CARRIZO SEES GRANT, OR GRANT/LOAN

Golf course needs funding

BY GWYNETH JONES
Staff Writer/Photographer

A state official has recommended that the Town of Carrizozo appeal to the state Board of Finance for an emergency grant, or combination loan/grant to forestall, which would allow the Carrizozo Golf Course and Recreation Area to remain open, at least until another source of ongoing funding can be found.

Al Romero, head of the Local Government Division of the Department of Finance and Administration (DFA), recommended that letters requesting the emergency funds be written to the DFA secretary Kay Marr. He urged the town leaders, county commissioners and school officials, as well as officials of neighboring communities, to work together on the fund request.

Before making that recommendation, however, Romero outlined a number of alternatives for obtaining state funding—and the difficulties involved. Primary funding for the facility had been donated annually by Jackie Spencer in the past, but those funds will be discontinued as of January 1, 1981. About $75,000 to $100,000 would be needed annually to maintain the course in its present condition.

Although the state has accumulated a large surplus, funds from that surplus can only be appropriated by the state legislature, Romero said. Lincoln County may face difficulties in obtaining the money from the governing body because it

THE CARRIZOZO RECREATION AREA, which includes the lake above, a golf course, Little League ballfield, picnic and playground areas, is in danger of closing unless a permanent source of operational funding can be found. A group of interested county citizens met Thursday with Al Romero of the Department of Finance and Administration, to seek his advice on the matter.

DR. W. D. HORTON, left, was honored Saturday by the Ruidoso Board of Realtors, who named him "Citizen of the Year" for his outstanding contribution to the community. Horton was awarded the plaque during a dinner at the Holiday Inn, by Ruidoso Hondo Valley Chief of Staff, Dr. Roger Beechle.

Ski Report

Sierra Blanca: Four inches of new snow fell Saturday morning, bringing last week's amount of new snow to 10 inches. Conditions are currently rated good on the Beginner Chair Three slopes, and poor on the Lincoln Chair slope, which is open to mid-way.

Eagle Creek: Base average is 15 inches, with one inch of new snow received Saturday. Boot Hill, Box Canyon and two beginner runs are open, with conditions rated as good.

For updated ski reports, call Sierra Blanca, 257-9001, or Eagle Creek, 339-4211.

News sets early ad deadlines

Due to Christmas and New Year's Day being on Thursdays, The News has set the following early advertising deadlines:

DECEMBER 22, (Monday) 5 p.m., for the December 25 issue; and DECEMBER 29, (Monday) 5 p.m., for the January 1, 1981, issue.

The deadline for news items to be submitted for these issues is noon, December 23 and 30.

Environmentalist ok's fluoride

The Ruidoso office of the state Environmental Improvement Division announced this week that some controversy has arisen over the recent decision by village trustees to allow fluoridation of the local water supply.

Although excessive amounts of fluoride in water (which occurs naturally in some areas) can be harmful, the amount which will be introduced locally is the optimum level for a beneficial effect on potential tooth decay — especially in young children, according to local environmentalist Hari Mukhoty.

The determination of the optimum level of fluoride is affected by the air temperature, Mukhoty said. In such states as Arizona and California, where temperatures tend to be higher than in other areas, a lower level of fluoride is necessary for a beneficial effect.

These effects, Mukhoty said, have been compiled from years of research into the matter in numerous cities across the country.

The surface enamel layer of human teeth contains a higher concentration of fluoride than the deeper layers, Mukhoty said, which suggests that the fluoride is absorbed into the enamel from surrounding fluids.

Enamel with a higher concentration of the fluoride has been shown to be more resistant to erosion by acids, also known as tooth decay, he said.

The amount of fluoride occurring naturally in the Ruidoso water supply ranges from .21 to .42 parts per million, Mukhoty said, while the optimum level here is one part per million.

The deleterious effects associated with excessive fluoridation include mottling of the teeth, skeletal fluorosis, and fluoride toxicity, Mukhoty said.

Mottling, which can result eventually in pitting of the tooth surface, is rare when less than two parts per million of fluoride are ingested. In general, mottling occurs almost invariably when the fluoride level is four to six parts per million, he said.

Skeletal fluorosis is another rare disease, Mukhoty said, which occurs only with a daily ingestion of eight to 20 parts per million for several years.

Acute fluoride toxicity usually results from ingestion of an insecticide containing fluoride compounds, he added, and generally produces nausea and vomiting. "It does not result from exposure to therapeutic fluoride," he said. An entire tube of fluoride containing toothpaste, he added, does not contain enough of the chemical to be dangerous.

In communities where the water supply has high levels of fluoride naturally, the excessive amount is removed before the water is dispensed to the public, to prevent the risks outlined above, Mukhoty said.

It is important, he added, for waterworks operators to handle fluoride compounds carefully. "Dangerous exposures can be caused by accidental dumping of fluorides, inhalation from dust or vapor in the atmosphere or by direct contact causing acid burns," he said.

Although no such exposures have been reported, the possibility "should never be minimized," he said.

Permits required to cut forest Christmas trees

If you plan to cut a Christmas tree in Lincoln National Forest, better plan to carry a permit with you or expect to have the tree seized and pay a fine, local forest service officials announced Friday.

Forest officers on Smokey Bear Ranger District have already seized five would-be Christmas trees and have fined all five violators, who did not get permits to cut on forest lands.

"We began issuing permits on November 5; they cost $1 and all 1,000 of the available permits were issued within a month," Mike Funston, timber specialist on Smokey Bear Ranger District, said.

He added that other ranger districts experienced similar sellouts, and forest officials are now cracking down on all violators.

Funston said this year's Christmas tree cutting area is the same as last year's, in the Hale Lake area. He said half of the cost of the permit remains in the district for rehabilitation of forest lands, such as erosion control.

Funston said that patrols over the past two weekends turned up five violators, one of whom was fined $100 and gave up three trees and a third of a cord of wood. "He cut the tops off three Ponderosa pines and then cut the lower parts into firewood," Funston said.

Two other violators were fined $50 and their trees were seized.

"If we catch someone cutting a tree illegally, they are subject to a fine of up to $500 and we will seize their tree for evidence," Funston said.

Seized trees are not wasted, however; Funston said the five already seized have been loaned to Ruidoso Public Library and Nob Hill School until they are needed in court. Funston said more public institutions are due to receive freshly cut trees, if any more are seized.

"We hope we don't have any more illegal cuts," Funston said, "so to prevent this problem the following steps should be taken."

Race track improvement cancelled

Plans to expand the grandstand facilities at Ruidoso Downs Race Track were cancelled Saturday by the board of directors of Ruidoso-Sunland, meeting at Sunland Park.

Ruidoso-Sunland's general manager Finley MacGillivray attributed the board's decision to "an exceedingly high" bid of $1,514,498, not including an estimated $200,000 in preparatory expenses. MacGillivray added that the bid figure was almost double the estimated cost of the project when it was first conceived.

MacGillivray said that while high cost was the board's main concern, "These considerations included a lack of sufficient time to complete the project by the May 9 start of the 1981 season. Additionally, the board was concerned over spiralling interest rates and the declining economy. We hope to reconsider these expansion plans when they become feasible at a future date. Loyal Ruidoso patrons who have already paid for seating in the proposed expansion will have their money, plus ten percent interest, returned as soon as possible."

Cultural arts center viewed as possible

In conjunction with their effort to establish a large cultural arts and community center complex for the Ruidoso area, the Cultural Committee of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce has decided to form a fact finding group to research similar projects throughout the United States.

Committee member Dorothy Faye Kimsey suggested the formation of such a committee, acting on a recommendation from supporters of the Fort Worth Symphony.

She said the symphony supporters, who had been in the Ruidoso area this week, said financing the construction of a cultural center was "no problem," since a number of philanthropists across the country were willing to invest "millions" in such projects.

Kimsey said she was also told that a multi-purpose building which would accommodate such diverse events as ice skating, rodeos and performing arts "would not work — period." The committee agreed that this would not rule out the possibility of a complex of buildings which would provide for all the mentioned activities.

The research committee will consist of professionals in the music and acoustics fields as well as local residents. Several persons will be contacted soon and requested to serve on the committee.

Kimsey said local and state support for the project would also be a necessity. The architectural concept and the setting of the center would be of the utmost importance, she said, in drawing people to the area.

"The building is your calling card," she said. "If we can get something special enough and something fabulous enough, that will draw the people."

The Cultural Committee also agreed to pursue applications to the state Historical Preservation Bureau, to determine whether Carrizo Lodge might be designated as a historic building. The Lodge and accompanying 40 acres of land are being considered as a possible site for a cultural center.

The committee will meet again January 16, at 1 p.m., at the Chamber of Commerce office.

Reward for escapees

TAOS, N.M. — Moved, left no forwarding address.

That's the word from the Taos County Jail, as Elmer Mondragon and Cesar Antonio Trujillo made good their escape Sunday, November 16, at about 8 a.m.

Mondragon and Trujillo were being held on charges of receiving stolen property after being arrested in Talpa November 11. Their arrests were the result of a raid following investigation by local authorities of information received in a Crime Stoppers tip. An estimated $10,000 in stolen property was recovered at the time of arrest, and authorities believe the two may have been involved in the burglaries of Sierra Sporting Goods and Paul's Men's Shop in Taos.

This week, the State Crime Stoppers Commission is offering a $1,000 reward for information leading to the capture of Mondragon and Trujillo.

Elmer Randolph Mondragon, aka Jeff Smith Scott, is 29 years old, 6 feet, 165 pounds, with blond hair and blue eyes. Cesar A. Trujillo, aka Ruben Trujillo, is 21 years old, 5-7, 160 pounds, with brown hair and brown eyes. Trujillo, who had been living at Rancho de Taos, is also wanted by Utah authorities on escape charges.

The Taos Crime Stoppers program is offering a $500 reward for information leading to the capture of the pair of escapees, and persons in that area with information should call 758-8118. In other parts of the State, anyone having information on the whereabouts of Mondragon and Trujillo, should call the State Crime Stoppers Commission, toll-free, at 1-800-432-6933. If a tip leads to the capture of the two, the caller will be eligible for a total reward of $1,500. Callers to the programs can remain anonymous and still collect the reward.

Other crimes being highlighted this week by Crime Stoppers Programs around New Mexico include:

—Roosevelt County Crime Stoppers are looking for thieves who may be preparing to open a garage. On November 19, thieves broke into a garage at 200 W. Fir, and stole a one-ton Chevrolet flatbed pickup, a battery charger, and two tool boxes full of tools, all valued at $8,000. A $400 reward is being offered for information solving the case. Then on November 23, thieves stole a red, three drawer mechanics tool box filled with tools, from the back of a pickup. The metal box is two feet long, two feet deep, and about 10 inches wide, and with the tools, is valued at about $500. A $100 reward is being offered in that theft. Anyone having information on either of these thefts should call Roosevelt County Crime Stoppers at 356-8100.

—Hobbs-Lea County Crime Stoppers have posted a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest of thieves who broke into the Hock Shop at 200 North Dal Paso on November 19. Forty-three firearms valued at nearly $8,000 were stolen in the burglary. Anyone with information on the break-in should call Crime Stoppers at 393-8005.

Legion meeting Wednesday eve

Ruidoso's American Legion and Auxiliary will meet at 7 p.m., Wednesday in the Ruidoso Public Library.

Details on the sale of the Legion Building, on Highway 37, will be announced.

The highlight of the meeting will be the awarding of $100 in cash, or 100 gallons of gasoline.

Tombaugh Center acceptance set in formal ceremonies Saturday

Formal acceptance of the Clyde W. Tombaugh Space Instruction Center, Alamogordo, is scheduled at 2 p.m., December 20, International Space Hall of Fame (ISHF) and New Mexico State University (NMSU) officials announced Sunday.

State of New Mexico and the Alamogordo area," said Phil Simpson, director, "and we are excited in being able to offer this type of facility to the public."

The Center was named in honor of Dr.

Clyde W. Tombaugh, Emeritus Professor of Astronomy at NMSU, who discovered the planet "Pluto" in 1930.

A grand opening of the Center is scheduled for Saturday, January 3, 1981.

Albuquerque will host 1,000 hot air balloons

The Tombaugh Space Instruction Center, a joint facility of ISHF and NMSU, houses the only Omnimax theatre in the State of New Mexico and the Southwest and is the eighth of its kind in the world. In addition to the Omnimax 70mm projection system, the Center contains a 40-foot dome planetarium which will feature a Spitz 512 Star Field Projector, classrooms, laboratories, and a solar energy full-view observation learning center.

A special showing of the film "To Fly" will be presented for state and local dignitaries. Those who have been invited include Governor Bruce King, Dr. Clyde W. Tombaugh, NMSU Board of Regents, and members of the ISHF Governor's Commission. Formal acceptance of the building and the planetarium facilities will also be held during this time.

"We feel the Tombaugh Space Instruction Center will be a great asset to the

One thousand hot air balloons are expected for the world's largest air show here next October, the Albuquerque International Balloon Fiesta has announced. The traditional mass ascensions, always a highlight of the annual fiestas, will probably look more like "balloon explosions" when up to 1,000 lift off simultaneously, officials said.

The decision to host up to 1,000 balloons was made possible by Albuquerque Gravel Products Company's offer of a much larger launch site adjacent to and northwest of Simms Field. Simms Field has been used for the past three years. The new site, west of the drainage ditch and between Osuna Road and Los Angeles Avenue, covers approximately 400 acres. It will provide improved access for spectators and participants.

The 1981 event, October 3-11, will include sky diving teams, ultralight aircraft competition, model airplanes and rockets, blimp races, kite flying contests, helicopters and old time air show acts with wing walkers.

Marge Ruppenthal, President of the non-profit Fiesta organization, said, "This new format will be further expanded with marching bands, live entertainment, field exhibitions and many other happenings designed to generate broader community interest. We want this 10th Annual Fiesta to be a true city festival."

SANTA CLAUS' HELPERS packed 400 bags of Christmas goodies Sunday afternoon at the Ruidoso Elks Lodge. The Elks will also assist Santa Friday when he visits the students at Ft.

Stanton to distribute the bags and again this Saturday at 10 a.m., when the Elks host their annual Christmas party for children up to 12 years old.

THE MUSIC DEPARTMENT of Ruidoso High School will present a concert tonight at 7:30 in the high school gym. The high school choir pictured during rehearsal, will perform along with the concert band. The concert is free and will feature a variety of Christmas tunes.

VILLAGE HARDWARE was named second place winner in the Chamber of Commerce's Christmas lighting contest, judged Friday night.

All winners will receive a photograph of their winning entry, mounted on a plaque.

"doesn't have any active representation in Santa Fe," because of the apportionment of legislative districts.

He said the county was "broken up" among several districts, resulting in loss of exclusive representation for the county. Another problem with obtaining state or other government funding is the time element, Romero said. The area is in need of immediate help and "the bureaucracy doesn't work that way," he said. He admitted them for not beginning a planning effort "five years ago."

Romero also advised the group that they would be unable to obtain mill levy monies which had been discussed previously. Governor Bruce King vetoed a 2.85 mill levy which had been directed to state operations, and some local citizens had discussed an attempt to establish a levy in that amount at the county level.

However, Romero said, "those mills are gone," because of another legislative action which limited the production of property tax.

most always prevented golf courses from turning profits.

Other problems involved in leasing would include potential damage and/or loss of equipment, and the necessity of insuring compliance with federal discrimination regulations, because federal funds were involved in development of the course, Romero said.

At the close of the meeting, which was sponsored by the Ruidoso Rotary Club, Romero, as well as representatives of the State Planning Office and the Southeastern New Mexico Economic Development District pledged to "assist in any way possible" with keeping the facility in operation.

Permits required

When permits are issued, a map to the designated Christmas tree cutting area, and a tree tag, are issued. "We hope you will use these maps to find the right area; even if you have a permit, if you're in the wrong cutting area, you are subject to a fine," Funston said.

Know how to identify the species for which the permit was issued. "The only trees we have issued permits for are pinons, so if you cut anything else, you will be cited," Funston said.

"Don't cut the tops out of large trees and when you cut a tree, leave the lowest possible stump. Another very important step is to cut off remaining limbs," Funston said. If limbs aren't cut, the tree will sprout into a "grotesque looking tree that isn't good for much of anything."

Once the tree is cut, attach the tag to it. Funston added that only trees ten feet in height or less are available for Christmas trees, and they can be dug to replant later or cut at the stump.

"Just a reminder—the ground is wet so you'll probably have to get out and walk a ways to get your tree," Funston said.

permits required "is talk of" having counties "participate in gross receipts tax" and that whether that funding could be diverted to operating the golf course would be "up to the county commissioners."

Although a number of local citizens had suggested that the State Parks Department annex the golf course and recreation area, Romero said that was out of the question.

Leasing of the golf course to a private individual or corporation would be possible, Romero said, but he advised the group to question the motives of potential lessees. "If the city can't operate it at a profit, how could a private individual?" he asked. He said high operational costs

The flouride level in water supplies also must be maintained accurately, Mukhoty said. A difference of .3 parts per million below the optimum level can, on the average, result in one additional decayed tooth in children, according to scientific studies.

Prolonged use of water containing flourides above the optimum level, on the other hand, will produce mottling, he added. Once the optimum is determined, deviations greater than .1 parts per million, (or ten percent when the optimum is one part per million) should not be tolerated, Mukhoty said.

Four weekend traffic deaths in this area

Four persons lost their lives in Lincoln County area in three traffic accidents between Wednesday and Sunday.

Danny Fuchs, 17, Ruidoso, was killed instantly Wednesday night in Captain. Fuchs and a passenger were traveling at a high rate of speed when he lost control of the car, which rolled over 3 1/2 times, police said. Charges are pending in that case, according to State Police Sergeant Jack Johnson.

Catherine Harris and Clifton Underwood, both about 26, address unknown, were killed Friday night when their compact pickup collided headon with an 18-wheeler truck at the 281 mile marker near San Patricio on Highway 70.

Underwood apparently fell asleep at the wheel and crossed the center stripe, striking the truck. He was killed instantly, and Harris died en route to the Roswell hospital. The truck driver and a passenger were uninjured.

Steven J. Brown, 14, Cedarville, was killed Saturday near Corona in Torrance County. He was alone in the car, traveling at a high rate of speed, police said, when he lost control of the vehicle, which left the road and rolled 3 1/2 times. He was killed instantly.

Wilson's last second field goal wins it

Warriors edge Goddard in 57-55 heartstopper

BY MARK BAGBY
Sports Editor

Wade Wilson came a 15 foot jump shot as time expired Friday night to give the Ruidoso Warriors a 57-55 win over the Roswell Goddard Rockets here.

The junior guard's basket, only his third of the game, swished the net as the buzzer sounded, capping an incredible Warrior comeback from a 18 point deficit.

Warrior coach Barry Nelson breathed a sigh of relief following the game. "We sure didn't play very well, did we?" he said. "I'm a little disappointed we didn't play better, but we showed a lot of character in coming back the way we did."

Ruidoso fell behind in the early going and did not lead in the game until only 2:07 showed on the clock. Rodney Thomason, Ruidoso's all purpose center who missed the first three games due to illness, sunk a 10 foot shot for a slim 52-51 lead at that point.

Goddard brought the ball down court, missed the shot and Ruidoso's Bill Richardson was fouled as he rebounded. With a chance to put more points on the board, Richardson missed the free throws.

Trying to get the ball back, Ruidoso fouled Goddard's Trey Etheridge, who calmly sank a pair of free throws to regain the lead for Goddard, 53-52. Then he was fouled again with 1:06 left, and again sank a pair of charity tosses for a three point, 55-52 lead.

Wilson pulled the Warriors close with a basket, and then Thomason was fouled. He stepped to the line with 30 seconds left and hit the front end of a one and one, tying the score at 55-55.

Goddard took possession of the ball, and with eight seconds left, the Warriors' Scott Neal was whistled for a foul on Etheridge, who was six for six on free throws at that point.

His shot caromed off the rim, Thomason rebounded and threaded the ball to Glenn Ryan. The senior forward dribbled down court, made a perfect pass to Wilson and his jump shot from the top of the key ripped the net.

The Warriors had a chance to win it earlier as the Rockets got into serious foul trouble. But Ruidoso shot a dismal 46 percent from the free throw line, 12 of 26.

"We've got to work on it," Nelson said. "We could have taken control pretty early if we'd been making our free throws, but ... they're real important in tight games."

True, Goddard hit 15 of 20 free throws which kept their lackluster offense in the game.

Ironically, a missed free throw did the Rockets in, for out of 10 attempted free throws in the second half, only one was off target — Etheridge's.

Goddard began the game like it might walk away with it, and the Warriors were their own worst enemies, falling behind early to a 20-8 count by the end of the first period.

The Rockets' full court press took its toll as the Warriors made bad passes, turnovers and other mistakes.

Meanwhile, despite the return of Thomason, Ruidoso could not rebound and Goddard was getting four shots every time it went on offense. Ruidoso, by contrast, was averaging about one shot per offensive possession.

The second quarter was a bit better as far as the Warriors were concerned, as the hot shooting Rockets cooled down considerably, scoring only nine points to the Warriors' 15. That made it 29-23 at the half.

The Warriors pulled to within four points of the lead in the third quarter on a Ryan bucket, 29-25, as both teams started the second half very coldly. (Ryan's basket came with nearly three minutes ticked off the clock.)

But Goddard was able to rebuild its lead to seven, 43-36, by the end of the third stanza and things looked bleak for the Warriors.

The Warriors, though, with the aid of a pressing defense of their own, started forcing Goddard turnovers and outscored the Rockets, 21-10, in the final period, and only two of those 10 points came on a basket, the rest being on free throws.

The turning point for Ruidoso came in a three minute stretch as the Warriors scored nine unanswered points. Thomason got the show on the road with a pair of charity tosses, and Neal added one. Ryan added a pair himself, and then on a one and one, missed the second shot, Thomason put it up and in for two more.

Wilson finished the streak with a 25 footer that knotted the score at 45-45, the closest the Warriors had been since the opening tip off.

Ryan was the high point man with 22, followed by Thomason with 16, Wilson with six, Neal with five, and Richardson and Gene Reeves had four each.

"We played sort of like it was Thomason's first game," Nelson said. "And it was, you could tell. Everybody was making mistakes. Goddard played better than I thought they would, but we helped 'em out a lot."

"It's going to take us a while to get untracked now that Rodney's back. It's sort of like the first of the year all over again."

The win upped Ruidoso's record to 3-1 on the year, as they travel to Roswell Tuesday night to face New Mexico Military Institute, a squad the Warriors defeated 61-54 already this season.

Warrior JV triumphs

The Ruidoso Warrior junior varsity beat the previously undefeated Roswell Goddard JV quite handily, 53-39, in Ruidoso Friday evening.

The secret, according to coach Vince Collins, was just to relax.

"I've been riding them awfully hard," he said. "I told 'em to forget about winning or losing, because we've been getting too serious about it and forgetting it's still just a game."

Apparently it paid off as the Warriors coasted to their third win of the season against two losses.

"We ran our offense well, our defense was great," Collins said. "This was a real good effort, a team win. Everybody played."

Steve Sluder led the scoring with 16, followed by Tim Enjady with 10, Marc Delhotal with nine, Russ Veronda with eight, Grady Williamson with four, and Paul Jaramillo, Don Nunley and Bobby Knox each had two points each.

The key for the Warriors was the second half, as they outscored Goddard 34-23.

The Warriors suited a full roster of 14 players, Collins said, thanks to the efforts of Mrs. Jack Holland. "She made three uniforms for us so we could outfit everyone," Collins said, "and I'd like to thank her for it."

Final opponent of the 1980 half of the season will be New Mexico Military there Tuesday in Roswell.

... a column of opinion ...

Some people never learn. Take Muhammad Ali, for instance. Here he is, 33-years-old, and, after being clobbered by Larry Holmes, on his last legs. Three time world champion, he tried to come back to the ring — and failed miserably.

Now he's all set to try again. He told reporters in London last week he will fight again, probably in three months. He added he hasn't decided just who he would fight, but felt he'd be ready in three months.

Aw, here we go again. All you just don't learn, do ya? Just can't give it up, can ya? Geez, I hate to see one of the greatest athletes of all time come down to this level. He's at an age in a sport where he can no longer compete, yet he refuses to accept that.

You know, maybe if he could find some more 33-year-old fighters to punch at, then perhaps he could keep at it. I'm not trying to knock people who are out of their prime — George Blanda was always a hero of mine, but let's face it, kicking a football and going 16 rounds with a big, tough 28-year-old kid are two different things altogether.

For one thing, a football doesn't kick back. But more importantly, it doesn't require the physical capabilities 15 rounds does. That's 45 minutes of hard, grueling physical effort.

A lot of 26-year-olds can't stand it. If Ali could back up what he's saying with action, I wouldn't feel this way.

But be content with what you've done, Muhammad — the only three time world champion in history, the first to do it. I'm not trying to step on your ambition, but there are so many other areas in which you could lend your name, your status. Why set yourself up for ridicule in this humiliating way?

Who knows? Who cares? It's his life — let him ruin it if he wants.

My, how time flies

Funny how in the gridiron pre-season

speculation, everybody was wondering about how this was the Houston Oilers' year to make it to the Super Bowl, and could Pittsburgh make it for a fifth time, and what's gonna happen to Dallas now that ol' Roger (sniff) has called it quits?

And the Raiders would be dead, Tampa Bay should be mean and watch those Rams, folks.

So here we are, 14 weeks into the season, and who has the best records? Cleveland, Philadelphia and San Diego — and don't count out the Raiders, Falcons, or the Cowboys.

It's a funny game.

Pittsburgh is the one rebuilding, Ken Stabler throws more interceptions than Earl Campbell fumbles — but just barely — and Dallas hasn't missed Roger (who?) at all.

The Raiders have a castoff Heisman Trophy winner manning the show, Tampa Bay is gone with the wind and Los Angeles is a West Coast joke. The Eagles, Browns, Falcons and Chargers, meanwhile, have been racking up the wins while hardly anyone was watching. Which is somewhat understandable — who's gonna watch teams whose quarterbacks have names like Jaworski, Bartkowski, Fouts and Sipe? Quarterbacks have names like Starr, Unitas, Tittle, Morton, Morrall, Griese, Dawson, Tarkenton ... not these young upstarts with the foreign sounding names.

(I guess, though, Unitas and Griese aren't what you'd call all-American names, like baseball, hot dogs, apple pie and Chevrolet — Chevrolet? Oh well.)

I suppose Pete Rozelle's wish for league parity has finally come about. The Browns, Eagles and Chargers used to be teams to be reckoned with — in recent years they've been doormats.

And the Falcons are assured of only their fourth winning season in 17 years of existence.

As Bob Dylan once wrote and sang, "The times, they are a'changin'."

And I didn't even know he liked football, I'll be darned.

SPORTS

FRIDAY'S 57-55 VICTORY over Roswell Goddard was due, in part, to the return of 6-4 Warrior center Rodney Thomason, shown here about to block Jimmy Walker's shot. Thomason scored 16 points in his return to the court, after a long bout with an influenza virus.

Lady Warriors lose

Ruidoso's lady Warriors' home debut Saturday was spoiled by Cobre's lady Indians, 68-34.

The junior varsity lost its match too, 37-31.

"I don't have any excuses," coach Sergio Castanon said, "but everything Cobre seemed to shoot went in."

The lady Indians didn't miss many shots as they put together quarters of 22, 14, 14 and 18 points en route to the win.

To add injury to insult, the lady Warriors lost starter Lisa Shaw early in the third quarter, due to a bruised back. She is, however, expected to return to action soon.

She led the scoring for the lady Warriors with eight, followed by Kody Taylor with seven, Jan Huey with six, Patsy Almager and Bridg Almager with five each, Gleda Bob with two and Tami Shaw with one.

"We need to work on our rebounding," Castanon said. "We've got to control the ball better and get our big people to score more. We didn't play that bad, but Cobre played a lot better than I thought they could."

The loss drops the lady Warriors to 1-3. The junior varsity "looked real good" in its game, Castanon said. "They've showed a lot of improvement, and even though they didn't win, they're going to win some games."

Jeanette Weems was the high scorer with 12, followed by Robin Roberts with nine, Angela Davis and Kerry Tate with three each and Teresa Jameson and Lillian Lopez with two apiece.

Both the varsity and junior varsity will be playing their next two games at home, with a Friday contest against Captain and a Saturday match with Cloudercroft on the slate.

Area footballers named to 1980 all state grid squad

Four football players from Captain and Carrizozo made the 1980 Class A all state team, picked last week by the Associated Press.

Also, three more area gridlers were named to the second team.

Heading the list was Deke LaMay of Captain, who was a first team pick on both offense and defense. The senior was named as the first team offensive center and as one of two defensive ends.

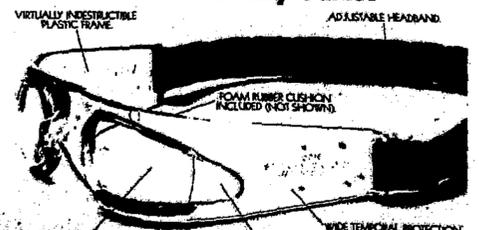

James Burch, Captain senior, was a first team offensive guard; Larry Beltran, Carrizozo senior, was the first team place kicker; and Johnny LaMay, Captain senior, was the first team's defensive nose guard.

Carrizozo's Chris Ventura, a senior quarterback, was the second team's signal caller, and Captain senior Tracy Maxwell joined him in the backfield at the halfback slot.

Maxwell was also a second team linebacker, and David Rooks, a Captain senior, was a second team defensive back.

Also, Beltran of Carrizozo made the honorable mention squad on offense.

Alcohol production workshop planned December 18 at Clovis

A one-day alcohol production workshop will be held, December 18 in the Home Arts meeting room, Curry County fairgrounds, near Clovis.

Billy Diction, Curry County Extension director for New Mexico State University (NMSU), will chair the workshop program. Registration is at 1 p.m., and the program begins at 1:15 p.m. The meeting is open to anyone interested in production of use of alcohol fuels on New Mexico farms and ranches.

The eight workshop speakers will discuss the feasibility of producing alcohol, which can be blended with gasoline to make gasohol, on the farm. The focus will be on alcohol stills that are small enough to be operated by farmers and ranchers, and on byproducts of the system.

Dr. George H. Abernathy, head of NMSU agricultural engineering department, will discuss alternate energy sources in general, and conservation practices that can be realistically applied to New Mexico farms and ranches.

Dr. George Morin, alcohol utilization researcher at the Plains Branch Experiment Station near Clovis, will describe his experimental alcohol still in terms of its design and the system's basic economics.

Morin's research work at the branch station also includes a diesel engine he is converting to run on vegetable oil.

Larry Foster, NMSU Extension livestock specialist, will discuss use of distiller's grain as a livestock ration. Distiller's grain is the high-protein residue of grain fermentation and alcohol distillation.

One economic problem with the alcohol production system is that it generates more distiller's grain than livestock feeders will need. The distiller's grain is also a high-moisture product, which means cattle would not eat it as readily as drier feed mixes.

Researchers in other states around the nation, however, are working with distiller's grain as the basis of a high-protein diet supplement for human consumption. Such a product could be in demand on world food markets in coming years. Hoyt Pattison, New Mexico legislator and a grain and sorghum producer near Clovis, will discuss tax incentives that go with on-farm alcohol production. Pattison authored the bill that provides an 80 cent per gallon state tax credit for each gallon of alcohol produced.

When the state tax credit is added to the federal 40 cent per gallon tax credit for fuel alcohol production, the producer has a potential of $1.20 tax credit per gallon of pure alcohol, or 12 cents a gallon for gasohol used as fuel on the farm. Tax credits are taken directly against state and federal taxes a farmer or rancher has due each year, and have three to four times the actual value of a tax deduction.

Danny Ashill, loan processor with the Farmers Home Administration, will define financing plans farmers and ranchers can use to put in an alcohol distillation plant.

Ray Pate, representing the New Mexico Construction Industries Commission, will explain why new alcohol stills can't be put into most existing farm buildings. Pate said alcohol stills are considered in the same category as petroleum distilling plants, so building specifications usually exceed those of most farm buildings.

A representative of the state's Environmental Improvement Division will also be on hand to explain pollution limits on alcohol plants in relation to state clean air and water standards.

George Autry, an area farmer who has a working alcohol plant near Pep, will discuss his experiences as an alcohol producer and user over the past few years.

A question and answer period is scheduled after the speakers, and a demonstration of the experimental alcohol production unit at the Plains Branch Experiment Station will begin at 3:45 p.m., time and weather permitting.

Experts scheduled to speak at the December 18 workshop say New Mexico's future in alcohol production is probably in on-farm production and consumption. The state does not raise enough corn and other feed grains to support large scale commercial alcohol plants without importing grain from other states.

AL ROMERO, head of the Local Government Division of the state Department of Finance and Administration met Thursday with Carrizozo and other interested county citizens to discuss funding options for the Carrizozo Golf and Recreation Area. Romero spoke to more than 50 people at a meeting sponsored by the Carrizozo Rotary Club.

THIRD PLACE winner in the Chamber-sponsored commercial Christmas lighting contest was the Security Bank Branch, located in the post office block. The Southwestern greeting was carried out in their decorations.

Grapplers fare well in Las Cruces tourney

It isn't a great beginning, but the potential is there.

That's how wrestling coach Gerald Ames summed up his squad's debut in the Las Cruces Invitational over the weekend.

"It was a big tournament," he said, but the Warriors finished 11th out of 15 teams there. That doesn't sound too impressive, but out of those 15 teams, there were only two AAA schools competing, Ruidoso and Deming. The Warriors finished ahead of Deming, as well as El Paso High and Coronado.

"Most of our kids won matches, which I'm real pleased with, since we're sort of inexperienced," Ames said. The team won eight matches and lost 14.

Top finisher from Ruidoso was Robert Langston, who placed third in the 187 pound bracket. He won four matches and lost one, losing to the eventual second place finisher.

The Warriors might have done better in the tourney if they hadn't been forced to forfeit the 98, 105 and 185 pound classes.

"Yeah, but the wrestlers we had did real well," he said.

Ames cited Henry Rue, Doug Schmidt, Keith Sullivan as performing very well, particularly Rue, who had never wrestled before.

"The whole team wrestled well," he said, "but because of our inexperience, we just didn't win very many matches."

Other wrestlers who competed were Marlon Palmer, Wade Torres, David Swalander and Ezell Clarke.

Next competition for the Warriors is Tuesday at Roswell High. Ames said he's looking forward to the competition.

"We looked better in the tournament than we've ever looked before," he said. "We got some good competition in a hurry, and I think we're going to have a pretty good season. We have a ways to go, but I think we're going to be all right."

Business needs more bilingualists

BY TAMARA DETRICK
UNM Student Writer

American students are bidding adieu to foreign language classes — and hurting everything from the United States economy to their own job futures.

Business and corporations everywhere need more bilingualists, and that may prove the bane of this generation of college students.

According to a 1979 government report on foreign language and international studies, only 15 percent of American high school students study a foreign language today, compared to 24 percent in 1965. Only eight percent of American colleges require a foreign language for admission, whereas 34 percent did in 1965.

Students at all levels are being turned off to foreign languages and cultures, the commission reported, because of boring or ill-trained teachers and funding cutbacks. The result is not only citizen incompetence in languages, but a deficiency in international trade capabilities and a dangerous misconception of world affairs.

The University of New Mexico dropped its foreign language requirement for admission in 1977 because of student pressure and lack of interest. Now the trend is reversing itself, according to Professor Sabine Ulibarri, chairman of UNM's department of modern and classical languages. Colleges nationwide are taking a second look at their language programs.

"Educational systems are crying out that the United States has missed out on a very valuable resource," Ulibarri said.

The business world agrees. Multinational corporations such as Exxon, World Bank, international airlines and manufacturers are complaining that prospective employees lack the language skills which are becoming more important for many jobs.

Business degrees are more valuable when coupled with a second language skill, according to Robert Lenberg, professor of international and marketing management at UNM.

The UNM Anderson School of Management emphasizes language study by offering dual master's and doctoral degrees which combine international management with Spanish or Portuguese. Lenberg believes the language emphasis is necessary now that Third World nations are emerging and English is decreasing in importance as a universal trade language.

"Observers of European business schools depict Americans as basically illiterate in international communications," he said.

To illustrate the problem, an article published by UNM Career Planning and Placement states that Pan American Worldways recently advertised 400 job openings for people with a second language skill. The company had to go through 18,000 resumes to fill the quota. Almost 70 percent of the rejections were due to insufficient language ability.

This illiteracy in world languages is especially grim now that the United States and other nations have become more interdependent, the commission reported. By 1979, 35,000 American business people were living abroad, 6,000 American companies had overseas operations and more than 300 billion United States dollars were invested in foreign markets.

Despite this productive picture, the nation's trade deficit rose to $28.5 billion in 1978. The commission claims that the country's alarming incompetence in foreign language and area expertise is one reason.

"How can you compete and exist with other countries if you can't understand them?" George Sandoval, associate director of career services at UNM, asked. "In order to compete on the world market, we must become more knowledgeable and fluent in everything, not just the language."

"We've always put the bulk of the responsibility on other countries to understand us. The pendulum is swinging in the other direction now."

The federal government in particular is concerned because its overseas embassies are staffed by people with insufficient competence in the native language and culture. The cost of teaching embassy personnel a second language which 20 years ago they could have learned in high school has reached $100 million a year.

The government commission recommended immediate steps to increase interest and fluency in foreign languages, such things as cash incentives to colleges for each student enrolled in a language program, international student and scientific exchange programs, better preparation for teachers and the reinstatement of language requirements in colleges and high schools.

The cost of reversing the trend, according to the report, would be about $180 million.

According to Sandoval, a college student with foreign language fluency doubles his value on the job market. Language skills in demand today include Japanese, Chinese, Spanish, Portuguese, Arabic and Russian, but they are especially valuable when combined with a specialized training such as computer programming, marketing analysis or business administration.

Sandoval noted that most employees usually must pass a stiff fluency test.

UNM's language programs encourage conversational skills and foster familiarity with national cultures. Each year the University conducts summer schools at Taos, in which German and French students are immersed totally in foreign environments. These six-week programs are subsidized in part by the foreign offices of Germany, Austria, France and Quebec.

Several years ago, UNM established exchange programs with colleges in Spain, Quebec and France.

One sign of the times, however, was the abandonment last year of the UNM Quito program which enabled UNM students to study Spanish in Ecuador. The reason it was dropped... lack of student interest.

National Park Service sets holiday schedules

Most of the 11 National Park Service areas in New Mexico, including world famous Carlsbad Caverns, will be open Christmas and New Year's Day, but some of the smaller monuments will be closed or partially closed, Regional Director Robert I. Kerr has announced.

On Christmas Day, visitor centers at Bandelier, El Morro, Gran Quivira, Pecos, White Sands and Chaco Canyon National Monuments will be closed. Although the centers will be closed, visitors may explore the ruins and walk the trails at Bandelier, Gran Quivira and Chaco Canyon.

On New Year's Day, all facilities will be open at Bandelier, El Morro, Gran Quivira, and White Sands. Chaco Canyon will be open but the visitor center will be closed.

All facilities will be closed both Christmas and New Year's Day at Fort Union, Aztec Ruins and Gila Cliff Dwellings National Monuments. Capulin Mountain National Monument will be open both days but the visitor centers will be closed.

Carlsbad Caverns National Park hours at the caverns and visitor center will be extended by 30 minutes to accommodate visitors during the holiday period. From December 28 through January 3, daily hours will be from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., at the visitor center. Complete walk-in-tours will be available from 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.; Big Room trips from 8 a.m. to 3:45 p.m.; surface restaurant open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Nursery and kennel services will be offered during cavern hours.

New Cave lantern tours will be available daily except on Christmas Day and New Year's Day at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. Reservations are required and may be made by calling (505) 785-2233.

For additional information on holiday schedules, contact the National Park Service Public Affairs Office in Santa Fe at (505) 988-8375.

The Dreamer

BY DANNIE STORM

A Dream Come True For The Dreamer

Many times back through the last few years, when the snow was deep all up and down the vale, I enjoyed the snow greatly — and yet even with chains on the little blue pickup, "The Blue Bird," I was pretty well stranded for a day or so.

Many times good friends came across the river through the snow in four-wheel-drive vehicles bringing me groceries, medicine, wood, and hay. And right now I send up a prayer of thanks to all those friends in need who remembered me on the days of the deep snow.

While I was over across the creek in the deep snow I was often dreaming of how grand it would be to have a four-wheel-drive pickup, large enough to haul a big load of wood or hay. Then I could go through the deepest snow, and get out on the highway.

And sure enough, during their visit up here in early December, Brother Lynn and his wife, Maxine presented me with the Christmas present of my dreams — a beautiful green and white Chevrolet four wheel drive pickup, from Sierra Blanca Motors. This pickup is powerful and easy riding, able to go up the steepest places — with a roomy bed for the wood and hay. And out on the highway, I know how it must be to fly an aeroplane. (Not that I am exceeding the speed limit... I just mean the vehicle rides so well.)

When I drove into the place for the first time, all the cows were amazed when they saw this beautiful pickup passing by. And Solo Vino, the Storm Ranch dog, lifted up his coyote ears and a look of surprise and delight shone from his bright amber-colored eyes. One of the best things about the grand Christmas gift is the congratulations I receive from everyone. So you see, here is the magic of the Christmas gift: We are all glad to see another person receive a gift or any other good fortune. This is the Christmas spirit abiding deep within us. So Lynn and Maxine are happy in my happiness, and they have brought Christmas cheer to many others, who rejoice in my fine gift.

The Christmas Mood
Christmas season brings out the best in us. And during these days leading up to the birth of our Infant Saviour, we are in that state of mind and spirit that is the Christmas mood. We remember the days of our childhood, hanging up our stockings at the head of the bed in easy reach of Santa Claus; jumping out of bed and running to the Christmas tree and all the other fond memories of our early Christmas seasons.

There is a peacefulness in your soul telling you that all is well — that Christmas once again will be a wonderful day. (This sense of peace and well-being is especially strong today, early afternoon on December eleven. It is one o'clock and the temperature is sixty-six in the shade, a summery day, and the air is ever so still, and the mountain world is a picture in purple and lilac mountain shadows and golden fields and meadows all under a special December blue sky. There is a dreamy silence to match the stillness, and now the calm, melodious call of the crow on high signals the advance of a warm wave moving in from the low country to the south. And now the north wind moves in rippling the flag out to the south.)

This sudden arrival of the north breeze is one feature of the Christmas mood. Because along with this sense of calm and well being is a feeling that the days are passing rapidly, and you are anxious to do your best to make Christmas as happy for as many as you can. The opportunity to bring happiness is vast, without limits; and you call upon all your inner resources to make the most of the days remaining to bring Christmas joy to all you can reach.

So, here we are at our best, thinking how we can bring happiness to others. And the voice of Our Lord comes to us with a message of peace and joy.

THEY MAKE IT look so easy! The Little Wheels, unicyclists affiliated with the Albuquerque Elks Lodge, were in Lincoln County Friday to present a program to students at White Mountain Elementary School. They, along with the Albuquerque Elks-Clowns, also presented the program at Fort Stanton Friday afternoon. The entertainment was sponsored locally by the Ruidoso Elks Lodge.

PRESCHOOLERS participating in Ruidoso Public Library's story hours will end the fall program December 20 with a Christmas party and a visit from Santa Claus. Above, children watch a puppet show, produced for the story hour this week.

Inside The Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE — For once let's be out-and-out selfish, like some cold Eastern state, and ask straight off from the plums New Mexico can look for what the new Reagan administration.

Probably more than we got from the Carters.

Once, if you remember, the Georgian was rumored as about to name Jerry Apodaca Secretary of Interior. Later we were told the same man might be the first Secretary of Education. Neither appointment came down. Idaho got Interior, and a woman got Education.

About the best New Mexico did was to get Alex Mercure advanced to Associate Secretary of Agriculture by Carter the day before the voters told him at the polls to pack his bags.

Now it's a new ball game back there. Though some of the state's media don't seem to have figured it out yet, New Mexico's suddenly got some power, mostly because of Pete Domenici.

Those who have been in Washington during the last four weeks come back amazed to see how far that young man's star has risen, a fact few people at home have comprehended.

Not only does he have power in his own right — being chairman of Senate Budget Committee makes him one of the biggest men in that senior body — but he has good connections.

He came out for Reagan sufficiently early to have his voice mean something — despite advice from such people as this writer, who thought he was unseemly in his haste to get on the bandwagon.

He also has built an extremely close working relationship with many other Senators, including Paul Laxalt, now a true insider's insider in the Reagan camp.

Another good plug-in Domenici has, though it is recognized by far fewer people, is the friendship of Henry Salvatori, fellow Italo-American, a Reagan advisor from the earliest days, who is still a part of the team whose words get listened to.

We're sure the Senator will capitalize on those connections for the good of New Mexico.

That, after all, is how the game is played.

To mention Domenici is not to denigrate the other members of our Congressional delegation, also of the proper religious faith for present-day Washington.

Jack Schmitt has due-bills with the incoming administration for his fund-raising for campaigning outside the party. It's equally true, however, that his mode of operating, as strictly a solo act, does not build lasting relations in the world's greatest men's club.

Manuel Lujan and Joe Skeen are trapped in a House which is still under Democratic control. That's as severe a limitation on their power as the take-over of the Senate by the Republicans is a freeing-up of Domenici and Schmitt.

In addition, Skeen doesn't even know his way around Washington yet. It will take time for some seasoning before he has the muscle to do much for anybody.

That's why we're grateful that what Domenici did during his first six years on the scene turns out to have been almost exactly the right thing for the present circumstances.

Now, when the West is moving into the White House, Pete can help guide the selection of New Mexicans to be given power.

Our turn has been a long time coming. How ironic that it should come from the Republicans, after all these years.

RADIATION LAB

Thoughts of penny wisdom and dollar folly occur when one reflects on word that a renowned United States radiation study facility may be starved out by lack of funds. This is the Laboratory of Radiation Ecology at the University of Washington in Seattle, most of whose research grants from various government agencies will soon end.

For well over 30 years the laboratory has been monitoring radiation levels, in the Columbia river near the Hanford nuclear reactor site, and on Bikini Atoll in the western Pacific where atomic bomb tests were done from 1946 through 1958. The continuation of this work is important, as is the storehouse of accumulated radiation data.

The laboratory's director, Willard R. Schell, rightly calls the data collection "an archive of nuclear history" which is "a national resource." It is to be hoped that, if the government agencies persist in cutting off grants, funding can be obtained from alternative sources. — Alamogordo Daily News.

Sense & Nonsense

U.S. Sen. Pete Domenici

There is a landmark in Washington, D.C., that stands as a monument to the workings of the federal and Congressional Bureaucracy. It is Union Station, officially known as the National Visitor Center—it is not a pretty sight.

The station, erected in 1907, as the imperial gateway to the nation's capital, smells of rot. One of the archways at the entrance has been barricaded because the roof could cave in. In its abandoned corridors, cockroaches grow on the floors, scurries the size of mice, and rats the size of telephones scurry back and forth amid shards of peeling paint and puddles of mud. The roof where the Old Union Station was located leaks and all around is a feeling of depression and hopelessness.

It is the case of the dream becoming the nightmare, the piles of good intentions and money collapsing in a heap of broken promises, petty bickering between federal agencies, underestimation of project costs, and poorly handled bids for construction and renovation.

Congress thought they had the politician's dream for Union Station in 1967—something for nothing. The plan to turn Union Station into a National Visitor Center was a hodge-podge of wishful thinking, outright deception and bad judgement. The plan, which was not supposed to cost the taxpayer anything, has instead turned into a $117 million mess, and it will cost up to $30 million more to fix it up again.

Immediately whenever something fails to work out the way it was envisioned, there are fingers pointing to the blame. The National Visitor Center is no exception. In a series of articles in the Washington Post on the problems of the Center, blame is placed everywhere and each person blamed absolves himself from the blame by pointing a finger in another direction. The Department of the Interior blames the Department of Transportation. The Department of Transportation blames the Interior Department. Congress blamed both Departments and both Departments in turn blamed Congress. Amtrak blamed everybody and everybody laid at least part of the blame on Amtrak.

In the meantime, the Interior and Transportation Departments have come out with studies which show that their department is best equipped to handle the problems of Union Station. Not surprisingly, Amtrak itself has come up with a study that shows that Amtrak should have full control of Union Station.

This brings us back to the original problem. Union Station, once a colossal tribute to the power of the railroads at the turn of the century, was left to ruin when railroad travel declined during the late 1960's. The government agreed to take over the station and renovate it by turning it into a great National Visitor Center. The idea was great, but nobody took the time to take a good hard look at realistic facts and realize how much the restoration would actually cost. Amtrak, realizing a resurgence in their train ridership 13 years later, now wants the station back.

It is, in essence, one grand mess, but one which this new Congress coming in January, can draw some hard lessons from. First, before new projects are undertaken, accurate studies of realistic cost estimates must be made. Second, no money should be committed before a project has been found to be fiscally sound and responsible. And finally, every project has its price and it is a fantasy to believe that you can get something for nothing.

Union Station stands today only a few short blocks from the Capital Building, Congress' own plum. The question most asked by visitors to the front door of the station is simply, "Where are the trains?" They are hidden in the back of the maze of Union Station and most of what was the old station is deserted today, covered with faded carpets and overhung with dark leaking corridors. E. M. Frimbo, the world's greatest railroad expert, said pessimistically after he toured the "new" Union Station, "Someday, historians will dig up this place. They will have to conclude that some terrible plague forced the people of this city to abandon the station." Walking through Union Station today, one would have to agree.

If the 97th Congress needs a motto to live by during the next two years, maybe former President Gerald Ford's motto would be a good one to borrow. "Promise no more than you can deliver, and deliver all that you promise." Union Station-National Visitor Center is a glaring example of what happens when government agencies and the Congress stray away from this goal.

editorial

Some interesting statements were made at the December 9 meeting of the Ruidoso trustees by state Highway Department representative Worth Smelser, district highway engineer, and Steve Hamilton, a department attorney.

The two men attended the meeting to request the "cooperation" of the trustees in the highway department's current effort to have all signs allegedly encroaching on highway right-of-way in Ruidoso removed.

Published statements from highway department officials indicate the department will remove signs, if the property owner doesn't remove them voluntarily. It has also been stated that the owners of the signs, if the department removes them, will be billed for the costs.

Now for some of those interesting statements.

Smelser said that the department will have to survey the right-of-way in Ruidoso to determine it's location. He also said that a list of possible encroachments hasn't been compiled, but said that it would be.

Hamilton said he doesn't know if the highway department has the power to bill someone for sign removal. He also said that the letters to sign owners, demanding their removal, could give the owners up to 30 days to remove them, not the 10 days department spokesmen have said would be allowed.

It was noticeable at this meeting that neither Smelser or Hamilton flexed their muscles. Both were conciliatory.

Also noteworthy was Smelser's statement, on the sign removal plan, "I certainly hope it won't go court."

We concur. — CD

YULE SPIRIT'S COMING

Gadooks ... but the Yule season's fast approaching ... and lots of people are getting into the spirit of the season ... and getting together to share Yule spirits ... and all such goodies as go along with enjoying same.

Why, just the other day, whilst quaffing an ice tea with Shakey Pete, he was sorting through his invites to Yule beaches ... and kinda shaking his head, 'cause he had so many he was opining it'd put his stamina to the test.

And, over the second ice tea 'twas, Shakey got to recalling some of the more impressive Yule festivities he'd participated in ... mentioned whole roast pigs, complete with apple and cherries ... and saddle of venison ... and haunch of elk ... and even mentioned the spirits he'd had ... "In the spirit of the season, you know" ... Said he'd had some slyovitz once ... that it flat took his breath away, to the extent he figured, at first, he'd swallowed a plum seed ... but then he regrouped ... 'cause he figured they didn't distill the seeds.

Then 'twas, as Shakey got carried away with his recollecting, that he truly got into the spirit of the season ... and he didn't prevail upon the waitress to fetch refills of ice tea for immediate quaffing ... and I know the spirit of the season was upon him, 'cause he sorta tends to keep an eye on his outgo more of the time than he don't. Anyhow, he got to talking about all the joys in the season ... and how good will should permeate all the people ... and he got to talking about all the phrases that can be used to express good will during the Yule season ... and he almost got away with wiping a tear out of his eye without me seeing him ... at which point I said, "Shalom aleichem" ... the following, which, he looked me in the eye, and said, "Exactly."

And there's this much about these Yule season parties ... folks sure enjoy them ... and all the visiting that goes on ... and the fun and games ... and the laughter ... and the snacking ... and sipping ... and the sumptuous repasts as highlights some gatherings.

Why, it's almost as if, during this season, folks didn't have a care in the world ... or a worry on their minds ... which leaves as one question ... is all of this good cheer ... and happiness ... whatever ... more due to the spirit of the season ... or the spirits that help bolster the spirit of Yuletide?

DAN'L'S NEW PICKUP

Christmas came a little early this year for Dan'l Storm ... sage of the Hondo Valley ... cause, by jinkles, Dan'l's tooling around in a brand new pickup ... and it's got four wheel drive ... and all kinds of gadgets ... which probably took Dan'l a bit of getting used to ... as his old faithful vehicle ... vintage undetermined, but, assuredly, of ancient age ... didn't require all that much concentration to keep it putting down the road.

But it's this four wheel drive that'll be Dan'l's undoing ... 'cause now he won't have the old excuse of being mud-bound, snow-bound, water-bound ... why, once he even allowed as how he was horse-bound ... 'cause he'll have all those dusts under the hood turning all four wheels in a surge of power ... meaning, Dan'l'll have to come a cropper out of his yard to tend to whatever business of the moment that he like to decide or best be conducted on the morrow ... or the morrow after.

NASTY OLD FLU BUG

There's something else making the rounds in Ruidoso that ain't exactly in the spirit of the season ... the nasty old flu bug ... and it sure do tend to dampen the spirits of those afflicted ... and make them all grouchy ... and achey all over ... and sniffly ... why it almost makes the victim forget that right here in Harmony Valley ... even with the flu ... that we're better off than those folks up in International Falls, Minnesota, where the snow's tummy deep to a reindeer ... and it's 20 below ... and the wind howls ... and the aroma from the paper mills don't make breathing that cold air all that much fun ... which is something you can't appreciate until you've had your sinuses cleared by that stench.

Yup ... even though we gets our feet wet once in a while when the Rio Ruidoso floods, living in Harmony Valley's as close to paradise as you'll find.

BRIEF BIT: Being's Old Saint Nick's annual visitation is just a few days away, it'd be interesting knowing just exactly how he reins his reindeer ... GD

November resulting in 41 fatalities. There has been a total of 477 fatal accidents resulting in 544 fatalities in New Mexico for the year-to-date.

Three hundred ninety-two of the fatalities involved motor vehicles, 94 were pedestrians, 68 involved motorcycles and 2 involved bicyclists. The overall traffic fatality statistics indicate a 5 percent decrease from those reported in 1979; however, motorcycle fatalities have increased about 32 percent over last year.

Traditional Carving Method for Roast Turkey

Let turkey stand for 20 to 30 minutes after roasting — then try this easy carving method.

1. Remove drumstick and thigh — To remove drumstick and thigh, press leg away from body. Joint connecting leg to backbone will often snap free or may be severed easily with knife point. Cut dark meat completely from body by following body contour carefully with knife.

2. Slicing dark meat — Place drumstick and thigh on separate plate and cut through connecting joint. Both pieces may be individually sliced.

3. Slicing thigh — To slice thigh meat, hold firmly on plate with fork. Cut even slices parallel to the bone.

4. Preparing breast — In preparing breast for easy slicing, place knife parallel and as close to wing as possible. Make deep cut into breast, cutting right to the bone. This is your base cut. All breast slices will stop at this vertical cut.

5. Carving breasts — After base cut, begin to slice breast. Carve downward, ending at base cut. Start each new slice slightly up on breast. Keep slices thin and even.

Downs maintenance crew hard at work as winter sets in

BY MARK BAGBY
Sports Editor

If you drive by Ruidoso Downs Race Track during December, it looks boarded up. Everything's shut down, there's no activity, everybody's gone for the winter. Nothing happening, right?

Wrong. There's a crew of 30 workers which, under the supervision of maintenance supervisor George Hancock, works constantly on repairing, upgrading and improving the facilities at the track. "I have a pretty good crew," Hancock said. "They have to be a good crew to do everything we do."

Which is? "The hard stuff we do today ... tomorrow we'll do the impossible," he said with a grin.

Since the 1980 racing season ended at the track in early September, the crew has been extremely busy, but Hancock describes it as a "typical" off-season.

"We keep pretty busy all year," he said. Every year there are certain chores to be done, he said, such as repair to barns, cleaning of stalls and the hauling of manure. All the manure and other matter removed from the stalls is being dumped into a large canyon on the southwest side of the complex.

The canyon is about half full, and Hancock said the eventual plan is to turn the filled up canyon into a parking lot.

"I estimate we'll be able to park another thousand cars on top of it," he said, "and you'll never know your car is parked on it."

But each off-season brings its special challenges.

The chief project Hancock's maintenance crew has tackled this winter is the installation of 15,000 feet of six inch waterpipe throughout the barn area. Coupled with a dozen fire hydrants, fire crews will be able to combat fires that have done damage to the barn area the past two years. Barns have been severely damaged in the past due to a lack of hydrants. All water had to be supplied by trucks.

"I'm real proud of that," he said. "We've done all that ourselves. We're about two thirds finished. We started right after the meet was over, and we've put in about two miles of pipe so far."

He said his crew also deepened several existing wells in the complex, which increases the storage capacity to 10,000 gallons and in case of a fire, "we'll be able to deliver about 1,200 gallons a minute."

Price tag? How about $250,000? "It would have been a lot more if we had brought someone else in to work on it," Hancock said.

Another project Hancock and his crew have nearly completed is a parking lot expansion on the southwest side, near the main admission gate.

"We levelled a lot of land and filled in a lot too," he said. "We eventually hope to have three levels of parking over here."

The ground has been bladed and will be covered with gravel, he said. The project cost approximately $15,000, and should provide room for 300 cars.

"We did all the work on that too," he said.

Hancock and his crew will soon begin work on the grandstand expansion, which is slated to cost $1.6 million. Though an Albuquerque firm will be doing much of the work, the Downs' maintenance crew will have responsibilities all its own.

"They're going to add 140 feet to the grandstand," he said, "and the jockey's quarters and the steward's paddock will be moved to the infield, with access to the grandstand via a tunnel underneath the track."

"The seats in section H through J will be removed and a covered section, similar to the existing Jockey Club, will be built there."

"Also, a complete new set of offices is supposed to be constructed." All the work is supposed to be completed by May 1.

Hancock said his crew will be involved in demolition work, cleanup and painting.

"We'll probably do our share," he said. Hancock has been the maintenance supervisor for five years, he said, and added, it's a real pleasure to work at Ruidoso Downs.

"You can't give our board of directors enough credit," he said. "They're the ones responsible for all this work. They're putting every dime they have back into the track to make it better."

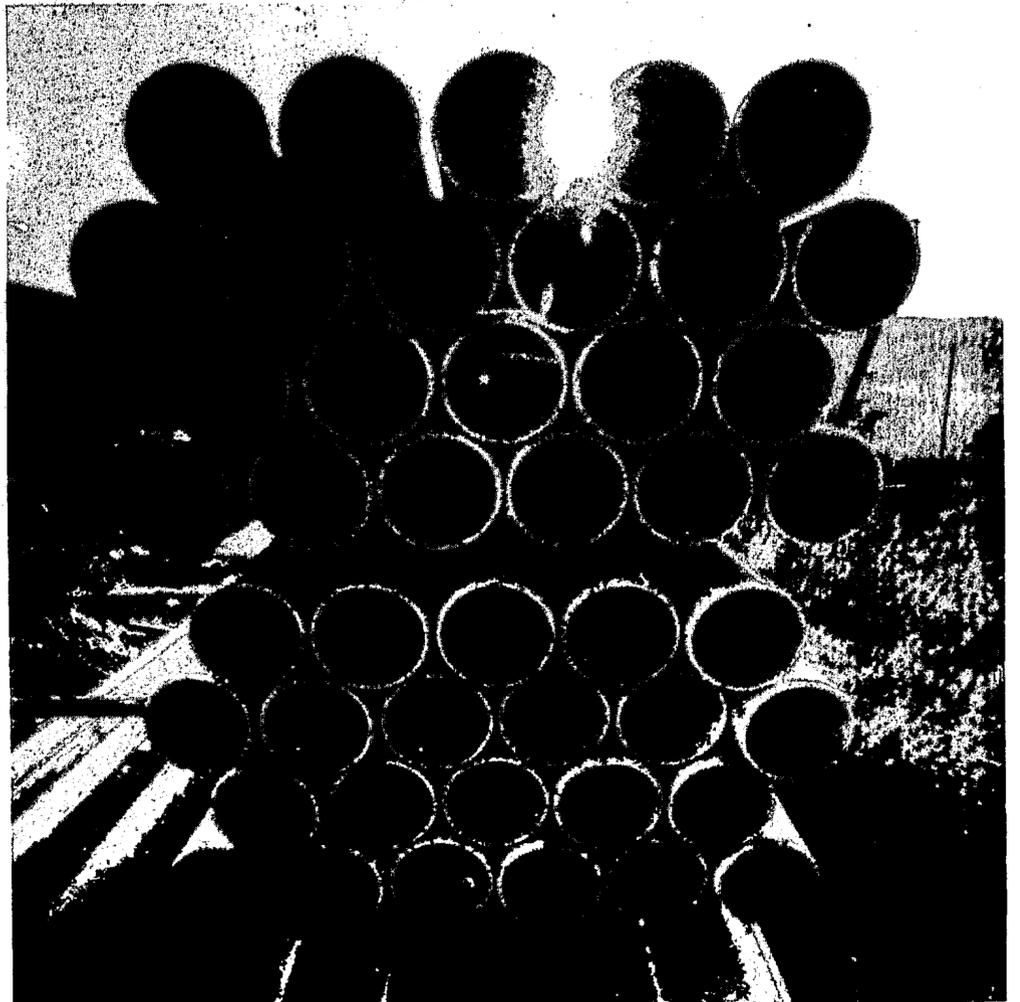

"I'm not sure everyone appreciates how it is. Every summer all the racers leave here in such a big hurry, they forget how it is, how dirty it has gotten."

"Then they come back in May and it's all painted and all nice and clean. I guess they think the good Lord does it."

With a little assist from George Hancock and the Ruidoso Downs maintenance crew, of course.

ONE OF a dozen fire hydrants installed at Ruidoso Downs race track recently by George Hancock and the track maintenance crew over looks much of the barn area.

ROWS UPON ROWS of six inch waterline await installation as part of an upgrading of the water system at Ruidoso Downs race track. George Hancock and the track's maintenance crew have installed roughly 10,000 feet of the pipe, with another 5,000 feet to go. Cost of the project is $250,000.

THREE HUNDRED cars should be able to park in this area upon its completion. A month's worth of grading and filling low spots resulted in this flat area, which will be covered with gravel. It's all part of off season improvements currently underway at Ruidoso Downs race track.

County's farm product sales total $12.8 million

The market value of agricultural products sold by the 306 farms in Lincoln County amounted to $12.8 million for 1978 or an average of $41,836 each, up from $6.9 million in 1974 with an accompanying increase in production costs, according to a preliminary report of the 1978 Census of Agriculture released by the Bureau of the Census, United States Department of Commerce.

agricultural sales for 1978 followed by that for 1974, is as follows: Crops, $344,000 compared with $32,000; livestock and livestock products, $12.5 and $6.9 million.

While the value of gross sales rose, the farmers' costs also climbed since 1974. Expenditures for feed for livestock and poultry for 1978 were $1.9 million compared to $1.7 million; costs of gasoline, diesel and other petroleum products were $652,000 compared to $353,000. Farm energy costs of all types totaled $894,000 for 1978. The estimated market value of machinery and equipment per farm increased from $15,084 to $17,475.

Of the total farms in the county, 35 had gross sales of $100,000 or more and 185 had sales of under $10,000. Farms operated by individuals or families represented 79 percent of the total; farms operated by corporations accounted for 9 percent. Some 92 percent of the operators owned all or part of the land they operated.

In 1978 the average age of farm operator was 55.6 years. Since 1974 the proportion of operators listing farming as their principal occupation changed from 56 percent to 48 percent.

Data in the reports for acreage and inventories for 1978 and 1974 are generally comparable; however, improved coverage in 1978, especially of smaller farms, should be taken into consideration in making direct comparisons of farm counts. Dollar values have not been adjusted for changes in price levels.

Other results of the census show the 306 farms counted in 1978 had an average size of 6,543 acres. For 1974, 286 farms were counted with an average size of 8,155 acres. The land in farms totaled 2,002,138 acres in 1978 and 2,169,291 acres in 1974. Crops were harvested from 674 acres in 1978 and 1,242 acres in 1974.

The number of cattle and calves increased from 36,729 to 37,137, while farms with 500 or more on hand accounted for 44 percent. There were 32,500 cattle and calves sold in 1978.

The number of sheep changed from 81,690 to 73,274 in 1978, while the number sold changed from 48,877 to 44,349.

Acreages of crops harvested for 1978 and 1974 were as follows: hay, 331 acres vs. 169 acres; land in orchards, 669 acres vs. 477 acres.

The figures are for farms qualifying under the definition: Any place from $1,000 or more of agricultural products were sold, or normally would have been sold, during the census year.

The agriculture census was conducted in 1979 to obtain data on the Nation's farm production and sales for calendar year 1978. Information from the farm census, the twenty-first of a series which began in 1940, will be used by Federal, State and county agencies, agricultural colleges, agricultural and business groups, and farmers to help make a variety of decisions about agricultural programs and policies.

Sales of agricultural products in New Mexico amounted to $801.3 million in 1978, according to the Bureau of the Census, United States Department of Commerce.

The total is based on preliminary results of the 1978 Census of Agriculture, which counted 34,283 farms and ranches in the state, with average sales of $58,065; an average size of 3,392 acres; and average value of land and buildings of $482,633.

Comparison with totals from the last previous census (1974) should be made with caution because of significant improvements in data collection procedures in 1978. Bureau officials believe that the improvements in data collection had a much greater effect on the count of farms than on measures of agricultural production. The improvements are discussed further below.

While New Mexico agricultural product sales climbed 54 percent from $521.7 million in 1974, farmers' and ranchers' expenses also grew. For example, feed purchased for livestock and poultry was up from $128.8 to $137.3 million in 1978; hired labor from $34.9 to $52.4 million; gasoline and other petroleum products from $22.3 to $38.3 million in 1978. The total energy cost for New Mexico farms and ranches amounted to $49.2 million. The market value of all machinery and equipment went up 60 percent from $230.9 million to $370.2 million four years later.

Livestock and their products brought a return of $897.3 million, 75 percent of New Mexico's total agricultural sales, compared with $354.7 million in 1974. New Mexico's total cattle and calves inventory of 1.6 million on 9,850 farms and ranches was about steady with 1974, but the 1.4 million head sold from 9,138 farms and ranches was ahead of 1.2 million sold in 1974. Twenty-five percent of those sold were fattened on grain and concentrates. The inventory included 610,800 beef cows, down from 867,000 in 1974.

A total of 241 farms and ranches sold $48.6 million in dairy products. The inventory of 37,500 milk cows was up from 31,000 four years earlier.

Sheep and lamb inventory on 1,409 farms and ranches was reported at 539,100 head, with 482,100 shorn, yielding 4.4 million pounds of wool, and 388,00 head sold.

A total inventory of 64,700 hogs, 10,800 for breeding purposes, was counted on 1,719 New Mexico farms and ranches, with 138,100 reported sold of which 48,900 were feeder pigs. The number of hogs and pigs was up 10,000 head since 1974.

The horses and ponies inventory on farms and ranches increased from 40,000 to 58,200.

Sales of poultry and their products amounted to $14.2 million, compared with $8.1 million in 1974. A total of 2,278 farms and ranches reported an inventory of 1.8 million chickens three months old or older, compared with 976,600 four years earlier. Hens and pullets of laying age were reported at 1.5 million compared with 855,300 in 1974.

Crops brought a return of $189.8 million, compared with $158.4 million in 1974. Wheat, the leading crop in acreage, was harvested from 338, 100 acres, producing 5.5 million bushels compared with 204,200 acres and 3.4 million bushels in 1974. Hay placed second with 311,100 acres producing 1.1 million tons of which 238,100 acres were in alfalfa, yielding 951,300 tons. Sorghums were the third ranking crop with 271,900 acres yielding 9.5 million bushels. Other important crops were corn, 122,900 acres; corn, 68,900 acres; corn for silage or green chop, 28,900 acres; and 16,800 acres of pecans, producing 14.4 million pounds.

Other measures of New Mexico farms and ranches also portrayed gains as the average value of land and buildings per acre climbed from $78 to $143; total cropland went from 2.2 to 2.3 million acres; and irrigated land increased from 867,300 to 905,700 acres in 1978.

Additional facets of New Mexico farms and ranches as depicted in the 1978 Census of Agriculture include the following:

— Eighty-five percent of 12, 182 of the 14,288 farms and ranches were operated by individuals or families, 1,345 by partnerships, and 562 by corporations, of which 520 were family held.

— Ninety percent of the operators owned all or part of the farms and ranches they operated, with 8,360 fully owned, 4,477 partly owned, and 1,451 operated by tenants.

— Farming/ranching was the principal occupation of 6,615 or 46 percent of the operators, while 7,673 spent most of their work time at other than a farm or ranch occupation.

— Seventy-three percent of the operators who reported place of residence lived on the farm or ranch they operated.

— New Mexico farmers and ranchers were younger on the average than in 1974, 51.4 years compared with 52.7.

— Some 899 farms and ranches, six percent, were operated by women, as revealed by a question on sex of operator asked for the first time.

— Agricultural product sales of $100,000 or more were recorded by nine percent or 1,353 farms and ranches; 2,751 sold $40,000 or more; 4,076 had sales of $20,000 or more; and 10,212 had sales of less than $20,000.

Figures published are for farms and ranches qualifying under the following definition:

Any place from which $1,000 or more of agricultural products were sold, or normally would have been sold, during the census year. Published dollar values have not been adjusted for changes in price levels.

The improvements previously mentioned were in two areas. The first was an improvement in the mailing lists used to send farmers and ranchers their census report forms. The second was a door-to-door canvass of sample households in rural areas. The results of this direct enumeration, when combined with the count by mail, allowed the Bureau to identify additional farms and ranches in the state which would have been missed under procedures used in the 1969 and 1974 censuses.

The Bureau estimates that the direct enumeration sample added 1,957 farms and ranches (averaging 285 acres and with average sales of $3,693) to the main census for 1978. Although characteristics of the additional farms and ranches are tabulated in the report for the state, they are not included in the totals published for each county.

Had 1978 procedures been used in the last previous census (1974), Bureau officials estimate that between 750 and 1,150 smaller farms and ranches would have been added to the 1974 New Mexico total. The estimated state total would have been between 12,032 and 12,432 farms and ranches in 1974 instead of the 11,282 enumerated under the procedure actually used.

A detailed description of the 1978 Census of Agriculture program compared with earlier censuses is available from the Agriculture Division, Bureau of the Census, Washington, D. C. 20233.

Copies of the preliminary report, 1978 Census of Agriculture: New Mexico, and each of its counties are for sale by Customer Services Branch, Data User Services, Bureau of the Census, Washington, D. C. 20233, or any Department of Commerce District Office. The price is 25 cents a copy.

Real Estate Facts

a public service of the Ruidoso Board of Realtors

It's sad to think that most consumers spend more time shopping for a television than a home mortgage. Many are under the notion that all financing plans are alike and that no bargains can be had. Nothing could be further from the truth, says the Ruidoso Board of Realtors. Falling to shop around can cost a buyer plenty in both aggravation and money.

The Single Person's Home-Buying Handbook by Kristelle Peterson provides a run-down of the mortgage sources available in today's market. A knowledgeable attorney, your personal banker or your Realtor can aid you in your search.

Savings and Loan Associations (S&L's) finance the majority of home mortgages on one- to four-unit residential dwellings. They accumulate the funds for lending from money deposited in savings accounts. If you have a savings account at an S&L, it may be wise to apply for your mortgage there because you are an established client. S&L's generally offer advantageous terms and are apt to be the first lenders to experiment with alternative mortgage instruments and creative financing.

Commercial banks usually are stricter in their lending practices requiring larger downpayments. However, the bank's trust department, a separate division from the mortgage loan department, may have clients willing to invest money in mortgages, and you may be able to work out an accommodation with a trust officer. The trust department also can be an excellent source of funds for second mortgages.

Both S&L's and commercial banks may refuse to write government-insured mortgages (FHA and VA).

Mortgage Bankers write the majority of FHA- and VA-backed mortgages but operate differently than the above mentioned institutions. Their sole function is issuing and packaging mortgages into portfolios, which they sell to large investors or into the secondary mortgage market. They do not accept bank deposits from consumers.

Chances are if you apply for an FHA graduated payment mortgage or any other government-backed loan, you will obtain it through a mortgage banker. Regardless of the type of financial institution involved, cautions Kristelle Peterson, make sure you ask for a complete break-down of the fees you will be required to pay and make sure the loan officer shows you precisely how your income and assets qualify you for your loan.

Credit Unions can be an excellent source of mortgage loans. State-chartered credit unions have been able to make long-term mortgages for years, and since 1977 federal credit unions have been allowed to write 30-year conventional and government-insured mortgages. If you belong to a credit union, this should be one of the first places to shop. Not all credit unions make mortgage loans, but many of the larger ones appear to be heading in this direction. Because of their non-profit nature, credit unions can make loans at more favorable rates than other lenders.

Insurance companies often get involved in the mortgage market because mortgages represent stable and secure investments for their funds. If you hold a policy with an insurance company, ask your agent whether the firm will write your mortgage loan. A Realtor should be able to tell you which insurers offer loans.

The seller may be willing to participate in the mortgage by taking back a note in lieu of cash or another method. Also the seller's employer can be a possible source of financial assistance if the seller is being transferred. Many firms are eager to expedite an employee's transfer and may use their influence to secure a mortgage for the buyer, make a short-term loan to the buyer or even endorse the buyer's note. Firms prefer these alternatives to freeing their employee from concern, rather than having to buy the home outright and resell it.

Private investors — Rich individuals often will turn to high-yielding mortgages as an investment. They usually make their desires known to lenders and Realtors, and they frequently advertise in financial journals. Also, do not discount to dismiss the notion of securing the loan from a wealthy relative. He would reap a healthy return on their money and you may be able to get more lenient terms.

JUST CUBS, PARSONS, NEW MEXICO

VINTAGE PHOTOGRAPHS, such as this one taken when Parsons was a thriving Lincoln County community, are being sought by Cece Sudderth, at Ruidoso's village hall. Historical pictures will be permanently displayed in the new Ruidoso Administration Building, scheduled for completion next spring. Photographs will be copied, if the owner desires to keep the original. Pictures may be left with Sudderth during regular business hours.

Wild birds particular about what they eat

What wild birds like to eat and what many commercial bird mixes contain are not always the same, according to a recent report by Dr. Aelred D. Gels of the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center.

His study, which is part of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service's Urban Wildlife Research Program, reveals some new findings on bird food preferences — some apparently unknown to several of the birdseed companies that provide ready mixed foods for millions of Americans who participate in this intensely interesting pastime.

"White proso millet and black oil-type sunflower seeds are eagerly taken," he said. "Yet, such common ingredients of commercial mixes as flax, canary, and rape (a type of mustard) seeds are rarely eaten by the birds."

These and other findings of the report are based on 179,000 observations of feeding habits of birds in the Washington-Baltimore area. Though surveys are being continued in Maine, Ohio and California, Gels expects that bird food preferences will be quite similar throughout the nation.

"Milo or sorghum, wheat, oats, cracked corn, and rice," Gels said, "are common ingredients in commercial mixes, but are rarely attractive to birds if sunflower seeds or white proso millet are also present in the feeder."

Gels discovered that another common ingredient in mixes, peanut hearts, was especially attractive to starlings, thus, should not be used as bird food. The small, oil-type sunflower seeds were found to be more attractive to most bird species than the larger black stripe or gray stripe sunflower seeds that are usually available.

Only blue jays and tufted titmice showed a preference for the larger seeds while a number of other species, notably goldfinches and mourning doves, much preferred the smaller oil-type sunflower seeds.

"Since the kinds of birds that frequent people's homes vary from place to place," Gels said, "it is impossible to come up with a mixture that is universally efficient in terms of bird visits per dollar spent."

He recommends that such seeds as white proso millet and black oil-type sunflower, which are sought by birds, be purchased separately from feed or pet stores and presented as needed by the birds that are in the particular area.

Among the findings of the Gels report is the following list of birds (both desirable and otherwise) and their favorite bird seeds:

American goldfinch, hulled sunflower seeds, thistle seeds, and oil-type sunflower seeds.

Brown-headed cowbird, white proso millet, red proso millet, German millet, and canary seed.

Cardinal, sunflower seeds of all types. Carolina chickadee, oil-type sunflower seeds (showed little interest in other bird seed).

Dark-eyed junco, red proso, white proso millet, canary seed, and finecracked corn. Common grackle, hulled sunflower seeds and cracked corn.

Evening grosbeak, sunflower seeds of all types.

House finch, oil-type sunflower seeds (other sunflower seeds racked much lower.)

House sparrow, white proso millet (and most other seeds except flax and rape).

Mourning dove, oil-type sunflower seeds, white proso millet, thistle, wheat, buckwheat, milo, canary seed, hulled oats, and cracked corn.

Purple finch, sunflower seeds of all types.

Red-bellied woodpecker, black-striped sunflower seeds (occasionally).

Song sparrow, white proso millet, red proso millet, and oil-type sunflower seeds. Tufted titmouse, peanut kernels and oil-type sunflower seeds. (Showed no interest in millet.)

White-crowned sparrow, oil-type and black-striped sunflower seeds, white proso millet, and red proso millet. (Infrequent visitor to feeders.)

White-throated sparrow, all sunflower seeds, white proso millet, and peanut kernels. (Also use red proso millet, canary seed, and fine cracked corn.)

Bird feeders will find a great deal of valuable scientific information in Gels' report, Relative Attractiveness of Different Foods at Wild Bird Feeders, Fish and Wildlife Service Special Wildlife Report 233. Single copies are available free from the Publications Unit, Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C. 20240.

EASILY MADE, failure-proof Black-Bottom Eggnog Chiffon Pie is a sweet, but light, finale to a traditional holiday dinner. Try coffee and peppermint variations for tasty departures from rum and brandy flavoring.

Sweet is light with eggnog pie

Throughout its early years, eggnog has been known by many other names: eggnog, custard posset, syllabub, milk punch, flip, one yard of flannel and auld man's milk. Instructions for making it appeared in diaries and travel notes. Eggs, milk, ale or sack, a dry wine, are standard eggnog ingredients.

For a fluffy finale to a sumptuous holiday dinner, Eggnog Chiffon Pie provides that airy yet sweet touch with which people like to top off a meal.

The dessert can be made with several variations: regular pie crust with part of the custard mixture flavored with melted chocolate, black-bottom-style, or with a crust of graham cracker or chocolate cookie crumbs. Traditional custard flavors include rum and brandy, coffee and peppermint.

Easy is the tip-off, whatever the pie, since smooth and creamy dairy eggnog, gelatin and whipped cream form the custard. The fool-proof dessert should be made the day before to allow thorough chilling for easy slicing.

BLACK-BOTTOM EGGNOG CHIFFON PIE

Yield: one 9-inch pie

- 1 baked pie shell, 9-inch
- Filling:
 - 3 tablespoons water
 - 2 tablespoons rum
 - 2 tablespoons brandy
 - 1 1/2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
 - 2 1/2 cups dairy eggnog
 - 1/4 cup sugar
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 2 squares (2 oz.) semi-sweet chocolate
 - 1 cup whipping cream
 - Whipped cream, if desired
 - Chocolate curls, if desired

For filling, combine water, rum and brandy in a small bowl. Sprinkle gelatin on mixture to soften. Combine 1 1/2 cups eggnog, sugar and salt in a small saucepan; heat only to the boiling point. Add softened gelatin; stir until gelatin is dissolved. Remove from heat. Add remaining 1 1/2 cups eggnog. Pour 1 cup eggnog mixture into heavy saucepan. Pour remaining eggnog mixture in a bowl; cover and refrigerate until partially set, about 50 minutes. Add chocolate to eggnog in pan; stir and beat until well blended. Pour into a bowl and chill until partially set, about 40 minutes. When chocolate mixture is nearly set, beat until smooth. Spread into plain eggnog mixture. Turn into pie shell on top of chocolate mixture. Allow to set, then cover and chill 4 hours or overnight. Serve garnished with whipped cream and chocolate curls.

EGGNOG CHIFFON PIE

Yield: one 9-inch pie

- Cookie Crust:
 - 1 1/3 cups crushed graham crackers with sugar and cinnamon topping OR chocolate cookie crumbs
 - 3/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter, melted
 - Filling:
 - 3 tablespoons water
 - 2 tablespoons rum
 - 2 tablespoons brandy
 - 1 1/2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
 - 2 1/2 cups dairy eggnog
 - 1/4 cup sugar
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1 cup whipping cream
- Preheat oven to 350 degrees. For crust, combine crumbs and butter. Press onto bottom and sides of 9-inch pie plate. Bake 5 minutes. Cool. For filling, mix water, rum and brandy in a small bowl. Sprinkle gelatin on mixture to soften. Combine 1 1/2 cups eggnog, sugar and salt in a small saucepan. Heat just to the boiling point. Add softened gelatin; stir until gelatin is dissolved. Remove from heat. Add remaining 1 1/2 cups eggnog. Pour into a medium-size bowl; place plastic wrap on surface to prevent a skin from forming. Refrigerate until partially set, about 45 minutes. Whip cream until stiff. Fold into gelatin mixture. Turn into pie shell. Allow to set, then cover and chill 4 hours or overnight. Garnish with additional whipped cream, if desired.

VARIATIONS:

Coffee. Add 1 teaspoon instant coffee to eggnog mixture before heating.
Peppermint. Omit rum and brandy; use 1/2 cup water to soften gelatin. Stir 1/4 cup finely crushed peppermint candy and 10 drops red food color into eggnog mixture before heating. Garnish with crushed peppermint candy, if desired.

Dessert souffle deliciously rich

Food assumes festive and majestic proportions during the holidays and desserts are no exception.

Though some families like to enjoy traditional desserts on these occasions, it's often nice to add some change of pace to the menu. And if you select a souffle made with chocolate and cherries, you can expect no quibbling over the choice.

Those who think this is too rich for a holiday dinner may want to sip glasses of homemade eggnog and nibble a few of your homemade cookies.

Whatever their preference, most people like a little space between dinner and dessert. That will give you time to clear the table, put away leftovers and decorate the souffle with dollops of whipped cream and cherries. Another nice thing about this dessert; it's made in advance so there's no last-minute baking or steaming.

Like all cold souffles, this one will look best when it's molded in a dish especially designed for it. Be sure to add a foil collar because the mixture fills more than the dish holds to give the souffle look.

HOLIDAY DESSERT SOUFFLE

Yield: 10 to 12 servings

- 1 can (16 oz.) tart red pitted cherries, drained
 - 3 tablespoons brandy
 - 1 1/2 cups sugar, divided
 - 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
 - 2 cups milk
 - 3 eggs, separated
 - 4 squares (4 oz.) unsweetened chocolate
 - 1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla extract
 - 2 cups whipping cream, whipped
 - Whipped cream, if desired
 - Maraschino cherries, if desired
- Chop cherries and place them with the brandy in a small shallow bowl. Let stand about 1 hour. Combine 1 1/2 cups sugar and gelatin in a medium-sized saucepan. Combine milk and egg yolks. Stir into sugar mixture. Let stand 2 minutes. Heat over low heat, stirring frequently, until gelatin is dissolved. Melt chocolate over low heat, stirring constantly, until chocolate is completely melted. Place gelatin mixture in a large mixing bowl. Beat in chocolate until completely blended; stir in vanilla. Chill chocolate mixture until partially set. Meanwhile, beat egg whites until foamy. Gradually add remaining 1/2 cup sugar. Beat until stiff peaks form. Fold egg whites and whipped cream into souffle dish with a 3-inch collar. Chill several hours or overnight. To serve, remove collar. Decorate top of souffle with rosettes of whipped cream piped through a fluted pastry tube. Place a maraschino cherry in center of each. Serve immediately.

EGGNOG

- Yield: 13 1/2 cups
- 6 egg yolks
 - 3/4 cup sugar
 - 6 egg whites
 - 2 quarts milk
 - 1/2 cup rum OR 1 to 2 tablespoons rum extract
 - 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Beat egg yolks and 1/4 cup of the sugar until thick and lemon-colored. Beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Gradually add 1/2 cup sugar and beat until stiff peaks form. Gently fold egg yolks into egg whites. Blend in milk, rum, vanilla and salt. Chill thoroughly. Serve sprinkled with freshly grated nutmeg, if desired.

Plum pudding holiday favorite for centuries

Plum pudding, or Christmas pudding as it is sometimes called, dates from the end of the 1600's. Of all other rich foods for feasting during this special season — creamy oyster soup or stew, fragrant roast turkey or goose with stuffing, roasted small birds, apple sauce, potatoes, breads, cakes and small cookies — nothing was so appreciated as plum pudding.

"It is manna," says an anonymous writer of the day.

In her book, Plum Pudding for Christmas, Virginia Kahl alludes to royal preference for the dessert:

"All right," said the king, "I guess I can come. If you serve a pudding and that pudding is plum."

Undoubtedly, part of the reason for the popularity stemmed from the imported fruits and spices that were part of the pudding. The rare spices were said to symbolize the gifts the Wise Men brought to the Christ child. Early puddings contained more meat than fruit but, as fruit became more available, it replaced much of the meat. And, of course, it's traditional to serve the plum pudding with hard sauce, a sweet, smooth mixture of creamed butter, confectioners' sugar and flavored

Plum pudding could more accurately be called raisin pudding since raisins used to make the dish were called plums during the Renaissance in England. Despite being a misnomer, the name has endured.

WHIPPING CREAM, chocolate and cherries reap compliments from dinner guests. Make a luscious holiday dessert souffle sure to

SALUTE TO CHAMBER MEMBERS

This is a regular feature in the Monday edition of this newspaper to introduce the members of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce

THE SKYLINE MOTEL, located about two miles east of the Ruidoso Racetrack, is owned by Otto and Viviane Heckendorn, pictured. They took over the business on October 8, 1980, and joined the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce at that time. Open year around, the Skyline features a quiet location and 16 paneled rooms with television. The Heckendorns are natives of Switzerland and said they love living in the Ruidoso area. "It's very much like Switzerland — that's probably why we love it," Mrs. Heckendorn said. Reservations at the Skyline may be made by calling 505-378-4220.

SIERRA PRINTING AND RUBBER STAMPS, located directly across from the Ruidoso Post Office in Westgate Center, is owned by Ray and Judy Parrish. Judy Parrish is pictured with a selection of stamps. They opened the business November 17, and joined the Chamber at that time. The shop specializes in one-day service on rubber stamp orders and printing including wedding announcements, business cards, letterhead, appointment cards, address labels and desk name plates. The rubber stamps include daters, signature stamps and children's stamps. She also operates the Blossom Shop, where she sells African violets, orchids and Christmas wreaths. Business hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

The Safety Factor

Flying is an unnatural means of locomotion for man; yet when judged by the standards of modern life, it is curiously safe—surely much safer than automobile travel, which we take for granted. The risk of being killed in an air crash is one fatality per million hours of exposure. But is air travel safe enough? NOVA explores 'The Safety Factor,' airing over PBS, Tuesday, December 16.

'The Safety Factor' joins the pilot and crew on the flight of a Laker Airways DC-10 as it crosses the Atlantic from London to Los Angeles. For each of the passengers, the chances of not making it to California are only three in one million. During the last year and a half, however, DC-10's have been involved in major air disasters, and investigations have revealed engineering flaws—flaws that went unnoticed despite the painstaking work that goes into designing, building, and maintaining commercial aircraft. And even the most carefully built plane is subject to human error, the cause of the majority of air disasters.

Takeoff and landing are the most crucial moments of any flight and it is then that most accidents occur. Air traffic controllers must deal with a constant stream of incoming and outgoing planes, from the smallest to the largest, keeping them safely separated while allowing as many as possible to use the airport facilities. NOVA films an experimental system which will allow a greater density of landings while maintaining safety standards.

During the flight itself, the crew monitors a vast array of instruments, each of which can warn of potential problems. NOVA explains that flight deck systems are constantly being studied and upgraded—a complicated process, since it is known that if there are too many instruments and warning systems, people will ignore some of them. Among the most advanced improvements in this area is the electronic flight deck, on which instruments are replaced by video displays showing information that has been synthesized from many sources, freeing the pilot to do what a human does best—make decisions.

NOVA is produced by WGBH/Boston for PBS and is made possible by grants from TRW, Inc., the National Science Foundation, and public television stations.

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT: A former wife and an ex-lover are combining to make the life of daytime television heart-throb Chris Robinson rival the steamiest soap opera. The real-life plot so far has seen: The blocking of his third marriage by his second wife, Sandy Tennant. His arrest on theft charges filed by another woman. And a continuing battle over a paternity suit, filed by yet another woman 15 years ago. In the midst of all this, the star who plays Dr. Rick Webber on ABC's 'General Hospital' is being comforted by the woman who wants to be the third Mrs. Robinson, model-actress Rhonda Plasterer. . . . Sexy Victoria Principal is a gal with a superstar future thanks to TV's hit series 'Dallas,' in which she portrays beautiful Pamela Ewing. But Victoria is also a gal with a past, a playgirl past that includes flings with 'older men' like Frank Sinatra and multi-millionaire financier Bernie Cornfield. Her other boyfriends have included Desi Arnaz Jr., football star Lance Rentzel and even the Maharajah of Palitana. "I spent time with men who had it all because I wanted it all too," Victoria admits.

TV BACKSTAGE Dishy 'Dukes of Hazzard' star Catherine Bach vows that she will never fall into the Hollywood success trap. "There's a dangerous side to show business," she says. "I've seen it turn some otherwise nice people into ranting, raving maniacs. They drive themselves too hard and become physically and emotionally exhausted. They go kind of crazy and their behavior becomes outrageous. But you can take it from me, that will never happen to Catherine Bach. If I see any signs of it, I'd simply quit the business. Happiness means a lot more to me than being a star." Reruns of the 'Brady Bunch' show are now being used to help troubled children, says proud ex-Brady 'mom' Florence Henderson. "Psychiatrists use our show in counseling children," Henderson told me. "It's very rewarding to know and I'm proud of it," she added. The show ran for five years and Florence says she enjoyed every minute of it. "There are so many violent shows on TV that try to tell it like it is. We were an idealistic show, and I was the expert on how the parents should act because I was the only one there who had kids."

TV CLOSEUP Actor Dean Paul Martin reported for military service at McGhee Tyson Air National Guard Base near Knoxville, Tennessee to begin training for a career as a jet fighter pilot with the California Air National Guard. Martin will complete a six week officer candidate school leading to a commission as a second lieutenant in the Air Force Reserve, then attend USAF jet pilot training in Phoenix, Ariz. After earning his wings, he will serve as a 'weekend warrior' with the California Air Guard's 163rd Tactical Air Support Group at Ontario Airport. Martin will continue his association with ABC, with whom he signed a development pact earlier this year. He plans to do a series pilot as soon as he finishes his training. Michael J. Stark is the new face on 'Guiding Light,' as private investigator Joe Bradley. Apparently the role was created especially for Michael whose only other daytime role was a brief stint as Dr. Simms on 'One Life to Live'. David Soul, a clowning cop in 'Starsky and Hutch' on television and a swinging bachelor off-camera, wants to turn his life around. The former Hutch is going after 'serious, heavyweight roles' and he's planning to settle down 'forever' by marrying Patti Sherman, who's divorced from former teen-idol Bobby Sherman.
