Street problems studied

A meeting between state highway officials and Ruidoso village officials Thursday opened the lines of communication between the two concerning specific traffic and highway problems Ruidoso is experiencing.

As a starting point in discussing the problems, Frank Potter, village administrative assistant, suggested the state update the 1976 traffic study of Ruidoso. The study is based on traffic counts and computer statistics.

"We're to the point now that we're going to have to synchronize our traffic lights," Potter said. He added that there are many intersections on Sudderth where people can't get onto the street because of high volumes of traffic.

Tony Gonzales, chief of the planning bureau for the state highway department, said if more traffic signals are requested by Ruidoso, the study is needed to justify installing them.

"An area needs to meet certain warrants requirements before a signal can be put in. We need to know the traffic flows," Gonzales said.

Gonzales said the department will update the study, however he wasn't able to specify a time it would be finished, because traffic counts will have to be taken in both summer peak traffic season and during the ski season to get an accurate reading of traffic flow.

"Is there any relief possible until then?" asked John Schuller, a member of Ruidoso's Planning and Zoning Committee.

"You're building a good case for the bypass proposal," said Worth Smelser, District II Highway Engineer from Roswell.

The proposed bypass would originate in the Hollywood area of Highway 70, east of the 'Y' at the Highway 37/Highway 70 intersection in Ruidoso, to connect with Gavilan Canyon Road, creating an alternate route around Ruidoso.

Suggestions in funding this plan include a co-op idea, placing Gavilan Canyon Road under jurisdiction of the state rather than the county, as it is now. In return, the county would take over maintenance of a to be specified state highway.

"We'll participate in a co-op agreement," Gonzales said. "We prefer you hire a consultant to do the design, first. I think we can make it eligible under one project or another."

Potter asked if right-of-way can be relaxed, as that is one problem Ruidoso confronts in the alternate route proposal.

"Design should dictate right-of-way, not vice versa," Smelser said.

"We'll work with you any way we can on this," said Gonzales.

"The bypass would help, but it wouldn't help the downtown situation," said Sherman Atwood, village trustee.

Laurie Durham, village clerk, expressed concern for pedestrians in midtown. "There's no way to get from one side of Sudderth to the other without taking your life in your hands," she said. Durham added that the present lights on Sudderth don't help alleviate the problem by spacing out traffic, because they are so far apart.

In a report dispatched from Chief of Police Richard Swenor, several items were listed as traffic problems on Highway 37, including:

— The intersection of Highway 37 (Mechem Drive) and Alpine Village Road and University Drive (Forest Heights). A "four-way intersection" or "dangerous intersection" sign is requested because of increased traffic at that location from rapid residential growth in the area.

— The intersection of Highway 37 (Mechem Drive) and White Mountain Drive. Request for a full four-way intersection with turn lanes and a traffic light. Swenor cited rapid commercial and residential growth in that area as the reason for the request. He also stated it is a major artery for school buses to and from White Mountain Elementary and Mid-Schools, and this traffic is expected to increase considerably with the building of a new high school near the other two schools.

— Approximately one quarter mile section of Highway 37, near Mile Marker Six, south of the White Mountain Drive intersection, known locally as "Dead Man's Curve." Swenor suggested the area be redesigned, that the curve be straightened out and the roadway banked, with the needs based on statistics of past accidents and fatalities.

— Request for a detailed survey of the entire length of Highway 37 within the village limits, regarding speed limit signs or zones, various traffic warning signs and road markings.

— Call for "no parking" zones at several intersections within the Ruidoso midtown business district because of poor visibility and access by emergency vehicles. Most specifically listed are the intersections of Sudderth and Center Street, and Sudderth and Juanita Avenue.

Recommended survey for another traffic light intersection along Sudderth Drive.

Several suggestions in alleviating the midtown problems were offered by various people attending the meeting. One such suggestion was to place some four-way stops along Sudderth. However, this was considered hazardous by some of the audience because there would be no regulation of traffic and it could cause worse traffic congestion.

Atwood suggested Ruidoso look at providing a second street to carry traffic through the midtown area, making Sudderth one way and the other street also one way. Streets suggested for this include Wingfield Drive and Zuni Drive.

Also discussed at the meeting was the possibility of Ruidoso purchasing a striping unit on a co-op agreement basis with the state. The unit would be used in re-striping Sudderth Drive because of weather conditions and traffic, the markings are not visible a couple of months after application.

"Raised markers are a possibility for marking lanes," Smelser said. However, it was pointed out that raised markers on Sudderth would make snow removal difficult.

The present recessed markers are difficult to see and "gather crud" ac-ording to Gonzales.

"I'll certainly take this (information) back with me to the district. We'll prepare a document and get it into the general office," Smelser said. "I don't see all the problems being solved immediately. The solutions may be five to 10 years away."

Potter was asked after the meeting if he felt it had been a productive step toward solving Ruidoso's traffic problems.

"I was really happy with it," he said. "They understand the problems down here."

Potter stated that viable solutions to the problems can be implemented. "If everybody works hard — Ruidoso, Ruidoso Downs, and Lincoln County." He stressed the need for close cooperation between the three entities.

Among those present at the meeting were Charlie Lee, state senator; John Allen Hightower and Ben Hall, both county commissioners; Norman Wheeler, Ruidoso Downs mayor; and Sherman Atwood, Ruidoso Trustee.

DEAD MAN'S CURVE — This quarter mile stretch of Highway 37 (Mechem Drive) just south of the intersection with White Mountain Drive has claimed one life in 1981 and others in years past. Realignment of the curve was discussed at last week's meeting on traffic problems.

News erred in reporting hunters fined

The Ruidoso News, in the October 19 issue, erroneously reported that three local men, Wayne Rupe and Scot Chapman of Ruidoso, and Ken Beasley, Alto, were fined $200 in District Court, Alamogordo, on charges of illegally hunting elk on the Mescalero Apache Reservation.

The editor made the mistake in interpreting information from Mescalero tribal chairman Wendell Chino, in which "violation notices" were submitted, with the notation "fine" $200 in the corner.

The trio received notices of court action this morning.

The News apologizes for this mistake.

County commissioners meet Tuesday

Lincoln County commissioners will meet Tuesday at 10 a.m., in the commissioner's chambers at the county courthouse in Carrizozo.

Some of the major agenda items include:

— Public hearing highlighting adverse opinions concerning Deer Park Meadows and Gavilan subdivisions.

— Selection of road projects for 1982-1983 fiscal year in relation to the State Highway Department Cooperative Agreement Program.

Carrizozo still not on SBAC board

A brief meeting of the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission Thursday served to verify that all communities involved in accepting Carrizozo's membership on the board had officially indicated so, except for the Mescalero Apache Indian Tribe.

Lincoln County, Capitan and Ruidoso Downs were the first to accept the application while Ruidoso first rejected, then finally approved the membership. The tribe will act on the application, soon, according to Wyndham Runningwater, the tribe's representative on the commission.

As commission chairman Fred Heckman was unable to attend the meeting, further business was postponed until the next meeting, December 3 at 2 p.m., in the Ruidoso Downs Municipal Hall.

Village offices will be closed November 11

All of the village's business offices will be closed Wednesday, for the Veteran's Day holiday, village manager Jim Hine said Friday.

Ruidoso Downs offices, village clerk Virginia Spall said, will be open for business.

Local banks and government offices will also be closed Wednesday.

Wednesday Coffee Cart

The Wednesday Coffee Cart, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce so the public can meet Chamber officers and directors, will be from 9-10:30 a.m., at:

ROADRUNNER Christmas Annex

Villages' trustees to meet

The Ruidoso Downs trustees will meet tonight at 7 in the Municipal Hall. Agenda items include:

— Ordinance 81-7 concerning the Continental Telephone franchise agreement renewal.

— Discussion on a mobile home proposal.

Liquor licenses will be one topic of discussion at the regular meeting of the Ruidoso trustees, at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday at the Village Administrative Center.

The trustees will conduct a final hearing on proposed ordinance 81-23, setting the yearly fee for a restaurant beer and wine license at $300. Presentation of a petition calling for a referendum on the transfer of liquor licenses into the village from outside Ruidoso is also scheduled.

Other agenda items include:

— A report from village manager Jim Hine on change in a Farmers Home Administration loan policy, raising interest to 12 and one-fourth percent on a proposed loan for the Ponderosa Heights sewer project.

— Report on a cooperative agreement with the state Highway Department to provide salt for snow removal.

— Report on delivery of general purpose bonds.

— Recommendation on Courson Corporation claim of $7,864 owed on auditorium seats for Village Administrative Center.

— Joint agreement with Ruidoso Downs on building permits and inspections.

— Report from architect John Moore on remodeling of police building.

— Request from Ruidoso Downs to place radio antenna on water tank in Camelot.

— Planning and Zoning recommendations of replat of Lot 79, Block B in Sleepy Hollow for Laverne Walkup and amendment of final plat of Granite Place Condominiums for A. D. Bell.

Madrigal Feast ticket sale to start Thursday

A limited number of tickets will go on sale at the Public Library Thursday, for the two performances of Ruidoso's annual Renaissance style festivity—the Madrigal Feast.

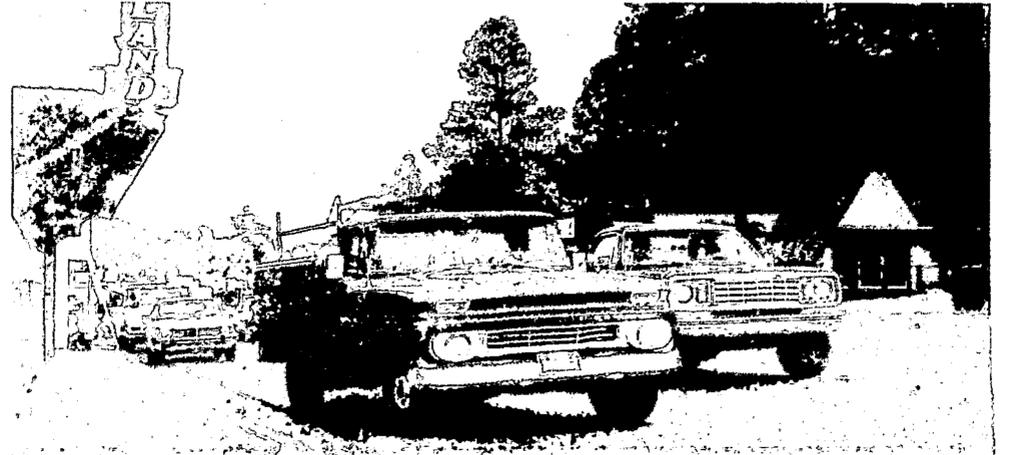

This year's Library sponsored production, scheduled for December 8 and 9, 7 p.m., at the Inn of the Mountain Gods, is under the direction of Carla Grover. Proceeds will go to the Library.

Twelve madrigal singers and a mummery players' cast will entertain in the round for 175 ticketholders on Wine and Wassail Night, Tuesday evening, December 8, Grover said. The cost for opening night tickets is $10, she said.

Feast Night, December 9, the same number of tickets will be sold, and the entertainment will be the same, Grover said. But a buffet dinner, or "feast," including three whole, roasted, decorated pigs; whole broiled legs of lamb; assorted tarts and plum pudding will be included in the $30 per person cost of tickets for the second performance. Seating for the dinner will be on a first come, first serve basis, Grover said. "So it is important to be on time," she added.

Other members of the production staff are Mary Watts, costumes; Donna Bruss, menus and scrolls; and Connie Harris, makeup.

YOU TAKE YOUR CHANCES pulling onto Sudderth Drive from Juanita Avenue when vehicles parked to the corner reduce visibility greatly. The same situation exists at Sudderth and Center Street. The police department has recommended "No Parking" zones to reduce the problem. Juanita is especially troublesome because it is the main exit from the downtown fire station.

A STEEP GRADE on the north and low visibility from side roads make this intersection of Highway 37 with Alpine Village Road and University Drive hazardous.

Three groups taking Altrusa's CPR course

BY BILLIE LARSON Staff Writer/Photographer

Altrusa Club of Ruidoso may well be on their way to achieving their goal of certifying 10 percent of Lincoln County's population as Cardio-Pulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) qualified. That means a lot of people in the county, if the need arises, could save a life.

Several Altrusa sponsored Red Cross CPR training classes are being conducted in the Ruidoso area at this time. Twelve Ruidoso Christian School students are being taught CPR training by Kathy Barnett and Donna Willard. Jeanie Whitman, Yvonne Lanelli and Geri Collins are teaching the course to 10 Troop 107 Boy Scouts at Ruidoso High School. And Yvonne Lanelli and Wilma Sandoval are teaching a class of adults at the Bonito Fire Department at Alto.

More classes are planned after the first of the year, Collins said, for 250 Ruidoso High School students and also for employees of Continental Telephone Company.

STUDENT HIKERS GET SOME final instructions from White Mountain Mid-School science teacher Frank Canella, far right, before setting out on the trail.

REMOVING THE CORE of a tree is one step in determining the tree's age. Lance Willard, White Mountain Mid-school student holds the bore steady as science instructor Frank Canella with draws the cross section of wood.

A MOUNTAIN MEADOW at about 10,000 feet elevation, can be fun to help loosen up tired muscles and backs after four miles of carrying 35 pound back packs, as these White Mountain sixth graders discovered.

USING ALL OF HER strength, Cathy Harrison, sixth grader, finds boring into a tree is not all that easy. Frank Canella, organizer of the camping trip, supervises in the background.

LOADED UP AND ON THE ROAD describes these back packers as they start out on a trip into the wilderness. Some signs of civilization still remain, however, such as the telephone pole to the right.

Reporter learns mountain climbing is a very strenuous undertaking

BY JEAN PATTERSON
Staff Writer/Photographer

It was a little chilly, but the morning sun was beginning to thaw the land. As we piled out of the van and cars, our cramped bones stretched and loosened themselves up in preparation for the loads we knew we'd have to be soon carrying on our trek up the mountain.

Fourteen sixth graders from White Mountain Middle School were ready and prepared for a hiking/backpacking trip on Buck Mountain under the direction and supervision of Frank Canella, science teacher at the mid-school. Andy Hale, father of one of the students and Hot Shot foreman with the United States Forestry Service, acted as assistant to Canella while I tagged along to learn.

At 10:30 a.m., at the origin of our hike, the hikers were eager to wriggle into their back packs (loaded down with clothes, food, sleeping bag and tent) but managed to stand still long enough to listen to some directions from Canella.

One rule Canella emphasized was to respect nature. This meant leaving no litter behind and no violating of trees or plants in the forest. He reiterated the motto of "take nothing with you, leave nothing behind."

The first quarter mile seemed fairly easy. We tramped along a slight incline, open to the elements, at about 10,000 feet. While everyone trooped right along for the first stretch, no one complained about the first stop we made.

After we shed our packs in relief, we found out we were going to climb up a nearly perpendicular hill for a look at a remnant of the Mogollon Indian civilization. On this windy peak were piles of rocks that, when studied, reveal the direction of both the winter and summer solstices, which the Indians used in determining what time of year to plant and what time of the year they needed to harvest.

With a grandiose view of the valley stretched below us and the sun shining on the brown grasses, turning them to gold, Canella talked about the endurance of the site and how important it is to leave what has been undisturbed for 2,000 years.

This provided the perfect opportunity for Canella to emphasize to the students their fortune in living in such a scenically beautiful area.

"There are a lot of people who have to drive 10 or 12 hours before they can get to a place like this, and you live right in it," Canella said.

By this time, we decided we'd had enough of this windy beauty and headed back to our resting point to enjoy the beauty while eating lunch. Everyone did their share in preparing the meal of hot dogs, cheetos, apples, raisins and candy bars. Left over candy bars came in handy later for bribes.

Once again, it was time to sling on the packs, this time with a few groans here and there. The outdoor classroom seemed to be taking its effect as the group relaxed, joked around. Enthusiasm was high with every new tree or plant discovered. The sight of a hawk, poised motionless in the bright sunlit sky, as it waited for another wind swell, stopped everyone in their tracks and, for a moment, all were silent.

The sight of the first cork bark tree brought shouts of discovery from one of the students, as Canella had promised a candy bar to the first person to identify the tree.

As the afternoon wore on, some of our group began to wear out. For part of our hike, we used a Lincoln Forest service road and when a pickup truck strained up the incline, the group couldn't beg enough for a ride to the next point. The friendly driver said, "pile on," and drove them about 1,000 feet to the next trail marker. "They probably wasted more energy climbing in and out of the truck than if they had just walked it," Canella said.

The climbing got steeper, some of the group got more tired, but the camaraderie got a little stronger. Hunts for Douglas Fir trees and cones as well as aspen trees and other plants kept the group scrambling around in the undergrowth in an effort to claim the candy bar prize.

As the hiking continued, the group became more stretched out until the stragglers (like me) ended up pretty far behind the leaders. Stopping to check out patches of snow did nothing to help us increase our pace, either.

When we finally regrouped, it was at the crest of the mountain in an open meadow, with an unspooled view in each direction. Though the wind was intense, its wildness fit the scenery and the feeling of our group.

Some of the braver guys tried rolling down the hill, but decided if they couldn't stop, it might be a long trip to the bottom of the canyon.

So on with the packs again and the hike. Another half hour took us through a couple of groves of naked aspens to a protected area, complete with a "natural" fireplace. Here the brave hikers chose to set up camp. What followed was a sight much like that of a busy ant colony, while each small group of students searched for the perfect spot in which to pitch their tents. While some of the group were obviously experienced in the art of pitching a tent; others obviously were not. But with help and cooperation from each other, the task was soon accomplished. The next task each person had assigned to them was looking for firewood. Again, Canella emphasized respecting nature and only dead limbs, laying on the ground, would be allowed for use for the fire.

By 4:30 p.m., the sun was already dipping out of sight and the fire was a welcome source of warmth. It wasn't long before nearly everyone was gathered around the make shift community kitchen.

Three group leaders, Canella and myself took off from the main group for a demonstration in how to gauge the age, growth rate and height of a tree. Using an increment bore, inserted into the middle of the tree, the students could then count the rings on the piece of wood removed to determine its age. A clinometer is then used to determine the growth rate of the tree. By comparing two trees of the same age and different heights, it can be determined that, because of shade or excessive sunshine, one tree was caused to grow faster.

Thursday's activities for the students included using those instruments in addition to building lean-tos out of available material.

Although the group spent a cold night under the stars, they all survived and made it back to school at 3 p.m., Thursday.

Perhaps all of us will slip back into the same routine of school and work soon, but for a couple of days, we could feel we were "one with nature" or at least visitors to different perspective of our surroundings.

EILEEN MONTES, left, and Mickey Silver, make some discoveries of their own on last week's hiking/camping trip, sponsored by Frank Canella's sixth-grade science class.

SETTING UP CAMP isn't as easy as it sounds. This tent was temporarily deserted by its frustrated owner, while Frank Canella, camping organizer, gives Mickey Silver some pointers in the background. Eileen Montes holds onto the tent stake as she finds out what the next step is.

A controlled two year study of CPR training for lay people, Collins said, was done in Seattle, Washington, in the late sixties, and at first was taught only in hospitals. It has been offered to the general public for only eight to ten years, she said.

CPR trainees learn things like the abdominal thrust for use in the blocked airway sequence for a conscious adult; or the back blows used in the blocked airway sequence for an unconscious adult, as well as the blocked airway sequence for an infant.

They learn one-person CPR and two-person CPR. They learn the artificial respiration sequence—15 compressions, two quick breaths and a check for pulse, for one-person CPR; and five compressions, one quick breath, check for pulse (five seconds in neck), and if no pulse, "continue CPR," in a two-person sequence.

Finally, after three or four training sessions, they must pass a test to be certified. And since methods change and new things are learned from one year to the next, they must be recertified in another year or so.

Certification means they may one day save someone's life. It has to be a good feeling.

Volunteers to register voters sought

Ruidosians for Voter Participation, according to member Terry Coe, are seeking volunteers to register voters in Ruidoso during December and January.

Interested persons, Coe said, must be certified by the Lincoln County clerk in Carrizozo.

Volunteers, Coe said, will be provided with transportation to become certified, by telephoning 257-6078.

Wilderness Wisdom with Wayne Calloway

Dear Wayne

I'd guess everyone has a pet peeve or two, and I'll admit to at least one myself. It might seem picky, or even rude, to force an opinion on someone who didn't ask for it. On the other hand, sometimes we develop a healthy intolerance for repeated improper use of the English language. Such a case is my number one pet peeve. Now, before anyone gets excited, I admit to rearranging the accepted rules of our language as often as the next fellow, but there is at least one case where I don't.

I would almost bet you have heard someone refer to "Canadian geese." These are supposed to be the ones that are a mixture of gray, black, and white, and frequently spend time in Canada's marshes and prairies. Canadian geese? No. They are Canada geese. They are neither a possession of that country, nor are they residents. When applied to wild fowl, the dictionary defines residents as those that do not migrate. Almost everyone knows geese are migratory.

A few days ago I was browsing in the sporting goods section of a department store when I happened upon goose decoys, still packed in the manufacturer's box. The label announced, "Canadian goose decoys." I believe this manufacturer is relatively new in the decoy business, but I was so taken back with their error that I wrote them a letter a day or so later. I only hope they accept it as it was intended, because it wasn't meant to be an insult. But it does, in my opinion, show some lack of professionalism.

Tip from reader—If you regularly hunt deer or waterfowl, you would do well to either buy or make a camouflage screen. They are available in netting, light canvas, or a plastic that has been shredded somewhat.

When deer hunting in a woods, poles won't be necessary. The net can be draped over limbs or saplings to provide an effective screen that you will be able to see through. You may want to cut small saplings to take on goose hunting trips so as to suspend it as an overhead cover. They work as well as much more expensive blinds.

The Celtic won the Ruidoso-Sertoma Soccer Association under-16 championship for the fourth year in a row when they topped the Strikers 2-1 at White Mountain Middle School Saturday afternoon.

Martin Rose and Jeff Slaton scored Celtic goals in the first half to give the winners a 2-0 advantage. The Strikers' goal was scored after that when the ball skimmed off the head of a Celtic defender into the goal net.

In the under-12 championship match the Scorpions finally edged the Warriors 2-1 in double overtime. Kirk Ryan scored both goals for the Scorpions while Dusty Skellett tallied the Warrior goal.

Under-eight action saw United win the championship with a 3-1 decision over the Cobras.

Silver City rally ends Ruidoso playoff hopes

Despite one of its better performances of the season the Ruidoso High School football team lost its chance for the state playoffs and the district title when visiting Silver City (SC) rallied to take a 21-14 victory Friday night.

As a result the Colts will go to the state playoffs as the 3-AAA district champion and Tularosa will be the second place team from the district. Both Ruidoso and Tularosa ended up with 3-2 marks in league play but the Wildcats beat the Warriors 13-0 in their game three weeks ago. The Warriors finished the season with an 8-2 record overall.

The score was tied 14-14 with less than four minutes remaining in the game and Ruidoso had the ball on the SC 40, fourth down and one yard to go. The Warriors tried a running play and apparently had the first down easily but the aggressive Colt defense forced a fumble and Silver City recovered.

The visitors then marched 60 yards for the winning score. Two running plays and a couple of sideline passes, one which gave Silver City a crucial first down, put the ball on the Warrior 35 with just over two minutes left.

Then came the play that ruined Ruidoso's playoff hopes.

Colt quarterback Joe Vasquez faded back and found Kenny Smith between two Ruidoso defenders at the 15. He caught the ball, swerved to his right and ran into the end zone for the winning touchdown. Jim Farley booted the extra point and the Colts had a 21-14 lead.

The Warriors tried to come back but a Scott Neal pass was intercepted with 30 seconds left and the visitors ran the clock off. Ruidoso started the game off like it was going to run away from the Colts.

After returning the opening kickoff to their own 40 the Warriors marched 60 yards in seven plays for the touchdown. Two runs for 11 yards from Lon Nunley helped bring the ball to the Silver City 30. From there Neal found Don Nunley on the right side at the one and he went in for the score. Lon Nunley then kicked the extra point and Ruidoso had a 7-0 advantage with 9:51 left in the opening period.

Another Warrior drive stalled late in the first quarter and Don Nunley narrowly missed a 40 yard field goal.

But that didn't stop the Warriors. Early in the second period the Warriors marched 69 yards in six plays to take a 14-0 advantage.

Neal connected with Lon Nunley and the fullback ran 20 yards down the sidelines to the Colt 47. Pete Garcia, who led the Ruidoso running attack with 71 yards in 16 carries, then sprinted for eight to the 39.

Three plays later the Warriors scored on a bit of trickery. Neal took the center snap at the 23 and pitched the ball to Garcia, who then ran to his left and completed a pass to Darin Smith in the end zone for the touchdown. Lon Nunley again kicked the conversion and Ruidoso took a 14-0 advantage with 9:29 remaining before halftime.

But then Silver City started to get its act together. The Colts drove 35 yards for their first touchdown after a blocked punt. Vasquez hit Steve Cummings over the middle for 23 yards and the score with five minutes remaining in the half.

Some aggressive defense by the Warriors, particularly Lon Nunley, Byron Wright, Dariush Rad and Ken Bradley, kept the Colt running game at bay in the third quarter.

However, Vasquez continued to hit accurately on short passes and Silver City was knocking on the door again midway through the third period. Sophomore running back George Peru ran up the middle for 12 yards for a touchdown and Farley kicked the extra point to tie the tally at 14-14.

The two teams battled tooth-and-nail for the rest of the game before the Colts got their big break on that fumble recovery in the closing minutes.

Warrior coach Darrel Stierwalt was depressed about the defeat but had nothing but praise for his team.

"Mistakes hurt us. There's no question about that," he said. "But we played a very good game. They're a tough team, probably the best we've played this year."

Stierwalt was optimistic about the future.

"I feel sorry for my seniors. This is the best team I've had since I became head coach and it's too bad they couldn't have had a championship," he said. "We've got a lot of good players returning (16) and we should be tough again next season."

The statistics were nearly even. Ruidoso gained 318 yards total offense, 160 on the ground and 158 in the air. Silver City had 161 yards passing and 142 rushing for 303 total yards.

Neal completed six of 12 passes for 123 yards and added 62 yards on the ground.

Joe Vasquez had six completions in 12 attempts for 161 yards passing.

NOTES — The AAA playoffs will start November 20. Portales and Artesia made the playoffs from the 4-AAA district with convincing wins Friday night. Portales dumped Tucumcari 28-3 and Artesia outscored Lovington 35-19. Both had 2-1 district records but Portales won the title because it beat Artesia.

DON NUNLEY (LEFT) and Scott Neal each played well in their final football game for Ruidoso High School Friday night against Silver City. Nunley scored the first Warrior touchdown on a pass from Neal and blocked well. Neal had the touchdown pass to Nunley, ran for 62 yards and completed six of 12 passes for 123 yards.

Well George Steinbrenner is at it again. The New York Yankees' owner is still determined to show that money can buy anything, particularly good baseball players and championships.

Last Wednesday Steinbrenner went out and got the services of former Cincinnati Reds star Ken Griffey for a minor league pitcher and "a player to be named later."

It sounds like a steal for the Yankees. Sure the Yankees have agreed to a multi-year contract with Griffey, probably for a vast sum of money. But Griffey is a consistent player, a near-super star who can always get the job done. He has a lifetime batting average of .307 and is a solid, dependable outfielder.

The Yankee owner has been criticized for shelling out millions for Dave Winfield, making the latter the richest player in baseball. However, Winfield had a good all-around year despite his poor World Series showing and he was a vital cog in the Yankees' drive to the American League pennant, split-season aside.

Steinbrenner has the money to spend to get the top players and he can literally buy a pennant with the kind of bucks he has. He's also a perfectionist. That was proven when the Yankees fell to the Dodgers in six games in the World Series. Most owners would have been pleased with a team that won its division and swept the pennant playoff against the Oakland A's.

But not George. He ranted and raved about shaking his team up, from top to bottom. And he's starting to do that.

Even Reggie Jackson might go. "Mr. October" had an off-year (for him) and rumors are strong that Steinbrenner would like to dump him. Reggie is a free agent now and the Yankee boss shows no signs of wanting to keep him on.

In fact, one of the reasons the Yankees picked Griffey up might have been to replace Jackson. Griffey has played right field most of his career, as has Jackson. Griffey is a better hitter than Jackson, at least as far as averages go. He's also four years younger than Reggie and that has to look good in the eyes of Steinbrenner. The Yankees are one of the oldest teams in the majors with most of their starters over 30 years old.

It wouldn't surprise me to see Steinbrenner let Jackson go and then clean his whole house up.

George likes to win and he has a massive ego (as does Jackson) so he'll probably stop at nothing money-wise to reach his goal of another World Championship team.

Make that several World Championship teams.

Quiz. What college team has more graduates of its football program now playing in the National Football League than any other four-year school?

Is it USC, Ohio State, Oklahoma, Grambling, Notre Dame, Texas, Alabama?

No it's none of these traditional collegiate powers but it is a Texas school. Give up? Okay it's Texas A&M. The Aggies have not been one of college football's powerhouses in recent years but they have more players in the pros than any other college team.

That fact in itself is heartening to college football fans who want to see more balance in the collegiate ranks.

This season has seen an end to the two-team domination (Ohio State and Michigan) of the Big-Ten and we've seen a different top-ranked team almost every week in the Associated Press and United Press polls.

It's about time the "also-ran" teams of college football like Texas A & M, Iowa and Wisconsin started to assert themselves.

This will mean better balance in the major conference standings and will benefit the college sport in the long run. Closer competition and more upsets could push college football back to the level of popularity it enjoyed right after World War II, when sellout crowds were a common occurrence.

Texico will play defending champion Reserve for the championship Friday night. Capitan finished the season with a 7-2 record and Texico is 9-0.

Capitan edged in semi-finals

Capitan High School's football team saw its hopes of a state A division championship disappear when it was edged by visiting Texico 7-6 in the semi-finals Friday night at Capitan.

Trapping, fur care, clinic set at Capitan

A trapping and fur care clinic will begin at 8:30 p.m., Thursday, in the Fair Building in Capitan.

Sessions scheduled include predator calling, trapping, fur handling and fur marketing.

This free clinic is being sponsored by the New Mexico State University Cooperative Extension Service, New Mexico Department of Game and Fish, Department of Fish and Wildlife Science at New Mexico State University, United States Fish and Wildlife Service and New Mexico Department of Agriculture.

Information on the clinic is available from Barry Herd, Lincoln County Agent, at 648-2311.

Tennis clinic offered Saturday

A free tennis clinic for all interested junior tennis players will be given 10 a.m. to noon Saturday at Sierra Swim and Racquet Club.

All youngsters who play tennis or would like to learn are invited to participate. The clinic will be conducted by Mike Crocker, tennis director, and Tim Palmer, former Baylor University tennis coach.

LPBT to scrimmage Alamogordo

The Las Piedras Boxing Team of Ruidoso will travel to Alamogordo tomorrow night for a scrimmage with some Alamogordo boxers.

Starting time for the match is 7 p.m. The team started with four boxers this year and has added several more in the past two weeks.

Midland wins Ruidoso gym invitational

Powerful Midland, Texas, came through with a balanced effort to win the Ruidoso Gymnastics Academy (RGA) Invitational Saturday afternoon at the RGA gym.

Midland, getting three individual first places, scored 100.80 points to 99.75 for second place Albuquerque Gym School. Santa Fe was third with 96.70 points, El Paso fourth with 94.55, Amarillo, Texas, fifth (93.55), Alamogordo sixth (93.45), Hamilton Gym of Lubbock, Texas, was seventh (91.20) and the host Mountain Tops of the RGA eighth with 89.40 points.

"I was disappointed with our performance," said Mountaintops coach John Eberle. "We were in good position to finish about fourth when we started competing in the balance beam but we fell apart in that event."

Melinda Jeffers of Albuquerque won the all around championship with 33.75 points, edging out teammate Laura Dunda and Holly Coffman of Midland who each had 33.40 points. Amy Thornton was the top scorer in all around for the Mountaintops with 30.70 points. Angela Jones scored 30.35, Karen Gann had 27.15 and Amy Richardson 26.75 for the other Mountaintops efforts.

Thornton was the only Mountaintops athlete to place in an individual event, taking seventh in the vaulting with a 7.90 total. JoAnna Riley of Midland won that event with an 8.45 total. Other Midland victors were Jennifer Piette in the uneven bars (8.80) and Tina Martin in the free exercise (8.65).

"None of our girls came through with their best performances in the meet," said Eberle. "We did pretty well in the uneven bars, however, and I felt we had a chance to finish high in the all around scoring. However we just didn't have it in the balance beam."

The Mountaintops will travel to Carlsbad this coming Saturday to meet the Carlsbad Gymnastics Club.

"They're not very strong," said Eberle. "We should win that meet."

Following the Carlsbad meet the Mountaintops will go to Midland December 12 for the Petro Plex Invitational. This meet will include teams from Austin and Dallas, Texas, and Denver, Colorado.

"That should be a high quality meet," said Eberle. Perhaps even better than this one (the RGA Invitational) because teams will be coming a long way to compete, so they have to be coming to win."

Warrior spikers beaten by Silver City in 3 sets

Ruidoso High School's girls' volleyball team saw its season come to an abrupt end Thursday night as host Silver City beat the Warriors in three sets 15-17, 15-8, 15-7.

As a result Silver City advanced to last Saturday's district top four playoffs at Cobre. The Warriors finished the season with a 2-9 district 3-AAA record and a 6-11 overall mark.

"We came from behind to win the first match," said Warrior mentor Sergio Castanon. "We played good team ball and I felt good about our chances in the next set. However, we just didn't seem to get it together in the next two matches and fell apart like we've done in other matches this season."

Despite the loss Castanon praised the play of Karen Boone and Laurie Morel in the first set. "They both played really well," he said. "Morel did an excellent job in the back-court."

Although the Warriors finished with a losing record they have several players from the varsity returning next year and hope to build a good nucleus from them.

Happy Birthday
To Lula May Runnels

This message will reach you on the birthday of Mrs. A. N. Runnels, beloved pioneer lady who arrived in the Bonito Valley at the age of sixteen, after a trip by covered wagon with her mother and father from Texas.

Lula was born November nine, 1893, in Cowboy, Texas, near Rising Star, to Thomas Craddock Gober and former Nancy Emaline Kuykendall. She celebrated her sixteenth birthday on the way out, and arrived later in November just below Angus where her parents homesteaded. Her father was affectionately known as "Crad" and her mother as "Nan." And this couple became immediate favorites among the pioneer neighbors.

After she married Mr. A. N. Runnels, her parents moved on to the western part of the state; and she and her husband moved up on the south fork of the Bonito. A little later she and her husband moved to her present home, just below the dam.

She and her husband raised four fine children, Arvel, Rayford, Robert and Bonnie. Rayford was called Home by Our Lord several years ago.

Lula says she is extremely grateful for the blessings she has received all these years.

"My grandsons, Terry and Danny, cut me a great big load of wood. And I have canned all kinds of food," she said. "And I am in very good health for my age."

Son Robert lives on the home place and looks after the ranch, and has been a great blessing to his mother all these years. Her faithful son, Arvel, lives just up the valley. And her charming daughter, Bonnie is always in close touch with her mother from her home in Ruidoso.

Lula is indeed greatly blessed and has always brought a great blessing into the lives of all of us. And we all wish her many happy returns of the day and all God's blessings.

A Message From Jack Frost
Dear Friends in Lincoln County.
Well, how are you these fine Indian Summer Days? Fine, I hope. I did my best to bring you a long sunny Indian Summer season, also a mild fall and winter. Of course, you know how the weather can get out of control and stampede off in a direction of its own.

I want to thank all of you for making the birthday of my fellow Alaskan, The Ridge Runner, such a happy one. The wood pile in front of his house, looks great, a birthday gift from Ken Green.

The Ridge Runner is blessed with good neighbors on all sides, who keep an eye on him, and lend him a hand in many ways. In fact he was born lucky.

On this date, November ninth, 1971, he made the jump of his life, and escaped being carried out feet first, when a large earth mover thundered down upon him. He had been concentrating on the birthday month of his brother, Lynn (born November 28, 1914, in Juneau, Alaska). He was keeping in mind Lynn's quickness of action in an emergency, and determined to follow this pattern himself. So you see, he is lucky to have brothers like Lynn and Mark.

About this time of year, I usually make a little sales pitch, I guess some would call it, for the season of fall and especially winter. I have often pointed out that the cold seasons can be the most healthful and happiest of all, if we follow certain traditions and rules.

One thing to remember is to be careful, in sunny days in winter, not to get caught out unprepared in the hills and mountains when a sudden storm blows in.

Have warm clothing, matches, flash light, and something to eat with you always. If you get lost, keep calm. In this country all canyons lead downhill. And there is lots of shelter from the snow and cold.

Maybe you are thinking I am trying to tell you that winter is a dangerous season. Not at all.

This may be a little early to be talking about winter preparations, and things to watch out for. I just want you to be ready for the pointers that I will bring to you a little later for health and happiness during the late fall and winter . . .

And until then I beg to remain, yours ever the same; and keep smiling and Adios, till next time.

SANTA FE—Will it hurt if the Reagan administration decontrols the price of gas?

If you are cooking tonight's hamburgers on the gas grill, that cost almost certainly will rise.

But the first cost isn't the whole story. It's just possible that our particular state could end up taking in more than it puts out if we get that change in the way the gas business is done.

Our own Department of Energy and Minerals says a superficial view may not tell the whole story.

So let's examine the scenario. STEP ONE: The President announces that the price of gas at the wellhead has been decontrolled; now that price can rise or fall as the market dictates.

STEP TWO: Here in New Mexico the price for leases of state oil lands starts to rise sharply.

Areas which have not heretofore been attractive to oil companies suddenly start to look a little better, as the "tight sands" around Roswell have since that kind of exploration was decontrolled.

Bidding for state lands, which has already climbed sharply in price in recent months, continues to escalate.

On each such deal, the state makes more money.

STEP THREE: As prices of gas in the open market continue to climb, the state makes more from a variety of revenue sources:

- on royalty payments for gas produced from state lands;
- on increased production from new exploration and drilling which now become at least potentially profitable; and
- on increased taxes paid to the state on increased gas production.

Meanwhile, the consumer is paying more for the gas he or she burns on the cookstove. As each month's bill from the suppliers of gas gets delivered in the mail, the consumer—that is to say, you—gets angrier and angrier.

But even as that anger is rising, the state is making more and more money.

That money can be used to provide more and more services to the citizens.

As New Mexicans, we may be getting back more than each of us as private citizens has paid out.

It's an interesting possibility, which could well come true.

So if you are busy trying to cut off the Reagan administration's determination to decontrol the price of gas, maybe you'd better ease off.

It's just possible that we here in our state could end up being better off with that one accomplished fact.

When it comes to dealing with government, you give a little and you take a little.

What you want to do is make sure what you take is bigger than what you give.

On this subject—decontrol of gas prices—that's what we may get here in New Mexico.

It would, therefore, be stupid for us to fight the President in what he seems determined to do.

Short term (the income government to maintain the standard of state government to which we are accustomed), we could end up winners.

Think of all that when you're cussing the man in the White House.

At this point in the history of the nation, states which produce energy—as ours does—may be the inevitable winners.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

FEAST OR FAMINE

Raising children requires teaching them to accept responsibility for their actions. This was, is, and always will be an eternal principle.

Somewhere in the fabric of society we disconnect that principle from our lives and our governments. As Christians, and or citizens of this land, we must be alert to those subtle efforts to destroy not only our nation but the entire civilized world as we know it.

We must bring back that sense ethic and bring back the family support as we knew it before social security.

These old-fashioned ideas are not as far away as the moon. We're down but not defeated. We have a second wind. The land is full of giants.

The American economy is in trouble as is the American way. A chin up attitude will bring an about face to our downward spiral.

Many of our great leaders in government and community service are calling for us to pick up the shovel and the blueprints and forge ahead. Let's do it now.

We can't blame our parents for the state of the economy. We can vote out the inadequate leader; write a letter to the Congressman or Senator, and above all we can change the system.

Our parents' parents used a bootstrap, we must find a pair of jogging shoes.

We can compare our efforts in this life to our personal salvation. We can plant a seed but unless we also weed, fertilize, and water that seed it will not come to fruit.

We each have a Garden of Eden. If our garden is overgrown in weeds we must get on our knees to snatch them out. The death of the seed is caused by our failure to act.

For me and my family we believe that men will be punished for their own sins, and not for Adam's transgression. See also Ch. 18 of Ezekiel.

Ex-Governor Jerry Apodaca is out beating the bushes trying to convince New Mexicans to return to the good old days of Democrat-patron-machine politics that has slipped from the grasp of him and others like him in recent years.

One of his most recent criticisms of opponent-incumbent Harrison Schmitt was "Schmitt has had only one bill passed in the last four years."

We think that's great! The only thing that would be better would be if Schmitt had not only had no new laws passed, but had helped repeal several dozen.

Apodaca is so clearly out of step with the desires of New Mexicans that he criticizes Schmitt for voting for budget cuts in federal social programs "which have made this country what it is."

Yea, Jerry, what we need is a return to the policies of people like you and Little Joe Montoya and Jimmy Carter who made the country what it is. Broke. —kg

DOWN WITH WELFARE

Thursday was such a beautiful day, that it seemed fittin' 'n proper to quaff an ice tea ... what with it being such a wonderful day ... and no one come along to louse it up ... ergo, I retired to a dispensary, an ice tea to quaff ... as sort of a fitting climax for a perfect day.

No sooner'd I got served and comfy when Shakey's hove into view ... and when Shakey's hove ... it means he's been thinking ... which, generally speaking, is bad news for me ... but this time, by jinkies, Shakey'd been thinking along the lines I agree with.

"You know," Shakey opined, after he'd first sipped at his glassa ice tea ... "Them Congressmen ... and Senators ... as is always in a stew in Washington over saving money ... they're missing the boat ... what they oughtt' do, see, is change all them rules they got over how to dish out welfare ... and food stamps ... and them other doles as those as gets 'em don't have to work for.

"Way I see it," Shakey was warming to his subject ... "is if'n our public servants'd get going on some new laws about these handouts ... like a law as says everyone as is gettin' that money, has to work for it ... even if'n it was pickin' up all the trash in one block in town full time ... or keepin' the parks ship shape ... whatever ... why we'd all benefit from all this money as is only benefitting those as is getting it ... and it's costing us taxpayers a bundle, for which we get nothin'."

Then Shakey surprised me ... all that talking musta parched his vocal chords ... he sipped, he snaked and sprung for a refill ... he caught me up his lips, burped ... "Now I don't mean them folks as is real sick ... or can't work because they're disabled ... or gettin' ... but what irks me is these here able bodied moochers ... living off the fat of the land ... they're the ones as should have to do something good for their town for the free bucks they get. Yup, I think Congress could straighten this mess out ... the states could follow through ... why littering might disappear."

SBA LOANS CHANGE

Comes now E. Maine Shafer, District Director for the Small Business Administration (SBA) ... and he's advising all SBAers as is connected with making loans to small businesses ... that they no longer have quotas which they gotta get loaned out to keep their jobs.

Now that's progress ... why it might get to the point where the SBA'd be making nothing but sound loans ... especially if'n those guys pay attention to their p's and q's and sorta ascertain, before they make a loan, that it's a good risk.

Yup ... it seems as though the SBA'll be paying more attention to the quality of the loans, than to the quantity ... and if this idea catches on, there's nothing but good as will result ... sams.

ON VETERANS' DAY

November 11 ... that's Wednesday ... is Veterans' Day ... and that'd be a good day to recall the words said by Theodore Roosevelt: "A man who is good enough to shed his blood for his country, is good enough to get a square deal afterward." If it wasn't for the war veterans ... any war ... it's a certainty that there'd be no United States ... 'cause someone else'd be calling the shots ... for instance ... if we hadn't fought Germany and Japan in WW II ... we'd all be living under the heel of tyranny ... and really have something to gripe about ... but couldn't do anything about.

Then there's the deal some veterans are getting ... for instance those who served in Nam ... they have problems getting medical care ... not getting jobs they can do because they're handicapped ... and it's tough for them to get into educational and rehabilitation programs ... and such thing like that.

Outside of a few people who enjoy fighting wars ... it's a cinch the main body of veterans didn't want to be fighting a war ... ours or the other guys ... but they did, and it helped provide the quality of life we enjoy.

Experimental statistician works by the numbers

In the beginning, he didn't think he would be able to make a living as an experimental statistician, so he majored in agronomy. But today, Dr. Morris Finkner presides over a whole department of statisticians and sheepishly admits he was wrong.

"When I came here (New Mexico State University) in 1952, I was called a biometrician and worked as a consultant to researchers at the Agricultural Experiment Station," he said. Back then, many researchers had little training in experimental statistics so he helped them design and interpret their research projects.

As an outgrowth of those first services, the experimental statistics department was formed in 1970. Today, the department is also the University Statistics Center. As such, the services of the 15 faculty and staff members are available university-wide just like the library or the computer center.

Although he said today's researchers are more sophisticated, their research projects are more complex. Also, the original agricultural focus of the experimental statistics department has widened to include disciplines such as entomology, education and engineering. "It doesn't really matter whether we're research objectives and limitations," he said. Then they talk numbers—how much land, how many animals and how much money. To a certain extent, money determines what can be accomplished. "If you try to do a large experiment too cheaply, and the results aren't reliable, then it wasn't worth spending any money on it at all," he said.

After deciding the research objectives, the statistician helps the researcher select an experimental design. "Often two or three designs will work for an experiment, it just depends on what you want to accomplish and the size of your budget." He said design selection is a crucial point in research objectives and limitations," he said. Then they talk numbers—how much land, how many animals and how much money. To a certain extent, money determines what can be accomplished. "If you try to do a large experiment too cheaply, and the results aren't reliable, then it wasn't worth spending any money on it at all," he said.

After deciding the research objectives, the statistician helps the researcher select an experimental design. "Often two or three designs will work for an experiment, it just depends on what you want to accomplish and the size of your budget." He said design selection is a crucial point in research. The time to be flexible is before the design is selected and the experimental procedures are set, he said.

Even when the design is put into practice, the statistician doesn't turn loose of the project. His role then is to see that the design translates into reality. For example, what do you do if a heifer in a breeding experiment dies? Finkner said if the researcher and statistician allowed for death loss in the experimental design, they might have a substitute heifer and the experiment could be salvaged.

Once the research data are collected, the two talk again. Depending on the experiment, the statistician can do as little as checking statistical terminology or as much as writing a computer program and co-authoring the final research report.

Even with all the planning that goes into a project, researchers still have to contend with human factors. Finkner told of a project testing the wearability of New Mexico wool in which the wool was used to make jumpers. The jumpers were then given to young girls at an orphanage to wear.

"When we selected some jumpers at random and asked that they be returned for evaluation, the younger girls, not understanding our scientific motives, became upset. They thought they had mistreated the clothes and were being punished. We had to use some psychology on that project and reassure the girls they hadn't done anything wrong," he said.

Finkner also has had to deal with research that in the eyes of the researcher was a failure. "A researcher who has put a lot of tender loving care into a research project sometimes finds it a shocking revelation when he sees the final numbers," Finkner said.

But he said negative results are often as important as positive results. "If a new chile variety is tested and conclusively proves to be inferior, that may be negative information for the researcher, but it's positive for the grower who is saved the expense and effort of growing a poor quality chile," he said.

"I've told my experimental statistics students that when they set out to do research, they can't expect it to solve all their problems. Research doesn't come wrapped up like a Christmas package, it's not that predictable. It does have surprises, but you can't decide ahead of time what that surprise will be," he said.

Agronomist seeks super sorghum

"First you start with really good parents," he says, sounding like a latter day Dr. Spock. Dr. Ralph Finkner is not talking about raising children but about plant breeding experiments. In this case, the precocious offspring are 382 hybrid sorghum plants selected from 2,000 really good parent plants.

Finkner's first objective in the sorghum breeding test was to measure heritability, or how well parent plants pass on certain traits to their progeny. Second, he wanted to measure heterosis, or the percentage of offspring that had traits superior to those of their best parent.

Finkner, an agronomist with New Mexico State University's Agricultural Experiment Station, said some traits are inherited easier than others. "The effectiveness of any trait depends on how heritable it is," he said. "It's important that the plant breeder knows what progress he can expect through selective breeding."

For example, the trait for high yield is of no use to a plant breeder unless that trait is easily passed from one generation to the next, Finkner said.

Two traits of special interest to Finkner were yield and protein. "If we could develop a high yielding, high protein sorghum, it would decrease the demand for protein supplements in animal feeds in the United States," he said. It also would help raise the nutrition level in developing countries where sorghum ranks as the third largest cereal grain in the United States and the most important food grain in parts of Africa and Asia.

Finkner began the experiments by selecting seed samples from 2,000 individual sorghum heads. The samples were analyzed for size and protein percentages. From these parent plants, 382 offspring crosses were selected. Inherited traits were recorded for the test crosses and their respective parents in seven different tests from 1976 to 1979.

Results of the heritability study showed that the trait for height was the easiest to inherit, registering 87.9 percent heritability. Ranking second and third were seed weight at 69.3 percent and days to half bloom at 58.9 percent.

The results also demonstrated that a negative correlation between one trait and another can exist. Heritability stays the same, but the traits work against each other. "It's like driving against a headwind. You're still registering the same speed, but the wind prevents you from actually going that fast," Finkner said. For example, in selecting plants for high yield, the protein percentages went down, and in selecting plants for high protein, yields went down. Negative correlations are discouraging, but Finkner says researchers just have to look for specific lines where this doesn't happen.

In the heterosis study, 43.5 percent of the crosses outyielded their parents. "Yield is the most important trait for sorghum and heterosis for this trait is a good sign," he said.

Two traits, plant height and head exertion, which is the distance from the last leaf on the stalk to the seed head, were easily passed from one generation to another. Both are important traits for mechanical harvesting. The higher the head height and the lower the leaves on the stalk, the cleaner the grain will be when it's combined.

A majority of the hybrids, 58.6 percent, were taller than their tallest parent. Twenty-five percent of the plants showed heterosis for head exertion. Of the crosses, 11 percent bloomed earlier than their early flowering parents and 5.5 percent bloomed later. "The fact that both positive and negative heterosis existed indicates that both early and late hybrids could be developed from the in-breeds," he said. An early maturing hybrid would be desirable in Colorado and Nebraska while a late bloomer would be suitable for production along the Gulf Coast.

The hybrids made a poor showing in moisture, seed size and weight compared to their parents. The offspring registered heterosis of seven percent or less for these three traits.

In the final analysis, test hybrids must have a greater economic value than locally grown varieties. Of the sorghum hybrids in this test, only 17 yielded significantly more than the local variety standard. All 17 averaged eight to 12 inches taller than the local standard.

Finkner plans to continue testing those that show promise but admits that plant breeding becomes harder with each new generation. "The first research takes the cream off the top and it becomes more difficult to improve what's already been done. It takes more time, more effort and more money," he said.

I-n-s-i-d-e the Outdoors

by Gary Dollahan

Unless you hunters have done your homework, some of the season opening dates may catch you by surprise. This is particularly true if you are a goose, duck, or crane hunter.

Goose season for our part of the state opens November 14 and will continue through February 14, 1982. The bag limit is five (5) geese per day, ten in possession, not to include more than two dark geese per day nor more than four dark geese in possession. Also, no dark geese may be taken after January 17, 1982.

The duck season for this area will continue through January 17, 1982. Again the bag limit is based on the point system with ducks having assigned point-values. These are:

- Canvasbacks 100 each
- Redheads, hen mallards, Mexican-like ducks, wood ducks and hooded mergansers 70 each
- Teal, scaup, pintails, gadwalls, shovellers, wigeon, and common and red-breasted mergansers 10 each
- All other ducks 20 each

The daily bag limit has been reached when the point value of the last bird taken, when added to the sum of the point values of other birds already taken during the day, reaches or exceeds 100 points.

Possession limit for ducks is the maximum number of birds that legally could have been taken in two days.

Ducks and goose hunters at least 16 years of age and older must have in addition to their small game license, a federal "Duck Stamp," obtainable from any Post Office.

Crane season continues through January 31, 1981. Crane hunting is open only in the counties of Chaves, Curry, DeBaca, Eddy, Lea, Quay and Roosevelt. Bag limit is three per day, and the possession limit is six.

Crane hunters must have, in addition to their small game license, a special crane permit. This permit is free and can be obtained in person from any Game Department Office or by writing: The Department of Game and Fish, Villagra Building, Santa Fe, New Mexico 87503. Include your name, address, and small game license number. Needless to say, only very few ducks, geese and crane are present in the Pecos Valley at this time, but they have the habit of appearing "overnight" once bad weather arrives.

Dove season will re-open on November 21 and run through December 20. The bag limit this year is 12 per day with 24 in possession.

Pheasant season is four days this year, December 5 through 8, with three cocks per day being the bag limit.

The 1981 Prairie Chicken season runs from December 12 through 14 with a bag limit of three birds per day.

Quail hunters can get their exercise from November 21 through January 24, 1981 while attempting to bag 15 per day. Possession limit on quail is 30.

I encourage all hunters to obtain a copy of the current New Mexico Game Bird Proclamation and further review what I have discussed here. Pay close attention to all the rules and regulations.

Michael O. Stone, M.D., wishes to inform his patients that he has changed his status at the Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital to "Courtesy Staff." This will mean very little change, if any, in his approach to the practice of medicine. He will still be admitting patients to the hospital, have full emergency room privileges and availability, and full inpatient visiting hours. This change will permit Dr. Stone to devote more time to his office practice and should shorten the waiting time in his office for patients with appointments. This will be a result of his not having mandatory call at the emergency room.

There will be a detailed explanation letter mailed out later this month in the office billing. Anyone else who wishes one mailed to them may call 257-5086 with their request.

Please.
America is not your ashtray.

It is our pleasure to announce the continuation of our educational series on Estate Planning, resuming October 6 and continuing October 13 then every other Tuesday through February 2, 1982 at 9:00 p.m. on PBS, KENW-TV, Channel 3. We will be bringing together a team of professional estate planners, consisting of an estate planning attorney, an accountant, trust officers, and ourselves as life insurance consultants, to inform you of changes in the tax laws and new methods available to assist you in preventing Uncle Sam from being your largest beneficiary.

The series will hypothetically present a typical estate comparing the benefits of a properly planned estate versus the catastrophic effects of little or no planning.

Tune in to the Don Criss, "YOU SHOULD KNOW" Show, November 10 and 24, and take advantage of this valuable free information. Edward Hildebrandt and Sylvan Gillespie, trusts and trustees, testamentary trust, wills, how to avoid probate, living trusts, joint tenancy.

Edith Wharton's "Summer" probes woman's lost innocence

Edith Wharton, America's first Pulitzer Prize-winning woman novelist, and adaptations of two of her best-known works are the subjects of a three-part dramatic series on "Great Performances" in November. The second 90-minute drama in the Edith Wharton trilogy is an adaptation of Mrs. Wharton's novel Summer, airing on "Great Performances," Monday, November 9 over PBS. (Check local listings for time in your area.) The telecast stars Diane Lane (pictured) as Charity Royall, John Cullman as Lawyer Royall and Michael Ontkean as Lucius Harney.

Set in the New England village of North Dormer, "Summer," written in a candid graphic style more familiar today than in the Wharton era, is the story of a teenage girl's first passionate involvement with a young man and its unusual consequences. Charity Royall, the 17-year-old adoptive daughter of Lawyer Royall and his just-deceased wife Vinnie, leaves adolescence behind and becomes a mature woman within the short span of summer in the early 1900's.

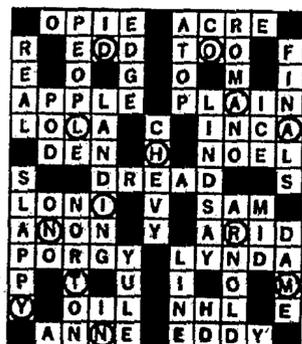

Charity's first emotional jolt is the discovery that the widowed Royall, who has loved her a child, now desires her as his wife. Then, working in the town's tiny library, she meets a handsome young man, Lucius Harney, who is visiting his aunt, Miss Hatchard (Edith Meiser), founder of "The Honorius Hatchard Memorial Library." Mutually attracted, Charity and Lucius develop a friendly relationship which, shortly results in a clandestine love affair.

At the end of his stay, Lucius leaves with a promise to return and marry Charity. However, she soon learns that he is betrothed to a young lady in nearby Nettleton and, almost simultaneously, Charity realizes that she is pregnant. The bewildered girl first considers an abortion, then reconciles herself to having the baby and caring for it herself. Meanwhile, Lawyer Royall, keenly aware of Charity's predicament and concerned for her well-being, continues his proposals of marriage.

by Joey Sasso

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT: Jock Ewing will die in a South American helicopter crash on CBS' "Dallas." Steve Kanaly, who plays Ray Krebbs in the hit TV series, detailed the plans to eliminate the character played by Jim Davis, who died earlier this year. "The character stays alive for 12 shows, goes on business to South America for the government, and we have telephone calls and letters from him," Kanaly said. "Somebody will be talking to him on the phone and (then) say, 'I just had a telephone call from Daddy. He misses you all. He'll be coming home in a month or so.' This goes on until he finally crashes in a helicopter in South America." Was any thought given to letting another actor play the character? "We would all have been insulted if they had recast the role," Kanaly said. "You can't replace an actor like that."

TV BACKSTAGE: Psychologists fear that the return to excessive violence on the new prime-time television shows this fall will result in increased paranoia among the elderly, overly aggressive children and more unruly juvenile delinquents. The new fall TV line-up is more violent than ever before, the experts say. There are no new "jiggle" shows like "Three's Company." The networks are replacing sex with violence. They have recycled old law and order shows and stars like Mike Connors in "Today's FBI," James Arness as a city cop and James Garner as "Bret Maverick." If you add to that list three new cop series, you can bet there will be lots of bullets flying this fall. And experts on the impact of television violence on the population are worried.

TV CLOSEUP: "Dr. Who," BBC-TV's amazing sci-fi series of 172 half-hours, which has been a hit in England for over 18 years and now playing in 30 countries around the globe, has been sold in 11 more U.S. markets," announced Wynn Nathan, President of Lionheart Television. CBS newsman Mike Wallace says a TV interviewer needs "fresh eyes." That, Wallace explains, is a "kind of innocence, a willingness to learn, to hear something new, to respond spontaneously, to be surprised, to take chances." Who has fresh eyes? Barbara Walters, Dick Cavett, Bill Moyers, Phil Donahue and Johnny Carson. . . Despite his efforts to remain a detached professional journalist, Ted Koppel has become a sex symbol. He has joined the likes of Erik Estrada, Tom Selleck and even Tom Brokaw. That's the nature of TV—it makes stars of everyone, from actor to newsman. Koppel, of course, is the anchor for ABC News "Nightline," the late-news program that competes with Johnny Carson and reruns for bedtime viewers. As far as talk of being anything but a newsman, Koppel says laughingly, "Obviously, it's very gratifying."
