the Iranians have held 50 Americans hostage. The ultimatum to the Ayatollah Khomeini must be the written words: "Let my people go."

"I CAN'T BELIEVE it's over —" seems to be what sophomore lineman David Swalender is saying in the locker room after the Warriors fell to the district leading Silver City Colts by a 9-0 count. The game propels Silver into the playoffs against Las Vegas Robertson and ended Ruidoso's 7-3 season.

Texas man kills son in deer hunting camp

A Dallas, Texas man was jailed Saturday by area law enforcement officers after he shot his son to death "thinking he was a prowler," according to sheriff's officers.

David Leroy Blair, 42, and his son, Russell David Blair, 19, Lancaster, Texas, were camped in the Pine Lodge area north of Capitan, for a deer hunting expedition, when the shooting occurred.

Lincoln County sheriff Ernest Sanchez said the young man had "in the vicinity of nine wounds."

The two reportedly were asleep in the back of a pickup camper when the father awoke to some "strange noises."

Blair apparently thought someone was grabbing his ankle and "presumably in some state of panic, he seized a .22 caliber revolver and fired nine shots. He then picked up rifle and fired several more times," according to John Crenshaw, a spokesman for the New Mexico Department of Game and Fish.

The father drove the pickup containing his son's body to Capitan, where he reported the shooting to Capitan officer

Russell Smith and State Police Sergeant Jack Johnson.

Blair's body was sent to the state Medical Investigator's Office in Albuquerque Saturday. The elder Blair was released from the Lincoln County Jail Sunday after posting $5,000 bond.

Mayors issue Veterans Day proclamations

Mayor Lloyd L. Davis Jr., of Ruidoso and mayor Norman Wheeler of Ruidoso Downs today issued proclamations urging the area citizens to observe Tuesday, November 11, as Veterans Day.

Both urged everyone to observe Veterans Day with appropriate ceremonies and activities in connection with the theme: "A Grateful Nation Remembers."

Fund drive launched to help Denny Lujan

A fund drive for former jockey/trainer Denny Lujan, 25, of Ruidoso, is being sponsored by the First Christian Church of Ruidoso.

"Denny is suffering from an incurable heart disease," church pastor Ken Cole said, "and when he is successful in obtaining a heart transplant, he'll need as much as $35,000, maybe more, to insure continuation of his treatment and to pay for his medical expenses."

Cole said that the New Mexico Horsemen's Association has "guaranteed payment of the first $24,000, that had to be on the line at the hospital in Tucson, Arizona, before they would admit him for pre-operative care. Believe me, Denny and his family are most appreciative of this support."

Tax deductible contributions, Cole said, "may be made to the Denny Lujan Special Account at Ruidoso State Bank."

Lujan, with his wife Sheryln and daughter Stephanie ("Stevie"), 4, are with him in Tucson.

As a jockey at Ruidoso Downs, Lujan rode Mr. Hyannighy to a trials win in the Kansas Quarter Horse Futurity, May 22, 1976, covering the 350 yards in 18.65 seconds. He is the son of the late Richard Lujan, a jockey at Ruidoso Downs Race Track who died in 1963 on the first day of the racing season.

Lujan began his riding career at age 15, under the tutelage of Cliff Lambert. When he became a victim of his heart disorder, he quit riding to become an assistant trainer with J. J. Fletcher. Lujan helped train Hondo Leader, winner of the $114,000 38th New Mexico Thoroughbred Futurity, April 17, 1976, at the State Fair in Albuquerque.

DENNY LUJAN

"Due to the fact that Denny is receiving $603 a month from Social Security, he is ineligible for any government medical aid," his mother Deanna Baker said, "and this includes the New Mexico Catastrophic Illness Act."

"Heart specialists have told Denny that his heart disease is terminal," Cole said. "The good news is that they've also told him he is an excellent candidate for a heart implant. This is the reason the First Christian Church is sponsoring the fund drive to help him, and his family, through this crisis."

Colts stop Warriors 9-0

BY MARK BAGBY
Sports Editor

The Ruidoso Warriors' playoff and district title hopes ended Friday night in Silver City with a 9-0 loss to Silver's Fighting Colts, in a game that put new meaning into the term "defensive struggle."

Silver City took a 3-0 halftime lead on a first quarter Adam Vasquez 32 yard field goal and added a three yard Jerry Gerleve touchdown in the third period for all the points, as both teams played excellent defense.

The Warriors potent attack was stifled by the Colt defense, notching only 141 yards rushing and 52 yards passing. And though the Warriors penetrated the Silver City 20 yard line twice, no points resulted.

As they have all season, the Colts rode their defense and the opposition's mistakes to victory — and Ruidoso complied, turning the ball over five times, three times on fumbles and twice on interceptions.

"Those (turnovers) sure didn't help us a whole lot," said Warrior head coach Darrel Stierwalt. "We had nearly 200 yards total offense so we must've done something right. We didn't play that badly, but we threw everything we had at 'em and couldn't score. It was very frustrating."

The game, which dropped Ruidoso to 7-3 and 3-2 in district, upped Silver City to 7-2 and a perfect 4-0 in the district and assured them of the district crown, and made Silver coach George Janes a believer in the Warriors.

"It was a heartstopper," he said. "It was a big win for us, but it was tough. That was probably the best game we played all year, but we had to play well. They (Ruidoso) made us play well. Especially on defense. We had to play well to stop that explosive offense of theirs."

But the Silver defensive eleven throttled the Warriors' wishbone offense, which was averaging over 350 yards a game.

"That's the best defense we faced all year," Stierwalt said. "They did a good job of shutting us out."

That was no more obvious than in the final period. With just over two minutes to play, the Warriors drove 73 yards from

Telephone strike settled

Local Continental Telephone Company employees, on strike since September over a disputed contract, went back to work this morning after a revised contract was agreed upon in Phoenix, Arizona, Saturday.

All but two of the thirty nine Ruidoso workers, members of Communications Workers of America, went on strike September 29, along with over 200 in Arizona and 16 in Truth or Consequences, over a new contract the workers felt was not up to industry standards.

The contract offered a 2.5 percent cost of living increase each year for the next three years, as well as a 10.5 percent wage increase. That was not enough, union leaders felt, who requested a three percent raise on cost of living increases.

The two sides could not agree, and workers went on strike.

At negotiations in Phoenix, however, Continental management personnel made what they considered a "final offer," upping their annual cost of living increase to 2.8 percent.

Union leaders took a vote of their local members, and 103 workers voted to go back to work, against 57 "no" votes.

Ruidoso workers voted against returning to work, on a 17-7 count.

"We didn't feel it was up to us to make the decision of whether or not to accept the contract," local union leader Darrel Gateley, who took part in the negotiations, said Sunday. "So we took it to the workers for a vote."

Ruidoso workers voted to continue the strike, he said, because "we didn't think it was a good enough contract," but added, "we didn't lose anything from our earlier contract."

The workers' original contract expired September 6, and those who went on strike worked until September 29 without a contract. Continental is making its 2.8 raise retroactive for that 23 day period, Gateley said, but all wages and benefits lost in the 42 day strike cannot be made up.

SBAC will pursue airport in time

Members of the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission (SBAC) are looking to the future with optimism, but agreed Thursday to "wait until the dust settles" following the elections, before pursuing a new application for lands on Fort Stanton Mesa.

SBAC Chairman Fred Heckman said "it's a new world," for the group, referring to newly elected officials who might promote the airport project, and the anticipated changes of appointed officials at the federal and state levels.

Norman Wheeler, commission member, Ruidoso Downs, said, "In light of the elections, I think we're in a lot better position now than we ever have been."

During the next 30 days, the SBAC members plan to contact members of the United States Congressional delegation and other elected officials to "brief" them on the status of the airport project.

The SBAC members also discussed at length the problems of airport development, particularly the public's view of the airport project and the economic impact of such a facility.

Mike Waldron of Ruidoso, who was attending the meeting and "speaking as an individual," said he felt the airport would be feasible only at the Site B (old Fort Stanton air strip location), because of the high cost of acquiring land at the other site, and the earthwork which would be required to develop that site for commercial flights.

Failure to achieve the commercial flight capability (phase two of airport development) would mean "we'd be putting ourselves in an economic strait-jacket," Waldron said.

Development of Site B, on the other hand, would probably not require a bond issue for construction, Waldron said, since financial assistance could probably be obtained from the Economic Development Association and the Federal Aviation Administration.

Waldron and the commissioners agreed that public apathy about the project is a problem, and that the local citizenry is generally unaware of the economic impact of the planned airport.

As an economic factor, Waldron said the airport "would be as significant as the track is now," and that Ruidoso could "enjoy the same popularity as Aspen, Colorado," or other well-known resorts.

Without an airport which would "save us from having to depend on gasoline," by "diversifying the capability of getting people up here," Waldron said, "any kind of disruption (oil shortages, etc.) could stagnate the (local) economy."

"The airport would be an insurance policy," Waldron said.

The group agreed that they should make an expanded effort to educate civic clubs and the general public about the economic aspects of airport development.

CPR class scheduled

A class in Cardio Pulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) is scheduled November 18, 20 and 25 at the conference room of the Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital.

The course, sponsored by the Altrusa Club of Ruidoso, will be taught by Judy Tyson, R.N.

Classes will be held from 6-9 p.m., each of the three days.

The registration fee is $5. To register for this CPR course, call Jeanie Whitwam at 257-2539.

"This Altrusa sponsored course is open to anyone desiring to take CPR training," Whitwam said. "We can never have too many people in this area who are trained in CPR."

State's water crisis aired on page 11

The water problems facing New Mexico's farmers/ranchers are aired in four separate articles, prepared by specialists at New Mexico State University, on page 11 of this issue.

The in depth articles, examining the problem, are headed:

- "There's no more water,"
- "Pumping costs a factor,"
- "New crops use less water,"
- "Energy and economics."

The articles cover these aspects of the use of, and need for, water as well as probing the possibilities that may eventually provide more irrigation water in the arid Southwest, as seen by the university's specialists.

Nogal mobile home hearing December 9

BY GWYNETH JONES
Staff Writer/Photographer

Although a public hearing on the matter has been postponed until December 9, residents of Nogal again met with Lincoln County commissioners Friday to discuss an ordinance to restrict mobile homes in the Nogal townsite.

Those present expressed a desire to compromise on the ordinance's proposed regulations, and agreed to hold a town meeting soon to discuss the ordinance before bringing the matter back to the county Planning and Zoning Commission. Assistant District Attorney Mark Shoemsmith agreed to provide the residents with several existing ordinances from other communities for their consideration. Nogal resident Archie Witham, speaking first, said he would withdraw his earlier request for a provision which would allow him to place a mobile home park in Nogal at some future date.

Witham said he agreed with statements made earlier by Ted Brazie of Nogal that "the whole situation is not worth having trouble over in Nogal." Although he had previously objected to an outright banning of mobile homes in the area, Witham presented to the commissioners a map outlining an area where mobiles might be banned. The area stretches 300 feet on either side of Highway 37.

Witham said he would like to have them "consider a ban" in the highway area, and "restrictions on them in the rest of the townsite."

Roger Hubert of Nogal, who had spoken for banning mobile homes, said, "I think this would be a possible solution."

Bud Payne of Carrizozo, a Nogal landowner, said he wanted "to protest" the restrictions because they would "put young people, who are trying to get started, in a bind economically, with regard to buying property."

The matter was eventually tabled, with the official hearing on a new ordinance now scheduled for December 9.

County manager Bill Billingsley advised the commissioners of a letter he had

LINCOLN COUNTY COMMISSIONERS, as well as county clerk Jane McSwane, left, will continue to serve in their capacities for the next two years. The commission met Friday for the first time since the general election, in which all were re-elected. Commissioners, from left are John Alton Hightower, T. P. "Cotton" McKnight and Ben Hall.

THE BRILLIANT YELLOWS and blacks of the wild sunflowers, that brightened landscape for weeks before summer waned, are now gaunt reminders that fall has arrived and that winter received from the director of the Department of Natural Resources regarding the Carrizozo golf course. The commissioners previously had signed a letter of support for having the area designated a state park.

The department director, Bill Huey, said he and the state parks director, who is under his jurisdiction, agreed it would be impossible to take the course into the parks system. Reasons cited included the cost of maintenance (more than $75,000 annually), and the number of state parks in close proximity to the course.

Billingsley also presented a letter from A. W. Gonzales, planning director of the state Highway Department.

Billingsley had written Gonzales to propose that Gavilan Canyon Road and Carrizo Canyon Road be added to the state road system, in connection with a policy change the department is considering.

Gonzales stated in the letter that, "Should the State Highway Commission adopt the proposed policy, we would like to further the feasibility of your requests."

"The Department would particularly be more interested in exploring the possible exchange of State Road 214 for Gavilan Canyon Road," Gonzales said. Such an exchange, he added, "would be in keeping with the Department's desire not to increase the state system."

In other business, the commissioners: — Approved membership for Carrizozo on the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission (SBAC). (Similar approval must be granted by the other government entities involved before Carrizozo may be represented on the SBAC.)

— Approved a request from the United States Forest Service for closing of Forest Road 441, which runs through the Q-Bar-O Ranch to Carrizo Mountain, during inclement weather, to prevent deterioration of the road.

— Renewed a lease with Presbyterian Hospitals for the Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital.

— Approved a bid submitted by Presbyterian for $8,350 for a sprinkler system, light fixtures and other miscellaneous work at the Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital.

— Approved operating expenses of $20,000 for the Carrizozo Health Center, as well as $5,000 in funds to purchase equipment for the center, including a dental x-ray machine. — Reiterated an earlier decision not to join the New Mexico Association of Counties, based primarily on dissatisfaction with association activities and dues they feel are "inequitable." This year's dues were set at almost $500 more than Otero County's dues.

— Granted a variance allowing septic tanks in Deer Park Woods Subdivision.

— Approved a plat for Deer Park Woods, Unit 6, pending Planning and Zoning Commission approval.

— Approved a request from Captain to purchase a Huber motorgrader from the county, for $11,000.

— Approved a budget increase to allow for raises for employees of the assessor's office, who recently completed additional training.

— Approved submission of an application for grant monies of $23,700 from the state Emergency Medical Services Council.

— Approved a resolution asking the United States Congress to extend revenue sharing measures.

— Met briefly as a canvassing committee, but postponed the canvass until Thursday, November 13.

Futurity payment schedules for thoroughbreds announced

Two thoroughbred futurities at Sunland Park and three at Ruidoso Downs are being linked together in a new nominating format.

The novel idea, according to general manager Finlay MacGillivray, will cover the 1982 runnings of the $300,000 (est.) Riley Allison Futurity and the $50,000 (est.) Sunland Fall Thoroughbred Futurity, plus the 1982 editions of the following Ruidoso classics: the $40,000 (est.) Rio Grande Kindergarten Futurity, the $100,000 (est.) Norgor Futurity and the $125,000 (est.) Ruidoso Thoroughbred Futurity.

"A single $25 nomination fee will make a yearling eligible to all five races," MacGillivray said.

Deadline for the original nomination is February 15, 1981.

In addition to the five futurities, a yearling also becomes eligible for the 1981 Ruidoso Thoroughbred Yearling Sale, plus two derbies in 1982 — the Norgor Derby at Ruidoso and the new Riley Allison Derby at Sunland. The added money for both the Norgor Derby and the Allison Derby is $12,500.

If the February 15, 1981 deadline for the original $25 nomination fee is missed, an owner can get aboard the bandwagon with a $100 late nomination payment made by May 15, 1981.

Here's the remaining payment schedule for the 1982 Allison Futurity: $250 due by November 1, 1981; $500 due by February 1, 1981; $750 to enter the trials.

Horsemen who wait until November 1, 1981, can still nominate their yearlings for the 1982 Allison Futurity via a $500 supplemental payment. In this case, the remaining two payments ($500 by February 1 and $750 to enter the trials) must also be paid. The distance of the Allison Futurity is five furlongs. The added money is a beefed-up $25,000.

Here's the remaining nominating schedule for the 1982 Rio Grande Kindergarten Futurity: $150 due by November 1, 1981; $300 due March 1, 1982; $500 to enter the trials. Late supplemental nominations can be made on November 1, 1981, with a payment of $800, or by a payment of $2,500 at time of entry to the trials.

The Kindergarten is restricted to New Mexico bred and will cover four furlongs. The added money is $15,000.

The remaining schedule for the 1982 Norgor Futurity shapes up this way: $150 due by November 15, 1981; $300 due by March 15, 1982; $500 to enter the trials. A supplemental payment of $300 may be made by November 15, 1981, or $2,500 at time of entry to the trials.

The Ruidoso will cover four furlongs. The added purse is $15,000.

Here's a look at the remaining payments for the Ruidoso Thoroughbred Futurity: $200 due by November 15, 1981; $350 due by April 1, 1982; $500 to enter the trials. A supplemental payment of $2,500 may be made at time of entry into the trials.

The Ruidoso Futurity is run at six furlongs. The added money is $25,000.

The remaining payments for the 1982 Sunland Fall Thoroughbred Futurity: $150 due by June 1, 1982; $300 due by August 1, 1982; $500 to enter the trials. There are two late supplemental avenues: $300 by June 1, 1982, or $2,000 at time of entry to the trials.

According to MacGillivray, owners can take advantage of the simplified nomination schedule to name their yearlings, with one payment, to five of the biggest futurities in the Southwest.

County P&Z to meet this Wednesday

A Lincoln County Planning and Zoning Commission meeting scheduled for Thursday, November 6 was cancelled because of a lack of quorum.

The meeting has been rescheduled for Wednesday, November 12 at 7:30 p.m., at the Lincoln County courthouse.

Court Report

The estate of Louis Krupp asks $7,225, with interest at nine percent per annum from December 29, 1978, costs and attorneys' fees against William A. Anderson and Ellen Anderson, October 31.

Irene Burton asks that the court issue a temporary restraining order allowing the petitioner to bind the partnership in the sale and that proceeds be placed in an interest bearing account until further order; that the court order the partnership be dissolved according to the procedures provided in statutes; that the court order the partners to render an accounting and distribution of the assets and liabilities of the partnership; court costs and attorneys' fees against L. Roger Hubert, October 31.

Montgomery Ward and Company, a foreign corporation, asks $1,017.90, interest, attorneys' fees of $203 and costs against Larry D. Jaquess, November 3.

American States Insurance Company asks $1,000 interest from date of loss, court costs and attorneys' fees against Edward L. Wimberly and Carol J. Wimberly, November 3.

Village of Ruidoso, a New Mexico municipal corporation, asks a permanent injunction against the respondent restraining its agents, servants and employees from operating a go-cart track facility until such time as the proper conditional use permit is obtained as required by ordinance; that the petitioner be granted a preliminary injunction against the respondent, his agents, servants and employees during pendency of action; and court costs against Ron MacWhorter d/b/a Ruidoso Wholesale Lumber, November 4.

Luis Polaco d/b/a Polaco Heating and Plumbing asks $1,200, interest from date of filing of claim of lien, court costs, attorneys' fees, foreclosure and establishment of first and prior lien against Eugene Barth, Linda Barth and Jimmy F. James

School board meets Tuesday

The Ruidoso Board of Education will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., at White Mountain Elementary School's cafeteria.

The board will consider hiring of an additional kindergarten teacher, resurfacing of the high school parking lot, approval of 1981 board meeting calendar, attendance report for first 40 days of school, budget transfers and will have an audience with Richard Mitchell, member of the Cloudercroft Board of Education.

Villages' trustees to meet

The Ruidoso Downs trustees will meet at 7 tonight at the municipal building. Major agenda items will include awarding of a bid for village insurance, a report from Boyle Engineering on an emergency water improvement grant, a resolution regarding emergency funding granted by the state for bridge replacement and election of officers for the volunteer fire department.

The Ruidoso trustees will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., in the Ruidoso Public Library.

Agenda items include consideration of selling the village's chip spreader to Dona Ana County for $34,000 and paying the balance of $41,000 due on the old garbage trucks from Revenue Sharing and General Budget funds and discussion of fluoridation of the village's water supply by Environmental Improvement Division representatives Dr. James Calderone and Terrence Gullbault of Santa Fe, and Dr. James Beall of Ruidoso.

The trustees will also hear from representatives of the school district on the adult recreation program and the use of school facilities. The trustees will also consider the appointment of a Carrizozo resident to the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission.

Ruidoso boy arrested after fire incidents

A Ruidoso boy was referred to juvenile authorities during the weekend after he reportedly started two fires, including one at his own residence, and began "beating on family members," according to police reports.

Police were called to a home on Paradise Canyon road about noon Sunday. They reportedly pursued the boy on foot but were unable to catch him.

The juvenile was apprehended at his home about 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

NICK GRIFFIN, Ruidoso, is shown using a new microreader he installed for the staff at Ruidoso Public Library this week. The purchase enables Ruidosoans to read any microfilms and microfiche records available.

Microfilm/microfiche reader available at Ruidoso Library

A microfilm/microfiche reader available for public use has been installed this week at Ruidoso Public Library.

The reader features four sizes of magnification and the non-glare screen provides even light distribution, precision focus and a lens system which gives a quality view. The lamp in the machine can be varied to compensate for surrounding light conditions and various densities of microfilm material.

The reader is equipped with a motorized operator to locate microfilm materials more rapidly and attachments which can be added include 35 or 16 millimeter roll film and jacketed fiche or aperture cards.

The microreader was purchased from the Dukane Corporation at a cost of $700 to the library. It was installed by Nick Griffin, who volunteered his time so he could use the machine to read microfilms.

"This machine is portable and can be placed anywhere in the Library," Marian Elzi, librarian, said. Griffin, who is researching his family tree, said he has learned that "you can get all kinds of information on microfilm and microfiche and read it in this machine." Griffin said the "hundreds of records available from the National Archives" can be loaned to individuals through the inter-library loan system.

Griffin said he plans to use the microreader to "go through census files, which were begun in 1790, to find my ancestors." He also hopes to establish a genealogy club in Ruidoso, and is willing to teach others how to start researching their families using the machine. "This is really a great addition to the library," Griffin said.

Until now, the village had no access to such a machine for public use. "We're very lucky to have this — until now, I've had to drive to Alamogordo to read microfilms," he said. Griffin added that the machine is versatile since it can be used for both microfilm and microfiche records, which are two very popular means of preserving public records.

Women's Career Development Conference in Albuquerque

Approximately 1700 women are slated to converge on Santa Fe November 13 for the opening of the Third Annual Governor's Career Development Conference for Women. Sessions for the two-day meeting will be at the Sweeney Convention Center and the Santa Fe Hilton Inn.

Dr. Graciela Olivarez, former director of the United States Community Services Administration, will keynote the opening session at the convention center. Governor Bruce King will participate in the opening ceremonies, slated for 9 a. m. Mrs. Alice King, the governor's wife, and Santa Fe Mayor Art Trujillo will welcome the conferees, according to Tasia Young, executive director of the Commission on the Status of Women and mistress of ceremonies for the opening session. Dr. Olivarez, a graduate from Notre Dame's law school, is a former director of New Mexico's Planning Division. She has also served as director of the University of New Mexico's Institute of Social Research and Development and senior consultant for the United Way of America.

This year's conference will focus on development of realistic goals for career women and suggest ways and means by which such goals can be realized.

There will be approximately 20 different topics being presented by moderators and panelists. According to Lillian Roybal, an employee of the Health and Environment Department and coordinator for the conference, panel participants represent state and local governments, New Mexico's universities, medical centers and the private sector. "Topics will include non-traditional careers, fitness alternatives, assertiveness training, career options for women and many more," Roybal said.

To give participants an opportunity to meet informally and exchange ideas and viewpoints, a special get-acquainted social activity has been scheduled at Sweeney Convention Center for November 13.

Co-coordinator Denise Watson said that the conferees from all parts of the state will attend the conference. Watson is an employee of the Corrections and Rehabilitation Department.

One of the attractions added to this year's conference will be the Resource Fair which will be held throughout the two-day session. The Fair, to be located at the Conquistadora Room of the Hilton Inn, will have staffed information booths for the purpose of educating conference participants on various service agency functions. Counseling and special information can be obtained pertaining to credit unions, retirement, cultural affairs, personnel training and careers, insurance, health services, parenting, risk management and vocational programs.

More than 50 women have been involved in preparing this year's sessions. Chairpersons include Karleen Boggio, state Highway Department-publicity; Muffett Foy Cuddy, state Highway Department-proposal review; Joanne Vigil, Taxation and Revenue Department-workshops; Trudi Sanchez, Planning Division-budget;

Imelda Rodriguez, Commerce and Industry Department-registration; Riva Wimsatt, Natural Resources Department-programs and Kasey LaPlant, Energy and Minerals Department-information booths.

Christian Women's Fellowship formed

A Christian Women's Fellowship has been organized at the First Christian Church, with enough interest to have three groups meeting mornings, afternoons and evenings.

The organization was formed "to provide an opportunity for spiritual growth, enrichment, education, creative ministries and to enable women to develop a sense of personal responsibility for the whole mission of the Church of Jesus Christ," Ruth McGuire, visitation minister, said.

"It is a service group within the church, and we'd love to have anybody that's interested, join in," she said.

Meetings are held every first Monday night for one group, every first Wednesday afternoon for the second, and every first Wednesday morning for the third. The entire organization meets the third Wednesday each month, with this month's meeting scheduled to discuss the group's first annual Christmas bazaar and dinner December 13.

Yule bazaar at Capitan

The Capitan United Methodist Women will hold their annual Christmas bazaar and bake sale November 12-15 in the church basement.

All articles and food items will be homemade.

McGuire said the event will become an annual one, with proceeds used to help fund various fellowship service projects.

Music film at Library Wednesday

"Music in the Art of the Renaissance" will be shown at Ruidoso Public Library Wednesday at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m., with free admission.

The 30-minute film examines the large role music played in Renaissance art. It shows how melodies are reflected in the graphic arts, how frequently instruments and musicians are depicted in paintings, how music is used in Shakespeare's plays and how music and art reflect the new humanistic philosophy of the era.

The film, according to public librarian Marian Elzi, is the first in a series that will be shown over the next two years. The series introduces the public to the Folger Library's exhibition of Shakespeare memorabilia, which is on exhibit in major libraries throughout the country.

Status of Women Commission to meet in Roswell

The New Mexico Commission on the Status of Women will hold its regular quarterly meeting at the Main Building of the New Mexico Military Institute in Roswell, beginning at 9 a.m., Saturday, November 15.

Among the topics to be discussed at the meeting will be the Commission's proposed directory on non-traditional workers in New Mexico.

Community reports will be made to the Commissioners by Nancy Harvey, of Social Services, Karen Schooley of the State Personnel Office, Gerald Serafino of the Community Counseling and Resource Center, and Walter Jentzen of Eastern New Mexico University Roswell Campus. The meeting will be chaired by Ethel Floyd of Estancia, who was named by Governor Bruce King to head the Commission in 1979. The public is invited to attend.

Legion, Unit's 'Open House' Tuesday eve

An 'Open House' sponsored by the Ruidoso Legion Auxiliary and Unit will begin at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday in the Senior Citizens Building in back of the Ruidoso Public Library.

All area veterans and their families are being encouraged to attend, Legion commander Rick Simpson said.

The evening's program includes a visitation by the 1980 Boys' and Girls' Staters of Ruidoso, the Ruidoso Junior Legion Baseball Team, an explanation of the Legion and Auxiliary and the announcement of a contest with 100 gallons of gasoline or $100 in cash as the main attraction. Refreshments will be served.

Silver defense, five turnovers too much for Ruidoso

Season ends for Warriors on 9-0 defeat

SCOTT NEAL checks the Silver City defense before calling the signals during second quarter action in Friday's game at Silver City. The Warriors penetrated the Colt 20 yard line on this drive, but didn't score in the 9-0 loss. The Colts stopped the potent Warrior wishbone, which was averaging over 350 yards per game, allowing only 141 yards on the ground.

their own 20 to Silver's seven, but could not score, ending any hopes of a win.

Big plays in the drive were a defensive holding call on Silver City on a third and 11 situation, and a 30 yard completion from Scott Neal to Steve Benway.

Runs of seven and eight yards by Russ Flor and Ricky Dennis set the Warriors up on the Silver 15, but three plays moved to ball only to the seven.

On fourth down, a pitch sweep to Benway went nowhere and the Colts took over on downs with 1:13 remaining in the game.

That sealed the win for the Colts, who now make the state playoffs for the fifth consecutive year.

"I'll tell you," Stierwalt said, "before the game, I thought they were a bit overrated, but after playing them, I think they're underrated."

But he was referring chiefly to the Silver defense. The offense appeared weak — partly due to 95 yards in penalties, but also due to a stiff Ruidoso defense.

"Our defense kept us in the ball game, especially in the first half," Stierwalt said. "They played well. I felt like, at halftime, we could still win it, especially the way our defense was playing."

Silver did not move the ball effectively except for two drives — their first possession of the game and their first of the second half.

Ruidoso took the opening kickoff and moved from their 23 to the Silver 35 when a bad Neal pitch ended the drive. The Colts took over there, moving to the Warrior 13 in 13 plays.

But four downs at the 13 could not march the ball closer, and Vasquez checked aboard to try a field goal. The Silver senior, who has not been too dependable as a kicker this season, drilled the try through the uprights for a 3-0 Colt lead with about six minutes left in the period.

The next Warrior drive started about midfield, and lasted only two plays as Neal was intercepted by the Colts' Pat Brown, who returned the ball 42 yards to the Warrior 33. A big play by middle linebacker Lon Nunley forced a Silver pass attempt on fourth down several plays later, and the drive ended.

The Warriors had to punt on their next possession, but Silver City returned the favor by fumbling in the early part of the second quarter.

But again, Neal was victimized by an interception.

The Ruidoso defense, despite giving up gains of 13 and 28 yards, came through and forced the Colts to turn the ball over on downs at the Warrior 35.

But things just kept going wrong for the Warrior offense, even though they drove to the Colt 25.

On second down, Neal went back to pass and was hit by Richard Luna. Neal fumbled and Silver recovered.

Again the defense came through, forcing Silver City to punt out of bounds at the Ruidoso 22.

On first down, Pior broke loose for 20 yards, with 1:47 left in the half.

The drive eventually moved to the Silver 35, but stalled on fourth down.

Neal connected with Benway at the 19 for a Ruidoso penetration and a first down, keeping the drive alive with 10 seconds on the clock.

A flea flicker by the Warriors moved the ball six yards closer to the goal line, but time expired and the drive went for nothing.

The second half was more of the same. Silver took the kickoff and marched 65 yards in 12 plays, with Gerleve getting the score, with three of his 113 yards. The big play was a 27 yard pass from John Galassini to Ruben Alvarado on a third and nine situation early in the drive.

The point after try failed due to a bad snap.

The Warriors, however, seemed to have it untracked on their first possession, as Benway and Neal each gained seven yards on their first carries of the half.

But again, Neal made a bad pitch, and Silver City recovered.

The Colts were able to drive to the Warrior 13, but the drive stalled and Vasquez came in to try another field goal. It turned out to be a bake, though John Chavez' attempted pass was no good.

The Warriors had to punt on their next possession, but the defense stopped the Colts cold on the Silver 30.

The Warrior offense again couldn't move the ball and again had to punt. Silver City had to do likewise on its next possession.

That set up the Warriors' final fated drive, marking the only shutout the Warriors suffered this season.

"That second half clock sure seemed like it ran fast," Stierwalt said. "Course it always runs fast when you're behind. But I think we deserved to win. We worked hard and the kids wanted to win."

"It's a little disappointing, but it's the first winning season we've had since 1972, and nobody can take that away from us."

Ruidoso finished the season in a three way tie for second place in District 3AAA with Tularosa and T or C, which most years would mean Ruidoso would still have a chance to go to the playoffs.

But due to a rotation of the districts, only the champion of 3AAA advances to state this year.

It was the final game for seniors Dennis, Steve Pietsch, Gene Reeves, Pior, Kevin Schultz, Yon Rue, Robert Langston, Curt Temple, Bill Huey, Keith Sullivan, Mike Dale, Steve Parks and Leroy Ramirez.

Volleyballers close season with district tourney loss

Ruidoso's lady volleyball Warriors had their long season come to an end Thursday afternoon in the district 3AAA tournament in Tularosa.

The lasses lost to Cobre, 9-15, 9-15, ending any chances they had of going to the state tournament, and also ending a 7-10 season.

"We had a lot of opportunities to win," coach Margie Andrus said, "but we didn't take advantage of them. We shouldn't have lost the game."

"The girls really wanted to win, but I think we played so poorly in the past that it carried over. I think we've almost forgotten how to play well."

The lady Warriors jumped out to a 6-1 lead in the first game and later increased it to 9-3 before blowing it to the Indians, 9-15.

Lisa Shaw drew first blood for the lasses with two points, Gleda Bob had three and Karen Boone rounded out the scoring with four.

The lady Warriors hung on desperately in the second game, even leading three times, but the Indians proved too much.

The Warriors held a brief 2-1 lead, as well as 8-7, 9-8 advantages, coming from a 4-7 deficit early in the contest. But Cobre struck like lightning after the 9-8 mark and coasted to victory.

Shaw and Boone had two points each in the game, Bob had one and Irene Sanchez claimed scoring honors with four successful services.

An all tournament team was selected, but Andrus did not know if any Warriors made the team or not.

Tularosa was the eventual tournament champion, beating Silver City in the finals.

Both squads will go to the state tourney in Roswell later this month.

Whoever heard of SMU leading the league, and Rice and TCU doing so well! And Baylor?

And Texas losing two games in a row, and Arkansas out of the running?

It doesn't make sense. In fact, some guy sat down and figured out how there just possibly could be a six way tie for first place in the league — and that means things could get real interesting.

The best part is Lou Holtz, the stand up comic who, in his spare time, coaches Arkansas.

After losing to Rice 17-16 (blowing a 16-0 lead) last week, which put them virtually out of the running for a chance at the league crown, a player asked Holtz what was left to play for.

"Well," Holtz snarled, "first my job, and second your scholarship!"

Yes, it's true. It's hard to believe, after 10 weeks of football, but basketball is just right around the corner.

It won't be long until the hoopsters are hoopstering around the cage floor. (Don't you just love sportswriters' cliches? Me too — although I'll admit I've never been too crazy about "hoopsters.")

Sounds like an Indiana resident or an expert with a hula hoop — and I could never work one of those things. Sergio Castanon is pretty good at it, though. Enough of this tangent.)

Top of the list on basketball has got to be the postponed but rescheduled New Mexico State intrasquad scrimmage in Warrior Gymnasium this Saturday, at 7:30 p.m.

Yes, Ruidosans will get the first look at the 1980-81 Aggie team, which looks strong on paper.

And before the game, physical fitness

Wait 'til next year

Well, a disappointing year has ended for the lady Warrior volleyballers.

They suffered through the curse of a 7-10 season.

You sit back and wonder what went wrong. The lady Warriors had the talent to win any time they played, and they showed that early on. I personally felt they never quite put it together — except once. That was the early triumph over Clondroft.

The Bears never had a chance. That raised considerable hopes for a district and possibly a state title in the Ruidoso ranks.

Unfortunately — that's a bad word in this case, but I can't think of another right now — it also turned out to be the high point of the season.

I've seen that happen numerous times, wherein a team beats somebody and everything after that is anti-climactic.

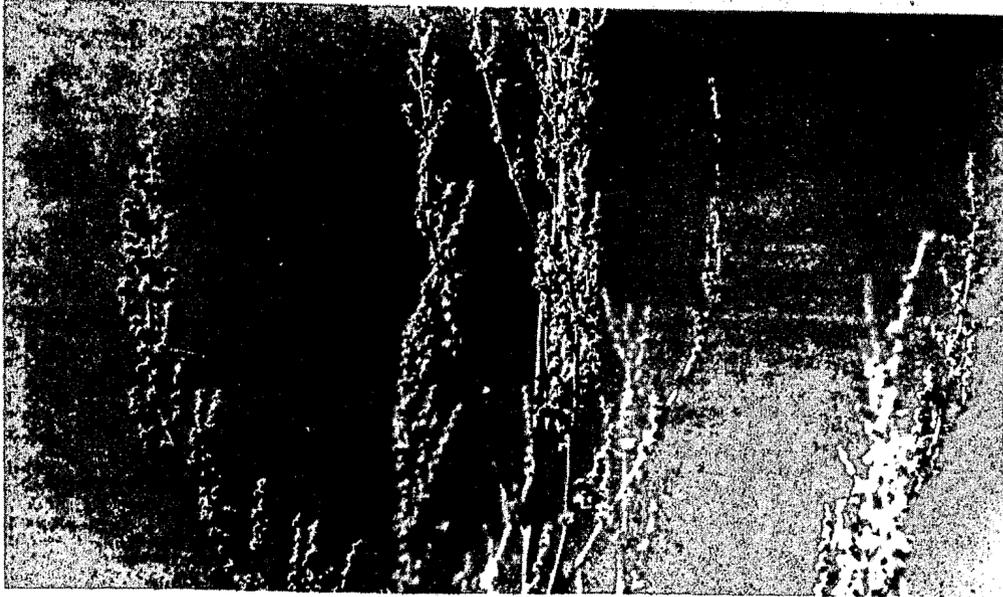

It's a real shame, too, for seniors like Cathy Jones, who missed their shot at playing on a championship team.

The lasses have a considerable nucleus coming back for next year. Maybe 1981 will be the year the lady Warriors put it all together.

Hang in there, gals. Sorry 'bout that, ol' buddy. I made (ruined?) Dub Williams' day last week. I'd heard he started teaching the year — 1956 — yours truly first breathed life. (Breathed life? Whatever.) I told him so. Never saw a guy's face turn green so fast in my life. "Nobody is that young," he said. If I'd have known it was going to have that effect on him, I'd have kept my mouth shut. Mr. Consideration, that's what they call me. You betcha.

Focus on Small Business

by E. Maine Shafer

Dear Mr. Shafer,

I could use a computer in my small business but I feel that the cost of electronic data processing is beyond me. Any suggestions?

Many small business people today are discovering that they can take advantage of computer technology without investing in a costly computer. They are doing it through service bureaus and time-sharing. The business of a service bureau is to process your data and produce the reports you require in your business. It either has its own computer or leases time on someone else's computer, and usually has trained programmers and computer operators on its staff.

This type of service varies from city to city, as does the number of service bureaus, depending on the business population of an area. Businesses use these bureaus for transaction records: cash receipts journals, check register, payroll register, sales journal, and general and special journals. They are also used for statements, balance sheets, income statements, accounts receivable listing, inventory-status report, payroll reports, and budget amounts.

Service bureaus generally have two types of charges: a charge for designing the program and another for processing. Can you justify using a service bureau?

You should determine such things as the number of checks you write, number of accounts, number of purchases, number of different items in inventory and then make a decision. Then if you do need a service bureau you can select on basis of reputation, reliability, resources, actual services provided, rates charged, and equipment capability.

Time-sharing offers you computer power much as an electrical utility offers you electrical power — you pay for what you use. It is efficient for special jobs because you eliminate the clerical time necessary to type, make calculations and prepare drafts. A terminal device of some kind, often a teletype machine, is installed in your business and is connected to the computer through telephone lines. Your operator enters data on your terminal, the terminal transmits the data direct over the wire to the computer. The results are in turn transmitted direct back from the computer to your terminal, often within seconds.

Should you want further information, contact me at 766-3588. You can get further tips on this subject by writing for SMA No. 149, "Computers for Small Business," SBA, P.O. Box 14524, Fort Worth, Texas 76110, or by calling toll-free 800/433-7212. (In Texas, Call 800/792-8901).

LEGAL NOTICE
STATE OF NEW MEXICO COUNTY OF LINCOLN IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE TWELFTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT IN THE MATTER OF THE ADOPTION OF CHRISTOPHER JAMES DEFATE
No. SA-35-80 Div. I
NOTICE
STATE OF NEW MEXICO: TO: RONALD CHARLES DEFATE
GREETINGS:
YOU ARE NOTIFIED that ELPEGO LUVIN GRIEGO, III of Ruidoso, New Mexico, has filed a Petition to adopt CHRISTOPHER JAMES DEFATE in the District Court of the Twelfth Judicial District of the State of New Mexico within and for the County of Lincoln, that being the Court in which said cause is pending.
YOU ARE FURTHER NOTIFIED that said Court has set a hearing at the District Courthouse in the town of Carrizozo, county of Lincoln, on the 11th day of December, 1980, at 9:30 o'clock A.M., or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, to determine whether your consent to such adoption should be dispensed with, and that unless you enter your appearance in the proceeding on or before the day specified for such hearing, you will be deemed to have consented to the granting of the adoption prayed for in the Petition on file in the proceeding.
WITNESS my hand and the seal of said Court on the 15th day of October, 1980.
MARGO E. LINDSAY
CLERK OF THE DISTRICT COURT

Irrigation Crisis:

There's no more water

The mechanics and economics of irrigated agriculture have accelerated from problem to crisis in most of New Mexico's major agricultural areas.

Water has always been scarce in the arid Southwest. Irrigation technology has pushed the demand far beyond the limited regional water supplies as more marginal land is put into production, and more intensive farming is applied to already developed areas.

Luna and Chavez counties are two geographically different areas with a common problem. The two counties are 250 miles apart, and are separated by the Guadalupe and Sacramento mountains. In spite of their differences, the two counties are agriculturally similar; they both depend on underground water sources brought to the surface by irrigation pumps. Cotton and alfalfa are the major crops.

Irrigation water costs from $10 to $50 an acre-foot in New Mexico. An acre-foot is enough water to cover an acre of ground one foot deep.

Farmers can live with a $10 per acre-foot cost for water. Their operations become marginal at $25 an acre-foot, depending largely on what crops are being raised.

When water costs reach the $50 per acre-foot level, the farmer usually has only two choices. Either change his operation so he can get along without water, or get out of farming altogether.

The hinge point of New Mexico's water problems is that there is no more water available, either on the surface or below ground.

Thomas Bahr, director of the Water Resources Research Institute at New Mexico State University, said, "We know where all the surface water is in New Mexico and adjoining states, and every drop of it is controlled and appropriated." "There are no new sources in the foreseeable future," he said.

Bahr said there's a scheme to build a pipeline as far as the Mississippi River, "... but it's not realistic. It's technically possible, but irrigation water from that source would cost, at least $1,000 an acre-foot, and other estimates put the cost as high as $3,000 per acre-foot."

If the surface water situation is critical, the underground water situation is worse, according to Bahr. Water is being pumped out of underground aquifers faster than the aquifers can be recharged by Mother Nature.

"If we were taking water out of these aquifers at the same rate they are naturally recharged, we would be using water," Bahr said. "Instead, we are mining water in New Mexico, just like people in other states are mining coal."

"When it's gone, it's gone," he said. Surface evaporation also contributes to water loss, according to Bahr. "We have an annual rainfall of 10 inches or less across the southern part of the state, and the surface evaporation rate in this climate is about 90 inches a year," he said. "We never get the full benefit of all the water we pump from underground," Bahr said.

The farmers and ranchers who are dependent on underground water sources are also responsible for the shrinking supply.

At least 90 percent of the water pumped from under New Mexico's surface goes for agricultural purposes. Only 10 percent is consumed for residential use, industrial use, and energy development in the state.

The shrinking underground water supplies in Luna and Chavez county, although similar today, had sharply different beginnings.

Luna County is a typical Guadalupe desert structure. Years ago the normal water table was 60 feet underground. Intensive agriculture, supported almost entirely by irrigation, has drawn the water table below 110 feet in a test well south of Deming.

As recently as 1940 a farmer could have drilled a 150-foot well in Luna County and had what appeared to be an endless water supply. The suction of the new deep wells would turn any 150-foot well in the vicinity into a dry hole.

While Luna County has always been near-desert, that part of Chavez county around Roswell, and south to Artesia in Eddy County, was once considered eastern New Mexico's oasis.

A mountain structure to the west created an underground watershed that generated artesian water pressure. The abundant water caused towns and a widespread agricultural community to develop along the Pecos River.

The artesian pressure, once equal to a 60-foot water tower on every square mile of ground, was consumed by 1920. The average water table today is now 40 feet below the surface, with some areas well below the 40-foot mark.

However, comparing the loss of artesian pressure with today's water table in some of the heaviest farming areas near Roswell and Artesia shows a net loss of 200 feet of water.

The Roswell-Artesia area has actually lost more water potential than Luna County since the early 1900s.

Bahr said, "Our only hope is to develop new farming techniques to get by with less water. The problem isn't going to go away, and it will get worse before we find any long-term answers."

Pumping costs a factor

With New Mexico's water sources limited or declining, farmers are trying to get more efficiency from their irrigation pumps and water application systems.

In this case, efficiency doesn't mean pumping more water from underground because there is a limited amount of water available. Efficiency is measured in terms of the number of gallons pumped to the surface per dollar.

George Abernathy, head of New Mexico State University's (NMSU) Agricultural Engineering Department, said the mechanics of pumping and distributing water are beginning to run into their own technical limitations.

Abernathy said irrigation pump efficiency, now running at 70 to 75 percent, is about as good as can be expected from mass-produced hardware.

"Hand finishing some parts to closer tolerances might give us a slight increase in efficiency, but it's not worth the added cost," he said. A better way to control costs directly related to pumping water is through a good pump maintenance program.

"We ran a survey and found most irrigation pumps in the field working somewhere near 50 percent of capacity, and too many of them below that level," Abernathy said. That's a drop of 30 percent that can be traced to lack of proper maintenance, he said.

Since that survey, a widespread pump maintenance program has been launched in New Mexico with good results.

The Lea County Rural Electric Cooperative (REC) sent its crewmen to NMSU for training in the irrigation pump maintenance program. Now, back in Lea County, the REC crews can check irrigation pump efficiency for their customers.

A steam turbine pumping system has also been tested at NMSU and is considered cost effective in today's energy market.

"We have a good chance of cutting pumping costs by using waste products — farm wastes or industrial wastes — to fire the steam turbine system," Abernathy said.

"But a working model is two or three years away in our own testing labs, and it's even farther off in the future for the farmer," he said.

Steam sounds like a step backwards in technology, but fuel costs are the key element in the system, Abernathy said.

"We expect the availability of natural gas to be curtailed in the not-too-distant future, so we have to consider all the fuels that may be available to use and what we will be paying for them," he said.

"Even if natural gas is available for longer than we expect, prices will continue to go up much faster than other farm costs," Abernathy said.

There's also a chance that waste-fired steam turbines could drive electric generators in the field, providing power for electric irrigation pumps.

Abernathy said electricity is always the first-choice energy source for irrigation, but it's frequently not available in some of New Mexico's more remote regions.

Water application efficiency is another area where Abernathy thinks new systems can cut costs.

"Laser leveling of fields is the best thing we have come across recently," he said. "It gets away from dry high spots, or puddling in low spots, so all the water is used more efficiently."

"Some farmers were reluctant to take on the cost of initial field leveling by laser, but once past that expense, they find the cost of maintaining a field level is easily handled," Abernathy said.

Agricultural engineers are working on new, more efficient sprinkler systems.

They are also considering alternatives to sprinklers because some sprinklers waste as much water as they deliver, usually to evaporation.

Trickle systems can replace sprinklers in some applications, but development has been slow by university researchers and commercial firms, Abernathy said.

"We have seen some prototype systems that show promise, but they aren't yet suited to orchards at this time," he said.

In the final analysis, Abernathy thinks the best potential for irrigation water pumping efficiency improvement is in motor technology, which would include use of any alternative fuels that might be available.

"The internal combustion engine is only 28 percent efficient," he said. "Electric motors are more efficient than that, and steam engines are less efficient."

"Any motor-pump combination has to be considered in terms of fuel availability and fuel cost," Abernathy said.

New crops use less water

New crops of new varieties of familiar crops could be coming out of New Mexico farm fields in a water-restricted future.

Merle Niehaus, head of New Mexico State University's (NMSU) Agronomy Department, said, "We don't have any magic answers, but there are some good things going that we think will be important in the future."

Niehaus pointed to a new cotton hybrid, developed at NMSU and released in 1979, that increases yields from 15 to 40 percent.

"What's really important about this new cotton variety is that we will probably be able to get normal yields with less irrigation water input," he said.

The same approach is being used by NMSU researchers who are developing a drought resistant strain of alfalfa, according to Niehaus.

"We believe we can come up with a new alfalfa strain that will use only half the water needed by alfalfa today, but will still yield more than half of today's normal yield. That's more dollar effective for the farmers," he said.

The university's Agronomy Department is also considering some all-new crops that may be especially adaptable to dryland farming conditions, or conditions where irrigation must be restricted.

One of these is crumbe, that resembles a spindly soybean plant more than anything else. Niehaus said crumbe produces a heavy oil that seems to be made especially for high temperature lubrication conditions in industry.

Crumbe uses as much water as other crops common to New Mexico, "... but it grows so fast that we are expecting more production for the amount of water used," Niehaus said.

Several varieties of guayule, a shrub that produces a natural raw rubber, are native to the Southwest. The plant grows without cultivation in parts of Texas and Mexico, but researchers think it can be adapted to commercial production.

Niehaus said the guayule latex is of high quality and should be in demand for heavy-duty tires such as aircraft tires, automobile radial tires, and tires on heavy construction equipment.

Prototype guayule tires for all these uses are now being developed by United States tire companies. Production of the prototypes caused no problems, and the tires are now being road tested.

Niehaus said, "The only drawback we can find to guayule is its long growing cycle — three years. However, that may not be a real problem because the plant only uses significant amounts of water the first year when it is being established, and water needs drop off sharply in the next two years."

Adapting normal desert environment plants to agricultural uses could be an important part of New Mexico's crop production future, Niehaus said. NMSU's active guayule development program is part of this emphasis, he said.

NMSU researchers are also looking at crop varieties that can be adapted to new irrigation techniques. Salt resistant varieties of several existing crops is one approach. These varieties could be irrigated with brackish water, according to Niehaus.

"We can develop salt tolerant varieties, but this may not turn out to be promising until we have more experience with some of the new varieties," he said. "We can make a plant live under these conditions, but we may not be able to make it produce enough to be economically realistic."

Agronomists at NMSU are also trying trickle irrigation techniques on some crops.

"So far it seems to work on high value crops like chile. The yields hold up, and even improve under some conditions, and it definitely saves water," Niehaus said.

NMSU, like many other universities, is investigating the use of sewage sludge as a possible replacement for commercial fertilizers — especially those fertilizers made from natural gas.

"Anything we can do to cut the cost of raising a crop is going to be a benefit," Niehaus said.

Energy and economics

James Libbin, New Mexico State University agricultural economist, describes New Mexico's irrigation crisis as a compound problem.

"Fuel prices are going up and water tables are going down," Libbin said. "The farther apart these two extremes get, the more pressure to do away with irrigation in the state's agricultural processes."

"I don't mean to say that every other farmer in the country isn't hurting, but those in New Mexico who have to depend on deep water lifts can't get away from the direct costs of energy," Libbin said.

Based on energy cost increases between 1973 and 1980, Libbin said energy costs 40 years from now could be from 20 to more than 40 times what they are today. At those rates, electricity would cost $1.45 per kilowatt in 40 years, compared to five to six cents per kilowatt today.

Natural gas, a common fuel for many irrigation pumping systems, "... will go off the chart by the year 2020, increasing by more than 40 times to $104 per 1,000 cubic feet (mcf)," Libbin said.

Today's natural gas rates range from $2.50 per 1,000 cubic feet for a high volume user to $4.50 for a small volume customer.

Based on the same cost projections, diesel fuel would cost $20 a gallon in 40 years, and gasoline would cost $21 a gallon.

"People are going to stop buying diesel fuel and gasoline long before it gets to $20 a gallon," Libbin said, "but it's the relationship of increasing costs that is important."

"Actual prices are not the most important thing in this comparison. No matter where prices go in the next 20, 30 or 40 years, energy prices are going to go higher and faster than anything else," he said.

For comparison, Libbin pointed out that the consumer price index would go up about 15 times if the 1973-80 trend is extended 40 years. "It's obvious energy costs will go up twice as fast as everything else," he said.

Since farmers have no control over rising energy prices, they will have to control other expenses to stay in business, according to Libbin. Complete and accurate farm records will be the best asset a farmer can have in coming years, he said.

"Farmers are going to have to look at their operation in an entirely new way,"

Libbin said. "Instead of emphasizing yield per acre, he will be better off emphasizing profit margin per acre."

It's possible for a farmer to increase yields significantly by large applications of water and fertilizer, but the cost of more water and fertilizer, especially in the future, will be more than the return from the higher crop yield," he said.

Irrigation scheduling, which matches water use to actual plant needs, is one of the easiest ways to cut cost per acre, Libbin said.

"It's one of the things we can do right now with a little planning, and the farmer can see cash results the first year," he said.

Libbin also thinks farmers should consider specialized crops that generate a high return per acre.

"Chile and pecans fall in this classification now, and there may be some other high-return crops worth considering in the future," he said. "But the farmer must always remember that high-return crops turn into a huge loss if something goes wrong."

Money management is another key to financial well-being, according to Libbin. He believes completely new financing arrangements will be developed in the near future that will benefit the farmer.

"The banker is going to be more directly in partnership with the farmer, from a financial strategy point of view, than ever before," Libbin said.

Farmers can also handle their credit needs more efficiently, Libbin believes. "If a farmer needs $100,000 in operating capital at the beginning of a crop year, he should borrow it as cash is actually needed, day by day and week by week, against a line of credit already established with his bank," Libbin said.

"If a farmer borrows too much money, too soon, he is paying interest on money that is just laying in his checking account," he said.

"The farmer is going to be forced to be a better manager in coming years," Libbin said.

"Water is what we are most concerned about today, and we are talking about water management as a solution. But water is only part of the total problem a farmer is concerned with, today and tomorrow," Libbin said.

"The farmer that is also a good manager is the farmer that is going to survive," he said.

The Dreamer BY DANNIE STORM

God Bless America
We Are Americans All

More than two hundred years ago, the world was watching as we struggled to bring our infant nation into the world. They wondered if we could perform this miracle of government of the people, by the people, for the people. Many rulers were hoping not. Yet the common people throughout the world were pulling for us all the way.

Last November the fourth, again the world was watching, knowing all too well that as America goes so goes the world. In many places they thought we were coming apart.

Our founding fathers, like Washington and Jefferson, were looking down from heaven; and surely they smiled as they watched the system they set up working well.

Washington had firm trust in God's guidance for our people, as did all our founding fathers.

At a time and in a world in which many in power felt that the people could not be trusted to govern themselves, Thomas Jefferson, writer of the Declaration of Independence was firm in his abiding faith in the people of a free country.

He said,
"Let the people speak."
And the people have spoken, and spoken clearly. Saying that they wish to give new life to the traditions that made our country great.

saying from the scriptures:
"God works in mysterious ways His wonders to perform."

After two defeats in a race for governor, Joe has performed a near miracle and won the privilege of representing us in Washington. We congratulate Joe warmly and know he will serve us well.

I was delighted to receive a letter not long ago from Willie Hayhurst, a native of England, who is a former famous race rider. He comes up to Ruidoso every year to the races. He is the agent of the great jockey Larry Byers and also his father-in-law.

Willie sent me a poem written by Billy Byers Jr., who is following in his father's footsteps down at Sunland in El Paso. The poem was written by Billy just after he had won a race:

Into the silks one more time fighting his weight
Just to make a dime
Once again he mounts his steed.
He has just one task
Just one deed:
To take his mount
And flash on the lead.
But when it comes down to the wire,
And your horse don't fire,
Winning becomes pretty tough to acquire.

So you go to your whip,
Hitting and flagging,
Working to keep your horse from lagging
Then past the wire,
You're ahead by a nose.
They'll take your picture
For which you'll pose.
Then back to the jock's room
To ride again.
You may have no shot
But you ride to win.

I think that this is a fine poem, giving a clear picture of a race rider's life, and it shows that Billy Byers Jr., is a man of many gifts.

And thank you, Willie Hayhurst, for your letter and this grand poem.

Let Us Go Forward
In Love Of Each Other
And Of Our Country

In true American style let us extend the hand of brotherhood to our fellow Americans who lost in the elections. They felt in their hearts that they were voting right. That is their privilege, and we congratulate them, for without two sides there would be no election.

So let us go forward in brotherhood in our "Nation Under God." For we are Americans all.

A Lesson In Never Giving Up

Ronald Reagan has achieved his goal after half a lifetime of striving. At a time when many think a man is washed up and ready for "The Old Rockin' Chair," he courageously went ahead, smiling through all kinds of adversity, enduring a campaign that would exhaust many men half his age.

This gives a boost to those up around the "Three score years and ten," that they are not ready to be put on the shelf, and be out of the mainstream of activity in our beloved nation.

We congratulate Ronald Reagan for his faith and perseverance and we know he will serve us well.

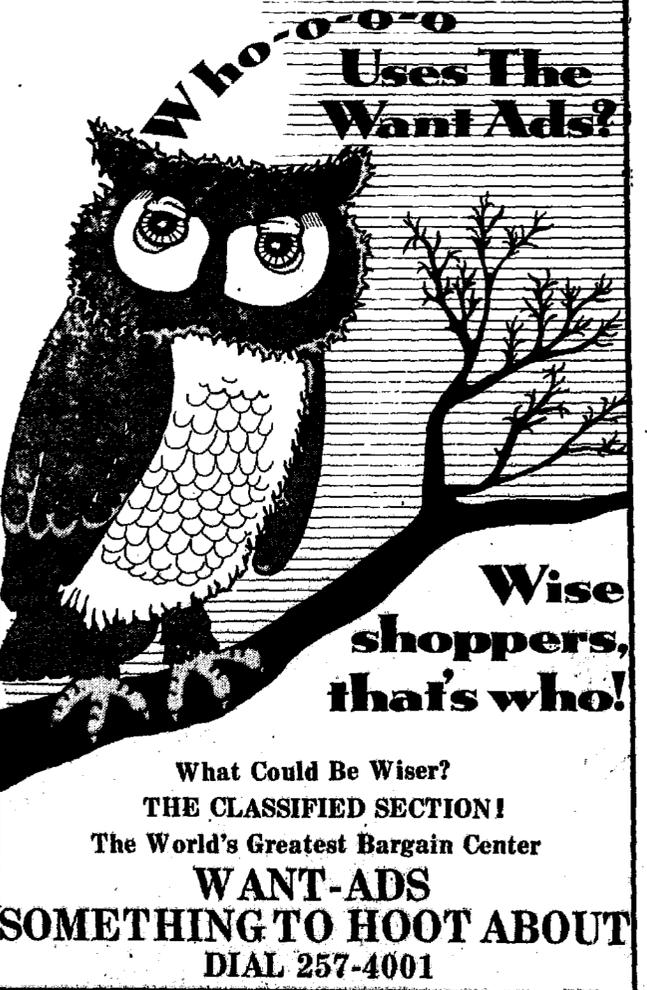

Joe Skeen
Another man who would not give up is Joe Skeen. And here we remember the old

An Old Typewriter
Re-captures Its Youth

The other day I was up town, and Ralph Bellon's right-hand man, Ollie Cuddy met me and said,
"Dan, your typewriter is ready."
Was this shiny new typewriter before me the same one our father gave me for my twenty-first birthday?
Ralph and Ollie had re-worked the machine and put in a new margin-setter, must have been a small fortune in work. When I asked how much, Ralph put his arm around me and said,
"Just keep it typing."

It is things like this that make life a blessing and I only hope that what I write on this beloved typewriter may be worthy of Ralph and Ollie's great kindness.

God bless you; and rejoice in the blessings of Our Lord.

Inside The Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE — "I don't know if we did the right thing," the man who runs the municipal parking lot said at noon on Wednesday, "but, boy, we sure did it this time."

"Did it," in this case, means "send the world a message," and "this time" means "on election day."

He's right, of course. The tenor of the message was unmistakable, almost from the first moment, when the networks were declaring Ronald Reagan the next president before the sun had time to go down.

As the evening went on and almost all the states on the maps in the TV studios started turning a single color, the message got even stronger.

A frustrated, resentful and baffled people want to change the face of America. And the face of New Mexico as well, if we read the evidence correctly.

That made Tuesday a historic day. For politicians, getting through the day before the polls close is a problem. By election day, there is nothing that can be done, and politicians are by definition activists and doers. They are not passive by choice, but on that day necessity demands it.

That's why we happened to be sitting with the Governor of the State of New Mexico on Tuesday morning, when his family's name, though not his own, has been put on the line; he had nothing better to do than to chat with the media, like neighbors gabbling over the backyard fence.

But under the joviality, he was jumpy and uncomfortable. Before the next sun came up, it was clear that he had reason to be so.

That night the numbers grew inexorably, and their import became increasingly clear.

The people of New Mexico are damned mad, and they don't intend to stand for it any more.

It takes nothing away from Joe Skeen or Dorothy Runnels to say that most of the votes they piled up in such a phenomenal fashion had at least some element of pure resentment against, as voter after voter said, having David King "stuffed down our throats."

Though to a lesser degree, the same goes for the Governor's brother Don. He was turned out of his state Senate seat that same day by Charles Marquez, who campaigned hard, as Skeen and Runnels did. But in this race too, what tipped the scales was the opponent's last name.

In a publication called The Ape Sheet, distributed annually in connection with the media's Gridiron Dinner in Albuquerque, this writer is satirically referred to as "political advisor to Governor King."

It's true that we publically give that gentleman a lot of unsolicited counselling. This time, however, the voice which spoke is much stronger than ours. It is the multi-throated roar of the people, whose message, if you listened closely, seemed to be saying, "Stop trying to hog it all!"

It's hard to see how that advice could be ignored, though governors, like heavyweight champs, sometimes require a knockout punch to convince them their string has finally run out.

Jimmy Carter's message was delivered, and, on the whole, gracefully accepted. We hope Bruce King's will be as clearly understood.

ON FEDERAL SPENDING

Something has to be done about the Federal Give-Away Programs!

I have come to the conclusion that there is no one in Washington that looks at all of the different grant programs.

The latest case in point is a $50,000 grant which will be used to buy pictures to hang behind windows in New York City. The pictures will be used to simulate curtains and flowers, to give vacant buildings a lived in look.

The same guy that okayed this grant is the one that thinks you have to heat water before you put it on crops.

Along the same line was some mail that we received this week on how to apply for a grant to go to a seminar on how to apply for a grant. Translated that means the federal government has a lot of money and they want to get rid of it. — Frank Stanley, The Curry County Times, Clovis

OBLIGATION-FREE

The Small Business Administration, in an odd perversion of its role, has been guaranteeing loans to franchisees as though they were independent small businesses unconnected with their parent companies. That is nice for the parent companies, including General Motors, Standard Oil and several others numbered among our largest corporations.

But this corporate favor dispensed by a government agency is less pleasant for the taxpayers, who ultimately foot the bill. In effect the SBA has allowed franchising corporations to benefit by federal loan guarantees without sharing the risk. If a franchise goes under the defaults on its loan, the government picks up the tab and the parent company goes scot free.

This and related disclosures by the General Accounting Office have elicited an SBA response that is more ingenious than credible. It says parent firms just figure they're marketers in granting franchises under their names, and would balk at having any part in loans to franchise holders.

Such a corporate evasion of responsibility might not last long were the SBA to do what the General Accounting Office recommends: that is, withhold approval of franchise loans "unless it has evidence that the franchiser cannot guarantee all or part of SBA direct loans or share with SBA guarantees of bank loans." The operative word is "cannot," and it scarcely applies to some of the giant corporations whose franchises have received SBA loans in the amount of scores of millions of dollars.

The congressional watchdog agency also calls attention to other bad practices by the Small Business Administration with regard to franchise loans. It often guarantees the legal maximum of 90 per cent of a loan, we are told, instead of negotiating for the lender to assume a larger share. It makes loans without first getting proof of bank refusal to put up the money, thus violating the legal requirement that it act only as a lender of last resort. And its counseling and management assistance to franchise borrowers are inadequate.

In releasing the GAO report, Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal harshly censured the Small Business Administration's franchise program. He excoriated it "for its incredible inefficiency, for the cavalier way in which it exposes taxpayers' dollars to loss, and for its benefits to major corporations rather than to legitimate small enterprises." This indictment, backed up by points made in the report, underscores the need for prompt reform of SBA policies and practices. — Alamogordo Daily News

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:
IT WASN'T EASY!

When the voters began to arrive a half hour before voting time it appeared that a long day lay ahead.

An hour later it looked as if we were in for trouble. Voters were registered without delay and were assigned a voting number, however, we were registering six times the number one voting machine could handle.

Why? It had not happened in previous elections — but this election was different — we faced an important write-in vote — one designed to thwart the Governor's plan to install his nephew in Congress and the voters were determined to say "NO." This along with the large interest in Ronald Reagan produced a 61% turnout in precinct 11 (52% nationwide) and among these voters 76% elected to vote a write-in ballot. Since normal write-ins run about 10% this produced a slowing down process since it takes a full two minutes to vote write-in while it consumes only twenty seconds to make a straight vote. This means that it took six times as long to vote in this election. Joe Skeen won hands down and set a new record as only twice before has this been accomplished in this country.

Precinct 11 should have used two voting machines had we considered the write-in slow down but I learned later that none were available so it's a moot point, however, paper ballots, in this case would have been much quicker.

About the voters — they were great! At one time there were 145 voters waiting on the machine. They were orderly, quiet, and did not complain. The final voter left at 11:30 — four and one-half hours after the poll closed. Some had rested on the floor — all in good humor. During the long wait some mothers had their small children with them and the kids behaved — The voting crowd had only one resolve — TO VOTE. Left handed voters could not handle the voting machine and those were assisted along with the disabled and the smaller persons used a stepladder to reach the write-in slot.

Our crew worked a total of 17 hours doing all that we expected of them with good spirits and determination. My personal thanks go to Guy Warnica and Walter Jennings and to our ladies — Edna Falls, Pat Delhotel and Shirley Atwood. And, also, Sherman Atwood who dropped in all during the day to keep the coffee hot and the cups full. Thanks to Whispering Pines Restaurant for the dinner fare. It saved our lives.

But the greatest thanks go to the VOTERS of Precinct 11 and to all other voters in Ruidoso. When the chips are down voters will vote when the cause is worthwhile. This election should dispel the idea of apathy among the voters — give them a cause and they will vote — they won't let you down.

J. A. "Al" Jung
Precinct 11, Chairman

editorial

Now that President-elect Ronald Reagan's feelings of elation are surely subsiding, it is reasonable to assume that flickering moments of apprehension must be gnawing at his guts.

One big plus he has going for him, however, is the leadership ability he displayed as Governor of California. His successes in solving California's economic problems are impressive, especially when you consider that California would rank seventh among the countries of the world if it were a nation.

We feel that his experience as governor will stand him in good stead as he grapples with the nation's economic woes. At the very least he has a good solid background to work from and certainly has the expertise to assess programs that could aid in our nation's economic recovery.

He has readily admitted his knowledge of international matters is less than he'd prefer. This is the second big plus in his favor. He has a wide choice of persons who have proven their expertise in the field of international relations to choose from as he begins his fight to return the United States to its former position of prestige in the eyes of the other nations in the world.

The transition from a conservative approach to solving our problems, as differing from liberal tactics, won't be accomplished over night. One thing he does have going for him here is the mandate from the people that the country can't spend itself into prosperity; and that he has four years in which to work out a new approach that could reduce inflation to its lowest point in many years. And if he can get the dollar once again established as the soundest currency in the world, his niche in history will be assured.

Hopefully, Ronald Reagan will receive the help he needs from the Congress, as well as the people, because there's no question at all about the fact that he's going to need all the help he can get. —CD

A FRIEND IN SANTA FE

By jinkies and gadzooks ... after Representative John Bigbee peruses the vote count he garnered in Lincoln County last Tuesday, he'll know for sure which group of voters were responsible, in large measure, for returning him to the state legislature.

It's this way ... in the unofficial tallies ... the votes cast in Guadalupe, DeBaca and Torrance counties gave Rich Sims a bulge of 199 votes ... then the Lincoln County voters got into the act, giving John 1963 votes to a niggardly 883 for Rich ... giving John his winning margin of 881 votes ... insuring his return to the legislature.

By jinkies ... that's a lot of support for our rancher friend up Encino way ... which is just some miles away from Ruidoso ... and John is aware of the fact that he picked up 894 votes in Ruidoso/Ruidoso Downs ... which should be of sufficient interest to John to look into some of our interests ... with maybe even more enthusiasm than he's showered us with in the past ... and this don't mean he's shirked his responsibilities here.

EASY DOES IT, DAVID

Thursday's news reports of David King's shellacking by write-in winner Joe Skeen in the Tuesday race for United States Representative indicated that David was a mile piqued ... disallustoned ... disenchantad ... and even mouthing remarks that he just might maybe get around to asking that all of those write-in ballots electing Joe be inspected ... just in case 5,000 or so of them didn't quite measure up to how they shoulda been written.

It do seem as though ... considering how good naturedly David took his nomination ... and getting back into the race after he'd up and quit ... and him saying he'd stay out of politics as long as his uncle was in ... that David'd as good naturedly accept the fact that more voters didn't want him representing us in Washington than did. It doesn't seem possible that a young man with the smarts as David's got, ain't got the message that he wasn't wanted in Congress ... 'cause it took a lot of effort on the part of 80,000 write-in vote casters for Skeen ... 45,000 for Dorothy Runnels ... as against about 55,000 working the lever ... to give David the word that he ain't exactly the people's fair haired boy.

LAME DUCK CONGRESS

All them losers in Congress ... like the powerful Senators and Representatives as was ousted from their seats last Tuesday ... oughta be mighty subdued when they take their seats for their last fling ... as lame duckers.

The people has spoke ... and with a vengeance ... telling all those losers as how they wants a change in how things has been run ... which should give them the word that they won't cotton to any hanky-panky wheeler/dealer goings on as they lame duck their way en route to returning to private life.

'Course the fact the GOP'll control the Senate don't mean instant reversals in the spending trend that has spiraled upward ever since FDR got the ball rolling ... but it just might mean that spending of the people's money won't spiral upward as fast as it might have if'n the GOPers hadn't been handed the chance to see if'n they can stem government spending ... at least by cutting out some of the fat of the land that ain't gone to the thin.

And we'd best all hope that the throat cutting of GOPers ... striving to glom onto all those political plum as is available for latching onto ... and coveted by the GOPers since the mid 50s ... don't get so out of hand that there's a rift too big to jump across formed before the jumping gets started.

ON OUR JIMMY'S LOSS

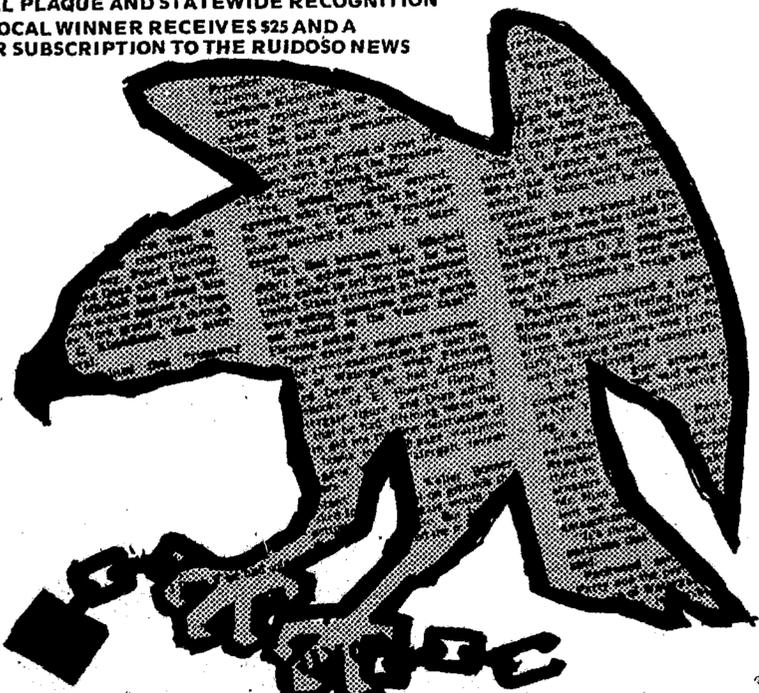

The word was Thursday that Our Jimmy was up at Camp David ... thinking. And it just has gotta go without saying that he had heaps of things to think on.

And let us hope that he spent most of his thinking spell thinking about the ten weeks he has left as chief executive ... 'cause he has iron in the fire ... the hostages ... the Egyptian/Israeli peace negotiations breakdown ... and many headaches of his that he'd like to not have passed on to Reagan ... 'cause ... let's fact it ... Our Jimmy's the kind of man who'd like to leave things as much in order for Reagan as possible, when last Our Jimmy sits behind the desk in the Oval Office ... and he's certainly said as much.

But ... as I've said before ... Our Jimmy's a fighter ... an honorable man ... and, by jinkies, he sure proved it ... 'cause he went down fighting.

BRIEF BIT: Chances are it'd be mighty titillating knowing what was said when uncle Bruce and nephew David first talked following the election ... CD

NEWSPAPERS

FREEDOM'S GUARANTEE

Hohn named to water resource management

Charles Hohn, long-time Extension specialist at New Mexico State University (NMSU), is the first-ever Extension water resource management specialist at NMSU. Hohn's appointment was announced November 3 by Dr. John Oren, associate director of Extension at NMSU.

"This is a vital, new area of work for Extension," said Dr. Oren, "and we are lucky to have someone of Charlie's experience and training in water resources to step into this post. Water management is important to the whole state and Charlie knows how to make things happen to meet the needs of our New Mexico people."

The water resource management position will blend educational programs from agricultural engineering and horticulture since the work will focus on pecans, chile, onions and lettuce. However, Hohn will also help livestock producers with their stock watering problems. He will work with farmers on major irrigation problems.

The needs of the home owner have also been considered in this position. Hohn will work with improving water management techniques in the yard and garden. He will also work with the 4-H program in these areas.

Hohn has served as the Extension agricultural engineer at NMSU since 1962. Before that time, he was a member of the Texas A&M University faculty. He also worked as a construction engineer for a Texas building contractor.

Hohn holds a bachelor's and master's degree in agricultural engineering from Texas A&M. He is the author of a lengthy list of bulletins and circulars published both in Texas and New Mexico. He has also assisted with various research projects at NMSU dealing with water management and quality.

Emotional help for veterans

Veterans Administration (VA) directors in the Rocky Mountain area stress that veterans aren't barred from receiving VA medical care and compensation for an emotional problem that develops years after they leave military service.

Recent VA guidelines for physicians and disability rating boards reemphasize that principle with regard to emotional problems of Vietnam veterans and other related to stress endured during military service.

Claims of that type in Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, New Mexico and elsewhere formerly had to be considered under six or more disability classifications. The new guidelines define a specific new category — called post traumatic stress syndrome — under which veterans may claim service connection for a condition that manifests months or even years after some life-threatening experience.

To qualify for service connection under the new guidelines, a veteran must have a condition specifically diagnosed by a VA physician as well as a history of a life-threatening experience such as combat service or a period as a prisoner of war.

That experience must be consistent with the nature and circumstances of his service, and it must be considered by a VA medical examiner to be the precipitating cause of a traumatic stress disorder.

The new classification describes the syndrome as "encompassing a life-threatening stressor, reexperiencing the Cattle rustlers sought

There's some good news and some bad news for New Mexico's cattle ranchers. First the good news. Cattle rustling is down in 1980, compared with 1979. Last year an average of 112 head were stolen each month, resulting in a monthly loss of $56,000. This year, rustlers are stealing an average of 92 head each month, representing a loss of $46,000.

Now for the bad news. This year's largest rustling case just was reported to the New Mexico Livestock Board.

The unhappy distinction goes to Roswell rancher Tom Dunlap, who lost 101 head of Herefords at his ranch southwest of Encino.

Mel Sedillo, chief investigator for the New Mexico Livestock Board, said the loss was discovered in October when Dunlap's crew began rounding up more than 2,200 head of cattle after summer grazing. Initially, they counted more than 200 head missing, but further checking resulted in the discovery of about 100 carcasses.

"We really don't know what happened out there," Sedillo said recently. "We don't know if the cattle were stolen a few at a time or taken in one big haul."

Fence modification test on Roswell ranch

An antelope fence pass tested at New Mexico State University (NMSU) for its ability to contain livestock will be further studied on a ranch near Roswell, an official of the United States Bureau of Land Management (BLM) said.

NMSU scientists said at a meeting at the BLM Roswell district office that the modified cattle guard was effective in controlling cattle during tests run in Las Cruces and that with a few modifications the pass should also control sheep while allowing antelope to jump across to reach food sources. During the tests at NMSU, researchers put cattle and sheep under "stress" situations in an effort to force them to attempt to cross through several types of fence modifications.

Phil Kirk, chief of resources in the BLM's Roswell office, said the modified cattle guard will be field tested on federal public land with the cooperation of rancher James Gist. The modification will replace two existing barbed wire antelope passes on the Gist ranch to see if antelope will be able to cross them.

If antelope are able to cross over the modified cattle guards on Gist's cattle operation, NMSU and the BLM will then further study the design to determine if it effectively keeps rams, ewes and lambs inside pastures. The testing of the modified cattle guard is part of a four year antelope study resulting from a controversy over a 1975 BLM program to modify small sections of fences on federal public lands to allow antelope to cross through to reach the types of food the animals need. Ranchers feared that the barbed wire fence modifications used at that time would also allow livestock to move uncontrolled between pastures. NMSU was contracted in 1979 to complete the study after the BLM and the New Mexico Game and Fish Department transplanted about 300 antelope from northern New Mexico into 10 test pastures near Roswell.

recovery of $300 worth of stolen property taken in a theft at a Der Wienerschnitzel store in Clove.

The Socorro Crime Stoppers program had a pair of recent successes. One tip led to the recovery of two stolen saddles worth $1,200 and the arrests of the offenders and another call resulted in the recovery of some $30,000-worth of stolen property.

More than $13,000 worth of stolen jewelry was recovered by Santa Fe police through a tip to their Crime Stoppers program in early October. One person was arrested in the case.

And three persons were arrested and charged with possession of controlled substances after a tip to the Silent Majority program in Lovington. Some $2,000 worth of narcotics was seized by Lovington police officers.

To date, the combined Crime Stoppers programs in New Mexico have assisted law enforcement agencies throughout the state in the solution of 2,541 cases and the recovery of $2,788,909 worth of stolen property and narcotics. A total of 817 persons have been prosecuted in court and 810 have been convicted for a 99.1 per cent conviction rate.

New associate director in southwestern parks

John W. (Jack) Neckels, assistant superintendent at Grand Teton National Park since 1975 has been named Associate Director for Operations in the National Park Service's (NPS) Southwest Region.

Southwest Regional Director Robert I. Kerr said that Neckels will oversee park operations in a six-state region which consists of 37 areas within New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana, and northeastern Arizona. These park operations include protection and visitor use, interpretation and visitor services, natural resources, maintenance, concessions and land acquisition.

Neckels replaces Leslie Arnerberger who recently retired after more than 35 years of government service.

Neckels joined the Park Service as a seasonal park ranger at Theodore Roosevelt National Park, North Dakota, in 1960. His first permanent post was as park ranger at Blue Ridge Parkway, North Carolina, in 1963. Later he served as district ranger at Fire Island National Seashore, New York, and as a management assistant at Sagamore Hill National Historic Site, New York.

In 1971 Neckels was selected for the Department of the Interior Management Development Program, which identifies and trains employees to fill top level career positions. He was one of four selected for that program from the NPS.

After completing the program in 1972, Neckels was assigned to the Office of Legislation in Washington, D. C.

In 1973-1975, he was assigned under the Intergovernmental Personnel Act Program as director for the North Dakota State Planning Division in Bismark. He served as a member of the Governor's staff and worked with western state officials on several state, local and federal issues.

Neckels is a native of Grassy Butte, North Dakota. He is a graduate of Dickinson State College, North Dakota with a bachelor of science degree in biology.

Neckels is married to the former Jolene Hodson of Tryon, Oklahoma. The Neckels have three children, Bill, 21, Jackie, 19, and Nancy, 17.

Highway crews will remove illegal signs on right-of-way

Highway Department maintenance crews in southeastern New Mexico are preparing to harvest illegal signs which have again sprung up like weeds along state highway rights of way. The harvest could cost the sign owners money and the loss of the signs.

In the fall of 1978, District 2 conducted a successful sign removal campaign, clearing illegal signs which blighted the landscape and blocked driver vision at road turnouts and crossings.

"A new illegal sign crop has sprouted in the past two years resulting in numerous complaints," District Maintenance Engineer Doug Ditto said. "We will make a strenuous effort to eliminate the problem."

Notices are being sent to owners of the illegal signs asking that they remove the signs within 10 days. If the notice is ignored department maintenance crews will remove the offending signs. They will not be returned and the owners will be billed for removal costs.

"We hope the owners cooperate and remove the illegal signs themselves," Ditto said. "Our crews should be spending their time on road maintenance but because many of these signs are safety hazards and all violate state and federal sign laws, we must remove them," he added.

The first group of sign removal notices have been from maintenance patrol offices. Eventually, owners of illegal signs in Chaves, Curry, DeBana, Eddy, Lea, Lincoln, Otero and Roosevelt counties will receive such notices.

AS INDIAN SUMMER FADES, the beauties of fall are apparent in this photograph taken by Gwyneth Jones, Ruidoso News photographer. And though the warm days are continuing, soon these once colorful blooms will wear a mantle of snow, perhaps again to tempt the photographer into another session of shutter bugging.

Doctor Retires To Oyster Farming

Six years ago, when Dr. Chester W. Brown of Worcester, Mass. was almost 60 years old, he had a severe stroke and was subsequently advised to retire.

Financially, this would have proved no hardship. His three daughters were grown and disability insurance would have provided a generous income.

"But that prospect didn't appeal to me," Dr. Brown told a writer from The National Council on the Aging. The first thing he did was bring an associate into his busy surgical practice and planned to phase himself out over the course of a year.

Although Dr. Brown's recovery was better than anyone had anticipated — he was back to work after three months — he went ahead with plans to build a house near South Bristol, Maine, where he and his wife, Toni, would move.

But once in Maine, Dr. Brown put little time in on such hobbies as woodworking, photography and gourmet cooking.

"I spent more time in a rocking chair than anywhere else," he said. "I was also 40 pounds overweight and taking 20 pills a day."

Then, by chance, he watched a boatload of divers enter the frigid Atlantic in January.

"Outside of lost treasure, I couldn't imagine what anyone would be diving for in January," Dr. Brown said. "I asked around and found they were checking out oysters they had put there in warmer weather."

Thus began Dr. Brown's second career. He talked to some neighbors who were planning to commercially cultivate oysters and soon decided to try it himself.

After a couple of marginal years, Dr. Brown's oyster farm became successful. One of his chief customers is New York's prestigious 21 Club, which currently uses 4,000 of Dr. Brown's oysters a week.

Success in the oyster business has not been easy. According to Dr. Brown he had to "study the oyster business almost as much as I did medicine."

He still considers his second career fun, however, and Mrs. Brown agrees, even though it isn't exactly what she'd dreamed retirement would be like.

"I'm what you might call the chief bottle washer," Mrs. Brown said. "I do everything from manning the boat to doing the books. The important thing, though, is that he's healthy and happy."

A quick look at Dr. Brown is testimony to that: he's lost the extra 40 pounds and no longer takes any medication outside of an aspirin now and then.

"I think the secret is that nobody should retire unless they have something to do," Dr. Brown said. "You have to have a reason for getting up in the morning and a reason to lay down at night."

HYPOTHERMIA, a drop in deep body temperature can be fatal if it is not detected and properly treated. According to the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare, even relatively cool temperatures of 60 to 65 degrees can cause hypothermia. Older persons, especially those over 75, should avoid prolonged exposure to even mildly cold temperatures, as older people are more vulnerable than most. Individuals taking medication for anxiety or depression, nervousness or nausea should consult with the physician as these drugs may hamper the body's ability to regulate temperature.

During the cold winter months, people who are susceptible to hypothermia should try not to be alone for too long and should consider having their neighbors look in on them on a regular basis.

"Betcha can't do it! Try it..."

Try to name just one single item you use every day that doesn't come, at least in part, from the mining industry.

Betcha can't do it.

From the very simple to the very complicated, the things we use can be traced back to a hole in the ground somewhere.

And... copper is right there, working alongside 90 other minerals, to provide the things we need for agriculture, energy, construction, transportation, communications, home and office and, national defense.

The results of the mining industry are all around us.

Betcha can't name a single item that doesn't owe its existence to mining.

A baseball bat? Try again. It took metal saws and lathes to cut and form the bat.

But... keep trying. It's fun.

Derek Jacobi stars as Hamlet on PBS

Derek Jacobi (pictured), Claire Bloom, Eric Porter and Patrick Stewart star in a new television production of William Shakespeare's HAMLET, scheduled to air on public television Monday, November 10, as a special presentation in 'The Shakespeare Plays.'

HAMLET is probably Shakespeare's most popular play, a unique blend of action, suspense, humor, metaphysical speculation and piercing human insight. One critic has called it, "Quite simply, the most interesting play in the world," and audiences have shared that opinion—in radically differing degrees, depending on the production and the actor playing Hamlet—for almost 400 years.

Derek Jacobi, who calls Hamlet "the Mount Everest of acting," has been performing the role almost continuously for years. In fact, it was his performance as the Prince of Denmark in London's West End that assured his recognition as one of the finest classical actors of his generation. In 1979, he became the first English-speaking actor ever to play the role in the People's Republic of China, when he toured in a production which played to sold-out houses everywhere it went.

Claire Bloom, who plays Queen Gertrude, has had a long and distinguished career on stage and screen, and was seen during Season One of 'The Shakespeare Plays' as the doomed Queen Katharine in the highly-acclaimed production, 'Henry VIII.'

In an effort to extend the educational impact of the production, the underwriters—joined by the Corporation for Public Broadcasting—have funded a free distribution to high schools across America of a package of educational materials containing recordings, posters, teacher's guides, student handouts and other teaching aids.</

Television Schedule For The Week Of Nov. 10 through Nov. 16

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT Striking actors defied death threats to man the Hollywood picket lines despite warnings from Los Angeles police. Stars were also warned to stay away from restaurants and theaters, report suspicious phone calls and treat anyone approaching them—even autograph hunters—as potential assassins. Among those given the terrifying advice were leggy sexpot Catherine Bach, of 'The Dukes Of Hazzard,' and Erik Estrada of 'CHiPs.' "I'm so nervous, I bought myself a gun," Catherine admitted. "I'm scared to go out." But the rugged Erik just flexed his muscles and walked the picket lines handing out autographs. "I think I can take care of myself," he said. Also on the possible hit list were superstars Frank Sinatra and Sammy Davis Jr. Sinatra, who always travels with four husky bodyguards, wasn't seen on the picket lines. Neither was Sammy, who said from his Beverly Hills home: "Man, I'm taking no chances, I'm staying indoors." Many other actors were named in threatening letters, phone calls and tips to police and officials of the Screen Actors Guild. Dr. Bill Rader, Sally Struther's 42-year-old psychiatrist husband, has been guiding her career as well as her life. Rader, who appears nightly as a feature on a Los Angeles TV station, encouraged Sally to quit 'All In The Family,' and later took over as her unofficial manager. Then, when Sally, 32, was to make a new TV series called 'That's Me On The Radio,' Rader again took a hand. The show was cancelled after two episodes. "The show had a lot of potential," says an assistant for Warner Bros Studios, which was taping the nostalgic series about a World War II radio singer. "But Sally screwed things up when she let her husband step in and take over. She had her own company, Mother Struthers Productions, produce the show and Rader immediately got the title of Production Executive—whatever that means. Most of these people don't know anything about producing, so they take their money and don't say a word. Well, not content with his own career, Rader decided he was going to be a real production executive. He began bossing everyone around and Sally discouraged him."

TV TICKER "When I talk serious, it comes out funny," says Buddy Hackett who stars in the new daily half-hour comedy show 'You Bet Your Life.' "I'm lucky because I'm not a real human being, you know I'm a cartoon." Wonder why General Hospital, ABC's extremely popular daytime drama, has a closed set lately? Producer Gloria Monty denies it, but I know the big clampdown is for one reason and one reason only: Luke (Tony Geary) will be lured out of hiding by a transsexual character. And get this: soap fans. The character will be played by a real-life transsexual. You gotta have a gimmick, etc. etc.
