Wendell Chino is Aspencade parade marshal

Wendell Chino, president of the Mescalero Apache Tribe, who will serve as Grand Marshal of the 1981 Aspencade Parade, and his wife Rita, will be accompanied in Saturday's parade by mounted riders of the Mescalero Apache Tribe, Ed Jungbluth, Chamber of Commerce executive director, said Tuesday.

Judging parade entries will be Roswell judge last year, Dave Miller, Alamogordo, owner of Alamographics, and Bill Billingsley, county manager for Lincoln County, Jungbluth said. A third judge is yet to be named, he said.

New entries registered by the Chamber as of Tuesday are: Little League Cheerleaders (float and eight cars); Mrs. New Mexico, Marion Lewis of Artesia; Old Cars; Mescalero Reformed Church (horse and buggy); Miss Mescalero and Elks Club (Santa Claus and sleigh — end of parade).

In answer to a question about the banners along Sudderth, promoting the motorcycleist's convention, Jungbluth said Texas-New Mexico Power Company responded to "our request for assistance by not only putting up the banners, but they also installed guy wires on the poles."

Others singled out by Jungbluth, for their "community inspired efforts" in promotion of Aspencade were Continental Telephone Company, for "use of their bucket truck and their manpower in taking down banners every year," Bob Hickson of Cree Meadows Country Club, for use of their golf carts; and to the water department for use of their two-way radios.

Police set for Aspencade fun

Ruidoso Police look ahead at Aspencade as "just another big weekend," according to patrol Captain Larry Simon.

Asked whether the police department makes any special preparations for Aspencade, Simon said, "We've been doing it for so long, they don't seem like special preparations."

He noted that most of the work getting ready for Aspencade is administrative in nature, such as assuring that all functions are well publicized and that all vehicles are newly washed.

Simon cited traffic control during the Saturday parade as the biggest problem for police, but added that this is less of a headache than it used to be.

About the visiting motorcycleists, Simon said, "They come up here to have a good time, but they don't cause any more problems than anyone else."

With the presence of extra State Police and Mounted Patrol officers through the weekend, Ruidoso Police hope to keep their home town down. The department's take over car program will help, said Simon, because off duty officers are more readily available if needed.

RUIDOSO TRUSTEES APPROVED REQUEST

Carrizozo okayed for SBAC

BY TIM PALMER
Staff Writer

The Ruidoso trustees Tuesday evening accepted Carrizozo's bid for membership on the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission (SBAC).

Ruidoso became the fourth of five SBAC members to approve Carrizozo's request for a commission seat. Lincoln County, Capitan and Ruidoso Downs had previously approved Carrizozo as a SBAC member.

Carrizozo must now petition the fifth SBAC member, the Mescalero Apache Tribe, as approval of all members is required for membership.

Dr. Dale Goad and council member Ruth Armstrong represented Carrizozo at the meeting. Goad was closely questioned by trustee Benny Coulston, who expressed concern that Carrizozo was seeking a SBAC seat in order to push for location of the proposed regional airport at the county seat.

T. P. "Cotton" McKnight, chairman of the Lincoln County Commission, pointed out that a joint powers agreement among present SBAC members stipulates that the new airport must be located within 15 miles of Ruidoso. Goad, Armstrong and McKnight all indicated that Carrizozo is willing to abide by the agreement.

"They (the people of Carrizozo) want the airport as bad as anyone," said McKnight. Armstrong said that Carrizozo could find itself in a situation of "taxation without representation" since its residents, along with the rest of the county, will have to support the proposed airport with taxes. County Commissioner Ben Hall pointed out that the support of Carrizozo will be important in any countywide referendum on the airport. "You're going to need all the help you can get to get this passed," he said.

Armstrong noted that while the aim of Ruidoso is tourism and the aim of Carrizozo is industry, the county airport would serve both goals.

Given assurances that Carrizozo would not seek to create dissension within SBAC, Coulston encouraged his fellow trustees to approve the request. "I am personally convinced of the highest intentions of the people of Carrizozo," he said.

Trustee George White's motion to accept the request then passed unanimously.

In other business, the trustees:

— Were notified by city manager Jim Hine that a $43,075 Federal Aviation Administration grant for improvements to the Ruidoso airport has been finalized. The grant will be used to construct a blast pad area at the end of the runway and to resurface and mark the access road to the terminal building, said airport manager Tim Morris.

— Authorized Hine to accept a letter of conditions from Farmers' Home Administration pertaining to the village's $1.2 million loan request for the Ponderosa Heights Sewer Project.

— Were notified by Hine of the approval of the Highway Co-operative Agreement under which the village and state will share the $228,000 cost of 6.8 miles of paving and overlay work on village streets. Streets to be worked on are: Baldy Drive, 3 miles; Junata Drive and South Country Club, 1.6 miles; Cree Meadows Drive, 1 mile; Buckner, .1 mile; Poor Street, .1 mile; Main, 2.6 miles; Wingfield to Center, .5 mile; North Loop Road, .4 mile; D Street, .2 mile.

— Accepted the proposal of Kluft and Company to create a non-profit corporation to acquire water rights for the village.

— Heard a report from Hine on the status of the search for a planner to coordinate the formulation of a comprehensive five-year plan for the village.

— Approved a request from the Police Department for new uniforms. Police administrative officer Jim Alston explained that departmental revenues will cover the $8,000 cost.

— Were advised by Hine that the village has been asked to provide information on Ruidoso's water use and future needs to the Bureau of Reclamation on the Tularosa Basin Reclamation and Energy Proposal.

— Approved the final plat for Lakeview Estates Phase 3.

After adjourning the meeting, the trustees went into executive session to discuss acquisition of water rights from a private party.

County sets subdivision hearings

A public hearing concerning two housing subdivisions in Ruidoso is scheduled at the November 10 County Commissioner's meeting as a result of the commission's action at Tuesday's meeting in Carrizozo.

Commission chairman "Cotton" McKnight called for the hearing because of variances requested concerning the water supply in some of the plots in both the Deer Park and Gavilan housing subdivisions. In the Deer Park subdivision, there are actually too many lots for the septic tank system that will provide services to homeowners in that area, McKnight said.

However, according to Don Blaugrund, Deer Park developer, people purchasing the few lots involved will be able to buy their own septic tanks. He added that the entire project has been approved by the Environmental Improvement Division (EID).

A similar situation exists in the Gavilan subdivision. Three lots, will according to the plat, need individual drilled wells as they are not part of the community water system. The lawyer representing the developer explained that if the commission waived the variances, the final plat could be approved saving public time and money.

However, Commissioner Ben Hall pointed out that the commission must comply with state laws which state there must be a public hearing in the case of variances. McKnight said the public has a right to air their opinions before the final plat is approved.

Also at Tuesday's meeting, the commission approved transfer of a liquor license ownership to Great Western Realty in Corona. The license is still located in Corona, where it was originally, and a request for transfer of the license to Oscura has been tabled.

A request for easement of right-of-way from Eastern New Mexico Rural Telephone Coop required some discussion before it was approved. The major concern was the possibility of land and roads being torn up and then left if funds ran short to complete laying cable. However, a representative from the Coop assured the commission the funds have already been approved, so that will not happen.

If in laying the cable the workers must cut across county roads, the commission requested the company inform the commission and the county road superintendent.

In other business, the commissioners approved:

- A contract for library services with the state library.
- Resolution for prior years' bills.
- Sale of an office typewriter.
- Loans agreement with Roswell Communications.
- Renewal of office rental agreement with the Soil Conservation Service.

— Application for 1981 State Emergency Medical Service Fund grant.

— A petition to close county road F-007 was not approved because there were not enough signatures on the petition.

Before the meeting closed, commissioners discussed problems in grading and maintaining county roads. County road superintendent Gay Hensley said some of the county roads are on private property behind locked gates. Letters will be issued to those people requesting they leave the roads open and accessible to the road crews, or fines of up to $100 may be levied.

Downs tables TV rate increase

Ruidoso Downs trustees Monday evening tabled action on a rate increase requested by Cablevision of Lincoln County, until October 12, after trustee Bob Power vigorously protested the increase.

"This upsets the hell out of me. I can't vote on this without reading more about it," Power said. He referred to the fact that a previous council had voted to follow any rate increases that Ruidoso approves.

Paul Crown, Cablevision manager, had explained earlier in the meeting the current monthly bill for cable services is $8.50, and that it will be increased to $10 pending approval of a resolution by the trustees.

When cable lines were first installed in Ruidoso Downs, the village approved an ordinance that stated the village would follow any increases that Ruidoso approved. This was done because it would not have been cost efficient for Cablevision to install cable lines in the Downs area unless they would be guaranteed it would be worthwhile economically, according to Crown.

"As it was, we (Cablevision) lost $121,000 last year," Crown said. With the rate increase, which affects Capitan, Ruidoso, Alto and Ruidoso, Crown said the company will pull in only an extra $85,000 this year, which doesn't cover what was lost last year. However, Crown agreed that the company will realize a profit in the long run.

Those who have paid for a year in advance for their service will not be subject to the pay increase, provided they did so before August 1.

In other business, the board accepted two bids from Lincoln Communication. One, for $962 was for a 10 channel radio for one of the police units. The unit will include an encoder and paging system.

The other bid, $417.45 will pay for a two channel radio for the Street and Water Department vehicle, which will include encoder and antenna. Cost on both units includes installation within the next 30 days.

The board also approved advertising for bids for new equipment for the Fire Department. Specifications were submitted to the board and must now be approved by the state fire marshal. The board will open bids at their November 9 meeting.

Spending time at the park is a favorite American pastime, and Saturday is a favorite day to go. The group "Chicago" even wrote a song about it.

Ruidoso is fortunate to have Two Rivers Park, located at the confluence of the Rio Ruidoso and Carrizo Creek in the 600 block of Sudderth.

Land for Two Rivers Park was dedicated to the village in 1928 as part of the original Skyland Subdivision. Since then, several generations of Ruidosians have enjoyed this tranquil spot.

People go to the park to picnic, play on the playground equipment, fish, wade, cook out and just plain relax. Ruidoso can truly take pride in Two Rivers Park, and any sunny Saturday will find many persons enjoying themselves there.

Forest fire season due

A warning that fall is the time of the year for area residents to begin observing fire prevention practices has been issued by Steve Makowski, Fire Management Officer for the Smokey Bear Ranger District.

Makowski is particularly concerned with the disposal of ashes from fireplaces and woodstoves. "Improper disposal of hot ashes," he said, "can result in partial or total structure losses."

Optimum guidelines provided by Makowski for proper disposal of ashes from fireplaces and woodstoves include:

- Consistent removal of the ashes from fireplaces and woodstoves;
- Placing ashes in a metal container;
- Pouring water over and leaving drowned ashes sitting for two or three days before disposal, and
- Disposal of ashes in cleared area (exposed soil.)

Some of the people with a potential for setting ash type fires, according to Makowski, are:

- Local residents who have improperly disposed of ashes in the past but have been lucky;
- Seasonal people who own a second home in the mountains and who build a fire in their fireplace or woodstove on Saturday or Sunday and go home without disposing of, or disposing of ashes improperly, and — Owners who permit others to use their cabin without leaving instructions on proper disposal of ashes.

Makowski said he strongly advises anyone with a second home to display prominently instructions on how they want ashes disposed of. "All that is required is for something flammable coming up against a live coal, from ashes believed to be cold, to start a fire which can very well mean the loss of a home."

Makowski cited two examples of careless disposal of ashes he has witnessed: ashes left in an empty beer case, right next to a dumpster; and numerous piles of previous dumpings about 30 feet from a home, one pile immediately adjacent to the deck.

Skiers who leave here on a dry Sunday afternoon, as soon as they have finished skiing, without properly disposing of ashes from a fire they have lit Saturday or Sunday morning, are asking for trouble, Makowski said.

DECA plans seafood sale October 23-24

The Ruidoso High School chapter of Distributive Educational Clubs of America (DECA) is sponsoring a truckload seafood sale in Gibson's parking lot, at the junction of Highways 70 and 37, October 23 and 24, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Ruidoso High School DECA student, Lois Covill said Tuesday. Proceeds from the sale will be used for participation in state and national DECA competition, she said.

Since more money is made from seafood orders taken in advance, Covill said, the club is requesting orders be turned in by October 12. Order forms are available at Gibson's, Ben Franklin's and Don's Pharmacy.

macy, she said. Orders can be picked up and paid for at the Trans Alaska truck parked at Gibson's, Covill said.

Seafood products listed on the order form include: pink and silver salmon, whole or steaks, and red or pink smoked salmon; center cut halibut steaks and ling cod steaks; Northern Pacific Walleye and Red Snapper fillets; Alaska King and Snow Crab legs; small cooked and breaded fantail shrimp, and jumbo and extra large jumbo shrimp, peeled and deveined. Most of the items listed, according to the order form, are Alaska products.

Board asking sewer plant equipment bids

At Wednesday's Joint Use Board meeting, authorization was given to advertise for bids for laboratory equipment needed for the Regional Wastewater System treatment plant being constructed at Blacut Hill.

The board also set regular meetings on the first Monday of each month at 4 p.m. They will alternate location from the Ruidoso Administrative Center in odd numbered months to Ruidoso Downs Municipal Hall in even numbered months. The next meeting is November 2 in Ruidoso.

P&Z meeting October 5

The Planning and Zoning Commission will meet at 9:30 a.m., October 5, in the Village Administrative Center.

Agenda items include:

- Replat of Parcel 2, Tract A, Flame Canyon.
- Request for driveway and sewer easement through village property, Tract 3, Wingfield Homestead, First Addition.
- Replat Lot 79, Block B in Steeply Hollow.
- Replat Lot 32, Block 13 in Cree Meadows Country Club.

Eagle Creek water group sets meeting

The Eagle Creek Inter-Community Water Supply Association will meet at 7 p.m., October 5, in the Holiday Inn, Ruidoso.

The major agenda item will be a review of a contract pertaining to the sale of Eagle Creek property.

Increase in electric rates

Texas-New Mexico Power Company has announced that the New Mexico Public Service Commission has granted the company a rate increase amounting to $3.2 million dollars annually in New Mexico. The increase, the company said, will amount to $1.87 per month for the average residential customer using 411 kilowatt hours.

Coyotes are adapting to life in urban areas

"The recent tragedy where a three-year-old girl was killed by a coyote in Los Angeles County, California, has some relevance here in New Mexico," said Jim Knight, Extension wildlife specialist at New Mexico State University.

Knight said, "Coyotes are adaptable and intelligent. This combination can result in problems that range from economic losses for the sheep industry to the ultimate tragedy that happened in California."

As the area around Los Angeles developed, a great deal of coyote habitat was destroyed, Knight said. Unsuitable mountain terrain prevented the coyotes from moving, so they stayed in the lowlands near the growing metropolitan area.

"They adapted and actually thrived in this expanding urban area," Knight said.

Trapping along fire trails in the area kept coyotes under control for several years. Los Angeles County officials and the United States Fish and Wildlife Service cooperated in a program to allow government trappers to remove coyotes and keep the coyote population in check.

The trapping program died 10 years ago when residents brought enough public pressure to get rid of traps in the semi-rural area.

"California wildlife experts say the coyote population is especially high in these areas now that there is no control," Knight said.

Urban development continued to push into what little room the coyotes had left to themselves. Now it's common to see coyotes roaming suburban streets. There are constant reports of coyotes killing house cats, rummaging through garbage cans, and posing a hazard to children.

Bites to humans are reported often, especially where people don't understand they are dealing with a wild animal and begin to feed the coyotes. Coyotes also wander into yards to eat food left out for pets.

"The death of the three-year-old child was tragic, but it may have been inevitable under these circumstances," Knight said. "Two other children from the same family had been bitten by coyotes in the past three years."

The day the girl was killed, the father had just left the house to check on his daughter. He saw a coyote standing by his motionless child in a vacant lot across the road. The coyote shook the girl's body once more and ran off as the girl's father approached. The child died of a broken neck and internal injuries.

The adaptability of coyotes allowed them to survive in an urban area. That adaptability has progressed to a point where some have lost their natural fear of humans. The coyote's tendency to attack children may be related to the child's smaller size.

"The situation in Los Angeles County is an extreme, but it underlines the coyote's ability to adapt," Knight said. "In a wild setting, this allows the coyote to survive under the most severe conditions. In an urban or agricultural setting, he's a nuisance under the best conditions and a hazard under less favorable conditions."

New Mexico ranchers, especially sheep ranchers, have been fighting a battle with the coyotes and public opinion for years.

The ranchers are still trying to convince the general public of the need for intensive control of these predators.

Ranchers have first-hand experience with the coyote's ability to elude traps, avoid poisons and hide from hunters. When ranchers have tried to control coyotes on their own land, they have been hampered by regulations and restrictions, and they often run into public opposition from people who don't understand the situation, Knight said.

"The situation in New Mexico isn't the same kind of life and death situation that exists in Los Angeles County, but ranchers have literally been forced out of business because they can't use methods that will effectively protect their livestock from coyotes," Knight said.

"It's just a different kind of life and death situation for the ranchers of this state," he said.

Coyotes are such an economic threat to New Mexico sheep ranchers that many have abandoned operations that thrived during the years when ranchers were allowed to control predators as they saw fit, Knight said.

"The ranchers' situation here in New Mexico, and the more tragic event in Los Angeles County, show what can happen when there's no control of coyote population," Knight said.

"It's imperative that we find some way to keep the coyote population from growing to the extremes where the animals are dangerous economically and to individuals, but with environmental safeguards to protect livestock and other beneficial wildlife," Knight said.

Wilderness Wisdom

with Wayne Calloway

Dear Wayne — I own a small, inexpensive aluminum boat and a low horsepower outboard which I use for bass fishing. And I do a lot of bass fishing. I have almost no frilly equipment, not even a compass, because I haven't seemed to have a need for it. There is, however, one accessory that strikes my fancy, and that is a depth finder. Since I've never used one, and since they aren't exactly inexpensive, I'm a bit hesitant about buying one.

Do you think a depth finder really has a place in my rather simple and small bass world? Or is it just a fancy luxury? Tommy L., South Carolina

Dear Tommy — Maybe, yes. Depth finders, as you say, aren't really inexpensive, but they can repay their cost if you can put them to good use.

A depth finder can, under some circumstances, be considered a luxury that can be done without. But it is also a very important navigation instrument, and can be an almost indispensable fishing tool as well. Whether you want to enter the more sophisticated world of electronics or not is up to you, but consider what you might gain.

A depth finder probably won't be needed for navigation of your small craft, but it can help you find fish if you learn how to use it. It will locate the deeper holes in your favorite lake, as well as find hidden underwater bushes, stumps, overhangs, and other features that are natural habitats for bass. It is even possible to locate schools of swimming fish. With this device you can virtually map the bottom of the lake. Its greatest asset, of course, would be to guide you over a lake bottom that was totally new and unknown to you. The time spent getting acquainted with the lake would be reduced dramatically.

One point that would seem to make sense in your case. A portable depth finder which is enclosed in its own carrying case would mean you could use it in a friends boat as well, rather than being tied to your particular rig. Permanent mountings in small open boats aren't usually practical because it's difficult to locate them in a place that affords both ease of use and protection to the instrument.

Dear Wayne — There seems to be a great resurgence in the popularity of bait casting reels recently, and I wonder why. When spinning reels found their debut the bait casters quickly found their niche on a dusty shelf. The spinning reels were so much easier for the amateur they spread like wildfire.

Now, why would any company want to revive them, and why would anyone want to buy them? Has technology improved them that much over their ancestors? Steve N., Indiana

Dear Steve — The bait casting reels, for those who don't remember, are those with the horizontal, revolving spool, as opposed to the spinning reel which uses a fixed spool, upon which the line is wound by a revolving bail.

Although spinning reels revolutionized fishing, bait casting reels have never been totally forsaken in the industry or with the public. Their use has been pretty much limited to special applications, such as deep sea fishing where heavy lines are used, or deep trolling with wire line.

These revolving spool reels were brought back a few years ago in smaller versions for use in fresh water. They were intended for casting heavier baits and lures that required heavier lines. Some think it was a gimmick of the industry to reintroduce an old wolf in sheep's clothing. Maybe, or maybe not, but they are selling and some people say they prefer them to spinning reels for some applications. The biggest curse of the bait casting reel is the all too familiar backlash and bird's nest of line. Even with the new generation of these reels it's still too easy to create an unenviable bird's nest that will make strong men weep. But, really, they are better. Level line winds help even your line on the spool instead of allowing it to build up at one point, and spool brakes help minimize backlash. This revolving spool idea is a new concept to many young spin fishermen, and maybe they are attracted by something different, or maybe by the advertising campaigns of the manufacturers. For whatever reason, one can soon master the basics of bait casting, and it does offer a bit of variety to the fishing game.

Focus on Small Business

by E. Maine Shafer

Dear Mr. Shafer — Many small businesses regard banks only as lenders. But isn't it true that many banks offer a smorgasbord of services to small firms?

True. Many banks today offer time-and-expense-saving services that promise to get the small business person out of ledger books and into sales territory — where it counts.

Some banks which specialize in home mortgage lending found that when interest rates soared and home construction and sales plummeted loans to small businesses could pick up the slack. Interest rates on such commercial loans typically "float," rising or falling with the general level of rates, and thus making profits more certain for a bank.

Banks today work hard at personalizing loans services. Many take part in Small Business Administration-guaranteed loans for start-ups and for companies which may be long on growth but short on collateral. Bankers also are interested in business expansions and are familiar with tax-exempt financing through industrial development companies.

To the entrepreneur's benefit, most branches of big banks today better understand requirements of small businesses and have autonomous authority and decision-making in their own neighborhood offices.

Some specialized bank services offered include combined checking account and bookkeeping services that virtually eliminate accounting drudgery. Businesses open such accounts the same way as other checking accounts but they only write checks and enter deposits — the bank doing the rest. The business gets a regular monthly statement, thanks to computerization, that amounts to be a regular profit and loss statement.

There is also a balance-plus account, which is a short term investment vehicle. A business operator invests the balance of the firm's checking account — the amount not needed to cover checks-in repurchase agreements. These "repos" can be purchased for as little as $25,000 and they are invested in government securities.

Court Report

Appearing before Magistrate Jim Wheeler recently, on charges listed and action taken, were:

Bret H. Mark, Ruidoso Downs, charged with persons under the influence of intoxicating liquor and reckless driving, second offense. Fined $1,000 (paid $300 plus court costs) and sentenced to one year in county jail. Sentence suspended under terms of probation.

Ramon Sanchez, Ruidoso Downs, charged with false imprisonment and assault with intent to commit a felony. Bound over to District Court.

Willie McCall, Ruidoso Downs, charged with possession of less than one ounce of marijuana. Fined $15 plus court costs and placed on six month's probation.

Diana Wilson and William Wilson, Ruidoso Downs, charged with battery. Fined $15 plus court costs and sentenced to 180 days in county jail. Sentence suspended with six months unsupervised probation.

"Repos" can be purchased for ultra-short periods — one day to 21 days. The rate varies with money market rates.

Banks offer payroll processing service through which companies can get payroll records prepared and payrolls disbursed.

GOING Strong

by Gerry Johnson

In Praise of Contribution

"Retirement should be a time of creativity, of contribution", according to 69-year-old Hector Hill whose life reflects this belief.

Hill retired from a second career in 1973 and settled happily into newfound leisure, expecting to steep himself in his photography and music.

Little did he realize that these would lead him into a leadership role in his community and ultimately to the establishment of an award in his name.

It all began when the Trinidad-born resident of Queens, New York visited the Archer Avenue Senior Center and "met a wonderful group of people."

His talents in photography were quickly put to use and he started teaching the subject — from the basics ("even the instamatic crowd") to advanced film processing. His piano helped provide entertainment in the center, as well.

It was, however, his eagerness to contribute and "do more" that led Hill to be tapped in 1973 for what was then a rather unique senior citizen advisory council.

The council, an offshoot of an umbrella organization called the Jamaica Service Program for Older Adults (JSPOA) was to hold a series of meetings with civic and social agencies to ascertain needs and the resources which could meet them.

Since its formation in 1972, JSPOA has been highly successful in mobilizing all segments of the community to provide a comprehensive system of services for the elderly in the southeastern areas of Queens, home for approximately 70,000 people 60 and over.

With advocacy and the provision of needed programming its central mission, JSPOA has launched a series of projects which have not only proved vital to the well-being of its constituency, but might well serve as a viable model for other communities.

Hill, who served as JSPOA's Advisory Committee chairman from 1973 to 1977, told a writer from the National Council on the Aging that a top priority was, and is, safety. A committee was established and the police assistance enlisted. This committee, which has involved as many as 200 people at one time, has two major thrusts — prevention of crime and protection of property.

Block Watchers were organized and each watcher assigned a code number by the police. If a watcher sees something suspicious on the street, the code number is called in and the police respond immediately.

Operation I.D., called for older people to bring articles susceptible to theft into the senior centers so that social security numbers could be checked on them. This program has now expanded to include "house calls" where a team of senior volunteers go to people's homes to mark items.

The JSPOA's legislative committee, formed in 1974 began as an educational project. Experts were called in to discuss the workings of the political process. Then, geared to fight for the issues, the seniors invited political candidates to the centers for discussion of their concerns. The committee's input is now sought regularly in the planning and decision-making process.

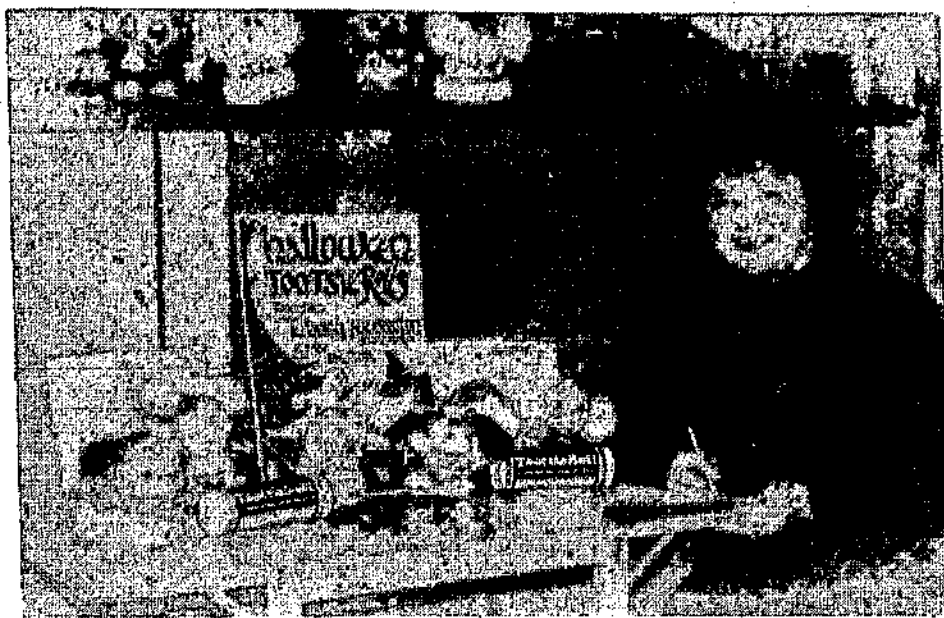

It is not uncommon to see seniors at shopping centers manning voter registration tables. Nor is it surprising that local politicians take note of this important and growing constituency.

A financial affairs committee, says Hill, provides seniors with valuable "how-to" information on writing wills, paying taxes and fighting inflation. In 1973-74, the committee led a fight to persuade the banks to offer free checking accounts to older people, now a not uncommon practice.

The movement to involve seniors in the decision making process of the community is growing all over the nation. It is fair to say JSPOA provided considerable impetus to it under the guidance of Hector Hill.

In order to recognize the many contributions Hill has made and to encourage others to follow the same path, JSPOA, in 1979 created an annual Hector Hill award for "excellence in community service."

The award has in no way slowed down Hill's activism. In fact, he says with a laugh, "no matter how many strides we make, there is always that next step which much be taken."

NETTI HUG DISPLAYS some of the items that will be offered in exchange for donations for the Kidney Foundation Fund Drive during October. The stuffed animals, notepads and Tootsie Roll banks will be available at local banks, savings and loans and area businesses.

Kidney Foundation drive set

Tootsie Roll banks, stuffed animals and note pads are items offered in exchange for donations to the Kidney Foundation this month, according to Netti Hug, fund drive coordinator.

"Last year, $500 was raised in the village and we'd like to increase that this year," Hug said. She added that the people in the village were very cooperative.

Notice on publication of weddings

The Ruidoso News will publish wedding writeups only if received by The News within 30 days after the event.

Quality photographs of the couple, or bride, will be published, with black and white photos preferred.

Wedding writeup forms are available at The News, or the account may be written for submission.

Money raised during the fund drive, October 1-22, is channeled into different areas, but most of it will stay in the state.

"The Kidney Foundation is unique in that little of the money raised goes into administration or fund-raising," Hug said. The bulk of the money raised will go directly to patient services, while the remainder will go to such areas as the National Kidney Foundation, educational uses and research.

The funding finances such things as patient transportation to the clinic in Albuquerque, helping pay for medicine and transplant operations.

"I am a transplant recipient myself, so this is one of the projects I like to get involved in," Hug said. She spent 16 months on a dialysis machine before receiving a kidney four years ago.

During the fund drive, the banks, stuffed animals and note pads will be on sale in various community businesses, banks, some savings and loans and will be available through some civic organizations.

The Tootsie Roll filled banks are $1, stuffed animals are $3, while the writing tablets are $2.50.

Charlee Family Care center at Mescalero

The newly established Charlee Family Care Center is still in the organizing stages, according to Allen Steiger, acting coordinator.

Located on the reservation and serving the Mescalero Apache Indians, the center will provide a home like atmosphere for children who either will not or can not live at home with their families.

"This is more involved than just a foster home. There is not as much security in that atmosphere," Steiger said. "We want to build a home in every sense of the word to provide a secure environment."

Steiger emphasized the home will not exclude the parents of the youth. Rather, they will work on reuniting the family.

Houseparents are the basis for the program," Steiger said. "We need someone responsible, strong, loving-type parents." In addition, the home will need house aides, activities aides and a cook.

So far, the home plans to open October 1 with four children signed up to take part in the program. According to Steiger, the program will be able to accept up to eight participants. Age limits are from 10-17 years old. However, Steiger said they will accept children down to age 6.

"This is a live-in situation. It is not a counseling center," Steiger said again that the center will focus on building a home environment.

Charlee Family Care is an agency that will work through the Bureau of Indian Affairs. It was a tribal decision to seek an agency to run the home that is outside of the tribe, Steiger said.

Those interested in working with the program may contact Steiger at Box 190, Mescalero, New Mexico 86340 or by calling 871-4725.

Women's Republican convention delegate 'fired up' over politics

BY BILLIE LARSON
Staff Writer/Photographer

Yvonne Lanelli, Alto, as returned from the Twenty-first Biennial Convention of the National Federation of Republican Women (NFRW), "fired up" and committed to infecting other members of Lincoln County NFRW with her enthusiasm.

Lanelli told a gathering of Lincoln County Republican women last week, "I hope I've gotten you inspired enough that you will want to go to the national convention in Louisville, Kentucky, in 1983, or to New Orleans in 1985, or if not there, to the state convention in Albuquerque next month."

She became Lincoln County NFRW's "token Young Republican," she said with a smile, when she and husband, Lester "Rusty" Lanelli, moved to the Alto area from El Paso, Texas, three years ago. To avoid the label of "housewife," Lanelli said she is "retired."

Lanelli said she has mentally divided the national convention, held in Denver, Colorado, September 18-19, into three parts: the speakers, the workshops, and the "fun part." Really, it was all fun," she said. But the workshops and speakers were "serious business," while "the parties, receptions, and meeting all those women from all over the United States, who ran the gamut of political philosophies and a whole spectrum of ages — that was the fun part. I got so fired up."

President Reagan's address to the delegates, on the opening day of the convention, and Vice President George Bush's speech that evening, were "thrilling."

Listening to the President and Vice President, she was impressed with "what effective speakers they are — contrary to what the media would have us believe. When they spoke, my attention was riveted at all times."

Lanelli said all speakers, the President and Vice President included, emphasized the convention's theme: the worth of Republican women's efforts. Which, if measured in terms of dollars and cents, would amount to a sizable sum. Last year, Republican women donated 6.2 million volunteer hours, which translates, Lanelli said, into $48 million the Republican National Committee will not be required to pay out for services rendered.

The President, introduced by Mrs. Reagan, noted that he has appointed more women in policy making posts in the first nine months of his administration, than had been appointed at the end of the previous administration, Lanelli said.

Presidential assistant, Elizabeth Dole, wife of Senator Robert Dole, R-Kansas, had some strong remarks on the subject of women volunteers, Lanelli said. In her Saturday morning address to the convention, Dole told the delegates that Republican women "do all the work, but don't get any of the credit."

Secretary of Interior James Watt filled in for Senator Nancy Kassebaum, Republican senator from Kansas, who was scheduled to address the convention, Lanelli said, but had to be in Washington for an important farm vote.

Of the workshops she attended — on fund raising, public relations and keeping members, Lanelli says she was particularly impressed with the fund raising workshop, conducted by Republican National Committee Western Regional Financial Director, Jane Zema of Seattle, Washington, "a committed, politically oriented woman" in her twenties, whose fund raising efforts have thus far resulted in 1.5 million dollars for G. O. P. coffers. "I picked her brain," Lanelli says.

YVONNE LANELLI was Lincoln County delegate to National Federation of Republican Women's convention.

"I got some good ideas from the other workshops, too," she said, "but those are not for publication."

The margarita party hosted by the New Mexico delegation, in their hotel suite, which they decorated with ristras and ojas, was well received by other delegations, Lanelli says. "They thought margaritas were the greatest invention since lemonade."

"We had a lot of fun explaining the symbolism of the ojo," she said. Lanelli wore a miniature red, white and blue ojo pinned to her lapel during the day, and a turquoise ojo was worn with her turquoise strapless cocktail dress for evening.

"Speaking of those security patches," Lanelli said, "You couldn't go to the bathroom without one." Security was so tight when the President was scheduled to speak, she said, "that we were told to be inside the ball, in our designated sections, within a certain frame of time, or it was locked-out, Charlie."

And after all the excitement, is Lanelli ready to settle down to being "retired," again? Not much, she isn't.

After her report to members last week, Lincoln County NFRW had no problem filling its quota of five delegates to next month's state convention in Albuquerque — including a "fired-up retiree" named Yvonne Lanelli.

County delegates named to GOP women's convention

Lincoln County delegates who will go to the state convention of the Federation of Republican Women (FRW), in Albuquerque, October 16-18, at the Four Seasons Motel, are: Rhonda Johnson, president of the Lincoln County FRW, Yvonne Lanelli, Emmadair Jones, Opal Butts, Lois Aldrich and Dorothy D. Smith, alternate, Lanelli said Monday.

The delegates will attend a workshop on campaign management at the two-day meeting, Lanelli said, and a highlight of the convention "should be the dinner dance, Friday evening, when a farcical skit, "Sixty Minutes on the Campaign Trail," will be performed for everyone's enjoyment."

Speakers lined up for the Republican women's meeting include Betty Rendell, national president of the FRW; state Republican party chairman, James "Corky" Morris; and members of the New Mexico congressional delegation, Senators Pete Domenici and Harrison Schmidt and Representatives Manuel Lujan and Joe Keen, she said.

The regular meeting of the Lincoln County FRW, October 20, will follow the scheduled meeting of the County Commission in Carrizozo, Lanelli said. The women will attend the County Commission meeting, and afterward, will adjourn to the Coffee Cup Restaurant, one block south of the courthouse, on Highway 64, for lunch and a business meeting, she said.

Carpools will be set up, Lanelli said, for anyone wishing to attend the meeting. Schedules for the carpools are: for Ruidoso residents, Inn Credible parking lot, 9:15 a.m.; for Lincoln, Hondo and Captain residents, Smokey Bear Restaurant parking lot, 9:15 a.m.; and a pickup, at mile post 37 on Highway 37, at approximately 9:30 a.m., for Nogal residents wishing to attend, Lanelli said. Interested women can call Rhonda Johnson, at 257-9571, or Dorothy D. Smith at 354-2499, Lanelli said.

Mescalero children visit petroglyphs

Thirty Mescalero Apache Indian sixth grade children recently returned from a trip to the petroglyphs in Van Horn, Texas, according to Molly McGill, director of Traditional Counseling at the reservation. The group traveled to Sun Sites and climbed the mesa to the foot of a mountain to observe the petroglyphs, ancient symbols etched or carved into rocks. The ones the children visited are believed to be created by the Lipan Indians, a band of the Mescalero tribe, according to McGill. Also, the children visited the Ysela Pueblo del Sur, Tigua Indian Reservation and toured the Old Clarke Hotel Museum. The trip was sponsored by the Traditional Counseling Program and the Johnson-O'Malley Committee. The children are students at White Mountain Middle, Bent-Mescalero Elementary and Tularosa Elementary Schools.

Unbeaten Warriors meet NMMI in homecoming

Ruidoso High School's undefeated football team hopes to celebrate its 1981 homecoming with a victory over visiting New Mexico Military Institute tomorrow night.

On the surface, a victory wouldn't appear to be much of a problem for the 4-0 Warriors. NMMI is 0-4 on the season and is coming off a 26-7 defeat at the hands of Eunice last Friday night. Ruidoso is still ranked first in the Associated Press state AAA poll.

However the Warriors are plagued by injuries and NMMI is usually a well-disciplined team so the Warriors could have a tough battle on their hands.

The flu bug hit Ruidoso this week. Byron Wright, Lon Nunley, Darlous Rad and John Montoya have all been victims of flu but should be ready for the game. Pete Garcia, who can play at both flanker and tailback, suffered an ankle sprain against Jal last week but also should be ready.

Definitely out for the game, however, are defensive back Mark Mobley and defensive end Jack Holland. Mobley locked a knee in practice Monday and is in traction in the hospital. Holland injured some knee ligaments against Dexter two weeks ago and is probably out for the season.

Star tailback Scott Neal is still in a cast from a broken right index finger and it's doubtful if he will see action.

Neal played at quarterback in place of injured Billy Woodul against Dexter and broke his finger. However, Woodul has returned to the lineup and is healthy.

"Even if we get permission from the doctors we probably won't play Scott," said Warrior head coach Darrel Stierwalt. "If Woodul gets hurt we'll probably go with Grady Williamson."

Williamson is scheduled to go at tailback for Ruidoso. The quick junior has been outstanding for the past two games. He ran for 154 yards in 33 carries against Jal, including scoring on a 69 yard run.

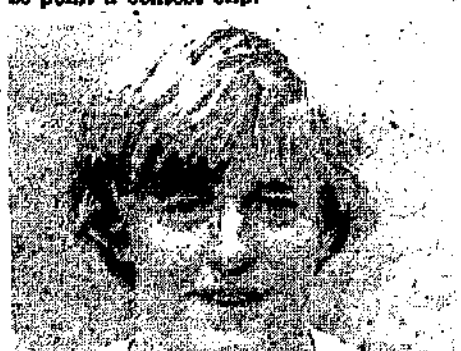

Don Nunley is scheduled to start at flanker while Chris Lopez will go again at fullback. Rad, who was awesome on defense against Jal, will start at tight end and Darin Smith is scheduled to go at split end.

Woodul passed for 343 yards in the first two games against Estancia and Socorro before missing the Dexter game with a knee sprain. The 6-4 junior managed just 46 yards against Jal but his timing was off due to the week's layoff.

Defensively the Warriors are playing better than ever. Ruidoso has allowed just 24 points in four games and has held its opponents to 80 yards total offense per game.

The Warriors have averaged 311 yards total offense a game and have scored at a 26 point a contest clip.

JACK HOLLAND

Lon Nunley and Rad have been the bellweathers of the defense. Nunley recovered two fumbles and was in on almost every defensive play against Jal. Rad intercepted a pass in that game as the Panthers were held to 76 yards total offense.

The loss of Mobley and Holland will hurt, but the Warriors should have enough to slow down NMMI's offense.

The visitors have had a lot of injuries in the offensive lineup and head coach Dave Barti isn't even sure who his quarterback will be for the game. NMMI runs out of the wishbone offense.

"We're young and inexperienced," Barti said. "We have just one starter back from last season."

NMMI is pinning most of its offensive hopes on fullback Paul Bierworth, the lone returning starter. At 6-2, 190 pounds, he has enough size and power to cause problems for opposing defenses. Obie Means, a speedy 5-10, 150-pound junior, is NMMI's starting running back and shows lots of quickness.

Defensive standouts for the visitors are corner back Darrin Gibson and linebacker Jack Gares. Both players are around 5-10 and weigh 160 pounds.

Barti sees problems for his team's defense as far as stopping the Warriors. "We've had trouble containing teams that like to go outside," he said. "We know Ruidoso likes to do this and we will have to get our act together in order to stop them."

Besides the loss to Eunice NMMI has fallen to Tularosa 23-0, Deming 15-14 and Tucumcari 26-7. Eunice is the only AA squad of four teams. The rest are AAA teams.

NMMI, an independent AAA school, had a 4-5 record last season. It hasn't had a winning season since the early 1970's when it produced back-to-back winning campaigns in 1973-74. NMMI only has 300 students, male and female, and as a result, has trouble competing against larger AAA schools with enrollments of 1,000 or more.

"We used to be an A school," said Barti. "However they started looking at our total enrollment including the two-year college students and put us in a bigger school category."

NOTES — The Warriors just barely finished ahead of Artesia in this week's poll. Ruidoso got seven first place votes and 120 total points compared to Artesia's six first place votes and 117 points. Tularosa (fifth) and defending champion Silver City (eighth) are the other 3-AAA district teams ranked this week. Clovis remained on top of the AAAA poll, with Moriarty first in the AA ratings and Texico was tops in the A poll. Capitan, with a 4-0 mark, was rated third in the A rankings. The NMMI tilt is Ruidoso's last non-district game of the season. The Warriors begin 3-AAA action next week with an away game at Coche. Three of Ruidoso's four previous opponents this year are ranked in state polls. Socorro is rated ninth in the AAA poll, Jal seventh in AA and Dexter ninth in AA.

The Ruidoso News

SPORTS

Around Sports

with Gary Brown

The University of New Mexico Lobos won their first game of the season Saturday night with a resounding 27-10 victory over the Air Force Academy.

While that's probably not news to anyone by now it does provide an inkling of what could happen in the West Coast Athletic Conference race.

UNM is 1-2 overall but 1-0 in WCAC play with the win over Air Force. While it's doubtful the Lobos can knock Brigham Young off the championship level, a second place finish isn't out of reach providing New Mexico can continue to improve.

The Lobos played Houston, one of the better teams in the Southwestern Conference, fairly even most of the contest. What UNM lacks in physical size it makes up for in overall quickness and aggressive play.

Plus Lobo quarterback Robin Gabriel is beginning to show signs of why he's the son of a former National Football League quarterback. His father Roman Gabriel was a steady performer for the Los Angeles Rams in the late 1960's and early 1970's, guiding the Tinseltown team to two division titles.

A consistent running game is all UNM really needs to gain a winning season and a high finish in the WCAC race.

Well, here's my second week of rating the top teams in the National Football League. This time around was more difficult than last week because of the number of upsets last Sunday.

Philadelphia is still first. I know they've suffered a lot of injuries but the fact they're still winning, and winning impressively is a tribute to coach Dick Vermeil.

Dallas is a close second. The Cowboys didn't look impressive in their win over the Giants but Dallas has a habit of playing just well enough to win in regular season games.

The surprising Miami Dolphins continue to move up. The only undefeated team besides the above two squads, Miami has gotten a great effort from young quarterback David Woodley. The Dolphins are young but talented. That's the kind of squad coach Don Shula likes to work with.

Denver is fourth, based mostly on its amazing 42-28 victory over San Diego. The 3-1 Broncos have one of the best offensive lines in the game, an always rugged defense and an "over the hill" quarterback (Craig Morton) who always keeps coming back.

Atlanta is fifth because every team is entitled to a bad game and the Falcons had one against Cleveland. The Falcons have one of the best balanced offenses in the NFL but are still a bit young.

San Diego, Kansas City and Cincinnati are rated just behind the top five. All three teams have 3-1 records. Los Angeles and Detroit, despite their respective 2-2 records, show definite signs of moving up in the future.

These rankings are based on how the teams have played and who they've played in the early season. I still think Dallas will win the NFC title. However, there is more balance in the stronger AFC. Anyone of eight or nine teams could win the AFC crown.

Still, conference parity is coming in the league. The NFC has more young teams that show promise of continued improvement. Besides Detroit and Atlanta, other NFC clubs that have plenty of youth and potential are San Francisco, Green Bay, Tampa Bay and yes, even the long-abused New York Giants.

While the NFL Colts may not be doing much winning this season (1-3 so far) the Ruidoso Little League Football Club have been displaying an awesome offense.

Coached by Ronnie Taylor, the Colts have a 3-0 record and beat Hondo 30-0 and the Ruidoso Steelers 30-14 last weekend. Two weeks ago the Colts opened the season with a 30-0 win over the Bears.

No one player has stood out for the Colts. It's literally been a team effort. Six players scored touchdowns and extra points in the victory over the Steelers.

Jeff Willingham, Kirk Taylor, Eric Eastep, Emmitt Autrey, Philip Wright and Lance Willard all hit the scoring column for the Colts.

In the shorter game times that Little League teams play a 50-point game is an achievement indeed.

Riker Davis wins glider competition

Riker Davis, Ruidoso, won the hang glider competition at Dry Canyon, Alamogordo, over the weekend. He tallied 316 points, over the pylon and obstacle course, to claim the championship.

Winning second was Paul Michaud of El Paso, Texas, with George Woodcock, Alamogordo, claiming the third place trophy.

Fifteen hang glider enthusiasts from Albuquerque, Las Cruces, Alamogordo, Ruidoso and El Paso competed in the Thursday through Sunday event.

MIKE CROCKER, tennis director of the Sierra Blanca Open, gets in some practice swings in preparation for the Sierra Blanca Adult Open Tennis Tournament to be held this weekend. Crocker is hopeful that some of the top tennis players in the state will compete in the tournament. Competition will begin tomorrow afternoon and continue through Sunday.

Sierra Blanca Open draws big field

Perhaps the biggest tennis tournament in the Ruidoso area this year will take place at the Sierra Blanca Racquet Club this weekend when the Sierra Blanca Open is held.

Tennis director Mike Crocker expects over 100 individuals to compete in the tournament which begins tomorrow afternoon. There will be competition for both men and women in the open division, B's, 25 years and over, 35 and over and 45 and over, in singles, doubles and mixed play.

"There'll be so many competitors and divisions I might have to hand out over 80 trophies," said Crocker.

Some of the best tennis players in the southwest could participate in the tournament. Sal Castillo, who won the singles doubles title of the Doubles Pro-Am tournament, might compete in the tournament. Alex Dorato, the former pro at the club, should also be in attendance.

Dorato and James Serrano teamed for the A division championship in the Doubles Pro-Am Tournament.

The women's team from New Mexico Junior College in Hobbs and the University of Texas at El Paso team (possibly both men and women), will also compete. J. J. Moore of Las Cruces, one of the top senior netters in New Mexico, is entered in the 45 and over division.

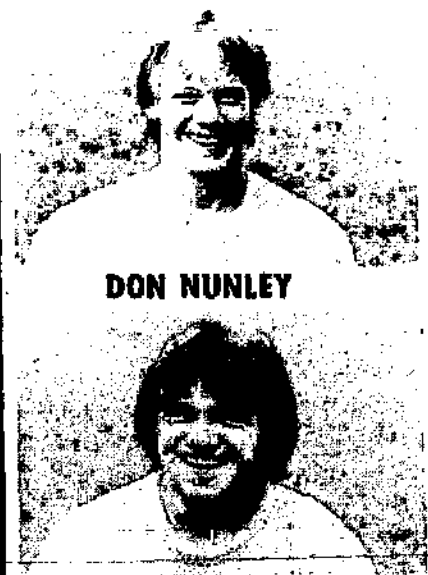

Crocker is especially pleased with the women's teams entered.

"We don't always have enough women entered," he said. "But this time we should have a lot of good women players."

The tournament will conclude Sunday when the finals in all divisions will be played.

PLAYERS FROM the Hornets and the Lions scramble for the loose football in a recent Ruidoso Little League eight and nine year old game. The two teams tied 0-0 last Saturday and will be in action again this Saturday at Ruidoso High School.

Warrior spikers beaten by Dexter

After winning the first set the Ruidoso High School girls' volleyball team fell to a powerful Dexter squad in three sets Thursday night at the Warrior gym.

Ruidoso, now 4-3 overall, rallied from a 9-3 deficit to take the first set 15-14. However, Dexter, who won the championship in the Capitan tournament last weekend, showed its stuff in the next two sets.

The Demons took the second set 15-10 and then built up an 11-0 advantage in taking the final set 15-3.

The Warriors were paced by Karen Boone in the first set. Boone spiked the ball well and had some timely set-ups. In the second set Dexter broke off to a 9-3 advantage but the Warriors fought back to close the gap to an 8-10 margin. However the visitors then scored four straight points and put the set away.

Warrior head coach Sergio Castanon was disappointed with his team's play.

"We played well in coming back in the first set but then just turned it in," he said. "The first match we set up well and spiked well," he said. "However our play in the second match was mediocre and in the final match we were burned out. 'We just lacked mental toughness. The way we played in the first match was like a 3-A team. We have to play that way to be competitive in our district.'"

The Ruidoso junior varsity lost its fourth match of the season, falling in two sets, 15-3, 15-7.

Ruidoso travels to Deming Saturday for the 3-AAA district opener, beginning at 4 p.m.

THIS SNAKE DECORATED straw hat is an attention getter whenever Phillips wears it.

THIS DECAL, on the rear window of Dave Phillips' station wagon, tends to keep curious people on their guard, or at a safe distance, especially when there's rattling inside.

It doesn't pay to be rattled when catching rattlesnakes

Dave Phillips of Albuquerque likes rattlesnakes.

He prefers them barbecued and served with rice. "Delicious!"

He catches 150 a year.

He uses the skins to make belts, hat bands and wallets.

Nothing, really, is lost when he skins a rattlesnake, as he uses the heads and tails, including the rattles, to decorate hats.

Phillips hunts rattlesnakes in New Mexico, Texas and Arizona.

Tuesday afternoon, for instance, near the Malpais west of Carrizozo, he caught Red Rattlers, Mexican Black Tail Rattlers, Western Diamond Back Rattlers, Sierra Black Rattlers and Prairie Rattlers. Eighteen, all told.

"The Mexican Black Tail," Phillips said, "is the most toxic of all rattlesnakes. Within five minutes of being bitten by one of these snakes the victim is completely paralyzed."

THIS HUGE Western Diamond Back rattlesnake, five feet, ten inches and weighing 10 pounds, was caught by Dave Phillips of Albuquerque, west of Carrizozo Tuesday morning.

"These snakes used to be found only in Mexico, but they're now fairly common throughout the Southwest. Anyone tramping around rattlesnake country had best keep an eye peeled for the Mexicans. They're dangerous."

To prove how dangerous, he said, "The Mexican I caught today didn't rattle. I happened to look straight down and I was straddling him. Fortunately he wasn't coiled, so I had no problem putting the hoop around his head."

"And it's becoming a common thing for the snakes not to rattle. They used to, when they were alarmed, but not any more. It pays to keep a sharp watch, when you're out where rattlesnakes are."

There's an odd thing about rattlesnakes, he said, "because if you catch 100 of them, all sizes and kinds, toss them in a bag and weigh them, they'll weigh exactly 200 pounds, which averages out to two pounds each. In all my years of catching rattlesnakes, I've found this average to be true at all times."

The largest snake he caught Tuesday, a Western Diamond Back, measured five feet and ten inches, and weighed ten pounds. "Rattlesnakes aren't very heavy, even though they look like it," he said. "It takes a glan of a rattlesnake to weigh 12 pounds."

"For instance, this big Western, when I let people in Carrizozo look at him, guessed him to weigh between 25 and 30 pounds."

Phillips catches rattlesnakes as a hobby, and to eat, and to make saleable items from — it's an exciting change from his occupation as a furniture salesman.

Conservation group establishes institute for wildlife research

The National Wildlife Federation (NWF), the nation's largest citizens conservation organization, has established a new wildlife research unit which will emphasize its studies on rare, threatened, and endangered species.

With the help of grants from Exxon Company, the Union Oil Company of California, and the Robert J. Kleburg Jr. and Helen C. Kleburg Foundation, the Institute for Wildlife Research will be the Federation's chief information-gathering and research body for the study of wildlife in its natural habitat. "We have wanted to establish a wildlife research center for some time, but lacked the funds," explained Dr. Jay D. Hair, executive vice president of the NWF. "These grants demonstrate that when industry and the non-profit sector work together to achieve common goals, the public is the beneficiary."

Scheduled to open at the NWF's Laurel Ridge Conservation Education Center in Vienna, Virginia, in October, the Institute will be headed by Dr. S. Douglas Miller, of Amherst, Massachusetts. Miller is a wildlife biologist with the United States Fish and Wildlife Service's Massachusetts Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. He is also a member of the graduate faculty there, directing graduate research on black bear habitat, raccoon populations, and non-game studies of mammals and amphibians.

A 1972 graduate of Auburn University, Miller received his Master's degree in 1974 from Colorado State University, and his Ph.D. in zoology in 1979 from Auburn. He has published numerous articles on the bobcat in scientific journals. As a visiting professor in the Department of Zoology at North Carolina State University, he taught courses in the conservation of natural resources and wildlife biology.

Miller will also head the NWF Institute for Wildlife Research's Center for Feline Species, which will collect and analyze data on the nation's shrinking populations of wildcats, emphasizing research on the often controversial bobcat.

Another arm of the Institute will be the Federation's existing Raptor Information Center (RIC). Created in 1976 to serve as a clearing house for information on the bald eagle and other birds of prey, it is headed by William S. Clark. The RIC has published reference works on the owl and the bald eagle, conducts workshops for state and federal conservation officials, and annually conducts a bald eagle survey — a nationwide census that provides invaluable data on the habits of the national bird and symbol.

Other special study units may be established under the aegis of the new Institute for Wildlife Research in the future, Hair said. The Institute will provide fellowships in order to "free researchers from any cost limitations and to encourage them to do deepdigging research on individual wildlife species," he said. "Unless we support our researchers, we will not have the scientific data necessary to make responsible wildlife management decisions."

Older people need calcium

More than 16,000 Americans will break a bone today. For many, it will be because they didn't drink enough milk.

These Americans are suffering from osteoporosis, a condition brought on by low amounts of calcium in the diet. When the diet doesn't provide enough calcium, the body actually dissolves bones to get the calcium it needs, according to Borden Ellis, Extension dairy specialist at New Mexico State University.

It's not a condition that develops overnight, but after years on a low calcium diet, bones have a low density and become weak and brittle.

"This condition is almost always a characteristic of people 50 and over," Ellis said. "Bone loss can be as high as 30 percent in some people. Those with osteoporosis usually have persistent low back pain, many have lost some height, and suffer a large number of spontaneous fractures."

Women usually suffer from the condition more often than men because child birth and nursing uses more of their calcium reserves. Even before they have children, women may already have low calcium reserves as the result of crash diets and fat diets.

These diets will get rid of fatty tissue, but women can be losing bone tissue at the same time.

By the time these women reach 50, they have done more damage to their body's bone structure than they realize, Ellis said. It may be several years after menopause when they or their families notice a height loss. By that time there's nothing that can be done, except to try and stop the calcium loss from getting worse.

Americans can improve their body's calcium reserves and improve both bone health and bone density.

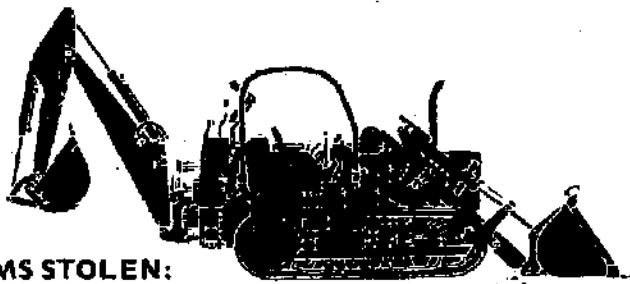

As an example, elderly women who normally ate a diet low in milk products were put on a high calcium diet. They drank the equivalent of three glasses of milk a day, more calcium than normally recommended as the minimum daily allowance for persons their age.

Their bone density had increased to the proper levels in from four to 18 months, according to results of the experiment.

One person in the experiment showed the importance of continuing to drink milk. She returned to her low calcium diet and had almost reached her original low bone density a year later.

Recent study clears coyote of most sheep deaths

Sheep producers who claim coyotes are the main reason they are going out of business are giving the "prairie wolf" too much credit for his cunning. According to a study of the causes of sheep deaths in southeastern New Mexico, eagles, bobcats, diseases and the weather must also share responsibility.

"Ranchers sometimes find it easier to accept sheep losses caused by exposure than losses to predators," said Dr. V. W. Howard, wildlife scientist at New Mexico State University's Agricultural Experiment Station. "They can't do anything about the weather, but they can do something about coyotes and bobcats."

Howard recently completed a study of 100 sheep ranches in southeastern New Mexico pinpointing the causes of lamb and ewe losses. The study began in 1972 shortly after a chemical called 1080 was banned for predator control. "Many woolgrowers believed the loss of their preferred control method put the sheep industry in jeopardy," said Howard.

Since 1972, at least 15 of the ranches studied did indeed fold. But, according to Howard, there is no evidence that predation alone drove them out of business. Low wool and lamb prices plus other management problems also contributed to the demise of sheep ranches.

An analysis of 1975 and 1976 figures showed that ewe losses to predators declined from 1.5 percent in 1976 to 1 percent in 1976. Coyotes were guilty of about 20 percent of total ewe losses each year. However, in both years, non-predator deaths from causes such as disease and exposure, at 1.9 percent, were higher.

Howard said after 1080 was banned, other predator controls, trapping, hunting and aerial gunning, were stepped up and may partially account for the decline in ewe losses.

As expected, lambs were much more vulnerable to predators. Newborn lambs, those less than six weeks old, fell victim to eagles more than to any other predator. In 1975, for example, eagles accounted for 34.8 percent of the total loss of newborn lambs with coyotes accounting for 23.9 percent. For older lambs, the kill rate declined to 10 percent of all losses with coyotes taking a larger share, at 29.3 percent, of the total loss.

"Evidently the study area lies within a major migration route for eagles," said Howard. Golden eagles and even a few bald eagles were spotted in the area during 1975 and 1976.

Some ranchers have tried avoiding these losses by delaying the lambing season until the eagles have moved out of the area, but that also leads to lighter lambs and lower sale prices at market, said Howard.

Another aspect of the study dealt with the relationship between predation and ranch size. Other studies concluded that larger ranches suffered the greatest predator losses. Howard's study, however, showed that smaller ranches, those with less than 1,500 ewes, were more vulnerable to predators.

He said because predators usually strike quickly and briefly, they can be more devastating to a small flock. Also, he said, it may be easier to verify kills on a smaller ranch.

Ranch location, rather than size, seemed a better defense against predator loss. "In general, ranches surrounded by other ranches maintaining vigilant control over predators, suffered fewer losses," said Howard. Some ranches were so well insulated against outside attack that they didn't report any predator losses in 1975 and 1976.

The key to predator control, he said, may lie in the natural system of wildlife preying on wildlife. If predators have an abundance of rabbits and other small animals to satisfy their appetites, they will leave sheep and other domestic animals alone. He added, however, that the opportunistic coyote will still prey on sheep and lambs simply because they are so easy to catch.

He cited a Canadian study which showed that a downturn in rabbit population was followed by an increase in sheep deaths and an eventual decline in coyote numbers. This indicates that when the rabbit population failed to provide the necessary food source, coyotes began attacking sheep. In turn, predator controls took their toll on the coyote population.

Persons interested in "Domestic Sheep Mortality in Southeastern New Mexico," Report 683, may obtain a copy from the county Extension office or by writing the Bulletin Office, Box 341, Las Cruces, New Mexico 88003.

The Silver Lining

BY DANIEL AGNEW STORM

Travis Hicks
Our prayers go up for the loved ones and friends of our long-time good friend, Travis Barrett Hicks, who was called home by Our Lord after a long life full of faithful service to God and his fellow man.

Travis was born October second, 1897, in Franklin, Texas, and came to Lincoln County more than twenty years ago.

He established the Lincoln County Feed Store in Ruidoso Downs shortly after his arrival here, and was a great help to all of us during the many years he operated this business.

From a rural background, he attended Texas Tech in Lubbock from which institution he received a master's degree in sociology and Agricultural Economics. For several years he was a County Agent in Texas; and this service, together with years of practical experience on his own, equipped Travis to be of great help to farm and ranch people in Lincoln County.

Before there was a veterinarian in the county, Travis gave generously of his wide knowledge about farm animals to all of us in need to know what to do to help farm and ranch animals that needed special help.

The width and scope of Travis' activities was truly remarkable. He was a member often a charter member, of many fraternal and fellowship organizations here and also in Texas, and was a devout member of the Community Methodist Church of Ruidoso.

He was also a leader and supporter of a typically American and Southwestern institution that began thirty or forty years ago — the Cowboy Camp Meetings.

One of the first, I think, was the Bloys Camp Meeting near Alpine, Texas. One time Travis came from one of these annual meetings, and painted a very vivid word picture of the great spiritual experience gained through the several days of the preaching, Bible reading and singing and all around good Christian fellowship.

Through the help and inspiration of men like Travis Hicks, these camp meetings have become great influences for good in our country.

Travis will be remembered kindly by us always; and we take comfort in knowing he is safe and happy with Our Lord in Heaven.

And on the beginning day of the magic month of painted leaves of every hue, of bracing life-giving air, of the year's promises all come true — we send back a welcome of our own, more heart felt every year.

The Pinon Birds in bands of flashing blue fly low over their trees, soaring upward again, with their bugle chorus, echoing through the mellow, sunlit air.

The stems of the grama grass are turning light crimson red, and the tops are a golden mantle on the fields; and waving in the very gentle breeze, they show a blending, changing, airy color glowing all across the field.

Sunny patches of early fall colors send a little of their red and gold and green into the air itself; and the lilac purple of the shaded hills catch a color-echo of this radiance, so that sunshine and shadow mingle their autumn charm, casting the world into an enchanted spell.

Let us send up a prayer of thankfulness to God for Dreamy October, the blue and gold, the many colored, the fragrant incense time — when all our dreams come true.

CLOSE ENCOUNTER of the feline-canine kind. The fellow on the right uses his long legs to lean in for a sniff of his whiskery neighbor. She tolerates his impertinence, but keeps a paw cocked in case he needs to be reminded whose terrain this is.

RIDING IN STYLE in this replica of a 1929 Mercedes Benz is Tony Giarratano of Ruidoso. The car was built from a kit and is powered by a 1600 cc Volkswagen engine. It has doors, said Giarratano, but he hasn't put them on yet.

AN EARLY HARBINGER of autumn this year is the colorful Virginia Green vine, seen entwined around trees and climbing up buildings. Virginia Green is a misnomer at this time of year, as most of the vines have turned a bright red.

"A DADGUM CRAWDAD," was not what Joe Hayhurst was fishing for the other day at Alto Reservoir, but that was what he caught. Turns out crawdads like salmon eggs, just like trout do. Hayhurst released his catch and it was last seen heading backwards into the lake.

MAN AND NATURE are both accomplished artists, with the former often flattering the latter by imitation. Occasionally, the two unwittingly work together to produce a dual composition. In this case, a wood fence frames a bunch of wild flowers.

Inside The Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE — Somebody finally proved what most of us have long suspected: New Mexico has too many state employees.

If national averages mean anything, we're about 20 percent over where we should be in proportion to our population.

That 20 percent, if you want it in round numbers, means we've got something like 13,000 too many folks on the public payroll.

To get rid of that many, in another comparison, would be to wipe out the equivalent of a whole agency the size of the Highway Department.

That's not an insignificant extra load for us taxpayers to be carrying on our overburdened shoulders.

John Mershon, chairman of the Legislative Finance Committee (LFC), who had these figures developed so he could toss them out to the boss of the state's Personnel Office, often gives the impression he'd like to whittle this unwieldy mass down to size.

We wish no ill to any individual state employees, and we have none targeted for immediate firing, but we do hope Mershon and those who think like him can eventually get that job done.

When Mershon, who has now served longer than anybody else in the House, makes his weary noises that imply he may think of laying this burden down, some of us hope that inclination is only temporary.

Since that other old curmudgeon Aubrey Dunn left the Senate, we haven't had many legislators who seem set on ending state government's growth-for-the-sake-of-growth policy.

It's all very well to say, as some liberals do, that government should be the employer of last resort, but that doesn't mean we've got to put everybody we can on the state payroll.

What is also interesting about those numbers Danny Earp of the LFC staff developed at Mershon's request is that the majority of New Mexico's overage, when compared with national averages, is in the field of education.

We've got 102 more public employees on the state payroll per 10,000 population than the average in the 50 states. Of those, 71.8 are educators. That's almost three-quarters of the excess.

How come New Mexico needs 148.9 teachers for every 10,000 citizens, while the average nationally is only 125.7?

This writer would be willing to bet most of our citizens would trade some of the extra teachers and administrators we seem to have (including those in our public universities) for more police protection.

We don't do at all well there. The national average is 20.8 law enforcement officers for every 10,000 people, but New Mexico only has 17.6, or about 15 percent less than the average for the nation as a whole.

None of these figures make any difference, of course, unless somebody determines to do something about them.

Personnel boss Leo Griego, who was on the stand at the LFC when these numbers surfaced, can't accomplish anything much to change these conditions. His place is more of a processing operation than anything else.

Where controls have to be in approving budgets and that is entirely under the jurisdiction of the Legislature.

Those who want to run for governor next year, however, might well be asked during the ensuing months how they stand on this topic.

So might those who want to come to Santa Fe to make our laws.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

Please thank Dannie Storm for the delightful essay on the coming of fall to New Mexico, especially to Ruidoso! I spent this last weekend there with you all, and cherish each memory now that I am back in Las Cruces.

Because I am "new" to New Mexico, I eagerly search out bits of history, art, music, nostalgic-atmosphere, some writers bring to the fore with such aliveness the past is NOW. Having come here from New Hampshire, where fall is already well on the way to glory — Mid-October! — I have been wondering, just like a child, "wonders," just HOW fall comes to an area with no map to signal the first frost! Dannie Storm mentions "mountain maps" — these I shall have to discover!

Fields all the way north to Ruidoso from Las Cruces gave signs to the searchers of "fall," but where are the reds of trees hidden away among green evergreens? The yellows of aspens we expect in the Southwest — I've seen them before! Glorious in their stands of gold. Do I have to "paint in," with imagination, the reds among the greens I am used to? Or will there BE reds, too, before too long?

The continuous flowering of everything under the blazing sun in this Land of Enchantment has pleased me so much! I still have to discover a "desert"! A barren place of not much interest! Our New Mexico "desert" seems always green and always flowering! And the "blazing sun" has not bothered me in the least, except when I get into a long-parked car hot as an oven! But, with my hatchback, I simply discovered that if I flip the hatch up, and let out most of the "oven-heat", all but the steering wheel is "satisfactory," and away I go!

But when I found myself suddenly surrounded with evergreens of several sorts as I neared Ruidoso, I was transported heavenward! My favorite trees, the evergreens! I never got a real whiff of cedar or pine or spruce or balsam, as I certainly would have in New Hampshire, but maybe that is a discovery I shall make someday.

My dear new artist-friend, with her Cabin "Sty High" back to 7,000 feet, tells me I will get above Ruidoso before too long! The sooner the better! Right now the long "Main Street" — Sudderth — reminds me of the way North Conway, New Hampshire, used to be back in the 1920's and early 30's. The rustic look and feel is fun; don't get too sophisticated! North Conway HAS! Keep the past into the future and be smart!

Now I'll write to the friends in Connecticut who first told me in glowing terms about Ruidoso. She spent time there when her son was in some military post within driving distance, during the Second World War. She completely missed the Inn of the Mountain Gods, where we had breakfast last weekend, so I can let loose all the superlatives to her in my letter! I might just get her started this way again!

And thank the folks for just making Ruidoso what it is. Maybe someday I'll get up there to LIVE, and help you keep it what we all want it to be.

Mrs. Ella May Frazer P.S. One Boston friend wrote me a couple of weeks ago and added USA to the address for Las Cruces. Evidently she knows we have trouble in New Mexico, staying "One of the Fifty"! She is over 80, and won for herself a license to operate a hot-air balloon! She says, "I'll be down in October," maybe in her balloon!

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:
S.O.S. — S.O.S.

When your ship in sinking and you are bailing water for dear life you don't stop to take on more passengers. And yet, that is exactly what our village trustees are doing in our current water situation.

With a water shortage we are taking on potential water users each time we approve the annexing of a new building development.

After spending five million dollars voted on 5-6 years ago which was to include the building of a dam (which was not built) and after a year long water study costing who knows how much (the final figure has not been released) the citizens of Ruidoso still don't know what is being done to remedy a serious water shortage. We have been told that several successful wells have been completed. We have also been told to expect a water bond issue over the next several years amounting to 13-16 million dollars. This would accomplish various improvements to the water system.

It is my impression that all the planned improvements will not allow for doubling or tripling the water consumption but will allow for the repair and replacement of present water facilities and to guarantee water for our future needs.

The "passengers" we are taking on our sinking ship result from the village trustees policy of continuing to annex land developments which now are outside the village limits. This means additional water users for water we do not have. We have no obligation to bring in to the village additional subdivisions until, and unless, adequate water and sewer facilities are guaranteed — by somebody!

To those of you who may be interested in the workings of the village trustees let me pass on a few facts for your consideration:

The village trustees are composed of five men, four trustees and a mayor who are elected by you to represent you and to support your interest — not theirs — unless, of course, the interests are the same. Of the four trustees three are in the real estate business. The Mayor's public statement that Ruidoso should continue to progress by more construction places him squarely with the views of the three real estate trustees.

George White, the only trustee who apparently has no ax to grind, told the council over a year ago that they should slow down in approving any ordinance or proposal brought before the council which involves the additional use of water. Mr. White followed this up with several written statements which he read to the trustees all of which were roundly rejected. At one point Mr. Coulston, trustee, said, in part, that it was the responsibility of the trustees to obtain water for anyone who made the request. The matter was left at that point.

About 60 days ago the trustees discussed the possibility that several hundred homes on the south side of Camelot would request sewer connections. This area is apparently not within the village limits. If the sewer connections are approved then most assuredly the request for water cannot be far behind.

Last month an area in White Mountain, not in the village limits, was approved for annexing. This means that water and sewer service would be made available for that area. At the trustees meeting Mr. White voted "no," the mayor and others voted "yes" and it passed. The point here is although we have not been shown that we will have adequate water and sewer facilities in the future we continue to bring into the village limits new areas of development.

On several occasions trustee Atwood voted "no" along with trustee White which resulted in a tie vote. In each case the mayor has voted "yes" to override the tie vote. In situations such as this, when it is evident that a tie vote means there is some concern about passing a request, the mayor should refrain from voting and let the matter be tabled for further discussion. To break each tie vote with a "yes" vote by the mayor deprives the voters of Ruidoso with an impartial body of village trustees. The trustees are entrusted with the interest of the voters — not their own personal interests. As the trustees continue to follow their pattern of voting one would have to conclude that the interests of the real estate operators and those in the development phase of the business are being served to the disadvantage of the others.

The situation could be remedied in two ways — The Trustees could request that Planning and Zoning approved no more areas to be annexed. The voters could place in office future trustees whose interests are more varied than those who now hold office.

Ruidoso building permits will amount to more than 20 million dollars based on a building cost of $20 per square foot. Since you cannot build a home for less than $50 per square foot, if a cost of $40 was used in figuring our building permits Ruidoso building permits would amount to a figure in excess of $60,000,000 — perhaps many times the building rate for any city in this state.

Someday, in the future, after all of those who have made their fortunes from Ruidoso development have left this village for more productive areas, we, who remain, will have much to reflect on.

J. A. "Al" Jung

Dear editor:

My recent stay in our Ruidoso Hospital gives me yet another opportunity to laud its praises ... we have an excellent hospital in our community, and I strongly urge our total community support in all areas. We still have so many needs to be met, and we have several different projects going that definitely need our support. If you know of anyone who has any money or resources laying around, the hospital would be a wonderful place to put it.

I'm very proud that "we" have such a fine hospital with such caring people in our community and once again want to publicly give it my vote of support.

My personal thanks and appreciation again are heartily extended to all personnel and volunteers of "my" hospital for the recent excellent care given me during my stay.

Dear editor:

We would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone for the help we received in making the Rotary Youth Exchange Program held here this past weekend such a tremendous success.

Specifically, we would like to thank Gibson's, Ruidoso Wholesale Lumber, Tim Wishard, Goldsmith, EZ-TV, and Jack Reed, personally, Noshers, Village Hardware, Ruidoso Skating Rink, the Presbyterian Church, and last but not least, The Ruidoso News for their excellent coverage of all the events.

Our purpose of promoting international relations between all countries of the world through students was accomplished by the help and willing participation of all the people of Ruidoso.

Thanks again to everyone who helped.

The Gross Receipts Tax situation in New Mexico is bordering on the ludicrous.

The last legislature lowered the tax one-quarter percent, to prove to the taxpayers that they were a tax cutting body.

Then the municipalities were given to understand they could enact a one-half cent hike in the tax, to put it at 4.5 percent effective January 1, 1982.

The confusion heightened when Arthur Snead, director of the Tax and Revenue Department of the Bureau of Revenue, advised municipalities invoking the Gross Receipts Tax that they couldn't enact one-half cent, but had to make it one-quarter cent to comply with the law.

Then Attorney General Jeff Bingaman took action. He said municipalities not presently charging a Gross Receipts Tax could adopt the one-half cent additional tax. That was a month or so ago. Now Bingaman is saying the municipalities must enact two ordinances, raising the tax one-quarter cent each, to achieve the one-half cent tax rate.

Snead is taking exception to this interpretation by Bingaman.

The result is utter confusion.

However, the way things stand at the moment, the Gross Receipts Tax in Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs will be four percent until January 1, 1982, at which time it will become 4.25 percent.

It does seem a shame that these revenues, considering the Gross Receipts Tax is possibly the least painful of all to pay, couldn't be stabilized so that the tax would be 4.5 percent, because there doesn't seem to be a municipality in the state that doesn't need all the money they can get. We trust the next legislature will act on this problem. —CD

HII! MOTORCYCLISTS

I'm sure you noticed ... there's whole herds of Aspencade Motorcycle Convention delegates putt-putting up and down the street.

These motorcyclists ... here for Til Thompson's annual shindig ... are serious about their motorcycles ... their camping gear ... their sport ... and they tend to convention business whilst amongst us ... and they do add a bit of color to Harmony Valley ... vying perhaps with the aspen's golden leaves ... even the elusive reds of the high country maples ... which ain't exactly easy to find once you find a way to get to them.

Seems, this year, the best time to ogle some of these rigs'll be to peer at them during Saturday's motorcycle parade ... 'cause there's some restrictions on meandering around the Chaparral parking lot to view them ... which might eliminate some confusion ... and some spectators. 'Cause that $5 oging tab might tend to discourage local curiosity seekers from becoming too curious.

Anyhow ... welcome, you convention delegates, to Harmony Valley ... and we trust you'll thoroughly enjoy your visit.

ASPENCADE OFFERS FOOD

Considering all the people in town this weekend ... with just whole herds to be here Saturday ... it's worthy of note that some organizations are going to take care of the food needs of the masses.

The bunch from Seriona'll be whipping up a sausage/pancake breakfast from 7-10 a.m., Saturday, at the Elks Lodge on Highway 70 West ... serving all you can eat ... and they're plowing profits back into the community.

The Noon Lions are ladling out hot dogs and cotton candy and other goodies in School House Park daily and nightly ... and they'll have a second outlet during the motorcycle hill climb ... with proceeds for community projects.

Not to be outdone are members of the Garden Club who'll be dishing up coffee and baked goods Saturday morning in front of the Ruidoso Library, from 8 a.m., until noon or so ... and their profits stay here.

And there'll be barbecue in the park ... and possibly other goodies ... so, by jinkies, no one's gotta go hungry ... which's just gotta be a good deal.

COCAINE HASSLE

There's some lawyers ... with support of psychologists ... who are arguing ... down Las Cruces way ... that cocaine ain't no narcotic ... and that it doesn't create physical addiction.

This argument might be interesting to those as likes to sniff "The Lady" from time to time ... just for kicks ... and possibly of a lot more interest to those as is peddling it.

'Course getting your kicks from cocaine ... someone once wrote a song about that ... can be a mighty expensive ... if'n you consider that there's this ex-pro football star as is allowing as how he had a $2,000 a week cocaine "habit" ... which is quite a bundle to pay for kicks ... and considering the price of the stuff ... and that the lit lasts about 30 minutes ... you can see he really had his nose into his act ... no?

There's this much about it ... at $200 a gram, which don't provide much of a line to sniff ... it'll be a while before those as is addicted to suds'll be switching ... which should keep the brewers ecstatic. 'Cause just one sniff of cocaine'll buy a whale of a lot of suds.

ON THE ECONOMY

Considering that President Reagan ... and Congress ... and economists ... are all up tight about the way the economy's going, there's this much about it ... for most of us it's gonna get worse before it gets better.

All this talk about a one trillion dollar debt limit isn't enough to really scare the common Joe Blow ... 'cause understanding what one trillion dollars is is mind boggling ... and that's gotta be understandable.

So ... we'll be listening to a lot of wheeling and dealing ... and dire predictions on what'll happen to the dollar ... and the citizens ... and who do you think'll come out on the short end, the wheeler-dealers or the citizens?

Ah, well ... maybe some genius'll develop a wind powered car ... then all of us'll know which way the wind's blowing, if we want to go the other way.

BRIEF BIT: There's this much about the high cost of living ... people are eating a lot lower on the hog than they'd like to ... CD

There is no historical record of the first garage sale — it is lost in the sands of time.

But one suspects that a Neanderthal homemaker one day got tired of the old bone tools and flint axes cluttering up her closets and told her clan they were going to have a cave sale.

However it came about, the garage sale is an institution that is very much with us today. Most any time, one or more will be going on in Ruidoso.

Some people make a hobby of going to garage sales. No one can resist a bargain, and there are so many things you didn't know you gained until you see them for sale.

And if some of those things wind up for sale at your garage sale the next year... well, at least it keeps them in circulation.

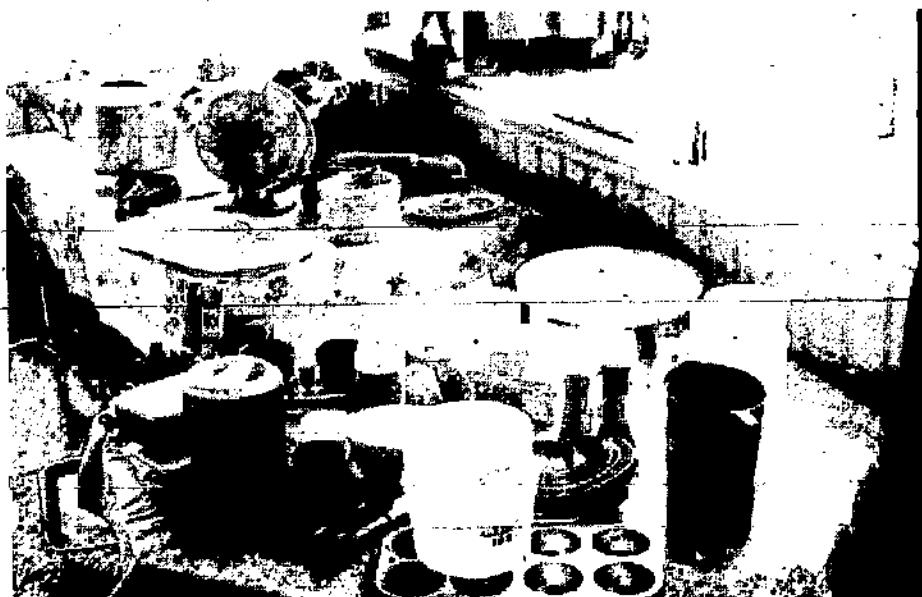

OPEN FOR BUSINESS. Ruth Ellis waits for customers at her recent garage sale in the Upper Canyon. She and her husband moved "two housefuls" from Lubbock — thus the sale.

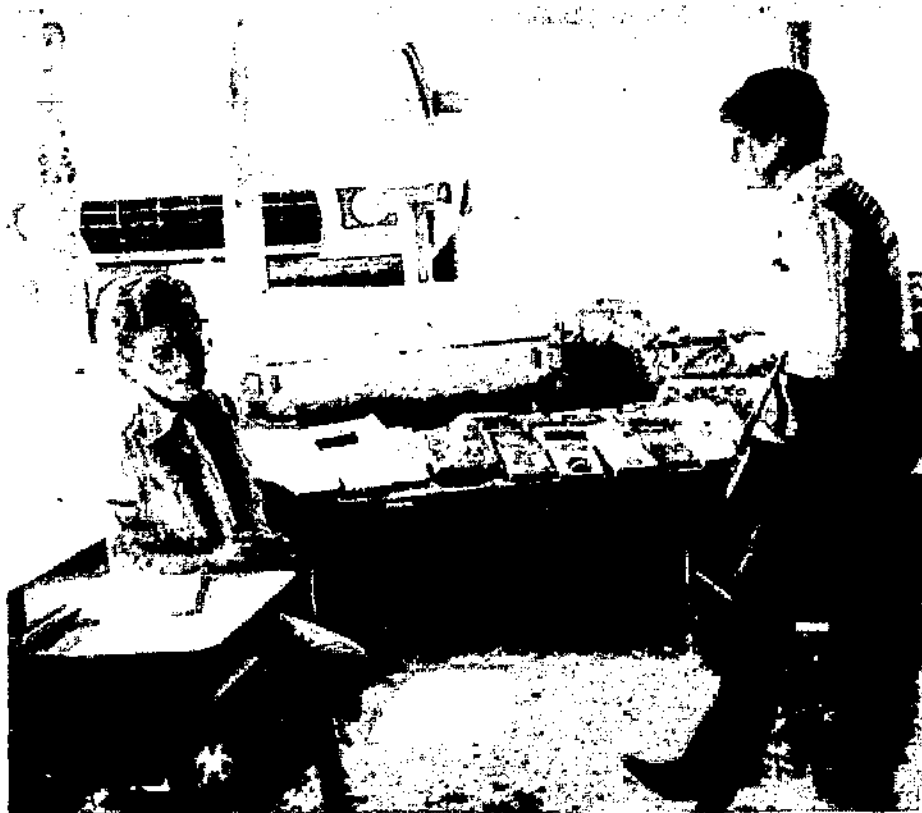

THEY DON'T MAKE 'EM like they used to, is a comment one hears at garage sales. This Zenith radio is vintage-1937. Close your eyes and imagine the Dorsey brothers or Glenn Miller coming in sweet and clear.

JUST LOOKING, THANK YOU. Dorinda Rossi (left) and Sara Schneider make themselves comfortable on a well worn couch while Mrs. Rossi browses.

WHERE ELSE but at a garage sale can you buy anything for a dime anymore? Ellis was asked if it made her sad to see some of her possessions go. "No," she said, "I'd like to get it all out of here."

A CHANCE TO CHAT. Garage sales provide an opportunity for friends and neighbors to catch up on conversation. Ruth Ellis chats with Katherine Dean who dropped by to peruse the sale.

TRY THIS FOR SIZE. "You see me at every garage sale," said Linda Woods of Ruidoso. Asked if she found a lot of good stuff, she laughed and said, "My whole house is furnished, so I guess so."

ART, DINING AND ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE

RUIDOSO PHOTOGRAPHER Johnny Okrasinski, with Melinda Hall of Nottingham's Pub, are shown with a portion of the photographic exhibit that will be on display in Nottingham's through October 15. The works feature local scenes in color and black and white.

Okrasinski displaying photographs

Ruidoso photographer Johnny Okrasinski is holding a one-man show, through October 15, at Nottingham's Pub.

His photographs include pets, portraits, landscapes and still life, with emphasis on local area scenes in black and white and color.

"Johnny O," as he calls himself, is an eight year resident of Ruidoso. A native of Fort Worth, Texas, he has a background in the bar and restaurant business and was employed by the Jockey Club at Ruidoso Downs and the Sierra Blanca Ski Resort before opening his professional photography studio here several months ago.

"This show," Johnny O said, "is a direct result of my exhibits at the Arts and Crafts Fair this year. Gary and Melinda Hall suggested that I display my works in Nottingham's Pub and I took them up on it."

His recent works include photographs of Peter and Michael Hurd collections and one of his pictures will be featured in the October issue of Southwest Art.

"WINTER HUNT" one of Bruce Kimberling's paintings of historical action.

"ALPINE MEADOW" is a scenic by Janet Wimberling.

Kimberlings exhibiting at D'Oros Gallery

Bruce Kimberling, nationally known prize winning artist, recreates on canvas scenes of western history at D'Oros Gallery in the Holiday Inn, while Janet Kimberling, landscape painter and Poster Artist of the Year for Santa Fe, is showing her romantic landscapes and adobes. The exhibition, which begins with a reception Saturday, October 3, from 2 to 6 p.m., will be on view until October 11. Both artists, who are listed in the new reference book, "American Artists of Reknown", prefer realism, working from sketches, oil studies from nature, or from imagination, rather than photographs.

Bruce Kimberling, who lives in Denver, shows action scenes of the Old West, including Indians and fur traders, the buffalo hunt, stage coach and wagon train. With many years' experience as a painter and a love of history, horses and heroes, he recreates in a bold style, with knowledge and sincerity, the United States' most colorful era.

Janet Kimberling, a resident of Santa Fe since 1975, works in a more detailed style which shows her love of the broad sweep of New Mexico's skies, the ever-changing cloud-shrouded mountains, the crumbling walls of ancient adobes, and the incredible distance the eye can see.

The work of both artists has been influenced by a study of the Old Masters, and is in many of the country's leading galleries, and numerous private collections throughout the United States and Europe.

Survey shows 13,709 Bald Eagles in nation

The National Wildlife Federation (NWF) has announced that its third annual midwinter bald eagle survey in the "lower 48" states, taken during the first two weeks of January, 1981, resulted in a count of 13,709 eagles — an increase of five percent over last year's count.

The survey was taken between January 2 and January 18 by nearly 4,000 counters from 45 states and wildlife agencies, seven federal agencies, and 150 local conservation groups.

William S. Clark, director of NWF's Raptor Information Center, estimated that of the 13,709 eagles counted, about 70 percent were migrants from Canada and Alaska which fly south when cold weather and frozen waterways interfere with their search for food. "The contiguous 48 states have a resident population of around 4,500 birds," he said, "but eagle counters may have actually surveyed only between 2,000 and 3,000 of the residents." He noted that coverage by eagle counters in 1981 comparable to coverage in 1980, which explained the similar results. There were 35 percent more eagles counted in 1980 than in 1979, mainly due to better coverage last year.

Considered to be the most complete midwinter bald eagle count available, the NWF survey provides eagle experts with data on where the birds are distributed during the winter and what kind of habitat they need to survive. "As we accumulate data from our annual bald eagle surveys, we will be able to better understand the needs of these birds," Clark said. NWF's Raptor Information Center, established in 1978, serves as a clearing house for data on eagles and other birds of prey.

"The annual survey is taken during the winter in order to increase our knowledge of bald eagle numbers and distribution at that time of year, when the numbers of birds found in the lower 48 are at their peak," Clark said. "During January survey conditions are ideal because eagle movements are at a minimum."

According to survey coordinator Mike Pramstaller, an NWF raptor specialist, the state of Washington reported the biggest 1981 midwinter eagle populations, with 1,611 sightings. Other states with high numbers of eagles were Missouri, with 965; Florida, 920; Idaho, 758; Utah 742, and California, 711. No eagles were sighted in either Vermont or West Virginia. Pramstaller pointed out that at least one pair of eagles is thought to reside in the latter state. Surveyors failed to spot the pair, however. Because of duplicated sightings by survey teams, state counts must sometimes be revised, he said. Last year's reported census total of 13,127 was later revised to 13,046.

For this year's survey every state had a regional coordinator, who was responsible for organizing the coverage in his area. In most cases the coordinator was an agency biologist who was knowledgeable of the eagles in his area. In five states — Idaho, Nevada, New Mexico, Texas, and Pennsylvania — there was a significant increase in eagle counters this year.

Weather conditions had a definite effect on survey results, Pramstaller emphasized. Cold weather was probably responsible for the increase over 1980's count in the number of eagle observations in Connecticut, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania and Maryland. Eagles are much more concentrated in certain areas during the cold weather, as they congregate near unfrozen water sources. In the region west of the Appalachian Mountains, weather was mild and dry, so the eagles were more dispersed and survey-taking more difficult. In Missouri and Utah, for example, eagles were counted this year as last, but they were more dispersed.

There was a major change in distribution this year in the region along the Mississippi River from Minneapolis, Minnesota, to Dubuque, Iowa, where bald eagles increased by 151 over the 1980 figures. A concurrent decrease this year of 194 bald eagles in Illinois away from the Mississippi suggests that the extremely mild weather encouraged the eagles to remain further north along the river, Pramstaller pointed out.

In the western United States bald eagle numbers were up in the intermountain regions of Idaho, Utah and New Mexico. The larger number tallied in New Mexico may be largely attributable to more extensive coverage in 1981. However, bald eagle numbers were up 75 percent in Idaho. Coordinators from that state felt that although there was increased coverage in 1981, there were significantly more birds present this winter. Counts in Utah, which were hampered by extensive fog, may have resulted in increases comparable to Idaho under more ideal survey conditions. Elsewhere in the West, bald eagle numbers were similar to last year except in Nevada, where increased survey effort yielded more birds, and in Oregon, where eagle numbers were down by 108.

Clark feels that the bald eagle is making a comeback, "especially in the Chesapeake Bay and Great Lakes regions." Habitat loss continues to be the long-range problem, however. "That's why it's important to have the valuable data our eagle midwinter surveys provide," Clark said. "Finally we are getting a feel for what habitat is essential to the birds."

Extension entomologist appointed at NMSU

Dr. Lloyd M. "Mike" English has been appointed as the new Extension entomologist for the Cooperative Extension Service at New Mexico State University (NMSU).

His appointment was effective September 1, according to Dr. John Oren, director of NMSU Cooperative Extension Service. Dr. Oren said Dr. English would have statewide responsibility for problems involving insect threats to New Mexico's crops and livestock.

Dr. English grew up in Perry, Missouri, which he describes as the heart of Mark Twain country. He attended a rural elementary school named for the famous American author.

Dr. English received his bachelor's degree in animal husbandry from the University of Missouri in 1968, and his master's degree in 1975. He completed his doctoral work in entomology, also at the University of Missouri, in 1981.

He is a member of the Entomological Society of America, and while he was a student he was a member of Gamma Sigma Delta, an honorary agricultural fraternity. He has 16 professional publications to his credit.

Stanley D. Farlin, assistant Extension director at NMSU, said, "We are extremely pleased that Dr. English has joined our staff in agriculture and resource development, and are fortunate to have an Extension entomologist the caliber of Mike working with the people of New Mexico."

Focus on Small Business

by E. Maine Shafer

Dear Mr. Shafer — As the owner of a small business I sometimes wonder what I should and should not divulge in the way of personal information on employees. Can you help?

Employees of small businesses still have limited access to their personnel records despite the passage a few years ago of the Privacy Act and the Freedom of Information Act. These laws apply only to federal government personnel record-keeping and to information on which federal government decisions are based.

An employee may have the right to certain records information if there's a wage claim, a discrimination charge of a worker's compensation claim. But there are a lot of gray areas of what employers can or should allow employees to see and what kinds of records should be kept.

The American Management Association has come up with some tips for managers of such information. Under "compulsory" tips are:

— Banning use of truth-verification equipment, such as the polygraph.

Requiring employers to exercise reasonable care in using investigative agencies to gather personal information, such as verification of previous employment or lifestyle; and requiring such enquirers to clearly state their identities and why they are soliciting such personal information.

— Discouraging employers from seeking or using records of arrest.

Under "voluntary" tips are:

— Advising employees and job applicants how the company uses and maintains records.

— Advising employees on company policy in disclosing personal information to third parties.

— Permit individuals to examine, copy, dispute and correct any information about them, making clear which records may or may not be inspected.

— Ensure that performance, insurance, and medical records and any information obtained about an employee from a consumer reporting agency are available to the employee.

— Restrict the use of crime conviction records and keep them apart from other records.

— Ensure that medical records are not used for making employment decisions without the employee's consent.

— Restrict the disclosure of information to their parties outside the organization.

Wilderness Wisdom

with Wayne Calloway

Dear Wayne — For years I have read and been told that deer were color blind, now I see articles that say they are not. So, who is right?

I would be inclined to believe they are. Why else would anyone wearing a hunter-orange outfit be able to get close to them?

Can they see colors, or not? John M., Illinois

Dear John — I'll be darned if I know. Like most other people, I accepted the popular notion that they were color blind. Recently, scientists and biologists (at least some) claim to have undisputable proof that they can see colors.

The real key, I think, is that they may not see the colors as we do. The hunter-orange clothing may not stand out to their eyes as it does ours. There are all sorts of colors and hues in their natural surroundings, so they may not be startled by what we judge as harsh.

There is another thing about deer which most hunters know. Rapid movement and articles that shine will put deer in high gear as quick as anything else. This is because both of these things are totally unnatural in their environment. Remember that deer are equipped with several senses to help them detect danger, and the weakest link is their eyes. It is very difficult for them to realize danger from a motionless object. On the other hand, a movement that is unnatural in their habitat will immediately bring them to the alarm state.

Color blind or not, I don't know, but I don't believe you need to be too concerned about wearing orange. I do believe it is important to break up the block outline of any solid color. The newer camouflage outfits that include swirls of hunter orange would seem to offer good visibility to other hunters while breaking the hard outline of a human figure. They are reportedly being used with good results.

Whatever you do, don't forsake the hunter-orange clothing, at least a hat. Not only it is required by law, but it could save someone a lot of grief.

Oil and Gas and New Mexico

has the energy situation improved in the United States?

The competitive market system is working. For the first time in nearly a decade, the government is relaxing its insistence on artificial prices for oil and gas.

Americans are using energy more efficiently because oil is priced at its true market value. U.S. and New Mexico drilling is at an all-time high because producers are now receiving market prices for the oil they find.

Unfortunately, federal and state price controls on natural gas continue to aggravate problems of supply and demand, but there are hopeful signs that the natural gas market also will be allowed to rejoin the free enterprise system.

Federal price controls and regulation of domestic oil supplies had several adverse effects during the 1970s; development of American oil declined, energy consumption climbed rapidly, and oil imports doubled.

The return of crude oil to the competitive market system started in June 1979 with the gradual phase-out of price controls. The process was completed in January 1981 when the remaining constraints were lifted.

As a result, Americans are getting along with less foreign oil.

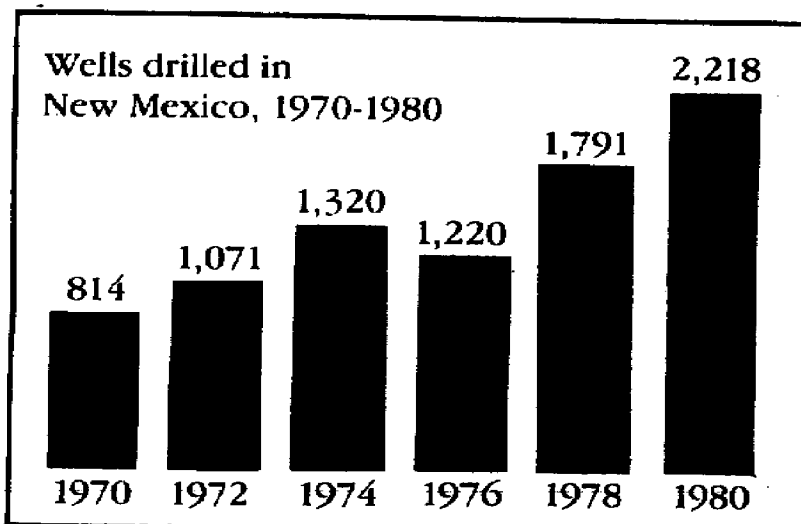

Oil imports mushroomed from 1970 to 1979, going from 3.42 million barrels per day (MBD) to 8.39 MBD. But, the U.S. has cut its daily oil imports 2 MBD since the beginning of 1980.

U.S. oil production declined each year for most of the 1970s, but increased in 1980.

The overall use of energy in this country declined in 1980 for the first time since the recession years of 1974-1975.

New Mexico's gasoline consumption dropped 3.4 percent from 1978 to 1979, and it fell another 5.9 percent in 1980. This reduction was primarily the result of higher prices and more fuel-efficient cars.

Americans are fighting for their energy security by using less, producing more and finding alternatives. This country's prospects for solving its energy problems are much brighter now than they were two or three years ago.

can we do to achieve energy security?

New, alternative sources of energy need to be developed as rapidly as possible, but oil and gas will continue to be the fuel most used by U.S. industry and transportation for many years.

The main question will be how much oil will come from American wells and how much from foreign producers. The nation's $80 billion bill for imported oil in 1980 represents an unprecedented transfer of American money to foreign nations. It also gives unstable countries increasing influence over U.S. economic and political affairs.

The U.S. and its allies would suffer great harm if there should be another major interruption in foreign oil supplies.

That's why we must take every means to strengthen our position.

We believe that Americans can regain control of their energy future if they are willing to:

- Place more reliance on the market system to solve energy problems, rather than on government controls.

- Give the same high degree of national attention to energy development that has been given to environmental improvement.

- Provide greater access for responsible exploration of potentially energy-rich public lands.

- Encourage private development of a strong synthetic fuels industry and the renewable energy sources.

Energy analysts believe this country has a good chance to cut its imports in half during this decade—with the right combination of political leadership, adequate economic incentives, and cooperation by all concerned.

have all the oil dollars gone?

They're out looking for more energy. Oil companies historically spend more on search and research than they receive in profit.

Expenditures for drilling, exploration, production and leases in this country more than doubled from 1978 to 1980, when they rose from $20 billion to $43 billion. They are expected to total $50 billion this year.

Petroleum producers in New Mexico and the nation broke all records last year for drilling rig activity, the number of wells completed, total footage, and bonus bids for the right to drill on public lands.

Although New Mexico oil and gas production continues to decline, there are a number of favorable signs.

For instance, producers are doing more exploring and drilling outside the eight producing counties—Chaves, Eddy, Lea and Roosevelt in the southeast, and McKinley, Rio Arriba, Sandoval and San Juan in the northwest.

A successful gas well has been completed in Colfax county. Permits to drill have been approved for Lincoln, DeBaca and Torrance counties. Luna, Hidalgo, Grant, Dona Ana and Otero counties are considered favorable prospects for new exploration. Several deep wells have been drilled near Albuquerque, and there are even test wells in Santa Fe County.

Higher prices and improved technology are enabling producers to return to areas which were unsuccessful in the past and to revive old wells which were considered depleted.

The injection of water, chemicals and carbon dioxide may be used to force out residue oil still clinging to rock formations. One company expects to drill more than 300 carbon dioxide wells during the next three years in Harding, Union and Quay counties to furnish CO₂ for "enhanced recovery" projects in West Texas as well as New Mexico.

The fact is the petroleum industry is spending huge sums to find new supplies of badly needed oil and gas.

It also is putting substantial amounts of money into the development of synthetic and alternative fuels such as coal gasification, oil shale, and solar.

Although the earnings of large U.S. oil companies doubled during 1979-1980, their income this year is expected to increase less than 5 percent. And, Fortune magazine estimates that about 85 percent of the money received by oil producers is ultimately taken by various levels of government in taxes and royalties.

WHO

benefits from the oil and gas industry in New Mexico?

We all do—through lower taxes, more money for schools, investment income, and jobs.

State taxes and royalties on the production of crude oil and natural gas provide about 40 percent of New Mexico's $1 billion plus General Fund. Without these revenues, state officials would have to boost all other taxes sharply to continue the level of services now provided by the General Fund.

As it is, the State Legislature was able to cut taxes almost $200 million this year because of a growing General Fund surplus. A major contributor to this surplus was the rapidly increasing oil and gas revenues, which rose 51 percent in 1980 over 1979.

Although 95 percent of the oil and gas produced in New Mexico comes from only 4 counties, every school district in the state receives its share of revenues from production activity.

The schools received a total of $235.5 million—about half their operating expenses—from these revenues during 1979-1980 (the latest school year for which complete figures were available).

What will the state do when all the oil and gas are gone?

The leaders of government and industry have provided part of the answer in the creation of two state permanent funds or savings accounts. Our children and grandchildren will be the beneficiaries of these two growing funds, which receive most of their capital from petroleum taxes and royalties.

Total assets in the State Permanent Fund and the Severance Tax Permanent Fund will soon reach $2 billion. These monies are invested under strict guidelines. Only the interest can be spent by the state and its educational institutions. These earnings totaled more than $114 million in 1980.

Many New Mexicans own shares in oil companies. The New York Stock Exchange estimates more than 85 million Americans—nearly half the adult population—profit from stock ownership in the 16 largest oil companies. About 3 million people own stock directly and the remainder belong to pension, retirement and insurance funds that have money invested in these companies.

Thousands of New Mexicans are involved directly in the petroleum business as executives, employees and entrepreneurs. The industry provides a total of about 24,000 jobs, making it one of the state's largest non-governmental employers.

Scenic excursions are a breathtaking experience

Being it is autumn, and it's Aspencade, visitors to this area have a golden opportunity to enjoy breath taking scenic drives — and all the golden sights awaiting viewers aren't contained in the aspens.

One short drive, for example, is to head out north on Highway 37, perhaps four or five miles, and turn onto State Highway 532, leading 12 miles up the mountain to Sierra Blanca Ski Resort. This is a freshly black topped, dippy and twisty, stretch of road, offering a magnificent change of scenery around each and every curve.

From vantage points on Ski Run Road, that's Highway 532, you can view an expanse of mountain scenery, the likes of which you'll be hard pressed to duplicate anywhere. At certain points you can look out across the mountains and onto the White Sands, shimmering in iridescent splendor in the oft-times hazy distance. Do take your camera.

For a drive offering ever changing scenery, take Highway 37 north to Angus and turn west on the road leading to Bonita Lake. Drive leisurely, but carefully, and you'll enjoy mountain and forest scenery to boggle the imagination. The drive, this time of the year, will not encounter the traffic abounding during the summer months, thus leaving you with the opportunities to stop and enjoy the views and take countless pictures.

To savor the feeling of being alone in the wilderness, continue on around Bonita Lake, and keep driving until you reach the cul-de-sac, some miles distant. It is along this stretch of road that you'll really be able to get back to nature — it's almost as though you've suddenly been transplanted into forest primeval.

For a real change of pace, on Highway 37, and about two miles west of Angus, turn north towards Nogal. You'll drive through a pine tree shaded, narrow, valley for some miles, then emerge into the open space of the desert, with each turn in the road offering a spectacular view — with one of the most impressive being the expanse of valley, surrounded by rugged mountains, just as you begin the descent into Nogal. You have to see this view to believe it.

At the junction with Highway 380, a short drive west, past Carrizozo, takes you to the Malpais — the Valley of Fire. Here an expanse of lava, deposited eons ago by a most active volcano, awaits your inspection. There's a beauty in this stilled lava flow that'll stimulate your imagination, as you closely inspect the obviously undulating flow of molten rock that suddenly cooled, remaining as frozen motion for your viewing pleasure. Do take your camera.

From Carrizozo, east on Highway 380, the road follows the Rio Bonito, through a colorful valley into Old Lincoln Town, the stamping grounds of Billy the Kid — where you can inspect memorabilia of the Lincoln County War and the Kid.

After leaving Lincoln, the drive on down the valley toward Highway 70 offers spectacular desert and mountain scenery — giving you the impression that you're a frontiersman entering a virgin land.

At the highway 380/70 junction, a turn left will take you through the colorful Hondo Valley, turning right will bring you back, through the mountains to Ruidoso — with spectacular views abounding.

Another beautiful drive is to head south on Highway 70 out of Ruidoso, through the Mescalero Apache Reservation — where the scenery varies from beautiful expanses of mountains to the waste howling wilderness of the sprawling desert.

Another splendid scenic drive is to take Highway 24, off Highway 70, up the mountainous road to Cloudcroft, nestled in the high hills at an elevation of 8,000 or 9,000 feet. Do take a camera, as the only way you can prove such scenery exists, to the "Doubting Thomasas" back home, is to have pictures.

Side trips from Cloudcroft including driving down the mountain towards Elk, or along a curving road to Sunspot, or down the mountain towards Alamogordo. Being as none of these roads are conducive to fast travel, you can revel in nature's splendid beauty that constantly changes as you make your way.

Who knows, after an excursion into the countryside, you, too, might decide that living in these mountains is exactly what you want to do.

Fabulous mule racing offers excitement, thrills

Mules, generally, are known for being recalcitrant beasts.

Fabled tales of mules range from having to have a fire built under them to get them to move — and move they did, but only to get away from the fire.

Mules, obviously, aren't stupid.

Then there are the countless anecdotes depicting these long eared brayers as "stubborn as a Missouri mule," — all of which have some basis in fact. With the facts usually being embellished with falsehoods — just to make the story more believable.

This, then, sets the stage for the racing mules — a different breed of mules.

And, at Ruidoso Downs Race

Track, October 8-11, there'll be mule racing . . . with purses of up to $1,000 added, making Ruidoso Downs the home of the world's richest mule races.

Racing mules, it must be said, aren't your common barnyard variety of mules — racing mules don't pull carts, don't go into coal mines to haul loaded cars from the depths to the ground level, don't perform menial tasks as do their non-racing counterparts.

A good racing mule, such as the likes of Early Bird, Redeye, Flip Wilson, Maudie and those of similar ilk, are valued as are good racing quarter horses; thoroughbreds, even. Sure, the owner places a value on them — but that isn't the value placed should someone, with money, come around and start discussing the purchase of these racing mules. Five figures, when it comes to racing mules, is a common valuation — and that doesn't mean $10,000 — but considerably more.

Thus it is, that top racing mules are valuable animals.

With that as a background, the mule races you'll see at Ruidoso Downs October 8-11 are professionally run. The Ruidoso Downs Mule Skinners, with the cooperation of the Ruidoso-Sunland board of directors, use the same equipment as the track uses for horse racing. That's from the gates, to electronic timing and photo-finish cameras. The same officials from stewards to starter, make certain the races are run correctly — adhering to the highest standards used in horse racing.

This year's racing schedule follows.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 9

Sierra Blanca Stakes, 400 yards, $750 added.

Three-Year-Olds and older, 300 yards, $300 added.

Two-Year-Olds, non starters, 220 yards, $250 added.

Two-Year-Olds and older, all grades, six furlongs, $500 added.

Two-Year-Olds, open, 250 yards, $200 added.

Three-Year-Olds and older, Grade A and lower, 220 yards, $350 added.

Three-Year-Olds and older, D and lower grades, 330 yards, $300 added.

Three-Year-Olds and older, C and lower grades, 300 yards, $200 added.

Chariots, four teams, 250 yards, $300 added.

Chariots, four teams, 350 yards, $300 added.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 11

Four-Year-Olds, classic, 350 yards, $1,000 added.

Ruidoso Downs Stakes, 400 yards, $1,000 added.

Mule Skinners Stakes, four furlongs, $500 added.

Three-Year-Olds and up, C grade, 200 yards, $200 added.

Two-Year-Olds, 300 yards, $250 added.

Three-Year-Olds and older, A grade, 250 yards, $350 added.

Three-Year-Olds, B grade, 350 yards, $300 added.

Relay, one mile, $250 added.

Three-Year-Olds and older, C grade, 300 yards, $200 added.

Three-Year-Olds and older, D grade, 350 yards, $200 added.

Three-Year-Olds and older, A grade, 400 yards, $350 added.

Chariots, 250 yards, $300 added.

Chariots, 350 yards, $300 added.

Now that's a lot of "added."

And it's added to entry fees ranging from $50 to $500. And 10 entries at $500, plus $1,000 added, has those mules running 350 yards for $6,000 in the Classic.

As to the grades of mules, A is the highest, the best, the most experienced, the fastest, the best behaved. It's when you get down to the D grade, and lower, that the unexpected happens in mule racing — those mullish traits come to the fore in the less experienced animals and prove to be the crowd pleasers.

For instance, a D grade mule might be 17 lengths in front of the pack — not a bad lead — and suddenly that mule will jump the fence, or come to a quick stop and meander over to the edge of the track and start chomping on grass, or, perhaps, dart into the path leading to the paddock area, and this discounts the for instances when the mule decides bucking is more fun than racing.

For those big money purses, however, the trained racing mules pretty much stick to business — outside of being a little cantankerous in the starting chutes at times. But when these A grade mules come out of the gates, it's all business — they get into high blower and run. No foolishness, — just a good mule race.

And, as with all sporting events, there's always ample opportunity to discuss the relative merits of one mule over another with other mule race fans who will prove to be more than willing to enter into the spirit of the competition.

The real crowd pleasers are the Relay Races. Riders have to saddle the mule, run a specified distance, dismount, unsaddle, saddle, leap aboard and repeat the process, three times in all. All this hurry and flurry tends to excite the mules — with unpredictable results. These results range from refusing to be saddled, to getting loose and running away, to kicking and biting, or, if saddled, in bucking, or refusing to run at all. It's guaranteed, during the relay races, that hilarity will take over before the winner crosses the finish line.

Then there are the chariot races. Shades of Ben Hur! Pulled by a pair of mules, the drivers make like the gladiators of old, standing in their chariots, snapping their whip, exhorting the mules to greater effort. With the thought being, the mules don't always cooperate — and again the event is a crowd pleaser.

Co-featured with the mule races are the arena events, October 9-11. In the arena the show mules perform, with heading and heeling, steer stopping, barrel racing, cutting and western pleasure reigning on the agenda. Mules, in all arena events, tend to perform like horses similarly trained — it's seldom an arena mule'll act up, but when they do, it's worth watching.

Armed with this information, should you, too, decide you'd like to be the proud owner of a mule, there'll be a mule auction October 8. And you'll be able to big on a corner, maybe a proven animal, or just buy a mule that looks as though it will develop into a winner.

For a change of pace, and an opportunity to exchange information, maybe, even, dollars, the mule races will suffice to satisfy every whim the fan needs to satisfy.

Bear in mind that the mule races at Ruidoso Downs Race Track are professionally run. The higher the grade of mule, the more professional the race. The lower the grade, the greater the opportunity for mulish behavior on the part of the mules — and this is where the crowd pleasing action occurs.

And the sponsors of these events, the Ruidoso Downs Mule Skinners, are looking ahead to offering pari-mutuel wagering in the not-too-distant future — just in case you think they aren't serious about mule racing.

WELCOME TO ASPENCADE!

Backpacking into the wilderness is challenging

Backpacking has become one of the most popular outdoors activities in the country and the Ruidoso area is no exception to this.

There are numerous areas around Ruidoso where a person can go backpacking. The White Mountain Wilderness area and the Capitan Mountain Wilderness area are the best places to go backpacking as they are relatively isolated and have plenty of room for people to hike.

Although winter isn't that far away in the Ruidoso area there is still plenty of time for people to backpack in the wilderness areas.

About 7,000 people each year visit the two wilderness areas, according to Randy Herzberg, a recreation forester for the Lincoln National Forest. Many if not most of that number do extensive backpacking into the wilderness areas.

But if someone decides to go backpacking he or she must be prepared. A backpacker must have enough equipment and clothes to handle any emergency, particularly in the winter time.

What does a backpacker need when he goes into the back country?

Well, first of all a backpack is obviously the most important item. Most of the necessary items can be carried in the backpack if they are fitted properly.

Such necessities are food, a portable stove, cooking utensils, rain gear, clothing and a sleeping bag can be carried in the backpack. First aid equipment should also be taken along and, if possible, carried in the backpack.

If people go backpacking into the wilderness areas during the wintertime they should bring along heavy clothing and ear muffs. Hypothermia is a potential danger in cold weather and sufficient clothing is a must.

Heavy boots are also important to a backpacker and are expensive, costing as much as $70. The boots must fit properly to insure proper movement.

During the winter time snowshoes may be necessary at the higher elevations, particularly if getting traction is difficult.

A tent can be useful during the summertime but not absolutely necessary. During the wintertime, however, tents are strongly advised.

Good tents that can be used all year around are expensive, sometimes running over $200. Look for quality when you buy a tent. It's especially important in the wintertime when a tent must be sturdy and easy to put up in case of bad weather.

A 50 mile an hour windstander is probably not necessary on tents used in the Ruidoso area. During the wintertime temperatures sometimes drop below the freezing level but the winds generally stay at a moderate level.

Wearing a hat is advisable on backpacking trips as it will protect your face, eyes and ears from the sun in the summer and the cold in the winter.

There are several kinds of portable stoves a person can bring along on a backpacking trip. White gas, alcohol or propane will

Arabian Horse Show colorful event

Picture a cloudless sky — a sky so blue, it can only happen in New Mexico. Add to that, warm and sunny weather. Shirt sleeve weather.

Color in some horses — beautiful Arabian horses, kicking the dust up as they parade around the ring.

And don't forget people — lots of attractive people — dressed in blue jeans and cowboy boots; or English riding habits; or in cut-offs and jogging shoes or in the colorful native Arabian costume of the desert. People are very much a part of the reason this three-day event held each fall is bound to catch on.

The judge calls out instructions to each rider and watches there is carefully as each goes through their paces. He walks over and consults with an official. A decision is reached and announced over the loudspeaker.

There is applause and ribbons are passed out.

A brief telling cannot possibly account for the many hours members of the Ruidoso Arabian Horse Association (RAHA) put in to make the Ruidoso All Arabian Class "A" Horse Show such a memorable event each year.

It is, technically speaking, a class competition, the first place winners, all but the equitation classes, that is, qualifying for the national competitions sponsored by the National Arabian Horse Show Association.

Qualifying for the "nationals" may be the main purpose of the show, but add to that the beautiful horses and the attractive participants and the perfect setting and you have a combination guaranteed to make good the "three days of fun" promised by the RAHA for both exhibitors and spectators alike annually.

do.

Cooking utensils should include forks, knives and spoons. A large cutting knife would also come in handy. Dried food is especially useful on backpacking trips.

There are various kinds of sleeping bags a person can take on a backpacking trip. Bags filled with dacron or fiberfill are good because they are warm and lightweight, thus easy to carry in a backpack. Down filled bags are also very warm but are useless once they are wet. They are most useful during the summer or spring.

Any person who is going backpacking for the first time should go with several experienced people. There are many paths to hike on, particularly in the White Mountain Wilderness area, thus it's very easy for someone to get lost.

There are easier paths for beginners to hike on in the wilderness areas and inexperienced people should get used to these hikes before attempting some long trips into the wilderness.

But above all, be prepared when you go backpacking.

Area camping varies from comfortable to rustic

So you want to go camping! Well the Ruidoso area is gradually becoming known as one of the more attractive and desirable areas in New Mexico for campers.

While camping hasn't passed hunting and horse racing in popularity yet, a growing number of campers are coming to Ruidoso to view the sights and sounds of nature.

There are 364,352 acres set aside by the Smokey Bear District of the Lincoln National Forest for outdoors enjoyment.

Unlike some of the more famous camping areas in the country, the Ruidoso-Lincoln County area offers campgrounds with a good deal of solitude for the outdoorsperson.

The most popular campground is South Fork, the only campground with a nightly fee ($4) and flush toilets. However it closed for the winter October 15. When South Fork is open it has room for both tents and trailers and has regular garbage collections.

Oak Grove, a campground located off State Road 532 near the ski area, is also closed for the winter. It has 31 campsites with fireplaces and vault toilets.

Three Rivers campground, which is located on the west side of the wilderness area between Carrizozo and Tularosa (off highway 54) has limited facilities. An old Indian petroglyph site, with trail and displays, is located nearby and should interest history buffs. It's open year around, and is one of the more popular campgrounds in the area.

"It's located (Three Rivers) at a lower elevation and is easily accessible all year round," said Randy Herzberg, a recreation forester for Lincoln National Forest.

Monjeau and Skyline, both national forest campgrounds, can be used during the winter. However, it's hard to get to these campgrounds in the wintertime, since they are often snowed in.

Baca campground, an undeveloped site, is located off Highway 380 between Capitan and Lincoln.

But perhaps the biggest advantage the Ruidoso area can offer for campers is the undeveloped space for people who like to "rough" it.

Almost all of the 364,352 acres set aside for recreation can be camped on, Cedar Creek being an exception.

The two wilderness areas around Ruidoso, Capitan Mountains Wilderness and the White Mountain Wilderness, offer campers a chance to really get away from it all.

Unlike more famous "camping" areas like Yosemite National Park in California and Yellowstone National Park in Wyoming the hardy camper can find places where he is hardly bothered by other campers and signs of civilization.

When you go camping in the wilderness areas tents aren't absolutely required except in wintertime. Items that you should probably bring along on a camping trip include dried food, a portable stove, first aid equipment, cooking utensils, sleeping bags, a lantern and definitely a flashlight.

Campers have little to fear from wildlife in the area. There are bears, cougars and golden eagles in the wilderness areas but they are afraid of humans and generally avoid human contact. The abundance of wildlife in the Ruidoso area can be a pleasant surprise for animal buffs.

But with all the pleasures campers can derive from the outdoors, camping also involves responsibility.

The Lincoln National Forest is famous for the forest fire in May, 1950, where the original "Smokey Bear" was saved by forest rangers.

To prevent fires like the one that almost destroyed "Smokey" campers should watch the fires they build, don't use standing wood for fires and keep water handy in case the fire starts to spread or get out of control. If campers smoke extinguish the smoking material. If you have a car, use the ashtrays.

Keeping nature beautiful is also the responsibility of campers. Throw all your trash away in trash cans whenever possible and don't bathe or wash clothes in rivers and streams. Areas like Ruidoso are among the few places left in the country where pollution is not a problem. Yet.

Keep camping areas clean and the recreation areas of Lincoln County will remain, as Randy Hazeberg says, "available to provide peace and solitude for people."

Campers with questions about the recreation area can contact the Smokey Bear Ranger District office, located at Highway 37 and Cedar Creek Road.

Ruidoso's skiing is positively, utterly, fantastic

Ruidoso is a winter playground for many people from the southwest.

And the skiing at Sierra Blanca Ski Resort rates near or at the top among New Mexico's ski resorts.

The resort, which attracts most of its customers (over 90 percent) from Texas, is owned and operated by the Mescalero Apache Tribe. It is located near the top of Sierra Blanca, at 12,003 feet above sea level, the seventh highest mountain in the state of New Mexico. The ski area itself is 11,400 feet above sea level.

Towering above the resort area of Ruidoso it presents a bright contrast to the desert area around Lincoln County.

Sierra Blanca Ski Resort was built in 1961 by Robert O.

Anderson and sold in 1964 to the Mescalero Tribe.

Since then the resort has steadily increased in size and total business until it has become perhaps the biggest ski resort in the state.

Sierra Blanca generally opens for skiing around Thanksgiving, depending upon the amount of snow in the area. It's usually open through the middle of March with the best skiing occurring in January and February.

According to resort officials in the 1980-81 season was a mediocre one with the best skiing on the Washington's Birthday weekend in mid-February. About 12,000 ski tickets were sold during the four-day weekend.

The resort record for tickets sold in one day is slightly over 5,600, set in February, 1980.

There are 26 trails on the mountain, 15 of them for beginners and the others for advanced skiers.

The resort has constantly added on new facilities since it was built. The Capitan triple chair lift, with a capacity of 1,800 skiers per hour, is the newest addition. The resort also has some excellent snow equipment to keep the area in shape.

There are over 30 miles of trails around the resort and they are constantly being maintained to insure safe and quality skiing.

One of the interesting programs going on at Sierra Blanca is a winter Junior Ski Racers club for youths eight to 18 years old.

The racers club, which has been operating for several years, is composed of junior skiers from the Ruidoso area. The local skiers compete against other ski teams nation-wide. They belong to the Rocky Mountain Division and have most of their meets in Colorado at such places as famous ski spots Vail and Aspen.

League competition generally begins in early January and continues through March. Some advanced skiers may compete in individual competition in early December.

There is also a junior division of the racers called "Hot Tots." This is a beginning skiing program for tots two to five years of age.

A handicapped skiers' program is also run at the resort. These people are taught how to ski no matter what their handicap.

Sierra Blanca generally receives about 175 to 200 inches of snow each winter season, rivaling that of the mountains around Santa Fe and Taos.

A second ski resort, Eagle Creek Ski and Recreation Area, is located off Highway 37 about six miles from downtown Ruidoso, on highway 532.

Ruidoso has some excellent ski rental shops which provide skiers with equipment and clothing. At least 20 of these stores are located in the Ruidoso-Alto area.

Enjoy yourself having a fun night on the town

One of your most memorable recollections of spending time in Ruidoso could well be a night on the town.

There are, as you can easily discover, the friendly neighborhood taverns that offer pleasure back home, there are the comfortable lounges where you can enjoy a relaxing atmosphere, and there are the night clubs where you can enjoy every conceivable libation, prepared with expertise.

For an adventuresome evening, pop into one of the taverns — here you'll encounter the friendly natives, pausing for a moment's relaxation after completing the arduous labors of the day. Spotting the native is simple — they don't look like tourists.

The natives are a gregarious lot, they'll willingly talk about living in Ruidoso, and may tend to tell you some mighty tall tales — which you can take with or without a grain of salt.

It is in the taverns where you'll possibly encounter some very interesting characters and you might even get in on some of the action and fun that occurs. As a visitor all you have to do is sit back and enjoy whatever transpires — remembering life here is leisurely and carefree, especially as the cool of the evening begins to permeate "Harmony Valley," as Ruidoso is referred to by the natives.

Next on the list of stops would be one of the lounges, which tend to be a little more comfortable than the taverns, maybe a little more quiet — but still, during the early evening, peopled with the omnipresent natives, all gregarious, all friendly, all helpful.

In the taverns you'll find expert bartenders, and friendly people waiting on you, offering excellent service. There may be music, some quiet, some loud, but all good. These are places where you can relax, chat quietly with your own party, or casually mix with the natives. Such a visit will give you many pleasant memories to recall, once you're back home.

Then there are the night clubs, where every amenity is at your beck and call. Here it's necessary to bring money, because relaxing in them isn't exactly the way to conserve your resources.

However, it is in the night clubs where the quality of gracious living that has attracted so many people here becomes readily apparent. Here, too, you'll encounter the friendly natives, though they may tend to be a little more reserved than those in the taverns and lounges.

Should you wish to inquire a little more into what life is like in Ruidoso, however, don't hesitate to ask those folks you'll see, because you can always tell the natives — and you'll find them willing to talk with you, to answer your questions and help you in any way possible.

The choice of night clubs varies from those where quiet is the order of the day, where you can sit in comfort and relax, where you can have that feeling that those serving you are available solely for your pleasure, to those where there's entertainment and lots of action.

Music offered in the night clubs varies from singles to groups, playing every type of music, some quiet and conducive to pleasant conversation, some suitable for dancing, but all performed by the finest entertainers. Some feature piano bars, with Dixieland, jazz and old favorites belted out by the piano player — offering you the opportunity to sing along, if the spirit (or spirits) move you.

From the finest champagne and cognac, to frozen concoctions of every description, to martinis that'll leave you breathless, to exotic beverages from foreign lands, every taste can be satisfied, every thirst quenched.

Don't be deceived into thinking that this little mountain village is in the boondocks — there's a quality of life here that will surprise you.

And one of the best ways to ascertain why living in Ruidoso is an experience, is to spend a night on the town — it'll be most rewarding.

Happy pub crawling!

Hunters, you're in the heart of nimrod country

Ruidoso and the surrounding area offers some of the best hunting in New Mexico.

Big game such as elk, black bear and deer are readily available to hunters in the area. In many cases the seasons are just starting or about to start.

Elk, without question one of the most prized big game animals in New Mexico, becomes fair game for hunters in the Ruidoso area from October 8 to October 12. These huge animals, sometimes weighing over 1,000 pounds, are one of the most sought after big game animals on the North American continent. One bull is the bag limit in the Ruidoso area.

Black bear, which average about 175 to 200 pounds apiece, can be hunted in the area from November 20 to November 22 and November 27 to December 3. There is a one bear limit, except for any female accompanied by a cub or cubs, and except any cub less than a year old.

Dogs may be used in hunting bear, except during open season for elk, bighorn sheep or turkey. Also dogs may be used for hunting bear during deer and turkey seasons open for hunting only with muzzle loader or bow. However, dogs may not be used for hunting bear in any other open deer season.

There are different seasons for bow and muzzle loading hunting of deer, bear and turkey.

Limits for bow hunting season are one deer of either sex, one turkey or one bear. There are bow hunts in September and January in the Ruidoso area.

Muzzle loading season for deer, turkey and bear in the Ruidoso area is from September 19-27.

Other kinds of big game that can be hunted around Ruidoso and Lincoln County are cougar, antelope and furbearers, such as coyotes and bobcats.

Despite the abundance of game around Ruidoso, not all the land area is available for hunters.

Some of the land is privately owned. Landowners do not have to allow hunters access across their lands to public lands unless the road crossing their land is a public road.

There are also some rules and guidelines for hunters.

— Do not use a motor vehicle to chase game.

— Do not use any live animals as blinds or decoys in taking or trying to take game animals or game birds.

— Do not use tracer ammunition in taking or trying to take game animals or game birds.

— Do not use vehicles on any roads posted as closed to vehicular traffic. Watch for posted signs and consult the Game Department if you are unsure about the stability of a road.

There are countless other rules which hunters must learn to obey in order to hunt legally.

There are a good number of birds and animals that are protected by state law in New Mexico.

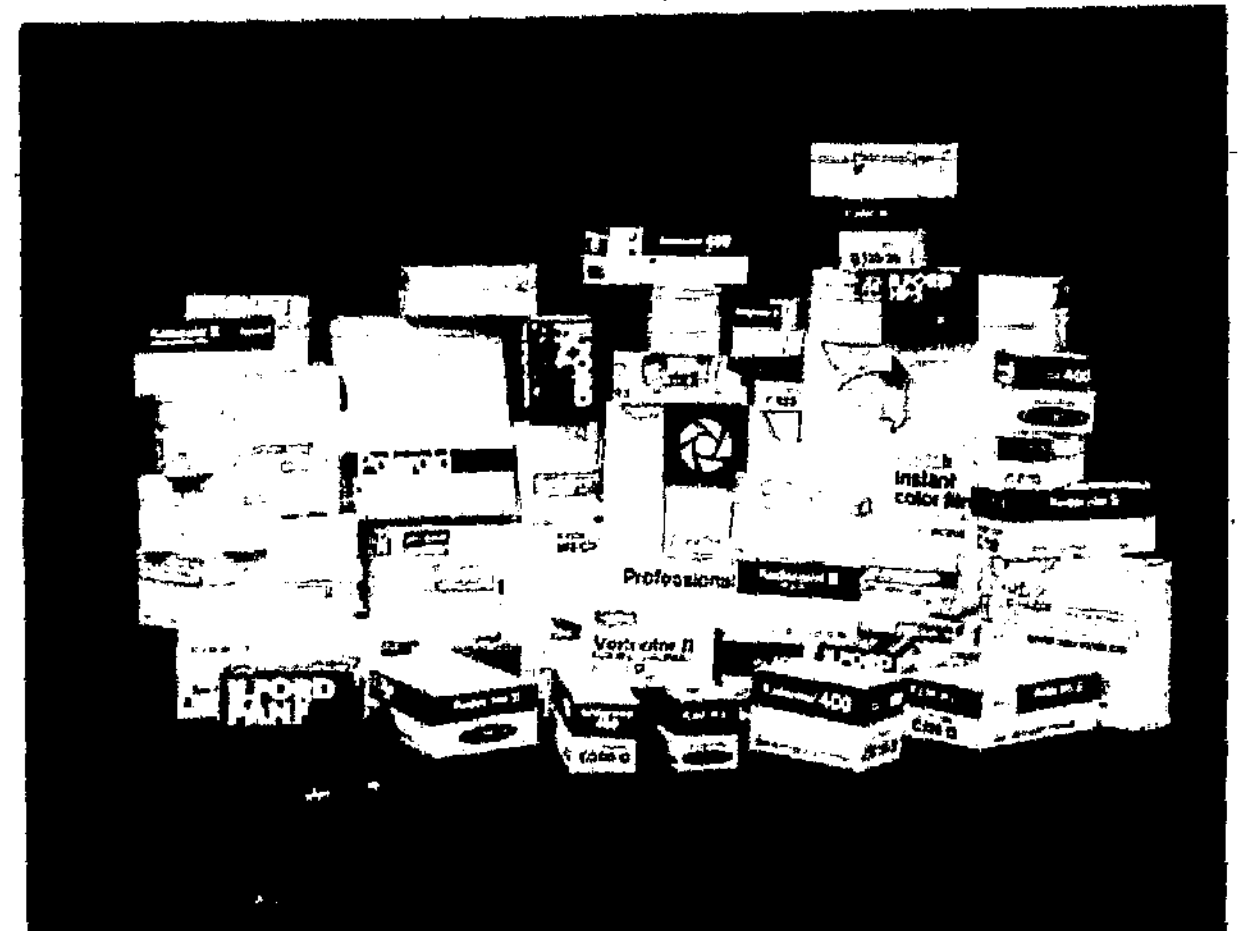

They include wolves, white-sided jackrabbits, martins, prairie dogs, river otters, bald eagles, various types of falcons, whooping crane, Mississippi Kite and Gila and red-headed woodpeckers.

Some of the above animals are also protected by federal endangered species laws and there are heavy fines for killing them.

Hunting involves perhaps more responsibility than any other outdoors activity in the Ruidoso area. Hunters must realize that their guns or bows are dangerous weapons and must be handled accordingly. This is particularly true in the Ruidoso-Lincoln County area since it is a resort community and there are lots of other outdoorspersons interested in activities other than hunting.

Hunters can obtain hunting licenses for specific game from over 300 vendors in New Mexico. The costs of the licenses are considerably more for nonresidents than state residents.

Ruidoso's in the heart of shutterbug country

Tis Aspencade time in Ruidoso. That means, in addition to the flurry of activities extending into mid October, that the countryside is aflame with fall colors — the Aspens are turning golden, the maples are resplendent in their many hues, the last of the wild flowers are adding their glorious colors to the overall picture of beauty that abounds in the Ruidoso area at the onset of autumn.

This translates into: you're in a shutterbug's paradise!

The thing to do, to provide a lasting record of the beauties of nature abounding here, is to grab your camera and hit for the hills, or the desert, or the rivers and lakes — and snap wondrous nature in full color to your heart's content.

The camera you use — from point and shoot, to fully automatic, to the most sophisticated gear — is your choice, as all will suffice to record the beauty of autumn in the Sacramento Mountains and in this area.

One glorious opportunity to practice up on your photographic skills is to drive up State Highway 532, called "Ski Run Road" by the locals. On this 12 mile stretch of newly paved highway, even without parking in one of the very few places where parking is permitted, to stroll off into the woods, opportunities for breath taking photographs abound.

It is on Ski Run Road you'll encounter the glorious aspens, and, if you keep a sharp lookout, or inquire of the operators of photo shops, you'll be able to revel in the beauty of the colorful maples.

Then, too, on this stretch of highway, you'll encounter some of the best scenic views in New Mexico. The drive, alone, is certain to be one of the most memorable experiences visitors to Ruidoso during Aspencade will savor, as they recall the pleasures associated with lingering here for a few days.

Along most any road you choose to travel, you'll find an abundance of wild flowers, some within arm's reach from your car, some requiring walking into the woods. And it is getting off the beaten path that the best opportunities to capture nature's resplendent colors exist.

In your quest for colorful pictures, don't pass up strolling along the Rio Ruidoso, Eagle Creek, Carrizo Creek, or the Rio Hondo and Rio Bonito. These gurgling, surging waters, more rivulets than rivers, will test the imagination and mettle of the photographer — resulting in memorable pictures with which to regale your friends back home.

For sensational color, at a minimum of effort, a drive down highway 70, through the Hondo Valley, will produce picture opportunities to please the most demanding photographer, let alone the shutterbug who wants mementoes of a sojourn in this, the most enchanting part of the Land of Enchantment.

Don't pass up the opportunities for taking outstanding black and white pictures. Travel over the

fering some of the greatest possibilities for utilizing shadows and bright sunlight extant anywhere.

If photographing wildlife is a heart's desire, then arm yourself with a good telephoto lens, 200 or 300 mm, or a 80-200 or 85-300 zoom, and, if you exhibit the necessary stealth, you can focus on deer, elk, bear, wild turkey, quail and a great variety of lesser animals and fowl.

It is in pursuing wildlife to capture on film that stopping to visit with the photo shop operators will pay off. They'll be able to direct you to the areas where you'll encounter wildlife — after which you'll be on your own. The opportunities abound here.

Keep in mind that an Ansel Adams you don't have to be. From the sunsets, to the moonlit mountains, to the night shots of Ruidoso taken from high atop a hill, from dewy mornings to fog enshrouded river scenes, there isn't a photographic opportunity that doesn't exist right here.

If landscapes, wildlife, flowers, trees ablaze with fall color are what you're seeking to photograph — grab your camera and take off — because you're where the opportunities are.

Happy shutterbugging!

Hunter/Jumper show October 8-11

Over 350 entries are expected to compete in the second annual Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital Charity Horse Show, scheduled for October 8-11, at Ruidoso Downs meadow, which again will offer owners and riders of hunter and jumper horses a major competition sanctioned by the American Horse Shows Association (AHSA), with special events for mules. Profits from the show will go to Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital.

More than $20,000 in cash and prizes will be awarded in all classes except Equitation, which will receive ribbons, Winnie Lewis, co-chairman for the show said. The other co-chairman will be Donald S. Leslie of El Paso, Texas, she said.

The 90 classes will be judged by Chrystine W. Jones of Gladstone, New Jersey, and Arthur Hawkins of Rancho de Santa Fe, California, Lewis said.

She said entries will be coming "from all over. Premium books have been sent to California, New Mexico, Arizona, Texas and Colorado."

Mule halter classes and a mule jump-off are again slated for the three-day event this year, Lewis said. The committee had heard that mules can jump higher than horses. "They didn't quite make it last year. But it's fun."

The activities should begin about 7:30 each morning and wind down about 6 each evening, Lewis said. There is no admission charge.

She expressed the committee's gratitude to the people and merchants in the community; to the Pink Ladies; to W. L. "Sunny" Edwards for use of the track meadow; to La Junta Guest Ranch for volunteering to put up out-of-town officials and to everyone who has in any way helped in the promotion of the show, in an atmosphere and climate she said has been described as the "Lake Placid of the Southwest."

Lewis said anyone wishing to volunteer their help with the show can call her at 378-4753.

YOUR

Touring Ruidoso is a very rewarding experience

To fully appreciate Ruidoso, while you're here enjoying Aspencade, take the time for a leisurely drive through the residential areas — visualizing, if you will, that building permits from January through August of 1981 are pegged in excess of $13.5 million, and that's based on an estimated construction cost of $20 per square foot — for which you'd be hard pressed to build a suitable dog house.

Your first step, prior to embarking on your exploratory drive through our mountain village, should be the Chamber of Commerce. The staff members will advise you of the various areas to drive through, and, if you have some special interest, architecturally or developmentally in mind, they can direct you.

A village map might be available at the Chamber — with the major problem with maps being, keeping up on the demand. However, even without a map, you can easily tour Ruidoso.

There is just one thing to keep in mind, being as it's relatively easy to become temporarily lost in the higher reaches of the village, is by driving down hill you'll eventually reach Highway 37 or 70, and be back on familiar terrain.

Drives through the Upper

Canyon, Black Forest, and into any of the subdivisions and residential developments will be very rewarding.

The quality of life apparent, will amaze you. You'll see homes ranging up towards the $1 million mark, and, in secluded areas, along the Rio Ruidoso, rustic cabins that the owners occupy during the summer to find surcease from the extreme temperatures encountered in Texas and Oklahoma.

All that's necessary is to take any road leading off Highway 70 or 37, and keep going. Any of these roads will take you into the mountains, and over curving and hilly stretches, with new scenic splendor abounding around every curve and over every rise.

As you make your progress, you can enjoy the diversified scenery that is the strong point of every residential development. Don't be afraid to wander off the beaten paths, because it is in the secluded reaches of the outlying developments that there's a quiet beauty — where the sense of living far from the hustle and bustle of the workaday world is readily apparent.

From the humblest of cabins, to homes of fabulous splendor, almost every conceivable type of architecture exists here. It's a mind boggling experience, touring Ruidoso's residential areas.

Take note, as you drive, of the recreational opportunities that are available — tennis courts, golf courses, parks, picnic areas — these are not readily apparent to the casual observer, but they're here, and they are all excellent facilities.

Ruidoso is one of the fastest, if not the fastest, growing recreational areas in New Mexico. This is due in part to the climate, in part to the recreation, in part to the horse races and the skiing, and in far greater measure, to the freedom to enjoy leisurely living. Not that Ruidoso is the land of "manana," but the pace here is considered leisurely — which is why living here is so attractive.

Do take the time to take a drive through our mountain village, enjoy the scenery, appreciate the locale, and, after you've viewed the area to your heart's content, you'll have a better understanding as to why so many people choose to live in Ruidoso.

Area fishing's great for tackle busting lunkers

If you want to get in on the best fishing in the Ruidoso area you don't have much time left to do so.

Although there are several good fishing areas around Ruidoso, Bonito Lake is probably the best all around. However the season ends at Bonito Lake November 30 and won't begin again until April 1 of next year.

Still, if you can make it out to the lake before the season ends you'll have a good chance of catching something.

"Bonito Lake is the best area, both in terms of the size of the fish and sheer numbers," said T. L. Wilson, owner of T. L. Wilson's Sporting Goods, "both for Rainbow trout and Cutthroats."

Rainbow trout are the most common fish you'll find at Bonito and the other fishing spots in the area. However, some brook and brown trout are also caught at Bonito Lake. The rainbows are stocked as they are in most of the other fishing spots.

Bonito Lake, located off Highway 37 15 miles from Ruidoso, is open from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m., each day. Apparently some bass have been caught in the lake but that's very rare.

"I've heard of people catching bass," Wilson said. "Friends of mine say they've caught some and the rangers say yes, but I've never seen them."

Crowds can get very large at Bonito so the best time to go fishing there is on a weekday.

Other top fishing spots in the Ruidoso area are Alto Lake, Rio Ruidoso, the Inn of the Mountain Gods Lake and Rainbow Lake.

Alto Lake is just three miles from Ruidoso on Highway 37. Like Bonito, it's open from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. The portion within 600 feet of the outlet, as posted, is closed to fishing.

However, some excellent trout, particularly Rainbow, can be caught at Alto. Some people say bass can also be taken.

The Rio Ruidoso River offers stocked Rainbow trout, Brooks and Brownies. The river flows through town and is easily reached.

Bonito Lake, Alto Lake and the Rio Ruidoso all require state fishing licenses but Rainbow Lake and the Inn of the Mountain Gods do not.

Rainbow Lake is located on Carrizo Creek Road on the way to the Inn of the Mountain Gods. It's stocked and catching fish there is almost a sure thing. Equipment is provided and you must pay 20 cents an inch for each fish you catch.

In order to fish at the Inn of the Mountain Gods you must get a tribal permit at the Inn or in Mescalero. Eagle Nest Lake, also located on the Mescalero Reservation, is open from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. The portion of the lake within 300 feet of the dam is closed to entry. Rainbows are the main type of trout caught at Eagle Nest Lake and the Inn of the Mountain Gods.

For licensed fishermen the trout and salmon daily bag limit is 16. However the daily bag may not include more than eight Rainbow, Cutthroat or salmon, singly or in the aggregate of the three.

The possession limit is 32 trout but it may not include more than 16 Rainbow, Cutthroat or salmon.

For unlicensed fishermen under the age of 12, daily bag and possession limits are one-half of the limits permitted licensed fishermen.

Salmon eggs, worms and lures are among the best types of bait a fishermen can use for fishing in Ruidoso area waters. However, fishing with live bait is against New Mexico state law.

Fishing licenses are available at several locations in the Ruidoso area.

Dining in Ruidoso can be a memorable pleasure

When it comes to dining, you're in a gourmet's paradise.

That's right, Ruidoso and area offers the greatest diversification of palate pleasing comestibles you'll come a cropper of anywhere, any time.

As you drive through the village, you'll notice the fast food eateries, the cafes and the speciality food houses — with the difference being, here, you'll encounter a friendliness from the operators and employees that you'll be hard pressed to match in other locales.

One of the main differences in food served here is that those preparing it have one goal — to please the customer. They want you to enjoy excellent food and service, so that you'll want to come back again and again, sampling the gamut of offerings available.

From a quick snack, to a meal for the family there isn't a taste choice that can't be satisfied in the local eateries.

But when it comes to leisurely dining — a whole new world of opportunities await adventuresome people.

Locating these outstanding dining establishments takes a bit of inquiry. The Chamber of Commerce is a good place to make your dining desires known — the pleasant folks there'll direct you, so that you'll have a memorable dinner.

Don't overlook chatting with the natives — you'll encounter them in the various spas. And you can't miss the natives — they look as though they're at home, and usually act like it. And the natives know where the gourmet meals are served — and will only be too happy to be of assistance. And the natives are, assuredly, most friendly.

Be forewarned, at the posh eateries money is necessary. Dinner for two will assuredly result in a tab beginning in the $20 range, or thereabouts, and from that point the bill goes up.

What's your choice? Steak? Lobster? Shrimp? Prime rib? Quail? Frog legs? You name it, you can get it — get it the way you want it.

These plush eateries offer an outstanding bar, wine lists that'll please you, and atmosphere ranging from gregarious to virtual solitude. Most offer excellent music and dancing. But all feature the finest, most unobtrusive service available anywhere.

There are two kinds of excellent eateries, those open to the public and the clubs. The clubs offer guest privileges — and if you've had experience with obtaining guest privileges, do avail yourselves of these privileges — and enjoy.

The decor of the finest eateries ranges from fantastic to fabulous. Some have beautiful fireplaces, some soft lighting, but all are decorated so as to enhance a delightful, leisurely, evening of dining.

From aperitif through post-prandial libation, you can devote as much time to dining as you desire — and enjoy the feeling that'll encompass you that you, and your party, are the only ones being served. That's the kind of service that is yours to command in Ruidoso and area.

While the right hand side of the bill of fare listings is illuminating, this shouldn't be your prime concern if you're bound for an evening of dining pleasure. Some of the prices, especially those stating in effect "Inquire," could be considered as bordering on expensive — until, that is, you're served and dig in to the repast. Then, if you savor outstanding cuisine, you'll be most appreciative.

Here, perhaps more than elsewhere, you'll find "House Specialty," as a regular notation. These offerings can range from chicken to seafood, but they are well worthy of your consideration — because they'll be a taste sensation.

Gustatory pleasures await your command — do avail yourselves of the opportunity to enjoy the finest cuisine offered anywhere, right here in the local eateries.

Not that broiled whale blubber, or stuffed grape leaves will be found in abundance — but that's being worked on.

Don't miss out on Aspencade's motorcycle action

Aspencade Motorcyclist Convention organizer Til Thompson has announced that pre-registration for the September 30-October 4 event, headquartered at the Chaparral Motor Hotel, Ruidoso Downs, exceeds 2,000.

Thompson said the schedule for the convention includes:
SEPTEMBER 30

Trade show open to the public beginning at 6 p.m.

OCTOBER 4

New this year is the Superbike Grand Prix, of which Thompson said, "This is the first annual Superbike Grand Prix and possibly the last."

The Superbikes, small machines with oversized tires, will be performing in trials Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, with the finals Saturday. First, second and third prizes include a pair of Goodyear tires, a trophy and helmet from Bell Helmet Corporation and a case of oil from Bel-Ray Company, Thompson said.

The Aspencade Climb, up 900 foot Boot Hill at Eagle Creek Ski and Recreation Area, is a first for the motorcycle convention.

"If successful," Thompson said, "I hope to make this climb an annual event."

The stock classes include up to 250 cc and 251 cc to 372 cc.

In modified classes, for semi-pro, the classes are 373 cc to 500 cc; 501 cc to 740 cc and 751 cc to open. Cash prizes in this event will be $500 in each class, divided 50, 30 and 20 percent.

Admission to the hill climb is $3 per person, with children under five years old admitted free.

Thompson said there will be a $5 daily spectator fee charged for all events in the parking lot at the Chaparral.

THE SUPERBIKE GRAND PRIX, Saturday at the Chaparral Motor Hotel in Ruidoso Downs, will pit elimination trial winners in a final race, with prizes for first, second and third. "This will be our first, and probably our last, Superbike race," said Til Thompson, organizer of the Aspencade Motorcycle Convention, "though you never can tell, as all proceeds will be given to Muscular Dystrophy."
