Danger of forest fire is very real now

A powder keg situation, ready to ignite, exists on the Lincoln National Forest and in Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs, Smokey Bear Ranger District Fire Management Officer Steve Makowski said to The News Friday.

"If no substantial amount of precipitation is received within the next 20 days," Makowski said, "the dryness of fuels will present the same fire danger as when the Moon Fire occurred in May of 1977."

Makowski said that pine needles are highly inflammable now and that other materials on the forest floor are drier than average, for this time of the year.

Effective immediately, the Forest Service has fire truck personnel on duty seven days a week.

Persons discovering a fire on forest land should immediately call: 257-4095, the Smokey Bear Ranger District.

If the fire is in the village limits of Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs, call: 257-7365, the Ruidoso Police Station.

ComFIRE (Committee for Insuring Ruidoso's Environment) is presently planning to have the Red Flag Alert program ready to institute early in March, Makowski said. "ComFIRE officers are contacting all cooperators now," he said, "so that we can activate the program on a moment's notice."

ComFIRE's line of action, during extreme fire conditions, is to patrol the area to prevent forest fires and, in case of forest fire, to direct traffic through evacuation routes, which, if present dry conditions prevail, will soon be clearly marked.

Makowski stressed Friday that all property owners in Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs, in the subdivisions, and forest areas, should take every precaution to prevent fire.

"People should clear all pine needles, and other debris, away from buildings," he said, "and I hope that neighbors of folks owning part time residences here will advise them of the present fire danger, so that they can also take preventative measures."

Due to cuts in the Forest Service budget, Makowski said, "The Hot Shot Crew isn't due to become active until April 19. Last year they went on duty March 10.

"At the present time, we'll have fewer fire fighters on the Hot Shots, which, should a forest fire occur, will give us some serious fire management problems."

How it shapes up

THE PRESENT FIRE situation, outlined by Makowski, included these conditions induced by lack of moisture, daily winds and dryness of fuel:

-- Fire danger is at the same point as March 6, 1974, when the School House Fire destroyed approximately 200 acres. Through this area pine needles and other materials on the forest floor are drier than usual, for this time of the year. "One plus," he said, "is that there's a little less wind now than in 1974, though if it gets drier we could be in for trouble."

-- Heavy fuels, trees eight inches in diameter and larger, do not have a snow pack from which to build up moisture. Even in the event of a heavy snow fall, or an abundant rain, it would take approximately 41 days for the heavy fuels to absorb sufficient moisture to drastically reduce the fire danger. "The trees," he said, "build up moisture as though they were sponges, but soak it up like a very, very, very slow sponge."

-- Even if this area received a foot of snow at one time, due to the wind and higher temperatures, the normal saturation effect will be less than in years with more moisture during the normal snowfall season. "The fire deterrent effect just isn't there this year," he said.

-- Chances of the fire danger rising are great, he said, "because we're heading into drier and warmer weather. Unless the proverbial 40 days and 40 nights of rain come, we're starting off in the hole this year on those heavy fuels."

-- The problem with fighting fire in heavy fuel areas, so far as the suppression effort is concerned, is that they'll be burning with reduced moisture content, giving the fire greater intensity. "Larger trees, if they were to catch fire now, wouldn't smoulder -- they'd go snap, crackle, pop," Makowski said.

-- Normal fires in grass and pine needles generate about 700 BTU's, he said, a limit that fire fighters can stand. When heavy fuels are burning the heat increases, and the suppression crews can't get up close to the fire to work.

Makowski said all home owners should remember that the house and the deck, and stacked fire wood, are all in the heavy fuel classification. Under present conditions, fire fuels such as needles and litter, would rapidly carry any fire to the heavy fuels.

"Should ground fire lead to stacked wood, or a structure, both would ignite faster than normally now," he said, "and would burn with greater intensity. That's why we're urging that everyone clean up the pine needles, and debris, to break the fire chain."

Makowski stressed there are two kinds of forest fires: lightning and man caused. "Take the hypothetical for instance of a mouse chewing on the head of a match," he said, "man made the match."

Should a residential fire break out, due to ashes, for instance, being put out onto the tinder dry forest floor, Makowski said, "A garden hose is not the last line of defense, because it is only so long. A shovel, or rake, is much more effective, because they can be used to move fuel away from the direction the fire is moving."

Residents are being urged to be especially careful about smoking, dumping ashes from fireplaces, using charcoal in barbecues, and cooking over camp fires. "These are normal precautions," Makowski said, "but due to the present dry conditions, are much more important now than if we'd had ample snow."

Hollywood well drilled to 233 feet

Pilot hole drilling on the new Hollywood Well was completed Thursday to a depth of 233 feet.

This week drilling will enlarge the hole to 12 inches, with the casing to be installed and test pumping scheduled to begin the latter part of the week.

Area water problems aired here Saturday

BY GWYNETH JONES
Staff Writer

A group of officials from Ruidoso, Ruidoso Downs, Capitan and Alamogordo are considering joining with other nearby communities in a collective effort to solve their individual and mutual water problems.

The idea of forming a regional water commission to study the area's water needs, sources and systems and work toward a regional solution of problems surfaced at a Saturday conference hosted by the Ruidoso Water Board at the Inn of the Mountain Gods.

The conference was attended by officials of the communities mentioned above, as well as representatives of governmental agencies, including the state Engineer's Office, Environmental Improvement Division (EID), state Department of Finance and Administration, (DFA), Southeastern New Mexico Economic Development District (SNMEDD), Water and Power Resources Service (WPRS).

Representatives of Boyle Engineering and Herkenhoff and Associates Engineering also attended. At the close of the meeting, Ruidoso

Decision pending on airport site

Senator Harrison Schmitt organized a Friday meeting in Las Cruces on the proposed Sierra Blanca Regional Airport (SBAC) site, with all parties concerned agreeing that Secretary of the Interior James Watt make the final decision.

The decision on locating the airport on Site B, Bureau of Land Management (BLM) acreage leased by New Mexico State University (NMSU), of Site A, involving BLM and privately owned land, could be made within six months.

Attending the meeting were representatives of SBAC, NMSU, BLM, state Department of Agriculture, Department of Aviation, Federal Aviation Agency, site architects, land owners and officials of local entities involved in SBAC.

Warrior footballers can't seem to 'weight' to pump that iron

BY MARK BAGBY
Sports Editor/Photographer

An old football adage states, "More football games are won or lost in the off-season than on the playing field."

If that's true, the Ruidoso Warriors will probably win more than they lose on the gridiron this fall, because coach Darrel Stierwalt has his squad currently involved in a rigorous off-season weight training program.

And that's a story in itself. Weightlifting, or training with weights, is about 100 years old, although ancient Greek athletes worked out with large stones and other materials. But around the turn of the century, exercising with iron barbells and dumbbells became accepted as a valid form of exercise.

But it got a black eye due to body building. There's a fairly large group of individuals who lift weights merely to "sculpt" their bodies. Most people look on that activity as nigh onto useless.

Several years ago, however, physical education theorists and coaches began noticing measurable improvement in athletes' performances if they trained with weights. The training is demanding, combining repetitive movements with large amounts of weight.

Stierwalt and his coaches joined the bandwagon in 1979, by purchasing some pieces of equipment. (The Warriors had a "Universal gym," which is a weight training piece of equipment, but that was replaced by "free weights." More on that later.)

"No one was interested in it," Stierwalt said. "We had to sell them the program." It took some doing, but the coaches eventually persuaded their players to try it.

The results were astounding. "Really the kids sold themselves on it," he said. "They could see the results in the ones who were working out regularly, and I think they were -- at first -- interested just in making their bodies better."

Stierwalt, though, was interested in making bigger, stronger and faster football players. Weight training does increase muscle size, he said, but it chiefly increases strength and can add to a player's weight.

Take Lon Nunley, starting linebacker for the Warriors, as an example. He weighed 170 pounds at the end of the 1980 season, and could lift about that much weight.

Three months later, Nunley weighs 190 pounds and can bench press (an exercise where one reclines on a steel bench and lifts the weight up from the chest) 290 pounds. He should hit 300 pounds soon.

Oh, yes, Nunley's a junior. Most football playing freshmen who enter college can't

WARRIOR COACH Darrel Stierwalt hoists the bar on a bench press, showing his players how it's done. "The difference weight lifting has made in our program is almost beyond measure," Stierwalt said though not at the moment this picture was taken.

OOOOOH, THAT'S HEAVY -- Ruidoso High School junior Lon Nunley lifts a couple hundred pounds on the dead lift during a recent workout. Nunley has shown some of the greatest improvement, having added 20 pounds to his body weight and is able to bench press 290 pounds.

Ski Report

Sierra Blanca: Undisturbed snow depth is 23 inches. All lifts are operating and all trails are open, with fair to good conditions. Geronimo trail was machine groomed Friday.

Eagle Creek: Snow base averages 15 to 20 inches in depth, with four slopes open and in fair condition. Snow is very hard packed, with about an inch of new machine made snow manufactured Saturday night.

For updated ski reports, call Sierra Blanca, 257-9901, or Eagle Creek, 336-4211.

bench 290. And all of Nunley's body weight increase is rock hard muscle. "Look at the difference that makes," Stierwalt said. "If he's playing defense, and a 220 pound center fires across to get him, Lon should be able to move the center out of the way with upper body strength alone." It makes you ponder on the fate of a 180 pound running back.

Other players are showing similar gains, Stierwalt said. "We lifted during the entire off season last spring, and I think it showed," he said. (The Warriors were 7-3 after a 3-7 record the year before.) "How much of that is due to experience and how much to weight lifting, I don't know, but lifting had a lot to do with it." The program the athletes are involved in is a total body workout, Stierwalt said. "We work every muscle group in the body, from the neck on down," he said. "We have nine basic exercises, which are done three times a week." Athletes should lift no more than three times a week, Stierwalt said, preferably on a Monday-Wednesday-Friday schedule. That allows a day of rest between workouts, which is necessary for muscle recuperation and buildup. Players can become musclebound, Stierwalt said, if they don't do stretching exercises.

"We run and stretch on Tuesdays and Thursdays, and work on form running," he said.

"In fact, several of our kids have become faster than they were before they began lifting," he said.

A myth about weight lifting holds players who lift become slower. Not true, Stierwalt said.

The school currently has about $4,500 worth of equipment, bought with donations and monies earned from various fund raising projects.

Equipment includes a leg machine, two benches, an incline dumbbell press rack, an incline press rack, a squat rack, a neck machine, a "preacher curl" rack and five Olympic bars, with 320 pounds of weight per bar.

The athletic department is currently trying to buy a lat machine, which works muscles in the upper back.

All the equipment is stored in the "weight room," an addition to the high school gymnasium built by Alvin Lowrance and the Warrior Booster Club. Volunteer labor painted it blue and yellow — the school colors — and indoor-outdoor carpet was placed on the floor.

Stierwalt said the room is open from 7:30 to 9 on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings, and from 3:30 to 6:30 those evenings.

"Anyone in the community who wants to can come work out with us those hours, if they can work it into their schedules," he said, but he added, "we're getting a lot of students in there and it's getting kind of crowded."

Athletes can work out on their own, Stierwalt said, but the coaching staff stresses the "buddy system," for no one should lift alone.

"You could drop a bar on your chest or something," he said. "We haven't had any accidents yet, though — knock on wood."

The Warriors train with free weight, which refers to the fact you can move them around, provided you're strong enough. There are weight machines available, such as the Universal gym, that are self contained.

While they are safer — because you can't lift the machine and thus drop it — it's also less versatile, because the amount of weight for the exercises is set and cannot be increased.

Though weight training is primarily used by football players, all athletes — including women — can benefit from it. "With the differences it made in our program here last fall, we're sold on it," Stierwalt said.

THE LEG MACHINE gets a workout by this unidentified Ruidoso High School student.

the municipal officials to request a "letter of intent" from their governing body, indicating their feelings on formation of a regional water commission. The communities of Carrizozo, Tularosa and Mesalero and possibly Cloudcroft will also be contacted to determine their interest in such a project.

The group generally agreed that a water commission would have to be facilitated through a joint powers agreement among the communities involved, with appointed representatives from each town forming the board, operating under an arrangement similar to that of the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission.

They also agreed that a primary concern of the commission should be to "avoid re-inventing the wheel," by duplicating past research on the area's water situation. Instead, the commission would take advantage of previous studies of individual communities' water problems and consider all of these with a regional approach.

Nick Pappas of SNMEDD, said the development of a master plan for meeting the region's present and future water needs should be a major goal of such a commission.

Hall said the meeting was arranged to give the community officials a look at "the big picture" of area water problems. He outlined his interpretation of Ruidoso's major problems and called on other community leaders to report on their situations.

He said Ruidoso's rapid growth—about eight percent per year—means that the community doubles in water demand every ten years. He said there has been "a feeling that if we have more storage, we've got the situation in tow, but we're finding that simply isn't so."

Ruidoso derives its water supply from several sources, with about 80 percent supplied by Eagle Creek, which feeds Alto Lake. Existing wells at Eagle Creek, Hollywood and Cherokee Park contribute only minimally to the supply, Hall said.

New wells now being drilled are expected to produce about 400 to 500 gallons per minute, but the quality of the water may be poor, meaning the water may have to be mixed with water from other sources, to make it more palatable.

Even if the village were to purchase "all the water rights available in the Ruidoso Valley," Hall said, "We'll probably run out of water in ten to 15 years."

Some people, he added, have suggested that growth be "stopped" but with about half the land within the village limits undeveloped, "we can't cut off the growth."

Boyle Engineering, which recently completed a study of the water situation in Ruidoso, has suggested "a rate ordinance which would double the amount we pay for water, Hall said. Such a raise in rates might be needed, he added, because, "in the past, we haven't paid enough for the water system to be properly maintained."

Hall said the village is "now outgrowing most of its services," mentioning the need for a new airport, new village hall and police facilities.

"The whole water system is inadequate," Hall added. "We're faced with exorbitant expenses for things that will have to be done."

Ruidoso Downs trustee Bob Power advised the group that the biggest water problem facing that village is lack of adequate storage, and predicted water shortages within five years, although, "at present, we have enough," he said.

"We have a money situation in Ruidoso Downs," Power added, with "per capita income among the lowest in the state."

That situation, "makes it pretty tough to make improvements," in municipal services, he said.

Leon Eggleston, member of the Capitan town council, said that community also has "a lot of undeveloped property within the city limits—about three fourths of the property is undeveloped."

Capitan derives water "from Eagle Creek and Bonito Lake, and "our main problem is water storage," Eggleston said. The town would like to avoid, "paying pumping (costs) on water from Alto Lake," he added.

Dan Malone, Alamogordo city manager, said the present situation in that city indicates a water shortage may occur by 1994.

"Our problem has been that we are unable to store enough water in the city to have available for the following day," leading to alternate-day watering plans, Malone said.

Alamogordo's sources of water include streams from La Luz and Alamo Canyons and from Bonito Lake. A planned desalination plant, which would obtain water from beneath the Tularosa Basin, will probably supply about two million gallons per day, Malone said.

The plant would "help us keep up with some of our growth," Malone said, but is not a total solution, and "more sources must be found." Including the "capital cost," of building the plant and the production of water from it, cost of desalinated water will be about $2.65 per gallon, Malone said.

Mark Delgado, administrator of Fort Stanton Hospital and Training School, said that facility and community has been allocated 100,000 gallons of water per day from Bonito Lake, which "can probably take care of our demands," for some time, barring a large shortage at the lake.

A reservoir and storage tanks at Fort Stanton are "adequate," Delgado said, but added that some lines and the sewage system "are being rebuilt."

Representatives of the various agencies discussed their willingness to work with a regional body on the water problems.

Don Des Jardin of Herkenhoff and Associates, suggested that the commission might look at existing individual community water studies and "develop all of the present and projected needs," including storage, distribution, stream flows, water rights and so on.

Villages' trustees to meet

Ruidoso Downs trustees will meet at 7 tonight in the municipal building. They will meet with representatives of Inspiration Corporation and the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce, and discuss a model personnel ordinance.

Ruidoso trustees will meet at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday in the Ruidoso Public Library.

Agenda items include a report on bids for drilling additional test wells and a report on the Hollywood Well drilling; purchasing another garbage truck, Carrizozo's request to become a member of the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission, Municipal Judge's salary and extra duties, possible street abandonment on lots 442 and 443 Skyland Addition and request of Woman's Club to plant 53 small oak trees in School House Park on Arbor Day, May 8.

Police activities

February 19 — Terry Thomas, Ruidoso, theft of Craftsman table saw, value $200, Craftsman router, value $50, Rockwell vibrator sander, value $40 and Miller Falls hand saw, value $15, from building on El Paso Street.

The Central College Chamber Singers, a group of 16 chosen from the larger choir, will perform several numbers from its repertoire of Renaissance motets and special music during the tour. Other works on the choir's program will include popular spirituals, and selections from Bach, Gabrieli, Delius and others.

The choir, open to all Central students by audition, has traveled extensively in the past and has gained a reputation for excellent performance and quality repertoire. Besides performing throughout Iowa, the choir has appeared in Minnesota, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Ohio, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania in recent years. In 1979, the group toured Europe, singing for audiences throughout the Netherlands, in France and in Germany.

New Horizons woman to international ski meet

Mamie Williamson of the New Horizons Group Home, Carrizozo, and a three-year participant in Sierra Blanca Handicapped Skiers, currently is practicing her skills in anticipation of competition in the International Winter Special Olympics, to be held in Vermont, March 8-13.

Williamson earned the trip to Vermont by taking second place in a cross country skiing event at the New Mexico Winter Games in Angel Fire. She will be one of more than 700 mentally retarded athletes competing in the International Meet.

The coaching staff at the Vermont event will include five time Olympic gold medalist Eric Heiden; his sister, Olympic bronze medalist Beth Heiden; Olympic silver medalist Billy Kidd; Olympic skier Tim Caldwell and Olympic silver medalist, world champion and five time Canadian figure skating champion Karen Magnussen Cella.

Williamson began skiing while a student at Fort Stanton Hospital and Training School in 1978.

According to her coach, Jeanne Culbertson, Williamson has progressed from holding onto Culbertson's waist to get down the beginner slope to skiing unassisted down Sierra Blanca Trail, an advanced beginner's slope.

Hilde Strobel will accompany the group to Vermont as a chaperone. She has been involved with the handicapped skiing program for the past four years and will be assisting the German-speaking athletes from Europe.

Culbertson and Diana Person, director of the Handicapped Skiers Program expressed thanks to the following sponsors, who made Williamson's trip possible:

Ruidoso State Bank, Capitan branch; B&L Pizzeria, Cummins Food Store, Allen's Western Wear, Frankie Silva, Elizabeth and Bernice Pittam, Pauline Britton and the Woman's Club, all of Capitan; Chemrex Speciality Coatings, Incorporated of El Paso, James Elliott of El Paso; Citizens State Bank and New Horizons Developmental Center of Carrizozo; Gamma Rho Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, Ruidoso and Peter Strobel of Resort Properties, Ruidoso.

MAMIE WILLIAMSON, Carrizozo, will be the only athlete from this area to participate in the International Winter Special Olympics in Vermont next month. Her event will be the Nordic (cross country) 100 meter sprint. Above, Williamson practices her technique at Sierra Blanca Ski Area.

Tigers, too — now own 7-1 district mark

Warriors whip their weight in Wildcats

BY MARK BAGBY
Sports Editor

The Ruidoso Warrior basketballers made kitty litter out of the Deming Wildcats and Truth or Consequences Tigers in games played here over the weekend.

The 'Cats fell by a 79-65 count on Saturday, and the Tigers stumbled Friday, 68-62.

Both games were district contests and more firmly clinched the Warriors' hold on the district lead with a 7-1 record. More importantly, the wins mean the Warriors have to win but one of their last two games to gain a bye and first seed in the district tournament.

Warrior coach Barry Nelson was extremely pleased with the wins. "Hey, it was tough," he said, "but we did it. I knew we could, I just wondered a couple of times if we would."

The Warriors spent much of the evening trailing the Tigers before pouring on 24 points in the final period to wrest the game away from the hard charging Tigers.

Then on Saturday, the Warriors turned it around and spent most of the game in the lead, but twice blew big leads before shutting down Deming, the first time Ruidoso has beaten the Wildcats. Again, it took a 24 point fourth quarter and some sterling defense (the Warriors allowed Deming only two baskets in the final period) to do it.

"I sit and complain about the way we play," Nelson said, "but we're leading the district and we win. So, I guess I shouldn't complain."

Despite hitting only a lousy 36 percent against the Tigers, the Warriors dominated the game, even though senior forward Rodney Thomason did not start.

He missed practice due to a sore throat.

The Warriors really didn't need him. Seniors Glenn Ryan and Gary Jones accounted for 31 and 21 points apiece in the winning effort.

Bill Richardson and Thomason scored five points each, Scott Neal had four and Gene Reeves chipped in two.

The Warriors had trouble with the inside game of Mike Moreno and John Garcia, but eventually stopped them cold for their sixth district win of the year.

The Warriors' sole district loss this year came at the hands of the Wildcats, but Nelson was confident his squad could run with Deming, forcing them to set up and play ball by taking away the fast break.

"They like to run, they try to make you make mistakes," he said before the game. "I think if we can break their press and make them play with us, we'll win."

That's exactly what the Warriors did, and again did it without the services of Thomason, for the most part.

He missed much of the first half with three fouls, and much of the second with four.

But Ryan, Richardson and Jones picked up the slack. Ryan notched 28 points and Jones scored 20 to claim scoring honors, and Richardson filled in admirably for Thomason.

Thomason made his presence known when he was in, however, scoring 14 points and controlling the boards.

But the Warriors' offense really blew it.

They had an 11 point lead with five minutes in the half, but it dwindled to two shortly after as the Wildcats capitalized on some Ruidoso mistakes.

Ruidoso rebounded their lead, leading 41-35 at the half and then were up by 10 in the third.

But with 40 seconds left in the stanza, the Warriors were tied and then went behind Deming, trailing 55-56.

Jones, however, put the Warriors back in it with a long jumper. Ryan added a basket, Reeves sank one, Neal had a free throw, Jones another free throw and Thomason bucketed a shot. Then, with three and a half minutes to go, Deming's Sal Uzueta sank two unanswered baskets to pull within five, 65-60.

But Ryan sank two baskets, Thomason added a pair of free throws, Reeves tipped in a shot, Jones had a pair of free throws and another long jumper. That more than offset three Deming charity tosses and a basket.

Ryan capped the two dozen point quarter with a bank shot at the one second mark for the final 79-65 verdict.

After Ryan, Jones and Thomason, scorers were Reeves with nine, Richardson with four, Neal with two and Wade Wilson with two.

"Deming played better than I thought they could play," Nelson said. "They played exceptionally well, but we ran with them, scored well. We used a man to man defense to keep them away from the boards. We played good ball — everybody did well."

"We're starting to play like we can. Happy? You bet I am."

Next up for the Warriors is Tularosa here Friday, another district contest. The final game of the regular season will be Cobre, and that's here on Saturday.

The Warriors have to win but one of those games to rank first in the district. "But I'd like to win 'em both," Nelson said. "I think we can do it."

WE'RE NUMBER ONE!" is what Gary Jones (right) and Steve Sluder were shouting after the Warriors beat Deming here Saturday, 79-65. Jones scored 20 points against the Wildcats, and had 21 the night before in a win over Truth or Consequences, 68-52. Next opponent for the 15-5 Warriors is Tularosa.

Lady Warriors split a pair

The Ruidoso lady warrior cagers learned about the thrill of victory and the agony of defeat over the weekend.

The thrill was Saturday's 65-56 win over Deming for Ruidoso's second district victory of the season, and it snapped a seven game losing streak.

The agony was Friday's 39-35 loss to Truth or Consequences. It was doubly agonizing because the losses led the entire game and lost it in the final minutes.

The win and loss gives the lady Warriors a 2-8 district slate, putting them in a tie for fifth with Deming. That means a coin toss will determine who gets what position in the district tournament, according to coach Sergio Castanon.

"I feel a lot better tonight," he said Saturday evening. "I was real disappointed after the T or C game, but I'm gung ho for the tournament. I think we're due for something to happen, like maybe we could take control at the beginning and stay that way through the whole game."

The ladies had a two point lead after three quarters against the lady Tigers, but crucial mistakes in the final two minutes crippled their cause.

"We looked real flat, tired," Castanon said. "We didn't look ready to play. We should've beaten T or C easy."

Kody Taylor had 10 points in the losing effort, followed by Gleda Bob with eight, Lisa Shaw with seven, Brigid Almager with five, Patsy Almager and Jan Huey with two each, and Claudia Branum had one.

It was almost a different squad on the floor against Deming. Though Ruidoso trailed after one period, 18-12, they pulled ahead and held a 46-40 edge at the end of the third period, before blowing Deming out in the final quarter.

Huey claimed scoring honors with 15, followed by Shaw with 14, Taylor with 13, Robin Rhodes with 10, Patsy Almager, Branum and Bob each with four, Brigid Almager with two and Lillian Lopez with one.

"We had four girls in double figures, and that's what it takes for us to win," Castanon said. "We played well all the way around. Huey and Rhodes both had outstanding games. Everybody played good defense."

The games ended the lady Warriors' regular season, and next up is the district tournament, which opens Thursday in Tularosa.

"I think we'll be ready for it," Castanon said. "We could do very well in it."

The lady Warriors' current record is 7-13.

Six wrestlers heading to state

Robert Langston, Ruidoso High School senior, took first place in the 167 pound bracket of the District 3AAA Wrestling Tournament Friday in Bayard, and will go after the state championship this weekend in Bloomfield.

Langston and five other Warriors qualified for the state tournament at the district tourney, sponsored by Cobre High School. Warrior mat coach Gerald Ames described his team's performance as "okay."

"We probably could have done a little better," he said, "but I'm fairly pleased. We qualified six kids and we might have a state champion."

Langston totally annihilated his opponents, winning all his matches by pins, with the exception of a 15-1 decision.

It was the second year in a row Langston has been crowned the 167 pound champ.

The other qualifiers from Ruidoso were Ray Montes, 98 pounds; Doug Schmidt, 119; Keith Sullivan, 132; David Swalander, 145; and Yon Rue, 155.

Sullivan and Rue are both seniors; the others are underclassmen. All finished with fourth places, good enough to qualify. Schmidt probably had the toughest time, losing to two wrestlers he had beaten earlier in the season. Montes and Rue both lost matches in overtime and could possibly have placed higher.

Sullivan wrestled "the best he's ever wrestled" in his matches, Ames said, and Swalander nearly placed third, he said.

But Ames doesn't think his kids stand too great a chance.

"It's going to be tough," he said. "There's some tough schools in it — Bloomfield, Aztec, St. Michael's (of Santa Fe), and Los Lunas (in their final year of AAAA competition — they're moving up to AAAA next year.) I'm looking forward to it, but it's a long trip and the competition is really tough."

"Langston probably has the best chance, but Schmidt could come back around and wrestle the way he's capable of. Either way, we have a good base towards next season."

The Warriors qualified only three wrestlers to state last season.

Bowling tourney site, dates set

The Ruidoso Men's Bowling Association will hold its annual handicap tourney March 7-8, at Holiday Bowl.

Multiple entries will be accepted, and rules and entry forms are available at Holiday Bowl. Call Jim Clements, 257-2612, for more information.

Little League baseball meeting this Saturday

Ruidoso's Little League Baseball program will have an organizational meeting Saturday, February 23, in the Elks' Lodge at 1 p.m.

The meeting is for all officers, commissioners, coaches and anyone interested in unpinning for the upcoming season. Call 257-2612 for more information.

Junior Ski Racers place high

Ruidoso's Junior Ski Racers placed high in an age class race held at Eagle Creek Ski Area Saturday and Sunday.

Capple King placed first in the girls' 13 and under division during Saturday's round of slalom competition, and posted the best time of the day among all 106 racers.

King had runs of 32.33 and 28.88 seconds for a combined time of one minute, one and 21 hundredths seconds.

Eric Anderson took first in the nine and under boys' division during Sunday's round.

Other Ruidoso placers included Laura Tixson, who placed fifth on Saturday and sixth on Sunday, in the girls' 13 and under division; Brian Banafado took fifth in Saturday's boys' nine and under bracket, and Rusty Smith was seventh in the same group; and Todd Banafado finished ninth in the 11 and under boys' division.

season with the Junior Ski Racers, was fifth in the boys' 13 and under division, and also finished sixth among the 106 racers. King posted the top time for one run on Sunday, but did not place.

The two day slalom event featured competitors from all across New Mexico, Arizona and Colorado.

CHRISTEN COCHRAN, a boys' 13 and under skier from Los Alamos, twists and turns in a gate during Sunday's racing at Eagle Creek Ski Area. The Ruidoso Junior Ski Racers hosted the two days of slalom racing, which featured 106 racers from Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico.

Sportin' Life

... a column of opinion ...

by

Mark Bagby

It's time for the New Mexico Activities Association (NMAA) to do something about the rotten playoff system they have for class AAAA teams.

They bracketed the state's AAA teams into five districts. That wouldn't seem to cause too many problems, would it?

But then they insist on having three game championships (quarterfinals, semifinals, and finals — four games, two games and one game) in the first bracket.

Well, if you do that, the sports bracket — four games — means you need eight teams. The obvious solution, of course, is to use the champions and runnersup from the districts.

Only problem is, five districts means 10 teams. So what did the NMAA do? Well, they drew lots and figured which two districts could, each year, send their champions. That leaves the runnersup in those two districts out in the cold.

The Ruidoso Warriors know all about it. It was this system which kept them out of the football playoffs in the fall — and also kept Truth or Consequences, Tularosa and St. Pius from having a shot at it either. (St. Pius is in 5AAA, and the champion of that district was Socorro. The other two are from 3AAA, like Ruidoso.)

It's this system which will keep either Artesia, Lovington or Portales from making the basketball playoffs in a couple of weeks. Those three are in 4AAA, and only its champion can play this year. Those three are all in the Associated Press Top Ten, by the way, Artesia at second, Portales in fifth and Lovington in 10th. Two of 'em will soon be finished.

It doesn't affect the Warriors this year, but it will again in 1982. Then it won't bother them again for the rest of the decade.

But someone will suffer, and it's not right.

Now granted, there will always be some teams that deserve to advance to higher competition, but they can't go because there's just not enough space. You can only allow so many teams into a playoff system, and you don't want to drag the season out more than you have to — too expensive, too much chance for injuries, that sort of stuff. Que sera, sera.

But it's not fair to some teams to have to put up with this incredible system.

The NMAA had worthy objectives when it set up the system. The idea was to reduce travel between districts; you know, if you had Bloomfield, Artesia, Shiprock and Deming in the same district, you've got a long trip to make in every sport just for district play.

That's also why there's five districts. But it doesn't make sense to penalize teams just to save gasoline. However, they imposed this arbitrary system, which doesn't take into account how good a team is. Shiprock made the playoffs in football last fall, even with their 3-7 record. (They were the runnerup in their district and automatically entered into a playoff berth.) Meanwhile, Ruidoso, T or C, Tularosa and St. Pius — all of which had been in the Top Ten all season — languished at home and watched everyone else play.

This system is just going to keep penalizing folks.

So now is the time to do something about it, before it gets worse.

I figure the NMAA can do one of two things: either set up a system with byes built into it, or redo the district pairings so there's only four districts.

The first alternative isn't too great, because it would probably extend the season far too long.

The second alternative isn't too good either, because it would make the districts bigger, meaning each team would play more district games each year (a situation the Southeastern Conference, the Pac 10 and the Big 10 have lived with for quite a while however) and more travel between district opponents. That means athletics would become more expensive.

A team like Ruidoso might benefit, however — with schools like Artesia and Lovington in the same bracket, travel would not be as bad as it is right now. (Granted, Portales and Tucumcari are a ways away, but Silver City and Cobre, aren't just a little short country drive either.)

I personally think the second alternative is the way to go — AAAA schools have been doing quite well with just four districts. In course, there aren't as many AAAA schools as there are AAA, but still, something could be done.

I mean, which is better — a situation where everyone gets a fair shake, or one where someone will always be penalized arbitrarily, without regard to record or talent?

A big thank you

I keep meaning to do this, but it always slips my mind come column writing time. Thanks to Joan Chase, Flo Maul and Karen Marquardt, the three ladies who each week provide me with bowling results from their various leagues.

Without their cooperation, I wouldn't have results for the many bowlers in the Tuesday Morning Ladies' League, the Kings and Queens Tuesday Night Mixed League, the Wednesday Night Mixed League and the Thursday Morning Ten Pins Ladies' League.

My sincere and grateful thanks to each of you, ladies.

My favorite things

Have you seen the commercials for the electronic TV gizmo you hook up to your set so you can play all sorts of games — like hockey, tennis, basketball, etc?

They hired a bunch of noted athletes to appear in various spots advertising games they play in — for real. They battle with the machine, and it always wins, of course.

My favorite is the one with Inis Nastase, the tennis pro, where he stands up, an angered look on his face after the gizmo beats him, and he slams it down and walks away in a huff.

Now if they could just get John McEnroe to throw one at Nastase they'd be true to life, huh?

SANTA FE — The topic of today's sermon is a twofold one — the Highway Department on the one hand, and the real world on the other.

Somebody must put something into the water fountains out there in Highway Department headquarters on Cerillos Road in Santa Fe. Those guys there get out of touch with reality. They believe their own little empire is what the real world is all about.

Take the engineer from that location who spent his time this past week laying a lot of words on the people who sell concrete in New Mexico.

He actually said things like "you better get off our backs or we're gonna get you," as though he were talking about some kind of war between Mafia families.

What offended him so much? The introduction of House Bill 108, which consists of one sentence that orders the Highway Department to consider the use of road building materials other than asphalt.

Concrete is bad stuff? Those who sell it have no right in New Mexico?

Those who have as much gray in their hair as the writer of this column can remember that New Mexico built almost no roads out of that substance for many, many years.

(We can even remember the little round man who once sold all the asphalt in the state. His supplier companies did not go broke.)

Then along came the great building project called the Interstate System, with instructions that everything for which money was provided as a part of this huge experiment was to be built of concrete.

New Mexico roadbuilders, who hadn't laid down a road of that substance for almost 20 years, suddenly had to relearn their trade.

They didn't relearn too well. Remember the scandals about things like too few rebars in the concrete roads? So gradually and as quietly as possible, they shifted back to asphalt, using all kinds of explanations about why it was better, including one about the gravel in New Mexico being too acidic for good concrete construction.

As a matter of fact, one of the most recent hires at the Highway Department laboratories came there directly from the Asphalt Institute of America.

So you can imagine the Department's chagrin when Dan Berry, a man of some standing in the House of Representatives, puts in a bill that orders them to consider all the aspects of using "other road building materials" as an alternative to asphalt.

It made 'em mad.

The Highway Department, you see, doesn't think anybody has a right to tell them what to do. They think they are special folks and above the law, as that ill-tempered engineer who threatened the concrete people made clear.

(Representative Hoyt Pattison rose to his feet on the floor of the House later that day to express his opinion about state employees who make such threats. The Highway Department would be well advised not to make enemies of Dan Berry and Hoyt Pattison, as a good public relations department, if they still had one, would tell them.)

But this is the same Highway Department which has the arrogance to arrange a "treaty" with the House, signed by Representative John Bigbee on the one hand and Commission Chairman Lou Whitlock on the other, as though they were some independent nation, specifying what the Department agrees to do.

These guys suffer from megalomania. We'd better watch them.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

In reference to The Ruidoso News article of February 12 reporting concern about the upcoming water and sewer rate proposal as outlined in the Lodgers' Association by George White and Benny Coulston, I would like to stress a few important points brought out at that meeting which did not appear in the news release.

The most disturbing factor raised by both village trustees and association members was, that this proposal drafted by Boyle Engineering of Albuquerque was not based on any input from local citizens or our elected trustees.

This does not make good sense on an ordinance that proposes to raise local rates from 100 to 500 percent.

Out of curiosity and concern, this writer contacted the individual engineer at Boyle Engineering who actually wrote the rate structure asking him for his specific reasoning behind the particular rate structure he was proposing for the citizens of Ruidoso.

His forthright and honest answer was that he had not specifically tailored this program just to match the needs and particular circumstances in Ruidoso, but rather had adopted a general set of rate standards published as a recommended guide for use throughout the United States by the American Waterworks Association.

This may explain why the Lodgers Association and trustees alike felt that the proposed rates were not only poorly matched to our local residential and business needs and capabilities, but also carried unnecessary burdens and penalties not justified by the size and nature of the small commercial businesses in Ruidoso.

That also probably explains why a similar sounding proposal submitted in January 1980 was also rejected as unworkable for the Village of Ruidoso.

At this point the taxpayers in Ruidoso can only hope that not too much of Boyle Engineering's reported $20,000 fee is to be spent on this type of result.

The generally voiced opinion by association members and attending trustees alike seemed to indicate that writing the technical and mechanical aspects of a water and sewer ordinance was well within the expertise of an outside consulting firm, but it would be far more satisfactory to allow the elected trustees in consultation with the people they represent formulate a local rate structure far more compatible with the requirements and abilities of this particular community, rather than depend on general recommendations of the American Waterworks Association as edited by Boyle Engineering.

Absolutely no one even questions the immediate and long overdue need for a thorough updating of our rate structure and water supply to meet the rapidly growing demands of the village, but I think we all feel entitled to demand of our elected officials a program that is fair and equitable to everyone and the present proposal is certainly not.

I hope all water and sewer users will take the time to attend and make known their opinions at the special public hearing called by the village trustees to discuss this matter on Monday, March 9, 7 p.m., at The Ruidoso Public Library.

I would also urge that all interested persons obtain from the trustees a copy of this rate proposal to be discussed.

Like most proposals written by engineers (I know because I am one) this proposal is loaded with little surprises and gimmicks that could easily slide by unnoticed but could have disastrous effects on users in years to come.

Dear editor:

The Ruidoso Board of Education at its regular meeting on February 10, 1981, voted unanimously to write and thank Radio Station KRRR and The Ruidoso News for their interest and support in the recent two mill levy election. We feel that your efforts made a great contribution in helping to pass this worthwhile cause.

To all individuals and groups who supported the two mill levy with their votes, we extend our thanks. Our schools and community will greatly benefit in the years to come.

FOUR 'TIL DOOMSDAY

The editors of the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists do not have a stranglehold on the truth about the threat of a nuclear holocaust. They do have a keen and knowledgeable interest in the subject, however. Since 1947, the magazine has printed a clock to symbolize the threat's imminence — so many minutes to midnight, the zero hour for global catastrophe.

It is, thus, a matter of melancholy interest that in the current issue the so-called Doomsday Clock stands at four minutes to midnight. A year ago, the hands were at seven minutes to midnight, just where they were placed when the custom began 34 years ago.

The Bulletin's nuclear threat watch, so to speak, has concluded that the world is markedly closer to Armageddon than it was last year. Lamentably, there are good reasons to share this conclusion: the Senate's failure to ratify the latest SALT treaty and thus keep up the momentum of the effort to curb nuclear arms; the erosion of detente with the Soviet Union; the continuing proliferation of nuclear weapons capability; the escalation of the super powers' ludicrous race for nuclear weapons superiority.

There have been past times when the Bulletin's editors judged the peril to be even more imminent than it is now. When Russia exploded an atomic bomb in 1949 the clock read three minutes to midnight; it was moved a minute closer with announcement of the hydrogen bomb in 1953. It must be borne in mind, however, that Soviet and American destructive power have increased many times over since then. The need to master and enchain the nuclear monster is more urgent than at any time since the first A-bomb fell on Hiroshima. — Alamogordo Daily News

editorial

Highway Department reform — not prison reform — could possibly become the hottest issue in the 1981 legislative session.

Seems as though some Highway Department personnel have been making easily understood statements concerning their opinion of certain individuals who may be making an honest, albeit a mite prejudiced, effort to offer alternatives to blacktopping the state's highways.

The initial cost factor of concrete as opposed to asphalt is one consideration. The upkeep of properly installed concrete is another. Sometimes it does appear as though those in decision making positions should discuss the relative merits of highway construction/maintenance more, and spend less time making asinine statements about people.

Assuming the state's main artery roads are in safe condition, for example, there's enough road construction needed to service major recreational areas in the state to keep highway crews working steadily for years to come.

It seems reasonable to suppose that the better the access to recreational areas, the more tourists will come to the state, with the money realized in New Mexico through tourism being almost akin to finding it in the street.

If the legislature can trim bickering on highway problems to a minimum and concentrate on letting highway administrator Buddy Hewett and highway commission chairman Louis Whitlock know, in action and words they can't misunderstand, that their area of concern involves improving the highways in the state, the sooner everyone will benefit. — CD

ON SOCIAL SECURITY

Judging from what some of the oldesters are reading and hearing ... including some folks as'll be oldsters in the next one to five years ... there's a lot of concern over possible cuts in Social Security benefits ... and that the cuts might leave recipients holding a bigger bag than they'd figured on.

Perish the thought.

All it'll take is a buncha letters to Congressmen and Senators ... to their ivory tower in Washington, D. C. ... fully advising these stalwarts that said oldsters'll not tolerate any hanky-panky that'll result in lowered Social Security benefits ... and it'll have a real magic wand effect.

What has to be pointed out to those in power to make the cuts is that it's the people who have paid into Social Security for years, that kept this country going ... 'cause those same payer-inners are the very ones who've been paying income taxes all those years ... and that's the stuff that pays the way for governmental operations.

Alas, all those tax dollars have also resulted in pork barrel projects, waste, fraud (allegedly) and fat ... which just goes to show you that Billy Carter ain't the only guy in the country as can't handle lotsa bucks.

Someone ... maybe Rambunctious Ronnie ... maybe one of his cohorts ... some of whom could possibly be advisors ... even some members of the Congress ... will eventually get the idea that perhaps all of those faithful federal income tax payer-inners and Social Security contributors ... albeit without free choice ... should be entitled to all the consideration a government ... that should be grateful ... can possibly bestow upon them.

No other way to slice the melon ... all the payer-inners should get first consideration ... consideration above pouring billions of dollars into the economy of foreign nations ... some friendly, some laughing up their sleeves at us ... at the expense of not taking care of our own ... the our own that's been paying the tab.

Those that have paid the fiddler for years are entitled to have the fiddler keep playing ... 'cause they now have time to sit down and listen ... and if they're too old to dance, that don't mean they can't tap a mean toe.

ON RAMBUNCTIOUS RONNIE

No one can say that President Reagan ... and after his Wednesday night address to Congress ... maybe he'll become known ... behind his back, naturally ... as Rambunctious Ronnie ... doesn't lay it out loud and clear as to what he wants in the way of cutting taxes and government spending.

'Course Reagan's plans'll undergo considerable modification ... 'cause Our Jimmy done up and left him with some problems of his own doing ... and 'cause Ronnie ain't no Merlin ... and as to Merlin's qualifications as a performer of miracles, too bad King Arthur can't materialize to so declare.

Hardly had the sound of Reagan's voice quit echoing through the halls of Congress before the Republicans started lauding his speech as though it was a thing of perfection ... a joy to behold ... and take hold of to implement.

But then ... simultaneously ... some Democrats jumped into the middle of Reagan's remarks with both feet ... some on what he said ... some on what he didn't say ... and these detractors did have themselves a field day ... possibly more for affect than effect.

There's this much about it ... now that Reagan's into his third day of his second month as President ... he's certainly reached the point where he gets the undivided attention of his detractors whenever he opens his mouth.

Hang in there tough, Ronnie ... continue the Truman approach of give 'em hell ... why, as of this moment, you ain't done nothin' ... or said nothin' ... that'll lead to a movement to impeach you.

CRIST HANGS TOUGH

Corrections Secretary Roger Crist is demonstrating ... clearly ... that he ain't about to kowtow to pressure to attempt to bring about immediate changes in the operation of the state pen.

Bully for you, Roger ... you've let those know as is picking on you that you're gonna run this per your agreement with Governor King ... but that you'll take whatever action is necessary to maintain order ... once you have it firmly established ... which could be what's irking those as wants to hog the limelight.

BRIEF BIT: The reason some politicians never get all their ducks in a row is that they fear someone'll wipe 'em out with just one lucky potshot ... CD

Junior varsity wins, loses

You win some, you lose some. But don't tell that to Warrior junior varsity cage coach Vince Collins — he thinks you should win them all. His team lost to Deming's junior varsity here Saturday, 65-51, and Collins says it's his fault.

"It was poor coaching on my part," he said. "I didn't have them ready. I concentrated too much on one game." The one game he referred to was the previous night's contest with Truth or Consequences, which the Warriors won, 59-53.

"We were still celebrating that game and we weren't ready to play," Collins said. "Then when I tried to move people around and change things, I did the wrong things. Everything I did was wrong." The Warriors fell behind early to Deming, 18-7, but played dead even with the "Cats" in the second period.

Deming, however, blew the Warriors out 24-10 in the third for the win.

Russ Veronda was high point man with 20, followed by Tim Enjady with 10, Steve Sluder with seven, Paul Jaramillo with five, Marc Delhotal with four, Don Nunley and Kyle Schautet with two each and Jack Holland with one.

Though Collins was singing the blues Saturday, he was one happy fella Friday. "I am really pleased," he said. "We played well. We put in a new offense, had good defense. Veronda did a great job, Ric Pearson had his best game by far. It was a good team win."

The Warriors had to come from behind to win, edging the Tigers in the second half, as Veronda scored 23, Sluder had 13, Bobby Knox had seven, Nunley, Pearson and Schautet had four each, and Delhotal and Jaramillo had two each.

The junior varsity had two games left in its season, with Tularosa here Friday and Cobre here Saturday.

"We'll be ready for those," Collins said. "If there's one thing that bums me out, it's to let these guys down. We're a lot better than we played, but we're going to be ready for Tularosa and Cobre. You can count on that."

Burning wood requires care

Many families are trying to ease the cost of other home heating fuels by turning to wood and coal. When installing and using cast iron stoves, safety should be the first concern, according to JoAnn Less, Extension housing specialist at New Mexico State University.

A stove with fire brick lining is necessary for burning coal, but most good quality cast iron stoves can burn wood safely without the fire brick lining.

When installing a new stove, make sure it is on a brick platform or fireproof asbestos stoveboard. Even the fireproof stoveboard might conduct too much heat for safety if the stove's legs are shorter than six inches. The new stove should be installed at least 24 inches away from the nearest sidewall, and a heat resistant covering might be advisable on a sidewall that is only a few inches beyond this minimum.

Never use a pipe labeled "vent" for a stove chimney. A vent pipe is made from only a single thickness of metal and can get extremely hot. It could start a fire in combustible materials in walls or ceilings, or in curtains or drapes if they are hung near the stove.

Use a pipe labeled "all fuel" for the chimney, and the pipe should also have the Underwriter's Laboratory (U.L.) seal. This chimney pipe is either double thickness with asbestos between the pipes, or a triple-walled pipe with an air gap between the individual pipe walls.

If you have any doubts about the way your stove is installed, your local fire department will probably be glad to make an inspection and give recommendations for changes, if needed.

There are some basic safety precautions about use of a wood or coal stove after it's installed.

Never stoke up a wood or coal fire to the point where it changes the color of the stovepipe. A glowing red stovepipe is a signal of immediate danger. Cool the fire as quickly as possible by closing the stove's dampers and partially closing the stovepipe damper.

If that doesn't get results fast enough, shovel some ashes on top of the burning wood or coal.

Before opening the firebox to add fuel, or to check the fire, always open the stovepipe damper first and wait a few seconds. This allows gases that may have accumulated in the firebox to escape up the chimney. Without this precaution, accumulated gases may flare up or explode when air suddenly comes in the firebox door.

Check regularly to make sure that no wood, kindling, newspapers, furniture, or other flammable material has been left close to the stove. Keep anything flammable at least three feet from the stove.

Wood stoves, like fireplaces, can accumulate creosote in the chimney that may result in a chimney fire. To clean, drop a line with rag attached down the chimney. The stovepipe should be taken down at least once a year to thoroughly clean out any creosote deposits.

Don't keep kerosene or other flammable liquids in the same room with a wood or coal burning stove. Never use any of these to start a fire because there is always danger of spilling them, or an explosion resulting from the vaporized liquids.

Finally, don't dump stove ashes into a cardboard box or plastic sack. A live coal could be buried in the ashes and ignite the box or sack. Ashes should be put in a metal container, and then taken outside the house as soon as possible.

BY DANNIE STORM

Clifford Chavez
Our prayers go up for the friends and loved ones of Clifford Chavez, who was called home by Our Lord on February sixteen. Services were held at St. Jude's Church in San Patricio on February eighteen.

Clifford was born June twenty-seven, 1941, in Carrizozo, and spent most of his life as a farmer at San Patricio.

His father, Candido Chavez and his mother, Estrella West Chavez, both are members of pioneer Lincoln families.

The immediate family of Clifford and his kind folks are long time residents of the Ruidoso and Hondo valleys. They have been friends of the Storm family since first we came to Lincoln County.

Clifford will be kindly remembered by all of us always, and we all take comfort in knowing that our dear friend is safe and happy with Our Lord in Heaven.

George Washington
Time has been flying by, and I neglected to say a little something about The Father of our Country before his birthday. Now this message will reach you on the twenty-third, one day after Washington's birthday.

He was born February twenty-second 1732, at Bridges Creek, Westmoreland County, Virginia.

The Washingtons were an honored family of ancient lineage in England. George's great grandfather, John Washington, came from England in 1657 and settled at Bridges Creek.

From earliest childhood, George was lovingly devoted to his mother, father, brothers and sisters. He was of a gentle nature although large for his age and unusually strong. From the first he showed a love of horses, and was a natural born horseman, able to tame the wildest animal mostly by kindness and patience, supported by his iron strength.

As a boy he was half again larger than playmates of the same age, and although a great lover of sports, he thoroughly disliked fighting; and was always stepping in to stop the quarrels of the other boys. Wrestling, of course, was something else. Here was a respectable test of strength and skill fit for gentlemen. And Washington became the champion wrestler of the Colonies.

At the age of fourteen Washington became a surveyor and began plotting the lands of his family. His surveying career took him westward into the wilderness where he learned woodcraft and survival, which was a great help to him in the battle for the life of our infant nation.

Charmed Life
Back when we were still English, Washington was selected as an aide to the English General Braddock in the French and Indian War. Here he learned a bitter lesson as he saw the folly of massed troops out in a clearing being cut to pieces by Indians and French firing from behind trees. His urgent advice against this unwise style of warfare in the forest went unheeded, and General Braddock was killed, and the forces defeated.

By calm courage and leadership Washington led the remaining troops back to safety, and was rewarded by being appointed, August 1755, commander of Virginia troops at the age of twenty-three.

During this battle Washington was a marked man to the French and Indians; two horses were shot from under him, and his clothing cut by four bullets, and yet he did not receive a scratch.

An old Indian who took part in the battle said afterwards:
"We were all firing at him, and yet he was not hit. That man has a charmed life. He will never be killed in battle, but will bring forth and lead a great nation."

Another BI-Centennial
Five years ago we celebrated the bicentennial of our Declaration of Independence.

This year we celebrate the year in which the man who, as a boy hated fighting, brought us victory in our struggle for independence, surely one of the most important conflicts of all time.

On October 31, 1781, Washington and his devotedly gallant and determined soldiers cornered the British general, Cornwallis, at Yorktown, Virginia. And our beloved nation was born.

Washington had inspired his fellow Americans with his own courage, perseverance, and faith in God.

In this year of 1981 let us call upon the spirit of the Father of our Country, that we may gather ourselves together in the brotherhood of true patriotism in "This Nation Under God." And let us send up a prayer of thanks to God for George Washington, who will ever remain:
"First in war; first in peace; and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

KARL FRANZER, manager of Ruidoso's Safeway store, was named store manager of the year in the El Paso district at a recent company meeting in El Paso, Texas. The award, established for the first time ever, is presented to the store that shows the highest gain in profit and best performance in operation ratio, inventory control, check cash control and disappearance control. Franzer said he was honored by the award, and added local Safeway employees deserve the award. "Without them we couldn't have won it," he said.

Television Schedule For The Week Of Feb. 23 through March 1

by Joey Sasso

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT: The Fonz tackled his toughest task on the 'Happy Days' set when he had to talk a desperate teenager out of taking his own life. "He seemed a very desperate young man with no one to talk to but one of his TV heroes," says Henry Winkler, who plays the 'Happy Days' character. "It made me feel good to know that I might have saved his life. But I would really like to know what happened to him." Winkler was rehearsing for his hit TV series at the Paramount Studios when he got an urgent phone call from police in Indianapolis. "A police officer told me an 18-year-old man had taken a drug overdose and was threatening to take more pills unless I spoke to him," Winkler says. The star agreed to talk with the desperate youngster and for 40 minutes he kept up a life-or-death conversation as anxious 'Happy Days' colleagues clustered around. "I just told him everything that came into my mind." Actress Linda Kelsey got knocked "about 10 feet into the air" when a van backed into a barricade that had been placed near her during shooting of the 'Lou Grant' TV series. "Her wrist was broken in two places and she bruised some ribs," said her spokesman Esme Chandler.

TV BACKSTAGE: Emmy winner Ed Asner tells me his TV life as newspaper executive Lou Grant owes quite a bit to the press. "When we started the series, we weren't that good. It was embarrassing. We would probably have failed if we hadn't been supported by helpful comments from the critics." "Price Is Right" host Bob Barker reckons he has dished out more than $40 million as a game show host. But the job has its problems. "I've been kicked, punched and even knocked to the ground by winners," he says. Success has turned sour for lovely Victoria Principal. First it cost her husband, and, if he wins his claim for alimony and half her fortune, it will cost her millions. Victoria, who plays Bobby Ewing's wife Pamela in the hit series 'Dallas,' is really a tough lady who clawed her way to fame and the money it brings. But actor husband Christopher Skinner, 10 years younger than 32-year-old Victoria, wants half of all her assets, plus alimony, according to friends. And, under California law, he's entitled to it. One source told me, "Victoria is the rich half of the family and the divorce could cost her millions of dollars." That's part of the penalty of big 'Dallas' rewards. "When Larry Hagman began demanding more money Victoria asked for more too," the insider says. "She knows she's essential to the show, so her pay doubled to $50,000 a show. That's $650,000 plus a cut of all the spin off products which probably gives her around a million bucks a year in all. There will be millions more as the show picks up syndication."

TV CLOSEUP: Cheryl Campbell, star of the upcoming 'Seven Days' mystery, bewildered by the sights of New York, let alone the blights, went overboard and bought a three piece living room suite and other art-deco objects during her sightseeing spree. The Mobil Showcase special, to be seen March 5, is the first Agatha Christie made for television program to be seen in the U.S. Maureen Garrett, who's captured the hearts of viewers over the last four years as Holly Norris on 'Guiding Light,' has left the show to pursue work in Los Angeles. Her character, Holly, has also left town on the show to make things easier for her ex-hubby Ed.
