New jail plans jelling

BY TIM PALMER

When a new detention facility is built next year as part of the Ruidoso Police building renovation project, it will feature latest in design for prisoner security and safety, according to administrative officer Jim Alston.

A lot of hard work has gone into planning the detention facility, beginning with convincing the state that it should allow for a facility of the type Ruidoso needs.

The New Mexico State Jail Standards Committee this year drafted detention facility standards for the state legislature to consider incorporating into law. When the draft was released, however, there was no provision for the 72-hour facility that the Ruidoso Police Department had decided was appropriate for this jurisdiction.

So Police Chief Dick Swenor and architect John Vanoy Moore began contacting the committee and the state Department of Corrections for an addition to the standards.

After receiving the commission for the police building remodeling project in June, Moore began learning about jail standards from "a three-foot stack of books." Part of what the architect referred to as "an undercurrent of intense activity" involved Swenor traveling to Santa Fe and Albuquerque for meetings.

As a result, the 72-hour facility was written in, and Ruidoso and similar communities will be able to operate that type facility.

This will produce substantial cost savings to those communities, especially in transportation expenditures, Swenor said.

With that matter taken care of, work has proceeded on the building design to the point that the schematics — the basic diagrams of the building — were recently approved by the village trustees.

The new detention facility will replace the present jail, which was condemned by the state Fire Marshal in 1978 but continues to be used with official permission.

The new facility will include nine single occupancy cells — six for males, two for females and one special purpose padded cell. The present jail has three multi-purpose cells.

Multi-person cells are undesirable, Swenor noted. "When there is a problem, someone has to go in and correct it," he said. As a result, police personnel are sometimes put in jeopardy.

The new facility will allow classification of prisoners, the chief added. "You don't put a convicted felon in with a shoplifter or DWI," he said.

Physical separation of the public area from the detention facility and the rest of the police station has been the aim of those planning the building, said Alston.

The control room will be the nerve center of the entire complex. Two dispatchers — one male and one female — will be on duty around the clock, according to Swenor. They will be responsible for handling communications and administering the detention facility.

Though the public will have ready access to the municipal and magistrate courtrooms and offices on the north end of the building (facing Wingfield Drive), persons seeking access to the police department's administrative offices or the detention facility will have to pass through a checkpoint adjoining the control room.

The control room will be encased in bullet proof glass and it will have bank type drawers for transaction of business such as bond payments. These features will help assure the security of the dispatchers, Swenor said.

Direct line of sight from the control room to the detention facility is another design feature. Although some electronic video and audio will be employed, said Moore, eye contact is preferable because it is better and more economical.

Prisoner security will be improved through use of a "sally port." This is a garage type structure with doors controlled by the dispatcher.

When an officer is bringing a prisoner to the station, the patrol car will be driven into the sally port and the doors will lock behind it. The officer will then place his or her firearm in a lockbox before letting the prisoner out of the vehicle.

"We're not going to have anybody breaking and running in the parking lot," said Alston. More said, "Once a prisoner arrives in that sally port, he's in jail."

Prisoners will then pass through a booking area before being placed in a cell. A corridor linking the detention facility with the courts will enable prisoners to be taken to court without passing through a public area.

New standards require in-house feeding of prisoners, Swenor noted. Institutional food — frozen meals heated by microwave oven — is the expected bill of fare.

In order to meet another standard requiring two exits from a detention facility in case of fire, a courtyard will adjoin the building. The yard will have high concrete walls and be fenced over at the top, the chief explained.

One of the country's leading authorities on detention facilities, Dennis Kimme of Champaign, Illinois, was in town recently to provide input into the building design. Kimme's expenses were paid by the National Institute of Corrections through a program offered to communities building such facilities, said Swenor.

The chief noted that the expert's comments were "extremely beneficial." Although Kimme's input was not required, the department sought it because, as Swenor said, "In order to do it professionally — to do it the best way possible — you go to the experts."

Although the detention facility has been the most time consuming part of the overall plan, other sections of the renovated building will have some important features.

One of these is a command center for use in the event of a natural disaster such as a forest fire. This room can be used by personnel from different agencies, Swenor noted, and will house auxiliary communications equipment and overlay maps showing evacuation routes.

The basement of the building will contain training rooms and storage space, according to Moore. Part of the subfloor space could house a firing range, he added, but it is not yet known if this is feasible.

Moore stated that cost efficiency and cost responsibility are governing factors in the design. "By centralizing the forces, we're saving operating costs," he said. "The idea is to have all space in use 100 percent of the time — not standing idle."

The next stage of the project is preparation of final design drawings, which Moore expects to complete within 60 days. Once the final plan is approved by the Department of Corrections, the state Fire Marshal and the trustees, the department can advertise for bids on actual construction, tentatively scheduled for next March 1.

Alston estimated that ground can be broken on the project early next summer.

Moore stated that he is receiving excellent cooperation from the Ruidoso Police Department. "We are working with a mutual desire for excellence in this facility," he said. "I feel awful lucky to have people of this caliber to work with."

The architect also credits his associate, former Ruidoso policeman Rex Skellett, with valuable assistance in the project.

Fourth grade students of Nan Wierwille and Kathy Weems Write Thanksgiving essays on 'America the Beautiful'

I love my country for it's land because there is beauty and lots of room to grow. And for the different kinds of people there are in this land of freedom. And also for the freedom to be able to think for yourself what is right and what is wrong. And to chose your own religion. And to Speak Out for what you think is right or wrong. That is why I love this land of freedom so much.

David Dickinson

I love America because it has big Mountains. It has the big blue skies. I am thankful to God for giving it to us. I am thankful for the Sun and Moon He gave us. I am thankful for the freedom He gave us. I am proud of my country because of the food it makes from its rich Soil. I am Thankful for the people God gave us friendship. I am glad God gave us nature. I like the different kinds of sports we have. I am thankful for the space God gave us to search. I am glad for the trees He gave us and the plants. I am thankful for the Planets God gave us to Study about. I hope that the wars don't come back because we could blow up the whole world.

Michael Miller

I like America because we don't have to slave for on another. And that we have a pick of want we want to do. I'm glad we have a pick of religion and speech. We have an opportunity for if we are born poor we may grow up to be rich. We also have plenty of food and water. I hope we won't go to war with a foreign country. Our people are the only people that set foot on the moon. I'm glad we can go to any school we want to. I hope everybody keeps on sharing.

Kip Barcus

I like my country because of the freedom of everything. I mean we can do anything. And for the freedom of religion (we can pray for anyone). I thank the Lord for our beautiful country. And for the love my family brings. And for the food we have here to share with other people all over the world. We help them stay alive. But I think we should give the most thank for the love in our country. I give thanks for our churches and chapels and pastors and monks priests all over the country. And for the stores that give us our food all through the year. And for the great farmers that grow this food. And for the butchers that get us our meat. And for the people that help us find a part of our history (archeologists). And for the people who make us do this (teachers). And for the News Papers that give us information and fun. And for the peace in our country.

Jeffrey Bigham

The people that live in America should be so proud to live in a country that has plenty of food for everybody. America has freedom, that means you can say anything you want. And everybody should be proud of our space ship Columbia because its already went up into space 2 times. People in America are all different. We have a good president. I hope the Russians don't bomb us. In America everybody has the opportunity to chose their leader. In our forrests animals can roam free. We have beautiful mountains and beautiful seas & oceans. Im proud to live in a beautiful country.

Rene Parker

I am proud to live in this beautiful land America. Where there is lots of room to stay. I like to live here because the people are all different and because they share. And people aren't greedy. They are nice. I like the freedom we have. And I thank God for the good food that we can have. And I am glad that we have freedom of speech. And I am glad we have beautiful trees and grass. And I am glad that we have fresh air to breath. And I thank God for not having any slaves. Most of all I thank God for the people and my family. And I thank God for letting me be born.

Maria Moorehead

I love America because it is a place where animals live and people live too. It has schools and plenty of room for everybody to live. There is plenty of food for everybody and it has Clean air and Clean water. It has beautiful tress and dark green grass and Mountains and birds. I love the beautiful sunsets in the morning and the fish that are in the clear water. I love the pretty butterflies in the sky and the red, yellow, blue, pink and purple flowers. I'm thankful for people who share what they have and for children that have mom's and dads, and for all the people that live in America.

Alisa Ramos

I love America because it is a free country and it's fun to live in and I enjoy it alot. I'm proud of my country because you get to meet different people. I also love the birds and animals alot. I hope that there will not be any more wars in a long time. And in our country you get to make your choices yourself. I also like the different sports we do in America. It's also very beautiful and I love it. I think America is the best place you could ever live in.

Leslie Miranda

I love this nation because it is free and peaceful and big. And you're free to go anywhere you want and you can vote on the President. You can disagree on something or agree. I am proud for my country and our state New Mexico. I hope we don't have a war with the Soviet Union or any other countries.

Zach Chavez

We should be thankful we live in America. This land has space to live. It has freedom. You can vote with your own choice. People share and are different. Freedom of speech and religion we have also. People come from different countries, and when they come they are very proud to be here. We should proud to live here too. The first men to walk on the moon were men from America. We all do our share to make America beatiful and a happier place to live in. We are the land of the rich and the plenty. I am proud to live in America, and you should be too.

Tiffany Snodgrass

Well I really love my country because I feel like I can do anything I want. The country is so big and I feel free and I don't feel like a prisoner. There is enough land to share and we don't have to fight over it. All the people are nice and share, and they have nice schools My school is really nice and all the teachers are nice. And especially the principal. Why I said especially the principal is he has the temper to put up with all of this racket and he is really nice.

Zina Holcomb

Well I like that there is a enough land and room for new lives to grow up in. Some peopl call Americo the melting pot. The reson people call Americo the melting pot is because people of all kinds of different people live in the U. S. A. And people who are poor can grow rich. I hop the U. S. A never get's poor never ever. And I know God is willing to help! And thats what I like about America!

Tammie Palmer

Ameria is one of the most beautiful countries in the whole world, whith its mountains, beautiful sunrise and sunsets, grassey valls and sandy beaches. America is a fre country. Theres freedom of speech and religion, and wemen can vote, there are no slaves either. America is a wealty country too, theres plenty of food. People hav come from all over the world just to live in Ameria. I love America because its free & beautiful I'm proud of America because its the only country to have a man walk on the moon. I hope we don't go to war.

Amy Sayner

I like America because it has freedom. I like America for it's beauty. I am glad that we have enough food. I hope we don't have any more wars, wars are sad. I am thankful for the world God has given us. I am glad that the people don't have to be the same color. America is a nice place to live in.

Paula Trapp

We all should be thankful for the land Our God has given us. He made us people to be free. He gave us food that has lasted for over millions of centuries. God has been good to us all. And we have enough land for everybody. That's why people all over the world come to our beautiful country, America. I'm glad there are no slaves. Because without slaves being made, it makes our country a better place to live. I hope there is not a World War 3. It will just make our beautiful country terrible.

Wallace Jordan

I love my land because it has lots of room and is a very beautiful country to live in. People share with one another and that people made public schools for us to learn. And that God is above us watching us. And that we could vote for who we want. That we don't have to kill for our way in our land. And we can go to are own church. We have peopole come from different countries. And I'm thankful there is plenty of food for all of us in America.

Jeremy Hanson

I love America because you can have freedom of speech. Also for the very generous people. I'm very grateful for being able to chose our own religion. I'm very happy & grateful that only the U. S. A. has gone to the moon. I'm extra grateful for public sevice. I'm also grateful for all the food in the United States of America. I'm very thankful for the merciful people in the world. I'm thankful for our doctors and nurses who help one another during dreary times. I am thankful for our presidents and for our great and famous warriors. Also I'm sure that everyone would like this world perfect. I especially thankful for all the elbo room that we have in country.

Trustees held executive session on swimming pool lease problem

BY TIM PALMER
Staff Writer

The Ruidoso trustees met for less than an hour Tuesday night before adjourning into an executive session.

Justification for the closed meeting was given as threatened litigation on the matter of the village's lease of the swimming pool to Ralph Rush and discussion of a personnel matter.

The swimming pool lease was listed on the agenda under "unfinished business." When the trustees came to the item, they were told by village attorney Lee Huckstep that they had a choice of discussing the matter in open meeting, discussing it in executive session or tabling it.

Gary Mitchell, an attorney representing Rush, said, "I'm not prepared to discuss it in an open meeting." He stated that he would either discuss the matter with the village attorney or with the trustees in executive session.

Huckstep said he agreed that the best climate for discussion would be a closed meeting.

Trustee George White said he wondered why there should be an executive session on something that has been public all along. (Actually, the village's problems with the Rush lease of the pool came to light after a closed meeting last month.)

Mitchell said that if the matter was taken up in an open meeting, he would see to it that everything was recorded. "If you say something that could benefit me in a lawsuit, I'll use it against you," Mitchell said.

"I want my client to be able to speak freely to you," Mitchell added.

Huckstep was asked if he agreed with Mitchell. "One hundred percent," he answered. Huckstep then recommended Village Manager Jim Hine said Wednesday morning that he and the trustees "took everything under advisement" regarding the swimming pool lease during the executive session. He stated that Huckstep will research the matter further.

The trustees also approved the appointment of O. J. Cuddy as village Fire Prevention Officer, Hine said. Cuddy, who will work out of the Village Administrative Center, will begin his duties December 1.

Hine said that a personnel matter regarding animal control was also discussed and that he and Huckstep will probably meet again next week on the matter.

that the matter be discussed in closed session with the agreement that neither side would use what was said against the other. The trustees then continued down the agenda, waiting until the end of the open meeting to vote on whether to adjourn into closed session on the lease and a personnel matter to which Huckstep had earlier referred. Trustee Sherman Atwood made the motion for executive session; it was seconded by Frank Sayner.

White voted "no" on the required individual polling of trustees. Atwood, Benny Coulston and Sayner voted "yes," and Mayor Lloyd Davis Jr., was recorded "in favor."

White did not attend the closed session. The major issue of the open meeting concerned the use of the Senior Citizens van by the Ruidoso Care Center Auxiliary, which was approved in October.

Bette Romans, Senior Citizens director, mentioned some possible difficulties with shared use of the van by the two groups. She noted that her group uses the van for shopping one day a week and for transporting members to the doctor and dentist as the need arises.

"I really don't know how we could schedule the van," Romans said.

Coulston stated that he would not like to see Care Center residents classified as "second class senior citizens" (by denying them use of the van) and that perhaps if those persons became members of the Senior Citizens group, the problem would be taken care of.

Romans said she was mainly seeking clarification, as she had not been kept informed.

Lem Cheshier, who accompanied Romans, told the trustees that if anyone has an obligation in the matter, it should be the county. He noted that the five-year-

New jail plans jelling

When a new detention facility is built next year as part of the Ruidoso Police building renovation project, it will feature latest in design for prisoner security and safety, according to administrative officer Jim Alston.

A lot of hard work has gone into planning the detention facility, beginning with convincing the state that it should allow for a facility of the type Ruidoso needs.

The New Mexico State Jail Standards Committee this year drafted detention facility standards for the state legislature to consider incorporating into law. When the draft was released, however, there was no provision for the 72-hour facility that the Ruidoso Police Department had decided was appropriate for this jurisdiction.

So Police Chief Dick Swenor and architect John Vanoy Moore began contacting the committee and the state Department of Corrections for an addition to the standards.

After receiving the commission for the police building remodeling project in June, Moore began learning about jail standards from "a three-foot stack of books." Part of what the architect referred to as "an undercurrent of intense activity" involved Swenor traveling to Santa Fe and Albuquerque for meetings.

As a result, the 72-hour facility was written in, and Ruidoso and similar communities will be able to operate that type facility.

This will produce substantial cost savings to those communities, especially in transportation expenditures, Swenor said.

With that matter taken care of, work has proceeded on the building design to the point that the schematics — the basic diagrams of the building — were recently approved by the village trustees.

The new detention facility will replace the present jail, which was condemned by the state Fire Marshal in 1976 but continues to be used with official permission.

The new facility will include nine single occupancy cells — six for males, two for females and one special purpose padded cell. The present jail has three multi-purpose cells.

Multi-person cells are undesirable, Swenor noted. "When there is a problem, someone has to go in and correct it," he said. As a result, police personnel are sometimes put in jeopardy.

The new facility will allow classification of prisoners, the chief added. "You don't put a convicted felon in with a shoplifter or DWI," he said.

Physical separation of the public area from the detention facility and the rest of the police station has been the aim of those planning the building, said Alston.

The control room will be the nerve center of the entire complex. Two dispatchers — one male and one female — will be on duty around the clock, according to Swenor. They will be responsible for handling communications and administering the detention facility.

Though the public will have ready access to the municipal and magistrate courtrooms and offices on the north end of the building (facing Wingfield Drive), persons seeking access to the police department's administrative offices or the detention facility will have to pass through a checkpoint adjoining the control room.

The control room will be encased in bullet proof glass and it will have bank type drawers for transaction of business such as bond payments. These features will help assure the security of the dispatchers, Swenor said.

Direct line of sight from the control room to the detention facility is another design feature. Although some electronic video and audio will be employed, said Moore, eye contact is preferable because it is better and more economical.

Prisoner security will be improved through use of a "sally port." This is a garage type structure with doors controlled by the dispatcher.

When an officer is bringing a prisoner to the station, the patrol car will be driven into the sally port and the doors will lock behind it. The officer will then place his or her firearm in a lockbox before letting the prisoner out of the vehicle.

"We're not going to have anybody breaking and running in the parking lot," said Alston. Moore said, "Once a prisoner arrives in that sally port, he's in jail."

Prisoners will then pass through a booking area before being placed in a cell. A corridor linking the detention facility with the courts will enable prisoners to be taken to court without passing through a public area.

New standards require in-house feeding of prisoners, Swenor noted. Institutional food — frozen meals heated by microwave oven — is the expected bill of fare.

In order to meet another standard requiring two exits from a detention facility in case of fire, a courtyard will adjoin the building. The yard will have high concrete walls and be fenced over at the top, the chief explained.

One of the country's leading authorities on detention facilities, Dennis Kimme of Champaign, Illinois, was in town recently to provide input into the building design. Kimme's expenses were paid by the National Institute of Corrections through a program offered to communities building such facilities, said Swenor.

The chief noted that the expert's comments were "extremely beneficial." Although Kimme's input was not required, the department sought it because, as Swenor said, "In order to do it professionally — to do it the best way possible — you go to the experts."

I am proud for my country and our state New Mexico. I hope we don't have a war with the Soviet Union or any other countries.

Zach Chavez

We should be thankful we live in America. This land has space to live. It has freedom. You can vote with your own choice. People share and are different. Freedom of speech and religion we have also. People come from different countries, and when they come they are very proud to be here. We should be proud to live here too. The first men to walk on the moon were men from America. We all do our share to make America beautiful and a happier place to live in. We are the land of the rich and the plenty. I am proud to live in America, and you should be too.

Tiffany Snodgrass

Well I really love my country because I feel like I can do anything I want. The country is so big and I feel free and I don't feel like a prisoner. There is enough land to share and we don't have to fight over it. All the people are nice and share, and they have nice schools My school is really nice and all the teachers are nice. And especially the principal. Why I said especially the principal is he has the temper to put up with all of this racket and he is really nice.

Zina Holcomb

Well I like that there is a enough land and room for new lives to grow up in. Some people call America the melting pot. The reason people call America the melting pot is because people of all kinds of different people live in the U. S. A. And people who are poor can grow rich. I hope the U. S. A never get's poor never ever. And I know God is willing to help! And that's what I like about America!

Tammie Palmer

America is one of the most beautiful countries in the whole world, with its mountains, beautiful sunrise and sunsets, grassy hills and sandy beaches. America is a free country. There's freedom of speech and religion, and women can vote, there are no slaves either. America is a wealthy country too, there's plenty of food. People have come from all over the world just to live in America. I love America because its free & beautiful I'm proud of America because its the only country to have a man walk on the moon. I hope we don't go to war.

Amy Sayner

I like America because it has freedom. I like America for its beauty. I am glad that we have enough food. I hope we don't have any more wars, wars are sad. I am thankful for the world God has given us. I am glad that the people don't have to be the same color. America is a nice place to live in.

Paula Trapp

We all should be thankful for the land Our God has given us. He made us people to be free. He gave us food that has lasted for over millions of centuries. God has been good to us all. And we have enough land for everybody. That's why people all over the world come to our beautiful country, America. I'm glad there are no slaves. Because without slaves being made, it makes our country a better place to live. I hope there is not a World War 3. It will just make our beautiful country terrible.

Wallace Jordan

I love my land because it has lots of room and is a very beautiful country to live in. People share with one another and that people made public schools for us to learn. And that God is above us watching us. And that we could vote for who we want. That we don't have to kill for our way in our land. And we can go to are own church. We have people come from different countries. And I'm thankful there is plenty of food for all of us in America.

Jeremy Hanson

I love America because you can have freedom of speech. Also for the very generous people. I'm very grateful for being able to choose our own religion. I'm very happy & grateful that only the U. S. A. has gone to the moon. I'm extra grateful for public services. I'm also grateful for all the food in the United States of America. I'm very thankful for the merciful people in the world. I'm thankful for our doctors and nurses who help one another during dreary times. I am thankful for our presidents and for our great and famous warriors. Also I'm sure that everyone would like this world perfect. I especially thankful for all the elbow room that we have in country.

old van has 21,000 miles on it and should be good for five or six more years unless its use is increased.

"I personally would like to see the senior citizens completely wear that bus out," said Coulston. He stated that it would be better to wear the van out using it than to not use it.

Romans, who had wondered what her group might do in case of an emergency, was asked by Davis what might constitute an emergency. She said that a member was recently transported to the hospital in the van after suffering a broken leg. Other uses of the van, she said, are hospital visits, doctor and dental appointments, and trips to the social security representative, banks, the post office and utility companies.

Atwood suggested that Romans draw up a schedule of use by her group, which would have priority. He noted that if the two groups could not work out an amiable agreement directly or through the village, the trustees would take the matter up again.

In other business, the trustees:

— Voted to determine whether the Ruidoso-Hondo Valley Hospital is going to make a proposal to operate Emergency Medical Services (the ambulance service) and to consider that proposal along with one from Dennis Harkness and Matt Jakusz.

— Voted to have the village participate in plans to light two Christmas trees — one in oldtown and one in the triangle area (with the Women's Club) if the costs are not prohibitive.

— Recognized Boy Scouts Eric Eastep and Trent Tolbert from Troop 59, attending the meeting as observers.

Bonito Fire Department expanding

BY JEAN PATTERSON
Staff Writer/Photographer

The Angus, Alto and Bonito Volunteer Fire Department has done a bit of growing in the past 30 years.

What started out as one small station near Bonito, in charge of more than 100 square miles, has expanded into a substation near Alto, housing several trucks and equipment.

"Originally, there was more population at Bonito. It was a town," said Don Rash, member of the board of the fire department. The substation was added later because the population growth in Alto and the surrounding areas warranted it.

The Bonito district includes approximately 55 housing additions, such as Alto Village, Fawn Ridge and several subdivisions in the Gavilan Canyon area and Alpine Village.

One boost to the fire department's treasury is a fund raising letter that is sent out the first of each year, asking for donations. With this letter, enough money has been raised in the past to add a building to the Alto substation, purchase one new truck and equipment. If all goes as hoped for this year, the fire department plans to purchase a new four-wheel drive truck.

"The extra building was finished last year, along with the addition on the original building, only with donations," said Rash. The new building consists of a community hall and a two-stall garage. This is the ninth year Jo Rash, Don's wife, has sent the letters. Originally she sent 1,500 letters, but that number has increased to 3,000.

The Angus, Alto and Bonito Volunteer Fire Department maintains a 1976 and a 1978 500 gallon pumper truck, a 1975 "fast out" pickup truck, which holds 250 gallons of water, and a 3,000 gallon tanker.

"The county helps us out some," said Bob Finley, fire chief. However, he said it is not always possible for the county to provide the department with as much funding as they would like. That's where the fund raising effort comes in.

Although there have not been many fires in the area recently, Finley said if one starts, it could easily spread. "It's so tied up, with houses and trees so close together, a house catches fire, then a tree next to the house catches fire and then another tree," Finley said.

When someone calls the Bonito fire department number, 338-4308, it rings at four different residences. The dispatchers will then call volunteer firemen to help out. If a fire is in the Bonito district but another station is closer, another district will answer the call.

For example, Carrizo Canyon was once part of the Bonito district, but since the Ruidoso fire department was much closer, they would answer the call. Now, however, Carrizo Canyon is part of Ruidoso's district.

The Bonito district has approximately 20 active volunteers on their roster, however, Rash emphasized they could always use more people.

"Most of the crew is retired," Rash said. "We need young people to haul those hoses up the hill." Rash added that it is difficult to keep young people in the area because there is no industry.

Volunteer firemen's meetings for the Bonito district take place at 7:30 p.m., the first Tuesday of each month at the Community Hall at the Alto substation.

"We provide training and information for the volunteers," Rash said. "Every fire call is a training session though," Finley said.

Currently, Finley said the department is hoping to get an emergency 911 phone number put in:

A 500 GALLON tanker and a 250 gallon truck (in the rear) are part of the Bonito district Volunteer Fire Department's equipment.

His, hers, theirs, defined by law

There are two kinds of property people can own, real property and personal property.

Real property is real estate, land and the fixed and permanent improvements on the land, such as buildings. Personal property covers all other property such as automobiles, checking accounts, stocks, furniture, jewelry, machinery or tools.

New Mexico is one of eight community property states in the United States, according to Jackie Martin, Extension family finance specialist at New Mexico State University.

When persons marry in New Mexico, income from salaries and items bought with salaries, become community property. Such money or items are theirs, regardless of which spouse earns the money, or which earns the most.

Community property is legally described as any property acquired during marriage, by either spouse, which is not separate property.

Ruidoso man injured in car mishap

A Ruidoso man was listed in good condition Wednesday morning at Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital with knee and back injuries suffered Monday in a motorcycle-car accident.

Jessie G. Montoya, 28, was injured when the motorcycle he was driving collided with a car driven by Dennis E. Langford of Ruidoso Downs near the intersection of Highways 70 and 37.

Langford was cited by Ruidoso Police for failure to yield. He was reported as not injured in the accident.

Blue shelled eggs no better than regular

Despite some claims, blue shelled eggs are no more nutritious and are no lower in cholesterol than ordinary white or brown shelled eggs.

The high quality, low cholesterol myths started with the Araucana breed of chickens in Chile, according to D. W. Francis, Extension poultry consultant at New Mexico State University.

The Araucana chicken is the best known breed that produces blue shelled eggs. Actually, the eggs vary in color from light green to dark olive, Francis said. Some people have tabbed the Araucana the Easter egg chicken.

In tests at several universities, blue shelled eggs have always had as much or more cholesterol than commercial table eggs, or any other egg available in the United States.

In one report, the Araucana, quail, pheasant and White Leghorn eggs all had the same cholesterol content, based on the amount of cholesterol per unit weight of the egg.

Blue shelled eggs are usually more expensive to produce than the common brown and white eggs found at retail counters, Francis said. Anyone willing to pay the higher price for these eggs should recognize that New Mexico law requires all eggs to be graded, have a clean, sound shell, and be maintained under 60 degrees Fahrenheit.

family tension if kept separate. It leads to the mine-versus-ours quarrel, or the "if you loved me, you wouldn't keep it separate" routine.

When separate property becomes commingled, it's almost impossible to separate again in case of divorce, or for estate purposes. As an example, if $2,000 of separate property was put into a joint checking account when the couple is married, it would be impossible to tell 10 years later how much of that money was spent for groceries, a new sofa, or the electrical bill.

Handling separate property should be done in a sensible, business-like manner, Martin said.

Debts, too, are defined as community debt or separate debt. Most debts acquired during the marriage are community debt.

Examples of separate debt are those acquired before marriage, those acquired after divorce, those which a court has declared separate, and debts acquired after marriage but designated to the creditor in writing as separate debts.

Community property laws can be complex. For more information, write for, "New Mexico Women and The Law," available from the New Mexico Commission on the Status of Women, Plaza del Sol Building, Suite 811, 600 Second NW, Albuquerque, New Mexico 88102.

Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope along with the request.

Candidates named for County ASC

Candidates for the Lincoln County Agricultural, Stabilization and Conservation Service Committee, to be voted on by mail from November 27 to December 7, include Wesley Grigsby, Hondo, Bill Shreeengost Jr., Lincoln, Fred Pfingsten, Captain and Tranquillo Silva, Captain.

GUS PRAJAN, Bennett's Shur-Sav Super Market, said sales for Thanksgiving "turkeys and hams are running neck and neck," this year.

KARL FRANZER, Safeway manager, said turkeys "are in plentiful supply, of good quality and priced well in line with previous years."

All the stuffing on Thanksgiving isn't necessarily in the bird

BY BILLIE LARSON
Staff Writer/Photographer

Thanksgiving is the holiday Americans reserve each year for family get-togethers under one roof, to give thanks for blessings received in the year past. It is also the national excuse for stuffing ourselves out, or our minds.

Shopping baskets in Ruidoso's two largest supermarkets Monday afternoon were still being filled with everyday needs like peanut butter and laundry detergent, not ingredients for a planned Thanksgiving banquet. R. A. Bennett of Bennett's Shur-Save Supermarket said cranberries and canned pumpkin have been selling very well, but added people in a seasonal town like Ruidoso "watch their money pretty carefully." Shoppers will probably wait until later in the week to begin stocking up on items like celery, yams and sausage, Bennett said.

Karl Franzer, Safeway manager, said prices on Thanksgiving specialty items are "well in line with previous years." Cranberries, which were in short supply last year, Franzer said, are plentiful this year. English walnuts are a much better buy this year than pecans, he said. And fresh California turkeys are "of a very good quality." Frozen pumpkin pies, although "probably not quite as good as homemade," are the ones shoppers seem to prefer, he said, because they are "easier."

Gus Prajan of Bennett's meat market, said turkeys and hams are selling "neck and neck." Sirloin, hamburger and sausage are also hot items, he added. Lee White, in Bennett's delicatessen section, had taken a dozen orders for pumpkin pies at 3 p.m., Monday, the last day orders were to be accepted. He had taken orders for "20 or so" stuffed, roasted turkeys.

Some Ruidoso restaurants also are in the midst of preparing traditional Thanksgiving dinners, buffet style, for diners deciding to eat out this year. One local restaurant will set a table laden with entrees of turkey, ham, roast beef and roast leg of lamb. Trimmings will include two dressings, cornbread and regular; pumpkin, apple and mince pie; and a glass of wine included in the cost of each meal. Reservations are required at some but not all restaurants serving the holiday meal, so diners should inquire of individual restaurants beforehand.

Ruidoso Downs trustees table most agenda items Monday eve

Monday night's Ruidoso Downs trustees' meeting was shortened because of the absence of two council members, leading to the tabling of most agenda items.

As a result of the Planning and Zoning Committee meeting, a request was made to requisition up-dated aerial maps to revise a comprehensive plan.

Mayor Norman Wheeler reported the price for these will be $160 for the first set of photos and $120 for the second set. However, if the photographer is asked to fly over the area again and retake the pictures, it would cost $380 for the first set and $80 for the second set.

Trustee Bob Power moved that the issue be tabled until a full council could decide.

Trustees then approved the $2,500 accounts payable, but tabled paying the $9,468.50 required for the new radio equipment for the fire station until a full council is present to vote.

Under old business, the mobile home proposal was set aside until the area is zoned for mobile homes. At that time, the proposal will be revised to accommodate Ruidoso Downs.

Council approved placing a notice to hire a part-time sewer inspector, after January 1. The position is funded for a six month period. A public notice for sewer taps was tabled until a sewer inspector is hired.

Action on Resolution 81-82 concerning delinquent accounts was also tabled pending appearance of a full council.

Judges and clerks for Ruidoso Downs special election December 18 were appointed and approved at the meeting. The special election concerns the intrastate transfer of liquor licenses into Ruidoso Downs. Judge is Mrs. Ethel Wheeler and clerks are Mrs. Elmon Randolph and Mrs. Lee Lawing. Myrtle C. West was named alternate clerk.

The election encompasses anyone in precinct 15 and any absentee voters for precinct 15. Absentee ballots may be accepted as late as 7 p.m., on December 18, however, they can not be mailed out any later than December 11, according to Village Clerk Virginia Spall.

The Ruidoso Downs Volunteer Fire Department presented the resignation of Fire Chief Ray Walker and then a by-laws amendment. The amendment refers to the wording in requirements for the various positions in the fire department. Rather than stating a member must be an active member of the fire department, with a specific number of years with the department, the change calls for use of the word "preferably" instead of "must."

Another by-law amendment was presented, clarifying the role of the assistant fire chief. Although it was moved to table these matters, Spall explained the changes would be made; the fire department just presented the information for the trustees' information.

"All officers can stay in line until we see fit to change them," said Mayor Wheeler.

The mayor then read a letter from Ruidoso Mayor Lloyd Davis and the Ruidoso Board of Trustees granting Ruidoso Downs permission to use Ruidoso's water tank and access road for installing a repeater station and radio equipment for the fire department radio system.

"We'd like to extend our appreciation to Ruidoso for letting us use their facilities," said Wheeler.

The next Ruidoso Downs trustees' meeting is December 14 at 7 p.m. at Ruidoso Downs Municipal Hall.

Police to enforce car licensing laws

Ruidoso police have been ordered to enforce the New Mexico State Traffic Statutes on vehicle licensing, Jim Alston, administrative officer, announced this week.

Owners of vehicles with valid licenses from any country or state may be subject to citations, for not displaying current New Mexico plates, Alston said, under these conditions:

— Accepting employment in New Mexico.

— If the vehicle is used in conducting business in the state.

— Should the vehicle owner become a legal resident of New Mexico.

In general, Alston said, bonafide non-residents may operate a vehicle not registered in New Mexico after a 30 day grace period, but that non-residents remaining in the state more than 180 days must register their vehicles in New Mexico, regardless of whether they are residents.

"Several vehicles have been observed displaying Ruidoso business placards of logos on the side or doors, but registered out of state," Alston said. "This is an illegal practice, whether by design or accidental oversight."

"The Ruidoso police have been instructed to issue traffic citations to violators of these statutes."

"If any questions regarding applicability of the cited statutes arises, any police officer will be happy to explain the requirements."

A MARATHON WIN — The second leg of the Rio Grande Marathon Claiming Series at Sunland Park Saturday went to Sir James, shown above as he surges across the finish line. The gelding is owned by Jimmie Aldredge of Grants. Richard Bickel is up. The duel covered a mile and one-eighth.

April Chandler, Roswell, wins state's United Teenager title

April Chandler, 18, Roswell, as Miss New Mexico United Teenager, will be competing for the national title of Miss United Teenager at the Departmental Auditorium, Washington, D. C., beginning at 7:30 p. m., December 28.

In addition to winning the state title over 56 contestants, she won trophies for most photogenic and citizenship and was first runner up in essay competition.

In the national finals, judging will be on scholastic and civic achievements, beauty, poise and personality, in vying for the title's prizes of $10,000 in cash scholarships, an automobile for her reigning year, a $5,000 appearance contract and a $2,000 wardrobe.

Finalists will also be required to write and recite a one hundred word essay on "My Country."

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Chandler, Roswell, and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Ward, Ruidoso Downs.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES G. EASLEY

Garcia/Easley vows spoken

Puri Garcia, daughter of Mr and Mrs Joseph Garcia of Madrid, Spain, was married October 17 to Charles G. Easley, son of Linda A. Brewington of Ruidoso and Bill C. Easley of Albuquerque.

The traditional Spanish ceremony took place at the Nuestra Senora del Rosario Church in Torreon, Spain.

Currently, Easley is a member of the United States Air Force and is stationed at Torreon Air Force Base, (AFB), Madrid, Spain. The couple will return to the United States in February where they will be stationed at Seymour-Johnson AFB, North Carolina.

The bridegroom is a 1978 graduate of Ruidoso High School.

Thanksgiving dinner preparations, and trying to lasso a non-cooperative tom turkey, and culling cranberries, and deseeding pumpkins, couldn't locate his typewriter in time to bring you his usual Thanksgiving message.

He did find the phone, however, and asked The News to extend his best wishes to one and all for a happy, beautiful and bountiful Thanksgiving.

Yule tree lighting Saturday evening

BY BILLIE LARSON
Staff Writer/Photographer

The community's yule tree was firmly set in place at the "Y," Highways 70 and 37, by a Texas-New Mexico Power Company crew at about 9:30 a.m., yesterday, and needs only to be trimmed with bright holiday ornaments, tinsel and lights, to be ready for Ruidoso's annual Christmas Tree Lighting ceremony, Saturday at 6:30 p.m., at the "Y."

After the tree is ablaze with lights, Santa Claus will arrive from the North Pole to pass out candy to eager moppets and, afterwards, K-Bob's Restaurant will provide free coffee and cookies for everyone. The season of peace on earth, good will to all men will have officially begun.

The giant white fir, felled Monday morning by a village crew, and after a long day of frustrations, such as a broken chainsaw and other trees to be avoided on its descent from a hill off Ski Run Road, was finally brought aboard a winch truck and hauled through Gavilan Canyon to its new place of honor at the junction of the two highways.

Ted McVay of Midland, Texas, will trim the tree, as he has in the past several years, Ed Jungbluth, Chamber of Commerce executive director, said yesterday.

Around Sports

with Gary Brown

This year's college football bowl schedule is one of the most interesting in many years.

Some of the better match-ups are in a few of the lesser-known bowl games. A good example is the Fiesta Bowl New Year's Day. This game matches Southern California and Penn State, two traditional powerhouses. They're certainly a bigger draw than the Rose Bowl opponents, Iowa and Washington.

Penn State is 8-2-1 on the season while Southern California is 9-2. While both teams are a bit down from previous seasons they still rank among the best teams in the country.

Other top match-ups in some of the "smaller" bowls have UCLA playing Michigan in the Bluebonnet Bowl New Year's Eve, Arkansas taking on North Carolina in the Gator Bowl and Oklahoma against Houston in the Sun Bowl, just 120 miles down the road from here.

In fact the Sun Bowl match-up may be the most exciting game on the bowl schedule this season. Forget the respective records of the two teams involved (Oklahoma is 5-4-1 and Houston 8-3-1) because both squads have wide open, explosive attacks. The Sooners are one of the prime movers with the wishbone offense while Houston is adapt with the veer.

The southwest is known for turning out teams that have speed-oriented, explosive offenses.

Come December 26 football fans will be seeing plenty of that in the Sun Bowl.

The Cincinnati Bengals proved they are definitely for real with their decisive win over Denver Sunday.

The 33-21 victory over the Broncos puts the Bengals at the top of my weekly National Football League poll, the first time an American Conference team has been ranked first since the opening week of the season.

Cincinnati is 9-3, two games ahead of Pittsburgh in the Central Division race. They look more like a Super Bowl team right now than any other team in the league.

Dallas moves up to second from third place. The Cowboys' victory over Washington wasn't particularly impressive but Dallas did what it had to win, something it has had plenty of practice in for 16 years. The Cowboys haven't had a losing season since 1965.

Philadelphia is third, their loss to the Giants knocking them out of the top spot. The Eagles are still almost a cinch to make the playoffs for the fourth straight season.

San Francisco is fourth. The 49ers moved up a notch from fifth after their exciting 33-31 win over Los Angeles. San Francisco has won a lot of close games against good teams this year, something which hasn't been a trademark of that club in the past.

Kansas City is ranked fifth. The Chiefs have won their last two games to break out of a brief slump. They're tied with Denver for the American Conference Western Division lead, a game ahead of San Diego. Honorable mention goes to Denver, Pittsburgh, Minnesota, New York Jets, Miami, Buffalo and San Diego.

The AC's Western and Eastern Division races are the most interesting in the league this season. Although the two conferences have been equal in their head to head competition this season there are still more good teams in the American Conference.

Dallas, Philadelphia and San Francisco are as good in the National Conference playoffs and Minnesota is a good bet also. However, no other team is better than 6-6 in the National Conference while eight teams are above the .500 mark in the American Conference.

The last four weeks of the season should provide us with plenty of thrills from the American Conference playoff race. On the other hand, about the only things of interest remaining in the National Conference picture are whether the Eagles or the Cowboys will win the Eastern Division race and which mediocre club will join the playoffs as the second wild card team.

That second wild card team could be Tampa Bay, Detroit, New York Giants, Atlanta, Los Angeles or Washington.

Not one of the above teams has played consistent ball this season.

Braves romp over Holloman, 41-17

Playing a near-perfect game, the White Mountain Middle School boys' A basketball team took a decisive 41-17 victory over host Holloman Monday afternoon in Alamogordo.

The Braves, now 3-0 on the season, jumped off to an 8-3 advantage at the first-quarter break before opening it up in the second period and putting the game away.

White Mountain, using its press to perfection, held the hosts to two points while getting 21 of its own to take a 29-5 halftime advantage.

"We did everything right in that second quarter," said White Mountain coach Dean Hood. "We forced them into throwing the ball away and kept the pressure on. Mark Langston, our point guard, was especially good on both offense and defense. However, all our guys did well."

The Braves cooled down a bit in the second half, only scoring eight points, the same amount as the losers.

"Perhaps we had a bit of a letdown in the second half," Hood said. "I let some of our guys on the bench play and I changed the lineup a lot to give our guys playing experience."

"Defensively it was definitely our best game of the season. Russell Easter did an amazing job on defense and rebounding. He and Bigham (Jason) made some beautiful blocks of shots by the Holloman players."

Bigham led the White Mountain scoring with 13 points and Langston added 10 markers. Randy Reynolds scored eight points, Easter had six and Randy Burgess and David Prins each scored two.

Hood praised the 5-10 Easter and 5-9 Bigham for their play all season.

"They're very consistent," he said.

"Offensively and defensively they dominated the Holloman players. They're very effective at clogging up the lane."

In the B contest White Mountain fell in overtime, 29-24.

The game was tied at the end of regulation time, 24-24 but the hosts scored five points while blanking the Braves in the overtime period.

"It was just mistakes that beat us in that game," Hood said of the B contest. "We had some three second violations and a lack of experience hurt us. Those kind of mistakes are overcome with playing time and experience."

Oscar Torres led the Braves with five points and Jeff Willingham added four.

White Mountain is scheduled to travel to Tularosa Thursday, December 3, in its next game. However, a Tularosa scheduling problem may force a date change.

The White Mountain girls, who are 0-2 on the season, are also scheduled to play Tularosa December 3. If that game is moved back on the schedule both Braves boys' and girls' teams will have visiting Captain as their next game Monday, December 7.

Eagle Creek has Special Olympics

Fort Stanton Hospital and Eagle Creek Ski Area will host the 1982 New Mexico Special Olympics Winter Games January 26-28.

The games will include participants from the counties of Lincoln, Otero, Chaves, Lea, Dona Ana, Grant, Curry, DeBaca, Guadalupe, Roosevelt, Hidalgo and Luna.

Special Olympians, chaperones and instructors will be arriving at the Camp of the Nazarene in Angus, January 28. Fort Stanton will provide a dinner for the athletes, chaperones and instructors that night.

The next day Alpine and Nordic skiing instruction will be given to the Special Olympians at Eagle Creek Ski Area. Competition will begin in the slalom, giant slalom, 100 meter race, and one kilometer race January 28.

A registration fee of $25 will be assessed each athlete and sponsor. This fee does not include rental fees for the ski equipment. Information regarding ski rental equipment can be obtained from Games Coordinator Jeanne Culbertson.

All registration forms and fees must be received not later than December 12 and should be mailed to Culbertson at Post Office Box 8, Fort Stanton, New Mexico, 88323.

Warrior wrestlers impressive in opener

Ruidoso High School's wrestling team tasted its first competition of the season Saturday and came away with a highly satisfying performance.

Eleven Warriors placed in a takedown tournament at New Mexico School for the Visually Handicapped (NMSVH) in Alamogordo despite the presence of Texas powerhouse Burgess of El Paso, Texas.

"Burgess finished second in Texas last season, the first time in several years it didn't finish first," said Warrior coach Gerald Ames. "Considering the competition I thought we did really well, so we're far ahead of last season."

Ray Montes (105 pounds); Henry Rue (118 pounds); Tony Rue (138 pounds) and Darin Gwyn (155 pounds) each took a second place for Ruidoso in the non-team scoring tournament.

H. R. Lueras and Scott Ciraulo each garnered third places for Ruidoso. Lueras competed in the 105 pound division and Ciraulo in the 147 pound class. Other Warriors placing were Chris Woodul, fourth in the 128 pound class; Dirk Bustamante, fourth in the 132 pound division; Exell Clark, fourth in the 187 pound class; Chuck Schmidt, fourth in the 112 pound competition and Richard Anklem, fifth in the 126 pound class.

There were several other schools entered besides Burgess, Ruidoso and the host school, but the El Paso powerhouse stood out by itself.

"They're awesome," said Ames. "But we did a lot better this time around against them than we did last year. However, you can do everything right the way you're supposed to do it and their wrestlers would still take advantage of some small mistake you make and defeat you." The next tournament for the Warriors will again be at NMSVH Saturday, December 5. After that tournament Ruidoso will travel to Las Cruces for a big two day tournament December 11-12.

Eagle Creek opens, not much skiing likely this weekend

It looks like a dry Thanksgiving for ski enthusiasts in the Ruidoso area. Eagle Creek Ski and Recreation Area will open only its beginner's slope tomorrow while Sierra Blanca Ski Resort has no plans to open during the Thanksgiving weekend.

"We haven't had any snow fall and it's been too warm the past week to even make snow," said Roy Parker, manager of Sierra Blanca. "To really make snow you need a temperature of no higher than 28 or 29 degrees and it probably should be colder than that."

Both Sierra Blanca and Eagle Creek made snow during the brief cold spell last week but the sudden warming trend over the weekend made it hard to make more.

"We made enough last week to open the beginner's slope," said Paul Southwick, owner of Eagle Creek. "We made a little snow last night (Monday) but we need more cold weather to really make a lot of it for the intermediate slope."

Last year both Eagle Creek and Sierra Blanca opened some slopes for the Thanksgiving holidays.

But this year if the ski resorts are to open their major slopes within the next week they'll need a lot of help from "Old Man Winter."

Cree Meadows Shoot winners named

There were seven winners at the Cree Meadows Country Club Turkey Shoot Golf Tournament Sunday afternoon.

Winners include Stan Hicks, Jack Hicks, Frank Sawyer, Hal Cliff, Chuck Hawthorne, Don Wimberly and Wayne Sivage. Each winner was presented with a Thanksgiving turkey for his efforts. Twenty-three golfers competed in the one-day tournament. The golfers, playing in foursomes, were allowed to shoot a limit of 71 with a handicap.

There aren't any more major golf tournaments at Cree Meadows until the spring.

New irrigation system due at Fort Stanton school

BY JEAN PATTERSON
Staff Writer/Photographer

Most of the land has been taken over by weeds with barely a trace of the food that was once produced on it.

But with the completion of the Fort Stanton irrigation project, the farm at Fort Stanton Training School may once again be able to produce food and livestock.

The new irrigation pipeline parallels most of the old irrigation ditch, possibly used as long ago as when the Fort was first built, in the late 1800's.

"The old irrigation ditch was wasting water," said Louis Figueroa, soil conservationist and supervisor of the project. Water was diverted from the river (Rio Ruidoso) to the areas that needed the water.

"The river is not a constant source," Figueroa said. Also, once the water had moved through the ditch about half way to the end, it encountered a rocky, porous surface that wouldn't hold the water, so it rarely made its way past this point.

"The new well we've dug is a constant water source," Figueroa said. In addition, because of a pump in the new system, the pipeline is able to follow a more direct route to the areas to be irrigated. Because of steep inclines, the old irrigation ditch had to follow a contoured, indirect path in order to reach its destination.

Although the irrigation project was proposed in 1977, it didn't get to the planning stages until 1978. In March of 1978, the Soil Conservation Service was finally able to begin surveying.

"It took until last year to get all the funds appropriated from the state and federal governments," Figueroa said. The project is a joint funding program through the New Mexico Department of Health and Environment and the federal agency, the Soil Conservation Service, through the Southwest Rocky Mountain Resource, Conservation and Development committee.

"Last fall we started pump drilling and the pump was installed two months ago," Figueroa said. October 14 marked the beginning of digging a trench in which to place the pipe.

"It's been a slow process," Figueroa said. "We're using plastic pipe, and a rock more than a half inch in diameter can wear a hole in it." Because of that, excavation has been slow. In areas where the soil is rocky, a bed of fine dirt has to be prepared. When the crew is ready to put dirt over the pipeline, it has to be strained through a screen to remove any large rocks.

The area to be irrigated covers about 20 acres, according to Figueroa. A valve or hydrant for releasing water is placed to serve every acre individually. Some of the land near the end of the pipeline was terraced at one time because it had been "sloping badly" according to Figueroa. Most of that area has never been irrigated because of problems associated with the old ditch. One such problem involved vegetation along the ditch. Much of the water was absorbed by these plants. In addition, Figueroa said the vegetation had to be cleared by hand each spring to allow the water to run through the ditch.

The plastic pipeline, made of poly vinyl chloride (PVC) is "easy to handle and work with and is long-lasting," Figueroa said. However, when filling in the ditch with dirt, caution must be taken so as to not damage the flexible pipe.

"We put water in the pipes first, then we put some soil on top," Figueroa said. If the pipes were not filled with water, they would probably collapse under the weight of the soil.

"More water is put in the trench so the soil is packed. When it dries, the mud hardens and creates an envelope around the pipe." Then the rest of the trench can be filled in.

Another phenomena associated with the plastic pipe is the heating up of the pipe under sunlight and cooling off at night, causing the pipe to expand and contract. One of the joints along the pipeline came loose because of this, causing some water loss.

The project is estimated to be completed sometime within the next two weeks. Residents of the Fort Stanton Training School will probably plant some crops in the spring, while other parts of the irrigated land will be used for grazing.

PAINTING PART OF THE well and pump equipment is Ramone Aragon, maintenance man II for the irrigation project. The specially treated paint protects the steel from the elements.

WARM SUNNY DAYS continue to attract Ruidoso tennis players to the courts. Here, Ora Mae Templeton and Ted Durham team up for doubles at Sierra Swim and Racquet Club. Many netters play on the Sierra courts every day, particularly in the summer and spring.

ART, DINING AND ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE

El Paso Patty's success story

BY DICK ALWAN

A remarkable success story — with an El Paso connection — is now unfolding in Florida.

The story is rife with irony since it concerns the two-year-old filly, El Paso Patty.

As the name suggests, El Paso Patty is linked to El Paso, Texas — and escaped serious notice by Southwest horsemen when she could have been purchased at a bargain basement price.

In recent months, the filly blasted out three stakes victories at Suffolk Downs in Boston, Massachusetts — a track which averaged nearly $1 million a day in wagering during its recently completed meeting. El Paso Patty holds a career record of five wins and a third from 10 starts, and has won nearly $70,000.

Her owner, Paul Denes (a businessman from Ft. Lauderdale, Florida), recently turned down $700,000 for El Paso Patty.

The point of irony is that Denes purchased the dam of El Paso Patty — a nine-year-old mare called Rule The Wind — during a Sunland Park sale some four years ago. At the time, Rule The Wind was in foal to Hopeful Venture, the result being El Paso Patty.

Normally, when a Southwest horseman goes after top thoroughbred stock, he thinks in terms of Kentucky, California, New York or Florida. But here we have a case of an out-of-towner spotting a top prospect in our own backyard.

Bob Varey, publicity chief for Suffolk Downs, puts it this way: "She's beaten everything we have here, including colts. And I don't think we've seen her at her best. Of course, she's yet to run against the 'real iron' in New York. But from our point of view, El Paso Patty has been sensational."

Just a few days ago, the New England Turf Writer's Association convened for its annual meeting and named El Paso Patty the New England champion two-year-old of 1981.

So what's the story behind Paul Denes, and how did he find El Paso Patty when local horsemen let her slip through their fingers?

Denes, as it turns out, has been in the breeding business only five years or so — and El Paso Patty happens to be his "first involvement in racing." One of his partners is Patricia Kennedy of Hyllview Farms, a 35-acre breeding operation in Ft. Lauderdale.

About four years ago, Denes was reading through a number of sale catalogues which customarily flow across his desk. He picked up the Sunland catalogue, and noticed Hip No. 4 — Rule The Wind. He recalls his observations this way: "She was a nine-year-old stakes mare who had won a lot of races — but not a lot of money. Only $34,000 or so. The first three horses in the sale were quarter horses, so I thought she might go unnoticed. I expected to pay about $8,000 for her." Patricia Kennedy was heading to her. Since Patricia Kennedy was heading to the Southwest on other business, Denes suggested: "Why don't you stop off in El Paso, go over to the Sunland Sale and check out this mare?"

Patricia visited the sale, liked Rule The Wind, and had her hand in the air when the bidding stopped — at $8,000, just as Denes had projected. Later, when Rule The Wind delivered a bouncing baby foal, it was easy coming up with the name: El Paso for the area in which the mare was purchased, and Patty for Patricia.

El Paso Patty kicked off her racing career at Hialeah last April, winning brilliantly against maidens. "She ran three furlongs in 33 2-5 seconds and won by 6 and one half lengths," Denes said. "The jockey was so far ahead he stood up and held her back. The racing form chart had this odd notation: 'Drew off while pulled up...'"

Denes goes on: "I thought the win was sensational. Both Patricia and I were ecstatic." Their trainer, Dominic Imprescia, was also convinced. His opinion is one that counts — since his barn included Timely Writer, the probable winter book favorite for the 1982 Kentucky Derby (the colt's wins include the Champagne, the Hopeful, the Mayflower Stakes).

Imprescia said of El Paso Patty: "This could be the fastest horse I've ever trained."

But El Paso Patty's career took a downturn when she developed a throat infection. "She was blowing like a freight train," Denes said. The filly was shipped to Suffolk Downs, where a veterinarian found two pus pockets in her throat. The result: a 40 day layoff. When she was back in racing, she tried colts at five furlongs, winning by five lengths and missing the five furlongs track mark by only four fifths.

By early September, El Paso Patty was ready to start tearing up the Suffolk stakes schedule. She demolished the $30,000-added Priscilla Stakes for two-year-old fillies, winning by nine lengths at five and one half furlongs (at 3-2 odds). "About 100 feet from the wire, the jockey just showed her the stick to remind her to keep running," Denes said.

ALL THEY COULD DO was follow the leaders as Sunday's Texas Derby at Sunland Park. Born To Lead is well in the clear at the finish of

Born To Lead derby winner

Born To Lead stamped himself as the top three-year-old of the current fall season at Sunland Park with a runaway victory in Sunday's 23rd staging of the Texas Derby.

The classic covered the grueling mile-and-sixteenth distance and offered a total purse of $8,625. The winner's slice, which amounted to $5,175, pushed Born To Lead's 1981 earnings up to nearly $30,000.

Born To Lead, running as a 6-5 favorite in the eight head field, charged under the wire with a 3 1/4-length lead and returned mutual payoffs of $4.80, $2.60 and $2.20. The colt is owned and trained by Al McClain of Boone, Colorado. Danny Summerow was aboard with the top load of 121 pounds.

Irish Eyes, a 2-1 shot handled by Richard Bickel for Carlos Alexander of Lovington, finished second and returned $2.80 to place, a lopsided $2.80 to show. Colonel Day, a 3-1 pick under Louie Gomez, got in third. The show price was $2.80.

The outcome was pretty much a popular victory, with no darkhorse managing to stick his foot in the door at any point in the lengthy journey.

Colonel Day got off to an alert start and assumed control on the rail in the early portions of the trip. Irish Eyes also moved into early contention. Born To Lead stayed in third place, well within striking distance. At the half way point of the backstretch, Colonel Day had about as much as he could stand, and began to give out.

Next, it was Irish Eyes' turn to try fending off Born To Lead, but the latter clearly had too much in reserve. He took control eagerly at the top of the stretch. Irish Eyes, however, wasn't ready to throw in the towel. The filly mustered another attack, and for a few strides, she appeared to be gaining on the favorite.

But Irish Eyes could get no closer than one and a half lengths of Born To Lead. The latter got a rousing stretch ride from Summerow and opened up in the final half furlong. There was no question as to the outcome during most of the stretch run.

Born To Lead's clocking of 1:44 4/5 seconds equalled the seasonal record. The victory was the colt's second straight at Sunland and swelled his 1981 record to 6-0-3 from 19 starts. Earlier this year, Born To Lead accounted for the Raton Derby as an even money favorite at La Mesa Park.

Irish Eyes collected $1,697 for her runnerup effort, while a $1,035 paycheck went to Colonel Day. The latter is owned and trained by Charlie Allison of El Paso, Texas.

Buffalo T. Bell, who was expected to be a top Derby threat, was scratched.

A PAIR OF OUTSIDERS loomed up at the wire and deadheaded for win in Saturday's featured Directors' Purse at Sunland Park.

The five and one half furlong struggle ended in a jumble at the wire as five horses tried to stick a nose in front.

The stewards called for a photo finish print, studied the situation closely, and finally called it a stalemate between Hempen Daylight, a 20-1 shot, and Love And Laughter, a 12-1 outsider. It was the second deadheat of the season.

Hempen Daylight, piloted by Wayne Buehrer for Bobby Reeves of Sayre, Oklahoma, handed out mutual prices of $20.40, $21 and $8.60. Love And Laughter, a filly who toils for Warren Moore of Wagon Mound, refunded $14, $15.20 and $4.80. Louie Figueroa was at the controls.

Dynamic Sesenta, a 2-1 shot handled by Vickie Smallwood, mustered a strong run at the head of the lane and appeared ready to take control. But the gelding was unable to keep his surge going and faded.

For both Hempen Daylight and Love And Laughter, the split victory marked their first wins of the Sunland season.

Texas Duster, another 2-1 shot, tried to squeeze through in the final strides but ran into tight traffic.

The Directors' Purse was negotiated in 1:05 3/5 seconds.

Sunland Park Hoofbeats

BY MARK GORDON

TRAINERS Billy Hitt and J. Michael Welch each qualified two horses to the Sunland Park Fall Thoroughbred Futurity on December 6. The six furlong chase offers the winner $25,000 from the total purse of $51,000. Hitt qualified Shesgotobeadandy, who won the third trial heat by one and one-fourth lengths, and Spanish Spade, who was third in the second trial race. Welch earned final berths with Tonkawa Charger, who captured the second trial race by one and one-fourth lengths, and Nukkidintown, who was second to Mia Serena in the first of four trial races. Twelve horses earned spots in the fall's richest Sunland Park race for thoroughbreds. The complete list of entrants: Mia Serena, Nukkidintown and Five R's Tequila from the first trial; Tonkawa Charger, John's Mary and Spanish Spade from the second division; Shesgotobeadandy, Luckluster and Crash Can from the third race and Whelp, Jack The Knife and Canek Canek from the fourth division. Whelp, a first time starter, turned in the fastest time with a 1:11 reading for the six furlongs. A King Of The Castle colt, he tallied a neck win over Jack The Knife, trained by Clifford C. Lambert, he's owned by Louis Brooks of Sweetwater, Texas. He was ridden by Nicky Wilson.

JOHN LIVELY, who has ridden in several Riley Allison Futurities and has campaigned numerous times at Sunland Park, is recovering from injuries suffered from a spill during the fifth race on November 13 at Churchill Downs in Louisville, Kentucky. A spokeswoman from Churchill Downs said Lively was hospitalized for several days following the spill with several broken ribs and collapsed lung. He is expected to be out of action for a few months.

FOR THE SECOND consecutive week, Sunland Park has announced an increase of $1,800 a day in its purse structure. This is the second increase during the fall season. Racing Secretary Donald Rausch said he would add the additional money to the bottom purses. "I'm going to try to get the bottom purses over $2,100. Sunland Park is really doing good. It's a team effort by everybody," he said.

MUTUEL MANAGER Jerry Knott reported the new forecourt addition has really helped the forecourt serve the wagering public. Through the first five weeks of racing, the forecourt windows have contributed 17.38 percent of the total handle. The main line still leads with 47 percent while the clubhouse has provided 32.71 percent and the Director's Room has added 2.93 percent to the total handle. A year ago, the forecourt added 11 percent of the total mutuel handle, but with the new enclosed facilities, additional windows, concessions and rest rooms, business has sharply increased. There are 12 sellers open on Saturdays and Sundays with eight on Fridays while four cashiers work on Fridays and five on Saturdays and Sundays. "I've been pleased with the forecourt. The crowd likes it and that's the main thing," Knott said.

EXCLUSIVE VENTURE tallied his third straight victory at Sunland Park by scoring a half length verdict over Dunker Bill in Friday's fifth race at six furlongs. The Hopeful Venture gelding started his streak by winning a race for $12,500 claiming horses on November 7 and then defeated allowance foes on November 13. Friday's race against allowance competition, boosted the three-year-old's 1981 record to six victories with one third in 11 outings. He's earned $12,196 for owner Chris Albersold of Pampa, Texas. He's trained by Jerry Jamison and was ridden by Harla Webb.

HARLA WEBB apparently escaped serious injury during a spill in Friday's 10th race. She was riding Nanaolou when the three-year-old Sturdy Indian filly fell near the head of the stretch. Harla, Sunland Park's sixth leading rider, was taken to a local hospital. She was released and was back galloping horses early Saturday morning.

SATURDAY WAS a day of big payoffs. Saturday's Big Q returned $15,655.20 to two winning tickets. The first half of the Big Q coupled Greatest Holme, an 11-1 choice with Ella's Fellow, a $2.60-1 outsider. The second half employed the 3-40-1 favorite, Sir James with Skootempaw, a 6.80-1 pick. There were only 30 valid tickets after the 10th race. It was the season's largest Big Q payoff, easily eclipsing the season's former highest payoff, a $7,643.40 Big Q on opening day. Other healthy payoffs included a $28 show return on Hope He Has It, who ran third in the fifth race, a mile chase for New Mexico bred claiming horses running for a $2,500 price. Hope He Has It was a 35-1 selection under Frank Pacheco. Ella's Fellow, one and three-fourths lengths behind Greatest Holme in the first half of the Big Q, paid $52.40 to place and $24.60 to show.

OFFICIALS from the International United States-Mexico Border Olympic Committee attended Saturday's races and the seventh race was named in their honor. THE RUIDOSO-SUNLAND Board of Directors had their regular monthly meeting on Friday and attended the races over the weekend.

THREE HORSES SET or tied season's fastest readings over the weekend. Sir James, who won the Rio Grande Marathon Claiming Series No. 2 on Saturday, toured the mile and one-eighth course in 1:53, the best this season. On Sunday, Piston Popper roared to a 21.87 clocking over the 400 yards while winning the third race. In the featured Texas Derby at one and one-sixteenth miles, Born To Lead raced to a 1:44 4/5 clocking, which tied the clocking set by Little Guy on October 31.

SUNLAND'S CURRENT daily wagering average (after 17 race days) stands at $303,761. That's a whopping gain of 23.87 percent over the $245,619 average at this point a year ago. Current betting-per-race is $28,482, up 21.68 percent. The total handle so far is $5,163,932 — as compared to last year's $3,929,905 over the same period.

THE LEADING POST position over the weekend was the No. 5 with six winners. Here's the seasonal total: No. 1 — 15 wins; No. 2 — 26; No. 3 — 28; No. 4 — 11; No. 5 — 26; No. 6 — 18; No. 7 — 18; No. 8 — 22; No. 9 — 15; No. 10 — 17; No. 11 — 0; No. 12 — 0.

Wilderness Wisdom

with Wayne Calloway

Tip From Reader — Since hunting season is upon us, people are taking to the fields and woods in great numbers. This seasonal flurry of activity can have a very significant impact on the well being of these wild areas. It might be well to review the common sense rules of protecting the environment while afield.

Perhaps the greatest threat man brings to the woods is that of fire. Fires, of course, destroy precious wildlife habitat and valuable timber that requires decades to grow. Fire prevention in the wild is only common sense in its purest form. Things like correctly extinguishing cigarettes, dousing campfires, and not tossing lit cigarettes from a vehicle. It's all so easy if we just think.

Respect for property is another common sense, but often neglected, rule. It matters not whether the property is private, state, federal, or whatever. It all deserves the same respect. Don't cut or deface live trees (without permission, in case you are cutting firewood). Always leave the area in as good, or better, condition than you found it. This means packing out cans, bottles, and all other trash. Don't bury it for animals to dig up.

If you hunt on private property, a little extra courtesy and consideration will go a long way toward getting an invitation to return. Offer to help the landowner with some of his menial chores. Chances are he won't take advantage of your offer, but he will appreciate your sincerity. If he does let you help you'll probably enjoy the accomplishment. If you are fortunate enough to bag game on his property, share some of it with him. After all, it was his work, money, and generosity that enabled you to enjoy the hunt.

Being a real sportsman is no big trick. Common sense and sincere courtesy are the keys to being able to both enjoy and maintain the outdoors. Isn't that a reasonable price for the assurance that the generations that follow will still be able to enjoy the fields and woods, the same as you?

Cattle thieves sought

Consistent.

That's about the nicest thing you can say about the cattle rustlers who have been plaguing the Stine Ranch just east of Maxwell over the past three years.

In 1979, the thieves took 12 head of mixed breed steers and followed it up by taking 11 head in 1980. This year the total has reached 13, bringing the overall loss to somewhere in the vicinity of $16,200.

This week the State Crime Stoppers Commission is also being consistent—it's offering its standard $1,000 reward for any information leading to the arrest and indictments of the offenders in the rustling case.

Norman and Chris Moser of Dekalb, Texas, owners of the Stine Ranch, report that the missing steers all weighed between 500 to 800 pounds at the time of their disappearance.

There were various brands on the missing cattle. Some had a "Running M" on the left hip with either the number "3" or "5" underneath the brand. Others had a "Running N-Bar" on the right shoulder or a "Z-Bar" on the left hip. And the most recent missing steers had a "Running M-Five-Slash" or a "Z-Bar-Slash" on the left hip.

All of the "Running N-Bar", "Z-Bar" and "Z-Bar-Slash" cattle had square underbits taken out of each ear, making them even more identifiable.

The Moser's say that the cattle were taken sometime between May and October of each year from their ranch, which borders up to the town of Maxwell on the east.

Anyone having any information about the rustlers or the location of the missing cattle is asked to call the State Crime Stoppers Commission at its toll-free number, 1-800-432-6933, any time between 8 a. m. to 5 p. m., Monday through Friday. Citizens also can call the New Mexico Livestock Board at 1-247-2253. Callers do not have to reveal their identities.

Meanwhile, several Crime Stoppers programs here in New Mexico reported recent successes. A call to Santa Fe Crime Stoppers assisted detectives in arresting a 16-year-old Santa Fe High School student on suspicion of attempted murder, aggravated arson and burglary in connection with a January 17 incident at the La Fonda hotel. A 77-year-old man had been beaten and robbed of $4, then bound with a belt and coat hanger before the suspects set fire to his room. A second suspect is being sought in the case.

And Albuquerque Crime Stoppers scored a triple play recently, when one tip led to the capture of Shirlene Montoya, wanted on a murder warrant out of San Diego, California. Montoya, also wanted for parole violation out of New Mexico, had been the subject of a State Crime Stoppers "Crime of the Week" in August of this year. To complete the triple play, the Albuquerque program also received a call which led them to Francisco Tafuya, 29, an escapee from the city-county jail, and still another call helped detectives arrest three suspects in the burglary of Dial Safety Shoes of Albuquerque.

A total of 57 felony crimes were solved around New Mexico last month as a result of calls to the State Crime Stoppers Commission and the 32 local programs, bringing to 3,847 the number of major cases solved by the combined reward programs since 1978.

In addition, calls to Crime Stoppers assisted police in the recovery of almost $500,000 worth of stolen property and narcotics last month.

Finker brothers to be feted for 'ag' achievements

Four brothers grew up on a dryland farm in eastern Colorado, went to the same university and graduated with degrees in agronomy, went on to get master's degrees in agronomy, and all earned a Ph. D.

Two of the brothers served in the Army during World War II and two served in the Navy. The four brothers then spent most of their lives teaching and doing research in agriculture.

Morris and Ralph Finker are both part of the New Mexico State University faculty. Their brothers, Verne and Alva, carved their careers with universities in the southeastern United States.

All four Finker brothers will be honored as distinguished alumni by Colorado State University in ceremonies December 1 on the Fort Collins, Colorado, campus.

Morris Finkner, second oldest of the foursome, said, "I don't think any of us consciously planned for it to come out this way. We never got together as a family to pick out specific goals."

"It was more of an evolution. But I'm sure all four of us boys were motivated by our parents. Neither of them finished the eighth grade, but they never kept us out of school to do farm work."

The four brothers attended Colorado State University because it was close to their home at Akron, Colorado. Alva graduated in 1938, Morris in 1943, Verne in 1947, and Ralph in 1950. All earned degrees in agronomy.

Alva, Morris and Verne went to Kansas State University to earn their master's degree in agronomy. Ralph also got a master's in agronomy, but he decided on Iowa State University.

Alva and Morris completed their Ph. D. work at North Carolina State, and Verne and Ralph were awarded their Ph. D. from Iowa State University.

Alva stayed at North Carolina State as a faculty member, specializing in agricultural statistics. He has since become senior vice president of the Research Triangle Institute, a private research firm that does considerable contract research work for the universities in Durham, Chapel Hill and Raleigh, North Carolina.

Verne also decided to stay in the Southeast, but he chose Kentucky. He is now professor of agronomy and plant breeder at the University of Kentucky in Lexington.

Morris came to New Mexico State University (NMSU) in 1952, and was the first consulting statistician at a New Mexico university. "We called agricultural statistics biometrics in those days," he said.

Morris left NMSU for a couple of years, but came back in 1956. He was named head of the department of experimental statistics, College of Agriculture and Home Economics, when that department was created in 1970.

Ralph spent the first 13 years of his professional career as a plant breeder for the American Crystal Sugar Company, specializing in sugar beet development.

He came to NMSU in 1966 as professor of agronomy and researcher at the Plains Branch Experiment Station near Clovis, and was named superintendent of the Plains Branch Station in 1970.

Although the four brothers still own the 800 acre family farm in eastern Colorado, none of them apparently had dreams of going home to become full time farmers.

Morris said, "Our family went through the Dust Bowl years—the early 1930's when things were really bad. I can remember riding a horse anywhere on those 800 acres and never opening a gate because the dust was blown level with the top of fences."

The family farm, only four miles south of where their father homesteaded, has been converted back to grass and is now leased to cattlemen in the area.

The four brothers have earned their own honors and awards over the past decades, and have been recognized in the past for their family partnership in agricultural research.

However, the distinguished alumni award at Colorado State University December 1 is the first award that all four will share.

Focus on Small Business

by E. Maine Shafer

Q. I can deal with an angry customer, but when I must give a speech I am terrified. Any suggestions?

A. Many bosses say one of their greatest fears is public speaking. They may direct their firms most ably, but put them before an audience and they become uncomfortable simply because they are on their own and they will be judged as individuals.

The best way to overcome apprehension is by adequate preparation. First, get the audience interested in what you have to say. For that to happen, you have to be interested yourself. So you have to be convinced, first, that your message is important; only then will you have an emotional commitment to communicate your ideas.

You have to establish credibility and convince your audience by your looks, your gestures, and even your posture.

Speak loudly enough and look at individual members in the audience. Let them catch a glimpse of your eyes because it makes them feel included.

For most speakers, it's best to learn to use an outline rather than a written speech. Few of us are masters at reading a speech. Try to be spontaneous and natural. Remember that you are the face of your firm. If you can develop rapport, the audience will leave with good feelings about your company and its products. Therefore, mastery of speaking skills is important.

One last tip: Even veteran and accomplished speakers feel stage fright just before beginning to speak. Stage fright may be difficult to overcome but the pre-speech tensions can be eased by taking deep rhythmic breaths for four or five minutes before speaking.

Inside The Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE—They're tough. New Mexico schoolteachers who react to what they read in columns like this one come down very heavily on the writer.

Oh, one might fault the logic in their letters just a little, but nobody can say they aren't sincere.

Take the teacher who wrote from Artesia.

The writer of this letter seemed most of all to want to measure his or her credentials against those of this correspondent.

The letter says: "What are your qualifications? When was the last writing course you took? What was your grade-point average?"

None of that information is to the point. The writer of this column is not a teacher in the school system of New Mexico. Nobody is required to attend his daily maudering.

Yet this person who writes from Artesia has students who must appear before her every day or they violate the law.

Then the letterwriter issues a challenge: "When I take my test, I want you to take it too."

The test in that case consists of whatever one the state of New Mexico chooses to give its teachers after the state school board determined that the men and women in the classroom should be subject to such indignities. They (teachers) are to be tested. They resent that.

So let's say here and now that the writer of this column agrees to take any test any teacher in New Mexico is ever asked to take.

It's nobody's business, but he happens to have the ordinary and advanced degrees which will make taking such a test an easy situation. He can also read and write.

Meanwhile, as the letterwriter from Artesia was pushing this columnist around, another teacher from the same school district also wrote to give his or her impression of the shortcomings of the writer.

If you want to know why those of us who are in favor of basic tests for teachers get our notion that such tests might winnow out the incompetents, take a look at this paragraph.

You get ten points for each of the grammatical errors you can find in this short passage, submitted by a certificated teacher in the state's public schools:

"In conclusion, editorials like yours, are in a good part one of the reasons for a deteriorating educational environment in our country. As once was said a long time ago: There are 2 sides to every coin. We have heard yours; now let the teachers have their say. Teachers have always been tested in our nation, if you don't believe it look around you at how you live as compared to some of our foreign neighbors."

This writer can only find seven serious grammatical errors in that paragraph.

Yet the writer of it obviously feels he or she is a competent teacher.

The wrath generated in such a response is over the fact that somebody should have the temerity to say that not all teachers in all schools in New Mexico can—do we dare say this? Read and write.

We maintain not everybody who has been designated a teacher has those—as educators call them—"basic skills."

Is that some secret we should keep entirely to ourselves? Isn't it true in the schools your children attend?

Isn't it time to come out and say it right out loud? What is this impulse we have to hide the truth?

What New Mexico needs is teachers who can teach.

What that first requires is knowledge.

AGGRAVATING TRIP

A category of wasteful spending that never ceases to agitate the taxpayer is international jet-setting by members of Congress.

Lawmakers know times are tough but they still can't resist traveling at taxpayer expense. And even though the cost of their jaunts are down from the $4.5 million spent in 1979, our representatives still are spending megabucks. During the first half of this year, 169 congressmen visited 45 countries at a cost of about $2.5 million.

The most expensive of these excursions was the $367,000 junket by 14 House members in January. They traveled around the world, visiting Tokyo, Singapore, Bombay, Cairo, Tel Aviv and Athens—to check out the Russian navy in the Pacific and Indian oceans.

A national news magazine reports that in August, during the congressional recess, 41 congressmen, often accompanied by spouses and aides, traveled to some 30 countries. Accounting details are yet to be recorded for the public.

Meanwhile, Representative Tom Corcoran, R-Ill., is seeking some reductions in junketing by offering a bill that would require in specific detail the objectives and costs of such trips—and that they be approved by roll-call vote.

Unfortunately, Corcoran's measure is given zero chances of passing. Congressmen will continue to take their little would trips until the taxpayers of the nation cancel their tickets.—News-Bulletin, Belen

Sense & Nonsense

U.S. Sen. Pete Domenici

A letter I received recently made my day. The letter came from Gary and Betty Shepard, and their daughter, Becky, of Hobbs, who were vacationing with his parents and dropped in for a visit at my office. Unfortunately, I was not in the office at the time, but our receptionist, Rosemary Valdez, made them feel right at home as only a native New Mexican can.

Their letter of thanks for our hospitality reached my desk, however, and an excerpt from it summarized the impressions most New Mexicans have of our nation's capital on their first visit. The letter read:

"And yes — we got on the wrong subway. And yes — we got lost — on foot — somewhere in Washington — in the rain — without our raincoats."

And yes — we delighted in our beautiful capital city.

Certainly we hope to come again."

You see, it takes more than a little rain, a loss of direction, and a wrong way subway to keep enthusiastic New Mexicans down. But the Shepards pointed out three critical problems faced by visitors to Washington, D. C. — the subway system, the rain, and getting lost. These three areas are most distressing to visitors and, in many cases, even seasoned natives of D. C. Let me try to explain, to the best of my knowledge, the unique phenomena found only in our nation's capital.

The subway in Washington runs on a very simple color-coded system, or at least that is what METRO officials claim. Presently, there are three subway lines — the Orange, the Blue, and the Red. On part of the system, both the Orange and Blue lines share the same track. This used to be easy since all a person had to do was look at the color of the sign on the train to identify it. But now METRO officials have a new scheme. Orange line trains are placed on Blue line tracks and vice-versa, so, as they explain it, cut down on overcrowding during rush hour on the more travelled routes. Now, you no longer look at where a subway train has been or where it is, but rather where it is going to eventually end up. Do you understand this? Neither did we.

Rain is quite another problem. Since many New Mexicans seldom see more than 10-12 inches of rain a year, it is hard to adjust to a sunless environment that pours out precipitation with only the slightest provocation of atmospheric change. To give you an example, it only rained twice last week. On for three days and once for four. The rain here is also not the pleasant cleansing downpour that New Mexicans enjoy, but rather a depressing dripping, or drizzling, or sprinkling that continues for hours until a person is drenched to the bone. My advice to future travelers would be: If you happen to have an umbrella stuck away in your closet, it would not hurt to shake off the cobwebs and bring it along with you next time you visit Washington.

Getting lost is a major complaint of visitors and natives alike, but there is a good explanation for this. Washington was originally designed to be a fortified city and the streets were laid out in this confusing manner to stall invading enemy troops while the American troops prepared defenses. By the time the enemy troops got through maneuvering around circles, streets that end up nowhere, and streets that brought them back where they started from or on the opposite side of the capital they wanted to be, they were too exhausted to make up any sort of fighting force. Many Washington visitors and new commuters feel this same way at the end of a long day of sightseeing and commuting.

I hope these explanations will make any visit you are considering to Washington much more pleasant. It is always a pleasure to meet and talk with visiting New Mexicans whenever they drop by my Washington office. I try to meet with all I can whenever I can pry myself away from this busy schedule. If you ever get the chance to visit our nation's capital, please feel free to drop in and say hello, and if you need help or directions, my staff and I are only too glad to help. After all, it's not every day that we get visitors from home to brighten our day.

editorial

We commend the Ruidoso trustees for going on record as favoring acquisition of the Ruidoso Natural Gas Company.

This action means only that the voters will decide, next March, if the village should operate the utility.

Though consultant Willis Umholtz has recommended that the village pursue ownership, based on his findings in a feasibility study he conducted, it is apparent that an in depth study of the company's financial status must be made.

Also, the condition of existing transmission lines and whatever other physical properties the company owns must be determined.

Umholtz advised the trustees last Thursday that the City of Deming is successfully operating a gas utility.

This could mean Ruidoso could do likewise — or that Ruidoso couldn't.

Prior to the March election, at which time voters will decide if they want the village in the gas distribution business, all factors on the company's operation should be made known to the voters.

Should facts and figures indicate the village could operate the gas company successfully, then it might be a sound venture.

It's possible, in the long run, Ruidoso residents could benefit financially from a village owned and operated gas utility. On the other hand, maybe not.

However, let's not jump to any hasty conclusion. Let's wait until the facts are in.

And remember, the final decision will be up to the voters. — CD

COLLARS FOR SHEEP?

Seems the United States Fish and Wildlife Services wants to have the nation's sheep ... at least those likely to provide meals for coyotes ... equipped with a collar ... doused with toxic chemical Compound 1080 ... that will ... once a coyote grabs a sheep dinner by the neck ... result in that coyote's demise ... 'cause 1080's poison.

Anyone who hankers over and anon for roast leg of lamb ... or lamb chops ... even mutton to make chill ... probably will agree that reducing the number of coyotes will increase the number of sheep and make the nation's supply of lamb/mutton more plentiful.

On the thumb hand side ... however ... coyotes are a crafty lot ... they've escaped getting caught in lots of traps ... they've figured out how to avoid being gunned down ... and, by exhibiting signs of being able to think ... it stands to reason that poison collars on sheep won't deter hungry coyotes long ... 'cause it's almost a cinch to learn that it won't take the coyotes many generations to learn that biting sheep in the neck is fatal ... to them ... and they'll probably switch to attacking sheep in the belly ... or breaking their backs with a hard bite ... which'd mean that sheep'd eventually have to be enclosed in a suit of 1080 armor ... which might pose problems other than raising a wool crop.

Sure'll be interesting though, finding out if an angry sheepman, bent upon protecting his flock, is smarter than a hungry coyote ... especially when there's tender, young, lamb available for the taking.

Senator Jack Schmitt announced the use of 1080 ... as planned ... and also said plans are underway to allow killing of coyotes in their dens ... in restricted circumstances ... whatever that means ... and that he was pleased the coyote control program would recognize basic ecological principles.

Simultaneously with Schmitt's announcement ... Congressman Joe Skeen ups and allows as how the same info'd been given him ... and, by junkies, no doubt but that Skeen's interested in this dealie ... 'cause he's probably sick and tired of coyotes dining on his lamb crop ... and Joe can't hardly be taken to task for that.

KIDS! WRITE SANTA

The time's now for all you parents to urge your children ... up to about the fifth grade ... to get their thinking caps on ... and get a letter composed to Santa Claus ... setting forth what they'd like for Christmas ... and how good little boys and girls they've been ... so that Jolly Old Saint Nick can tell his busy little elves up in his North Pole try making headquarters ... what you want, and why ... to be loaded up in his sleigh for his Christmas Eve deliveries.

The letters ... see ... should be addressed like so: Santa Claus, c/o Ruidoso News, P. O. Box 128, Ruidoso, New Mexico 88345 ... and they gotta be in The News office by 5 p. m., December 11 ... 'cause they'll allow ample time for Santa to get them ... even allowing for billiards ... as has been known to sweep across the North Pole this time of year.

Now ... if'n the little ones'll be writing their letters in their classes ... then mailing them's no problem ... 'cause they'll be bundled up and delivered to The News ... in plenty of time ... 'cause the teachers'll see to that.

Now ... Santa's waiting for those letters ... 'cause he done up and said so ... so now it's up to the writers ... to get to writing ... soon.

CHITCHAT ON YOUTH

If you'd like to sit in on a conference on youth ... with State Government for Youth, Students' Rights, Youth Awareness and Laws Affecting Children and Youth on the agenda ... you can ... for free ... by attending the conference at the Albuquerque Convention Center, December 4 ... registration begins at 9 a. m.

First Lady Alice King will speak at the morning session ... 'cause, as you know, this youth conference is her baby ... and there'll be other speakers ... with experience at the national level ... and, during the afternoon, topics to be aired include those listed above.

Why, ifn you're interested in kids, you just might learn something.

Located 2.7 Miles East Of The "Y" On Highway 70

MOBILE HOME LOT. Low down payment and owner financing.

WE DARE YOU TO COMPARE — 3 bedroom, 2 bath, doublewide with over 1,980 square feet that we feel compares with many homes listed in the $80,000 bracket, yet can be purchased for $59,000. Located on a large 110'x170' lot that goes from street to street, both paved. All city utilities. Large living room with fireplace, large utility room with lots of storage, two heating systems and much more. It doesn't cost much to look and you may be glad you did.

THIS ONE YOU SHOULD SEE! 14'x72' mobile on a beautiful lot in Ruidoso Downs. Assumable loan at 12½% or owner would finance part.

TWO BEDROOM MOBILE set up in mobile park is really nice! $3,000 down, owner financing on balance.

OWNER FINANCING. 18'x52' older mobile located on large, level corner lot. Mobile is partially furnished and $4,000.00 down gets you possession with owner financing on the balance.
