$8 MILLION SOUGHT IN FIRST PHASE OF PROGRAM

Water bond vote March 2

BY TIM PALMER
Staff Writer

Ruidoso trustees voted Tuesday night to include an $8 million water system improvements bond issue on the March 2 municipal election ballot.

The decision followed a presentation by Fred Burns, of Boyle Engineering, of a capital improvements program for the village water system.

This program is an offshoot of the February 1981 water supply study, Burns said, in which the Rio Ruidoso was determined to be the much more reliable of Ruidoso's two primary water sources. (The other is Eagle Creek).

Burns cited an annual village population growth rate of 7.3 percent compounded for the decade 1970-80—three times the national average. He said that such growth can reasonably be expected to continue, but that water is "the overriding constraint" to growth.

Under "needs," Burns listed water rights, production facilities for peak day usage, and increased storage capacity.

"We have more water rights on Eagle Creek than Eagle Creek can deliver," said Burns. He pointed out, however, that these rights cannot be transferred to the Rio Ruidoso.

Burns suggested that the village develop the capability to take water from "whatever source," then go to the courts for the right to the water.

"Competition will be fierce" for Rio

Ruidoso water, he said.

Production facilities proposed for the improvements program include a rehabilitated Number Two water plant in the Gavilan Canyon area; a new treatment plant similar to the Alto Crest plant; a diversion pipeline on the Rio Ruidoso at the Mescalero Reservation boundary; and a new pump station.

Renovation of Plant Number Two would get the village through two or three years, capacity-wise, said Burns. The other improvements are all in conjunction with a proposed 1,000 acre feet reservoir for storage of Rio Ruidoso water.

Grindstone Canyon is the proposed site of a new dam to hold this water. Burns said that the site is on private land, which will allow the village to avoid the "endless review of federal agencies" that held up a proposed dam on Eagle Creek.

No problem over the Rio Ruidoso dam is anticipated from the State Engineer's Office either, he said.

The $8 million program would be the first of two phases in capital improvements, Burns said.

The second phase would be financed by a $9.9 million bond issue and begun in 1985.

Trustee Frank Sawyer said that he would like to see the first bond issue placed on the March 2 election ballot. He specified that the proposed improvements be spelled out for the voters, and said that voting on the bond issue in March would save the cost of a special election.

Trustee George White said that he did not want to see the water bond issue mixed up with the other decisions facing the electorate in March—election of a mayor and two trustees, plus acquisition by the village of Ruidoso Natural Gas Co.

Sawyer pointed out that the traditionally greater voter turnout in mayoral elections is another reason to include the bond issue. White agreed to go along with the majority and the motion to add the bond issue to the ballot, pending approval of the village attorney, passed.

The trustees also approved requests from Police Chief Dick Swenor to hire two communications officers and to lease four police vehicles from Sierra Blanca Motors at $2,100 per month. Swenor told the trustees that new state detention facilities standards will require the department to have one male and one female officer on duty around the clock, and that he is now short-handed on dispatchers. The new vehicles will replace older, high mileage units that are proving difficult and expensive to maintain, he said.

In other action, the trustees:

—Were told by village manager Jim Hine that the state will not allow the village to finance the purchase of a new hot mix plant itself. Hine was instructed to find out if local lending institutions are interested in financing the acquisition and, if not, to pursue a loan offer at 10.4 percent interest.

—Approved a request from Cliff Anderson for a retroactive waiver of the state requirement that a restaurant be located no nearer than 300 feet from a school or church to be eligible for a beer and wine license. Anderson owns Nob Hill Restaurant.

—Received a report from the water department on operations and named Richard Sanchez water superintendent. Sanchez had been acting superintendent.

—Heard a report from the Fire Department on a hydrant checking procedure to be instituted; approved a request for $8,551 for the purchase of 25 radio units for firemen; and took under advisement a letter of recommendations for improved airport fire safety.

—Approved the recommendation of Mayor Lloyd L. Davis Jr. that Knute Otteson and Tom Keihm be named to the Planning and Zoning Commission.

—Granted permission for the village to sell the old hot mix plant and a surplus small computer.

—Discussed a means of enforcing the village ordinance requiring a final inspection and issuance of an occupancy permit for any new construction.

—Approved a final plat of Timberwind Condominiums and a replat of Vista del Lago Condominiums Phase II.

—Agreed to instruct the village attorney to investigate whether sewer service can be provided to Lost Mountain Estates Subdivision through acquisition of an easement.

Downs studying water transfer

BY JEAN PATTERSON
Staff Writer

A question of water rights highlighted Monday night's Ruidoso Downs Board of Trustees meeting. Tony Parker was on hand to discuss the sale of 10 acre feet of water from his property in Ruidoso Downs to a subdivision in the Gavilan Canyon area.

The land from which Parker wants to transfer the water rights has been platted for a subdivision. Trustee Harold Mansell said there isn't enough water now and he is afraid the village would be under obligation to provide future lot owners with water if it should be in short supply. However, Parker said he doesn't plan to sell too many lots. "We'll have enough water for 23 families and I'm not going to have that many families," Parker said.

"I don't see selling it (the water) over the mountain," said trustee Lois Beavers. "This just doesn't make sense when they're screaming down in Pecos Valley for water."

Current status on the issue is for the village attorney to review the request. If the village protests the sale of the water rights, a hearing will be set up with the state engineer, who will be able to determine if selling the water rights is feasible.

"We have to do what's in the best interest of the village. We definitely need water here and we'd like to keep in within the village," said mayor Norman Wheeler.

In other business, the trustees approved the transfer of unbudgeted funds to budgeted funds in order to pay off the State Board of Finance balance. Money from the disaster fund will be transferred to the general fund to pay the loan on request of the state. The transfer was approved with the provision that the village attorney approve the move.

Also approved at the meeting was an increase in compensation for board members. The mayor will receive $225 per meeting, not to exceed $450 a month while trustees will receive $25 per meeting, with no more than four meetings per month. Ruidoso Downs residents will vote on the issue at the election March 15, 1982.

Applicants for the sewer inspector position with the village will be reviewed at the January 11 meeting. A decision on hiring will be postponed pending completion of the water treatment plant.

Announcements at the meeting included the reading of a resignation from Ruidoso Downs Volunteer Fire Department Chief Ray Walker, effective January 1, in addition to resignation of police dispatcher Betty Bennett.

A new police officer, Pete Esquibel, was hired for the Ruidoso Downs police force. He has spent two years on the Roswell police force and will begin his duties January 4.

The next Ruidoso Downs Board of Trustees meeting will be January 11 at 7 p.m., at the Municipal Building.

Tribe has had financial problems in developing ski area facilities

BY TIM PALMER
Staff Writer

In its past and current efforts to have the Sierra Blanca Ski Resort (SBSR) lands transferred from Lincoln National Forest, the Mescalero Apache Tribe (MAT) has claimed difficulties in obtaining financing for ski area expansion.

The MAT has contended that the cause of the problem is the special use permit system by which SBSR and other ski areas are allowed to operate on United States Forest Service lands.

Although the Forest Service has expressed doubt that the claim is valid, a former close associate of MAT has provided information which substantiates it.

Fred Heckman, Ruidoso, was an administrative assistant to MAT President Wendell Chino for most of the period from 1962 to 1976, working primarily in the area of economic development.

Heckman recalled that in the late 1950s and early 1960s, there was a great deal of interest on the part of the federal government in tourism and outdoor recreation. Various federal programs to encourage development in these areas were initiated, he said.

To meet the eligibility requirements of one such program, said Heckman, the MAT and the Bureau of Indian Affairs at Mescalero prepared an overall economic development plan for the Tribe.

Heckman noted that this plan, which had just been finished when he went to work for the MAT, included a tourism and recreation category. Ski areas were among the hundreds of possible Mescalero Reservation projects in the plan, he explained, along with youth camps, resort hotels, dude ranches, riding stables, Indian villages and others.

"Putting ideas in practical motion" is the way Heckman described his job. He recalled that health, housing and community facilities for the MAT were under study at the same time.

MAT/BIA development efforts had a three-fold aim, said Heckman. This was: create jobs; improve the standard of living on the Reservation; and provide a source of income for operation of Tribal government.

It was determined early on that a ski area on the Reservation would not be feasible or needed, Heckman said. But with Sierra Blanca Ski Resort newly opened (winter of 1961-62), the MAT had a project in mind which involved that ski area.

The concept of a "Tourism Triad" was unfolding at the time, Heckman said. A resort hotel was to be the first and most important part of the triad.

But another part was to be an "Alpine Chalet"—overnight accommodations serving SBSR from nearby Reservation land. This was to have been a "satellite" development to what became the Inn of the Mountain Gods, said Heckman.

He recalled that when Chino and he met with SBSR owner Robert O. Anderson to inform him of the proposed "ski haus" and ask his cooperation, Anderson surprised them with an offer to sell SBSR to the Tribe.

After studying the proposition, the MAT made the decision to pursue the purchase of the ski area. A search for funds began.

According to Heckman, at that time there had been no major recreational developments on federal lands that had been financed by loans from private financial institutions. As he put it, "there was no mechanism in place for financing."

Heckman digressed in his narrative to describe some of the problems faced by a ski area with a special use permit wanting to borrow money.

"The Forest Service has absolute power over the ski area," he said. "They can shut it down." And in the early years of MAT operation of Sierra Blanca, he added, the District Ranger threatened to use this power and did use it. (Sources in the Forest Service validate this statement).

A clause in the 30-year special use permit pertaining to termination of the agreement states that if "the public interest requires termination upon thirty days' written notice to the permittee of such determination, and the United States shall have the right thereupon to purchase the permittee's improvements, to remove them, or to require the permittee to remove them, at the option of the United States."

Along with the 30-year permit, which by law can only cover an area of 80 acres, SBSR has an annual permit for the approximately 704 acres which make up the rest of the ski area. According to Heckman, the legislation creating the annual permits (in 1897) was never meant to apply to ski areas and has been challenged by the Sierra Club. From a lender's point of view, this is another risk inherent in the permit system, Heckman said.

When the backup legislation to the permits is taken to a major insurance company or other financial institution, said Heckman, "You are laughed out of the of-ice." Asked whether he had ever been laughed out of an office (when applying for credit on behalf of the MAT), Heckman said, "I sure have."

He asked rhetorically whether a person could borrow money on a home or building with attached conditions like those in the special use permits.

"We got laughed out of a lot of offices," he said.

With the help of mortgage bankers, the MAT was successful in securing a loan for the original purchase of SBSR, Heckman noted. Prudential Insurance committed funds to the purchase, he said, but the terms were strict.

"The Tribe literally had to assign all of its income—from timber and all other sources," Heckman said.

As it turned out, the loan was never consummated. According to Heckman, the BIA loaned the money to the MAT for the original purchase of SBSR.

Ten years later, the Tribe was looking to expand. Mortgage bankers were again employed, said Heckman, and pension funds, insurance companies and commercial banks were all sounded out. A polite suggestion to try somewhere else was the usual response, he said.

This time the MAT was not willing to mortgage its income. By then, SBSR had a record of profitability and was expected to stand on its own. "It just wasn't worth it," said Heckman.

This second foray into the private capital market preceded the MAT's un-

Line break causes power outage here

The Ruidoso area didn't have electric service for from 45 minutes to about three hours early Tuesday morning due to a break in a 115,000 volt line between Alamogordo and Las Cruces.

Local Texas-New Mexico Power Company manager John Sigler advised The News Wednesday that the "line went out after it vibrated into a clamp on a pole."

Help to pay utility bills offered here

Each Wednesday during January and February, from 9:15 a.m.-4 p.m., applications will be accepted for assistance in paying utility bills at the Adult Recreation Department in Ruidoso.

Applicants are to bring their social security number, said Angela Schmidt, utility assistance program director, proof of income through check stubs, income tax return, letter from employer, W-2 form or copies of checks.

Applicants are also to bring unpaid or paid gas bills for heating and unpaid electric bills, Schmidt said.

Rash of dumpster fires due to hot ash disposal

Dumpster fires have been epidemic in Ruidoso this week, due to people dumping live fireplace ashes.

When a dumpster caught fire in the 300 block of Hull Road yesterday morning, flames ignited dry grass and burned a good sized area. High winds at the time might have caused the blaze to spread further, but it was spotted by a policeman, who called in duty firemen.

Besides the danger of flames starting in the metal refuse containers and spreading, fires do extensive damage to the dumpster units.

Persons are urged to use extreme caution in disposal of fireplace and wood stove ashes.

Also, said village fire prevention officer Cuddy, Christmas trees should be cut into lengths of four feet or less and placed inside dumpsters for pickup, not left lying on or near the containers.

THOROUGHLY DOUSING a burning dumpster on Hull Road Wednesday morning is Ruidoso fireman Danny Garcia. The area beyond the dumpster burned when the blaze spread from the unit. Village officials and firemen would appreciate it if people doused their fireplace ashes before placing them in the dumpsters.

MIKE CROCKER shows beginning skiers at Sierra Blanca Ski Resort some of the basics of skiing Saturday afternoon. Crocker has been a part-time ski instructor at Sierra Blanca for almost six years now. He manages to get his skiing work done in between his job as tennis director at Sierra Swim and Racquet Club and a coaching-teacher job at White Mountain Middle School.

Sunland Park opens spring racing Friday

Sunland Park opens its 55-day spring season on Friday with a 10-race card, hoping for a repeat of its successful 29-day fall season.

The spring season will continue through closing day on May 2. Racing will be held Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays each weekend with a special holiday program scheduled for Monday, February 15.

Friday's main event will feature Draconic Runner and nine foals making their three-year-old debuts going six furlongs for a $3,000 purse. The race will be run under allowance conditions.

Draconic Runner failed as a 3-2 favorite in his final effort as a two-year-old. He held the lead going into the stretch run of a five and one-half furlong allowance chase at Sunland Park on December 20, before fading slightly to finish third, beaten by less than two lengths.

The Draconic colt, however, still enjoyed a productive 1981 season. He captured two wins with two seconds and two thirds in 11 appearances.

Draconic Runner earned $11,838 for owner Lonnie O. Bates of Kaufman, Texas. Trained by Billy Hill, he will again be ridden by Larry Byers.

His finest outing may well have been a strong second to stablemate Spanish Spade in the Rio Grande Futurity on August 9 at Ruidoso Downs. He defeated the outstanding filly Shesgottobeadandy, who was third, in that six furlong chase.

Perhaps the biggest threat to Draconic Runner will be Best Platoon, a Platoon Leader gelding.

He likes to come from off the pace with a powerful stretch run. Owned and trained by Coy Hendrix of El Paso, Texas, Best Platoon posted one victory with one second and three thirds in eight outings as a juvenile. He collected $2,460. Regular jockey Betty Harless will again have the riding chores.

Here's the field in post position order with assigned jockeys and weights: 1 — Feather Step (Nickey Wilson, 105); 2 — Draconic Runner (Larry Byers, 117); 3 — Blade's Ruler (Danny Summerow, 117); 4 — Monolo (115); 5 — Little Boy West (Brent Overton, 110); 6 — Easter Honor (Casey Lambert, 102); 7 — Precious Image (Pedro Benitez, 110); 8 — Best Platoon (Betty Harless, 114); 9 — Northern Martini (Louie Gomez, 107); 10 — Hustlin Huck (Willie Lovell, 115).

Saturday's feature will be the Juarez Handicap, a 350 yard dash for three-year-old and older quarter horses seeking a $5,000-added purse. Sunday's feature will be the Sunland Express Handicap at five furlongs for four-year-old and older thoroughbreds. The purse will be $5,000-added.

Post time for each day's 10 race program will be 12:30 p.m.

Forest recreational areas open to visitors

The danger of fire is high in some areas of the Lincoln National Forest, and visitors are asked to be especially careful with their cigarettes and campfires. The forest has dried out as a result of continued sunny days, no precipitation, and frequent gusty winds.

Smoky Bear Ranger District at Ruidoso reports that conditions at the Sierra Blanca Ski Area range from fair on the upper slopes to excellent on novice slopes. All lifts are open daily. The number to call for current information is 257-9001.

Three Rivers Campground is open. Roads are dry. Some snow remains in shaded areas of White Mountain Wilderness. All fuelwood areas are open. On the Cloudcroft Ranger District, all campgrounds are closed. The main slope at Ski Cloudcroft is open daily and skiing is fair to good. Call 682-2587 for current conditions.

Silver Snowplay area is closed until more snow falls. Roads are open. Fuelwood areas No. 9 and Pump are open. The road in the Pump Fuelwood Area has icy spots in shaded areas.

Guadalupe Ranger District at Carlsbad reports high caving activity. Trails are in good condition. Sitting Bull Falls Picnic Area is closed until further notice. Fuelwood areas are open.

Mayhill Ranger District reports light use of James Canyon Campground. Roads are dry. Fishing pressure on Penasco River is light. Fuelwood areas are open.

Grass fires burned State Forest lands

The Capitan district of the State Forestry Service was plagued with two fires the week prior to Christmas.

The first took place Sunday morning, December 20, north of Roswell, destroying approximately 1,000 acres of brush and grass land. According to reports, the blaze erupted as the result of debris burning that "got out of hand."

Another fire took place Monday, December 21, near Hagerman, affecting nearly 5,000 acres of grass and crop land, some of it private lands. Cause of the fire is not known at this time.

State arts, crafts fair applications available

Application forms are now available for the 1982 New Mexico Arts and Crafts Fair jurying to be held February 18-21 at the State Fairgrounds in Albuquerque.

Artists and craftsmen, residents of New Mexico, 18 years of age or older are invited to submit their work for jurying. Three samples of work in each medium the applicant wishes to show, an entry fee and the application forms will be received at the Flower Building on the Fairgrounds on Thursday, February 18, from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m., and on Friday, February 19, from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. All work must be picked up on February 21, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Those artists and craftsmen whose work is chosen by the juries will become exhibitors at the 1982 New Mexico Arts and Crafts Fair to be held June 25-27 at the State Fairgrounds.

Application forms may be requested by telephoning the New Mexico Arts and Crafts Fair Office at 884-9043, or they may be picked up at the office, 2745 San Mateo

N.E., Suite G, Albuquerque (87110), which is open Mondays and Thursdays from, 9 a.m. to 12 noon.

Village lists 1982 holidays

Village employees are entitled to nine paid holidays in 1982 under a schedule approved by trustees at Tuesday's meeting.

- Holidays for 1982 are:
 - New Year's Day, Friday, January 1.
 - Memorial Day, Monday, May 31.
 - Independence Day, Monday, July 5.
 - Labor Day, Monday, September 6.

Gross receipts tax lowering January 1

The Gross Receipts Tax rate will be four and a quarter percent, 4.25 cents on the dollar, effective January 1 in all Lincoln County municipalities.

The tax rate in the balance of the county will be three and one half percent.

Carrizozo man vice president of state board

Pete Gnatkowski, Carrizozo, was elected vice president of the newly-formed New Mexico Extension Support Council at a recent organizational meeting in Albuquerque.

He will serve with president James Williams of Grady, secretary Catherine Grandia of Albuquerque and parliamentarian Sue Ogden of Loving.

The council is made up of at least one representative from each county who has been involved in educational programs of the New Mexico State University (NMSU) Cooperative Extension Service.

Bylaws of the new organization are being drafted for membership approval. The council's general aim will be to support educational efforts of the Cooperative Extension Service through its network of county Extension agents.

The recent Albuquerque meeting was addressed by Dr. John W. Oren, NMSU Cooperative Extension Service, who gave an overview of local, state and national concerns relating to Extension.

Rent subsidy applications to be taken

Representatives from the Regional Housing Authority of Region VI, New Mexico, will be in Carrizozo January 6, beginning at 10:30 a.m., to take applications for the H.U.D. Section 8 Rent Subsidy Program. This program assists low income families in making their monthly rental payments.

The income limit is $14,900 a year for a family of four. Any citizen who thinks they will qualify for assistance is encouraged to apply at the Welfare Department in Carrizozo, next Wednesday.

Applications are taken on a first come, first serve basis. Also, any landlord who is interested in possibly participating in the program and would like more information, is encouraged to contact the representatives.

Blues cures for New Year's

New Year's Eve, inevitably, is followed by the morn of the first day of the New Year, and, in the early hours of said morn, perchance there'll be a tendency for some revelers to mourn — nay more, they might tend to include a liberal dosage of remorse in their mourning.

Just in the event there may be some residents of Harmony Valley who might, more or less by accident, or by being a victim of circumstances totally beyond their control, overindulge in the spirits of the New Year's Eve observance, a News reporter went in quest of tried, true and sensational remedies to cure this malady — the ubiquitous hangover.

The News does not — repeat — does not endorse any of the suggested hangover remedies recommended by the tippers, who, to preserve their anonymity, their sanity even, shall remain nameless, besides, being as the veracity of some of the providers of cures for New Year's booze blues is questionable, The News does not desire to set them up for public ridicule by having folks make sport of them — though they are all good sports.

Now, on with the suggestions. 'Tis the "hair of the dog" that was often suggested, with the hope being expressed by the suggester that wire haired terriers be shunned like the plague, 'cause there's a tendency for this cure to get caught in one's throat, which is a painful experience, to say naught of being downright discomfulting. However, the advocates of the "hair of the dog" insist that it's what did you in, that'll cure you.

A bottle of stale beer, refreshingly cold after an overnight repose, opened, in the refrigerator was touted by many of the tippers interviewed as a remedy with fast acting attributes — and they suggested it be consumed with relish as the day gets underway. Presumably the choice of relish is left up to the sufferer.

Several dyed-in-the-wool treaters of the after effects of too much imbibing claim there's nothing quite the equal of a Bloody Mary, providing the flavoring includes triple the amount of lime juice and Tabasco usually employed in properly flavoring this, as they claimed, savory libation.

Then, for those as can't face the day without a bracing cup of black coffee, or hot tea, the most often suggested sweetener was a generous hooker of cognac, as opposed to brandy, with the latter liquid generally viewed as inferior when it's the medicinal qualities of the sweetener that is most desirable.

The soothing effect upon a tender tummy obtainable from a glass of ice cold milk, with a generous helping of whipping cream, was touted by some of the imbibers questioned, as virtually infallible. There was one wag, however, that suggested adding a substantial amount of creme de menthe to the milk/cream cure — adding, with a grin, if you can stand the color, it'll cure you, and if you can't, there's little hope for the sufferer until time, that magic cure, can exert its influence, which might take 24, 36 or 48 hours, which really doesn't take as long as it sometimes seems.

For those who lean toward a glass of buttermilk, one lady confessed that the medicinal benefits of this soothing drink are enhanced by letting a bottle of peppermint schnapps gurgle into said glass for several moments before adding the buttermilk, but, she intoned, excessive stirring will definitely improve the concoction.

For those who have indulged in champagne, another lady claimed that a glass of the bubbly, as the day progresses, not only tickled her nose but worked wonders as a day brightener.

For those who feel the need of sustenance, one chap, who claimed to have had much experience in this cure for New Year's booze blues, said there's nothing quite the equal of a couple of eggs, poached in a mixture of beer and tomato juice, 50/50, laid gently upon well buttered halves of English muffins. Furthermore, he said if the sufferer can stand the looks of the mess this makes in a skillet, that the repast will do wonders as a picker upper.

One husky stalwart suggested, in complete confidence, that his sure fire remedy to cure any case of overindulgence was a huge glass of apricot nectar, with plenty of ice, and a generous dosage of creme de menthe, white, 'cause the green kind tends to turn the apricot's orangish color into something that looks totally unpalatable — if consumed the morning after.

There were other suggestions, none of which sounded especially tasty, or appetizing, that can't appear in a family newspaper, so they were omitted.

However, thus armed with sure cure remedies, perhaps some of the joy that prevailed during welcoming in the New Year can be recaptured early in the morn of January 1, to get you over the hump and into the Happy New Year spirit — again.

There was one final suggestion, made by several of the cure providers, recommending that moderation be the guide for those desiring to alleviate their morning after mourning.

New Mexicans should think snow

This time of year, skiers shouldn't be the only ones hoping a winter storm will sweep across New Mexico and dump a foot or two of snow on the slopes. Farmers, fishermen, and virtually everyone in the state depend on snow's spring runoff to fill New Mexico's irrigation ditches, reservoirs and drinking cups.

"Snow melt from the mountains comes at just the right time," said Dr. Tim Ward, a civil engineer at New Mexico State University. Ward specializes in hydrology and hydraulics, the occurrence and movement of water. He says runoff from melted snow is greatest from April through July.

In addition to providing water for rivers and lakes, snow melt also seeps into underground crevices and gravel beds escaping evaporation and replenishing the ground water supply. The state's urban water supply comes almost entirely from these ground water reserves.

Snow melt also makes a big contribution to New Mexico's reservoirs. Ward says much of the snow melt stored in reservoirs eventually winds up in irrigated fields throughout the state. Although the 1981 winter drought left the snow supply about 30 percent below normal, the state's major reservoirs held nearly twice their normal storage.

The reservoirs were able to maintain their supplies thanks mostly to heavy snowfall in northern New Mexico's mountains in 1980. That year, for example, more than 110 inches of snow fell in the Rio Chama watershed, more than twice the average for that northern New Mexico area.

The winter snowfall that brings in recreational dollars from skiing brings in additional income in the summer. Reservoirs and lakes filled with snow melt attract fishermen and boaters alike.

Ward is one of those attracted to reservoirs, but his interest is with the science not the sport. He and several other researchers are working on a project through the New Mexico Water Resources Research Institute on optimizing sport fishing in the Rio Grande Basin. "What we are measuring," he said, "is the value of turning water into fish into recreational income."

Snow is an important component of their study. "If the snow melt is good and the reservoirs get excess runoff, it definitely affects fishing," he said. A high water level isn't good for all species of fish, just those that thrive at high water levels. But, Ward says because these species also are popular with fishermen, a high water level also benefits the recreational industry.

Perhaps the one that keeps the closest watch on that fluffy white commodity is the Soil Conservation Service (SCS). From December to April each winter, the SCS takes snow surveys throughout the state. Based on these surveys the SCS publishes a water supply outlook for New Mexico's six drainage basins.

Predicting snow melt and stream flow is a complicated procedure that begins with measuring the amount of snowfall and the moisture content of the snow at 25 snow survey sites statewide. These on-site measurements plus weather histories and geological information are then compiled and plugged into equations that predict the stream flow from that drainage basin.

Snow depth isn't as important as the amount of moisture in the snow, said Ward. He explained that in new fallen snow, an average of 10 inches of snow equals one inch of water. Packed snow that has melted and refrozen, could contain as much as five inches of water for every 10 inches of snow.

Legislature scheduling youth reports

Youth representatives from high schools around the state will present regional reports to a joint session of the New Mexico State Legislature on January 11, 1982, at 11 A.M. in the house chambers.

The youth reports were developed as part of seven conferences entitled "New Mexico Youth in the 80's" held around the state in November and December of this year. The young people will offer their viewpoint on the issues and concerns affecting children and youth during the next decade and their ideas for resolution of problems.

Topics include drug and alcohol abuse, youth unemployment, cultural and age bias, family breakup and violence, lack of recreation, relevant school curriculum and youth input into policy making. (This project was developed and implemented through a grant from the federal Health and Human Services Department when President Reagan cancelled the White House Conference on Children and Youth earlier this year.)

Sorority held Yule meeting

Eta Chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa met recently at the Beth Nosker home, Glencoe, for the sorority's annual Christmas luncheon party.

Reba Hardy, recipient of the Eta 1981 scholarship, was a special guest at the meeting.

Members discussed supporting a candidate for state office at the spring convention in Albuquerque, and participated in a short quiz on fraternity education.

Luncheon hosts were Greta Cabot and Nellie Ruth Jones, with a gift exchange being held.

The group will meet January 9 at the home of Charley Cooper.

PEOPLE

The Silver Lining

BY DANIEL AGNEW STORM

"That Stardust Melody..."

In that peaceful, dreamy little interlude between Christmas and New Years, our hearts are filled with both hopes for the future and also fond memories of other days.

When I heard on the Monday morning radio news that Hoagy Carmichael, one of the most beloved of American composers had been called Home, before I knew it I had burst into tears.

Not from sorrow so much, as because right in the middle of this mood of remembering happy days of my youth, here came this mention of a man who had brought so much happiness into the early days of my life and into the lives of countless others.

I wonder whether or not a composer ever dreams of how much lasting joy he brings into the hearts of all of us with a favorite song. Such songs as "I Dream of Jeannie with the Light Brown Hair" and "Old Black Joe" by Stephen Foster; "Old Man River"; "Always," by Irving Berlin; and hosts of others.

Few songs reached the hearts of Americans like Hoagy Carmichael's "Stardust." All the big bands featured it—Guy Lombardo, Wayne King, Louis Armstrong, and all the rest.

In happy youth, which is a stranger to sorrow or sadness, songs with a touch of sadness have a great attraction. So "Stardust" strikes a chord in all of us, young and old.

Hoagy had a great gift for making the words and the music of his songs match perfectly, creating a harmony which reaches deeply into our hearts.

Surely now, on his way to Our Lord, Hoagy Carmichael has had a closer look at the Stardust he immortalized in the song. Just for old time's sake, let us go over the words of his masterpiece:

Sometimes I wonder why
I spend these lonely nights
Dreaming of a song.
The melody haunts my reverie
Of paradise where roses grew
When our love was new
And each kiss an inspiration.

But that was long ago
And now my consolation
Is in the stardust of a song.

Beside a garden wall
Where stars shine bright
You are in my arms
The nightingale
Tells his fairy tale.
And I'm alone again with you.
And though I dream in vain
Ever in my heart it will remain
That Stardust melody
A memory of love's refrain.

"For Auld Lang Syne"

Speaking of "for old time's sake" this message will reach you on New Year's Eve. And once again we gather to sing this fond sentiment in words of the early Scotch dialect handed down to us by Robert Burns, "The Singing Plough Boy" who during a life of "Rustic Toil" brought the world some of the most enduring lines of poetry and song.

Directly translated "Auld Lang Syne" means, Old Long Since, or really, for Old Time's Sake. Here is the first verse and chorus:

"Should auld acquaintance be forgot
And never brought to mind?
Should auld acquaintance be forgot
And days of Auld Lang syne?"

For auld lang syne, my dear
For auld lang syne
We'll take a cup of kindness yet
For auld lang syne."

Burns answers his own question in the first verse in his chorus. Surely we will not forget old times and friends. Quite the other way around, we pay loving tribute to both as we welcome in the new year.

And we all look forward with the brightest of hope for the new year, and deep gratefulness to God for all His blessings yesterday, today and always.

Learning the fundamentals of basketball

BY GARY BROWN
Sports Writer/Photographer

Learning a sport from the ground up is a good way to describe the Ruidoso-Sertoma Little League basketball program. There are eight teams in the league which will probably begin double round robin play in late January. The teams are currently undergoing practices at White Mountain Middle School. The league is in its third year of existence, and kids 10-12 years old are eligible to play. Rolland Ramos is the coach of one of the teams. Ramos, who is the pressman at The News, is in his second year of coaching Little League basketball. "We try and teach the kids sportsmanship, team play and basketball fundamentals," Ramos said. "By doing this we can also help get them ready for basketball at the mid-school and the high school. We're also going to let every kid play." "Many of these kids have never played or even touched a basketball before. So we start at the beginning and teach them everything." Such fundamentals as dribbling, shooting the ball properly and even how to raise their hands when they've been called for a foul are part of the learning experience for the youths. Ramos has nine players on his team, including one girl. "The league is open for both boys and girls," he said. "I'd say there are about 10 or 12 girls in the league this season." Ramos has a basketball background, having competed for his high school team in Hull-Daisetta, Texas, in the late 1960s. He also played in junior high school and on a youth basketball team similar to the one he's coaching now. He's 5-10½ now, but was only 5-4 on his high school team where he was a guard.

He didn't start but did manage to letter. "We had some good players on my high school team," Ramos said. "I think we won our district every one of the four years I was in high school. We had some big players too, so I didn't get to play really that much."

Ramos has some sympathy for the small players and that's one of the reasons why he likes to see every player get a chance to compete.

"When I was in the fifth grade I didn't really get a chance to play on our team because I was small," Ramos said. "Plus he had five or six guys who were really good. I had my greatest playing experience in junior high school where I started playing guard."

Even though he didn't get much playing experience in high school Ramos gained a lot of valuable information listening to his coaches.

"We had some very good coaches in high school," he said. "I learned a lot about coaching and the fundamentals of basketball then and that's helped me a lot in coaching these kids."

The league, which is sponsored by the Sertoma Club, will also have sponsors for each of the teams once the season begins. The teams will practice at least four more days in January before the season starts.

Next season Ramos is hopeful that the local Little League will join the Little Dribblers, an Albuquerque-based league organized along the same lines as baseball's Little League.

"They have more playoffs. Just like Little League baseball," Ramos said. "They want an organization to build up a stable program before they will allow it to join their program."

This season the Ruidoso Little League will have its own playoffs after the regular season ends. However, the teams don't compete against clubs from other areas. Ramos also likes to see kids improve from the time they start practicing.

"After about 20 days you can see a lot of improvement," he said. "Kids who never touched a basketball before have learned a lot of the fundamentals by then."

It's obvious the Little League program is working. Several of this year's White Mountain Middle School's undefeated boys' A team played in the program the past couple of seasons.

Players like Russell Easter, Mark Langston, Richardo Garcia, Jason Bigham, Randy Reynolds, Omar Dix and Jeff Slatton all participated in the Little League program and all of these players are now doing well at White Mountain Middle School.

But whether the kids in the Little League program go on and do well in tougher competition or not, they will all get a chance to play on Rolland Ramos' team. And isn't that what youth sports are all about?

CHARLTON PLATTA (left) tries to dribble past Scott Frost in a Little League basketball practice last night at White Mountain Middle School. Both players are coached by Rolland Ramos. The players are also taught how to shoot, rebound and play defense in the practices. The league season begins in late January. There will be league playoffs after the regular season.

HAYS ALLEN practices dribbling with the ball in a Little League basketball workout last night. There are eight teams in the Ruidoso-Sertoma Little League and the season will begin in late January. Rolland Ramos is Allen's coach.

ROLLAND RAMOS (left) coach of a Little League basketball team, gives some instructions to Albert Platta in a team practice Wednesday night at White Mountain Middle School. There are nine players on Ramos' team, eight boys and a girl. Team competition will start in late January.

SPORTS

Around Sports

with Gary Brown

Saturday's Sun Bowl between Houston and Oklahoma was probably a disappointment attendance-wise but people who attended the game in El Paso, Texas, got a look at the real Sooners' team.

Although Oklahoma finished the season with a fair 7-4-1 record (including the 40-14 victory over Houston) the Sooners showed the talent in the game that has made them one of college football's top teams over the past 30 years.

The Sooners were extremely explosive in the contest, going from a 7-7 tie in the second quarter to the eventual one-sided margin of victory.

But the crowd of less than 34,000 people was disappointing. Perhaps the mediocre records of the competing teams had something to do with the disappointing turnout. Houston ended up 8-3-1 on the year to go with Sooners' 7-4-1 record.

The Sun Bowl is one of the older bowl games in the country so it's not likely we're likely to see a quick demise in the prestige of the bowl game. Although the attendance figures for this year's contest were lower than expected part of it could probably be attributed to the recession the country is currently in and the so-so records of the teams involved.

Actually the result of this year's game could be a blessing for future Sun Bowls. Oklahoma showed that it is on the way back to becoming the powerhouse it once was and it exhibited the kind of offensive show that attracts people to football games.

The Sun Bowl may never match the Rose Bowl, Orange Bowl or Cotton Bowl in drawing power and nationwide publicity but it should be around for a long while.

Sunday's results in the National Football League wild-card playoffs may have been a bit surprising to the bettors in Las Vegas and other places but they weren't that shocking to me.

The New York Giants held off the Philadelphia Eagles 27-21 in a game that wasn't really that close thanks to some early Philly turnovers.

The Buffalo Bills finally showed the talent they displayed last season, and in the first two games of this campaign, by outlasting the hosting New York Jets.

In the National Conference game between the Giants and the Eagles, New York showed that it has perhaps the best defense in the NFL. The Eagles showed again that their offense consists of handing the ball off to Wilbert Montgomery or passing it to Harold Carmichael. You can't win games with that limited an offensive plan. Also, the Eagles' defense did not play one of its better games as Rob Carpenter ran for 161 yards through the Philadelphia defenders.

Looking ahead to this weekend's semi-final games, I see four close contests.

On Saturday look for Miami to edge San Diego 24-21 and Dallas to top Tampa Bay 20-18. On Sunday Cincinnati will nip Buffalo 28-24 and San Francisco will beat the Giants 14-10.

Buffalo displayed an outstanding offense against the Jets. Even though the Jets have the top quarterback-sacking defensive group in the league it proved to be no match for the Bills' quality offensive line and its well-balanced offense.

The American Conference semi-final tilts will be high-scoring affairs since offense is the strongest point of the four teams involved.

I can't see Cincinnati losing to Buffalo at home, the Bengals proved themselves over the course of a 16-game season and are probably the best team in their conference.

Miami has been more consistent than San Diego this season and will also be playing at home. However, the Chargers' offensive firepower and the past two years could well make this game the most exciting of the four.

Dallas hasn't really put together a complete game all season so there's some question as to whether the Cowboys can actually blow somebody out. Still, Dallas is almost unbeatable at home and should handle the Bucs.

The 49er-Giants contest should be a battle of immovable objects. Both teams have awesome defensive units. The slight advantage should go to San Francisco since it's the home team. Also, while the 49ers don't figure to score many points against the Giant defense the NY offense should get even less points against a 49er defense that includes defensive end Fred Dean, and linebacker Jack Reynolds, probably the best young secondary in the league's history.

Warrior cagers prepare for Goddard

Ruidoso High School's varsity boys' team hopes more playing experience will help when it travels to Roswell to meet Goddard High School Tuesday.

The Warriors, 1-5 on the season, will be in action for the first time since losing to Artesia 81-33 December 19. Ruidoso's only victory came over Dexter, 77-61, December 17 on the Warriors' court. Ruidoso fell to Goddard 79-56 December 11 on the Warriors' court. "We'll be more ready for Goddard this time around," Warrior head coach Barry Nelson said. "We plan on doing some different things this time around."

Ruidoso has been inconsistent offensively this season. The Warriors have averaged 60.3 points a game, but have given up 76 points a contest. Ruidoso seemed to have its offense going when it scored 72 points in a losing cause at Lovington and 77 in the victory over Dexter.

However, the Warriors just weren't ready to play basketball against Artesia, according to Nelson. Ruidoso wasn't able to generate any consistent offense against Artesia, which is usually one of the top AAA teams in the state each season. In the loss to Lovington the Warriors were minus several players and probably could have improved their score considerably with a full team.

Goddard has had a winning season so far and appears to be stronger than cross-town rival Roswell. Despite the fact the Rockets represent a tough challenge to Ruidoso, Nelson sees the game as helpful to the Warriors.

"We need a tough game against a good team like Goddard to help us get ready for Silver," he said. Ruidoso plays Silver City in the district 3-AAA opener January 9 at the Warrior gym. Center Bill Richardson (6-3) and guards Scott Neal and Wade Wilson have been the top scoring threats for Ruidoso so far this season. However, Marc Delhotal, Bobby Knox and Steve Sluder have also shown improvement during the course of early play.

The Ruidoso varsity has been practicing formal practices during the holiday break and the junior varsity has been practicing under coach Ron Geyer.

The junior varsity will play Goddard at 6 p.m., followed by the varsity contest.

WHO'S NEXT, Ruidoso High School girls' basketball coach Sergio Castanon seems to be saying in a practice yesterday afternoon at the Warriors' gym. Ruidoso, 3-3 on the season, will host Artesia Tuesday afternoon in a non-district contest. The Warriors, 0-1 in district 3-AAA competition, will resume district play after the Artesia game.

Lady Warriors gearing for game with Artesia

Ruidoso High School's girls' basketball team has been undergoing daily practice this week in preparation for Tuesday's home game with Artesia.

The Warriors are 3-3 on the season after losing a 50-36 decision to a powerful Capitan team two weeks ago. Ruidoso's last game before the holiday break. Ruidoso is 0-1 in district 3-AAA action, having lost to a strong Cobre team, 54-13 three weeks ago. The Warriors looked impressive in winning the consolation championship of the Weed Tournament in their season opener. Since then they have struggled somewhat but the holiday practices should help them gear up for the Artesia contest and the district season afterwards.

Claudia Brannan, who was also a standout in volleyball, has been the leading scorer for Ruidoso this season. The 5-7 senior forward was named all-tournament at the Weed classic.

Other players who have been impressive for Ruidoso this season are Jan Huey, a 5-11 center who has been a tough rebounder, guard Tammy Valdez, 5-11 forward Robin Rhodes and Bridget Almager

SCOTT NEAL

Ski Racers ready for Colorado meet

Three members of the Ruidoso Junior Ski Racers, Brett Maul, Marty Rose and Kevin Behrens, will compete in a B-G slalom race Saturday and Sunday in Monarch, Colorado.

Cappie King, one of the more experienced ski racers, will compete in an Elbert race January 6-7. King participated in an Elbert qualifying race the weekend of December 12-13 in Aspen, Colorado and qualified for the later meet.

The junior racing season gets on in earnest the rest of the month and will last until late April. Most of the meets will be in Colorado.

Local gymnastics club shows improvement

Ruidoso Gymnastics Academy (RGA) is rapidly developing one of the best all-around gym programs in New Mexico.

The program, directed by John Eberle, is geared for young people and most of the participants are girls.

A big part of the program is the Mountaintops competition team, which will compete in the Midland, Texas, Invitational Saturday, January 9.

According to Eberle the Midland meet will be the "biggest meet our girls will compete in for a long time, maybe two years. It's a very high quality meet."

Twelve teams from several states will be in the competition. Among the teams are the Oklahoma Twisters of Tulsa and the Rocky Mountain Gymnastics Club of Denver, Colorado. The Greenhaw Athletic Club of Austin, Texas is also entered in the meet and is the largest gymnastics club in the country, according to Eberle.

After the Midland meet the Mountaintops are hopeful of competing with Alamogordo sometime late next month. After that the local team will travel to Las Cruces February 6 and then prepare for the state meet February 26 in Albuquerque.

The Gold Cup Gymnastics Club of Albuquerque will host the state meet.

"They're basically known for turning out outstanding boy gymnasts," Eberle said of the Gold Cup organization. "They do have a girls' program but two of their recent boy stars were in the Junior Olympics."

Outside of the Mountaintops competing team the RGA is also planning to expand some of its classes. Besides the beginning classes in gymnastics Eberle is hoping to add a physical education class late next month.

"The lower grades in Ruidoso don't provide P.E. classes," said Eberle. "So we're trying to start a physical education program here for youngsters. There would be a $12.50 monthly charge for the program and kids would participate in two a week."

The program would consist of general warm-up exercises and then the kids would participate in volleyball and kickball games.

Eberle is also planning to get a new floor exercise mat.

"The mat would cost at least $6,000-$7,000 if we bought a new one," said Eberle. "We're also going to remodel the bleachers. They're about 35 years old and remodeling and resanding them is a lot cheaper than buying some new ones. It will only cost us about $350-$400 to remodel them, where if we bought new ones they would probably run over $4,000. We're going to be saving a lot of money."

Eberle, who is in his second year as RGA director, feels the program has come a long way since its fall season started in September.

CHARLENE HICKSON seems to be suspended in mid-air during a practice on the uneven parallel bars yesterday morning at the Ruidoso Gymnastics Academy. Hickson is the only Class II athlete on the RGA's Mountaintops team. The rest of the Mountaintops athletes are younger and in Class III. They will compete in the Midland, Texas, Invitational Saturday, January 9.

Vietnam veterans well educated

A new statistical profile of the nearly 9.08 million men and women in military service during the Vietnam era shows that a total of 251,000 of them now reside in Colorado, Utah, New Mexico and Wyoming.

The breakdown last September 30, according to the new Veterans Administration (VA) report, "Data on Vietnam Era Veterans": Colorado, 135,000; Utah, 61,000; New Mexico, 42,000; and Wyoming, 13,000.

The report also notes the number of veterans who actually served in Vietnam who were residents of those states when they first entered military service: Colorado, 59,000; Utah, 19,000; New Mexico, 27,000; and Wyoming, 6,000, as estimated.

The report reveals that the average age for those veterans who served during the Vietnam era — August 5, 1964, to May 7, 1975 — now is 34.8 years. VA readjustment programs and other benefits for this youngest group of veterans amounted to $5.7 billion during the last fiscal year. More than $57 billion has been spent during the 17 years since the beginning of the Vietnam era. Nearly half of that amount has gone directly to veterans enrolled in school. Vietnam-era veterans now are the best educated group of veterans in the nation's history, having outstripped both World War II and Korean Conflict veterans.

The VA study reveals that, nationally, 50.5 percent of the World War II veterans used GI Bill education benefits while only 43.4 percent of the Korean Conflict veterans did so.

A national average of 65.8 percent of the Vietnam-era veterans used their education benefits. That is topped by nearly 82 percent of those in New Mexico and nearly 70 percent in Colorado. Wyoming about matches the average with more than 64 percent. The Utah average is more than 52 percent.

Nationally, more Vietnam veterans have used the GI Bill for college than the total for World War II and the Korean Conflict combined.

Compensation and pension payments comprise the second largest VA expenditure to Vietnam-era veterans, $2.16 billion last fiscal year for a total of $13.7 billion through fiscal 1981. Also, Vietnam-era veterans received $911 million in VA medical services last fiscal year for a total of $5.34 billion since 1964.

The report shows that California leads the nation in the number of Vietnam-era veterans — 1,002,000 call it home. New York State is next, with 608,000; followed by Texas, with 530,000; Pennsylvania, with 494,000; Ohio, with 450,000; and Illinois, with 431,000. Wyoming, with 13,000, has fewer Vietnam-era veterans than any other state. Other report highlights:

— There are nearly 198,000 female Vietnam-era veterans. About 22 percent of them are between the ages of 25 and 34. Those numbers don't include females who served in prior war periods.

— Thirty-two percent of Vietnam-era veterans in civil life saw service in the Vietnam theater of operations. The median length of active duty service of Vietnam-era veterans is 37 months.

— Fifty percent of Armed Forces separations since the start of the Vietnam era have been from the United States Army. Following in order are the Navy, 21 percent; Air Force, 13 percent; Marine Corps, 10 percent; and Coast Guard, 1 percent. Ninety-six percent of these discharges were under honorable conditions.

— There have been 47,244 deaths from actions by hostile forces in connection with the conflict in Vietnam. There are 13 persons still listed as missing in action.

— Unemployment rates not seasonally adjusted for Vietnam-era veterans reached a maximum of 11 percent in February of 1975. The September 1981 rate was 5.2 percent, down 1 percent from a year earlier.

— During the week ending last August 23, there were 41,000 Vietnam-era veterans receiving unemployment compensation for ex-service personnel benefits. One year earlier, there were 56,000 doing so.

— Ninety-six percent of the 5,159,000 non-institutional male Vietnam-era veterans aged 20 to 34 worked during calendar year 1980, nearly three out of four at year-round, full-time jobs.

— The unemployment rate for black and other nonwhite Vietnam-era veterans ages 20 to 34 years was 14.2 percent in the second quarter of 1981. That rate still remains about double the rate of 6.3 percent for white veterans.

— The median personal money income of civilian male, non-institutional Vietnam-era veterans (20-34 years of age) during calendar year 1980 was $16,390. The median income of families headed by Vietnam-era veterans was $22,870.

— Vietnam-era veterans accounted for 14.1 percent of all patients in VA medical centers on the 1980 census day of September 24. They accounted for 24.7 percent of psychiatric and 20.8 percent of psychotic patients, but only 7.1 percent of general medical and surgical patients.

— There were 3.8 million total outpatient visits by Vietnam-era veterans during fiscal 1981. This represented 21 percent of all outpatient visits during that year at VA medical facilities, including three medical centers in Colorado, two in Wyoming, and one in Utah and one in New Mexico.

— There were 680,000 active compensation and pension cases concerning Vietnam-era veterans as of last September plus 568,000 disability cases, and 94,000 death cases. The death cases involved a total of 173,000 beneficiaries. Of the 36,000 active compensation cases rated at 100 percent, some 24,000 are for psychiatric and neurological disorders. — Through the month of last September, applications had been received from 6,761,000 Vietnam-era veterans and service personnel for GI Bill assistance. Of those, 6,422,000 had entered training.

— There were 392,000 Vietnam-era veterans and service personnel in training last September 30. Of those, 297,000 were in institutions of higher learning, 27,000 in on-job training, and 68,000 in other schools.

— Through last September, more than 2.25 million guaranteed or insured loans have been made to Vietnam-era veterans and service personnel. The amount of those loans totaled more than $69 billion. More than 21,000 direct loans, amounting to almost $572 million, have been made to qualifying veterans and service personnel of the Vietnam era.

Procedure changes on veterans' grave markers

The Veterans Administration (VA) is reminding former servicemen and women that VA burial benefits often can spare the family anxiety and financial hardship immediately after the veteran's death.

Interment in Santa Fe or Fort Bayard national cemeteries is available to veterans discharged under conditions other than dishonorable, said Joe Cordova, director, Albuquerque VA Regional Office. The eligible veteran's spouse and minor children, and, under certain conditions, unmarried adult children, are eligible also.

VA will furnish a headstone or marker to memorialize a veteran or mark the grave of a veteran buried in a national, state or private cemetery, he said. VA also will provide markers to eligible dependents interred in a national or state veterans' cemetery.

Recent legislation broadened eligibility for memorial headstones or markers. VA may provide those services to all veterans whose remains haven't been recovered or identified. This includes those who were buried at sea — whether by the veteran's own choice or otherwise, those whose bodies were donated to science, and those who were cremated and the ashes scattered without burying any portion of the ashes. The law also requires a memorial section be set aside in a national cemetery if one doesn't already exist and where land is available.

VA also provides up to $300 toward the burial expenses of eligible veterans and an additional $150 as a plot or interment allowance if the veteran isn't buried in one of the 108 national cemeteries or other government cemetery.

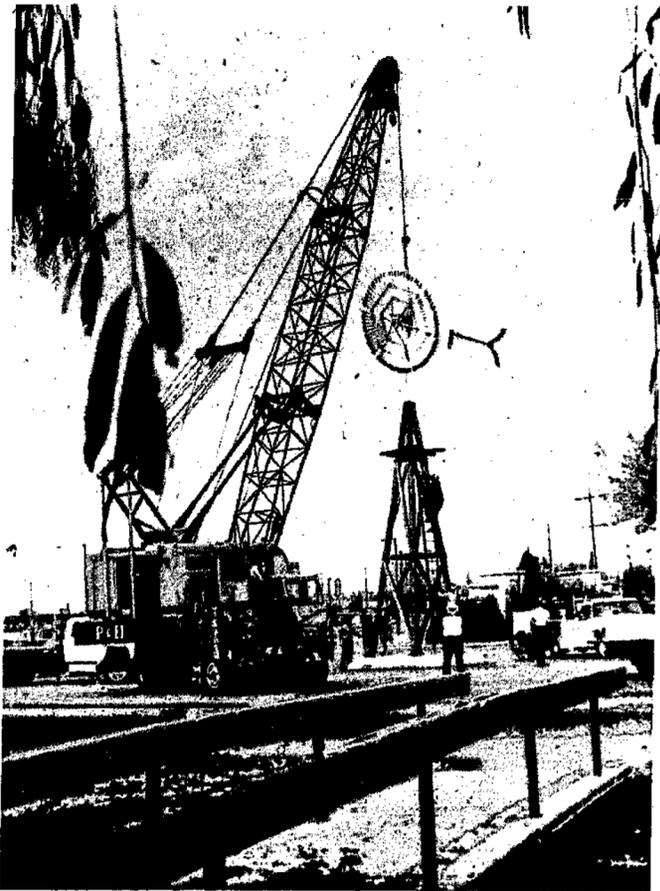

Effective last October 1, the burial allowance was limited by public law to veterans eligible for VA pension or compensation and to those who die in VA medical facilities. The plot allowance, not affected by the new law, is available to all veterans who served during war periods.

If the veteran's death was service connected, VA will pay an amount not to exceed $1,100 in lieu of the usual burial and plot allowance.

VA also will provide an American flag upon request for use in covering a casket, reimbursement of $63 for part of the cost of a headstone or marker bought and placed on the grave of a veteran, and presidential memorial certificate expressing recognition of the deceased veteran's service.

In addition to VA burial benefits, veterans and their dependents may be eligible for a lump sum monetary death benefit provided by the Social Security Administration. Local Social Security offices have details.

For more information on VA burial benefits, telephone the Albuquerque VA Regional Office toll free 766-3361 in the Albuquerque area and 1-800-432-6853 elsewhere in New Mexico.

A CRANE SETTLES a restored antique windmill on top of its tower recently on the NMSU campus in Las Cruces. The old windmill was donated to the university by J. M. Smith, owner of the Playas Ranch in Hidalgo County where the windmill was originally installed in 1868. The all-wood antique was restored by M. I. Rasmussen, NMSU wind energy instructor. NMSU campus boasts circa 1880 windmill

A restored antique windmill that has been donated to New Mexico State University (NMSU) has been erected on the NMSU Las Cruces campus near the College of Agriculture and Home Economics buildings.

The all-wood windmill design dates back to the 1850s, but this particular one was made by the A. J. Corcoran Company in New York in the late 1880s.

It was shipped by rail to Hachita, then taken another 22 miles by wagon and erected on the Playas Ranch in Hidalgo County in 1888. That was the same year New Mexico A and M College (now NMSU) was founded, and the antique windmill will probably be a centerpiece for part of the university's centennial observance.

The windmill was donated to the university in 1977 by J. M. Smith, owner of the Playas Ranch, and was restored by M. I. Rasmussen, NMSU wind energy instructor.

Windmills are symbolic of the Southwest because they played a practical role in settlement of New Mexico and other Central and Western states.

Windmills began to dominate the Southwestern landscape in the 1850s as new railroads pushed across the land. Steam engines had an unquenchable thirst for water, something the semi-arid land could not provide on a dependable basis.

Windmills cost the railroads only about $27.50 each in those days, so thousands were erected along the rail lines at 30 mile intervals. Farther from the tracks, as permanent settlers moved in, windmills pumped life giving water for crops, livestock and pioneer families.

Between 1889 and 1928, more than six million windmills were made in the United States by 131 different manufacturers. Windmills started to be abandoned in favor of well pumps powered by electricity until there were only three windmill manufacturers left in this country by 1942.

However, by the 1970s, energy costs brought a new surge in popularity for the breeze-powered windmill. The familiar round fan form is being used again to pump water across New Mexico, but the newest things in windmills are the exotic forms designed to be ultra-efficient while driving electric generators.

Truth or Consequences Veterans Home planned

The New Mexico Veterans' Service Commission has applied to the State to operate a Veterans Home at the Carrie Tingle Crippled Childrens Hospital buildings at Truth or Consequences.

The buildings, located on 103 acres, contain extensive recreational areas, physical therapy facilities, and indoor mineral water swimming pool maintained at a temperature of 108 degrees, plus occupational and hobby areas.

Plans include housing for 125 ambulatory residents and 25 intermediate nursing care patients during the first year of operation. The second year, after renovation, the facility would serve an additional 25 to 35 domiciliary residents and 35 nursing patients.

Under the proposed plan, the Veterans Administration would pay $190 per month for ambulatory residents and $360 monthly for nursing patients. Ambulatory veterans would have to pay $275, and nursing patients $575 monthly, in addition. After the second year, the monthly payment for veterans would be $302.35 and $600.12 for nursing patients.

CHRIS FERGUSON LEAPS off of the truck to lend assistance to fork lift operator Gary Taylor with the first 1,400 pound load of marble. Lincoln Fox, in the background, figures out how they are going to get the next load out.

Fox to carve ten tons of Italian marble

BY JEAN PATTERSON
Staff Writer/Photographer

It had to be shipped by boat from Italy, loaded on a truck at Houston, Texas, driven to Ruidoso and finally unloaded by forklift to deposit the 10 tons of statuario marble at Lincoln Fox's studio. Now, nearly a year after he ordered it, the stone is here for Fox to begin carving.

The marble was shipped in 17 crates, each weighing approximately 1,400 pounds.

While in a small village in Italy last year, Fox and his wife, Rochelle, chose the stone from Carrara Quarries near Pietra Santa on the northwest coast of Italy. The quarries are the same ones from which Michelangelo got his stone.

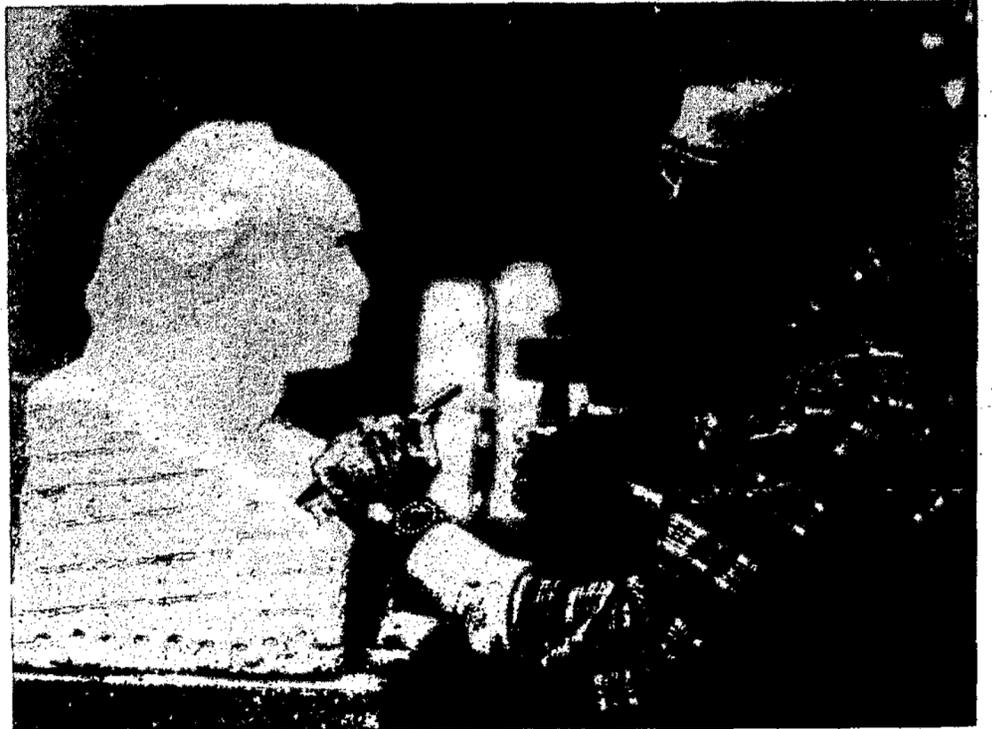

"The grains are so close in this stone, it is almost like compressed flour," Fox said. The Foxes travel to Italy approximately once a year and choose Pietra Santa for their visit for the wealth of sculptors who frequent the village. There are five bronze foundries in the village. Bronze has become Fox's specialty. However, he recently became interested in attempting stone carving after a lapse of 15 years.

"It's almost like driving backwards," Fox said. He described the process used in bronzes in which the artist works on a model of clay, then puts the model through a series of castings; building the sculpture from the inside out. However, in carving stone, the sculptor starts on the outside of the piece and works to the inside.

"There are so many possibilities; it is so spontaneous. Every scratch made on the stone is your scratch. Stone is a lasting material and it is a challenge," Fox said. "I got hooked. I couldn't help myself."

BETTER GET OUT OF the way seems to be fork lift operator Gary Taylor's message to Chris Ferguson.

DEMONSTRATING SOME OF the tools and techniques used in carving marble is Ruidoso sculptor Lincoln Fox. Fox is best known for his bronze castings, but is now eager to get back to stone carving.

HAPPY NEW YEAR...TERRY COE FOR MAYOR

I sincerely hope everyone will have a Happy and Prosperous New Year. Fellow Ruidosoans, I need your help. There are still a lot of Ruidoso residents who are not registered to vote. There are hundreds of young people who are not registered to vote. If you aren't registered by the end of this month then you can't vote, so please encourage each other to get registered NOW. You can get registered at either bank any time or at City Hall any time.

If you are concerned with Ruidoso's future, then I need your help. To start with we need several Ruidosoans with spare time during the month of January to man Voter Registration tables in several of the local business. Its no problem to get certified to do this public service. So please call me, Terry Coe at 257-6078.

My family has always been in the farming and ranching business in Lincoln County and I help run our family ranch. My wife, Teresa, and I raise most of our own food from our gardens. We import and export products and manufacture fur coats in Denver. We own part interest in a cafe. I build several homes a year. We have one real estate contract, and two rentals. We usually pay taxes on earnings of approximately $25-33 thousand dollars a year depending on how our businesses do. All of our financial records will be open to the public. We have no vestige interests and we don't owe any political favors.

When you elect me as your Mayor I will not disassociate myself from YOU my fellow Ruidosoans. I will listen to your ideas and suggestions. I will encourage the local business people and residents to get much more involved in the Village decision making. What Ruidoso needs is a Mayor and City Council that is interested in the "future" of Ruidoso instead of lining their own pockets while in office.

When you put me in office I will work on the following priorities: to get Ruidoso a water reserve of 300 million gallons of water or more in earth reservoirs; to repair the streets and pave older dirt streets; to try and bring in some form of industry or manufacturing; to improve the youth summer jobs; to try to bring in a college or junior college; to try to get a city convention center and rodeo grounds; to build more city parks with ponds; to do what ever is necessary so that the Village government will operate efficiently and to cut down on waste; to inact a program for the Village residents to help the Village government run more efficiently; to do some long range planning of the Village future growth and do what the majority of the Ruidoso residents would like to have done over the next four years.

I feel that a cities mayor is a servent of the people and not their Boss. This election is very important for the future of Ruidoso. We are at a crucial time. We need a new government to operate out of our new city hall.

There are plenty of very qualified people in Ruidoso to be put in office. The future is up to you, the Residents, not the politicians. I want to see a large turn out for the Village council positions...and let the Best Men Win.

If you want to talk to me and get better aquainted or discuss the issues then please give me a call. Any and all help is greatly appreciated. Thank you.

Respectfully,
Terry Coe

The ultimate tax shelter...

That's something anybody—of any age—can appreciate. Which is exactly why you should open an Individual Retirement Account now at Security Bank, Ruidoso. No matter what your age.

The laws concerning IRA's have just changed. If you're married, and both working, each of you can now deposit up to $2000 each year—$2250 for the two of you if your spouse is non-working—into an Individual Retirement Account. And the entire amount can be deducted from your annual taxable income.

Not only are your IRA funds protected from all income taxes until you begin withdrawing, but so is the annual interest you earn. Which means 100% of your interest earns interest.

When you begin withdrawing, you are taxed only according to your tax bracket at the time. Which will probably be lower than it is today.

If you are not participating in a pension plan, your 1981 contribution to an IRA can be made up until the time you file your income taxes (April 15, 1982), and still qualify as a deduction for the 1981 tax year.

What's more, you can now contribute to an IRA even if you're already participating in a pension plan. That's new, too.

Contributions can be made weekly, monthly, annually—whichever way is easiest for you.

You can begin withdrawing your IRA funds any time after age 59½. It's not even necessary that you be retired, to begin taking money from your IRA.

So you see, an IRA is not just for retirement. You'll benefit from it your entire life.

For more information about IRA's, call us at 257-4611 or stop by our main bank today.

If you don't, next year you'll be saying — "Damn, I could have bought that last year when the price was only . . . !!"

PILOT'S DREAM — Your plane will be in walking distance from this 3 bedroom, 1 1/2 bath house. Lava rock fireplace graces living room area. Enjoy a view off the deck of the airport and White Mountain area. Furnished price is $89,500.00.

RIGHT IN THE MIDDLE OF TOWN — but enjoys privacy you won't believe! $20,000.00 down will get you into this 3 bedroom, 2 bath house. Open living room-kitchen combination lets Mom enjoy the fireplace and TV with the family. Owner offers 13% financing.

$129,500.00 — If you want a quality-built new home in the heart of one of the most prestigious subdivisions in town, look no more — 3 bedrooms, 2 full baths, wet bar, redwood decks and contemporary architecture make this a super buy. JENN-AIR and ceiling fan are just two of the nice touches included.

ROOM FOR EXPANSION — Lodge and 34 mobile home hook-ups make this a fine commercial package, including 4 acres. Owner financing available. Over 500 ft. frontage on Highway 70 for high traffic exposure.

RENTERS DO NOT WANT TO MOVE — But they will for the smart buyer that picks up this grand house for $295,000.00. The property includes comparably priced listings with quality construction and many creature comforts. Bath and corral for your horses, and hot tub with a view for you. No wonder the renters love it!

$20,000.00 — FIVE ACRES of land in Magado Creek Estates. Mobile homes allowed, utilities available. Located only minutes away from Ruidoso in Noga! area. Need a cash buyer.

TEN COUNTRY LOTS zoned for mobile homes — Buy 'em all for just $26,500.00. There's already a good well on the property. This is another one you'll be crying over if you delay.

SANTA FE — Most of those who have moved to New Mexico from somewhere else (and more than 50 percent of those who live here have) tend to think New Mexico isn't very important.

If they come from Ottumwa, Iowa, say, they are sure Iowa matters; they just don't know whether this state does.

Well, here's one demonstration that New Mexico can now almost be taken as seriously as other parts of the country: It appropriates money in large amounts.

(As all Americans know, how much money you spend is a true measure of your real worth.)

For example: In 1981, the Legislature provided $100 million (that's $100,000,000, is you want to see it with all its zeroes) to the state Highway Department "contingent upon payment to the general fund of tax receipts . . . by contractors whose liability . . . is at issue in United States vs. New Mexico."

So what's the status of that suit? That's the one in which our state maintains that Sandia Laboratories and Los Alamos National Labs have to pay gross receipts tax to New Mexico.

It was argued before the Supreme Court of the United States recently.

The suit got to that high court by this route: New Mexico sued, maintaining that the labs have to pay our sales tax on the federal dollars they are paid. In federal district court, New Mexico lost. We then appealed, and the Appeals Court ruled in our favor. The United States then appealed to the Supreme Court.

Heart of the matter is a decision on current and back sales tax.

Our brief before the Supreme Court says their "contracts and purchase orders are devoid of language designating them as agents." We also suggest that Sandia at least is a government-owned, contractor-operated lab, which is something quite different from being an independent operation.

Big question now is what if the court rules in New Mexico's favor?

Could the state, for instance, seize their property?

Our representative who argued in Washington admitted that we could not.

So if New Mexico wins, Congress will have to appropriate money to pay the bills, a step which could make the Senate and House take a lot closer look at the financial relationships between the federal government and the states. At least the 36 other states who filed amicus curiae briefs to support New Mexico's position in this matter are concerned about it.

When will we know where we stand? Supreme Court watchers say we should have a decision by next April, or by June at the latest.

Joe Skeen sounds a little angry. The Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee contends that Joe and 47 other Republican freshmen in the House sent out mailings which failed to comply with federal law on electioneering.

Joe's comment: "Pure hogwash."

That's the kind of clear language we have become accustomed to from our southern district Congressman. Most New Mexicans find it a welcome relief from the

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor,

There is a young couple who live in our town who on Pearl Harbor Day had a five pound baby boy. He decided to get born a month early so he'd have a famous birthday. One catch, this little bomb coming so early had some respiratory problems and he had to be transferred to Roswell where they were better equipped to handle this problem. The irony of this story is that this young couple, Steve and Sheri Jarvis had worked part of their anatomy off at several different jobs and had saved enough money to have him delivered C.O.D. As most of us know, hospital cost are not cheap by a long shot. Their bill on the baby cost to the tune of about one thousand dollars per day for about two weeks. Steve and Sheri can't dance that much. They're having a real hard time. Steve is to finish high school, work at Big T & Daddy, provider, protector and dad. There just ain't enough of him to think that his friends and neighbors can help by providing a little. There have accounts set up at both Ruidoso Bank and Security Bank. Please let's put a dollar in an envelope, write Jarvis Benefit on it and take it by We-in window of either of our great banks. This small but needed gesture of love sure make a Happy Happy New Year for this young family. Please, let's all help.

Dear editor:

A MATTER OF CHEESE ECONOMICS

Our present administration in Washington is on the beam when it comes to reducing the size and cost of running the Federal Government along with reducing taxes, waste, etc., however, the passage of the farm subsidy bill leaves many of us conservatives less than enthusiastic.

First, let me explain that this bill does enable many small farmers to remain in existence but there ought to be a better way.

The tobacco farmer receives large subsidies from the same government, that spends millions advising of the perils of smoking. Seems odd if not somewhat stupid!

And this one really smells — the matter of the cheese surplus. Our government has 600 million pounds of cheese in government warehouses bought from the makers of cheese for one reason — keep the price of cheese in the price range of $2.50 to $3.50 a pound which you and I are now paying at the grocery store. The cost of warehousing this cheese is ONE MILLION DOLLARS PER DAY — Now, because some of the cheese is deteriorating, 30 million pounds are being given away to people in need.

We also have large quantities of frozen eggs and other food stuffs in storage. Why not establish a system of giving away all of the real surplus to the needy in exchange for less food stamps or no food stamps at all. This would eliminate a lot of the fraud problems connected with the food stamp program.

600 million pounds of cheese would furnish every man, woman and child almost 3 pounds per person. If the Farm Subsidy Bill had not been up for review it is possible that the large amount of cheese on hand would have gone on unnoticed until sometime in the future. What would we do with a billion pounds of cheese?

NUCLEAR SUBS' NAMES

The flap over the naming of a new nuclear-powered submarine may be excessive. Yet the controversy between the United States Navy and the National Conference of Catholic Bishops does highlight some significant issues.

The bishops strongly object to the Navy's decision to name the new submarine the ESS Corpus Christi. They point out that the Latin words translate as "body of Christ." Although the Navy points out that the name is intended to honor the City of Corpus Christi, Texas, the churchmen think it is highly inappropriate to give such a sacred name to a nuclear submarine.

Perhaps a case can be made that respect for diversity and religious sensitivity justifies a change of name by the Navy and Senator John Tower, Republican-Texas, who chose the name. However, the deeper importance of the bishops' statements relates to the conference leadership's decision to more strongly oppose nuclear arms. Archbishop John Roach, conference president, put the case bluntly: "The church needs to say 'no' clearly and decisively to the use of nuclear arms." Roach found it particularly appalling that the Reagan administration's proposed arms build-up is accompanied by deep cuts in social programs.

We concede that there are dangers when religious groups seek to impose their doctrines on civil society. However, certain concerns that emanate from religious or moral perceptions are nonetheless appropriate subjects for political debate. The bishops' entry into the debates on nuclear arms, military spending and social equity seems appropriate. — News-Bulletin, Belen

editorial

Predicting when Ruidoso's phenomenal growth pattern will slow down would be difficult, if not impossible.

The one development that could hasten that slow down would be the election of a mayor, and trustees, desirous of establishing a no growth policy that could sign the death knell for Ruidoso's future.

The two problems that must be solved in the immediate future are providing water and sewer service to our pending housing developments.

If the recent residential growth continues, it is logical that commercial development will likewise be stimulated.

Prattling about what should be done is just exactly that — prattle — unless that person can do sufficient research to make practical suggestions as to possible means of obtaining financing for village improvements that are feasible.

We trust that a field of candidates will surface for the March election that have the future of Ruidoso uppermost in mind — and solutions for finding financing for utilities services to funding developments based on a pay-as-you go plan, which is just about the only way to go to keep taxes down to levels that will encourage growth and development. — CD

Stuph & Junk

... by

'TIS TOUGH ABROAD

Gadzooks, but it's tougher'n prying a bear outta hibernation across the pond towards the east.

Firstly, there's those Red Brigade members in Italy as has glommed onto Brigadier General James Dozier . . . he's head honcho of NATO forces in them there parts.

Now the Red Brigade allows as how they have Dozier under wraps . . . and that they're fixin' to interrogate him . . . and all such goings on . . . to find out what gives with the NATO forces . . . presumably . . . after which they'll probably try him in their court . . . find him guilty of all sorts of charges . . . and probably execute him, 'cause them guys has declared war against us . . . which'll probably give them the excuse they need to make his wife a widow.

Then there's those folks as calls Poland home . . . and the cutbacks they are facing in butter and meat rations . . . which weren't all that generous to begin with . . . according to the news reports filtering out of Poland.

Besides the food shortages . . . real, or invoked by the Russians . . . the Poles are living under threat of Soviet takeover of everything . . . from government to military . . . which'd place them in subjugation to the Russians . . . and not make life very pleasant.

'Course there's the possibility that President Reagan can do some chitchatting with Brezhnev . . . and hopefully get his attention . . . to the end that maybe something can be worked out to get the Poles out of the direct clutches of the Russians . . . which just has to be wishful thinking.

Way it looks . . . and it ain't looking good . . . the Russians are going to see just how much prodding we'll stand for . . . and maybe give us a prod or two beyond that . . . just to test Reagan . . . and his advisors . . . and their patience . . . 'cause it's obvious the Russians don't think we'll do a thing . . . other than huff and puff and stew and fret and make threats . . . which seems to be a situation that has developed since Harry Truman got out of office.

Leastwise it looks as though that's Brezhnev's feelings toward us . . . and it'll probably be ever thus . . . unless Rompin' Ronnie really starts trompin' on Brezhnev's corns.

As to the general's problems in Italy . . . the Italian authorities are making sounds like they're doing everything possible to get Dozier out of the clutches of the Red Brigade . . . and time will tell . . . and there ain't nothing we can do about that . . . yes?

GRIDIRON FEVER

Yup . . . football addicts have their weekend's activities . . . maybe to the point of having to cope with an irked wife . . . pretty well cut out for them . . . what with so many bowl games on tap that the makers of bowls probably are wishing they was getting in on the action.

As to the number of bowls . . . it seems kinda ridiculous . . . to me . . . 'cause there just can't be 40, 50 or 60 top teams in the country . . . taking into account rip roaring Clemson and some of the other college teams . . . but I guess it's the good old American custom to have a surfeit of football . . . when the time's ripe.

So . . . get with it the next few weeks, football fans . . . 'cause there's a long dry spell coming . . . leaving you with hockey and soccer to watch for your violence.

SKIERS HAVING FUN

From what I hear tell the skiers are having a ball here . . . finding it exciting . . . except for those who are better skiers than there's snow on the slopes to challenge their abilities.

But there was just whole herds of folks here over the past weekend . . . trying out their luck . . . and expertise . . . and making every possible effort to avoid the tall pines as has a habit of jumping out into the paths of the unwary.

And just think what it'll be like on the first weekend there's a couple yards of snow on Old Baldy's slopes . . . and the powder's . . . uh . . . belt deep . . . and there's moguls for busting . . . why, gadzooks, "Happy Days Are Here Again" will be the theme song of all those folks as is in the ski, or related, business . . . and won't that be music to our ears?

TRIBE WANTS LAND

You must know that the Mescalero Apache Tribe's got their eyes focused on some 2,200 acres . . . or so . . . of ground up on Sierra Blanca as they want for future development . . . to build bigger and better ski runs and facilities . . . and the Forest Service is going along with them . . . and putting in mostly good words on the tribe's behalf . . . and all.

From here it looks as though their plans'll help the economy . . . in years to come . . . though there's been little, if any, public comment from tribal officials as to what they have in mind . . . but there's this much about it . . . things'll get more interesting before they get duller.

BRIEF BIT: If you think the skiing's tough, try the sledding on the ski slopes. . . CD

SANTA FE — Most of those who have moved to New Mexico from somewhere else (and more than 50 percent of those who live here have) tend to think New Mexico isn't very important.

If they come from Ottumwa, Iowa, say, they are sure Iowa matters; they just don't know whether this state does.

Well, here's one demonstration that New Mexico can now almost be taken as seriously as other parts of the country: It appropriates money in large amounts.

(As all Americans know, how much money you spend is a true measure of your real worth.)

For example: In 1981, the Legislature provided $100 million (that's $100,000,000, is you want to see it with all its zeroes) to the state Highway Department "contingent upon payment to the general fund of tax receipts . . . by contractors whose liability . . . is at issue in United States vs. New Mexico."

So what's the status of that suit? That's the one in which our state maintains that Sandia Laboratories and Los Alamos National Labs have to pay gross receipts tax to New Mexico.

It was argued before the Supreme Court of the United States recently.

The suit got to that high court by this route: New Mexico sued, maintaining that the labs have to pay our sales tax on the federal dollars they are paid. In federal district court, New Mexico lost. We then appealed, and the Appeals Court ruled in our favor. The United States then appealed to the Supreme Court.

Heart of the matter is a decision on whether the labs are "agents" of the federal government in the full meaning of that term. If they are declared not to be such, the state can collect from them for current and back sales tax.

Our brief before the Supreme Court says their "contracts and purchase orders are devoid of language designating them as agents." We also suggest that Sandia at least is a government-owned, contractor-operated lab, which is something quite different from being an independent operation.

Big question now is what if the court rules in New Mexico's favor?

Could the state, for instance, seize their property?

Our representative who argued in Washington admitted that we could not.

So if New Mexico wins, Congress will have to appropriate money to pay the bills, a step which could make the Senate and House take a lot closer look at the financial relationships between the federal government and the states. At least the 36 other states who filed amicus curiae briefs to support New Mexico's position in this matter are concerned about it.

When will we know where we stand?

Supreme Court watchers say we should have a decision by next April, or by June at the latest.

Joe Skeen sounds a little angry.

The Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee contends that Joe and 47 other Republican freshmen in the House sent out mailings which failed to comply with federal law on electioneering.

Joe's comment: "Pure hogwash."

That's the kind of clear language we have become accustomed to from our southern district Congressman. Most New Mexicans find it a welcome relief from the namby-pamby kind of comments elected officials often make.

Besides, we can guess what it was Joe really said.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor,

There is a young couple who live in our town who on Pearl Harbor Day had a five pound baby boy. He decided to get born a month early so he'd have a famous birthday. One catch, this little bomb coming so early had some respiratory problems and he had to be transferred to Roswell where they were better equipped to handle this problem. The irony of this story is that this young couple, Steve and Sheri Jarvis had worked part of their anatomy off at several different jobs and had saved enough money to have him delivered C.O.D. As most of us know, hospital cost are not cheap by a long shot. Their bill on the baby cost to the tune of about one thousand dollars per day for about two weeks. Steve and Sheri can't dance that much. They are having a real hard time. Steve is trying to finish high school, work at Big T and be Daddy, provider, protector and husband. There just ain't enough of him to go around.

I think that his friends and neighbors can best help by providing a little. There have been accounts set up at both Ruidoso State Bank and Security Bank. Please let's all put a dollar in an envelope, write Joey Jarvis Benefit on it and take it by the drive-in window of either of our great banks. This small but needed gesture of love would sure make a Happy Happy New Year for this young family. Please, let's all pitch in and help.

Pat Rooney

P.S. The baby's doing great. PRAISE THE LORD!!!

Dear editor:

A MATTER OF CHEESE ECONOMICS

Our present administration in Washington is on the beam when it comes to reducing the size and cost of running the Federal Government along with reducing taxes, waste, etc., however, the passage of the farm subsidy bill leaves many of us conservatives less than enthusiastic.

First, let me explain that this bill does enable many small farmers to remain in existence but there ought to be a better way.

The tobacco farmer receives large subsidies from the same government, that spends millions advising of the perils of smoking. Seems odd if not somewhat stupid!

And this one really smells — the matter of the cheese surplus. Our government has 600 million pounds of cheese in government warehouses bought from the makers of cheese for one reason — keep the price of cheese in the price range of $2.50 to $3.50 a pound which you and I are now paying at the grocery store. The cost of warehousing this cheese is ONE MILLION DOLLARS PER DAY — Now, because some of the cheese is deteriorating, 30 million pounds are being given away to people in need.

We also have large quantities of frozen eggs and other food stuffs in storage.

Why not establish a system of giving away all of the real surplus to the needy in exchange for less food stamps or no food stamps at all. This would eliminate a lot of the fraud problems connected with the food stamp program.

600 million pounds of cheese would furnish every man, woman and child almost 3 pounds per person. If the Farm Subsidy Bill had not been up for review it is possible that the large amount of cheese on hand would have gone on unnoticed until sometime in the future. What would we do with a billion pounds of cheese?

Predicting when Ruidoso's phenomenal growth pattern will slow down would be difficult, if not impossible.

The one development that could hasten that slow down would be the election of a mayor, and trustees, desirous of establishing a no growth policy that could sign the death knell for Ruidoso's future.

The two problems that must be solved in the immediate future are providing water and sewer service to our pending housing developments.

If the recent residential growth continues, it is logical that commercial development will likewise be stimulated.

Prattling about what should be done is just exactly that — prattle — unless that person can do sufficient research to make practical suggestions as to possible means of obtaining financing for village improvements that are feasible.

We trust that a field of candidates will surface for the March election that have the future of Ruidoso uppermost in mind — and solutions for finding financing for utilities services to future developments based on a pay-as-you-go plan, which is just about the only way to go to keep taxes down to levels that will encourage growth and development. — CD

Save money on heating.

A WINTER CHECKLIST

1. Take a peek into the attic to check for insulation. Proper insulation can cut heating cost by up to 50%. Make sure you have enough insulation to meet the R-value requirements for your area.
2. Check for air leaks. Seal cracks around windows and doors with caulking and weatherstripping. Also check wall outlets, switch plates and attic doors that admit unwanted cold air. Switch plates and outlets can be stuffed with fireproof insulation, and attic doors sealed with weatherstripping.
3. Have a qualified heating serviceman check your heating unit for safe and efficient functioning. Change the filter on the heating unit monthly.
4. Lower your heating thermostat setting to 68° the most efficient and economical setting. Each degree you lower your thermostat gives you 6 to 8 percent savings on heating cost.
5. Provide proper attic ventilation to keep insulation dry. Don't seal off turbine vents with plastic bags, or close off eaves vents. Preventing moisture buildup keeps insulation effective.

NUCLEAR SUBS' NAMES

The flap over the naming of a new nuclear-powered submarine may be excessive. Yet the controversy between the United States Navy and the National Conference of Catholic Bishops does highlight some significant issues.

The bishops strongly object to the Navy's decision to name the new submarine the ESS Corpus Christi. They point out that the Latin words translate as "body of Christ." Although the Navy points out that the name is intended to honor the City of Corpus Christi, Texas, the churchmen think it is highly inappropriate to give such a sacred name to a nuclear submarine.

Perhaps a case can be made that respect for diversity and religious sensitivity justifies a change of name by the Navy and Senator John Tower, Republican-Texas, who chose the name. However, the deeper importance of the bishops' statements relates to the conference leadership's decision to more strongly oppose nuclear arms. Archbishop John Roach, conference president, put the case bluntly: "The church needs to say 'no' clearly and decisively to the use of nuclear arms." Roach found it particularly appalling that the Reagan administration's proposed arms build-up is accompanied by deep cuts in social programs.

We concede that there are dangers when religious groups seek to impose their doctrines on civil society. However, certain concerns that emanate from religious or moral perceptions are nonetheless appropriate subjects for political debate. The bishops' entry into the debates on nuclear arms, military spending and social equity seems appropriate. — News-Bulletin, Belen

Gadzooks, but it's tougher'n prying a bear outta hibernation across the pond towards the east.

Firstly, there's those Red Brigade members in Italy as has glommed onto Brigadier General James Dozier . . . he's head honcho of NATO forces in them there parts.

Now the Red Brigade allows as how they have Dozier under wraps . . . and that they're fixin' to interrogate him . . . and all such goings on . . . to find out what gives with the NATO forces . . . presumably . . . after which they'll probably try him in their court . . . find him guilty of all sorts of charges . . . and probably execute him, 'cause them guys has declared war against us . . . which'll probably give them the excuse they need to make his wife a widow.

Then there's those folks as calls Poland home . . . and the cutbacks they are facing in butter and meat rations . . . which weren't all that generous to begin with . . . according to the news reports filtering out of Poland.

Besides the food shortages . . . real, or invoked by the Russians . . . the Poles are living under threat of Soviet takeover of everything . . . from government to military . . . which'd place them in subjugation to the Russians . . . and not make life very pleasant.

'Course there's the possibility that President Reagan can do some chitchatting with Brezhnev . . . and hopefully get his attention . . . to the end that maybe something can be worked out to get the Poles out of the direct clutches of the Russians . . . which just has to be wishful thinking.

Way it looks . . . and it ain't looking good . . . the Russians are going to see just how much prodding we'll stand for . . . and maybe give us a prod or two beyond that . . . just to test Reagan . . . and his advisors . . . and their patience . . . 'cause it's obvious the Russians don't think we'll do a thing . . . other than huff and puff and stew and fret and make threats . . . which seems to be a situation that has developed since Harry Truman got out of office. Leastwise it looks as though that's Brezhnev's feelings toward us . . . and it'll probably be ever thus . . . unless Rompin' Ronnie really starts trompin' on Brezhnev's corns. As to the general's problems in Italy . . . the Italian authorities are making sounds like they're doing everything possible to get Dozier out of the clutches of the Red Brigade . . . and time will tell . . . and there ain't nothing we can do about that . . . yes?

GRIDIRON FEVER

Yup . . . football addicts have their weekend's activities . . . maybe to the point of having to cope with an irked wife . . . pretty well cut out for them . . . what with so many bowl games on tap that the makers of bowls probably are wishing they was getting in on the action.

As to the number of bowls . . . it seems kinda ridiculous . . . to me . . . 'cause there just can't be 40, 50 or 60 top teams in the country . . . taking into account rip roaring Clemson and some of the other college teams . . . but I guess it's the good old American custom to have a surfeit of football . . . when the time's ripe.

So . . . get with it the next few weeks, football fans . . . 'cause there's a long dry spell coming . . . leaving you with hockey and soccer to watch for your violence.

SKIERS HAVING FUN

From what I hear tell the skiers are having a ball here . . . finding it exciting . . . except for those who are better skiers than there's snow on the slopes to challenge their abilities.

But there was just whole herds of folks here over the past weekend . . . trying out their luck . . . and expertise . . . and making every possible effort to avoid the tall pines as has a habit of jumping out into the paths of the unwary.

And just think what it'll be like on the first weekend there's a couple yards of snow on Old Baldy's slopes . . . and the powder's . . . uh . . . belt deep . . . and there's moguls for busting . . . why, gadzooks, "Happy Days Are Here Again" will be the theme song of all those folks as is in the ski, or related, business . . . and won't that be music to our ears?

TRIBE WANTS LAND

You must know that the Mesalero Apache Tribe's got their eyes focused on some 2,200 acres . . . or so . . . of ground up on Sierra Blanca as they want for future development . . . to build bigger and better ski runs and facilities . . . and the Forest Service is going along with them . . . and putting in mostly good words on the tribe's behalf . . . and all.

From here it looks as though their plans'll help the economy . . . in years to come . . . though there's been little, if any, public comment from tribal officials as to what they have in mind . . . but there's this much about it . . . things'll get more interesting before they get chiller.

BRIEF BIT: If you think the skiing's tough, try the sledging on the ski slopes . . . CD

Tom Notestine formed Cloudercroft art group Research woodstoves before buying

Texas artist Tom Notestine, who is building a home in Ponderosa Pines, near Cloudercroft, organized the Sacramento Mountains Arts and Crafts association in Cloudercroft this summer.

Notestine is president of the Southwest Art Association, The Coppin Academy of Fine Arts, the San Antonio Watercolor Association and the Southwestern Watercolor Society of Dallas.

He and his wife, Dorothy, will show their works in Galleria Uno, Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, in February.

The two have conducted workshops in Mexico and Spain and from South Dakota to South Padre Island, Texas.

Information on the new art group at Cloudercroft is available from Lila Thacker at Ponderosa Pines, Cloudercroft.

Notestine's work is being exhibited at the Artesian's Shop and Gallery in Ruidoso.

Wood-burning stoves are a hot item this time of year. Wood-burning stoves, free-standing or inserted into fireplaces, and fireplace heating devices are flooding the market.

But consumers shopping for these items should be cautious, warns JoAnn Less, housing specialist at New Mexico State University (NMSU). Advertisements and energy performance claims may be misleading or exaggerated. More importantly, adequate safety and installation information isn't always available.

Before you buy, get as much safety information as you can. Check the building codes for local safety laws.

Keep woodstoves a safe distance from furniture, drapes, carpeting and unprotected walls. Unless products are labeled otherwise, keep everything 36 inches from the stove.

Never install a woodstove over an unprotected combustible floor. Place it on a noncombustible floor covering extending 18 inches beyond the stove's outer edges. Consult local building code officials for the proper kind and amount of floor protection.

Notify your fire insurance company that a wood-burning product is being installed, Less said.

When you're evaluating ads for wood-burning products, look closely at energy performance claims. Manufacturers base their claims on different tests, making it difficult to compare products and results. You should compare products tested under the same laboratory conditions.

Many factors affect the heating performance of wood-burning products, including the kind of wood burned, wood moisture content, damper ventilation, home insulation, location of the product in your home, your living habits and the weather. Be cautious if an ad makes heating efficiency or BTU claims without indicating under what conditions they were achieved.

If variable conditions are disclosed in the ad, compare these with the conditions in your home to determine if they will affect the product's energy performance for you, the NMSU specialist said.

Ads making efficiency claims can be misleading because the word efficiency has different technical meanings. The term combustion efficiency refers to how well the stove converts wood to heat. The term net efficiency means the amount of heat the stove expels into your home.

Look for products which base their claims on net efficiency, because this tells you the most about the product's heating potential.

You're probably familiar with ads that claim "Save up to 80 percent in fuel cost." Advertisers insist that this means you can save from one to 80 percent in costs. Don't automatically assume that you'll save the upper limit of the claim.

Many ads feature consumers attesting to a product's high energy performance or fuel savings. However, few people can adequately test or measure the performance of wood-burning products because variables such as damper settings and thermal measurement are beyond the scientific control of the average consumer. Don't rely too much on a consumer testimonial as proof of a product's performance.

Wood-burning products can be a good hedge against rising heating costs. But be careful when buying and installing your new wood-burning product, Less said.

News staffer enjoyed Juarez visit

BY TIM PALMER
Staff Writer/Photographer

Ruidoso welcomes many visitors from Mexico throughout the year. But the road from Mexico to Ruidoso leads both ways, as those who make the short journey to the border will discover.

It is a revelation to find that a short drive—slightly more than two hours—takes one to a foreign country.

Of course, there are those who would hasten to say that Juarez is hardly representative of Mexico.

But Juarez is Juarez. The celebrated wide-open border town has grown into a city of one million, but retains the flavor of its earlier days.

Vendors still call to passersby from shop doors, encouraging them to "come in and look around."

If a customer expresses interest in an item but shies at the price, the seller asks, "How much do you want to pay?" and the bargaining begins.

But while the old ways continue, the new mood of Mexico is visible in Juarez. Modern new hotels near the Pronaf shopping district are evidence of the oil-rich nation's new prosperity.

A taxi driver speaks with pride of the 100,000 women of Juarez who work for American and Japanese companies in this city.

It seems that away from it. Coming back across the border from Mexico, the American traveler cannot help seeing this country in a different light, and probably appreciating it more.

And besides the curios, clothing and whatever other bargains the shopper brings home, he carries the valuable experience of having visited a foreign country.

Life isn't dull for a good jockey agent

BY MARK GORDON
Ron Stewart knew he was about to make a drastic decision.

"I always liked horses," said the 31-year-old El Paso, Texas, native. "I had managed a sporting goods department at K-Mart for nine years, but I had always thought about working at a race track. My dad trained horses. My two brothers were trainers and another brother was a jockey agent.

"My father got real sick. The last month he was alive we talked about it. He told me 'You work for yourself—nothing's guaranteed'. He died when he was 51."

The very next day Stewart resigned from K-Mart and started a career as a jocks' agent.

"I always wanted to do the best I could at whatever it was," Stewart said. "I always did good as a salesman, but I knew I wanted to do what I'd be happiest in." So with enthusiasm and limited funds, he started hustling rides for Jimmy Hunt and George Fryday at La Mesa Park in Raton, in the summer of 1978.

Hunt, who will surface later in Stewart's career, was injured early in the meet. Fryday, meanwhile, who had won only 17 races the previous summer, prospered under Stewart's guidance, winning 66 races and earning Jockey of the Meet honors.

"I didn't make a lot of money that summer," Stewart said. "I only averaged $250 a week. Then I got a break. My brother, Donnie, was at Delta Downs (in Vinton, Louisiana) and said he had an apprentice rider, who would work hard. So in October, Joe Martinez came to me at Sunland."

"He was the only rider I had. We only rode one or two horses a week. Nobody knew us. I had to go to the unemployment office and get the $92 a week for my family so we could live. Joe only won one race between October and January."

But success, even at that bleak moment, was in the immediate future.

Suddenly, Martinez, who is now one of the Southwest's most successful jockeys, started winning. He piloted 28 winners in January of 1979. He won another 25 races or so in February.

In the spring of 1979, Stewart left Sunland Park and went to Centennial Race Track near Denver, Colorado, for a spring quarter horse meet.

He hustled rides for James Lackey, who finished as the third leading rider, and Fryday, who was the sixth leading jockey.

They won the Rocky Mountain Futurity and Derby as well as the Spring Invitational.

"I left Denver with about $5,000 in my pocket, but perhaps the biggest break was yet to come. I went back to La Mesa in the summer of 1979," he said. "Mike Hiding (a successful jockey) said to me, 'You've got too much talent to stay around here. Go to Ruidoso'. I stayed two weeks at Raton and was making around $200 a week. I called Joe and Darrel Blevins and we went to Ruidoso."

That was Stewart's first exposure at the nation's finest quarter horse track, with numerous big money races. Stewart was unknown at Ruidoso Downs, but it was a turning point in his career.

Then Stewart and Martinez went to the New Mexico State Fair in Albuquerque in 1979 to compete against the Southwest's top riders.

"That was the first year I ever hustled book there and Joe wound up leading rider. I knew things were falling into place," he said.

And they were. From then on, Stewart, who is recognized by many Sunland Park insiders as the area's finest agent, began picking horses for his riders who would qualify for every major quarter horse race at Sunland Park and Ruidoso Downs.

The list is too numerous to mention, but since the fall of 1979 Stewart has had almost magical powers in selecting horses for his riders who gain berths and occasional wins in the big stakes races.

Stewart, who usually spends between 60 and 70 hours a week studying the condition book of future races, going over the nominees lists for the major futurities, and helping his riders, is really pleased with his two jockeys, this season at Sunland Park.

He has Jimmie Hunt and veteran rider Gary Sumpter.

Sumpter's talents are well known. But Stewart turned down Hunt's request to be his agent three times before the two finally agreed.

"What caught my eye with Jimmie was that he was young. Just 18 years old. He was a hard worker and I think this kid has as much talent as anyone in the business."

Stewart said.

Hunt's description of Stewart may lend some insight into why Stewart, in just four years, has gone from a rookie agent to perhaps the area's finest.

"When I first came to Raton, he really respected me. I was like a green colt. Then I went to California and New York, but when I came back, I'd seen that everyone who had Ronnie did good with him. He treated me with respect before I had respect. I could see that everything he did was done the right way. A lot of people say things they don't mean. Everything we've done together has been on solid ground. From when I started with Ronnie, I went from one end of the ladder to the other. We take care of business all the way around. We also help the little people," Hunt said.

Stewart, meanwhile, is more than appreciative of the way things have changed since he stood in the unemployment line.

"I really like this business. If someone in a restaurant says something nasty about racetrackers, I'll go over and politely try to explain to them it isn't so. We're a close-knit family," Stewart said. "I really like it. You couldn't find a better job. I'll do anything I can to help the race track. It's been good to me. I just hope someday I can put back into it what it's given me and my family."

THIS STAINED GLASS Eagle Dancer is the first of a series of 10 windows that Tom Knapp has finished designing. The design echos the series of bronzes Knapp created depicting the Laguna Pueblo Indians. Jerry and Janie Perry put the design together in this 48 x 70 inch window.

Stained glass Eagle Dancer designed by artist Tom Knapp

A limited edition of a stained glass Eagle Dancer was recently completed by local artist Tom Knapp. Knapp based the design of the piece on a series of bronzes he created depicting Indian dancers of the Laguna Pueblo Indian tribe.

Jerry and Janie Perry of Armadillo Studios then put the more than 500 pieces of stained glass in the design, creating a window that is approximately 48 x 70 inches in size.

Knapp originally researched the Laguna Pueblo Indians seven years ago when he started work on the series of 10 bronzes. "Eventually, I want to do all 10 of them in stained glass," Knapp said.

So far, he has completed this first in the series and is working on the second one with a limited edition of 20 windows for each. The size of the windows will depend on the customer's specifications, although Knapp said he couldn't make them too small.

"Janie (Perry) blew up the design and did the work on it," Knapp said. The piece took approximately two weeks to construct and includes such materials as domestic and imported glasses, including some hand rolled antique glass, according to Janie.

"The hand rolled antique glass is expensive. The machine made glass is more available, but is not as pretty," said Janie. Some of the glass used is opalescent so that light will be reflected off the surface. This first window is to be installed in the Ruidoso home of Mrs. Jack Young, permanent resident of El Paso, Texas, and will be part of her private collection.

Meetings scheduled on game, trapping, rules

The Department of Game and Fish is hosting 17 meetings around the state in early January to receive public help in developing big game and furbearer regulations for the 1982-83 seasons, according to Chief of Game Management Walter Snyder.

The regulations directly affect more than 100,000 big game hunters and 5,000 trappers, as well as land management agencies, land owners, guides and outfitters, sporting goods dealers, fur dealers and many travel-oriented businesses.

Native big game species hunted in New Mexico include deer, bear, turkey, elk, antelope, javelina, mountain lion and Rocky Mountain bighorn sheep. Imported big game species include Barbary sheep, Persian ibex, Siberian ibex and oryx. Furbearers include bobcat, raccoon, badger, weasel, fox, ringtail, beaver, muskrat and nutria.

Items included in the regulations cover not only seasons and bag limits, but also numbers of licenses allowed for special hunts, deadlines for special hunt applications, hunt unit boundaries, hunting hours, lawful weapons, lawful traps and trapping methods, and other rules governing the taking of wildlife.

Meetings, in this area, beginning at 7 p.m., include:

- Alamogordo, January 4, Municipal Building, and
- Roswell, January 6, Roswell Public Library.

Interested persons may make their recommendations orally or in writing. Those unable to attend in person may mail recommendations to the appropriate area Game and Fish office in Roswell, or directly to the department headquarters in Santa Fe.

UNM and University of Tokyo sign collaboration agreement

An agreement for collaboration between the University of New Mexico (UNM) and the University of Tokyo (UT), Japan, has been signed by officials of both institutions.

Dr. Glenn A. Whan, UNM professor of chemical and nuclear engineering who initiated the concept for the project, said, "We envision primarily three avenues of cooperation, including the exchange of faculty, the exchange of graduate students and (the undertaking of) cooperative research projects primarily in the nuclear engineering field."

Whan will take a sabbatical leave from UNM during the 1982 spring semester to begin working on specifics for the project with officials from the University of Tokyo. He said a 12-member advisory committee—consisting of six representatives from the United States and six from Japan—is being formed to help guide the project in its initial stages.

The project's first organizational meeting has been scheduled for next May in Honolulu. "An International Program for Nuclear Research, Education and Training (IRNRET) shall be established and UT" Whan said.

"In support of collaboration efforts, IRNRET will investigate opportunities for faculty exchange programs, facilitate professional cooperation among faculty members from UNM and UT, study the possibilities of a formal exchange of students, organize joint symposia and promote the development and implementation of joint research projects and facilities," he said.

Whan said some possible areas of joint research might include themes on non-proliferation initiatives through not only technology, but also the international application of history, ethics, law, politics and economics, and other areas related to such topics as international safeguards, criticality safety, reactor safety, radiation safety, uranium mining and milling, nuclear fuel cycles, radioactive waste management, power reactor operation, plasma and accelerator physics, fusion reactor technology and others.

He said he believes project organizers will seek to have the program jointly funded by both countries.

"We've had an informal dialogue with the University of Tokyo for the past five or six years and we had a visiting professor from there for two years," he said. "Eventually, we hope to bring about some sort of umbrella consortium that would include universities and national laboratories in the Pacific Basin."

Whan said he envisions such a consortium would include all countries in the Far East and North, Central and South America—essentially, all countries that border the Pacific Ocean.

"The University of Tokyo is the largest university in Japan and certainly the one with the highest prestige," he said. "We feel there is a lot to be gained by association with a university of that calibre."

1982: 'Year of Eagle'

If you've ever studied the backside of a dollar bill, you know that America's national bird, the bald eagle, clutches an olive branch in his right talon and 13 arrows in the left — symbolizing America's desire for peace and its willingness to fight for freedom.

And nearly every schoolchild knows that the bald eagle is now an endangered species throughout most of its former range. Once abundant from coast to coast, these big, fierce-looking birds are now numerous only in Alaska and Canada.

But few people realize that the bald eagle wasn't even on the list of contenders when three of the nation's founding fathers — Thomas Jefferson, John Adams, and Benjamin Franklin — were named by the Continental Congress to design our national seal and symbol. That was on July 4, 1776, the same day the colonists declared their independence from England.

It took six years, three committees, and several artists to come up with a seal featuring the now familiar spread eagle, according to the current issue of National Wildlife magazine. The original blue ribbon committee leaned toward mythological and Biblical figures, the magazine reports, and apparently the only other animal considered for appearance on the seal was the sloth — a slow-moving, tree-dwelling tropical creature associated with laziness and indolence.

The story of how the bald eagle beat out the sloth — and other characters — is told in the bimonthly publication of the National Wildlife Federation as the nation prepares to observe 1982 as "The Year of the Eagle." Resolutions are pending in both houses of Congress to commemorate June 20, 1982, as the 200th anniversary of the day the Continental Congress adopted the eagle as our national symbol.

In the sloth, a native of Central and South America usually seen hanging upside down, appeared in a seal design suggested by John Adams. In Adams' allegorical scene, the mythical Greek hero Hercules was torn between the charms of a maiden representing Virtue and the tempting life of the sloth. Franklin called for a depiction of Moses dividing the Red Sea. Jefferson wanted to show the children of Israel wandering through the wilderness.

Fortunately, the Congress wasn't thrilled by any of the founding fathers' designs, nor was it moved by a second committee's proposed seal depicting on a shield a warrior and a figure representing Peace.

The eagle didn't show up in any proposed designs until a third committee was formed, and even then, the bird played a minor role in another allegorical scene. Finally, in 1776, Congress turned the matter over to its secretary, Charles Thomson, who gets credit for first using the eagle as the central element in the seal's design.

One member of the original committee, Ben Franklin, was unimpressed even after the Congress adopted a seal designed around the eagle. Franklin called the new national symbol "a bird of bad moral character" that "does not get his living honestly," referring to the fact that the bald eagle often steals its food from other birds. Franklin also wrote — perhaps facetiously — that although the turkey was "vain and silly" he would have preferred it as the national emblem.

Franklin was by no means the last American to criticize the eagle. For the next 150 years frontiersmen, ranchers, and farmers gunned them down as predators and varmints. Not until 1940 did Congress outlaw the shooting of eagles.

Great Seal of U.S.

Three-toed Sloth

Because they sometimes feed on dead animals, bald eagles are still put down by some critics as scavengers, but President John F. Kennedy spoke for most Americans 20 years ago, says National Wildlife, when he called the "fierce beauty and independence of this great bird" an apt symbol of the "strength and freedom of America."

Now, throughout most of the country, the bald eagle is struggling, not to maintain its honor but to survive as a species. Due to loss of habitat, the ingestion of deadly pesticides, illegal shooting, and other causes it is listed as "endangered" in 43 of the lower 48 states and "threatened" in the other five — Oregon, Washington, Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Michigan.

The "Year of the Eagle" was proclaimed to remind all Americans that the country's living symbol, like many other species of wild life, is on the endangered list, and that, as President Kennedy said, "we shall have failed a trust if we permit the eagle to disappear."

Seek salesman's slayer

Daniel Jon Pimentel was a solitary man. A self-employed jewelry salesman, the Santa Teresa resident travelled extensively throughout the southwest.

But sometime around October 25, Pimentel died as mysteriously as he lived. His body was found November 15, partially buried in the desert north of Santa Teresa. He had been shot once in the abdomen.

Police say they have been trying to reconstruct the final hours of Pimentel's life. They know that he called a friend in El Paso, Texas, on October 25. Investigators say it was the last time any acquaintances heard from Pimentel.

Pimentel's vehicle and a jewelry display case remain missing. The display case, dark brown or black leather or vinyl, measured 12-by-12-by-18 inches.

The missing vehicle was a 1976 dark blue over light blue four door Mercury Marquis with New Mexico license plates DRH-932.

Investigators say Pimentel was born in Mexico, but later became a naturalized American citizen.

"The guy kept pretty much to himself,"

Dona Ana County Undersheriff Henry Diaz said recently. "We really don't know too much about him."

This week the State Crime Stoppers Commission is offering a $1,000 reward for information leading to the solution of the killing. Investigators are particularly interested in knowing any details of Pimentel's activities after October 25. They also are puzzled about the motive behind the murder, although robbery has not been ruled out.

Anyone having any information about the case is asked to call State Crime Stoppers at its toll-free number, 1-800-432-6933. Callers do not have to reveal their identities.

The Commission also offers cash rewards for information leading to the solution of other major crimes and the capture of wanted fugitives.

Last week a call to State Crime Stoppers helped law enforcement officials in Wichita, Kansas, capture Miles Abrams, who was wanted on warrants out of Reno, Nevada, charging him with attempted rape.

Meanwhile, the Hobbs/Lea County Crime Stoppers program is having a big month. In early December, a call helped Hobbs Police recover some $7,000 worth of stereo equipment taken in a local residential burglary. A juvenile was arrested in connection with the case. A second call assisted Sheriff's deputies in the recovery of about $6,800 worth of items taken in the December 6 burglary of Sonny's Oilfield Service Company, located west of Hobbs. A variety of tools, a tool chest, a television set, a suede coat and a digital clock were recovered by investigators. Two men have been charged with commercial burglary in connection with the case.

And a call to Albuquerque Crime Stoppers helped police break up an armed robbery ring. Three persons were arrested in connection with a series of armed robberies, which might total as high as 45 by the time investigators have completed their case.

Through mid-December, a total of 3,946 major crimes had been solved with the help of calls to the State Crime Stoppers Commission and the 32 local Crime Stoppers programs throughout New Mexico.

Cited drivers facing new enforcement law

The Transportation Department's Motor Vehicle Division advises New Mexico motorists of their new Penalty Assessment Bureau.

As a result of 1981 legislation, effective January 1, 1982, all penalty assessment citations issued in New Mexico by the State Police, Albuquerque Police Department, University of New Mexico Campus Police, Indian Tribal Officers (who are qualified New Mexico peace officers), and all Sheriff Departments will be handled by the new Penalty Assessment Bureau. Citations issued under the State Penalty Assessment schedule had previously been processed by the Administrative Office of the Courts.

When a driver is cited by a member of the law enforcement agencies listed above, and the driver chooses to mail in his penalty assessment fee, it shall be mailed to the Motor Vehicle Division, Penalty Assessment Bureau, Manuel Lujan Sr.,

Building, Santa Fe, New Mexico 87503, in the envelope provided, together with the copy of the citation furnished by the enforcement officer.

A copy of the citation will be sent by the officer of the bureau in Santa Fe. The citation information will be entered into the Motor Vehicle Automated System.

If the penalty assessment amount indicated on the citation is not paid within the allotted time of 30 days, action will be taken to suspend the violator's driver's license. The suspension period may be for an indefinite period. Persons who have failed to appear in court prior to January 1, 1982, will be subject to suspension under the new provisions of the Penalty Assessment Law.

Individuals having questions concerning the new penalty assessment provisions may contact Terry Couchman in Santa Fe, at 827-3583.

Veterans service groups seeking to locate POWs

Veterans service organizations and some 500 military unit associations in the Rocky Mountain area and elsewhere are being asked to help the Veterans Administration (VA) locate 57,000 very special veterans: former prisoners of war (POWs).

The 57,000 are part of the 100,000 living American former prisoners of war who became potentially eligible for benefits as the result of recent legislation.

VA already has the names of 43,000 former prisoners who have qualified for compensation or pension, said Joe Cordova, director, Albuquerque Regional Office.

The Prisoner of War Health Care Benefits Act of 1981 makes it easier for POWs — held by the enemy for as short a period as 30 days — to establish entitlement to compensation for certain disabilities. These veterans may now be compensated for certain psychological and nutrition-related disorders regardless of when in their lifetimes they first appear.

Eligibility for inpatient and outpatient medical care, on a priority basis, now exists for all ex-prisoners of war. Cordova said. The new law also provides that a veteran's captivity need not have been during wartime for these liberalizing benefits rules to apply.

VA's concern with the special health problems of former POWs stems from a joint study with the Department of Defense in 1980. It found POWs whose confinement was characterized by starvation diets, lack of medical care and inhumane treatment have a higher incidence of physical and psychological disabilities.

Former POWs may have had difficulties establishing claims for benefits due to service connected disabilities based on inadequate repatriation examinations, the study points out.

The largest group of former POWs is from World War II — 93,128. There are 3,844 ex-POWs from the Korean conflict, 800 from World War I, 642 from the Vietnam era fighting and 80 from the USS Pueblo.

Organizations cooperating with VA are being asked to provide all pertinent information on their POW members. The military serial number or VA claim number is especially important, Cordova said.

VA plans to contact all veterans identified in this manner to inform them of the details of the legislation and answer any questions they may have. VA also is asking members of the public to advise any veteran they know who is a former POW of the new legislation.

Details are available by telephoning the Albuquerque VA office at 1-800-432-6833.
