Higher education for Ruidoso?

BY TIM PALMER

Representatives of Eastern New Mexico University (ENMU) met with the Rotary Club Community Development Committee Wednesday to discuss the possibility of higher education in Ruidoso.

Although a junior college, community college or branch campus for Ruidoso appears unlikely for the time being, the visitors described several possible programs and the steps needed to establish them.

Bob Matheny, executive vice president for academic affairs at ENMU, explained that the Board of Educational Finance (BEF) of the state legislature is leaning toward a statewide plan for post-secondary education which discourages creation of any more colleges or junior colleges. The exception is a college for Santa Fe, which has been in the works for some time.

The thinking of BEF, said ENMU Dean of Continuing Education Orlo Sundre, is that a lot of money is invested already in the 23 state institutions of higher learning.

However, Matheny said higher education for Ruidoso may be possible in the context of a "Learning Center" or "Ruidoso Center." Sundre referred to this as a "continuation of the university at another site."

This center could offer "adult enrichment" classes, such as conversational Spanish or weaving, Sundre explained. This type of community education, not to be confused with community college, is offered in Albuquerque through the public schools, he added.

One possibility would be to tie a Ruidoso program to ENMU, Roswell, Sundre said, using local facilities, using local instructors where possible, and operating from a local administrative office.

Previous discussion with the Ruidoso School System about using public school classrooms was positive, he noted.

A learning center could also offer non-credit and lower level credit courses, or even graduate courses in education or business administration, according to Sundre. Members of the Rotary committee indicated they favor credit courses here with the goal of growing into a community college.

Matheny and Sundre agreed that what is needed here is a needs assessment. This is a study to determine the educational programs the community wants and will support: credit courses, non-credit courses, professional courses or others.

Such a study would take three or four months to complete, said Sundre. It would involve asking "specific questions with specific answers" through mail or telephone surveys, personal interviews, or a combination.

The visitors indicated there may be a problem of territoriality, and predicted that if Ruidoso displays an interest in higher education programs, it will attract the interest of New Mexico State University (NMSU) and the University of New Mexico (UNM).

H. Ray Bishop, chairman of the Rotary committee, said he contacted those universities along with ENMU but they have not responded.

An association with Ruidoso will help any university when it goes to BEF to ask for funding, Matheny said. He pointed out that a university does not make money from such an association but that ENMU believes its outreach programs enhance the university's image and help it recruit students to the main campus at Portales.

Matheny encouraged the committee to meet with representatives of the two large state universities. He indicated that a degree of commitment would be expected of the village if ENMU were to undertake the needs assessment study.

The suggestion that committee members do the needs assessment study themselves, with direction from ENMU, was discussed. The possibility that a need for higher education here might be a valuable asset if different universities are interested in filling that need, was also raised.

Bishop said he would contact NMSU and UNM again to tell them the community is serious in its desire for higher education and wants to make a decision.

Later Wednesday, Bishop said the committee's approach will be to contact the other universities, to do the needs assessment, to choose which university to affiliate with, and to proceed from there.

He added that he discussed with Matheny and Sundre the possibility of contracting ENMU for the needs assessment. They told him they would get back to him next week, he said.

Bishop pointed out that his first contact with ENMU was Tuesday of last week.

"I was real impressed by that meeting today," he said. "Those guys were super helpful."

Council approves vendor, airport, flood ordinances

The Ruidoso council approved three new ordinances, affecting itinerant vendors, airport operations and flood control, and tabled the proposed Life Safety Code at its meeting Tuesday night.

Ordinance 82-20, which regulates itinerant vendors, was passed after some discussion. Village attorney Lee Huckstep summarized the conditions of the ordinance, which require $100 special license fee, New Mexico gross receipts tax identification number, written permission from the property owner where the vendor will do business, two offstreet parking places, and restroom facilities.

The license must be applied for three days before starting to do business. Councilman Al Junge asked Huckstep if the purpose of the ordinance is to eliminate all itinerant vendors, commenting that it certainly is slanted that way.

Huckstep agreed Junge also asked whether someone selling fruit would be excluded, and Huckstep said that New Mexico produce does not fall under the ordinance.

Junge said he sees the need for the ordinance, but predicted that it will eventually be challenged in court. He also cited liability of the village as a concern.

Councilman Don Dale, who worked on the ordinance with Chamber of Commerce representatives, said the group tried to make the law as fair as possible. The object is to make the itinerant vendors "play by the same rules" as the locals, he noted.

Dale said he sees nothing discriminatory in the ordinance, and that other municipalities put stricter conditions in their laws. Mayor George White also expressed support for the ordinance.

Planning and zoning enforcement officer John Cupp pointed out that the $100 fee is to make up costs incurred by the village, and added that he does not feel it is exorbitant.

Dale's motion to approve the ordinance passed unanimously.

Ordinance 82-21 prohibits night landings and takeoffs and vehicular traffic on runways at Ruidoso Municipal Airport. The law was drafted at the suggestion of the Airport Advisory Board.

Advisory board chairman Roy Parker commented Tuesday that night operations have become "the thing to do."

"Something is going to happen sooner or later," he said, referring to the danger of an accident.

In response to "questions," airport manager Tim Morris pointed out that the ordinance could be waived in the case of an emergency, and that a vehicle could go on to a runway to pick up a passenger with the manager's permission.

The ordinance passed unanimously.

Ordinance 82-22 regarding flood control, was passed after Huckstep reported the village was informed by the federal government that it had to adopt the ordinance to remain eligible for flood insurance. The ordinance is very similar to one presently in force, he added.

Village manager Jim Hine recommended that the council approve the new ordinance, and the council did so unanimously.

Ordinance 82-23, adopting the Life Safety Code, was recommended by fire prevention officer Ollie Cuddy. Huckstep explained that the code contains standards on building occupancy and is similar to the fire code already in force in the village. He added that the state has adopted the life safety code and recommends that municipalities do the same.

Asked what the difference is and why the village needs both codes, Cuddy said the village needs the life safety code to be able to follow up on state inspections, and that it puts out more information as to occupancy.

Councilman Benny Coulston expressed concern over telling restaurant owners that they have to limit occupancy, citing the "peaks and valleys" nature of business in Ruidoso.

When Cuddy noted the village already has the authority to enforce occupancy limits, Coulston asked, "Do we want you to?"

Coulston said he would hate to see the village citing restaurant owners for violating occupancy limits in times of increased business.

"We want to start our inspections and investigations," said Cuddy, when asked if he plans to act on occupancy limits. "All we're trying to do is coordinate with Santa Fe."

Coulston said inspection from Santa Fe "quite frequently infuriates" him. Junge hypothesized a situation of a fire disaster in an overcrowded nightclub.

"We've had a few problems in town—it (life safety code) would have helped us a lot," Cuddy said.

Coulston went on to list perceived transgressions by state government against the village. He indicated that until he could see some benefit from the life safety code to the citizens of Ruidoso, he would not support it.

At White's suggestion, the proposed ordinance was then tabled.

Cuddy explained Wednesday the code would better protect the village against liability in cases of following up on state inspections. He said if a fire occurred in a state facility such as a school, and the village had followed up on a state inspection by using the same code as the state, the Village of Ruidoso would less likely be held responsible for the fire.

Cuddy said the village now follows up state inspections with the Uniform Fire Code, which, although similar to the Life Safety Code, does not include all the same provisions. Until the new code is adopted, Cuddy added, he has no authority to follow its guidelines.

A new leave of absence policy adopted by the board Tuesday guarantees school personnel a position when they return to the school system after a maximum of one year on approved leave. Leaves of absence have been permitted in the past but the policy did not obligate the board to rehire employees when they returned.

Under the new policy, tenure and accumulated sick leave days will be retained and the employee "will be guaranteed a position for which he/she is qualified upon return to the school system."

All applications for leave of absence must be approved by the principal, superintendent and school board.

Corporation Commission looking at phone rate hike

State Corporation Commissioner Jimmie W. Glenn told The News Wednesday that he will scrutinize Continental Telephone Company's request for a $3.76 million rate increase very carefully.

Glenn said Continental customers in the southern portion of the company's service area bore the burden of the last rate increase by the company, while improvements to the telephone system were concentrated in the northern portion specifically Rio Arriba County.

"My position is I'm going to watch this very carefully," you picked up the tab last time," said Glenn. He noted that he voted against Continental's previous $1.2 million rate increase when it came before the commission, but was outvoted by his two fellow commissioners.

Glenn noted that quality of service will be an important consideration when the request is studied, if Continental customers make their feelings on the company's service known.

He suggested that Ruidoso's elected officials should present the community's case to the Corporation Commission "if they're concerned."

Glenn added that consumers have the "right of discovery," which he explained is the right to ask the company what it plans to do with the revenue which would be generated by a rate increase.

The company would be required to disclose those plans, he pointed out.

Burglaries on building sites a worsening problem

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

Burglary of construction sites hit local builders with a big blow to the pocketbook last month.

The number of building thefts was the highest for the year, and it pushed the value of property losses in October to the highest monthly level since Ruidoso police have kept crime figures.

Ruidoso Police Department (RPD) Chief Richard Swenor said Tuesday that losses through theft, larcenies and burglaries amounted to $100,000—the highest loss value in the past five years.

Swenor said the figure is even more significant when it is noted the department recovered $32,000 in lost or stolen property.

Topping the burglary list was the amount of loss from construction site thefts. Swenor, who speculated the worsening economic situation may be the cause for the increase in thefts, estimated construction thefts accounted for 65 percent of all property losses in October.

The construction pilfering seems to have hit the village indiscriminately at a time when building starts are down and several local contractors are having a rough time selling their products.

Swenor noted no pattern has developed in the stealing, and that it has affected house and condominium sites from Pinecliff on the eastern edge of town to Alto Crest in the north.

The police chief said theft reports indicate that everything from bales of lumber to appliances and power tools has been stolen from sites. He said the average loss per site has been $1,000 to $1,500.

The police department is obviously concerned about the high monthly loss, Swenor added, and he said steps are being taken to inform builders how to protect sites.

From the enforcement standpoint, the chief warned that officers are watching for vehicles loaded with building materials on the streets at night, and will pull them over to question drivers.

But the most effective deterrent is common sense and ingenuity, Swenor added.

He advised that contractors mark all materials on a site, including stacks of lumber, windows, doors, appliances and tools. Another step is to provide adequate lighting in the area, which he said is the simplest and most effective means of security.

One local builder who reported a theft of materials from a house site in Alto Crest recognizes the area was not well protected, and said he now will take steps to better secure the site.

H. Ray Bishop, owner of Bishop Enterprises, reported theft of wood siding, windows, nails, air hoses and extension cords from the site the night of November 4. Bishop estimated the loss at $1,200.

"I've had things missing before, but it was the first time it happened in a large amount," Bishop said. "The worst part about it is that some of the things were on special order."

Bishop said the materials were stolen on the same day they were delivered to the site. He said none of the items were marked with his identification, but added that since the theft he will ensure that "everything is marked."

Bishop also had no lighting at the site, but he said he plans to provide lighting at his building sites from now on.

"I think that would be the single most effective deterrent that anybody could do," he suggested.

The builder added that until he was burglarized, he did not know building site theft is a problem in the village. But he said since last week "virtually every contractor I have talked to has lost something."

Ron Burton, newly elected president of Lincoln County Home Builders, said he has not heard of many theft complaints. But after Swenor reported the October figures, he said, it is evident builders should begin to take extra precautions.

"When it's getting in our pockets, I think it's important to all of us," Burton said. "When you are squeezing by to build a house, and stuff is being stolen, it makes it a lot harder."

Because of the alarming October figures, Burton indicated, it is critical that builders combat the problem before it worsens.

He said Swenor has offered to lend a hand to the Home Builders Association and inform the members on security methods. Swenor will address the group at its December meeting.

In the meantime, Burton recommends builders begin to mark all materials and tools and illuminate their sites. He says tools should be locked up each night, and he advises that neighbors be asked to watch for suspicious vehicles in building locations.

Swenor noted that lumber can be identified without marking the exposed surfaces. He suggests marking with paint or ink on the back of paneling, or on selected boards in a stack of lumber.

Doors and windows can be identified on the edges, he noted. Cement blocks can be boldly marked because they are usually unexposed or painted over, once on a building.

As far as tools, Swenor suggests all hand and power instruments be etched with a nail or engraved with an electric engraver. Swenor said new appliances in model homes or in unsecured projects can be identified by placing stickers in inconspicuous places showing the owner's identification.

And to protect the entire site, the police chief emphasizes that night lighting should be installed.

"Night lighting isn't on most sites," he noted. "But most have electricity hooked up to run power tools. If builders just use a little ingenuity, they'll make it so nobody wants to steal their stuff."

Parks and rec makes recommendations

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

"We feel very strongly that the position should be filled by someone who has an appropriate background."

Those words from Parks and Recreation Commission (PRC) co-chairman Ken Moore sum up a formal request from the commission to the village council to seek a trained individual to fill the director's post of the Parks and Recreation Department and to compensate the director accordingly.

The request is included in a set of four recommendations from the commission that were submitted to the council Tuesday. The council took no action on the requests Tuesday, other than to accept the letter containing them.

The advisory commission drafted the proposals at a meeting November 4. Included in the list is a recommendation to accept a proposal from the U.S. Forest Service to lease the fire lookout tower site for $120 a year. The commission made no suggestion on the use of the property, but it wrote that "the opportunity to obtain this property should not be lost."

PRC also asked the council to accept its nomination of Ken Moore as co-chairman of the commission, which the four-member group indicated will allow PRC to call meetings when Bill Morrison, the other co-chairman, is out of town.

But the most important recommendation in the package is the advice regarding the department director.

The director's position was created by the council in October on an interim budget outlay of $8,000 to pay the salary until the new fiscal year begins next July.

In PRC's recommendation, the commission asks that the council establish a formally budgeted Parks and Recreation Department, and that it put the department under a qualified, permanent and full-time director.

The commission recommends the starting salary be $16,000 a year, and that the $8,000 already budgeted be made available as compensation for the chosen candidate. PRC suggests the position be filled no later than March 1, 1983.

To ensure the director is qualified, the commission would like the village to target recruitment toward regional university placement offices and parks and recreation departments in Dallas, Lubbock, and El Paso, Texas; plus Denver, Colorado, and Phoenix, Arizona.

PRC said it is willing to help screen initial applicants.

Also contained in the director's request is a suggestion that the qualifications include a degree in the field of parks and recreation management from a recognized institution, and at least two years of on-the-job experience.

The final suggestion is that the job description include designation of duties in administration, budgeting and "coordination of all sporting and cultural activities within the Village of Ruidoso."

Asked about the recommendations Wednesday, Moore indicated the commission wants to relay to the council how strongly it feels about the directorship.

"We would like to see a well-rounded program," he offered. "At least they know what we feel are the right things."

The final item on the list is a suggestion that councilman Frank Sayner work with the commission to obtain government funding that would enable the village to construct and maintain "a major sports complex."

Sayner had previously offered to help parks and recreation acquire state grants for the department.

Moore said the commission's conception of a sports complex initially would be an open area where sufficient ballparks and sports fields could be located to serve the village's needs.

He noted the future scope of the idea would depend on the availability of land and funds, and on the council's priorities.

LTC okays Mule Skinners money

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

The Lodgers' Tax Committee Wednesday approved a $2,500 request from Ruidoso Downs Mule Skinners president Melvin Means to offset advertising costs for last month's mule races.

The committee unanimously okayed the request after hearing from Means about the tremendous success of the races and mule events held during Aspen Festival.

Means said 9,000 people from 30 states came into town to witness three days of mule races that are considered the "best anywhere in the country."

He said contestants entered 350 mules in the weekend events, and walked away with $50,000 in prize money—an all-time high for mule races.

Means said he mailed out 20,000 pieces of literature announcing the races, and that television stations from Carlsbad, Roswell and Amarillo, Texas, taped features on the mules.

In addition, he said PM Magazine did a special that was televised nationally.

He said the Mule Skinners paid for no radio or TV advertising, but that television and radio stations as well as regional newspapers widely disseminated information on the races.

Means estimated that 350 to 400 people who came for the races spent the week in Ruidoso.

LTC chairman Ed Hyman estimated that a half-million tourist dollars were spent during Aspen Festival week, which was a return on an investment of $9,500 in lodgers' tax funds.

Means said the total advertising budget for the races came in at $5,200—spent mainly for printing. He said the Mule Skinners broke even this year, but because the organization lost money on last year's races, it was seeking the tax funds to balance the budget.

Committee member Clark Carpenter said he was all for the expenditure, adding that the "mule races are just dynamite."

Member Archer Wilson said he has read that mule racing is one of the fastest growing sports in the country, and the local races are the most important event of the Aspen Festival. Wilson moved that LTC approve the $2,500 request. It was seconded by Slover Cape.

Means told the committee plans are in progress for next year's races, and that national sponsors have already signed on. He said there could be coverage of the races on a national television sports program.

Hyman noted that the advertising budget for the races has increased from an initial expenditure of $1,000 just four years ago.

In other business, LTC discussed a new monthly form listing tax receipts and expenditures. The committee expressed approval of the form, which is more detailed than the previous reports, but it was noted the village council disapproves of the form.

The revenues for October totaled $5,877, bringing the year's receipts since July to $51,930. Disbursements thus far amount to $10,582.

CHILI COOKS Terry Grimes and Larry Tomlinson wait for the "Ole Tumbleweed Chili" to simmer at the 16th Annual World Championship Chili Cookoff in Terlingua, Texas, last Saturday. The team, headed by Ruidosoan Tomlinson, didn't win any awards but did enjoy the festive atmosphere at the cookoff.

Ruidosoan Larry Tomlinson didn't win any awards for his "Ole Tumbleweed Chili" at the 16th Annual World Championship Chili Cookoff in Terlingua, Texas, last weekend. But he and his teammates didn't mind because they had such a good time anyway.

About 90 chili cooking teams and 8,000 spectators attended the cookoff in the abandoned mercury mining town.

In order to compete in the cookoff, teams had to qualify by finishing high in previous cookoffs during the year. Tomlinson won the New Mexico State Championship at the cookoff in Ruidoso October 9. The Lincoln County team, "Crazy Horse," which won the showmanship award at the Ruidoso cookoff, did not attend the Terlingua cookoff because of financial difficulties, said member Alison Walstad.

Tom Skipper of Pasadena, Texas, won the world championship for his "Ole Blue Chili." The "Hole-N-One Gang" won first place for showmanship.

Gail Adams, a member of Tomlinson's "Ole Tumbleweed Chili" team, said the cookoff was a chance for everybody involved to get completely away from civilization and relax without the pressures of everyday life.

In spite of the relaxed atmosphere, Adams said, "The people are damn serious about their chili." He described it as, "a very enjoyable, friendly, competitive experience."

Chili cooking started about 8 a.m. Saturday morning. Adams said that in addition to chili, his team cooked elk and fajitas on a charcoal grill and served them free to spectators. Team members also passed out Ruidoso brochures and invited people to come to the New Mexico State Championship Cookoff here next fall.

Adams said people were very impressed by the Ruidoso cookoff logo designed by Gary Myers.

At noon the chili was collected for judging. The results were not announced until 3 p.m. During that time, Adams said, members wandered around talking to people from all over the country and drank beer to fight the heat.

Although "Ole Tumbleweed Chili" didn't win any awards, Adams said team members felt honored to be competing with the best chili cooks in the world.

Kerosene heater users warned

In response to several recent requests on portable kerosene heaters, village fire prevention officer Ollie Cuddy warns residents that fuel unsuitable for the unvented heaters can cause serious injuries.

The American Society for Testing and Materials recommends that a low-sulfur grade kerosene called Number 1-K be used in unvented kerosene-burning appliances and in wick-fed kerosene lamps.

Number 2-K kerosene, as designated by the testing institute, is high in sulfur content and can emit noxious fumes into a room when burned in an unvented heater.

Cuddy cautions that all users of the popular heaters handle them carefully, and not use them around combustible materials.

In addition, Cuddy noted that unvented gas-burning heaters are outlawed in New Mexico.

Downs trustees debate building permits

by BARBY GRANT
Staff Writer

A dispute over issuance and purchase of building permits in Ruidoso Downs took up the largest part of Monday's trustees meeting, following a report that building inspector Don Hendricks had refused to issue a permit to one builder.

Hendricks is building inspector for Ruidoso Downs, but also issues permits for Ruidoso Downs, with the two villages splitting the fees for permits issued in the Downs. Trustee Bob Power reported Monday that Sam Baker had applied for a permit to put a roof over a trailer house but Hendricks told him a permit was not needed for that project.

Power said Baker had insisted he wanted to purchase one anyway just to be on the safe side, but the building inspector "refused to sell him a permit."

Hendricks told The News Tuesday that he enforces only the ordinances that are enforced in Ruidoso and that the requirement for a permit to cover a trailer is not enforced.

"There's not enough inspector to go around," he said when asked why that is the case.

It was reported at the meeting Monday that Hendricks has refused to issue permits in similar situations before. Trustee Harold Mansell argued that the village will either have to adopt the Village of Ruidoso's ordinances or provide Hendricks with a copy of the Downs' ordinances if the village expects its ordinances to be enforced.

"We're in our infancy of building down here... and we need to have control over it," Mansell stated. Power expressed his belief that it is time the village should adopt the New Mexico building code.

Hendricks said Tuesday that a meeting will be scheduled to clarify what ordinances Ruidoso Downs officials want enforced "and if they want them all enforced that's what we'll do."

Municipal officer Dale Patrick sought clarification during Monday's meeting on what ordinances he should enforce in the meantime. Patrick reported that he had approached Sam Baker about not having a building permit and "didn't appreciate the way Sam reacted..."

"I want to know from the council what you want me to enforce—to the letter—because that's what I'm gonna do," Patrick said.

Trustees disagreed about this matter, though, and had difficulty giving Patrick a clear answer.

"Probably not one percent of the places in Ruidoso Downs to date have had a building permit," Power commented. The trustee argued that permits should be required only for buildings currently under construction or to be constructed in the future. "Ill-feelings" will be created if the ordinance is enforced for building that has been allowed in the past without a permit, he said.

"As far as people building and not knowing they should have a permit—I don't buy it," trustee Jake Harris countered. "We have always had a requirement to get a permit."

He expressed his feeling that all construction projects begun since the installation of the present administration should be issued a citation if they do not have a building permit.

Mansell agreed that builders have no excuse for not purchasing permits. He made a motion to have the ordinance enforced for all construction begun since the present administration took office March 2, "and I hope it makes people mad."

The motion passed with Power voting against.

meeting to explain the water improvements study his firm recently completed for the village. The study was requested as part of an application for state and federal funding for needed improvements to the water system.

Among the recommended improvements included in the study report are the drilling of a new well at the site of the present Denton well; obtaining of 248 acre feet of additional water rights per year until the year 2000; construction of a one million-gallon storage reservoir; and replacement of all two-inch water lines with six-inch lines. Total estimated cost for all improvements is $1,026,925.

Lovelady informed the trustees that the deadline for applications for federal Housing and Urban Development (HUD) funds was midnight Monday and reported that he would mail the village's application that evening. He said the village should hear by January 15 whether it will receive any HUD grant money.

Ruidoso Downs was allocated a $100,000 water supply construction grant in July 1981 but is required to come up with $150,000 in matching funds before the grant can be utilized.

Also discussed Monday was the arbitration between the village and engineers who redesigned the river bridge after the 1978 flood. Village attorney Tim Quigley reported that he and the attorney representing the engineers agreed to a payment by the village of $15,000 rather than the $20,000 plus interest that is due.

Trustees approved that settlement pending approval by the state Local Government Division of the transfer of funds and verification that payment is not against the law. Power had protested that he remembered someone telling the village that payment of the debt is forbidden by state law.

Quigley reported that he is investigating

This Friday, November 12, is the day to pick up and purchase seafood and steaks from the Alaska-Pacific Truck which will be parked in Gibson's parking lot from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The seafood and steak sale is sponsored by the Ruidoso High School DECA chapter (Distributive Education Clubs of America) to finance a trip to Albuquerque for the State Leadership Conference in January.

Those who have placed orders for seafood and/or steaks must pick them up Friday, and anyone who wants to purchase directly from the truck is encouraged to stop by. All kinds of seafood will be available, including shrimp, crab, oysters, lobster tails, scallops, frog legs, clams, salmon, halibut, red snapper and sea bass. Prices range from $2.95 per pound to $14.50 per pound.

T-bone steaks, rib-eye, Delmonico, top sirloin and boneless strip loin steaks can also be purchased. Prices range from $15.70 to $26.70 per box.

Cultural committee reorganizes

by BARBY GRANT
Staff Writer

Excitement about the potential for fine arts offerings in Ruidoso was evident at the reorganizational meeting of the Chamber of Commerce cultural committee Wednesday.

"It's time to zero in on exposure to fine arts in this community," committee chairperson Katherine Finley announced to the group.

The cultural committee was originally organized about a year-and-a-half to two years ago, Finley reminded those present, for the express purpose of pursuing possibilities for a cultural center in this area. After efforts to have Carrizo Lodge designated an historical building were not immediately successful, the committee became inactive.

"We've been waiting for something to be really right," expressed Finley about the committee's break in activity. That "something" is the New Mexico State University (NMSU) chamber music series, workshops and scholarship fund, she pointed out.

The committee has assumed sponsorship of the NMSU program and began organizational steps at Wednesday's meeting. Finley divided the group into subcommittees to concentrate on the summer string workshops, the chamber music concerts, education and the workshop scholarship fund.

The workshop committee is chaired by Tillie Daubs of Nogal. This group will handle organization of the summer string workshops, the first of which will be August 7-21 at the La Junta Guest Ranch in Alto. The workshops will be open to 30 young people and will offer intensive training in the performance of chamber music.

Jackie Rawlins heads the chamber music series sub-committee. The initial task of this group will be to oversee the second in the series of concerts, scheduled for Saturday, November 20, at First Christian Church. The concert is to be hosted by the Garden Club, and it was reported that the church will have purchased a new grand piano by that time. Additional concerts are scheduled for the spring of 1983 and during the summer workshop.

Jack and Geni Jordan are chairing the education committee, which will serve as a liaison between the cultural committee and the public schools. The goal of this group is to ensure that area young people who are interested in fine arts are exposed to various arts programs.

Finley reported that she has accepted an offer to serve as coordinator of a fine arts program for which federal funds have recently been made available to the Ruidoso school system.

Chairpersons for the workshop scholarship fund sub-committee will be Don and Mary Parsons. This group will concentrate on fund raising for the purpose of providing scholarships for highly talented young people to attend the summer string workshops. It was noted that the Rotary Club has already donated $500 to the fund and that all donations are tax deductible.

The cultural committee agreed that no collecting of funds will be done at the chamber music concerts, which are to be offered free of charge to the public.

To conclude, Finley expressed her belief that the upcoming November 20 concert "should be outstanding."

Mystery opens Friday

Today is the last day to purchase tickets for the opening night performance of the Ruidoso Little Theater (RLT) mystery, "The Penultimate Problem of Sherlock Holmes." The play will be performed at the Inn of the Mountain Gods Wendell Chino Room in the new convention center as a dinner theater.

The production will open Friday, November 12, and run through Sunday, November 14; and also runs the following Friday through Sunday, November 19-21. Tickets are $15 for dinner and the play and $5 for the play only, and can be purchased at the Inn of the Mountain Gods, Sears and Don's Pharmacy.

Tickets for the dinner and theater must be purchased at least one day in advance of the play. Those wishing to attend the play only may purchase tickets at the door.

Betty Bennett is directing the Sir Arthur Conan Doyle play. Cast members bring to their parts a varied amount of theatrical experience, earned in previous local productions as well as elsewhere. Dan Barrow stars as Sherlock Holmes, with Bill Knox as Dr. Watson. Carl Mori plays Monsieur Dupin; Carmon Phillips is cast as Professor Moriarty; and the part of Mrs. Hudson is played by Lois Grushka.

Other cast members include Chris Schneider as Inspector Lastrade, Kathy Harrison as Mrs. Piper, Donna Bruss as Irene Adler, Eric Berg as an English gentleman, Hap Hanson as Dr. Phinuit and Brenda Pate as Ellen Watson.

RLT publicity director Jackie Sheehan has noted that "opening night promises to be a gala event," with the winner of the RLT logo contest to be announced. Two tickets to all future productions of the little theater group will be awarded the contest winner.

So this Friday offers a great opportunity to gather a group of friends together. Theatergoers will see the premier of RLT's latest production, enjoy a fabulous dinner at the Inn of the Mountain Gods, and have the opportunity to view the spacious new convention center.

Cole elected to national board

The Reverend Ken Cole, pastor of First Christian Church, was recently elected to serve on the general board of Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ) in the United States and Canada. Cole will represent Christian churches throughout Texas and New Mexico as a board member.

He was elected from a group of five persons nominated during the Christian churches Regional Assembly in Amarillo, Texas, in October.

Cole said the board, composed of about 200 members from throughout the U.S. and Canada, meets once each year for four days in Chicago, Illinois, to decide issues that will affect all local Christian churches.

"I think it's a real opportunity to be able to make input on a national church level and take some of the grassroots thinking to a national board," Cole commented about his election to the position.

Cole has served as pastor at First Christian for almost 15 years.

NOB HILL ELEMENTARY SCHOOL students stopped by the White Mountain Middle School book fair earlier this week to choose their purchases for home reading material. Library aides (from right) Bubba Miller, Kevin Yuzos and Sherri Alexander helped the youngsters choose the best titles. The book fair continues through Friday and is open during school hours today and Friday and tonight from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. All books are available at a 10 percent discount.

Around Sports

with
Gary Brown

Most high schools in the country are suffering through tight athletic budgets nowadays but the problems are especially acute in large cities.

This is so for a number of reasons. Most large cities are losing population and their student enrollments are going down, thus creating less money for programs. Also, in many large cities, high school athletic events don't draw very well, particularly in the public high schools. Thus, some school administrators don't rate athletics very high on the list of needed programs for the district.

One prime example of this is in San Francisco. In that city of 875,000 people, each public high school gets $5,000 for its ENTIRE SPORTS PROGRAM. In comparison, Ruidoso High School got $23,000 for its football equipment alone this year and over $25,000 for its overall sports budget.

Ruidoso also pays for some athletic items and events with money from gate receipts from its games.

The Warriors' sports programs generally get less money from the school district than most AAA division schools in the state because Ruidoso is one of the smallest high schools in the AAA division, with just over 450 students.

However, most of San Francisco's high schools have 2,000 or more students and the funds each school gets have to cover expenses for football, basketball (both boys and girls), volleyball, wrestling, track, baseball, golf and tennis.

San Francisco's public school league started to go downhill after two prestigious Catholic high schools, Sacred Heart and St. Ignatius, departed to join a Catholic league in the late 1960s.

St. Ignatius was the dominant high school sports powerhouse in San Francisco at the time it departed the city league. The two Catholic schools drew the biggest crowds in the city to their athletic events. When those schools left for the Catholic league, attendance at high school sporting events took a sharp dive.

It really wasn't hard to see why. Although St. Ignatius was hated by some of the other schools for its dominance of athletics, people would flock to see its team play.

In the 1962-1963 football seasons, St. Ignatius won 19 straight games and dominated its league as few teams have in the history of Northern California athletics. The Wildcats won games with lopsided scores like 58-0, 49-0 and 46-12 during their two-year winning streak.

The St. Ignatius offensive line would literally open holes large enough for the entire Wildcat backfield to run through. The Wildcat lineup those two years was comparable to an all-star team from the rest of the schools combined.

When St. Ignatius left the league, the quality of athletics went downhill and the league hasn't been the same since.

Last month, one of the public school teams drew just 32 fans to a game that was a mile-and-a-half from its high school. And that team was undefeated in league action at the time!

The city league almost went broke during the 1974-75 school year but a rock concert and public donations tentatively postponed its demise. However, since then the league has operated at a bare minimum in terms of funds.

San Francisco's situation is fairly typical of most large cities' prep sports programs. Detroit, Philadelphia and Los Angeles have also had problems getting enough money to budget their high school athletic programs.

With the middle class gradually leaving the large cities of the country, less tax money is available for prep sports programs. The rich usually send their children to private schools and the poor don't have enough money to help out with booster clubs and other activities.

High school sports in the large cities of America may be doomed within five to 10 years unless a different way of funding the programs is developed.

And if high school sports in cities are eliminated, teenage crime and other problems are sure to develop.

Mountaintops to open season at Las Cruces

The Mountaintops gymnastics competition team of the Ruidoso Gymnastics Academy (RGA) will open its season Saturday with a Class III three-team meet in Las Cruces.

Competition will begin at 1 p.m. with Roswell joining the hosts and the Mountaintops.

New RGA director and coach Thomas Hart will probably take six girls to the meet. Hart is pleased with the way the girls have looked in practice.

"Amy Thornton has looked real good in all-around competition," Hart said.

"Daphne Duncan has done well on the floor exercise and Amy Richardson good on the bars. Stephanie Garms, Hillary Heid and Karen Gann also have done well."

All of the girls competed last season and could do better this fall.

"We should do pretty good in the meet," Hart said. "We probably won't do great because I've only been here around a month-and-a-half and the girls haven't gotten completely used to the way I do things in practice."

TIGERS SEEK REVENGE

Capitan, Reserve to play for crown

by GARY BROWN
Sports Writer

The last time the Capitan High School varsity football team met Reserve High School, the Tigers suffered a 26-6 defeat.

That was last month, but Capitan has no intention of repeating that performance when it plays Reserve for the state A division championship at Socorro High School Friday in a 7:30 p.m. game.

"That was a bad performance on our part," said Capitan head coach Mel Holland. "We'll have to stop a couple of their backs and if we do that, we stand a good chance of winning."

Capitan, 7-2-1 on the season, defeated Texico by a 7-2 score in the semi-finals last week. Reserve rolled over Tatum 37-6 in the other semi-final and will be going for its third straight state championship Friday.

"They're a small school," Holland said. "But in the last few years, they've built a little tradition and they've managed to get most of their kids to come out for football."

Gary Zoega, a freshman running back, is the player the Tigers probably have to stop. He's one of several freshmen on the Reserve squad.

"Their offense is tough," said Holland. "They run out of the single wing and they can hurt you both with the run and the pass. They've hurt us with the pass in the past."

"Their defense is tough also. Texico may have more talent than them but Reserve is probably a bit more consistent."

The Tigers' defense probably played its best game of the season in the semi-final victory over Texico. Texico outgained Capitan but the Tiger defense stiffened when it had to and stopped the Texico offense several times deep in Capitan territory.

Capitan's offense has been sparked by quarterback Dewey Keller in recent games. Keller, also a fine defensive back, threw a touchdown pass to flanker David Beavers in the third quarter to defeat Texico last week. Keller, who took the place of Grady Lee Eldridge after the latter injured his back early in the season, threw four touchdown passes in one regular season game.

Other members of the Tigers' starting offensive backfield are fullback Jon Todd Aguilar, running back Danny Cummins and Beavers.

Ron McDaniels will probably start at tight end and Tim McElhannon will go at split end. Rudy Saiz is the center while Todd Proctor and Gid Allen are the starting tackles.

Paul Sullivan and Andy Willingham will go at guard. Proctor, a 6-0, 180-pound senior, is probably one of the best defensive linemen in the state's A division this season.

Most of the Tiger offensive starters will also start on defense. Capitan has 21 players on its squad, not as many as in previous seasons.

However, the Tigers have some of the best talent in the A division and haven't had many serious injuries this season.

This is Capitan's fourth straight year in the playoffs. Last season the Tigers fell to Texico by a 7-6 score in the semi-finals. In 1980, Reserve topped the Tigers.

Tiger fans are hoping Capitan can reverse the score and end Reserve's two-year hold on the state championship.

NOTES: Playoffs begin in division AAA and AA this weekend. The AAA playoffs will begin next week. A key game in the final week's schedule of AAAA regular season games pits top-ranked Hobbs against defending champion Clovis.

MEN FROM OUTER SPACE! Heavyweight contender Randall "Tex" Cobb (right) and his sparring partner George Chaplin, each wearing protective headgear, punch it out during a sparring session Tuesday at the Inn of the Mountain Gods. Cobb will fight heavyweight champion Larry Holmes November 26 in the Houston Astrodome for the championship. There will be a sparring session open to the public at 5 p.m. Friday in the convention center at the Inn. Admission will be $2 a person.

Cobb to hold public sparring session

Heavyweight boxing title challenger Randall "Tex" Cobb will hold a sparring match for the public at 5 p.m. Friday in the Inn of the Mountain Gods Convention Center.

Cobb, who will fight champion Larry Holmes for the World Boxing Council (WBC) title November 26 in the Houston, Texas, Astrodome, will spar with George Chaplin and Charley Singleton.

There will also be a karate card and an amateur boxing card. Admission is $2 and there will be a concession stand. T-shirts will also be sold.

Cobb, who is a former North American pro karate champion, sparred with Chaplin and Singleton for six rounds Tuesday afternoon in the Convention Center.

The 6-3, 230-pound fighter has a 20-2 record in his pro career. His biggest victory was an eighth-round knockout of Ernie Shavers in August 1980. His two losses were split decisions to Ken Norton and Michael Dokes.

The former Abilene Christian University (ACU) football player is known as a bruising fighter with a strong chin and lots of courage.

Cobb and his party have been at the Inn for almost two months and will probably stay there until a week or so before the championship fight.

George Benton, Cobb's trainer, was blunt in his description of what he wants his fighter to do against Holmes.

"We've got to keep pressuring Holmes," Benton said. "Tex is not a boxer like Holmes is, so we're working on him doing what he does best. He's going to keep punching and going after Holmes."

"Our best defense is a good offense. We're working on having Tex go 15 rounds full blast."

Cobb's best punches are a right cross and a right hook. His punching ability can't be questioned. He has knocked out 18 of the 20 fighters he has defeated.

NOTES: Cobb has also had an acting career. He "killed" Jon Voight in the movie "The Champ." When Cobb was at ACU, he blocked for Wilbert Montgomery, now a Philadelphia Eagle running back and one of the best in the pros. When Cobb knocked out Shavers, he had just two-and-a-half weeks notice and was paid "just" $75,000.

350 SUDDERTH DRIVE

A DOUBLE THREAT. Ruidoso High School quarterback Billy Woodul was a passing threat and also a top punter during the past football season. At left, Woodul throws a pass against Deming and at right, he punts the ball. Woodul completed 81 of 171 passes for 1,002 yards and eight touchdowns. He averaged almost 40 yards a punt.

Woodul breaks Warrior passing record

Although the Ruidoso High School varsity football team had a frustrating 1-9 season, senior quarterback Billy Woodul put his mark firmly into the Warrior record books.

Woodul, a 5-11, 165-pound senior, threw for 1,002 yards on the season to become the first Ruidoso quarterback since Blaine Miller in 1972 to exceed the 1,000-yard mark.

He also set a school record with 171 passing attempts on the season. He completed 81 passes for a 47.4 percent average and only had seven interceptions. He threw for six touchdowns and scored one.

"Billy really came on strong in the last half of the season," said Warrior offensive coordinator Vince Collins. "He passed for 440 yards in the last three games."

Woodul was also an excellent punter for the Warriors. He handled the punting chores as a junior and this past season averaged almost 40 yards a punt.

Probably Woodul's best game of the season was the 20-16 victory over Truth or Consequences in the second to last contest of the season. Woodul threw for 145 yards, including two touchdown passes, and scored one touchdown himself. One of his touchdown passes was an 11-yard toss to junior split end Curtis Palmer for the winning score.

With Woodul graduating next spring, the competition for the starting quarterback spot should be wide open between Cyrus Simmons, Russell Easter, Mark Langston and Kenny Espinoza.

Chavez named 3-AAA district coach of year, Morel, Trapp make all-district squad

by GARY BROWN
Sports Writer

First-year Ruidoso High School varsity volleyball coach Elmer Chavez has been named district 3-AAA Coach of the Year, and two of his players have been selected to the all-district team.

Senior Lori Morel and junior Laura Trapp were named to the all-district squad from the third place Warriors. Ruidoso had a 5-5 round robin record in district and finished at 9-8 on the overall season.

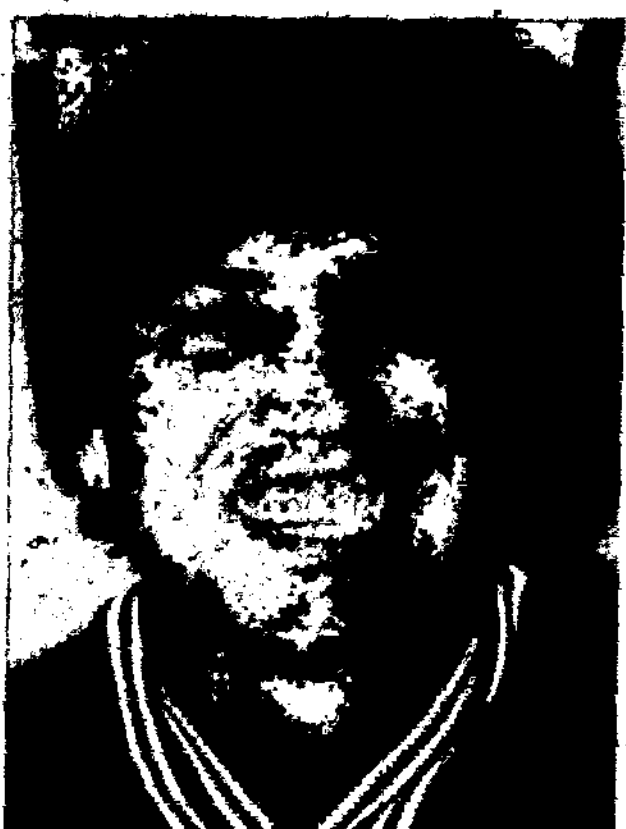

Chavez, who is also the assistant boys basketball coach, was naturally pleased with the honors accorded him and his two players.

"I feel Lori is one of the finest players in the state," he said. "She's an excellent all-around player. I switched Laura from a setter to a spiker and she did a very good job."

Morel just missed the all-district team last season but was easily one of the best players in the district this year. She seldom made a mistake and was also a team leader.

"I was hoping that I would make the all-district team but I wasn't sure," Morel said. "I'd like to play volleyball in college just to see what it's like."

"I've talked to four or five schools about Lori going there," said Chavez. "I think she wants to attend UNM (University of New Mexico)."

ELMER CHAVEZ

Trapp, who is also an outstanding track and tennis star, was one of the reasons Ruidoso had its first winning season since joining the AAA division three years ago.

"I was really surprised that I made the team," Trapp said Tuesday. "I had no idea that I would make it."

The Warriors tied for third place with Deming in the round-robin season but lost to Tularosa in the first round of the playoffs. Ruidoso also finished third in the Captain Tournament and lost very few one-sided matches during the season.

Trapp is one of several players who will return next season. Lillian Lopez, Jackie Jefferson, Sonja Jefferson and Capple King are other varsity players who have one year left on the team.

Chavez coached at Grants High School in northwestern New Mexico before coming to the Warrior campus this fall. He is a standout distance runner and walker and once considered trying out for the 1980 United States Olympic team.

Warrior head coach calls 1982 season 'most frustrating'

by GARY BROWN
Sports Writer

Ruidoso High School head varsity football coach Darrel Stierwalt feels that his team's 1-9 campaign this fall was the most frustrating season in the five years he has been the Warriors' head coach.

"I think it probably was the most frustrating season we've had since I've been here because we had so many injuries," Stierwalt said. "Before the season started, I felt we would go 5-5 at the worst, but the amount of injuries we had were really bad."

The injuries started piling up in the first game, a 39-18 loss to Lovington. Tony Stevens, a 180-pound junior two-way lineman and kicker, tore some ligaments in his right knee and was lost for the season.

From then on, the injuries multiplied, with about two-thirds of the varsity players eventually missing at least one game because of injuries or illness.

DARREL STIERWALT

Ruidoso's last losing season was in 1979, the Warriors' first year in the AAA division. Ruidoso went 3-7 that year with a team made up largely of underclassmen, particularly quarterback-running back Scott Neal and linebacker-fullback Lon Nunley. Neal and Nunley provided the impetus the next two seasons as Ruidoso had 7-3 and 8-2 records.

The 1982 edition of the Warriors had three freshmen starting in the offensive and defensive lineups by the end of the season, a very rare situation in high school football. There were only 10 seniors on the varsity at the end of the season. Nine underclassmen started on defense and at least five started on offense.

"I felt we improved a lot during the course of the season," Stierwalt said. "Unfortunately everybody else seemed to improve as much as we did."

Some Warrior fans criticized the Warrior coaching staff during the course of the season, particularly after a 27-0 loss to AA power Jal in the fourth game of the season.

However, that didn't bother Stierwalt. "That's part of the game," he commented. "That's to be expected when a team is losing. People were fans of the Warriors and concerned about how the team was doing. I have no bad feelings towards anybody."

The road to Ruidoso's only victory of the season—a 20-16 win over Truth or Consequences (T or C) in the ninth game—was long and hard.

The Warriors came close to grabbing victories over Dexter and Cobre but mistakes and bad breaks prevented them from coming out on top. Ruidoso started out fast against arch-rival Tularosa, grabbing a 7-0 advantage. However, the Wildcats came back and took an easy 30-9 decision.

The victory over T or C was the highlight of the season, wasn't it, Coach?

"Without a doubt," Stierwalt said. "The way we never quit and came back and won the game, plus the fact T or C had beaten some teams that had beaten us (Socorro for one) make it a great victory."

Stierwalt, a 1965 graduate of Ruidoso High, also liked the fact that most of his players never gave up during the course of the season.

"They kept on trying," he said of the Warrior players. "They never gave up no matter how hard things got."

Even though the season ended just last Friday with a 58-6 loss to top-ranked Silver City, Stierwalt and the returning players are already looking forward to next season.

"After we lost to Silver City, some of the players realized that they had to work hard during the off-season, and couldn't wait to get started again," Stierwalt said. "One of the things that hurt us this season was that some of our kids didn't work that much with weight training last year."

How important is weight training to a high school football program?

"It's very important," answered Stierwalt. "No matter how good your offensive backfield is or how much talent you've got, if you're not physically strong you're probably going to get beat."

Stierwalt and the other coaches plan to give the players a week or so off, then get them started on off-season weight training and agility programs.

"I can't wait for the next season to start," Stierwalt said. "I think with more weight training and the agility program, people are going to see a big turnaround in the Ruidoso High School football program next season."

Lodgers 'wash linen' at meeting

by BILLY ALLSTETTER
Staff Writer

The Ruidoso Lodgers Association (RLA) announced a local commercial linen service and plans to look into two services that might attract more customers at its meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Relations between the Ruidoso lodgers and American Linen Service in Roswell, the major linen supplier and launderer for the lodgers, have been strained over the past few months, RLA members indicated. Lodgers have been unhappy over newly instituted inventory charges which they said require them to pay even if they have no linen laundered. Increasing prices and inconsistent rates have also bothered lodgers, it was reported.

At last month's meeting the RLA formed a committee to look into buying linen wholesale through Dick Winter of Mountain Maytag Laundry and having Winter launder the linen locally.

Betty Shaw, committee chairperson, reported at Tuesday's meeting that the first order for new linen had been placed and that Winter is ready to do lodgers' laundry. She reported that Winter's rates were substantially lower than American Linen and that the cost of the new linen would be made up in anywhere from seven to 43 washings, depending on the article laundered.

Al Dillingham, owner of Holiday Bowl and guest at the meeting, said he could get linen cheaper than Winter directly from a factory outlet.

There was some concern expressed by lodgers that it would be difficult to cease using American Linen because they had signed a two-year contract. Buddy Carter, vice president of RLA, said that once American Linen raised their prices, the contract was invalid.

He also warned that American Linen might claim the lodgers had more linen on hand than they actually did and try to charge for that linen when they collected the rest of their linen. Carter said there was no way for American Linen to know how much linen the lodgers had because of irregular and undocumented deliveries.

"Give them all their laundry and tell them to go fly a kite," was his advice.

It was decided to invite representatives of the American Linen Service, Roswell Linen Service and Winter to speak at next month's meeting to clear up confusion over rates and inventory charges.

The RLA assigned Jan Lloyd of the Horseshoe Courts to look into assembling an information package about lodgings to be given to evening entertainment establishments in town.

RLA president Clark Carpenter said that Melinda Hall, co-owner of Nottingham's Pub, told him that customers often ask her for recommendations on places to stay the night. Tom Dorgan, owner of the Incredible, said that many people from El Paso or Alamogordo ski all day and plan to return home at night. But because of good snow or fatigue, they often decide to spend the night once they have had a drink or dinner.

Hall said that she would like to have a more complete and easier to read information sheet than the one provided by the Chamber of Commerce.

Carpenter showed members a brochure he had received in the mail offering a WATS line "800" phone number to lodgers at a low price. The service would allow persons to call Ruidoso lodging establishments free to make reservations or ask for information.

Charge for the number is $10 per room per year initial charge plus a two dollar per room monthly fee.

Nancy Radziewicz, owner of West Winds Motel, said that there had been a time limit on phone calls when she had used a similar service. She said that often the call was disconnected once the time limit was up and before she had finished talking.

Velma McCallum was assigned to find out more about the offer.

Carpenter announced an offer by George Mize, owner of 29 Pines Motel, to run any lodging establishment for an evening to allow the owners or managers a night away from work. He will be available after Thanksgiving.

Carpenter told members that there would be no ski package including ski lift discounts this year. He said the RLA board of directors had approached Sierra Blanca Ski Resort manager Roy Parker with a request for lift discounts during midweek to attract more customers during that normally slow period.

Parker had said that he would reply to the request the next week, according to Carpenter. It was reported that as of Tuesday, more than a month after the request, Parker had not contacted any RLA members.

Carpenter said he has tried unsuccessfully to contact Parker. Carpenter added that he assumed that Parker's lack of answer is the same as a negative answer because of past resistance to offering lift discounts.

In other business, RLA:

—Announced the replacement of departing director Lowell McIntyre with Marion Black of the Carrizo Lodge until May, when elections of new officers will be held.

—Asked members to contact village councilmen with suggestions for a new Lodgers' Tax Committee member to replace Ed Hyman. Carpenter said Hyman is expected to step down from the committee chairmanship.

—Passed around a petition from the Ruidoso Businessmen's Association (RBA) requesting that the annual fall parade be scheduled during next year's Ruidoso Motorcycle Festival. Tom Dorgan, president of RBA, said that disappointment over the lack of a parade at this year's festival was "the number one piece of feedback" organizers received.

—Announced that the lodgers tax rolls requested from the village would be forthcoming. "I assure you that if it's not made public we will be back to see why," said Carpenter.

—Approved plans for a Christmas social at Carrizo Lodge on Tuesday, December 14.

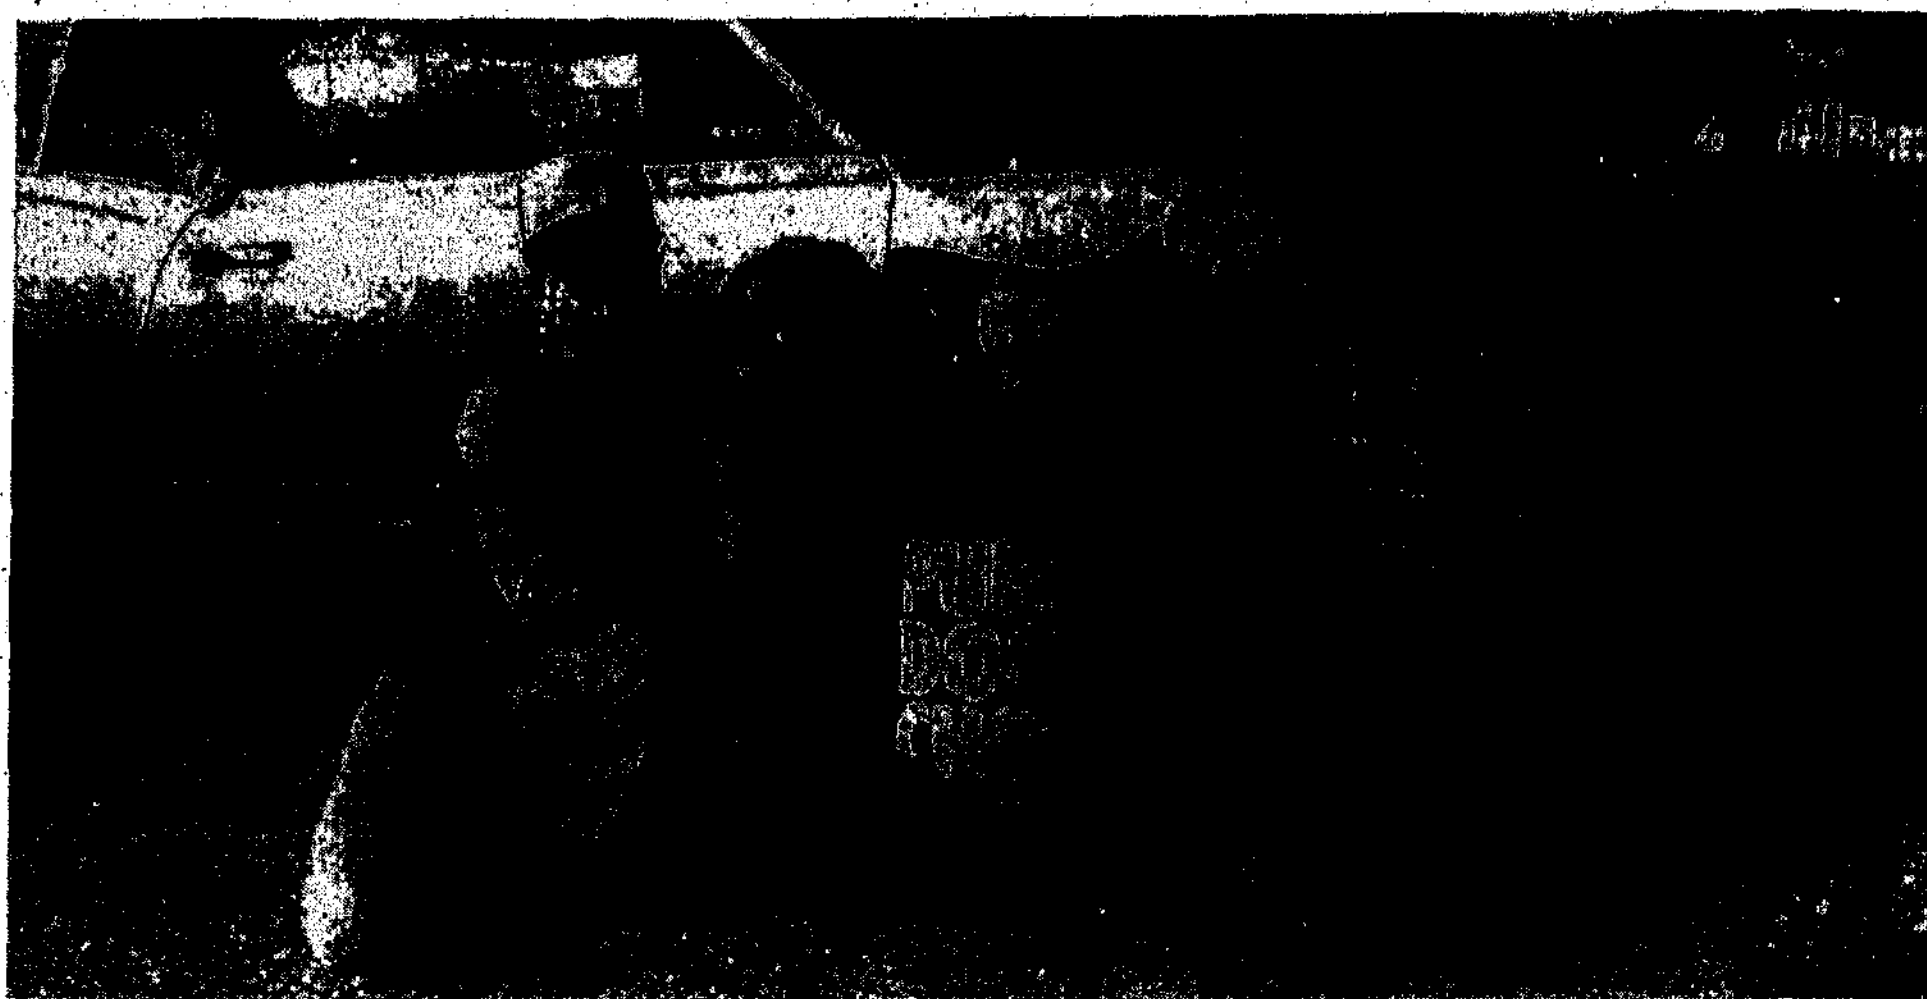

—Decided to send a letter of thanks to Melinda and Gary Hall for the "Welcome to Winter '82" party they hosted at Nottingham's for the lodgers and ski shops of Ruidoso.

—Watched a demonstration of ski rental procedures by Buddy Carter.

—Chose one of two stationery logos designed by Paul Tapp.

CAP in plane search near Taos

by BILLY ALLSTETTER
Staff Writer

Members of the local Sierra Blanca Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol (CAP) participated in the search for a twin-engine airplane with four passengers, missing since Tuesday, November 2.

The search, concentrated in the mountains near Taos, was suspended Wednesday, November 10, after six days of searching without any sign of the missing plane. CAP Lieutenant Pat Norvell said three leads had been followed with no results. Until the CAP received another concrete lead, the search would remain suspended, she said.

Norvell would not speculate on the fate of the missing people but said that snow had been falling in the area Wednesday and rain was moving in Wednesday afternoon.

Four pilots and five observers from Ruidoso searched the rugged country near Taos for a combined total of about 30 hours, said squadron member Jim Paxton.

During the search, Cleston Pritchett was certified a CAP mission pilot, bringing the number of certified pilots in the Sierra Blanca squadron to five. Edward Stalzer, Jim Paxton, Wayne Dacy and Howard Tate are the other certified mission pilots of the Sierra Blanca Squadron.

The missing six-passenger Piper Seneca was last heard from near Durango, Colorado, when it made radio contact with the airport in Colorado Springs the afternoon of November 2 about 5:30 p.m. The search did not begin until Thursday morning because no flight plan had been filed with the Federal Aviation Agency, Norvell said.

When the optional flight plan is filed, airport officials will know within hours if a plane has not arrived, and can initiate a search, Paxton explained. Without the flight plan, however, no search began until relatives notified authorities that the plane was missing Thursday evening, Norvell said.

Paxton and observer Dan Shaver were the first members of the squadron to participate in the search Friday. Saturday, Stalzer and Pritchett joined the search. Dacy flew to Taos Sunday with Bob Doigener as observer. Monday Paxton and Stalzer flew in separate planes with Shaver, Howard, Gisela Stalzer and William Wilson as observers. Bad weather prevented any planes flying Tuesday and no Sierra Blanca Squadron members flew Wednesday.

Paxton said pilots were assigned to search specific quadrants. The quadrant depended on the type of aircraft and experience of the pilot. The Sierra Blanca Squadron pilots' experience in mountain flying around Ruidoso was helpful, Paxton said.

The terrain near Taos is very rugged, however, and Paxton added, "That country up there made it (country around Ruidoso) look tame."

The pilots flew at about 500 feet above ground level. The steep terrain, which varied from 8,000 feet above sea level to over 11,000 feet, made it very difficult to fly at a constant distance above the ground.

Pritchett and Paxton both agreed that the training session led by CAP Captain Margaret Kilgore September 18 and 19 had been excellent preparation for the search around Taos.

The Taos search was much more strenuous than the training exercises, even though the procedure was the same, Pritchett and Paxton agreed.

Paxton explained that knowing someone was actually lost down below him, he concentrated much harder on the search. "If anyone in the search plane spotted anything they thought might be a plane, Paxton said, he would fly back and forth repeatedly until everyone was sure that there was nothing of interest."

"It's the hardest work I've ever done," said Pritchett. He said that flying in the very rugged terrain and monitoring radio communications made the effort very tiring.

Unfortunately for the missing people, the effort has so far been unsuccessful.

Prospector seeking treasure in Hidden Mine

"I got bored and came out West to get rich," said Wally Hesse, mineral scout, mining engineer and trader. Fifteen years later, in spite of one very lucrative afternoon and a few small claims, he is still hoping to strike that motherlode that will earn him his riches.

Driving the 1963 Plymouth Valiant he bought for $100, he carries a shovel, saddlebags and a .22 magnum pistol. The car has no back seat and he uses it as his pickup truck.

He hangs his hopes today on the Hidden Mine Number One, an ancient mine he stumbled on one day about 13 years ago while taking a shortcut through the woods near Eagle Creek.

In 1966 Hesse was taking courses in mineralogy at George Washington University. Dissatisfied with the purely theoretical aspects of the university courses, he dropped out after two years and headed West to get his hands on the rocks and discover riches.

After stints in Idaho and Denver, Hesse came to Lincoln County to help a man who said he had found a sealed Aztec treasure cave. The treasure cave remained sealed because the old man couldn't remember where he had found it.

But Hesse did discover Ruidoso and liked it very much.

"I saw this pretty little town with so many bars, so many jukeboxes, so much action and so many girls and said, 'This town's for me!'"

Hesse and a friend began searching the Sacramento Mountains on their own and found the Silver Flume, a silver mine that Hesse said produced more than a million dollars worth of ore around the turn of the century. The two men prospected their claim for a few months and eventually sold it to a potato chip millionaire from Alamogordo for $1,000 each.

Hesse stayed with the mine, dynamiting and digging for the new owner. He also searched out and filed a number of claims in the area for the millionaire.

It was while he was working for that fellow that he took a shortcut through the forest one day and stumbled on a hole in the ground. He thought it was a cave and went to town to get a friend to lower him down into the hole with a rope.

Once through the tiny opening, however, an old mine with two drifts (tunnels) opened up. Hesse filed a claim on the mine in his own name very shortly after.

Since then he has worked the mine off and on a number of times. But the recurring problem of undercapitalization has stopped him time and again. He has not been able to dig beyond the layer of rock that has been leached of its silver content during the years the mine lay unworked.

He has also prospected and traded in the Mexican state of Chihuahua some of the time since first discovering the Hidden Mine. A friend, Raoul Ibarra, got him interested in the mineral potential of Mexico. He headed down there after reading the writings of a famous geographer and mineral expert, Von Humboldt, who said that the area of western Chihuahua was the richest mineralized area in the world.

Hesse spent much of his time exploring remote regions accessible only by burro. In order to support his prospecting efforts he traded with the Indians. He traded products of the modern world—such as Polaroid cameras and battery powered phonographs—for antiques, silver and gold.

He has a half-interest in a gold mine in Mexico near the Urique River but, once again, lack of funds keeps the mine unworked.

Hesse has had his successes, though. An Indian friend once told him he knew a place that abounded in turquoise and drew him a map. Hesse figured it was a tall story and put the map away in his files.

But Hesse said after the Indian died, he got to thinking about the turquoise and eventually followed the map to the place marked.

In one afternoon, Hesse said he dug almost $5,000 worth of turquoise out of the ground, and then sold the rights to the mine for $15,000 to a company better equipped to mine it.

"That turquoise mine made it all worthwhile," he said. He referred to the turquoise bonanza numerous times during an afternoon interview.

Hesse also has an ancient Indian observatory on the Mescalero Apache Indian Reservation named after him. He discovered Wally's Dome one year when he had an exploration permit on the reservation.

Now, he is back in Ruidoso trying to raise capital to excavate his mine. He is advertising in this newspaper and Business Opportunities, a magazine distributed all over the world, for investors.

Hesse figures the mine is old, very possibly Spanish in origin, because of the arched shape of the tunnels and the complete lack of shoring up inside. He believes that it might also have been worked sometime around or before the Civil War, but not since. He has searched extensively in mining records of the area but has found no trace of it anywhere.

The two tunnels go back about 100 feet, but near the entrance is a shaft dropping 15 feet that Hesse believes holds the best chance for finding silver. He figures that the two tunnels were dug first and the shaft near the entrance, later. The latest excavation, he believes, will be the richest.

Why the mine was abandoned is a mystery to Hesse. He surmises that the miners may have been killed by hostile Apache Indians or starved to death or ran out of money to explore further. The entrance was hidden, he said, by rocks he had to move in order to get in. He figures the mine was hidden either by Indians or American or Spanish miners.

He believes that the mine may be rich in ore because it is close to the Silver Flume Mine and has not been as extensively explored. Silver is often found in a gouge area which is the contact zone for two different rock formations. The Hidden Mine has many areas containing the small rocks associated with gouge areas. The mine is also heavily mineralized, which Hesse said bodes well for finding silver.

Hesse's search for the motherlode has not made him rich yet, but he said he is happy with the life he has chosen.

"It's a rough, free life, but it's worth it," he said. He figures he has enjoyed countless hours exploring the wonders of nature and come out of it healthier than someone who works in an office.

As he made one of his roll-your-own cigarettes, he sighed and said, "It's nothing but dreams ... but sometimes it comes true."

PEERING DOWN THE SHAFT of the Hidden Mine Number One is mineral scout Wally Hesse. He hopes to uncover silver in the ancient mine he stumbled across one day while taking a shortcut through the forest.

STEADIED BY A ROPE, Wally Hesse lowers himself into the Hidden Mine Number One. The pistol on his hip is in case he surprises rattlesnakes or bears asleep in the mine.

CONTINENTAL TELEPHONE ASKS FOR HIGHER RATES

Santa Fe, New Mexico (November 10) — Continental Telephone Company of the West made application to the New Mexico State Corporation Commission today for $3.7 million in additional revenue. The company also requested that $1.3 million of the total be granted early on an interim basis, pending a final order on the application.

Continental serves the Espanola, Ruidoso and Truth or Consequences areas.

Under the proposal submitted today, the company is seeking to increase its total revenue by 17% over the June 30, 1982 test year used in the application.

The proposed rates, if approved by the Commission, will increase the average customer's bill 21%. This is based on an average customer's total bill which includes both local and long-distance charges. Some customer's bills will reflect correspondingly higher or lower increases.

The application was made necessary by a lack of toll earnings and increased operating costs, according to Dee Monsen, Customer Services Manager for Continental Telephone's New Mexico operations. Monsen said, "The company recognizes that this represents a substantial increase to its customers, but also believes the need is accurately stated. The earnings of the company must be consistent with similar utilities in the industry if Continental Telephone is to continue to attract the investments necessary to maintain an acceptable level of service."

The company's proposal calls for a maximum increase of $10.50 per month for residential, single-party service in all exchanges. Business telephone rates would go up in varying amounts depending upon the location, type of service, number of lines and equipment use. Telephone connection charges are also being increased to the full cost of providing such service.

The company is further proposing that customers be given the option of maintaining their own telephone wiring in their homes or businesses or paying the company a maintenance fee. This would allow customers some control over a portion of those costs.

Finally, Monsen also noted the cost of operations continues to climb. "In spite of an aggressive program to contain escalating costs," he said, "increased operating expenses have also served to erode the rate of return the company was authorized to earn." In recent years, Continental Telephone's investment has reached record highs, as it responded to the needs of the 11,000 square mile area it serves in northern and southern New Mexico. From 1976 through 1982, Continental Telephone's expenditures for new and upgraded facilities in New Mexico were in excess of $38 million.

The company submitted its rate increase application in two parts. The first part requests the Commission to set hearings to allow the company to demonstrate its need for $3.7 million in additional revenue. The second part urges the Commission to grant interim relief for $1.3 million, which would bring the company's earnings on its investment to the 10.85% rate of return authorized by the Commission in its 1981 decision.

In a letter of transmittal which accompanied the application, company president William S. Hegmann noted the major contributor to the revenue shortfall has been its low earnings from long distance operations. He noted that over one-half of the earnings deficiency is attributable to inadequate returns on toll investments. Hegmann stated he believes the situation is due in part to competition in toll routes that previously provided a subsidy for local service.

Copies of the rate case application and proposed tariff revisions are on file with the New Mexico Corporation Commission in Santa Fe. The documents are also available for public review at each of Continental Telephone's business offices in Espanola, Ruidoso and Truth or Consequences.

Public hearings are expected to be scheduled by the Corporation Commission to review the filing and proposed rates. Customers will be notified in advance of the date, time and location of the hearings.

Customers interested in further information concerning the rate filing can call collect to Santa Fe, 505 988-9814. Monsen said this phone action line is provided to accommodate those customers who wish more information concerning the impact of this rate adjustment on their individual service.

Seven arrested on drug charges

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

A 69-year-old Ruidoso Downs woman was one of seven area persons arrested recently and charged with dealing or distributing drugs.

Francis Sovey is free on $10,000 bond after being arrested October 31 by Ruidoso Police Department (RPD) undercover agents on a charge of trafficking in a controlled substance.

Sovey was arrested after allegedly selling Dilaudid to an undercover policeman, according to police. Dilaudid is a controlled narcotic that usually is used as a substitute for heroin.

It was the first undercover drug investigation ever conducted by RPD without the help of outside agencies, police said.

Lieutenant Dave Pfeffer, RPD operations commander, characterized the bust as "a major operation" for his department. Officers from the RPD Criminal Investigation Division conducted the operation.

Pfeffer said the investigation took place over a month-long period with undercover agents purchasing the drugs in private homes.

The arrests were made over three days at the end of October and early this month, in cooperation with Ruidoso Downs police, State Police and the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department.

Pfeffer said agents purchased about 10 tablets of Dilaudid with a street value of $40 a pill; two grams of heroin at $40 a gram; and over a quarter-pound of marijuana with a street price of about $200.

Pfeffer said the buys cost the department about $700, and he said the Village of Ruidoso furnished the money to the RPD narcotics fund to make the busts.

The persons arrested besides Sovey and charges against them are: Jack Giles, 52, distribution of marijuana; George Frazier, 33, possession of a controlled substance and trafficking; James Baker, 31, trafficking in controlled substances; Henry Padilla, 30, trafficking in controlled substances; Donald Bishop, 30, trafficking in controlled substances; and Julie Keller, 22, conspiracy to traffic in a controlled substance.

Pfeffer said all those arrested are from Ruidoso Downs, except Baker, who is from Ruidoso, and Frazier, who lists an El Paso address.

All but Padilla, who was arrested Sunday afternoon, have bonded out of jail and await arraignment before the grand jury or a preliminary hearing before Magistrate Judge Jim Wheeler. Wheeler said he is not sure if they will go before the grand jury.

Padilla remains jailed in Carrizozo on $20,000 bond.

Pfeffer said most of the arrests were made the night of October 29 at Bishop's residence in Ruidoso Downs. Giles was arrested at another location the same day, while Sovey was picked up on October 31. Padilla was arrested on a warrant while driving through the Downs last Sunday afternoon.

Pfeffer would not say the persons comprise a drug ring, but he did say all but Giles are connected. He said the buys were made from individuals on separate occasions.

Pfeffer stated that police have arrested every individual who was targeted in the investigation.

He said he could give no reason why the elderly woman was involved in selling drugs, but he noted she had a quantity of pills that had a street value of about $9,000.

Pfeffer said the persons all had different sources for the drugs. He said no evidence exists the pharmaceutical drug Dilaudid was obtained through fraudulent prescriptions.

He said three detectives and a communications officer worked over 200 hours in October on the investigation. He said the buys could not have been made without the cooperation of the village administration, which authorized money for the narcotics fund out of the village budget.

Pfeffer pointed out the drug problem is no worse in Ruidoso than "any other town," but he said if RPD had a full-time narcotics officer "he would generate enough seizures and confiscations to pay his salary."

Pfeffer said the department would like to conduct more investigations, but the narcotics fund is depleted and RPD lacks personnel to run undercover operations continuously.

He added that RPD welcomes private donations to the fund.

Sunland Park Hoofbeats

by MARK GORDON

COLTS TOOK EIGHT of the 10 positions in the Sunland Park All-American Sale Futurity after Friday's seven trial races. The only filly to gain a spot in the 400-yard finale on November 21 were Amy Jo Mito, the probable favorite in the race worth $177,925, and Faster Now, a 44-1 outsider in Friday's fourth trial heat. The race is limited to two-year-olds who passed under the gavel at the 1981 All-American Select Quarter Horse Yearling Sale at Ruidoso Downs. The two highest priced sale horses include Cool Seven, who tied for the second-fastest qualifying time and Easy Dinero, the seventh quickest qualifier. Each went for $32,000. The biggest bargain was Amy Jo Mito, who sold for a paltry $4,000. She is the biggest moneymaker in the field with earnings of $130,665 for owner Tommy Joe Hoyt of Powderly, Texas. Indian Lariat, a Hempen colt, zipped to the fastest qualifying clocking with a 20.22 while scoring a two-length victory in the opening trial division. Trained by Richard A. Nolen, he's owned by Victor W. Pryor Jr. and B.J. Howell of Holdenville, Oklahoma. The trials weren't kind to the wagering favorites. Only two of the seven favorites gained berths in the finale. Amy Jo Mito, who returned $2.80 and Easy Dinero, a 6-5 favorite who finished fourth, were the only public choices having a chance at the winner's share of $88,962.54.

THE COMPLETE LIST of qualifiers and their times: Indian Lariat (20.22); Optimax (20.24); Cool Seven (20.24); Faster Now (20.28); Anxious Attack (20.31); Wranglers Go Man (20.33); Easy Dinero (20.35); Amy Jo Mito (20.38); Blms Pass (20.41); and Raise A Hustler (20.42).

HORSES OWNED BY TEXANS grabbed four berths in the third running of the All-American Sale Futurity. Juveniles owned by Arizonans took three spots while Oklahomans gained two and New Mexico had one qualifier to the season's first major quarter horse event at the west El Paso track.

FOR WHAT IS BELIEVED to be a first in New Mexico horse racing, the trifectional handle on Saturday and Sunday surpassed each day's wagering on the Big Q. On Saturday, $43,166 was wagered on the eighth-race trifection where fans attempt to select the first three finishers in their exact order. Saturday's Big Q handle was $41,987 or $1,779 lower than the trifection. On Sunday, the season's largest trifection pool of $48,731 was recorded while the Big Q still posted a respectable pool of $44,525. The trifection was introduced to southern New Mexico race fans at this summer's 77-day horse race meeting at Ruidoso Downs. The Big Q, meanwhile, has long been a popular exotic wagering form in New Mexico. Saturday's trifection of George Aros, Rhome Red and Christian Luck returned a healthy $3,049.60, the second-highest trifection payoff this season. Sunday's return on Decimal Crow, Weldy Jack and Printer's Devil was $977.60.

TRAINER CLIFFORD C. LAMBERT and son Casey Lambert won two consecutive races on Saturday's program. They started with Pocketpurse, who returned $6.80 to win as the $2.40-1 second-wagering favorite in the Texas Derby Prep and then won with George Aros, who paid $9.20 as the $3.60-1 second-wagering choice in the eighth race. Pocketpurse is owned by H. Gil Moutray of Carlsbad, while Bowers Western Wear of Colorado City, Texas, owns George Aros.

TRAINER J. MICHAEL WELCH saddled two winners on Friday's card while Ben Torres accomplished the same feat on Saturday. Welch had Love Tactics ($4.20) in the first race and San Rosa Leah ($2.80) in the fourth race. Kevin Scholl rode Love Tactics, who is owned by the 440 Ranch of Aubrey, Texas, while Richard Bickel steered San Rosa Leah for owner Sue H. May of Fort Stockton, Texas. Torres won with Whirlwinds Driver ($5.40) in the fifth for owners Richard L. and James S. Hughes of Dexter, and Iverny ($3.60) a seven and one-half length winner, for Robert Eden of Albuquerque. Louie Gomez rode Whirlwinds Driver while apprentice Mike Smith was aboard Iverny.

DENIM N DIAMONDS, termed by many insiders as the greatest mare in quarter horse racing history, showed why with an easy two-length win in Sunday's seventh race against five foes at 350 yards. The five-year-old Timeto Thinkrich mare drew off for an easy win in a rapid 17.54 reading (a seasonal best) with a slight tailwind. The race was the first for Denim N Diamonds since she placed second in the World's Championship Quarter Horse Classic on August 1 at Ruidoso Downs. It was her fifth triumph with one second in six outings this season for trainer H. Don Farris. She's owned by R. D. Hubbard of Wichita, Kansas, and was again ridden by regular rider Jerry Nicodemus. In her magnificent career, Denim N Diamonds has posted 24 wins, five seconds and one third from 33 outings. She is ranked 10th among alltime quarter horse moneymakers with winnings of $703,916. As the 1-5 favorite, the mare paid $2.40, $2.20 and $2.10. With $5,978 of the total show pool of $7,761 wagered on Denim N Diamonds, a minus show pool of $1,305.63 was created.

ON SUNDAY, trainer Fred J. Danley saddled two longshot winners. He started with Decimal Crow ($18.20) in the eighth for owner Rita J. Danley of Anthony, New Mexico, and then won the 10th on Easter Honor ($25.60) for owners Jo Ann Drake and Robert N. Miller of Farmington. Apprentice Mike Smith rode Decimal Crow while apprentice David Lidberg guided Easter Honor.

SUNLAND WAGERING continued at a record pace over the weekend. Friday's handle ($230,343) was up 12.35 percent over the same day a year ago. Saturday's $408,296 was up 4.93 percent, and Sunday's seasonal high of $421,255 was up a whopping 29.17 percent. Total handle for the weekend was $1,059,894. From a seasonal standpoint, the daily average is $345,617, up 12.95 percent over the $305,998 at this point a year ago. Fans are now wagering $29,414 per race, up 12.73 percent.

WINNING POST POSITIONS: No. 1 — 15 wins, No. 2 — 19, No. 3 — 21, No. 4 — 19, No. 5 — 20, No. 6 — 14, No. 7 — 14, No. 8 — 9, No. 10 — 5, No. 11 — 0, No. 12 — 0.

TEXAS DERBY PREP. Pocketpurse charges across the wire with a length lead in the $4,000 Texas Derby Prep Saturday at Sunland Park. The duel covered a mile. Pocketpurse, ridden by Apprentice Casey Lambert, rallied out of last place to overtake the plucky pacesetter, Match Strides.

Sunland Park results

UPSET IN THE DANCING MAN. Mighty Duck raced as a 9-5 second favorite in the 870-yard Dancing Man Handicap at Sunland Park, but his number came down for interference at the first turn. That pushed Sunday's Night (Number 4) into the winner's circle. The filly, owned by Sam Henderson of Odessa, Texas, earned $3,585 out of the $5,975 purse. Larry Byers was up.

Mighty Duck disqualified

Mighty Duck rolled to a one and one-fourth length win in Saturday's Dancing Man Handicap at Sunland Park, but the effort turned out to be a fruitless one.

The gelding was disqualified by the stewards for interfering with Bartonville, a 9-1 outsider, shortly after the break in the 870-yard sprint which carried a $5,975 purse.

Mighty Duck, ridden by Leroy Coombs at 121 pounds, ducked in toward the rail, cutting off Bartonville at the first turn.

Later, Mighty Duck assumed command with authority and easily fended off the mild late surge from the 7-1 shot, Sunday's Night, who was ridden by Larry Byers at 121 pounds.

With Mighty Duck disqualified and placed sixth, that moved Sunday's Night into the victory slot. The filly, owned by Sam F. Henderson of Odessa, Texas, earned $3,585 and returned mutual prices of $17.20, $4.80, $3.40. The winning time was 45.47 seconds.

Special Hank, who labored under 126 pounds to hit the wire in third place as an odds-on favorite, was advanced into second, earning $1,314 to go with his '81 money-line of $32,566. Shortly after the race, trainer George Cosper indicated Special Hank had run his last race in 1982.

The gelding, he said, will now be turned out for a rest. In March, he'll return to duty to prepare for the Ruidoso Downs meeting.

Fans who'd supported Special Hank in the Dancing Man 'cap collected mutual returns of $3.20, $2.60. Crow's Request, advanced from fourth to third, returned $3.60 to show.

Saturday's program also included the $4,000 Texas Derby Prep at a mile. The win went to Pocketpurs, a 5-2 shot ridden by Casey Lambert. Pocketpurs came on briskly in the final yards to beat the front-running Match Strides by a length. The latter held on gamely.

Pocketpurs, owned by H. Gil Moutray of Carlsbad, paid $6.80, $3.40, $2.60. Match Strides returned $3.80, $3. Court Compliance ran third as the favorite, paying $2.40. The mile was covered in 1:40 flat.

ART, DINING AND ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE

JOCKEY HARLA WEBB of Ruidoso breathes an obvious sigh of relief after winning last Sunday's Cutarusty Stakes at Sunland Park. Trainer Margie Renfro leads Harla and Frosty Tail into the winner's circle.

Harla wins on Frosty Tail

Frosty Tail, a superhorse among thoroughbreds in New Mexico, made her Sunland Park debut in Sunday's Cutarusty Stakes and cruised to an easy victory.

The filly swept by the tiring pacemaker, Doc's Doll, and ended the five and one-half furlong sprint with a comfortable three and one-fourths length win.

The Cutarusty (limited to two-year-olds) offered a total purse of $6,150, of which $3,690 went to the winner. That hiked Frosty Tail's career income up to a remarkable $207,639.

Frosty Tail has earned more money than any other two-year-old in New Mexico thoroughbred history. She's the property of H. L. Beddo and Dr. Joseph Miller of El Paso, Texas. Margie Renfro is the trainer. The pilot is Harla Webb.

Frosty Tail navigated the Cutarusty course in a snappy 1:04 4/5 seconds, trimming two ticks off the seasonal record. She toted the top weight of 123 pounds and refunded modest mutuel payoffs of $2.80, $3.40, $2.80.

Frosty Tail's entrymate, Centavos, moved steadily from the middle of the pack to finish second, earning $1,353. Centavos was never a threat to the winner. Casey Lambert was up.

Doc's Doll, a 13-1 longshot handled by Brent Overton, finished third, three-fourths lengths behind Centavos. The filly collected $738 and returned $5.60 to show.

Frosty Tail, after breaking in sixth place, appeared to linger toward the back of the pack. For a while, there was some question as to whether jockey Webb would be able to get the people's choice sufficiently motivated.

Doc's Doll got off to a tremendous start and was six lengths in front as she turned for home. Jockey Webb guided Frosty Tail along the rail, making up much ground.

At the top of the lane, Doc's Doll was three lengths on top, but Frosty Tail was moving quickly. Jockey Overton tried his best to keep Doc's Doll going, but it was a hopeless cause. Frosty Tail picked up steam at a rapid clip and literally flew into the lead.

The winner, who made most of her money with conquests of the Petticoat

Stakes and Santa Fe Futurity at Santa Fe during the summer, now holds a shimmering record of six wins and two seconds from eight starts.

Wagering at Sunland continued to boom as Sunday's turnout of 3,761 bet $421,255, a seasonal record. The previous high was the $412,855 set a week earlier (with one more race).

Last year, the first Sunday in November produced a handle of $326,114.

Indian Lariat ropes foes

Indian Lariat posted the fastest qualifying time during Friday's seven trial races for the All-American Sale Futurity at Sunland Park.

The Hempen colt streaked to a two-length victory while recording a 20:22 reading for the 400 yards. It was the swiftest clocking of the 65 two-year-olds who entered the trial heats.

The 10 fastest runners will advance to the 400-yard finale at Sunland Park on November 21. The winner will collect $88,962.54 from the total purse of $177,925.09.

Ridden by Mike Lidberg, Indian Lariat posted his second victory with three seconds and one third in eight outings this year for trainer Richard A. Nolen. He's owned by Victor W. Pryor Jr. and B. J. Howell of Holdenville, Oklahoma.

Two horses tied for the second-fastest reading, each with a 20:24 clocking.

Optimax, an Easy Jet colt, gained a neck win in the fourth division while Cool Seven tallied a half-length verdict in the fifth division.

Although she only gained a neck win in the sixth trial heat with the eighth-fastest qualifying time, Amy Jo Mito will certainly be a factor in the finale.

The Mito Paint filly, who finished fifth in the $2,530,000 All-American Futurity on Labor Day at Ruidoso Downs, captured her seventh victory with one second in 12 outings for trainer Terrell E. Davidson. She's earned $130,665 for owner Tommy Joe Hoyt of Powderly, Texas.

The complete list of qualifiers and their times: Indian Lariat, 20:22; Optimax, 20:24; Cool Seven, 20:24; Faster Now, 20:28; Anxious Attack, 20:31; Wranglers Go Man, 20:33; Easy Dinero, 20:35; Amy Jo Mito, 20:38; Bims Pass, 20:41; Raise A Hustler, 20:42.

Racing resumes at Sunland Park with Saturday and Sunday programs. Post time for each day's 11-race card will be 12:30 p.m.

Yours and Ours

Inside The Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE — Some people have long said up here that the Attorney General's office is a political dead end.

It takes you nowhere, was the theory.

So how come this year we elected three former AG's, Toney Anaya, Jeff Bingaman and Earle Hartley, to high office? Two of them got the best jobs we have to bestow on anyone — and Hartley got one with about the least amount of work for some pretty good pay.

We'll have to rethink our notions about that office.

When they hang the picture of Toney Anaya in that gallery of governors on the fourth floor of the Roundhouse, they may want to make it a moving picture, not a still one.

You can tell already he's going to be a very active governor.

In the first place, that's his nature.

He is unquiet and uncontentative.

Secondly, he wants to leave his imprint on New Mexico.

He'll almost certainly do that if his first few days as governor-elect are any measurement. During that time, he did these things, and many more like them:

— Told us his policies are already set in his mind and all he now needs is the people to carry them out.

— Hired Peat Marwick Mitchell to help him find those people.

— Named Tasia Young, of the Commission on the Status of Women, to help him select women to serve in high posts, including at least four as Cabinet Secretaries.

(The list which previously appeared in this space will be helpful to Tasia. She was the main consultant in drawing it up.)

— Told us he'll fire at least two and maybe all three Public Service Commissioners.

— Planned a kind of centralized public relations operation for all agencies of government, to be operated, of course, by himself.

— Blueprinted a Governor's Office on Children and Youth to draw together programs that are sprinkled through all parts of government.

— And assigned his Lieutenant Governor to ride the horses in parades, cut the ribbons and be photographed with the kiddies — in other words, perform those ceremonies some governors have doted on, which have no real bearing on administering the state properly.

Look for a drumfire of publicity from Toney during the transition period and the first months of the new year which may drive everything else off the telly and the front pages.

Shirley Scarafioti, whom many see as Anaya's alter ego and maybe axe-person, may decide she has had enough and go into retirement.

Not many who hear that theory believe it. Why should she do that, they ask, when the Anaya star is at its zenith?

She told this reporter personally she is considering that option, for health reasons.

She has been on medication from the last day of the primary campaign, suffering from the strains of setting up one of the best-organized political efforts ever seen in New Mexico.

If she goes, it won't be the same without her.

Reporter's Round

by Dave Sheppard

They have drawn their last card, and it appears their hand will not be good enough. The jackpot again will be raked in by the previous champs.

They are the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission (SBAC) and its many supporters. Their counterparts obviously are the official at New Mexico State University. SBAC's wild card was the $50,000 study conducted by the National Academy of Sciences for the Department of the Interior. The contract was the commission's last hope to take the Grand Prize—Site B on Fort Stanton Mesa.

But it was clear from the beginning to SBAC that the deck was stacked in the university's favor.

When word came down in April that scientists were to comprise the elite Academy panel, and that those experts were given the task of evaluating fellow scientists, SBAC and concerned residents alike sounded the call of partiality.

That accusation rang again in the valley when the study results surfaced a few weeks ago.

"I take it the feeling is that this wasn't the most objective job," concluded SBAC chairman Fred Heckman after his fellow commissioners perused the 55-page document.

"Biased is the word," grumbled Harrold Mansell.

Indeed, the report tips the scale to the favor of the university. Each of the eight conclusions of the study points to the detrimental loss of important research if an airport is built on Site B. Not one of the conclusions is favorable to the airport commission.

The Academy committee wrote that an airport would: eliminate the grazing and associated studies on the mesa; prevent NMSU from integrating individual studies; eliminate an important public reserve for present or future research use; and that it could have adverse effects on the "morale" and careers of the faculty and graduate students.

The committee also concluded that it "sees no way to mitigate the effect of the airport" on the research projects; and that the faculty would have to be "motivated" to repeat work already begun but prematurely terminated.

The panel devoted a part of the report to the requirements of the airport proposal. The scientists noted original plans done by consultants to SBAC called for removal of about 2,000 acres of the experimental range for the airport.

But the panel says the estimated size of the facility is "confused" because of a letter from Heckman noting requirements were scaled down to a maximum of 512 acres. Heckman told the committee when it was here in May that the original request was so large because of Bureau of Land Management requirements on the land survey.

Heckman emphasized the airport never needed more land than the present request of under 600 acres.

Additionally, in referring to a section of the airport consultant's master plan, the committee includes a quote from the plan that notes the airport acreage will vary upward to provide for ancillary development areas, "commercial and industrial lease plots" and space for "storage and industrial activities."

But Heckman has said his commission rejected that part of the consultant's work because SBAC never intended to include commercial or industrial expansion at the site.

The NAS report does not mention SBAC's disapproval of the expansion.

The report also says: "Despite assurances of (SBAC) that plans ... are complete, it seems only logical to expect gradual encroachment of human use and development in the vicinity of the airport. This will have a variety of serious impacts (vandalism, disturbance, poaching, etc.) on the research."

SBAC was right last week, it was not the most objective job.

Was it ever supposed to be? The introduction to the contract reads that the Department of the Interior needs "an independent, objective, and fully credible review of the research at Fort Stanton," to help it reach a decision in considering the airport request.

Therein lies the problem over the question of objectivity. The third party study was never directed to attempt to balance SBAC's proposal with the value of the research. The evaluation of the research only was intended to be objective.

Granted, the panel ventures into unjust speculation when it says gradual encroachment, vandalism and poaching is to be expected. That is unfair to SBAC when no evidence is produced for the claims. But perhaps it should be expected from scientists who, in any case, will try to protect and justify information of research—exaggeration helps solidify their cause.

The question now is: What will be the Interior Department's decision? The contract notes the department will use the study, along with other relevant information, in weighing the importance of the research to the importance of the airport site.

Heckman said last week he was unsure if a decision has been handed down by DOI. It may be foolish to anticipate a ruling that contradicts the Academy study. But the pro-development philosophy of Interior Secretary James Watt may play a part.

If Interior allows the study conclusions to take precedence, SBAC will have to concentrate on acquiring Site A, which will involve some difficult land swaps between federal, state and private concerns.

Seeking Watt's influence in the trades would be a worthwhile tactic if, in return, the commission would abide by a pro-NMSU decision on Site B.

Editorial

Who you gonna root for in a deal like that?

It was the good guys versus the bad guys in the Salt Creek Wilderness near Roswell earlier this week when protesters attempted to stop Yates Petroleum from drilling for natural gas.

Which were the good guys and which were the bad guys depends on your point of view.

It is commendable when a person believes in something strongly enough to put himself in a hard-ship situation—like pitching a tent in front of a bulldozer—to stand up for his belief.

Witness Dave McDonald, who became something of a folk hero when he defied the entire U.S. Army with his armed occupation of his former ranch on White Sands Missile Range.

The environmentalists who attempted to block the drilling must be congratulated for their gumption.

But what of the drillers? Faced with a deadline for developing its state lease on mineral rights within the wilderness, Yates said "feds be damned" (they did not have required surface access permits) and went ahead.

In the past, America has relied on that sort of initiative in the search for the energy we depend on. That reliance will only increase in the future.

So we have to take our hat off to both sides.

Here's to the environmentalists, without whose concern for the wilderness the entire country might become an oil patch.

And here's to the drillers, who did what many businessmen would love to do—throw an environmentalist into a ditch.—TP

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

It's time for some good news about Ruidoso. Folks — do you ever go into the Ruidoso Library? It's great and the ladies who work there are just super. For a Village, our size, the Library is truly outstanding.

Did it ever occur to you that our Fire Department is considered one of the best in the state? The reason why is simple, it's called Pride. The Volunteers and professionals spend hundreds of hours sharpening their skills. The good folks of Harmony Valley can never repay the volunteers of the past, present and future for the hours they donate.

Our Schools!! On ACT tests our kids are way above the state average. Why! It's simple, it's called Pride. We do not have money for a lot of equipment like bigger schools, so our teachers improvise and the kids benefit. Any kid who wants an education can get it here. And what about our DECA program? It is constantly in the top five of all high schools in the United States.

Our band and athletic programs have no money, but somehow they make do. The band is small, less than 50 members, yet they really play and march very, very well. They do it because of Pride.

If you want to know the meaning of Pride, spirit and guts, you should have watched our physically small and inexperienced football team in action. They truly exemplified the spirit of Ruidoso.

There is no question that in the last year our Police Department has developed into one of the best trained and dedicated groups in the southwest. They are all doing a thankless job with spirit and what else, THAT'S RIGHT — they do it with Pride!

What about our soccer, baseball, football, Jr. Ski Racing team and gymnastics programs! All are totally funded and supported by the local citizens who volunteer hundreds of hours of their time as well as their money. They do it because of Pride.

Think about it! Ruidoso people do all things better. They do it out of Pride. I call it the Ruidoso Spirit.

Most folks in Harmony Valley have this Spirit. It's everywhere you look. Of course there are a few folks that haven't caught the spirit yet. But that's O.K. because every community needs a few old sore heads.

Martin Rose

Dear editor:

If we were native Ruidosans perhaps we would share Terry Coe's concerns about non-native Carpenters and Builders invading the territory. (Terry's letter to editor 11/4/81).

Now, we are not sure what the definition of "native" is; perhaps we are one since we voted here in the last election. Of course, if only natives lived here there would be little need for many native carpenters and builders as there would be very few residents. Perhaps Terry is a true native but we suspect that most local people as well as carpenters and builders came here from elsewhere for some of the same reasons as we did, opportunity, climate, beauty, to be associated with others with positive mental attitudes, where the local paper carries a minimum of negative news, etc., not necessarily in that order.

Terry would have us believe that all new mountain homes will sell for 25 cents on the dollar; if anyone hears of one being offered that way, please call me and I'll buy it! Builders of shoddily constructed homes may suffer, however, we would discourage builders of quality homes from immediately jumping out the 13th story window on the basis of Terry's judgment; there will always be buyers glad to pay the price for quality.

Could we be our own worst enemy in talking about how depressed the economy and the real estate market is? For some reason beyond our imagination, some Realtors, builders and others seem to delight in exaggerating how bad things are, including the real estate market, even when it isn't so bad, which makes very little sense, since the wealth of most of us is in real estate and the livelihood of some of us is directly dependant upon real estate sales. Why not exaggerate the positive?

Sincerely yours,
Earl M. Snyder

DENTENTE AND SLAVE LABORERS

Somewhere in the northern part of the Soviet Union, laborers are battling the permafrost, cold temperatures and high winds to construct the Siberia-to-West Europe gas pipeline. There have been reports that the laborers are slaves. To find out, West European nations have called for an investigation.

What should one expect the Europeans to find? Will the Soviets amicably open their borders to allow the Europeans to get truthful answers? Or is it more likely that the Soviets will allow the investigators to see only the people and places the Soviets want them to see?

The Soviet Union has refused the United Nations access to data that may prove or disprove charges the Soviets have tested chemical weapons on innocent civilians in Laos, Cambodia and Afghanistan. The Soviets have denied U. N. investigators access to any information about a plant accident and anthrax outbreak that may have killed hundreds of Soviet laborers.

The mere suggestion that the Soviets will tell the Europeans whether or not slaves are being used to build the controversial pipeline is absurd. A whitewash is more likely. —Albuquerque Journal

Family, missions emphasized in Mormon Church

by BARBY GRANT
Staff Writer

The Mormon Church (Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints) is very much oriented toward family and missions, according to local branch president Wyman Scarborough. In fact, the local Mormon branch is sponsoring a Family Week November 14-21 for the entire village.

Mayor George White has proclaimed that week Family Week and a variety of activities are being planned to encourage family togetherness. Families Are Forever is the theme of the week, announced Carol Martin, publicity director for the local Mormon group.

Families are encouraged to stay at home Monday evening and spend time together in some activity. A safety seminar will be presented by Boy Scout Troop 107 Tuesday, November 16, at 7 p.m. at the public library. Wednesday is planned as a family workday, with a trash-a-thon scheduled at Two Rivers Park at 4 p.m. A prize will be given to the family picking up the most trash.

Thursday, November 18, is Build a Strong Nation Day, with a guest speaker scheduled to talk on the subject of patriotism. Boy Scout Troops 59 and 107 will perform a flag etiquette ceremony.

A family film festival is planned for Friday from 4 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the public library. Saturday will be family fun day, with games, activities and refreshments available at Schoolhouse Park.

Sunday is set aside for family worship, with all area families encouraged to attend a church of their choice together.

The purpose of the program, Martin explained, is "to create a stronger bond in the family and get families to do more things together." The Mormon group is encouraging all families in the area to participate in the week's activities.

"Stronger families build a stronger nation," Martin noted.

Mormons practice family togetherness on a regular basis, not only when special activities are scheduled. Every Monday night is set aside as family home meeting night, during which families are encouraged to participate in activities at home. No outside meetings should be scheduled for that evening, Scarborough noted.

Friday evening is date night, when husbands and wives are encouraged to go out alone together.

"We consider the family as a little bit of heaven on earth if it is run right," Scarborough remarked. Being run right means the "father and mother preside together in the home, but they should preside righteously," the Mormon branch president explained.

But everyone in the family should have a voice in matters, he noted. Family counsels during which all members discuss topics of interest and concern to them are encouraged, Scarborough pointed out.

Block meetings on Sundays have been established in the Mormon Church to allow more time to be spent at home. All Sunday programs and services are set up during the time from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., Scarborough said.

Groups meeting at 10 a.m. include Relief Society, Priesthood, primary and young women. The Relief Society is the women's organization, which Scarborough said is the oldest organization of women in the United States. These meetings teach members spiritual living, social relationships, cultural refinement and homemaking skills.

There are two priesthood groups—the Aaronic Priesthood for young men and the Melchizedek Priesthood for the older men of the church. The Aaronic Priesthood and the Young Women's Association members (ages 12-18) participate in spiritual activities, service projects and social gatherings in addition to their class meetings on Sundays.

Members of the Melchizedek Priesthood are the presiding officers of the church. Primary is the class for elementary school age through 12-year-old members.

Following the group meetings at 10 a.m. is Sunday School for various ages, and at 12 p.m. is the sacrament meeting.

Each member of the church participates in some capacity after he is called by the branch president to serve. "Everybody has a calling," Scarborough pointed out.

As branch president, Scarborough is the presiding officer over the branch—the spiritual and temporal leader. "I counsel members in spiritual and temporal affairs and preside over meetings," Scarborough explained.

"I'm the little shepherd that loves its flock," he remarked.

Scarborough makes a living by operating a feed store in Hondo, as there is no paid ministry in the Mormon Church, he reported. He joined the Mormon Church in 1976 while he was living in California.

Scarborough had lived in Ruidoso from 1968 to 1974, serving as manager of the Chamber of Commerce for two years and operating his own business. He returned to this area from California in 1980.

He had served in several other capacities within the church before being called by the state president to serve as branch president here.

In addition to an emphasis on family, the Mormon Church stresses mission work, Scarborough noted.

"It has to be working," the Mormon branch president commented. "We have 30,000 19-year-old men spending 18 months in full-time mission work, which they finance on their own." The sole purpose of this concentrated mission work is proselytizing, Scarborough said.

"They are out to teach the gospel of Jesus Christ," he noted. "They do it in a loving way." Scarborough said this work trains the young men to be better people.

Two young Mormon men have recently begun three or four months of such mission work in the Ruidoso area. They were appointed to this area by their local church presidents, and one is from Utah and one is from Idaho, Scarborough explained.

He said many children in the Mormon Church begin putting aside money when they are very young to finance this period of mission work when they are teenagers. Their only training is a two-week period at the missionary training center in Utah, during which they are taught presentations and discussions to be used for proselytizing.

Another indication of the emphasis on mission work in the Mormon Church, Scarborough said, is the growth experienced in the past year or so in the local Mormon group. This has led to the purchase of land for a building.

The Lincoln County group currently holds meetings at the Ruidoso Woman's Club building.

An average attendance of 60 at the sacrament meetings is required before a local ward or branch is permitted to have its own church building, Scarborough reported. In the last year-and-a-half to two years, he noted, the average attendance locally has been 70 families, up from an attendance of about 16 to 20 before that time. "We've really started growing," the branch president stated. Asked what he attributes that growth to, Scarborough said, "The members caught the missionary spirit and helped things blossom." He also attributes the growth to "the Lord's blessings."

The land acquired for the building lies between Capitan and Ruidoso. Construction of a church home should begin this month and be completed by mid-summer, Scarborough pointed out.

The first phase of the building will include a multi-purpose room and classrooms. Phase two—which can be started after the branch experiences an average attendance of 100—will consist of the chapel. The building will eventually be completed with construction of a gymnasium and cultural hall—permitted when attendance reaches 150.

Scarborough said the Mormon Church is very athletics-conscious, with each church including a gymnasium once attendance reaches the required level.

After a branch reaches an attendance of about 150, however, it becomes a ward, Scarborough explained. But when attendance continues to grow, the ward splits into separate units to keep each group small.

The goal of the local branch, Scarborough said, is to have three different units in the county, all utilizing the planned building at different times.

"I'd like to see a ward in Carrizozo, Ruidoso and Capitan," he noted.

This goal certainly does not seem unattainable, considering the growth of the Mormon Church worldwide. Scarborough reported it is the fastest growing church in the country, averaging about 250,000 converts a year.

Asked to explain the tremendous growth of Mormonism, he agreed that the individual mission work is one factor.

"People in a world suffering from immorality are looking for something; they're looking for fulfillment," Scarborough added. "People just need God in their lives."

He said the fact that there are so many denominations of churches indicates that people are not being satisfied in their spiritual lives.

Scarborough and new Mormon convert Martin both emphasized that membership in the Mormon Church is "a way of life probably more than any other church."

"We live it because we love the church and the work and the Lord," he said.

"We don't isolate ourselves from the world because we love all men," Scarborough added, "but we're a very close-knit unit."

He said the Mormon Church "is probably the most misunderstood church today." But members would like to change that.

"I'd like to invite everybody to visit us," Scarborough concluded, "and just come out and find out for themselves what we believe, and get to know us."

MAYOR GEORGE WHITE signs the proclamation declaring November 14 to 21 "Family Week" as Elder Steven Turner (left), Elder Michael McGill and Carol Martin look on. The local Mormon branch has scheduled a week full of activities to encourage family togetherness throughout the area.

The Timberline Boys Hit The Big Time

On November Eight, at the Black's Feed and Supply in Ruidoso Downs, I had a pleasant visit with a beautiful little lady who had just returned from a journey to the experience of a life-time.

Mrs. Jack Black, affectionately known as "Eddie," fairly beamed as she told of being present at the International Battle of The Bands in Nashville, Tennessee — where the Timberline Band won third place out of more than 1,600 bands from all over the United States.

Held at the Tennessee Performing Arts Center in Nashville, the event was a thrilling experience in itself. But think how Eddie must have felt to be present and see the band go to the top when the two charter members are her son, Roy and son-in-law, Kim Blakey.

Eddie, who went in company of twenty-some family members of the musicians, said:

"I would not have missed it for the world. The people from all over the country were so friendly and there was such a good spirit through the whole competition."

One of the high points of the event, Eddie said, was that during the judging on the final night of October twenty-third, all the band members were called up on the stage and together they sang many old favorite songs that "just about brought you to the ceiling," as Eddie expressed it.

Among the songs sung were: "This Land Is Your Land," "Battle Hymn Of The Republic" and "Shall The Circle Be Unbroken."

Members of the band are as follows: Kim Blakey, lead guitar; Roy Black, bass guitar; Craig Yuetter, keyboard; and Donnie Finnemore, drummer.

A while back I used to drop by the Black's feed store where Kim Blakey was in charge. Kim would get down his guitar and play and sing. Some of my favorites were his yodeling songs which called back memories of the great Jimmie Rogers of the late twenties and early thirties. I could see right away that Kim had the natural gift as a singer and musician to go to the top.

He coached his friend Roy Black along until Roy became an ace bass guitarist. I threatened to sit in with them sometime there at the feed store; but I could never get hold of another tenor banjo.

Joe Redinger recently presented me with a tenor banjo which has given me many hours of pleasure, although when I reach back to "Mexicali Rose," "Saint Louis Blues," and "Chinatown, My Chinatown," I find that I have just about "lost my lick" as the bronc rider says, and will need a lot of practice to get back what little banjo playing I had.

So we congratulate the Timberline Boys on their giant step toward world-wide recognition; and we remind Eddie that it was her presence that had a great deal to do with the Timberline Boys' splendid accomplishment.

All Congratulations To Bones Wright

One of the most remarkable achievements I ever heard of was the record set by Bones Wright of twenty-five years of perfect attendance at the Evening Lions Club.

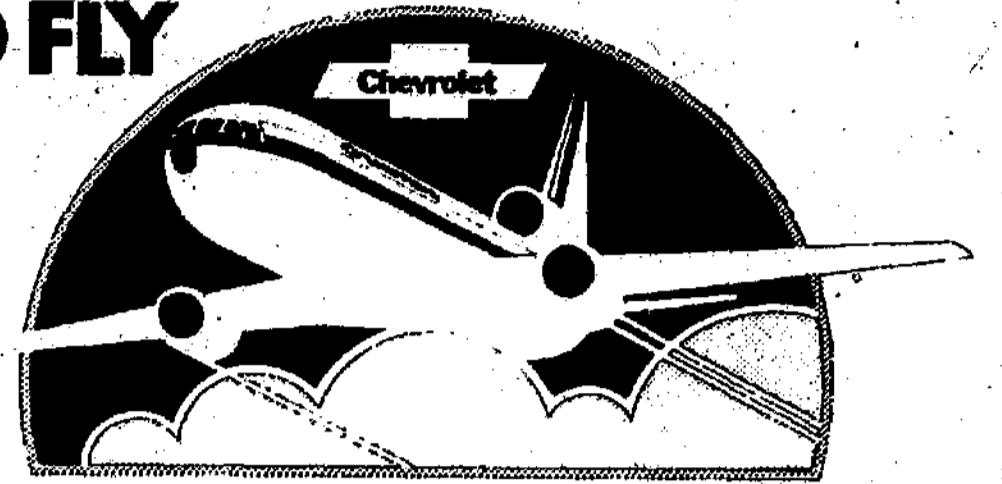

It is all the more remarkable when you know that Bones is one of the busiest men you ever saw, being involved in many worthy projects besides his thriving business.

Now when he makes it twenty-five more, Dub Williams can hand him the "Bi-Century Attendance Record Medal."
