Mule racing starts Friday

If the sound of 300 braying mules, as dawn breaks, is music to your ears, the place to be at first light, Friday through Sunday, is the barn area at Ruidoso Downs Race Track.

Slick McMath, secretary-treasurer, director and hustler-man for the Ruidoso Downs Mule Skippers, said Tuesday, "I've got 130 mules in the stalls now and expect more than 300 by late Thursday. These mules are for all events this weekend, racing, arena competition and the hunter/jumper class."

Highlighting the weekend action at the track will be mule racing Friday-Sunday with a 1 p.m. post time.

Friday's feature race will be the 400 yard Sierra Blanca Stakes, with $750 added purse.

Saturday's race card features the Three-Year Olds and Older, six furlongs, with $500 added; the Longears Derby, three year-olds over 330 yards, with $1,000 added and the Aspencade Stakes, 350 yards, with $750 added.

The Four-Year-Olds Classic is Sunday feature, with $1,000 added for the 350 yard sprint; plus the $1,000 added Ruidoso Downs Stakes over 400 yards, and the Mule Skippers Stakes, a four furlong dash, with $500 added.

Eleven races are scheduled Friday, 12 on Saturday and 13 on Sunday.

"Depending on the number of entries in each class," Mule Skippers president Ed Hyman said, there may be more races each day, especially in chariots.

The chariot races, with a pair of mules pulling the chariot, is a crowd pleaser, because no one can determine just what the mules are going to do. They may run dead ahead down the track, they might take the first convenient turn into the paddock area, or head the wrong way down the track, or they might just suddenly stop and look around before ambling over to the side of the track to munch grass.

Another event filled with surprise, and plenty of action, will be the relay races. Each team of riders must saddle and unsaddle three mules over five and one half furlongs. These high spirited mules - sometimes don't take kindly to being hurried, resulting in some of the fastest paced rodeo action to be found anywhere.

The Class A mules, those with proven racing records, will come out of the gates - normally - and run the race as do quarter horses or thoroughbreds, and they'll chalk up creditable times.

It's the races for the C, D and lower graded mules that can be most entertaining. These lesser experienced mules have a tendency to do the unexpected, on whim, not necessarily on cue, at any point in a race. In past races at Ruidoso Downs Race Track, this caliber of mule has been known to jump fences, stop without warning to look around at the crowd, reverse themselves, and put on a bucking exhibition that'd put a good saddle bronc out of business.

Friday through Sunday there'll be action in Beaver's Arena, Ruidoso Downs, beginning at 9 a.m., with Wayne Brazel as arena director.

The events include heading and heeling, steer stopping and barrel racing all three days.

Added to Saturday's action is Western Pleasure and Reining class judging.

Sunday's arena card includes a cutting contest.

Through this afternoon, at the All-American Sales Arena, a mule auction is being held, with Bill Hernandez and Associates Auction Service, Alamogordo, as sales manager. "This sale will feature some outstanding mules," McMath said, "as well as young mules that can be trained for racing, chariots, arena events or just as pleasure animals."

The Mule Skippers again, courtesy of Ruidoso-Sunland directors, will use the same facilities, from gates to photo finish camera, for the mule races as is used here each summer. All personnel required for horse racing will be working throughout the weekend. "This insures," Hyman said, "that spectators will be treated to the finest mule racing to be seen anywhere. It also insures that the mules and riders compete under the best possible conditions, and believe me, this cuts down on the number of arguments."

The Ruidoso Downs Mule Skippers is a non-profit organization, incorporated as such under the laws of New Mexico.

Hunter/Jumpers in action now

Hunter/Jumper competition, at Ruidoso Downs Race Track, is underway and will continue through Sunday, to the west of the All-American Sales Arena.

If everything goes as hoped for, this Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital Charity Horse Show has the potential for building into a major regional event in years to come. Ken Moore, hospital administrator, said Monday.

Moore said the second annual Hunter/Jumper Show, with action from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., daily, should be a "full weekend of spectator fun."

Moore said although "a lot of people last year didn't know this was going on," more than 200 exhibitors participated in the 1980 show. "We expect it will be even bigger this year," he said.

Winnie Lewis of Ruidoso and Donald S. Lealle of El Paso, Texas are co-chairmen of the show.

Lewis said owners and riders of hunter and jumper horses are offered a major competition sanctioned by the American Horse Show Association (AHS). More than $20,000 in cash and prizes will be awarded all classes this year, she said, with the exception of Equitation, which will receive ribbons only.

The winner of the Grand Prix of Ruidoso on Sunday afternoon, will take $5,000 purse money home with them, Lewis said.

Adding to the fun again this year will be the mule halter-classes and mule-jumper events, Lewis said.

Jerry Dougherty of Albuquerque, who is the show manager, said he and Ditch Riders International of El Paso, picked Ruidoso as the spot best suited for producing the annual charity event for several reasons.

"There is no good horse facility in El Paso," he said. "Ruidoso-Sunland is a very attractive facility."

"The town (Ruidoso) is horse oriented.

It is in a very pretty setting. The people here are very friendly. And all the exhibitors like Ruidoso, itself."

As the show builds, Dougherty believes it will attract more participants and spectators. This year's show will draw exhibitors from Mexico, New Mexico, Texas, Arizona, Colorado and Oklahoma, he said.

"I think it's going to be a very big horse show," Dougherty said.

Last year, the year of the show's conception, wet, rainy weather did not seem to dampen the spectators' enthusiasm, Dougherty said.

"Last year had the possibilities of being the most miserable horse show in history - but people had fun," he said.

And they have, "by word of mouth," conveyed their enjoyment and interest in the show to others, Dougherty said.

Moore said work has been done to improve field conditions for participants this year, in case of a repeat of last year's rainy weather.

A new addition to this year's show - "a pilot project" - is an arts and crafts show inside the Sales Arena, Moore said. If there is a high level of interest from spectators and exhibitors, he said, the project will be expanded in the future.

To insure spectators will not go hungry, Moore said the Hospital Auxiliary will operate a concession stand in the Sales Arena, offering sandwiches, coffee, soft drinks and snacks.

Refreshments will also be sold by the Gymnastics Association, he said.

Profits from the Hunter/Jumper Show, which draws its main support from entry fees, Moore said, will go to Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital (RHVH), and will be used to help purchase equipment, furnish rooms and for other hospital projects.

"The need for equipment here will never end," he said.

Police busy during Aspencade

BY TIM PALMER
Staff Writer

The Ruidoso Police Department had a busy Aspencade weekend, but some new and some old approaches to the job of policing the event helped things go smoothly.

As in years past, the local force and the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department were supplemented by members of the State Police and New Mexico Mounted Patrol. Ruidoso Chief of Police Dick Swenor commended the performance of all the law enforcement personnel involved.

"Everybody totally pulled their weight," Swenor said. "I attribute things going so smoothly as they did to that."

Arrests, motor vehicle accidents and emergency calls constituted the major police activities over the weekend, along with traffic control during the Saturday parade.

There were 24 arrests in the 72-hour period from Friday, October 2, through Sunday, October 4, according to a police report on Aspencade. Of the 24 arrests, 15 involved alcohol, Swenor said. Six of those arrests were for drinking in public.

Asked about enforcement of the village's ordinance against drinking in public, Swenor said, "You can't - not when there are literally thousands of people doing it."

He explained that department procedure is to warn people who are flagrantly breaking the law, littering with their containers or getting rowdy. Persons who do not then cease misbehaving are arrested, he said.

Twenty motor vehicle accidents occurred in and around Ruidoso in the three-day period. Ten of the mishaps resulted in injuries.

Most of the accidents involved motorcycles, according to the report. Eleven persons were issued citations in connection with the accidents.

Thirty more traffic citations were issued for moving violations over the weekend. High traffic volume usually results in fewer moving violations, Swenor noted.

The 80 emergency calls for police services during the period ran the gamut from stray bears to armed robbery. The high number of calls compares to busy weekends in the summer, Swenor added.

"That's one reason we hope to get the 911 system," the chief said. The system, which allows persons with emergencies to call for help by dialing 911 on the telephone, has been proposed for the village.

Swenor noted in the report that no significant problems involving "outlaw type" motorcyclists (estimated at 500 to 600) developed during Aspencade. He attributed this to cooperation from the bikers themselves, some of whom even dropped by the police station when they arrived to let police know they were here.

The police K-9 unit (Duke) was an effective deterrent to violence, Swenor added.

The total number of motorcyclists on the streets was estimated at 8,000 to 12,000. The estimate was made from the convention registration figures and observation at random points.

All in all, Chief Swenor was pleased with his department's performance during Aspencade. He referred to the weekend as "a fruitful and productive period for police services."

P&Z voices concern over regulations

Density, steepness of grades and parking were topics of concern Monday during the regular monthly meeting of the Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission.

The commission approved the final plat of the Granite Place Condominiums in the White Mountain IV development, but not before raising questions about the number of proposed units per acre and the topography of the area.

"There's getting to be a fantastic amount of density in that area," said commission member John Schuller. "I'm quite concerned about it."

Commission chairman Mike Waldron pointed out that the village ordinance governing density of multiple family dwellings would have to be changed for the commission to act on density. "You're going to have to convince the council (trustees)," he said.

A concern over fire protection for the new development was voiced by the commission. Schuller speculated on whether the fire department could get to the new development.

Project engineer Tim Collins noted that the four-wheel drive vehicles are needed for fire fighters already. "With all the existing roads that exceed 14 percent (slope), the Fire Department is going to have to change its equipment," Collins said.

- White Mountain IV, SFD, $23,520.
- Holiday Acres I, SFD, $22,400.
- Alto Lakes, SFD, $42,000.

Speaking of planning and development in general, Schuller said, "It is an acknowledged fact that a lot of mistakes have been made."

Waldron agreed, but said, "You can't take an individual project and dump all the problems on it. The time to do it is before the engineering is done."

Schuller again expresses concern. "We're continuing a bad situation that has existed in this city for too long," he said.

The Granite Place plat was finally approved unanimously, with the stipulation that grades in the completed development not exceed 14 percent. Collins noted that the project had been engineered with the lowest feasible slope on roads and that he would insert the stipulation in the plat.

The subject of parking was discussed at the end of the meeting. Waldron said that he wanted the commission to act on the construction of a new ordinance governing parking requirements for restaurants, bars and saloons or dance halls.

He estimated that one local establishment, "The Corner," has one-fourth the parking space. Collins noted that the current ordinance requires one parking space for every 200 square feet of space in the establishment. "I'm asking we drop them

HILL CLIMB RACER powering his way up the slope.

Local motorcycle hill climber enjoyed event

Why climb a mountain? Because it's there, of course. Well, why not climb it on a motorcycle, and offer prize money for those who can do it the fastest?

Do that and you have a sport called motorcycle hill climb, which made its debut in Ruidoso last Saturday.

The first Aspencade Climb took place at Eagle Creek Ski Area. The $1,850 in prize money drew 80 riders from all over the United States.

They came to challenge a steep, rugged ski run called Boot Hill in a race against the clock.

Included in the field were Louie Greener of Indiana, the nation's top professional hill climber, and Californian Will Alford, the leading United States amateur.

Boot Hill proved a formidable adversary. Many riders failed to make it all the way up the 400-foot course.

The only local entry was L. C. Burt of Ruidoso. Burt competed in the 250 cc trophy class on his Suzuki.

Burt explained that several steps are necessary to prepare a motorcycle for a hill climb. "You have to get all the glass off of them," he said. A broken headlight could cause an injury to a rider in a fall, he added. Also, each bike must have a "kill switch." This is another safety measure, said Burt. A string tied to the rider's wrist is connected to the ignition coil. If the rider falls off the bike, the engine dies, preventing the risk of injury from the chain or spokes.

"I didn't do too good," was the way Burt summed up his own performance in the climb. In two tries, he was able to make it just up the first part of the course.

Ironically, Burt's problem was too much traction. "I let the air out of my tires," he said, explaining that reduced tire pressure increases traction. On the soft ground at Boot Hill, however, good traction on the back wheel caused the front end of the bike to raise up too much.

Despite his difficulties, Burt enjoyed his first hill climb in ten years. "It was all in fun anyway," he said.

Organizer Til Thompson was pleased with the success of the inaugural climb, and said he hopes to make it an annual part of Aspencade.

The hill will still be there. "I can climb that hill," said Burt. He laughed and added, "I thought about going out there and sneaking one trial run."

give a hospital administrator an Excedrin headache, but Moore said community support has "been very gratifying to me."

"This hospital has to keep going whether one bed or 38 beds (total number of beds at RHVH) are in use or if we have 100 percent occupancy plus patients bedded down in the halls during some peak seasons, such as this past summer," he said. Operating expenses for RHVH average $230,000 per month, Moore said.

Moore is very grateful to segments of the community—"the Jockey Club, private individuals who feel good about what we are doing here" and for numerous $5 and $10 donations, which together, amounted to $83,000 of the $140,000 needed to purchase an intensive care unit this past year.

The board of trustees is in the process now of gathering information to measure the facilities they now have against future growth and expansion, Moore said, and will make a diagnosis of "where we want to be in ten years, in terms of size and growth," he said.

Some of the equipment Moore feels the hospital needs, to give Lincoln County residents the kind of care they must now go to Roswell or Alamogordo for, includes: a blood analyzer ($73,000); an ultra sound machine; replacement or addition of another portable X-ray machine ($40,000); a physical therapy unit and an OB-Gyn specialist they are looking to recruit in July.

Another possibility in the talking stage, Moore said, is a new hospital facility, which he hopes to generate into a building fund drive "by next racing season."

To get community input as to the direction they would like to see their hospital take, Moore said RHVH will conduct a telephone survey of 500 Lincoln County residents, for their opinion of specific questions relating to that subject.

Ruidoso Honda Valley Hospital's staff, today, includes 42 nurses, four general practitioners, three specialists, one radiologist and one pathologist.

The commission asked planning and zoning enforcement officer John Cupp to send for parking guidelines from the state and from other municipalities.

Commission members present besides Waldron and Schuller were George Shoemaker, Betty Patton, Martin Rose and Denny Loverin.

In other business, the commission:

—Approved a request for a setback variance for a house in Holiday Acres for C. C. Miller, with the stipulation that no further encroachment on the setback take place.

—Approved a replat of Lot 8, Block 9 in the Cree Meadows Subdivision.

—Approved a conditional use request by Tut Shaw to locate a plumbing shop on a portion of land on Airport Tracts, with permission to expire and the building to be removed within five years.

—Approved a replat of Parcel 2, Tract A in Flume Canyon.

—Approved a request for a driveway and sewer easement through village property in Tract 3 of Wingfield Homestead First addition for Frankie Wheeler. Approval was granted for a 15-foot easement.

—Tabled a replat of Lot 79, Block B in Sleepy Hollow for LaVerne Walkup pending an improvement survey.

—Approved a replat of Lot 32, Block 12 at Cree Meadows Country Club.

—Recommended the approval of a zone change request from R-1 (single family dwelling) to R-2 (multiple family dwelling) for land east of Cree Meadows Country Club for T & P Investments. A spokesman for the company said that they plan a condominium project for the area.

Traditional Counseling program proving successful at Mescalero

BY JEAN PATTERSON
Staff Writer/photographer

Mescalero's Traditional Counseling program is beginning its eighth year of service to the Mescalero Apache Indians. The program has a three-fold purpose," said Molly McGill, director. "One is to deter substance abuse (drugs and alcohol); two is to employ the elderly, providing a link to the elderly and the youth; and three, provide cultural survival and documentation."

The program was initiated through Narcissus Gayton of the Community Health Representatives and the Tribal Council. According to McGill, the program was funded temporarily as a demonstration, and because of its success the first year, has been able to retain funding. Funding was first provided through the National Institute on Drug Abuse (NIDA) and is now funded through the State Substance Abuse Bureau. As director, McGill's responsibilities include scheduling counselor's activities, locating funds, public relations, process evaluation and documentation. Basically, the program is aimed at the four through 23-year-olds. On the average, 116 youths a month participate in the program. However, McGill said the counselors intend to take the program to the schools, which will increase the number of participants. "We will work half an hour with each class each week," McGill said.

Some of the areas covered in the program are learning arts and crafts, learning the Apache language, camping, singing and dancing, gathering and preparing Indian foods and medicines, learning history, making traditional clothing and teepees, trips to visit historical sites and taking Pow Wow trips. In the program, native traditions are emphasized in an effort to keep the traditional teachings and practices alive in the tribe. Through this effort, it is hoped the youth will stay away from drugs and alcohol, according to McGill.

There are four members of the program who spend 40 hours a week teaching skills and the traditional customs. These include Evelyn Martine, Elsie Chino and Leon and Mable Botella.

In addition to teaching the customs, instructors also provide personal counseling. The focus of the program is on drug-alcohol abuse prevention, rather than combatting the problem after the fact, according to McGill.

Through a method of pre-and post-testing, a certain amount of accuracy is provided in documenting the success of the program, although McGill said it is very difficult to prove.

"This testing is required for our funding purposes, but it's hard to assess success in the field of prevention," McGill said. The program, which has been well received at Mescalero, was the first of its kind and has been copied elsewhere across the nation," said McGill.

WORKING WITH BEADS is only one of the things the Traditional Counselors teach the youth at the Mescalero Apache Indian reservation. One of the counselors, Evelyn Martine, shows first graders from Bent Mescalero Elementary School how she makes hatbands.

"But we not only work with the children at Mescalero," McGill said. "We also do cultural exchanges with the White Sands, Ruidoso and Tularosa schools. It's helpful for the Apache children to present their culture and helps the other students understand the Indian culture, too."

Some of the things the children learn are shared with others at such places as the Ruidoso Care Center and as demonstrations during conferences at the Inn of the Mountain Gods.

Much of the information transferred from the Traditional Counselors to the youth is not recorded anywhere. "The ladies are the experts. They are role models," McGill said. She emphasized that it is the responsibility of the elderly to pass on the traditions and customs to the youth of the tribe.

"The counselors take on the grandparent image for many of the kids. As elders, they are the educators. In many ways, they are the ones who raise the children, they are respected," said McGill.

Walls feted on golden anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Kary P. Wall, Ruidoso, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary September 27, at a reception hosted by their children, Army Colonel K. Darrell Wall of Washington, D. C., Geneva (Wall) Daugherty of Elida and Oleta (Wall) Salopek of Las Cruces, at the Senior Center in Elida.

Approximately 200 relatives and friends were on hand for the fiftieth wedding anniversary, for an afternoon of visiting and reminiscing, and to partake of punch and a three-tiered bridal cake and a bridegroom's cake, both baked and decorated by Mrs. Herbert Ford of Ruidoso.

The Walls were married in Roswell on October 24, 1931, and made their home at their Elida area ranch before moving to Ruidoso in 1973. Their children were reared in Elida, and attended schools there.

The celebration date for Mr. and Mrs. Wall's golden wedding anniversary was set a month early so their son, grandson and grandson-in-law, all in the armed services, could be present for the occasion. The wall's three children, nine grandchildren and one great grandson attended.

Members of the immediate family attending were: Army Colonel K. Darrell Wall, and his wife, Betty of Washington, D. C.; Kenneth D. Wall, United States Navy, of Springfield, Virginia; Navy Lieutenant Stephen Holman, and his wife, Kathy (Wall) and grandson, Sean, of Oak Harbor, Washington; Geneva (Wall) Daugherty, Jim Daugherty and his wife, Cathy, and Alan Daugherty of Elida; Donald Daugherty of Albuquerque; Mark Daugherty and his wife, Sandy, and Frank and Oleta (Wall) Salopek and their sons, Frank Paul, Kary Sam and Gregory of Las Cruces.

Other relatives and out-of-town guests included: Mrs. Edna Nelson and Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Nelson of Portales; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Barber, Beth Daugherty, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Norman and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Ford, all of Ruidoso; Laurie Norman of Eunice; Doris Wall of Elida; Mike Wall of Houston, Texas; Grace Tinnin of Hereford, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. Pat Wall, Mr. and Mrs. Rainer (Bill) Myers, Olen Myers, Mr. and Mrs. Travis Nuckals and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Glatfelter of Clovis; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Painter, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Burkett and Eddie; Mr. and Mrs. Mack Henderson and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Anthony of Lovington; Mr. and Mrs. "Popeye" Burleson of Melrose and Mr. and Mrs. Carl White of Bledsoe, Texas, and many more friends from the Elida, Denna, Portales and Floyd area.

Duplicate bridge tourney play begins here October 15

The Rocket City Sectional annual duplicate bridge tournament will be played October 15-16 at the Chaparral Motor Hotel, Ruidoso Downs. Play begins at 7:30 p.m., October 15, with Local Charity Pairs to benefit the American Diabetic Association. "We invite all local duplicate players to play in this session," said Lucy Godard, Alamogordo, partnership chairman.

The tournament schedule includes: October 16—Individual at 9:30 a.m.; Unmixed Pairs, 2 p.m.; Master Pairs, over 50 points, and Non-Master Pairs, under 50 points, 8 p.m.

October 17—Bob Roth Pairs, 9 a.m.; Open Pairs, 1:30 and 8 p.m.; Novice Pairs, under 10 points, 1:30 p.m.; Open Pairs Final and Consolation Pairs, 8 p.m.
October 18—Swiss Teams at 10 a.m., and again at a time to be announced.

The Sectional, Godard said, is expected to attract more than 450 players.

Information is available from tournament chairman Ken Williams, Alamogordo, at telephone number 479-6161 or from Godard at 437-0870.

Scouts offering family pictures for Yule gifts

Boy Scout Troop 59 is again offering family portraits as a Christmas gift idea, Scoutmaster Rudy Flack has announced. "These portraits," Flack said, "are 11 by 14 inch color photos, a $29.95 value, that the Scouts are selling for $5 each."

The photographs will be taken at Ruidoso High School October 25. Appointments for sittings must be made before October 18 by telephoning Sally Farris at 257-7150 or Linda Flack at 257-5493.

Sorority plans 'Rush Party'

Plans for a November "Rush Party", at a date to be announced, were discussed at the last meeting of Gamma Rho Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi at the Bobbie Mixon home.

At the meeting Jeannie Culbertson outlined the chapter's role in promoting the Winter Special Olympic Games and expressed the hope that other Beta Sigma Phi chapters would adopt this function as their community project.

The Winter Special Olympic Games are held in January at Eagle Creek Ski and Recreation Area.

Rehearsals scheduled for Messiah

Area residents interested in lending their voices to the community chorus for the third annual presentation of Handel's Messiah, should call the secretary at the First Christian Church, 267-8051, to have their names added to the choir member list, Bill Braudt, chorus director, said Wednesday.

Rehearsals for the performance, which is scheduled for Sunday evening, December 13, 7:30 p.m., at the First Christian Church, will begin in November, Braudt said.

Robert McFarland, baritone soloist with the New York City Opera Company, will again be the guest soloist, Braudt said.

Sidney Gordon club initiate

Sidney Gordon of Ruidoso has been initiated into Block and Bridle, the animal science club at New Mexico State University.

The club promotes animal science, service to the university and scholarships. Activities of the organization include sponsoring livestock judging contests for high school students in 4-H and Future Farmers of America clubs, and dances featuring a top name country-western star.

A sophomore majoring in animal science, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gordon.

TAKING CARE OF THE SOCIAL aspect at Ruidoso Care Center is Toni Scarbrough, left, as assistant care director, and Ruth Gardner, right, new social care director.

Social Care programs being instituted at Care Center

"I've been in the 'people business' for five years now," said Ruth Gardner. And she's in it again as the new Social Care Director at the Ruidoso Care Center.

Responsibilities of the job are as varied as the people who live at the Care Center. "Part of our program is to provide a program of care for the residents and family members. It is a community-based care center," Gardner said.

Part of Gardner's job is to provide growth for the residents in such areas as arts and crafts, spiritual growth and enrichment, vocational interests, entertainment and the adopt-a-grandparent program.

Besides the social aspect, Gardner's job also entails individual and group counseling, both for the residents and their families. They also strive for psycho-social enhancement as well as resident enhancement. The community plays an important role in her duties, also.

"We do appreciate the community support. We welcome suggestions and continued support from the community," Gardner said. "I'm all for community involvement."

One way in which Gardner suggests for the community to become involved is "We really need more volunteers for the Auxiliary. It's for the residents. We're not asking for people to do a free job, we just want them to share," Gardner said.

Toni Scarbrough, assistant care director, expressed some of the same feelings. "People are in great need of a lot of caring and attention. They need to know the community cares if they live or die.

"If they don't volunteer for anyone else, they can do it for themselves. It's amazing how much doing something for someone else can give you a lift," Scarbrough said.

"I'm pleased to have Toni as my team member. She has a very committed, energetic and dedicated attitude of caring," Gardner said. "I also appreciate the support of my administrator and I appreciate working with such a dedicated management team."

Gardner begins her new job with a background in psychology and psychotherapy along with management, administrative and supervisory experience. She replaces Debbie Garcia who is returning to college.

"Our needs here are great. We want to be an efficient, growing operation," Gardner said. "This job is a challenge; there's so much that needs to be done. I'll just take it a day at a time. I hope to put more into it than I took out. I just have to keep pushing."

New secretary

New in the principal's office at Ruidoso High School is Karen Wharton, secretary. Originally from Tucumcari, Wharton has lived in Artesia for three years.

She and her family have lived in Ruidoso four years and her husband, Terry, is a physical education teacher and coach at White Mountain Middle School.

Wharton was previously a teacher's aide for third grade, also at the Middle School.

Presbyterians installing new minister October 18

The Reverend R. Winston Presnall, of Amarillo, Texas will be installed as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Ruidoso in a 7 p.m., October 18 service. The public is invited to attend.

The announcement was made by Dr. James Beall, chairman of a pastoral search committee which recently unanimously recommended the Reverend Presnall to be pastor. At a meeting late in September, the congregation voted to approve the nomination by acclamation.

The Reverend Presnall, 28, and his wife, Brynda, have resided in Amarillo the past year where he was chaplain of the Amarillo Hospital District which encompasses the 250-bed Northwest Texas Hospital and two children's psychiatric facilities, Kilgore and Pickens. He also was pastor of the Christian Church in Fritch, Texas, during this period.

They are living in the Presbyterian Manse on Country Club Drive in Ruidoso. Mrs. Presnall is employed as a teller at Security Bank of Ruidoso.

He is a native of Decatur, Texas but moved to Memphis, Tennessee, at an early age when his father accepted a call to a Baptist church there. However, he calls Berger, Texas, home and was ordained September 27, 1981, in his home church there. Dr. and Mrs. Beall and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Knight and Bobbie of Ruidoso attended that ordination service. Crown retired as pastor of the Ruidoso church last spring. Since then the Reverend Don McNamara has been interim pastor.

Presnall has a Master of Divinity degree from McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago, Illinois, and a BA in Sociology from the University of Texas at Arlington. He attended McMurray College in Abilene before transferring to the University of Texas. He has been a youth delegate to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of the United States of America, and was a youth pastor in Abilene as well as a seminary assistant in Chicago.

He preached his first sermon as pastor of the local church last Sunday. Crown has served as interim pastor in various communities in New Mexico since his retirement, including Tucumcari and Farmington.

Ruidoso opens title race against Cobre

Around Sports

with Gary Brown

It's not winter yet but the Junior Ski Racing program in Ruidoso is getting organized for the season.

There will be a 7 p.m. meeting Thursday at King's (The Gambler) for the parents of youths interested in joining the Junior Ski Racers. There are several divisions to the program and all the skiers will work out at Sierra Blanca Ski Resort.

The Race Team, generally consisting of the most experienced members of the racing program, is made up of racers eight through 17 years of age. These skiers will travel to races in Arizona, New Mexico and Colorado. The teams train twice a week, generally Saturday and Sunday.

Beginning skiers four through seven years old can join the Hot Tots division of the racing program. They will ski one afternoon a week. The Red Hots are a new division that will be made up of Hot Tot "graduates" but still not old enough to ski on racing teams. This group will ski two afternoons a week and Sundays.

The Beginner Team will consist of skiers eight to 13 years old. These skiers would be moved up to the race team as soon as possible. This team will ski two afternoons a week and Saturdays.

Skiing is probably the most popular participant sport in the Ruidoso area and the Junior Ski Racers program give kids in the area a chance to compete regularly against young skiers from other areas.

In the "Winter Wonderland" that Ruidoso becomes every skiing season, the Junior Ski Racers are sure to grow in popularity.

Top amateur golfers entered

Hornbuckle ready for Mid-Amateur tourney

Tom Hornbuckle of Ruidoso is confident about his golf game as he gets ready for the United States Mid-Amateur championships beginning Saturday in St. Louis. "I've been playing pretty well," he said. "I've played in two previous Mid-Amateur tournaments before so there's always the chance you can win it."

There will be 150 golfers entered in the tournament. The competition is restricted to golfers at least 25 years old and with a USGA handicap of five strokes or less.

that record. Philadelphia has beaten Buffalo, New England (still a tough team despite its 1-4 record) and Atlanta, Monday night. The Eagles also took one-sided victories over the Giants and Redskins.

Denver is second despite the fact that it has one loss while Miami has only a tie to mar its record. The Broncos have beaten Oakland twice and San Diego once and have looked awesome on defense.

Miami is third. The Dolphins have a fine young team, but they have to learn to beat the weaker teams like the Jets. Last weekend's tie with New York should never have gone into overtime.

Dallas is fourth but it's a very timid fourth. The Cowboys haven't shown much offensively the past two games and their defense in the loss to St. Louis left much to be desired. St. Louis could have won that game by a bigger margin than the three points it did win by.

San Diego is rated fifth. For all their offensive power the Chargers are definitely lacking on defense. Sure, they limited Seattle to just 10 points last Sunday but the Seahawks are not exactly an NFL power. San Diego will never make the Super Bowl as long as its defense gives up almost as many points as its offense scores. Defense still wins titles in the NFL.

There's a bundle of teams which are ranked just behind the "Big Five." Los Angeles is definitely coming on and Buffalo is still one of the better teams around. Other clubs which are hanging on to honorable mention status are Atlanta, Tampa Bay, Minnesota and San Francisco.

But what's the the worst team in the NFL? The Redskins are the only winless team remaining but Washington is basically a solid ball club which has seen the breaks go against it. I'd say it's a three-way tie between Baltimore, New Orleans and Seattle.

Now it gets serious. Forget the non-district games and the state rankings. Ruidoso High School's undefeated varsity football team starts district 3-AAA play and the long road to a possible state championship when it travels to Cobre for a 7:30 game tomorrow night.

The Warriors, who are ranked second behind Artesia in this week's Associated Press 3-AAA poll, have to prove themselves all over again in district play or a state playoff berth won't come about.

And Ruidoso will be facing one of the better passers in the AAA division when they meet up with Cobre's Jerry Herd. Herd, a 6-0, 175-pounder, passed for 200 yards against the Warriors despite a 41-12 Ruidoso victory last year. The game might have been closer if several Herd passes hadn't been dropped.

Last week in a 30-14 victory over Morenci, Arizona, Herd put the ball in the air 41 of the 66 offensive plays Cobre had. All of the Indians' receivers ran on their 440 yard relay team last spring and have plenty of speed.

"Our defensive backs are going to have their hands full stopping Cobre's passing game," said Ruidoso head coach Darrel Stierwalt. "He's (Herd) a great deep threat and can also hit his short and medium receivers well. His offensive linemen also give him plenty of protection."

Cobre is 1-4 on the year. The only common opponent the two teams have had is Cathedral of El Paso, Texas. The Warriors outplayed Cathedral in a pre-season scrimmage while Cobre lost to the same team 23-15.

Ruidoso held Cobre's running attack to minus three yards last year and literally ran at will through the Indian defense, rolling up 343 yards total offense.

The Warriors will have star tailback Scott Neal back for the tilt. Neal, who broke his right index finger in the third game of the season against Dexter, has a soft cast fitted for the Cobre game. Neal scored six touchdowns in three games and was the team's leading rusher before he got hurt.

Neal is also a top defensive back and should help the Warrior pass defense in its effort to shut down Herd.

"If (the cast) shouldn't bother Neal running or defending against the pass too much," Stierwalt said. "It might affect his pass catching a bit, however."

Grady Williamson, who filled in for Neal at tailback and did a brilliant job, will go back to flanker. Billy Woodul will start again at quarterback and Chris Lopez will start at fullback.

Darin Smith, who scored the only touchdown in last week's 7-0 win over the New Mexico Military Institute, is scheduled to start at split end and Dariush Rad, will go at tight end.

David Swalander will anchor the Warrior offensive line at center.

Lon Nunley, who has also played in the offensive line and at fullback, will go again at middle linebacker on defense. Nunley, Rad (who has played well at both linebacker and defensive end) and end John Montoya anchor a Warrior defense that has shut out the opposition the past three games. Dexter scored its only touchdown against Ruidoso on a blocked punt.

The Warriors on the season have scored 112 points and given up just 24 to the opposition. Ruidoso is averaging over 300 yards a game total offense, while holding the opposition to under 90 a contest.

NOTES — In other district 3-AAA games tomorrow night defending champion Silver City travels to T or C while Tularosa hosts Deming. Silver is 3-2 on the year while Tularosa is 4-1.

DICK REEVES stands with his mountain racing bicycle in front of radio station KRRR where he is program producer. Reeves recently won an unofficial cycle race from Crested Butte to Aspen, Colorado, a distance of 40 miles. Reeves has been cycle racing for over five years. He bought his present bike for $25 in Portales slightly over a year ago.

Taking the economical route to a bicycle victory

Cycling can be an expensive sport if one wants to be good at it. Some bicycles can cost up to $2,000 if they have all the latest racing equipment.

But Dick Reeves spent just $25 in getting his present racing bike. And the KRRR radio program director has been doing quite well in mountain-cycling races.

"I picked my present bike up in Portales about a year ago," Reeves said. "I roamed the back alleys of the town and finally bought it from someone. I've spent a total of about $160 on the bike. I made it into a five-speed and changed a few other things."

Reeves, who has been racing competitively for about five or six years, recently was the unofficial winner of a 40-mile mountain race from Crested Butte to Aspen, Colorado. 120 people competed in the race which last two days.

Crested Butte is located in south-central Colorado and is about 9,000 feet elevation. The race went uphill the first 18 miles until the cyclists reached an elevation of 11,500 feet.

"We camped out the first night and it was very cold," Reeves said. "Fortunately I had brought a sleeping bag with me. We cooked stewed foods and sat around the campfire singing, lots of good things like that."

The next day the racers went to an elevation of 12,700 feet where they had to ride over rocks "as big as typewriters."

After that the race was mostly downhill toward Aspen. Reeves left early and was the first cyclist to enter Aspen.

"There were other guys who could have beaten me but they stayed behind and took some photos of the scenery," he said. "However I'm used to competing and I had to go all out."

The race drew cyclists from all over the west. About 30 were from California. Most of the rest were from Texas, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico. Reeves was the only person from Ruidoso in the race, however.

Reeves' first taste of competition was a cycle race from Ruidoso to Lincoln, about 35 miles. He finished 18th out of 40 cyclists. Since then he has been a regular competitor in cycle races in the southwest.

Besides racing, Reeves has also gone on a couple of 400 mile bike trips the past two years.

"Galen Farrington (a teacher at Ruidoso High School) and I have gone on these 400 mile trips mainly for fun and for fitness," Reeves said. "We'd go to places like Carrizozo, Silver City, Deming, Las Cruces and then back to Ruidoso. We'd generally stay in motels at night and start out the next morning."

Reeves, who was born and raised in Portales, became interested in bicycle racing while he was a student at Eastern New Mexico University (ENMU). After just riding the bikes for awhile he got the urge to race competitively and entered the Ruidoso-Lincoln race.

He majored in broadcasting at ENMU and has been at KRRR since 1977. Despite the fact he did well at Aspen, he doesn't plan to race competitively too much longer.

"I'm getting older," he said with a laugh. "But I plan to keep riding for fun. It's a great form of exercise and it's especially good for the cardiovascular system, basically the heart and lungs."

A lot of people in the United States seem to agree with Reeves. Cycling has become as popular an exercise as jogging or tennis in some areas.

Hornbuckle is the only golfer from the New Mexico-West Texas area entered in the tournament. He made the tourney by winning the Sun County Golf Association qualifying round at Coronado Country Club in El Paso, shooting a 70.

The tournament will have two qualifying rounds Saturday and Sunday before the top 64 golfers begin match play Monday. There will be one match Monday, two on Tuesday and Wednesday and one on Thursday.

Hornbuckle, 40, has been playing golf since he was in the ninth grade in Albuquerque. He tries to practice three or four times a week after work, usually at Cree Meadows Country Club but sometimes at the Inn of the Mountain Gods or Alto Lakes Golf and Country Club.

That's not much compared to some professional golfers but it's made Hornbuckle one of the most consistent amateur golfers in New Mexico.

Looking at Ruidoso champs

It's been only 25 years but it seems like a century.

Many current players in the National Football League weren't even born yet, people wore "I like Ike" buttons and Elvis Presley was just another young singer out of the south.

The years were the mid-1950's and it was also a time when Ruidoso High School was winning state high school championships.

The Warriors won state crowns in 1955 and 1957, leaving their mark on New Mexico prep football.

These Warrior teams weren't very big in size or numbers but they more than made up for it with discipline, teamwork and just plain old fashioned guts.

Plus a little bit of trickery thrown in. "That's what did it for us," said Nyles Lackey, a co-captain of the 1955 squad which didn't allow a point in regular season play. "We had a new offensive formation installed by coach Leland (Cy) and opposing coaches never did catch on to us."

Ruidoso was a town of just over 1,000 people then and when the team played home games all the shops in town would close and everybody would come to the games.

And when the Warriors' 1955 team came home from the championship game with Kirtland almost everybody in the town that didn't attend the game was on hand to meet the players.

The team played with emotion and townspeople supported it with more of the same. The old genius installed by Leland prevailed throughout all of his player.

"There were teams after us (the 1955 squad) that had more talent and size but just didn't have the discipline and execution that we had," said Lackey.

The 1955 squad was one to remember. It started out the season with a 40-0 victory over the Roswell B team. However, B team was misleading because many of the Roswell A players played on it for that game.

The Warriors followed up the Roswell victory with a 40-0 win over Hobbs and shutout the rest of their regular-season opponents. They topped Melrose 24-4 in the semi-finals and then belted Kirtland 20-7 in the championship tilt.

On the whole season Ruidoso tallied 308 points to just 13 for its opponents. It was the first time in New Mexico high school football history that a team had not allowed any points in regular-season action. The team finished with a perfect 10-0 record.

Lackey ran for 15 touchdowns and passed for seven scores to lead the Warrior offense in the 1955 season. He was also a standout safety.

Nyles' brother Royce was a defensive tackle on the 1955 team when he was just a freshman. He made All-Southern New Mexico three of the four years he played at Ruidoso.

Royce too sang the praises of Leland. "Cy was years ahead of his time as far as offensive preparation went," he said. "But the 1955 team was something special. We had teams before and after that one which had more talent but never one with such teamwork and desire."

Leland is now retired and spends his time between Colorado and Hawaii.

Typical of the Ruidoso players on the 1955 team was quarterback Ronnie Perry.

Perry had never played before the 1955 season, his senior year. But the 6-foot, 176-pounder came out for the team and displayed a lot of talent. He was a triple-threat, having the ability to run, pass or kick.

Ronnie scored 13 touchdowns, second to Nyles Lackey and once dropped a punt 80 yards.

"We never drop kicked a punt less than 60 yards," said Nyles Lackey. "That was our biggest offensive weapon."

Other players of note on the 1955 squad included Pat Rooney, biggest player on the team at 193 pounds, co-captain Bingo Morales, Paul Dotson and Charley Hall.

The 1957 team didn't have the impressive statistics that the 1955 team had, being tied twice and winning most of its games by close margins.

Robert Pior was the big offensive star, scoring 14 touchdowns and passing for six. He also kicked four extra points for a scoring total of 88 points on the season.

Ruidoso held off McCurdy 13-7 for the championship and the game was highlighted by the Warriors' rugged defense. Pior scored both touchdowns in the contest despite being bothered by an injury.

The Warrior defensive play was especially impressive in 1957 as many of the games were close. The offensive and defensive lines each averaged around 170 pounds, big for those days, Charley Perry, Barry Swanson and Roger Pope were standouts in the line. Perry also played in the backfield.

Ruidoso's only one-sided victory of the 1957 season was a 54-0 victory over Hondo, which was in its first year of football. Six of the games were decided by one touchdown or less.

The 1957 season was to be Ruidoso's last state championship.

In 1958 the team had one of its biggest lines ever (183 pounds per man) and a speedy backfield. Ruidoso started out fast, winning its first four games. But Tularosa ended the Warriors' hopes for a perfect season with a 20-6 win and Ruidoso lost two of its next four games for a 6-3 season record.

EARS LAID BACK, a contented mule enjoys being groomed at a local carwash. Asked if the animals enjoy the wash and vacuum, their trainer said, "They love it — it's just like a whirlpool bath after a long trip."

Mountaintops gym team host four-way meet

Ruidoso Gymnastics Academy's Mountaintops team will host a four-way meet Saturday at the RGA gym.

The Mountaintops will compete against the Heights YMCA of Albuquerque, Los Alamos and Gallup. The competition begins at 1 p.m.

Last Saturday night the Mountaintops fell to a powerful Santa Fe Gymnastics Club team 88.5 to 79.4 in the capital city. The week before Santa Fe had beaten Gymnastics Unlimited of Albuquerque, the defending state champion.

"It was a bit closer than we expected," said Mountaintops coach John Eberle. "They weren't quite as good as we thought they would be."

Amy Thornton and Angela Jones starred for the six-girl Mountaintops team. Thornton finished fourth in the all-around competition with a 20.1 score. She was also fourth in the balance beam with a 7.2 total and was the Mountaintops' top competitor in the uneven bars with a 7.4 score.

Jones placed fourth in the floor exercise with a 7.8 total and was the Mountaintops' best performer in the vaulting with a 6.9 score.

"Possibly they didn't think we could give them a good match," Eberle said of the Santa Fe team. "I think from now on when they meet us they'll know they'll be in for a battle."

Youth sports for the week

White Mountain Middle School resumes its football schedule at 6 tonight with a game against Tularosa at Ruidoso High School.

The Braves are 1-1 on the season. White Mountain fell to a powerful Mountain View (Roswell) team 50-6 in the season opener and then beat Capitan 20-0 two weeks ago.

In other youth sports action this weekend Ruidoso Little League Football competition has three games scheduled Saturday at the high school, beginning at noon.

The Ruidoso-Sertoma Soccer Association has several matches scheduled for White Mountain Middle School Saturday. There is a possibility that a unerer-16 match with Las Cruces team will be played at WMMMS.

King names advisory group on brush and weed control

Governor Bruce King has appointed a 23 member advisory committee to look into the impact of brush and weeds on New Mexico rangeland. The committee, chaired by Secretary of Agriculture Dr. William P. Stephens, has been asked to examine the impact of brush and weeds in terms of their ability to affect land's productivity.

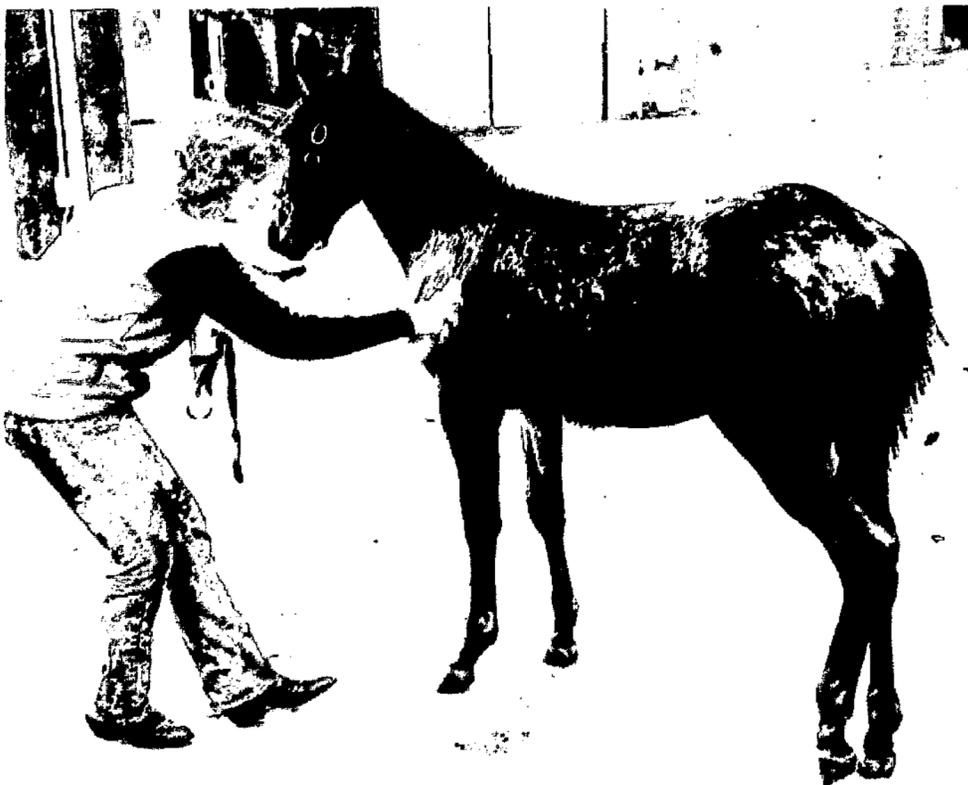

The Governor told the committee he wants them to make recommendations on the appropriate action necessary to deal with brush and weed problems on New Mexico rangelands and to advise on needs for additional research on control methods plus educational and demonstration programs for handling brush and weeds.

King said livestock provides three fourths of the agricultural cash receipts for the state. He said rangeland contributes substantially to this production and any improvements in productive capacity through brush and weed control will benefit the whole state.

The New Mexico Department of Agriculture, under the direction of Stephens, will take the leadership in managing a brush and weed control program. The department will also be responsible for staff support to the brush and weed control committee, King said. Advisory committee chairman Stephens said the key to increasing rangeland productivity is a coordination of agency and private industry efforts "to get brush cleared on New Mexico rangelands."

Committee members are from state and federal government, private industry including the ranching segment, conservation districts and brush and weed control researchers.

Lodgers planning tour of facilities in village

The noon luncheon and business meeting, October 13, of the Ruidoso Lodgers' Association at Holiday House, will be followed by a tour at 1 p.m., of all the 70 plus lodges in the Ruidoso area, Clark Carpenter, president of the association, said Monday.

Carpenter said the purpose of the tour is to introduce Ruidoso lodgers to one another for a glimpse of the accommodations each offers that is uniquely their own.

"The vast array of accommodations range from the most economical to very formal, plush lodgings," he said.

Although the tour primarily is aimed at members of the Lodgers' Association, he said, the public also is invited.

Anyone interested in knowing more about the tour can call Ida Koehler, tour chairman, at 257-4140, Carpenter said.

Village trustee, Benny Coulston, a Ruidoso realtor, will address the luncheon audience on the local lodging industry, Carpenter said.

After the luncheon, lodgers and others will make the tour aboard Ruidoso's new city bus, Carpenter said.

Montano on wanted list

Ernest Montano is like an Excedrine headache . . . he creates more indigestion than a ton of Alka-Seltzer can handle . . . he's the heart break of psoriasis . . . he's a royal pain in the neck.

Meet Ernest Montano, probably New Mexico's champion con man. From Las Cruces to Raton, law enforcement officers can recite a litany of tales about Montano's exploits . . . like the time he conned his attorney into agreeing to make good on any of his bad checks while he was out on bond. That was a bunch of rubber checks ago.

Just over a year ago, the State Crime Stoppers Commission offered a $1,000 reward for Montano's capture—after he had bilked a number of merchants in eastern New Mexico out of thousands of dollars worth of merchandise. Amazingly, Montano was captured shortly after the reward was offered. Not so surprising, Montano didn't stay in custody for long.

He was taken to the State Mental Hospital in Las Vegas, for an examination. That didn't slow Montano down one bit. While he was in Las Vegas, he took advantage of the situation to write a half dozen bad checks to local merchants.

Then, when it appeared the heat was on, Montano ducked out of trouble by swallowing some acid. He was rushed to Albuquerque for treatment. Authorities should have known better. An Albuquerque used car dealer filed a complaint saying Montano bilked him out of a $2,000 auto by writing a bad check as a down payment.

Montano was later taken to Santa Fe, where a District Court judge released him on his own recognizance. Since then the prolific bad check writer has dropped out of sight, reappearing only long enough to bilk still another merchant — just to keep in practice.

At latest count, Montano is wanted on warrants in more than a half dozen communities.

And this week, the State Crime Stoppers Commission is offering a $1,000 reward for information leading to his capture.

He is described as being 43 years old, 5-7, 160-170 pounds, with brown hair and brown eyes. And he has enough aliases to fill a typewritten page — when it's single-spaced.

Anyone having any information about Montano's whereabouts is asked to call State Crime Stoppers at its toll-free number, 1-800-432-6933. Or citizens can call their local Crime Stoppers program. Chances are good he's wanted by them, too.

Meanwhile, Artesia Crime Stoppers is hot on the trail of some vandals, who painted some obscene messages on the exterior of Park Junior High School. Anyone with information can call the Artesia Police Department or the Superintendent of Artesia Schools.

San Juan County Crime Stoppers is looking for the driver of a pickup truck, responsible for the hit-and-run death of Martin Carbajal, 28, who was killed September 7 on Highway 550. A substantial cash reward is being offered to anyone who calls San Juan County Crime Stoppers at 334-2023 and assists in the solution of the crime.

Hobbs/Lea County Crime Stoppers is offering a reward of up to $1,000 for information leading to the arrests and indictments of the offenders responsible for the August 18-19 break-in at the Hobbs Municipal School District's warehouse. Some $1,300 worth of items were taken by the offenders, including several typewriters, tape players, and emergency lights. Hobbs/Lea County Crime Stoppers can be reached at 393-8005. And still another school burglary is the focus of attention of Espanola Crime Stoppers at 733-6664. Between August 7-11, burglars broke into the Headstart School Building in Santa Cruz and took a small refrigerator, green tool box with assorted tools, two cassette players and several television sets.

The State Crime Stoppers Commission and the 32 local Crime Stoppers programs in New Mexico pay cash rewards on a continuous basis for information leading to the arrests and grand jury indictments of major crime offenders. Calls to the programs have resulted in the solution of 3,784 major crimes and the recovery of $8.5 million worth of stolen property and narcotics.

In all cases, callers do not have to reveal their identities.

Crime Stoppers launch fight to stop harvest of marijuana

It's harvest time for one of New Mexico's most lucrative crops—marijuana.

Police throughout New Mexico are reporting a substantial increase in the cultivation of the illegal drug, much of it being grown along with other crops such as corn and alfalfa.

But at least two major hauls didn't make it to market this year.

Just last week a tip to the State Crime Stoppers Commission led law enforcement officers from Portales, Roosevelt County, State Police and Eastern New Mexico University to seize more than 3.2 tons of marijuana growing in a corn field west of Portales. The crop could have made its cultivators more than $3 million in profits.

But there was still more bad news for the state's narcotics community. Two weeks ago State Police officers unearthed some 6,000 pounds of marijuana growing near Regina, located north of Cuba.

State Police Captain Al Miller said the two marijuana seizures "have to be in the top three of the state's history in the seizures of plantations."

Meanwhile, police are still busy checking on leads about other large marijuana cultivations.

This week the State Crime Stoppers Commission is offering rewards of up to $1,000 for information leading to the locations and seizures of other major marijuana plantations.

Anyone having any information about this narcotics problem, or about any other unsolved major felony crimes committed in New Mexico is asked to call State Crime Stoppers at its toll-free number, 1-800-432-6933. Callers do not have to reveal their identities.

To date, information received by the State Crime Stoppers Commission has assisted law enforcement officials in New Mexico in the solution of 336 major crimes and the recovery of $ 5.3 million worth of stolen property, narcotics and court-ordered restitution.

Violent crimes are foremost on the minds of several Crime Stoppers programs around New Mexico this week.

Crime Stoppers of Otero County is offering a substantial reward for information leading to the arrests and indictments of the persons responsible for the September 1 murder of Ramon B. Chavez. Chavez, who was last seen earlier in the day walking on White Sands Boulevard in Alamogordo, was shot once in the head with a high powered weapon. His body was found outside of Tularosa. Anyone with information is asked to call 437-2060.

Santa Fe Crime Stoppers is looking for a white male, about 6-0 tall with a muscular build and blond hair who robbed the first National Bank on the Plaza on August 25.

Another convenience store fell victim to an armed robber in Las Cruces. On August 19 around 9:30 p.m., a lone white male of hispanic descent, about 20 years of age, between 5-4 and 5-10, with a stocky build and black shoulder length hair, entered a Pic Quik store on West Picacho and escaped with quantity of cash at gunpoint. Witnesses said the offender was driving a small, dark vehicle, possibly a Toyota or Datsun. A reward of up to $1,000 is being offered by Dona Ana County Crime Stoppers at 526-8000.

And Hobbs/Lea County Crime Stoppers, at 393-8005, is offering a reward of up to $1,000 for information leading to the solution of an armed robbery which netted the knife-wielding offender just $2. The offender, described as a white male, about 17 years of age, 5-6, with a slender build and blond shoulder-length hair and blue eyes, robbed a young Hobbs woman just after she had left a local bank. The victim, pushing a small child in a stroller, was taking a shortcut through an alley just north of Broadway Street when the offender appeared. He pulled out a folding-type knife, demanded the victim's money, then fled west down the alley.

Police activities

September 28—Brenda G. Winfield, La Luz and Old Lincoln Drive, reported theft of white gold wedding band, white gold engagement band with .25 carat diamond, 10 strand heishi necklace, 10 pairs pierced earrings, 10 liquid silver strand necklaces, one pair Famolare shoes, one brown sweater. Total value $1,640.

September 28—Tom Hansen, Ruidoso High School, reported presence of drug paraphernalia and marijuana.

September 28—Joe Cross, 105 Lonesome Trail, reported theft of electric can opener, kitchen utensils, sewing box, tool box with hand tools, electric drill, electric skill saw, three kerosene lamps, yellow aluminum box and other household items. Total value $400-500.

September 29—Van Brown reported forced entry at White's Auto Store, nothing taken.

Wilderness Wisdom with Wayne Calloway

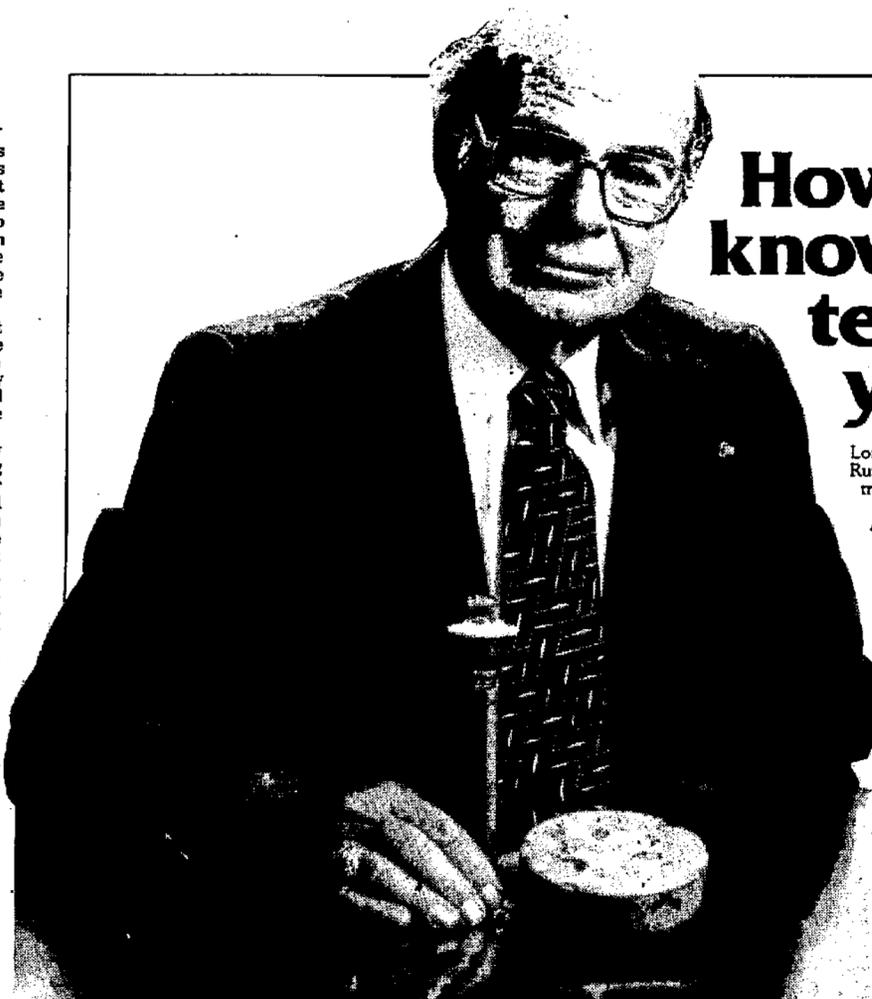

Dear Wayne — At least one company is marketing a rangefinder and bowsight as a matched outfit for bowhunting. I'm not certain how it works, but I believe one sights through the optical rangefinder to determine the distance to the target, then matches the color shown in the rangefinder to a colored pin on the bowsight, and the range should now be correctly indicated.

The system sounds pretty good, but wouldn't it be cumbersome and time consuming to go through this procedure before each shot? It would seem that many shots would be lost to a quarry which tired of waiting. Or do I misunderstand the whole procedure? Glen A., Arkansas

Dear Glen — I think you basically described the system, but may be missing a point or two. The optical rangefinder presents a double image of a subject until it is properly focused at that range. When correctly in focus the double image merges into one. This basic system is not very unlike that of many 35mm cameras, and one can soon get the knack of it. When properly focused the rangefinder indicates the correct range in yards and that particular range will be shown also as a color. For example, the rangefinder may show 30 yards as a yellow color.

The bowsight is equipped with four sight pins. The shooter sights in the bow at 10, 20, 30, and 40 yards and sets the sight pins accordingly. Once that is done, he selects the one paper range scale, from the many that are furnished, that coincides with the spacing between pins and sticks it on the sight next to the pins. Now it will all begin to make sense.

The 30 yard sight pin, which is the third from the top, will now be marked with the number 30, and the color will be yellow, as used in example above. So, now you have a quick reference between the rangefinder and the sight, both with a number and a color. If all this seems a little complicated, don't worry about it, because the instructions included are easy to follow.

Long before the strategic development and wise use of vital energy resources became a necessity, Ruford Madera was keenly aware of their importance. His lifelong commitment to the energy industry reflects this unique foresight.

A youthful 68, this native New Mexican is still actively involved in energy production. His career as a professional geologist and petroleum engineer has spanned many decades. Friendly, enthusiastic and extremely perceptive, he is considered to be an expert in his field. Although he travels often, Ruidoso is definitely his home.

At Security Bank, we're proud to have Ruford Madera on our Board of Directors. His business and energy expertise make him a valuable asset—for us, the people of Ruidoso!

We know Ruidoso.

SEND CONGRESS ONE OF THESE. IT COULD BE ONE OF THE KEYS TO LOWERING INTEREST RATES AND UNLOCKING THE ECONOMY.

Why send a key to Congress?

To dramatize your frustration with an economic policy that keeps interest rates high.

These three proposals, we feel, could be the latchkey that opens the way to a healthy economy.

1. The President and the Congress hold the budget deficit to under $42.5 billion in fiscal 1982. Balance the budget in fiscal 1984.

2. The Federal Reserve Board to allow the money supply to increase at the higher end of its monetary targets to accommodate economic growth and stability.

3. The president to appoint a non-banking, small-business representative to fill the first vacancy on the Federal Reserve Board.

The Administration, the Congress, the Federal Reserve Board can no longer ask the public to accept the economic hardships resulting from the devastating cost of money.

It stifles economic growth. It increases the deficit. It reduces employment. It prevents expansion. And it depresses national spirit.

You can show how you feel about high interest rates by sending a key to your people in Congress. Any key will do. A house key. A car or a truck key. An office key.

These keys signify the ravages of tight money and high interest rates. Your key would be symbolic of the home you couldn't buy. The new car or truck you needed but had to put off buying. The bankrupt business whose doors you were forced to close.

So send Congress your tired, your battered, your worn-out keys. Attach yours to the coupon below and send it to Congress today. Your cooperation may be the key to lower interest rates.

The Silver Lining

BY DANIEL AGNEW STORM

"And The Skies Are Not Cloudy All Day"

So go a few lines from the long-beloved western song, "Home on the Range." Today as I send you this message; on October 8, it is mid-afternoon, and the sun has been hidden under clouds of fog, mist, and light rain, since daylight, with no sign of the sun coming through in any direction in the sky. To make the words of "Home on the Range" come out true to form, the sun is going to have to hurry and shine forth.

This is the kind of day in Alaska—and we had sometimes several days on end of rain and clouds—that I used to ask our mother when the sun was going to come out. Almost always, late in the evening you would see a silvery light in the west across the bay—the sun sending its light through the bank of clouds. It was then that mother would point out this "silver lining" to myself and my brothers, and tell us the sun as letting us know that it would shine the next day or so.

The Misty Days Hold Back the Frost

As Jack Frost has often told us, these light rains and clouds and mist in early October hold back the heavy frost and set the stage for long Indian Summer.

In most years there are vivid color patterns by this time on the oak brush out south of the house. Today, you can just barely make out the slightest tint of yellow-orange here and there in the steep fields of closely-massed little brothers of the giant oaks along the river. And lo, and behold, these large trees, the pride and joy of the autumn time, have turned only slightly in places or not at all. Even the woodbine out among the cedars near the old wind mill tower have not put on the least bit of their crimson.

All the leaf colors are late, and here is where the autumn flowers fill in with their purple, maroon, light blue and all shades of gold. And you never saw these flowers offering a more radiant fall display all along the way.

The golden rod, usually four feet high is six and seven feet in height, with luxuriant spangles massed in a solid bouquet of light gold. There are two or three kinds of autumn daisies along the wayside in great abundance of color and fragrance—that are very scarce in most years. And the wild four o'clocks and the New England Asters in purple-maroon, and lavender-purple, seem to grow brighter each day and send their fragrance all through the land.

All this about the leaf colors being late and the autumn flowers more abundant and colorful is the result of some of the best rains to fall in many a year.

If the rainy and misty weather continues several days more, we will witness a leaf spectacle truly spectacular. In most years the oak brush tapers early along the hill sides, begins in early October, and gradually builds to its height of mingled colors. First comes the yellow, then orange, then pink and crimson and maroon.

One of these mornings Jack Frost will pay us a late visit, and we will wake up to behold all the oak brush all shining forth with all its colors at once; and the river trees will offer their tribute to the fall by showing all along the winding river, the golden amber of the box elder, the bronze-gold of the oak, the lemon-yellow of the walnut, the dim gold of the wild grape vine, and the true light crimson of the woodbine, decorating the autumn tree picture—climbing high in the trees, draped over the little cliffs, and winding along the rocky ramparts on the "Banks and Braes" of the river.

Swallows go South

Our welcome little summer visitors from Mexico stayed with us a long time this year. And finally, you look for them and they have "folded their tent like the Arab and silently stolen away" to borrow a few lines from Henry Wadsworth Longfellow's "The Children's Hour." All in all we are on the threshold of wonderful days. Let us thank Our Heavenly Father for such bountiful autumn days and all our many other blessings.

UNM adopts program aiding minority students

Minority students in some New Mexico public schools will find it easier to enter the fields of science and engineering as a result of two educational programs implemented by the University of New Mexico (UNM).

The National Science Foundation (NSF) awarded $50,000 for research apprenticeships for minority high school students, and the Ford Foundation is funding a $30,000 UNM project to design a comprehensive mathematics program for several rural school districts in northern New Mexico.

"Because of its high minority population, New Mexico should and can be a leader in developing programs for minority students," said UNM President William E. Davis. "We are pleased to be able to work with other New Mexico colleges and universities in a program that guarantees a future in science and engineering for the state's young people."

Other colleges sharing in the NSF award and participating in the apprenticeship project are Eastern New Mexico University, New Mexico Highlands University, the New Mexico Institute of Mining and Technology and New Mexico State University.

Both projects will be coordinated by the Southwest Resource Center for Science and Engineering at UNM.

The apprenticeships involve 27 minority high school students who were selected by the resource center on the basis of an aptitude or interest in science and engineering. The students were assigned this summer to assist on research projects at the participating colleges and universities.

The projects included a comparative analysis of the parasites of grasshoppers, mice and kangaroo rats; a study of certain microorganisms used to remove impurities from heavy petroleum products; a chemical investigation of southwest medicinal plants; and a computer reduction of data received from the Voyager I spacecraft after its November fly-by of Saturn.

The students will participate this year in follow-up activities which include the New Mexico science fair and possible involvement in a space shuttle student project.

The mathematics program will concentrate in rural school districts with heavy Hispanic and Indian populations and many students from poor families.

Cooperating with UNM on this project are the Northern New Mexico Community College and the Northern New Mexico Consortium for Rural Education.

Project designers hope to increase eventually the number of minorities in mathematics-based careers by equipping them with a sound knowledge of math while still in the lower grades.

The project, when implemented, will restructure school mathematics from the fourth grade through high school.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC AUCTION SALE
DELINQUENT PROPERTY FOR PROPERTY TAX DIVISION OF THE
TAXATION AND REVENUE DEPARTMENT OF THE
STATE OF NEW MEXICO
SANTA FE, NEW MEXICO

Notice is hereby given that, pursuant to the provisions of 73-30-67, N.M.S.A. 1978 the Property Tax Division of the Taxation and Revenue Department of the State of New Mexico, is offering for sale at public auction beginning on OCTOBER 15, 1981, at 10:00 a.m. at the LINCOLN County Courthouse in CARRIZOSA, New Mexico, the following described property has been offered for sale:

The terms of the sale are as follows:
1. A sale properly made under the provisions of 73-30-67 constitutes full payment of all delinquent taxes, penalties and interest on the thousand dollars ($5,000) or less property.

2. The description of the following real property is required by 73-30-67 to be sufficient to permit the identification and location of the property by potential purchasers. The State of New Mexico warrants no title to properties purchased at public auction sale.

3. Section 74, N.M.S.A. 1978, prohibits officers or employees of the state or of any of its political subdivisions engaged in the administration of the property tax from directly or indirectly acquiring an interest in, buying or profiting from any property sold by the Property Tax Division for delinquent taxes, except that an officer or employee may purchase property sold for delinquent taxes if he is the owner of the property and was the owner of the property at the time the taxes became delinquent. Any officer or employee violating 74-74 is guilty of a fourth degree felony and shall be fined not more than the thousand dollars ($5,000) or imprisoned for not less than one year nor more than five years, or both; and he shall also be automatically removed from office or have his employment terminated upon conviction. A real property sale in violation of 73-30-74 is void.

4. Successful bidders are required to make payment in full of the amount bid before leaving the premises on the day of the sale. Payment is required to be by money order, certified check or cash. A personal check which is accompanied by bank letter of credit for the amount of or in excess of the amount of the personal check drawn to the order of the Property Tax Division of the Taxation and Revenue Department.

5. Upon receiving payment for the real property sold for delinquent taxes, the Property Tax Division shall execute and deliver a deed to the purchaser. The deed conveys all the former property owner's interest in the real property except the tax lien against the property for real property taxes which are in accordance with the property tax code, subject only to perfected interests in the real property existing before the date the property tax lien arose. The property tax lien against real property arises on January 1 of the tax year for which the taxes are imposed.

6. After two years from the date of sale, neither the former real property owner shown on the property tax code, nor the former taxpayer nor anyone claiming through him may bring an action to challenge the conveyance. Subject to the year time limitation stated above, in all controversies and suits involving title to real property held under a deed from the state issued under this section, any person claiming title to the property acquired by the deed from the state must prove, in order to defeat the title, that he or the person through whom he claims had title to the real property at the time of the sale, and that either: (1) the real property was not sold to satisfy the tax lien for taxes years for which the delinquent taxes for which it was sold were imposed; or (2) all taxes, penalties, interest and any cost due for the years events were paid by him or the person through whom he claims title prior to the sale.

7. The sale price of real property at this public auction sale is not to be taken or considered as being the value of that property for property taxation purposes.

8. All persons intending to bid upon property are required to register and obtain a bidder's number from the auctioneer and to provide the auctioneer with their full name and address. Deeds will be issued to registered names only. Conveyances to other parties will be the responsibility of the buyer at auction. Persons acting as "agents" for other persons will register accordingly and must provide documented proof as being a bona fide agent at time of payment for property purchased.

9. The auctioneer reserves the right to withdraw from sale any of the properties listed below; to sell any of the properties listed below together; or to sell only a portion of any of the properties listed below. If any dispute arises between or among the bidders, the auctioneer's decision with respect to the dispute is final, and the auctioneer may decline the property again, in his discretion. The auctioneer reserves the right to reject any and all bids. The real property listed below may not be sold for less than the listed minimum price.

LEGAL NOTICE
The governing body of the Village of Ruidoso Downs shall consider final action upon Ordinance No. 81-7 of its regularly scheduled meeting October 26, 1981 at 7:00 P.M. This Ordinance proposes a Grant from the Village of Ruidoso Downs, New Mexico, to Continental Telephone of the West, a corporation, its successors and assigns, a franchise to erect, maintain and operate a telephone system in the Village of Ruidoso Downs, New Mexico, and to erect, maintain and operate its wires, underground conduits, lines, microwave sites, poles, arms, apparatuses and fixtures for conducting a telephone exchange in, over, under, along and across the public streets, highways, alleys, bridges, and other public ways and places in the Village of Ruidoso Downs, New Mexico, prescribing compensation for the privileges conferred under this franchise; prescribes the conditions governing the operation of the business insofar as it affects the use of public property for the purpose of such business; prescribing rules and regulations generally for the operation of said business under this Grant; and providing for severability.

Copies of the proposed Ordinance are available to interested persons during normal and regular business hours of the Village Clerk upon request and payment of a reasonable charge which will cover the cost of publication and confining to the date of consideration by the governing body.

Inside The Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE — If you run into anybody who tells you he wants to be elected governor of New Mexico next year, ask him this question:

What do you intend to do about the Department of Commerce and Industry? That's the one department of state government which deals with the future of New Mexico.

When Bruce King took office, he named to that important post John Salvo, who had been school superintendent in Moriarty.

Now, as everyone agrees, Salvo is a nice man, who wants to love and be loved.

But for that job he had one small weakness: He knows nothing about commerce, and he knows nothing about industry.

In other words, his naming was a political favor, not an effort to assure for the people of the state what they want and deserve in that job.

As proof of that fact, you couldn't find a better example than the uprising of the members of the Industrial Development Executives Association.

These are the guys who are in the same business that the economic development division of Salvo's Department of Commerce and Industry is engaged in. They seek out firms who might conceivably move to New Mexico, except that funding for members of the association comes from cities, counties and Chambers of Commerce, not from the state.

And what did these fellows do in Las Cruces last week?

They rose up in their wrath and denounced the Department of Commerce and Industry, saying that its present leadership has "lost the confidence and support of a majority of the New Mexico community economic development groups." That's tough language, and they meant it to be so.

As a matter of fact, they did that despite the fact that Al Dietz, head of Salvo's department of economic development, is on their board of directors and was at their meeting, apparently under the illusion that he was scoring points with the "imaginative" new programs he was suggesting to them.

Needless to say, Al was a little surprised when the roof fell in.

What all this comes down to is that we have pretty much wasted the four years of Bruce King's latest term as governor as far as this department is concerned.

It has been so concerned with itself and its own activities, and so unconcerned with what it was put in place to do in the first place, that it has spent this time — and an equivalent amount of money — accomplishing almost nothing.

In fact, if it has not hurt us too much, we may be getting off a little lighter than we deserve.

(P. S. Last week, John Salvo fired the lady who was in charge of his department's public relations. Why? Because she did not improve his "image" with the public.)

While you're mulling over the material above, look at that statement from the Industrial Development Association Executives which says "some of the members of the state Economic Development Board are chosen for political reasons."

For "some," read "almost all" and you wouldn't be too far wrong.

And these are, as said above, the people who are affecting the future of the state by what industries they manage to bring here — and where they see them located.

Dear editor:

I believe most responsible Ruidosians know to be untrue the charges made by their Mayor during his latest temper tantrum at the September 28 Trustee's meeting where he said that the County Commissioners were showing favoritism toward Carrizozo because of their support of Carrizozo's acceptance on the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission. At least he didn't call me fat! Seriously, I know the County Commissioners will not take any action on his request to "take the g-d-$10,600 (money provided by the County for the Ruidoso Amulance) and shove it... I find it hard to believe that any serious minded citizen of this area does not understand how dependent we are upon each other for our future growth and prosperity. I don't want to get into a whistling contest with hiszonor, the mayor, but if he isn't ready to annex the Inn of the Mountain Gods, Ruidoso Downs, and Lincoln County, he better learn to mix the truth with the juice, and cooperate with his neighbors, because it is highly doubtful that those white license plates are in Ruidoso just to visit within the Village limits.

Sense & Nonsense

U.S. Sen. Pete Domenici

The federally-backed school lunch program has been under attack in recent years for its arbitrary regulations and lack of effectiveness in meeting the nutritional needs of our nation's school children.

This criticism was voiced again in the new regulations issued by the United States Department of Agriculture, which, among other things, allowed soybean products to be used as a meat substitute and ketchup and pickle relish to be classified as vegetables. Office of Management and Budget Director David Stockman, citing the new regulations as a bureaucratic mess, sent them back to the drawing board, admitting that the administration not only had egg on its face, but ketchup as well. Not a pretty picture.

There's an old saying "when all else fails, read the directions" and it could easily apply to this example of bureaucratic overzealousness. Congress, in the Budget Reconciliation Act of 1981 set out very specific goals to streamline the operation of the school lunch program, with the primary goal being to allow as much local flexibility as possible while simplifying administrative burdens. Furthermore, any proposed changes must have a demonstrated effect on lowering costs and be based on sound nutrition. Congress had also stipulated that regulations to effect cost savings must be issued within 90 days.

As you can see, about the only direction they followed was the 90 day deadline. These new regulations did not simplify or streamline operations and by making new regulations, actually worsened the problem.

I was concerned about the new minimal standards of nutrition, for it seemed to me that in their effort to effect cost savings, they forgot what the program was all about—providing a nutritious and healthful lunch for schoolchildren.

Stockman did the right thing in sending those regulations back to the drawing board. The National School Lunch Program, for all the federal backing and federal regulations imposed upon it, is still a local program, run by local people, local administrators, and local schools. It is they who must feed our children day in and day out and allowing them more flexibility in determining menus to meet national nutritional standards will result in better lunch programs for all.

Like it or not, we are not a homogeneous nation. Though nutritional needs are the same, the ways in which we obtain them may be vastly different. Thus, children from New Mexico might be pleased with a cafeteria tray of enchiladas and beans, but would turn away from a New England lunch meal of baked scrod (a kind of fish). No one should expect the federal government to set a national set of allowable foods that we can or cannot eat. While maintaining control over the school lunch program's nutritional requirements, the federal government still must step aside and let local officials make the critical decisions of determining the most attractive way to package these nutritional requirements. Otherwise a lot of good food, evidenced by national studies, gets thrown away by schoolchildren.

It must be pointed out that even with the bureaucrats going a little too far, these proposed regulations were only minimum requirements for nutritional needs. This was only the lowest common denominator by which a school lunch program could receive federal reimbursement. Obviously, even if the regulations had gone into effect, public pressure from parents and school officials would have forced those standards to be raised, if not actually required under federal law. Studies seem to bear this out. In 1978-79, schools on the average served more food than was required.

In short, it is your involvement in your child's school lunch program that will decide whether or not your child has a nutritious lunch. Parents who are concerned with what their children eat should go to the schools and, if not satisfied, should approach their local school boards to correct any deficiencies in the program. I will continue, meanwhile, to work on this critical problem so that all schoolchildren receive a nutritious lunch every school day and that the federal government introduces regulations designed to allow the local school lunch programs the flexibility to meet this goal.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

I would like to express my appreciation to the Rotary Club of Ruidoso and to the City of Ruidoso for the hospitality and a truly very great weekend enjoyed by the Rotary International Youth Exchange students in your city on September 18, 19, 20.

I am certain that the memory of the fun times in Ruidoso will remain with them for a lifetime.

Even though it was a short two or three days these students from 19 nations all over the world, learned much from the experience. They learned about the countries represented by their fellow students, about the people of Rotary and its goals for promoting better understanding between peoples around the world, about the people of Ruidoso—friendly, happy Americans, and about themselves. Thank you again.

editorial

Considering the thousands of motorcyclists here over Aspencade weekend, police reports indicate there weren't any more traffic problems than occurred during the largest weekends of horse racing this summer.

This is due, in some measure, to the number of law enforcement officers on duty during that period.

As to organized biker groups, the "tough guys," the police tally shows there were two Huns, three Hell's Angels and 70 Bandidos in town. Chief of Police Dick Swenor, who can talk their language, visited their camp areas Thursday and Friday nights and said he told them to "cool it." He also said these 75 bikers did exactly that, and caused no trouble.

Traffic problems, Swenor said, resulted from the approximately 600 "grungies," or, as the police also call them, "unwashed," that were harder to control.

It was this latter group that drew the attention of officers, and that received the citations, were arrested and faced court action. Minor traffic infractions were generally ignored, Swenor said, but he also said they arrested many of those who were flagrantly violating the law and that this action tended to keep them more orderly.

It is worthy of note that the officers disarmed many of the bikers, an act that possibly averted any incidents of violence.

All in all, we feel that the officers did an outstanding job of preventing trouble last weekend, acted forcefully when occasion demanded, and we congratulate them on their efforts. —CD

ON BASS IN BONITA

Whilst eagerly pursuing fishing information for the Aspencade tabloid distributed with last Thursday's News, sports writer Gary Brown got to chatting with Toby Wilson as to the fishing in Bonita Lake ... which Gary spelled "Bonito" ... which doesn't matter all that much as everyone in these parts ... particularly the fishermen ... know those waters ... where they are ... and the kind of fish to be ketching there.

Anyhow ... somewhere along the line ... Gary understood Toby to say he's heard tell some bass had been caught in Bonita ... though he did allow as how he hadn't seen any come out of that pond ... and so Gary announced the fact there are bass in Bonita.

Now comes Toby ... and he says there ain't no bass there ... just trout ... and Toby figures bass fishermen'd be a mite disappointed.

"Course, if'n these eager bass fishermen want to wet a line in Alto Reservoir, they might have better luck ... 'cause we've had pictures of bass as has been ketching in Alto ... which doesn't necessarily mean bass favor Alto's water over Bonita's ... though it could be possible.

HO-HUM TIDBITS

Pathologist Linda Norton ... down Dallas, Texas, way ... says that it's indeed Lee Harvey Oswald's remains as is buried in Rose Hill Cemetery ... proving, once and for all, that the guy Jack Ruby blasted into eternity over national television was buried under his own name ... and in his own grave ... so now, maybe his bones can rest in peace.

Then there's the National Wildlife Federation who claims that a thread of spider's silk is stronger than a steel thread of the same thickness ... and that it would take 4,000 threads lying side by side to be as wide as one human hair ... yet this spider's webbing is one of the strongest natural materials in the world. And this same bunch claims that the chameleon's tongue can reach nearly a foot in length ... which is pretty good for a critter that's only sporting a body length of three to four inches ... and this tongue can whip out to full length in one-twenty-fifth of a second to snare its prey. And so much for trivia.

ON TICKER ATTACKS

There's an outfit ... The USC Hyperlipidemia-Atherosclerosis Study, The University of Southern California-Western States Clinic, The Hospital of the Good Samaritan, 637 S. Lucas Street, Los Angeles, California 90017 ... and that's whew! ... 'cause that moniker's longer than most the governmental agencies have been able to dream up ... as is interested in contacting heart attack victims ... 'cause these guys at that place want to help heart attack patients ... and they got a deal that don't cost the guys they want to help nothing.

'Course there's some strings attached ... like the guy that's interested must have had a first and only heart attack during the past five years ... be between 29 and 64 years old, with no history of heart surgery or diabetes ... and be interested in joining a national cholesterol-lowering study.

Now ... if'n you're interested ... and can qualify ... you can call 1-213-482-5011 and visit with these folks ... oh, yes, I guess it's your nicker ... but if they accept you, they reimburse you for transportation.

Seems those guys has some ideas they wants to check out ... so, if'n your ticker acted up once ... what do you have to lose but the price of a phone call, to participate in this program ... which could well be a means' of helping yourself ... to say nothing of thousands of others ... which just has to be a pretty good sort of a deal ... yes?

SLACK TIME AHEAD

All folks in Harmony Valley as has been busier'n all get out the past few months can ... come Monday next ... sort of grab a breather ... 'cause once the mules quit braying at Ruidoso Downs ... and the Hunter/Jumpers has gone elsewhere to hunter/jumper ... there'll be a little slack period ... before the snows start falling ... and the skiers start falling into the snow ... and the driving gets a mite hectic ... and there's snow to shovel and chains to put on ... and stuff ... so grab yourself a little slack.

BRIEF BIT: If it doesn't stop raining for a spell, this'll probably be the wettest Indian Summer on record in Harmony Valley ... CD Security Lighting helps end the "your loss, their gain" game.

Bright outdoor lighting is one of the leading deterrents against unwanted intruders. Leased floodlighting for businesses, and the Nite-Liter for homes, can give added security to your property by providing automatic, on-at-dusk, off-at-dawn, outdoor lighting. Both leased floodlighting and the Nite-Liter provide more illumination than incandescent lighting, so you save money. Fort Stanton scheduling water safety instruction

Teaching the basics of water safety is the first step in using the Fort Stanton Training School swimming pool.

Jeannie Culbertson, recreation supervisor and physical education instructor, spent last week training school employees in rescue and safety procedures.

"I'll be teaching advanced life-saving classes and water safety instruction classes next," Culbertson said. After that, they will be ready to schedule classes with the residents.

"I want to emphasize as much safety in and around the pool as possible," Culbertson said.

ART, DINING AND ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE

LOWER SONORAN EXHIBIT — Visitors to Living Desert State Park in Carlsbad, can explore the park's newest exhibit.

New exhibit open at Carlsbad

Visitors to the Sonoran Desert walk-through aviary at Living Desert State Park, Carlsbad, are enjoying the experience of walking among the birds, said Park Manager Dean Ricer.

The new aviary is less than a year old and Ricer said the facility is already "very popular with visitors."

The $160,000 aviary features plants and birds native to the warm sonoran desert, located in southern Arizona and northern Mexico.

Living Desert State Park itself opened in 1971 and contains exhibits of over 1,900 cacti and perhaps the most complete collection of southwestern desert and mountain animals in the nation.

Among the birds flying over and around visitors are mocking birds, curved-bill thrashers, cardinals, cactus wrens and Gambel's quail.

The five-sided Sonoran exhibit, built in Spanish-style architecture, has 18-foot walls that support a screened roof and leaves the display open to the elements. Heat cables buried in the ground give plants all the warmth they need during Carlsbad's mild winters.

A walkway curves through the middle of the exhibit, allowing visitors to see such cacti as Saguaro, organ pipe and barrel, jojoba plants, Washington palms and acacia and palo verde trees.

The entire park has large interpretive signs for both plant and animal exhibits, written in English and Spanish.

Visitors to the park leave the entry building and wind their way along paved paths bordered with rare and common cacti to animal exhibits including American bison, antelope, bear, otter and prairie dogs.

In another building, visitors see something that gives most people goosebumps: it's a collection of reptiles including several varieties of rattlesnakes, lizards and Gila monsters.

Living Desert State Park is one of three parks in the area.

Carlsbad Caverns National Park is open every day of the year and offers 800,000 people from over the world each year a safe and easy peek at one of the largest and most beautiful caves in the world.

Improvements at the Caverns include new high-speed elevators that whisk visitors from the surface to the lunchroom underground.

Opened to the public in 1973, Guadalupe Mountains National Park is a breathtaking combination of mountain, canyon and forest jammed into 77,500 acres of desert 45 minutes south of Carlsbad on the road to El Paso.

Guadalupe Peak, at 8,761 feet the highest point in Texas, is located in the park. McKittrick Canyon contains a rushing stream and is home to both broad-leaved and conifer trees, cactus and succulents.

Trainer Garrett ready for Sunland

BY MARK GORDON

Phil Garrett discovered how much he enjoyed Sunland Park last racing season.

"In past years, I'd just bring two or three horses, win a few races and then leave," said the veteran trainer. "But last year, I stayed the whole season. I did pretty good. I won eight or nine races."

"I kind of like the weather and the track. I like being around people and get along with the people here at Sunland and Ruidoso Downs real well," said the El Paso conditioner.

Garrett will have 16 horses when the 84-day Sunland Park Fall Quarter Horse Derby, a 440 yard race for three-year-olds with an estimated purse of $25,000 on December 13.

The 40-year-old trainer has what he termed his best runner in a 17-year racing career. "I believe Perseverance is the best horse I've ever had," he said of the three-year-old Hempen gelding. "He's a bad-legged horse. I hope we can run him here, but we won't if his (right front) knee isn't better."

Perseverance will hopefully compete in the Sunland Park Fall Quarter Horse Derby, a 440 yard race for three-year-olds with an estimated purse of $25,000 on December 13.

A career winner of almost $80,000, Perseverance qualified and finished fifth in the $1 million All-American Derby and the $95,850 Rainbow Derby this summer at Ruidoso Downs.

He then qualified and ran fifth in the $45,000 Oklahoma Derby at La Mesa Park in Raton.

Last season at Sunland Park, Perseverance won two races late in the fall season and then was rested until Ruidoso Downs opened in May.

Garrett said he rated I Get By, who won the 1978 Twin Futurity at La Mesa at his best horse before Perseverance.

"I think Perseverance is a better colt," Garrett said. "This big horse gives you all he's got every trip. He's easy to run. He's a real well-mannered horse."

"He's had problems with his knees all summer. For a crippled horse, he's awfully tough," he said.

Other quarter horses Garrett expects to run at Sunland Park include Feel Free, a three-year-old and Oh You Bet, a six-year old horse who may be tried in 870 yard scampers.

His thoroughbred clan includes Chody's Chuglak, who won three races this summer at Ruidoso Downs; Figueroa, a two-time winner at Ruidoso Downs; Cherokee Wheel and Hempens Daylight.

Besides the three New Mexico tracks, Garrett has also raced at Centennial Race Track near Denver and made a swing through the South Texas Non-pari-mutuel circuit in 1980.

"Of those tracks, I like Sunland and Ruidoso the best," he said.

Garrett, who began his career rubbing horses for the famed quarter horse owner Walter Merrick when he was 12 years old in Sayre, Oklahoma, said he is anxious for the Sunland Park season to begin.

"I guess everybody is ready for the races to start," he said. "I hope to do pretty good this year. I try hard and like working for myself."

Capitan's State Forestry office serves 8 counties

BY JEAN PATTERSON
Staff Writer/Photographer

Operating out of the small village of Capitan is a state agency, responsible for eight counties in southeastern New Mexico.

The agency, New Mexico State Forestry Service, deals with prevention, suppression and pre-suppression of fires on state and privately owned lands in Lincoln, Otero, Roosevelt, Eddy, Lea, Chaves, De Baca and Torrance Counties.

As part of the office's duties, the organization works with 80 rural fire departments in the areas of training and providing additional aid in the case of wildfire.

A wildfire is one that is not confined to a structure or is not a controlled burning situation, according to Dave Bervin, district fire management officer.

"My position is mostly administrator. Our office is the hub of the district," Bervin said.

When one of the rural fire departments answers a call to suppress a fire, the State Forestry Service office is notified. If the rural departments unable to provide enough manpower or equipment with which to fight the fire, the office is again contacted and additional support is arranged.

"We will draw from the immediate area for additional help," Bervin said. For example, if the Lincoln Fire Department needed some aid, Fort Stanton or Bonita fire departments would be called to bring more manpower and equipment.

The service can also help in obtaining additional equipment for the rural fire departments. They can arrange for the rural department to get federal excess equipment which the individual department maintains. The program works on a mileage-reimbursement method to help cover the cost of operation, according to Bervin.

Although the past summer didn't present too many problems with uncontrollable wildfires, the Red Flag Alert was put into effect several times. The system is under the state department and is Bervin's specific responsibility.

"The Red Flag Alert is used when conditions are such that if there is a fire, there won't be much to do but to get out of the area," Bervin said. Previously red flags were used for the alert, but small metal signs are being placed throughout Ruidoso to replace the flag system.

When there is such an alert, evacuation maps are placed at several locations in town. Normally, April through the end of June is the height of the season for potential forest fires. From then until the end of July is a rainy season and mid-August brings more concern for possible fires. However, Bervin emphasized that fire danger can exist at any time.

At times, fire can be a natural control, such as clearing out underbrush or dead tree stands. If those types of things are left to collect, though, the potential for fire rises.

"Fuels build up undergrowth, regeneration, disease stands, roots and duff underground are some of the fuels that do build up," Bervin said. These things can build for weeks and then surface. Something will ignite the fuels, causing the fire which may lead to dangerous situations.

Some major contributing factors of fires are lightning, careless campers or hunters, traffic, burning trash, although the causes can vary year to year, Bervin said.

In 1967, such a fire wiped out 1,200 acres in the area during the Gavilan fire. Ten years later, the Moon fire consumed 100 acres.

Fighting fires is not the only business the State Forestry Service is involved with, however. "We are a service to the public. We work closely with private landowners, acting as consultants," Bervin said.

As a consulting service, the people in the department will discuss potential uses for the land as well as prescribed burning methods with landowners. The service also helps in monitoring what the person is burning.

"Our job is concerned more with management," Bervin said. As described in the forestry service information guide, the agency's job is to "give technical advice on all areas of forest management and to arrange fire protection for all state and private areas of the district."

In the management-consultant area, the foresters can help land owners in such areas as tree harvesting, forest maintenance, disease prevention and tree planting. John Roznovak helps out in this area as timber management officer, also operating out of the Capitan office. Timber land is basically divided into two areas—commercial and non-commercial, according to Roznovak.

"Commercial is saw timber to be used for lumber, while non-commercial includes pinions and junipers, used for fuel wood," Roznovak said.

The New Mexico State Forestry Service is composed of five districts, with the main office located in Santa Fe. Although District Five is not the largest district, it encompasses the southeast corner of the state, including parts of the Cibola National Forest and the entire Lincoln National Forest.

Since much of the area in this district is brush and crop land, threat of fire may not seem as great. "Brush fires are easier to put out, but they can move real fast," Bervin said. "A brush fire doesn't have the fuels that build up in a forest."

In areas where the State Forestry Service may need some additional aid, the United States Forest Service will cooperate.

"The Forest Service is very valuable. If we can't get something, we can ask them," Bervin said. A Joint Powers Agreement specifically states the areas in which the services will work together.

One organization, the New Mexico Multi-Agency Fire Prevention Group, is designed to combine the efforts of five agencies to emphasize fire prevention and suppression. The New Mexico State Forestry Division, Bureau of Land Management, National Park Service, United States Forest Service and Bureau of Land Indian Affairs comprise the group. Bervin says a major management consideration is how some practice will affect everything. For example, a fire or the harvesting of a timbered area will affect wildlife, the watershed and forage. "It's a comprehensive type of thing," Bervin said.

A problem the forestry service people encounter is that the land owners do not live on the land all of the time. Some of them maintain the land only during certain times of the year.

In addition, it is difficult for the men to enforce regulations. "Most of my clout is after the fact," Bervin said. He doesn't have the authority to issue citations without attending law enforcement school. "Normally, though, there's no problem. We make every effort not to write a citation. We're not a militia, we're a public service organization," Bervin said.

The Capitan office, base of District Five, is only a couple of trailers and a garage of fire trucks. The staff is Chris Zamora, district forester, two professionals, Bervin and Roznovak and two Youth Conservation Corps (YCC) workers. However, because of budget cuts, the office will not be able to continue staffing the two YCC workers.

Zamora, retired service man and native of New Mexico, lives in Lincoln and heads the operations in Capitan. Roznovak has worked about one and a half years for the state service and lives in Capitan. He has lived in many states from Massachusetts to California.

Bervin, newest member of the staff, has been with the service since April. Originally from North Dakota, then Phoenix, Arizona, Bervin has a forestry degree from Northern Arizona University in Flagstaff. After spending some time working in both Oregon and Colorado, he made his move to Capitan last spring.

"Working for the State Forestry Service is a comprehensive job," he said. "You're not just stuck in one area; you're exposed to all aspects."

As to what it takes to be a forester, Bervin said, "Conservation is the main concern of foresters. It's a fraternity-type of thing. I guess you have to be in tune with nature."

THE STATE FORESTRY DIVISION in Capitan is responsible for eight counties in New Mexico. Checking out the map of these counties are Dave Bervin, fire management officer, foreground; Chris Zamora, district forester; and Adam Aldaz, youth conservation corp worker. Looking over Bervin's shoulder is John Roznovak, timber management officer.

Visit the area art galleries, studios and shops

Whether you're pleasing your own sense of the aesthetic, or looking for a good investment or a unique gift for a special someone, shopping the Ruidoso art galleries for objects d'art is an experience not to be missed. While the art community is young yet, it is thriving — and those with expertise say it is getting better all the time. Below are some of the galleries, studios and shops which provide a wide variety of choice to patrons:

THE AFFIRMATIVE, located at 2608 Sudderth in midtown, is owned by George and Noreen Keith-Beattie and their daughter, Linda Rusler, who is registered with the American Society of Interior Design. The Affirmative features fine designer furnishings for the home; Fitz and Floyd dinnerware; watercolors by Noreen Keith-Beattie; depouiller by George Keith-Beattie and tapestries by LeRoy Wilce of Roswell.

THE ANDERSON COLLECTION, owned by Eilyn Anderson, is located at 2808 Sudderth Drive, just east of Pine Tree Square. Featured are paintings and sculpture by Santa Fe artist, Dolona Roberts and paintings, sculpture and weavings by other regional artists.

THE ARMADILLO STAINED GLASS STUDIO AND GALLERY, 2639 Sudderth, on the second story of the building housing Back to Nature, is owned by Jerry and Janey Perry. Custom stained glass work — custom beveling, sandblasting and etching of designs, is created on the premises, by the Perrys, for homes, churches and businesses. Supplies are sold and private lessons are available. Armadillo also offers watercolors by Lynette Watkins of Levelland, Texas; etchings by Hondo Valley artist-sculptor, Tom Knapp; pen and ink drawings and watercolors by Rod Markham of Lubbock, Texas, and White Mountain Pottery by Tim Wierville.

THE ARTISAN'S SHOP AND GALLERY, 2342 Sudderth, in midtown, is owned by Don and Mary Parsons. Artisan's offers originals and signed prints by Peter, Henriette and Michael Hurd; bronzes and prints by Gordon Snidow and originals and signed prints by Mimi Jungbluth, Pastel Society of America.

THE ASPEN TREE, 2340 Sudderth, is owned by Alden and Jane Deyo and managed by Carolyn Hall. They carry Devlin Pottery; woodcarvings by Ben Ortega; sand candles by Bill Lewis and jewelry by Pat Lilly. Also White Mountain Pottery by Tim Weirville; wood sculpture by J. Vincent Fitzgerald; aspen leaf jewelry, sand paintings, ceramics, leathercraft, wind bells and more. In addition, the Aspen Tree is a full line book store featuring books on New Mexico and the Southwest.

THE BEAR CLAW GALLERY, co-owned by Sunny Stallings and Kelli Baldree, is located at 332 Sudderth. Western art is represented in Gordon Snidow prints; original oils by Lad O'Dell; lithographs by James Asher and Steve Forbis; collographs by Helen Guinn; oils by Eduardo Ortega and prints and bronzes by Vel Miller. Owners also offer specialized and custom framing and preservation framing.

THE BLUE GEM, a member of the Indian Arts and Crafts Association, is owned by Dorothy Davis of Midland, Texas, and managed by Pat Seymour. The Gem offers Indian jewelry, rugs pottery, sand paintings, baskets and kachinas; and watercolors by Mike McCullough. They also do gift wrapping and shipping.

THE BUCKHORN GALLERY, located midway between Fox Cave and Glencoe, off Highway 70, is a studio gallery featuring the bronze sculptures of Tom Knapp and pastels and watercolors of Dorothy Bell Knapp. The gallery is open by appointment. Call 378-4126.

CHINO'S, at the Inn of the Mountain Gods, is owned by Rita Chino. Featured are Indian jewelry collector items by award winning artists; sculpture by Clifford Traqua; pottery by Red Starr; bronzes by Joseph Lone Wolf and Grace Medicine Flower; oils by James King and pastels by L. Henry.

THE CRUCIS ART BRONZE FOUNDRY AND GALLERY, on Suddeth Drive across from the municipal swimming pool, is owned by Walter and June Rawley and D. J. Scraggs. Rawley does bronze castings in the foundry, and his works using the cross motif, as well as bronzes of other artists are available in the gallery. Also on display are watercolors by Ben Etta Cates, Martha Robbins and Jena Rawley Sechrist; charcoal drawings by Carl Hawks; oils by Mary Stout and Bill Searcy; acrylics on suede by Erv Johnson; prints Louie Ewing and Dirk and Jan Schneider; pencil drawings by Ron and Don Adair; handmade silver and brass jewelry by Charlene Beisele; Spanish Mennonite chests and antiques.

D'ORO'S GALLERIA, located in the Holiday Inn, and D'ORO'S GIFTS, in the Villa Inn, are owned by Hazel Haynsworth. The Galleria features fine Indian jewelry; original paintings; signed prints; sculpture and pottery. Shows featuring selected artists are held throughout the summer. The gift shop offers less expensive art works, craft items and primitives.

FENTON'S, a new (since June) gallery, located at 2812 Sudderth Drive in Pine Tree Square, is co-owned by Danny Fenton and Richard Williams. Western art, particularly the colored pencil mastery and pastels of Fort Davis, Texas artist, Wayne Baize, depicting the Big Bend country of Texas, is featured. Fenton's also does custom framing and goes all out to obtain sold-out editions of prints for patrons.

GALLERIA de WATKINS, a new gallery located east of the "Y" on Highway 70 by T-Bird Lumber, offers originals and prints by local and other artists, and a gift shop featuring handmade dolls, jewelry and afghans. Also gift wrapping and shipping. On display are pencil drawings, oils and handmade pottery by Pat Garey; metal sculpture by John Queen; pastels by Vicky Clark; watercolor originals by Kathy Davis; watercolors by Paul Hanna and scratchboards by Kathleen Morrow. Owner Pat Watkins offers homemade cookies and a bottomless coffee pot.

INTERNATIONAL GALLERIES, LIMITED, in the Four Seasons Mall, owned by Jon Denny, is the exclusive area outlet for nationally acclaimed sculptor Lincoln Fox's hauntingly mystical bronzes of the American Indian.

JACKALOPE SQUARE, 1301 Sudderth Drive, is owned by Richard and Clare Little. Featured are a variety of imported items, as well as handcrafted goods by regional craftspeople, including hand painted gourds by Robert Rivera of Espanola; pottery by Robert Esposito of Albuquerque; stoneware by Keith Rousseau of Roswell; burned wood slab art work by Jack and Judy Williams; and others.

JIM PLESS GALLERY, a recent addition to Ruidoso, is located at 2807 Sudderth Drive across from the Anderson Collection. Owner Jim Pless specializes in R. C. Gorman prints. Also original lithographs and ceramics, and custom design framing and museum mounting, mainly for his own art work. Also on display are English hunt scenes by Herring; etchings by Austrians Josef Eidenberger and Herta Czoernig and bronzes by Del Weston.

MADRE'S, 2205 Sudderth, is owned by Ellen Miller. Unusual, handmade items include hand woven and crocheted clothing and leather vests. Stained glass by Doug Franklin.

MOUNTAIN WOOD CRAFTSMEN, located on Highway 380 in Capitan, displays wood crafts, weaving, stained glass and jewelry, all by local artists.

THE NEW ORLEANS SHOP owners, Maggie Beatty and Dottie Thompson, will open a second, larger shop later this fall, at 2710 Sudderth Drive, across from Pioneer Savings and Trust. Their shop at 2635 Sudderth, which will then be the "annex," offers a wide variety of American folk art, from sources in the Smokey Mountains, New England, Utah, Fredericksburg (Texas), and Amish sources, as well as antiques dating back to the Civil War. Items include handmade quilts and dolls; dried mountain bouquets; jellies, cotton sock-toe rugs and place mats and many smaller hand crafted gifts. Jewelry by Jeep Collins of Fredericksburg, in bronze, brass, copper and silver.

OLD ADOBE PATIO ART GALLERY, owned by Evert and Diane Furrey, is located in Adobe Plaza on Highway 37. Watercolors by Evert Furry; oils by Sandra Humphries; pastels, oils and watercolors by Mabel Sellers; watercolors by Doris Harrison; stoneware by Susan Mrosek; pottery by Marvin Dennis and Nancy Ramzel; and sand paintings by Harrison Begay, Wilson Price and Lester Johnson, are offered.

THE OLD LINCOLN GALLERY, on Highway 380 east of Capitan, is a cooperative gallery featuring paintings by Walter Henn, portraits in oil and pastels by Ted Robinson; bronzes by Glen Dennis and jewelry by John West. Open weekends only after Labor Day.

PUERTO DEL SOL, in midtown, specializes in Latin American imports. Handcrafted items include weavings; clothing; pottery; jewelry; tin and brass art and wall hangings. Owner is Vi Stege.

THE ROADRUNNER, owned by Archer and Flodie Wilson, is located in midtown Ruidoso. Featured are oil paintings by Billie Billington; leatherwork and buckles by Ben and Viola Chavez;

Scenic excursions are a breathtaking experience

Being it is autumn, and it's Aspencade, visitors to this area have a golden opportunity to enjoy breath taking scenic drives — and all the golden sights awaiting viewers aren't contained in the aspens.

One short drive, for example, is to head out north on Highway 37, perhaps four or five miles, and turn onto State Highway 532, leading 12 miles up the mountain to Sierra Blanca Ski Resort. This is a freshly black topped, dippy and twisty, stretch of road, offering a magnificent change of scenery around each and every curve.

From vantage points on Ski Run Road, that's Highway 532, you can view an expanse of mountain scenery, the likes of which you'll be hard pressed to duplicate anywhere. At certain points you can look out across the mountains and onto the White Sands, shimmering in iridescent splendor in the off-times hazy distance. Do take your camera.

For a drive offering ever changing scenery, take Highway 37 north to Angus and turn west on the road leading to Bonita Lake. Drive leisurely, but carefully, and you'll enjoy mountain and forest scenery to boggle the imag ination. The drive, this time of the year, will not encounter the traffic abounding during the summer months, thus leaving you with the opportunities to stop and enjoy the views and take countless pictures.

To savor the feeling of being alone in the wilderness, continue on around Bonita Lake, and keep driving until you reach the cul-de-sac, some miles distant. It is along this stretch of road that you'll really be able to get back to nature — it's almost as though you've suddenly been transplanted into forest primeval.

For a real change of pace, on Highway 37, and about two miles west of Angus, turn north towards Nogal. You'll drive through a pine tree shaded, narrow, valley for some miles, then emerge into the open space of the desert, with each turn in the road offering a spectacular view — with one of the most impressive being the expanse of valley, surrounded by rugged mountains, just as you begin the descent into Nogal. You have to see this view to believe it.

At the junction with Highway 380, a short drive west, past Carrizozo, takes you to the Malpais — the Valley of Fire. Here an expanse of lava, deposited eons ago by a most active volcano, awaits your inspection. There's a beauty in this stilled lava flow that'll stimulate your imagination, as you closely inspect the obviously undulating flow of molten rock that suddenly cooled, remaining as frozen motion for your viewing pleasure. Do take your camera.

From Carrizozo, east on Highway 380, the road follows the Rio Bonito, through a colorful valley into Old Lincoln Town, the stamping grounds of Billy the Kid — where you can inspect memorabilia of the Lincoln County War and the Kid.

After leaving Lincoln, the drive on down the valley toward Highway 70 offers spectacular desert and mountain scenery — giving you the impression that you're a frontiersman entering a virgin land.

At the highway 380/70 junction, a turn left will take you through the colorful Hondo Valley, turning right will bring you back, through the mountains to Ruidoso — with spectacular views abounding.

Another beautiful drive is to head south on Highway 70 out of Ruidoso, through the Mescalero Apache Reservation — where the scenery varies from beautiful expanses of mountains to the waste howling wilderness of the sprawling desert.

Another splendid scenic drive is to take Highway 24, off Highway 70, up the mountainous road to Cloudcroft, nestled in the high hills at an elevation of 8,000 or 9,000 feet. Do take a camera, as the only way you can prove such scenery exists, to the "Doubting Thomasas" back home, is to have pictures.

Side trips from Cloudcroft including driving down the mountain towards Elk, or along a curving road to Sunspot, or down the mountain towards Alamogordo. Being as none of these roads are conducive to fast travel, you can revel in nature's splendid beauty that constantly changes as you make your way.

Who knows, after an excursion into the countryside, you, too, might decide that living in these mountains is exactly what you want to do.

Fabulous mule racing offers excitement, thrills

Mules, generally, are known for being recalcitrant beasts.

Fabled tales of mules range from having to have a fire built under them to get them to move — and move they did, but only to get away from the fire.

Mules, obviously, aren't stupid.

Then there are the countless anecdotes depicting these long eared brayers as "stubborn as a Missouri mule," — all of which have some basis in fact. With the facts usually being embellished with falsehoods — just to make the story more believable.

This, then, sets the stage for the racing mules — a different breed of mules.

And, at Ruidoso Downs Race

Track, October 8-11, there'll be mule racing . . . with purses of up to $1,000 added, making Ruidoso Downs the home of the world's richest mule races.

Racing mules, it must be said, aren't your common barnyard variety of mules — racing mules race. Simply put, racing mules don't pull carts, don't go into coal mines to haul loaded cars from the depths to the ground level, don't perform menial tasks as do their non-racing counterparts.

A good racing mule, such as the likes of Early Bird, Redeye, Flip Wilson, Maude and those of similar ilk, are valued as are good racing quarter horses, thoroughbreds, even. Sure, the owner places a value on them — but that isn't the value placed should someone, with money, come around and start discussing the purchase of these racing mules. Five figures, when it comes to racing mules, is a common valuation — and that doesn't mean $10,000 — but considerably more.

Thus it is, that top racing mules are valuable animals.

With that as a background, the mule races you'll see at Ruidoso Downs October 8-11 are professionally run. The Ruidoso Downs Mule Skinners, with the cooperation of the Ruidoso-Sunland board of directors, use the same equipment as the track uses for horse racing. That's from the gates, to electronic timing and photo-finish cameras. The same officials from stewards to starter, make certain the races are run correctly — adhering to the highest standards used in horse racing.

This year's racing schedule follows.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 9

Sierra Blanca Stakes, 400 yards, $750 added.

Three-Year-Olds and older, 300 yards, $300 added.

Two-Year-Olds, non starters, 220 yards, $250 added.

Three-Year-Olds and older, 300 yards, $200 added.

Three-Year-Olds, D grade and lower, 300 yards, $250 added.

Four-Year-Olds, classic, 350 yards, $1,000 added.

Ruidoso Downs Stakes, 400 yards, $1,000 added.

Mule Skinners Stakes, four furlongs, $500 added.

Three-Year-Olds and up, C grade, 200 yards, $200 added.

Two-Year-Olds, 300 yards, $250 added.

Three-Year-Olds and older, A grade, 250 yards, $350 added.

Three-Year-Olds, B grade, 350 yards, $300 added.

Relay, one mile, $250 added.

Three-Year-Olds and older, C grade, 300 yards, $200 added.

Three-Year-Olds and older, D grade, 350 yards, $200 added.

Three-Year-Olds and older, A grade, 400 yards, $350 added.

Chariots, 250 yards, $300 added.

Chariots, 350 yards, $300 added.

Now that's a lot of "added."

And it's added to entry fees ranging from $50 to $500. And 10 entries at $500, plus $1,000 added, has those mules running 350 yards for $6,000 in the Classic.

As to the grades of mules, A is the highest, the best, the most experienced, the fastest, the best behaved. It's when you get down to the D grade, and lower, that the unexpected happens in mule racing — those mulish traits come to the fore in the less experienced animals and prove to be the crowd

might be 17 lengths in front of the pack — not a bad lead — and suddenly that mule will jump the fence, or come to a quick stop and meander over to the edge of the track and start chomping on grass, or, perhaps, dart into the path leading to the paddock area, and this discounts the for instances when the mule decides bucking is more fun than racing.

For those big money purses, however, the trained racing mules pretty much stick to business — outside of being a little cantankerous in the starting chutes at times. But when these A grade mules come out of the gates, it's all business — they get into high blower and run. No foolishness, — just a good mule race.

And, as with all sporting events, there's always ample opportunity to discuss the relative merits of one mule over another with other mule race fans who will prove to be more than willing to enter into the spirit of the competition.

The real crowd pleasers are the Relay Races. Riders have to saddle the mule, run a specified distance, dismount, unsaddle, saddle, leap aboard and repeat the process, three times in all. All this hurry and flurry tends to excite the mules — with unpredictable results. These results range from refusing to be saddled, to getting loose and running away, to kicking and biting, or, if saddled, in bucking, or refusing to run at all. It's guaranteed, during the relay races, that hilarity will take over before the winner crosses the finish line.

Then there are the chariot races. Shades of Ben Hur! Pulled by a pair of mules, the drivers make like the gladiators of old, standing in their chariots, snapping their whip, exhorting the mules to greater effort. With the thought being, the mules don't always cooperate — and again the event is a crowd pleaser.

Co-featured with the mule races are the arena events, October 9-11. In the arena the show mules perform, with heading and heeling, steer stopping, barrel racing, cutting and western pleasure reigning on the agenda. Mules, in all arena events, tend to perform like horses similarly trained — it's seldom an arena mule'll act up, but when they do, it's worth watching.

Armed with this information, should you, too, decide you'd like to be the proud owner of a mule, there'll be a mule auction October 8. And you'll be able to big on a comer, maybe a proven animal, or just buy a mule that looks as though it will develop into a winner.

For a change of pace, and an opportunity to exchange information, maybe, even, dollars, the mule races will suffice to satisfy every whim the fan needs to satisfy.

Bear in mind that the mule races at Ruidoso Downs Race Track are professionally run. The higher the grade of mule, the more professional the race. The lower the grade, the greater the opportunity for mulish behavior on the part of the mules — and this is where the crowd pleasing action occurs.

And the sponsors of these events, the Ruidoso Downs Mule Skinners, are looking ahead to offering pari-muteul wagering in the not-too-distant future — just in case you think they aren't serious about mule racing.

Backpacking into the wilderness is challenging

Backpacking has become one of the most popular outdoors activities in the country and the Ruidoso area is no exception to this.

There are numerous areas around Ruidoso where a person can go backpacking. The White Mountain Wilderness area and the Capitan Mountain Wilderness area are the best places to go backpacking as they are relatively isolated and have plenty of room for people to hike.

Although winter isn't that far away in the Ruidoso area there is still plenty of time for people to backpack in the wilderness areas.

About 7,000 people each year visit the two wilderness areas, according to Randy Herzberg, a recreation forester for the Lincoln National Forest. Many if not most of that number do extensive backpacking into the wilderness areas.

But if someone decides to go backpacking he or she must be prepared. A backpacker must have enough equipment and clothes to handle any emergency, particularly in the winter time.

What does a backpacker need when he goes into the back country?

Well, first of all a backpack is obviously the most important item. Most of the necessary items can be carried in the backpack if they are fitted properly.

Such necessities are food, a portable stove, cooking utensils, rain gear, clothing and a sleeping bag can be carried in the backpack. First aid equipment should also be taken along and, if possible, carried in the backpack.

If people go backpacking into the wilderness areas during the wintertime they should bring along heavy clothing and ear muffs. Hypothermia is a potential danger in cold weather and sufficient clothing is a must.

Heavy boots are also important to a backpacker and are expensive, costing as much as $70. The boots must fit properly to insure proper movement.

During the winter time snowshoes may be necessary at the higher elevations, particularly if getting traction is difficult.

A tent can be useful during the summertime but not absolutely necessary. During the wintertime, however, tents are strongly advised.

Good tents that can be used all year around are expensive, sometimes running over $200. Look for quality when you buy a tent. It's especially important in the wintertime when a tent must be sturdy and easy to put up in case of bad weather.

A 50 mile an hour windstander is probably not necessary on tents used in the Ruidoso area. During the wintertime temperatures sometimes drop below the freezing level but the winds generally stay at a moderate level.

Wearing a hat is advisable on backpacking trips as it will protect your face, eyes and ears from the sun in the sunner and the cold in the winter.

There are several kinds of portable stoves a person can bring along on a backpacking trip. White gas, alcohol or propone will

And don't forget people — lots of attractive people — dressed in blue jeans and cowboys boots; or English riding habits; or in cut-offs and jogging shoes or in the colorful native Arabian costume of the desert. People are very much a part of the reason this three-day event held each fall is bound to catch on.

The judge calls out instructions to each rider and watches There is carefully as each goes through their paces. He walks over and consults with an official. A decision is reached and announced over the loudspeaker.

There is applause and ribbons are passed out.

A brief telling cannot possibly account for the man hours members of the Ruidoso Arabian Horse Association (RAHA) put in to make the Ruidoso All Arabian Class "A" Horse Show such a memorable event each year.

It is, technically speaking, a class competition, the first place winners, all but the equitation classes, that is, qualifying for the national competitions sponsored by the National Arabian Horse Show Association.

Qualifying for the "nationals" may be the main purpose of the show, but add to that the beautiful horses and the attractive participants and the perfect setting and you have a combination guaranteed to make good the "three days of fun" promised by the RAHS for both exhibitors and spectators alike annually.

do.

Cooking utensils should include forks, knives and spoons. A large cutting knife would also come in handy. Dried food is especially useful on backpacking trips.

There are various kinds of sleeping bags a person can take on a backpacking trip. Bags filled with dacron or fiberfill are good because they are warm and lightweight, thus easy to carry in a backpack. Down filled bags are also very warm but are useless once they are wet. They are most useful during the summer or spring.

Any person who is going backpacking for the first time should go with several experienced people. There are many paths to hike on, particularly in the White Mountain Wilderness area, thus it's very easy for someone to get lost.

There are easier paths for beginners to hike on in the wilderness areas and inexperienced people should get used to these hikes before attempting some long trips into the wilderness.

But above all, be prepared when you go backpacking.

Backpacking into the wilderness is challenging

do. Cooking utensils should include forks, knives and spoons. A large cutting knife would also come in handy. Dried food is especially useful on backpacking trips.

There are various kinds of sleeping bags a person can take on a backpacking trip. Bags filled with dacron or fiberfill are good because they are warm and lightweight, thus easy to carry in a backpack. Down filled bags are also very warm but are useless once they are wet. They are most useful during the summer or spring.

Any person who is going backpacking for the first time should go with several experienced people. There are many paths to hike on, particularly in the White Mountain Wilderness area, thus it's very easy for someone to get lost.

There are easier paths for beginners to hike on in the wilderness areas and inexperienced people should get used to these hikes before attempting some long trips into the wilderness.

But above all, be prepared when you go backpacking.

Area camping varies from comfortable to rustic

So you want to go camping! Well the Ruidoso area is gradually becoming known as one of the more attractive and desirable areas in New Mexico for campers.

While camping hasn't passed hunting and horse racing in popularity yet, a growing number of campers are coming to Ruidoso to view the sights and sounds of nature.

There are 364,352 acres set aside by the Smokey Bear District of the Lincoln National Forest for outdoors enjoyment.

Unlike some of the more famous camping areas in the country, the Ruidoso-Lincoln County area offers campgrounds with a good deal of solitude for the outdoorsperson.

The most popular campground is South Fork, the only campground with a nightly fee ($4) and flush toilets. However it closed for the winter October 15. When South Fork is open it has room for both tents and trailers and has regular garbage collections.

Oak Grove, a campground located off State Road 532 near the ski area, is also closed for the winter. It has 31 campsites with fireplaces and vault toilets.

Three Rivers campground, which is located on the west side of the wilderness area between Carrizozo and Tularosa (off highway 54) has limited facilities. An old Indian petroglyph site, with trail and displays, is located nearby and should interest history buffs. It's open year around, and is one of the more popular campgrounds in the area.

"It's located (Three Rivers) at a lower elevation and is easily accessible all year round," said Randy Herzberg, a recreation forester for Lincoln National Forest.

Monjeau and Skyline, both national forest campgrounds, can be used during the winter. However, it's hard to get to these campgrounds in the wintertime, since they are often snowed in.

Baca campground, an undeveloped site, is located off Highway 380 between Capitan and Lincoln.

But perhaps the biggest advantage the Ruidoso area can offer for campers is the undeveloped space for people who like to "rough" it.

Almost all of the 364,352 acres set aside for recreation can be camped on, Cedar Creek being an exception.

The two wilderness areas around Ruidoso, Capitan Mountains Wilderness and the White Mountain Wilderness, offer campers a chance to really get away from it all.

Unlike more famous "camping" areas like Yosemite National Park in California and Yellowstone National Park in Wyoming the hardy camper can find places where he is hardly bothered by other campers and signs of civilization.

When you go camping in the wilderness areas tents aren't absolutely required except in wintertime. Items that you should probably bring along on a camping trip include dried food, a portable stove, first aid equipment, cooking utensils, sleeping bags, a lantern and definitely a flashlight.

Campers have little to fear from wildlife in the area. There are bears, cougars and golden eagles in the wilderness areas but they are afraid of humans and generally avoid human contact. The abundance of wildlife in the Ruidoso area can be a pleasant surprise for animal buffs.

But with all the pleasures campers can derive from the outdoors, camping also involves responsibility.

The Lincoln National Forest is famous for the forest fire in May, 1950, where the original "Smokey Bear" was saved by forest rangers.

To prevent fires like the one that almost destroyed "Smokey" campers should watch the fires they build, don't use standing wood for fires and keep water handy in case the fire starts to spread or get out of control. If campers smoke extinguish the smoking material. If you have a car, use the ashtrays.

Keeping nature beautiful is also the responsibility of campers. Throw all your trash away in trash cans whenever possible and don't bathe or wash clothes in rivers and streams. Areas like Ruidoso are among the few places left in the country where pollution is not a problem. Yet.

Keep camping areas clean and the recreation areas of Lincoln County will remain, as Randy Hazeberg says, "available to provide peace and solitude for people."

Campers with questions about the recreation area can contact the Smokey Bear Ranger District office, located at Highway 37 and Cedar Creek Road.

Ruidoso's skiing is positively, utterly, fantastic

Ruidoso is a winter playground for many people from the southwest.

And the skiing at Sierra Blanca Ski Resort rates near or at the top among New Mexico's ski resorts.

The resort, which attracts most of its customers (over 90 percent) from Texas, is owned and operated by the Mescalero Apache Tribe. It is located near the top of Sierra Blanca, at 12,003 feet above sea level, the seventh highest mountain in the state of New Mexico. The ski area itself is 11,400 feet above sea level.

Towering above the resort area of Ruidoso it presents a bright contrast to the desert area around Lincoln County.

Sierra Blanca Ski Resort was built in 1961 by Robert O.

Anderson and sold in 1964 to the Mescalero Tribe.

Since then the resort has steadily increased in size and total business until it has become perhaps the biggest ski resort in the state.

Sierra Blanca generally opens for skiing around Thanksgiving, depending upon the amount of snow in the area. It's usually open through the middle of March with the best skiing occurring in January and February.

According to resort officials in the 1980-81 season was a mediocre one with the best skiing on the Washington's Birthday weekend in mid-February. About 12,000 ski tickets were sold during the four-day weekend.

The resort record for tickets sold in one day in slightly over 5,600, set in February, 1980.

There are 26 trails on the mountain, 15 of them for beginners and the others for advanced skiers.

The resort has constantly added on new facilities since it was built. The Capitan triple chair lift, with a capacity of 1,800 skiers per hour, is the newest addition. The resort also has some excellent snow equipment to keep the area in shape.

There are over 30 miles of trails around the resort and they are constantly being maintained to insure safe and quality skiing.

One of the interesting programs going on at Sierra Blanca is a winter Junior Ski Racers club for youths eight to 18 years old.

The racers club, which has been operating for several years, is composed of junior skiers from the Ruidoso area. The local skiers compete against other ski teams nation-wide. They belong to the Rocky Mountain Division and have most of their meets in Colorado at such places as famous ski spots Vail and Aspen.

League competition generally begins in early January and continues through March. Some advanced skiers may compete in individual competition in early December.

There is also a junior division of the racers called "Hot Tots." This is a beginning skiing program for tots two to five years of age.

A handicapped skiers' program is also run at the resort. These people are taught how to ski no matter what their handicap.

Sierra Blanca generally receives about 175 to 200 inches of snow each winter season, rivalling that of the mountains around Santa Fe and Taos.

A second ski resort, Eagle Creek Ski and Recreation Area, is located off Highway 37 about six miles from downtown Ruidoso, on highway 532.

Ruidoso has some excellent ski rental shops which provide skiers with equipment and clothing. At least 20 of these stores are located in the Ruidoso-Alto area.

Enjoy yourself having a fun night on the town

One of your most memorable recollections of spending time in Ruidoso could well be a night on the town.

There are, as you can easily discover, the friendly neighborhood taverns that offer pleasure back home, there are the comfortable lounges where you can enjoy a relaxing atmosphere, and there are the night clubs where you can enjoy every conceivable libation, prepared with expertise.

For an adventuresome evening, pop into one of the taverns — here you'll encounter the friendly natives, pausing for a moment's relaxation after completing the arduous labors of the day. Spotting the native is simple — they don't look like tourists.

The natives are a gregarious lot, they'll willingly talk about living in Ruidoso, and may tend to tell you some mighty tall tales — which you can take with or without a grain of salt.

It is in the taverns where you'll possibly encounter some very interesting characters and you might even get in on some of the action and fun that occurs. As a visitor all you have to do is sit back and enjoy whatever transpires — remembering life here is leisurely and carefree, especially as the cool of the evening begins to permeate "Harmony Valley," as Ruidoso is referred to by the natives.

Next on the list of stops would be one of the lounges, which tend to be a little more comfortable than the taverns, maybe a little more quiet — but still, during the early evening, peopled with the omnipresent natives, all gregarious, all friendly, all helpful.

In the taverns you'll find expert bartenders, and friendly people waiting on you, offering excellent service. There may be music, some quiet, some loud, but all good. These are places where you can relax, chat quietly with your own party, or casually mix with the natives. Such a visit will give you many pleasant memories to recall, once you're back home.

Then there are the night clubs, where every amenity is at your beck and call. Here it's necessary to bring money, because relaxing in them isn't exactly the way to conserve your resources.

However, it is in the night clubs where the quality of gracious living that has attracted so many people here becomes readily apparent. Here, too, you'll encounter the friendly natives, though they may tend to be a little more reserved than those in the taverns and lounges.

Should you wish to inquire a little more into what life is like in Ruidoso, however, don't hesitate to ask those folks you'll see, because you can always tell the natives — and you'll find them willing to talk with you, to answer your questions and help you in any way possible.

The choice of night clubs varies from those where quiet is the order of the day, where you can sit in comfort and relax, where you can have that feeling that those serving you are available solely for your pleasure, to those where there's entertainment and lots of action.

Music offered in the night clubs varies from singles to groups, playing every type of music, some quiet and conducive to pleasant conversation, some suitable for dancing, but all performed by the finest entertainers. Some feature piano bars, with Dixieland, jazz and old favorites belted out by the piano player — offering you the opportunity to sing along, if the spirit (or spirits) move you.

From the finest champagne and cognac, to frozen concoctions of every description, to martinis that'll leave you breathless, to exotic beverages from foreign lands, every thirst can be satisfied, every thirst quenched.

Don't be deceived into thinking that this little mountain village is in the boondocks — there's a quality of life here that will surprise you.

And one of the best ways to ascertain why living in Ruidoso is an experience, is to spend a night on the town — it'll be most rewarding.

Happy pub crawling!

Hunters, you're in the heart of nimrod country

Ruidoso and the surrounding area offers some of the best hunting in New Mexico.

Big game such as elk, black bear and deer are readily available to hunters in the area. In many cases the seasons are just starting or about to start.

Elk, without question one of the most prized big game animals in New Mexico, becomes fair game for hunters in the Ruidoso area from October 8 to October 12. These huge animals, sometimes weighing over 1,000 pounds, are one of the most sought after big game animals on the North American continent. One bull is the bag limit in the Ruidoso area.

Black bear, which average about 175 to 200 pounds apiece, can be hunted in the area from November 20 to November 22 and November 27 to December 3. There is a one bear limit, except for any female accompanied by a cub or cubs, and except any cub less than a year old.

Dogs may be used in hunting bear, except during open season for elk, bighorn sheep or turkey. Also dogs may be used for hunting bear during deer and turkey seasons open for hunting only with muzzle loader or bow. However, dogs may not be used for hunting bear in any other open deer season.

There are different seasons for bow and muzzle loading hunting of deer, bear and turkey.

Limits for bow hunting season are one deer of either sex, one turkey or one bear. There are bow hunts in September and January in the Ruidoso area.

Muzzle loading season for deer, turkey and bear in the Ruidoso area is from September 19-27.

Other kinds of big game that can be hunted around Ruidoso and Lincoln County are cougar, antelope and furbearers, such as coyotes and bobcats.

Despite the abundance of game around Ruidoso, not all the land area is available for hunters.

Some of the land is privately owned. Landowners do not have to allow hunters access across their lands to public lands unless the road crossing their land is a public road.

There are also some rules and guidelines for hunters.

— Do not use a motor vehicle to chase game.

— Do not use any live animals as blinds or decoys in taking or trying to take game animals or game birds.

— Do not use tracer ammunition in taking or trying to take game animals or game birds.

— Do not use vehicles on any roads posted as closed to vehicular traffic. Watch for posted signs and consult the Game Department if you are unsure about the stability of a road.

There are countless other rules which hunters must learn to obey in order to hunt legally.

There are a good number of birds and animals that are protected by state law in New Mexico.

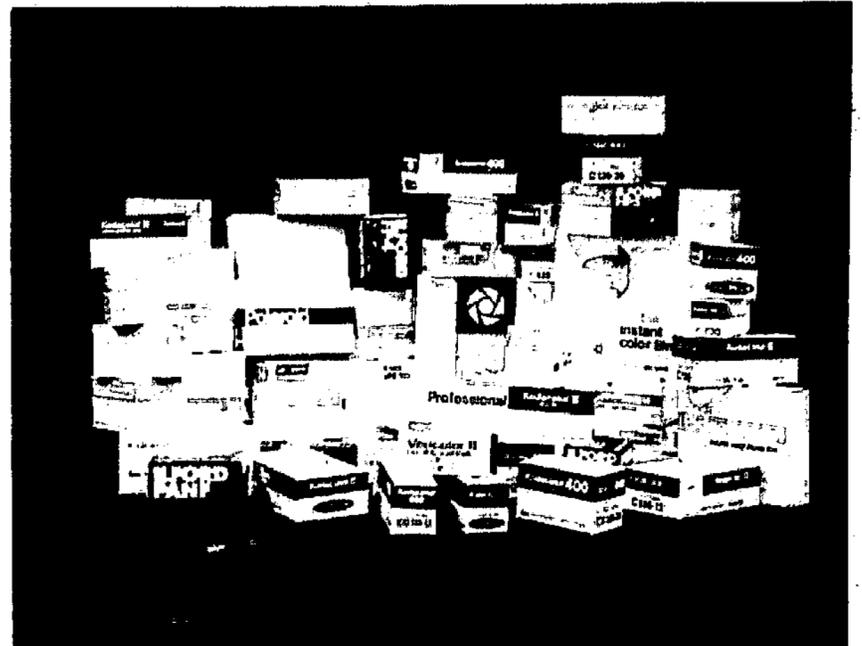

They include wolves, white-sided jackrabbits, martins, prairie dogs, river otters, bald eagles, various types of falcons, whooping crane, Mississippi Kite and Gila and red-headed woodpeckers.

Some of the above animals are also protected by federal endangered species laws and there are heavy fines for killing them.

Hunting involves perhaps more responsibility than any other outdoors activity in the Ruidoso area. Hunters must realize that their guns or bows are dangerous weapons and must be handled accordingly. This is particularly true in the Ruidoso-Lincoln County area since it is a resort community and there are lots of other outdoorspersons interested in activities other than hunting.

Hunters can obtain hunting licenses for specific game from over 300 vendors in New Mexico. The costs of the licenses are considerably more for nonresidents than state residents.

Ruidoso's in the heart of shutterbug country

Tis Aspencade time in Ruidoso. That means, in addition to the flurry of activities extending into mid October, that the countryside is aflame with fall colors — the Aspens are turning golden, the maples are resplendent in their many hues, the last of the wild flowers are adding their glorious colors to the overall picture of beauty that abounds in the Ruidoso area at the onset of autumn.

This translates into: you're in a shutterbug's paradise!

The thing to do, to provide a lasting record of the beauties of nature abounding here, is to grab your camera and hit for the hills, or the desert, or the rivers and lakes — and snap wondrous nature in full color to your heart's content.

The camera you use — from point and shoot, to fully automatic, to the most sophisticated gear — is your choice, as all will suffice to record the beauty of autumn in the Sacramento Mountains and in this area.

One glorious opportunity to practice up on your photographic skills is to drive up State Highway 532, called "Ski Run Road" by the locals. On this 12 mile stretch of newly paved highway, even without parking in one of the very few places where parking is permitted, to stroll off into the woods, opportunities for breath taking photographs abound.

It is on Ski Run Road you'll encounter the glorious aspens, and, if you keep a sharp lookout, or inquire of the operators of photo shops, you'll be able to revel in the beauty of the colorful maples.

Then, too, on this stretch of highway, you'll encounter some of the best scenic views in New Mexico. The drive, alone, is certain to be one of the most memorable experiences visitors to Ruidoso during Aspencade will savor, as they recall the pleasures associated with lingering here for a few days.

Along most any road you choose to travel, you'll find an abundance of wild flowers, some within arm's reach from your car, some requiring walking into the woods. And it is getting off the beaten path that the best opportunities to capture nature's resplendent colors exist.

In your quest for colorful pictures, don't pass up strolling along the Rio Ruidoso, Eagle Creek, Carrizo Creek, or the Rio Hondo and Rio Bonito. These gurgling, surging waters, more rivulets than rivers, will test the imagination and mettle of the photographer — resulting in memorable pictures with which to regale your friends back home.

For sensational color, at a minimum of effort, a drive down highway 70, through the Hondo Valley, will produce picture opportunities to please the most demanding photographer, let alone the shutterbug who wants mementoes of a sojourn in this, the most enchanting part of the Land of Enchantment.

Don't pass up the opportunities for taking outstanding black and white pictures. Travel over the Mule halter classes and a mule jump-off are again slated for the three-day event this year, Lewis said. The committee had heard that mules can jump higher than horses. "They didn't quite make it last year. But it's fun."

The activities should begin about 7:30 each morning and wind down about 6 each evening, Lewis said. There is no admission charge.

YOUR

Touring Ruidoso is a very rewarding experience

To fully appreciate Ruidoso, while you're here enjoying Aspencade, take the time for a leisurely drive through the residential areas — visualizing, if you will, that building permits from January through August of 1981 are pegged in excess of $13.5 million, and that's based on an estimated construction cost of $20 per square foot — for which you'd be hard pressed to build a suitable dog house.

Your first step, prior to embarking on your exploratory drive through our mountain village, should be the Chamber of Commerce. The staff members will advise you of the various areas to drive through, and, if you have some special interest, architecturally or developmentally in mind, they can direct you.

A village map might be available at the Chamber — with the major problem with maps being, keeping up on the demand. However, even without a map, you can easily tour Ruidoso.

There is just one thing to keep in mind, being as it's relatively easy to become temporarily lost in the higher reaches of the village, is by driving down hill you'll eventually reach Highway 37 or 70, and be back on familiar terrain.

Drives through the Upper

Canyon, Black Forest, and into any of the subdivisions and residential developments will be very rewarding.

The quality of life apparent, will amaze you. You'll see homes ranging up towards the $1 million mark, and, in secluded areas, along the Rio Ruidoso, rustic cabins that the owners occupy during the summer to find surcease from the extreme temperatures encountered in Texas and Oklahoma.

All that's necessary is to take any road leading off Highway 70 or 37, and keep going. Any of these roads will take you into the mountains, and over curving and hilly stretches, with new scenic splendor abounding around every curve and over every rise.

As you make your progress, you can enjoy the diversified scenery that is the strong point of every residential development. Don't be afraid to wander off the beaten paths, because it is in the secluded reaches of the outlying developments that there's a quiet beauty — where the sense of living far from the hustle and bustle of the workaday world is readily apparent.

From the humblest of cabins, to homes of fabulous splendor, almost every conceivable type of architecture exists here. It's a mind boggling experience, touring Ruidoso's residential areas.

Take note, as you drive, of the recreational opportunities that are available — tennis courts, golf courses, parks, picnic areas — these are not readily apparent to the casual observer, but they're here, and they are all excellent facilities.

Ruidoso is one of the fastest, if not the fastest, growing recreational areas in New Mexico. This is due in part to the climate, in part to the recreation, in part to the horse races and the skiing, and in far greater measure, to the freedom to enjoy leisurely living. Not that Ruidoso is the land of "manana," but the pace here is considered leisurely — which is why living here is so attractive.

Do take the time to take a drive through our mountain village, enjoy the scenery, appreciate the locale, and, after you've viewed the area to your heart's content, you'll have a better understanding as to why so many people choose to live in Ruidoso.

Area fishing's great for tackle busting lunkers

If you want to get in on the best fishing in the Ruidoso area you don't have much time left to do so.

Although there are several good fishing areas around Ruidoso, Bonito Lake is probably the best all around. However the season ends at Bonito Lake November 30 and won't begin again until April 1 of next year.

Still, if you can make it out to the lake before the season ends you'll have a good chance of catching something.

"Bonito Lake is the best area, both in terms of the size of the fish and sheer numbers," said T. L. Wilson, owner of T. L. Wilson's Sporting Goods, "both for Rainbow trout and Cutthroats."

Rainbow trout are the most common fish you'll find at Bonito and the other fishing spots in the area. However, some brook and brown trout are also caught at Bonito Lake. The rainbows are stocked as they are in most of the other fishing spots.

Bonito Lake, located off Highway 37 15 miles from Ruidoso, is open from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m., each day. Apparently some bass have been caught in the lake but that's very rare.

"I've heard of people catching bass," Wilson said. "Friends of mine say they've caught some and the rangers say yes, but I've never seen them."

Crowds can get very large at Bonito so the best time to go fishing there is on a weekday.

Other top fishing spots in the Ruidoso area are Alto Lake, Rio Ruidoso, the Inn of the Mountain Gods Lake and Rainbow Lake.

Alto Lake is just three miles from Ruidoso on Highway 37. Like Bonito, it's open from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. The portion within 600 feet of the outlet, as posted, is closed to fishing.

However, some excellent trout, particularly Rainbow, can be caught at Alto. Some people say bass can also be taken.

The Rio Ruidoso River offers stocked Rainbow trout, Brooks and Brownies. The river flows through town and is easily reached.

Bonito Lake, Alto Lake and the Rio Ruidoso all require state fishing licenses but Rainbow Lake and the Inn of the Mountain Gods do not.

Rainbow Lake is located on Carrizo Creek Road on the way to the Inn of the Mountain Gods. It's stocked and catching fish there is almost a sure thing. Equipment is provided and you must pay 20 cents an inch for each fish you catch.

In order to fish at the Inn of the Mountain Gods you must get a tribal permit at the Inn or in Mescalero. Eagle Nest Lake, also located on the Mescalero Reservation, is open from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. The portion of the lake within 300 feet of the dam is closed to entry. Rainbows are the main type of trout caught at Eagle Nest Lake and the Inn of the Mountain Gods.

For licensed fishermen the trout and salmon daily bag limit is 16. However the daily bag may not include more than eight Rainbow, Cutthroat or salmon, singly or in the aggregate of the three.

The possession limit is 32 trout but it may not include more than 16 Rainbow, Cutthroat or salmon.

For unlicensed fishermen under the age of 12, daily bag and possession limits are one half of the limits permitted licensed fishermen.

Salmon eggs, worms and lures are among the best types of bait a fisherman can use for fishing in Ruidoso area waters. However, fishing with live bait is against New Mexico state law.

Fishing licenses are available at several locations in the Ruidoso area.

Dining in Ruidoso can be a memorable pleasure

When it comes to dining, you're in a gourmet's paradise.

That's right, Ruidoso and area offers the greatest diversification of palate pleasing comestibles you'll come a cropper of anywhere, any time.

As you drive through the village, you'll notice the fast food eateries, the cafes and the speciality food houses — with the difference being, here, you'll encounter a friendliness from the operators and employees that you'll be hard preseed to match in other locales.

One of the main differences in food served here is that those preparing it have one goal — to please the customer. They want you to enjoy excellent food and service, so that you'll want to come back again and again, sampling the gamut of offerings available.

From a quick snack, to a meal for the family there isn't a taste choice that can't be satisfied in the local eateries.

But when it comes to leisurely dining — a whole new world of opportunities await adventuresome people.

Locating these outstanding dining establishments takes a bit of inquiry. The Chamber of Commerce is a good place to make your dining desires known — the pleasant folks there'll direct you, so that you'll have a memorable dinner.

Don't overlook chatting with the natives — you'll encounter them in the various spas. And you can't miss the natives — they look as though they're at home, and usually act like it. And the natives know where the gourmet meals are served — and will only be too happy to be of assistance. And the natives are, assuredly, most friendly.

Be forewarned, at the posh eateries money is necessary. Dinner for two will assuredly result in a tab beginning in the $20 range, or thereabouts, and from that point the bill goes up.

What's your choice? Steak? Lobster? Shrimp? Prime rib? Quail? Frog legs? You name it, you can get it — get it the way you want it.

These plush eateries offer an outstanding bar, wine lists that'll please you, and atmosphere ranging from gregarious to virtual solitude. Most offer excellent music and dancing. But all feature the finest, most unobtrusive service available anywhere.

There are two kinds of excellent eateries, those open to the public and the clubs. The clubs offer guest privileges — and if you've had experience with obtaining guest privileges, do avail yourselves of these privileges — and enjoy.

The decor of the finest eateries ranges from fantastic to fabulous. Some have beautiful fireplaces, some soft lighting, but all are decorated so as to enhance a delightful, leisurely, evening of dining.

From aperitif through post-prandial libation, you can devote as much time to dining as you desire — and enjoy the feeling that'll encompass you that you, and your party, are the only ones being served. That's the kind of service that is yours to command in Ruidoso and area.

While the right hand side of the bill of fare listings is illuminating, this shouldn't be your prime concern if you're bound for an evening of dining pleasure. Some of the prices, especially those stating in effect "Inquire," could be considered as bordering on expensive — until, that is, you're served and dig in to the repast. Then, if you savor outstanding cuisine, you'll be most appreciative.

Here, perhaps more than elsewhere, you'll find "House Specialty," as a regular notation. These offerings can range from chicken to seafood, but they are well worthy of your consideration — because they'll be a taste sensation.

Gustatory pleasures await your command — do avail yourselves of the opportunity to enjoy the finest cuisine offered anywhere, right here in the local eateries.

Not that broiled whale blubber, or stuffed grape leaves will be found in abundance — but that's being worked on.

Don't miss out on Aspencade's motorcycle action

Aspencade Motorcyclist Convention organizer Til Thompson has announced that pre registration for the September 30 October 4 event, headquartered at the Chaparral Motor Hotel, Ruidoso Downs, exceeds 2,000.

Thompson said the schedule for the convention includes:

SEPTEMBER 30

Registration. Convention get together. Games and field events. Trade Show, open to convention delegates only.

OCTOBER 1

Seminars and demonstrations for delegates. Tour to Hondo High School for a Mexican Fiesta at noon. Seminars continue through the afternoon. Games. Mini-dinner tour to Cousins'. Trade show for delegates only.

OCTOBER 2

Seminars continue. Economy run, sponsored by Harley Davidson as a Muscular Dystrophy benefit, with route to be announced. Crowning of Aspencade Motorcyclist Convention Queen and results of judging events. Games. Trade show open to public starting at 6 p.m. in Convention Center. There will be a 40x90 foot tent in front of the Convention Center, housing 20 exhibitors.

OCTOBER 3

Motorcycle parade, prior to Aspencade street parade. Demonstrations by the Victor McLaglen Motor Corps, a precision drill team from California performing at selected points on the parade route, between the motorcycles and the street parade. Hill climbing beginning at 12 noon at Eagle Creek Ski and Recreation Area, continuing through the afternoon. Superbike Grand Prix finals. Awarding of door prizes. Trade show open to the public beginning at 6 p.m.

OCTOBER 4

Adios Amigos breakfast.

New this year is the Superbike Grand Prix, of which Thompson said, "This is the first annual Superbike Grand Prix and possibly the last."

The Superbikes, small machines with oversized tires, will be performing in trials Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, with the finals Saturday. First, second and third prizes include a pair of Goodyear tires, a trophy and helmet from Bell Helmet Corporation and a case of oil from Bel-Ray Company, Thompson said.

The Aspencade Climb, up 900 foot Boot Hill at Eagle Creek Ski and Recreation Area, is a first for the motorcycle convention.

"If successful," Thompson said, "I hope to make this climb an annual event."

The stock classes include up to 250 cc and 251 cc to 372 cc.

In modified classes, for semi pro, the classes are 373 cc to 500 cc, 501 cc to 740 cc and 751 cc to open. Cash prizes in this event will be $500 in each class, divided 50, 30 and 20 percent.

Admission to the hill climb is $3 per person, with children under five years old admitted free.

Thompson said there will be a $5 daily spectator fee charged for all events in the parking lot at the Chaparral.

THE SUPERBIKE GRAND PRIX, Saturday at the Chaparral Motor Hotel in Ruidoso Downs, will pit elimination trial winners in a final race, with prizes for first, second and third. "This will be our first, and probably our last, Superbike race," said Til Thompson, organizer of the Aspencade Motorcycle Convention, "though you never can tell, as all proceeds will be given to Muscular Dystrophy."
