Selling of the revenue bonds to finance $6 million of the $8 million Grindstone water improvements project has been thrown into confusion because of a state mandated change in the salary classification of Lincoln County.

The county hinges on the effective date of the classification change. If it is determined the change goes into effect January 1, 1983, then the village should have no problem selling the bonds. However, if it is ruled the effective date was later spring—when the county was notified of the change—then the results of the July 6 bond election could be in jeopardy.

The state Department of Finance and Administration notified Lincoln County officials March 5 that the county was being changed from a Class C to Class B county because of an increase in assessed valuation. The classes are a means of establishing salary levels for county employees.

The predicament has arisen because state law specifies that only municipalities with a population under 10,000 that are within a Class C county are qualified to call an election to impose a supplemental gross receipts tax to finance water improvements.

On July 6, Ruidoso voters approved a financing structure that takes advantage of that state law. The law, known as the Raton Law, stipulates that communities can sell up to $5 million in revenue bonds and retire them with up to one percent supplemental gross receipts tax. Village manager Jim Hine explained Tuesday that the law also states that the communities must finance one-quarter of the project with general obligation (GO) bonds.

The Grindstone water project—which includes a reservoir, treatment plant, storage tank and transmission lines—is to be funded by $2 million in GO bonds and $6 million in revenue bonds.

Darrel Fowler, a financial advisor to Ruidoso who is with Stern Brothers Investment Bankers of Albuquerque, explained this week the effective date of the change to a Class B county was never specified by Finance and Administration.

He said he and the village interpret the effective date to be the first of the year because that is when county salaries will be raised. Fowler speculated the county was notified in March of the class change so county commissioners would be able to draft a 1982-83 budget including the salary increases. Furthermore, he noted that state law does not allow granting of wage hikes to elected officials until after an election.

Fowler said that bonding lawyers are drafting a case that they will present in Lincoln County District Court in the near future asking for a declaratory judgement on when the effective change in the county's classification takes place.

Hine said the village must get a determination on the date, and whether selling the revenue bonds meets legal requirements, before it can put the bonds up for sale.

Fowler said the county classification has no effect on the sale of the $2 million in GO bonds, which the village will offer to sell on October 26. Fowler noted that the Raton Law also stipulates that the GO bonds must be sold before the revenue bonds.

Therefore Ruidoso is in a hurry to sell the GO bonds and have time before the end of the year to begin selling revenue bonds, which the village will do if the judgement on the date is in Ruidoso's favor.

If a portion of the revenue bonds can be sold before the first of the year, when Fowler said "there is no doubt Lincoln will be a Class B county," then that sale will validate subsequent revenue bond sales for the water project, Fowler noted.

If the court determines that the effective date of the change was before the Ruidoso water bond election, Fowler said Ruidoso could pursue other alternatives to make the sale of the revenue bonds legal.

He said bond attorneys advise that Ruidoso could put a small portion of the revenue bonds—$5,000 to $10,000 worth—on the market, and ask the Legislature in January to validate the sale under the Validating Act. If the sale were approved, Fowler said, subsequent revenue bond sales would be valid.

He said if both those procedures fail, the July 6 election could be ruled invalid. Fowler said the only recourse left for Ruidoso then would be to seek legislation allowing municipalities in Class B counties to also participate in the special taxations for water system improvements.

Fowler noted that the preferred method for validating the bond sale would be for District Court to rule the effective date for the county class change to be January 1. He said that ruling would satisfy the village and bond lawyers of the legality of the sale.

Jim Hine expressed Ruidoso's position that the village held the election according to the laws that existed at the time. He said that prior to the July election a county commissioner informed him of the change to Class B, and that the commissioner said the change would be effective January 1983.

Moreover, Hine noted that the state never notified Ruidoso of the change. He also pointed out that the state Bureau of Elections approved the conditions of the election asking for the supplemental tax.

"We complied with the law and with everything to take advantage of that law," Hine said. He added, "I personally don't think the state should question when voters overwhelmingly pass something."

More than five hundred of them putted, purred and roared into Ruidoso on Gold Wings, Harleys, dirt bikes, and trikes yesterday to buy, sell, show off and wag jawbones at the First Annual Ruidoso Motorcycle Festival.

"It's great! Beyond our expectations for the first day," said Connie Brown of the Ruidoso Business Association (RBA), which is sponsoring the event. About 200 of the 550 preregistered participants had shown up by Wednesday evening and 300 more unannounced bikers checked in at the La Paz room at the Holiday Inn.

Around 2,500 motorcyclists were originally predicted to arrive by the weekend. Bad weather at another motorcycle rally in Durango, Colorado, could send additional cyclists here, swelling the attendance to an even larger number.

Bikers from all over the Southwest, California, Minnesota, Pennsylvania and as far as Montreal, Canada, congregated at the Hospitality Tent in the field east of the Holiday Inn. Some just dropped in on their way through and others rode for days to get here. This was the fifth trip to Ruidoso for one couple from Wyoming and a first view of the Southwest's year-round playground for many.

RBA member Tom Dorgan said there were a few minor mixups for the first-time organizers of the event, but added, "We're ironing everything out."

Few were very concerned about the flickering lights early in the morning or confusion about some of the contests. People came to relax and have a good time or "lie and kick tires," as one lady put it.

The 40 by 100-foot Holiday Tent was the main tire kicking area during the day, with action shifting to the Trade Show at the Chaparral Convention Center late in the afternoon.

Inside the tent long tables and chairs were set up in the middle. People sat around the tables talking while they ate food and drink bought at the variety of booths in the tent, or stood around in groups trading stories.

Many of the local civic clubs were selling food. The most popular booth appeared to be the barbecued beef sandwiches and beer stand of the Elks Club, whose members were quick to ask "How many?" as people wandered by. Burritos, corn dogs, snacks and soft drinks were also available.

SMILING BIKER. Enjoying the sunshine and camaraderie at the First Annual Ruidoso Motorcycle Festival Wednesday is this young lady who rode all the way from Montreal, Canada, to the festival.

Festival Wednesday is this young lady who rode all the way from Montreal, Canada, to the festival.

In addition to food vendors, there were pinstrippers, engravers and T-shirt sellers inside the tent. The pinstrippers and engravers provided onlookers with entertainment as they customized bikes throughout the day.

Outside, a late addition to the festival offered tattoos to those brave enough to bare their bodies for the artwork.

Field events such as the water balance, bite the wiener and the skill course were staged on the road in front of the Hospitality Tent before noon.

Only a few tried to bite the dangling, mustard covered hotdog as they rode under it on motorcycles, but those who did provided plenty of laughs for the spectators. Not allowed to put their feet down as they passed under the dog, riders picked up wide swaths of mustard across their faces as they tried to take a bite. The skill course taught riders what they could do and what they had to work on. Sharp turnarounds, backing up and weaves were all part of the skill tests.

The water balance was a sidecar event in which the driver had to guide his sidecar over a series of boards without spilling the cup of water perched atop his passenger's head.

Five categories of dressed-up motorcycles were judged in the afternoon. Hours of effort and thousands of dollars were put into the bikes to make them all personalized showcases. Fifteen more classes will be in the judging area over the next three days.

Trophies were given to winners in all events.

Later in the afternoon action shifted to the Trade Show. Connie Brown said the turnout was light but added that was to be expected on the first day.

On sale in the convention center were a huge array of accessories for every biker need. Light bars to leathers to tape players were available. The latest model motorcycles and fanciest dresser bikes were also on display.

A mini dinner tour to the Old Road Restaurant and movies back in the La Paz room were scheduled for the evening.

The Western Indian Poker Run, more field events, dresser bike judging and family events will take place today. The Trade Show will open again at 4 p.m.

And there will certainly be more "tire kicking and lying" going on around the Hospitality Tent.

Council counters offer on slide at swimming pool

The Ruidoso council voted Tuesday to make a counter offer on the water slide at the village swimming pool after discussing terms of the owner's offer on the slide.

Councilman Frank Sawyer reported that Ralph Rush of Sierra Enterprises, owner of the slide, offered to sell the slide to the village for $35,000, plus 18 percent of the gross income from the slide—with the percentage starting after the village had grossed $35,000 and continuing for six years.

The village previously offered Rush a flat $35,000.

The suggestion for the counter offer—$35,000 plus 10 percent of gross over $35,000 for five years—was made by councilman Al Junge.

"I kind of like the slide from an income standpoint," Junge said in the pre-meeting study session. He predicted during the regular meeting that the village could earn its investment back in four years.

Junge said the slide could bring in more swimmers, but acknowledged the climate in Ruidoso is not particularly good for swimming.

Benny Coulston read income figures on the slide from its one summer of operation (1981): $12,400 for June; $10,200 for July; and $4,500 for August.

Don Dale argued against trying to acquire the slide in the study session and the regular meeting. He said councilmen should run their businesses downtown, and that they had to ask themselves if they would buy the slide if it was their own money they were spending.

Dale pointed out that the slide is an unbudgeted item, and that based on previous dealings between the village and Rush, the council might be "buying ourselves a bunch of headaches." Dale added that the popularity of the slide could drop.

"I think we could spend $35,000 in some better way for the citizens of Ruidoso," he said.

Mayor George White agreed, saying the village should "just forget the whole thing." He referred to the slide as a "monstrosity" on the pool building.

Village manager Jim Hine said money to buy the slide would have to come from the general fund. He also reminded the council that the state has not officially approved the village's budget for the current fiscal year.

Sawyer's motion to make the counter offer (Junge seconded) and give Rush 15 days to reply was made contingent on state approval of the budget.

The motion passed with Sawyer, Junge and Coulston voting aye. Dale voted no and White asked to be recorded as opposed.

White opened the regular meeting by reading two letters concerning Planning and Zoning Commission (P&Z) approval last week of annexing 152 acres of the planned Grindstone Resort Community.

The first was a personal letter from P&Z chairman John Schuller to Mayor White. Schuller wrote that his commission seemed to "forget the idea that water really is the Number 1 priority" when considering an annexation.

Schuller said that now, for the first time, P&Z realizes that criteria used in the past to judge annexations are invalid. He said as a result of studies done by the village water board, the village has at its disposal information on water availability to guide decisions on annexation.

He adds that he considers annexation of Grindstone valuable in many ways, but that it "adds grievously to our already critical need for additional water resources."

He concluded by saying he thinks the first requirement for annexation is that properties requesting annexation should bring necessary water rights to the village.

The second letter White read was from the entire planning commission. P&Z wrote that they recommend approval of Grindstone because it met all the guidelines currently required for annexations.

The commission members stated they wanted to point out, however, that the water board presented on Grindstone evidence at the P&Z hearing on conclusion that clearly indicates the village does not have sufficient water to adequately supply annexations and meet the needs of existing properties.

The commission wrote that since the council has made no stipulations for considering water as a criterion for annexations, P&Z can only assume the council wishes to evaluate water supply itself in the final determination of annexation requests. The commission requested its letter be put in the official minutes of the council meeting.

Dale reported to the council that the jail committee's search for a new site for a police-detention facility-courts complex led back to the present police building site.

Wastewater plant funds cut off by EPA

by BARBY GRANT
Staff Writer

Federal funds for completion of construction of the Biscuit Hill Wastewater Treatment Plant have been cut off until Ruidoso Downs submits a sewer rate ordinance approved by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), it was reported at Monday's Ruidoso Downs trustees meeting.

The Joint Use Board was notified by a letter dated August 31 that the village's present ordinance is not acceptable because large volume users are not being charged enough and the method of calculating users' costs is inconsistent.

Under the present ordinance, residential units are charged $6 per month; restaurants, trailer parks, hotels, motels, service stations, washateria's, horse care and/or training facilities (excepting the Ruidoso Downs Race Track), are charged $15 plus a 10 percent surcharge for all water metered. Other commercial establishments are charged $15 per month.

The monthly charge to the racetrack is $75 per tap for the first five taps and $50 for each additional tap.

The letter from the EPA noted that payments would soon be cut off "until Ruidoso Downs has an approved sewer use ordinance." Daniels Engineering, engineers for the Biscuit Hill project, were notified last week that federal funds have been stopped, according to Jim Hine, Joint Use Board clerk/treasurer.

The federal government is financing 75 percent of the construction costs for the wastewater treatment plant, Hine said. About $150,000 worth of construction remains to be completed, added Hine. The work will have to be financed by Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs until reimbursement is made by the EPA, he noted.

A proposed amended ordinance was discussed at the September 13 Ruidoso Downs trustees meeting, but no action was taken. The matter was tabled again Monday.

Village clerk Wilma Webb reported that she had called Stuart Gray, project engineer with the EPA, several times to discuss the proposed ordinance changes, but failed to get in touch with him. It was reported that Gray will not approve or disapprove the ordinance unless it has been adopted and mailed to him.

Mayor J. C. Day indicated that it would be a waste of time to go through the process of adopting a new ordinance only to have it rejected again.

The proposed changes would add a charge of 50 cents per 1,000 gallons over a minimum for all users and assess a charge of $120 rather than $75 per tap to the racetrack.

Webb said the problem is that water at the racetrack is not metered so the village does not know how much water is used nor how much goes into the sewer system. She said she would ask Hari Mukhoty with the state Environmental Improvement Division to help determine a method of calculating such use.

In other business, trustees: —Decided to participate in a joint powers agreement with Ruidoso and Lincoln County to fund a feasibility study on making Gavilan Canyon Road a Highway 37 alternate route. Trustees said they will participate in an amount up to $1,500 rather than the $3,333.33 put up by Ruidoso and the county, but retain an equal vote in any decision-making. Ruidoso assistant village manager Frank Potter reported that the joint powers agreement is primarily designed to show the State Highway Department that the municipalities and county are committed to the project.

—Tabled a proposed water rate increase because no work has been done on it.

—Heard a report from trustee Harold Mansell on a Housing and Urban Development grants meeting in Albuquerque. Mansell reported that the village probably has little chance of receiving any of the grant money this year.

—Awarded bid on a backhoe/loader to Tom Growney Equipment of Albuquerque pending approval of the transfer of finances from the general fund. Growney submitted a bid of $29,772, which includes a $4,500 trade-in allowance.

—Accepted a bid of $6,696.56 from Artesia Fire Equipment for a slide-in pumper unit for the fire department.

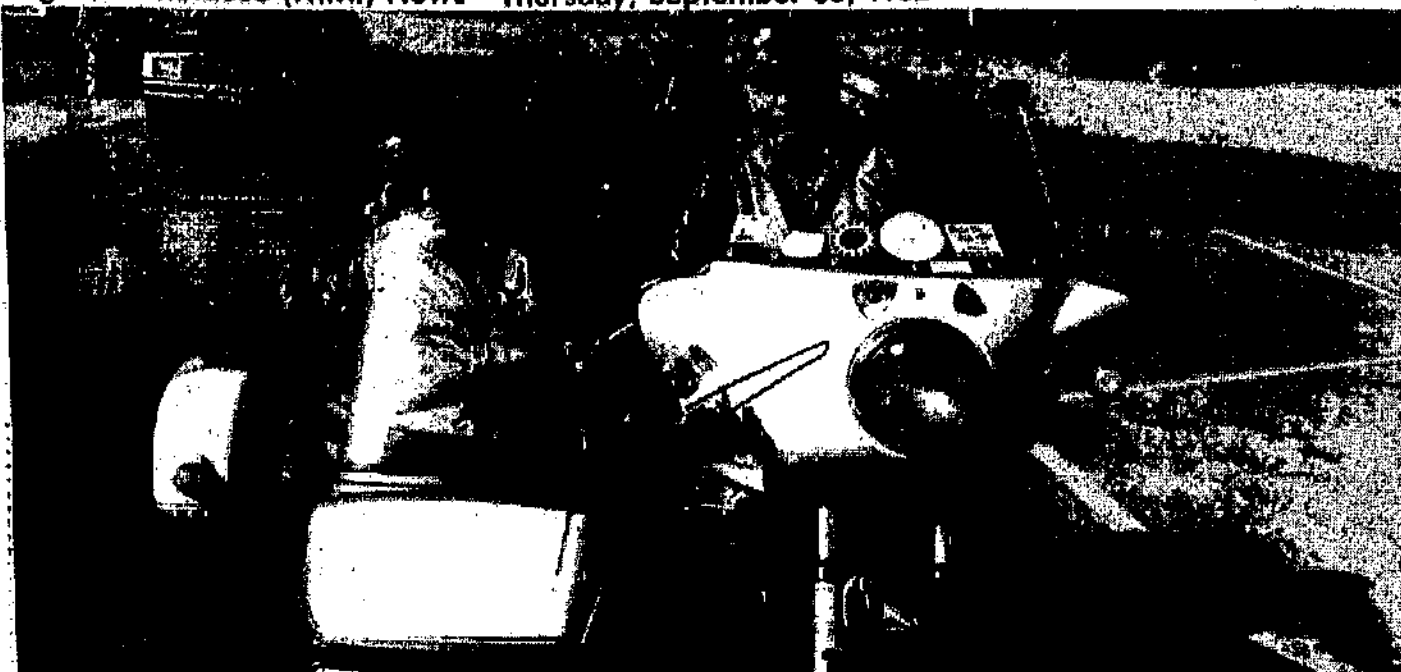

—Called for bids on a pickup truck.

—Agreed to purchase portable radios for the police department.

—Accepted bids of $739 each for two typewriters and $116 for a calculator from PON Business Machine Service of Alto.

—Approved the village inventory. —Agreed to send thank you notes to Ruidoso Downs Race Track for their contribution of $3,000 and to the Super Select Sale for contributing $348 for special police services.

Golfers score well in Georgia

Two of the golfers entered in the first Inn of the Mountain Gods Pro-Am Golf Tournament Monday, October 11, finished well in the money at last weekend's Southern Open tournament in Columbus, Georgia.

Former PGA champion John Mahaffey fired back-to-back rounds of 68 to finish 11th in the event, earning a paycheck of $8,500.

Dave Elchelberger also closed strongly, with rounds of 68-68-69 after an opening round 74. He wound up in a tie for 24th place and earned $2,225.

The professional tournament has stops in Texas the next two weekends. The pros begin play in the $250,000 Texas Open at San Antonio today. Next week the tour moves to Abilene for the LaJet Classic. Many of the pros in the Inn of the Mountain Gods Pro-Am will be playing at Abilene.

The local event did suffer a setback when "Dandy" Don Meredith, the former Dallas Cowboy quarterback and now color commentator for ABC-TV's Monday Night Football, withdrew from the tournament Wednesday.

However, actor Dale Robertson, who starred in the television series "Wells Fargo" and is scheduled to act in the popular CBS-TV series "Dallas" this fall, is still scheduled to compete in the tournament.

There is a good possibility other celebrities and professional golfers will sign up for the tournament.

At present, there are 12 professional golfers who have agreed to compete in the tournament.

They are Mahaffey, Elchelberger, George Archer, Lou Graham, Charles

Coody, Brad Bryant, Fuzzy Zoeller, Bob Murphy, Mark Hayes, Len Hinkle, Dave Hill and Tom Furtzer.

Archer, Coody and Zoeller are Masters winners. Archer won the 1969 Masters. Coody won in 1971, and Zoeller took the coveted Green Jacket in 1976.

The Pro-Am is sponsored by the Inn in conjunction with the Ruidoso Rotary Club.

Gallery tickets for the tournament are $20 a person. They can be obtained at Village Hardware, Security Bank, Ruidoso State Bank, First City National Bank, the Chamber of Commerce, KRRR radio station, The Ruidoso News, The Inn of the Mountain Gods golf shop, Cree Meadows Country Club golf shop, Alto Lakes Golf and Country Club golf shop or from any Ruidoso Rotary Club member.

Mayor White critical of Junge

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

Mayor George White, saying he knows village councilman Al Junge has been personally interfering with village department supervisors, Monday criticized Junge for "initiating policy all by himself."

White said during an interview that village ordinances and state statutes clearly outline the responsibilities and duties of council, and that Junge has been usurping the duties of the village manager and the mayor by going directly to village employees.

White said he informed village manager Jim Hine that, "from now on, any time an individual councilman wants to speak with a department head, he should speak first with Hine."

White made the remarks in response to two recent newspaper articles. One piece dealt with complaints from employees about Junge's alleged interference in daily operations of the village. The second was a report of a meeting during which Junge disputed this newspaper's account of the complaints.

White said his "main gripe" concerning the councilman is that "he goes directly to department heads without any permission through the administrative office." When asked if supervisors had complained to him about the matter, White responded, "No, I know... I've seen it with my own eyes."

"It is the policy, by ordinance and statute, that no councilman acts alone, and if he is to approach something on a personnel matter, he must go through the village manager," the mayor said.

White read from the Ruidoso personnel ordinance that outlines responsibilities and chain of command of local government. He noted that the mayor appoints the village manager, with the consent of the council, to direct the village operation. Furthermore, he said, Hine is responsible for implementing—through the departments—the council's policies. And, White emphasized, the chain of command specifies Hine as the direct supervisor of the departments.

According to state statute, White pointed out, he is designated the chief executive officer of the village, "and shall cause the ordinances and the regulations of the municipality to be obeyed."

Based on his interpretation of the laws, White reiterated, Junge "has no authority to approach any department head at his home or office until he gets permission from the village manager."

Junge commented last week that he does nothing without the approval of the council.

White denied that is the case. Regarding a time clock that was installed at village hall at Junge's request, which Junge said was agreed to by the council, White said, "It's a downright lie (that Junge received council approval)."

"I knew nothing about it in any way, shape or manner. To the best of my knowledge—and I'm a member of the council—this (the time clock) was never brought up to the council," said White.

White acknowledged that the rest of the council may have discussed the clock during a council study session at which he was not present. White said he will not attend the sessions because they are held in a small room which makes it inconvenient for the public to attend. He added that if the sessions are moved into the larger chamber, he will participate.

White noted that he is left out of some discussions between the other council members and that he is "very dissatisfied they don't come to me, because I am a member of the council too."

White also said he resents last week's published remark by Junge that previous councils did nothing and therefore received no criticism.

"In my estimation we did lots of things, like upgrading sanitation and water, digging wells, fixing streets and upgrading the facilities of city hall," said White, who was a trustee on the previous council.

"If Mr. Junge thinks that annexing more land and raising taxes are improvements over the previous four years, let it be, but let the public make the decision," he stated.

White also said he has played a low-key role as mayor since he was criticized by the rest of the council for getting involved in personnel matters shortly after the March election. But he said his attitude is changing, and that now he is going to "play more of the role as executive officer."

In a final response to Junge's comments—concerning Junge's remark that the councilmen are grateful for his close involvement in operation of the village—White asked: "What councilmen are grateful?"

Council counters offer

He said the committee had investigated all the vacant land in Ruidoso to no avail.

"We're running into a wall everywhere," said Dale. He indicated that financial concerns—such as $320 a foot quoted for telephone line to a site—were a drawback to other locations.

Dale said the plan is to attach a new building to the existing building, rather than remodel onto the present building as originally planned. He added that a saving will result if the original architect (John Vanoy Moore) is retained, with the job being done with an architect's commission of 5.6 percent or less, as opposed to 10 percent with a new architect.

Several items on the council agenda were tabled or deleted, including an amended sign ordinance, review of the treated roof covering ordinance, redefinition of "lot," decision on sale of village building at Mechem and Sudderth, and Village Lodge Condominium Project.

In other business, the council:

- Approved the Ruidoso Care Center Auxiliary setting up tables outside the library October 9 to sell arts and crafts.
- Authorized village attorney Lee Hucksstep to draw up an ordinance covering nighttime flying and vehicular traffic on runways at the airport.

- Agreed to wait for a report from police chief Dick Swenor before deciding whether to create an ordinance regulating guard dogs, personal protection dogs and professional dog trainers. Swenor said there are no problems at the moment. He added the police department is in the process of updating the animal control ordinance and should be finished next month. Animal control officer Jack Snladecki, who suggested the ordinance, agreed to wait to present his case.
- Approved a bid of $34,272 on a John Deere 410 backhoe from Tom Growney Equipment Company.
- Approved bids of $9,766.98 for mid-size Chevrolet pickup truck and $10,356.02 for full-size Chevrolet pickup truck, both from Sierra Blanca Motors of Ruidoso.
- Agreed to grant a utility easement on cemetery property to Bill Blaney for $300.
- Heard a report from Junge that computer studies on a proposed trash pickup rate increase are proving complicated and are continuing.
- Set a special joint meeting of the council and the Parks and Recreation Commission for 7 p.m. Tuesday, October 5, to discuss a proposal from Dave Anderson and Dave Warren for utilization of budgeted parks and recreation funds for maintenance of existing facilities.
- Agreed to have Dale discuss the possibility of having trash containers placed in business districts with the Chamber of Commerce.

- Approved a contract with Sergeant, Hauskins and Beckwith of Albuquerque for soil testing for the Grindstone Dam project.
- Approved an arrangement between the village and the State Game and Fish Department whereby the village will place 300 eight to 12-inch trout in the Rio Ruidoso to replace fish killed in June after an excess of chlorine was released at the Biscuit Hill wastewater treatment plant.
- Approved replat in Hamilton Terrace, lot line variances for Jack Yates and vacation of part of Virginia Canyon Road—all previously approved by Planning and Zoning.
- Agreed to notify Planning and Zoning to set up a fee schedule on vacations and quitclaims.
- Were reminded by Hine of the Wednesday, October 6, Coffee Cart at village hall.
- Authorized special party owners on Highway 37 in the area of Swiss Chalet to proceed with creation of a special assessment district for sewer. A bonding company will prepare a resolution for creation of the district.
- Were reminded by Swenor that two busy weekends are coming up and to "drive carefully."

Chili committee talks tortillas

by BILLY ALLESTETTER
Staff Writer

Members of the Chili Cookoff Committee of the Chamber of Commerce hashed out fine details of the cookoff Monday, such as what kind of tortillas will be used in the tortilla toss and what kind of beer will be served.

Dan Shaver and Glen Ferguson, in charge of concessions, decided to sell Coors beer and Coke in cans in order to be able to serve as many customers as quickly and simply as possible. The cans will sell for a dollar each. Coors will bring a refrigerated truck to the cookoff to be sure there is enough beer available.

Committee members discussed what games would be played at the cookoff in addition to the Tortilla Toss and Jalapeno Punt, Pass and Kick. It was decided to stage an egg toss and possibly a tug of war.

Members discussed at length what tortillas would be the best for the toss at the same time they were trying to figure exactly how a tortilla would be tossed. They decided that a corn tortilla would be the best for the event and would probably fly the furthest when thrown like a Frisbee.

Trying to decide how many jalapeno peppers to buy, it was decided that Ron Hemphill, co-chairman of the games committee, had better order around 500 since the peppers would not stand up to many punts, passes or kicks. He was warned to get fresh ones—not the canned variety.

Hemphill also suggested that a jackpot be arranged for the winners of games by charging a minor entry fee in the range of a quarter or fifty cents.

When the question of rain was brought up, committee member Richard Sandoval said, "God has always taken care of us in the past. We will depend on him again this year."

Members did, however, make plans for covering the concession stands in case of rain. There is no other available place for the event and cooks will be expected to provide their own cover, it was reported.

Other planning for the cookoff was moving smoothly, according to reports from committee members.

Sandoval said there will be three hours of live music and Chamber executive director Ed Jungbluth said there will be a "good, first class sound system" used by the bands.

Wilma Sandoval said she had the shirt, hat and button booth planned and under control. Jungbluth said that security and cleanup are all taken care of.

Ferguson brought up the subject of parking and it was decided by committee members that somebody should direct the cars to keep the parking lot in order. Ferguson said he would find somebody to take care of that.

Ruidoso P&Z meets Monday

The Village Lodge Motel condominium conversion request will be considered again by the Planning and Zoning Commission (P&Z) at the commission's regular meeting Monday.

The conversion request for the motel was tabled by P&Z last week because the commission wanted to seek a legal opinion on whether a condominium conversion must fall under the same planning requirements as multi-family projects. The motel does not presently meet those requirements, members decided.

P&Z will also consider at its 9:30 a.m. meeting at village hall:

- A 5'11" front lot line variance for Lot 22, Block 14, in Alto Crest Unit 2 for John Addington.
- Replat of Lots 16, 17, and 18 in Block D, Singing Pines Subdivision, for George G. Adams and Suzanne M. Vastle.
- Replat of Lot 18 and of Blocks I, K, and M in Middle Cedar Subdivision for Otis Pearson.
- Replat of Lot 4 and of Blocks I, K, and M in Middle Cedar Subdivision for Jackie N. Davies and Harry J. Copey.
- Replat of Lot 1, Block C and B in Red Cedar Subdivision for Paul McClendon.
- Replat of Lot 2 in C. A. Edland Tract.

Auto workers escape from factory to enjoy open road

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

Beverly "Milk Duds" Demers thinks her husband, Clarence "Sweat Meat" Demers, is crazy.

During the week, the curly-haired, muscular Michigander has his hands full at a General Motors automobile plant located in the Detroit suburbs.

On weekends he lets loose.

"He'll try anything," Beverly exclaims. Maybe not anything, but what he does try would send a chill down the spine of the more homebody folks.

Clarence unwinds either by jumping out of a plane soaring at 7,000 feet or hopping onto his Honda Gold Wing Interstate with his wife and cruising to a weekend motorcycle rally.

The Demers' hobbies—Beverly is an avid motorcyclist with her husband—allow them to escape the congestion and pollution of metropolitan Detroit and to breathe the air of the open road.

"It allows you to forget about the factories, and forget the nine-to-five routine," Beverly, who is also an auto worker, responded to a question about cycling.

This summer the Demers' have escaped the confines of factory labor as much as possible. The couple have mounted their bike virtually every weekend since June and wheeled off to rallies around the Midwest.

Their "weekend" excursion this week has brought them on a 2,100-mile trip from home to the Ruidoso Motorcycle Festival. Clarence and Beverly, who go by their more unorthodox monikers as members of the Gold Wing Road Riders Association (GWRRA), have logged almost 15,000 miles in four months of weekends.

The rallies, or "runs," they attend are sponsored by motorcycle groups all over the country. Most of the runs are family affairs that give motorcycle aficionados a chance to get out and congregate for a few days of fun and games.

Some of the runs are put on by chapters of the Gold Wing association. The Demers' belong to a 160-member local chapter of the GWRRA, which Clarence described as one of the fastest growing motorcycle groups in the country. He said the Gold Wings claim a membership extending into five countries and including about 16,000 Honda Gold Wing owners, with 1,000 new cyclists joining every month.

The popularity of the Honda Gold Wing street bikes can be easily seen as you walk down the rows of idle cycles at the motorcycle festival site and count the Hondas. The Gold Wings have been manufactured only since the mid-70s. The association was started shortly thereafter, Clarence noted, which makes the association's membership total seem astounding.

But the benefits of affiliation with the GWRRA are the magnets that draw the swelling number of owners.

Clarence said the annual membership dues pay for a monthly Wing News magazine, club patches and insignia, discounts to American Motorcycle Association sponsored events and a directory of members who can be called on for assistance when on the road. The fees also fund several runs—including poker runs, dinner runs, hay rides and weekend parties—that are put on by the association.

The GWRRA, which Beverly described as a family organization, also offers motorcycle insurance policies, and will soon create a credit union.

On their trip to Ruidoso, the Demers' completed a feat that earns them distinction among Gold Wing riders. The two will add patches to their jackets when they get home honoring them for driving 1,000 miles in a 24-hour period. They accomplished the goal in 18 hours by sharing pilot duties every tankful of gas.

Asked how the drive was on their Gold

Wing Interstate 1100, Beverly said, "It was a breeze."

Such a description is the essence of the Demers' involvement in motorcycling. For two auto workers living and working in the industrial megalopolis of Detroit, to feel the wind on their faces and experience the unrestrained freedom of accelerating their two-wheeled machine over the open road, cycling is a means of recharging their batteries.

Said Clarence, "We love to ride; to get out and see the country. You feel free, there is nothing to coop you in. It's a lot of fun."

COMING IN from Westland, Michigan, to Ruidoso by way of Nashville was a 2,100-mile ride for Beverly and Clarence Demers. The Demers hoped they would be awarded for traveling the longest distance to the motorcycle festival, but, alas, their diversion to Lynchburg, Tennessee, and the Jack Daniels Distillery on the way put a cork on their chances.

GOING OUT with a display of their colors bearing the Gold Wing Road Riders Association logos is the view of the Demers as they travel along the nation's asphalt highways.

Anita Sims joins Middle School staff

Anita Sims is the new secretary at White Mountain Middle School this year, having taken one year off after working in that position at Ruidoso High School for five years.

She has lived in Ruidoso since she was one year old and graduated from the Ruidoso school system.

As mid school secretary, Sims said, she is responsible for keeping school activity accounts; answering questions; taking out splinters; correspondence; requisitioning supplies; permanent records and transcripts; and being available to the principal, teachers and students.

Sims said she really enjoys working in the Ruidoso school system, mostly because the kids are "fantastic."

Around Sports

with Gary Brown

This appears to be a down year for district 3-AAA in high school football. The district's teams, including Ruidoso, have taken their lumps from non-district opponents.

Even defending champion Silver City, which has a large number of players returning from last year's team, has suffered defeat this season. The Colts took their first defeat of the year Friday night when they fell to Cathedral of El Paso, Texas, 23-21. Silver City is now 3-1.

Ruidoso is 0-4 in non-district action this season while Coble is 0-3-1, Tularosa 1-3 and Deming 1-3. Truth or Consequences, which has been a steady contender for several years, is 2-2 on the season.

The district season will start a week from tomorrow with Ruidoso hosting Coble in one of the opening games.

Last season district 3-AAA was one of the toughest AAA districts in the state. Silver City finished second in the state to Portales and Ruidoso was also one of the top AAA teams in the state. With any luck, the Warriors would have beaten Silver City and qualified for the playoffs.

As it was, Tularosa, a team which upset the Warriors 13-0, qualified for the playoffs as the second team from district 3-AAA. The Wildcats gave Silver City all it could handle in a first round playoff game before losing 7-6.

This season the district has had more trouble competing against "outside" competition. The district appears to be down as a whole.

That's why, even through it's 0-4 on the season, Ruidoso could be a big factor in the district race.

The Warriors are relatively small and inexperienced this season. They've also been hurt by injuries. Linebacker Tony Stevens, who was slated to start both on offense and defense this season, was injured in the first game against Lovington and lost for the year. Stevens, a junior transfer from Abilene, Texas, might well have been the Warriors' best lineman this season if he had not been injured.

Some people in Ruidoso have been critical of the Warrior coaching staff for not passing enough this season.

However, look for the Warriors to put the ball in the air quite a bit against New Mexico Military Institute (NMMI) Friday.

"We should pass at least 70 percent of our plays," said Warrior coach Darrel Stierwalt. "We tried running a lot with the ball for four weeks and didn't do very well so we might as well go through the air."

Ruidoso has more experience on offense than it does on defense but the coaching staff now feels the offensive line is better at pass blocking than for the run.

Stierwalt admitted a lot of the Warriors' problems have been because of the youth and inexperience of the team.

"We are young," he said. "There aren't any generals on this team like we had last season. When something wrong happens, it's hard for the players to come back. That trick play which Jal used last week was an example."

The Warriors do have a lot of talent on their team, even if it's a bit young. It sometimes takes a while for younger players, particularly freshmen and sophomores, to show their talents during a season.

If a team has a large number of underclassmen on its roster, it may take four or five games before these players really begin to get experience.

Look for Ruidoso to show considerable improvement in the next couple of weeks. The Warriors should give the district 3-AAA teams plenty of trouble.

Warriors to play rugged Colts

A much improved New Mexico Military Institute (NMMI) squad will host Ruidoso High School at 7:30 p.m. Friday at DeBremmond Field in Roswell.

The Warriors will be facing an NMMI team that is 2-2 on the season. However, both of the Colt defeats were by narrow margins. Last year Ruidoso topped NMMI on the Warrior field by a 7-0 margin.

Ruidoso, 0-4 on the season, is hoping for improvement over last week's 27-0 loss to Jal. The Warriors could not get a consistent offense going against the Panthers and were hurt by mistakes, particularly in the punting game. But Ruidoso should provide a new look against the Colts.

There will be several changes in the starting lineup and the Warriors will probably pass more than they have in the first four games.

"They're a much improved ballclub," said Ruidoso head coach Darrel Stierwalt of NMMI. "They've got a new coach and some good transfers."

NMMI is also a pass-oriented team so the air could be full of footballs Friday night.

The Warrior offensive backfield will have Billy Woodul at quarterback, Mark Langston at fullback, Grady Williamson at wingback and Eric Strobel at halfback.

Gary Burgess will probably start at tight end while Justin Smith will go at split end. Craig Carson and George Gresham will start at guard while Chris Wilm and Kip McClellan will probably go at tackle. David Swalander will probably start at center although Robert Swanner might see some time there also.

On defense, Swanner and Burgess will probably go at the end positions while Tracy Morlock and Danny Hoffer are scheduled to start at tackle.

Kyle Flack, who has been injured for three weeks, will probably start at middle linebacker. Strobel, Gresham and Jesse Reynolds will probably share the outside linebacker positions.

David Landrum and Langston should be the starting cornerbacks while Russell Easter and Cyrus Simmons will go at safety.

The Warriors have been bothered by injuries this week. Linebacker Patric Pearson has a probable separated shoulder and defensive tackle Manuel Montano has a bruised knee. Tight end Mike Douglas and split end H. R. Lueras have the flu. Senior offensive tackle Chris Sanchez has quit the team.

The Warrior attack should be more wide open Friday with the increased passing game. Woodul was a part-time starter last season and had several touchdown passes.

Williamson and Strobel have more than adequate speed and should be a threat with the ball if the blocking is there.

The Warriors should be ready for the Colts defensively as they've probably had their toughest practices of the season this week.

"After what they've gone through this week, the game should be easy," laughed Warrior offensive coordinator Vince Collins.

The Ruidoso junior varsity is idle this week and will resume play Thursday, October 7, with a home game against Goddard High School of Roswell.

The Warrior varsity will open district 3-AAA action Friday, October 8, with a home game against Coble. Ruidoso defeated Coble 20-6 last season.

Tigers to tangle with Dexter

The Capitan High School varsity football team may face its toughest game of the season when it travels to Dexter High School for a 7:30 p.m. game Friday.

Capitan, 2-1 on the season in A division competition, will be playing a Dexter team that is an AA division squad and has already defeated AAA division Ruidoso 22-16 this season.

The Tigers have defeated Tatum, Cloudcroft and Hagerman already this year. Their only defeat was a 13-0 decision to always tough Texico.

Dewey Keller has been doing a great job at quarterback in place of injured Grady Lee Eldridge for Capitan. He threw four touchdown passes against Hagerman in a 33-8 victory.

John Todd Aguilar has been tough at fullback for the Tigers while David Beavers and Danny Cummins are other major offensive threats for the Tigers.

Ron McDaniel at tight end and Tim McElhannon at wide receiver are good pass catchers while guard Paul Sullivan and tackle Todd Proctor anchor the offensive line.

Most of the Capitan offensive starters also start on defense. The Tigers have been hurt by injuries this season. Guard Sammy Castillo is out for the year with a broken arm.

Dexter is sparked offensively by running backs William Reed and Jimmy Natividad. The Demons are much improved over last season.

Hug makes hole-in-one

Nettie Hug made a hole-in-one Sunday at Alto Lakes Golf and Country Club.

Nettie scored her ace on the fifth hole. Witnesses were her husband, Fred, Frank Baker and Alan Harrington.

Nettie used a five-iron and made the shot from 130 yards out. It was her first hole-in-one.

County golf championships scheduled October 16-17

Cree Meadows Country Club and Alto Lakes Golf and Country Club will be the sites of the first Lincoln County Golf Championship, Saturday and Sunday, October 16-17.

The event, sponsored by the Ruidoso Evening Lions, will have a $40 entry fee.

That fee includes use of a cart and other privileges.

Each golfer will play 36 holes, 18 at Cree Meadows and 18 at Alto. There will be three flights: open, handicap and Calloway.

Motocross event on for Sunday

The first High Country Motocross Championships will be held Sunday at Eagle Creek Ski Area.

The competition, which will begin at 9 a.m., will feature racing in the 125cc, 250cc and open classes. The 125cc and 250cc classes will have novice, intermediate and expert competition. The open class will have intermediate and expert competition.

At least 50 riders are expected to compete in each race. There will be a $1,200 expert purse.

Trophies will be given out to the first, second and third place finishers in the intermediate and novice races.

The event is sponsored by High Country Productions Limited of Ruidoso. Riders are coming from all over the Southwest for the competition.

The ski area is located one-half mile west on Ski Run Road off Highway 37.

A PAIR OF RUIDOSO HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL PLAYERS battle each other during Tuesday afternoon's workout. The Warriors have had a good week of practice and will travel to Roswell for a 7:30 p.m. game with New Mexico Military Institute Friday.

Braves B team to host St. Clements

Hoping to get its second victory of the season, the White Mountain Middle School B football team will host Saint Clements of El Paso, Texas, at 10:30 a.m. Saturday at Ruidoso High School.

The Braves took an 8-6 victory over Cloudercroft last Saturday in Cloudercroft.

Bryan Mack scored the White Mountain touchdown in the third quarter and added the two-point conversion to give the Braves the victory.

Eric Eastep sparked the White Mountain effort on defense with a fine game at middle linebacker.

The White Mountain A team, 2-1 on the season, will have a bye this week. It will resume action Thursday, October 7, with a 6 p.m. contest at Tularosa.

The Braves A team lost to Dexter 22-0 in the season opener but has since defeated Carrizozo 30-0 and Hagerman 6-0.

Stop the Great Heat Escape! Window Quilt™ cuts

window heat loss up to 79%

If you're serious about home heating efficiency, you already know that far more heat escapes through windows than walls, roof or doors. You can pack your walls with thick insulation, install tight-fitting storm or double doors. Even so, you'll most likely lose more than half your precious winter heat through your windows.

Window Quilt™ multi-layered thermal shades can eliminate up to 79% of winter heat-loss through single-glazed windows, as much as 66% through double-paned glass.

Window Quilts fit tightly on all four sides, sealing warm air in and cold air out. They're easy to install and operate, easy to live with, far more efficient than ordinary shades or insulated drapes.

The secret of Window Quilt's amazing efficiency: A true insulating layer is surrounded by layers of insulating fluff. Even so, you'll most likely lose more than half your precious winter heat through your windows.

TO HOST DEMING SATURDAY

Ruidoso spikers fall to Dexter again

The Ruidoso High School varsity volleyball team saw its record drop to 4-3 Tuesday when it fell to host Dexter High School 15-6, 15-8 in a non-district match.

The Warriors, who had also lost to Dexter in the semi-finals of the Capitán Tournament Saturday afternoon, were hoping to even the score with the Demons.

It was not to be, however. "We played fairly well," head coach Elmer Chavez said. "However, the breaks just didn't go our way. Dexter isn't really that good. We should have beaten them." Chavez praised the play of junior Lillian Lopez.

"Lillian did a real good job all around," he remarked. "She did an excellent job spiking the ball. If the rest of the girls had played as well as Lillian, we would probably have won the match."

Despite the fact Ruidoso has lost to Dexter twice, Chavez doesn't feel the Demons are the best team the Warriors have played this season.

Floyd (which the Warriors defeated in the first round of the Capitán Tournament) is probably the best team we've played,"

Chavez said. "They're a good, solid team. We played very well when we beat them."

Tuesday was a bad day all around for the Warriors. The bus that was scheduled to take the team to Dexter was late and the Warriors had to take a small van with eight varsity players instead. The junior varsity game could not be played.

Ruidoso will host Deming in a district 3-AAA game Saturday. The junior varsity game will start at 1 p.m. with the varsity contest following.

Ruidoso is 0-1 in both varsity and junior varsity district competition, having lost to Tularosa last week.

"I've got a few gimmick plays I've been planning on not using until the district tournament," Chavez said. "However, we might use them Saturday because I think we need them now."

Deming could be a tough opponent for Ruidoso since it defeated Tularosa, 15-5, 15-4 recently in varsity competition.

Wilderness Wisdom with Wayne Calloway

Dear Wayne — There seems to be a never ending controversy among hunters and journalists alike concerning deer track identification. I have read convincing arguments on both sides of the debate about whether the sex of whitetail deer can be determined by their tracks.

Would you please add whatever information you have to this issue?

Edward L., South Carolina

Dear Edward — You are right about this subject being a popular topic of debate, and I don't suppose it will ever be settled to everyone's satisfaction.

The answer, in my opinion, cannot be stated with a definitive yes or no. But generally hoof prints cannot be used to dependably determine sex.

There is an old belief that the presence of two indentations in the ground behind the hoof print indicates a buck track. Supposedly, some novices believe only bucks are equipped to make such a print. Not true. These two little indentations are made by dew claws which are located on the back side of the leg. They are fixed slightly higher on the leg than the hoof. Of course, the fact is both bucks and does have dew claws. The only merit this method of identification has is that bucks are heavier than does so their additional weight would sometimes cause their hooves to sink into the ground and leave clear dew claw prints, where a doe may not. But there are several things wrong with this approach. Older does are heavier than young bucks. All ground conditions are not the same, therefore, the dew claw prints of a doe would be readily visible in soft ground, but a buck's print would not be in hard ground.

Youth soccer, football on tap

Youth sports will be active in Ruidoso again this weekend.

The Ruidoso-Sertoma Soccer Association youth matches will take place Saturday, with the first match scheduled to begin at 10:30 a.m.

There are age group divisions for under-eight, under-12 and under-16 players in the youth soccer league.

Ruidoso Little League football action will begin at Ruidoso High School at noon with the Hornets and Lions Minor Division contest. The Major Division games will follow.

Grantham still undecided about pro

Butch Grantham, director of the Ruidoso-Sertoma Soccer Association (RSSA), is still undecided about whether to take the head coaching job of the El Paso, Texas, franchise of the new Southwest Indoor Soccer League.

Grantham and Dan Guard, president of the league, talked Tuesday about the job. Grantham has 21 days to decide whether to take the job.

"I've hired a sports attorney from El Paso to see if everything is above board," Grantham said. "If I get a guaranteed three-year contract and some other stipulations I definitely will take the job."

The El Paso team is one of six definite franchises in the new league. The other franchises are Tucson, Arizona; Albuquerque; Fort Worth, Texas; San Antonio, Texas; and Houston, Texas.

Grantham, a former Dallas Tornado B team player, has been director of the RSSA for three years. He is presently coach of the under-16 Celtic squad.

The El Paso team will hold a team tryout Sunday in El Paso. Grantham will be at the tryout.

Local boxing team to sponsor matches at high school

The Las Piedras Boxing Team of Ruidoso will host "Saturday Night at the Fights" Saturday, October 16, at the Ruidoso High School gym.

Some of the better amateur youth fighters from around the state are expected to compete.

The event will begin at 7 p.m. Ticket prices are $5 for ringside seats and $3 for general admission. Children under 12 will be admitted free.

MARIE COVINGTON has had an extensive background in dancing for most of her life. She has won several awards and has also had considerable teaching experience. She will begin teaching dance at the Ruidoso Gymnastics Academy next week.

Covington to begin dance classes at gym next week

Marie Covington, who will start teaching dance classes at the Ruidoso Gymnastics Academy (RGA) gym Monday, has a good deal of experience in dancing.

Covington, 24, first got involved in dancing with the Fort Worth, Texas, Parks and Recreation Department when she was three years old. She has also been involved with the Dancing Dolls Dance Studio of Houston, Texas, and several other dancing studios.

She won the Dancer of the Year award in 1971 and the Best All-Around Dancer award in 1972 while with the Dancing Dolls. She finished third in the 1973 Jazz Duet of the Houston Talent Tournament. She was named Performer of the Year in 1974 and took first in the Jazz Duet Vocational Office Education District Competition in 1978.

She has taught with the Dancing Dolls; Academy of Creative Dance in Houston; Anna Jean Martin School of Dance in Pasadena, Texas; La Porte Elementary in La Porte, Texas; Kirkwood Dance Studio in Houston; and Sunshine Art Gallery in Houston.

The classes will be in tap, jazz and ballet. Tots, school age youths and adults can attend.

The hours for the dance classes are as follows: Monday—beginner ballet, ages six to 12, from 5:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.; adult beginner ballet, ages 13 and up, from 6:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

Wednesday: beginner jazz, ages six to 12, from 5:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.; adult beginner jazz, ages 13 and up, from 6:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

Thursday: tots ballet and tap, ages three to five, from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m.; tots ballet and tap, ages three to five, from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m.

For further information, call 257-2539 or 257-7645.

Baton twirling classes are also being taught at the RGA gym. Call Charlotte Stewart at 258-4400 for further information.

Warrior Booster Club to host box supper dinner

The Ruidoso High School Warrior Booster Club will host an old-fashioned box supper party Saturday, October 23, at 7 p.m. in the high school gym.

All women and girls in the community are invited to make a boxed supper for two, decorate the box, and bring it to the gym before 6:30 p.m.

Games like bobbing for apples and pinning a feather on a Warrior coach will be played. Party-goers will also have a chance to throw a pie at their favorite coaches.

Money raised will be used to purchase uniforms for the Warriors.

Booster Club, faculty agree to file complaint

Members of the Ruidoso High School faculty and Booster Club have agreed to file complaints with the Ruidoso Police Department against anyone bringing alcoholic beverages onto school property. There have been some problems lately with intoxicated people in the stands at the high school football games.

Many visitors expected on Lincoln Forest

Large numbers of visitors are expected on the Lincoln National Forest this weekend for the annual motorcycle convention at Ruidoso and the Oktoberfest at Cloudcroft. These annual festivals are planned to coincide with the color changes in the fall foliage, and include arts and crafts fairs and various events. Check with the Chambers of Commerce in Ruidoso and Cloudcroft for details.

Woodcutters are also expected to be out in force on the Lincoln this weekend as drier conditions for the past few days have permitted reopening of most fuelwood areas. As weather conditions can change rapidly at this time of year though, fuelwood cutters are reminded to always check with the district they plan to visit for current conditions before they leave home. Numbers to call are: Smokey Bear at Ruidoso, 287-4006; Cloudcroft, 682-2551; Guadalupe at Carlsbad, 885-4181; and Mayhill at 837-3411. All fuelwood areas on the Lincoln Forest require fuelwood permits.

Fall colors are showing at higher elevations on the Smokey Bear District. Bonito Lake is full and fishing light. Roads and trails are in good condition. Three Rivers Campground and Cedar Creek Picnic Area are open; other facilities are closed for the season.

Smokey Bear and Woodsy Owl will be seen at the Aspenade tours on Cloudcroft District this weekend. Tours will leave Cloudcroft's Zenith Park at 11 a.m., 1 p.m., and 3 p.m. and go to the Upper Kerr Canyon area where a forest naturalist will give a short nature walk and talk. Upper and Lower Sleepy Grass Campgrounds will be open for the Oktoberfest; then only Lower Sleepy Grass will be open until snow falls. All other campgrounds are closed. Motorists are advised that repair work continues on NM 24 south of Cloudcroft, and the road is extremely dusty and rough. Trails are in good condition. One new down-dead fuelwood area has opened on the Cloudcroft District.

Caving activity is moderate at this time on Guadalupe District, but reservations should be made now for caving trips during the November holidays. Sitting Bull Falls Picnic Area is open.

James Canyon Campground is open on the Mayhill District. Fishing is fair on the Penasco River.

Trappers group to meet Saturday

The Lincoln-Otero County Trappers Association meets at 7 p.m. Saturday, October 2, at Hoyt Graham's garage on Carizo Canyon Road (watch for sign).

Conservation officer Chuck Franco will be the guest speaker. For further information, call Don Cox at 258-3274.

DEALING WITH STRESS was the subject of a workshop at First Christian Church last week, conducted by Charles Hamilton. More than 50 persons attended.

Photovoltaics workshop set

A Photovoltaics for Residential Use workshop will be presented in Santa Fe October 16 by the New Mexico Solar Energy Institute and the Southwest Residential (photovoltaic) Experiment Station of New Mexico State University at the passive solar heated and lighted Eldorado Elementary School. The fee ($15) includes a box lunch. A tour of some local homes equipped with photovoltaic systems will follow the workshop.

For registration information contact Sue Mumma, NMSEI-NMSU, Box 3 SOL, Las Cruces, N.M. 88003 or telephone (505) 648-4112. Registration will close October 12.

This workshop introduces participants to the basic principles, definitions and terminology of photovoltaics. The program covers utility interconnected DC/AC systems and stand alone DC systems. Also covered will be sizing, array mounting methods, metering, inverters and storage, economics and PURPA (utility purchasing electricity), and recent developments in photovoltaic technology. Materials include a product directory/buyers guide. Continuing Education Units (CEUs) from New Mexico State University are available.

Extension homemakers at Glorieta

Extension homemakers from throughout New Mexico will be attending a statewide training institute for public affairs education September 29 through October 1 at Glorieta.

"The homemakers will work in action groups to learn how to identify and deal with public issues that affect families," said Mary Ellen Payne, Lincoln County Extension home economist. "The training institute will teach leadership skills that can be applied to many situations."

Homemakers attending from this area will include Phyllis Zimwalt, Hondo, and Pat Hume, Nogal.

People actively involved in the political process will serve as resource persons for training sessions. Major addresses will be by Shirley Hooper, New Mexico secretary of state, and James Long, leadership speaker from Washington State University.

The training institute is part of a family community leadership project funded by the W. K. Kellogg Foundation for six western states. Other states taking part in the project are Alaska, Colorado, Hawaii, Oregon and Washington.

The project is co-sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service at New Mexico State University, and by the Cooperative Extension Service in each of the participating states.

Anyone interested in Family Planning or Well Child clinic appointments, please call 648-2412.

THE PET CORNER

BY JACK SNIADOCKI
Animal Control Officer

Until January 25, 1983, this is the year of the dog for the Chinese, and for many Japanese and Korean traditionalists. In relation, the years are named for and linked to 12 animals. No one is certain why.

The rotation — which has no known beginning — has no end. The Year of the Dog is followed by, in order, years named for the Boar, the Rat, the Ox, the Tiger, the Rabbit, the Ram, the Monkey and the Rooster. The next year of the Dog will occur in the year 1994.

The imagery of a variety of animals serving as patrons of the years is pleasant and the continuing consciousness in their culture of the importance of animal life has served the Chinese people well.

The tradition of the rotation of years has, predictably, become much enhanced and embroidered upon in the millennia since its beginnings. Some have made it a part of the lore of Buddha. Their account has him summoning the 12 animals to his side, one each day, as he neared death. Astrologers have made the animals symbols of their lunar zodiac. Those born in the year of the dog have been characterized as especially loyal, honest, compatible with fellow workers and always ready to give aid. The year 1948 was also a year of the Dog.

ART, DINING AND ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE

A NIGHT ON THE TOWN

Whispering Pine Restaurant has good food and atmosphere

WHISPERING PINE RESTAURANT has this beautiful picture of the Rocky Mountains greeting guests as they walk in. The restaurant is located in the Upper Canyon area and offers good food and charm for its customers.

Whispering Pine Restaurant offers its diners a fine combination of excellent food and rustic charm.

I dined there Monday night and enjoyed both the food and the atmosphere.

The restaurant, built in 1962, is located in the picturesque and cool Upper Canyon. Many cabins dating as far back as the late 1920s and early 1930s dominate the landscape near the restaurant. The Upper Canyon was the first area of Ruidoso to be extensively developed.

The restaurant is currently open from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily and has a wide range of food on its menu.

It is owned by Chris Hicks and Chuck Hawthorne. They bought the restaurant from Thelma Jennings, the original owner, one-and-a-half years ago. Dorothy DePuy is the manager of the restaurant.

The main dining room is spacious and there is a large picture of the Rocky Mountains on the wall directly opposite the door customers enter. The picture blends well with the brown walls of the restaurant and the cool mountain atmosphere of the Upper Canyon area.

For dinner, I ordered an eight-ounce filet steak and had some salad from the salad bar. My steak was cooked medium and I had a Coke for my beverage. (The restaurant does not serve alcoholic beverages.)

Served with the steak were french fries, peaches and lettuce.

The Whispering Pine menu is one of the larger bills of fare in the area.

The restaurant's main specialties are rainbow trout and catfish. The trout costs $6.75 and the catfish $6.50. There is also a delicious seafood platter for $7.50.

Besides the filet steak I had, there is a six-ounce filet; a six-ounce sirloin; 14-ounce and seven-ounce New York steaks; and a T-Bone on the steak menu.

Golden fried chicken, several Mexican dishes, chicken fried steak, hamburger, roast beef and a wide variety of sandwiches are also on the menu.

The breakfast menu features steaks and eggs, chops and eggs, omelettes and a large number of side orders.

Whispering Pine also has daily luncheon buffets and daily dinner specials.

Monday's luncheon buffet includes chicken bits, hamburger steak, bar "B" que hot links and various side dishes.

Liver and onions, brisket and corn beef and cabbage are on the Tuesday schedule. Sour cream enchiladas, beef tips and noodles and fried whiting fish are the main dishes Wednesday; while stuffed peppers, roast beef and fried chicken are the main Thursday treats.

Baked Halibut, chicken and dumplings and meat loaf are on the Friday schedule; while pork chops, chicken fried steak and bar "B" que chicken are the Saturday offerings.

Cornish game hen and rice, baked ham and roast beef are the main Sunday luncheon treats.

The daily dinner special for Monday is enchiladas, rice and beans for $3.99. Tuesday it's chicken and dumplings and corn bread for $2.25.

Beef stew and corn bread for $2.25 are the Wednesday dinner special. Fried chicken, french fries and salad for $3.99 are the Thursday special.

Catfish with hush puppies, pinto beans and cole slaw are on the menu for $4.75 as the Friday dinner special. Both the Thursday and Friday meals are "all you can eat specials."

A delicious sirloin steak with french fries and baked potato for just $5.50 is the Saturday dinner special.

After a full, well-rounded meal at Whispering Pines, a night of entertainment is a good way to finish the evening.

Normally, Jerry Dale's has ABC-TV's Monday Night Football on its schedule. However, with the National Football League players' strike putting an end to the games until further notice, the movie "Airplane" was shown.

"Airplane" is a spoof of the older movie "Airport" from the late 1970s. It's also one of the funniest movies to come out of Hollywood in recent years.

While watching the movie on Jerry's Dale's large screens, I and the other customers (there was a bigger crowd there than is normal for Monday Night Football) enjoyed hot dogs and beans for $1.50 and the usual alcoholic beverages.

Hit movies will be shown at Jerry Dale's until the strike is over.

WHISPERING PINE RESTAURANT, located in the Upper Canyon, was built in 1962 and has been almost a landmark in the Ruidoso area since then. It has a varied menu and dinner and luncheon specials.

Local artists to offer workshops at Carrizo Lodge

by BARBY GRANT
Staff Writer

Three local artists will be instructing evening art workshops at Carrizo Lodge this fall as a special offering for residents of the Ruidoso area, announced Ken Hosmer, Carrizo Lodge art director.

Beginning drawing will be taught by William Locke on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6:30 to 8:30 October 12 to November 18 for $45 per person. Locke, who moved to Ruidoso from Santa Fe just two months ago, specializes in a variety of media, including pastels, pen and ink, watercolors, pencil, oils and liquitex. His class will feature fundamentals of drawing for beginning students.

Locke received most of his training through his family, most of whom have been very involved in art. He studied through a correspondence course with the Washington School of Art in Port Washington, New York, and has instructed Teri Sodd will instruct a pastel workshop Monday evenings October 11 to November 15 from 6:30 to 8:30 for $55 per person. Her students will begin with basic drawing and then add color, working from photographs.

Sodd moved to Ruidoso in April of this year from Lubbock, Texas. She opened the Mountain Arts shop, and her work is displayed locally there and at the Bear Claw Gallery. Her work is also displayed in Albuquerque, Santa Fe, Taos and in Colorado and Oklahoma. She exhibits throughout the Southwest and has work in the private collections of Roy Rogers and Larry Gallin, among many others.

Sodd is a self-taught artist and began drawing full time as her interest in Southwestern Indians developed during visits to New Mexico. She continues to portray Indians as subjects in most of her work.

She taught for three years at the Lubbock Garden and Art Center and previously was a portrait artist at Six Flags Amusement Park.

Sodd said she is excited about teaching at Carrizo Lodge "because I'm anxious to meet a lot of local people and to find out who is interested in the art field and get closer acquainted. ... Anybody that's interested in art ought to be in Ruidoso—it's so easy to relax here."

Monday evening oil painting and color theory classes will be taught by Paul Tapp from October 11 to November 15 from 6:30 to 9:30 for a fee of $45 per student. This class will concentrate on how to use color, with students being limited to just a few colors to force them to explore all the possibilities of each one.

The class will be geared toward beginning painters, Tapp said, but color theory is an excellent program for experienced and intermediate painters also.

Tapp is fine arts and language arts instructor for high school students at Ruidoso Christian School. He has been painting since elementary school and has studied privately with such artists as George Cherepov, Ruth Hunter and Dord Fitz.

Tapp has been art director at a middle school in Lafayette, Louisiana, and taught classes at Zia Art and Frame here in Ruidoso for one-and-a-half years.

PAUL TAPP

He said he is excited about the Carrizo Lodge workshops because "it is a enriching atmosphere and a stimulating setting."

In addition to these workshops for local art enthusiasts, a free oil painting demonstration will be conducted by Carrizo Lodge October 13 from 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. Cogar, from Las Cruces, is a regular instructor at Carrizo Lodge during the summer workshop sessions.

Hosmer said that with "the high concentration of artists in the Ruidoso area, we are shooting to build up Carrizo Lodge as a gathering place."

Anyone interested in signing up for the workshops or in obtaining additional information can call Hosmer at 257-2375. Class sizes are limited, so students are encouraged to sign up soon.

WILLIAM LOCKE

classes at the Opportunity School of Art in Denver, Colorado. He said he plans to open an art shop in Ruidoso and is excited about the opportunity to teach at Carrizo Lodge this fall.

Country music fest set

The Rex Allen Jr. Show will top off two full days of country music, camping and talent contests at the First Annual White Oaks Country Music Festival Saturday and Sunday, October 9 and 10.

Starting 9 a.m. Saturday, James Furth of KRRR will emcee the show featuring area bands in an open air concert nine miles down White Oaks Road, east of Carrizo. In addition to giving concerts, musicians will be competing for cash prizes in banjo and fiddle contests.

Musicians will play on a stage in the open against the Brown Store. The seating area will be a clear field and people are advised to bring blankets and lawn chairs. Barbecue, beer, drinks and T-shirts will be for sale during the festival.

Primitive camping will be open to RV's, cars and tents beginning Friday night and lasting through the weekend.

REX ALLEN JR.

There will be no charge for camping. Tickets for the whole weekend are $10. For Saturday only the charge will be $5 and Sunday it is $7. Children under 12 will be admitted free.

Films set at Space Hall of Fame

The International Space Hall of Fame will show four National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) films about the Gemini Space Program Saturday, October 2, in the theater on the first floor. These films will be shown every half hour, all day Saturday, in honor of the 4 p.m. induction of 10 Gemini astronauts.

"Legacy of Gemini" illustrates the major accomplishments of the Gemini two-man space flights and the significance of these flights to the Apollo program.

"The Twelve Gemini" summarizes the objectives of the Gemini program, including flight duration tests, rendezvous and docking maneuvers, EVA (space walk) and scientific experiments.

"Gemini XI" features astronauts Charles Conrad and Richard Gordon, a first revolution rendezvous and docking, and the first fully automatic reentry.

"Gemini X Quick Look" is narrated by astronauts John Young and Michael Collins and covers the dual launches, the rendezvous and docking with Agena X that propels Gemini to a 414 nautical mile elliptical orbit, the three extravehicular activities, and recovery.

The Space Hall will be open free-to-the-public Saturday, October 2, from 3 to 8 p.m.

Orchestra premiering

The Orchestra of Santa Fe's Ninth Season will premier Saturday, October 2, in Sweeney Center with a concert program spanning three centuries of great music.

Featured soloist for the opening concert will be Orchestra of Santa Fe Concertmaster Kay Johnson Newnam, who returns from Europe to perform Sergei Prokofiev's demanding Violin Concerto Number 2 in g minor, Opus 63.

"The Prokofiev Violin Concerto Number 2 is one of the major concertos of the 20th century," according to Conductor and Artistic Director William Kirschenke. "And the great depth of the piece allows for great virtuosic display."

Under Kirschenke's baton the orchestra will also perform Beethoven's "Egmont Overture" Opus 84 from the Classical Period, French Romantic composer Georges Bizet's Symphony in C Major and Impressionist Claude Debussy's Prelude to the Afternoon of a Faun complete varied and exciting opening program.

Season tickets for the Orchestra of Santa Fe's Ninth Season or individual tickets for the opening concert at 8 p.m., October 2, and 3 p.m., Sunday, October 3, are available at the Orchestra Box Office or the mezzanine of La Fonda. For more information call 988-4640.

Cliff and Casey win Fair honors

The father-son team of Cliff and Casey Lambert posted a driving finish to come from behind and capture the leading trainer and leading jockey titles for the New Mexico State Fair racing meet.

Going into the final day's races Sunday, Cliff Lambert had taken six of his charges to the winner's circle during the 17-day meet, trailing Willard R. Morse and William F. Leach, who had eight each.

And son Casey had booted home the winner 17 times — one behind leader O. A. Martinez Jr.

But on Sunday, everything fell into place for the Lambert team.

In the second race, Casey rode a Cliff-trained $2,500 claimer named Winds Of The East around a mile and a sixteenth to tie the jockey standings. In the next race, Lambert and Lambert's Lil Ariel Boy won at 870 yards to put the top trainers in a three-way tie.

In the eighth race, both Lamberts went ahead as Casey rode Apalachee Chief, the favorite, to victory over six and one-half furlongs.

The icing on the cake was the New Mexico State Fair Handicap, the $44,150 feature race. Jinx Graham's superb five-year-old gelding Copper Case was without a doubt the best horse in the race. But he was carrying a top weight of 127 pounds for a mile and an eighth.

Nevertheless, Copper Case and Casey Lambert pulled it off in style, chased down the stretch by Fill Mack's Cup to win it in 1:52 flat — only three-fifths of a second off a track record that was set in 1969, when the track surface was much faster, by a horse carrying only 117 pounds.

The final victory gave Cliff Lambert 19 winners for the meet, two more than his closest rivals, and put Casey Lambert well over the top with 21 wins to 18 for Martinez. The next closest jockey was Richard Bickel with 11.

West new to Ruidoso-Sunland board

John West received a pleasant surprise one day this summer at Ruidoso.

"Jimmy Welch (president of The Jockey Club) called me and asked how busy I was. He said he wanted me to help him in the future as a board member of Ruidoso-Sunland, Incorporated," said West, the newest member of the Board of Directors of the ruling body for Ruidoso Downs and Sunland Park Race Tracks.

West fills the spot left vacant by the death last month of Mark A. Caraway.

"I feel honored to be chosen for this group," said the 62-year-old engineer from Hobbs. "This is the first board seat I've ever had. It seems to be a real good group to work with. I'm sure pleased with what I know about them. I've known Jim Welch (a board member from Artesia) for many years. I've also known Mr. Ross (William G. Ross of Midland, Texas, another long-time director)."

West has been attending the Ruidoso Downs races since the early 1960s and has been a member of The Jockey Club since 1961. The Jockey Club assumed ownership of both Ruidoso Downs and Sunland Park in 1978.

"I usually get to spend about 10 weekends each summer at Ruidoso Downs. I hope to get down to Sunland Park more than I have in the past," he said.

West was born in Stephenville, Texas, and moved to Des Moines in northwest Union County in the far northwestern tip of New Mexico.

He attended the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque, graduating in 1943 with a bachelor of science degree in civil engineering. He then served in the United States Army Air Corps for three years.

In 1946, he started the John West Engineering Company in Hobbs and has been associated with his firm since then. The company, with offices in Hobbs and Midland, employs about 125 persons.

It does work for municipalities, counties and states for the oil and gas industries. "We do projects for firms in Illinois, Iowa, Kansas and Oklahoma, so we spread out a little from this immediate area," West pointed out.

Despite the economic woes which have beset the Southwest in the past few months, West said he hoped Sunland Park would equal its record mutual handle of last season.

The west El Paso track will open its 35-day campaign on October 15 hoping to surpass last year's record daily average mutual handle of $349,182.

"I don't think Sunland Park will be up that much, I hope I'm wrong. But with the economic situation the way it is, to break even is great. Next year, the farming situation around the Lubbock area in Texas and the oil industry around Midland, Odessa and Hobbs hopefully will be more stable and more people will have jobs. We should be up eight or ten percent," he said.

West said he is anxious to work with the Board of Directors in whatever way he can, especially to improve the facilities in both southern New Mexico race tracks.

"I want to work with the group in upgrading both tracks and to make them better in any way I can," he explained. "With the better facilities at Ruidoso Downs, I'm sure more people will go there. Hopefully the better facilities at Sunland Park will attract more people there, too."

"I was really surprised when Jim Welch called me, but I'm pleased to be on the Board of Directors," he added.

State Fair race meet sets records

The 17-day horse racing meet completed Sunday was the most successful in the history of the New Mexico State Fair.

The meet broke all-time records for handle and attendance. The handle record was shattered by the end of the sixth race Sunday, and the next six races put the figure over $16 million for the first time in history.

The new trifecta helped push the figures over the top. The lowest handle for the one-two-three bet was $30,582 on a cold rainy first Monday of the meet, while the figure on the final Sunday barely missed $200,000, stopping at $199,522. Over the 17 days of the meet, the trifecta handled 2,219,883, or an average of $130,578 a day.

The final numbers for the meet were: *Total handle: $16,190,449, compared to a previous record of $15,294,937 in 1981 and $14,277,716 in 1980.

*Average daily handle: $952,379, compared to $899,702 in 1981 and $839,866 in 1980.

*Total attendance: 183,960, compared to 156,840 the previous year.

*Average daily attendance: 11,409, compared to 9,814 in 1981.

*Per capita handle: $83.47 compared to $91.97 in 1981.

SANTA FE — Who makes a better governor — an activist or a wiser, older man?

When we mentioned here recently that some Santa Fe government-watchers were saying Toney Anaya might be good in the office he presently seeks because he will try to shine to help further his career in politics, we didn't mean to imply that was the whole story.

There is another side to the argument, and it comes out in favor of John Irick for governor.

In Irick's case, the proposition goes, we have a man who is probably not pushing for any higher office. That means he will be content to do the office he has in a sane and sensible manner, without having to measure every decision by how it will affect his future.

Once he gets into office, those who hold this view say, Irick can act freely and honestly for what he sees as the good of New Mexico. He does not need to make other promises to gain future support.

He doesn't need to play for headlines, in short.

The writer has tested both arguments on a number of those reputed to be politically savvy, sometimes taking one side and sometimes the other.

If the response he gets can be taken as anything of an indicator, the race between Toney Anaya and John Irick for the governor's chair may be a very close one.

Those who prefer Irick's deliberate and deliberative style seem to number very closely those who go for the flashier Anaya.

Interestingly enough, age seems to have nothing to do with people's stand on the issue. Many younger people who might be expected to like activism and youth are attracted by Irick's low-key approach. Many older people like Anaya's zest.

You pay your money, and you take your choice.

We won't know the answer till the big poll is taken on November 2.

Bill McBroom is clean.

He even got state officials to certify to that fact.

This column recently questioned the legality of that raffle being held in support of McBroom's candidacy for state treasurer. Attorneys told us it appeared to be a lottery.

It is, but it turns out such raffles can be legally held if the state's Bingo Bureau says so.

In this case that permission has been granted.

McBroom also observes (in his very gentlemanly letter to the writer) that we are likely to see much more of this kind of effort in the future, especially in races for the so-called "minor" offices, for which raising funds is very tough.

Is the federal government running out of dough?

They actually suggested to the state that the feds make payments into our accounts on some items funded by Washington at the rate at which statistics show the checks drawn on the account have been cashed, instead of giving us all the dough at the time we issue the checks.

That's known as operating on "the float," and it is not regarded highly by strict believers in the financial system.

Fortunately we happen to have a law which makes such actions illegal (as illegal for the state, that is, as the same sort of action — issuing checks which are not backed by money actually in the bank — is for a private citizen).

It's disturbing to many of us that the federal people would even suggest such a thing.

We're all for bringing down those budget deficits generated on the Potomac, but we'd like to see it done legally.

Sense & Nonsense

U.S. Sen. Pete Domenici

In Congress we're always looking for ways to save money for the benefit of the taxpayer.

One of the better examples of thrifty spending and making good use of federal research dollars is at Los Alamos National Laboratory.

There, a "supercomputer" is in operation.

Such a device, as the name implies, is a notch above an ordinary computer. It can perform far more tasks; provide much more information.

Its biggest advantage, as far as the federal budget is concerned, is that for a few pennies of electricity it can simulate and analyze tests which if performed in the field would cost thousands or millions of dollars.

For instance, using a supercomputer laboratory scientists can create hypothetical accidents in nuclear reactors, test the effectiveness of safeguards and ensure those safeguards have been checked out before a reactor is even built.

And how long does it take to run such a test in a supercomputer?

As quickly as one second.

Supercomputers are also being used to develop alternative energy sources. Since many of these new energies will require large amounts of money to be built, the more defects which can be detected by the supercomputer simulation, the more money will be saved.

In addition, they are being employed to test nuclear weapons systems. They are especially useful in this work because they can perform many tests which are difficult or impossible to conduct in the field.

The first supercomputer was installed at Los Alamos in 1976 and has proven to be an invaluable aid in research and development projects.

The U.S. is the leader in supercomputer technology, although Britain and Japan are developing their own supercomputer industries.

With this valuable equipment, our scientists in New Mexico are helping America maintain its leadership role in science and technology — and saving the taxpayer a few dollars too.

BEARING UP

ON THE SPORTS PAGE today is a picture from Dean Strickland's recent bear hunt. Dean's party of three all took nice browns on the Mescalero Reservation last week.

Dean was impressed with the bear hunting, and says they're all over the place, but what really impressed him was a general view of the big game population of the reservation.

In recent years the Mescaleros have brought in competent game biologists and underwritten a major game conservation program. "They manage for quality, not quantity," says Dean, and the results are beginning to come around.

The Indians have built up a huge elk herd. The elk have become so numerous, in fact, that they have about driven the deer off the reservation. The Indians have a cow elk season this year, a sure sign that they think the numbers have reached the maximum level.

Dean says the way to see the Indians' game treasure is to get a guide out of Mescalero and spend a day in the saddle on the other side of Sierra Blanca. He says it's become a big game paradise. —Hop Graham - Lovington Daily Leader

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

PRIDE, the desire to win and achieve, learning to lose and the ability to give that second effort in order to win the next time, learning to take instructions, confidence, self-respect, self-control, the ability to get along with others; these are some of the things an athlete learns from his coach.

We have fine coaches at Ruidoso High School and good boys playing football.

Regardless of facts and figures, I do not understand and cannot accept the fact that our coaches only received $2,800 this year for equipment. Why don't we have adequate funds in the Ruidoso School System for our athletes?

Some parents have bought helmets for their boys, our boys had to take sack lunches to the Lovington football game, they have to pay for the pre-game meals, the Jr. Varsity has to borrow traveling shirts from the Varsity boys when they play out of town, the Jr. Varsity doesn't even have suits — they play in their practice suits. . . . These are only a very few of the things our high school athletes are short on. The list is too numerous to list. The point is: $2,800 for adequate and safe training equipment is an insult to the boys, to the coaches, to the parents, and to the Village of Ruidoso.

Our boys work hard and our coaches give all of themselves to help our boys but $2,800 today won't buy enough to talk about.

Sports is the backbone to a lot of kids in getting their education. Without sports a lot of kids just would not get an education. Why don't we have the funds to acquire the things the coaches need to help our athletes achieve their goals.

High school football on Friday night is part of the American Way of Life.

It takes money to provide it just like anything else. Where is it? Other schools have it. Why don't we?

Carol Carter

Dear editor:

The idea of the city buying the Racquet Club is at best, a noble, if ill-conceived notion.

Financially, it is a disastrous idea. Ruidoso State Bank holds mortgages and interest liens of over one million dollars. Jim Wimberly holds mortgages and interest liens of almost one-half million dollars. When the club comes up for auction the bank will almost assuredly place a minimum bid based on the notes they hold: $832,612.00. This would be the cheapest price the city could possibly pay. An additional $100,000 would be needed for repairs. This is a bare minimum.

If we look at this cost, a public facility based on what we need could be built for much less. First, we already have a swimming pool that is underutilized. We don't need a second city pool. Second, we do need additional meeting facilities, but these could be built much cheaper as an addition to the new city building; cost $200,000 approximately. Thirdly, we do need additional tennis courts, there are eight courts at the Racquet Club. A good court can be built for less than $20,000 for a total of $160,000 plus land. One thought for this would be the land along Hull Road owned by the School District. The need for a sports complex (tennis, softball, soccer, football) is widely known. This complex could become a joint project between the city and the school board. That leaves us with only the racquet ball courts left to contend with. Let's add up our costs first: new meeting facilities, $200,000; tennis courts, $160,000; for a total of $360,000. I doubt whether it would cost over $600,000 to build a few racquet ball courts somewhere, possibly with the tennis courts.

Yes, we do need additional sports facilities for our youth and citizens, but not at any cost. We must look to get maximum value for our tax dollars. The use of tax dollars to buy the Racquet Club would be neglecting at best. In the long term, it would be depriving Ruidoso of a greater amount of facilities; facilities that are much more needed.

Sincerely,

Robert Donaldson

Editorial

To annex or not to annex.

That is the question the Ruidoso council must face—probably at its first meeting in October—now that the Planning and Zoning Commission has approved a request for annexation of 152 acres of the planned Grindstone Resort Community.

The action was taken despite objections from the village water board. The board contends that since our water is already overcommitted—even with the new dam—developers should bring water rights with them, or pay a hefty utility expansion charge so the village can afford to buy the needed water rights.

It is interesting to note that though P&Z approved the request from Grindstone developer Don Dorman, the commission saw fit to send a memo to the village council clarifying its position.

Basically, what P&Z said in the memo was, "since you guys have never told us to consider water when we act on annexation requests, we couldn't start now."

Before the bond election on the water improvements program, the water board chairman, the P&Z chairman and the mayor all supported a moratorium on annexation until after Grindstone Dam is built.

The council declined imposing a moratorium, but indicated new annexations were unlikely to be approved because of the water situation.

It will be interesting to see what they do with this request.—TP

Reporter's Round

by Barby Grant

Hearing of the "fantastic turnout" at White Mountain Middle School's open house for parents earlier this month confirmed once again the strong support for education in this community.

Mid school principal Texie Cole has set as one of her goals getting parents more involved in their children's education. She wants to establish a community support council which would involve resource people from the community in presenting programs at the school and in other ways interacting with students.

Cole said she received a lot of support from parents and faculty members for the existence of such a council. The principal explained that parents often begin to lose touch with their children after the elementary school years, and it is her intention to assist parents in continuing their involvement in the education of their offspring.

But if parents have not been actively involved in the process of educating their children from the very beginning, it will probably do little good to show a sudden interest during the middle school years. Attitudes toward school and learning are formed long before sixth grade and can be established even prior to that first momentous step into a first grade classroom.

One of my most vivid childhood memories is of sitting on my mother's lap as a pre-schooler listening to her read a Dick and Jane book to me. She read that book to me so many times—upon my insistence—that I soon began reading it to her, mostly from memory. To this day I'm proud of the fact that I had mastered every word of that Dick and Jane book before ever entering the world of formal education.

I attribute my choice of careers to that accomplishment and to my mom's limitless patience for the little five-year-old girl who continually climbed in her lap with a ragged copy of Dick, Jane and Tip.

I always felt sorry for (and a little impatient with) the kids in grade school for whom reading aloud was such a trying ordeal. Those times made me feel grateful to my mom for assuming the task of teaching me to read before I started school.

During a recent conversation with Paul Tapp, instructor of language arts and fine arts at Ruidoso Christian School, we lamented over the ability of many students to continue through a public school system in this country without ever learning basic skills of the English language.

As a tutor to students in English 010 classes in college, I was somewhat disillusioned to discover that several of them had actually been admitted to college without the ability to distinguish between a simple subject and verb. Even more tragic is that they were probably graduated from college the same way.

An article in this month's issue of Esquire Magazine quotes the Carnegie Council of Policy Studies in Higher Education as saying that "about one third of our youth are ill-educated, ill-employed, and ill-equipped to make their way in American society."

"We may have twenty million functional illiterates," the article's writer surmises.

Granted, a greater number of students these days are studying computer science, engineering and accounting rather than English literature and creative writing—a decision based on the innate desire to survive. But even computer experts have to be able to read the print-outs and/or computer screens and the instructions for feeding information into the machine in the first place.

The ability to read and write basic, understandable English is a necessary tool for societal living. The same Esquire article tells of a law firm that had to hire a new college graduate as a "writer." This employee "writes memos, expressing what the clients want, and replies back to them in clear English."

"The lawyers in the firm can summon boiler-plate paragraphs on contracts from the computer but have trouble expressing themselves in English sentences," the article explains.

The best aid in developing good writing skills is reading—good writers are also avid readers. And besides being a handy tool for getting through life, reading is a great method of escape.

While working at the Aspen Tree Book Store on weekends, I've noted with pleasure that a number of moms and dads will spend a half-hour or longer in the children's books section helping their kids select reading materials.

Nob Hill first grade teacher Jann Hickerson said about 10 to 15 out of 130 first graders are able to read when they start school here and that these have a definite advantage over the other students. She said she encourages parents to work on reading skills with their children and also to be seen reading themselves. Children tend to model the behavior of their parents and will find reading enjoyable if parents do, Hickerson said.

Upon learning last week that I'm to become an aunt for the first time next May (which made me feel more like a grandmother), I've already decided that a book or two will be among the gifts lavished upon the new addition to the family. I can just picture the little one (in a few years) scrambling up on my sister's lap begging her to read aloud the modern day counterpart to Dick and Jane—just one more time.

And undoubtedly the little one will grow up to become a published writer just like Aunt Barby.

You know about THE EARNING ACCOUNT it's the interest earning checking account.

Now, let's talk about THE EARNING ACCOUNT with a little something Extra. Some might call it a (SWEEP ACCOUNT) but we call it

THE EXTRA EARNING ACCOUNT

With this account you earn extra interest on your money but still have full use of your money - there are no restrictions. Here's how it works.

1. YOU DEPOSIT to your checking account just as you always have.
2. YOU WRITE CHECKS up to the total funds you have on deposit just as you always have.
3. WE LOOK AT EVERY BALANCE every afternoon and transfer everything in your account over $1500 into a high interest, special repurchase agreement. We call this $1500 the Trigger Balance.
4. WE CONTINUE TO PAY you the normal 5 1/4% compound interest on your checking account balance (everything up to the Trigger Balance).
5. WE PAY you simple interest equal to the six month Treasury Bill auction rate on those extra dollars over the Trigger Balance we've moved to your special repurchase agreement.
6. Should you write checks in any one day that exceed the $1500 Trigger Balance, we simply transfer funds back to your checking account from your special repurchase agreement.

Your special repurchase agreement is not insured by the FSLIC. All Funds on deposit in your account below the $1500 Trigger Balance are insured by the FSLIC, your funds in this special repurchase account are backed by securities of the United States Government or its Agencies and by the financial strength of Chaves County Savings and Loan Association.

It's just as simple as that.

Your checking account works just like it always has under the same terms and conditions, BUT - - you get something EXTRA! (A higher interest yield.)

Roeder retraces early surveys

One of the most interesting facets of his job, according to Fred Roeder, registered land surveyor in charge of land line locations for Lincoln National Forest, is that of retracing of the early surveys that were made in the Sacramento and Guadalupe Mountains. The original surveys on the Lincoln were made between 1866 and 1900. The Guadalupe were done in the 1920s. By using the field notes made by the early surveyors, Fred and his crew literally "follow the footsteps" of the original surveyors.

The trail begins with a records search which produces the original survey information as shown in field notes and on the official plat. These are on file in Santa Fe. The Lincoln has obtained copies of the original notes and maintains extensive files on the records that pertain to the Forest. Fred commented, "Rarely do we have to go back to Santa Fe for additional information."

The early surveyors were required to have their field notes notarized, or sworn to by an oath before a Notary Public that the survey had been faithfully executed. Fred has a copy of such an affidavit that was notarized in 1867 by Lawrence G. Murphy of Lincoln County fame, possibly over the counter of the famous L. G. Murphy & Co. store and saloon.

Many of the original settlers helped the surveyors survey their land, and their names appear in the field notes or on the plats. Descriptions of these homesteads appear in the surveyor's notes, showing who lived where, and also showing roads, springs, gardens, and fields.

References to the weather are also found. A surveyor who had to quit because of a storm on July 19, 1902, made this comment: "Because of excessive rains, I abandoned this survey..." and so we know what the weather was like about 80 years ago.

The most challenging and most important aspect of the retracement is the work that goes into recovering the original corners. Early surveys were monumented with marked stones. Many of the corners established by the original surveys have been obliterated, mostly due to human activities; and Mother Nature helped too. Usually within 100 feet of a corner, two or more witness trees were blazed and inscribed. Some of these have fallen down or have been cut, but many of them, mostly juniper, are still found. Points set in 1866 are still evident near old Lincoln town.

There have been some misunderstandings and problems recently concerning boundaries of the Lincoln and private property lines. Fred explained, "We are not changing or undoing original surveys," and he emphasized that "no deed description has ever been changed because of Forest survey activity." He noted that the Forest does few surveys as a matter of routine; the surveys are mostly done to define the lands managed by the Forest Service prior to some activity like fencing, right-of-way acquisitions, or timber sales. If a private landowner plans to have his land surveyed and it borders the Lincoln Forest, forest personnel will cooperate and can help reduce the cost of a private survey by assisting in the corner search and by making records available, including aerial photographs. Land owners will always be contacted prior to any survey activity if it affects their boundary.

Wilfried (Fred) Roeder, Lincoln Forest's land surveyor, has been licensed in New Mexico since 1968 and has over 25 years surveying experience. He enjoys being outdoors in the woods and has a deep interest in the historical side of surveying. Also, he feels that he is achieving something of value for future generations.

There are a total of 1,735 miles of boundary on Lincoln National Forest. About 500 miles have been retraced. It is estimated that if 75 miles of Forest boundary are retraced annually, the Lincoln boundary will be reestablished by the year 2000. Fred may not be surveying for the Lincoln by then, but some other surveyor will find monuments he has set, marked with his license number, while reestablishing the work of the first surveyors on the Lincoln over 100 years ago.

Bosque del Apache center funded

Senator Pete Domenici announced Wednesday that funding will be provided to finance construction of a visitor's center at the Bosque del Apache National Wildlife Refuge near Socorro.

Domenici said $430,000 will be reprogrammed within the Department of the Interior to pay for the facility, 90 miles south of Albuquerque on the banks of the Rio Grande.

The center will be 4,800 square feet and will include an office complex, vestibule and numerous exhibits.

The present visitor's facility is a small brochure booth at the tour loop entrance at the refuge. It was constructed by the Civilian Conservation Corps 40 years ago and has come to be grossly inadequate for accommodating employees and visitors.

The refuge is the winter home of thousands of ducks, geese, and other endangered whooping cranes and other visible wildlife species.

Each year, visitors from 40 states least a half-dozen foreign countries visit the site.

"If recent trends continue, the refuge can expect its visitor base to increase almost 50 percent between 1982 and 1990."

northeast United States and eastern Canada. This is by far the most severely affected, although lower eastern areas also receive some.

What can be done about it? Burning coal with a lower sulfur content will certainly help. Some utilities and industries are already doing so. Installing scrubbers on the smoke stacks can also eliminate large portions of these pollutants. Again, some have already done so, but they are quite expensive. Legislation is constantly being introduced to meet the problem, but maybe it isn't moving fast enough. The answer is simply to reduce the amount of these emissions through whatever means we have. Arriving at that point will take a lot of work and money, but we cannot afford to sit idly by.

There are good reasons for parking spaces for handicapped

Not a parking place in sight, you're in a hurry, and it looks like it might rain. Well, there's an empty spot right in front of the supermarket. You pull into it, run into the store, take care of your business, and you're back in your car as the first raindrops hit your windshield.

You look into your rearview mirror as you get ready to back out of your parking spot, and you notice someone starting the trek from the far corner of the parking lot in a wheelchair. This prompts you to check. And sure enough, there's a sign with one of those little wheelchair symbols right in front of the parking place you used.

Embarrassed, you pull out quickly and drive away. Imagining the person in the wheelchair struggling back across that lot in the rain with a bag or two of groceries, you feel like the biggest heel in the world.

You make up your mind you'll never use a "handicapped-only" parking place again in your life. After that humbling experience, you probably won't... unless, someday, you need handicapped parking yourself.

Most people who don't need handicapped parking places — but occasionally use them anyway — have never had an experience like this. Perhaps they don't even understand why handicapped people require special places to park their cars. There are even a few odd souls in the world who resent what they see as a "special privilege" for disabled people.

A handicapped parking place isn't a special privilege, though, for a disabled person. It's not even a convenience. It's a necessity.

Before I explain why that's so, let me stress that the Disabled American Veterans is not asking for sympathy. Handicapped people don't want or need any pity. But they do want a little understanding about things like handicapped parking zones.

So, why are signs with that little wheelchair figure—the international access symbol—used to reserve the best spots in many parking lots?

First of all, people whose disabilities make it tough for them to get around—who have "mobility impairments"—need to park close to where they want to go. It may be a pain in the neck for an able-bodied person to walk a much longer distance with a loaded shopping bag in each hand. But think about someone carrying a heavy load over that same distance on artificial legs. That can cause serious pain, perhaps even bleeding. And a person wearing prosthetic legs is more susceptible to falling than an able-bodied person.

Second, people with wheelchairs, walkers, leg braces or artificial limbs need ramped curbs near their parking places so they can get to the sidewalk. Just as very few able-bodied people have the physical prowess of a football superstar, very few handicapped people are like the wheelchair athletes you've seen on television or read about in magazines.

They don't "pop wheelies" with their chairs, pole vault with their crutches, or skip over obstacles with their canes.

Third, you can't squeeze your car in right next to another car in a tight parking spot if you have to juggle a wheelchair out of the backseat and set it up on the ground before leaving your car. You need room alongside your automobile to get all that done. People with crutches, walkers and similar devices need that room too.

That's why handicapped parking places are set up with extra space on either side of the automobile. When someone parks too close to a wheelchair-bound person's car, the person in the wheelchair could be stuck until the other driver returns. The same holds true for those who use walkers, crutches, prosthetic legs, and other mobility aids.

Fourth, there are safety considerations. People who suffer mobility impairments cannot move as quickly as able-bodied people. They can't just jump out of the paths of negligent parking lot drivers. Nor can they avoid other hazards as easily as able-bodied pedestrians.

Finally, mobility-impaired people are stuck with their automobiles as their only form of transportation, and they have to get around just like everyone else. They have to go to the store. They need entertainment, social life, and everything else that all of us need.

They don't want to be prisoners in their own homes any more than you would want to be. But they can't just get up and walk any place they want to go. Further, nearly all bus and subway systems, regardless of the law, are not set up to accommodate people who can't walk up steps.

Handicapped people need their cars, and they need specially adapted parking places when they get where they're going.

I come from New York City, where parking can be a trying experience for anyone. Competition for an open parking spot where I live can be as grueling as the challenge for a world-class sporting title. But I've seen nondisabled people using parking spots reserved for the handicapped in other towns and cities all over the United States.

That's why the Disabled American Veterans (DAV) has designated October as Handicapped Parking Awareness Month. And the DAV has asked governors and mayors across the country to support this educational effort by proclamation of Handicapped Parking Awareness Month in their states and cities.

We hope you'll catch the DAV public service announcements we've sent to 680 television stations and 5,200 radio stations across the country. And you may see disabled veterans in your neighborhood, placing reminders on the windshields of cars parked in handicapped parking places when they aren't properly identified as cars driven by disabled people.

Again, the DAV is not asking anyone to feel sorry for disabled veterans and other handicapped people. We're simply asking for some thoughtfulness and courtesy.

Handicapped parking places are for handicapped people. Please—don't put yourself in their place.

By using the field notes made by the early surveyors, Fred and his crew literally "follow the footsteps" of the original surveyors.

The trail begins with a records search

which produces the original survey information as shown in field notes and on the official plat. These are on file in Santa Fe. The Lincoln has obtained copies of the original notes and maintains extensive files on the records that pertain to the Forest. Fred commented, "Rarely do we have to go back to Santa Fe for additional information."

The early surveyors were required to have their field notes notarized, or sworn to by an oath before a Notary Public that the survey had been faithfully executed. Fred has a copy of such an affidavit that was notarized in 1867 by Lawrence G. Murphy of Lincoln County fame, possibly over the counter of the famous L. G. Murphy & Co. store and saloon.

Many of the original settlers helped the surveyors survey their land, and their names appear in the field notes or on the plats. Descriptions of these homesteads appear in the surveyor's notes, showing who lived where, and also showing roads, springs, gardens, and fields.

References to the weather are also found. A surveyor who had to quit because of a storm on July 19, 1902, made this comment: "Because of excessive rains, I abandoned this survey..." and so we know what the weather was like about 80 years ago.

The most challenging and most important aspect of the retracement is the work that goes into recovering the original corners. Early surveys were monumented with marked stones. Many of the corners established by the original surveys have been obliterated, mostly due to human activities, and Mother Nature helped too. Usually within 100 feet of a corner, two or more witness trees were blazed and inscribed. Some of these have fallen down or have been cut, but many of them, mostly juniper, are still found. Points set in 1866 are still evident near old Lincoln town.

There have been some misunderstandings and problems recently concerning boundaries of the Lincoln and private property lines. Fred explained, "We are not changing or undoing original surveys," and he emphasized that "no deed description has ever been changed because of Forest survey activity." He noted that the Forest does few surveys as a matter of routine; the surveys are mostly done to define the lands managed by the Forest Service prior to some activity like fencing, right-of-way acquisitions, or timber sales. If a private landowner plans to have his land surveyed and it borders the Lincoln Forest, forest personnel will cooperate and can help reduce the cost of a private survey by assisting in the corner search and by making records available, including aerial photographs. Land owners will always be contacted prior to any survey activity if it affects their boundary.

Wilfried (Fred) Roeder, Lincoln Forest's land surveyor, has been located in New Mexico since 1968 and has over 25 years surveying experience. He enjoys being outdoors in the woods and has a deep interest in the historical side of surveying. Also, he feels that he is achieving something of value for future generations.

There are a total of 1,735 miles of boundary on Lincoln National Forest. About 500 miles have been retraced. It is estimated that if 75 miles of Forest boundary are retraced annually, the Lincoln boundary will be reestablished by the year 2000. Fred may not be surveying for the Lincoln by then, but some other surveyor will find monuments he has set, marked with his license number, while reestablishing the work of the first surveyors on the Lincoln over 100 years ago.

Bosque del Apache center funded

Senator Pete Domenici announced Wednesday that funding will be provided to finance construction of a visitor's center at the Bosque del Apache National Wildlife Refuge near Socorro.

Domenici said $430,000 will be reprogrammed within the Department of the Interior to pay for the facility, 90 miles south of Albuquerque on the banks of the Rio Grande.

The center will be 4,800 square feet and will include an office complex, vestibule and numerous exhibits.

The present visitor's facility is a small brochure booth at the tour loop entrance at the refuge. It was constructed by the Civilian Conservation Corps 40 years ago and has come to be grossly inadequate for accommodating employees and visitors.

The refuge is the winter home for thousands of ducks, geese, sandhill cranes, the endangered whooping crane and many other visible wildlife species.

Each year, visitors from 40 states and at least a half-dozen foreign countries visit the site.

"If recent trends continue, the refuge can expect its visitor flow to increase almost 50 percent between now and 1990," said Domenici.

"The new visitors' center is desperately needed to handle this expected growth, as well as to adequately inform the public."

The money for the project will be made available by reprogramming funds from the Interior Department. No congressional legislation will be necessary.

Wilderness Wisdom

with Wayne Calloway

Dear Wayne — The term "acid rain" is popping up quite often these days, and reportedly it has a lethal effect on fish. Could you elaborate on just what acid rain is and what can be done about it? Jerry L., New York

Dear Jerry — As the name implies, acid rain is rainfall that is much higher in acid content than what is considered normal. Such rainfall gradually increases the acidity of lakes to a point where fish cannot survive. In some cases aquatic plants and insects have also been killed. Most species of fish cannot survive when the pH of water dips below 5.0.

The pH scale runs from 0 to 14, with 7.0 considered neutral. Water above 7.0 is alkaline, below that it is acid. Few lakes have waters that are exactly 7.0 (neutral). Fish can tolerate water that is moderately acid or alkaline, in fact, most prefer some degree one way or the other. To understand the magnitude of the pH changes, one must know that it is a logarithmic scale. Each whole number change represents a difference of ten times. Water that is 6.0 is ten times more acid than that of 7.0.

So, what is acid rain? It is rainfall (or snow) that contains higher than normal amounts of sulfuric or nitric acid. These acids form in the atmosphere from sulfur dioxide or nitrogen oxide gases. The gases are released from industrial plants, automobiles and other transportation. Perhaps electric generating plants are the greatest contributors of sulfur dioxide, while automobiles generate the largest portion of nitrogen oxide.

Most of the problem seems to come from industrial and electric generating plants located in the central and midwest regions. The natural west to east air currents cause the acid rains to dump over the northeast United States and eastern Canada. This is by far the most severely affected, although lower eastern areas also receive some.

What can be done about it? Burning coal with a lower sulfur content will certainly help. Some utilities and industries are already doing so. Installing scrubbers on the smoke stacks can also eliminate large portions of these pollutants. Again, some have already done so, but they are quite expensive. Legislation is constantly being introduced to meet the problem, but maybe it isn't moving fast enough. The answer is simply to reduce the amount of these emissions through whatever means we have. Arriving at that point will take a lot of work and money, but we cannot afford to sit idly by.

There are good reasons for parking spaces for handicapped

Not a parking place in sight, you're in a hurry, and it looks like it might rain. Wait. There's an empty spot right in front of the supermarket. You pull into it, run into the store, take care of your business, and you're back in your car as the first raindrops hit your windshield.

You look into your rearview mirror as you get ready to back out of your parking spot, and you notice someone starting the trek from the far corner of the parking lot in a wheelchair. This prompts you to check. And sure enough, there's a sign with one of those little wheelchair symbols right in front of the parking place you used.

Embarrassed, you pull out quickly and drive away. Imagining the person in the wheelchair struggling back across that lot in the rain with a bag or two of groceries, you feel like the biggest heel in the world.

You make up your mind you'll never use a "handicapped-only" parking place again in your life. After that humbling experience, you probably won't... unless, someday, you need handicapped parking yourself.

Most people who don't need handicapped parking places — but occasionally use them anyway — have never had an experience like this. Perhaps they don't even understand why handicapped people require special places to park their cars. There are even a few odd souls in the world who resent what they see as a "special privilege" for disabled people.

A handicapped parking place isn't a special privilege, though, for a disabled person. It's not even a convenience. It's a necessity.

Before I explain why that's so, let me stress that the Disabled American Veterans is not asking for sympathy. Handicapped people don't want or need any pity. But they do want a little understanding about things like handicapped parking zones.

So, why are signs with that little wheelchair figure—the international access symbol—used to reserve the best spots in many parking lots?

First of all, people whose disabilities make it tough for them to get around—who have "mobility impairments"—need to park close to where they want to go. It may be a pain in the neck for an able-bodied person to walk a much longer distance with a loaded shopping bag in each hand. But think about someone carrying a heavy load over that same distance on artificial legs. That can cause serious pain, perhaps even bleeding. And a person wearing prosthetic legs is more susceptible to falling than an able-bodied person.

Second, people with wheelchairs, walkers, leg braces or artificial limbs need ramped curbs near their parking places so they can get to the sidewalk. Just as very few able-bodied people have the physical prowess of a football superstar, very few handicapped people are like the wheelchair athletes you've seen on television or read about in magazines.

They don't "pop wheelies" with their chairs, pole vault with their crutches, or skip over obstacles with their canes.

Third, you can't squeeze your car in right next to another car in a tight parking spot if you have to juggle a wheelchair out of the backseat and set it up on the ground before leaving your car. You need room alongside your automobile to get all that done. People with crutches, walkers and similar devices need that room too.

That's why handicapped parking places are set up with extra space on either side of the automobile. When someone parks too close to a wheelchair-bound person's car, the person in the wheelchair could be stuck until the other driver returns. The same holds true for those who use walkers, crutches, prosthetic legs, and other mobility aids.

Fourth, there are safety considerations. People who suffer mobility impairments cannot move as quickly as able-bodied people. They can't just jump out of the paths of negligent parking lot drivers. Nor can they avoid other hazards as easily as able-bodied pedestrians.

Finally, mobility-impaired people are stuck with their automobiles as their only form of transportation, and they have to get around just like everyone else. They have to go to the store. They need entertainment, social life, and everything else that all of us need.

They don't want to be prisoners in their own homes any more than you would want to be. But they can't just get up and walk any place they want to go. Further, nearly all bus and subway systems, regardless of the law, are not set up to accommodate people who can't walk up steps.

Handicapped people need their cars, and they need specially adapted parking places when they get where they're going.

I come from New York City, where parking can be a trying experience for anyone. Competition for an open parking spot where I live can be as grueling as the challenge for a world-class sporting title. But I've seen nondisabled people using parking spots reserved for the handicapped in other towns and cities all over the United States.

That's why the Disabled American Veterans (DAV) has designated October as Handicapped Parking Awareness Month. And the DAV has asked governors and mayors across the country to support this educational effort by proclamation of Handicapped Parking Awareness Month in their states and cities.

We hope you'll catch the DAV public service announcements we've sent to 600 television stations and 5,200 radio stations across the country. And you may see disabled veterans in your neighborhood, placing reminders on the windshields of cars parked in handicapped parking places when they aren't properly identified as cars driven by disabled people.

Again, the DAV is not asking anyone to feel sorry for disabled veterans and other handicapped people. We're simply asking for some thoughtfulness and courtesy.

Handicapped parking places are for handicapped people. Please—don't put yourself in their place.

JUST $8,500 FOR A LOT ON PAVING — Yes, and if you recognize a good deal when you see it you won't delay another day! All city utilities are a bonus.

ALTO VILLAGE LOTS — $8,000 to $18,000. For speculative buying or secluded location for that place you've always wanted to build. We have an excellent selection for you.

BUILDER SAYS SELL — Super, well built, no hidden cheap materials covered up with "cosmetics" to fool you on this 2 bedroom, 2 bath house. In town but secluded area offers you more for your money than most comparably priced properties on the market today.

RENTAL PROPERTY? — Ruidoso's continued record-breaking growth makes being a landlord one of today's soundest investments. We have several listings with exceptional rental potential. Maybe you could use a tax shelter.

COMMERCIAL LOTS ON SUDDERTH — Recent traffic count verifies this location is one of Ruidoso's most desirable. Highly visible from all directions, priced below appraisal. Let your imagination and creativity fly, have your own business on this choice commercial site!

NO CREAM PUFF BUT PRICED RIGHT! — Close to downtown, overlooks Ruidoso River but just outside city limits. $13,000.00 total price.

UNDER $10,000.00 — Another place that needs some (would you believe lots?) of work but it will keep you out of the rain. At this price you can sure afford to do your own fixing-up.

NEW AND IN ALTO VILLAGE — Different styles, floor plans and locations, but each of these homes enjoys memberships in Alto Village. We have several to choose from, one will surely meet your needs.

JAMES CANYON RANCH

An alpine ranch in one of New Mexico's most beautiful mountain areas. A very unusual situation. Ranch surrounds Cloudcroft running to Alamogordo and north to the Mascalero Reservation. 80 deeded acres, 34,000 USFS acres, 146 animal units year long. Deeded land has water rights and is surrounded by subdivisions. Enough grass, in our judgment, for twice the permit. Live in the city and ranch in paradise. Excellent access. $650,000.00.

The Silver Lining

BY DANIEL AGNEW STORM

Harlan Webb and Sally Harper United in Marriage

Harlan Webb and Sally Harper were united in marriage September twenty-three, in Roswell, with the Reverend Henry Hughes, retired minister of the Nazarene Church, in charge of services. The Reverend Hughes is Harlan's uncle, and has spent forty years in the ministry of the Nazarene Church. His ministry has taken him all over the United States.

On Saturday, a reception was held at the Glencoe home of the couple, beginning at one o'clock.

Many friends and neighbors came by to extend their best wishes to Harlan and Sally. Among those present was Harlan's son, Tim and his wife and children.

The Webb home was cheerful with many flowers in the yard; and a beautiful day added to the joy of the occasion.

We wish Harlan and Sally every happiness and all God's blessings.

Distance Running Is Autumn Feature

"If you can fill each Unforgiving minute of a mile With sixty seconds worth Of distance run, yours is the world And all that's in it. And what is more, You'll be a man, my son."

The beloved English poet, Rudyard Kipling, said a mouth-full in that last verse of his famous poem, "If." In this masterpiece, Kipling put a lot of "Ifs" that would put you in the class of a superman if you could live up to them.

Kipling's words came to mind as I realized that now during the clear sparkling days of Fall have arrived, that the Cross Country running season has begun in the high schools, colleges and clubs throughout our country.

We are at high point mentally, physically and spiritually during the days of Autumn; and it is fitting that this is the season of distance running.

Distance running is in a class by itself in athletics. In most other sports, the athlete has help from teammates. The boxer has help between rounds. The distance runner has no help out on the cross country course, except from God Himself, to Whom the runner frequently prays.

Out on the cross country course there are no cheering crowds to urge the runner on; and he is up against the most formidable of opponents — himself. He must fight constantly against the urge to slow down, and when the pains of exhaustion strike, to quit.

The Lessons And Rewards of Distance Running

Clyde Littlefield, the late and beloved track coach at the University of Texas used to tell those out for track:

"Fellows, if you get nothing else out of this, I want you to know what it means to be in condition." Here again, a great deal is said in few words.

You hear about athletes in many sports "going into training" that is, following a routine of exercises and rules of health to "get in shape."

Distance running demands from the human body and will everything that it can deliver — and more. Therefore the distance runner must bring his body, mind and spirit to as near perfection as possible. A long distance runner is "in condition" all his life; he can not let his body lapse back into second-rate health.

The great rewards of distance running are: the sense of high well-being that comes from perfect condition; the knowledge of how great a reserve we have within us; the pride of making a great effort; the great happiness that comes from a clean life; and many others.

The Distance Runner As Ancient Messenger

Long before television, radio, telegraph, pony express, messages were carried by distance runner. Our neighbors, the Apache Indians, sent messages by runners in days within the memory of many of us.

Does the distance runner of today dream that he is carrying a message — that he must keep on and fight exhaustion and finish the race as soon as he can? For some important reason?

When the pain in lungs and legs strikes, he keeps on until he gets his "second wind." Then the great reserves deep in his being come to his aid.

This then is the message: In the race of every day life, when the pains of adversity strike, then is the moment to keep on; and then our spiritual "second wind" will come to us and carry us through with flying colors.

New Mexico and Oil and Gas

Partners in Progress

What would New Mexico look like without the petroleum industry?

The oil and gas business takes up relatively little space on the vast New Mexico landscape. The 35,000 wells, 25,000 miles of pipelines, 46 gas plants, and 7 refineries in this state are almost invisible as far as most New Mexicans are concerned.

The structures and facilities which make these activities possible could disappear tomorrow and few of us would notice their absence. However, we might notice if our taxes were doubled, if our local schools were cut back to three days a week, or if we tried to run our pickups on pinon smoke.

Taxes: The State of New Mexico collected more than $1 billion last year in revenues related to the production of oil and gas. That kind of money would be hard to replace in our kind of economy.

Those revenues included about six different oil and gas taxes, as well as the bonuses, rentals and royalties from public lands, and the interest the State received from its investment of about $2 billion in permanent (savings) funds primarily derived from oil and gas activities.

That $1 billion did not include the large amounts of taxes which the State receives indirectly from the oil and gas industry, but which are difficult to measure: Gross receipts taxes on goods and services, corporate income and franchise taxes, property taxes, and the personal taxes paid by the thousands of people employed in the industry.

Education: About half the money your school receives for its operating budget comes from State assessments on oil and gas. (Although this production occurs in only a couple corners of the state, the revenues are distributed to all school districts. This money pays for teachers' salaries and textbooks in Raton and Lordsburg, as well as in Hobbs and Farmington... and in Santa Fe, Albuquerque, and Las Cruces, too.

Employment: There are an estimated 27,000 jobs involved in the extraction, processing, transportation, and marketing of petroleum and petroleum products in New Mexico. The loss of those pay checks would be a serious blow to public agencies and private businesses around the state, as well as to the people out of work.

Are New Mexico and the U.S. running out of oil and gas?

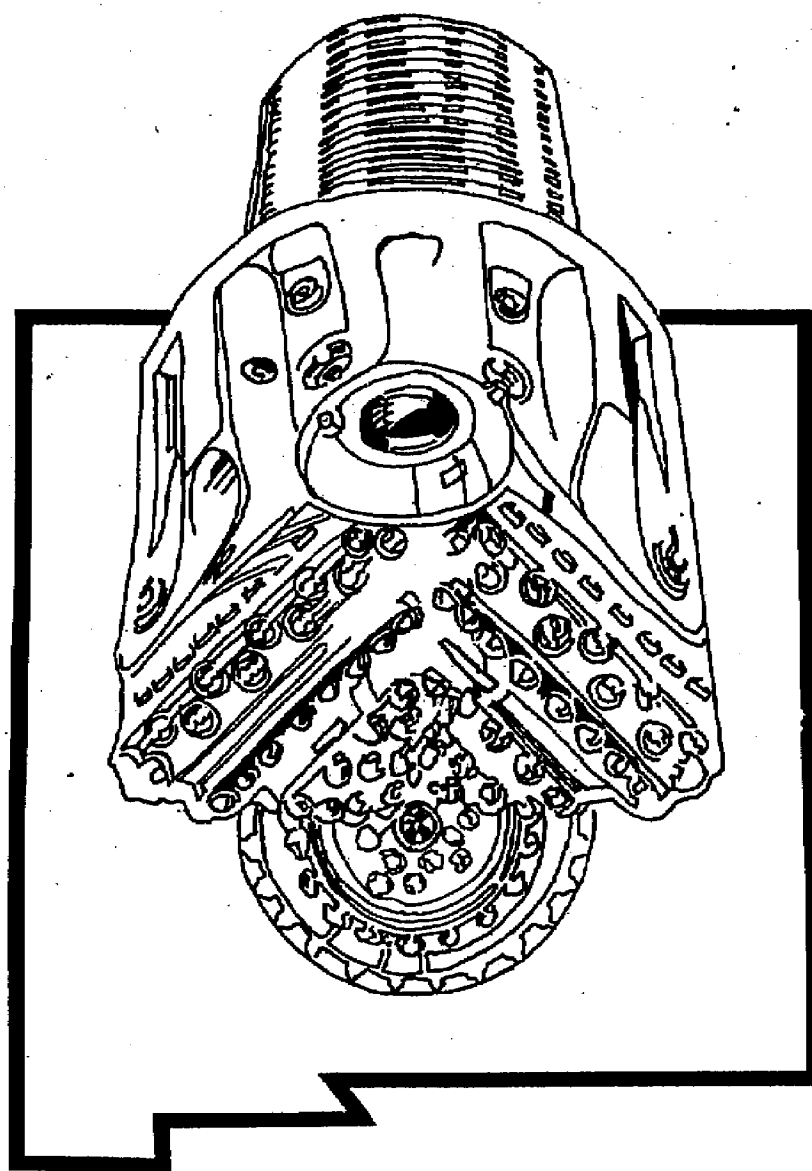

Yes and no. Crude oil and natural gas are finite natural resources which will be depleted eventually. However, it is possible to postpone the inevitable with adequate financing and technology. The petroleum industry has demonstrated it is able to discover new reserves and to extend the productivity of old wells when not crippled by unnecessary rules and regulations.

New Mexico has ranked 4th in the nation in the production of natural gas and 7th in crude oil for several years.

Although oil production has dropped steadily in New Mexico since 1969, the 1981 decline of 4.2 percent was the smallest in five years. Production this year may almost equal last year's 72 million barrels.

The amount of natural gas produced in New Mexico has gone down slightly since 1974. However, the 1981 figure of 1.118 trillion cubic feet was only 1.2 percent less than the prior year. Production may make a much sharper drop this year, not because reserves are drying up but because of current economic conditions affecting all business.

New Mexico is the 5th largest state in the nation in area with more than 77.7 million acres. The U.S. Geological Survey has classified about 84 percent of the state as prospective oil and gas lands—"areas where geologic conditions offer some possibility for the occurrence of oil and gas."

Since about 85 percent of the oil and gas produced in this state comes from public lands—State, Federal or Indian—it is very critical that producers have access to the exploration of these lands.

New Mexico producers drilled 2,727 wells in 1981, the highest number in the history of the state. However, drilling has declined this year because of the troubled economy.

Only eight of the New Mexico's 33 counties have a history of oil and gas production: Chaves, Eddy, Lea, and Roosevelt in the southeast, and McKinley, Rio Arriba, San Juan and Sandoval in the northwest. Mora produces a small quantity of gas, and Harding is expected to become a valuable source of carbon dioxide, which is used to coax additional production from old wells.

About 93 percent of the state's oil production and 98 percent of its natural gas come from four counties—Lea, Eddy, San Juan and Rio Arriba.

The proved reserves of New Mexico crude oil were estimated at 547 million barrels at the end of 1980. Absent new discoveries, that would be enough to last fewer than eight years under the present rate of production. It is important that every effort be made to find additional reserves in this state and throughout the country.

America's dependence on foreign oil has declined greatly since the early 1970s. Imported oil's share of our annual supply has dropped from about one-half to one-third in five years. That was the result of improved domestic production and this country's successful conservation efforts.

The U.S. is experiencing temporary oil and gas surpluses this year. It is believed the favorable oil situation could continue through this decade if the Middle East can avoid major military and political upheaval, and there are no drastic OPEC price changes.

What can we do to become more energy independent?

In the long run we must conserve and develop every energy resource we have—solar, geothermal, nuclear, synthetic fuel, coal, natural gas and oil. And, if we are going to make it through the next few years, we will have to make sure we don't run out of the last two—oil and gas.

Crude oil and natural gas supply about 70 percent of our nation's total energy needs. They will continue to be this country's most efficient and economical energy sources for the remainder of this decade and perhaps this century.

Not only do we need petroleum for transportation, heat and power, but for the more than 3,000 products made from oil and gas derivatives—including fertilizers, plastics, antibiotics, pesticides, paint, nylon, polyesters, furniture and computer parts.

We can become energy self-sufficient if we:

1. don't distort the energy market place by keeping price controls on natural gas,
2. don't divert money from energy exploration to political spending programs through excessive taxation,
3. don't put large areas of public lands off-limits to energy exploration and development.

The U.S. must adopt public land policies that recognize the rights of all Americans to share in the full benefits of this valuable resource. Oil and gas exploration and development can and do take place in a manner consistent with protection of the environment.

A competitive market is the best way to assure that consumers have adequate and reliable supplies of energy at reasonable prices.

Events following the President's decision last year to completely deregulate oil prices have demonstrated the benefits of permitting the American system to function. Oil production has increased. Consumption has declined. Imports have dropped. Gasoline prices have moderated. OPEC price power has been eroded.

Now another opportunity to improve this nation's energy situation is available. This one involves natural gas.

After the initiation of natural gas price controls in the mid-50s, exploration declined across the nation. The number of wells drilled in New Mexico dropped from a high of 2,205 in 1957 to a low of 814 in 1970.

New Mexico sustained incalculable damage during this period in lost jobs, taxes and general economic development. It was only after the Federal government began to loosen the price lid a bit that drilling began to really pick up. By last year the industry was breaking all records for the number of wells drilled in one year.

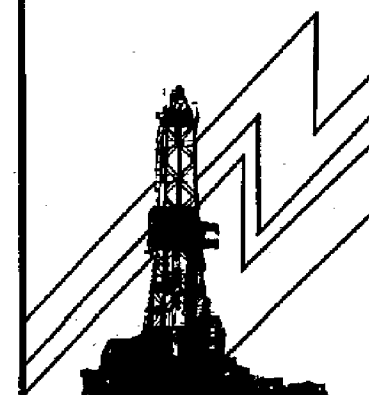

Drilling has declined this year because of economic disincentives such as burdensome government policies and a tight capital market. The oil and gas industry acts and reacts to economic stimuli in the same way businesses do.

Cooperation between industry and government, and public understanding of the industry will make our nation energy independent.

WELCOME TO ASPEN FESTIVAL '82

Ruidoso Motorcycle Festival has fun in store

If you know motorcycles or even if you don't, there should be plenty to catch your eye at the First Annual Ruidoso Motorcycle Festival. The latest in equipment; cherished out "dresser bikes;" gifts given away every hour; and crazy contests will all be a part of the festival Wednesday, September 29, through Saturday, October 2.

All the latest equipment will be shown by dealers for major companies at the trade show in the Chaparral Convention Center on Highway 70 at the west end of Ruidoso Downs from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. daily. There will also be riding leathers, jewelry, motorcycle parts and much more for sale at the show.

A little older than the dealers' models, but probably at least as shiny and fixed up fancier, the dresser bikes will be on display in the field next to Holiday Inn. Judges will be considering electrical systems, accessories, mechanical setup and general appearance to determine the best bikes in a variety of categories.

In addition to standard models, categories to be judged will include Best Dressed Chopper, Best Dressed Trailer Rig, Best Dressed Sidecar Rig and Best Night Light Display. People who enter these contests have put in hours and hours of work fixing up their bikes. The bikes will no doubt reflect their efforts and impress any who see them.

While the Trade Show and Dressed Bike Contests may be of more interest to those who ride and enjoy motorcycles, contests such as the Water Balance, Bite the Wiener and Blind Man Weave should provide entertainment and laughs for all.

The Water Balance is a sidecar event in which a half a cup of water is placed on the head of the passenger in the sidecar. He then trusts his driver to drive the motorcycle over three two-inch by six-inch planks and guide the wheel of the sidecar over a 10-inch by 18-inch plank without spilling any water.

Many of the teams won't make it, but no doubt they will all have their own special methods for getting over the obstacles.

Can you tell where you are going when you have your eyes closed? Or how far? In both the Blind Man Weave and Blind Man Distance Guess riders have to drive their bikes blindfolded.

In the Distance Guess the driver rides his motorcycle with a blindfold until he thinks he has traveled 50 feet. Starting with 100 points, two points are subtracted for every foot short he is and one point is subtracted for every foot long. If a driver goes too far and comes close to the crowd, an official blows a whistle disqualifying the driver.

For registrants in the festival, there will be many chances to win a variety of prizes. Two fully accessorized Hondamatic 450 motorcycles will be given away during the festival.

Over 150 contingency gifts, from free meals at local restaurants to a $2,500 gift certificate at Custom Dressers in Oklahoma City, will be given away. Drawings for these will be held at least once an hour throughout the festival.

Headquarters for the festival is the Holiday Inn on Highway 70, near the "Y." Registration is in the La Paz Room. The hospitality tent or "tire kicking room" is in the field next to the Inn. Many of the contests are taking place in the same field.

Motocross race new Aspen Festival event

Motocross is coming to Ruidoso in a big way.

The first High Country Motocross Championships will be held Sunday, October 3, at Eagle Creek Ski Area.

The ski area is located one-half mile west on Ski Run Road off Highway 37 north.

About 400 to 500 riders from all over the Southwest are expected to participate in the competition. Races are scheduled to begin at 9 a.m.

The competition will all be run in one day. There will be 125cc, 250cc and open bike classes.

The 125cc and 250cc bike classifications will have novice, intermediate and expert competition. The open class will have intermediate and expert competition. At least 50 riders are expected to compete in each race.

Lots of obstacles and jumps on the track, which some of the riders may not be used to, should make for tough competition. The course will also be longer than most motocross tracks—around two-and-one-half miles in total distance.

Riders will run two races in their division, with the combined score determining the final winners.

There will be a $1,200 total purse for the three expert classes. Trophies will be given out to the first, second and third place finishers for the intermediate and novice races.

Joe Worthen, one of the race's organizers, thinks the October 3 competition is a hint of better things to come.

"We hope to make this an annual affair," he said. "We're planning to raise money from this event to help build our own track. We'd like to stage a pro event next March or April."

Worthen and Al McChesney, a local architect, are co-partners in High Country Productions Limited, the sponsor of the motocross races.

than one engine. Add $1,100 for each tire, $2,000 to $3,000 for the best gear boxes, and innumerable hours spent building them and you have quite an investment, as well as a different breed of machine.

The National Tractor Pullers Association (NTPA) will be overseeing the tractor pull at the old drive-in across from Ruidoso Downs Race Track October 9 and 10. They have disked, watered and packed the 300-foot by 50-foot track to make it as hard as possible.

All the machines pulling are required to have a variety of safety features. These include approved clutches and flywheels and kill switches that stop the motors should the tractors and sleds break apart.

So if you want to see some pretty amazing machines performing at their peak capacities from start to finish, head down to the Tractor Pull October 9 and 10.

Unexpected to be expected at Mule Races

"You never know what a mule is going to do," said Melvin Means of the Ruidoso Downs Mule Skinners. There will be close to 450 of those long-eared creatures competing in a wide and wild variety of mule races Thursday, October 7, through Sunday, October 10.

Means says mules are smarter than horses and a lot more stubborn.

"A mule has a mind of his own," he explained. "Racing around the track at Ruidoso Downs, it's not sure what will happen once they get around the far side. They might just decide to abandon the race and head for the barn. One time a mule took a shortcut, jumped the fence and ran across the infield to the finish line."

The mules are well trained, however. When they run well they can run surprisingly fast. Mules have times in races only two or three seconds slower than quarter horses.

The owners and riders take racing seriously, travelling on a circuit that takes them to towns around the Southwest. The races at Ruidoso Downs will draw mules and riders from all over the United States and Canada to compete for total purses estimated at $55,000.

In addition to standard races of an eighth of a mile to five-and-a-half furlongs, there will be numerous less conventional races that should provide plenty of thrills and laughs. The Bloomer Race on Sunday will feature riders climbing into bloomers racing down the track, giving the bloomers to another rider who has to put them on and ride back to the starting line, if the mule will stand for all this quick changing.

There will be chariot races Friday, Saturday and Sunday with a variety of homemade and decorated chariots pulled by two mules. Some of the charioteers have even been known to dress in uniforms of the original Roman racers.

The Balloon Bust Race will be held Thursday. In that race riders will urge their mules past a course of poles holding balloons that the riders must pop as they ride by. What the mules will think of this is anybody's guess. The Coon Jump, Diaper Race, Pole Bending and plenty of other races should be equally as fun. "We've had almost everything happen," said Means.

State Chili Cookoff promises hot time for all

If you want to compete in the New Mexico State Chili Cookoff in Ruidoso Downs (October 9, you need to be pretty familiar with the five pages of rules put out by the Chili Appreciation Society International (CASI).

At the same time, you had better have a good sense of humor to listen to the continuous commentary by emcee Tex Scofield and the carrying on of fellow chili cooks vying for showmanship awards.

The CASI rules specify what can be used in the chili, where it is to be cooked, what you can and cannot do as part of the showmanship contest, and especially how the chili is to be judged.

CASI uses Frank X. Tolbert's Secret Judging system, which determines a precise format for judging as well as establishing criteria in the areas of aroma, color, taste, consistency, aftertaste and more. Violations of these rules can result in official probation published in the Goat Gap Gazette and disqualification from the World Championship Cookoff in Terlingua, Texas.

For all the seriousness of the chili judging, there will be plenty of laughter throughout the cooking area. Tex Scofield, "the official mouth of the chili world," will be on hand to make sure of that.

Glen Tucker of the San Antonio Light called Scofield "a king in an activity cluttered with clowns." Rick Smith wrote in the Austin American Statesman that Scofield is "a garrulous orator of prodigious adroitness, a verbal virtuoso with no peer ... with a non-stop barrage of words that would have left Mr. Webster himself thumbing through a pocket dictionary."

In addition to Scofield, there will be a host of chili cooks competing for the Showmanship Awards during the three hours they cook the chili. From these chiliheads you can expect almost anything short of amplification or shooting guns, which are outlawed by CASI.

Many of the competitors decorate their booths with a Western theme. Their booths may have chilis or wagon wheels hanging in their booths and some have built full Western store fronts for their booths. Others may have rattlesnake skins or rabbit carcasses they swear are key ingredients in their prize-winning chili.

Still others have been known to have women in see-through blouses help cook the chili. The judges for showmanship will be anonymous, so the cooks will have to keep up a non-stop show the whole time.

Whether or not you are a true chilihead, it is bound to be a fine day out at the parking area west of Ruidoso Downs Race Track. As specified by the rules, all the cooking will be done outside in the open air.

There should be 50 to 75 teams cooking over portable stoves at their booths. Live music will be played during the day, and beer, soft drinks and sandwiches will be available.

The cooks are not allowed to sell their chili. But once the judges have taken their samples to the judging tables, it is customary for chili cooks to share their culinary concoctions with the hungry crowd.

Aspen Festival Queen captivates judges

"We were all captivated," said Ellen Miller, one of the judges who chose Marian Cadena, 17, Queen of Aspen Festival '82. Indeed, the pretty young lady can charm you easily with her enthusiasm and bright smile.

"I like to be friendly. I guess it's my nature," said Marian. Her friendliness comes from growing up in small towns, she believes, and her nature will keep her out of the big cities.

"I am happy in small towns ... a country mouse, I guess," said Marian.

Here in Ruidoso she is free to enjoy the people and the countryside. She likes to hike in many areas of the Lincoln National Forest and rattled off a list of mountains she has climbed near Ruidoso.

Another of her favorite activities is going to Ruidoso Downs Race Track. "I like to go to the races and look at people. There is such a variety," said Marian.

She also likes to cook. She likes spicy food, but, she added, "I make a mean chocolate chip cookie." She recently made a batch of those mean cookies for Dr. Paul Whitwam on his birthday.

Marian works as an office assistant for Whitwam afternoons and attends Ruidoso High School in the mornings as a part of a work study program.

It was Whitwam and workmate Mary Lou Moore who convinced her to enter the contest for the Aspen Festival Queen. She was not too enthusiastic at first, thinking she had no chance to win, but was eventually convinced to enter the contest.

"They bribed me. They bought me a new dress," she said with a laugh.

Marian performs a variety of tasks at surgeon Whitwam's office, from filing patients' folders to doing prep work for small operations. She is excited about all that she has learned and hopes to attend college next year to study either nursing or counseling.

With the busy schedule of work and school Marian worries that she might become too serious. But that is doubtful, according to friends. Moore explained, "She's just real bubbly. She's crazy."

Growing sport of tractor pulling requires

"No other sport makes use of brute horsepower like tractor pulling," wrote professor George Foster in a recent issue of Pulling Power magazine.

Tractor pulling, relatively new to the Southwest, is attracting increasingly large crowds. People come out to see extraorinary examples of mechanical excellence and creativity in the form of the highly modified tractors and four-wheel-drive pickups. The machines compete against each other, gravity and friction.

For those who don't know, tractor pulling is not four burly farmers trying to pull a tractor. It is souped-up tractors and pickups pulling a sled loaded with 40,000 pounds of weight down a track as far as possible until spinning out or stalling. The winners are the ones who pull the sled the furthest down the track.

The sled is a complex mechanism that has a pan which rides flat on the track, and a trailer on wheels. When the pull begins, the weight is centered over the trailer, allowing the tractor to get a start. As the tractor progresses down the track, the weight shifts to the pan, creating a much heavier drag on the tractor.

The weight is shifted from trailer to pan using a transmission with 16 to 20 possible speeds of weight shift, depending upon the weight class of the tractor pulling and the conditions of the track.

There is one man who is responsible for the setting of the transmission on the sled. He can make all the difference in a race. If he adjusts the gears on the sled correctly, spectators get to see longer pulls with two or three tractors or pickups pulling the complete length of the 300-foot track. Then the contest is decided by a "pull off" between the tractors that completed the full pull.

Let's you think you can just hop down to the track with the tractor or pickup you use every day, be warned that these rigs out at the pull bear the same resemblance to your wheels as Richard Petty's car does to an old Dodge Dart.

The engines in these machines often deliver up to 1,200 horsepower and run at about 6,500 to 8,500 rpm. In spite of the tremendous work the engines do, most of them do not even use any water for cooling. They are all supercharged to force air and alcohol into the cylinders.

An engine alone can cost $8,000 to $18,000. The biggest pullers have more

Antique auto festival to entertain car lovers

Antique auto restoring is a hobby that brings people of all backgrounds together. During the Antique Auto Festival (Saturday and Sunday, October 9 and 10), Pat Newell, promoter of the event, believes it will be common to see gas pump jockeys sitting with lawyers "bench racing" earnestly.

Bench racing, Newell says, is talking about antique autos, the shows and all the efforts and adventures owners of the antique cars have had buying and restoring them.

Newell believes it is the common bond provided by the purchase and restoration of these antique autos that brings together people from such different walks of life. They have experienced the same joys and frustrations and share a common language.

The 30 or more antique (25 years or older) autos that will be visible around town all have histories the owners will gladly tell you. Simply finding the cars and buying them can provide stories to tell. It is not uncommon to see an old wreck in a field only to find out that it is a rare and valuable car—or will be once it is restored.

On the other hand, Newell tells of a lady who had owned and driven a 1951 Ford since 1952 but could not get a driver's license anymore and sold the car to him. There are also many antique auto auctions where the cars are bought and sold, although not at the price one might get from the farmer who has one rusting out in his field.

Restoring the cars is a process that can take years and provide hours of bench racing material. Many of the owners do much of their own work.

Newell believes much of the joy of owning a fine antique auto is in doing the restoring work oneself, even if it does take three times as long for the amateur to do it as a paid professional. Many an owner will show with pride the upholstery, paint job or machine work he or she has done on a car.

Any owner will also have a story of the painstaking search undertaken to find one elusive part for a car. They may have combed catalogue upon catalogue full of parts for antique cars finding nothing, only to stumble upon the rear tail reflector at the bottom of a pile in a swap meet.

For many people antique autos are more than just a hobby. As Newell says, "It is a way of life with us." Newell owns six antique cars and says that chances are that if a person has one antique car at a show he has another at home that he is restoring. Newell's whole family is involved. His children often come home and excitedly tell him about some "vintage tin" they saw. Or they are the first to point out an antique car when the family is driving together.

Newell's oldest son has taken up the hobby himself and recently bought a 1935 Ford. Newell believes many families are like his and that is why the antique auto festival will be a family-oriented event.

Registration for the festival will be at School House Park from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday, October 8, and from 8 to 9 Saturday morning. Many of the autos will be in the parade Saturday morning.

Lunch is planned for the festival registrants with games in the afternoon. Sunday will be the Show N Shine, when all the cars and their owners will be on display at School House Park. Judging in many categories will be done during the Show N Shine and awards presented at about 3:30 that afternoon.

Mule races began for the fun of it

This year's mule races may have the largest purse in the United States, but they have always been big. When Ray Reed staged the first Mule-O-Rama in 1976 he offered the biggest purse in mule racing history.

Reed insists, however, that money was not the main attraction. Fun is what it was all about.

"The whole damn thing was laughter," he said recently while looking through a scrapbook of those first races.

The "hide races," with a mule and rider towing a person on a cow hide, provided plenty of laughter. The non-winners races, El Macho Juerte and polebending races were all meant for fun.

Reed was working in the promotional department at Ruidoso Downs Race Track at the time he organized the first Mule-O-Rama. He had been staging single mule races as an added attraction to the horse races since the mid-sixties. In 1976, he went to the Ruidoso Chamber of Commerce with the idea of running two full days of mule races in the fall when the track was closed.

Chamber manager Richard Cothron liked the idea and Reed

"We liked each other. We were the same kind of people — go, go, go," said Reed. The Chamber gave Reed the go-ahead to organize the event although many in town thought it was a crazy idea.

Reed garnered $10,000 from a beer company to add to the purse for the races and eventually produced a $25,000 purse.

Atmosphere, however, what was what he was really after. He arranged to run the races at Gateway Meadows, a much more open site than the Ruidoso Downs Race Track. Around the track he and friends constructed aspen pole fences to create a rustic feeling.

He organized a dinner cooked at a chuckwagon that had been built in 1900 and had actually fed cowboys on the range in earlier years. They cooked 1,400 pounds of beef, hundreds of sourdough biscuits and a barrel full of beans.

In addition to food and races, Reed produced a fiddling contest that attracted some of the hottest fiddlers in the country and paid more money than the world championship contest in Oregon.

Reed organized the event "so you could race mules all day and dance and sing at night," he said.

There were 30 races and crowds of 2,000 people each day who viewed those races. The races this year will attract more people and pay more money but Reed would argue with you whether they will be any more fun.

"We used to have a lot of fun," he remembered.

First Inn of the Mountain Gods Pro-Am Golf

The first Inn of the Mountain Gods Pro-Am Golf Tournament will have celebrities as well as top touring professional golfers among its participants.

Monday, October 11, is the day.

Among the celebrities scheduled to compete are "Dandy" Don Meredith, the former Dallas Cowboy quarterback and presently color man on ABC-TV's Monday Night Football, and actor Dale Robertson.

Meredith will participate in the tournament unless some unexpected development with regards to the Monday night National Football League game forces him to withdraw.

Robertson starred on the television series "Wells Fargo" and will be in a new role on the popular "Dallas" television series this fall.

There are presently 12 professional golfers scheduled to compete in the tournament. They are John Mahaffey, George Archer, Dave Hill, Lon Hinkle, Bob Murphy, Charles Coody, Fuzzy Zoeller, Brad Bryant, Tom Purtzer, Mark Hayes, Lou Graham and Dave Eichelberger.

Zoeller, Archer and Coody have each won a Masters title. Archer won the Green Jacket in 1969, Coody in 1971, and Zoeller in 1979.

Coody, from Abilene, Texas, has won $1,064,010 in his 19-year career on the pro tour. He has won two other major tournaments besides the 1971 Masters and took home $32,628 last year.

Zoeller, only 30 and with seven years on the tour, has won $689,400 in his career. He has won two other tournaments besides the 1979 Masters. He won $151,571 on the tour last year.

CHARLES COODY

Archer, from Gilroy, California, has won 1,161,847 in his 18-year career and has won 11 other tournaments besides the 1969 Masters. He won $111,093 last year.

FUZZY ZOELLER

Purtzer won the 1977 Los Angeles Open and has earned $520,997 in his career. The Phoenix, Arizona, resident won $122,812 last year.
