

Davis, White address election issues

Eight questions were asked of mayoral candidates Lloyd L. Davis, Jr. and George P. White. In Thursday's issue of The Ruidoso News, candidates for village trustee will have the opportunity to answer the same eight questions.

Here are the responses of Lloyd L. Davis, Jr. to eight questions asked by The News:

Question 1: Will you support or oppose the upcoming $8 million water bond election, and why?

1. "I would personally vote for the $8 million water bond issue. The village of Ruidoso owns 2,525 acre feet of water rights that we can use in an average year (out of more than 4,500 acre feet of total village water rights). I would favor the bond issue because most of the unused rights are galleonage that could be stored spring and fall, out of the Rio Ruidoso."

Question 2: What is your position on the proposed purchase of Ruidoso Natural Gas Company by the village, and why?

2. "Based on Mr. Umholtz's report to the council and the interested citizens of Ruidoso, it would appear to me that regardless of who owns Ruidoso Natural Gas, there is going to be a severe increase in prices because of deregulation. However, it appears to me that the least cost of gas to the individual customer would be to have the village as owner of the gas company. Just to heat a home is one of the major expenditures that a family can have other than their mortgage or rent payment."

Question 3: In view of the obvious fact that Ruidoso is going to continue its residential and commercial growth, what specific changes do you favor in planning and zoning regulations to provide for orderly growth?

3. "I feel that the planning and zoning commission is approximately 20 years old, and in the course of their 20 years, just in the past year they have gotten a lot of ordinances reworded or adopted that used to be in the gray area. For the moment, they are probably in as good a position from the concept of what a P&Z is supposed to do to assure the orderly growth of the community. I also personally feel that considering what the majority of the residents of an area feels, if there emerges any problem of growth in the Ruidoso area, alternatives of increase the size of a residential lot or lower the density of condominium areas exist — rather than a complete closedown."

Question 4: Downtown Ruidoso's traffic and parking problems will increase due to tourism. What proposals do you have to help solve these problems?

4. "Most municipalities in New Mexico operate under state statutes. The statutes provide a parking authority act which permits the municipality to build parking areas. The communities in New Mexico that have done this have issued revenue bonds and they repay these bonds by charging for parking in what are very

Here are the responses of George P. White to eight questions asked by The News:

Question 1: Will you support or oppose the upcoming $8 million water bond election, and why?

1. "I will support it. We need, above and beyond any other thing, water and storage for the water."

Question 2: What is your position on the proposed purchase of Ruidoso Natural Gas Company by the village, and why?

2. "I'm opposed to it. I think the village of Ruidoso has all the utilities that it can graciously handle, and because I think private enterprise can do a much better job than a government agency."

Question 3: In view of the obvious fact that Ruidoso is going to continue its residential and commercial growth, what specific changes do you favor in planning and zoning regulations to provide for orderly growth?

3. "I can't answer that because I don't know what the planning and zoning commission under its new leadership has in store for us, but I do know they're working on it and that they are updating regulations."

Question 4: Downtown Ruidoso's traffic and parking problems will increase due to tourism. What proposals do you have to help solve these problems?

4. "Buy, or lease, in the downtown area, land to provide parking off the main street. I would surely like to see the state highway department upgrade their stop and go lights to where they could be synchronized for a faster flow of traffic."

Question 5: Do you favor a general obligation bond election, coupled with the issuance of revenue bonds, to provide additional sewer service to Ruidoso? Why?

5. "No, I do not favor general obligation election nor the issuance of revenue bonds for sewer service. I think we should give the property owner the option to see if he wants a special assessment district to upgrade his sewer system."

Question 6: Due to lack of finances, one way to provide paved streets to areas of the village not so served would be to establish special assessment districts, whereby residents served share the cost. Would you be in favor of this?

6. "Yes, I would be in favor of giving them the opportunity."

Question 7: Are you in favor of the hiring of a permanent full time planner by the Village of Ruidoso?

7. "The answer is yes and no until I give it further study."

Question 8: Are there areas of village government or administration in which you feel there is room for improvement?

8. "I think I can truthfully say I was satisfied with the way things are being run administratively, but I'm sure that in all business there can always be room for improvement."

$2 MILLION IN IMPROVEMENTS

Track gets a facelift

The more than $2 million being spent by Ruidoso-Sunland to upgrade Ruidoso Downs Race Track for the 1982 meeting will, general manager Finlay MacGillivray said Friday, "make attending the races more enjoyable for fans, and offer horsemen a much safer barn area."

Bobby Lewis, general operations manager at the track, said Friday that "eight new barns, of steel and concrete and completely fireproof, are being built and will be ready for the horsemen by mid April."

The 46,500 square foot addition to the grandstand, Lewis said, includes 30,000 square feet on the ground level, including administrative offices, 6,750 square feet added to the Turf Club and 9,750 square feet of additional space on the third floor. Additional restroom facilities are included in the new wing.

NEW TOTE MACHINES will be in operation at the start of this year's meeting, Lewis said, that will enable fans to "cash or buy tickets at the same window, and to make any size wager at any window, which will be much more convenient than the old system." There will be 20 more wagering windows in the grandstand area.

THE NEW BARNS will be elevated to improve drainage, Lewis said, and all of the barn area will be blacktopped. "The 80 feet of space between barns will include walking areas for the horses," he said. Most of the barns will provide 42 stalls and six tack rooms.

"We'll have approximately 2,000 stalls available this year," Lewis said, "which means, including the private stalls, that we can safely handle about 3,000 horses in the track area during All-American Sale week."

The barn area improvements, pegged by Lewis at $500,000, include 14 new culverts in the drainage system. "We feel that we'll have no water problems," he said, "and there'll be no problem with mud, as has been the case in the past."

THE NEW PADDOCK area will be directly in front of Section A of the grandstand, on the far side of the track. A tunnel has been built, under the track, so that horsemen will have easy access to the paddock. "The tunnel is a safety feature," Lewis said. "We've been lucky in the past not to have had any serious injuries, especially to children, in the paddock. The tunnel will virtually eliminate the chances of a child being hurt."

Plans for police building settled

Plans for a new police, courts and detention complex have been completed by Ruidoso architect John Vanoy Moore, and Police Chief Dick Swenor said Friday. "We'll call for bids late in March or early in April."

Bids, Swenor said, could be opened and awarded about May 1.

Moore said that "construction should start soon after the bids are let."

Drawings of building plans, in color, will be on display in the Ruidoso Administrative Center for the next 30 days.

Representatives of the National Institute of Corrections, Boulder, Colorado, have worked with Moore and Swenor in developing the plans and will inspect the building during construction to insure compliance with all standards for a detention facility designed to hold prisoners for a maximum of 72 hours.

The building will house magistrate and municipal court rooms and a control room to handle communications for all law en-

Fish kill worse than thought

by WILF TURBOW
Staff Writer

More testing is being done by the New Mexico Department of Game and Fish on the Rio Ruidoso to determine the extent of the fish kill that occurred as a result of gasoline spilling into the river earlier this month.

The gas spill occurred on February 4 when three underground fuel tanks were excavated from the former site of the Exxon service station at the corner of Mechem and Sudderth Drives.

Monty Leishman of Game and Fish told the News that there is no doubt that considerably more than the originally reported 150 to 200 fish were killed. "The Environmental Improvement Division (EID) observed some 200 fish, but there were a lot more. They reported just the dead ones that washed up, but there were more that didn't show up," he said.

Leishman said that his office in Roswell has data of the fish population and density taken from earlier studies of the three permanent testing stations on the river in this area. He explained that Saturday's survey of six other spots strategically placed on the river was completed to attain a more normal, bell distribution graph of the fish population and density.

Leishman said, "We're still working on the initial study. We have data from way back, but there are holes in that data." He said that to determine the extent of the fish kill, data from the bell graph filling in those holes would reveal the effect of the gas spill on the fish population and density.

Hari Mukhoty of the Ruidoso office of EID said that samples had been taken upstream and downstream just after the gas spill. "When they were plotted onto the graph, there was no normal distribution given, and then the deviation of fish numbers could not be observed," said

Roger Williams among Summer Festival guests

One of the featured guest artists at the Ruidoso Summer Festival, said Ruidoso Board chairwoman, "We're excited," Denton told the News last Friday. "The board has a wonderful week planned for Ruidoso."

On Saturday, June 1, the Dixieland Jazz Band will be kicked off on the bandstand with the Dixieland Jazz Band of the Texas Little Symphony performing at 11 a.m. and the Dixieland Jazz Band of the Texas Little Symphony performing at 11 a.m. and the Dixieland Jazz Band of the Texas Little Symphony performing at 11 a.m.

The Dixieland Jazz Band of the Texas Little Symphony will perform at 11 a.m. and the Dixieland Jazz Band of the Texas Little Symphony will perform at 11 a.m.

Dixieland Jazz Band on the preceding evening, Denton said.

On Sunday, June 6, it will be the "Concert on the Green" at the Inn of the Mountain Gods with a champagne brunch starting at 11 a.m., said Denton. She said the Texas Little Symphony will begin their outdoor concert at 12:30 p.m. with RSF's newly acquired OrniShell. "With the OrniShell and the symphony's tent to shelter the musicians and the instruments, it'll be so colorful and lovely," said Denton. "People may spread their blankets and lie on the grass," she said. No seating will be available, Denton added.

The "Silver Slipper Soree" will take place on Monday, June 7, in the Grand Ballroom of the Inn of the Mountain Gods at 8 p.m. Food and drinks will be available as the Dixieland Jazz Band plays, said Denton.

Ben Franklin hit for $5,000

An unidentified young male took approximately $5,000 from the floor sale of Ruidoso's Ben Franklin Store about 4 p.m. Sunday, and made his escape, according to a spokesman for the Criminal Investigation Division (CID) of the Ruidoso Police.

The spokesman said "an 18 to 20-year-old man, with dark, curly, hair was observed by store patrons opening the safe, located under the gum machine. The witnesses, who saw him take the money, assumed he was a store employee."

Shortly after the man had left the store, one of the patrons said something about the man taking the money, and the theft was reported to us immediately."

No information as to whether the suspect left the parking lot on foot, or by vehicle, was obtainable by CID officers. An intensive search for the man was launched immediately, and was being continued this morning.

Villages' trustees to meet

The Ruidoso Downs trustees will hold a regularly scheduled meeting tonight at 7 p.m. at the municipal building.

On the agenda is an ordinance concerning the municipal judge's salary.

Two ordinances which would effect changes in planning and zoning regulations are to be considered by Ruidoso trustees when they meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Village Administrative Center.

Proposed ordinance 81-24 would make the trustees the body to rule on rezoning petitions, instead of the planning and zoning commission. Proposed ordinance 81-25 would impose restrictions on replatting of previously subdivided or platted land.

Other items on the trustees' agenda include:

- Report on opening of bids for improvements to water treatment plant number one.

- Report from water study committee.

- Proposed resolution 82-2 pertaining to refinancing of escrow funds.

- Consideration of request to lease a building owned by the village.

Williams nominated Teacher of the Year

Teachers at Ruidoso High School are nominating Walter C. "Dub" Williams for state and national "Teacher of the Year" for 1982.

The "Teacher of the Year" competition is cosponsored by the Council of Chief State School Officers, Encyclopedia Britannica and Ladies' Home Journal. Any classroom teacher in a state accredited school grades kindergarten through 12, may be nominated for the honor.

The title is awarded to a teacher who exemplifies the finest teachers in the profession.

Lee Rhodes, special education teacher at the high school, said that Williams is being nominated for the honor "for his relationship and influence with students, classroom teaching ability and dedication to the profession of teaching."

Williams, who has been a general science teacher at Ruidoso High School for 26 years, said about the nomination that "it is a real honor; just to be chosen by my colleagues at this school was enough for me."

Williams earned a bachelor's degree in business administration, with minors in education and science, from New Mexico State University in 1955. He worked as a probation officer before he began teaching in 1956.

Williams sponsors the high school Indian Club, is active in the sports programs at the school and is involved in civic and teaching organizations.

Rhodes said, "We're asking the community to help us with this nomination." She asks that any friend or ex-student of Williams write a letter addressed to Alan D. Morgan, assistant state superintendent for instruction.

Letters should be given to Rhodes at the high school no later than March 5. She will then submit them to Morgan.

All nominations must be received by Morgan by March 15.

The winner of state "Teacher of the Year" will then be eligible for the national title.

River fish kill due to gasoline

Mukhoty. He said that when a wider sampling is taken in both directions of the spill, then the normal number of fish will be given and an estimate as to the deviation and effect of the spill may be determined.

Mukhoty said the fish may have been killed because of the direct toxic effect on the fish. "A systemic absorption of gasoline into the fish will kill them," he said. Gas went into the blood of the fish and then to the fish's detoxicating center, the liver, said Mukhoty.

He said that the amount of toxic material may be too much for a small fish to handle. "It would still be in the blood and an intolerable amount of insoluble toxins may leave the system through the kidney. As a result, the kidney will be damaged," Mukhoty said.

Leishman is most concerned with the residual effects of the gas spill on the fish. "With distillate petroleum spills, the gas kills a certain amount of fish right off the bat. But the protective mucous on the fish's skin, its first line of defense, will wear off, like a solvent. The fish will then be susceptible to bacterial invasion," said Leishman.

He said that the residual gas, coming from ice and snow and also being absorbed into the river's water from the shore, will mean a continual fish loss. Leishman said that there will be no danger in eating fish caught from the river, although there could be a laxative effect on humans.

Joseph Gmuca of EID legal services told The News on Friday that the EID is charged with enforcing the Water Quality Control Commission regulations. He said that in this case, two violations of those regulations occurred.

The first commission code to be violated was Section 1-201, Gmuca said. He explained that the commission prohibits the disposal of refuse into any natural watercourse which will harm the quality of the animal and plant life there, or the environment in general.

The second regulation violated was section 1-203 of the commission's code, Gmuca said. That regulation states that when a discharge of any water contaminant, such as gasoline, occurs, the Water Control Bureau must be notified immediately. Gmuca said that the EID received a call from someone not connected with either subcontractor on the service station demolition job, S&J Construction or Inter-Con Construction, both of Albuquerque. He said that the EID was anonymously tipped off about the fish kill.

Gmuca said that his office is not concerned whether the spill was accidental or deliberate. "If a foreign substance violates the regulations and kills fish, then we're going to prosecute these things as they occur," said Gmuca.

Gmuca said that a proposed settlement had been sent to the Southland Corporation, the legal owner of the site of the dumping, in lieu of filing a law suit. He would not reveal the terms, pending Southland's response by March 4. If the corporation should not accept the terms set forth in the settlement papers, Gmuca said, EID will file a formal law suit against Southland Corporation.

"Ruidoso is a big vacation community, and there are people sitting out on the river. We know how important keeping the river clean and safe is to Ruidoso, and we're here to protect and control the quality of that surface water," said Gmuca.

Leishman said that the Department of Game and Fish is responsible for collecting compensation for the number of fish killed. He said that when a final assessment of the number of fish killed due to the spill is arrived at, a bill will be sent to Southland Corporation. If Southland refuses to pay that bill on a voluntary basis, then Game and Fish will file a lawsuit in court to collect for damages, said Leishman. He said, though, that there is not much discussion in this case as to who the perpetrators are since they were caught in the act.

The gas spill occurred on the afternoon of February 4, 1982. The site of the dumping was on Mechem Drive by the Highway 37 bridge where a culvert leads into the Rio Ruidoso. Leishman said that from there to a mile downstream, there was a total fish loss. He said that below that point, there was still an undetermined number of fish missing.

Mukhoty said that the EID office in Ruidoso received an anonymous phone call about 2:30 the afternoon of the fourth that someone was dumping gas into the river. "We followed up on the call immediately," and the complaint was genuine," Mukhoty said.

Mukhoty said that three supposedly empty gas storage tanks of the former Exxon service station on the corner of Mechem and Sudderth Drives were being excavated, but that some gasoline remained in the tanks. The contractors excavating the tanks drained about twenty gallons of the remaining gas in the tanks onto Mechem Drive, said Mukhoty. There is a storm drain there, and it is supposed that about five or six gallons ran into the river. Mukhoty said that that was enough to kill many fish.

Mukhoty said that he and his EID colleague, Jim Edwards, asked the contractors to stop the dumping and to lay soil and sand down along the road to absorb the gas before it reached the drain and ran into the river. He said the contractors complied with those orders, but that the damage had already been done.

Roger Williams

It will be Robert Davidovici on Tuesday, June 8, performing classical violin music. Davidovici is the concertmaster of the Fort Worth Symphony, and he will play a $300,000 Stradivarius violin.

Shari Lewis, who wowed her audience here last year, will be returning to the Summer Festival on Wednesday, June 9. Lewis is the dancer/singer/ventriloquist who made the puppet character Lamb chops famous. Lambchops is a feisty lamb with a lot of smart talk. Denton said. Last year, Lewis danced with a full-sized puppet of Fred Astaire. Denton said that Lewis is full of energy. "It's only a one woman show," said Denton, "and you can't believe the energy that woman puts out."

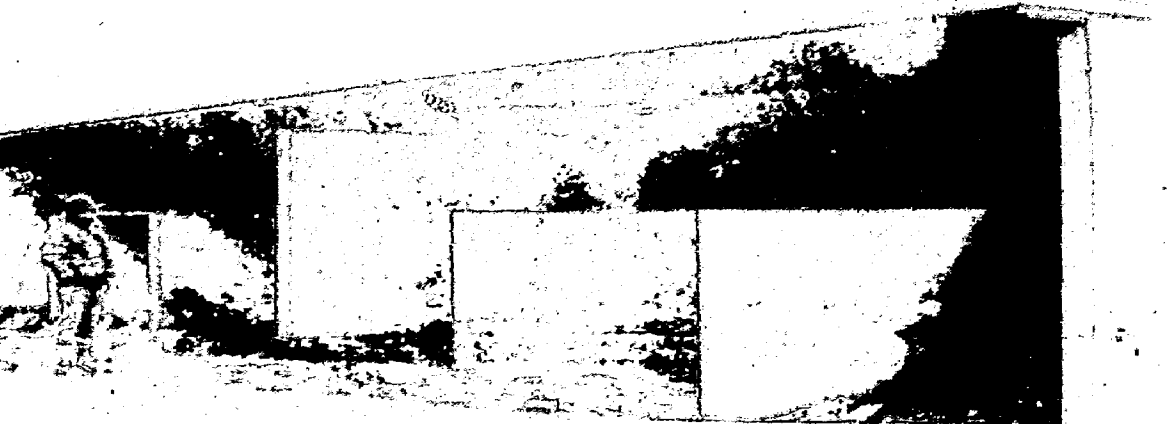

There is nothing scheduled for the following day, but on Friday, June 11, Roger Williams will end the summer festival with a "Pops Night," Denton said. "It's really an elegant show that he does with the Texas Little Symphony, the core group of the Fort Worth Symphony. He's worked with them before in Fort Worth but this will be his first appearance in Ruidoso," said Denton. She said that Williams will perform in the Sale Arena at 8 p.m.

Denton reported that an honorary board, different than the board of directors, has been formed to honor those people who have been so considerate of the needs of the RSEF. Named to the board for their outstanding support of the Ruidoso Summer Festival are Gordon Snidow, Robert O. Anderson and Dr. A.N. Spencer. "I think they were pleased to be asked, and we're very pleased that they accepted," Denton said.

Denton wanted to thank everyone who had purchased one of the two Snidow prints. She said that the revenue from print sales has helped considerably in enabling the Ruidoso Summer Festival to continue. Denton said that only 20 percent of the festival's income is from ticket sales and that print sales have contributed almost 15 percent to RSEF's budget.

Snidow's prints, "Evening the Catch Hunt" and "First Messenger from the Rain God," are still available and can be seen at local galleries. For more information on the prints, call Jeanne Whitwam at 257-2079.

The jockeys' quarters include a saddle and equipment area, a pre-race preparation room, bathrooms, showers, and lockers, kitchen, lounge, laundry and an office for track physicians.

"Central heat and air conditioning is being installed in the jockeys' building," Lewis said, "and practically all of it will be carpeted."

THE RACE TRACK is being completely rebuilt, Lewis said. "We're doing a reblue job on the track and it will be one of the finest running surfaces to be found anywhere. Also, all new rails are being installed."

The center field area will be served by a new irrigation system, "and we have a beautification plan underway that will feature grass, in addition to other improvements," Lewis said.

An added service that will be available is a new parking area that can handle between 250 and 300 cars, he said. "This new lot, west of the present parking area," Lewis said, "is intended for use on days when exceedingly large crowds are at the races. And there is plenty of room to increase this parking area, when necessary."

Barring unusual weather conditions, for any length of time, the improvements will be completed before the meeting begins

May 8, Lewis said. "We have a crew of from 80 to 100 men working every day," he said. "And they aren't working a 40 hour week - often they're on the job 10 hours a day, and work six, sometimes seven days a week."

"I'm proud of this work force, and also of the fact that this is a sizeable payroll for the community."

One final improvement, Lewis said, "is additional dumpsters and more trucks to service the barn area. All of the equipment to keep the barn section clean will be here before the horses start arriving this spring and we'll be able to keep right on top of cleanup and refuse removal."

Mayor sets Handicapped Skiers' Week

The week of February 22 through 27 has been proclaimed Sierra Blanca Handicap Skiers' Week by Mayor Lloyd L. Davis.

The week's activities will include a pre-race party at Cree Meadows Country Club on Tuesday, the businessmen's handicapped ski races on Wednesday at Sierra Blanca and a benefit dance at Jerry Dale's on Saturday.

Candidates' forum tonite

The public is invited to attend a candidates' open forum scheduled for 7 o'clock tonight in the multi-purpose room of the Ruidoso Public Library.

"Five of the six trustee candidates (one will be out of town) and the two candidates for mayor will state their positions on the many important and pressing issues that Ruidoso faces," said a spokesperson for Friends of the Library, which is presenting the candidates' forum.

The forum's moderator will be Ed Hyman, and each candidate will be given a specified amount of time to speak. Questions will be directed to the office-seekers by citizens who have mailed specific inquiries to the Friends of the Library.

Last minute questions for the candidates will be taken over the phone at the Ruidoso Public Library at 257-4335.

"The Friends of the Library are conducting the forum to provide non-partisan public information to help the village citizens make informed and intelligent choices for themselves when they cast their ballots for Ruidoso's decision makers on March 2," the spokesperson said.

Inspiration Corporation in need

Inspiration Corporation, a non-profit organization begun five years ago by Tim and Carlene Wadley for the purpose of providing young people with opportunities to study and perform fine music and drama in a clean, moral environment, is "totally dependent on donations" for its survival.

According to Carlene Wadley, the corporation must make a payment of $11,171.40 by February 23 on its purchase of 20 acres of land in Ruidoso Downs, where the corporation is based. They have been able to save $4,000 towards the payment, Wadley said.

Inspiration Corporation also has need for funds to build a multi-purpose building on the land to house a coffeehouse and Christian dinner theater and to serve as a halfway house for abused and drug addicted young people, as well as to house additional sleeping quarters, Wadley noted.

Among the many activities that Inspiration Corporation sponsors are a summer fine arts camp, interdenominational youth ministry, Christian drama, Camp Sierra Blanca prison ministry, the Ruidoso Community Choir and a ministry to an orphanage in Juarez.

The Wadleys are also responsible for beginning the Full Gospel Businessmen's Association, a gymnastics club and the First Old English madrigal dinner in Ruidoso.

They also opened the Fish Market Coffeehouse and God Spel Christian book and music store, although the coffeehouse was closed last year for financial reasons, and God Spel is currently for sale.

All profits from God-Spel are channelled back into it for improvements, Wadley said.

The summer fine arts camp is held for two weeks each year during which children of age 11 and up participate in intensive music and drama training and rehearsals and spend the second week performing in area churches, campgrounds, prisons and hospitals.

Charge for the two week camp is $200 per student, though many are awarded full or partial scholarships, according to Wadley. The money received for the camp is used to pay the rent for the building being used, usually a local church. It also goes toward paying an honorarium to the camp instructors, she added.

Inspiration Corporation also sponsors a day camp for a week during the summer for four to 10 year olds to study music and drama.

In addition to sponsoring all the activities listed, the Wadleys take in children in trouble to live in their home. They keep child abuse victims, runaways and those who might otherwise have to stay in jail.

They have 10 to 12 people staying at the house now, and "lack funds and space for taking in more kids," Wadley said.

She said they need "any kind of sustaining situation" from which to draw funds.

The Wadley's only sources of income are Tim's salary from part-time teaching at the Christian School in Ruidoso Downs, which he also helped start, and Carlene's income of $4 per lesson for giving private voice lessons, she said.

The goals of Inspiration Corporation, as listed in its brochure, are that "the campground will be used 365 days a year, with the fine arts camp occupying it in summer, a Christian dinner theater alternately with a coffee house in winter, as a ski retreat center for any church during the ski season. Also planned is a halfway house for child abuse victims and for young people seriously trying to kick a drug or alcohol habit, as well as a counseling center for people of all ages."

Lack of funds is the only thing keeping the Wadleys from achieving these goals for Inspiration Corporation, according to Carlene Wadley. She said, however, that "when you have a vision and you dream of seeing it come to fruition, it keeps you going."

MEMBERS OF the Southeast New Mexico Educational Office Personnel were addressed by Katherine Finley (pictured) on the topic "Attitude Adjustments . . . Valleys and Peaks" at a workshop on Saturday.

School personnel conference hosted

The Southeast Regional Conference of the New Mexico Educational Office Personnel was hosted by Ruidoso and Lincoln County area school office personnel Saturday at the Village Administrative Center.

Guest speaker was Katherine P. Finley, co-owner of the La Junta Guest Ranch in Alto and former deputy superintendent of the Louisiana State Department of Education, the only woman ever appointed to that position.

The topic of the workshop was "Attitude Adjustments . . . Valleys and Peaks." The purpose of the New Mexico Educational Office Personnel is to professionalize the occupation of educational office personnel and to stimulate personal growth and self improvement on the part of its members so that a finer and more efficient service may be rendered to the schools, according to Rosanne Schillales of Ruidoso, president of the organization.

Angus church renamed

Kenneth O. Frey, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene located on the denominational New Mexico District Campgrounds at Angus, announces a change in the name of the church.

The new name is the Angus Church of the Nazarene.

The church is described by Frey as "the friendly intermountain fellowship."

"This characterizes the purpose of the church as providing not only place of worship for members and friends but also as offering a fellowship center to accommodate a variety of related community activities (social, musical, recreational) through extensive use of Campground facilities," Frey said.

Covering golf is a year-round occupation

Gary Brown
Sports Writer

Associated Press and spends most of the year following the top professional golfers around to each tournament.

Bob Green only gets back to his home in Ruidoso about two months out of an entire year.

That's because Green covers golf for the Associated Press (AP).

"Golf is a year-round sport," Green said. "It's not seasonal like a lot of other sports. As a result I'm traveling around to major golf tournaments in this country and other places most of the year."

About the only real time Green spends in Ruidoso is in late November and December when the pro golf tour winds down for the year.

In fact, Green was to leave immediately for a golf tournament in Florida when this interview was conducted last Thursday.

Green has been covering golf for AP since 1969 but started his journalism career a long time before that.

"I grew up in Roswell and had my first job there in 1942 when I was 10 years old," he said. "I had a part-time job sweeping the floors of the old Roswell Dispatch newspaper. Later on, in 1951, I became sports editor of the Roswell Record and was there for three years."

Green joined AP in 1954 and worked out of its Albuquerque office at first. From there he moved to the Dallas and Boston offices before moving to the main AP office in New York in 1961.

"At first I worked general news for AP, just doing sports on the side," Green said. "When I went to work for the New York office I started covering sports."

"I've covered almost every major sporting event except the Kentucky Derby. I covered the 1962 World Series between the Giants and the Yankees, and the 1969 Super Bowl with Joe Namath and the New York Jets against Baltimore."

Green was assigned to the pro golf tour in 1969 and he admits he loves the sport although he seldom plays it.

"I've played golf occasionally but I'm really not very good at it," he said. "Since he started to cover golf Green has seen most of the great professional golfers of the past 20 years."

Who is the best he's seen?

"Jack Nicklaus, without question," Green said. "He's the best of all times. He's won 17 major tournaments. That's more than Arnold Palmer and Gary Player combined."

What made Nicklaus so good?

"His head," said Green. "He has great natural ability but more than anything he had the intelligence and determination to become a great golfer."

Nicklaus is 42 now, but despite his age he's still a big draw at tournaments.

"If Nicklaus enters a tournament, he's the man everybody watches," said Green.

Green sees Tom Watson as the best golfer in the last five years of competition.

"He didn't have a good season last year but he's been tough before and since then," Green said of Watson. "But he won't be as good as Nicklaus, nobody is."

Green is also high on Lee Trevino, an El Paso native who is popular in the southwest.

"He's a great golfer and person," Green said. "He's in the Hall of Fame and he's done a lot to bring golf to the people."

One reason Green likes to cover golf is because he believes it's a gentleman's game.

"You meet some really high-class people in golf," Green said. "There's a lot of honor involved in the sport. There aren't any judges on the course, only the golfers and their score cards."

Green pointed to an incident several years ago which showed the honor system golfers play with.

"Tom Kite was involved in a tournament and was about to putt the ball near a hole," he said. "However, his ball moved and only he saw it. Still, he admitted the ball moved, and the extra stroke cost him the tournament. He lost by one stroke. That's something you don't see in many other sports nowadays."

Since Green is constantly on the go covering golf tournaments, he carries a small portable computer with which he writes and transmits his copy to the New York office.

He and his wife love life in Ruidoso because it's such a contrast to a big city like New York. They've lived in Ruidoso for about 10 years.

"It's pretty and quiet here in Ruidoso," he said. "When you've been to a big city like New York, you appreciate a small town like Ruidoso more and more. However, Ruidoso's growing quite a bit now and I hope it doesn't get too big."

The topic of the workshop was "Attitude Adjustments . . . Valleys and Peaks." The purpose of the New Mexico Educational Office Personnel is to professionalize the occupation of educational office personnel and to stimulate personal growth and self improvement on the part of its members so that a finer and more efficient service may be rendered to the schools, according to Rosanne Schillaber of Ruidoso, president of the organization.

CARE CENTER AUXILIARY BOARD TREASURER Tony Apodaca announced at last Thursday's board meeting that enough money has been collected to pay for the estimated cost of the center's new van. Funds are now needed to buy a lift for the van so that Care Center residents in wheelchairs may ride aboard.

Care Center Auxiliary awaits van delivery

Ruidoso Care Center auxiliary board president Charles Spooner Thursday said that money for the estimated cost of the care center's van is now available.

The board's treasurer, Tony Apodaca, said that over $9,540 is presently in the account for the van, a quoted dealer price of $9,520. Spooner said that the van is being put through the assembly line in Detroit and that another month remains for the van to be finished.

Ruth Gardner, care center social services director, said that the van would be the most basic model. "There won't be any carpeting, and there will be no extra goodies on it," she said. Gardner said that the van will have some benches to seat people and that wheelchair space will be available.

The care center uses the village's van on Monday and Wednesday afternoons and all day Friday. It was reported at the auxiliary meeting that the village van has no ramp or lift, and it does not suit the needs of those care center residents in wheelchairs. "We can't use the van without a lift," said Gardner.

In order to raise funds for a wheelchair lift for the care center's new van, an enchilada dinner will be held this Thursday, February 25 at the Deck House Restaurant from 5 to 9 p.m., said Apodaca. Bakery goods are being solicited for the bake sale that will accompany the dinner. Baked goods will be accepted at the care center as well as at the door the night of the fund raiser, said one dinner organizer.

The board also moved to purchase for their newly named and opened "Country Store" a used, $100 glass display case to exhibit the items that care center residents make. Funds for the eight foot case will come out of the patio fund.

The auxiliary's Country Store provides toiletries and snacks for care center residents who cannot get out to purchase those goods at local stores. The board decided that residents may purchase items at cost, but that care center employees must purchase cigarettes, snacks and toiletries at their regular retail prices. One board member said that if any extra money is earned, it may be turned back to the center for use by a needy person. The store is open from 9 to 11 a.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, and it will be open to the citizens of Ruidoso, it was decided.

In other Ruidoso Care Center auxiliary board business, it was reported that a refrigerator had been donated to the Country Store by an anonymous patron. It was also decided that a bill for the new patio lights would not be paid until the lights are installed.

Covering golf is a year-round occupation

Gary Brown
Sports Writer

Bob Green only gets back to his home in Ruidoso about two months out of an entire year.

That's because Green covers golf for the Associated Press (AP).

"Golf is a year-round sport," Green said. "It's not seasonal like a lot of other sports. As a result I'm traveling around to major golf tournaments in this country and other places most of the year."

About the only real time Green spends in Ruidoso is in late November and December when the pro golf tour winds down for the year.

In fact, Green was to leave immediately for a golf tournament in Florida when this interview was conducted last Thursday.

Green has been covering golf for AP since 1969 but started his journalism career a long time before that.

"I grew up in Roswell and had my first job there in 1942 when I was 10 years old," he said. "I had a part-time job sweeping the floors of the old Roswell Dispatch newspaper. Later on, in 1951, I became sports editor of the Roswell Record and was there for three years."

Green joined AP in 1954 and worked out of its Albuquerque office at first. From there he moved to the Dallas and Boston offices before moving to the main AP office in New York in 1961.

"At first I worked general news for AP, just doing sports on the side," Green said. "When I went to work for the New York office I started covering sports."

"I've covered almost every major sporting event except the Kentucky Derby. I covered the 1962 World Series between the Giants and the Yankees, and the 1969 Super Bowl with Joe Namath and the New York Jets against Baltimore."

"I've covered the Olympics several times but never on the field, always inside. I would write general previews of events and such but I never saw the actual competition."

Green was assigned to the pro golf tour in 1969 and he admits he loves the sport although he seldom plays it.

"I've played golf occasionally but I'm really not very good at it," he said.

Since he started to cover golf Green has seen most of the great professional golfers of the past 20 years.

"Who is the best he's seen?" "Jack Nicklaus, without question," Green said. "He's the best of all times. He's won 17 major tournaments. That's more than Arnold Palmer and Gary Player combined."

What made Nicklaus so good? "His head," said Green. "He has great natural ability but more than anything he had the intelligence and determination to become a great golfer."

Nicklaus is 42 now, but despite his age he's still a big draw at tournaments.

"If Nicklaus enters a tournament, he's the man everybody watches," said Green.

Green sees Tom Watson as the best golfer in the last five years of competition.

"He didn't have a good season last year but he's been tough before and since then," Green said of Watson. "But he won't be as good as Nicklaus, nobody is."

Green is also high on Lee Trevino, an El Paso native who is popular in the southwest.

"He's a great golfer and person," Green said. "He's in the Hall of Fame and he's done a lot to bring golf to the people."

One reason Green likes to cover golf is because he believes it's a gentleman's game.

"You meet some really high-class people in golf," Green said. "There's a lot of honor involved in the sport. There aren't any judges on the course, only the golfers and their score cards."

Green pointed to an incident several years ago which showed the honor system golfers play with.

"Tom Kite was involved in a tournament and was about to put the ball near a hole," he said. "However, his ball moved and only he saw it. Still, he admitted the ball moved, and the extra stroke cost him the tournament. He lost by one stroke. That's something you don't see in many other sports nowadays."

Since Green is constantly on the go covering golf tournaments, he carries a small portable computer with which he writes and transmits his copy to the New York office.

He and his wife love life in Ruidoso because it's such a contrast to a big city like New York. They've lived in Ruidoso for about 10 years.

"It's pretty and quiet here in Ruidoso," he said. "When you've been to a big city like New York, you appreciate a small town like Ruidoso more and more. However, Ruidoso's growing quite a bit now and I hope it doesn't get too big."

LOOK GOOD IN LOSING PAIR

Ruidoso girls ready for playoffs

Although the Ruidoso High School girls' varsity basketball team received two more defeats over the weekend, coach Sergio Castanon is pleased with the team's improvement going into the district 3-AAA tournament.

"We looked good in the second half against Deming (a 50-38 loss at the Warrior gym Saturday night) and that's a positive sign for the playoffs," Castanon said.

Ruidoso also fell to Truth or Consequences (T or C) 41-33 Friday night. The playoffs begin tomorrow night with the seeding still undetermined.

The Warriors, 3-17 overall and winless in district action, came fairly close to pulling off a major upset against Deming.

Trailing 36-13 entering the second half, the Warriors slowed the Wildcats' offense down in the third period, only giving up six points while scoring eight of their own.

In the final period the Warriors outscored the visitors 17-6.

Trailing 44-21 entering the final quarter, the Warriors pulled to within 16 points at 48-32 with 3:35 left in the game.

After a Deming bucket with 3:00 left, the Warriors scored six more points without a Wildcat tally to make the score respectable.

Claudia Branum and Erin Rad each had eight points to lead the Warrior attack. Jan Huey added six points and Lillian Lopez seven. Bridgit Almager and Tami Valdez each had four points for Ruidoso.

Patsy Aranda had 12 points and Roberta Avales 15 for the Wildcats.

Against T or C the Warriors made a tough game of it in the first half but faltered a bit in the second as the hosts took the victory.

Ruidoso held a 9-4 lead at the end of the first quarter but the Tigers came back with 15 points to just five for the Warriors.

in the second period for a 19-14 halftime advantage.

The third quarter, which has been a bad one for the Warriors this season, saw Ruidoso score just six points to 14 for T or

In the final period the Indians only scored eight but hung on for the victory. Huey and Branum each had eight points for the Warriors and Lopez added seven TAMI VALDEZ (22), of the Ruidoso High School girls' varsity basketball team puts up a shot in Saturday's game with visiting Deming. Looking on are Jan Huey of Ruidoso and Tricia Jameson (24) of the Warriors. Deming won the game 50-38.

The Ruidoso-Sertoma basketball Little League program is giving youths in the area a chance to compete in basketball at a level higher than they would without such a program.

Kids from nine to 12 years old compete in the league, which has eight teams. Six are from Ruidoso and two are from Hondo. If it wasn't for the Little League program, kids in this area wouldn't have a chance to play competitive basketball until they entered White Mountain Middle School at age 12 or 13.

If a boy or girl is interested in basketball, 12 or 13 is really too late to get started in the competitive side of the sport. In many larger towns, a lot of kids have already played competitive basketball for several years when they enter middle school.

Some towns have extensive recreation programs where kids in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades get a lot of chances to play competitive basketball.

Before the Little League program was started several years ago in the Ruidoso area, kids here didn't have a chance to play basketball in the early years. Thus, local youths were already several years behind their peers in towns like Roswell and Alamogordo.

With the later start in basketball, kids in this area had a disadvantage when they entered middle school and the first year of high school. They ended up playing teams with players who had several years experience.

Now, with the Little League program in high swing, kids in this area should be on an equal footing with their peers in other towns in a few years.

That should greatly help the basketball programs at Ruidoso High School and White Mountain Middle School.

Thornton stars for local gymnasts in state meet

Amy Thornton came through with an outstanding effort to highlight the Ruidoso Gymnastics Academy (RGA) Mountaintops team's performance in the state class III meet in Albuquerque Saturday.

Thornton, competing in the 9-11 year old division, finished eighth in the overall all-around competition with a 32.85 score, her best of the year. Her effort gave the Mountaintops 10th place in the team scoring.

Amy took second in the balance beam with an outstanding 8.6 score, her lifetime best. The Mountaintops gymnast also took seventh in the floor exercise with an 8.25 total and eighth in vaulting with a 7.85 score. Thornton also scored a personal best of 8.15 in the uneven bars for 11th place.

Hillary Heid and Angela Jones, the other Mountaintops entrants, also did well in the competition.

Jones, also competing in the 9-11 year old class, tallied 30.3 in the all-around scoring.

She scored 7.65 in the uneven bars, 7.55 in the floor exercise, 7.60 in the balance beam and 7.5 in the vaulting.

Heid, competing in the 12-13 year old division, scored 28.95 in the all-around competition. Heid had a 6.15 in the uneven bars, an excellent 8.15 in the floor exercise, 25 in the balance beam and 7.5 in the vaulting.

Mountaintops head coach John Eberle is pleased with the performance of his athletes, particularly Thornton.

"I can't say enough about Amy's performance," he said. "She's done well in every event at different times this season but Saturday she put it all together at one time."

The state meet ended the season for class III athletes but Eberle is planning a meet March 6 at the RGA gym for class II athletes. Charlene Jackson is the only RGA athlete in the class II division.

WARRIORS 3RD IN DISTRICT

Nine local grapplers earn state berths

Qualifying nine wrestlers for the state tournament, Ruidoso High School's wrestling team took third at the district 3-AAA tournament Friday at the New Mexico School for the Visually Handicapped (NMSVH) in Alamogordo.

The Warriors scored 130.5 points, to finish behind champion Deming with 161.5 and Silver City with 158. Coble finished fourth with 80 points and New Mexico Military Institute (NMMI) was fifth with 63 points.

Ruidoso wrestlers who qualified for the state tournament next weekend in Los Lunas are Ray Montes (105 pounds), Henry Rue (119 pounds), Doug Schmidt (126 pounds), Jim Askew (132 pounds), Wade Torres (145 pounds), Don Gwyn (155 pounds), Scott Ciraulo (170 pounds), Gary Burgess (185 pounds) and Ronald Bell at heavyweight.

Schmidt was the only first-place finisher for the Warriors. The Warrior matman came from behind to defeat Mike Stienzig of Silver City 13-11.

The Warrior senior used a three-point escape and a two-point near fall in the final period to beat the Silver City wrestler.

Rue, Montes, Askew, Ciraulo and Burgess each took second places while Bell, Gwyn and Torres each finished third. The top three wrestlers in each weight division qualified for the state tournament.

Montes put up a tough effort but was pinned by John Luna of Silver City in the second period of the 105 pound division. Luna was named Most Outstanding Wrestler for the tournament.

Rue got a health clearance for the tournament Thursday and competed very well. The Ruidoso junior has been having chest pains and at first was considered doubtful for the tournament.

Askew lost a 6-0 decision in the 132 pound championship match while Ciraulo and Burgess, both sophomores, were pinned in their championship matches.

Bell finished third by pinning Edward Alvarez of Silver City in the heavyweight consolation final. If Alvarez had pinned Bell, Silver City would have won the tournament (title since it trailed Deming by just 3.5 points entering the match).

Gwyn defeated Mike Valdez of NMMI 6-3 for third place in the 145 pound division and a trip to the state tournament.

Torres took a decisive pin in the third place match to make it to the state tournament. Torres has usually finished first, second or third in the tournaments he has competed in this season.

The other two Warrior wrestlers who competed in the district tournament, Kyle Jameson and Chuck Schmidt, each finished fourth.

Jameson, only an eighth-grader, competed in the 98 pound class while Schmidt, a sophomore, wrestled in the 112 pound division.

"We did about as well as I expected," said Warrior coach Gerald Ames. "I was hoping Torres would finish no lower than second but he looked good in the third place match."

Montes, Doug Schmidt and Bell will be making their second trip to the state tournament. Montes and Schmidt went last season. Bell went two years ago but a football injury prevented him from going last season.

"It's hard to say how our guys will do up there," Ames said. "The state tournament is a completely different story from the district tournament. There's going to be a lot of good wrestlers there."

"You can't always go by what wrestlers did last year in the tournament. Some may have moved up a weight class."

The competition will begin Friday with the first session. The second session will be on Saturday.

SCOTT CIRAULO (left) of Ruidoso looks eye to eye with Frank Tavizor of Silver City in the championship match of the 167 pound division in the district 3-AAA wrestling tournament in Alamogordo Friday. Ciraulo lost the match but finished second and qualified for the state tournament in Los Lunas Friday and Saturday.

Warrior junior varsity falls

Missing two key players, Ruidoso High School's boys' junior varsity basketball team lost to Truth or Consequences (T or C) and Deming over the weekend.

The Warriors fell to host T or C 66-49 Friday night before losing to visiting Deming 59-54 Saturday night.

Ruidoso missed 5-11 forward Jeff Knox and guard Tommy Crow due to injuries. Ruidoso is now 1-15 on the season.

Against T or C the Warriors scored 28 points in the second quarter, their highest total for one period this season. Ruidoso trailed by just two points at halftime 31-29.

However, the second half saw T or C's taller players wear the Warriors down. The hosts outscored the Warriors 20-10 in the third period to take a 51-39 advantage into the final quarter.

The final quarter saw T or C score 15 points to 10 for the Warriors.

Cyrus Simmons led the Warriors with 20 points and Gilbert Rivera added nine. Jessie Reynolds and Dion Lopez each had five points for the losers.

In the Deming game Ruidoso played almost the opposite of the way it played against T or C.

Ruidoso started out slow against the Wildcats, trailing 12-6 at the first quarter break and 28-15 at the half.

However, Ruidoso made a game of it in the second half. The Warriors slowed the Wildcats' game down a bit and put 12 points on the scoreboard in the final quarter.

Rivera led the Warriors with 12 points and Simmons had 11. Pat Pearson had five points.

Brent Jackson scored 12 points and Chris Jasso had eight for Deming.

"We played pretty well considering we had some players out," said Warrior junior varsity coach Ron Geyer. "Against T or C we had a height disadvantage and that hurt us."

"Against Deming we met probably the best junior varsity team in the district. We got our offense moving pretty well but their fast breaks hurt us."

Ruidoso ends the season with away games at Tularosa Friday and Coble Saturday.

Warriors roll over T or C, scare undefeated Wildcats

Ruidoso High School's boys' varsity basketball team showed it will still be a factor in the district 3-AAA tournament by splitting a pair of games against Truth or Consequences (T or C) and undefeated Deming over the weekend.

The Warriors topped host T or C 54-43 Friday night, then came back to play probably their best game of the season in losing to visiting Deming 70-66 Saturday night.

Ruidoso, now 3-4 in district action and 4-16 overall, took its second victory in two tries against T or C Friday night but it wasn't easy.

The Tigers, who are winless in district play, held a slight 19-18 lead at the end of the opening quarter.

However, the Warriors took advantage of their superior height in the second quarter and outscored T or C 10-8 for a slight 28-27 halftime advantage.

In the second half Ruidoso began to pull away from the Tigers. The Warriors held a 38-35 advantage at the end of the third period and gradually increased that margin in the final quarter for the victory.

Bill Richardson and Steve Sluder each scored 14 points for the Warriors and dominated the boards with their superior height. Guard Scott Neal added 10 points, Marc Delbotal had nine, Pete Garcia six and Paul Jaramillo one.

Against Deming the Warriors came through with one of their best shooting performances of the season, but it still wasn't enough against the talented Wildcats.

Deming jumped off to a 5-0 advantage early in the opening period but the Warriors came back to take a 6-5 lead with 2:50 left in the period on a jumper by Neal.

The visitors held a slight 12-10 lead at the end of the first quarter and increased it slightly in the second period.

Sluder hit a couple of free throws to pull the Warriors to within six points at 22-16 with two minutes left in the quarter but the Wildcats held on for a 28-21 halftime advantage.

The second half saw the Warriors come through with a 45-point performance but the Wildcats had just enough left for the win.

Deming built its advantage to 36-27 with 5:30 left in the third quarter but Richardson, who led the Warrior scorers with 23 points, sank a 10-foot jumper to narrow the margin to seven points with 5:00 left.

Another basket by Richardson, one by Neal and two free throws by Sluder closed the margin to 38-35 before the visitors got another bucket for a five-point advantage. But the Warriors kept pecking away and closed the Deming margin to just one point several times. The third quarter ended with the Wildcats holding a slim 48-46 lead. The Wildcats increased their advantage to 54-46 early in the final period but the Warriors closed to within three points at 65-62 with 1:20 left in the contest when Neal hit a 20-foot jump shot.

However, a bucket and three free throws by Deming iced the contest for the visitors.

Despite the close loss to Deming, Warrior head coach Barry Nelson was pleased with his team's efforts in the two games. "I couldn't be prouder of the players," he said. "They played their hearts out and it was definitely our best game of the season."

"The last time we played Deming we sort of went in there thinking we didn't have a chance to beat them and they played awfully well (a 77-38 Deming victory). However, this time I let the players take some shots I wouldn't let them take last time and we had a good shooting night."

Ruidoso will end the regular district season with away games at Tularosa Friday and Coble Saturday. The Warriors beat Tularosa 43-39 in their first meeting with that team. However, Coble handled Ruidoso easily last week 53-36.

The district tournament begins a week from tomorrow. The first place team (probably Deming) will have a first round bye while the other teams compete.

Cidella Gonzales
Friends and loved ones gathered February 17, at Saint Eleanor's Catholic Church and at the cemetery at Saint Jude's Church in San Patricio to pay fond tribute to Mrs. Cidella Gonzales who was called Home by Our Lord February 13.

Cidella was born October 1, 1935, in Arabella, to Mr. and Mrs. Eloy Candelaria, now of Ruidoso Downs. In 1950, she married Alfred Gonzales in Tularosa.

Cidella and her husband Alfred are both widely beloved throughout Lincoln County and all the surrounding neighborhood. They raised a family of six sons and two daughters, all worthy children of their devoted father and mother.

Cidella will be kindly remembered by all of us and we take comfort in knowing that this good Christian lady is safe and happy with Our Lord in Heaven.

"The Spirit-Protected Man"

We come now to say a few words about the third of three presidents whose birthdays we celebrate during the "Birthdays Month," the other two being Ronald Reagan, February 6, and Abraham Lincoln, February 12.

This message will reach you on the birthday of our first president, George Washington, born February 22, 1732 at Bridges Creek, near Fredericksburg, Westmoreland County, Virginia.

This is always a doubly special day to the Storm family because it is also the birthday of our Grandma, Catherine Cannon Kennedy.

A giant in physical strength, Washington was of a very gentle nature. As a boy, head and shoulders in height above those of his own age, he often stopped the quarreling of his play mates. In fact, he hated fighting. It was his lot, however, to be the leader in some of the most bitter and prolonged fighting in the history of the world. Central in his life was his devotion to his mother.

The death of his father when George was 11 years old contributed to the boy's taking a man's part. Very early in life he became manager of the large plantation of his family. He was a born farmer with the deepest love for all growing things. And he was a great lover of horses.

Nothing would have suited him better than to have spent his life on his beautiful and vast estate growing every kind of fruit tree, and ornamental shrub and vine, and raising his horses and cattle.

However, early in life he was summoned to that calling which he hated most, fighting. As the settlers moved west he was called upon to take part in campaigns against the Indians.

Back when we were still English, George accompanied the English general Edward Braddock on a campaign against the French in the French and Indian War, 1757.

A keen observer of forest life, and the warfare of the Indians, George had learned the folly of the English style of warfare on the American frontier. His later success in the American Revolution was due in part to what he had learned from the Indians about fighting in the wilderness.

At first meeting of the Indians, General Braddock refused to take Washington's advice, and massed his troops in a clearing where they were assailed from every side by the surrounding Indians. Braddock was mortally wounded, after a brave but futile stand. And Washington had his clothing ripped by four bullets, and had two horses shot from under him.

Braddock's army and the dying Braddock were guided on a retreat, so masterfully executed by Washington that he was given command of the Virginia Militia at the age of 23.

Sixteen years later, Washington went in to the forest to the west leading a party of hunters and woodsmen and officials on an exploration journey.

One day a party of Indians appeared at their camp accompanied by a trader who acted as interpreter. Leading the party was an Indian chief, who appeared to be of considerable age.

The interpreter said he had traveled a long way to talk to Washington. Recognizing Washington immediately, although he had not seen him for 17 years, and then at considerable distance, he spoke, his talk being interpreted by the trader. He was recalling the Battle under the direction of Braddock.

"I am a chief, and ruler of many tribes. My influence extends to the waters of the great lakes and to the far mountain ranges. I have traveled a long and weary path that I might see the young warrior of the great battle."

I called to my young men and said, "Mark you tall and daring warrior. He is not of the red-coat tribe. He hath the Indian's wisdom and his warriors fight as we do. Himself is alone exposed. Quick let your arm be certain, and he dies."

"Our rifles were levelled, rifles which, but for him, knew not how to miss. I was all in vain, a power mightier by far than we, shielded him from harm. He cannot die in battle. I am old, and shall not be gathered to the great council fire of my fathers in the land of shades, but ere I go there is something but me speak of the voice of prophesy. Listen."

"The Great Spirit protects this man, and guides his destiny. He will become the chief of nations, and of a people yet unborn, will lead him as the founder of a mighty empire."

The Indian chief's prophesy came true. Washington went on through the thick of the Revolutionary War and never received the slightest wound. And he became that which he will ever remain.

First in War, First in Peace, and First in the Hearts of his countrymen.

Grace period for draft registration

The Selective Service System is continuing to make available for public inspection lists of registrants and their tentative local board assignments. This is in keeping with the intent of Selective Service that its procedures be open to the public.

The list may be viewed at the County Courthouse.

The lists cover registrations processed through September 30, 1981, and include men born in 1960, 1961, 1962, and 1963.

Local board assignments are arranged by ZIP code based upon the registrant's permanent address.

The requirement to register applies to U.S. citizens, and to aliens residing in the United States, born on or after January 1, 1960. Men born in 1960 and 1961 were scheduled to register during July 1980; men born in 1962 were scheduled to register in January 1981; those born in 1963 were scheduled to be registered during 1981. Men born in 1964 are required to register within 30 days of their 18th birthday. They may do so at any United States Post Office.

On January 7, 1982, President Reagan announced his decision to continue peacetime Selective Service Registration. In announcing his decision, the President declared a grace period during which late registration would be accepted without penalty. That grace period extends through February 1982.

Anyone who was scheduled to register previously but has not yet done so is encouraged to register immediately at any United States Post Office in order to avoid any possible penalty.

Inside The Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE—During this legislative session certain names from the past come to mind.

One is that of H. L. Pinkerton. You didn't know him? Too bad for you.

"Pink" was a man of consummate skill. He was the lobbyist for what is now Public Service Company of New Mexico for more years than most of us want to remember.

And did PNM get into any trouble in all his years? Not so you would remember it. And where is that same company today? Beleaguered and set upon by legislators, plus gubernatorial candidates, who want to dump upon and punish this one company.

Why do they want to do that? To distract the rest of us.

They want somebody to be the bad guy in New Mexico.

PNM is their choice.

During all the years Mr. Pinkerton sat in his regular place at La Fonda (under the present portrait of B. B. Dunne), PNM was safe. Pink didn't go to the capitol to gossip people; they came to him.

And every evening, in his room, the members of the Legislature who had the most influence met.

Guess whose side they ended up on? His.

Today's Public Service Company of New Mexico doesn't quite have Pink's clout. Lots more money gets spent now—but with what result?

Pink in his big chair at La Fonda got things done. He was a man of consummate skill; probably he was too good for the tiny state of New Mexico of that time.

But those folks from PNM must, today, wish that he were still here, and still operative.

Another name from the past: Carrie Tingley.

It is hard for those of us who knew this lady, as she sat in the lobby of the Hilton in Albuquerque waiting for Buster Tingley to come and take her home of an afternoon, to believe she would want that hospital in Truth or Consequences to become a "fat farm."

Most of you don't remember the impulse of the March of Dimes while FDR was alive.

Those of us who do wanted the Carrie Tingley Crippled Children's Hospital to be just that—a place for crippled kids.

That's what Mrs. Tingley would have wanted. That's what even her not-without-political-sin husband would have wanted.

So here we are in 1982.

Some doctors from some place outside New Mexico are offering a few cents on the dollar to buy this once important hospital and grounds.

We called it "The Carrie Tingley Memorial Hospital." We were proud of it. We thought it was a good thing for a small state like ours.

And now New Mexico is going to sell it to a group of doctors who will charge fat fees from fat people? Is that what Carrie Tingley would want—to have those who already put on weight because they can afford too much of this world's goods come here and sweat off the excess?

Neither Clyde Tingley nor Carrie Tingley were slim people.

But as one who knew them, this writer would say they would prefer to have that place in Truth or Consequences given over to war veterans, not to the rich and heavy.

Fat is a luxury. Veterans are sad, to say, in our society, a necessity.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

I always enjoy reading your editorials and especially the recent one concerning testing teachers to insure competency.

I think we all agree that we need competent teachers—however, should it be required, as you suggest, that the teachers pass a uniform test much the same as Doctors and Lawyers, I feel they should be paid accordingly. After all, doctors and lawyers make substantially more than teachers.

A uniform test is no criteria for determining a teachers competency any more than it guarantees that the doctors and lawyers are competent. A teacher that cares, a teacher that will make the time for a child, a teacher that understands children; these are more important than any standardized test that could be given to a prospective teacher.

If, as you suggested, a test were to be given, there would have to be at least 12 grade tests for perhaps 30 students in each grade for a total of 360 tests; Not one test. As an ex teacher I have had the occasion to see a standardized test and believe me passing it would be no criteria as to a teachers competency.

Sometimes bureaucratic mingling tends to really foul things up. Take for example in the El Paso School System: The teacher who established the curriculum used by the school system to teach the primary grades and recognized by the Texas Education Board, had to be relieved of her position as a first grade teacher because she lacked one specific course which was required of teachers after she had obtained her BA degree. She felt it was not practical to go back to school for another year to obtain the course.

Someday you should go to our excellent schools and survey the children as to how smart their teachers are—I feel you might have a shock—Then ask which teachers make their classes interesting and challenging, again I think you might be shocked. The children will generally be more excited to learn from an interesting teacher, devoted to children and willing to take the time to help mold their developing minds to learn and perhaps be teachers themselves.

In Ruidoso we are very fortunate to have teachers that care and to me this speaks very highly of our educational system.

Margaret D. Gaddy

Dear editor:

In a letter to the editor 2-15-82, J. R. Martinovich criticized George White for his attempt to stop the leasing of the Village swimming pool in 1981. I would assume that Mr. Martinovich is a local resident, although he is not listed in the current phone book.

What makes the criticism so laughable is that in retrospect, Mr. White's stance appears to be correct. At this juncture, it appears that we may have lost more money than if the Village had run the pool itself, inasmuch as the lessee left the Village holding the bag for a $4,400.00 water bill, $2,333.33 in unpaid lease payments, plus $1,774.50 in other unpaid bills, all of which the Village is currently suing for. Not leasing the pool would have saved the Village a lot of headaches.

Mr. White was also correct in the legal sense. State statutes (3-12-3) covering the ownership of properties by the Village clearly state that the supervision and operation of the properties are the duty of the Village, not a proprietorship. In spite of the statute, the Trustees relied on an opinion of the Village Attorney and leased the pool. This statute was Mr. White's main concern in not wanting to lease the pool.

The Village had been doing an efficient job running the pool and its revenue from patrons increased from $4,841 in 1978 to $6,317 in 1979 to $8,394 in 1980. The Village did this while using 407,000 gallons of water in 1980. That sounds like a lot, but the lessee used 2,313,000 gallons of our scarce water in 1981, and hasn't paid for it.

George White was right about this issue just as he has been about other issues with which he has tried to utilize common sense. He is conservative, but not stodgy. All his life he has been a gatherer, teacher and applier of knowledge and common sense, and if he is for or against an issue, you can be sure he has done his homework and understands the issue and its effects.

Let's put George White's common sense to work for Ruidoso. He's the best man around for the Mayor's job, and we need him.

ON FAMILY PRAYER

Families that pray together do stay together.

Or so it seems from research done by a graduate student working with Family Studies Professor Erik Filsinger at Arizona State University.

According to the ASU News Bureau, a survey of about 200 Protestant married couples in northwest Phoenix shows that marital happiness is directly related to religious beliefs and practices.

To measure happiness, student Margaret Wilson questioned couples about the agreement or disagreement on issues such as finances, recreation and life philosophies. She asked about their satisfaction or dissatisfaction with their relationships, the frequency of sharing ideas and activities and their agreement of the amount of affection demonstrated in their marriages.

The researcher also tested the couples' "religiousness" with questions about their beliefs, practices, religious knowledge, attitudes toward moral and social issues and the degree to which their beliefs affect their experiences.

When all the questionnaires were in, Wilson found that religious factors strongly related to the quality of the marriages.

Filsinger said the study is not saying that religion is necessary for happy marriages.

"It points out rather that life is smoother for those who accept group consensus of the way things ought to be. When you think about it, it makes sense. There are fewer tough choices to be made that way."

He said the conclusions of the research affirm the work of early sociologists who said people operate best in an atmosphere of social cohesion with group established ideas of right and wrong and strong support systems.

Filsinger feels the study is generally true, at least of Protestants in the southwest. — The Chandler Arizonan.

Editorial

The annual mass gathering of Aspencade motorcyclists in Ruidoso is a thing of the past.

Or is it?

Though the name may be changed, it looks as if Aspencade, rechristened Aspen Festival '82 and/or Ruidoso Motorcycle Festival, will roll around as usual in late September and into early October.

The above mentioned events are being organized by the Chamber of Commerce and the Ruidoso Business Association, respectively.

A team roping competition, a chili cookoff, a program golf tournament and a tractor pulling contest are all under consideration by the Chamber.

The business association, whose members are motorcycle enthusiasts, are naturally prompting a motorcycle festival.

While all of these ideas have some merit, each is limited in its appeal.

None meets what should be the criteria for the type of event that all agree is needed—one that would bring in the greatest number of free spending visitors, with few or no unsavory types among them, and that is in keeping with Ruidoso's mountain village character.

That is certainly a tall order to fill, perhaps impossible. But this year, the first in many without an Aspencade motorcycle convention, is very important as a precedent for years to come.

We ask the business community, and the community as a whole: Does anyone have some better ideas?—TP

'BUTE' CONTROVERSY

The state Senate last Wednesday kicked Governor King's buddy ... "Buddy" Major ... off the State Racing Commission ... on account of some allegations about the use of bute ... and, by jinkies, those elected stalwarts and refused to let him continue on the racing commission ... even though Brucey baby wants him to serve.

Course one upshot of this action might result in some positive standards being adopted for the use of bute ... which, as I understand, by reading comments of those favoring its use ... tends to make a race horse relax ... and forget about his owies ... so he can run races regardless of his owies ... and help his owner pay the freight ... 'cause it might be reasonable to assume that a race horse that wins no money winds up in someone's glue pot.

How much two micrograms of bute is, I got no idea, but it sure don't sound like a bunch ... and there's talk about allowing five of those micrograms to show up in a test ... and that do sound like more of a bunch than two.

Anyhow ... if'n Major's getting the boot brings the bute hassle to a head ... and it gets settled ... and the horsemen are happy ... and the racing commission can live with it ... and no horses get hurt as a result ... Buddy can always claim it was him as got things instigated to change things ... even if it cost him his job ... no?

AN EATING BENEFIT

You know, of course, naturally, positively, and for a fact that there's been folks as has been working to provide the Ruidoso Care Center residents with a van ... whereby they can get from yonder to thither in style ... comfort ... and without the bother of getting into and out of a car ... which do make things easier.

Come now Dorothy and Tony Apodaca ... of the Deck House Restaurant ... and they want to serve some Mexican food to people as likes Mexican food ... from 5 to 9 p.m., February 25 ... with all the profits to go to the Care Center Auxiliary ... to help those folks obtain a lift for the new van ... so's they can hoist folks as is in wheelchairs right into the van ... no fuss, no muss, no bother ... which do sound like a good deal.

Ergo ... you can chomp on Mexican delicacies ... and enjoy ... and, soon's that lift's installed in the van ... the Care Center residents will enjoy ... and you'll enjoy the feeling of having helped folks enjoy life more ... and that's the kind of feeling that's fun enjoying ... yes?

LOVE MUST LOVE IT

You must've had your own opinions about the Senate approving reappointing Oscar Mahlon Love Jr., as chairman of the State Police board ... being's Mahlon grabbed himself some headlines ... and considerable ink ... as the public learned that he'd picked himself up a DWI citation that sorta fell by the wayside ... on its way to court ... 'cause of something called "professional courtesy" ... 'cause Mahlon's a certified police officer ... and, apparently, other police officers tend to be more courteous to one of their own who's up for a DWI rap, than they are to someone not entitled to that courtesy ... leastwise when it happens in Albuquerque.

So ... the Senate action reappointing Mahlon does have the condition attached ... that should a public official wind up in a like situation in the future ... there'll be no condoning of the offender's action ... which could mean curtains for "professional courtesy" ... maybe.

But ... Mahlon's gonna have to attend DWI school ... and pay the freight ... and he's also gotta throw another $200 into the kitty to help pay for running DWI schools ... and, if'n he gets to take the school with some of the run of the mill DWI school students ... it could well be an experience Mahlon ain't likely to forget ... 'cause he might get heckled a mite ... which might not hurt him much.

And this'll prove there's no "professional courtesy," being extended Mahlon so far as attending DWI school is concerned ... presuming they don't set up a private school for him.

OUR BALMY WEATHER

Being's the reports on skiing conditions here are still favorable ... maybe the skiers are enjoying the balmy weather on the slopes ... maybe, even, skiing in shirt-sleeves and shorts ... it do encourage us non skiers in Harmony Valley to feel no guilt about enjoying the balmy weather as has been ours to enjoy of late.

'Course there's folks as is casting an apprehensive eye in Old Baldy's direction ... wishing there was another 150 to 200 inches of the white fluff atop our hill ... sorta as a hedge against maybe running a mite short of one of the major ice tea ingredients come summer ... when, in the cool of the evening, there's nothing quite like a refreshing glass of ice tea to sorta make the problems of the day disappear in the tinkle of ice cubes ... no?

BRIEF BIT: Regardless of what village board candidates tell you ... your day to tell them will be March 2 ... CD

The rash of arsons have made Portales residents jittery, police officials said. Councilman Jim Boothe was quoted by reporters as saying he was "scared as a cat" about the fires.
Investigators are hoping someone comes forward quickly with information about the arsonist before he can strike again.
Anyone having any information which could assist in the investigation is asked to call the State Crime Stoppers Commission at its toll-free number, 1-800-432-8933 or Roosevelt County Crime Stoppers at 356-8100. Callers do not have to reveal their identities to be eligible for a reward.
Meanwhile, two more Crime Stoppers programs recorded recent success stories.
Hobbs/Lisa County Crime Stoppers recently paid out a $1,000 reward to a caller whose information led to the solution of 18 burglaries and the recovery of some $13,000 worth of stolen property. Five persons were arrested by Hobbs police in connection with the break-ins.
And Grants police arrested James Hickey, 38, who was wanted on local warrants and on felony charges out of Texas and Mississippi after a tip to Uranium County Crime Stoppers indicated he was in a stolen vehicle at The Inn.

Hickey was being sought by local police after he failed to appear in district court for arraignment on charges he defrauded the First National Bank of Grants out of some $8,000.
And calls to State Crime Stoppers helped police in Aurora, Colorado, recover a Ford Mustang stolen out of Albuquerque. A 17-year-old juvenile is being sought in connection with the theft.
To date, a total of 4,309 cases have been solved with the help of calls to Crime Stoppers programs throughout New Mexico. In addition, law enforcement officials have recovered $9,396,866 worth of stolen property and narcotics as a result of calls to the State Crime Stoppers Commission and the 32 local programs around the state. In the past five and a half years, 1,761 persons have been prosecuted in state courts on Crime Stoppers-related cases, and 1,735 of them have been convicted.
The State Crime Stoppers Commission pays cash rewards for information leading to the solution of major cases ranging from welfare fraud, child abuse, liquor law violations and cattle rustling to corruption by local, state or federal government officials. In all cases, callers do not have to reveal their identities.

NM scientist working on cystic fibrosis

Among any 100 people, five are genetically booby-trapped. They carry a gene in their genes, often without even knowing it. If two such people marry, the springs shut — not on the carriers, but on their children.
The disease is cystic fibrosis (CF), and William Galey, a University of New Mexico (UNM) physiologist, is working to bring the trap.
Genetic diseases can't be cured in the sense because they're built right into a cell of a person's body. However, if portions of the disease can be blocked, a patient could presumably live a normal, healthy life, despite his or her genetic faults," Galey said.
The School of Medicine faculty member there's a strong possibility that CF is damage because of one simple problem: lack of water in fluids secreted throughout the body.
Research has already shown that red blood cells from CF patients are abnormally slow to absorb or release water through their outer membranes. If it's usually difficult for water to pass into or out of cells, the mucous produced by cells will be abnormally thick.
Production of abnormally thick mucus has long been recognized as the main symptom of CF. Normally, this mucus is an all-purpose lubricant. It's a vehicle for carrying away dirt and foreign particles, and has a host of other Thickened mucous clogs lungs and plugs up glands. Results include repeated lung infections, malnutrition, liver disease, heart disease, and abnormalities of the digestive tract, sweat and salivary glands.

Some of these problems are life-threatening all by themselves, whereas others combine to wear the patient down slowly. CF is second only to sickle-cell anemia as the world's most common genetic killer. CF used to kill its victims by age two. Currently, thanks to improved care, about half of all CF patients live at least 18 years. Few, however, see a 30th birthday.
To make his observations about how CF cells absorb and release water, Galey set up a test based on a principle familiar to everyone: water dilutes chemicals.
For example, if someone pours a cup of fresh water into a pitcher of apple juice, the watered-down juice will have less flavor because the chemical compounds that give it taste will have been diluted.
When living cells are immersed in a highly concentrated solution of chemicals (table salt, for instance), water comes out of the cells to dilute the surrounding mixture. As the cells lose water, they shrivel up slightly like raisins.
Similarly, when living cells are placed in fresh water, the water seeps into the cells, diluting the chemicals inside. As the cells take on water, they swell.
Electronic devices can measure how quickly the cells shrink or swell, and such measurements have shown that cells from CF patients absorb and lose water more slowly than normal cells.

A cell's ability to absorb or release water probably depends on some sort of specialized mechanism within the membrane, Galey said. Such mechanisms are probably needed to transport other substances besides water into and out of the cell — calcium, for instance.
Scientists already know that, in normal bodies, the fluids surrounding the cells contain calcium 10,000 more concentrated than the cells can tolerate. Calcium atoms crowd their way into the cells constantly, and have to be pumped back out again.
Interestingly, cells of CF patients are less efficient at moving either calcium or water through the membrane than the cells of other people. As the next step in their research, Galey and his coworkers at UNM are now studying the role of calcium to see if abnormally high calcium levels are connected to low water content in body fluids.
If it turns out that a calcium imbalance reduces a cell's ability to absorb or release water, the finding could be "tremendously important," Galey said.
The calcium problem could be caused by the lack of some key chemical or enzyme. "And if we can correct that deficiency," said Galey, "it's quite possible that the symptoms of CF could be alleviated."

GEORGE P. WHITE — MAYOR

MARCH 2, 1982

TEN Reasons Why George P. White Should Be Your Mayor:

1. He has the time and energy to give you a full time mayor: It will be the policy to set up regular office hours so he will be available to all people.
2. His formal educational background plus his experience in local schools and local government lends itself to good management. He has a B.S. degree in Political Science and Government; a M.A. degree in administration; 40 years in education; 8 years experience in local government.
3. He will see that the Village of Ruidoso, as a municipality, will be performing only those functions authorized by state law.
4. He will see that the ordinances and regulations of the municipality are faithfully executed.

5. He will appoint municipal employees to perform the services authorized by the council, such appointments to be subject to the approval of the council.
6. He will keep informed on the problems, needs and conditions of the village, and inform the council of such and recommend that it take such action as it deems necessary to improve the city's image and conditions.
7. He was the first to realize that the eventual growth of the city depended greatly on the amount of water available. He firmly believes to get this objectively we need water and other utilities to be ahead of development and annexation.
8. He will appoint at least four commissioners in the areas of police, fire, streets and airport to work hand in glove with the - department heads and the village trustees. He will lend total support to the present Planning & Zoning commission and the present water board.

9. He will give help and leadership to the village council in formulating good fiscal policies and follow the "letter of the law" in administering the monthly routine business at the city hall.
 10. He will accept the responsibility to serve the Village as contact man between the citizens and the council and do everything in his power to act in behalf of the majority of the constituents.
- For the above reasons we urgently ask for your vote on Tuesday, March 2 and ask that you go to the polls on election day and cast your vote for George P. White, your next Mayor.

Start tax planning with new withholding rules

Couples with two incomes are often hard hit by taxes. Because of the high bracket total income falls into, many often find themselves owing the IRS money on April 15.

Others, however, may find that they continually get refunds because of their number of deductions. Either way, the new Mexico Society of Certified Public Accountants (CPA) said you can break even tax time by adjusting the number of withholding allowances on your W-4, employee's Withholding Allowance Certificate.

The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) has recently revised the rules and now permits taxpayers to subtract up to $14,000 of income before taxes are calculated. This reduces the amount of tax automatically withheld and can give you larger paychecks. If you owe taxes, you might have more tax withheld, and owe less at year's end.

The W-4 makes it possible for you to estimate how many itemized deductions you will have on your next tax return. Using allowances of $1,000 each to offset these deductions, the IRS provides a formula for you to figure how many allowances you can claim. Previously the limit for these allowances was nine; now it is 14 or 15,000. You can claim more, but the IRS will review your past taxes to see if this was warranted.

But this doesn't mean you need 14 dependents to claim those allowances. Using either the short or long Form 1040, you are entitled to an exemption for yourself—more if you are 65 or older or blind—as well as one for each dependent. Their allowances are claimed against deductions for alimony payments, mortgage interest, business losses and expenses, energy credits, qualified retirement plans and more. (CPAs said you can't claim the same allowances that you use if you pay estimated taxes instead of withheld taxes.)

If you receive large refunds from the IRS, you may be entitled to increase the number of allowances you claim. If you usually owe the IRS, you may have claimed too many allowances and should have more tax withheld. While the government will accept excess withholding payments, excessive claims on allowances could result in a fine, or even a jail sentence.

Here's how a W-4 properly used, could affect your income. A couple with $40,000 combined income will often claim only two allowances of $2,000. Using 1981 tables, as an example, they would pay $9,250 in tax on $38,000 income, or about $772 monthly. If they both started Individual Retirement Accounts, paid $4,000 mortgage interest on a new house, and it cost them $2,000 to move, they would expect $10,000 in deductions. According to the formula, they could take three allowances plus their two personal exemptions and they would reduce their taxable income by $5,000 to $35,000. Their estimated tax bill would then be $7,996 and they could have $666 withheld monthly. This is $106 less per month than if they took only the two personal exemptions.

New Mexico economy holding on

New Mexico's economy seems to be faring better than the rest of the nation as the United States enters its eighth recession since World War II.

This is the conclusion of James A. McCormick, a program specialist with the University of New Mexico Bureau of Business and Economic Research (BBER).

"At present, the New Mexico economy seems to be somewhat sheltered from national economic problems," McCormick said. "Manufacturing has certainly been adversely affected by the current economic climate, but in New Mexico manufacturing accounts for a relatively small role in the overall economy."

McCormick said the construction industry in the state has also suffered, particularly with respect to residential construction. This has been offset, however, by generally positive growth in recent months in the mining, trade, services and government sectors of the economy.

"To what extent the state will be affected by the current national economic downturn is not certain," he said. "Lack of substantial industrial base has acted to prevent the state economy from experiencing the poor performance registered at the national level in recent months."

The new IRA and Keogh retirement plan limits enable couples to take more deductions from their income. Another plus for working couples is the ability to deduct five percent of the income of the lower paid spouse, up to $1,500, from their income.

To figure your allowances, estimate your deductions and credits for 1982. Subtract from your estimation the figure for your income group given on the back of the W-4, and divide this number by 1,000.

For example, our couple with $40,000 combined income had $10,000 in estimated deductions. The figure for their income group is $7,700 which leaves them with $2,300 or 2.3 allowances, plus their two personal exemptions. Any fraction can increase your allowance by one, so the total here is five.

If you and your spouse file a joint return, you can divide the number of allowances between you. The same allowance cannot be claimed by more than one person or at more than one job, if you have two employers.

While some people view annual tax refunds as a forced method of saving, others see them as money lent to the government interest free. If the rate of inflation increases during the year, your refunded money is worth even less.

Focus on Small Business

by E. Maine Shafer

Dear Mr. Shafer:

I'm angry. As a small business owner when I send bills to large companies about all I get back are excuses: "The check's in the mail." "The accountant's sick." "The computer broke down." "You are next on the list to be paid." What can I do about this?

When the economy worsens, such excuses proliferate. One of the realities is that the little guy usually gets paid last.

With money bringing high interest rates, and remaining increasingly elusive as well, companies of all types sit on their expensive cash for as long as possible. That means a slow-down in paying bills.

And small businesses—desperate for cash flow—take the brunt. Most small businesses are reluctant to put too much pressure on a good customer because they don't want to lose him or her.

Going to court in an effort to collect often costs more than the amount in question. Most smart business persons, in a time of tight money and cash flow, also will delay payments. A firm can save a lot of money by holding onto an invoice for an extra 30 days.

Small businesses especially should do that; it's a part of doing business. Delaying payments to suppliers may be a key maneuver in a strategy to stay alive.

One of the worst bill payers is the Federal Government. About 90 percent of the delinquent bill payments are to small businesses, according to a 1978 General Accounting Office report. Federal agencies delayed paying 39 percent of their bills for more than 30 days. One of the speedier-paying agencies, by the way, is the United States Small Business Administration (SBA).

Review reprints available

What do Civil War battles, French traders, German bankers and the camel corps have in common?

The answer is that they have all, at one time or another, been the subject of articles published in the New Mexico Historical Review, a quarterly journal edited and published at the University of New Mexico.

Reprints of the journal, which was established in 1926 to publish information about various aspects of the state's history, are now available to the public. The reprints contain articles covering a wide range of historical topics—from New Mexico's first automobile to the USS New Mexico.

Considered to be "an encyclopedia of New Mexico" by some, copies of the reprints are available at $4 each from the Review's editorial office, Room 1013, Mesa Vista Hall, University of New Mexico, Albuquerque, 87131.

In addition to the reprints, other original back issues of the New Mexico Historical Review are available for $4.50 and $3.

Funding for the Review's reprint program was made possible through legislation enacted during the 1980 session of the New Mexico State Legislature.

For copies of the reprints, original back issues, subscriptions at $10 a year, and further information, contact the Review's editorial office.

WHAT IS HAPPENING TO OUR BEAUTIFUL VILLAGE?

Actually, we're getting along quite nicely, thank you. A new high school, better hospital facilities, more roads paved in the last four years than in our history, new city hall, new sewer complex and new water treatment plant.

In fact, our economy is doing better than other communities in the state. It's a snowball effect. People come to Ruidoso to ski, enjoy the races, dine, shop and live. This stimulates orderly housing and building construction which provides jobs which provide a flow of money within our village economy. It has worked well during the past four years.

Village Trustee Frank Sayner believes we cannot stop growth,

BUT WE CAN CONTROL IT.

His leadership is important to Ruidoso, particularly since there are those running for office who totally oppose growth. They have said so publicly and have consistently voted against growth. We can't have the entire village be retired; we wouldn't have a village.

TAKE A BREAK
By Staff Of Ruidoso Travel
DINING OUT ABROAD
Eating out in foreign countries really provides local flavor! Don't be afraid to try wayside taverns and local eateries; they can provide some of life's most pleasant surprises.
In England, the best place to find traditional food is the pubs. Bonus: pub food is generally quite inexpensive. Meat-filled "pies" and "puddings" are filling. "Salads" are substantial; in England, a "salad" means a plate of cold meat, cheese, bread and sometimes vegetables.
Creole cooking is a treat found throughout the French Caribbean. Curry is the favorite spice. Beware of "little punch"—it's practically pure rum, and packs a wallop!
For fast food in Holland, try a broodje shop. Broodjes are the Dutch equivalent of a sandwich, on deliciously fresh soft rolls.
Restaurants in Japan are famed for their high prices—a steak dinner can easily run you $40. But Japanese "fast food" is extremely reasonable. Try the "noodle restaurants" featuring noodle-based meals or soups: yakitori (broiled chicken) stands; self-service sushi (raw fish) bars; and department store cafeterias. You don't need to decipher menus; you can usually point to a wax model of what you want.

Behind the Scenes

Ivanhoe rides again

Alnwick and Bamburgh Castles in Northumberland, England, have settled back again into the genteel existence they have known for centuries. Tourists file politely through their sedate public rooms in small groups for a few hours each week. Antique teacups rattle in the elegant drawing rooms of their living quarters each afternoon as the descendants of their earliest residents try to retain as much tradition as the late 20th century will allow.

But both Norman castles, which date in part to the Middle Ages, relived their wild, bloody, glorious youth for 10 days last October when they were used as the location sets for the new Norman Rosemont production of "Ivanhoe," starring James Mason, Anthony Andrews and Olivia Hussey, which will be broadcast as a special movie presentation, Tuesday, Feb. 23 on the CBS Television Network.

"Alnwick was once an English stronghold designed to guard the northeastern march against the perpetual incursions of the Scots," explains John Blezard, production designer for the film, which is based on the Sir Walter Scott novel. "Its history can be traced back to the 11th century, but since the 14th century it has been the stronghold of the Percy family, one of the most powerful in England."

Blezard, whose production designing credits include more than 250 television programs and 30 feature films, worked closely on "Ivanhoe" with Vic Armstrong, one of Britain's top stunt arrangers.

Armstrong also remarks that the tournament scenes

James Mason in 'Ivanhoe'

were rehearsed "rigorously."

"Even the horses are well-trained," he points out. "They fall on command, not on trip wires. The stuntmen came from Britain's register of some 130 stuntmen and women, and the horses were selected for the job from all over England."

"Blood will tell, you know. Their ancestors fought back and forth over the Border country (bordering England and Scotland) for centuries. They've obviously got a lot of fight left in them."

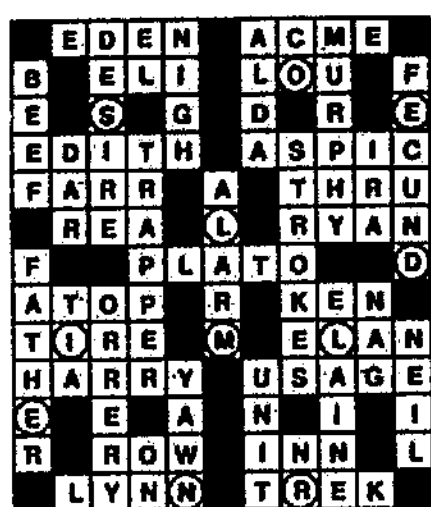

"Before each film, I like to work with each actor or find his strengths and weaknesses. Then we work out a routine and polish up on the weaknesses. We've been exceptionally lucky with this lot."

Armstrong adds that Anthony Andrews, who portrays Ivanhoe, is a "brilliant horseman and a natural swordsman" who can pick up a fight routine with just a day's rehearsal.

So arrows flamed and flew, horses whinnied, galloped and fell. Lances rattled against shields. And Alnwick lived again the glory of its long-ago yesterday.

Television Schedule For The Week Of Feb. 22 Through Mar. 1

TV channels

by Steve K. Walz

THE INSIDE STORY: Articles in some weekly tabloids are claiming that "One Day at a Time" star Valerie Bertinelli nixed former "Eight Is Enough" headliner Willie Aames as her prospective video husband because she was afraid that he would steal the limelight away from her. Nothing could be further from the truth, she says.

"Aames was never even considered for the part," Miss Bertinelli says, adding that Grant Goodeve, who also starred in "Eight Is Enough," was originally tested for the part, but "he just wasn't funny enough." The producers finally decided on Boyd Gaines, an unknown actor to play Miss Bertinelli's beau.

CHOICE MORSELS: Although "Eight Is Enough" has been canceled, it will be seen in reruns starting in September. Lorimar Productions, which produced the popular family show, is currently selling the program to station buyers for a whopping $350,000 an episode. More than 80 hours of programming are available. Lorimar, best known for its prime-time soap operas such as "Dallas," and "Fleming Road," is said to be shifting its programming emphasis to sitcoms. "Ragtime's" Howard Rollins, who gave an outstanding performance as pianist-turned-outlaw Coalhouse Walker, joins the ranks of the many stars who are making guest appearances on daytime dramas. Rollins will be seen on NBC's "Another World" starting next week through the month of March.
