Lujan's heart transplant 'successful'

Denny Lujan, 25, former Ruidoso Downs and Sunland Park jockey, Friday night became the ninth person to receive a heart transplant at the Arizona Health Sciences Center (AHSC), University of Arizona, Tucson.

Hal Marshall, AHSC director of information services, advised The News Saturday morning that the operation was successful.

Dr. Robert B. Mammana, surgeon in charge of the operation, said Saturday, "The transplant went well. It's too early in the post-operative period to make any definitive statement, but everything has gone very well so far." Dr. Mammana was assisted by Dr. Neal W. Salomon.

Salomon and Dr. James F. Moon flew to Phoenix, Arizona, early Friday evening to obtain the heart from an accident victim, returning to AHSC at 9:45. Marshall said the operation began soon afterwards and was completed just before 1 a.m. Saturday.

Villages' trustees to meet

The Ruidoso Downs trustees will meet at 7 p.m., at the municipal building. Agenda items to be considered include the Highway 78 Corridor Group and a report from mayor Norman Wheeler on his recent trip to Washington D. C.

Ruidoso's trustees will meet at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday in the Ruidoso Public Library.

Agenda items include requests from the Lodgers' Tax Committee, consideration of naming a representative from Carrizozo to the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission, action on replats and final plats from Planning and Zoning, consideration of changing the time for meetings of the trustees and a report on the court decision regarding land taken in the Kingswood Subdivision for a water storage tank.

Bulletin

At 8:30 this morning Hal Marshall, AHSC, advised The News: "Deany spent a good night and is still in stable condition." He is in isolation, Marshall said, "but nurses attending him report that he is in good spirits."

Marshall also said, "Lujan's wife, Sheryln, and his mother, Deanna Baker of Ruidoso, maintained an all night vigil at his bedside."

Lujan, father of a four-year-old daughter, Marshall said, "became a transplant candidate when heart disease reduced his life expectancy to less than a year."

Funds for the transplant, Marshall said, "came from two fund drives. The Hosemen's Benevolent and Protective Association in Ruidoso, El Paso, Texas, and Phoenix, raised more than $20,000 and the Heart Transplant Fund of America, Incorporated, headed by Norman "Dutch" Tarr, the first person to receive a heart transplant in Arizona, raised more than $1,000."

Victor in DA's race hinges on vote canvass

The 12th Judicial District Attorney's race is not over yet.

A state Elections Bureau official reported last Wednesday that the incumbent, Steve Sanders, appeared to be leading his write-in opponent, James J. Weldon.

The same official said Thursday that he had been "premature" in releasing the figures, which showed Sanders leading by 204 votes.

Although the elections bureau recommends final vote totals to the state canvassing committee, the committee is not required to follow those recommendations. The committee meets Tuesday to begin their task of reviewing totals from around the state.

A recent attorney general's opinion stated that voting officials should allow any write-in vote in which "the intent of the voter is clear."

RHS girls on All-State Choir

Five members of the Ruidoso High School Choir were named to participate in the New Mexico All-State Choir, to be held in Albuquerque January 14-17 at Popejoy Hall.

Named to the mixed choir were LouAnn Wilson, Sharri Ridgway and Leslie Carter. The mixed choir, according to Ruidoso director Danny Flores, is composed of the top singers in the state.

Kerrie Prophet and Tina Killen were named to the Girls Chorus, a group of 280 girls who will sing six selections.

Both choirs will give performances January 17 at 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m., at Popejoy Hall.

"It's really quite an honor to be in the choir," Flores said. He added that he was proud of the local students who submitted tapes for consideration. "We had 11 students tryout and five made it, so we're really proud of our choir members."

The mixed choir will perform the following numbers:

"No One Else" from "A Singing of Angels" by Charles Davidson; "Music Spread Thy Voice Around" by Handel; "Requiem eternam" by Cherubini; "Come To Me My Love" by Della Joto; "Be Thou My Vision" by Robert Hunter; "Stamp Your Foot" by Copeland; and "America" by Robert Hunter.

The Girls' Chorus will sing the following selections:

"O Pastorelle, Addio (Now is the Time for Parting)" by Giordano; "Prayer to the Virgin Mary" by Verdi; "Three Songs" by Brahms; "The Gate of Heaven" by Randall Thompson; "Be Like A Bird" by Arthur Fraenkel; and "Let Us Break Bread Together" by Wayne Howarth.

Others submitting tapes for All-State Choir included Eric Berg, Gene Reeves, Darliah Rad, Dee Sherwood, Tracy Hamm and Triana Schaefer. They were all accompanied by Carlene Wadley, who also teaches many of the singers private voice lessons.

"We would like to thank Carlene for her time and assistance in helping us prepare for this performance," Flores said.

Madrigal Feast tickets on sale

Some tickets are still available for the 1980 Madrigal Feast December 3 at Carrizo Lodge. The event is an annual fund raiser to support the Ruidoso Public Library.

The event begins at 6 p.m., with no-host cocktails. Patrons will be introduced into the main hall with doors closing at 7 p.m. Dinner will be prepared and served by Nottingham's Deli and Catering, with wine for dinner donated by Security Bank.

Providing a program of madrigal singing, a mummer's play, recorder ensemble, Wassail bowl procession and a yule log ceremony will be singers and actors from Eastern New Mexico University and a group of Ruidosoans.

Tickets for the Madrigal Feast are $30 per person and are available at the Library.

All business signs on highway right-of-way must be removed

State Highway Department maintenance crews are now in the process of checking for business signs which encroach on highway right-of-ways, and are seeking the cooperation of business people in removing the signs.

Local highway maintenance crews have been instructed to make note of such illegal signs, "during the course of their normal patrols," according to the Roswell District maintenance engineer, Douglas Ditto.

Notices will be sent to the owners of the signs, and a period of ten days will be allowed for compliance. If the signs are not removed or relocated within the ten day period, Highway Department personnel will take steps to remove the signs themselves. Sign owners will be billed for the removal, and that cost could range from "approximately $25 to $100," Ditto estimated. Department personnel also will dispose of the signs.

The sign project will affect not only Ruidoso, but other "problem areas," including Roswell, Vaughan and Alamogordo, Ditto said. He speculated that business people in Carlsbad, Artesia, Clovis and Portales will also be affected. He placed part of the blame for the sign problem on the department, which he said in some cases, may have failed to adequately inform the people of the right-of-way locations.

Although the primary reason for sign removal will be to prevent obstruction of drivers' view, signs will be removed regardless of whether they pose an obvious safety or traffic hazard, "because they are illegal," Joe Healy, public affairs officer, said Friday.

Signs located on right-of-ways present another problem, Healy said, on roads which have been built with federal funds. Placement of signs on the right-of-way is prohibited by both state and federal law, he said. Federal funds provided for highway construction and maintenance could be withheld if the law is not obeyed.

Ditto said he is "hoping for a cooperative effort," between business people and the department. "I feel like once they're notified, they'll pitch in and get it done. I'm not looking for an adversary relationship with the people who pay my salary."

"This (situation) is a can of worms in Ruidoso, because the right-of-way is uncertain. We will work with the sign owners and the people in any way we can."

Five burned in camper explosion

Five Albuquerque men were injured Wednesday in the Jicarilla Mountains near Jack's Peak, when their pickup camper exploded and burned.

The five men were treated at the Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital and later transferred to the Bernalillo County Medical Center (BCMC).

Reported to be in fair condition in the burn and trauma unit of BCMC Friday were Rudy Martinez, 40; Ray Gutierrez, 29 and Felix Gutierrez, 24, all of Albuquerque.

The two other men, Leroy Maestas, 24 and Horatio Garcia, 24, also of Albuquerque, were discharged from BCMC Friday.

A spokesman for the Lincoln County Sheriff's Office said Friday that the men had a lit gas lantern in the camper when they went to sleep. "Then they woke up in a ball of fire," the spokesman said.

The 1974 Dodge Crew Cab's camper was reduced to "a pile of ash and some melted aluminum," he said.

Arsenal missing from Corrales

An arsenal of stolen weapons, enough to supply a small army, is believed to be cached somewhere in New Mexico.

The guns, taken in two reported burglaries of the Rio Grande Sporting Goods, Corrales, include rifles, shotguns and handguns.

This week the State Crime Stoppers Commission is offering a $1,000 reward for information leading to the solution of the burglaries or the recovery of the weapons. Bernalillo County Sheriff's Office Detective George Victor said four .357 magnum Ruger handguns, two Model 65 .357 magnum Smith and Wesson pistols and four Ruger .22 caliber pistols were among a variety of weapons taken in a reported burglary of the Corrales-based sporting goods store July 6. Total loss was in excess of $2,000.

Then August 24, a staggering 80 rifles and shotguns, 18 handguns and 30 scopes were reported missing in still another burglary. This time the estimated loss was in excess of $30,000.

In a four-page list of weapons taken in the break-in, store owner Dave Gregory noted that 11 Ithaca .12 and .20 gauge shotguns were stolen; 18 Remington-made weapons, ranging from .22 caliber rifles to 20 gauge shotguns; and a host of other weapons manufactured by Sako, Beretta, Savage, Browning, Stevens, Ruger and Dan Wesson.

The owner was able to provide a complete list of the weapons' serial numbers for detectives, who have entered all of them into the National Crime Information Center computer.

The only problem is that the weapons might not be in the country.

Law enforcement officials say many stolen weapons find their way south of the border into Mexico, where they are traded for narcotics.

Of course, a large percentage of stolen guns still are sold in back alley or barroom deals. It is suggested that if anyone is approached by a prospective seller of a weapon who is asking a very low price, that they call their local law enforcement officials who can run the gun's serial number through NCIC to determine whether or not it is stolen.

Detectives believe that sooner or later the stolen weapons will show up. Anyone who has information about the possible location of the missing weapons, or about who might have them in their possession, is asked to call the State Crime Stoppers Commission at its toll-free number, 1-800-432-6933.

The State Crime Stoppers Commission also pays cash rewards for information leading to the solution of other cases in addition to the "Crime of the Week."

To date, 238 crimes have been solved with the help of calls to the Commission's toll-free number. In addition, $170,479 worth of stolen property and narcotics has been recovered through calls and another $325,579 in fines and court-ordered restitutions has been returned to the State of New Mexico. The Commission has paid $10,115 in rewards during its first 14 months of operation. At its meeting in Santa Fe last week, the Commission authorized the payment of another $3,100 in rewards to deserving callers.

Donald Peak being held in county jail

Donald Peak, 44, Ruidoso, was arrested shortly before midnight Sunday and charged with violation of conditions of release, in connection with an alleged assault which reportedly occurred Thursday.

The warrant was issued by magistrate Jim Wheeler, who set Peak's bail at $10,000, no ten percent allowed. Peak was detained in the Lincoln County Jail.

Wheeler has issued another warrant charging Peak with aggravated assault. The warrant was to be served on Peak Monday at the jail.

Peak was free on bond at the time of the alleged assault, in connection with a felony fraud charge made earlier this year. The Sunday arrest was made by the Ruidoso Downs Police Department, with the cooperation of the Ruidoso Police Department and the Lincoln County Sheriff's Office.

Man attempts suicide here

A 39-year-old Ruidoso Downs man, who attempted suicide Saturday afternoon, walked away from his room at the Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital, where he was being treated for slashed wrists. He was discovered missing at about 2 a.m., Sunday.

Ruidoso Downs police were called to the man's residence about 2 p.m., Sunday, where an officer "forceably took a razor blade" away from the man.

After talking with the man, police left the home but were called back immediately when he reportedly smashed a bottle and cut both wrists.

VA offers assistance to widows

Nearly 1,700 widows of veterans in New Mexico now are receiving death compensation or pensions from the Veterans Administration (VA).

But there may be many more such widows in the state who are eligible to receive or restore such benefits, especially those who previously had lost those benefits through remarriage, said Joe Cordova, Albuquerque VA Regional Office director.

He explained that dependency and indemnity or death compensation is a benefit paid to the widows and minor children of veterans whose deaths occurred while on active military duty or as a result of a service-connected disability.

But, Cordova added, death pension is payable to similar dependents — usually in lesser amounts — when the death of a wartime veteran wasn't service connected.

Death pensions have established income limitations prescribed by law. They include the requirement that the veteran had at least 90 days of wartime service, and cover the relationship of the dependent to the veteran and the total income of the claimant.

Cordova stressed that several years ago the law was changed which prevented a widow who remarried from receiving benefits based upon the service time of her previous spouse.

Special ed students relive earliest Thanksgiving

STUDENTS in the special education program at White Mountain Middle School enjoyed a Thanksgiving feast Friday which they prepared themselves.

Americans have celebrated Thanksgiving every year since the early 1600's, but often lose sight of its meaning in the rush to get to Christmas, or get an extra day off.

Students in the special education program at White Mountain Middle School (WMMS), trying to recapture some of the simplicity and meaning of this week's holiday, threw a "Thanksgiving dinner" Friday for each other and their teachers.

Students involved included Title I and "C" and "D" level students, 44 in all, who selected the menu themselves, then set up a "store" to earn money for the food they would serve.

The store was stocked entirely with donations of merchandise by L. Ray Nunley. The students also sponsored two bake sales earlier in the year.

The result was a huge spread of traditional foods, including two large turkeys, dozens of cakes, breads, pies, potatoes, squash and other trimmings.

The recipes, selected from the Better Homes and Gardens Heritage Cook Book, were as authentic as the students could make them, according to one special education teacher, Lee Rhodes.

"Before we ever started cooking, the kids learned about the recipes and their histories. This actually was an assignment in their Title I reading classes," Rhodes said.

The students then volunteered to make cookies for a Board of Education meeting held at WMMS in October. The cookies served were accompanied by a short history of the cookies written by the students in the program.

"That went over so well, we came up with this idea," Rhodes said. So, Rhodes, Jackie Branum (Title I teacher), and three aides, Diana Fey, Esther Espinoza and Lucy Servia, spent about a week helping cook the food.

Terry Wharton and Dean Hood, both WMMS teachers, assisted with outdoor cooking, and it all ended with the Friday luncheon. "The kids did the work—we just helped," Rhodes said.

In all the students made enough food to serve nearly 70 people, and it cost about $120. But, their store was so successful, they have about $180 left over . . . and they still aren't through selling everything Nunley donated. "We hope to take the kids on a really nice field trip when we're finished," Rhodes said.

MR. AND MRS. L. Ray Nunley of Ruidoso, donated merchandise to the special education students at White Mountain Middle School, enabling the students to host a huge Thanksgiving dinner Friday.

TERRY WHARTON removes a fresh pie from the outdoor oven at White Mountain Middle School. The pie was served at a Thanksgiving dinner at the school Friday, hosted by Title I, "C" and "D" level special education students.

Library program depicts life style in five countries

The United States is considered by many to be a melting pot where people of all nationalities can live together and share their personal beliefs and traditions.

To celebrate International Book Week, Ruidoso Public Library sponsored a series of five children's programs featuring five different countries and presented by people from each of those countries.

Sampis "Nik" Richardson, a native of Thailand, showed slides about the oldest country in Southeast Asia. She said the country is about one third the size of Texas and is ruled by a king and queen.

The religion of Thailand is Buddhism and most of the Buddhas are made of pure gold, which is purchased through donations from the people.

Thailand used to be called "The Land of the White Elephants" because white elephants used to be plentiful in the country. She said now, they are found only in zoos, but elephants are still used to farm and in battles.

Richardson demonstrated a traditional Thai dance, wearing a dancing costume, and taught the movements to those attending.

Ingrid Schmitz, a native of Germany, said her country is about the size of New Mexico "but it has 82 times as many people." She said many places in Germany inspired the Brothers Grimm to write the fairy tales that made them famous.

Schmitz said the homes in some parts of Germany have personalities all their own, with murals of fairy tales painted on outside walls.

Education in Germany includes much physical activity, and each child receives a large bag of candy and toys upon their arrival at school the first day.

Schmitz showed traditional dress and toys children in Germany receive at holiday time, and also taught a traditional German song.

Switzerland was discussed by Pio Ruoss, a Rotary exchange student visiting Ruidoso for an 11 month stay. Ruoss said his country would just about fit within Lincoln County but has 1,400 lakes and more than 60 percent of the country is covered by mountains.

Ruoss said Switzerland is the home of the Matterhorn, a mountain made world famous in Disneyland, and has some of the most "adventurous" skiing he's ever done. Ruoss said three languages are spoken in his country, and he speaks four, not uncommon for people in Switzerland.

Ruoss demonstrated a folk dance and shared music from his country, as well as a series of slides.

Thursday's program was presented by Habib Rehman Khan of Pakistan. Formerly a part of the British Empire and of India, Pakistan is a young country, founded in 1947, Khan said.

"But culturally speaking," the history of the country "dates back about 7,000 years," he said. It was this part of the world for which Christopher Columbus set sail in 1492.

Khan displayed numerous pictures, maps and handicrafts and jewelry of Pakistan, while Fauzia Khan and Ayesha Khan demonstrated native costuming and dances. Both classical Pakistani music and folks music were played for the audience.

Julian Mirabel gave Friday's program about Mexico. He said the Mexican people are very talented in making arts and crafts items, and many make their living selling their products.

Mirabel said the Indians who first settled the country, the Aztecs, were responsible for inventing the calendar later adopted by other countries. That tribe was also responsible for many other inventions later adopted into use by other people.

Schmitz, who organized the International speakers for the week, said she hopes to have a similar program in the future which would be geared to adults.

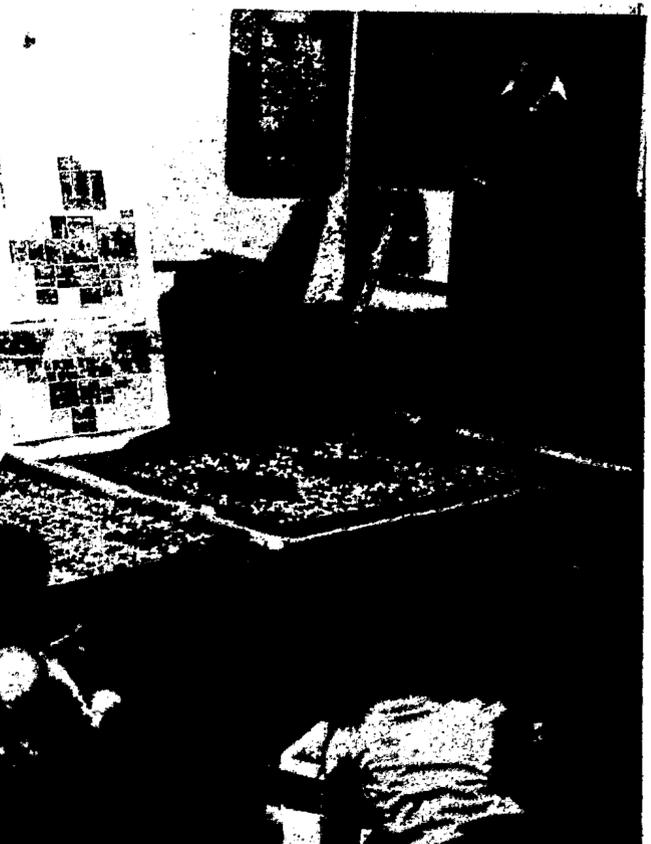

NATIVE COSTUMES of Pakistan were modeled by Fauzia Khan, above. She stands before a backdrop of brochures and pictures of her native country.

SAMPIS RICHARDSON, a native of Thailand, demonstrates a native dance in the traditional costume, which includes extremely long and, she said, somewhat awkward, attachments to the fingertips.

PINATAS filled with candy are hit with sticks until they break, in Mexico. Above, a Ruidoso youngster gets the chance to try her luck at breaking the pinata during International Book Week, held last week at Ruidoso Public Library.

HAND KNOTTED RUGS, center, pictures and maps helped give the audience a better idea of the cultural and historical background of Pakistan. Above, local children listen to a presentation by Habib Rehman Khan, upper right.

JULIAN MIRABEL showed the beautiful craft work available in Mexico during his talk Friday at Ruidoso Public Library about that country. Mirabel was one of five speakers participating in International Book Week.

THANKS, BENNY ROLLER
 For the people who don't know him, he's a little guy — only about one hundred thirty pounds, but last week in El Paso, he moved a mountain — he was fighting for the life of Danny Lujan. He talked, begged, begged, and even cried some — but when it all seemed lost, he finally got some people to listen to how important it was to do something right then. The Horsemen agreed to guarantee the money for the operation. Benny must know the Man up above personally, because he won the battle and the war, too. Now it's up to the doctors. With all the problems, Danny is still a lucky man, because he has one heck of a friend — one that's not afraid to get that extra mile. When asked how he felt, Benny said, a few weeks ago, he looked at someone and realized he loved them, and he said when the Horsemen agreed to pay, it was the same feeling — "I just wish it could last forever." Benny hasn't quit thinking as yet for doing our bit, but we wanted to put the thanks where it belongs. We wanted to tell him personally, but he won't stand still long enough. So we did it this way. You know — Benny was hurt a few years ago and almost died, too. Thank God, we still have him. We think he's special.
 Benny, we just wanted you to know.

Warrior scrimmage a success, says Nelson

Warrior head coach Barry Nelson was practically ecstatic over his troops' performances Saturday in a scrimmage in Carlsbad.

"I'd have to say the scrimmage was a success," he said. "It showed them what they need to do to improve. But really, after watching us play, we don't have a whole lot of weaknesses."

stop us. We hurt ourselves by taking some bad shots, but otherwise our offense looked super.

"Everything went real well," he said. "I'm really pleased."

Nelson split his squad into two groups, and each group played against Carlsbad.

"Defensively, I was real pleased with the way we ran the man to man. It's hard to make that work, but we've worked on it quite a bit, and we handled it real well."

Coach disappointed with lady Warrior scrimmage

Consequently, when Nelson put his starting five against Portales, the Rams won by only two points.

Ruidoso's lady Warrior cagers went to Socorro last week for a scrimmage, but to hear coach Sergio Castanon tell it, his lasses didn't do anything but arrive for the game.

"I'd rather prepare for the future than wait around for someone to get fired up," he said. "The sophs made a couple of good efforts, and the mistakes they made were hustling mistakes, not ones they made 'cause they were standing around waiting for something to happen."

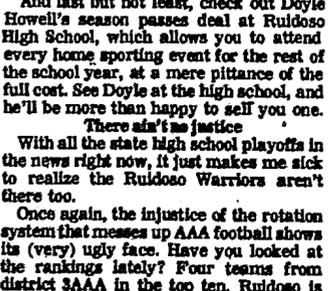

Eventually he had the second five on the floor, and the Cavemen were able to come back, winning by three points.

Castanon tried numerous combinations of different players in the hopes he would discover a miracle.

The lady Warriors "have a lot of work" to do in practice this week, he added.

Next, we have the annual Sierra Blanca-Junior Ski Racers Ski Swap, which will be November 27-29 at the Ruidoso Holiday Inn, wherein you can trade in old equipment and help out the Junior Racers — also, don't forget their "Las Vegas Night" slated for December 5, at the Texas Club.

Warrior scrimmage a success, says Nelson

Warrior head coach Barry Nelson was practically ecstatic over his troops' performances Saturday in a scrimmage in Carlsbad.

"Everything went real well," he said. "I'm really pleased."

Why is this man so happy? Well, the Warriors scrimmaged two times in Carlsbad, performing excellently in all phases of the game.

Nelson split his squad into two groups, and each group played against Carlsbad.

"The main thing we were doing was checking to see if everyone knew their assignments, both on offense and defense," he said. Different combinations of players tried different things, he added.

"We weren't too concerned with the score," he said, though the Warriors did keep a running tally and discovered they lost by about 10 points, he said.

"We were more concerned with what defenses and offenses we were running," he said. "If we were having trouble with something, I made them stick with it and work on it until we figured out what we were doing wrong and how to correct it. We worked on our weaknesses."

Consequently, when Nelson put his starting five against Portales, the Rams won by only two points. "I think we would have beaten them if I hadn't made them stick with something when it wasn't working," Nelson said.

In a return match with Carlsbad, the five starters — at this point in the season, that's Glenn Ryan, Scott Neal, Gary Jones, Bill Richardson and Rodney Thomason — built a 14 point lead against the Cavemen. Then Nelson began substituting again, trying different combinations of players and trying to get his bench onto the court.

Eventually he had the second five on the floor, and the Cavemen were able to come back, winning by three points.

He did the same thing against Portales in a return match, and that bout ended in a tie.

"I'd have to say the scrimmage was a success," he said. "It showed them what they need to do to improve. But really, after watching us play, we don't have a whole lot of weaknesses."

Nelson's biggest worry is a lack of depth, he said.

"We've got to have more experience," he said. "My starters are good, but they need some help. Several of our players will get some playing time for the junior varsity before our season starts."

Nelson cited his starters as performing extremely well, and backups Wade Wilson, Gene Reeves and Matt Roberts proved to be standouts also.

"We are better at this point, this season, than we were at the same point last season," he said. "Our offense looks real good. Carlsbad and Portales tried some stuff to shut us down, but they never did stop us. We hurt ourselves by taking some bad shots, but otherwise our offense looked super."

"Defensively, I was real pleased with the way we ran the man to man. It's hard to make that work, but we've worked on it quite a bit, and we handled it real well."

So now it's back to the old grind of work, work and more work, as the Warriors prepare for their season opener, a Saturday game with Roswell there.

"I don't know a thing about Roswell," he said. "I'm not sure how to play them, but we'll try to play them slow, fast break where we can, control the boards and the tempo of the game."

"I think we have the talent to go a long way this year, and if we make the adjustments I think we need to make, we'll be in business."

Coach disappointed with lady Warrior scrimmage

Ruidoso's lady Warrior cagers went to Socorro last week for a scrimmage, but to hear coach Sergio Castanon tell it, his lasses didn't do anything but arrive for the game.

"All we did was show up," he said. "We didn't do very good, and I was very disappointed. We froze up and they were just kind of standing around out there. I couldn't believe it."

Castanon tried numerous combinations of different players in the hopes he would discover a miracle.

He didn't find it.

"Nothing we tried worked," he said. "We've been working hard in practice and I thought we were looking real good. Then we went to Socorro, rolled over and died."

Earlier Castanon had a starting lineup of two returnees from last year and three sophomores. But, he noted in the scrimmage, an all sophomore lineup performed best.

"I'd rather prepare for the future than wait around for someone to get fired up," he said. "The sophs made a couple of good efforts, and the mistakes they made were hustling mistakes, not ones they made 'cause they were standing around waiting for something to happen. The seniors and juniors on this team have to wake up and play hard, unless they want to go through last year again."

The lady Warriors "have a lot of work" to do in practice this week, he added.

"We're gonna work on everything, fast break, our defense and offense, everything," he said. "We really need the work. Our opener isn't until December 4, but I wish we had three weeks more."

Just gleaned an interesting bit of information from a New Mexico Department of Game and Fish press release: Remember all those sheep that were captured for scabies infestation?

Well, they're real pretty much doing fine now, thanks to $100,000 in operation funds. $26,000 of that $100,000 came from public contributions. Many of the contributions came from private citizens, but groups like the Shikar Safari Club and Safari Club International, hunters' groups, gave $3,000 and $1,500 respectively.

Now here's the interesting part — see, the Game people sent letters to all the groups they could think of — that they thought would be interested in helping save the sheep — hunters' groups and conservation groups, mostly.

Interestingly — there were no replies from Defenders of Wildlife, Friends of Animals, The Fund for Friends and Animal Welfare Institute, "as well as many others," it says here, on this piece of paper.

Not only did the conservation groups not donate any money — they didn't even offer any reasons why they were not contributing to save the lives of the desert bighorn sheep.

Just keep that in mind, the next time you start thinking about those bloodthirsty, cunning killers known as hunters.

Public service department

Got lotus announcements for ya:

Ruidoso Gymnastics Academy needs new lighting fixtures for its gym, and is having an auction December 6, starting at 8 a.m., to raise money for the purchase.

An estimated $1,000 is required. But the problem is, to have an auction, you have to have something to auction off — so, they need donations of anything you can give.

Jeannie Whitwam, the lady president of the Academy, added she'll figure out a way to pick up anything you care to donate

— so give her a call at 257-5657 or 257-2539, or bring it by the gym, next to Village Hall

Next, we have the annual Sierra Blanca-Junior Ski Racers Ski Swap, which will be November 27-29 at the Ruidoso Holiday Inn, wherein you can trade in old equipment and help out the Junior Racers — also, don't forget their "Las Vegas Night" slated for December 5, at the Texas Club.

And last but not least, check out Doyle Howell's season passes deal at Ruidoso High School, which allows you to attend every home sporting event for the rest of the school year, at a mere pittance of the full cost. See Doyle at the high school, and he'll be more than happy to sell you one.

There ain't no justice

With all the state high school playoffs in the news right now, it just makes me sick to realize the Ruidoso Warriors aren't there too.

Once again, the injustice of the rotation system that messes up AAA football shows its (very) ugly face. Four teams at the rankings lately? Four teams from district 3AAA in the top ten, Ruidoso is ranked fifth — yet Silver City was the only one to make the playoffs.

I think that's disgusting.

So does Darrel Stierwalt — and I'll bet Bob Cerny and Travis Lee aren't too happy about it either. (Cerny's the head man at Tularosa, Lee mans the helm at T or C, the other schools from district 3AAA in the top ten.)

In fact, Stierwalt was telling me he went home the other day at 5 p.m., for the first time since about August 1.

"What am I doing here?" he asked his wife. He still thinks he should be preparing for a football game, and I must agree.

He admitted he would've had to give up his deer hunt this year, but added he was more than willing to make the sacrifice. Ah well — wait 'til next year, I guess.

THIS LOOMS MAN appears a bit frightened on what looms ahead during a run Sunday at Eagle Creek Ski and Recreation Area. Fortunately (for

HEY MA — this little fellow, despite being properly geared, wasn't quite sure if he really wanted to ski at Eagle Creek Ski and Recreation Area, which opened Saturday. In fact, about this point, he was hollering for help from Momma, who quickly rushed to her son's aid. Ah, the hard life of a downhill racer.

Braves have great potential

The White Mountain Middle School Braves have a new coach, few returnees from last year and a tough schedule. But coach Dean Hood expects great things out of his squad.

"We have a lot of potential," Hood said. "I look for a lot out of 'em this year. I have at least 12 to 15 really good players, and I think we'll have a real good team."

Hood has one situation most coaches would admire: 24 youngsters out for the sport.

"Yeah," he said, "that's pretty nice, but it's not gonna be any fun when it comes time to make cuts. I wish I could keep them all on the roster."

Hood describes his squad as having "more than average height, with two players nearly six feet tall, and several more 'within a couple of inches of them.'"

"I've got two real good centers, six really good guards and a whole bunch of forwards," he said. "I wouldn't hesitate to start any of them." Consequently, he feels the Braves have excellent bench strength.

The Braves held an intrasquad scrimmage Thursday night, and Hood feels his defense is currently the strongest point of the team. "Our defense looked real good," he said. "We're running a man and a 2-1-2 zone. We looked especially good on man to man, with good coverage and quickness."

Sertoma hoop tryouts tonight

Tryouts for Sertoma Little League Basketball will be tonight in White Mountain Middle School gymnasium from 7-8:30, according to league director Barry Bellingier.

Also, any boys or girls in grades 5-7 who did not register last week may sign up tonight during tryouts. Registration fee is $5, and a parent should accompany the youngster.

Offensively, though, the Braves were a little weak.

"Our offense was a little sloppy," he said. "Our shooting was a little off. By the time the season rolls around, we should have it down pretty well."

"The first we have a lot of potential."

The first action for the team will be a tournament here December 5-6 with Tularosa, Carrizozo and Capitan taking part.

Thanksgiving Week Begins
This message is being sent to you on Friday, November twenty-one, and will reach you on Monday, November twenty-four, the beginning of the week of our great American celebration, Thanksgiving Day.

I just heard over the radio that today, November twenty-one is a brand new holiday: World Hello Day. All over the world people are supposed to say "hello" to everyone they meet in a beginning of world-wide friendship.

I remember that in the towns of Valdez and Juneau, Alaska, it was a custom to say "Hello" to everyone you met on the street whether you knew them or not, and to tip your hat to all the ladies.

Our Father, Lynn Whippo Storm, after being in Alaska for a year or two came and visited his mother, Althea Reno Storm, in Los Angeles, California.

This was about 1913, and Los Angeles was a bustling, growing place full of new people from the far corners of the world.

Our dad, a great mixer who never met a stranger in the first place, was hard pressed to say hello and tip his hat to all the people he met on a busy day on the main street. After a while, his mother patted him on the arm and said, "Lynn, this is not Alaska; we don't do that in Los Angeles."

For myself, I have never quite got over this old Alaska custom. So world wide "hello day" is all right with me.

November Birthdays
Little Patrick Brendan O'Reilly, son of Mr. and Mrs. O'Reilly celebrated his fifth birthday on November sixteen. November twenty-five will be the birthday of Dena Lopez, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lopez.

The day after Thanksgiving will be the birthday of our great brother, Lynn Walter Storm, who was born a few years ago in Juneau, Alaska. Many blessings come to me as I remember Lynn's birthday.

We wish all the November birthday people many happy returns of the day and all God's blessings.

The Blessing And Privilege Of Agricultural Life
Back some years ago all of us in the family were talking about what we would be when we grew up, what we were cut out for in this world. It was certain that Mark would be an artist and sculptor because he was drawing pictures before he could talk.

After we had talked quite a bit, our eldest brother, John looked at me and said, "Dan will never be anything but a farmer." With that he put his arm around me and flashed his smile which always lighted up the world like the sun coming over the mountain in the morning.

How truly John knew my nature and what a great compliment he paid me. He placed me in the class of Washington and Jefferson, who named their occupation as farmer; and president-elect Ronald Reagan who is happiest when out on his ranch with his saddle horse.

At this season of the year when the cows come down from the mountain, and the calves walk up for a tidbit of range cubes and hay, especially Valentine Kid, the tinnest calf ever to be raised on the Storm Ranch — at this time of year I am grateful that the Lord has let me live on this sacred spot with the birds and other creatures and the cows. And I think of all those who have helped me in my life here.

The list is practically endless, and right now, as some of the cows are grazing out in front of the house on this enchanted November sunny day, I think of those who have helped me with the cows. Among these are:

Paul Jones, Bob Lambert (The Arizona Kid), Craig Whipple, Dude Browning, Elzy Perry, Tom McLendon, Lee Lawing, Arvel Runnels, Mike Gonzales, Boots Nelson, Brother Miller, Alan Beavers, Lowell Nosker, Gerald Tully, Gerry Tully, Buddy Gutrie, Ernest and Robert McDaniel and many others.

When the rains came the calves ran back with their mothers to the good grass in the back of the pasture, and were slow in coming in. Finally the last three came down the mountain, the biggest and finest calves you ever saw. To brand them on November ten, I had the help of a group of stars in the horseback and ranching world.

There were Harlan Webb, the world's greatest saddle maker and top cowboy; Alan Reynolds, former rodeo champion and A-number one cow man; Sally Harper, the great horse trainer who trained the horse, Shady Logan, after whom I named the little Storm Ranch dog; and Monte Roller, son of the great and beloved Bennie Roller.

My heart goes out to all of you who have been such a help and blessing. I send you God's blessing, and remember "Our bread cast upon the water shall return."

Shoplifting technique viewed by merchants

BY CHARLOTTE FELLERS
Staff Writer/Photographer

Shoplifting, a crime Americans support to the tune of $45 million a day in the United States, was the topic at a three hour clinic for retailers in Ruidoso Wednesday.

Sponsored by the Distributive Education Clubs of America and the Retail Merchants Committee of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce, the clinic featured the DeLancey Street and Security Services.

The DeLancey organization is a "re-education center in northern New Mexico" composed of ex-convicts who shoplifted to support their habits, such as drugs and alcohol.

Four members of the organization were in Ruidoso Tuesday and Wednesday to demonstrate that a problem does exist in the village and to explain how it can be deterred.

Ron Jones, a spokesman for the group, said "our main thing is people, not shoplifting. We're trying to turn people around, keep them from shoplifting. The reason we do this is because we feel it's some way we can help repay the debt we owe."

Jones said the program has been given to retailers in all parts of the state, and to prove their point, the ex-professional shoplifters spent about 1 1/2 days shoplifting in local stores.

A pile of goods was placed on the table and Jones said, "This all belongs to you." He said after staying in each of five stores for an average of 30 minutes, the four collected $1,025.56 worth of merchandise.

"This is not very good for us. It's a pretty slow time here I guess — there weren't many other people shopping," Jones said.

In only one minute, the ripoff artists lifted nearly ten bottles of liquor from a local establishment. In about an hour, nearly $300 worth of goods were taken from a supermarket.

The pros even told of a caper in Carlsbad a few weeks ago where they stole a Trans Am right off a new car lot.

"We used to do this for a living — but it was a meager kind of living," Jones said. He explains some of the reasoning behind the crime.

"People shoplift to break the boredom ... It's an invigorating kind of thing that happens to you when you do it ... It's really exciting ... like today, I could feel the adrenalin starting to flow when I was out there," he said.

The DeLancey group showed the numerous tactics used to shoplift and explained what constitutes shoplifting. They became more specific in explaining what shop owners can do to deter the crime, using local retail stores as examples.

Ray Garner, police chief at Ruidoso Downs, reviewed procedures for apprehension, and members of the Ruidoso Police Department, Juvenile Probation Officer Jane Parnell and Municipal Judge Sam Nunnally, reviewed the laws applying to shoplifting.

"I'm sure the awareness program in this town will be much greater after tonight," Garner said.

"Just remember, anybody, for any reason, can steal. What people look like doesn't make much difference. You've got to know that anyone could be stealing from you at any time," Jones said.

RON JONES, a reformed shoplifter, demonstrates how a small object can be hidden on a person's clothes. He said several small objects like this were taken from local retail stores for demonstrations at a clinic held here Wednesday.

RETAIL MERCHANTS and their employees returned in large numbers to listen to the advice given by the DeLancey Street and Security Company, a group of people who were once professional shoplifters, now campaigning against the crime, who were in town Wednesday night for a program.

AFTER two short visits to a local supermarket, members of the DeLancey Street and Security Company shoplifted the above items. In a 1 1/2 day swath through five local retail stores, the group lifted more than $1,000 worth of merchandise.

A ONE MINUTE stop in a local liquor package store netted the above for a group of people from the DeLancey Street and Security Company, who presented a shoplifting program in Ruidoso

Wednesday. They proved there is a problem in Ruidoso, the group demonstrated their skills while here.

Inside The Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE — Words are the work-product of government.

In this town, where government centers, they sometimes flow like wine.

But sometimes they flow like molasses, particularly when Bruce King is at the top of the heap, as he is for the next two years.

Nobody ever accused our Governor of speaking with too much precision or clarity. Sometimes an expression flits across his face as he talks which suggests that even he is amazed by his own syntax. It is as though he were translating into words a kind of interior music which he alone hears.

What results for the ordinary auditor is often only bemusement, though sometimes that degenerates into downright confusion.

Take that explanation he gave about the Corrections Board early last week.

"We need to appoint a board," he said, "that agrees with the way that it has to work out."

That is a sentence made up of words, and it may appear on first hearing to make some sort of sense. We defy you, however, to explain its meaning, if it has any.

Nor did his "clarification" of it help much.

When the amazed reporter asked if that meant there should never be any criticism from commissioners, the Governor offered this gnomic observation as an expansion of his thought:

"If I didn't want any criticism, I wouldn't have anybody on these boards and commissions."

Got it?

Is all that clear?

Do you see the level of the "communication" to which we are often subjected here in the capital city?

There are plenty more examples where this one came from.

Constant Reader Carl Turner has kindly called to this department's attention a little something called the Legislative Disaster Succession Act.

According to this little confection, apparently enacted into law in 1959, "the possibility of an enemy attack of unprecedented destructiveness made possible by recent technological developments . . . may result in the death or inability to act on the part of a large number of the membership of the legislature."

That might not seem like such a grave danger to you. Indeed, you might be able to see some attractiveness in the idea.

Legislators that, however, were moved to action by that thought. They decided that county commissioners should designate five successors for each member of the legislature (who are 112 in number, hence requiring the naming of 560 successors) and list them in the order of their preference.

What's more, that list of disaster successors is supposed to be filed with the Secretary of State, and those so designated are to be notified of their onerous burden.

We are hereby serving notice on all county commissions that they had better bring themselves into compliance with this law as written. On January 2, we intend to check to see who has not performed this serious task.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

On November 12, 1980, Joseph King, inmate of Camp Sierra Blanca, who "walked off" eight or more days previous to November 12, was apprehended in our home. We arrived home at 5:45 p.m., and found that our home had been broken into. We begin to check the house and I found the intruder asleep, passed out, or faking it on a twin bed in one of our bedrooms. Ralph had gone to check to see if the guns were missing. So when my daughter told him I had found the man he came in with his gun. In the meantime he escaped hid in a recess in the hall. When I flipped on the light switch and said here he is, it must have woke him up. Ralph was holding the gun on him and he grabbed it, then Ralph knocked him down into the bedroom, he jerked his cap off his head and put it on his fist and started for the window and my Ralph hit him on the back of the head. This knocked him out temporarily. Not being able to reach any law by phone I called the Ruidoso Dispatcher and asked them to put it on the radio and call Deputy Sheriff Jimmy Stewart as I felt he was closer and knew the way. My aunt and uncle were there and said they saw a State Policeman in Smokey Bear Cafe. I called there and got Sergeant Jack Johnson and he came right away. The deputy arrived later. The escapee had regained conscious by this time and was talking. The Sergeant took him into custody.

We noticed that he had been drinking so we checked our liquor and it was all gone but no evidence of bottles, cans, etc. So Ralph took a flashlight and went out to see if he had an accomplice and found his stash under a clump of trees. Here he had food, liquor, jeans, radio and magazines from our home. He also had a quilt which he had taken at a neighbor's home. I understand he said he had broken into four homes and probably more during the time he had been out.

From the things he had and the evidence he left behind he had been in every cabinet and room in the house. Deputy Stewart came in and took an inventory of the things that he had taken.

Normally my 14 year old arrives home from school about an hour before we come from work. It is very frightening to think what might have happened if she had arrived by herself and for that matter if I had come home alone. This day we all arrived home at once and also had and aunt and uncle arrive at the same time. Lucky for all of us that he had a weakness for alcohol.

We resent that our rights to the privacy of our home had been violated by the state's negligence in security and in notifying the public as to status of prisoners when they have "walked off"; and when they are apprehended. I believe they should beef up their security if we must be inflicted with such a "country club" for prisoners in this county. This particular prisoner I understand, had escaped from Los Lunas and brought down here so it would be easier for him to get away. I followed the work bus to Ruidoso this morning and notice that they let the prisoners off the side of the road with no one there to pick them up. When will the state ever learn they aren't going to rehabilitate habitual criminals!

Needless to say, we do not feel very secure in going home alone. How would you feel if this happened to you?

HOW MANY SHOULD VOTE

There has been much gnashing of teeth lately because of this country's low percentage of voters. In recent presidential election years, the turnout of U. S. voters has been less than fifty percent, and has declined in recent decades.

The traditional wisdom is that the more that vote, the merrier. But, in the beginning of the republic, the franchise was limited to property owners. The prevailing wisdom then was that only those who had demonstrated some responsibility and/or ambition—that is, property owners—were entitled to a voice in choosing the government.

That has been changed; and voting has been made easier and easier. Postcard registration, with reduced or limited legal resident requirements, has helped along this process, and has simultaneously made fraudulent voting easier.

How many Americans should vote? No one can say. But our poorer percentage, based on comparisons with nations of homogeneous population, is not necessarily as bad as it seems to the idealists.

In this melting-pot nation, some may not have melted. Some don't understand the language, laws or traditions. They are, conceivably, in our present circumstances, unable to vote intelligently, as informed citizens.

This is unfortunate, but it's not necessarily a tragedy. The answer is to speed the educational and Americanization process—at which the nation has been rather good at for centuries now.

There are other Americans who lack ambition, the desire to work, etc. Whether they vote is not of crucial importance. Some think there are already too many millions voting primarily with their hands out—for whoever will give them most.

Without knocking the general principle that an educated and active electorate is the best insurance for democracy, it's also true that no one knows just what percentage of participation in presidential elections is best for the country's future. Our record could be improved, but just how many should vote is not as simple a proposition as it initially sounds. And there is some merit in the claim that if only those who care, and follow events, vote, the selection may be better than otherwise. — The News, Santa Rosa.

The question of the 12th District Attorney's race may have been settled by the time you read this.

But, regardless of which way it is settled, it seems patently clear to us how it should be/have been done.

The State Attorney General said it all — The intent of the voter, if it can be discerned, is paramount.

Steven Sanders and his supporters had everything going for them in that he was listed on the ballot. Just pull a lever, and no mistake could be made.

If James Weldon is defeated on technicalities when any reasonable person would have been able to determine a write-in voter's intent, then the majority of the voters will have been cheated out of representation by their candidate. — kg

GOT A MITE COOLISH

The temperature's plunged the necklines of the flapper era . . . back in the 1920's . . . and that snow was more'n welcome than was.

Just the other morning, whilst peering out the kitchen window in the cold, gray, and less in the village. Light of dawn . . . before my eye. The following tableaux did unfold . . . one neighbor's dog was pursuing another neighbor's cat, with the chase and the ship chaser both maneuvering much in the manner of the much heralded captured duck . . . why neither of 'em seemed to have their hearts in the game. . . . Then there were the grey birds at their feeder . . . and while they wasn't too blue, I'd a sworn that the tinge coming off their fluffed feathers was sorta bluish . . . and my regular, faithful, always puffing, 6:30 a.m., jogger jogged by . . . kinda emulating the galts of the aforementioned canine and feline.

But there was one rosy aspect to that three degree . . . that's above . . . thermometer reading . . . the sun's first rays bathed Old Baldy in a truly rosy hue . . . rosy enough that I forgot all about the blue gray birds.

A REAL ELECTION TIZZY

Speculation is running high that Representative Manuel Lujan might up and give up his seat in Congress, if he gets the call from President-elect Regan to become Secretary of the Interior . . . which eventually'd have the voters in the First Congressional District in quite a tizzy.

Presumably . . . 'cause guessing what Governor King'll do concerning special elections if mostly non-productive . . . if Bruce Baby'd call a special election . . . if Lujan quits . . . 'cause there ain't no way he can appoint David to fill the seat . . . and you can think your own thoughts about the political repercussions that'll surely erupt, if'n Manuel gives up his seat.

Why Democrat candidates . . . along with GOPers . . . would appear in droves . . . and campaigning would be more'n a mite interesting . . . 'cause the hopefuls'd really be hoping . . . without an incumbent to run against.

'Course there could be party nominating conventions . . . with the outcome up for grabs . . . fair game for one and all . . . and what'd really add spice to the pot of political stew, would be if'n David King'd toes his hat in the ring . . . but probably not, being he claims he got educated this fall in campaign tactics.

SKIING TIME'S COMING

That blanket of snow in Harmony Valley changed things here in the week-end . . . and it'd even been more welcome than was. . . . and less in the mountain than was.

Anyhow . . . my hear tell . . . the folks as groom the slopes for the skiers was out grooming . . . making hand made snow with nature made . . . getting things all the ship chaser for a real sking Thanksgiving . . . and with all of the groomers wishing a lot more snow'd fall out of the skies . . . mostly so's their hands wouldn't get so cold handling the snow making machinery.

And down here in Harmony Valley . . . considering all that's going on on the slopes . . . folks is busy preparing for an influx of skiers over the coming weekend . . . 'cause they're bound to come . . . 'cause they know sking opens here Thanksgiving Day . . . a condition for which most skiers is thankful.

And, man, how the sking's fever's spreading . . . why, I was told . . . and reliably . . . that down Hondo Valley, Danny Storm'd hunted around finding the skills he used up in Valdez, Alaska . . . way back when . . . and that further, Dan'l was hunting for his lump of beeswax . . . but not very hard . . . mainly because he couldn't find his poles . . . or so the rumor went.

RONNIE'S HOME FREE

'Twas Thursday even last . . . whilst in the midst of quaffing a refreshing ice tea . . . and thinking about national politics . . . that my thoughts were interrupted by Shakey Pete . . . who, after latching onto an ice tea for himself up and said he figured that "Ronnie Reagan's home free."

Near's I could gather . . . twint Shakey's slurps and lip smacks . . . what he said was . . . "Ronnie's gonna have a snap . . . all he's gotta please is the folks in 44 states . . . 'cause he can ignore the six states and D.C., who chose not to go along with him . . . and please'n folks in 44 states has just gotta be easier than please'n all the people . . . why even Barnum knew you can't please 'em all . . . and if'n Reagan please's that many people — why he'll be a cinch for re-election . . . if'n the Democrats don't lay the hex they used on Carter on him."

ANGORA GOATS STRIP wavy leaf oak brush leaves from the highest point they can reach.

Forest experimenting with goats to control wavy leaf oak brush

One hundred biological vegetation manipulators are hard at work in an experimental project in Curtis Canyon on the Mayhill Ranger District of the Lincoln National Forest, busily chomping away to retard the growth and spread of wavy leaf oak brush.

For those of us less familiar with modern scientific terms, a biological vegetation manipulator, in this case, is an Angora goat.

The project is designed to see if the goats can be used to control wavy leaf oak brush, which covers a lot of the National Forest in the Mayhill District, under grazing permit to Elmer Curtis. This area was in the Allen Canyon fire, which burned over 15,820 acres in 1951.

District Range conservationist Mike Rising explained that if some of the competition from wavy leaf oak can be reduced by the goats, other forages should increase. The goats will also keep other forms of browse in an available form beneficial to the area deer population.

Side benefits, if the project is a success, may be to use goats to maintain fuelbreaks and burned areas on the Forest, Rising said, adding that future use of the goats on the Forest will depend to some extent on how much grass they actually consume, and some testing in the use of electric fences.

The Curtis experiment looks good so far.

As Curtis and Rising expected, the goats' initial feeding area is as high up the ridge, across the top of their 30 acres pasture as they can get. They have completely stripped the browse from the fence down the hill about 40 feet. The damage done to grasses in the area was minimal.

Rising suggested that in the future, an electric fence could be used to keep the goats eating in exactly the area their owner wants them.

Curtis doesn't expect problems by way of diseases, though proper management at clipping time is crucial. Predators might present some problems, but then perhaps not. A 100-pound Angora wether is a tough animal. Ask a shearer.

New Orleans Zoo now has pair of red wolves

The United States Fish and Wildlife Service has announced that an adult pair of endangered red wolves, only 40 of which remain in the world, arrived at the Audubon Zoological Garden in New Orleans, Louisiana, from a captive breeding center at the Point Defiance Zoo in Tacoma, Washington. The New Orleans zoo will become the second captive breeding site for the red wolf, which is now extinct in the wild.

"It's a big step in the recovery of the red wolf," said Curtis Carley, an endangered species biologist and wolf expert with the Fish and Wildlife Service. "Since 1973 we've captured the last remaining wolves in the wild. Our next step is to build their numbers in captivity."

The Audubon Zoological Garden will exhibit the wolves in a two-thirds acre enclosure, and has developed special interpretive signs and programs to inform visitors about the wolves. Biologists hope the wolves will breed there next spring.

"One of our chief priorities in developing the new Audubon Zoological Garden is to educate the people of Louisiana about the State's wildlife," said Ron Forman, director of the zoo. "The red wolf, which is an important part of our heritage, will add a new dimension to our education program."

The red wolf once ranged in the southeastern United States from central Texas to southern Missouri and eastward to the Atlantic Ocean. A remnant population of under 50 wolves existed near the Gulf coast on the Texas-Louisiana border, but was threatened with cross breeding with the much more abundant coyote. Trapped by an increasing human population, changes in land use and predator control activities, the wolf declined rapidly since the early 1900's. Individual wolves became isolated and coyotes moved into their range. Interbreeding with the coyote led to a "hybrid swarm" which invaded the final range of the red wolf.

Last July the Fish and Wildlife Service closed a field station in Beaumont, Texas, that was opened in 1973 to capture the remaining pure-blooded red wolves in the area. A total of 19 males and 21 females were captured in that period, and were sent to the Point Defiance Zoo in Tacoma.

The long range objective of the Fish and Wildlife Service is to reestablish the red wolf in two or more areas within its historic range. As a first step, the Fish and Wildlife Service successfully completed a translocation experiment in 1978 in which a pair of red wolves was released on an island off the South Carolina coast.

Forest, rangeland's wildlife described in free pamphlet

There's no use looking for moose on a desert, or brook trout in an ocean, or prairie chickens in the forest. Each of these animals is found "only where its preferred kinds of food and shelter are present," explains a free publication available from the National Wildlife Federation (NWF).

"Wildlife of Forests and Rangelands," a 12-page illustrated booklet, takes a look at what animals you can expect to find roaming the nation's vast ranges and wooded areas.

The NWF publication also explains how human encroachment has changed the habitats of many animals. "One of the most fascinating wildlife stories on the entire continent concerns the changes in the habitat of wildlife which have accompanied the progress of civilization," the pamphlet states.

As an example, the booklet notes that as pioneers moved westward and began to farm, the deer, elk, and bear which once inhabited the rangelands were forced to spend more of their time in and near the mountains and forested areas.

The grizzly bear once roamed the entire West but is now confined to a limited area in the northern Rocky Mountains, with Yellowstone National Park a last stronghold. Because the prairie dog was non-migratory and unable to move to other terrain, it was virtually destroyed. The prairie dog "towns" that once stretched across the rangelands are now rarely seen.

The NWF publication described not only the wildlife of rangelands and forests, but also those animals which can live almost anywhere, such as the coyote and white-tailed deer. The pamphlet explains why each animal is well-suited to its chosen habitat. Moose, for example, "need wet meadows where water plants, willows, alder, and other preferred foods are available." Alaska, Idaho, Maine, Michigan, Montana, Utah and Wyoming have such "moose country."

"Wildlife of Forests and Rangelands" is one of a special series of four publications from NWF, the nation's largest conservation education organization. The others describe wildlife of farm and field, wildlife found in lakes, streams, and marshes, and wildlife found along the seacoast and in coastal waters.

Single copies of "Wildlife of Forests and Rangelands" are free; additional copies are 10 cents each. To order write: The National Wildlife Federation, Dept. 9, 1412 16th Street, N. W., Washington, D. C. 20036.

South Dakota artist designs 'Duck Stamp'

South Dakota artist John S. Wilson's tempera painting of male and female ruddy ducks sitting on the water won the 1981-82 Federal "Duck Stamp" competition on November 6 at the Department of the Interior in Washington, D.C.

Wilson's entry topped a record 1,507 paintings in the Federal Government's only regularly sponsored art contest. The 51-year-old sign painter and designer from Watertown, South Dakota, joins the prestigious circle of "Duck Stamp" winners in the art world.

The design will be reproduced on next year's Migratory Bird Hunting and Conservation Stamp which must be purchased by waterfowl hunters 16 years of age or older. Many stamps are also bought by other conservationists interested in habitat preservation and by a growing number of stamp collectors. Revenues from sales of this stamp, popularly called the "Duck Stamp," are used to buy additional wetlands and waterfowl habitat under a program administered by the Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Wilson, a self-taught artist, has worked for the Stein Sign Display company in Watertown for 25 years as a designer of plastic and neon signs. "I'm in a date," he said when telephoned at his job and informed of his first-place win. "I'm just shaking like a leaf! I imagine the 'Duck Stamp' is going to mean a big change in my life."

The first South Dakotan to win the contest, Wilson had competed unsuccessfully in the last two Federal "Duck Stamp" showings with his designs of buff-head ducks and blue geese. He chose to depict the drake and hen ruddies on a pool of still water "simply because it was a species that hadn't been on the stamp in a long time and I felt that there wouldn't be too many others to compete against. I strive for accuracy and for something that I think people will like."

The ruddy is a small species of duck, averaging 15 inches long and little more than a pound in weight. The ruddy duck often dives or swims away from danger rather than flying; when flying, its small wings beat so fast they resemble those of a tumblebee. To produce his entry, the artist used a medium called "gouache," a premixture of opaque colors ground in water.

Wilson was the winner of the 1979 and 1981 South Dakota pheasant restoration stamp design contests. He also placed second and fourth in two recent State "Duck Stamp" contests.

A fisherman and hunter of ducks, geese, and pheasants since his childhood, Wilson first became interested in wildlife art in the past 5 years, when the State contests attracted his attention. After graduating from high school in Sisseton, South Dakota, he spent eight years in the United States Air Force. He went on to complete a year of training in architectural drafting before becoming a sign painter, first in Aberdeen and later in Watertown.

Daniel S. Smith of Mincepolls, Minnesota, won second place this year, with his painting of lesser snow and blue geese, and Ann D. Dohoney, of Shawnee, Kansas, took third place with her depiction of a redhead duck.

Judges for this year's contest were Dr. Frank Bellrose, wildlife specialist with the Illinois Natural History Survey, of Havana, Illinois; Charles Cadieux, past president of the Outdoor Writers Association of America, Inc., of Albuquerque, New Mexico; Billy Joe Cross, regional supervisor for Ducks Unlimited, Inc., and a former member of the Mississippi Game and Fish Commission, of Clinton, Mississippi; Cindy Dixon Connor, editor of Waterfowler's World, of Memphis, Tennessee; and Hugh Galbreath, wildlife manager of the Remington Farms Game Management Area in Chestertown, Maryland. Leonard Buckley of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing served as technical advisor.

Prior to 1948, wildlife artists were commissioned to provide a design for the annual stamp. Since that time, the design has been chosen by a contest open to all artists who are residents or citizens of the United States. Contestants are allowed only one entry apiece.

The winner's financial reward is significant. The Federal Government offers no prize to the winner other than a sheet of the following year's "Duck Stamps," but commercial wildlife art dealers in the past have been eager to market limited edition reprints of the design. The contest has also served to uncover the talent of previously unknown wildlife artists.

The colorful stamps constitute the longest running, annually issued series of stamps in United States revenue or postage stamp history.

Since 1934, when "Duck Stamps" first went on sale, nearly 2.5 million acres of prime waterfowl habitat have been acquired with over $367 million in revenue ($225 million from "Duck Stamp" receipts and $142 million from accelerated wetlands acquisition loan funds). By purchasing the stamps, more than 2.2 million conservationists provide over $16.5 million in revenue yearly.

The Interior Department encourages non-hunters who also enjoy wildlife through photography, birdwatching, and other activities to contribute to the United States conservation effort by buying a "Duck Stamp." Next year's $7.50 issue will go on sale at post offices July 1, 1981.

STACKING WOOD on a beautiful fall day can be a leisurely process, said Charlie Booher. He admitted, though, the stacking wasn't quite as leisurely as sitting in front of his fireplace, watching the wood burn.

Goldberg named executive director of health group

New Mexico Health Resources, Inc., (NMHR), has appointed David M. Goldberg of Florence, Oregon, as its executive director. The non-profit corporation was formed by members of the Governor's Task Force on Rural Medical Practice to provide support and expertise in recruiting and retaining health care personnel for medically underserved areas of the state.

Goldberg is currently administrator of Rudesport Family Health Care, Inc., in Dundas, Oregon. He received his Master of Science in Health Care Administration from the University of Colorado Medical Center in 1977 and has done extensive consulting and writing in the field of rural medical practice. He will serve NMHR on a consulting basis until his permanent move to New Mexico in early 1981.

"I am looking forward to my new position," Goldberg said. "New Mexico is one of the most rural states in the nation and therefore one of the biggest challenges in the country as far as providing the needed health resources and medical personnel."

Goldberg went on to state, "The people already involved in this effort — those who had served on the Governor's Task Force and who have now formed New Mexico Health Resources, — are dedicated to bringing medical care to all areas of the state. They are dynamic, their commitment is total, and they are outstanding representatives for the health care field. I am anxious to begin working with them."

Contributions to the new corporation, in the form of funding and in-kind donations of office furniture and staff support, have been made by Presbyterian Hospital Center, St. Joseph Hospital, Lovelace Medical Center, University of New Mexico School of Medicine, New Mexico Hospital Association, New Mexico Medical Society, and New Mexico Professional Standards Review Organization. Additional financial support is being sought for the organization and will be used to assist New Mexico communities in recruiting and retaining the health personnel needed to serve their citizens.

Officers of the corporation include Frank G. Hease, M.D., President, Chairman of the Governor's Task Force on Rural Medical Practice; John Lopez, vice president, mayor of Silver City; and Max D. Bennett, Ph.D., secretary/treasurer, of the University of New Mexico School of Medicine. Other executive committee members include Richard Barr, executive vice president of Presbyterian Hospital Center; Mardoqueo Chacon of Centro Campestre de Salud in Espanola; Andres Hernandez, representative of the Local Health Care Committee in Santa Rosa; Richard Kosoll, M.D., of Presbyterian Medical Services in Cuba, New Mexico; Betsy Montano of the State Health Coordinating Council; and Carol Tinker, past president of the Las Vegas Chamber of Commerce.

Update course for physicians at Alamogordo

Dr. Joseph M. Bicknell, chairman of the neurology department at the University of New Mexico (UNM) School of Medicine, will conduct a free "update" course in neurology for physicians December 2, at Gerald Champion Memorial Hospital in Alamogordo.

The program, co-sponsored by the hospital and the UNM Office of Continuing Medical Education, has been approved for credit by the American Medical Association.

Bicknell will present two lectures and review individual "problem cases" with participating doctors in the half-day program.

Saguaro cactus lives 200 years

The expandable skin of the saguaro cactus can soak up as much as 200 gallons of water during a single desert rainstorm, according to the National Wildlife Federation.

Below ground, a network of shallow saguaro roots may sprawl over an area almost 100 feet in diameter.

This plant king of United States deserts can live for nearly two centuries, weigh almost ten tons, and grow up to 50 feet high.

Thaw your turkey early, safely

Few things are more frustrating on Thanksgiving morning than a half frozen turkey. "The way you thaw and cook your turkey will have a big effect on the safety and quality of your turkey feast," said Mae Martha Johnson, Extension food and nutrition specialist for New Mexico State University.

The safest way to thaw a turkey is in the refrigerator. This method keeps the outer surface cool until the bird is thawed in the center. However it is also the method which takes the longest time, Mrs. Johnson said.

Allow at least 24 hours thawing time for each five pounds of turkey. This means a 12 to 15 pound turkey must go into the refrigerator Monday morning to be ready to pop in the oven Thursday morning.

If you can't spare the refrigerator space for three or four days, you can thaw the bird in cold water for about six to eight hours. Leave the bird in its original wrapper and immerse it in a container of cold water. Do not use warm or hot water. This method takes about one-half hour per pound of turkey.

Another alternative is the paper wrap method. Leave the turkey in its original plastic bag and wrap in several layers of newspaper. Place it in a heavy brown paper bag. Seal the bag and place in a cool room.

The paper insulates the turkey and keeps it from getting too warm on the outside while it is thawing. This method will take about one hour per pound.

Microwaving is the easiest way to defrost the bird. It can be done in one-half hour depending on the size of the turkey and the settings available on your oven. Follow directions in the instruction book for your particular oven for thawing times and shielding directions.

If you are cooking a relatively small turkey, you may want to cook it in the microwave, too. The maximum size for a microwave turkey is about 12 pounds, the food specialist said.

The cooking time depends on how large the turkey is and whether you cook it unstuffed or stuffed. If the turkey is cooked without stuffing it takes only six minutes to have it ready for the oven.

The stuffing can be prepared separate and cooked in a covered casserole for last hour with the turkey. By cooking separately, you don't have to dig stuffing out of the bird before refrigerating the leftovers.

Here are approximate roasting times 325 degree F ovens:

Weight — 8-12 pounds, Unstuffed — 1 1/2 hours, Stuffed — 4-5 hours, Weight — 12-16 pounds, Unstuffed — 3 1/2-5 hours, Stuffed — 4 1/2-6 hours, Weight — 16-20 pounds, Unstuffed — 4 1/2-6 hours, Stuffed — 5 1/2-6 1/2 hours, Weight — 20-24 pounds, Unstuffed — 5 1/2-6 1/2 hours, Stuffed — 6 1/2-7 1/2 hours.

The turkey is done when a meat thermometer in the thigh registers 185 degrees F. If you don't have a thermometer the turkey is done when the thick part of the drumstick feels soft when pressed between your thumb and forefinger and when the drumstick moves easily. Stuffing in a turkey must reach 165 degrees F in the center to be safe.

The cooked turkey should stand for 15 to 30 minutes at room temperature for easier carving, Mrs. Johnson said.

THE END TIME HARVESTERS, an evangelical drama group, will appear at the Upper Canyon Coffee House at 7 p.m., November 26. The group will appear at churches and on the streets of several large cities throughout the Southwest.

SALUTE TO CHAMBER MEMBERS

This is a regular feature in the Monday edition of this newspaper to introduce the members of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce

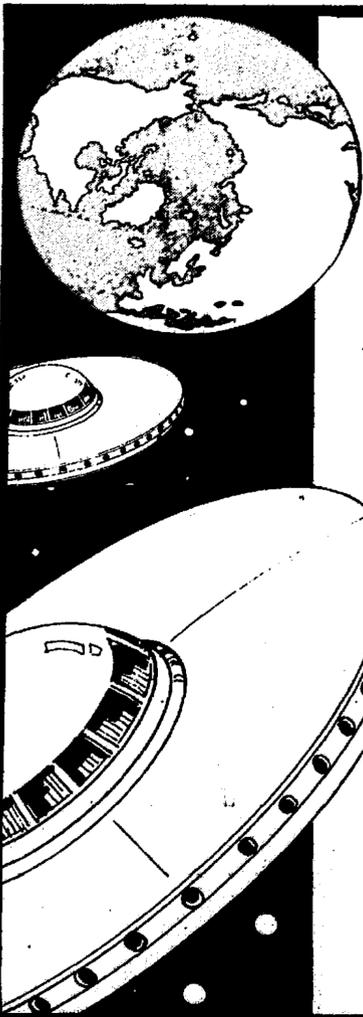

LA JUNTA GUEST RANCH is owned and operated by Robert and Katherine Finley, pictured, who bought the ranch and joined the Chamber in 1970. They have cabins with fireplaces, kitchens, carpeting and queen-sized beds. The commons area outside is equipped with barbecue pits, picnic tables and "a rocking chair on the porch overlooking Sierra Blanca or the Capitan Mountains." The Finleys' five-acre secluded resort is equipped to sponsor outdoor games for large or small groups and children, and a large game room in the main house is open to all guests. A ski house which sleeps 15, is available year round for groups. Located six miles north of the stoplight on Highway 37 and left at the sign, then up the mountain, the ranch's telephone number is 336-4361.

CHARLES HAWTHORNE, attorney, with offices at 2902 Sudderth, has been practicing law in Ruidoso since August 1978. He is a 1972 graduate of the Texas Tech School of Law and practiced in San Angelo, Texas, for six years prior to moving here. In Texas, he was primarily involved in banking, real estate, and corporate matters. Since moving to Ruidoso, he has specialized in real estate and business law, including cases involving horse trainers and owners. He is married to Linda Hawthorne, a teacher at White Mountain Elementary School, and they have two children. Hawthorne's business hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday and the telephone number is 257-9516.

PBS in the spotlight

'Life on the Mississippi' comes to public television

LIFE ON THE MISSISSIPPI, a two-hour film dramatization of Mark Twain's epic chronicle of a young man's coming of age on America's greatest river, will air on Monday, November 24, as a special Thanksgiving week presentation on PBS. * Filmed entirely on location—largely aboard a genuine Mississippi steamboat—LIFE ON THE MISSISSIPPI is that rarest of television offerings: a major film made specifically for television.

LIFE ON THE MISSISSIPPI is a fictionalization of 18 months in the life of Mark Twain when, as a young man, he fulfilled a long dreamt-of boyhood ambition to become a river pilot. After a difficult apprenticeship during which he braved the hazards of the deceptive, ever-changing river and a potentially disastrous brush with an egomaniacal pilot, he earned his license—and, with it, a new maturity.

Robert Lansing (right) stars as Horace Bixby, the experienced pilot who assumes the responsibility for 'learning the river' to an eager, if often bumbling, cub; and David Knell (left) plays the apprentice 'Sam,' a figure based to some extent on Twain himself. The large cast also features James Keane, Donald Madden, John Pankow, Stanley Reyes and Marcy Walker.

The host for the series is one of America's finest and best-known novelists, Kurt Vonnegut, Jr., who is himself a Twain scholar. Vonnegut will offer background and personal commentary on each produced work.

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT: There's good news for Americans who can't get enough of hating bad guy J.R. Ewing of TV's nighttime soap opera 'Dallas.' Both CBS and NBC will feature villainous clones of the amoral oil baron on two new shows. Sheriff Titus Temple of NBC's 'Flamingo Road,' premiering in January and Guy Middleton of CBS's 'The Secrets of Midland Heights' are so nasty that they make J.R. look like an all-around nice guy. It's no surprise that these new cruel characters were created by the folks at Lorimar Productions, the same prime-time producers of the wildly popular 'Dallas' and 'Knots Landing.' 'Flamingo Road' story editor Jeff Freilich feels that "viewers will be able to live out even more fantasies" with the show. "It's a very steamy story about aristocratic Southern people who carry on like they came from the wrong side of the tracks," he told me. "It's not really like 'Dallas,' but has a similar feeling."

CONSUMER NEWS WIRE: Television, whose new season was virtually kayoed by the impact of the actors strike, has bounced back with incredible vigor. NBC, in fact, made a virtue of the crippling dispute by slamming in with a flurry of block-busters while ABC and CBS were still picking themselves up from the floor. NBC's first heavyweight blow came with 'Shogun.' This adventure saga of ancient Japan, made at a cost of $21 million, captured the imagination of America. As millions across the country quit bars and stores to catch episode three, federal arbiters gave the first hint of peace in the two month old strike. NBC, keen to consolidate their success, were already plugging their next blockbuster, a rerun of 'Centennial.' A jubilant NBC executive told me, "It's been a long time since there have been so many smiling faces around here." NBC is, likewise, buoyed by the fact that many of its new series were unaffected by the strike.

Suzanne Somers and Joyce DeWitt are upset at the news that John Ritter is quitting 'Three's Company' after this season. He has been promised a series of his own next year. Erik Estrada was offering more than just his autograph on Hollywood's picket lines. For girls who'd buy tickets for the Screen Actors' Guild fund-raiser he was cheekily suggesting they could spend the weekend with him.

TV CLOSEUP: If Roberto Duran had been paid the money usually offered to more prominent champions, he might own the Panamanian mint today. Consider the fact that Duran has never lost a title fight. He won 13 in the lightweight class and beat Sugar Ray Leonard in his first effort at a welterweight title match. Despite his ring prominence, Duran's share of the receipts in the Leonard fight was $1.5 million, compared to about $9 million for Sugar Ray. The second Duran-Leonard fight, commanding a top-scaled price of $1,000 for 1,200 ringside seats in the Louisiana Superdome, assures Roberto of his best financial fight night since he turned pro in 1967. If one were to guess at $8 million for Duran, that person would probably be in the right neighborhood. A $6 million figure has been mentioned for Leonard. The battle is set for Tuesday, November 25. There is no home TV or radio for this fight. Ticket information for the Superdome is available by calling 1-800-535-7918.
