JUDGE DOUGHTY DEFERS SENTENCING IN CASE WITH CONFLICTING TESTIMONY

Three White Oaks litigants found guilty

R. A. "BUD" CRENSHAW, right, appeared to be at ease during the so-called "White Oaks feud trial," which resulted in his conviction for allowing animals to run at large and battery against LaRue Wetzel. With Crenshaw as his attorney, Gary Mitchell of Ruidoso.

In apparent agreement with Assistant District Attorney Jay Rosenthal that "it takes two (or more) to fight," a Carrizozo magistrate jury Tuesday found members of two White Oaks families guilty of assault, battery, and other charges in connection with recent violent incidents in that so-called "ghost town."

Judge Robert Doughty, sitting as a magistrate judge, delayed sentencing on the charges and said he expected to see positive attempts toward reestablishing peace between the two families in the interim.

White Oaks rancher R. A. "Bud" Crenshaw was found guilty of battery against Mrs. LaRue Wetzel. He was also found guilty of allowing "hogs, swine or goats to run at large within a municipality."

Mrs. Wetzel, in turn, was found guilty of assault against Crenshaw and his great-nephew, Joe Armstrong, 21. Armstrong was found innocent of charges of assault against Mrs. Wetzel.

LaRue Wetzel's son Paul, 22, was found guilty of injury to animals. Charges of negligent use of a firearm against Mrs. Wetzel, another son, Brian, and a friend, Guy Brown of Carrizozo, were dismissed by Doughty midway through the proceedings for "lack of evidence."

The assault and battery charges stemmed from a scuffle on the White Oaks road involving Crenshaw, Wetzel and Armstrong, on December 29, 1980.

The younger Wetzel was convicted in connection with the shooting death of six sheep, plus five unborn lambs on January 4 of this year. During testimony, Wetzel admitted to killing some 30 to 45 of Crenshaw's sheep over the past two years.

The courtroom was packed almost to capacity with family, friends, sympathizers and spectators during the two-day trial. All the charges filed were for misdemeanor crimes. About 200 prospective jurors were called; and about half that many witnesses subpoenaed, although most did not testify.

First to take the stand was Armstrong. He testified that he was herding cattle along the side of the road with his great-uncle on December 29. He said he left Crenshaw momentarily to inspect the carcass of a cow. When he returned, he said he saw Mrs. Wetzel armed with "rocks in both hands," and Crenshaw some 35 feet away, stumbling around and bleeding from the face.

Armstrong testified he attempted to take the rocks away from Mrs. Wetzel when she hit him on the bridge of the nose with one. In the ensuing struggle, he said, she fell to the ground.

Armstrong also testified that Mrs. Wetzel was "acting crazy," yelling at them to get their animals off her property, and threatened to "kill Bud."

Mrs. Wetzel's testimony charged that Crenshaw started the fray as she attempted to pass him in her car on the way to Carrizozo to file the "animals running at large" charges against him.

As she slowed to pass Crenshaw and the animals, Wetzel said, she saw him "throw something" toward her car. She said she slammed on her brakes and her car's engine died.

As she fumbled with her key, Wetzel said, she looked up to see Crenshaw standing in front of the car with a rock which "took both hands to hold." She added she thought Crenshaw was going to break the windshield of her car, so she got out of the vehicle.

At that point, Wetzel said, Crenshaw pushed her down in the road twice, and she scratched his face in an attempt to defend herself. She testified that when Joe Armstrong arrived, he "took me by the lapels of the coat and pushed me down." She said she sustained bruises and scratches and her glasses were bent, while she injured Armstrong by scratching him with her fingernails.

She also accused Crenshaw of using profanity toward her, "calling me all kinds of foul names."

Crenshaw testified that Mrs. Wetzel had passed him on the road, turned around and proceeded to strike the rear of his horse with her car, knocking both to the ground.

While he was "trying to get my breath back," Crenshaw said, Wetzel "tried to run over me," then got out of her car and began throwing rocks at him. He said he was struck several times in the face before Armstrong arrived on the scene to disarm her.

Discrepancies were cited between the original statements given to sheriff's officers regarding the incident, and later testimony.

Armstrong's first statement had indicated he pushed Wetzel down. During the trial, he said he was still dazed or confused at the time he gave the statement, and that she had actually fallen.

Wetzel's original statement made no mention of Crenshaw throwing anything at her car.

Adding to the controversy was the fact that Crenshaw's horse was unavailable for inspection following the incident, Mrs. Wetzel's car appeared undamaged, and no tire tracks, blood or bloodstained rocks were found in the vicinity by investigating officers.

Also testifying in the incident was Melvin Miller, a Roswell polygraph expert, who tested Mrs. Wetzel several days after the incident. He said she appeared to be telling the truth when questioned.

However, Carrizozo doctor Amy Barton testified regarding Armstrong's injuries and said the cut on his face was not caused by fingernail scratches.

Testimony on the killing of sheep began with Paul Wetzel's admission that he killed four of the animals on the Wetzel property after returning from church that Sunday, and took a .357 magnum pistol and a .256 Winchester rifle outside.

Wetzel said he "snuck upon the goats" and stopping about 40 to 50 feet away, "I shot one, and it fell. The rest just stood there and looked at me, so I shot another one, and it fell... then I shot another the feet of several others. I shot two after that."

He testified that the sheep began to run at that time, and he chased them off the property. He then dragged some of the animals into a gully and concealed some behind trees, he said.

Under cross examination Wetzel was asked by attorney Bill Payne why he carried the guns. Wetzel said, "I enjoy shooting. I shoot at whatever I want... animals and birds." He said he used the .357 magnum to shoot birds.

Pressed on why he used his gun to scare the animals off the property, he said, "The killing of them is what makes them get up and go — the others."

Both Wetzels testified that Mrs. Wetzel had consulted with sheriff's deputy Jay McSwane earlier about the problem with straying animals. Mrs. Wetzel said McSwane had advised her they would not be responsible for injury or death of an animal which was incurred in an attempt to "expel the animals from the property."

She said they interpreted this to mean they could shoot the animals, "as a last resort." Later McSwane also testified, saying he told the Wetzels it "wasn't a good idea to shoot the animals," and "there was probably a law against it."

She said her son dragged the animals into the arroyo after killing them because "he didn't want them lying around." Paul Wetzel said he placed the bodies there so that "the rain would wash them away," and because he knew "Mr. Crenshaw would have a wall-eyed fit at seeing his animals shot."

He later admitted to killing 10 to 20 sheep about 18 months before, and another sheep about a week before the latest killing.

Mrs. Wetzel testified that the family had been bothered with the animals straying onto their property "off and on since 1972 or '73." She said the animals "eat everything they can get their mouths on." She said she notified both Crenshaw and the Sheriff's Office of the problem, but had received no cooperation.

Crenshaw testified that no one had complained to him about the strays. "I had no idea they were bothering anyone," he

Bond election Tuesday

Ruidoso voters will go to the polls Tuesday to vote on a $1.6 million General Obligation bond issue, divided into four propositions.

The ballot also includes the question of authorizing the village to lease the Municipal Swimming Pool to private enterprise. If voters approve this question, the village can advertise for bids to lease the pool.

The polls, in the Ruidoso Public Library on Sudderth, will be open from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. All precincts will vote at the library.

The bond election consists of:

Proposition 1 — Up to $250,000 for fire protection.

Proposition 2 — Up to $800,000 for street improvements.

Proposition 3 — Up to $170,000 for solid waste disposal equipment; and Proposition 4 — Up to $650,000 to renovate the present village hall into a new police, jail and judicial facility, to meet the state code.

Fire protection includes two new 750 gallon-per-minute pumper trucks and two new fire stations for the Ruidoso Volunteer Fire Department.

Street improvements include purchase of 15 and seven yard capacity diesel trucks, applying basecourse (hard packed gravel road) on 40 miles of unsurfaced streets and blacktop overlay on five miles of road.

Solid waste disposal includes purchase of a new side loading hydraulically operated truck, 500 one-and-a-half yard residential dumpsters and 100 three yard dumpsters for commercial, condominium and heavily populated area use.

Renovating village hall entails adding 12 cells, including a padded cell, kitchen, radio room, command center for emergency operations, new judicial chambers, conference and briefing rooms and an area for positive control of prisoners from time of booking, through being held and taken to court.

The reason for the "up to" provision on each issue is that is the estimated cost and before the call for bids can be issued, that amount of money must be available. Village officials estimate that bids might be lower than the estimates, but, in any event, accepted bids can't exceed the amount of bond money provided.

PROPOSITION 1

Firemen seek $250,000 for improvements

The Ruidoso Volunteer Fire Department is seeking $250,000, to upgrade equipment and improve services, in Tuesday's General Obligation bond election.

To provide better service to the community, the firemen, in a study conducted over the past two years, have determined the department needs:

— Two 750 gallon-per-minute pumper trucks, complete with hoses, fittings and equipment.

— Two new fire stations, each to house pumper trucks. One would be built near the Sudderth/Mechum intersection, the other on Highway 37 near Cousins' Restaurant and Lounge.

"These improvements," Fire Marshal Derald Waltrip said, "will give the fire department the equipment we need to upgrade our service."

"The two new fire stations will enable us to get fire trucks to the Upper Canyon and the developed area around Cousins' much faster than we can now."

"Besides, the two new pumpers will give us that much more water to fight fires and give us that much more of a chance to save structures."

Waltrip also said that the influx of condominium and town house developments "demands that we have more fire fighting capabilities."

The price of the pumper trucks is pegged at $75,000 each, by Waltrip, with the new fire stations, including the lots, estimated at $50,000 each.

"What we're looking at in the new fire stations," Waltrip said, "are 18x36-foot garages, with water, gas and electricity, solely to house the new large pumper trucks."

The new fire stations, and new trucks, Waltrip said, "will take care of the fire department's needs for about the next 10 years. After that, we're going to have to begin replacing trucks, as some of those currently in use range from 15 to 30 years old and, in 10 years, they will be un-serviceable."

The village's presently enjoys a Class VI fire insurance rating, lowered from Class VII in 1978.

"The Class VI rating," Waltrip said, "resulted in savings on fire insurance premiums to property owners, especially commercial property."

DECA students to state competition

Nearly 60 Ruidoso High School Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) students will enter state competition in Carlsbad April 2-4.

In addition the DECA chapter will submit a Pepsi Learn and Earn project detailing the Trans Alaska seafood sale held in Ruidoso in December.

Chapter sponsor Eddie Parker said he hopes Ruidoso will again qualify a number of students to compete on the national level.

"In past years, we've had up to 28 attend the national convention. Hopefully we can do that well again this year."

"The kids who are going are really studying hard — they're doing really well," Parker said. "I think we have a good chance again this year of taking a third of the New Mexico delegates from Ruidoso."

Parker said students are presently writing the Pepsi project, which has been a hands down winner in state competition several years. This year's project chairpersons are Mike Clarke, Lou Ann Wilson, Tammy McCulley and Dolores Rue.

Other students attending and the competition they will enter include:

THE TREASURY at Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital was bolstered by a check of $10,000 from an anonymous heart patient, who made "a small donation" because Dr. Michael Stone saved his life, according to Ken Moore, hospital administrator. The unexpected income has caused the grateful medical staff to ponder the most

Hot ash fire doused

Fireplace ashes dumped in a forested area near a summer home in Ruidoso Sunday afternoon caused minor damage to a vacant lot, but according to fire officials, the fire could have developed into a major problem.

"It was the first day we had our lookout tower manned, and he spotted the smoke early," Steve Makowski, fire management officer for Smokey Bear Ranger District, said Monday.

"We got there and put the fire out without any trouble," he said. "But, if we hadn't spotted it so soon, it could have gotten out of hand real fast."

Makowski said foliage is still somewhat dry due to below average moisture for the year, and winds have been steady enough to dry grasses and trees.

Makowski called Sunday's fire a "classic case" of neglect, with fireplace ashes dumped near the home, still warm, and "definitely dangerous." He said the structure itself could have gone up in flames, as it was constructed of wood and other highly flammable products.

"Firewood is stored too close to the house, and there's all kinds of flammable materials stored on the back side, underneath and around the house," he added.

That combination of factors could combine to cause a disaster. "In addition, this is an area that would burn rather rapidly, so we're just lucky we spotted it when we did."

Ruidoso fire marshal Derald Waltrip said an attempt was made to issue a citation for careless use of fire "but they must have left town before we got there."

A CLASSIC CASE of fireplace ashes causing a fire occurred Sunday at about 4 p.m. on a lot above Paradise Canyon Road. The fire burned grasses, above, and did no major damage "but it could have done a lot of damage, given a little time," Steve Makowski, fire prevention officer for Smokey Bear Ranger District, said Monday. The problem was compounded by haphazard storage of building materials too close to the home, he added, as shown below.

Assistant DA hired

Weldon Copeland, 29, El Paso, Texas, has been hired by the Twelfth Judicial District Attorney's office as an Assistant District Attorney. He will join the staff, which serves Lincoln and Otero Counties, the first week of April.

Copeland, who is married and has one child, is a 1973 graduate of the University of Texas at Austin. He received his law degree from Texas Tech University in 1976.

Rio Ruidoso claims victim

A Roswell man pulled the body of his brother-in-law from the Rio Ruidoso about 2:30 p.m., Monday, and local police have attributed the death to natural causes.

The dead man was identified as St. John C. Romero, 62, of Santa Fe. His brother-in-law, Charles C. Chambers, told police he and Romero had come to Ruidoso on a fishing expedition.

Police reports indicated Chambers had dropped Romero off near the Rio Ruidoso on Paradise Canyon Road. Chambers proceeded to another point on the river, and the two planned to meet at a central point later.

Chambers told police he later noticed Romero's fishing rod floating down the river and went to investigate. He found Romero face down in the middle of the stream near Ruidoso High School.

Romero's body was sent to the Office of the Medical Examiner, Albuquerque, for an autopsy, according to a spokesman for Clarke's Chapel of Roses Mortuary. A spokesman for the Criminal Investigation Division of the Ruidoso Police Department said the autopsy will be made as a matter of course, although Romero had a history of heart trouble and the apparent cause of death was accidental drowning.

Ruidoso men arrested on MJ possession

Two Ruidoso men, Jay Phillips, 23, and Brian Saldine, 19, were arrested Sunday by Ruidoso Downs police and charged with possession of marijuana over eight ounces. Two juvenile boys were also charged in the case and released to their parents.

Saldine and Phillips appeared before magistrate Jim Wheeler Monday. Bond for each was set at $2,500 and Phillips was released on bond. Saldine is being held in the Lincoln County jail.

Correction on rejection of Camelot plats

The News incorrectly reported the sequence of action, pertaining to the rejection of three final plats, and the acceptance of two final plats, in the Camelot development, occurring at the March 11 meeting of the village trustees.

When the final plats were submitted for consideration by the Ruidoso trustees, action was taken in this order:

— The trustees approved final plat of Camelot Mountain Estates and Camelot Crown Estates, "pending signing of the plats by all village department heads, Mike Waldron as P&Z chairman and Mayor Davis."

— The trustees then rejected the final plats for Village at Camelot Condominiums, Lakeview Estates, Phase 1, and Vista Del Lago, Phase 1, because all access areas, and streets, in the developments have not been blacktopped or paved.

Sherry Bordt arrested on burglary raps

Sherry Bordt, 18, Ruidoso, was arrested Tuesday and charged with two counts each of burglary and larceny over $100, in connection with the disappearance of more than $7,000 worth of goods from the home of Rebecca Radcliffe, Junction Road, earlier this month.

Radcliffe reported that about $4,000 worth of clothing, jewelry and silver were taken from her home March 5. On the following day, she reported another $3,600 worth of the same type of items missing. Police said entry was gained to the home through a rear window. The items apparently were taken during the day while Radcliffe was at work, police said.

Bordt was released on her own recognizance Tuesday night.

said. "People enjoyed watching them and so forth, and Mrs. Wetzel used to talk about how cute the little ones were."

The rancher said the goats or sheep were not the real problem, however. He said the Wetzel's resented his "selling land to other people, and they got concerned because I got a bar license."

With regard to the January 4 shooting incident, other White Oaks residents' testimony conflicted with that of the Wetzel's.

Several stated they saw Paul Wetzel shooting at the flock with his pistol as he chased them down a hill near his home. One witness said bullets hit near his feet as he observed the incident from across the street.

There were a few lighter moments in the trial.

Because the state statute on stray animals referred specifically to "hogs, swine or goats," county extension agent Barry Herd was called upon to "describe the difference between them," to the jury. Crenshaw's animals were identified as Mouflon sheep, and the Wetzel's testified they thought the animals were goats.

He identified pictures of the slain animals as sheep, except for one black animal, of which he was uncertain. Asked by the Wetzel's attorney, Charles Deason of El Paso, Texas, whether the animals had "the characteristics of goats," he replied that, "Dead like that, it's hard to tell."

Later, Rosenthal questioned Herd on whether sheep are "very smart."

"Yeah — they're pretty smart," Herd said. "Of course, that depends on who's herding them."

Cedar Creek Picnic Area opening soon

Cedar Creek Picnic Area will reopen for the summer season April 1, according to Randy Herzberg, recreation manager for Smokey Bear Ranger District.

The facility, located on Forest Road 88 just west of the Ranger Station, is equipped with picnic tables, fireplace grills, restrooms and trash receptacles. The area is open only from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m., daily through October 31.

Other recreation areas in the district, open May 15 through September 15, include Oak Grove, Monjeau, Skyline and South Fork Campgrounds. South Fork is a fee area of $3 per day. Three Rivers Campground is open year round, Herzberg said.

SUSAN CARRIE MILLER, a sophomore at Texas Tech University, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sid Miller of Ruidoso, was recently elected to the student Senate at the college. She is a Family Relations major and represents the Home Economics Department on the Senate.

Firemen seek $250,000 for improvements

"The fire department's problem is to maintain that Class VI rating. With the new trucks, and fire stations, we'll be able to do this."

"This rating is based on our ability to respond quickly to fires, as well as our capability to fight fires, both of which will improve with the benefits from the passage of this bond issue."

"In addition to the availability of water, the condition of the village's streets are also taken into consideration in giving us this Class VI rating. Passage of the street improvement bond issue will give us an added advantage in keeping our present rating."

The volunteer department is comprised of 30 volunteers and four salaried firemen. "When the fire alarm sounds," Waltrip said, "the volunteers report to the fire station nearest their home, or employment. Based on our membership, where they live and where they work, and proposed locations of the new fire stations, we'll be able to report for duty faster than they now can."

"Minutes can mean the difference between saving a structure and losing it. The new stations, and new trucks, will give us this time advantage in responding to a fire call."

Village clerk Jim Hine said, "The needs of the fire department, just as the needs of our solid waste, street and police departments, are tied directly to the growth of Ruidoso. As our corporate limits expand, and commercial and residential structures are added, our need for more fire fighting equipment becomes apparent."

Passage of the fire department, street and police departments, are tied directly to the growth of Ruidoso. As our corporate limits expand, and commercial and residential structures are added, our need for more fire fighting equipment becomes apparent."

"This state money, a subsidy actually, is designed to help us improve our services, and we spend it to improve our services."

In summing up the need for the bond issue, Waltrip said, "Our volunteers do a terrific job now and, if the people show them they are backing them 100 percent, there's no doubt in my mind that the volunteers will not only do the same excellent job they now do, but will even do a better job, because they'll have new, better and more equipment with which to fight fires."

KARLA SEARS, left, and Charlene Hickson, right, are the 1981 Ruidoso delegates to Girls' State, to be held at New Mexico Military Institute in Roswell June 4-13. RHS students advised college not for everyone

Although most high school graduates are encouraged by counselors, college recruiters, and often parents, to continue their educations, it isn't necessarily for everyone according to Archie Witham, assistant vice president at Security Bank of Ruidoso.

Witham and Kathy Uhr, data processor for the village of Ruidoso, spoke to Distributive Education students Tuesday, as the second in a series of career education talks sponsored by the Altrusa Club of Ruidoso.

Witham, who attended college nine years, said students should closely examine what they hope to get out of attending a four-year institution. "College is not a status symbol and it is not always a stepping stone" to better things. "If you don't want something you can get at college, don't waste your time," he said. Witham is an attorney, an accountant and has experience as a data processor and systems analyst. He combines all three to complete his job at the bank and said his banking career is something that he can do on a day-to-day basis and enjoy it.

"When people try to recruit you for this job or that job, ask them what they do on a day-to-day basis — because that's what life is — day-to-day and minute by minute," Witham said.

He said computer programmers, operators and other facets of that industry do meticulous and detailed work "because the computer likes everything to be consistent." He said the main challenge in working with computers "is to make the computer do lots of things in a little time."

Witham and Uhr agreed that a strong mathematics background is essential, and "the more classes of this type you can take now, the better — because if you're serious about this business, you'll have to take them later anyway," Uhr said.

Because computers are now available to a private household for $400 and up, Uhr predicted that about 50 percent of this year's senior class will eventually work with computers in one way or another. "Even if you don't go into computer work for a vocation, I would encourage you to take a few courses in it just to get a feel for the technology," Uhr said.

There are many phases of employment for computer programmers, analysts, builders, operators and so on, with salaries ranging from $12,000 to $40,000 depending on education, experience and location.

"The salary and prestige is good in computer careers," Witham said. "And you'll know whether you like it or not after you've been in it a very short time."

UNM seeking material for childcare study

To celebrate the University of New Mexico's (UNM) 10-year support of campus childcare, New America: A Journal of American and Southwestern Culture is planning a special issue on "The Child in Contemporary America."

The publication is soliciting graphics, fiction, poetry, and inter-disciplinary critical articles which discuss the changing patterns that have surrounded the American child over the last 25 years. "We want to focus on significant cultural developments affecting the experience or perception of childhood," said the editorial staff.

Three major themes will be used for the publication: the child in the minds of adults, the child's world, and politics and the child. Examples of topics within these categories include current psychological "wisdom" on child rearing and the nature of childhood; the dynamics of single-parent child rearing; the politics of day care; media images of childhood, feminism and children, and prenatism and planned parenthood.

"There's very little knowledge about and for the child in America," said George O'Neil, director of the UNM Childcare Co-op. "There needs to be someplace where all this gets discussed."

Issue editor is Nancy Theriot, teaching assistant-UNM English department, working with the editorial staff of Maria Field, clerical specialist-UNM English department; Rita Gonzalez-Mahoney, business manager-New America; Alice Klesch, administrative secretary-Office of the Provost, and Ed Mahoney, teaching assistant-UNM English department.

All submissions must be sent, typed and double spaced with a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Nancy Theriot, New America, Department of American Studies, UNM, Albuquerque, New Mexico 87131. Deadline for submissions is July 1.

A Solar Hot Water System.

A solar hot water heating system for your home will cost about $3,500 including backup system, installation and full warranty. With Federal and State tax credits, your cash investment is only $1,350. The system should save the average family of four with an electric water heater $360 per year in electricity at today's rates, (and even more as the price of electricity goes up).

That's more than a 26% return. Because it's in the form of less money paid to the utility company, it's not taxed. Plus the solar equipment increases the value of your home when you sell it. And using the sun instead of fossil fuels to heat water decreases our national dependency on foreign oil.

Compare this to a Money Market CD which yields 15% before tax which means perhaps only 8 or 9% after tax.

Our solar hot water systems are saving money right now for hundreds of New Mexico homeowners. They're in stock and ready for immediate installation.

But don't call your banker or broker. Call the solar investment specialists at The Fireplace Center.

Warrior basketball — it was a very good year

BY MARK BAGBY
Sports Editor

Well, it's all over. The 1980-81 AAA basketball season is now history, and it was an interesting five months. Albuquerque Academy, the team that was never ranked higher than eighth in any of the state's polls, is the champion. Ft. Wingate, the unheralded team from the extreme northwestern corner of the state, finished second but had to prove itself over and over again, despite owning the best record in AAA ball (24-3). St. Michael's of Santa Fe, which spent half the season in the top spot, fell to third when it was all said and done. And the Ruidoso Warrior played their part in the whole affair, finishing the season with an excellent 19-4 record, a fourth place standing in the state tournament and their first ever District 3AAA title. While he admits winning the state championship would have been "nice," (that's "nice" as in "fantastic") Warrior head coach Barry Nelson feels the 1980-81 Ruidoso team ranks right up there with some of the best.

"It was a good year," he said. "We had a pretty good team and we beat some people. It was great to have the exposure and all the attention we got. A year like this doesn't happen very often. But I'd sure like to have it like this more often."

The basketball season saw the Warriors whip two AAAA schools, beat perennial AAA power Deming for the first time ever, claim the district championship with a win over longtime archrival Tularosa and a berth in the state tournament.

The state tourney was something else again, and that featured a win over defending state champion St. Pius, a down to the wire thriller that left the Warriors worn out.

"If that game hadn't been so close, I think we would've done better (in the tournament)," Nelson said. "We were just worn out."

And it showed in the semi-finals against Ft. Wingate. The Bears, who eked out a 73-71 win over Pojoaque the night before, were quick, fast and hitting the basket with ease.

The Warriors, on the other hand, shot a miserable 18 percent in the first half and trailed 48-18 at halftime.

Though things improved in the second half (the Warriors outscored Wingate 40-38), it was way too little, and way too late.

"We didn't play very well," Nelson said. "If you get to the state tournament, you're good, but there's always someone who's just a little better than you. So you've got to be sharp and on your game."

"We weren't." The loss was particularly frustrating for the Warriors, who shot only 27 percent the entire game. If the Warriors, who put up 83 attempts, had made only 45 percent of them (37), they would've beaten the Bears.

"We didn't shoot well all year," Nelson said. "We played some people we should've blown off the court, but we didn't shoot well enough to do it. We were fortunate in playing some of the people we did, I guess. If they had been hot when we were cold, they'd have killed us."

The Warriors looked back on track Saturday morning against St. Michael's, but the Horsemen shot a blistering 50 percent against Ruidoso and the Warriors never seemed to get a defense going. "All our steam was gone," Nelson said. "I don't think we were too interested in third place."

The Warriors lost, 90-68. Those two games were but two of only eight bad memories the Warriors will have of the season.

The first bad memory of the year was a loss to Roswell in the opening game of the year. (The Warriors later avenged that loss with an 81-58 win over the Coyotes on February 10.)

The next loss was a one point thriller in the Mountain Top Tournament in Cloudcroft. The Warriors lost to eventual Class A undefeated champion Reserve. (The Mountaineers beat three AAA teams this season, by the way.)

The next loss was a 26 point clobbering by Roswell Goddard, which avenged a 57-

55 at-the-buzzer win by the Warriors in the fourth game of the season.

The Warriors followed that loss up with another one, this time to Artesia, which spent much of the season ranked first in AAA. The score was dead even after three quarters, but the Bulldogs outscored the Warriors by 12 in the second period and won, 82-68.

The Warriors did not lose again until February 7, when they lost to Deming. That was a 51-45 verdict. Later in the season the Warriors beat the Wildcats by 14 points, their first win over Deming.

The only other loss in the regular season was a 78-71 defeat at the hands of Tularosa. The Wildcats played their best ball of the season but had to save off a last minute Ruidoso rally to secure the win.

A final season win over Coble seeded the Warriors first in the district tournament, which gave them an automatic bye to the semifinals.

There, a last second shot by Glenn Ryan gave the Warriors a 50-48 triumph over a tough Silver City squad, and sent them into the championship bracket with Tularosa. The rest is history.

Three of the Warriors' four seniors were named all-district — scoring leader Glenn Ryan, quicker than quick guard Gary Jones and 6-4 star forward Rodney Thomason. The other senior on the roster, 6-3 forward Gene Reeves, while not gathering the accolades of his teammates, sank some crucial buckets during the season.

Nelson was also named district coach of the year.

Following the state tourney, Ryan, who averaged 22 points a game during the year, was named to the tourney's all-star team, and Thomason was selected on as honorable mention. Also, Ryan was selected to the South all-star squad for a basketball game played at the annual coaches' clinic in August. Thomason was named as a first alternate on that squad.

Yes, it was a fine year for the Warriors. But Nelson is already looking at next year. "I was in the gym the other day, looking at Bill Richardson, Steve Sluder, Russ Veronda, some of those tall kids we have," he said. "How many teams do you know will average 6-3, 6-4, across the front line? I'd like to take a little time off and then get back to work. I'm ready to get after it."

... a column of opinion ...

Mark Bagby

George Orwell was right.

Orwell, as you well know — at least I hope you do — wrote about a dehumanized future, where the government controls everything, red tape and bureaucracy run rampant, and those who try to straighten things out are exterminated because they're harmful to the survival of the system. He entitled it "1984."

By the calendar, 1984 is three years away.

Uh-uh. It's already here. Last Friday (Friday the 13th, natch), I was in Albuquerque, trying to track down my press pass so I could get into the AAA basketball tournament semifinals.

First, let me tell you the importance of that little blue card. That is the key to success for a sportswriter. With that thing, you can go anywhere in the University of New Mexico Arena. You can go in the dressing rooms, sit at the scorer's table, get a telephone, be allowed on the floor to shoot pictures, even get in free and they'll hand you a program.

Okay — about a month and a half ago, I got a letter in the mail from the New Mexico Activities Association (NMAA). It said, "Any and all media personnel wishing to cover the state basketball tournaments must make application to this office no later than one week before the tournament begins."

Okay — so I called them March 3, and talked to Wayne Hogan, who apparently is connected with the UNMADSID office. (That all translates to University of New Mexico Athletic Department Sports Information Director. Sounds like Newspeak to me.)

I told him I needed a pass, but I wasn't sure when I would get there. He said, no problem we'll send your pass wherever you want. We'll hold it for you until you let us know.

Okay, a week goes by, and I find out I don't get to cover the Warriors until Friday. If they make it to the semifinal round. (They did.)

So I called the UNMADSID office again, spoke to a lady named Rose, asked her to send my pass to the Arena (which is about a quarter mile from the office).

She checked a list and said, "We already sent it to Highland High School (which is where the first round was played, and this was after the first round was over)."

I said, "Well, could you go ahead and get it back to the Arena?"

She said, "I don't know. I'll try. Call me when you get here and I'll let you know if I did it."

I arrived in Albuquerque Friday morning about 9:30. First thing I did was call Rose.

"I couldn't get it for you," she said. "It's still at Highland."

She didn't know exactly where at Highland, but it was over there somewhere, she said. She did give me directions to get to Highland.

That took me about 20 minutes. I finally got there, and then it took another 10 minutes to find a place to park in a very crowded parking lot at this high school, which has about as many buildings as a small college campus.

All the buildings had names — "Science," "Art," "Music," "Gymnasium" — everything except "Administration." I was finally directed to the office, where this nice lady (her name I forgot) did her best to help me, but we had a communication problem.

After five minutes of trying to explain what I was doing there, the principal came out. He introduced himself as Mr. Wright, and said Mr. Starkey (apparently the Highland athletic director) would know all about it.

Just then classes let out and 5,000 students examined the hallway. Naturally, we had to make our way through about four corridors of kids before we found Mr. Starkey.

"Hi, I'm Mark Bagby, Ruidoso News, looking for a press pass, the UNMADSID said it was here."

Nope, said Mr. Starkey — El Richards (she's the assistant executive secretary of the NMAA) took all that stuff to the Arena this morning. You just missed her. All that stuff is at the "Will Call" Ticket Office at the Arena, he said.

I thanked him, finally found my car out there in what looked like a used car lot, and got back on the street. It's a little after 10 a.m., the game starts at 11.

I make it to the Arena, which is no small feat, considering I don't know where I'm going, but make it I do.

About the only parking space left is approximately a half mile from the Will Call office. With camera bag over one shoulder, notebook in hand, I jogged to the office.

Another nice lady (everybody was nice to me, I'll grant them that) said, "Can I help you?"

I certainly hope so, I said, I'm looking for my press pass. She opened a box of press passes and asked me my name.

I told her. Nope, no Bagby, she said. Nothing under Ruidoso, or News, or Dummy.

"Any idea where it might be?" I asked, noting it was after 10:30 at this point.

"It's probably over at the UNMADSID office," she said. She pointed it out to me.

So I ran over to the football stadium. I didn't meet Rose, but I got this guy who didn't know his backside from an oil well. I explained my problem and he consulted this list.

"It's at Highland," he said.

"No it ain't, I was just there."

"Then it's probably at the Will Call office at the Arena, have you tried there?"

"Yes," I said, trying very hard to smile, "they sent me here." By now I'm wondering what the penalty for murder is in this state.)

"Well, I can't help you. Mr. Hogan or James Odle (the executive secretary of the NMAA) are the only ones who can give you a pass."

"Where are they?"

"In the Arena."

So I took off, and raced to the Arena.

Only problem was, you don't get into the place without a ticket.

I paid my $3 — it was about five minutes to game time. I got a program (another buck) and covered the game.

After all that, I had to watch the Warriors lose.

Then I tried to track down the elusive Mr. Hogan and the equally elusive Mr. Odle. I never did find them, and yes, I paid admission for Saturday's game too.

But I did shoot some pictures and I did get into the dressing rooms. I just slung my camera bag over my shoulder and walked up the ramp with the team, and I came back with my story, which is why I was there in the first place.

I may have lost all the battles, but I think I won the war.

So rest in peace, George — we'll lick 'em yet.

Inside The Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE — By the last week of a legislative session, the Capitol has generally melded into a community.

For a month or two, we who are here, spend so much time with one another that we have to make almost the same kind of adjustments which are required in a family.

Legislators have to learn to get along with one another, though their points of view may often be startlingly different.

In turn, they have at least to tolerate those of us who pester them — reporters and commentators, and those who lobby for a specific bill or a specific point of view.

And mixed through the whole is a group of employees, most of them here just for the session, who can help or hinder the legislative work, depending on how well or ill they are treated.

All of us swirl around the big building which is our state's capitol, rubbing elbows, communicating our germs and, it is to be hoped, moving the state in a generally forward direction.

A major disagreement, as between Governor and Legislature on a grand scale, causes serious rifts in that sense of community the session has created.

It is interesting to see the ripple effect of such a rupture as it moves out through the various sub-societies in the community called the Roundhouse.

It is therefore equally interesting to watch when word is passed that a major falling-out such as the one we had this year, seems on its way to being cleared from the books.

Legislators, as is only right, know such things first.

You might expect the word would next reach the news reporters, but it is often the lobbyists who really carry the word from lawmakers to newfolks. (Lobbyists, after all, have more reason to be closeted with individual members than we do, and they are as sensitive to rumors as a piece of litmus paper to acid or base.)

Last week ended with a minor war between the fourth floor and the rest of the building still in force. Lawmakers especially were still acting very resolute in their determination that the Governor would never get what he wanted unless he learned to play ball with them.

By Monday (maybe after, major participants had a little rest), the climate appeared to be changing.

Most people hoped it would.

Peace, for one thing, would suggest that it might be possible for the Legislature to finish its work and go home, a consummation devoutly to be wished by one and all.

Like any treaty, this one would take a multitude of good will and could break down at any point. Some of those involved in making it are not renowned for their constancy; they sometimes break promises which they appear to have given, and everyone concerned is sensitive to that very inclination.

But if this one got made, we could — all of us in the community — finish the work we are here for and go home.

Home! Seldom has a word sounded so good!

One gloomy thought which has occupied some minds during this year's long fight over what the state ought to do about liquor licenses is this:

No matter what the finest minds in the Legislature come up with as a way to recompense the present-day license-holders, for their current transferrable licenses, we, as taxpayers or as drinkers, or as both, will inevitably be the ones who do the paying.

Doesn't all such matter get passed on to our pocketbooks in the end?

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

I hear that some towns and cities are lucky to have real sharp people in city hall because they keep their town and local people in mind.

I went to the new municipal building and asked if they needed a tile setter and the foreman told me a tile company in Albuquerque had the sub contract and would bring their tile setters from there.

If this is the company I know of it uses a brand of tile that is cheap and very inferior and have illegal aliens for workmen. I noticed a truck with a name on the side — a rock masonry company from Portales and I wondered if there was one local citizen working on the municipal building.

Some towns realize that local tax payers do help pay for a local project and demand 50% or something of local workers on the job which is good common sense.

I live here, own a home and spend every dollar I make here. Local companies I buy from here always recommend me and I am sure they don't recommend some out of town person who would bring his nails, lumber, etc., with him to build something.

Woodrow Wilson

Dear editor:

A MATTER OF BOND ISSUES

The Village of Ruidoso has a record of approving all bond issues in the past.

The time has come, however, to consider the entire picture of bond issues now before us and those to come.

The hospital mills tax was recently passed — so was the school mills tax. In May an additional request for funds by the schools will be made in another bond issue of about 2 million dollars. On 3-24-81 we face a village bond issue of 1.7 millions. In addition we face new increased water and sewer rates. A bond issue of 2.5 millions is in the works for increasing the size of the Alto dam. In the next few years we are looking forward to a new airport and our share will be in excess of four millions. In the meantime the five millions voted for the Eagle Creek dam has payments running to 1995.

All of the foregoing are important, individually, to the continued growth of Ruidoso but deserve close consideration as each case is presented for voter approval.

Let's take a look at the 1.7 millions included in the village bond election for March 24. There are four propositions:

PROPOSITION #1: $250,000 to build and equip a new fire station near our present post office.

PROPOSITION #2: $500,000 to pave and otherwise complete the job of upgrading our streets and roads.

PROPOSITION #3: $170,000 to provide additional dumpsters and moving equipment for the garbage department.

PROPOSITION #4: $550,000 to remodel the existing city hall and to enlarge to house our police department operation.

Proposition #2 seems valid and necessary. Many of our streets have an oil penetration surface which will become a permanent surface if we can use the lay-down machine to place an overcoat of permanent paving over oil base. Failure to do so will result in a deterioration of the oil penetration streets and a good base will be lost. In addition 39.7 miles of unpaved streets will have improved surfaces and 6.8 miles of streets will be paved with the cooperation of funds from the Highway department. Dollars spent here will save many dollars in the future.

Proposition #4: This is a tough one. There is no doubt that we need to improve our jail facilities. But to spend more dollars to repair and enlarge the old city hall for the police operation than we are spending on a new city hall is difficult to understand. The police department has developed a comprehensive plan to use the old city hall structure and to increase its size by 150 percent. Jail cells would be increased 400 percent from three cells to 12 cells including a padded cell. A new communication system would be installed at a cost of $100,000.

There is no doubt that the present jail does not meet State standards: simply put, the jail cells are horrible — not fit to house animals. This situation has been evident and known to everyone for several years but no improvements were made during this period as it was felt better to wait until the city hall was vacated before renovations would be made. Now something must be done and quickly. Publicly given the jail problem would lead us to believe that if the bond issue for the jail is not passed we will spend thousands of dollars transporting prisoners to other towns. This would be true assuming that we will close the jail and no longer have a jail in Ruidoso. We will have a jail here.

To construct a jail of the size contemplated in present plans would be to serve a community many times the size and population of Ruidoso.

We should consider sending the jail expansion plans back to the planners for a new proposal keeping in mind the need of meeting state standards along with the actual requirements of a town the size of Ruidoso. This should be done posthaste and a new bond election called to approve the revised plans.

Propositions #1 and #2: these two proposals are entirely up to the voters. If you feel that either or both are must do situations then vote accordingly.

Increasing costs have a way of creeping up on us in an unsuspecting way. The foregoing may be of benefit to some of the voters.

To raise objections to bond issues can be a lonely position for one to take, but necessary if the village voters are allowed to pick and choose among the issues presented to them.

J. A. "Al" Jung

editorial

Progress for Ruidoso — to improve safety and living conditions — hinges upon passage of the four propositions in the General Obligation bond election March 24.

Proposition 1 would provide up to $250,000 for fire protection. Due to the village's residential and commercial expansion, plus the fact that there is the ever present threat of a disastrous fire, it is obvious we need all the fire protection we can get.

Proposition 2 would provide up to $600,000 for street improvements. The application of basecourse on about 40 miles of streets would improve driving safety conditions and permit blacktopping of these streets as money is available. No one is arguing against the need for street improvements and this would be the first step in making Ruidoso's road system one of the state's best.

Proposition 3 would provide up to $170,000 for solid waste disposal equipment. This money would enable the village to handle solid waste efficiently, to better serve the residents, for years to come. The addition of 600 dumpsters would serve to keep our village much cleaner and offer improved health conditions.

Proposition 4 would provide $650,000 to upgrade the village's jail/judicial complex and offer command centers for emergency operations. Not only would the proposed facility meet all state codes, but it would serve the community's needs for several years, after which time it could be enlarged at the lowest possible cost.

To provide for orderly growth, and improve living conditions in Ruidoso, we urge passage of all four propositions. —CD

SERVE IN MOLESWORTH?

If you're a WW II flyboy... serving with the 388th Bomb Group (H)... you can't possibly have forgotten Molesworth... that's in bloody old England... 'cause who could forget Molesworth?

Anyhow... there's this buncha guys as was in this B-17 outfit, that kinda wants to get a line on the whereabouts of all the other guys as was in this outfit... and the thing to do is write Joseph Vieira, 6400 Park Street Hollywood, Florida 33224... and Joe'll fill you in on the poop... and let you sign up as a member... so's you can keep abreast of whatever it is that a buncha guys in that B-17 group outta Molesworth'd be interested in. Molesworth?

CANCER IN COFFEE?

Must be lots of Scandinavians as is wondering about that scare announcement that it's possible coffee might be a culprit in cancer of the pancreas... or whatever vital organ it was.

Now most Swedes, Norwegians and Danes I've known... not to forget their gregarious neighbors, the Finns... are 20, 30 and 40 cuppa day coffee quaffers... and it used to be each cup of java was used to wash down several cubes of sugar... and any one of 'em could get more chumps outta a sugar cube than any five Irishmen.

Now all those coffee quaffers was a healthy bunch... and if you figure most of 'em was still guzzling coffee into their nineties... chances of scaring 'em into giving up the bean is mighty scarce.

'Course the article did say something about decaffeinated coffee being more of a culprit... allegedly... than the regular stuff... and it must be borne in mind that whilst these hearties didn't exactly quaff their coffee for the caffeine... they for sure didn't want any weak sister brew... they settled only for the real McCoy... 'cause Scandinavians go in only for the real thing... even if they do have an uncontrollable hankering for lutefisk come the Yule season... bearing in mind that any group of people as can survive huge quantities of lutefisk ain't about to be done in by casual indulgence in coffee.

As for tea, that's for Englishmen escaping the midday sun.

YEA! CARPENTERS

Carpenters... especially retired carpenters... probably even long retired... if'n they mind their p's and q's... might become famous... and of interest to posterity... if'n they can get themselves included in the history of the Carpenter's Union in New Mexico... which a couple UNM professors is gonna compile... 'cause they have a $90,000 grant to compile a tome on this subject.

All that loot comes from the Carpenter's Union and the New Mexico Humanities Council... which might mean it ain't gonna cost the taxpayers much... though you might not wanna make book on that.

Anyhow... being it's such a gigantic project... the two pro's will be assisted by an interdisciplinary team of six other UNM sociology, history and economics professors... 'cause they wants the info to be factual, honest and authentic... which might require discipline.

Gadzooks... and here you thought, whilst old carpenters don't die, they just cast their tools aside to gather dust and fade away.

At that this project could be more productive, and interesting to future generations, than some of the federal funded projects... for whole bunches more dollars... spent to study the love life of the green tree frogs as can't hardly be found in the foliage of tropical island forests.

PROGNOSIS ON TAXES

Taxpayers, arise!... And shout with joy... 'cause, due to the increased valuation in Ruidoso the past year, that $1.6 million village bond issue won't raise your village taxes... nary a pence nor mill.

Not that your tax bill won't be higher, next time you get one... 'cause there's the two mill levies as got passed... one for the school, the other for the hospital... as gets added on to your taxes... but they ain't got nothing to do with the taxes you pay on your Ruidoso taxable property... which should help make your day.

That tax break ain't no free lunch... but it's as close as you'll come.

BRIEF BIT: Share-the-wealth schemers are gung ho about their pet project until they discover it's their wealth as also gets divided up... CD

Sunland Park Hoofbeats

By MIKE MAGDA

BOLD EGO, WINNER of the 1980 Riley Allison Futurity at Sunland Park, took a major step toward the Kentucky Derby when he won last Saturday's $50,000-added Rebel Handicap at Oaklawn Park. The three-year-old son of Bold Tactics, owned by the Double B Ranch and Dr. Joe Kidd of Anthony, covered the mile and 70 yards in 1:41 2/5, which is the fastest time in the history of the race. Last year's winner was Temperance Hill, who later captured the Belmont Stakes. John Lively was aboard. Bold Ego now assumes the favorite role for the $300,000-added Arkansas Derby on April 11. Last year Bold Ego also won the Rio Grande Kindergarten Futurity at Ruidoso Downs and the New Mexico Futurity at Albuquerque. His earnings are now approaching $250,000. Bold Ego has been nominated to the Kentucky Derby as well as the Preakness and Belmont.

ANOTHER New Mexico-based horse nominated to the Kentucky Derby did not fare well in his first start of 1981. Pass The Tab, owned by Dr. Leopoldo Villareal of El Paso, Texas, ran last in a field of five in the $50,000-added Swift Stakes at Aqueduct on March 7. He was faced with an off track, and ran as the second favorite behind 4-5 choice Proud Appeal, who won the six furlong sprint. An Aqueduct spokesman said, "this race is surely not a true indication of his worth, but he will have to improve if he is going to run in the Bay Shore Stakes on March 22." Last year Pass The Tab, winner of the Santa Fe Futurity and Omaha Juvenile, was undefeated in six starts and won his races by a total of 50 lengths.

DON HERSHBERGER, noted Southwestern artist and sculptor, was at the races over the weekend, displaying his art. Hershberger is offering a limited edition of his untitled running quarter horse in bronze. There will be only 50 copies offered at $2,000 each. Hershberger works out of Wyoming and has long been involved with horses. The bronze cast of the running horse is 15 inches long and stands 8 1/2 inches high.

MR. AND MRS. Mike Joiner are the proud parents of a six pound, one ounce boy. Justin Wayne Joiner was born March 6 to Mike and Linda. He is their second child along with son Cody. Both mother and baby were doing fine and rode to Lubbock last weekend to watch Mike saddle his entries in the futurity trials there.

LED BY BETTY J. Harless, Sunland's talented lady riders placed 1-2-3 in Sunday's first and third races. Harless guided 7-1 shot Falcon's Orphan to the winner's circle in the first race. Following in second was Silver Speck with Jody Crane aboard and Marie Irigaray rode Lark's victory to third. Harless was again aboard the winner in the third race when she rode Mighty Falcon, a 2-1 pick. Taking second was Jackie's Turn with Harla Webb aboard followed by Vickie Smallwood aboard Joshaway. Both winners were owned by Ralph Woods of Odessa, trained by Coy Hendrix and sired by Mighty Lure. In Saturday's first race, the ladies almost pulled off another sweep. Smallwood won with Wits Nurse Followed by Harless on Hopeful Brat.

BAR BONUS, won his seventh race of the meeting Sunday, taking the fifth race on the card by 1 1/2 lengths. Louie Figueroa was aboard. Bar Bonus has been to the post 14 times at the meeting, compiling a 7-4-1 record. All of the New Mexico-bred eight-year-old gelding's victories have been against $2,000-$2,500 claiming company. Barbra May of Tularosa, was Bar Bonus' trainer and owner during his seven victories, but in Sunday's race he was claimed by Ophelia C. Castillo.

JOCKEY ALEX BALDILLEX was unhurt Friday following a spill after the 11th race. Baldillex' mount, Bold Bang, collapsed after the running of the 870 yard race. The five-year-old gelding apparently died of internal bleeding. Baldillex came back to ride the next day and won with Midland Native, the betting favorite in the Fall futurity who was making his 1981 debut, in the seventh race.

WAGERING ON SUNDAY'S Big Q reached $48,322, which is a seasonal record. It was also the second highest Big Q handle in the track's history, surpassed only by the $47,712 on Sunday, May 4 (closing day) of the 1979-80 season. Total handle over the three day weekend reached $358,981, a gain of 3.81 percent over the same weekend a year ago. The daily wagering average is now up to $265,444, a boost of 8.39 percent compared to the daily average at this time last year.

The No. 4 post position was the best over the weekend with eight winners. Here's the seasonal standings: 1-103 wins, 2-110, 3-91, 4-88, 5-78, 6-83, 7-82, 8-59, 9-52, 10-37, 11-0, 12-0.

Futurities draw entries

Five hundred and forty-two yearlings have been nominated to the five major thoroughbred futurities at Sunland Park and Ruidoso Downs in 1981.

Under a new "package plan," a $25 nomination fee, which came due on February 15, 1981, made a yearling eligible for the following 1982 futurities: The Riley Allison Futurity and Fall Thoroughbred Futurity at Sunland Park; the Rio Grande Kindergarten Futurity, the Norgor Futurity and the Ruidoso Thoroughbred Futurity at Ruidoso Downs.

In addition, these yearlings are also eligible for this summer's Ruidoso Summer Sale for Selected Thoroughbred Yearlings.

The owners of 542 yearlings jumped on the bandwagon and shelled out $25 a head, giving the project a fast get away. "This is the first such project of this kind, and we're extremely pleased by the response," said Finlay McGillivray, general manager of both Sunland Park and Ruidoso Downs. He indicated the number of nominees far exceeded original expectations.

Each of the five futurities represented in the plan carries a sizable purse, and that no doubt helped lure such a brisk inflow of nominations. The estimated purses: $300,000 for the Allison Futurity; $125,000 for the Ruidoso Futurity; $100,000 for the Norgor Futurity; $50,000 for the Sunland Fall Thoroughbred Futurity; and $40,000 for the Kindergarten Futurity. Yearlings which haven't been nominated so far still have an opportunity to climb aboard, Mac Gillivray pointed out. A $100 supplemental nomination comes due on May 15, 1981.

In addition, a yearling may be nominated to any one of the five races later on, via a steeper penalty payment. The leading nominator is the Game Racing Farm of Bosque, which sent in $25 checks for 17 head. Nine of the hopefuls were sired by Pleasure Ridge, who won the Ruidoso Mile both in 1977 and 1978.

The second "biggest" nominator is the McDermott Ranch of Madisonville, Texas. That outfit put 14 head on the list. Most are sired by Raise Your Glass, a thoroughbred stallion whose progeny includes two winners of the All-American Quarter Horse Derby at Ruidoso.

Here are the other major nominators: Twelve head — J. L. Perkins of Navasota, Texas. Eleven head — Keith Asmusen of Laredo, Texas. Nine head — Jolly and Sammie Driskill of Tuscola, Texas; Sam Stevens of Lamesa, Texas. Eight head — Cal Rose Farms of Elverta, California; Glass And O'Day Bloodstock of Valley, Nebraska; Carl Swan of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. Seven head — SSS Ranch of Odessa, Texas. Six head — Alta Vista Hermosa Stable of Glencoe, Degella, Incorporated of Lexington, Kentucky; Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Jones of Tatum; Joe Mathews of Albuquerque; Rancho Jonata of Buellton, California; Mrs. Gene Whitehead of Menard, Texas. Five head — Mike Abraham of Albuquerque; DuPont and Bloss Stable of El Paso, Texas; Hagel and Mary Lou Branch of Lawton, Oklahoma; Jerry Givens of Abertown, Texas; Herbert Graham of Gardendale, Texas; S. F. Henderson of Odessa, Texas; John T. L. Jones of Lexington, Kentucky; Charles Trimble of Bovina, Texas.

ART, DINING AND ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE

'Indio' is a Sunland institution

BY MIKE MAGDA

The race track is his second home, and rightfully it should be. Not only did Isabel Valdivia — affectionately called Indio by his fellow workers — help build Sunland Park Race Track, he can count on one hand the number of race days he has missed in its 22 year history.

"There's nothing about this track I couldn't tell you about," said Indio, who is the track's top maintenance man. "I know where every water valve, water line and electrical connection is."

Since 1959 when the Upper Valley Track opened, Indio and his men have overseen not only the routine repairs, painting and upkeep of the track, but they have been called in to repair major water breaks, erect temporary stalls and assist with any conceivable problem.

"Anything that hurts this plant hurts me, also," said Indio. "This is my second home. I helped build the track, and I have grown with it. I've watched the ups and downs with each year."

Indio is one of the few people who has worked at Sunland Park in its entire history. He was hired by the construction company when it was four months short of completion. Of the 400 workmen on the project, only eight were hired by the track for its first season.

"A lot of people I knew from the first year are still coming out," said Indio. "And there are little children I remember from then who have grown up and are parents now."

It was when Indio was a child that his journey to El Paso, Texas, began.

"I was 11 months old when our village in southern Mexico was raided by Pancho Villa," said Indio. "Everybody was trying to leave the village any way they could. Most jumped on the trains, and my family found an empty space on top of the box cars. There were people everywhere on that train."

During the trip there was a severe rain storm. Due to the lack of medication, boils began to infect the majority of riders. As a baby, Indio was especially susceptible to infection, and one boil did not heal. It took a doctor's knife to remove it from the top part of his ear, and Indio still has the hole to remind him of the trip.

Indio's father, a shoemaker by trade, went to work for the railroad, which meant the family had to move to Kansas. They lived there for five years until the untimely death of Indio's father. After a stay with relatives in Arizona for a few years, Indio's family, now grown to eight members, returned to Mexico during the depression.

Living in Juarez, Mexico, Indio would sneak back across the border for work. He was caught and had to serve 60 days in jail simply because he could speak English and the judge decreed that Indio knew he broke the law.

"I was set free the day before Pearl Harbor was bombed," said Indio. "I decided then I was going to return to America legally."

Indio crossed the border again under the Bracero Program and worked for a farm. Later he worked at an El Paso dairy for 12 years, progressing from a bottle washer to a foreman. By this time he had married and started a family.

Indio moved to Los Angeles, California, in 1956 to work in a bakery, then returned to El Paso after feeling homesick during a vacation in the Border City. It was in 1959 that he went to work for the construction company.

"I feel this track is a part of me," said Indio. "The owners have shown they really appreciate me and it makes me feel proud to work here."

Take Five Too wins Dona Ana

Take Five Too lunged ahead at the wire and pulled out a narrow victory in Sunday's $5,300 Dona Ana Handicap at Sunland Park.

The finish of the 400 yard sprint was so tight the stewards practically needed a crowbar to pry them apart. The top seven finishers were separated by only 1/4 lengths.

Take Five Too was ridden by Alex Baldillez Jr., who was subbing for James Lackey. The latter journeyed to Lubbock Downs over the weekend and couldn't get back in time to ride Take Five Too in the Dona Ana.

Take Five Too, a four-year-old gelding, is owned by L. C. and Joyce Robbins of San Antonio, Texas. The Dona Ana champ racked in $3,780 and returned mutual payoffs of $5.50, $3.50 and $3.20. Willie Hunt is the trainer.

Sparkling Tony and Native Eagle, both carrying 7-2 odds, were in the thick of things during most of the duel. Take Five Too was never far off the lead. When he reached the final steps, he suddenly ignited and went storming ahead.

Native Eagle, piloted by Danny Campbell, held on for second, earned $1,386 and returned $5.60 and $3. Washita Ted (10-1) and Native Sparkle (3-1) crossed the wire on even terms, a head behind Native Eagle.

So the stewards called it a deadheat for third, which meant backers of Washita Ted got a show pay off of $3, while Native Sparkle dished out $2.60.

Take Five Too came out of the Dona Ana with his second straight win and his third victory of the meeting.

Sparkling Tony, who had to settle for fifth, had his victory skinn snapped. He was going after his fourth win in a row.

Bar Bonus, the durable kingpin of Sunland's $2,500 claiming division, stepped off a 1 1/2 length win in the fifth race at 6 1/2 furlongs. The victory was his seventh of the season. He's in a class by himself. (Several horses are tied for runnerup honors with five wins each.)

Lady jockeys continued to turn in sparkling performances. This time, the gals were led by Betty Harless, who won the first race with Falcon's Orphan ($16) and the third with Mighty Falcon ($5.60). Jolly Pappa ($3.60), with Kathy Campbell up, won the seventh race impressively.

Jockeys Harla Webb, Jody Crane, Marie Irigary and Vickie Smallwood were in the money during the afternoon. Harla logged a second and a third; Jody notched two seconds.

Horse racing depends on more than hot dogs

BY DICK ALWAN

Last time in this space, we launched into an analysis of the eating habits of the sporting crowd at the races. We'll finish up the subject with the following notes:

Just because the beef burrito, the hamburger and the hotdog are top bananas here in the Southwest, that doesn't mean racegoers around the country share the same appetites. Our source is Ruth Perry, the Sunland concessions chief — whose extensive background in the chow business also includes tours of duty at Assinibola Downs in Canada.

"The differing culinary habits between one area and another is often significant," Ruth said. Take the bean, for example. In New Mexico and Arizona, the pinto bean is the king of the hill. In Florida, they go for black turtle beans over rice.

In New York, you've got a winner when you spoon up "navies" and Boston-baked beans. In Ohio and Kentucky, the racetrackers respond to black eyed peas and grits. In Canada, the hotdog is the Great Northern (which Ruth describes as "a big Navy bean").

"When you serve a hamburger in Canada, make sure the onions are fried," Ruth tells you. "In the United States, the onions are preferred raw."

Another difference: since it tends to be pretty chilly in Canada, the people want their Cokes without ice. In the Southwest, the cup has to be loaded with ice. In the States, hamburger-and-fries mix beautifully with ketchup. In Canada, you don't put ketchup on French fries — you put vinegar.

One of the sweetest aspects of the racetrack food business is this: you have a see-saw principle working in your behalf, so far as weather is concerned. When it's cold, food sales shoot up and liquor, beer and soft drinks tail off. When the weather gets warm and comfy, folks don't eat so much, but they drink a lot more. Either way, Ruth tells us, sales don't suffer.

Before getting sidetracked by the food angle, this reporter started out with the idea of piecing together a lot of oddball statistics connected with a racing operation — which led us to the number of burritos, hamburgers and so forth, sold on a given weekend.

Statistics of a more penetrating nature were whipped up by Ken Randles of The Sunland — Ruidoso accounting staff. But before moving into some of this info — and the economic impact a racetrack often brings into a community — we might mention the impression one gets when driving around the barn area during early morning. The place is a crossroads of activity. All of these people — trainers, jockeys, exercise riders, grooms, valets, officials, publicity writers, maintenance workers, and so on — derive their income from the racetrack.

The fact that so many people of various skills and talents — up and down the social scale, get their income from the track has often struck this writer as an impressive point. This income ultimately comes from two sources — the money wagered at the track by the fans, and the costs underwritten by the horse owners.

Sunland Park and Ruidoso Downs represent a huge hunk in the New Mexico racing picture. The amount of money wagered at the two tracks, in their last seasons, is close to $57 million.

The pari-mutuel taxes paid to New Mexico during this period (the 1980 Ruidoso meeting, the 1979-80 Sunland season) break down this way: $1,282,320 from Ruidoso, $512,840 from Sunland. There's a state tax of 10 cents per patron, and this generated state revenue of $32,743 from Ruidoso, $24,390 from Sunland.

Property taxes on Ruidoso came out to $41,990. On Sunland, the tab finished $34,019. A racetrack in New Mexico needs a racing license, computed at the rate of $300 per race day. This came out to $19,800 from Ruidoso, $28,100 from Sunland.

The state also got some income from individual licenses (from employees, trainers, etc.). Ken estimates the total at six grand from Ruidoso, five grand from Sunland.

Perhaps the most stunning statistic of all is the amount of money which went unclaimed due to lost or neglected pari-mutuel tickets. During the Ruidoso season, this amounted to a whopping $56,160. At Sunland: $28,479. Under current regulations, these funds revert to the state.

Add it all up and you get a healthy $2,069,841 which Ruidoso and Sunland paid in various taxes in one cycle. Also, that doesn't include $363,275 funneled to the IRS on a government-dictated 20 percent takeout from mutual tickets paying a grand-and-up on a $2 ticket.

In the payroll department, Sunland and Ruidoso dished out nearly $3 million in paychecks during 1980. The statistical fallout from this figure includes $307,691 withheld for Uncle Sam, plus $174,561 for Social Security and a like amount donated for employees, $31,631 mailed to Santa Fe for the state income tax, $58,181 for the state unemployment tax, and $13,815 for the Federal unemployment tax.

Finally, a closing observation: other than the marketing of burritos, hotdogs, beer and the whole panoply of food and drink, a racetrack's main function is the processing of money. Money is taken in, and handed back to the public, and commissions are deducted to pay the purses, and the upkeep, and to account for a profit. Along the way, a lot of tax bills are satisfied.

Sacramento Peak photographic section headed by Lou Gilliam

Lou B. Gilliam of the Sacramento Peak Observatory has been elected chairman of the Working Group of Photographic Materials (WGPM) of the American Astronomical Society (AAS). This group was created by the AAS in 1965 to provide a forum to propose and encourage the development of photographic techniques in astronomy, including suggestions concerning the manufacture of new emulsions. The WGPM publishes the AAS Photo-Bulletin to keep working astronomers, engineers, and students abreast of developments in astronomical photography. The Bulletin also provides a communication channel among various workers in the field.

Gilliam was born and raised in Boulder, Colorado, and received his bachelor's degree in geology from the University of Colorado in 1960. Shortly afterwards he moved to Sacramento Peak, where he has been for the last 19 years, first under Air Force management, and then under management by the Association of Universities for Research in Astronomy under contract with the National Science Foundation. He is Chief Observer at both the Big Dome and Hilltop facilities, and is responsible for the operation, maintenance, and scheduling of the scientific instruments there. His vast experience with both solar observing and solar instrumentation provides the key to success in many observing programs undertaken at Big Dome and Hilltop, and he often makes valuable contributions to the design and execution of scientific projects done there.

Looking to the future, Lou has ambitious plans for the WGPM. He wants to enlarge the scope of its activities to include all modern detectors used in astronomical work, particularly the electronic and solid state devices that have been developed in the past few years, and have proved so important in research applications. He would also like to enlarge and update the membership of the group so as to reflect more accurately the current state of the art and current detector design philosophy, and to keep the group at the forefront of new trends and developments.

Arsonist being sought

On an ordinary winter's eve in Red River, the sounds of ribaldry fills the crisp air.

Each night is like a mini-Mardi Gras, with skiers from all over the country enjoying the many diversions offered by the tiny northern New Mexico ski resort.

But in February, two fires, one possibly accidental, the other definitely not — stopped the laughter.

On February 19, a fast-running blaze destroyed the Ponderosa Lodge and with it the lives of a young Oklahoma couple.

On February 24, only good fortune prevented a similar fate to Bill's Restaurant.

In its report of the Ponderosa Lodge blaze, the State Fire Marshal's office said it could not totally determine the cause.

"It is possible the source of ignition was a cigarette carelessly dropped by someone on the stairway above some garbage cans or a spark from a barbecue grill about 20 to 25 feet from the garbage cans," Fire Investigator D. G. Dabbs said in his report. "It is also possible that an unstable person, looking for excitement or sexual stimulation, might be responsible for the fire."

Dabbs went on to write in his report, "Until all possible causes are eliminated, it is extremely difficult to positively determine that the fire was accidental or caused by carelessness. If an unstable individual is, in fact, responsible, a murderer remains at large."

As a ghastly postscript to the tragedy, police caught a 17-year-old juvenile trying to steal parts from vehicles damaged by the fire. He has been released and returned to his home in Lubbock, Texas.

Just five days after the Ponderosa fire, someone tried to torch Bill's Restaurant. A flammable liquid was poured on the exterior of the building near the rear of the dining area, then set ablaze.

Fortunately, the resulting fire only burned from the point of ignition to the height of about 30 inches on the outside wall.

The State Fire Marshal's office said the fire apparently self-extinguished before generating enough heat to ignite the wood.

The offender apparently used some wadded butcher paper to set the fire, then fled before seeing the result of his work.

Saturated samples of wood, which had an odor similar to Hai Karate after-shave lotion, were sent to the New Mexico State Police lab in Santa Fe for further tests.

This week the State Crime Stoppers Commission is offering a $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and indictment of the person responsible for setting the fire at Bill's Restaurant. Additionally, the Commission is requesting any information about the Ponderosa Lodge fire and its possible causes.

Citizens having any information about either of these two fires, or information about any unsolved crimes committed in New Mexico can call the State Crime Stoppers Commission at its toll-free number, 1-800-432-6333. Callers do not have to reveal their identities.

UNM's anatomy department combatting muscular dystrophy

Doctors at the University of New Mexico (UNM) School of Medicine have held clinics for years to help residents throughout the state fight muscular dystrophy. Now research in the school's anatomy department may shed some light on this crippling and usually incurable disease.

Molecule by molecule, Dr. John Trotter is investigating the chemical bonds that connect muscle fibers to tendons. He said there's a chance that a breakdown of these connections may be associated with one or more kinds of dystrophy.

Muscular dystrophy isn't just one disease. The words are a general label for at least six separate muscle conditions. Some dystrophies affect only boys, and others affect both sexes. Translated from its Latin roots, the name simply means "something has gone wrong with the muscles."

In Duchenne muscular dystrophy, a commonly known form, something usually starts going wrong when the victim is only about two years old. Victims of Duchenne muscular dystrophy are boys. The first symptom may be slowness in learning to walk. By age five victims are noticeably awkward. They tend to fall more often than other children. They may need leg braces by age 10. Most are in wheelchairs by the teens.

The Muscular Dystrophy Association has cooperated with the UNM School of Medicine for 15 years in providing clinics that slow the symptoms down with physical therapy and exercise. The current director is Dr. Russell Snyder of the neurology department. Drs. Joseph Bicknell and Stephen Thompson, also in neurology, conduct outreach clinics in Roswell and Farmington. With regular training and therapy, said Snyder, patients learn to get all the use and enjoyment they can out of the strength they have. But the weakening goes on.

No one yet knows how to stop the disease, said anatomist Trotter, partly because our knowledge of normal muscle is incomplete. "For this reason the Muscular Dystrophy Association took the rather enlightened position years ago that it would consider supporting research in all areas of skeletal muscle function," Trotter said. The association has granted Trotter $25,000 to pursue his experiments with muscle-tendon connections.

Muscles anchor themselves to tendons, and the tendons are attached to the skeleton. When the muscles flex, the tendons pull the bones up, down or side to side, and that's how people are able to walk, chew, lift, kick, throw and do other tasks.

Healthy muscle fibers have to keep active. A scientist can grow muscle fibers as a culture in a glass dish, and they'll rhythmically flex and relax. The long fibers anchor themselves at both ends. If either end breaks loose, the muscle fiber has nothing to pull against, stops flexing, and rapidly degenerates.

Trotter said muscular dystrophies might do their crippling work by cutting some of the muscle fibers away from tendons, leaving the muscles unattached and unable to flex. This would reduce the victim's strength and cause permanent degeneration in the affected muscles.

The chemical links that hold muscles and tendons together are invisibly small — even to the most powerful electron microscopes. Still, without seeing them, there are ways of figuring out what chemicals are present. The unknown connector is somewhere in the narrow space between the two tissues.

To find this connector, Trotter has fastened a tiny strand of muscle and its tendon to a sensitive machine that measures how hard the machine can pull against the tendon. If the two tissues separate, the machine will show the break as a sudden loss of pulling power.

In his experiments, Trotter is treating such muscle fibers with a group of chemicals called solvents. Each one can dissolve a different kind of chemical connection. When the machine shows the tendon and muscle fiber have separated, the UNM anatomist will have a good idea of what originally held them together, based on the kind of solvent that broke them apart.

Once he has found the biological glue that holds healthy tissue together, science will be closer to discovering how — or if — muscular dystrophy affects this vital part of the body's system of muscles.

"Researchers have two ways of approaching a disease," said Trotter. "Clinical research can invent ways to help the patient deal with the immediate problems associated with an illness. Basic research shows us the nature of a disease, and puts us in a position to eliminate it completely."

"Take the example of polio. Clinical research gave us the iron lung, and that allowed people to survive while the disease ran its course. That machine saved a lot of lives. But it couldn't keep anybody healthy — it was only useful once somebody was already sick. Basic research analyzed polio and developed a vaccine, and now nobody has to get the disease at all."

He said the long range goal of studies like his is to put scientists in a similar position in relation to muscular dystrophies — in position to snuff them out.

Possibly, Trotter's research will prove that muscular dystrophies don't affect the connectors between muscles and tendons at all. But even so, he said, "That will be an advance because we will have eliminated an area where we have to look for the cause. We can transfer the energy we've been spending in this area to other suspected causes."

I-n-s-i-d-e the Outdoors

by Gary Dollahan

"Five Residents Lose Hunting, Fishing Privileges."

"Three Residents Forfeit Firearms For Game Law Violations."

"Nonresident Fined $810 For License Purchase."

"Three Men Fined $1,230 For Deer Possession."

"Espanola Man Pays $1,010 For Deer Possession."

These are just a few of the many headlines pertaining to wildlife law violations that have appeared on news releases from the Game and Fish Department's Public Affairs Division since the first of this year.

In other words, game and fish violations are not uncommon and most of the magistrate judges hearing these cases are considering them as serious offenses and imposing stiff fines, and even some jail time, upon the violators.

For example, four individuals recently appeared before Artesia Magistrate Donald Price on charges filed by Artesia Game and Fish Officer Ellen King for illegal possession of a hindquarter from a deer. Judge Price found each of the defendants guilty as charged and fined each of them $400. One of the defendants was sentenced to 30 days in jail.

Last month in Alamogordo, Otero County Magistrate Henry Frelo heard a similar case concerning illegal possession of deer filed on four men by Alamogordo Officer Bill Essary. Each man was fined the statutory $400. Three of them were sentenced to 30 days in jail, and the other believed to have killed the deer, received 90 days in jail and was also assessed $100 in civil damages.

Essary had also made an earlier case in which two men were cited with two counts each for illegal possession of deer in the killing of a doe and a fawn during an afternoon's "varmint hunting" expedition. Otero County Magistrate Robert Bradley fined each man a total of $800, and sentenced one man to five days in jail, and the other to ten days. They were also assessed $200 civil damages for the state's loss of the deer.

The serious attitude toward game violators and the high fines have really just come to be in recent years. The public can take a lot of the credit for these attitudes, perhaps thanks to a poaching "study" done by this Department in 1976.

The study revealed that the public in general has a very casual attitude toward wildlife laws and their violators. However, the shocking figures calculated from the study which indicated we could be losing as many as 30,000 deer, and 3,000 antelope a year in this state seemed to make the public mad. The public then became concerned.

Soon afterwards, Operation Game Thief

(OGT) was born. Operation Game Thief set up a reward system and a toll free phone number for persons willing to provide information concerning game law violations.

Anyone having such information can call 1-800-432-4263 and give the pertinent information, yet remain completely anonymous. If the information results in the case being made, the caller is eligible to receive a $250 reward in big game cases, and $100 for small game and fishing cases. Rewards can be higher in flagrant cases.

To date (since June 1977), OGT has led to 397 arrests or citations. Of these, 99 percent resulted in convictions.

OGT cases have involved over 556 different animals. Of these, 127 were deer, 59 were elk and 27 were antelope. The others included bear, mountain lion, javelina, wild turkey, miscellaneous game birds, game fish, hawks and owls.

The program has paid out more than $35,000 in rewards. Meanwhile, court cases made through OGT calls have resulted in fines totaling more than $71,000 and civil assessments of over $33,000.

Because the reward fund consists entirely of donations, the continued success of the OGT program is dependent upon sustaining this fund. Neither the department, nor OGT gets the court fines.

Anyone wishing to make a tax deductible contribution to OGT can do so at a Game and Fish Office or by mailing the donation to the Department of Game and Fish, Villagra Building, Santa Fe, New Mexico, 87503.

Get involved in New Mexico's wildlife heritage. Help support OGT and wildlife law enforcement.

Why is there controversy surrounding condominium conversions?

Misinformation and myths are frequently the culprits according to the Ruidoso Board of Realtors.

When many buildings in a neighborhood or community are converted, debate can be intense. According to a study by the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development, far too often the actual facts are lost amid charges and emotional countercharges.

It is very difficult for condominium converters to make a case for prospective buyers. Converters are skilled in creating homes, but often are unable to cope with vocal opponents challenging the conversion process, according to a study commissioned by the National Association of Realtors.

The real problems, the study found, must be put into perspective. Conversion problems should be carefully identified along with their proposed solutions so that the benefits resulting (from condominium conversions) will not be lost to the community.

Tenant groups should begin to recognize that strong buyer demand exists due to changing life styles and demographics, as well as the poor financial performance of rental housing in recent years. Rents have not kept pace with inflation.

The biggest single perceived conversion problem is that of tenant displacement. "Not every tenant in a building slated for conversion wants to own a home," the study stated.

study stated. "And some tenants simply cannot afford to buy."

In addition to lacking a down payment, some apartment dwellers do not have sufficient monthly income to afford the mortgage costs and maintenance fees.

Conversion opponents argue that alternative housing is not available to the non-buying tenant. As proof, they point to a low vacancy rate in the rental housing stock, or the evidence that many buildings in a particular neighborhood are being converted.

The National Association of Realtors study debunks this myth, demonstrating that a "vacancy rate" is not a valid indicator of rental housing availability. Rather, the "turnover" rate of apartments is a more accurate barometer, the study suggested. Rental housing turns over as frequently today as it did five years ago and, in some instances, more frequently. "A high turnover rate is the best evidence we have that rental housing is readily available," the study concluded.

The "vacancy rate vs. turnover rate" concept is an example of how statistics can be used and misunderstood, creating problems or myths which result in harmful misconceptions.

Condominium conversions which actually result in improved neighborhood stability, increased employment opportunities, additional city revenues, and provide desperately needed, less expensive housing alternatives are thereby thwarted by attitudes based on error," the study stated.

Seminar on treatment of stuttering at UNM

One of the world's foremost authorities on the treatment of stuttering will present a two-day seminar in Albuquerque April 1-2. The event is sponsored by the University of New Mexico's (UNM) department of communicative disorders.

Dr. George H. Shames, professor of psychology and speech/language pathology at the University of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, will focus on stuttering and the Shames-Flornance stutter-free speech therapy program at the seminar which will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., at the Sheraton Old Town Inn, Albuquerque.

Local arrangements for the seminar, designed for professionals in the field of speech therapy, are being handled by Dr. Sumner Blanchard of UNM.

"Dr. Shames has had excellent success in the treatment of stutterers," Blanchard said. "He has taken persons who have had chronic fluency problems and helped them become totally stutter free — a goal seldom achieved."

"At the University of Pittsburgh, Shames is coordinator to the Division of Speech Pathology and Audiology. A licensed psychologist, he is the author of numerous articles and of two major books on the management of stuttering. He currently is senior co-editor of an introductory text on speech pathology.

Blanchard noted that Shames' techniques for the treatment of stuttering currently are being employed in treatment programs offered through the department of communicative disorders at UNM.

"We've been using the Shames-Flornance program for the last six months," he said. "Right now we have about six clients in the program. I'm very impressed with it; initial results are encouraging."

Blanchard said professionals in the field still have an incomplete understanding of why people stutter. "There probably are half a dozen defensible theories that attempt to explain stuttering. But the Shames-Flornance program is less concerned with why a person stutters than with helping the person adopt new speech behaviors that will promote stutter-free speech."

The Shames seminar in dysfluency therapy in Albuquerque will include an introduction to and historical overview of stuttering, principles of operant conditioning, a videotape summary of the Shames-Flornance stutter-free speech therapy program and a review of phases of the therapy with client demonstrations.

Speech and language pathologists from all over New Mexico and from neighboring states have been invited to attend the Shames seminar. Registrations are being taken at the UNM department of communicative disorders, 608 Buena Vista NE, Albuquerque, New Mexico 87131.

New Mexico sheep best in nation

New Mexico's sheep breeders and wool producers continue to dominate wool quality competition in the Western United States.

New Mexico sheep ranchers have now won the sweepstakes division of the National Western Wool Show, part of the National Western Stock Show in Denver, Colorado, for the 13th consecutive year.

New Mexico had only three of the 15 entries in the sweepstakes division, the prestige event within the National Western Wool Show. When the judges made their selections, the New Mexico entries were grand champion, reserve champion, and third place.

Grand champion honors in the sweepstakes division went to Tony Treat, Roswell. The A. D. Jones Estate, Tatum, won reserve champion honors in this division, followed by Ernest Perez and Sons, Encino, in third place.

Jim Sachse, Extension sheep specialist at New Mexico State University, said, "Placing anywhere in the sweepstakes division of this show is a national honor, but to place one-two-three this year and win it for the 13th straight year is an exceptional performance."

Wool from New Mexico fleeces dominated several other classes, including the junior class for 4-H club members.

The A. D. Jones Estate had National Western Wool Show's overall reserve grand champion fleece outside the sweepstakes division. The Jones ranch also took grand champion honors in the territory fleeces class, the class for sheep run strictly under western range conditions.

Reserve champion honors in the territory fleeces class went to the Diamond A Cattle Company, Roswell.

Goodrum Brothers, Roswell, were named reserve grand champion for their entry in the breed fleeces class, a class for ewe and ram fleeces from purebred sheep.

Chris Perez, Encino, was the junior class reserve champion.

Besides these championship awards, New Mexico ranchers dominated many individual judging categories. In the finest wool class within the territory fleeces division, New Mexico entries took the first three places, and eight of the top 10 awards.

Rankings in this class were A. D. Jones Estate, first; Twin Butte Sheep Company, Pecos, second; Troy Floyd, Roswell, third; Phelps White, Roswell, fifth; Tony Treat, Roswell, sixth and seventh; Truman Pierce, Roswell, ninth; and Ernest Perez and Sons, 10th.

New Mexico ranchers won the top four places in the next wool quality class, territory fleeces division. Diamond A Cattle Company, Roswell, was first place winner, followed by F. V. Cauthers Ranch, Hope, second and fourth; and Troy Floyd, Roswell, third.

INTERIOR SELLING TIPS

Remember — when you are showing the inside of your home to a prospective buyer, first impressions are lasting and have an important effect on a potential sale.

A clean, well-kept home shows a home that has had good care and has been properly maintained. Repaint the interior if it needs it, but use neutral colors, if possible. An attractive, comfortable living room is a major attraction, but a sparkling kitchen will appeal to the lady of the house. It's the heart of any home, so keep it spotless. No dirty dishes. Women are also sensitive about bathrooms; keep them clean and orderly.

Bedrooms are important — arrange their furnishings neatly. Shiny, clean windows not only are a great asset, but let sunlight in and brighten the entire atmosphere. Clean out the clutter in the closets, basement, and garage. And, if you have pets, clear them out too when showing.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at DEVON DEVELOPMENT, INC., 2904 Suddarth Drive, Box 1640, Ruidoso. Phone: 257-5511. We're here to help!
