

Inside The Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE—Just try to write a column that says something positive about the King administration, and what do those people do? They screw you up.

We dared to hint there might be something to be said for their handpicked investment officer, Sam Garcia, in his fight with Senator John Irick and the Legislative Finance Committee. We turned out to be very wrong.

An Attorney General's investigation of our Sam makes him out to be a rank incompetent who tried to cover himself with a little fast lying—not so good for David King, Sam's boss, who wants the voters to send him to Congress Tuesday.

David called for the investigation, and his successor, Kay Marr, had no sooner read the report than she repudiated the whole thing. Apparently it didn't prove what she wanted.

It says things like this about Sam Garcia, the man who invests the state's permanent fund:

—He denied receiving a telegram he didn't want the investigators to read more than a week after it was in his hands.

—He threatened to stop doing business with a broker unless he would lie to the investigators.

—With Max Maes of the State Auditor's office, he demanded from another broker a letter relating facts both the broker and Garcia knew to be untruthful.

—He appears to have cooperated with the State Auditor's office to set up a formal complaint against the broker who first talked to Senator Irick about his possible incompetence.

—He lashes out at almost anyone who says anything derogatory about him, accusing all such persons of colluding against him.

—He refused a bid for stock under his control one day and accepted a lower bid the following day. Net loss to the state on this transaction was about $60,000.

Not a pretty picture.

And what is the King administration's reaction to it? Denial.

The day after the report was completed, Mrs. Marr rejected it, as we have said.

Of course, she is not an entirely disinterested party. As Secretary of Finance and Administration, she is chairperson of the State Investment Council, which makes policy for Garcia to follow. And, as the report makes clear, her sister, Bea Bevell, was named Principal Investment Officer for the state by Garcia when she had a total of zero hours experience in the field. (Bevell is now on the payroll of the King-for-Congress operation.)

Apparently the administration has decided to stonewall it and stick with Sam, instead of cutting him adrift. They may learn to their dismay what others who have taken that track have already discovered: Cover-ups work poorly with citizens grown cynical and untrusting; the people know how to express their political displeasure.

And just think: If, when these accusations were first made, before the LFC, Sam Garcia had calmly, and maybe with a touch of humility, said something like "Yes, I made a bad mistake on that transaction," the whole problem could have been settled quietly that day.

Instead, his temper made him blow up.

The King family may live to rue the day Sam had that expensive tantrum. It could prove to be a costly matter for them in days to come.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

"Veterans' Day, a day to remember." There is no country on earth where freedom means more than it means in the United States. To preserve that precious gift, millions have donned the uniforms of our armed forces during time of war.

The DAV and DAV auxiliary members are asking all Americans to fly their flags on Veterans' Day to show respect for the sacrifices our veterans have made. There is no flag that means more than the flag of our great country.

The strength of our nation is the freedom of our people, freedom to pursue their own interests. I commend all veterans, living or dead, who served their country. America's veterans helped provide the freedom for our people. In my opinion, this is what Veterans' Day is all about. It really is a day to remember.

Sense & Nonsense

U.S. Sen. Pete Domenici

In the 1980 Presidential race, if the trend in United States voting in national elections holds true to form, then the next president of the United States will be voted in by less than one-third of those people eligible to vote.

If doesn't sound right, does it? America, land of the free home of the brave, etc., etc., has a government voted in by a minority. Unfortunately, though, this situation is real and not imagined.

In 1976, President Carter, although he drew 50.1% of the votes cast, was in actual number of voters, elected by only 27.2% of the voting age populace. Even Lyndon Johnson, who captured a whopping 61.1% of the votes cast in 1964, still received only 37.8% of the total number of voters eligible to vote.

Never before in our 204 year history have we elected a president by a majority of all adults. We still tend to believe that we are a people that governs itself, but the record shows otherwise. The more that people turn off on the election process and fail to cast their votes, the more our system of government will not work.

This is not the case in other countries which have democratic elections. In some European democracies, where 80-90% election turnouts are common, the citizens of these countries consider it a duty and privilege to vote. They also have a strong sense that government policy directly reflects their vote.

Our nation is quickly losing that sense of voting as power, the sense of actually controlling the national destiny by ballot. Ironically, it is the uninformed who hold the balance of power in this nation. In 1978, more than 68 million Americans of voting age simply chose not to cast ballots at all. What differences this would have made on our nation over the past four years if only half of these people had actually cast votes is still unknown.

Essentially, this dilemma presents two challenges—first, a challenge to people of voting age to get out and make their vote count, and second, a challenge to the president, whoever is elected, to represent all of this nation in spite of the fact that less than one-third of the eligible voters actually cast ballots expressing their support of him.

This is why it is necessary that any president have a good working relationship with Congress. By working relationship, I do not mean the simplistic cynical generalization made by observers which depict Congress and the President in a "you scratch my back, I'll scratch yours" kind of relationship. This is the same kind of mentality that has led us to much of the problems we suffer in government today.

No, by working together, the President must be able to sit down with members of Congress and work out solutions to problems and crises confronting our nation today, solutions which are not simply cosmetic in nature, but rather beneficial for the long run, far beyond the short-lived solutions which give Congress and the President an easy way out.

Beyond this, however, the President has to realize that he is president over the whole nation and not just the one-third that elected him. The other two-thirds either voted against him or simply did not even care enough to cast a vote. It requires courage of any president to know that whatever decision he may make will probably receive a negative reaction from a large portion of this nation.

It requires courage by the Congress to support a President when he has made a decision based on the good of this nation, rather than the whims of special interest groups or a search for a popular quick fix solution.

Finally, and most important, it requires courage for voters to go out and cast their ballots for men who have that kind of foresight and courage. It doesn't take much guts to gripe about the problems of this nation in front of your wife, or in the office, or talking with your friends. Cast a vote and back up those words with action. After all, the real power of this nation lies in the hands of those who do not vote.

THOUGHTS ON RUIDOSO

RUIDOSO, the mountain retreat for the Southeast corner, has severe growing pains, including a water shortage that can only be described as critical. This will be difficult and expensive to solve but surely there must be a way to find water in the mountains.

Because its vacation-recreation draw extends such a great distance Ruidoso badly needs a larger and safer airport. This has proved to be a big problem, too, but it will be solved.

Ruidoso is unique among New Mexico's mountain retreats in that it is one place where a person has a reasonable chance to find employment and remain in the hills on a full-time basis if he or she should choose. The economy is getting big enough and strong enough to support year around activities. — Hop Graham, The Lovington Daily Leader editorial

Lincoln County voters tomorrow will be making some important decisions as to how the county will be operated in the next two years.

Voters should consider, and carefully, statements made by Bill Elliott and Ernest Sanchez in the sheriff's race. County law enforcement becomes more complex each year, making the sheriff's main job one of supervision. It almost amounts to a decision as to which man you think will make the best administrator.

The entry of James J. Weldon, as a write-in candidate, in the District Attorney's race, gives the voter a choice. Steve Sanders has assumed the duties of the post, but the statements of each, on the conduct of the office, on what each has done, or promises to do, should be given much thought before casting your vote.

The treasurer is one of our most important county offices, because it is the interest to be earned on short term investments that provides the cushion for meeting unexpected expense in the conduct of county government. Study the qualifications of each candidate and consider the statements each has made as to how the office should be conducted before voting.

The county assessor's office is one that can have a profound effect on the county during the upcoming two years. Perhaps the main consideration here should be paid to the qualifications of the candidates. Each has stated their position and intent, if elected. This should be the deciding factor in how to cast your vote.

In the matter of County Commissioner, District Three, the voter must decide which candidate will work the hardest to gain services for the district, bearing in mind that this is the district paying the most taxes into the county.

This year's election, at the county level, is possibly one of the most important in recent years. Development in the county during the next two years could well hinge on who is elected. Vote tomorrow as if your future depended on it . . . and it's a certainty it does. — CD

WAY TO GO, DAVE!

While our own Dave Parks was at sea a few days back . . . down in the Caribbean taking a look see at the ports of Nassau, San Juan and St. Thomas . . . the Independent Insurance Agents of New Mexico he was sailing with up and elected him President-elect of their group . . . which must be considered as just another instance of recognition for our Dave . . . and it can't do Ruidoso any harm either . . . 'cause lotsa folks'll probably be 'dropping in to Dave's office now and again from the outfit . . . so congratulations, Dave . . . and remember, you have a whole year before you have to pick up the reins . . . which'll give you the opportunity to practice up on getting your ulcers in top shape.

SNOW FOR THANKSGIVING

The taste of old man winter . . . in the form of a couple inches of snow the other day . . . just has to get us thinking about getting huge stacks of snow atop Old Baldy . . . 'cause Thanksgiving's somewhere in the vicinity of three weeks and three days away . . . and that's getting close.

'Course, we can get by without too much of the white, fluffy, stuff descending into Harmony Valley . . . 'cause most of the hills in town ain't really suited to skiing . . . skidding, yes, skiing no.

This year . . . considering what happened to our water supply this past summer . . . just has to be one for us to hope that all sorts of records for snowfall are set on the mountain.

'Course there are the more immediate benefits . . . such as whole herds of skiers coming to town . . . to keep everyone here smiling . . . 'cause those skiers . . . in addition to having fun . . . leave some of the coin of the realm spread around . . . which is the name of the game so far as winter recreation here is concerned . . . no?

Then . . . on the thumb hand side . . . those hunters, as'll be traipsing the hills in quest of venison, might not be allergic to having some snow . . . It does tend to make tracking deer easier . . . even if'n it does tend to make their toes and noses kinda tingle . . . and there's nothing quite the equal of a rosy checked deer hunter telling his tale of how he lowered the boom on a prize buck . . . and how about how hard it was to slide it over the snow, back to camp.

POLITICAL RUNDOWN

In thinking back over that press conference Our Jimmy and Ronnie Baby participated in last Tuesday eve . . . under the guise of being a debate . . . it was more humorous than anything . . . 'cause the questions generally was couched in language that let the participants lambast each other . . . and really not saying anything new . . . so, it was mostly old ones fixed over as they was running off at the mouth about.

But there's this much about this year's presidential campaign . . . neither Our Jimmy or Ronnie Baby have been promising too much . . . Our Jimmy says he's going to get things whipped into shape in the next four years . . . and Ronnie Baby is of the opinion there'll be nothing left to whip into shape if'n Our Jimmy is in the Oval Office for another four years.

'Course Our Jimmy's got a lot of things to look back on . . . in his term of being president . . . that ain't exactly feathers in his cap . . . 'cause some of those as ain't workin' seemingly think Our Jimmy coulda done something to get them back to work . . . and these disgruntled ones just might decide to axe him.

It does appear as though Ronnie Baby has the edge on electoral votes . . . and some voters'll more than likely decide to go along with the winner . . . and let the underdog fend for himself. Has happened before . . . 'twill again.

One nice thing about the campaign coming to an end, though . . . is that there'll be a new challenge for the news media; 'cause, while covering the campaign . . . a responsibility they haven't shirked . . . they must be getting tired of trying to figure out how to say the same old thing in a manner making it appear as though it's a fresh story.

It'd sure be nice, though, if'n a record number of voters'd go to the polls tomorrow . . . so that the president elected will at least have a majority of the votes cast . . . to kinda provide inspiration to the next president to do a better job.

And, if'n Our Jimmy loses, wouldn't you like to be able to listen in on the first conversation he has with his brother?

BRIEF BIT: Go ahead and vote tomorrow . . . 'cause the voting machine is one slot machine you don't have to put quarters into to make it work . . . CD

Wonderful November
The Thankful Month

This message is being brought to you on the last day of the blue-and-golden month of October, and all the mountain world is decorated for Halloween, that traditional holiday for children. The oak trees have all turned a pumpkin yellow, a harmonious matching color for October's blue sky. It is a wonderful delight to your eye sight to be under one of these golden oak trees and look up on this perfectly still day, past the glowing leaves and on to the pure blue sky which seems right next to the bright foliage of the autumn oak tree. The oak brush all along the mountain sides has come out in its full Indian Summer colors with the deep apricot yellow and golden orange dominating the vast hillside tapestry of mingled crimson, maroon, lilac, purple, pink, lemon yellow all blending perfectly so as to give your eyes a last glorious look at October at its best, on Halloween.

How well I remember Halloween in my childhood, especially in Juneau, Alaska. Everyone knew everyone else in the town, and we were all like one family. Governor Strong was a great hand to walk through the town having a friendly word with all he met.

On Halloween, I do not remember "trick or treat." We went from house to house carrying Jack-O-Lanterns made of a candle arranged in a tin can, or in a pumpkin with eyes, nose, and mouth cut so the candle light would shine through.

In each house there would be a Halloween party going on. We played little games like diving for apples in a big tub of water, or biting at an apple blind-folded, with the apple swinging on a string from the ceiling.

There were lots of home made cookies, candy, apples and oranges (brought up from The States" on the boats) pies and cakes, and store bought candy (jelly beans and taffy and stick candy) — more of these things than you could possibly carry home. You had to make two or three trips.

Birthday Month
Of Brother Lynn

This message will reach you on the third of November, The Thankful Month, also the birthday month of our brother Lynn. Lynn was born some few years ago in Juneau, Alaska, on November twenty-eight.

During the birthday month of my people, I have formed a habit through the years of thinking of their outstanding qualities of character, and trying to draw them to myself.

One of Lynn's many great qualities is his lightning-quick action in an emergency. He has displayed this God-given ability time and time again. In November of 1971 I had determined to keep this quality of Lynn's character always in mind.

On November ninth of that year I was working on the highway down at Glencoe, on a dusty windy day, and before I knew it a giant dirt mover was almost on top of me. I made the jump of my life, and although I spent one hundred days in the hospital, this jump saved my life, and I knew that I owed this escape to my brother, Lynn, Lynn and Almighty God.

With a little luck I will get to see Lynn on or around his birthday, also some more of my kin folks.

By the way, November ninth is the birthday of our dear friend, over on the Bonito, Luis Runnels.

The American Point Of View

A number of years ago an editor of a newspaper sent a young writer to Europe to write feature stories.

Everything was new and strange and he sent back colorful accounts of the historical buildings, strange costumes and picturesque villages.

His editor wired him "Your pieces are great, son. Keep them coming."

After a year or so, the young writer began sending back messages of a different kind saying that we Americans are too puritanical, we spend too much time chasing the almighty dollar, and we were on the wrong side in the last war, and so on.

His editor wired him, "You might as well come back home, Kid, we can not use your stuff any more. You have lost your American point of view."

The American point of view springs from the ideals and traditions that we hold dear.

During the thankful month of November, let us cherish and hold fast to our hearts more than ever these foundation ideals of our beloved nation. We all know what they are: Love of our country, pride in our flag, devotion to the family, belief in liberty and justice for all, decency, readiness to defend our land, devotion to world peace, belief in helping the helpless, and a reverence for all human life, including the life of the unborn child waiting to see the light of day.

Let us thank God for our arrival once more into the thankful month of November, that sacred time of year in which all the promises of the other seasons have come true.

Modern GROCERY

The Beardsleys are remodeling the Modern Grocery building as Ruidoso's only full-line bakery. They will offer all types of pastries, rolls, breads, pies, cakes, doughnuts, cookies and more! [Advance orders for decorated cakes are being accepted now.] When finished, the shop will seat about twenty people for coffee and doughnuts or hot apple pie with cheese or ice cream.

Ray "grew up" in bakeries and has been in the business for over 35 years. Ruidoso residents will be interested to know that his father was the first pastry chef and baker for the Chaparral.

About 10 years ago, after being in the bakery business in Texas and New Mexico, Ray and Robbie on a visit to Ruidoso decided that they should open a bakery here. But five years ago they moved to Florida where they owned and operated the Island Bake Shop in Sanibel Island. Recently, however, they became just too homesick for the mountains and moved to Ruidoso.

They hope to open in about three weeks.

Inside The Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE—Just try to write a column that says something positive about the King administration, and what do those people do? They screw you up.

We dared to hint there might be something to be said for their handpicked investment officer, Sam Garcia, in his fight with Senator John Erick and the Legislative Finance Committee. We turned out to be very wrong.

An Attorney General's investigation of our Sam makes him out to be a rank incompetent who tried to cover himself with a little fast lying—not so good for David King, Sam's boss, who wants the voters to send him to Congress Tuesday.

David called for the investigation, and his successor, Kay Marr, had no sooner read the report than she repudiated the whole thing. Apparently it didn't prove what she wanted.

It says things like this about Sam Garcia, the man who invests the state's permanent fund:

—He denied receiving a telegram he didn't want the investigators to read more than a week after it was in his hands.

—He threatened to stop doing business with a broker unless he would lie to the investigators.

—With Max Maes of the State Auditor's office, he demanded from another broker a letter relating facts both the broker and Garcia knew to be untruthful.

—He appears to have cooperated with the State Auditor's office to set up a formal complaint against the broker who first talked to Senator Erick about his possible incompetence.

—He lashes out at almost anyone who says anything derogatory about him, accusing all such persons of colluding against him.

—He refused a bid for stock under his control one day and accepted a lower bid the following day. Net loss to the state on this transaction was about $60,000.

Not a pretty picture.

And what is the King administration's reaction to it? Denial.

The day after the report was completed, Mrs. Marr rejected it, as we have said.

Of course, she is not an entirely disinterested party. As Secretary of Finance and Administration, she is chairperson of the State Investment Council, which makes policy for Garcia to follow. And, as the report makes clear, her sister, Bea Bevell, was named Principal Investment Officer for the state by Garcia when she had a total of zero hours experience in the field. (Bevell is now on the payroll of the King-for-Congress operation.)

Apparently the administration has decided to stonewall it and stick with Sam, instead of cutting him adrift. They may learn to their dismay what others who have taken that track have already discovered: Cover-ups work poorly with citizens grown cynical and untrusting; the people know how to express their political displeasure.

And just think: If, when these accusations were first made before the LFC, Sam Garcia had calmly, and maybe with a touch of humility, said something like "Yes, I made a bad mistake on that transaction," the whole problem could have been settled quietly that day.

Instead, his temper made him blow up.

The King family may live to rue the day Sam had that expensive tantrum. It could prove to be a costly matter for them in days to come.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

"Veterans' Day, a day to remember." There is no country on earth where freedom means more than it means in the United States. To preserve that precious gift, millions have donned the uniforms of our armed forces during time of war.

The DAV and DAV auxiliary members are asking all Americans to fly their flags on Veterans' Day to show respect for the sacrifices our veterans have made. There is no flag that means more than the flag of our great country.

The strength of our nation is the freedom of our people, freedom to pursue their own interests. I commend all veterans, living or dead, who served their country. America's veterans helped provide the freedom for our people. In my opinion, this is what Veterans' Day is all about. It really is a day to remember.

WAY TO GO, DAVE!

While our own Dave Parks was at sea a few days back... down in the Caribbean taking a look see at the ports of Nassau, San Juan and St. Thomas... the Independent Insurance Agents of New Mexico he was sailing with up and elected him President-elect of their group... which must be considered as just another instance of recognition for our Dave... and it can't do Ruidoso any harm either... 'cause lotsa folks'll probably be dropping in to Dave's office now and again from the outfit... so congratulations, Dave... and remember, you have a whole year before you have to pick up the reins... which'll give you the opportunity to practice up on getting your ulcers in top shape.

SNOW FOR THANKSGIVING

The taste of old man winter... in the form of a couple inches of snow the other day... just has to get us thinking about getting huge stacks of snow atop Old Baldy... 'cause Thanksgiving's somewhere in the vicinity of three weeks and three days away... and that's getting close.

'Course, we can get by without too much of the white, fluffy, stuff descending into Harmony Valley... 'cause most of the hills in town ain't really suited to skidding... skidding, yes, skiing no.

This year... considering what happened to our water supply this past summer... just has to be one for us to hope that all sorts of records for snowfall are set on the mountain.

'Course there are the more immediate benefits... such as whole herds of skiers coming to town... to keep everyone here smiling... 'cause those skiers... in addition to having fun... leave some of the coin of the realm spread around... which is the name of the game so far as winter recreation here is concerned... no?

Then... on the thumb hand side... those hunters, as'll be traipsing the hills in quest of venison, might not be allergic to having some snow... it does tend to make tracking deer easier... even if'n it does tend to make their toes and noses kinda tingle... and there's nothing quite the equal of a rosy cheeked deer hunter telling his tale of how he lowered the boom on a prize buck... and how about how hard it was to slide it over the snow, back to camp.

POLITICAL RUNDOWN

In thinking back over that press conference Our Jimmy and Ronnie Baby participated in last Tuesday eve... under the guise of being a debate... it was more humorous than anything... 'cause the questions generally was couched in language that let the participants lambast each other... and really not saying anything new... so, it was mostly old ones fixed over as they was running off at the mouth about.

But there's this much about this year's presidential campaign... neither Our Jimmy or Ronnie Baby have been promising too much... Our Jimmy says he's going to get things whipped into shape in the next four years... and Ronnie Baby is of the opinion there'll be nothing left to whip into shape if'n Our Jimmy is in the Oval Office for another four years.

'Course Our Jimmy's got a lot of things to look back on... in his term of being president... that ain't exactly feathers in his cap... 'cause some of those ain't workin' seemingly think Our Jimmy coulda done something to get them back to work... and these disgruntled ones just might decide to axe him.

It does appear as though Ronnie Baby has the edge on electoral votes... and some voters'll more than likely decide to go along with the winner... and let the underdog fend for himself. Has happened before... 'twill again.

One nice thing about the campaign coming to an end, though... is that there'll be a new challenge for the news media; 'cause, while covering the campaign is a responsibility they haven't shirked... they must be getting tired of trying to figure out how to say the same old thing in a manner making it appear as though it's a fresh story.

It'd sure be nice, though, if'n a record number of voters'd go to the polls tomorrow... so that the president elected will at least have a majority of the votes cast... to kinda provide inspiration to the next president to do a better job.

And, if'n Our Jimmy loses, wouldn't you like to be able to listen in on the first conversation he has with his tirother?

BRIEF BIT: Go ahead and vote tomorrow... 'cause the voting machine is one slot machine you don't have to put quarters into to make it work... CD

ELKS ANNUAL DEER HIDE DRIVE

Deer Hide Pickup Points

Ruidoso: Gibson's, KRRR, White's Auto, Hughes Body Shop, Elk's Lodge
 Capitan: Rusty Anchor Bar, Cummins Grocery
 Mesquite: Tribal Chevron Station

Once again this year the Elks Lodges throughout New Mexico are asking the hunters of New Mexico to help in a very important harvest, deer hides; don't throw it away! Turn it into the Elks Lodge nearest you or call your local Elks for information on how to help with our program. The Elks appreciate your cooperation and the hospitalized veteran appreciates the leather he gets from the hide program for his occupational therapy.

Hospital veteran working with Elks leather

In the rehabilitation of the patient, one of the first considerations is his activity in the hospital. This activity may be provided through Occupational Therapy. The crafts we employ are our "tools of treatment," one of the most important being leather. When there is a choice, the patients usually prefer it. It is versatile and adaptable; the project can be made simple or complicated. As a treatment medium, it can be relaxing, stimulating, or used to exercise certain parts of the body. The finished product is useful and affords much satisfaction.

The Elks have provided hundreds of pounds of leather over the years to help us in this work. We are truly grateful to them and to the hunters of New Mexico who have made this possible.—(Quoted by V. A. Officials)

With the hunting season here at hand, an urgent appeal is again made to all hunters in this area for Deer, Elk, Antelope and other large animal hides by the Veterans Hospital Committees of the 18 Elk Lodges throughout New Mexico.

For the past 17 years, these annual drives for hides has been conducted under the auspices of the New Mexico Elks Association. These hides, which are collected by the Elks each Fall, are shipped to a tannery in California, where they are traded for tanned cowhides, and the leather is then sent to Veteran's Hospitals throughout the country for use in their occupational therapy work.

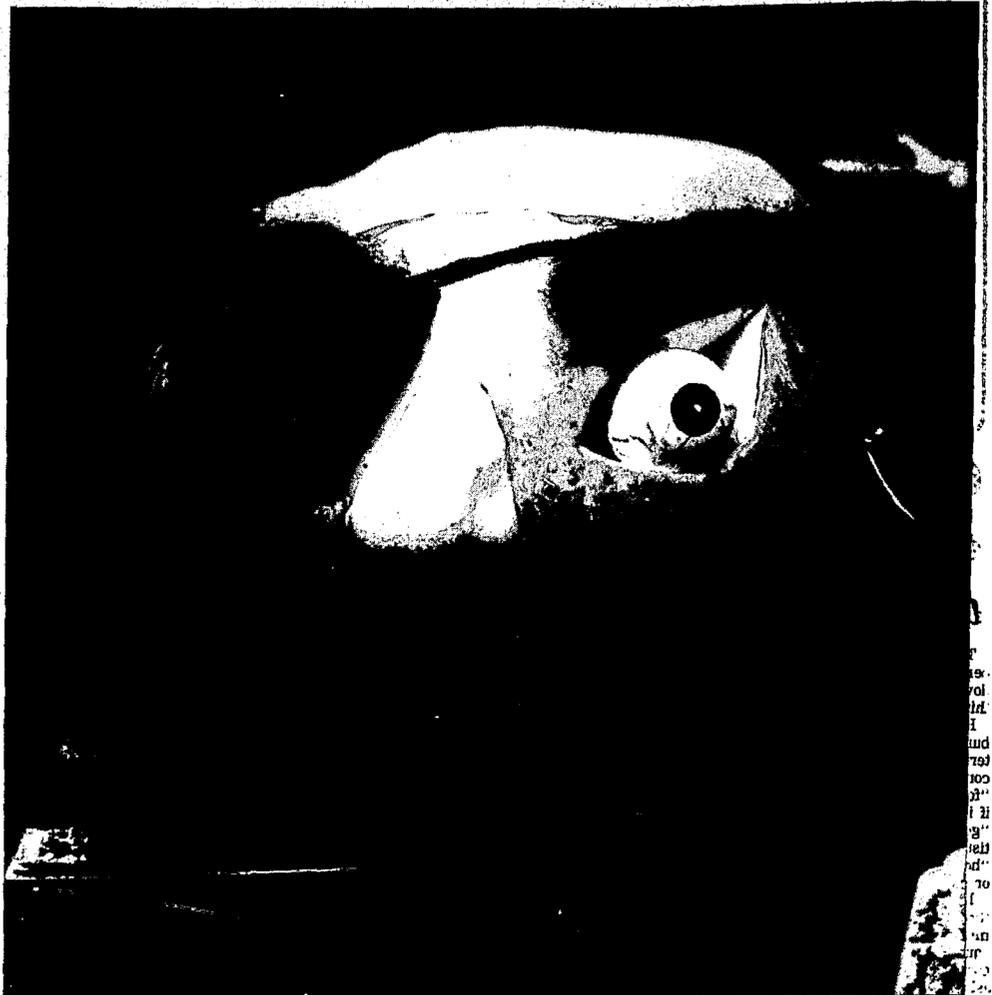

This program, which has grown from a humble beginning, 15 years ago, to the collection of several thousand hides annually for this worthwhile project, needs only the cooperation of New Mexico hunters to make it outstanding.

So, to all hunters, goes this message . . . "The Elks of New Mexico want your hide." Its worth more than you think . . . and can do a world of good for our hospitalized veterans.

This doesn't only mean deer hides, but it also should be known that we use cow hides, elk hides, deer hides, sheep hides, antelope hides, or any other kind of wild game hides that might not be used elsewhere. When you donate this hide, the Elks pay any expenses involved in handling. The tanneries cooperate in furnishing us with the finished cow hides in their place. Every good citizen wants to provide for himself. Help our veterans get a new start, too. Thank you very much.

Pumpkin carvers show ingenuity

THIS BULGING-EYED, sort of Blackbeard pirate type carved pumpkin would be enough to make any non-suspecting door openers to hobboblins Halloween night fairly shiver in their timbers. Throughout this section appear further examples of young pumpkin carvers' artistic bent, displayed last week at Ruidoso State Bank.

"Aging? Heavens, I did that in my middle years when I was still trying to prove something. No, I don't feel old, I feel free" ... S. Velma Pugsley Apparently, the key to a rich and rewarding life for Velma Pugsley, a "70-plus" Hudson Valley artist, is that she has long since put a lot of preconceived problems behind her.

Calling the middle years — "the real dividing line", Pugsley told a writer from the National Council on the Aging that she found "the years between 49 and 59 the real toughies."

"At that age," she says, "we are hung up on the high standards society imposes on us. We try to maintain the same frenetic pace we do when we are young without realizing that our bodies and our emotions are undergoing change. It can almost do you in."

"Finally," she continues, "you realize that you must take an inventory of your life — access your skills, interests and strengths. The real trick is to forget your limitations, make the most of what you have and go on from there." Having wrestled with and won her mid-life trauma, Pugsley realized that "it is important for me to keep the creative juices flowing."

Art has been an all-consuming career for the Poughkeepsie, New York resident and it remains the centerpiece of her life. Her oils, landscapes and portraits, are often found in one-woman exhibits in the area.

During America's bicentennial, many communities sought to recapture their heritage. Dutchess County, fortunately, recognized the rich resource it had in Velma Pugsley and commissioned her to do a history of selected Hudson Valley Portraits.

The project required much research (many of the paintings were in private collections) and documentation. Dutchess Portraits, 1680 - 1807 is a visual history of the industrial and political leaders who shaped the significant water commerce of the Hudson River during that period.

Pugsley is currently researching and writing a book on 19th century art in Dutchess County, a vital link in the Hudson Valley School of Art for which the area is renowned.

Sandwiched between these activities and her own painting are various community and club projects. She has, for example, designed an art history course for the mid-Hudson chapter of the Brandeis University Women's Committee. She often lectures herself — "just to keep them line", she laughs.

Noting that we are in our later years what we were in our younger ones, Pugsley feels that she has been very fortunate to have her artistic talents and interests.

As a young woman, she enjoyed an excellent educational background by attending among others the New York School for Fine and Applied Arts.

But, she says, even though she worked for more than 25 years in New York City as a commercial artist, "I never stopped my studies, I went to class at night and on weekends."

Her education was enhanced by visits to museums in Europe where she studied the masters whose works largely defined the history of the world's art. Retiring and returning to the Hudson Valley in the mid-60s she applied her artistic flair to the restoration of an old farmhouse in which she and her mother (who at this writing is 100) lived for eight years.

That farmhouse, however, was illustrative of the "accommodations one has to make with age," says Pugsley adding, "I couldn't keep it up — so I gave it up."

Now living "comfortably" in an apartment in an in-town Victorian house, Pugsley says, "The important thing is to make your decisions, do what you have to do, and don't look back."

Con artists of elderly are wanted

The "Golden Years" generally give a person a good feeling. A chance to slow down a little bit, and enjoy some of the things you've always wanted to do.

But more and more, con artists and burglars are giving new meaning to the term. Older persons are generally more compassionate and ready to help return "found" money to its rightful owner, even if it means withdrawing their savings as "good faith" money. While the "con artist" splits with their savings, they are left "holding the bag," filled with play money or newspapers with a few dollars on top.

In Artesia, burglars have been enjoying the "Golden Years." For the past three months, burglars have plagued a four square block area of housing for senior citizens. Breaking in while the victims are asleep, they quietly removed television sets, stereos, camera equipment, jewelry and other small items. The losses usually have been under $1,000 and the victims were unaware of the crime until they awoke in the morning and discovered items missing.

Crime Stoppers programs throughout the state pay cash rewards for information leading to the solution of any crimes, and this week, the State Crime Stoppers Commission is offering $1,000 for information leading to the arrest and indictment of the burglars victimizing the Senior Citizens housing area in Artesia. Anyone having information which could help police solve these burglaries should call the State Crime Stoppers Commission at its toll-free number, 1-800-432-6933. The Artesia Crime Stoppers program also has a $250 reward outstanding in these burglaries. Callers to the Crime Stoppers program do not have to reveal their identities, even to collect a reward.

Last week, Clovis police detectives arrested four persons for vandalism and burglary to Der Wienerschnitzel in Clovis as a result of information received through Crime Stoppers, and the Eastern Valencia County Crime Stoppers program assisted police and sheriff's officers in the capture of a fugitive. The State Fire Marshal's office also reported the indictment of a Belen arsonist on three counts of arson and one count of burglary as a result of Crime Stoppers information. Persons having information which could lead to the solution of any crime should call your local Crime Stoppers program, or the State Crime Stoppers Commission toll-free number, at 1-800-432-6933.

Lincoln sets winter hours at museum

Winter hours at 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Thursday through Monday will be in effect Thursday, November 8, at the old Courthouse Museum in Lincoln.

The courthouse museum is one of the state Monuments Division's group of properties in Lincoln, with interpretive displays about the Lincoln County War, as well as exhibits of Indian relics.

The museum will return to regular daily visiting hours in May.

Applications for Yule tree cutting ready

Application forms for the annual Lincoln National Forest Christmas Tree Cutting Program were distributed to more than 30 locations throughout West Texas and Southeastern New Mexico last week. They will be available to the public November 3.

Folks who want to cut their personal Christmas Tree on the Lincoln this year are advised to get an application form and mail it in with the one dollar fee as soon as possible, a Forest spokesman said. About 5,000 trees will be available in the program this year. Permits to cut them will be held only by mail, on a first-come, first-served basis.

Application forms mailed to the Forest Supervisor's Office in Alamogordo will be processed, as they arrive, beginning November 17. Applications received after all of the available permits are issued will be returned to the sender, along with the fee. Trees may be cut or dug, after a permit is received, through December 24.

In addition to Forest Service offices at Rosillos, Cloudcroft, Carlsbad, Mayhill and Alamogordo, the application forms will be available to the public at J. C. Penney Stores in El Paso and Las Cruces. They will also be available at Lane's Sporting Goods in Hatch; Chamber of Commerce at Amarillo, Alamogordo, Artesia, Carrizozo, Clovis, El Paso, Hobbs, Jal, Lovington, Las Cruces, Lubbock, Midland, Odessa, Fortales, Roswell and Socorro. They will be available at post offices at Bent, Boles Acres, Holloman Air Force Base, La Luz, Loving, Mesalero, Orogrande, Radom Springs and Tularosa.

Winter arrived early on the Lincoln last week, with record low temperatures in some locations and up to eight inches of snow. Fuelwood areas on the Cloudcroft Ranger District were closed following the snowfall Monday night, but were to re-open as soon as weather and road conditions permitted.

All forest visitors and fuelwood gatherers are urged to call the district ranger office in the district they plan to visit, before they leave home, for the most current news on weather and road conditions. The district telephone numbers are: Smokey Bear at Rosillos, 257-4095; Cloudcroft, 682-2551; Guadalupe at Carlsbad, 865-4181; Mayhill, 687-3411.

Last week at Smokey Bear, Three Rivers Campground was the only facility remaining open. It will be open all year. Beards Lake and streams are at normal water level and fishermen were scarce. All roads were open and all fuelwood areas were open.

Cloudcroft reported all facilities closed and roads snowed out. Sitting Bull Falls Picnic Area was open on the Guadalupe District, and repair work was still in progress on the washout near Williams Draw on Forest Road 540. Fuelwood areas were open.

Joe Skeen ahead in polls

Two polls conducted and released in the past week have shown two things very clearly, Joe Skeen, Republican write-in candidate for New Mexico's Second Congressional District seat, said Thursday.

"One, the polls show that this is the year that a write-in campaign can be successful," he said. "Too, the polls show that Joe Skeen is the leading candidate in the race."

One of the polls was conducted by Leach Research of Santa Fe for KOB-TV. The other, commissioned jointly by Skeen and Dorothy Runnels, was conducted by V. Lance Tarrance and Associates of Houston, Texas, one of the most respected independent research firms in the nation.

After conducting the poll October 28, and discussing it with the firm's interviewers, Tarrance said: "This makes one thing clear. Joe Skeen has a very fine chance to win this election."

The Tarrance poll, conducted by political scientists who are specialists in determining voter behavior, was designed to include the write-in factor and to cut through apparent indecision to find the true feeling of those being interviewed.

The Tarrance interviewers talked with 350 registered voters in the Second District during the poll. At the end of the survey, they found that 38 percent of the voters preferred Joe Skeen; 35 percent Dorothy Runnels and 16 percent David King. An additional 13 percent were listed as undecided.

Tarrance also stressed that the survey indicated a 5 to 1 favorable to unfavorable ratio for Skeen throughout the district. "The normal is only two to one," he said.

The Leach poll, conducted October 24, gave Skeen 19 percent, Runnels 16 percent and King 10 percent. It showed 55 percent of the voters undecided. It was compared to a poll taken by the same firm October 3 that had Skeen with 10 percent, Runnels with 16 percent and King with 12 percent. That poll listed 58 percent undecided. Tarrance said that the fact that the two most recent polls show the same order of preference (Skeen, Runnels, King) is significant.

Tarrance said that his survey also indicated a surprisingly high number of voters who understand the write-in process. Of those who said they would vote for Skeen, for example, 95 percent said they would take the time to write in. "Everyone knew exactly how the write-in works," he said.

Skeen discussed the polls at a Thursday news conference during which he also released copies of a letter from Secretary of State Shirley Hooper detailing which names are acceptable as write-ins.

The letter, sent to all county clerks, said the names Joseph R. Skeen, J. R. Skeen and Joe Skeen would all be acceptable. It also said that minor spelling variations are acceptable.

Skeen, however, questioned why the letter advised the clerks to tabulate each variation separately. "I'm Joseph R. Skeen, I'm J. R. Skeen and I'm Joe Skeen. If votes for any one of those names is going to be counted for me, why are they to tabulate them separately? We're going to ask the Secretary of State for an explanation," he said.

Skeen said the poll results have given him renewed vigor and confidence as the campaign goes into its final day. He said the fact that he is the only write-in candidate who represents a major party is a decided factor in his favor. Mrs. Runnels is running as an independent and has said she will remain an independent no matter how the election comes out.

"If she is elected," Skeen said, "she'll have no choice but to work with the Democrats in Congress. But those Democrats do not represent New Mexico. They represent other states and other interests. She will have no platform upon which to fight for the needs of our state."

Lighter uniforms for soldiers

Many soldiers will soon be wearing a new lightweight, all-weather camouflage field uniform that will be cool in the heat and warm in the cold, according to Lieutenant Colonel Thomas Schatzman, commander of Army recruiting activities in New Mexico and West Texas.

The accompanying new helmet is made of fiberglass material that is lighter than the former "steel pots," and offers more protection. And new boots that are also lighter in weight than their predecessors, offer an extra bonus. They are made with the rough side of the leather out and never need shining.

Soldiers also won't be bogged down with heavy meals anymore, at least not in their backpacks. New, flexible "retort" packaging of aluminum foil and plastic will replace the famous C-rations cans. These weigh less, are easier to pack, and the foodstuffs keep longer than canned meals. In addition, the meals themselves, which include steaks, brownies, and everything in between, are more nutritious and taste better.

Tree seedlings are available for conservation plantings

State Forester Raymond R. Gallegos has announced that application forms for the 1981 New Mexico Tree Seedling Program are now available.

He said the program provides seedlings to landowners at a very reasonable cost, when used for erosion control, reforestation, windbreaks or Christmas tree planting.

There are two types of seedlings available: bareroot deciduous and containerized conifer (evergreen) seedlings.

Species of deciduous trees available through the program are: Green Ash, Hackberry, Lombardy Poplar, Russian Olive, Native Plum and Narrowleaf Cottonwood. Russian Olive and Lombardy Poplar are excellent for use in windbreaks. Hackberry and Green Ash are well suited species for the southern half of the state, and are good windbreak species.

Species of coniferous trees available are: Arizona Cypress, Afghanistan Pine, Austrian Pine, Colorado Blue Spruce, Douglas Fir, Ponderosa Pine, Scotch Pine, and White Fir. Arizona Cypress, Afghanistan Pine and Austrian Pine are very adaptable to the southern one-third of the state and are recommended for windbreak planting. Afghanistan Pine is a good Christmas tree species. All three do well in arid climates such as found in southern New Mexico.

Arizona Cypress and Afghanistan Pine can be planted on alkaline soils. These species should not be planted at elevations above 4,500 feet as they are susceptible to cold weather.

To be eligible to participate in the program, landowners must own at least two acres. A minimum of 100 bareroot seedlings, at $23 per hundred, must be purchased. Containerized seedlings are $42.00 for 98, which is the minimum order.

For best selection of tree species, applications should be received by January 15, 1981. Applications for trees under the seedling program may be obtained by writing the Department of Natural Resources, Division of Forestry, P.O. Box 2167, Santa Fe, N.M. 87508 or by calling Greg Shore at 827-3182.

Wilderness Wisdom

with Wayne Calloway

Dear Wayne — I recently read an article that indicated the pH level of a body of water has a great bearing on whether or not fish thrive. The thought was that it may be more important than water temperature.

Would you explain what pH is and why it might be important to the fisherman? Bill T., New Hampshire

Dear Bill — The pH level of water is a measure of whether it is alkaline or acid. A value of 7.0 on the pH scale indicates water that is neutral, meaning that it is equally alkaline and acid. Water above 7.0 is referred to as alkaline, below 7.0 is acid.

Given a choice, fish will live in water that is within certain pH range. Usually, most game fish prefer alkaline water, something greater than 7.0. Bass have been observed to choose a pH of 7.5 to 8.0. At this range, they act more normal than at levels below neutral.

Most fish can tolerate very wide ranges of pH if they are acclimated to the changes slowly, but it has been found that these changes affect their behavior significantly. They can be much less aggressive and less willing to take a lure if the pH level is acid or below their preferred range.

The pH level of bodies of water is almost never constant, although it might normally stay within a certain range. Rainfall and natural plant decay tend to have an acid effect, however if the body of water is normally alkaline these factors may not have enough influence to bring it below neutral. Waters that contain large amounts of decaying leaves, trees, and plants may normally be acid.

Aquarium owners have long known that pH levels should be carefully watched to keep their specimens in good health, but only recently has it been learned that pH levels have so much influence on game fish behavior. There are now pH meters available, and many fishermen are including them in their basic outfits. I wouldn't suggest ignoring water temperature as a valuable fishing aid, but temperature indication and pH indication together should increase your chances of success significantly.

Focus on Small Business

by E. Maine Shafer

Dear Mr. Shafer: I want to incorporate my small business. Any suggestions?

The following information is usually required:

- Corporate name of the company.
- Purpose for which the corporation is being formed.
- Length of time for which the corporation is being formed.
- Names and addresses of the incorporators and directors.
- Amount of type of stock and type of capital stock which the corporation wishes to issue.
- Capital required at time of incorporation.
- Provision for regulations of the corporation's internal affairs.

After a charter is issued to the new corporation, stockholders must meet to complete the incorporation process. In this meeting, bylaws are adopted and a board of directors is elected. The directors, in turn, elect the officers.

First, you may want to get legal guidance. A lawyer will make sure that the articles of incorporation and bylaws are tailored to your particular needs, that you understand the tax obligations involved and that you comply with local, state and federal laws.

Most small firms find it advisable to obtain their corporate charter from the state in which most of their business is conducted.

Generally, the first required procedure is a "certificate of incorporation," prepared by one or more persons who will be stockholders in the corporation. Many states have a standard certificate of incorporation form, obtainable from the state official who grants charters. In some states, this form can be purchased at a stationery store.

TO THE VOTERS OF LINCOLN AND OTERO COUNTIES

There are perhaps two reasons why I should vote for Colonel Weldon in the forthcoming November 4th District Attorney race the first being that I am a republican and the second that I too am a retired Air Force Officer.

However, there are several reasons why I am going to vote for District Attorney Steve Sanders. He is a native of New Mexico and a graduate of our local and state schools, we know him.

Steve Sanders has proven himself capable and deserving of the office he now holds by his observing proper state and candidate election regulations and procedures.

If Colonel Weldon is unhappy with Mr. Sanders appointments why didn't he too register in the primaries in order to dilute the votes in favor of Mr. Wilson to keep him in office?

Colonel Weldon's past experience in military law and his appointed public defenders job is not a good comparison to Steve Sanders experience in New Mexico Laws. Also I feel that the Colonel is carrying double-dipping too far at this late stage in the election.

Therefore, I'm voting for Steve Sanders in order to give him time and the opportunity to put his plans and program for Lincoln and Otero Counties into operation.

Very truly,

PBS in the spotlight

About the 'Vikings!' host

Magnus Magnusson, one of Britain's best-known television personalities, is the writer-narrator of 'Vikings!', the ten-part series of half-hour programs, which has been seen Saturdays on PBS.*

An Icelandic-born descendant of the Vikings, Magnusson is a man with a wide range of interests and expertise. He was a founder-member of the BBC's 'Chronicle' series on history and archaeology; he scripted and presented the 12-part TV series, 'BC: Archaeology of the Bible Lands,' and he was also responsible for the radio series, 'Landlord or Tenant? A View of Irish History.'

As editor of Bodley Head archaeologies, Magnusson has contributed two titles himself, 'Viking Expansion Westwards' and 'Introducing Archaeology,' which won the 1972 London Times Educational Supplement's Information Book Award. With Herman Palsson, the indefatigable Iclander has translated four volumes of Icelandic sagas. His companion volume to the new series, also titled 'Vikings!', is being published in the U.S.A. by E.P. Dutton & Co.

Magnusson is Chairman of the Stewards of the York Archaeological Trust, which is engaged in a major Viking excavation at Coppergate. He lives in Scotland with his wife and four children.

A co-production of BBC-TV and KTCA-TV, St. Paul/Minneapolis, the weekly series is made possible by a grant from Lutheran Brotherhood, a national fraternal benefit society.

Television Schedule For The Week Of Nov. 3 through Nov. 9

by Joey Sasso

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT: 'Mork and Mindy' star Robin Williams has been secretly dating a 25-year-old actress behind his wife's back, we learned in Hollywood. Sexy startlet Adrienne Wilde confesses she and the 29-year-old zany comedian are 'crazy about each other.' And Mork's wife of two years, dancer Valerie Velardi, also 29, knows all about their romance. Adrienne, whose father owns a chain of movie theaters, met Robin 18 months ago at a party on the Paramount Studio lot. "Suddenly I looked up and found myself staring into the most wonderful baby blue eyes," she recalls. "It was Robin—and it was instant love for both of us. He walked right over and said: 'You're going to have to dance with me because I want to hold you in my arms.' He gave me that lovely, wide grin and I just melted away. We've been steady dating ever since." Then a few months ago Robin's wife, Valerie, found out about her husband's love visits. Adrienne says: "Somehow she got my phone number and called to ask me what my relationship was with Robin. I told her how I felt—that I loved him. She didn't really get mad, upset or anything. She sounded like a sort of understanding wife. Robin is full of love for everybody. I know he sees other girls besides me, but I am not jealous. I try not to think about it."

CONSUMER NEWS WIRE Marlo Thomas, actress, producer, and feminist, announced that she is suing a New York based magazine for printing a photograph that was purposefully altered to make her appear unclothed from the waist up. "A doctored picture is a lie," she said. "And freedom of the press does not mean the freedom to lie. In addition to the doctored picture and in order to advertise their magazine, these people sent a release to members of the press throughout the country announcing that this photograph would soon appear, giving the false impression that I had dressed indecently in public. The use of this obviously falsified photograph is an indefensible assault on my dignity and my good name. I will not allow my rights as a citizen to be compromised in this outrageous manner, and, therefore, I have instructed my lawyers to sue." A suit will be filed in the New York Supreme Court seeking $2 million in damages.

TV CLOSEUP Top stars are turning their backs on Hollywood. They no longer want luxurious mansions in glamorous neighborhoods. They want peace and privacy and will go to almost any part of the world to find it. For some, their dream city is just 100 miles east—Palm Springs. Oldtimers like Bob Hope and Frank Sinatra have had homes there for years. Now it's catching on with the younger generation, too. "Palm Springs is a wonderful place to go when I want to get away from it all," says 'Three's Company' star Suzanne Somers. "Living in Hollywood can be so hectic. I love spending nights in Palm Springs where the sand and the palm trees are so beautiful. It's like playing in a big sandbox." Fans around the world can hardly wait for the restart of TV's blockbuster, 'Dallas.' They've been yearning to know the fate of evil J.R. Ewing, the identity of his attacker and the latest sex and business scandals of TV's notoriously torrid Texans. Well, wait no longer, the new season of 'Dallas' premieres Friday, November 7 on CBS-TV.
