DRIVE FRIDAY AT HOSPITAL

Seek blood donors

A blood drive is being conducted Friday at Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital, with the Pink Ladies (Hospital Auxiliary) as sponsors.

"We need your blood," said Mabel Johnson, drive chairman for the Pink Ladies.

Blood will be collected Friday from 9 a.m. - 6 p.m.

Appointments for a specific time to be a donor may be made by calling 257-4831 after 3 p.m., daily through Thursday, and also until 11 each night, Johnson said.

Blood services, El Paso, Texas, will be conducting the drive.

Blood collected in this drive, as in others conducted by Blood Services, is processed for the use of hospitals in southern New Mexico and parts of Texas.

"Our hospital," Johnson said, "receives blood from Blood Services. This is one of the reasons the Pink Ladies cooperate with these drives, because one of our purposes is to help the hospital in every way possible."

Johnson said that some of the ways in which donated blood is used include:

—Red cells may be administered to an open heart surgery patient or transfused to a newborn baby with Rh disease, or used in the treatment of an extremely anemic elderly person.

—People suffering from hemophilia, a bleeding disease, need the antihemophilic factor to help their blood clot.

—Leukemia patients, usually small children and young adults, need blood to help prevent uncontrollable bleeding while they are undergoing treatment.

—Plasma is often used to treat burn patients and accident victims with acute blood loss.

—When ordered by doctors for patients needing blood.

"Our goal is more than 100 pints this drive," Johnson said. "We've always had a good response, but we'd like to set a record during this one."

'Fun Day in Park' set Sunday

Sunday, October 25, 2 p.m., in School House Park, is the date set aside for Ruidoso's annual Fun Day in The Park, a Chamber of Commerce sponsored family type event designed to give the community an opportunity for its traditional fall wind down, Ed Jungbluth, Chamber of Commerce executive director, said Friday.

The beard growing contest was called off this year for lack of interest, Jungbluth said, but there will be "games for all ages — zero to sixty, hot dogs, soft drinks and some good middle-of-the-road and Dixieland music for folks to listen to."

Games for the kids will include tag, sack and three-legged races with ribbons for the winners, and a tug-of-war and egg throwing contest for adults, Jungbluth said.

"We will also have 1,000 hot dogs at 25 cents each, for everyone to cook their own over fireplaces that will be ready for use throughout the afternoon," Jungbluth said.

"The Jazercise people will be on hand, too, to give a demonstration for everyone's enjoyment," he said.

"It should be a super afternoon," Jungbluth said.

Weather stops heart fund balloon rides

Saturday's Rock 'n Roll Jamboree at the Ruidoso Care Center, to benefit the American Heart Association, was successful, though the weatherman didn't cooperate. Center officials will announce the amount of money raised later this week.

The Jamboree, sponsored by the Ruidoso Care Center Auxiliary, featured Care Center residents rocking in rocking chairs and rolling in wheel chairs from 9 a.m.-noon.

The event was kicked off with a rather disappointing start when the hot air balloon rides had to be cancelled because of strong winds. Rides were to be offered from 6-9 a.m., at $5 per ride.

Jaycee volunteers were on hand to help launch the balloon, but when it was fully extended, "the top was whipping around real bad," according to some of the Jaycee members.

However, those showing up for balloon rides stuck around the Care Center to spend money on the Altrusa bake sale and listen to musical entertainment, arranged by Teddi Sullivan of the Inn of the Mountain Gods.

Roger Cobeil first entertained residents and spectators with some folk tunes, ballad and some 40's tunes on acoustic guitar. Other entertainment for the morning included Carleen Wadley, Christian School teacher, Ray Reed, entertainer, Joey Carmon, entertainer from El Paso, Texas, Mary Lou Brown, a nurse at Ruidoso-Hondo Valley hospital and Teddi Sullivan, local entertainer.

"The residents are doing much to bridge the generation and communication gap both at the Center and in the community," said Ruth Gardner, social care director. "This event provided a richer experience and the residents are pleased to donate time to the center and the community. I really appreciated the community showing their love Saturday."

C-C launches plan to honor area pioneers

Chamber of Commerce president, Richard Sandoval, Friday told members of a committee he is organizing, "It is one of my goals during my term to find some way of honoring pioneers of Lincoln County who have contributed to the growth of this community (Ruidoso)."

"It is one of the areas the Chamber has been lacking in," Sandoval said.

Committee members, Billie Jim

Tully, George White and Emma Redman, who was not at the meeting, and two other members yet to be named, will establish the criteria for the honor, to help Sandoval single out persons to be honored and will "find some way of honoring them."

Sandoval said anyone in the community knowing someone who might qualify for the honor can contact the Chamber of Commerce 666 Sudderth Drive, 257-7395.

County commissioners meet Tuesday

The Lincoln County commissioners will meet Tuesday, at 10 a.m., in chambers in the courthouse in Carrizozo.

Agenda items include:
— Opening of bids on overhauling a Trane compressor, and on Workmen's Compensation Insurance.
— Loma Grande Estates roads, a petition to close County Road F-407, and a request for increase in road maintenance support from Alto Village.

Three fined for hunting on reservation

Three local men were arrested on the Mesalero Apache Reservation October 11 on charges of illegal hunting.

Wayne Rupe and Scot Chapman, Ruidoso, and Ken Beasley, Alto, were each fined $200 on the charges in Federal District Court, Alamogordo.

The three were arrested following a helicopter surveillance flight over the area the men were hunting in, conducted by federally commissioned Tribal Conservation Officers.

Cardiac Life Support class scheduled here

An advanced Cardiac Life Support class will be presented November 20-22, at Ruidoso's Holiday Inn, sponsored by the American Heart Association and Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital.

"This class," coordinator Judy Tyson, R.N., said, "is for area physicians, nurses and paramedics."

"The purpose is to teach emergency skills, for first line action to patients in an emergency situation."

All persons completing the course, Tyson said, will be certified in advanced Cardiac Life Support. "Certified personnel," she said, "will be able to assist, as needed, in the new intensive care unit at the Ruidoso hospital."

Fees for the course will be $100 for physicians, $50 for nurses and $25 for paramedics," she said.

Information is available from Tyson by calling 257-7381.

Chamber issuing new logos

Chamber of Commerce pins, sporting a brand new logo designed by Bob Yeager of Ruidoso, which depicts Ruidoso as a resort area for horse racing and skiing enthusiasts, are available for purchase to all Chamber members, Ed Jungbluth, Chamber of Commerce executive director, said Friday.

Wednesday Coffee Cart

The Wednesday Coffee Cart, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce so the public can meet Chamber officers and directors, will be from 9-10:30 a.m., at:

Ghost town's past arouses interest for youth's research grant project

A VIEW FROM the northwest of White Oaks as it was during its boom years shows several homes and businesses which no longer exist. (Photo courtesy of Don Ward's collection)

by Jean Patterson

TODAY'S REMINDER OF yesterday. This shed has fallen into disrepair adding to White Oak's air of abandonment.

Most historians are pictured as rather aging, professor-type men with balding heads and horn-rimmed glasses. But that image doesn't quite fit the man who is researching the history of White Oaks, a ghost town 10 miles northeast of Carrizozo.

Don Ward, an 18-year-old man from Carrizozo, developed his interest in the old ghost town over the past eight years he has lived in the area. This interest lead him to apply and receive a youth grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

His project began in May, with the intent to research and document the history of White Oaks in writing and with pictures. Target date for completion was August, but Don received a two month extension and will submit his report at the end of this month.

Although Don was born in California and lived there until he was 10 years old, the Ward family roots lie in White Oaks and Carrizozo.

"It was from my own interest to write a book about the town. I got the idea from my own curiosity of a ghost town and from my family's past," Don said.

After receiving the grant, Don began his project by interviewing some of the local people whose roots were also in White Oaks and requested any old photographs that people in the area might have.

He first sent out questionnaires to past White Oak citizens and families with a 40 percent return.

"I've gathered information from personal collections, the Museum of New Mexico, the State Library and the University of New Mexico Library," Don said. In his gathering endeavors, Don has had to travel to various parts of the state, as far away as Santa Fe.

Though there are a few families still living in White Oaks, most of the people, buildings and businesses are gone, with only a few remnants remaining, such as abandoned houses, a standing adobe wall or a broken-down fence that used to surround someone's home.

In August of 1879, gold was discovered in the hills surrounding White Oaks. That was the beginning of White Oak's growth surge, according to Don's research. Following the typical boom town pattern, White Oaks began to attract people from all over. Don said there were Jewish, Spanish and Chinese people, along with former criminals and just those looking for a way to make some fast money.

A walk through the local cemetery tells many stories of the families that were the mainstay of the town, however. For example, John Hewitt moved to White Oaks when he was 44 years old. A respected lawyer, he decided he liked White Oaks and remained there until he died at 94.

"My aunt had scarlet fever when she was a little girl and old John Hewitt got down on his knees and prayed the Lord would take him instead of my aunt," Don said.

As he walked through the cemetery, Don spoke of many of the people buried there as if he had known them personally.

He spoke of the Wild Cat boys, Allen Lane, Edward Queen and Dave Jackson. All three were men who saw White Oaks grow into a boom town and also witnessed its downfall.

"People and fire killed White Oaks," Don said. To help service the growing community and to supply power to the mining work, Queen built a large water power plant that served the Carrizozo area with lines taking the water as far away as Nogal. However, fire eventually destroyed the plant.

Following that incident, the town made an agreement with the railroad to pay $50,000 and give 40 acres of land to bring the railroad line into White Oaks. "It was White Oaks savior. It would give new life to the community to transport the minerals mined," Don said.

But when the railroad demanded more, the community decided against it, so the railroad never came through, Don said. Soon afterward saw the migration of people away from White Oaks, setting the scene for its present ghost town status.

After his project is published, Don wants to put together a book on the area. He is partly finished with it and says it will be a historical novel, with facts. "There won't be too many flashbacks," he said. Don is writing it in the order of how the town grew, then died.

When Don first started his project he said his brothers were "real freaked" but now he says his whole family is really pleased.

"Especially the old people are pleased. They're real glad to know a young person is interested in the past. I guess it enlightens them," Don said.

"I've learned so much when I talk to these people. Sometimes when they're telling me something and they come to a blank spot on a name or something, I'll fill it in."

With this project nearly out of the way, Don now has to think about future plans. He is considering attending college, but hasn't really decided. He has many other interests besides the history of White Oaks. He belongs to a motorcycle club in Alamogordo and enjoys riding dirt bikes. He also likes working with cars and considers himself somewhat of a mechanic. He also has worked for a man who remodels houses. One dream is to buy an old house in White Oaks and remodel it for himself. Then he expects to see the town grow back into the thriving community it once was.

"I practically lived back in time for the past summer ... so much, I feel like I know everybody that lived in White Oaks decades ago."

"It has been important to gather all of this information and put it all down for everyone to enjoy, but most of all, to save it before it's lost."

DON WARD took a look at the past and researched White Oaks as it once existed. He designed and made the sign post (pictured) which stands at the main intersection in town, reminding visitors of the once thriving community.

PRESENT-DAY view of White Oaks shows the schoolhouse which, although no longer used for school, is still used for family reunions and other activities.

A GAPING WINDOW adds a ghostly touch to an empty house that stands on the hill in White Oaks.

FATHER BERNARD "BARNEY" BISSONNETTE

New priest at St. Eleanor's

New to St. Eleanor's Catholic Church and to Ruidoso is Father Bernard "Barney" Bissonnette.

Recently arrived from St. Bernadette's parish in Albuquerque, Bissonnette is actually a native of Putnam, Connecticut. He studied at St. Thomas in Bloomfield, Connecticut, and then studied the theology at Christ the King Seminary at St.

Benavente's in New York. Besides his Bachelor's Degree, Fr. Bissonnette also has what equals a Master's Degree in Psychology from Highland's University in Las Vegas, New Mexico.

His first contact with New Mexico was in 1962 when he visited here on vacation. "I returned in 1964 to the Archdiocese of Santa Fe," he said.

Bissonnette was an assistant at St. Ann's as well as administrator of two missions there.

In 1968, he was assigned as administrator to the Estancia Valley, headquartered in Mountainair where he also served at St. Alice's parish. He then took a sabbatical leave of absence in 1972 to work on his Master's.

"While I was there (at Highlands) I was assigned as the Newman chaplain for the University," Bissonnette said. In 1976, he was appointed chaplain to the New Mexico Boys School in Springer.

Following that assignment, he made his move to St. Bernadette's and now to Ruidoso.

"I was ordained in 1958 and served in three parishes in Connecticut as assistants," he said.

Although Bissonnette has never been to Ruidoso before his September 15 appointment, he says so far he likes it "fine."

A reception honoring the new pastor at St. Eleanor's is planned immediately following the 10 a.m. Mass October 25 in the Parish Hall. Office hours for Bissonnette are 9 a.m. to noon Wednesdays-Saturdays. Afternoon and evening hours may be arranged by appointment. The parish phone number is 257-2330.

the conference were Kathy Barnett, Ruidoso club president, Barbara Duff, Nijla Sluder and Coni Foster. Duff was elected District 10 AI Resolutions Committee chairman.

In her new official capacity, Deyo will attend three AI training workshops in April, will conduct one Colorado workshop herself and will make official visits to Colorado clubs, she said Thursday.

Care Center eyeing van purchase

The Ruidoso Care Center Auxiliary is considering the purchase of a van, to serve Center residents.

At Thursday night's meeting of the Auxiliary, Ruth Gardner, social care director, presented a possible plan to apply, through the government, to purchase surplus vehicles from Ft. Bliss Military Base in El Paso, Texas. If the center auxiliary can establish themselves as a non-profit organization with a tax-exempt number, they might be able to purchase a van.

"Using our own vehicles to transport the residents is a sticky situation," said one auxiliary member. It is possible that through the surplus plan, the government would also take care of managing the van, including paying for gasoline.

Toni Scarbrough, assistant social care director, then presented an idea of the auxiliary of opening a small store to supply personal items the residents often request, such as cigarettes, candy and toiletries. If a tax-exempt number can be obtained by the auxiliary, they would be able to stock the store for the residents and make some profit to go towards other things the residents need.

"The residents could go shopping for themselves. That would be great," said Betty Mills, Care Center administrator. She was pointing out that many residents enjoy shopping for themselves, but really don't have any way to do that.

"Auxiliary members can come in and man it," said one member. The group then decided to draw up a list of potential items and establish times the store would be opened.

In other business new board members and officers were elected. Charlie Spooner is president, with Romeo Kline serving as vice-president. Nancy Wallizer was assigned duties as secretary and Tony Apodaca was voted treasurer by acclamation.

The auxiliary will be collecting old and broken toys for the men at Camp Sierra Blanca to repair for children at Fort Stanton for Christmas. For more information, contact Hopi Gutierrez at Ft. Stanton Training School, 354-2211.

The next auxiliary meeting is scheduled for November 19 at 7 p.m., at the Ruidoso Care Center. Anyone is welcome to attend.

Bill Martin, former lead guitarist with Little Jimmy Dickens and a Grand Ole Opry performer, will share in music and testimony.

Concert set in Roswell

The Thouvenel String Quartet will appear in a free concert at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, Fifth and Pennsylvania in Roswell, October 22 at 7:30 p.m., the Reverend Harland B. Birdwell, rector, has announced.

Selected by the Hi Fidelity/Musical America Magazine as the March 1981 "Musicians of the Month," the Thouvenel Quartet has received international acclaim for their series of four concerts in New York's Carnegie Recital Hall last season. Their performances of Schubert, Krenek and Beethoven were praised not only by major critics of the New York Times and the New York Post, but also by the influential European publication, the Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung.

Recent honors also include an invitation to perform four concerts at the Vienna Festival in June of 1982; consortium grant to premiere a new quartet by Mel Powell and to perform several times the new quartets of Elliott Carter and Milton Babbitt; and a Texas Arts Council Grant to give concerts throughout Texas. The Thouvenel will also be performing on the Baltimore Chamber Society Series and the Goodman House in New York early next year. Their first recordings are to be released in Austria in June, 1982, on a major European label.

SPORTS

Around Sports

with Gary Brown

While the baseball playoffs and pro and college football are currently dominating national sports action, another sport is quietly slipping onto the scene.

It's basketball no less!

The professional variety of the sport has already started with exhibition games being played. College and high school basketball begins in earnest in early December.

I prefer the style of basketball generally played by most colleges and high schools rather than that played by the National Basketball Association. The NBA style is controlled by the 24-second clock, thus continuous fast breaks are a necessity if a team is to score before its opponent gets the ball. College and high school ball is usually more controlled and you can watch a play develop easier.

The assembly of talent in the NBA is awesome. In fact, pro basketball players are probably better all around athletes than baseball or football players. The speed, quickness, jumping ability, balance and sheer size needed to play pro basketball is a tribute to the talent of the players.

However, the average fans can lose touch with the game when it is played at such a rapid pace. The most exciting basketball games are those where a team is down by one or two points with less than a minute left and the fans watch it work the ball into position for a shot. In the pro game fans hardly have time to watch the players work around for a shot because the clock is running down.

If the team doesn't get the ball off in 24 seconds and there's only half a minute left in the contest the other club receives the ball and can run the clock out.

While college teams can also run the clock out there is more time for something to happen. Also, because college players are not as expert in the art of the game, mistakes are more prone to happen. Sometimes mistakes can add to the excitement of a sporting contest. This is particularly true in a sport like basketball where the action is closer to the fan and he can view more of it.

I'd like to see a 35-second clock put into the NBA rulebook. It would keep the game from developing into something resembling a supersonic jet race and still give the players a chance to display their outstanding talents.

One of the more interesting controversies of the current National Football League seasons is the one regarding ABC-TV's decision not to show films of San Francisco's 45-14 upset over Dallas on the Monday Night Football halftime show.

49er head coach Bill Walsh was upset over the fact his team's victory was not shown on the reruns while other, less surprising games were shown.

I can understand Walsh being bitter about his team's exclusion, particularly because the 49ers don't play any Monday night games this season. However, what did Walsh really expect?

The networks bosses were apparently afraid that showing the Dallas-49er game would discourage viewers from watching last night's Ram-Cowboy game. Ratings are like a second religion to the networks so it's only natural that they might decide not to show reruns that could lower their audience following.

Television is a big business and nothing else. The networks and sponsors are in it to make money.

Besides Walsh still has his big victory, the 49ers' biggest in at least nine years. That's a lot more important than any highlight rerun.

After all I've always thought that, aside from the game itself, the Monday Night Football show is just for laughs. Although a lot of people might differ with me on this I think Howard Cosell and "Dandy Don" Meredith rate about a B-plus as comedians.

Tularosa hands Ruidoso first defeat

Two big plays and a loss of intensity. That's the way Ruidoso High School varsity football coach Darrel Stierwalt described his team's 13-0 defeat at the hands of host Tularosa Friday night, the first time the Warriors have been on the losing side of the scoreboard this season.

"We just had too many breakdowns," Stierwalt said. "We had our chances in the first half but we weren't intense enough. They (Tularosa) just seemed like they wanted it more."

The hosts scored their two touchdowns within a three minute span during the third quarter. The first came on a 70 yard drive that was aided by a face mask penalty against Ruidoso.

Twice the Wildcats connected on fourth down plays in the drive. The first came on a sideline pass which netted 20 yards. Ruidoso's Byron Wright made a touchdown-saving tackle at the 26. Three plays later, with fourth and 11 at the 27 the Wildcats connected on what proved to be the game winning play.

Quarterback Chris Cerny took the center hike and pitched out to halfback Mike Chavez. Chavez rolled to his right and fired the ball to end Randy Silva behind two Warrior defenders in the end zone. The extra point kick was wide and Ruidoso trailed 6-0 with 7:32 left in the period.

Ruidoso failed to gain a first down on its next series and was forced to punt. Greg Silva took the punt at his own 20 and broke several tackles around the 30 before breaking to his right and going all the way for a score. This time Sam Lueras's extra point kick was good and Tularosa had its final margin of 13-0.

The Warriors could not get a good drive together for the rest of the game and suffered a costly injury with less than four minutes remaining in the contest when star tailback Scott Neal suffered a severe ankle sprain. Neal is doubtful for Friday's home game with Deming.

Ruidoso had a chance to take control of the game in the first half, twice driving inside the Wildcat 20 but giving the ball up on downs.

The first time came near the end of the first quarter when the Warriors got the ball on Tularosa's 46 after a poor punt.

Neal got three yards and then fullback Chris Lopez banged 11 yards for a first down at the Tularosa 32. Quarterback Billy Woodul then hit Don Nunley for 14 yards to the Wildcat 18 and the Warriors appeared to be rolling.

However, Lopez was held to two yards on a running play and three straight passes fell incomplete so Tularosa took the ball over.

Ruidoso started its next drive on its following series at the Warrior 28. A 15 yard facemask penalty on Tularosa and a couple of fine runs by Neal brought the ball to the Tularosa 35.

On third down Woodul hit Darin Smith on a short pass and the split end got to the Tularosa 25 for a first down. Lopez ran for six more yards to the 20 but then the Wildcat's defense stiffened.

On second down Lopez gained two yards to the 18 and then Woodul gained two more to the 16. But a third running play fell short and the Warriors saw their last good scoring opportunity go down the drain.

The Warriors' longest gain of the night came on the last play of the half when Lopez sprinted 30 yards around left end to the Tularosa 15. However time ran out before Ruidoso could get another play.

Despite the defeat the Warriors had a decided edge in the statistical department. Ruidoso gained 180 yards total offense to just 83 for the winners. The Warriors picked up 126 yards on the ground (Lopez getting 65 of them) while the hosts were held to 26. Woodul completed eight of 17 passes for 54 yards, Smith was on the receiving end of three of Woodul's passes.

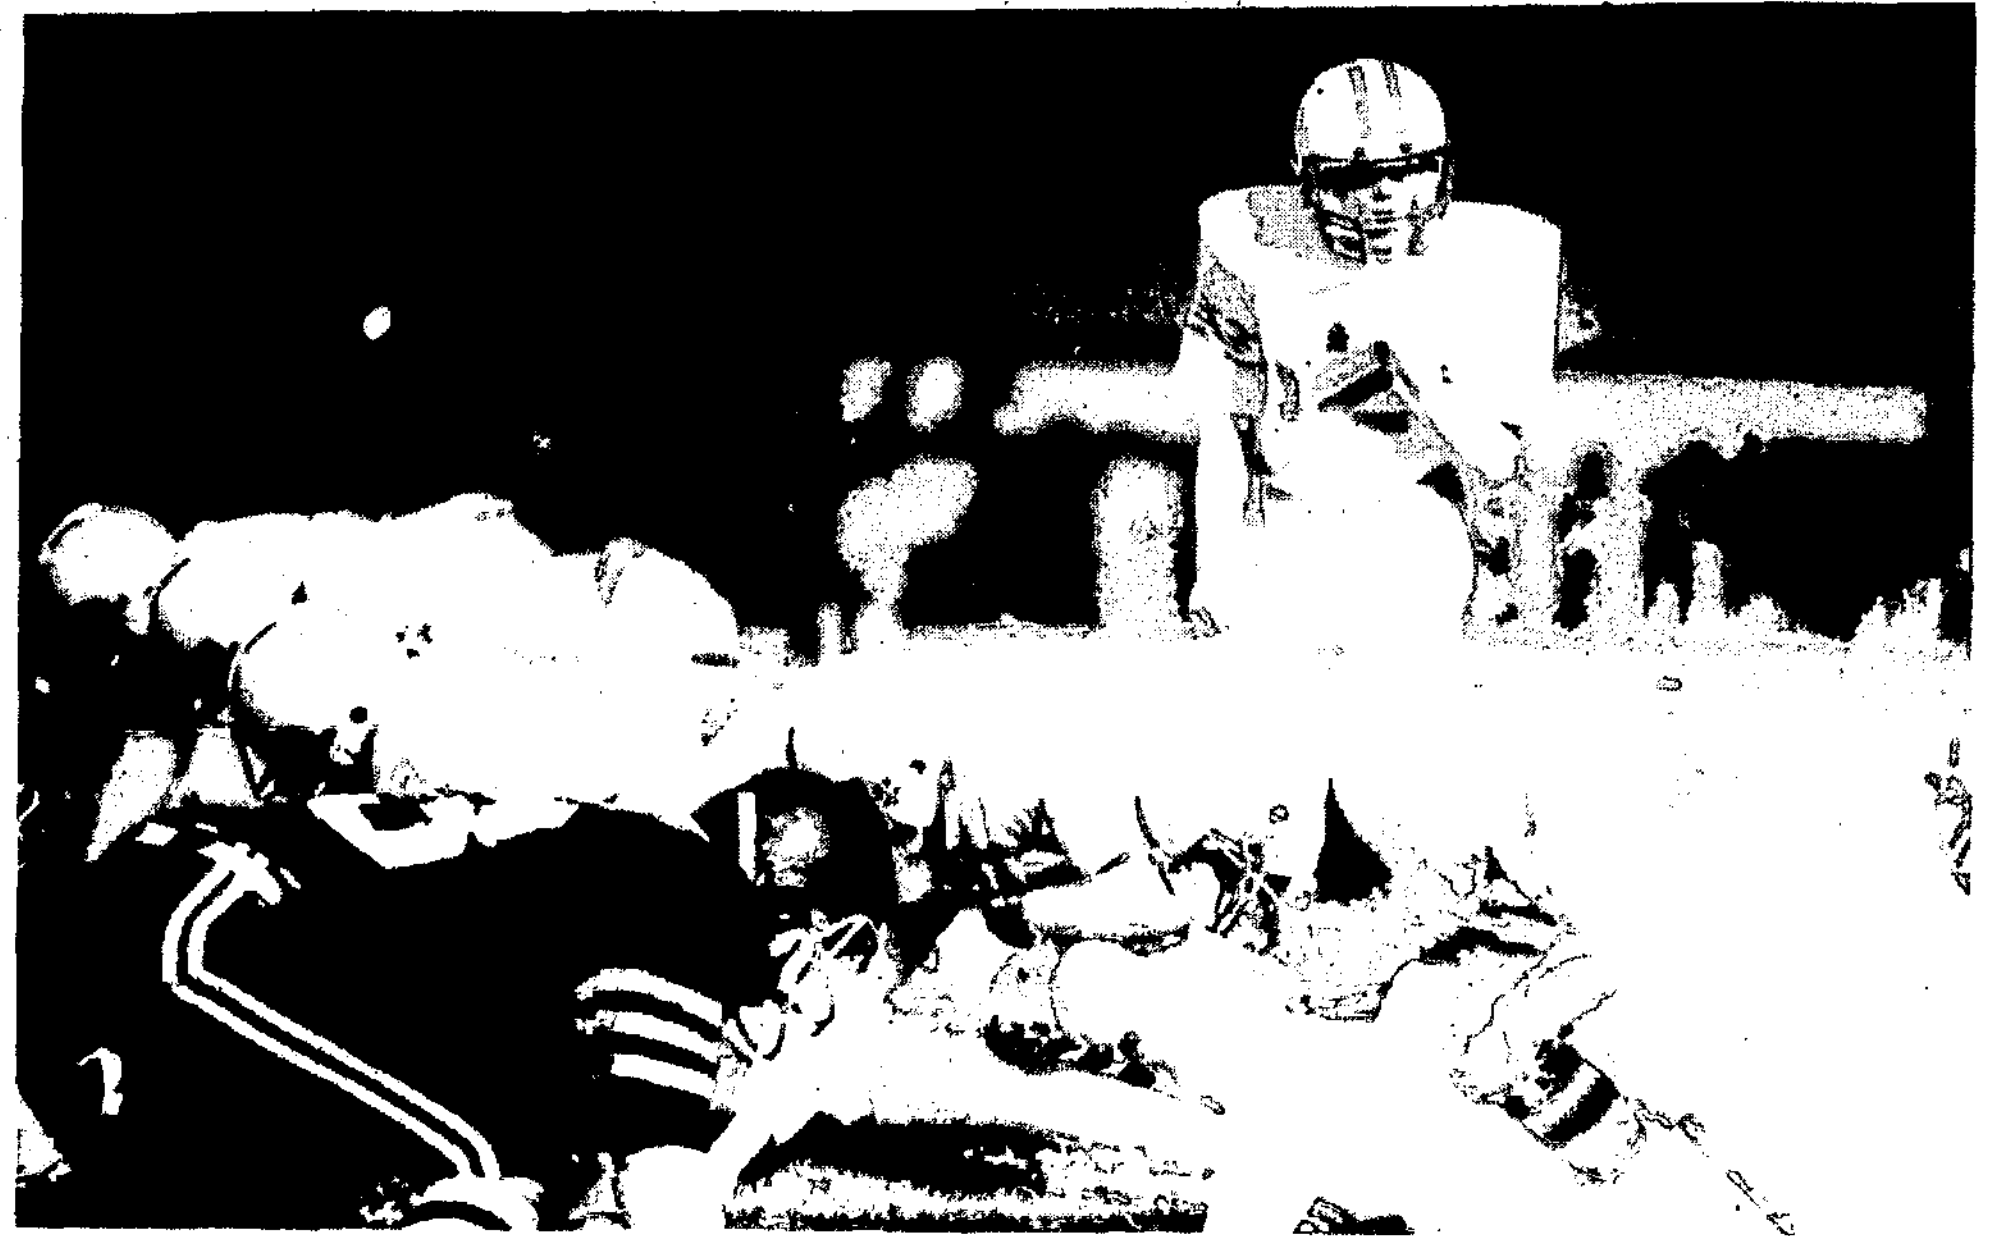

"They were a lot better than they looked in the films," said Stierwalt. "They showed lots of speed against us and their coach (Bob Cerny) really got them up for us."

"Actually our defense played a pretty good game. We played with a lot of guys banged up with minor injuries and it hurt us."

Despite the loss Stierwalt remained optimistic.

"The rest of our games are home," he said. "If we win them we've got a chance at the district title. It's a wide-open race."

NOTES — In other district 3-AAA games Friday night defending champion Silver City crushed Deming 39-7 and T or C downed Coble 25-19.

RUIDOSO QUARTERBACK Billy Woodul calls signals at the line of scrimmage in Friday night's game with host Tularosa. Woodul completed eight of 17 passes for 54 yards against the tough Wildcat defense. Tularosa upset the Warriors 13-0. It was Ruidoso's first loss of the season.

Soccer results

The Tornados and United battled to a 2-2 draw in Ruidoso-Sertoma youth under-12 soccer action Saturday at White Mountain Middle School.

In other under-12 action the Strikers blanked the Rowdies 5-0 and the Warriors nipped the Scorpions 2-1.

Under-eight action saw the Cobras rout the Celtic 12-0 and the Bandits edge United 2-1.

There are two more Saturdays of regular-season play before the playoffs begin November 7.

Roswell edges Warrior junior varsity

Despite another good effort, Ruidoso High School's junior varsity football team fell to visiting Roswell 12-6 Thursday night.

Ruidoso, now 2-1, had battled Roswell to a 0-0 tie in the second game of the season at the latter's field but was unable to duplicate that feat this time around.

"We just didn't play as well as we did last week in our win (28-20) over Goddard," said Ruidoso coach Jim Ramsey. "Our defense didn't play well and offensively we had receivers open but couldn't hit them."

The visitors built up a 12-0 advantage in the first half but the Warriors came back to score midway through the third quarter.

Ruidoso drove 50 yards with quarterback Cyrus Simmons culminating the drive on a 20 yard touchdown pass to end Mike Douglas. Simmons, operating out of the wishbone, ran well with the ball during the drive as did halfback Robert Sanchez. Sanchez has been out with a sprained wrist prior to the game.

The Warriors threatened to score a couple more times during the game but were unable to punch the ball in.

"We would just get bogged down," said Ramsey of his team's inability to score.

"And our defense played its worst game of the season. We missed tackles quite a few times."

Ramsey did praise the play of Douglas, Sanchez and Scott Ciraulo and noted that things could have been better for the Warriors.

"We just didn't get enough breaks," he said. "Our offense ran the ball fairly well and we blocked well but not enough to overcome the breaks."

Ruidoso's ninth-graders will host the Alamogordo Middle School eighth-graders at 6 p.m., Thursday. Alamogordo is a 4-A level school.

"They'll have about 50 guys to our 15," Ramsey said. "Plus they'll be a lot bigger than us. I have one ninth-grader who weighs around 160 pounds. pounds. The rest only weigh around 105-110 pounds."

Reserve edges

Capitan

In a battle of undefeated A class teams Reserve edged host Capitan 20-13 Friday night.

Reserve, which had been unscored upon entering the game, is now 7-0. Capitan is 6-1.

Lonnie Spooner ran 85 yards with the opening kickoff to give Reserve a 7-0 advantage. However, John Wolfe came back on a one yard run to tie the score for Capitan. The teams traded touchdowns on an 11 yard run by Reserve's Mario Zuniga and a 46 yard run by Wolfe. Tom Burbridge made the game's final tally on a one yard plunge to give Reserve a 20-13 advantage, with nine minutes remaining.

Deming topples Warrior spikers

Ruidoso High School girls' volleyball team took another tough loss Saturday afternoon when it fell to visiting Deming in three sets.

The Warriors, now 1-4 in 3-AAA district action, took the first set 15-10 but the visitors came back to win the second set easily 15-5. The third set saw both teams battle evenly through the early going.

However, Deming scored four straight points to break a 5-5 tie and take a 9-5 advantage. The Warriors came back with three straight points of their own to narrow the margin to 9-8. But the visitors then reeled off six straight points to win the match 15-9.

"What can I say?" said Warrior coach Sergio Castanon. "I'm beginning to sound like a broken record. We're playing good ball. I don't know if it's lack of concentration or what."

Castanon praised the play of Laurie Morel.

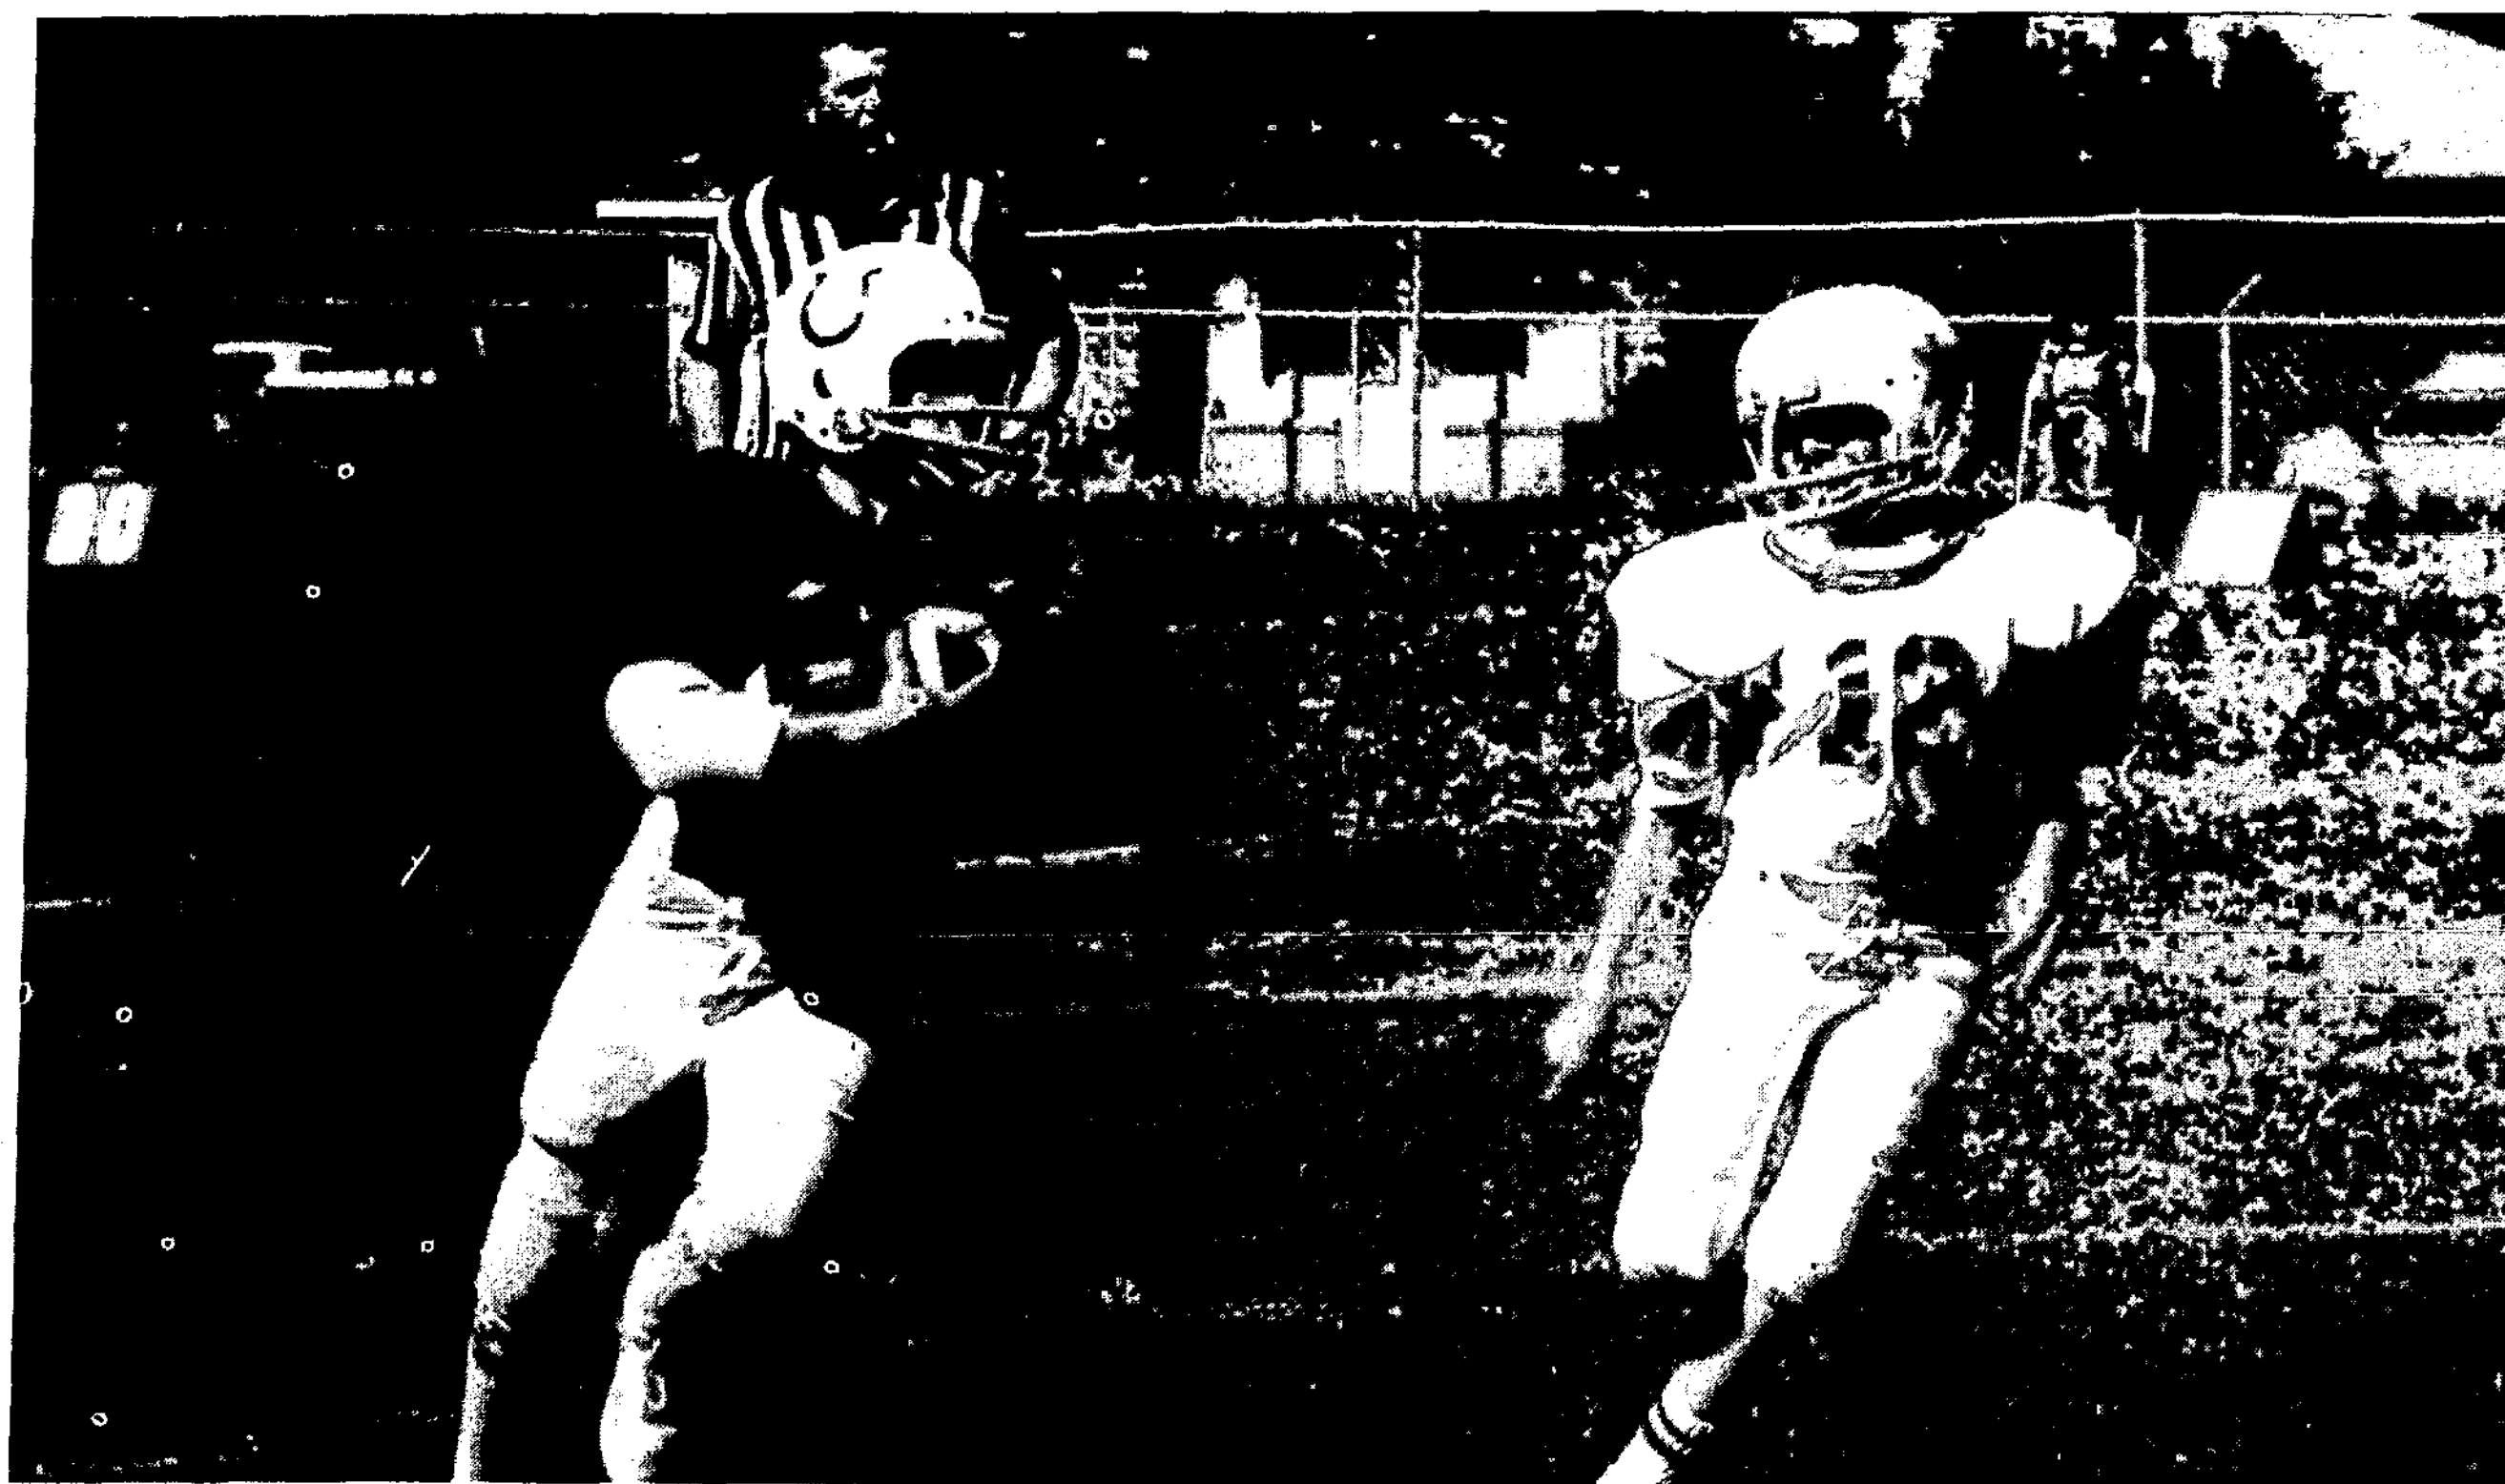

"Laurie has been playing consistently good for us lately," he said. She's been a consistent server and has also been setting up well. In fact, most of the girls are playing well. The problem is they don't all play well at the same time."

Deming is ranked second in the district and has been the only team to defeat leader Tularosa.

Ruidoso's junior varsity fell in two matches by the identical score of 15-9. The junior Warriors are winless in district action.

Saturday Ruidoso travels to T or C for a 1 p.m. doubleheader. The junior varsity will play first with the varsity following.

JEFF WILLINGHAM (LEFT) of the Colts rambles for yardage against the Cowboys in a Little League 10-12 year old football game Saturday afternoon at Ruidoso High School. The Colts defeated the Cowboys 24-0 and will meet the Steelers for the title next Saturday. The Steelers shutout the Broncos 12-0 in the other semi-final game as Brian Davis scored both touchdowns. The Hornets and Lions fought to a 0-0 tie in the eight nine year old game.

I-n-s-i-d-e the Outdoors

by Gary Dollahan

Our Southeast Area Game and Fish Officers just recently completed a meeting in which a program was given concerning a problem that often arises this time of year—Search and Rescue missions.

Fortunately though, the problem is no longer the compound one that it used to be. That is, no longer can half of the headaches involved with lost or missing person cases be contributed to the search and rescue mission itself.

Search and rescue efforts have evolved during the last couple of years from unorganized, haphazard operations to rather well organized, well planned missions.

A great deal of this evolution can be contributed to the creation of a Search and Rescue Resource Officer position about a year ago within the ranks of the New Mexico State Police. This position is now occupied by Bill Vargas, who has recently retired from the United States Air Force, Kirtland Air Force Base, as a Search and Rescue Commandant.

The expertise and leadership provided by Vargas, along with that of various law enforcement agencies and volunteer search and rescue teams, has led to the development of a State Search and Rescue Plan in order to minimize difficulties in organizing and executing search and rescue missions.

Nevertheless, the real problem is the fact that too often the need exists for these missions. In other words, most of these missions could be eliminated if people were just a little better educated, a little better prepared when going into the out-of-doors.

In an effort to help reduce the number of lost or missing persons, the New Mexico State Police have recognized some basic needs and knowledge of outdoorsmen as compiled by the New Mexico Emergency Services Council and by Gene Fear of the Survival Education Association.

1. Leave trip information with relatives, friends or a responsible party: Where you're going and when you're returning; names and addresses of people going; vehicle—license—type and color.

2. Stick with trip plan and schedule (or notify responsible party of change).

3. Don't go alone or solo. A party of at least four is recommended.

4. Pre-plan your route carefully. Use topographic or Forest Service maps.

5. Get a weather report of the trip area. Call the United States Weather Service and check with locals.

6. Go properly clothed and equipped for the season and for unexpected weather.

7. Carry the "10" essentials and know how to use them: extra clothing, extra food, sunglasses, flashlight, first-aid kit, matches, fire starter, map, compass and knife.

8. If you get lost, stay put and build a safe fire for signal.

Four demands must be met regardless of the cost in material things or energy expenditure. These are:

1. You must recognize a challenge or a threat against your life.

2. You must react to the body's problem indicator.

3. You must ascertain the priorities needed to maintain life.

4. You must combat the body's enemies that threaten life.

Some recommendations for a personal survival kit include:

Can—one pint liquid can with top cut out and cleaned well. Lid can be made from plastic and sealed with several wraps of electrical tape.

Candle—one-half of Christmas candle or plumber's candle will help kindle a fire or heat water. Put in plastic bag.

Matches—penny box of strike anywhere matches. Waterproof in plastic bag.

The Snow Birds Have Arrived

On October thirteen it was a day like summer, with a clear blue sky above and warm sunshine setting the mountain world aglow with the gold of the fields and pink and lilac overcast of the hills and canyons.

The west wind was blowing, singing down the valley a song of fairest weather. Then came a sudden lull in the wind, and the world seemed to pause and get its breath, to bask more deeply in the mellow warmth.

Then a little grey bird with a brown vest came gliding out of the north, and with a flash of white tail feathers settled into the cedar tree in the yard.

He had taken advantage of the pause in the west wind, to finish the last stage of his journey down from Alaska.

With a glance at the house, he settled to rest amidst the olive green fragrant branches that had welcomed him and the rest of his clan through the years.

With a chirp or two of greeting, he then flew down to the nearest meadow and began drinking. He would dip his bill into the miniature lake set in stone, making spreading circles glistening in the sun. Then he would throw back his head to swallow down his drink, and stand looking all around as if trying to find someone to thank for such pure refreshment. Again and again he drank of the water seeming to realize that the water there was put there especially for him. Then he flew back into his tree and began singing a note or two of his "Song of the Approaching Snow."

A Faithful Messenger

For who knows how long, the Snow Bird has brought us the news that snow is on the way.

On the radio and T.V. now days we hear that the snow is falling heavily in Idaho and Montana. Then we hear it has reached the Colorado Rockies, and then the northern reaches of the state.

Time was, before radio, T.V., telephone, telegraph or mail, that the snow bird was the only messenger of the snow. And this little scout brought the news, faithful to the trust of his race, handed down through the years and the ages year after year.

He had taken his time traveling just ahead of the snow, feeding at a hundred or more homes along the way or in the fields of ripening wild grain, berries, or wild cherries or grapes. Sure of his route of travel and of his welcome along the way, he makes his glad journey, to be joined later by his companions.

The North Wind Suddenly Moves In

So sure enough, today on the fifteenth, after a still sunny morning, without the slightest warning, all the trees bent to the south, as a cold blast charged out of the north, straight off the snowy peaks of the Rocky Mountains. Riding on this gale came a little band of Snow Birds who landed chirping and cheeping, as if laughing in glee at having arrived at a favorite spot to spend the fall, the Indian Summer and the winter.

The north wind, feeling cold, after such mild days, pulled clouds in from the south. They came sailing over Storm Mountain, casting many a moving shadow all in the vale. Over the west mountain, a heavy cloud advanced and then hung, hovering, lead gray, waiting for the signal to move in.

All across the sky, there stretched a cloud carpet all the way over to the Capitan Mountains. Their tops were hidden in a close cluster of clouds with a curtain of misty purple drifting down. Was this a very light snow?

All day the moving clouds and very light mist have brought an October day of golden sunlight and purple and lavender shadows, both still and moving — changing, blending, fading, drifting — transforming the mountain world into a land of dreams.

Now in late afternoon, most of the clouds have rolled away, and the chill has gone out of the north breeze. Just a trace of the purple haze is left across the valley to the west.

Still the Snow Birds have given their message; and we know we are on the eve of Indian Summer, one of the greatest times to behold the glory of the world, when Our Lord brings the earth so close to Heaven.

Apple-Tizing Cleaners: Dentists recommend apples as snacks because the fruit has value in preventive dentistry. Apples require thorough chewing. When eaten, the pulp literally sweeps over the teeth, between the teeth and over soft mouth and gum tissues. Dentists call apples detergent food. The apple even contains retsin, a natural breath freshener.

The 1981 fall apple harvest in New Mexico will be one of the best in recent years, and near record yields are expected in some parts of the state. A good selection of apple varieties should be available through the fall and well into the winter.

Apples are also a versatile food. They blend flavorfully with nuts, vegetables, meats and other fruits. Dipped in lemon juice, they keep their fresh-cut look for eye-appealing fresh fruit dishes.

Apple Crisp Dessert

4 cups sliced apples
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/2 cup quick cooking oats
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup margarine

Place apples in a greased casserole. Sprinkle with sugar and lemon. Spread oats and margarine topping over apples. Bake in a moderate oven for 30 minutes, or until apples are tender. Serve hot, either plain or with milk. Serve cold topped with ice cream or whipped topping.

Social Security information

An applicant for a Social Security number is required to furnish proof of age, identity, and United States citizenship or legal alien status. Don Austin, Social Security district manager in Roswell, said recently.

"This information is forwarded to Social Security headquarters in Baltimore," Austin said, "where it is screened against all the other numbers that have ever been issued. If no prior number is located, a new one is then issued by computer. It takes about 6 weeks from the time a person applies and furnishes all of the required evidence for the Social Security card to be issued."

"The importance of a complete and accurate Social Security record cannot be overemphasized," Austin said. "The right to benefits and the amount of the monthly check are determined by the individual's work record and earnings from Social Security-covered employment. "Since many people have the same name and cannot be distinguished from each other on that basis, the nine-digit Social Security number was designed to serve that purpose."

"Many private organizations now use the Social Security number as an identifier for their own records," Austin said, "But this use is neither authorized nor approved by the Social Security Administration. Furthermore, individuals cannot be required to furnish their numbers to private organizations; any such arrangement is a private matter between the person and the organization."

"Even where a person agrees to provide his or her number as a means of identification, this in no way gives the organization access to information contained in Social Security records about that person."

More information about Social Security numbers can be obtained at the Roswell Social Security office, located in the Federal Building at 5th and Richardson, Roswell, New Mexico 88201. The telephone number is 622-7780.

SANTA FE—New Mexico legislators continue to take a remarkably blasé attitude toward redistricting.

"Don't bother us. We'll get around to it when we're damn good and ready" is the message legislative leaders continue to send the Governor — and the people — of the state.

Some of us don't think that's how things should be.

The reason for legislative districts is to provide proper and fair representation to our citizens. Districts exist for us — not we for legislators.

Yet many lawmakers seem to have the idea that these demarcations on the map create personal fiefdoms for them.

Not so.

It is we the voters who matter, not those whom we are expected to vote for.

And we have a right to know what changes are necessary in the present legislative alignment as promptly as possible, whether that fits the convenience of some Sambarson or not.

Delaying decisions on the matter of which districts will be changed and which remain the same does no service to voters in the state.

We cannot help noticing, however, that it may do something for incumbent legislators by shortening the time in which aspirants for their posts are entitled to campaign against them.

Admittedly, drawing lines for 42 Senate and 70 House seats is a tough job.

The Legislative Council Service, acting more or less without specific direction from the elected lawmakers it was created to serve, has already filled one room in the Roundhouse with maps showing possible rearrangements of the legislative districts. The main thing the council's efforts so far demonstrate is that the possible permutations and combinations are almost literally infinite in number.

That could well be what scares the legislators.

Nobody wants to come right out and say that the main thing which matters to every incumbent is the shape, size and make-up of his or her own district.

One would like to believe some members of the Legislature are capable of taking the overview—of looking at more than merely parochial and selfish considerations.

So far, however, not one of these so-called leaders of men has publicly demonstrated such capacity.

Each of them seems to be protecting his or her own skin — while the interests of the voters of New Mexico get forgotten.

Brian Yaroeh, who covered the State Capitol for Channel 13 in Albuquerque, died last week.

Yaroeh was only 35.

He had been a lifelong diabetic, and he may have complicated his life by failing to take the amount and kind of medication his system needed.

But he will be missed.

For one thing, Brian didn't come to Santa Fe with the notion that he already knew everything which goes on here — an affliction which limits the good work many other-wise sound reporters might do in the capital city.

He wanted to learn, and he asked the kind of questions which sped that process.

He had, in short, the kind of humility which is not too common in our business. He was not afraid to admit he did not know.

That was refreshing, and he left a void when he departed.

May God have mercy on his soul.

Sense & Nonsense

U.S. Sen. Pete Domenici

The President's recently announced defense package is an ambitious modernization plan. Many elements of the program—cruise missiles, B-52 upgrades, etc.—are designed to come on-board quickly and will have an immediate impact on United States capabilities. Others will improve our capability to deter the Soviet threat as it grows.

But I was especially pleased by the President's decision to accelerate research of ballistic missile defense (BMD) as one means of protecting United States land-based ICBMs from a surprise attack. Ballistic missile defense, which has advanced technologically from its predecessor, the ABM system of the late 1960s, shows the best promise of protecting our land-based missiles. With accelerated research, this should be proven in just a few short years.

I first became interested in BMD technology soon after the Air Force put forth its plan for deployment of the MX missile in a "racetrack" basing mode. Not only was the plan environmentally, socially, and technologically unsound, especially in the split-basing concept which would have placed half the missiles in Nevada and Utah and the other half in New Mexico and West Texas, but the Air Force could not guarantee that this plan would be effective in protecting most of the missiles from Soviet attack. In short, we would be pouring millions of tons of concrete, using already low water resources, and displacing families and their farms for a strategically unsound system that did not provide for our national security.

This is why in 1979 I called for a study at Los Alamos National Laboratories of the feasibility of BMD technology. The study released in June 1980, proved that BMD technology had improved dramatically since the late 1960s and could now provide the defense of the land-based ICBM leg of our strategic triad. No longer would we have to assume that the United States would have to abandon land basing in favor of sea-based ICBMs.

Mobile basing of the MX missile is not one of the options the President is considering for MX deployment. Other options include air-mobile basing of ICBMs and deep underground basing. These two, and BMD technology will be considered during the next few years to determine the best way to protect our land-based ICBMs. I will be actively working for the BMD system, as I have in the past, since I believe it is the best way to provide for our national security.

President Reagan once again took a tough problem and found a common sense solution to it. Our national defense will not be anchored by unproven technology and billion dollar experiments, but rather on proven cost-effective technology which will accelerate our defense capabilities and preserve the strategic peace.

I know a lot of farmers and ranchers in Eastern New Mexico felt a lot better after the President's announcement since it meant that the costly and complex mobile basing scheme had been shelved and their limited land and water resources would not be taken from them. But in a larger sense, we should all feel a lot better because the President provided us with a defense plan that does preserve our national security without having to make the terrible personal sacrifices that many said our Eastern New Mexico farmers and ranchers would be forced to make.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

In your October 8 column you chided your sports writer for spelling Bonito Lake with an "O", saying it should be spelled with an "A" on the end.

It is Bonito. It is Bonito. A USGS map of the area, a Lincoln County road map (which is used for official work in the county) or other maps, one sees this spelling.

The reason lies in a principle of Spanish grammar, namely that adjectives must agree with their nouns in gender. The nouns "lago" (lake) and "rio" (river) are masculine and end in "O"; therefore their adjectives "bonito" (pretty) and "ruidoso" (noisy) must also end in "O". Many think Bonito ends in "A" because many of us pronounce it that way, as one also hears "Ree-a-dosa" for Ruidoso.

PUBLIC BLINDERS

The Freedom of Information Act was put on the books 15 years ago. It embodied the fundamental precept that an informed electorate is essential to a sound democracy.

To this end the act provides the machinery for access to a wide range of information about the government. Access on request is limited only by exemptions put in the law so that it cannot be used (as Michael Gartner writes in a Des Moines Register and Tribune article) "to endanger national security, trade secrets or fowl up government investigations."

By and large, the act has served its purpose. It has not functioned perfectly; critics note with derision that it has been used extensively by businesses and special interest groups, not to inform the public but for their own advantage. The act also, however, has enabled journalists to expose much that was going on secretly behind the scenes in government, and that has been greatly in the public interest.

Not everyone is pleased. Some politicians, very likely egged on by bureaucrats who have felt the sting of disclosure, want to weaken if not scuttle the Freedom of Information Act. More than 20 bills intended to restrict access to government records of one sort or another are now before Congress.

These are by no means the first attacks. Gartner points out that the act already has been weakened in several respects by back-door legislative action, without hearings or notice to the public. Item: In July the Omnibus Tax Bill was amended to exempt Internal Revenue Service standards and rules from disclosure under the act. Item: A month earlier, an exemption was placed on Consumer Product Safety Commission documents affecting matters of significant interest to the public. Item: The Federal Trade Commission Act (FTC) was amended by a joint conference committee to exempt broad areas of FTC documents from the Freedom of Information Act's access provisions.

The process of emasculation continues. There is now a move afoot to make statutory amendments which would further reduce the amount of information obtainable from intelligence agencies. Though Congress is to take up these proposals in October, no hearings have been held; as in the other cases, it seems, the pros and cons will not receive a public airing.

Some amendments of the Freedom of Information Act to deal with abuses might be justified. But the general thrust of what is going on is a scandalous effort to undercut the people's right to know what their government is doing. — Alamogordo Daily News

We noted with interest the announcement that the village trustees are considering the purchase of Ruidoso Natural Gas Company.

To our knowledge, complaints against the company are few, indicating it is financially sound and that the distribution system is in good repair.

We understand that the village would issue revenue bonds to buy the utility, a move that would not cause taxes to increase.

Should the feasibility study show that the village could operate the gas company at a profit, we see no reason why the deal shouldn't be consummated.

After all, the more profits realized by the village, the greater the benefits that will accrue to all residents. — CD

ON THURSDAY SPECIFIC

Thursday's Ruidoso News contained the most interesting comment concerning the meeting of the Lodgers Association ... with the first words being: "After a lunch luncheon" ... which makes it most specific that they indulged in victuals ... which, I presume, is indeed an integral part of a lunch luncheon ... no?

What happens ... an error was corrected ... and actually, the error that was corrected would have been preferable ... but at least an honest effort was made to correct an error ... without much success.

AND IT'S GAYLE ROGERS

Another boo-boo in Thursday's news concerned the account of one of Gayle Rogers' mules setting a world's record by running the half mile in 56.2 seconds.

Now the problem was ... the name appeared as Gail ... which was the way it was spelled in at least one of the mule racing programs ... and somehow ... due to your editor not being exactly on his toes ... it didn't come out as Gayle ... but we do hope that Gayle'll be forgiving ... and we do congratulate her on her mule, Rabanito, being the world's swiftest.

BONITO WITH AN "O"

Per the Letter to Editor on this page ... Yvonne Lanelli takes me to task for chiding sports writer Gary Brown for spelling Bonito with an O on the end, when I figured it should end with an A.

Now ... in the official New Mexico highway map ... published by the State Highway Department ... the map designates the spa of Lake Bonito as Lake Bonita ... and this map was the source employed to check up on Gary's spelling.

However ... the Lincoln National Forest map spells it Lake Bonito ... and maybe we'll have to go along with that ... and with Yvonne ... as I'm in no position to argue Spanish grammar with her ... or anyone else ... gadzooks, I even have problems with American grammar ... and I been trying to learn that for about 64 years ... without hardly no success at all now ... but I keep trying ... mostly to not much avail ... obviously.

DAVIS CAN RUN

There's those folks as is wondering if Lloyd L. Davis Jr., can again run for mayor ... and, if he's of a mind so to do, he can ... and he can, if elected again, choose to run again and again and again ... and, if elected, continue to serve and serve and serve.

Same thing applies to the village trustees ... ain't no limitations on how many successive terms they can serve ... if'n the voters is of a mind to have them succeed themselves.

Now that's the word from village manager Jim Hine ... and as he's charged with managing the village, he should be cognizant of the rules and regulations as to who can get elected to regulate him ... and that's the word.

NEW TEACHING DEAL

The press release from the Legislative Education Study Committee ... out of Santa Fe ... started out: "The possibility of requiring minimum competency testing as a requirement for initial teacher certification will be discussed by the Legislative Education Study Committee at public hearings to be held in Silver City and Las Cruces."

Now, by jinkies, we don't see nothing wrong with that ... 'cause if'n there's a question about a teacher's competency, then that teacher should have to prove competency. It's that "minimum" that could be interesting ... depending upon how minimal the degree of competency to be determined is ... and by whom.

If there's anything this country doesn't need, it's a bunch of teachers as is incompetent ... 'cause it's bad enough having to put up with politicians as is likewise afflicted ... and there hardly ain't no one you can stop on the street as won't offer up proof that some politician is doing something stupid enough to qualify as incompetent.

Course I do think the younger students should be exposed to more reedun, wrytyn, arhythmetick and spelun ... to say nothing of learning to wryte legibly ... which'd be easier than learnin' all of 'em to type.

BRIEF BIT: Reagan ain't havin' no real problems with the Democrats ... exceptin' for those as won't roll over and play dead on command ... CD

Arsonists being sought

One of the surest ways to prevent fires, is the quick apprehension and successful prosecution of arsonist.

In recognition of National Fire Prevention Week, the State Crime Stoppers Commission is seeking information on several arsons and attempted arsons around the state.

On Thursday, August 13, at about 4 a.m., a powerful explosion shook the area around Witt's Bass-Pro Shop and Jarvis Realty at 1504 North Valley Drive in Las Cruces. The explosion and fire resulted in the total loss of both businesses, estimated at approximately $300,000. When fire fighters arrived at the scene, the building was engulfed in flames, with trapped pockets of gasoline fumes still exploding.

Arson investigators say that there were no signs of forced entry to the building and that the front door of the Bass-Pro Shop was unlocked when fire fighters arrived. Their investigation revealed that a large amount of gasoline had been poured around the interior walls of both businesses, and that when ignited, produced an explosion powerful enough to move a heavy block wall completely off its foundation.

Dona Ana County Crime Stoppers has already posted a $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and indictment of the arsonists in this crime, and this week, the State Crime Stoppers Commission is adding another $1,000 reward.

Anyone having information that could help solve this crime should call Dona Ana County Crime Stoppers at 528-8000, or the State Crime Stoppers Commission, toll-free, at 1-800-432-6933. Callers to Crime Stoppers do not have to give their names, and the calls are not taped or traced.

In the past two years, information received through the State Crime Stoppers Commission has assisted arson investigators in the solution of nine cases of arson, earning sizeable rewards for the Crime Stoppers callers.

Some arson cases which remain unsolved around the state are:

The November 2, 1980, fire at the Flower Garden in Belen. Owner Brian Richey had gone to the shop at about 8 that evening to prepare some flower arrangements for the following day's business. Richey had gone into the restroom for several minutes, and when he opened the restroom door, the rear of the shop was filled with heavy black smoke. Fire fighters responded to the call and put out the fire which caused heavy damage to the rear walls and ceiling of the store. Investigators say that paint thinner was used to accelerate the fire which reignited in the walls later the same evening, causing a total loss to the business of over $20,000.

The arson to the headquarters of the Lone Pine Ranch at Glencoe, on April 16 of this year. The ranch is owned by George F. Lord, and the fire was the second attempt within a short period of time to cause damage to the ranch. Several of the out-buildings were destroyed; however, the main ranch house was spared when it failed to catch fire.

Arson of the small mountain cabin of Dr. George Emmitt at Buena Vista, in northern New Mexico, in mid-April of this year. The cabin was a total loss as a result of the fire, which followed several burglaries to it over the previous year. Investigators believe the arson may have been an attempt to hide yet another burglary, or was the result of anger over nothing of value left to be stolen.

If you have any information on any fire suspected of being an arson, call the State Crime Stoppers Commission, toll-free, at 1-800-432-6933.

It's interesting, how four-year-olds determine who's a woman, who's a man

Women wear pretty underwear and men wear brown shoes. That's how you tell them apart. If you are four years old that is.

Two University of New Mexico (UNM) researchers heard these reactions when they interviewed preschoolers on a wide variety of sex-role stereotypes.

The first objective of the study was to identify sex-role stereotypes in young children and relate these to the sex, age and cultural backgrounds of the children.

The second objective was to present a workshop for teachers of young children designed to teach the skills necessary to encourage kids to develop flexible attitudes and behaviors.

"We are not trying to change sex-roles, just learn what they are," said Candace Schau, associate professor of educational foundation at UNM and one of the researchers on the project. "With this information, we can help people learn to be flexible in order to maximize their potential choices."

When the children were asked about sex-role differences, the concepts they displayed ranged from naive to acutely perceptive. But regardless of accuracy, their responses were often delightfully refreshing.

For example, when questioned about how to tell a person's sex, many of the children referred to actual biological or observed cultural differences. Other kids, however, had their own unique approaches to the question.

One child proposed a complex theory which held only a girl would wear white shoes, only a boy would wear blue shoes and only a man would wear brown shoes. Another said only a boy would wear purple clothes. And men have short hair.

Another child said only a man would go without makeup. One boy said the interviewer was a man "because you're the one that's grown up — I'm the boy."

A four-year-old boy looked at a male paperdoll's swim trunks and said the doll was a boy "because he has on boy's underpants — my mom's are prettier than mine."

Still other children responded with answers ranging from "I don't know" to "I can't remember" and "I won't tell you."

Schau said teachers and parents were sometimes amazed at the children's responses. "Many parents said they try to show their children they as parents are equal partners," she said. "Nevertheless, the children often gave such responses as men don't cook and boys don't play with the stove."

When asked how a person could change his or her sex, many children said it was impossible. "Only a witch can do that," one child said. But others disagreed.

"Quite a few children said they could change sex by spinning around," Schau said. "One child elaborated by explaining that Wonder Woman changes this way. Presumably, most of the children were referring to this phenomenon."

Strangely, most of the children did not respond to the question of how they would look and act if they were the opposite sex. Schau said although each child could describe the looks and behaviors of the opposite sex, they apparently could not or would not conceptualize themselves as being that sex and so did not answer the question.

This attitude was confirmed, she said, by the number of children who, when asked what sex they would choose to be, chose their own sex but did not justify the choice.

Some children avoided exhibiting sex-role stereotypes in ways not anticipated by the researchers. When asked "Who plays rough and hits other children?" a three-and-one-half-year-old boy said "Both boys and girls, but I don't." A girl of the same age was asked "Who always asks the teacher for help?" Her response: "My mama."

Some problems arose in identifying occupational stereotypes. Several children thought movie and TV stars were the people who ran the projectors. One girl identified a movie star as a man "like Big Bird on Sesame Street."

Schau said the most complete and charming definition of "star" came from a girl who said "She or he gets dressed up and they're pretty or handsome and they dance or play with somebody."

"Many children said truck drivers are men," Schau said. "One boy told us very specifically that men drive trucks because 'if women drove them, they'd get their clothes dirty.'"

She said perhaps the most interesting responses came with questions about police officers. "Children did not seem to be very sex-typed in this area, but those who were, were quite definite."

For instance, one boy insisted "If it were women they'd be called 'policewomen' so 'police officers' are men."

Schau said the non-sexist tendency most children exhibited in this case was probably due to the influence of recent television programming. However, she also blamed television for another, more disturbing trend in answers involving police officers: 24 percent of the children defined a police officer as someone who shoots at or kills people.

Veterans' medical care program is continuing

Contrary to previously published news wire-service reports, Veterans Administration (V A) Chief Robert Nimmo announced that there is no plan to deny medical care to eligible veterans based upon an income test.

According to Nimmo, the unauthorized news reports September 25 apparently referred to a VA study which attempts to find an equitable means of complying with a Congressional mandate to insure that veterans with non-service related conditions are not given full medical care unless they are clearly unable to pay for such care themselves.

"Thus far," Nimmo said, "no final income limitations have been determined, no final guidelines established and no final decisions reached. It is clear that under today's budget constraints and the soaring costs of medical care the VA cannot continue to provide full medical care to all veterans regardless of eligibility. Whatever steps we ultimately take to contain costs will be carefully designed to insure that no veteran with a service-related condition nor any veteran in dire financial straits will be denied quality health care by the VA."

LOSE 5 TO 15 INCHES IN ONE HOUR FOR A BEAUTIFUL YOU

The most advanced reducing program in America today is now available in this area. A Body Reflections Body Wrap Salon has opened in the Ruidoso vicinity.

Pat Mader and her daughter Karen are the owners/operators of this new business located in the Adobe Plaza Shopping Center in Ruidoso.

Pat says, "We are extremely proud to be a Body Reflections Salon because they are the leader in the body wrapping industry with a nationwide network of salons. Our body wrap treatments are effective in breaking down and eliminating those unsightly lumps, bumps and bulges known as 'Cellulite'. The body wrap is a means of taking off inches and tightening skin in just one hour. It involves wrapping the body with elastic wraps which have been soaked in a special solution. The wrap is applied tightly to areas needing inch loss, and lightly to areas where only skin-tightening is desired. It is perfectly safe, healthful, and very relaxing."

For over 50 years, Europeans have been enjoying 'body wraps' at exclusive spas and health resorts as an effective means to eliminate cellulite, sub-surface fat and unwanted inches.

Although body wrapping is fairly new to Americans, it is fast becoming the most popular way to lose those excess unwanted inches. Thousands of Americans are now in the shape they want to be in, thanks to Body Reflections.

The latest additions to the Body Reflections organization are located in Beverly Hills, California, just off Rodeo Drive, owned by Ralph Shepard, and in Nashville, Tennessee, where the partnership of Renee Johnson and Cheryl Pruitt [Miss America 1980] are pampering and shaping up the local residents. With these additions Body Reflections now has over 50 salons across the country.

Body Reflections is also introducing its new weight loss program which when utilized along with the Body Wrapping allows a person to lose up to 10 pounds and 20 inches in just 15 days.

These services are all available at Pat & Karen's salon in Adobe Plaza Shopping Center.

Sun power may replace windmills

Windmills have been part of New Mexico's landscape for about as long as anybody can remember. New Mexico is the perfect place for windmills, most of the time.

They are mechanical contraptions with lots of built in creaking and groaning, but they're fairly reliable. They can be set up in remote areas and will operate without much attention for long periods of time. If the well isn't too deep, they are fairly efficient.

The real trouble with windmills is that they stop working when the wind stops blowing. It seems like the wind is always blowing in New Mexico, but the spring tempests fade to a breeze and finally to a whisper by June, July and August.

Day after day can pass in New Mexico's summer months when the wind isn't blowing hard enough to turn a windmill. Unfortunately, that's when livestock need water the most. And that's where windmill technology comes apart; the wind is free power until it stops blowing.

If there's anything New Mexico has more of than wind, it's sunshine. The state averages 350 days a year of sunshine.

Charles Hohn, Extension water resource specialist for New Mexico State University (NMSU), said, "We can count on 500 to 600 minutes of sunshine every day, and we can convert that directly to horsepower with photovoltaic cells."

"Maybe the biggest bonus for the farmer and rancher is the fact that our summer days can stretch almost to 14 hours — 840 minutes — when cattle need water the most," he said.

Hohn isn't talking about the future. While he's describing how photovoltaic cells work, he's leaning against a 50,000 gallon water tank that is kept full by a solar powered well pump.

The experimental project is based on an array of 157 photovoltaic panels, each containing about 20 three-inch circles of silicon. In the middle of a sunny day, its peak output is about 60 volts at 20 amps, or about one and a half horsepower.

The power is put through a switching panel, a box full of batteries, and finally reaches a one horsepower motor that drives a pump jack through a belt and pulley.

Hohn said, "We're losing some power with this up-and-down pump arrangement we have here, and through the pump's gearbox, but we're pumping water without wind."

The idea of pumping water with sunshine has been around for several years, and the technology to do the job has been around for a few years. The project on the NMSU College Ranch got started about three years ago.

George Abernathy, head of the agricultural engineering department, decided solar water pumping was an idea worth testing. He contacted Harry Zwiell, head of New Mexico Solar Energy Institute on the NMSU campus.

Engineers Paul Hutchinson and Vern Risser started designing the system while Abernathy and Zwiell started writing proposals to get enough money to build the hardware. Photovoltaics are expensive.

The proposals were never approved for enough money to fund the entire project, but things started to fall together. The agricultural engineering department found some surplus photovoltaic cells through the United States Department of Energy. That saved the project $15,000.

Other bits and pieces were collected here and there and the working hardware started to look like Hutchinson and Risser's design concept. Finally, all the parts were hauled to the College Ranch this spring and assembled.

The engineers used the existing 50,000 gallon storage tank and left the windmill that had been used for years in place. They drilled a new 420 foot well near the existing well and had standing water at 380 feet.

The pump didn't start immediately after the sun came up the first day. The system is designed so the first electrical power from the solar cells goes to charge batteries. Control circuitry shuts the whole system down when batteries drop to 80 percent of full charge. If batteries aren't drained below that level, they last much longer.

After a few hours, however, the batteries were up to full charge and the automatic circuitry started the well pump. Water flowed immediately into the storage tank. A flow meter on the outlet pipe bounced between five and six gallons a minute.

"On an average 600 minute day, that's almost 3,000 gallons of water," Hohn said. "That will support 150 head of cattle — they drink about 20 gallons a day in the heat of summer."

If a cloud passes overhead, the control panel switches back to batteries until sunlight returns. When sunlight takes over again, the control panel takes a small part of the photovoltaic current to recharge the batteries, then switches off the charging circuit when batteries are fully charged.

Hohn said the system would need only slightly over half the horsepower to operate at the existing well depth, "but we are going to have to get some submersible DC motors built to get power needs down to that level." If the submersible motor and pump were available, the photocell array could be cut in half, possibly to one-third.

"Photovoltaic cells are terribly expensive right now, but they're going to get cheaper when commercial manufacturers get their production methods improved," Hohn said.

"Until the photo cells get cheaper, to the point where they are affordable for everybody, we're going to have to be as efficient as possible with the power we get out of them," Hohn said.

Hohn said photovoltaic technology is closer to competing with windmills than many people realize. "A good windmill will cost at least $8,000 these days — one that's big enough to store enough water in a central location for 100 to 150 head of cattle."

"If we come up with a system that uses cheaper photocells, and fewer photocells, we're starting to squeeze the cost difference down," he said. "Solar power isn't coming tomorrow, but it's going to come to New Mexico quicker than a lot of other places."

"A whole lot of New Mexico's just like this," he said and waved his arm across a wide arc of high desert north of Las Cruces. "Granddaddy couldn't have settled this ground without the windmill, and we've got a chance to turn it into a garden with sunshine driving water pumps."

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT: Readers don't like sex, violence and foul language on television and movie screens. A recent poll shows that readers are offended by the lack of morality on the screen and want it cleaned up in a hurry. Your letters run five to one in favor of firmer censorship. "The people who make these filthy movies could not care less about what it's doing to young people today," wrote Thelma Kroupa of Traverse City, Mich. "By all means, censor them!" "There's far too much swearing to suit me, even with TV censorship," wrote Elsie Lukenbach of Muscatine, Iowa. "Some of the worst offenders got the highest ratings, too." "Who needs that garbage in their homes?" wrote Mike Irving of Boise, Idaho. "We need a return to morality and God!" "Let's see more wholesome TV shows like the 'Waltons' and 'Little House on the Prairie,'" wrote Martha Rayl of Kokomo, Ind. "I wish some of these filthy soap operas would be edited, too." Vilma York of Warren, Ohio, watches very little TV these days. "I don't like nudity and sex in these movies," she explained. "If people have a right to see dirty movies," wrote Delores Curl of Minneapolis, Minn., "I have a right to see clean movies." "I'm a red-blooded all-American lady and I resent such showings," wrote Alice Balko of Conroe, Texas. "Why not make movies our children can watch?" "Who is it making our pictures in America?" asked a housewife with three children from Okeechobee, Fla. "I can't let my kids watch even the censored stuff!" "I'm no prude and think passion is fine," wrote Mrs. Howard Mead of Athrum, Ohio, "but let's leave a little to the imagination." But other readers disagreed. "If you don't want to watch it, turn it off or don't buy a ticket. The small screen and the big screen are simply reflections of mankind," wrote Robert J. Dean, Jr. of Versailles, Kentucky.

TV BACKSTAGE: Macho TV superstar Erik Estrada has been hit with an avalanche of big offers since Hollywood heard that he'd run into contractual difficulties for the "CHiPs" series. We have learned that the NBC star has already been wooed by the rival CBS network for two different projects—one including an astronomical $100,000 week for his own new series. Erik has also been asked to star in several different new movies planned for production over the next 12 months. Ironically, Erik will literally double his millionaire status as a result of the feud. He'll hold onto his 25 percent ownership in "CHiPs" while benefiting from other projects. Meanwhile, former colleague Larry Wilcox vows "I'll happily stay with the show forever."

TV CLOSEUP: Judy Stewart, President of People Resources, is direct, creative and involved. Her creativity thrives on a diversity of challenges, so she accepts the offer of a group of young entrepreneurs to create the concept for and to direct the marketing of a new business enterprise geared to the highly specialized needs of the burgeoning market of single people in the United States. For Judy Stewart, People Resources is the "answer to those specialized and very unique needs." She is now being booked to appear on local and national TV talk shows.
