VAN CLIBURN WINNER HERE SATURDAY EVENING

Concerts well received

Near-capacity crowds greeted the opening performances of Ruidoso Summer Festival in the Sales Arena at Ruidoso Downs Race Track Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.

Classical guitarist Pepe Romero received a sustained ovation from Tuesday evening's audience, resulting in an encore that sparked the listeners to another resounding round of applause.

At Tuesday's performance the members of the Texas Little Symphony were also called back for an encore.

In addition to the regularly scheduled concerts, some members of the orchestra will appear at the second annual "gravel concert" at 4 p.m., Monday in the West Winds Motel parking lot.

The public is welcome to "bring a chair" and listen to the informal performance, a festival spokesman said.

Associate conductor James Miller has reported he will "compose something suitable to the occasion."

During last night's concert, the highlight of the evening was a solo performance by John Giordano, symphony director, who displayed his expertise on the saxophone. Audience response to the symphony and Giordano was once again sustained applause.

The next two Summer Festival performances, free to the public, will be the Friday noon concert by the Greater Fort Worth Youth Symphony in Cedar Creek Park and a Dixieland concert, by members of the Texas Little Symphony, at 6 p.m., Friday at Old Lincoln Town.

Members of the Youth Symphony personally raised the money to bring their entourage to Ruidoso for the Summer Festival week. The members wanted to attend this year's concert series and part of their fund raising efforts included

DECA seafood sale successful

The Distributive Education Club of America (DECA) completed its seafood sale last weekend, and DECA sponsor Eddie Parker termed it "an immense success." The Ruidoso chapter of DECA will use the $1,500 it earned from the sale to help fund their trip to Anaheim, California, for the National Career Development Conference June 13-18.

While in Anaheim, the members of DECA will learn the results of their entry in the Pepsi Learn and Earn competition.

The winner of the 1974 Naumburg Piano Competition and the coveted 1977 Avery Fisher Prize, Schub was lauded by Harold Schonberg of The New York Times for his "clarity, intelligence and immense authority."

He has performed in America with leading orchestras, including those of Chicago, Boston, Cleveland, Miami and the National Symphony.

His fast-growing career also includes engagements with the Chamber Music Society and the Great Performers series at Lincoln Center, New York City.

The remaining Summer Festival includes these performances by the Texas Little Symphony:

— Free concert Sunday, 3 p.m., in Cedar Creek Park.

— Family concert Monday, 7:30 p.m., in the Sales Arena, featuring puppeteer Shari Lewis.

— The final concert, Tuesday at 8 p.m., in the Sales Arena, with guest artist Phyllis Diller appearing in one of her routines, as well as playing the concert grand.

Tickets for the final three performances in the Sales Arena are available at the Chamber of Commerce, 616 Sudderth. Cabaret seats, with eight at a table, are available at $12 per person; with stadium seats at $4.50 for adults and $3 for children. Blacktopping scheduled on Ski Run Road

The state Highway department has issued a call for bids to overlay State Road 532, the Ski Run Road, and construction is expected to begin in late July.

Ron Ripley, spokesman for the Highway Department, Santa Fe, said Wednesday the road construction will include a four to six inch layer of bituminous pavement twenty feet wide.

The contractor who receives the bid will also overlay the parking lot at Windy Point, a 60 by 120 foot area, and install culvert pipe where needed.

At points where drainage is particularly damaging to the road, perforated pipe will be installed, Ripley said. The perforation will allow excess moisture from melting snow to drain more naturally with less damage to the road surface and culverts.

In addition, some guard rails will be repaired or replaced, and new signs will be erected.

Ripley said the bids would be opened June 26, and a period of approximately 25 days will be needed to obtain federal approval of the contract.

"Whoever is awarded the bid will have to begin work immediately," Ripley said, "since all work must be completed by November 1."

Ripley said the road would remain open throughout the construction period, with flagmen on duty to direct traffic.

The overlay work is being funded totally with New Mexico state funds, and the Highway Department estimated the cost the job at $600,000.

Street vendor, sidewalk sales, control sought

Discussion regarding an ordinance to regulate street vendors and sidewalk displays continued Monday at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Retail Merchants Committee.

Meeting with the merchants was John Cupp, village zoning enforcement officer, who asked the committee for recommendations to be relayed to the Planning and Zoning Commission and subsequently to the village trustees.

Cupp advised the group that an ordinance now exists which governs outdoor sales, but it has not been enforced. Under a strict interpretation of the ordinance, he said, even auto dealers could be prohibited from displaying their cars outside.

"We want to come up with something that works for the merchants and the city," Cupp said.

Cupp asked the committee to consider sidewalk clearance space which would be reduced by street vendors; and liability, traffic congestion and parking problems which might be created by outside sales.

Committee members expressed concern about itinerant salespeople who drive into town, display their wares on parking lots for a day or two, but who have not been required to purchase business licenses.

Member Tom Kelham suggested that itinerant vendors be allowed to display their wares on private property, after paying a fee to the city. The fee, he added, should be commensurate with the amount of money expended by the village to police the area.

Kelham also suggested that the vendor be required to post an insurance bond, to relieve the village of responsibility for accidents or injuries.

The committee generally agreed with a suggestion from Tom Dorgan that the simplest way to regulate the vendors would be to require them to obtain permission from the property owner before displaying their goods. The village could issue a short term business license, contingent on obtaining the permission of the property owner, he added.

They also discussed a recommendation that sidewalk sales be permitted, with the stipulation that they be located on private property and not "impede the flow of traffic." They agreed to let village officials come up with a specific interpretation of how much space should remain free of displays to allow the free flow of traffic.

Outside displays of merchandise should also be permitted, the group agreed, as long as the displays themselves are not on public property.

Parking problems were discussed briefly, with Dorgan voicing the opinion that the "burden of having to provide parking should not be placed on the property owner," many of whom have little or no space to accommodate their own customers.

Kelham also brought up the issue of garage sales, and most of the committee members said they would favor a limit of two such sales per year per family. Such regulation would eliminate the problem of vendors staging continuous sales from their homes.

COMEDIENNE PHYLLIS DILLER will be guest artist at next Tuesday evening's final performance of Ruidoso Summer Festival's 1981 concert series. She will present one of her routines and will be the guest artist of the evening, playing the concert grand with the Texas Little Symphony. The concert begins at 8, in the Sales Arena at Ruidoso Downs Race Track.

Modular home ordinance to be formulated

A request to install a modular home in the Ponderosa Heights area at Wednesday's meeting of the Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission (P&Z) has raised questions about village ordinances defining mobile homes.

P&Z tabled the request, because Ponderosa Heights is zoned R-1 (single-family dwelling). But P&Z members noted that many modular homes are permanent structures of a high caliber. Because the Ruidoso area is likely to face an increasing number of requests for modular structures in the future, P&Z is considering amending the ordinance which at present classifies them with mobile homes.

A similar case in Luna County recently went to the New Mexico Supreme Court, when neighbors of Ross Parker sought to prevent him from installing a modular home on a lot zoned for permanent structures. The court ruled in Parker's favor, saying that there was "no express and explicit prohibition" in Deming ordinances against the modular unit, which "compares favorably with other homes in the subdivision."

But Ruidoso Village Attorney Lee Huckstep noted that the ordinances here are more explicit, prohibiting any structures in R-1 or R-2 (multi-family) areas which arrived on wheels or a flatbed.

P&Z chairman Mike Waldron suggested that the Commission meet later this month to develop criterion outlining which modular units could and which could not be acceptable in residential areas. In the meantime, the Griffins, who wish to install the modular home, are expected to file for a zoning change on the lot in question.

In other action of P&Z: — A motion by Judy Foulds to rezone a lot in Carter's Park from R-2 to R-3 (mobile homes) was tabled. The Commission expressed its policy against spot zoning. But P&Z Enforcement Officer John Cupp and a P&Z member will do a study of the Carter Park Subdivision this month. The purpose will be to determine if a larger area can be rezoned R-3.

C-C member drive skirmish nigh

BY GWYNETH JONES
Staff Writer/Photographer

The battle lines have been drawn. Teams were chosen Monday by leaders of the so-called "Bad Guys" and the Good Guys, who are vying to obtain more members for the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce.

The two teams will compete to determine whose powers of persuasion are most effective during the on-day membership drive, June 10.

Team formation began at 7:30 a.m., Monday at the Chamber office. In attendance were Chamber president Richard Sandoval, who is claiming impartiality in the contest; Chamber executive director Ed Jungbluth; Bad Guy leader Larry Langford; and Good Guys leaders Rough Belloney and Dan D. "Lyn" Shaver.

Assistant Bad Guys leader Wayne Sivage was absent for unexplained reasons. Since he was not present to defend himself, he was subjected to indiscriminate name-calling by the Good Guys, who referred to him as "Savage" and "Sewage."

Sivage reported later he was unable to attend because he was being deluged with requests from potential members who wanted to sign up in advance with the Bad Guys team.

The "Good Guys" waited only until the coin toss (determining first pick) before resuming their harangue against what they called "cheating" by the Bad Guys. Sandoval also came under criticism following the coin toss, with Belloney accusing him of using a two-tailed coin, supplied by Langford.

Sandoval protested. "I can't think of a more honest man than me," he said. "Although, someone else might be able to."

Belloney, who obviously has his own definition of fairness, suggested that the Good Guys pick all their team members first, and let the Bad Guys "have the leftovers."

Langford very cooperatively said he would agree to such a system, adding, "I want to be as easy on him as I can, because he needs all the help he can get."

Choosing of teams eventually proceeded under the original rules, although Belloney continued to accuse Langford of unethical behavior.

"He's constantly changing the rules," Belloney maintained.

Langford denied changing any rules, "except when it works to my advantage."

Shaver suggested the teams needed "an arbitration board," but Langford advised the Good Guys that what they really needed was "a new image, and possibly some new leaders."

Despite the bickering and unfounded accusations on the part of the Good Guys, they ended up with far more team members than the Bad Guys.

Langford accepted the inequality because, in his words, "Everyone knows Good Guys always finish last."

Good Guy team members, who will be contacting prospective new Chamber members June 10, include:

Ken Geaslin, Don and Mary Parsons, Jim Biggs, Clifton Keith, Leon Fickett, Ann Wilson, Wilma Sandoval, Doris Langford and Weldon Spicer.

Art Festival set July 24-26

Plans for the July 24-26 Ruidoso Art festival are progressing, and the Chamber of Commerce Art Festival Committee is getting down to details like setting admission prices, arranging for local entertainment and coordinating food booth reservations.

Heading the entertainment search is Mary Myers of the Bear Claw Gallery. She is soliciting local talent and interested persons should contact her at 257-7824.

Chamber executive director Ed Jungbluth reported at a committee meeting Friday that the Ruidoso Summer Festival has agreed to loan their portable stage to the art festival group, to enhance the entertainment offerings.

Admission to the festival was set at $1.50 for adults; 50 cents for children ages 7-16; and free admission for children age 6 and under. The admission price will be good for one day only. Hand stamps will be made available to those who wish to return to the festival the same day. The festival will open at 4 p.m., July 24, and remain open until 9 p.m. Saturday's schedule runs from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., and Sunday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Myers is organizing a coffee for the artists, and the committee is also checking into the possibility of sponsoring a barbecue for the exhibitors Saturday night.

Food booths have already been reserved by Beta Sigma Phi, offering chili dogs and hot dogs, burritos and nachos; The Altruists Club, with brownies; Ruidoso Gymnastics association, with canteloupe and watermelon.

In addition, the Band Boosters will again provide soft drinks; the Elks Lodge will prepare barbecue and the Mesalero Rehabilitation Center will serve frybread. As in the past, 100 artists have been selected to display their wares at the festival. More than 250 applicants made the jurying of the show especially difficult this year, Jungbluth said.

Canned mushrooms recalled

The local office of the Environmental Improvement Division (EID) has announced the recall of canned mushrooms because of suspected botulism contamination.

The mushrooms are in four-ounce cans, stems and pieces only, and are packed by the Oxford-Royal Mushroom Company, Kellon, Pennsylvania. They are distributed under 24 different brand names or labels.

Consumers may identify the cans by a code, stamped on the bottom of the can. The code, with progressing letters and numbers, includes: AK001 through LK 031 and AK101 through ER 118.

Retail stores should remove the cans from the shelves and return them to the Oxford-Kellon Company. Consumers should return the cans to the store where it was purchased.

Botulism is a severe, sometimes fatal form of food poisoning caused by the presence of a certain bacteria.

Pink Ladies present awards, make plans for fall horse show

At their bi-annual service pin award luncheon on Tuesday, the Hospital Auxiliary (Pink Ladies) voted to enter a profit-sharing program at this fall's Ruidoso-Hondo Valley Hospital Charity Horse Show.

Receiving service pins were: Josie Martinez and Ruth Moore (100 hours); Gladys Sadler (500 hours); Sue Crews (1000 hours); Dorothy Allen (1500 hours); Virginia Campbell (2000 hours); Lilli Borges (3000 hours); Nellie Vickers and Helga Haake (3500 hours); Mable Johnson (4000 hours) and Dottie Quaid (4500 hours).

In a speech to the Pink Ladies, hospital administrator Ken Moore outlined a number of enterprises that were proposed by the Ditchriders of El Paso, who are sponsors of the horse show.

"The potential is there to raise a great deal of funding through the horse show," Moore said. "There is a large show at Madison Square Garden two weeks after ours, and we are aiming to get some of the west coast traffic to stop on the way over. There are also shows in Albuquerque and Houston, Texas, at about the same time as ours. This can become a very important event.

The profit-sharing program proposed by the Ditchriders includes: (1) Selling advertising to local merchants, (2) Selling programs at the show, (3) Selling sponsorships to the show itself, (4) Setting up a tent and renting space to local artists and craftsmen, and (5) Running a concession stand which would sell items from the Pink Shop.

"The reason I'm pushing these proposals," said Moore, "is that I don't think you realize the extent of the money that will be coming here. Some very affluent people will be coming into Ruidoso who are going to be visiting the local shops and restaurants. Because of this, I don't think you will have any problem selling ads."

Moore said that the hospital was currently undergoing major repairs, including a remodeling of the intensive care unit.

Last year's inaugural horse show netted $17,000 in donations to the Hospital Auxiliary, of which $15,000 was a donation by Best Fish, Houston. Over $30,000 was awarded in prize money.

Some of the Pink Ladies expressed doubts that they would have the personnel available to undertake all the projects that Moore had outlined. But they voted to support them "to the extent that we are capable."

The Hospital Auxiliary contributed a total of $29,000 to the Ruidoso-Hondo Valley Hospital last year. In his closing remarks, Moore expressed his thanks, saying "Teamwork is the secret to success at a hospital, and we consider you as a major part of our team."

Improvements at Bonito Lake instigated by Alamogordo

BY GREG STEPHENS
Staff Writer/Photographer

Bonito Lake, the most heavily used fishing area in the Ruidoso region, has undergone an extensive facelifting this spring. The improvements enacted by the City of Alamogordo, the lake's owner, have made 800 acres around the lake easily accessible to campers.

Last summer the recreation area was in trouble. Alamogordo had long leased the site to the Department of Game and Fish (DGF), which was in turn responsible for maintenance of the campgrounds. But during the course of the summer, trash began to pile up until many of the campgrounds looked like dump sites.

The problem was that the individual the DGF had contracted with to do trash pickups had been incapacitated with a heart attack. Because Alamogordo was not directly involved in maintaining the campsites, word was slow in reaching them.

When it did, the city terminated the DGF's lease on the 2,000 acres surrounding the lake. The lease on the lake itself was not affected. Two Alamogordo residents were hired in August as full-time caretakers.

Rollie Knick was put in charge of maintaining the city's pipeline from Bonito Lake to Carrizozo. He also supervises general maintenance of the lake area. His wife Roseanna became the park manager. Two permanent laborers joined the Knicks this spring.

"The city has spent about $40,000 here since April," said Knick, while on a tour of the grounds. "A lot of the roads were washed out, so we graded most of the old ones and built some new ones too. The outhouses and the dump holes and most of the trash cans are new. We plan to put in grills like the Forest Service uses, and the county is supposed to pave the last section of road between the cattle guard and the lake this summer. There are about 600 campsites open now, and we plan to expand that to 1,200 when the funds are available."

Campers are assessed a $3 fee per night ($2 for senior citizens), exclusive of the requisite state fishing license. Knick said that Alamogordo expects the park to be self-supporting eventually.

But a first-time visitor might wonder why, in the meantime, a city over an hour's drive distant was willing to spend $40,000 to maintain a private playground.

The answer, according to Dan Malone of the Alamogordo Public Works Department, lies in the water the lake supplies to the city.

"Our water use at peak season is about 10 million gallons a day," Malone said.

"We get 2 million gallons a day from Bonito Lake, so it's an important part of our supply. Some of the water also goes to Ft. Stanton, Capitan, Nogal, Carrizozo, and Tularosa. They have water rights going back to their association with the railroad, so we only charge them a small transportation fee."

Alamogordo bought the lake from Southern Pacific Railroad in 1954. At one time the railroad used the water to refill its steam engines at the Carrizozo interchange. The local towns were given water rights in exchange for the railroad's right-of-way.

Southern Pacific originally bought the land from homesteaders who arrived over 100 years ago. When the railroad built the dam creating the lake in 1934, there was a town called Bonito City on what is now the southwest bank of Bonito Lake. A flood in 1941 silted the lake, and the dam was raised in 1943-44. Ten years later, then mayor of Alamogordo Walter Mullens went to California to convince Southern Pacific that, since steam engines were no longer in use, they no longer needed the lake. Alamogordo was able to purchase the 2,000 acres for a pittance. Holloman Air Force Base built the pipeline, and in exchange owns half the water rights.

The visitor today can still see evidence of the homesteaders in a century-old apple orchard that was planted by a man named Greer. There are also additions of the more recent owners, such as the pond called "Blue Hole" which is fed by natural springs. And in Bonito Lake itself, there are five kinds of trout: brookies, rainbow, cutthroat, browns and German.

Knrick said that the lake has the only all-trout fishing on state lands within 200 miles.

Boats are prohibited because of the lake's small size. The city has begun offering reduced rates to Scouts and other groups. For information, call the Alamogordo Public Works Department, 437-4530.

Little League roundup

The Elks got back on the winning track by taking three straight games in Little League play. In the process, they raised their record above the .500 mark for the first time and moved into second place.

Last Friday, the Elks came from behind to defeat the Jaycees 16-10. Pitcher Scotty Frost survived a shaky start to pick up the win in relief. He helped his own cause with a three-run triple during a seven-run Elks rally in the fifth. Russell Easter had three homers for the winners.

Black powder shoot set at Fort Sumner

A Black Powder Shoot during Old Fort Days in Fort Sumner is scheduled for Sunday, June 14, at 1 p.m., at the Fort Sumner State Monument, south of Fort Sumner.

There will be fixed open sight shoots with only patched roundball permitted. The use of scopes or peep sights will not be allowed.

The event will be a novelty shoot including metal silhouettes, gong shoot, egg shoot and many more. There will be ten or more events if the time allotment permits. Medals and trophies will be awarded for prizes.

The event is free to the public. There is a $10 entry fee for shooters. Contact Lonnie Stewart, De Baca County Chamber of Commerce, Post Office Box 28, Fort Sumner, New Mexico 88119 for entry forms.

Fort Sumner is celebrating the Billy the Kid Centennial during Old Fort Days, June 6-14, since it is the 100th anniversary of "the Kid's" death.

The Jaycees attack was led by Tony Lee-ling with three hits, and Brian Davis, who socked a pair of triples.

Monday night the Elks disposed of Ruidoso State Bank on the strength of a three-hit shutout by Russell Easter. The 7-0 victory moved them into a tie for second place.

Tuesday night the Elks pounded the winless Jaycees again, 17-7, to move into sole possession of second. For the winners, Clint Walker batted four for five, while Russell Easter hit a line-shot homer, his seventh of the year. Brian Davis and Mike Swanner had two hits each for the Jaycees.

Soccer championship results

Two of last year's three champions repeated their triumphs in the playoffs of the Ruidoso Sertoma Soccer League last weekend.

The only new champion was in the under eight division. United took last year's champs, the Cobras, into overtime play tied at 1-1. There were no scores in the two additional five-minute periods, so both teams were awarded five penalty kicks. United connected on four to the Cobras' two, and took a 2-1 victory.

The Rowdies were a surprise as repeat champs in the under 12's. They had won only three games in the regular season. The Scorpions, who entered the game unbeaten, led 1-0 most of the way. But the Rowdies scored on a direct kick with three minutes to play to send the contest into overtime.

Both teams went scoreless over the two following ten-minute periods. The Rowdies finally ended the struggle by besting the Scorpions on the five penalty kicks, 4-2.

The Celtics continued their dominance of the under 16's with a 4-2 win over the Strikers.

The two younger divisions will hold all star games this Saturday at White Mountain Middle School, beginning at 10:30 a.m. Butch Grantham, director of the soccer league, said that the under 16's were not having an all star game because there were only three teams in the division.

Registration for boys interested in attending Bobby Moffat's "Techniques Soccer Camp" in July is continuing at Morgan Mountain Sports.

Immunization schedule

Monday, June 8: RUIDOSO CLINIC — will be held at White Mountain School from 10 a.m.-2 p.m.

A parent or guardian must accompany every child to be immunized.

Anyone interested in Well Child or Family Planning Clinic appointments, please call 648-2413.

There will be no immunization clinics in Capitan, Corona and Hondo during the months of June and July. They will resume again in August.

Focus on Small Business

by E. Maine Shafer

Dear Mr. Shafer:

What is the outlook for small business in this country under the Reagan Administration?

Good, if past statements by Ronald Reagan are any indication.

He has said that federal tax and regulatory policies "are slowly destroying America's small businesses." Reagan also has pointed out that in 1969 71 percent of all new jobs were provided by small business, but that the share has now declined to 43 percent — not because big businesses are producing more jobs but because small businesses are producing fewer.

To revive the small business sector, Reagan has said he feels there is a need to enact an across-the-board cut in tax rates to restore the incentive to produce, and to eliminate unnecessary federal regulations on small businesses.

Reagan has said he supports the Republican Party platform which calls for:

— Simplification and liberalization of "restrictive depreciation schedules."

— Reform of regulatory laws "which stifle the very life of business through fines, threats, and harassment."

— Reimbursement of small businessmen who successfully challenge the federal government in court.

— Lower business and personal tax rates for small business people.

— Easing of the estate tax burden on all Americans, and abolishment of excessive inheritance taxes to allow families to retain and to pass on their small businesses and family farms.

— Reform of patent laws to facilitate innovation.

— Directing a greater share of the federal research and development budget to small businesses.

Missing woman sought

There was no champagne, no toasts, no celebration, just tears, when an anniversary quietly passed for Nancy Craddock in May.

The anniversary marked a full year that the Taos resident has been officially listed as a missing person.

She was reported last seen by her husband, Wayne, at the Amarillo, Texas, airport on May 29, 1980. Craddock told State Police investigators that his wife was supposed to fly to Dallas on a Southwest Airlines flight to see her daughter.

She did not get on that flight.

At the time of her disappearance, Mrs. Craddock was chairman of the Taos County Republican Party. Well-known in the community, investigators were told by acquaintances that she was not the type of person that would willfully disappear.

With the passage of time, State Police investigators now believe that the 49-year-old woman has been the victim of foul play.

This week the State Crime Stoppers Commission is offering a $1,000 reward for information leading to the location of Mrs. Craddock, or for information solving her mysterious disappearance.

She is described as being five feet tall, 130-135 pounds, with black or dark brown hair, brown eyes, and had a scar on the inside of her left wrist. When last seen, she was wearing blue jeans, a vari-colored plait shirt, tan sweater and wooden-soled shoes. She also had large glasses with brown tinted plastic frames. Among the various pieces of jewelry she usually wore was a wide silver wedding ring, a one karat diamond engagement ring, and a wrist watch with an imprinted Republican elephant on the face. At the time of her disappearance she had numerous credit cards and between $2,000-$4,000 in cash.

A native of Dallas, Texas, Mrs. Craddock and her husband had moved to Taos in northern Taos County in the winter of 1977-78. Friends describe the missing woman as a person who likes to get involved in social and political activities and shortly after her arrival in northern New Mexico she became a leader in the Taos County Republican Party.

In addition to the $1,000 reward being offered this week by the State Crime Stoppers Commission, a $10,000 reward has been posted by Mrs. Craddock's father for "information leading directly to the recovery and positive identification of her, whether dead or alive."

Anyone having any information about the case is asked to call the State Crime Stoppers Commission at its toll-free number, 1-800-432-6633. Callers do not have to reveal their identities and calls are not taped.

In other Crime Stoppers activities around New Mexico:

— Lloyd C. Hart, 22 of Ajo, Arizona, was ordered jailed in lieu of $50,000 bond in connection with charges stemming from the armed robbery of Security Bank in Alamogordo on May 6. Detective Lieutenant Ray Bailey said Hart was arrested after a tip was called in to the Otero County Crime Stoppers program.

— Richard Trujillo, formerly from Gallup and now residing in Albuquerque, was arrested on charges of larceny in connection with the May 11 theft and fatal shooting of a second suspect at a health food store in Albuquerque's Old Town area. Trujillo, who once managed the McKinley Ambulance Service in Gallup, was arrested by detectives after a tip to the Albuquerque Crime Stoppers Program. A second suspect, Thomas Leo Baca, 36, of Albuquerque, was shot and killed by the store owner following a brief chase from the crime scene. Witnesses say two men entered the health food store while one of them kept store employees busy, the second tried to clean out a safe in the back of the store.

— Deming Crime Stoppers Coordinator Malcolm Justmann reported that two adults were arrested in connection with the recent burglary of the Farmers Bean Warehouse, thanks to a call to that southwestern New Mexico Crime Stoppers program. Another call led to the capture of a fugitive felon and the arrest of a Deming resident on charges of harboring a felon.

To date, citizen calls to Crime Stoppers programs throughout the New Mexico area have assisted in the solution of some 3,150 major crimes and the recovery of more than $4.3 million worth of stolen property and narcotics.

The State Crime Stoppers Commission and the 32 local Crime Stoppers programs offer cash rewards on a regular basis for information leading to the arrests and indictments of major crime offenders and the capture of wanted felons.

Plains Branch Station Field Day, ground breaking, slated June 4

Ground breaking for a fuel alcohol pilot plant will highlight New Mexico State University's (NMSU) Plains Branch Station Field Day, June 4. The public is invited.

The field day begins at 9 a.m., at the station headquarters located 15 miles north of Clovis on Highway 18. NMSU researchers will lead tours of research field plots. They also will explain the wind charger program developed in cooperation with the University of New Mexico. The morning tours conclude with an open house and a barbeque lunch at noon. The free lunch is sponsored by several chemical companies.

Participating in the ground breaking will be Larry Keboe, secretary, State of New Mexico Energy and Minerals Department; Dick Meyers, program officer, New Mexico Four Corners Regional Commission; Dr. Harold Daw, vice president, NMSU; Dr. Koert Lessman, director, Agricultural Experiment Station, NMSU; and Wayne Baker, chairman, Plains Branch Advisory Committee.

Project funds were provided by the New Mexico Legislature through the State Energy Research and Development Program. The project is administered by the New Mexico Energy Institute at NMSU under the direction of the New Mexico Energy and Minerals Department. Other funds for the project were provided by the Four Corners Regional Commission and NMSU's Agricultural Experiment Station. For lunch reservations call the Plains Branch by June 2 at 985-2292.

Taxpayers can appeal tax examination results

Taxpayers who are not satisfied with the outcome of their Federal income tax examination have the right to appeal within the Internal Revenue Service (IRS), or through the courts, or both.

According to the IRS, after the examination, the first step is to request an immediate meeting with the examiner's group supervisor. The supervisor may be able to resolve the issue at that point.

If no agreement is reached with the supervisor, taxpayers have 30 days to appeal through administrative channels. It works this way: an informal conference can be arranged in any of the over 800 offices throughout the country with a representative of the Regional Director of Appeals.

The Appeals Division is independent of the Examination Division, and the role of the appeals officer is to bring an unprejudiced and unbiased point of view to the case.

Because the conference is informal, a taxpayer may represent himself or herself, or be represented by an attorney, certified public accountant, or an individual enrolled to practice before IRS. Additionally, witnesses can be present at the conference to support the taxpayer's position.

If there is still no agreement after the Appeals Conference, and provided the amount of tax in question is not more than $5,000 in any tax year, the case can then go to an informal hearing under the small case procedures of the United States Tax Court. Under this procedure, however, neither the taxpayer nor the government can appeal the court's decision.

If the amount is more than $5,000, the case will be heard under the regular procedures of the Tax Court. Also, taxpayers can elect to bypass the Tax Court by paying the tax and filing a claim for refund. If the claim is rejected, the taxpayer may file a refund suit in the United States District Court or the United States Court of Claims. Appeals can reach the Supreme Court, if it agrees to hear the case.

Additional information on taxpayers' right of appeals is available in the free IRS Publication 558, "Examination of Return, Appeal Rights, and Claims for Refund," which can be obtained by calling the IRS Forms/Tax Information number listed in the telephone directory.

Review sought for BLM coal recommendations

Three major documents which could set the stage for a dramatic increase in coal mining in northwestern New Mexico will be released for public review this month.

The Bureau of Land Management's (BLM) coal-related land use plan recommendations for the Chaco/San Juan Planning Unit will be available for public comment starting June 22, as will BLM's environmental assessment on the proposed Ute Mountain Land Exchange, by which Public Service Company of New Mexico would trade lands it owns north of Taos for public lands in the coal region north of Chaco Canyon.

A third document, the environmental assessment for 26 Preference Right Lease Applications (PRLAs) for coal in the same region will be released for public review June 8.

An overlapping comment period has been established for the United States Department of Energy's coal production goals for the San Juan River Coal Region. Between July 13 and August 17, the public is asked to evaluate the 1980 regional coal production goals which, by 1990, is pegged at between 54.5 and 58.9 million short tons per year. BLM hearings on the coal production goals will be held in Albuquerque July 13 at the Convention Center, and in Farmington at The Inn on July 16. Both hearings start at 10 a.m.

The public comment period for the Chaco/San Juan Planning Update for coal ends July 17, as does the comment period for the environmental assessment on the PRLAs, which are non-competitive coal lease applications pending since the early 1970s before the current coal leasing laws were passed. The comment period for the Ute Mountain Exchange environmental assessment ends July 24. Public Service Company of New Mexico proposed to build a new coal-fired power plant on land they hope to acquire from BLM in that exchange.

"I regret that we must ask the public to review these separate but related documents during overlapping comment periods, but we hope to facilitate this public review process in several ways," said BLM Albuquerque District Manager Paul Applegate. "For one thing, we plan to combine 'open house' meetings so that people can learn about, and comment on, all of these documents at one time and in one place. We'll hold these open houses in Farmington, Albuquerque and Taos, in addition to meetings in the Navajo areas."

BLM "open house" meetings will allow members of the public to drop in any time between 3 p.m. and 9 p.m., at selected locations on the dates arranged to receive a briefing on the contents of each document, engage in discussions with BLM personnel about the material and record their comments on the adequacy and validity of the work.

The "open house" schedule is as follows: Pueblo Pintado — July 7, Chapter House, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Lake Valley — July 8, Chapter House, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Carson — July 9, Huerfano Chapter House, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Albuquerque — July 13, Convention Center (concurrent with hearings on Department of Energy (DOE) regional coal production goals), 3 to 9 p.m.

Taos — July 16, Kachina Lodge, 3 to 9 p.m.

Farmington — July 16, The Inn, (concurrent with hearings on DOE regional coal production goals), 3 to 9 p.m.

Public libraries, Navajo Chapter Houses and BLM offices in Albuquerque, Farmington, Taos, Santa Fe and Cuba will have copies of the document on the PRLAs as of June 8, while documents relating to the coal-related land use planning and the Ute Mountain Exchange will be available starting June 22, Applegate said, if they are returned from the printer on time.

Applegate said he appreciated the "high level of interest members of the public have demonstrated throughout the Chaco/San Juan Planning Update for Coal. We have received very helpful and specific information and recommendations so far.

"It is my desire to produce decisions that will meet developmental needs as well as needs for recreation, scientific research, livestock grazing and Native American cultural integrity. So I am requesting that members of the public review our work carefully and give us the benefit of a wide range of experience and judgement."

About 200 billion tons of coal exist in the San Juan Basin in northwestern New Mexico, with about seven billion tons of it mineable with surface operations. Of the seven billion tons, about nine percent is owned by private interests, three percent by Native Americans and 26 percent by the federal government, according to BLM, which administers federal minerals.

BLM's Chaco/San Juan Planning Unit includes some 28-30 billion tons of publicly-owned coal, with about 1.4 billion tons recoverable by strip mining.

Approximately 14 million tons of coal are being produced yearly in New Mexico from all sources now, Applegate said, adding that since DOE's coal production goals call for production for more than 50 million tons annually from this region by the end of the decade, much of the increase can be expected to come from federal coal leasing.

BLM intends to lease coal in this region by competitive bid in 1983, ending a decade-long moratorium imposed in the early 1970s when the bureau determined that companies holding leases were not producing due to market conditions.

"At a high level of production, ten potential mines in the shippable area could be producing 45.5 million tons of coal annually by 1990," Applegate said. "We believe that would result in disturbance of 14,580 acres of land in the region north of Chaco Canyon running from the Bisti area to within 30 miles of Cuba.

"This is of critical importance because of the other resources in the coal region. This is one of the most important archeological centers in the United States, a fact officially recognized by Congress when it re-designated Chaco Canyon National Monument as the Chaco Culture National Historic Park last winter.

"In addition, we have the popular Bisti Wilderness Study Area, and two other potential additions to the National Wilderness Preservation System, in the coal region too. And we have major fossil deposits which some paleontologists consider to be of worldwide importance."

Applegate explained that the Chaco/San Juan Planning Update for Coal, under public review June 22-July 17, and the environmental assessment for the Preference Right Lease Applications, available for review June 8-July 17, are the attempts made by his personnel to reconcile the demand for publicly-owned coal against the other publicly-owned resource values in the area.

Based on an average of $17 per ton, the value of federal coal in the region could range from over $500 million to $750 million annually by 1990, he said.

The land use recommendations indicate those parts of the coal region which were determined to be suitable or unsuitable for coal leasing, based on criteria established in the 1977 Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act. This document also presents judgements as to whether, in specific instances, some resources are more important than the coal deposits beneath them. The Chaco/San Juan Planning Update for Coal includes the bureau's multiple use analysis and its resource trade-off recommendations.

Decisions on those recommendations will not be made until public comment is received and considered. Applegate is expected to make his decisions July 27-29, following an on-the-ground tour of the areas which would be affected by his decisions.

The environmental assessment on the Preference Right Lease Applications, which are estimated to contain between 60 and 90 percent of all the stripminable coal in northwestern New Mexico, covers the expected impacts from leasing in the region stretching from Bisti, just east of the Navajo Reservation, to just west of Cuba. The 250-page assessment also applies the unsuitability criteria of the 1977 act, and establishes mitigation measures which would be necessary to protect certain other resources if mining were to take place.

BLM is considered to have little discretion as to whether federal coal in the PRLA areas are leased, since the applications were filed under the old coal leasing system.

Much of the socio-economic data in the PRLA environmental assessment is taken from material compiled for the Chaco/San Juan Planning Update for Coal.

The Ute Mountain Land Exchange environmental assessment, which has approximately 175 pages, deals with the implications involved in a land trade between BLM and Public Service Company of New Mexico (PSC). The utility company owns Ute Mountain north of Taos which would be traded into public ownership in exchange for lands which are now publicly-owned in the coal region, mostly north of Chaco Canyon. PSC has submitted a proposal to BLM to build a 2,000 megawatt coal-fired power plant on lands they hope to acquire through this exchange. Other parts of the land sought by the company might be used for a townsite for up to 20,000 people to run the power plant, the mines and other related developments, such as a planned coal gasification plant and an aluminum plant.

The environmental assessment on the land exchange does not deal with the use to which the lands to be acquired by PSC would be put. The environmental impacts of these proposed developments are being addressed in BLM's New Mexico Generating Station Environmental Impact Statement, expected to be completed in April 1983.

Lands which would be acquired for public use in the exchange adjoin the BLM-managed Rio Grande Wild and Scenic River north of Questa.

Coal production goals set by DOE are used by BLM to determine how much federal coal leasing will be required. In determining coal leasing targets, BLM must evaluate expected and potential production from all non-federal coal holdings, including Indian lands, existing federal leases and other considerations arising from public comment.

Federal coal leasing to meet the production goals is also guided by input from state government. The BLM's Regional Coal Team for the San Juan River Coal Region is composed of a representative of the Governor of New Mexico, currently Larry Kehoe, secretary for Energy and Minerals, a representative of the governor of Colorado, the BLM state directors of both states, and a team chairman, the BLM Montana associate state director.

The next meeting of the regional coal team is July 1 in Farmington, when it will receive briefings on the PRLAs and the coal-related land use planning. The BLM Albuquerque District Advisory Council, composed of 11 citizens of northern New Mexico representing various interest groups, will meet concurrently with the regional coal team July 1, after which it will evaluate the land use planning.

Cebolla man Tree Farmer of Year

The New Mexico Tree Farm Committee has chosen Delfin Quintana of Cebolla, New Mexico as New Mexico's Outstanding Tree Farmer of the Year. Quintana is the principal of Tierra Amarilla High School. He has been a certified tree farmer for 18 years.

The Quintanas have owned the land since 1883; and for the past 20 years, it has been under a written forest management plan. Management on the tree farm includes: timber production, wildlife habitat protection, forage production for cattle, and some recreational use. The Quintana family does all the field work on their farm.

To be chosen New Mexico Tree Farmer of the Year is quite an achievement, and Delfin has done a superior job. Governor Bruce King will be presenting Delfin the New Mexico Outstanding Tree Farmer of the Year Plaque.

The New Mexico Tree Farm Committee is also awarding Delfin with a chainsaw from the McCulloch Corporation, a gift certificate from the T.S.I. Company for forestry equipment, a membership subscription to the American Forestry Association, and he will be entered in the regional competition to compete with tree farmers in the other western states.

Raymond Gallegos, State Forester of New Mexico Forestry Division and co-sponsor of the Tree Farm Program, would like to encourage all landowners that qualify to join the Tree Farm Program.

The American Tree Farm System, a nationwide conservation program supported by the forest products industry and other public forestry organizations to recognize and encourage management of privately owned woodlands, is 40 years old this summer.

More than 41,000 private landowners manage 82 million acres under the Tree Farm System and the numbers are increasing steadily, according to the American Forest Institute (AFI), which conducts the program.

Tree Farmers are individual landowners in a variety of occupations who have committed themselves to management of their forest property as an investment or additional income source — or for the pleasures of forestry — while contributing to the nation's supply of timber for the wood and paper products people need.

Familiar diamond-shaped green and white signs, posted on major highways and rural roads, identify certified tree farms. Owners of 10 acres or more may qualify to become tree farmers. The basic requirements are that they manage their property for the growth and harvest of trees and adequately protect their woodlands from fire, insects, diseases and destructive grazing. Harvesting practices must assure prompt restocking with desirable trees and must be consistent with environmental, recreational and wildlife values.

To be certified by the American Forest Institute, landowners must demonstrate to professional foresters who inspect their property regularly that they are properly managing their land.

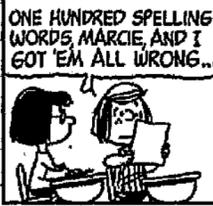

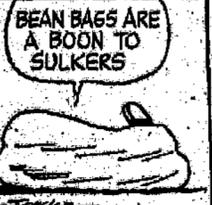

There are tree farms located in every state, with forty-five active state tree farm committees administering the program.

Tree Farmers of the Year are selected in state, regional and national evaluations. The national winners in 1978, 1979 and 1980 were invited to the White House and greeted by the President.

Birthday Celebration For Allen Reynolds

On the evening of May thirty (traditional Memorial Day) a birthday celebration was held for our great little friend of many years, Alan Reynolds, at the home in Glencoe of Harlan Webb, the famous saddle maker, who took time off from his busy schedule to act as master of ceremonies.

Allen's birthday was on May fifteen, but his long-time friend, Harlan, held the joyful gathering on the thirtieth so "we could spread the word to as many as we could."

Music was played by Ray Reed with the violin and Wayne Crume with the guitar. Mr. Crume also sang several of his own compositions. Ray had started Wayne on his musical career years ago, so the reunion was especially pleasant.

A grand lunch was served featuring barbecued mutton as a gift from the Gibson Ranch.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Gibson, Jimmy's mother, Eula; and Jimmy's sons, Ralphe and J. J., and his daughter Jamie; Harlan's daughter, Terrie and his son, Hoot.

Bennie Miller, famous race rider was there. And Dr. Joe Miller, and Mrs. Miller were present. Dr. Joe says this is the thirty-fourth year he has been track veterinarian. Among many other well-wishers was Mike Hernandez long-time employee of the Ruidoso-Hondo Valley Hospital.

Allen Brings Back Pleasant Memories

I have known Allen ever since we were teenagers in the early days of Ruidoso, when the city in the pines was a tiny village.

There used to be a rodeo corral amongst the pine trees about where the Ben Franklin store now stands. We held rodeos here, and the folks would park their Model T's, or hitch their wagons or saddle horses near by and watch the contests from wherever they could: On the corral fence, the fenders of their cars, or perched up in the pine trees.

There was bronc riding, roping, wild horse riding with mane hold, wild cow milking, steer riding and wild mule riding.

Allen was a star in these shows along with Bill Dick Browning, Gerald Tully, Claude Walker, Jack Casey, Mark Storm and many others.

Allen is a typical western man, like someone who stepped out of the stories of the great western story writer, Zane Grey. He has always been ready to drop everything and run to the help of neighbor or stranger alike. He loves the life of rancher and cowboy which he has followed all his life, and still does to this day.

He has had more than his share of injury and suffering, but he has shown true courage through it all, remaining ever cheerful and helpful. Allen is an inspiration to all of us.

We thank Harlan and all those who showed such a fine spirit in giving this birthday send-off for a greatly beloved friend. And we wish Allen many happy returns of the day and all God's blessings.

Harlan Webb Makes Racing History

Harlan Webb, named after her father, Harlan Webb, is becoming more and more famous as a great lady jockey. After a brilliant career in Sunland Park she is now riding in Santa Fe Downs where she is leading rider, the first time that a lady jockey has been the leading rider here in the history of the Santa Fe Track.

In a conversation on the phone with Harlan, from whom his daughter inherits her gift with horses, he wondered if this is not the first time in the history of horse racing that a lady jockey has been the leading rider. As well as I can remember no other lady race rider has accomplished this goal. I would like someone who can look into the records to check into this.

The fact remains that Harlan is one of the very outstanding lady jockeys in the world today.

In four weekends at Santa Fe she rode twenty winners, and has brought Johnny Jamieson up into top trainer.

We are all proud of this great little lady, and we wish her continued success in her chosen field and all God's blessings.

Inside The Capitol

BY FRED McCAFFREY
SANTA FE — By the end of this year, you're going to be tired hearing about something called redistricting.

This department will take the risk of boring you on the subject because it's too important to us all to be ignored.

When you modify political divisions, you also cause the shifting of political power. When politicians — those most attracted to political power — are assigned to do that shifting (which is what redistricting is), you'd better keep a close eye on the proceedings.

You see, there isn't a politician alive who can resist the temptation to make things better for A.) him or herself, and B.) his or her party at a time when power centers have temporarily turned fluid and are being moved around.

And there's nothing these political folks would rather have us Sap Citizens do than go away and pay them no mind while they slice up this pie.

That alone is one reason why we have to keep reminding them that our eyes are on them every inch of the way. Leave them alone and what we will get is what is best for them — but is that best for us?

Not likely.

Let's just take one example.

It may have crossed the minds of some Republicans (who are no less devious than the other crowd) that it might be to their party's interest to delay establishing new Congressional districts for a couple of years, so the third Congressperson from New Mexico could be chosen next year at large.

That way, you see, Manuel Lujan and Joe Skeen could run relatively safely, from districts they have already organized and in which each is the incumbent. In such a system Republicans would ordinarily do well, even if that at-large district turned out to go to the opposition party.

But is that what would be best for the people of New Mexico?

Certainly not — nor is it what the people of New Mexico are looking forward to.

Non-political citizens don't want games played with that third district, to the benefit of either party.

Ordinary New Mexicans want the handling of that third Congressional district done in an honest, straight-forward manner.

They want to know what each of the three districts is like, and they want to see them initiated so we can choose our representatives in Congress from them in November of 1982.

No games, no hanky-panky, and no trade-offs.

The criterion for all redistricting should be the answer to one simple question: What is the choice which will best serve the people of New Mexico?

That's what government's supposed to do about.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

Amen and Halllujah to Joyce McMath. We are at the other end of the age spectrum — retired in "Harmony Valley" where the Realtors room. They love you when they see the gleam of green in your eyes as you decide to retire here.

After your home is built — forget it there are no friendly follow-ups by either the Realtor, builder or anyone else!

This being a tourist town, rightly caters to our visitors. However, without a constant predictable tax base of permanent residents the village would find it difficult to plan a budget. Retirees, those described by Mrs. McMath, are necessary if we are to provide services expected by our visitors who visit here and decide to move here stay here, is to make that warm, friendly attitude projected to the tourist a reality for the newcomers who move here!

One of the ways to insure that people

Long ago when you visited Florida you were greeted by signs "Keep Florida Green — Bring Money." Change the Florida to Ruidoso and you describe the present situation here.

Remember someday those Texas RICH Baptists may come out of the closet and vote racing in their state. Would be interesting — wouldn't it?

Our best tourist asset is the lovely scenery, pleasant weather, nature gave us. That plus a genuinely friendly town will provide a reason to live and visit here — even if the ponies are no longer the prime summer attraction.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

0 RUNS 0 HITS 2 ERRORS

The village trustees meeting of May 23 was anything but routine.

The local news omitted reporting two items which are important enough to report here.

Mayor Davis has recently stated that the motorcycle portion of the Aspencade should be eliminated as it was affecting the image of the village. Flying in the face of the Chamber of Commerce's strong endorsement of the cyclist along with the approval of various businesses who welcome the cyclists it is difficult to understand the mayor's position.

The Lodgers Tax committee (LTC) had approved requests in the past to fund advertising for the motorcyclists. LTC is not in the business of forming policy — only to approve or disapprove such request made by local groups. The requests, if approved, are then sent on to the trustees for final approval. With one exception all requests have been approved by the council.

Til Thompson has spearheaded the cyclists meet for many years and payments are made to him through the Chamber of Commerce for a small share of his advertising cost after being approved by the Council. Recently the mayor's attitude towards the LTC has changed to the point that he is now taking an adversary position possibly because of the Til Thompson advertising funding.

This position was affirmed, to a degree, on May 23 through actions taken by the council which appear aimed at curtailing or eliminating the present members of the LTC.

On April 29, 1980, ordinance 80-3 was passed by the Council — regarding terms of office for committees. It stated: "members shall be appointed for staggered terms of three (3) years and that no member shall serve longer than two consecutive terms."

On May 11, 1981, a legal notice appeared in our local press stating "an ordinance amending Chapter 4, Article 4, to create a Lodgers Tax Advisory Board." I thought this to be odd since the LTC had been operating for the past 5-6 years. I contacted some of the trustees who were not aware of the legal notice or its purpose.

So much for the background — On May 23 the proposed ordinance came up before the council for discussion. The ordinance, as proposed, said, in part "The Committee shall consist of five members who shall be appointed by the Mayor for 2 year terms with two members to serve for one year. WHY THE DIFFERENCE IN THE TERM OF OFFICE WITH THOSE OF OTHER COMMITTEES?"

This was an open public meeting and I asked why the difference in the term proposed with that of other committees. Why could not all committees serve for the same length of term? No answer. Apparently the proposed ordinance came as a surprise to most if not all of the trustees who were not prepared to handle it. Nevertheless, the ordinance passed with a nay vote from Atwood and Sawyer. The mayor broke the tie vote with an aye. As questionable as the proposed ordinance was it should have been tabled for additional study. Being 5-6 years late, another two weeks would have been a small price to pay for a logical explanation of why the difference in the term of committee members. I would yet like to know.

One of the criticisms made of the cyclists by the mayor was made at the May 13 meeting on the LTC. His statements appeared in the news and, as a result, a local attorney representing Til Thompson wrote the mayor defending his client's position on the cyclists convention and decrying Davis' statements on Thompson and the cyclists in general.

On the evening of May 23 I went to the public library to attend a regular meeting of the trustees. The Lodgers Tax committee was on the agenda to present an annual report on its activities. Besides myself, seated at a table was another member of the LTC, the executive director of the Chamber of Commerce, his wife and another person. A few minutes before the meeting started mayor Davis entered, took his seat, and opened his mail before him. He then stood up and walked rapidly towards our table where we were all seated. Davis was apparently highly agitated about something. He mentioned motorcycles and threw a letter onto the table at which we were seated. He then made some remarks which are unprintable here in our presence and the presence of the wife of the party at our table. As he turned to leave I reminded him that there was a lady present and, after another remark, he returned to his seat. The irony of the situation is that the mayor thought that the members of our table were responsible for the letter that upset him. We had no idea of the reason for his being upset until we saw the letter which he had left in the middle of our table. Davis' outburst was unfortunate and his remarks were not deserved by anyone at our table and certainly unexpected from the mayor of our town.

As Lyndon Johnson once said "Why don't we just sit down and reason together."

editorial

In addition to the remaining performances of the Texas Little Symphony, and the Dixieland concert in Lincoln Friday at 6 p.m., a wealth of top musical presentations await area patrons.

Of special interest should be the free noon concert tomorrow, in Cedar Creek Park, by the Greater Fort Worth Youth Symphony.

It is especially noteworthy that this group of young musicians raised the funding to make their attendance at this year's Summer Festival possible. They wanted to attend this year's festival and the only way they could was to get out and raise the money. This dedication is refreshing because it tells us that the youth of today will bestir themselves to further their ambitions.

Yet to be savored by patrons of the Summer Festival will be the piano artistry of Andre-Michel Schub, Van Cliburn contest winner; the appearance of puppeteer Charl Lewis Monday and the finale of this year's production, watching the exuberance of Phyllis Diller as guest artist next Tuesday evening.

Just imagining Phyllis Diller demonstrating her expertise on a concert grand is mind boggling, because it's hard to visualize this vivacious lady being serious about anything other than comedy.

Congratulations are certainly due the members of Ruidoso Summer Festival for bringing this year's musical production here. And we wish them luck in building this production into one of Ruidoso's outstanding summer attractions, a goal, plainly, that is well within their grasp. — CD

WORKING CLASS PAY

America's working class ... according to House Speaker Tip O'Neill ... should be the envy of the rest of the world ... and a tribute to capitalism that should leave the Commie bigwigs gasping for breath.

O'Neill recently ... in attacking President Reagan's tax cutting ideas ... said the Democrats in the House will come up with their own program ... because ... quoting O'Neill ... "We think his program is kind of a windfall to the rich. Our program, as you know, is guided toward the working class of America — those who are earning today between $20,000 and $50,000" a year.

Just how many "working class" people are you personally acquainted with that receive wages amounting to between $20/$50,000 per year?

"Course, maybe conditions are better back east ... and, if they're that much better, it's possible there'll soon be a severe shortage of working class folks in the great Southwest ... why, if some of the working classes right here in Harmony Valley were to earn the sum O'Neill used, it'd probably take them sixteen years to catch their breath sufficiently to find something to bellyache about.

Seems as though O'Neill ... if he really wants to help the working class ... them's the working slob ... that he should oughta see what he can do to help those as is drawing from $7,000-$15,000 per year ... 'cause there's probably more of them than is in the $20/$50 thou bracket ... though O'Neill probably doesn't know many personally in either bracket.

Yup ... looks as though the working class ... if'n they want to benefit from any legislation on tax reduction that O'Neill might get the Democrats to get by Reagan ... is gonna have to do something about getting their wages up into O'Neill's bracket ... which, especially here in Harmony Valley, is gonna take considerable doing.

Ah, well ... Tip's a good Speaker ... he ain't too shabby a golfer ... and he's a dandy fine fellow ... gregarious and all that ... but his ideas of how much money the working class is paid do tend to indicate that he's out of touch with the main stream ... at least the working class's main stream.

PACKAGED PROBLEMS

All my life I've displayed an ineptitude for carrying out routine functions that consistently amazes even I ... like, I gave up on finding nails that'll drive straight ... thumbtacks that'll go into bulletin boards without the point bending ... getting a burned out light bulb out of a socket intact ... and keeping my fingers out of mice traps.

Of late, however, I've discovered a whole new assortment of packaging problems to plague me ... with for instances including:

— Milk and cream containers that open when I push up where it indicates they should be pushed up ... seems I always wind up tackling the carton with a knife, resulting in opening more fingers than cartons.

— Dry cereal boxes advising me to push up on a flap, or push in on a little perforated opening before pulling up ... for me, these devices don't ever work ... resulting in the kitchen carpeting taking on a coating of cereal ... which tends to keep my mice fat and sassy ... and it does increase my cereal purchases.

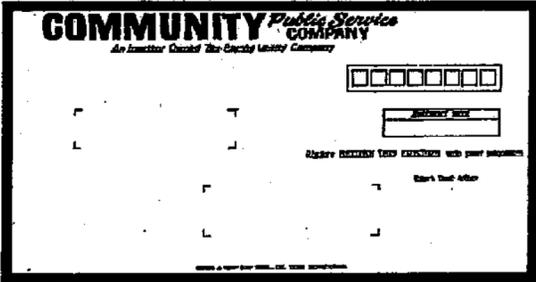

— Those plastic covered containers of brads and screws ... ain't no way I've been able to figure out how to pry, chisel, chop or cut into that plastic ... from front or rear ... without having the whole kil and kaboodle winding up in the carpeting ... which tends to keep my vacuum cleaner repair man in a constant state of ecstasy.

— The pop cans ... out of 100, I generally manage to wind up with the pop top popper well in hand out of 97 attempts ... and the opening intact ... only to discover that the church key's been lost in the shuffle ... following which I generally get the screwdriver through my hand before I gets it through the top of that pop top can ... after which it's generally my top as winds up popped.

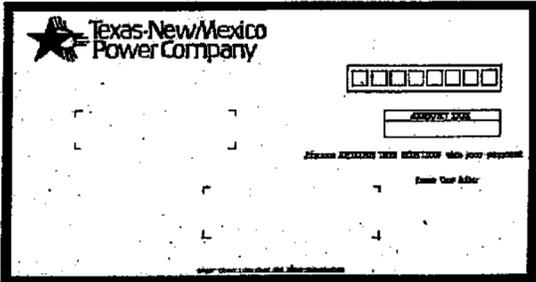

— Then there's those twist off tops ... seems those as I gets is designed to twist counter clock wise ... so, without a church key, I use pliers and gets bloodhisters before I gets into the contents.

BRIEF BIT: It's so dry in Harmony Valley that you might scoot get poked in the eye for saying: "Here's mud in your eye." ... CD

Harla Webb, named after her father, Harlan Webb, is becoming more and more famous as a great lady jockey. After a brilliant career in Sunland Park she is now riding in Santa Fe Downs where she is leading rider, the first time that a lady jockey has been the leading rider here in the history of the Santa Fe Track.

In a conversation on the phone with Harlan, from whom his daughter inherits her gift with horses, he wondered if this is not the first time in the history of horse racing that a lady jockey has been the leading rider. As well as I can remember no other lady race rider has accomplished this goal. I would like someone who can look into the records to check into this.

The fact remains that Harla is one of the very outstanding lady jockeys in the world today.

In four weekends at Santa Fe she rode twenty winners, and has brought Johnny Jamieson up into top trainer.

We are all proud of this great little lady, and we wish her continued success in her chosen field and all God's blessings.

Allen Brings Back Pleasant Memories

I have known Allen ever since we were teenagers in the early days of Ruidoso, when the city in the pines was a tiny village.

There used to be a rodeo corral amongst the pine trees about where the Ben Franklin store now stands. We held rodeos here, and the folks would park their Model T's, or hitch their wagons or saddle horses

Inside The Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

BY FRED McCAFFREY
SANTA FE — By the end of this year, you're going to be tired hearing about something called redistricting.

This department will take the risk of boring you on the subject because it's too important to us all to be ignored.

When you modify political divisions, you also cause the shifting of political power. When politicians — those most attracted to political power — are assigned to do that shifting (which is what redistricting is), you'd better keep a close eye on the proceedings.

You see, there isn't a politician alive who can resist the temptation to make things better for A.) him or herself, and B.) his or her party at a time when power centers have temporarily turned fluid and are being moved around.

And there's nothing these political folks would rather have us Sap Citizens do than go away and pay them no mind while they slice up this pie.

That alone is one reason why we have to keep reminding them that our eyes are on them every inch of the way. Leave them alone and what we will get is what is best for them — but is that best for us?

Not likely.

Let's just take one example.

It may have crossed the minds of some Republicans (who are no less devious than the other crowd) that it might be to their party's interest to delay establishing new Congressional districts for a couple of years, so the third Congressperson from New Mexico could be chosen next year at large.

That way, you see, Manuel Lujan and Joe Steen could run relatively safely, from districts they have already organized and in which each is the incumbent. In such a system Republicans would ordinarily do well, even if that at-large district turned out to go to the opposition party.

But is that what would be best for the people of New Mexico?

Certainly not — nor is it what the people of New Mexico are looking forward to.

Non-political citizens don't want games played with that third district, to the benefit of either party.

Ordinary New Mexicans want the handling of that third Congressional district done in an honest, straight-forward manner.

They want to know what each of the three districts is like, and they want to see them initiated so we can choose our representatives in Congress from them in November of 1982.

No games, no hanky-panky, and no trade-offs.

The criterion for all redistricting should be the answer to one simple question: What is the choice which will best serve the people of New Mexico?

That's what government's supposed to be about.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

Amen and Halllujah to Joyce McMath. We are at the other end of the age spectrum — retired in "Harmony Valley" where the Realtors roam. They love you when they see the gleam of green in your eyes as you decide to retire here.

After your home is built — forget it there are no friendly follow-ups by either the Realtor, builder or anyone else!

This being a tourist town, rightly enters to our visitors. However, without a constant predictable tax base of permanent residents the village would find it difficult to plan a budget. Retirees, those described by Mrs. McMath, are necessary if we are to provide services expected by our visitors.

One of the ways to insure that people who visit here and decide to move here stay here, is to make that warm, friendly attitude projected to the tourist a reality for the newcomers who move here!

Long ago when you visited Florida you were greeted by signs "Keep Florida Green — Bring Money." Change the Florida to Ruidoso and you describe the present situation here.

Remember someday those Texas RICH Baptists may come out of the closet and vote racing in their state. Would be interesting — wouldn't it?

Our best tourist asset is the lovely scenery, pleasant weather, nature gave us. That plus a genuinely friendly town will provide a reason to live and visit here — even if the ponds are no longer the prime summer attraction.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

0 RUNS 0 HITS 2 ERRORS
 The village trustees meeting of May 23 was anything but routine.

The local news omitted reporting two items which are important enough to report here.

Mayor Davis has recently stated that the motorcycle portion of the Aspencade should be eliminated as it was affecting the image of the village. Flying in the face of the Chamber of Commerce's strong endorsement of the cyclist meet along with the approval of various businesses who welcome the cyclists it is difficult to understand the mayor's position.

The Lodgers Tax committee (LTC) had approved requests in the past to fund advertising for the motorcyclists. LTC is not in the business of forming policy — only to approve or disapprove such request made by local groups. The requests, if approved, are then sent on to the trustees for final approval. With one exception all requests have been approved by the council.

Til Thompson has spearheaded the cyclists meet for many years and payments are made to him through the Chamber of Commerce for a small share of his advertising cost after being approved by the Council. Recently the mayor's attitude towards the LTC has changed to the point that he is now taking an adversary position possibly because of the Til Thompson advertising funding.

This position was affirmed, to a degree, on May 23 through actions taken by the council which appear aimed at curtailing or eliminating the present members of the LTC.

On April 29, 1980, ordinance 80-3 was passed by the Council — regarding terms of office for committees it stated: "members, shall be appointed for staggered terms of three [3] years and that no member shall serve longer than two consecutive terms."

On May 11, 1981, a legal notice appeared in our local press stating "an ordinance amending Chapter 4, Article 4, to create a Lodgers Tax Advisory Board." I thought this to be odd since the LTC had been operating for the past 5-6 years. I contacted some of the trustees who were not aware of the legal notice or its purpose.

So much for the background — On May 23 the proposed ordinance came up before the council for discussion. The ordinance, as proposed, said, in part "The Committee shall consist of five members who shall be appointed by the Mayor for 2 year terms with two members to serve for one year. WHY THE DIFFERENCE IN THE TERM OF OFFICE WITH THOSE OF OTHER COMMITTEES?"

This was an open public meeting and I asked why the difference in the term proposed with that of other committees. Why could not all committees serve for the same length of term? No answer. Apparently the proposed ordinance came as a surprise to most if not all of the trustees who were not prepared to handle it. Nevertheless, the ordinance passed with a nay vote from Atwood and Sawyer. The mayor broke the tie vote with an aye. As questionable as the proposed ordinance was it should have been tabled for additional study. Being 5-6 years late, another two weeks would have been a small price to pay for a logical explanation of why the difference in the term of committee members. I would yet like to know.

One of the criticisms made of the cyclists by the mayor was made at the May 13 meeting on the LTC. His statements appeared in the news and, as a result, a local attorney representing Til Thompson wrote the mayor defending his client's position on the cyclists convention and decrying Davis' statements on Thompson and the cyclists in general.

On the evening of May 23 I went to the public library to attend a regular meeting of the trustees. The Lodgers Tax committee was on the agenda to present an annual report on its activities. Besides myself, seated at a table was another member of the LTC, the executive director of the Chamber of Commerce, his wife and another person. A few minutes before the meeting started mayor Davis entered, took his seat, and opened his mail before him. He then stood up and walked rapidly towards our table where we were all seated. Davis was apparently highly agitated about something. He mentioned motorcycles and threw a letter onto the table at which we were seated. He then made some remarks which are unprintable here in our presence and the presence of the wife of the party at our table. As he turned to leave I reminded him that there was a lady present and, after another remark, he returned to his seat. The irony of the situation is that the mayor thought that the members of our table were responsible for the letter that upset him. We had no idea of the reason for his being upset until we saw the letter which he had left in the middle of our table. Davis' outburst was unfortunate and his remarks were not deserved by anyone at our table and certainly unexpected from the mayor of our town.

As Lyndon Johnson once said "Why don't we just sit down and reason together."

editorial

In addition to the remaining performances of the Texas Little Symphony, and the Dixieland concert in Lincoln Friday at 6 p.m., a wealth of top musical presentations await area patrons.

Of special interest should be the free noon concert tomorrow, in Cedar Creek Park, by the Greater Fort Worth Youth Symphony.

It is especially noteworthy that this group of young musicians raised the funding to make their attendance at this year's Summer Festival possible. They wanted to attend this year's festival and the only way they could was to get out and raise the money. This dedication is refreshing because it tells us that the youth of today will bestir themselves to further their ambitions.

Yet to be savored by patrons of the Summer Festival will be the piano artistry of Andre-Michel Schub, Van Cliburn contest winner; the appearance of puppeteer Sharl Lewis Monday and the finale of this year's production, watching the exuberance of Phyllis Diller as guest artist next Tuesday evening.

Just imagining Phyllis Diller demonstrating her expertise on a concert grand is mind boggling, because it's hard to visualize this vivacious lady being serious about anything other than comedy.

Congratulations are certainly due the members of Ruidoso Summer Festival for bringing this year's musical production here. And we wish them luck in building this production into one of Ruidoso's outstanding summer attractions, a goal, plainly, that is well within their grasp. — CD

WORKING CLASS PAY

America's working class ... according to House Speaker Tip O'Neill ... should be the envy of the rest of the world ... and a tribute to capitalism that should leave the Commie bigwigs gnashing their teeth.

O'Neill recently ... in attacking President Reagan's tax cutting ideas ... said the Democrats in the House will come up with their own program ... because ... quoting O'Neill ... "We think his program is kind of a windfall to the rich. Our program, as you know, is guided toward the working class of America — those who are earning today between $20,000 and $50,000" a year.

Just how many "working class" people are you personally acquainted with that receive wages amounting to between $20/$50,000 per year?

"Course, maybe conditions are better back east ... and, if they're that much better, it's possible there'll soon be a severe shortage of working class folks in the great Southwest ... why, if some of the working classes right here in Harmony Valley were to earn the sum O'Neill used, I'd probably take them sixteen years to catch their breath sufficiently to find something to bellyache about.

Seems as though O'Neill ... if he really wants to help the working class ... them's the working slob ... that he should oughta see what he can do to help those as is drawing from $7,000-$15,000 per year ... 'cause there's probably more of them than is in the $20/$50 thou bracket ... though O'Neill probably doesn't know many personally in either bracket.

Yup ... looks as though the working class ... if'n they want to benefit from any legislation on tax reduction that O'Neill might get the Democrats to get by Reagan ... is gonna have to do something about getting their wages up into O'Neill's bracket ... which, especially here in Harmony Valley, is gonna take considerable doing.

Ah, well ... Tip's a good Speaker ... he ain't too shabby a golfer ... and he's a dandy fine fellow ... gregarious and all that ... but his ideas of how much money the working class is paid do tend to indicate that he's out of touch with the main stream ... at least the working class's main stream.

PACKAGED PROBLEMS

All my life I've displayed an ineptitude for carrying out routine functions that consistently amazes even I ... like, I gave up on finding nails that'll drive straight ... thumbtacks that'll go into bulletin boards without the point bending ... getting a burned out light bulb out of a socket intact ... and keeping my fingers out of mice traps.

Of late, however, I've discovered a whole new assortment of packaging problems to plague me ... with for instances including:

— Milk and cream containers that open when I push up where it indicates they should be pushed up ... seems I always wind up tackling the carton with a knife, resulting in opening more fingers than cartons.

— Dry cereal boxes advising me to push up on a flap, or push in on a little perforated opening before pulling up ... for me, these devices don't ever work ... resulting in the kitchen carpeting taking on a coating of cereal ... which tends to keep my mice fat and sassy ... and it does increase my cereal purchases.

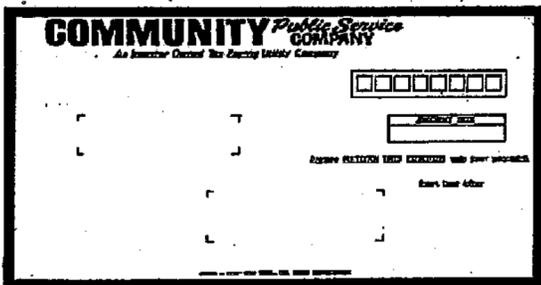

— Those plastic covered containers of brads and screws ... ain't no way I've been able to figure out how to pry, chisel, chop or cut into that plastic ... from front or rear ... without having the whole kit and kaboodle winding up in the carpeting ... which tends to keep my vacuum cleaner repair man in a constant state of ecstasy.

— The pop cans ... out of 100, I generally manage to wind up with the pop top popper well in hand out of 97 attempts ... and the opening intact ... only to discover that the church key's been lost in the shuffle ... following which I generally get the screwdriver through my hand before I gets it through the top of that pop top can ... after which it's generally my top as winds up popped.

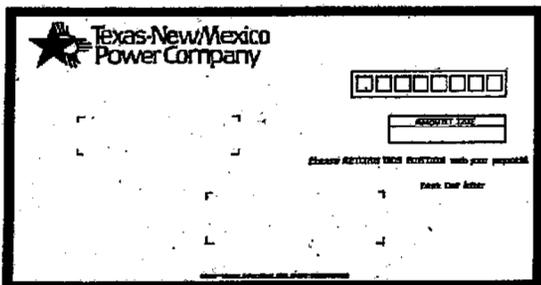

— Then there's those twist off tops ... seems those as I gets is designed to twist counter clock wise ... so, without a church key, I use pliers and gets bloodblisters before I gets into the contents.

BRIEF BIT: It's so dry in Harmony Valley that you might soon get poked in the eye for saying: "Here's mud in your eye." ... CD

Chino Mines' museum open

Chino Mines Company's summer tourist attraction, at Hurley, opened its doors to the traveling public May 30. The company's Mining Museum, located on New Mexico Highway 90 about 15 miles east of Silver City, will be open daily Tuesday through Sunday, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Although normally closed on Monday, the museum will be open for its last day of the summer season on Labor Day, September 7.

An addition to the museum this season is a display showing the typical safety apparel of workers at the division of Kennecott.

Once again, John and Mary Alice King of Hurley will display some Mimbreño pottery from their collection. Security Officer Ruben E. Gonzales, a well known artist, has agreed to display some of his art work. A 19 minute, color on sound, movie explains mining, milling, and smelting operations as currently accomplished at the division. With the modernization program underway the milling process will undergo a tremendous change in the near future.

The Southwestern New Mexico Services to Handicapped Children and Adults, Incorporated will be operating a refreshment and souvenir shop in part of the museum building.

Another feature of the visitor facility is the mine observation point. The observation point is open all year and includes covered picnic tables as well as taped information about the mining operation that is broadcast in both English and Spanish.

Marina may lose 162 boat slips

The New Mexico State Park and Recreation Division will hold a meeting on June 11 in Truth or Consequences to receive public comment on the possible removal of the boat slips from the Elephant Butte Resort Marina at Elephant Butte Lake.

The meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m., at the Convention Center in Truth or Consequences.

As a result of repeated storm damage to the Elephant Butte Resort Marina, located at Hot Springs Landing on the west side of Elephant Butte Lake, the State of New Mexico has spent nearly $500,000 in the last 18 months to repair this facility, said State Park and Recreation Division Director Mark Sideris.

"In order to rectify a very negative cash flow situation," Sideris said, "we are considering removing the 162 boat slips from the Elephant Butte Resort Marina, and leaving only the primary boater-service facility that includes the store, bar, restaurant, boat-service area and gas docks." Sideris noted that boat slip rentals at the Resort Marina brought the Park Division only $7,158 in revenues last year.

"We also considered the possibilities of constructing a breakwater to protect the marina or moving the facility to a more tranquil site," Sideris said, "but these alternatives would cost anywhere from $500,000 to $1.5 million.

"Of the thousands of boats and boat slips using Elephant Butte Lake, only 162 are actually housed in the slips at the Resort Marina, and in our opinion the expenditure of an additional several hundred thousand dollars to directly benefit only 162 people would not be in the best interests of the State."

Ruidoso Downs Hoofbeats

BY MARK GORDON

MEMORIES OF Master Salls' great season of 1975 were revived when he was brought back to the mountain track over the weekend, and led the post parade for the first running of the Master Salls Handicap.

THE STALLION, looking fit, trim and eager, obviously thought he was making his return to racing. Jeff Thrasher, who rode Master Salls in his heyday, was in the saddle for the post parade, and had to keep a tight rein. Master Salls was so charged with anticipation, he was ready to tear off down the straightaway.

TRACK ANNOUNCER Bob Dudich recounted the highlights of Master Salls' career, and the fans gave the stallion a standing ovation. "Master Salls achieved a record which may never again be equalled," Dudich said.

DURING THAT REMARKABLE 1975 season, Master Salls won 10 races at Ruidoso. Unbelievably, seven were stakes. He won the Mesalero Apache Handicap, the Governor's Handicap, the Billy The Kid Handicap, the Ruidoso Speed Handicap, the Ruidoso Sprint Championship, the Brigand Handicap and the Ruidoso Mile. His greatest accomplishment, perhaps, was the winning of the 870 yard Brigand Handicap and the Ruidoso Mile—within a three day period. Master Salls is now the property of Mary Urschel's Mid-West Stallion Station of Kress, Texas.

A NEW SYSTEM of flashing quinela combination payoffs was introduced this weekend on Ruidoso's closed circuit TV system. The improved, easy-to-read system works like this: the number of a given horse is shown at the top of the screen, and underneath, the possible quinela payoffs are shown with every other horse. The possible payoffs are cycled before every race which offers quinela wagering.

JOCKEY JERRY BURGESS will be sidelined for an indefinite time period following a spill in Friday's eighth race, the Kansas Futurity Second Consolation at 350 yards. Burgess, who was substituting for regular jockey Jackie Martin on Easy Diamond Jim, was thrown to the turf when his horse clipped the heels of another horse. Burgess fell about 100 yards from the gate. He was reported to have sustained a compression fracture of the lumbar vertebrae. It is not known how long he will be out. Earlier Friday, Richard Bickel was thrown from his mount Gambin Greene in the fifth race at 550 yards. Bickel walked away and rode the remainder of his engagements.

THE FIRST disqualification of the season occurred in Friday's Kansas Consolation when Kitasunshine, who finished third behind The Mighty Lady and Our Easy Credit, was disqualified for interference and was placed last.

THE MIGHTY LADY, ridden by Mike Charles, must relish the time of 18:34 for the 350 yards. That's the clocking the Mighty Te filly had in winning her qualifying heat for the second consolation. It was also the time she ran in winning the $59,458.60 race.

JEB'S DEB WAS the dam of four horses running over the weekend. Three horses ran on Friday's program — Jeb's Arrow, Jole' Blon and Cajun Melody. Cajun Melody did the best of that trio, finishing third in the eleventh race, a four furlong dash for two-year-old maidens. On Sunday, Jeb's Jester scooted a head victory in the eleventh race, a 5 1/4 furlong chase.

IT WAS REPORTED earlier this week in an Omaha newspaper that Wonder Lark, well known to southwest racing fans, has been retired from racing and will begin stud service. Trainer Charlie Allison told the Omaha World-Herald Wonder Lark suffered a leg injury last October and has been bred to four mares in an "experimental" season. Last year at Ak-Sar-Ben in Omaha, Wonder Lark won the Ambassadors' and His Majesty Stakes, the 4-H Handicap and the $100,000-added Omaha Gold Cup Stakes. He also won by 15 lengths at the New Mexico State Fair Meet in Albuquerque to complete a 7-0 sophomore campaign. Wonder Lark was named Sunland Park's horse-of-the-meet for the spring 1980 meet. He also annexed best handicap, best three-year-old colt or gelding honors.

ONE OF THE RAREST events in racing occurred in Sunday's eighth race, when there were two dead heats. The win was a tie between Fill Mackis Cup, the 3-8 favorite, and Dark Castle, a 5.70-1 outsider. Fill Mackis Cup paid $2.20, $2.40 and $2.20. Dark Castle returned $3.60, $3.80 and $2.60. The other deadheat was for third place as First Away, a 4.50-1 choice and Careless Bet, a 27-1 longshot, finished on even terms. First Away paid $2.20 to show and Careless Bet returned $2.40. It is believed to be the first time in recent memory there have been two dead heats in one race.

IN STEWARDS' RULINGS:
— Trainers Alton F. Cargill (twice), Johnnie A. Goodman, Gene Telford and Tom Wiley were each fined $50 for entering a horse without an owner's license being registered with the New Mexico racing commission.

— Trainers Rolan Don Hassell, Doug McMullen, Carole J. Tilleman, J. C. Wiley and Bobby D. Willis were each fined $25 for slapping a horse away from the starting gate.

— Jockeys Larry Byers and Vickie Smallwood were each fined $50 for failure to have control of their mounts. Byers was on My Viking Lady on May 30 and Smallwood was on Loomall on May 29.

— Trainer Johnnie A. Goodman was fined $50 for failure to have a horse okayed from the starting gate before entering, necessitating a program scratch.

— Jockey Angel Jacobo was suspended three racing days (May 29-31) for careless riding on Mito Beam during the 11th race on May 25.

— Trainers Shirley Montgomery-Nichols and Ira R. Zent were each fined $10 for illegal parking.

THE RUIDOSO MUTUEL trend continued its high-flying pattern as the three-day betting total reached $1,313,477. That was a gain of 11.54 percent over the same three-day weekend a year ago. The current daily betting average (after 13 race days) is a whopping $40,696, up 15.02 percent over the $35,325 average at this point last summer. The current meeting is shaping up as the best, by far, in Ruidoso history. Fans are now betting a per-race average of $34,118.

ART, DINING AND ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE

THE URSCHELS GET ANOTHER TROPHY — Dan (right) and Jolene Urschel collect the victory trophy following Special Effort's easy victory Sunday in the Kansas Futurity at Ruidoso Downs. The presentation was made by Bill Shively, president of the Kansas Quarter Horse Racing Association.

Jockey/Trainer of the week

BY MARK GORDON
While Jackie Martin remained the leader in the Ruidoso Downs jockey standings, there was a major change in the trainer standings.

William F. Leach, second in last week's standings, zoomed to the top after four weeks of racing at the mountain track.

The veteran trainer saddled three wins last week to give him nine for the meet. He also has seven seconds and three thirds in 51 mounts, the most mounts of any top ten trainer.

Jack Dube, last week's leader, slipped to third place while Gerald Marr advanced from fifth to the runnerup position.

Other top ten trainers included Billy Hughes, Harold E. Nolen, Jack Brooks, Marilyn Asmussen, Paul L. Walters, H. C. Werner Jr., and J. C. Wiley.

In the jockey colony, Jackie Martin continues to hold a commanding lead. He's ridden 21 winners with 15 seconds and six thirds among 67 mounts. He has a superb winning percentage of 31.3.

Richard Bickel remains in second place while Leroy Coombs advanced from eighth place to third place.

Other top ten riders included Willie Lovell, Stuart Dolphus, apprentice Billy Byers, Roy Brooks, Louie Gomez, Alex Baldillez Jr., and Keith Asmussen.

This week begins Ruidoso Downs' regular Thursday through Sunday racing schedule. The only exception to that rule will be the final week when a special Labor Day program will be presented on closing day, Monday, September 7.

Thursday's highlights include three trial races for the Rainbow Silver Cup trials. These will be for four-year-olds at 440 yards. The 10 finalists advance to the inaugural running of the $192,510 Rainbow Silver Cup on June 14. The winner of that 440 yard dash will receive $68,255.

Friday will feature Rio Grande Kindergarten trials at four furlongs for two-year-olds. The 10 fastest juveniles will advance to the Rio Grande Kindergarten Futurity on June 14. That four furlong affair will have an estimated purse of $35,000 added.

Saturday's headliner will be the Rio Grande Stakes for three-year-old and older horses at 6 1/2 furlongs. The purse will be $6,000 added.

Each day will have 12 race programs, with a 1 p.m., post time.

4-H horse school sets registration

The registration deadline for the state 4-H horse school is June 15. The horse school will be conducted July 1 and 2 at the New Mexico State Fairgrounds in Albuquerque.

Registration fee is $16 for those who will attend with horses, and $13 for those who register for the workshop, but will not bring horses. Registration forms and other information are available from the county Extension office.

The registration fee includes overnight lodging in the fairgrounds Youth Hall.

A registration limit of 90 has been set on those 4-H members who can bring horses. This quota is based on the number of 4-H members enrolled in horse project in New Mexico's counties. There is no registration limit on those planning to attend without horses.

Bob Gilliland, state 4-H director for New Mexico State University (NMSU) Cooperative Extension Service, said the early July school is designed to prepare 4-H members and adult leaders for the state 4-H horse show later in July.

Registration is open to any 4-H members enrolled in horse project, adult 4-H horse project leaders, and county Extension agents, Gilliland said.

Joe Armstrong, Extension horse specialist at NMSU, will be in charge of the workshop sessions.

The first day's afternoon program opens with instruction, followed by participant judging on horse show classes in reining, trail, Western pleasure, and halter classes.

Evening classes will include a videotape presentation and a question and answer session. Adult 4-H horse leaders will have a special meeting that evening.

The next day's program begins at 8 a.m., using three arenas, for actual schooling of horses in reining, Western pleasure, trail and halter classes. Six groups will rotate between the arena classes and workshops on showmanship, tack, and feeding show horses.

The program will adjourn at 3:30 p.m. Armstrong said those who bring horses will have to provide their own straw and clean their stall before leaving.

State's big game, furbearer regulations amended

The State Game Commission May 22 in Santa Fe, amended big game and furbearer regulations and approved a policy by which resident, 100 percent disabled veterans may apply for free lifetime hunting and fishing licenses. The amendments are effective immediately through March 31, 1982.

Two additional bow-only entry permit seasons (C-5 and C-8) were approved to alleviate deer depredation problems at the Philmont Scout Ranch headquarters in Colfax County. Up to 76 permits will be available for each of the two hunts November 21-23 (C-5) and November 28-30 (C-8). Application procedures will be the same as entry permit hunts outlined in the 1981-82 big game and furbearer trapping proclamation.

The commission also set the number of hunters for E-1 private land elk hunts at 3,836. A total of 330 licenses will be available for numbered hunts in management units 5, 6, 48, 49, 53, 50, 52, 51 and unnumbered units in north-central New Mexico. Total licenses for ranches in units 4, 6, 42, 46, 54, 55, 56, 57 and 59 in the Jemez and northeastern New Mexico is 738. One hundred licenses will be available for the Baca location No. 1 in the Jemez and 68 for ranches in units 42 and 46 north and east of Las Vegas. Licenses available for ranches in unit 44 near Cimarron will total 282; for ranches in unit 55 west of Raton, 2,086; and ranches in units 56, 57 and 58 east of Raton and Springer, 164.

Applicants for private land furbearer licenses must follow procedures already set for Barbary sheep, antelope and elk, applying on Form K. Licenses will be issued by the Santa Fe office of the Department of Game and Fish up to the number allotted for each ranch. There is no application deadline for the licenses, to be issued on a first-come, first-served basis. Licenses are not valid without landowner permission.

Amended furbearer rules now prohibit hunters from using dogs to take furbearing animals except as permitted by regulation. The commission also set a pursuit season on furbearing animals — from June 1 through September 30 — permitting houndmen to train their dogs but prohibiting the killing or capture of any furbearers. The dogs must be muzzled.

Policy for application for free lifetime hunting and fishing licenses for disabled New Mexico veterans was set by the commission to accommodate a law passed during this year's legislative session.

According to the policy, the free licenses will be issued only from the department's Santa Fe office to disabled veterans who are residents of New Mexico and who are classified by the state Veterans Service Commission as 100 percent disabled as a result of having served in the armed forces of the United States. Application forms will be available from all game department and commission offices.

Applications will be certified through the Veterans Service Commission. Qualifying veterans will be issued a lifetime license allowing them the privileges of a general hunting and fishing license with Class A trout stamp, or a fishing license with trout stamp.

Each new license year, the department will issue those veterans who qualify the lifetime big game licenses with deer, bear and turkey tags valid for that license year. The licenses will be identified as DAV licenses.

The department's files on those having free licenses will be purged each year and the free licenses voided for those who do not qualify or are no longer New Mexico residents.

Action on lease of four acres of the department's Indian Creek property near Pecos and 143 acres of its Marquez town tract property, currently leased to Exxon Corporation, was postponed until the commission's next meeting in July.

Conoco is seeking lease of the four acres of the department's Indian Creek property as an administrative site.

Exxon Corporation's lease on the Marquez property, assigned to Bokum Resources Corporation, will be extended until the July commission meeting, when Bokum may renegotiate the lease, under new Land Office terms or the lease will go out to bid.

The commission also set new boundaries for the Artesia Game Refuge in Eddy County, removing all private land from the refuge, and approved 20.8 miles of new fence construction on the Sargent and Marquez wildlife areas.

Cost of the fencing — $94,314.75 — will be paid with $18,921.75 from the bond fund, $56,765 from federal aid monies and $18,628 from a landowner adjacent to the Sargent property.

Commissioners also approved bid letting on a department administration site in the vicinity of the Panama Ranch in the Guadalupe Mountains. Estimated cost of the site, including the metal modular building and site development, is $19,000. The site would replace a trailer at the Prude Ranch used by officers on hunt patrol and would provide an estimated savings of $7,000 in gas and lodging.

A grant of $5,000 from the department's Shooting Range Fund was approved for a shooting range in Grants, pending Torrance County's approval of $20,000 for the range.

The commission revoked hunting and fishing license privileges for two New Mexico residents convicted of wildlife law violations: Richard F. Clayton, Farmington, for two years, and Bradley S. Chafins, Albuquerque, three years.

SOLAR FACTS

by Robert E. Lewis

SOLAR HOUSE SHADING

The warming rays of the sun are most welcome in the solar home during the colder months, but they can create an uncomfortable situation during the summer and the milder months of spring and fall.

Since the large expanse of glass on the south wall of the typical solar home admits a great deal of solar radiation year 'round, it is important that steps be taken in the design and construction of the dwelling to control summer sunlight. This is usually done by some means of shading such as awnings, roof overhang, sun screens and landscaping.

These are effective to varying degrees, and the effectiveness of any depends upon how well it keeps out the summer sun.

Roof Overhang

In any well designed passive solar home, the knowledgeable builder/architect incorporates a horizontal roof overhang just above the glass area of the south wall. The roof overhang is generally regarded as one of the simplest means of shading the south-facing glass wall in summer when the sun is high overhead. Sometimes the overhang is constructed to tilt upwards slightly, and this is even more effective because it will not only shade the glass wall in summer but will serve as a reflector in winter to pour more solar radiation into the building's interior.

Adjustable overhangs may be better solutions to summer shading because they can be regulated for seasonal variations of solar radiation, but such overhangs are more expensive because of the additional hardware and controls necessary to make them adjustable.

A simpler variation of the adjustable overhang is a trellis with deciduous vines that have leaves in spring and summer but shed them in the fall and winter so that the sun's rays can warm the building's interior when warmth is needed. When a vine-covered trellis overhang is used, it is necessary to trim the vines periodically so that they do not grow too thick and block off the winter sun.

Interior Methods

Shading can also be achieved from the interior side of the glass wall by use of window shades, Venetian blinds, draperies and movable panels. While these are easy to operate and maintain, they are not as effective as the overhang and often block daylight and limit the view from the inside of the building.

Though the glass area of the south wall requires proper shading in the summer, shading of window areas on the east and west sides of the building is just as important. While overhangs can help shade the east and west sides of a structure, properly situated trees and shrubs should also be used to block the low morning summer sun as well as the late afternoon rays. Other suitable means of shading east and west glass areas are awnings, vertical louvers and exterior curtains that can be raised and lowered.

A number of factors, such as practicality, esthetic appearance and price will affect the selection of the shading method. The really important thing is to provide adequate shading so that spring and summer heat gain will be limited mainly to that conducted through the walls and roof of the structure.

New Mexico has its myths and realities

BY DAVID JOHNSON
Department of English
University of New Mexico

When people from other parts of the United States make mistakes about the location of New Mexico, wondering whether visitors need passports or a knowledge of Spanish, New Mexicans usually find it amusing, or occasionally irritating.

In fact, when we get beneath the surface, it is not a simple matter to establish the identity and the location of New Mexico. And yet, questions of identity and location are central to dealing with the complex issues facing this state: such as population growth, energy development, nuclear waste, bilingualism and relations with Mexico.

Historically, there have been at least two very different perspectives, with two different vocabularies, for speaking about the location of a place: 1) one uses physical data, what might be called the facts about a place: its geographical location, major rivers, mountains and cities, mean temperatures and average rainfall; plus important historical dates; 2) the other perspective is directed at those qualities associated with a place that go beyond, or transcend, statistics and computer printouts: feelings about the land or sky, or even stronger — having profound aesthetic or religious experiences — plus attitudes of respect for the traditions of indigenous cultures. In other words, we are describing what might be called the "spirit of place."

The materials of the first perspective are preserved in statistical tables and documents. The second perspective is preserved in cultural histories, religious beliefs, art and literature — poems, stories and hymns. In this article I want to defend the importance of those ingredients that make up the "spirit" of this place.

In this technological age we are more comfortable speaking about the first measure of a region or state, about its economic indicators, population shifts and market values. We know that people and industry move here because of sunbelt data. But for thousands of years various races and colors have moved here, and remained, because of a special mythological reality — meaning not that it is fictitious or imaginary, but myth in the sense of those spiritual, often intangible, qualities. The fact is that this area dramatizes the mysterious cutting edge between life and death.

One of the oldest names for this region is Atlan, the name that the Aztecs gave to their ancestral home or place of origin far to the north. The Aztecs believed that their people originally emerged from seven caverns (Chicomoztoc), which were later confused with the legendary "seven cities of Cibola," and Coronado's search for golden cities in New Mexico. Today the Chicano movement calls the border region stretching between Texas and California Atlan, the place where Chicano culture originated.

Although the term "borderlands" apparently came from Herbert Eugene

Bolton's "The Spanish Borderlands: A Chronicle of Old Florida and the Southwest" (1921), the Mesamericans from central Mexico, prior to the Spanish invasion, thought of this region as a borderland inhabited by nomads, called Chichimecs ("Sons of Dogs"). Later the Spaniards called this northern frontier the Grand Chichimecas, meaning a wasteland of barbarians.

In reality, there was, in addition to scatterings of primitive nomads, an indigenous population that had developed the accoutrements of civilization — towns, agriculture, art and commerce. By the time pioneers from the east "discovered" the Southwest it had already had a cultural identity (identities?), whose roots went straight down, as well as to the south.

It is not strange that people settled here in these borderlands, where mesas and mountains meet, where deep cliffs are cut into the desert. Such places of extremes have traditionally been the spawning grounds of prophets and religion. Out of the deserts of the Middle East came Judaism, Christianity and Islam. The Southwest is home to a kachina religion that emerged with the people from the underground womb worlds of mother earth, out of the earth's navel, the sipapu. This then was the center of the world, just as the Zuni Pueblo is located at Ilwama (Middle Place).

Four mountains in the four quarters mark the sacred center for the Navajos. Mountains universally have served as a world axis around which the rest of creation circles. In India there is Mount Meru; Mount Garizin in Palestine is called the "navel of the earth." Complementing the upward thrust of mountains are cracks in the earth, canyons or caves, which are passageways to the powers below. It is believed that the Temple of Jerusalem was built over a cleft that reached down to the waters of chaos. Chaco Canyon probably had a similar meaning for its residents.

World centers and borderlands are traditionally places of pilgrimage, where people come for healing and renewal. Some of the oldest sites in Europe are the cave sanctuaries on the island of Crete, believed to be the birthplace of Zeus. People brought small clay models of the limbs or body parts that needed healing. Jerusalem and Mecca attract many thousands of pilgrims every year. This region has El Santuario de Chimayo; its famous crucifix, Nuestro Senor de Esquipulas (el Cristo Negro), has been credited with numerous miraculous cures. Small metal or plastic models of body parts have been planned to the religious statues. The villagers of Tortugas make an annual pilgrimage to the top of Tortugas Peak, in honor of the Virgin of Guadalupe. Along with Indian ceremonies, like Shalako at Zuni Pueblo and Corn Dance at Santo Domingo, annual processions throughout the state articulate a religious calendar and a cycle of sacred time.

Myth and ritual, sacred centers and borderlands, processions, dances and pilgrimages — these constitute a different way of viewing this region than the plans for subdivisions, shopping malls and congressional districts. Furthermore, it is inevitable that the two perspectives will occasionally conflict. The underlying assumption of technology, for example, is that all spaces are equal; with bulldozers, glass and steel, a particular space can be made into anything people desire. Residential areas can be cleared out for apartments or banks. Churches can be built next to freeways; senior citizens can be isolated in retirement centers. Location, from this point of view, is simply a question of choice and manipulation.

Places like Chimayo or the Tapa Pueblo, Chaco Canyon or Mount Taylor, are located where they are out of necessity; they couldn't be located anywhere else. A construction company did not arbitrarily choose their sites. El Santuario and the Pueblo are rooted to particular locations, where they have their identities. They belong there. This is the fundamental meaning of "sacred": That there are certain places set off from the rest where people have touched the essential rhythms of human existence. On the other hand, when we exclaim, "Is nothing sacred anymore?" we are protesting the homogeneous reduction of our lives to statistics, credit ratings, and actuarial tables. There are at least two ways of looking at the region. Decisions about its future should be informed by both. New Mexico is not simply another state in the union tabulated by the census bureau, it is also a state of mind, a mythical reality.

This is one of a series of articles to be released by the New Mexico Humanities Council.

Tarantula, black widow bites said not deadly

"This is the time of year people become concerned about bites from tarantulas and black widow spiders," said Jim Knight, Extension wildlife specialist for New Mexico State University. "Although the odds of being bitten by one of these critters are slim, knowing what to do can save a lot of apprehension."

One important thing to know is that there has never been a death reported in New Mexico resulting from tarantula or black widow spider bites. In fact, these bites are seldom serious unless the victim is less than four-years-old or quite old.

The black widow spider is best identified by the characteristic crimson hourglass marking on the underside of the abdomen. The average overall length with the legs extended is about 1.5 inches.

The bite from a black widow is similar to a pinprick. "Sometimes you may not even feel it," Knight said.

Often there is little evidence of a lesion. There may only be a light local swelling and two tiny red spots with some redness and pain around the swelling. "This is usually all that happens," Knight said.

If the spider injects a lot of venom or if the victim is very young or old he may have cramps in his stomach, tighs or neck. This usually happens within 30 to 90 minutes.

Black widow bites can normally be treated with a cold compress on the wound. If cramping occurs or if the victim is very young or old, get medical treatment. Medical treatment will simply relieve the pain. The condition itself is self-limiting and in most cases symptoms disappear after two or three days.

"While the tarantula looks deadly, its bite is about as painful as a couple of pin stabs and has essentially the same effect," Knight says. Tarantulas have sharp, strong fangs capable of inflicting a painful bite. However, a tarantulas will usually bite only after a great deal of taunting.

Treat a tarantula bite by cleaning the wound. Tetanus and antibiotics treatment may be needed for secondary infections.

The student's name, grade, address and telephone number must be permanently attached to the back of the entry, and each entry must be accompanied by a completed entry form.

The entry forms may be obtained from Mary Cravens, 3200 Tennessee N. E., Albuquerque, New Mexico 87110.

State's climate attractive to jobseekers

New Mexico's pleasant climate attracts many jobseekers from eastern and mid-western states, a new Employment Security Department report indicates. In releasing the New Mexico Out-of-State Jobseeker Survey, agency director Louis E. Bachicha said many jobseekers also base their moves on an assumption that the state's employment opportunities are good.

The report is based on survey forms mailed to jobseekers writing to the state Job Service for jobfinding help or information. During a four and a half month period beginning in December 1980, more than a third of the forms mailed to jobseekers were returned to the agency, with the largest number coming from the state of Michigan. After Michigan, which had a high unemployment rate during that period as a result of automobile manufacturing plant cutbacks and closures, states with high numbers of responses included New York, Indiana and Ohio; 78 percent of all replies came from the east and midwest. Only nine responses were received from states bordering New Mexico.

While the report could be helpful to employers who need to recruit workers outside New Mexico, only 1.9 percent of the respondents were looking for work in machine trades and response in some other areas of employer need was also low. Fifty two percent of respondents and 30 percent of their spouses wanted work in professional, managerial and technical fields, with teaching, accounting and engineering frequently mentioned. Three fourths of the workers surveyed had previous paid experience in their fields, but college students looking for a first job were also well represented.

Jobseekers also said their need for a lifestyle change played a part in their choice of New Mexico. More than half said they had visited the state, and the state's lifestyle was especially attractive to that group. When asked about the preferred area for relocation, just over half mentioned the Albuquerque-Santa Fe area and almost 40 percent said they had not decided.

Copies of the survey are available from the Research and Statistics Section, Employment Security Department, Post Office Box 1028, Albuquerque, New Mexico 87103.
