Water bond vote postponed

by TIM PALMER
Staff Writer

Ruidoso trustees voted Tuesday night to remove the proposed $8 million water improvements bond issue from the March 2 municipal election ballot.

This will necessitate a special election on the bond issue 30 to 45 days after the regular election.

The action came on a motion by trustee Frank Sayer, who expressed concern that rumors of a possible conflict of interest might hurt the bond issue's chances of passing.

Sayer alluded to an editorial in the January 25 issue of The Ruidoso News which called for full disclosure of ownership of the property upon which the village proposes to build a water storage reservoir.

"I think water is too important to be embroiled in petty jealousies and the thoughts of small people," said Sayer.

Trustee George White reminded the group that he was in favor of a special election for the bond issue originally. The trustees voted to place it on the regular election ballot at their December 29 meeting.

The argument that the large voter turnout expected for the March election would mean more voters for the bond issue was raised by trustee Sherman Atwood.

"Something this important should have the largest turnout we can get," he said.

Trustee Benny Coulston said that letters to the editor in The News have made insinuations on the ability of the trustees to solve the village water problem. He noted that thousands of dollars have been spent on water studies.

"I've been on the council two years—that (water) has been the number one topic for two years," Coulston said. Speaking of a need to educate the public on the proposed water improvements, White said, "We're liable to get this defeated if we don't."

"I seriously doubt whether or not it would pass," said Sayer, noting that "small town conversations going around" could damage it.

Sayer's motion to remove the bond issue from the March 2 ballot passed with three "ayes" as Coulston abstained. Coulston said after the meeting that he has abstained from all trustee votes concerning the reservoir site because he is associated with the owner of the Grindstone Canyon land, Don Dorman. He stated that neither he nor Sayer are involved in ownership of the land.

THREE ITEMS relating to tourism and commerce were presented to the trustees at Tuesday's meeting.

The Lodgers Tax Committee reported on its decision to send a Ruidoso delegation to a vacation industry trade show in Dallas. Ed Hyman, committee chairman, explained that six or seven people will attend the six-day show and pass out brochures on Ruidoso.

"This is kind of a trial balloon," said Hyman. "We picked the biggest and best show in our trade area."

LETTERS FROM the Chamber of Commerce and Retail Merchants Committee concerning the need for a civic center and increased parking, respectively, were presented to the trustees. The board encouraged representatives of the groups to pursue their efforts.

In other action, the trustees: —Were informed by street superintendent Jack La May that the old hot mix plant brought $19,000 at auction.

—Received a proposal from Lincoln County for locating a county substation on airport land. The county commissioners agreed to resubmit the proposed building location, which was on an easement.

—Instructed the village attorney, on his advice, to accept an agreement with Fawn Ridge water users which will enable them to buy water from the village if they need it and if it is available.

—Heard a proposal from the Women's Club to participate in a program to install fire hydrant locator devices. The club was advised to confer with the Fire Department and fire prevention officer.

—Approved election officials for the March 2 municipal election.

—Approved Resolution 82-1 for revisions to the village budget.

—Authorized the village manager and village attorney to negotiate for the purchase of water rights that have been offered for sale.

—Were told by village manager Jim Hine that he will "keep trying" to arrange a public meeting on the proposed acquisition of the Ruidoso Natural Gas Company by the village at which the consulting engineer would be present.

RON BOWMAN, area manager for the Dale Carnegie Courses, outlines a plan at Tuesday's MLS meeting which may help realtors become more professional, productive and successful in their jobs.

MLS heard Dale Carnegie presentation

The Multiple Listing Service (MLS) committee of the Board of Realtors heard on Tuesday morning a talk by Dale Carnegie Course area manager Ron Bowman on becoming more professional and successful in their work.

Employing entertaining gimmicks, anecdotes and visual aids to clarify his points, Bowman outlined a thought plan designed to help the realtors become more motivated and effective.

Bowman's primary point was that to be successful in sales, one must first establish goals. He said that money, a big house or fancy cars were not goals, but the result of goals. "Your goal should be to become the most professional realtor," Bowman said. One must know where he or she is going if they ever want to arrive there and that means setting up goals as a guide, said Bowman.

Secondly, Bowman said that self-confidence, a strong belief in oneself and what one wants, is essential to making it as a salesperson. Once professional goals are clear and a person is determined, then no obstacle should be too great to prevent success, said Bowman.

A third major point which Bowman introduced to his attentive audience was action. A person who is goal-oriented and committed need only act to complete their plan for success. "In selling, action is the name of the game," Bowman said.

All three ingredients—defining goals, self-confidence and taking action—lead to productivity which is just a step away from success, said Bowman. He said that in American society there are plenty of opportunities to succeed and that all we need to do is ask. Bowman also gave away a book entitled "How to Stop Worrying and Start Living."

In other MLS related business, Rick Bowers brought the group up to date on the Hilton Hotel proposal which will be presented to Planning and Zoning Commission February 1 at 9:30 a.m., in the Ruidoso Municipal Building. "The Hilton Hotel proposal is alive and well," he said. Also, Janet Warlick-Pearson, president of the Board of Realtors, announced that negotiations on a building for the MLS and board of realtors are currently and actively being pursued.

Accreditation study planned at high school

A team of 15 educators from throughout the state will be visiting the Ruidoso High School campus January 31-February 3 to study and appraise the quality of the programs at the school.

The North Central Association (NCA) New Mexico Committee has appointed the team in relation to obtaining accreditation of the high school.

NCA membership requires every school to undergo a complete evaluation once every seven years. The evaluation includes a comprehensive self-study by the school, then a review by a team of outside educators.

After the team's visit, the staff will consider the recommendations made by the team, along with those that resulted from the school's self-study. The staff will then decide upon the areas of the program that need to be strengthened, and will devise a schedule of steps towards improving those areas.

NCA, the nation's largest regional accrediting association, is a voluntary league of approximately 4,300 schools and more than 750 colleges and universities within the nineteen states served by the NCA. The association works with individual schools to improve the quality of education through a continuous process of evaluation and accreditation.

Chairing the team who will visit the high school is Dr. George Stoumbis of the University of New Mexico (UNM). Other members of the team include Dr. I. V. Payne of Eastern New Mexico University (ENMU); Glen Crane and Bill Stowe, both of Capitan High School; Leo Fiebigler, Dorothy Christensen and Bob Perry, all of Socorro High School; Jo Beth Edwards and Lonnie Crowder of ENMU—Clovis campus; Richard Bunker of Alamogordo Mid High School; Linda Copeland of Garfield Middle School in Albuquerque; Karen Olguin of Wilson Middle School in Albuquerque; Michael Dorame of Tularosa High School; James Whitlow and John Rinaldi, both of UNM.

Many candidates seek election

Eleven persons declared their candidacy for the various positions which will be contested in the March 2 Ruidoso municipal election.

Incumbent municipal judge Sam Nunnally was the only person to file for that position.

Two persons, incumbent Lloyd L. Davis Jr., and trustee George White, declared their candidacy for the office of mayor of Ruidoso.

Eight persons filed for the two positions on the board of trustees. Besides incumbents Sherman Atwood and Frank Sayer, the candidates are: Al Junge, Mike Morris, Romeo Klein, Bill Streeter, Jerry Shaw and Terry Coe.

Candidates in Ruidoso Downs filed Tuesday for the four village government positions of mayor, two trustees and a village judge.

Those filing for the two trustee openings are incumbent Lois Beavers, Jessie Charles Harris and Lee Boyles.

Mayoral candidates include John Columbus (J.C.) Day Jr., Norman Wheeler, incumbent, Bob Power and Melvin "Boots" Nelson.

Running unopposed for the municipal judge is Fred Bernard.

In Capitan, those announcing candidacy for mayor are incumbent Don B. Stark, Richard R. Coons, Vernon Kelly Beavers and Alfred Leroy Montes.

Those running for trustee are Harold Shelby, Frankie Miller, Madison Cook and incumbents Bennie Coker and Sharon Horton.

Municipal elections will be March 2.

Don Dorman owner of Grindstone dam site

The portion of Grindstone Canyon in which the Ruidoso trustees are considering building a 1,000 acre foot water dam is owned by Don Dorman, Ruidoso.

Dorman, with Mike Mulholland, Ruidoso, began planning residential/commercial development on the tract of land, presently encompassing about 300 acres, in 1978. Mulholland is no longer associated with the project.

"The ultimate owners of this property,"

Dorman said to The News Wednesday, "are The Grindstone Corporation and Grindstone Corporation Number Two. Four other people, all living in Texas, own a very small percentage of the area."

"In all action by the village trustees concerning this land," Dorman said, "trustee Benny Coulston has abstained from voting, because he is my exclusive real estate agent."

Downs eyeing flood study hearing

Ruidoso Downs trustees met briefly Monday night in a regular session.

Trustees passed a $547 request from the street department to purchase a three and one half yard barrel cement mixer from American Auction.

Presented at the meeting was the flood insurance study. The study includes flood study maps which indicate which areas are in the flood plain. Virginia Spall, village clerk, said the village attorney has prepared an ordinance to be adopted according to the study. However, there must be a public hearing on the issue first.

Downs announces numbering system, sewer hookup date

Ruidoso Downs officials are in the process of assigning house numbers to residences as well as preparing for the village to connect to the new waste water system.

The village has recently completed street sign placement and has assigned house numbers on each street. According to village clerk Virginia Spall, residents should call Municipal Hall with a legal description of the property, to obtain house numbers.

Also announced was that all occupied property in Ruidoso Downs which is to be served by the public sewer system, shall be connected to the system by June 1, 1982, at which time, upon public notice, the system will be available for actual use.

All sewer connections will be performed by a licensed plumber. Permits will be issued by the village beginning March 1, 1982, according to Spall. The fee for obtaining a permit for each connection or opening into the public sewer will be $50 which must be paid upon application for such a permit.

Other licenses and permits available from the village include registration for businesses at $25 each; cat and dog license tags, $3 each; and two yard dumpsters at $35. Building permits must be obtained and posted on any construction.

P&Z sets hearing on Hilton Inn

A public hearing on a rezoning request for the proposed site of a Hilton Inn is scheduled for the 9:30 a.m., Monday meeting of the Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission at the Village Administrative Center.

Developer Jim O'Leary's request to rezone the 7.93 acres of Sierra Swim and Racquet Club Tracts from residential to commercial was tabled by the commission at last month's meeting.

Monitoring of new developments, as concerns potential building problems and fire prevention, will be the subject of a presentation to the commission by building inspector Don Hendricks and fire prevention officer Ollie Cuddy.

Other items on the commission agenda are:

— Public hearing on rezoning request from R-1 to R-2 on a portion of Lot 5 of Snowflake Ridge and from R-1 to R-2 and C-1 on a portion of Lot 6 of Snowflake Ridge for AVC Development.

— Final plat of Carrizo Lodge phases two and three for Petro Plex Sales.

— Replat of Lots 94, 95 and 97, Block B of Sleepy Hollow for Vincent Bash.

— Final plat of Whispering Bluff Condominiums for James Japhet Enterprises.

Hondo Schools plan levy election

Hondo Valley Public Schools patrons will vote on a two mill levy, February 16, to finance a continuation of the renovation project currently underway.

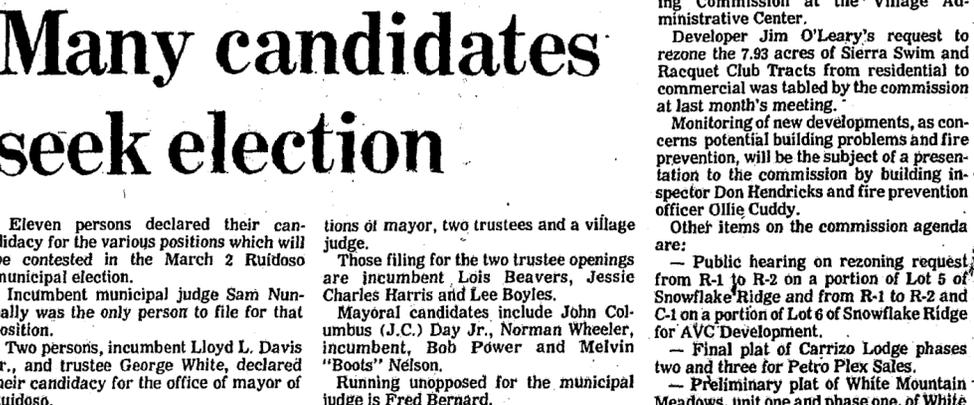

Superintendent Ernest Booky said the school district has a certified evaluation of $5,718,345.

"Based on a 510 total program unit count," Booky said, "the two mill levy would provide $35,700 a year for three years. Only $11,400 will come from local sources, with the state's matching funds amounting to $24,300."

Three-fourths of the revenue, Booky said, will be awarded the school district in July, with the other one-fourth in January for three succeeding years.

Booky said the renovation project, financed by a $304,000 bond issue, will be completed in May.

"The property tax rate will not be increased (by passage of this mill levy)," Booky said. "The new property tax rate, as stated during the August bond issue election, included this two mill levy."

Ronie Fryer, Zina Holcomb, Erika Corona, Leslie Miranda; standing, Roberta Randolph, Roberta Montoya, Shala Gaosalin, Tresa Halbrooks, Christie Isler, Beth Sweeney and Charmaine Rue.

Chamber directors air plans for non-cycle Aspencade

Jungbluth, executive director of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce, called a special meeting of the board of directors to discuss action should be taken in response to Thompson's disclosure that he would sponsor an aspencade motorcycle convention in Ruidoso this year.

Director Morgan Clough moved that a committee be formed to define a period, title and theme for what he called "The First Annual Return to Aspen in Ruidoso." The board approved the motion unanimously and immediately in throwing out ideas to be taken back to the committee.

Cher Wilson, a board director, said some motorcyclists by habit would be coming to Ruidoso at that time of the year anyhow and that something would have to be done to entertain those riders. He said that this was a chance to try new things and to diversify. "We need to attract new people to Ruidoso. This could be the best thing that's happened to us," said director Jerry Bigham. He also suggested that the festival's motorcycle slant be played down.

Director Larry Langford said that something positive should be gained from this experience. Mentioning the Chamber's concern for area merchants during early October, Langford expressed the need to "fill this town up. If everybody participates and does something, it will come together as one gigantic celebration," he said.

Jungbluth revealed to the board of directors what had transpired between he and Thompson on the day before. "I'll come in dressed to the nines and in a hurry. He was on his way to El Paso to catch a plane to New York to consummate his Aspencade 1982 deal," said Jungbluth. Thompson told Jungbluth that the motorcycle convention would be promoted by the Forbes people of Forbes Magazine fame and that it would take place in the Adirondack Mountains in the state of New York. Thompson said the convention will take place at the end of September, 1982, and that 20,000 registrants are expected.

The board bandied about several ideas to be discussed in committee. Some of those suggestions to be included in an autumn festival were a chili cookoff, a custom or antique car show, a golf tournament, a skeet shooting contest, a new ski show, a jazz festival and even a bigger and better parade.

Special Olympics action underway

Participants in the Winter Special Olympics are mostly from the southern part of the state, although there are some groups from parts of Texas and Mexico.

While the group of approximately 100 Special Olympians have been staying at the Nazarene Church Camp, several service groups in the area have donated their time and services to sponsor meals for the group.

Lunch on Tuesday was put on by the Christian Women's Fellowship, with dinner served at Fort Stanton, where the group spent the evening in various activities.

Wednesday's breakfast was sponsored by the Evening Lions with lunch provided by the Jaycees. Dinner was served by the Altrusa Club of Ruidoso.

Today's lunch is sponsored by Continental Telephone of Las Cruces/Roswell with dinner compliments of Beta Sigma Phi. The Rotary Club will serve the group breakfast Friday while those staying for lunch that day will be served by Security Bank of Ruidoso.

Spectators are welcome at today's competition as well as any volunteers who feel they can donate their services in some area.

Anyone still wishing to make a donation to the New Mexico Winter Special Olympics may do so at any branch of the Ruidoso State Bank.

The Ruidoso and Cloudcroft areas have all this at now, and more. However, visitors should always be prepared for sudden winter storms, said Ouida Curtis of the Lincoln National Forest office in Alamogordo.

Skiing, tubing, and snowmobiling are in full swing. To check on current weather, wind conditions, and fuelwood areas, call the districts. The Apache Loop Cross-country Ski Trail is receiving light to moderate use. Upper Karr Canyon is open for tubing, sledding, and snowmobiling, but skiing is a problem as the lot has not been plowed.

Chamber plans Valentine's Espree Party

The Chamber of Commerce will stage a Valentine's Espree Party, February 16, at Jerry Dale's, with the major attraction being a $10,000 merchandise certificate.

The person receiving the certificate, said Chamber executive director Ed Jungbluth, can take it to any Chamber member and "buy land, a car, advertising — there's no end to the possibilities." Once something is purchased with the certificate, a check will be issued by the Chamber in payment.

Throughout the evening consolation awards will be presented to those attending the party.

DWI violations flagrant

BY TIM PALMER Staff Writer

Ruidoso Police do not mince words in describing the problem of persons driving while intoxicated in this area.

"Pathetic," said one, "Asinine," another called it, "Honesty, it's astronomical," a third said.

The law which prohibits operation of a motor vehicle by a person with a blood alcohol level greater than .10 percent is "blatantly ignored," according to administrative officer Jim Alston.

"DWI is not considered a serious offense by the average person," Alston said. Chief of Police Dick Swenor said that there is an adage in police work that says while a cop is handling one DWI, 10 more drive by.

Police are very aware of the number of drunk drivers on the road, Swenor noted. "That's one thing you're always aware of—the drunk driver, or incapacitated driver who is falling asleep or whatever," said Swenor.

The chief noted that a routine DWI arrest takes the arresting officer off the street for an average of two hours. Certain circumstances can extend the process to four hours, he added.

"All steps are taken to insure that the officer is making a lawful arrest," Swenor said. Field sobriety tests are given to suspects to determine if they are intoxicated.

Officers Robert Achterberg and Hazel Poissot recently attended a five-day seminar on detection of drunk drivers.

"We learned there are a lot more drinks out there than anybody thought," said Poissot. Emphasis of the course was on detection of DWIs and proper handling of arrests to insure convictions, explained Achterberg.

"It taught me to make my reports more precise and with more detail," he said. Achterberg noted that this training has proven itself in court since he returned from the seminar.

State Police recruiting patrolmen

The New Mexico State Police are recruiting for their patrol officers basic training school to begin in July.

Persons between 18 and 35 years old may apply for the course and no police experience is necessary. The starting salary is $1,269 per month, plus $75 subsistence pay and fringe benefits.

Applications, and further information, will be available from a State Police officer at Walker Motor Company's showroom, 900 South White Sands Boulevard, Alamogordo, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Friday.

The deadline for submitting applications to attend the school is May 3.

Pesticides, herbicides, workshops set

County residents holding private applicator licenses, to apply pesticides or herbicides, may need to be recertified by the New Mexico Department of Agriculture.

"Many licenses expired in December," said Barry Herd, Lincoln County Extension Agent, "and those licenses must be renewed."

Recertification workshops scheduled in Lincoln County include:

— Captain, February 1, 2 p.m., Fair Building.

— Carrizozo, February 1, 7 p.m., Citizen State Bank's meeting room.

Herd said people may be certified by attending one of these two hour workshops. The cost of licenses is $5, he said.

Information on the workshops is available by calling the Extension Office at 648-2311.

Chief Swenor speaks tonight at adult center

Police Chief Richard S. Swenor will speak tonight at the Adult Recreation Department, located at the rear of the Ruidoso Public Library.

Swenor will speak on 40 ways to protect the home and 30 ways to prevent crimes. The program begins at 7 p.m., and is open to the public.

New manager at Inn of the Mountain Gods

William A. Kouri has been appointed general manager of the Inn of the Mountain Gods, Wendell Chino, President of the Mesacalero Apache Tribe, announced Tuesday.

Kouri has been general manager of the Four Seasons Motor Inn of Albuquerque the past nine years.

Chino also announced that the Inn's conference center and an additional 116 deluxe rooms will be open to the public beginning May 1. With the additional rooms, a total of 250 sleeping rooms will be available. The conference center expansion will provide 14,000 square feet of meeting space, Chino said, compared to the 5,644 square feet previously available.

J. C. Day Jr., candidate for Downs' mayor

J. C. Day Jr., Tuesday announced he is a candidate for mayor of Ruidoso Downs in the March 2 election.

Day has been a resident of New Mexico the past 20 years, 16 of which have been spent in Ruidoso Downs and, he said, "my wife, Betty, and I have lived in the same house for 14 years."

He is retired after working 12 years as maintenance superintendent at Ruidoso-Hondo Valley hospital. Mrs. Day has been employed in the Ruidoso Public School system the past 11 years.

"I'm running for mayor," Day said, "because the taxpayers aren't getting a fair shake on property taxes."

"Our roads are in bad shape from lack of maintenance."

"We've had numerous cleanup projects, but the village doesn't join in. For example, there are weeds higher than a pickup. The village should clean up before asking the residents to. Most of our residents care, but it seems the village doesn't."

"We need to look into water now, because the last four years there's been a water shortage with no lawn watering. Last summer we got down to drinking water only. I'm for keeping all the water we have, not sending any over the hill, and we have to find more water and provide storage."

"I also think we should make every effort to collect the Gross Receipts Tax from the race track, instead of it being sent to the state treasury."

SAM NUNNALLY

Sam Nunnally candidate for municipal judge

Municipal judge Sam Nunnally has filed for re-election in the March 2 election. He has served in this capacity since 1972.

Nunnally was one of 14 judges forming the New Mexico Municipal Judges Association in 1972.

"The basic goal in forming the association," Nunnally said, "was to secure training and uniformity in all the lower courts. At present our membership totals 86 municipal judges."

"In the past years, and in the future, my goal is representing the people of Ruidoso to treat each person equally."

Nunnally and his wife, Dona, have three children, Jeff, Greg and Amber, attending Ruidoso schools.

GOP Women schedule membership tea

If you haven't registered to vote yet, then you still have a chance. The Federated Republican Women of Lincoln County (FRWLC) will conduct voter registration at their membership tea on Sunday, January 31 from 2 to 4 p.m., at the Inn of the Mountain Gods. The wives of the four GOP gubernatorial candidates have also been asked to speak.

"We have invited Meses. John Erick, Bill Segoe, Bob Grant and Hank Puhlmann. So far, Min. Grant, Gayle Erick and Pat Puhlmann have accepted. Irene Segoe is unable to attend, but she is sending her husband in her place!" said Dorothy Barber, FRWLC first vice president. Each person will be allowed five minutes to speak.

The program is offered as a community service and voter registration is non-partisan, said FRWLC president Rhonda Johnston. Members of FRWLC will speak on club activities and a film, "National Federation of Republican Women Today," will be shown.

Accompanying refreshments will be an elephant ice carving sculptured by Guenter Schullales. A cash bar will also be available in the Mesclero A conference room. For more details, call Johnston at 257-9571 or Dorothy Smith at 354-2499.

Local boxers highlighted in Ruidoso Invitational

Gary Brown
Sports Writer

Boxing will have the attention of a lot of local sports fans Saturday night when the Ruidoso Invitational Tournament is held at the Elks Club.

Eleven clubs including the hosting Las Piedras Boxing Team (LPBT) of Ruidoso have entered boxers in the competition. Clubs will be coming from Hondo Valley, Carrizozo, Roswell, Alamogordo, Dexter, Magdalena, Albuquerque, Silver City and Las Cruces. Las Cruces is expected to bring two teams.

There will be about 20 fights scheduled with four Ruidoso boxers entered.

One of the local boxers is Ron Lowrance, 31, a 1978 graduate of Ruidoso High School. Lowrance, who played football and track while in high school, is a student at Sulcross State University in Alpine, Texas.

Lowrance is scheduled to meet Bobby "The Italian Stallion" Sacco of El Paso, Texas. Both fighters are in the 178 pound category and have outstanding records.

Lowrance was a finalist in the novice 178 pound division at the 1981 Odessa Regional Golden Gloves Tournament and a finalist in the 178 pound open division at the 1981 Pecos, Texas, United States Amateur Boxing Federation Regional Tournament (USA-ABF).

"I didn't box in high school," said Lowrance. "We just kind of practiced on the football field. I started boxing in intermediate competition in college."

Sacco, 26, is presently a school teacher in El Paso. He was a semi-finalist in the 1981 National Police Athletic League (PAL) Tournament held in Albuquerque last November.

While in college at Miami University in Ohio from 1978 to 1981, Sacco was an outstanding football player and heavyweight wrestler.

Besides Lowrance the other local boxers are David Ordorica, Kevin Jefferson and Shane Barnett, all of LPBT.

Ordorica and Jefferson won medals in the Junior Olympics last spring. Both are 18 years old. Barnett, eight, started boxing with LPBT last month.

One of the clubs, Henry's Boxing Club of Albuquerque, will have two national champions entered.

One of the fighters, Johnny Tapia, was the national PAL champion at 114 pounds last year. The other boxer, Henry Anaya Jr., was national PAL 139 pound champion last year.

Before the tournament, which is scheduled to start at 7 p.m., there will be a clinic at 2 p.m., also at the Elks' Club.

The clinic, which is directed by Al McClesney, a veteran referee and judge, is open to anybody.

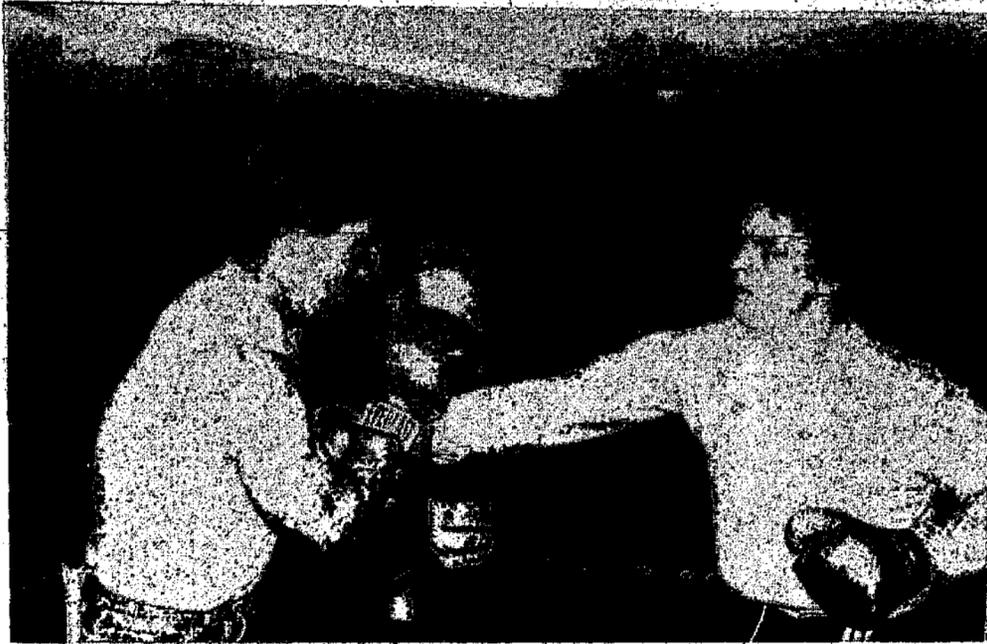

It will introduce people to the sport of boxing, how to box and how to officiate a match. Those interested can take a test at the clinic, and if they pass it, can stand as alternate judges at the tournament.

"It should be a tremendous night of top flight amateur boxing," said McClesney. "We hope the town will turn out and support the kids."

Lucky Mulqueen and Steve Zlotnick are the coaches of the LPBT boxers. The LPBT is sponsored by the local branch of the Vietnam Veterans of America (VVA). The VVA and the Elks Club are sponsoring the tournament.

The LPBT will operate a concession stand selling hot dogs, chili, popcorn and soft drinks. Admission charge is $3.00 for adults and $1.50 for youths 12 years old and younger. All proceeds will go to LPBT.

The Elks' Club is located three quarters of a mile west of Holiday Inn on Highway 70.

Lowrance will be in action Saturday night when the LPBT hosts the Ruidoso Invitational Tournament at the Elks Club. Eleven teams will be entered in the competition. Lowrance will meet Bobby "The Italian Stallion" Sacco. The tournament starts at 7 p.m., and the safety of the fighters will be emphasized.

KEVIN JEFFERSON (left) and David Ordorica of the Las Piedras Boxing Team (LPBT) of Ruidoso trade punches in a workout Wednesday night. The two boxers will compete in the Ruidoso Invitational Saturday night at the Elks Club. Boxers from 11 clubs in New Mexico will be at the tournament. The weigh-ins will begin at 2 p.m., and the tournament will start at 7 p.m. The admission is $3 for adults and $1.50 for youths 12 and under.

HOPE TO AVENGE PREVIOUS LOSS

Warrior cagers meet Silver City

Ruidoso High School's boys' varsity basketball team hopes to get back on the winning track when it travels to Silver City Saturday for a district 3-AAA game.

The Warriors are only 3-10 overall but 1-1 in district action. Ruidoso fell to Silver City 83-69 in their first meeting earlier this month but topped Truth or Consequences (T or C) 78-63 two weeks ago for its first district victory.

Ruidoso is coming off a sixth place finish in the Dexter Tournament last weekend. The Warriors beat Weed easily but lost to Captain and New Mexico Military Institute (NMMI).

The Warriors were erratic in the tournament, at times working their fast break to perfection and at other times finding a lid on the basket.

Center Bill Richardson has been the backbone of the Warrior offense this season, averaging over 16 points a game.

Richardson was the only Warrior to make the all-tournament team at Dexter.

The Warriors don't have a great deal of depth due to some players becoming ineligible and others quitting the squad. Coach Barry Nelson has brought up sophomore Cyrus Simmons and junior Paul Jaramillo from the junior varsity. Both are guards.

Forward Steve Sluder, who is 6-4 like Richardson, has improved as a scorer the past few weeks. Senior guards Scott Neal, Pete Garcia and Marc Delhotel have provided consistent play for Nelson. Neal and Delhotel have been steady scorers while Garcia has been a strong playmaker and has put his speed and agility to good use.

The Warriors still have a shot at the district title although Deming, with a veteran team, is currently undefeated in district play.

The Silver City game will start at 7:30 p.m., after the girls' varsity contest is played. Following the Silver City game Ruidoso will host Tularosa in another important district game Friday, February 5. Tularosa is another team that has played erratically this season.

NOTES—In a division action Captain, coming off its impressive play in winning the Dexter Tournament, will host Cloudcroft tomorrow night. Captain is 10-4 on the season.

The Tigers are led by the Parker brothers, Robert and Jim. Robert Parker scored 30 points as Captain defeated Hatch 72-69 for the Dexter championship. Jim Parker is a 6-5 senior center who is a good scorer and strong rebounder. Captain is blessed with good depth, having 14 players on the squad.

Brave cagers win again

White Mountain Middle School's boys' A basketball team notched its 12th victory against one loss with a 52-44 win over visiting Father B. Hay of Alamogordo Tuesday afternoon.

However the win was not accomplished without a struggle.

The Braves had a 32-25 lead going into the final quarter. However the visitors outscored them 17-2 to pull within two points at 44-42 with 2:50 left in the contest.

But the Braves put the game out of reach when 5-10 center Russell Easter and Omar Dix scored baskets in the next 40 seconds.

"I started substituting a lot when we had a big lead and they got momentum," said

DAVID SWALANDER (left) and Doug Schmidt go through some moves in a Ruidoso High School wrestling practice recently. The Warriors will host the first Ruidoso Tournament Saturday. Weigh-Ins will start at 6:30 a.m., with the first competition scheduled for 10 a.m.

TORRES HAMPERED BY INJURY

Ruidoso wrestlers host tournament

Ruidoso High School's wrestling team's chances of winning the first annual Ruidoso Invitational Saturday may well rest on the shoulders of Wade Torres.

Torres, a 145 pound senior, has been hampered by some pulled muscles in his shoulder and hip status for the tournament is unknown.

If Torres is unable to perform that could hurt the Warriors' chances because he is one of their best wrestlers. Torres has an 11-3 record this season and won the Silver City Tournament 145 pound crown earlier this month.

"It could hurt us a lot if Wade can't wrestle," said Warrior coach Gerald Ames. "It may cost us 14 to 18 points if he can't. I'd like to see him all right for the district tournament."

Eight teams are entered in the tournament: Ruidoso, Silver City, Deming, Coche, New Mexico Military Institute (NMMI), Roswell, Goddard and the Carlsbad junior varsity.

Despite the fact that Carlsbad is a top school, the Cavemen have a chance of winning the team title.

"They're awfully tough," said Ames.

"They've got a real chance of winning it all."

But the Warriors have a lot of balance and depth and they could be tough even if Torres can't compete.

Doug Schmidt, a 126 pound senior, had a 9-1 record before the Carlsbad tournament last weekend. He's rated a favorite for the district title in his weight division.

Other Warrior matmen who should do well in the tournament are Ray Montes at 98 pounds, Don Gwyn at 165 pounds, Henry Rue at 119 pounds, Scott Ciraullo at 167 pounds and Ronald Bell at heavyweight.

Saturday's tournament will have weigh-ins at 10 a.m., with the second one at 1 p.m., and the third at 4 p.m.

The Warrior Booster Club, which is sponsoring the tournament, will host a "prize day" during the competition. More than 60 prizes have been donated by local merchants including dinners for two at restaurants, gift certificates, framed prints and miscellaneous items.

Further information on the prizes is available from Ames, wrestlers, mat maids and Club members.

Around Sports

with Gary Brown

Now that the National Football League (NFL) season is over, it's a good time to look at the new parity that's come about in the league.

With San Francisco's 28-21 victory over Cincinnati in the Super Bowl, the National Conference (NC) can claim parity with the American Conference (AC).

It was the first time since the league merger in 1970 that a NC team has won the Super Bowl besides Dallas. Although the 49er victory wasn't a rout by any means it was the first time in awhile that a NC team showed a lot of composure in the Super Bowl.

In recent Super Bowls (except for Dallas' victories in 1972 and 1978) the AC teams have usually come forth with their best efforts while the rival conference representatives have stumbled and tumbled their way around the field.

But this year was different and the result reflects a change in the league power structure.

The NC's top teams (San Francisco and Dallas) must rank with Cincinnati as the best three squads in the league. After those teams the AC has a slight advantage with Miami, San Diego, Buffalo and the New York Jets battling it out with the NC's New York Giants. The Giants' defense makes up for their lack of a balanced offense when compared with the better AC teams.

Although there are probably more good teams in the AC than the NC the latter conference has narrowed the talent gap to virtually nothing.

Teams like Atlanta, Detroit, Tampa Bay, Philadelphia and Washington are all either young or middle-aged teams who show signs of improvement in the next few seasons. Any of these teams could step in next season and accomplish what San Francisco did with a little bit of luck.

In the past the AC was basically superior because it had better quarterbacks and defensive backs.

That's no longer true although Cincinnati's Kenny Anderson still rates slightly over the 49ers' Joe Montana as the best quarterback in the NFL off this season's performances.

Montana, only 25, and a host of other young NC quarterbacks have narrowed the talent gap.

In addition most of the young and talented defensive backs in the league are from the NC, Dallas and San Francisco in particular.

Emerson Walls of the Cowboys and San Francisco's Ronnie Lott are the best young defensive players in the game and likely to get better.

Three-fourths of the 49er defensive backfield are rookies and the veteran, safety Dwight Hicks, is only 25.

Atlanta, Philadelphia, Tampa Bay and the Giants also have fine young secondaries.

In the modern NFL a passing attack generally wins. Most teams who have strong passing attacks have also developed fine defensive backs because they recognize that games are won or lost via the airways.

This is where the AC has had the edge in the past but not anymore.

Parity has arrived in the league and we shouldn't see too many long dynasties anymore.

That's good for the game and something most fans should enjoy.

Olympians practice at Eagle Creek

Over 80 people participated in training sessions for the New Mexico Winter Special Olympics yesterday at the Eagle Creek Ski and Recreation Area.

The actual competition is today with skiers competing in both cross-country and alpine races.

Yesterday the Special Olympians were given lessons by local skiers on the basics of the sport. The participants were taught how to stand on the skis, to walk on them and finally to ski.

The participants came from Southern New Mexico, parts of West Texas and Juarez, Mexico. The Olympics end tomorrow. All competitors are staying at the Church of the Nazarene in Angus.

Sertoma cagers need referees

The Sertoma Little League basketball program is in urgent need of referees for its games.

Anyone who is interested in being a referee is urged to contact Ron Ludwick at 336-4030 after 6 p.m., or Larry Montero at 257-5420.

Experience as a referee or college basketball player would be helpful but anyone is encouraged to contact Ludwick or Montero.

All the games are played at White Mountain Middle School Monday, Tuesday and Thursday nights. There are eight teams in the league, six from Ruidoso and two from Hondo.

JASON BIGHAM scored 15 points to help White Mountain Middle School's boys' A basketball team defeat visiting Father B. Hay of Alamogordo 52-44 Tuesday afternoon. The Braves are now 12-1 on the season and will travel to Alamogordo for a game Monday.

Ruidoso girls lose to Carizozo

Ruidoso High School's girls' basketball team gave powerful Carizozo a tough game for three quarters before fading and losing a 70-50 decision to the host Grizzlies Wednesday night.

"They just wore us down," said Warrior head coach Sergio Castanon. "They're a very physical team with two or three outstanding players. The score was only 47-41 in their favor at the end of the third quarter, but they were too tough in the final quarter."

Lillian Lopez led the Warriors' attack with 17 points. Claudia Branum added 13 points and Bridg Alamager added nine. Alamager was going off an injury.

"Lillian's returning to my lineup us," Castanon said. "We played a better game than we have been playing. They're (Carizozo) a very tough team for their class (A division) and have some good scorers."

Ruidoso's junior varsity team fell to Carizozo in overtime 45-41.

The Warriors' next game is Saturday night when they travel to Silver City. The junior varsity will play at 4 p.m., and the varsity game will follow. The boys' varsity game will follow the girls' varsity tilt.

What's it cost to live?

How much does it cost to live? Your expenses depend on how much you entertain, what kind of clothes you buy, and your lifestyle. But your cost of living depends on where you live. If you've been transferred, thinking of relocating, or need to know comparative costs of living, here's advice from the New Mexico Society of Certified Public Accountants (CPA) on how to consider and compare.

Taxes are probably your largest expense. Personal and corporate income taxes constitute the largest revenue source in 30 states and the District of Columbia. State and local taxes are one reason why people with comparable income can't afford the same lifestyle. For example, if you live in Texas you won't pay a state income tax, but if you live in Wisconsin, you will. In New York, you may pay city taxes in addition to state and federal. On the average, state and local income taxes take 10 percent of your personal income. In addition to income tax, CPAs say, you should consider how much tax you pay for services. According to recently published statistics, about one of every five dollars spent on goods and services is tax. Some of these taxes are levied on liquor and theatre tickets. But others are imposed on necessities, like housing, gasoline, or tires for your car. A tax is levied by the state, so it might prove economical to buy clothing and large items, such as cars, out of state. Currently, five states have no sales tax.

To compare sales tax figures, you might check the IRS allowances for sales tax deductions on your income tax. For example, a family of four in Connecticut might be allowed a $499 deduction for sales tax in one year. In Minnesota, on the other hand, the same family with the same income, might only be allowed $236. Local sales taxes are not included in these deductions and have to be recorded separately when you are filing your tax return.

Your largest expense after taxes, CPAs note, is likely to be housing. Recent statistics show that the median house value last year was $47,200, although values vary sharply, sometimes reaching $100,000. The median rent was $198 a month, with rental costs sharply down in the South. Housing costs depend on the demand for housing. High inflation in real estate occurs when there is either a shortage or great demand for housing, as in a rapidly growing city. Eight of the ten fastest growing United States cities are in the South.

But low housing prices and low taxes can work against an area. If they attract residents and corporations to a city, taxes may rise to underwrite added services.

And housing costs may rise as demand grows.

Transportation, housing, income and sales tax, account for 85 percent of the difference in cost of living across the country. Your state or city may not support a public transportation system, and this might lower your taxes. But if you must buy a car and pay the high cost for gasoline to commute, you might be better off paying the tax.

Taking these items into consideration, CPAs say, you should be able to decide where living is cheaper. For urban living, costs are lowest in the South, highest in the Northeast States like New Hampshire, which lacks state income and sales taxes, may allow you extra net income; but comparing costs of living requires you to factor in necessities, such as heating and electric bills, clothing, food, and recreation.

To compare your cost of living, CPAs suggest you use your current annual budget. Obtain average costs for other areas from the local chamber of commerce or the Municipal Center in Washington, D.C., which compiles cost of living data on 36 major United States cities. Remember, your taxes may go down, but your heating bills could increase.

State welcome centers greeted many visitors to state in 1981

The State of New Mexico greeted nearly half a million visitors in 1981, New Mexico Commerce and Industry Department's Tourism and Travel Division director John Adams has announced.

Adams revealed that a record 416,788 visitors were counseled at the division's five full time welcome centers and seven summer tourist information centers last year.

This was an impressive 38 percent adjusted increase over the 293,151 visitors handled at the centers the year before.

Adams added that the full time centers at Anthony, Chama, Glenrio, La Bajada and Lordsburg greeted 337,780 visitors in 1981, an equally impressive 27 percent adjusted increase over the 244,322 visitors in 1980.

The summer centers, Adams noted, counseled 89,018 visitors the year before. There were seven such centers in 1981 and six in 1980.

The full time centers, in alphabetical order, reported the following figures:

*Anthony, located on I-10 south of Las Cruces, a record 67,083 visitors in 1981, a 26 percent increase over 53,083 visitors the year before. The Anthony count bettered the former record of 64,886 visitors set in 1977.

*Chama, a record 22,389 visitors last year, an 18 percent increase over the former record of 18,951 visitors the year before.

*Glenrio, on I-40 east of Tucuman, 122,918 visitors in 1981, the highest visitor count there since a record 133,880 visitors in 1978. The 1981 count was an 11 percent increase over 110,228 visitors there in 1980.

*La Bajada, on I-25 south of Santa Fe, 99,220 visitors in 1981, its first full calendar year of operation. It opened full time in May, 1980. The last eight months of 1981 revealed a whopping 71 percent increase over the same period in 1980, when 47,818 visitors were counseled there.

*Lordsburg, a record 18,191 visitors in 1981, a 14 percent increase over the former record of 14,172 visitors in 1980.

Meanwhile, the summer centers, in alphabetical order, reported the following figures:

Aztec, 3,185 visitors in 1981, 1,245 in 1980; Carlsbad, 15,453, 4,197 the year before; Clovis, 546, 1,165 in 1980; Gallup, 8,804, 1,950 the year before; Hobbs, 2,967, 2,940 in 1980; and Raton, 14,323, 7,432 the year before. White's City, which opened for the first time last summer and remained open on an experimental basis through the end of September, reported 45,140 visitors.

Adams explained that these visitor counts were preliminary figures.

The State of New Mexico is one of 47 states operating welcome centers. Welcome center personnel greet visitors, advise them on attractions and events, provide them road maps and promotional literature, and encourage them to extend their current visits or plan future visits to their states.

The State of Texas pioneered the establishment of welcome centers in 1936.

4-Hers utilizing grant monies

The New Mexico 4-H Community Pride program will have an extra $1,500 to work with in 1982.

Deveron, perennial financial supporter of the program, increased their donation to the 4-H Community Pride program from $500 to $5,000 this year. The $5,000 check is presented to state 4-H officials recently at an Albuquerque meeting.

Robert Osmundson, public affairs manager for the oil company, said, "This is one of our favorite success stories. The response has been excellent everywhere in New Mexico, and all the projects are excellent. This is the main reason our company increased its financial support."

The 4-H Community Pride program included 18 projects in 1981, involving 12 of New Mexico's counties. Total value of the 18 projects is estimated at $15,000 which includes the labor of 4-H club members and some materials and services donated by local businesses.

Bob Gilliland, state 4-H director for New Mexico State University's Cooperative Extension Service, said, "This is a program that has been growing steadily, and we feel it is important because it has its greatest impact at the local level."

Grant money spent on the 18 projects last year was $4,331. This includes all of Chevron's 1981 grant to the project, and some funds that were not used from previous years, according to Gilliland.

Taos County had four successful 4-H Community Pride grant projects last year: They include clearing and irrigation for a baseball diamond at the Taos Pueblo, reconstruction of a farmers' market area and help for senior citizens who wanted to sell produce at the market, establishment of a new playground at San Cristobal, and renovation of the El Prado Community Building.

Rio Arriba County 4-H members used their grant funds to clean up a cemetery and establish a playground at Abiquiu, and another cemetery cleanup at Chama.

Lincoln County 4-H members used their Community Pride grant to provide new lighting at the Corona community horse arena, and made laundry bags for senior citizens at the Carrizosa Foundation House.

Valencia County (which included Cibola County) projects were purchase of a talking bicycle for 4-H bike safety classes, and purchase and installation of street signs at Murray Acres.

Lea County 4-H members used their Community Pride grant to maintain the Livingston hospital rose garden.

In Carlsbad, the 4-H members spent $300 for outdoor playground equipment at the Carlsbad Child Development Center.

Quay County 4-H members replaced old outdoor fireplaces with new fireplaces at the community center.

Curry County 4-H members used their Community Pride grant to construct a concession stand at Little League baseball field in the city park. This project was also supported by the city council.

Anthony's Main Street got a new look through efforts of Dona Ana County 4-H members. New trees were planted along the street, a decorative rock garden was installed, and welcome signs were placed at entrances to the town.

Otero County 4-H members used their grant money to cover expenses of a city-county tour, to attend a city commission meeting, and a future visit to the state legislature in Santa Fe.

Hurley 4-H members in Grant County spent $300, the maximum grant, to paint and repair the community church youth center building.

Clayton 4-H members in Union County installed a drip irrigation system to water several new trees that were planted as part of the project.

MDA awards 250 neuromuscular grants

The Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA) has awarded 250 research grants for studies of neuromuscular diseases to biomedical scientists in the United States and abroad, Yvonne Villegas, president of the New Mexico Chapter, has announced. This brings to approximately 600 the number of grants made by the Association in 1981 for basic and clinical studies of muscular dystrophy, amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS), myasthenia gravis, and other neuromuscular diseases. Among these grants $25,000 was awarded to Dr. John Trotter at the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque.

New MDA awards for basic research went to 130 senior investigators, and 89 recent Ph.D.'s received postdoctoral fellowships for basic research. Twenty-five clinical research grants were awarded for studies related to the diagnosis and treatment of neuromuscular diseases.

Also among the awards were grants totaling $1.2 million to the Association's neuromuscular disease research centers: the University of California, Los Angeles, School of Medicine; Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minnesota; New York University Medical Center; University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine; Baylor College of Medicine, Houston, Texas; and the University of Virginia, Charlottesville. MDA has established ten university-based research/clinical centers where teams of scientists conduct interdisciplinary investigations.

In addition to the basic and clinical research grants, MDA awarded seven clinical fellowships totaling $115,625 to post-residency physicians for a year's training in the diagnosis and treatment of neuromuscular diseases at MDA clinics. The Association's clinical fellowship program is designed to increase the pool of physicians with expertise in neuromuscular diseases, Villegas said.

Villegas notes that MDA's 1981 research awards included 14 grants for studies aimed at finding drugs to arrest or reverse the progression of neuromuscular diseases. MDA's Task Force on Drug Development, formed in 1975, spearheads the search for effective therapeutic agents.

MDA's research and patient services programs cover 40 neuromuscular disorders, including the muscular dystrophies, ALS, Werdnig-Hoffmann disease, polymyositis, and myasthenia gravis. The Association's patient services program furnishes free comprehensive medical services to children and adults with neuromuscular diseases at over 240 MDA clinics across the country. In the New Mexico area, the local clinics are located weekly at UNM Hospital, Albuquerque; quarterly at New Mexico Rehab Center, Roswell; and semi-annually at San Juan County Health Center, Farmington.

Free heating, cooling hints booklet printed

Thousands of New Mexicans rent their homes and, unlike homeowners, renters often have little, if any, control over the structural features of their residences, and often have little ability to make decisions about the way their homes are heated and cooled.

"The New Mexico Renter's Book: A Guide to Saving Energy" is a unique publication developed by the New Mexico Energy Research and Development Institute Information Center at the University of New Mexico. It is designed to show renters how to locate an energy-efficient residence, or how to improve the energy efficiency of their present residences at little or no cost.

Among the general subject areas are "What to Look for When Renting," "Control of Space Heating Costs," "Control of Water Heating Costs," and "Control of Cooling Costs." Simply written but comprehensive in scope, the booklet is among the few in the nation focused on the special energy-saving problems of the increasing numbers of people who rent, and is geared to the characteristics of New Mexico's dwellings, lifestyles and climate zones.

The 16-page booklet is available at no cost from the New Mexico Energy Extension Service, 525 Camino de los Marquez, Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501. The telephone number, which is toll-free from anywhere in New Mexico, is 1-800-432-6782.

QUESTION - At what time do you think our wildlife resources will have diminished to the point where hunting seasons will gradually close? This may seem a strange question but I think it is inevitable that hunting will all but deplete many species unless it is curbed. I worry that my someday grandchildren will not be able to enjoy these animals in their time.

In case you wondered where I'm coming from, I am a high school senior, I'm not sure how I feel about hunting, but I am concerned about the preservation of wildlife.

Jane T., Pennsylvania

ANSWER - Obviously, I didn't know you were a high school student, but I did surmise you weren't familiar with hunting or wildlife management.

Our huntable wildlife species don't just control their own populations without close attention from man. These resources are managed, just like any other crop. And that is the whole secret to its success. Game laws and seasons are set with close attention to populations and trends.

It is also obvious you aren't aware that many animal species enjoy better habitat and healthier populations than they did 75 years ago. And this is due to intensive monitoring and management.

I don't see any reason you shouldn't put your mind at ease for your future grandchildren. If animal populations decline as a result of intervention, it will not be from hunting. It will likely be due to loss of habitat which will result from converting their abodes to an environment in which they cannot survive. The real emphasis for their future must be placed on the wise use of land and the least destruction of habitat possible.

QUESTION - Do you think the three-wheeled all-terrain vehicles have any real place in hunting, or are they just big tricycles for play? I have been considering one, but I'm not certain it is justifiable. I've even thought maybe one would be of use on my farm.

Have you had any first hand experience with these little machines?
Denver R., S. Carolina

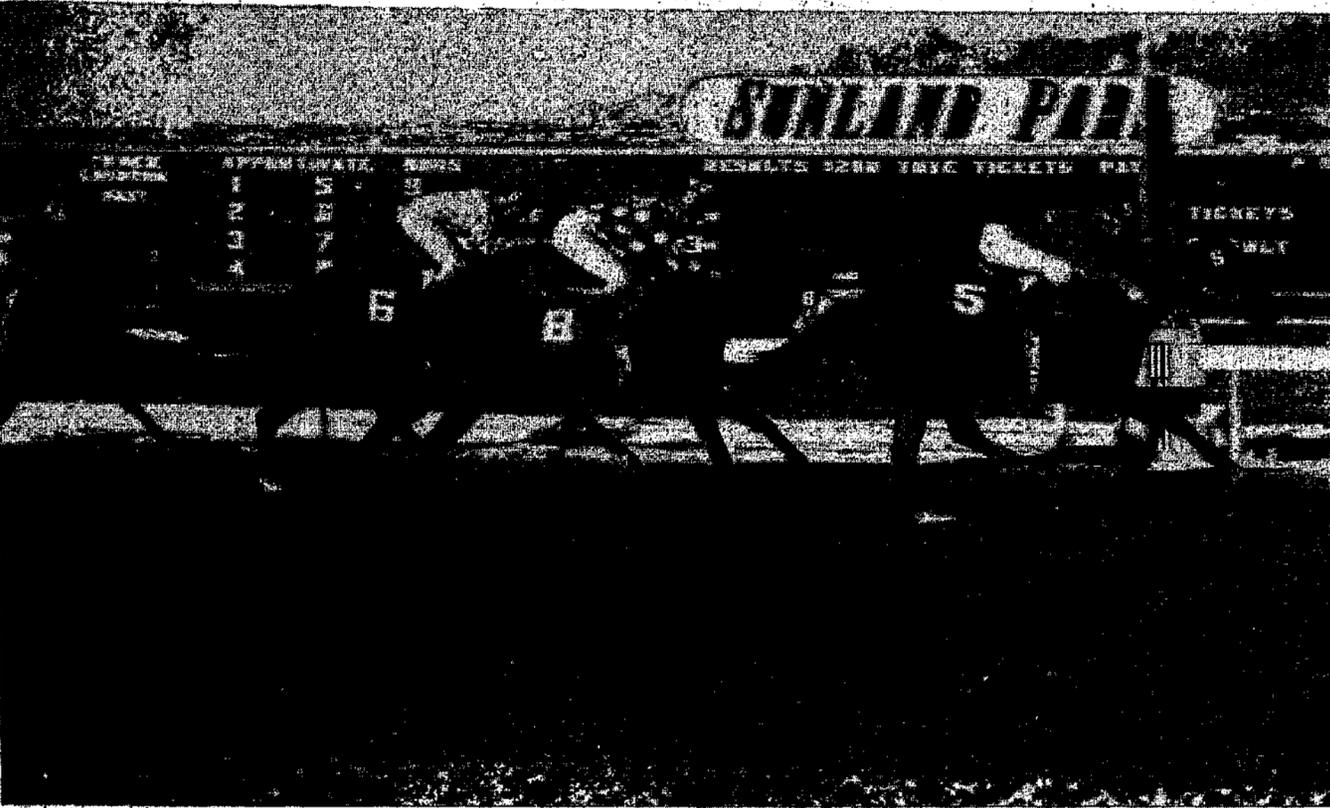

ANSWER - I have never actually owned one of the three-wheelers, but a brother has, and I rode it a bit. More than ten years ago, I owned a six-wheeled ATV and it was one of the most versatile and toughest machines I ever had the pleasure of riding.

How practical are they? Well, it wasn't long after I sold mine when I started raising a few cattle. Many times I wished I still had it when it became necessary to check or repair a fence in some distant point in one of the pastures.

It's difficult to specifically answer your question. It depends upon how much and where you hunt, and upon your financial position. The little rigs do a great job of carting you in, and your game out, of hunting country that is not accessible to a full size vehicle. They are fairly safe if common sense rules are applied, but they are fun and one might be tempted to sometimes take unwarranted risks for thrills. They can be dangerous in the hands of a thrill seeker, just as most anything else can be.

If you can put one to use around a farm, and there is no doubt one could make handy many times, it would be much easier to justify the expense. It is doubtful, however, that you will be able to totally justify one on the basis of what you will do with it. Even so, that doesn't mean you shouldn't have one if you are convinced the price will return dividends in convenience, pleasure, or whatever.

Second home benefits

Whether it's a ski lodge or a beach house, a second home provides an escape for vacations and weekends. According to some real estate brokers, high mortgages and prices have created a buyer's market in vacation homes for people with available cash. And, according to the New Mexico Society of Certified Public Accountants (CPA), the financial benefits available to second home owners can improve such an investment.

The tax benefits of a second home depend on what use you make of it. While home owners are eligible for tax deductions of mortgage interest and property tax payments, further tax benefits will vary. Nevertheless, the same tax rules apply whether your second home is a house, condominium, apartment, boat or trailer. Where you'll need advice is on how to use this home to shelter income.

When you lease your vacation hideaway, thereby limiting your personal use, CPAs say, you may claim more tax deductions. But you cannot deduct more than your rental income unless you operate your second home as a profit seeking venture. What's more, if you rent for less than fifteen days, you aren't eligible for the extra deductions, such as maintenance and utility bills or depreciation. To ease the discrepancy, however, you need not declare rental income from this period on your federal tax return.

If you do rent your home for fifteen days or more, your deductions are limited by the length of your personal use. CPAs say that anytime you allow family or friends to use your residences, rent it for less than fair market value, or exchange it for the use of another residence—even if you pay rent—that time is considered personal use. Time spent on maintenance or repair is not included.

When you rent the home for fifteen days or more, but your own use exceeds the greater of 14 days or ten percent of rented time, you are limited in your deductions by the amount of income you take in. For example, if you vacation at your ski lodge during the month of January, but rent the lodge during November, December and February, you can only deduct expenses up to the amount of rental income, say $3,000.

If you rent the lodge the same amount of time, but use it personally for only two weeks in January, excess deductions can be taken if you prove you operate the residence to make a profit. Some ways to prove your profit motive in this instance, CPAs note, are efforts to rent the residence through a real estate agent or newspaper ads, making improvements that attract renters, curtailing your own use, buying or selling other property in the area for rent and profit, and, most importantly, keeping businesslike records.

Once you have figured how much to deduct, the IRS requires that you follow the proper sequence. First CPAs say, you must deduct your mortgage interest and tax payments. A recently revised ruling allocates this payment on a broader basis than formerly prevailed. The new method allows for a lower allocation of mortgage interest and taxes to the rental period (these expenses are deductible anyway), and leaves more room to deduct your out-of-pocket expenses for maintenance and utility expenses that you deduct second.

As an example, take a situation of three months rental and one month personal use, with an income of $3,000. The new mortgage interest and tax allocation is the percent of rental time divided by days in the year. So for a three months rental, you should deduct slightly less than 25 percent. If your mortgage interest was $2,000 and you paid $600 in taxes, deduct 25 percent of $2,600 or $650.

After subtracting mortgage interest and tax payment deductions from $3,000 rental income, you would have $2,350 of taxable income. Now take your maintenance and utility deductions. This formula, formerly used for all deductions, allocates expenses as rental time divided by total usage. Since total use was four months and rental three months, deduct 75 percent of maintenance and utility costs.

Say your maintenance and utility charges come to $3,200. Seventy-five percent of this is $2,400, but you only have an income base of $2,350. Fifty dollars of your expenses, then, cannot be deducted since you can't deduct more than your income. If your maintenance and utility bills were less than $2,350, you might have to pay income tax on the excess rental.

If you buy a house or residence for rental purposes, you can also deduct income against the depreciation costs but only after mortgage interest, taxes, maintenance and utility expenses have been subtracted from the rental income. Check with your CPA for complete rules governing depreciation deductions.

Who Was Jesus of Nazareth?

Was He a lunatic, a liar, or the Lord? If He was a lunatic or a liar, then we have nothing to worry about. We can chalk Him up as just another religious con-man, a sort of first century Elmer Gantry, but if He was actually the person He claimed to be, then we must give serious consideration of His claims to deity.

So let us talk about this all embracing question: Who was Jesus of Nazareth?

Let us first look at what Jesus said about Himself. In the gospel of John 5:16-18 we see that the Jews were angry at Jesus because he had done miracles on the Sabbath; you see, the Jews of that day considered it unlawful to do any type work on the Sabbath, including "miracles of mercy". Therefore they sought to put Jesus to death.

Jesus also said to those Jews: "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work" (John 5:17).

And how did the Jews understand Jesus when He referred to God as "My Father"? They became more determined to kill Him because Jesus was making Himself equal with God in a very personal sense — like He and God were of the same essence (John 5:18).

The same idea can be seen in John 10:30, 31 where Jesus said: "I and my Father are one," then the Jews took up stones to stone Him.

Thus, in the context of the austere mono-theistic culture of Jesus' day, He was understood by His enemies to be claiming equality with God — that He was God's son in the sense of being begotten out of the same essence as God Himself.

Now I can hear someone say: "But Jack, your quotations are from the Gospel of John, the latest Gospel written. What about the earlier records?" Okay, let's go to Mark, the earliest gospel. What do we see? Jesus forgave sins against God.

In Mark 2:1-5 four men brought to Jesus a man afflicted with palsy. Instead of Jesus telling the man to be healed He said: "Son, thy sins be forgiven thee." According to Jewish law only God could forgive sins against Himself. So, let's see how Jesus' enemies understood Him: "But there were certain of the scribes sitting there and reasoning in their hearts, why doth this man thus speak blasphemies? Who can forgive sins but God only (Mark 2:6,7)?"

You can see it again—in Jesus' cultural surroundings He was understood by His enemies to be taking a prerogative belonging only to God.

Let's go on to the trial of Jesus. Again we are in the gospel of Mark 14:60-64: In these scriptures the High Priest asks Jesus a very direct question, "Art thou the Christ, the Son of the Blessed?" ("Blessed" was used by the Jews in the place of God's redemptive name, "Jehovah"). And what was Jesus' reply to the High Priest?

"I am," Jesus said.

And folks, that answer of Jesus' has stayed with the history of mankind ever since. You, and you alone, must decide about Jesus of Nazareth. Was He a lunatic, a liar, or the Lord?

If you decide He was the Lord, then I have good news for you; if you confess with your mouth that Jesus is the Lord, and if you are convinced deep inside you that God raised Him from the dead, you shall receive complete deliverance from sin and all other things that separate you from God; you also shall receive the gift of eternal life because of the fact that God loved this world enough to send His only unique and begotten Son.

How to retire at 35

It's easy. Thousands of people do it every year. It starts out with a tinge of boredom or frustration. Gradually a person's work becomes less and less important. The rat race hardly seems worth while anymore. Tomorrow will just be another yesterday and what was so great about that?

It's at this point that many people retire. Oh, they still go to work. They continue to go through the motions. They even draw a paycheck. There are no retirement presents or testimonial dinners. Nobody knows they are retired at least, not right away. People, systems and information start passing them by. The lucky ones get fired in time to make a fresh start. The less fortunate ones hang around for years waiting for a raise or promotion that never comes and wondering why. It doesn't have to be that way. We have to learn to fight back. Each year more than 100,000 people join Dale Carnegie classes, all over the world, for just that reason. They counteract the urge to coast by learning to run as they never ran before. It's worth the effort though. If 30 years seems like a long time to spend in a rocking chair . . . investigate the

The Silver Lining

BY DANIEL AGNEW STORM

Winter Takes A Little Rest

Today, January twenty-seven, is a Spring-in-Winter day, Sunny with blue January sky all around, and an even sixty on the thermometer out at the gate. It is just before high noon, and the cows are lying stretched out in the sun the picture of "sweet content"; and a large band of Western Blue Birds have flown in and are bathing and splashing in their stone drinking fountains, made of the ancient Indian grain-grinding rocks.
 Their dark blue coats and soft crimson breasts with the white abdomen are especially brilliant in the mellow sun, a sign that they have wintered especially well in spite of the cold weather.
 There is a large flock of crows circling overhead and calling their fair weather messages down over the land. And there is the faintest smell of new grass springing forth in the sunny spots where the snow melt water has soaked into the ground.
 There are a few bees and a wasp or two humming around the house, and the apricot buds are just on the point of swelling.

 In other words, Winter is catching its breath, as it often does in late January or early February, giving the world a little break in the cold before it begins the second half, which is often more snowy than the first.
 This message will reach you on the twenty-eighth; and will be our last little visit through the printed page in the month of January. So we will meet over in February after a wonderful January.

"The Birthday Month"
 The short little month of February gives us a faster pace on into Spring, being as it is a little season of its own between the close of Winter and the approach of Spring.
 And it has long been called "The Birthday Month" because of the birthdays of Washington and Lincoln falling on the twenty-second and the twelfth. And now we have the birthday to celebrate of another great president, Ronald Reagan, who will celebrate his seventy-first birthday on February Six.
 On February second comes Ground Hog's Day, that great time when the length of the winter is determined.
 And one of our favorite days is Saint Valentine's Day, February fourteen.
 So let us enjoy the remaining days of January, the glorious month of the beginning of the year. And let us look forward with, gratefulness to Our Lord, to the favorite month of February.

Ag economists predict 1982 will be better year than 1981

Agricultural economists at New Mexico State University (NMSU) say the overall effect of Reaganomics should make 1982 a better year than 1981, but not as good as the White House predicts.
 Lowell Catlett, Extension agricultural economist at NMSU, said, "A larger than predicted federal deficit will keep 1982's economy somewhat dampened."
 The deficit is so influential because it impacts financial markets. When the federal government has to borrow money, and compete with private borrowers in a limited pool of funds, this generally causes interest rates to go up," Catlett said.
 Catlett predicts the prime interest rate will bounce between 14 and 16 percent during 1982, and doesn't expect interest to be lower than 14 percent anytime during the coming year.
 There's better news on the inflation side of the ledger, according to the NMSU ag economists who publish Agri-Cents, a newsletter that discusses topics of economic interest for New Mexico farmers and ranchers.
 Inflation should drop to about eight percent in 1982 as the result of tight money policies now in place by the Federal Reserve Board. If some other positive factors occur, the inflation rate could drop as low as five percent, Catlett said.
 Inflation should drop to about eight percent in 1982 as the result of tight money policies now in place by the Federal Reserve Board. If some other positive factors occur, the inflation rate could drop as low as five percent, Catlett said.

 Unemployment will probably remain high, but should decline toward the end of this year. Although the rate will be approaching a new high by the end of 1982, it should average seven and five tenths to eight percent for the entire year.
 "The smokestack industries — steel, copper and rubber — and those that depend heavily on the automobile industry will rebound only slightly this year. Housing and construction industries should follow about the same pattern," Catlett said.
 "The nation's gross national product, the production of all goods and services, will remain fairly weak until the third and fourth quarters of 1982, the economists said. Retail sales will be soft for the first half of the year.
 "And farm income is going to stay close to the present historic lows for most of the year, with any improvement limited to the fourth quarter," Catlett said.
 The ag economists who publish Agri-Cents are Catlett, John Fowler, Wilmer Harper and James Libbin. Future issues will cover agricultural marketing, agricultural policy, ranch management, farm management, income tax management, water resources, price and production outlook, agricultural finance, and public land policy.
 Anyone interested in the twice-monthly newsletter should contact Libbin at Box 3169, NMSU, Las Cruces, New Mexico 88003.

Estate inventory records should be kept up to date

If you were killed today in a car accident, would your family be able to settle your estate without too much difficulty?
 "No matter what your salary, your family could have financial difficulties unless you keep a record of family data and valuable papers," said Jackie Martin, Extension family finance specialist at New Mexico State University.
 One expert suggests families should prepare their own individual estate inventory by organizing their records under five categories: personal, assets, obligations, benefits and future plans.

Personal papers should include a copy of your will, birth certificates for all members of your family, death certificates, marriage certificates, divorce decrees, or any other papers necessary to establish your family's ancestry. Include names and current addresses of family members and beneficiaries.
 Also record the name, address, and telephone number of the executor of your estate, your lawyer, life insurance agent, accountant, investment counselor and other financial advisors.
 List all assets, including all checking or savings accounts, life insurance policies, real estate, stocks and automobiles. Include the location of any deeds, titles, policies, certificates or passbooks needed to prove ownership of your property.
 When listing obligations, include not only outstanding debts on real estate or autos, but also list regular expenditures for taxes, insurance premiums and utilities.
 The benefits section of your inventory should include veterans benefits and health, accident, and burial insurances. Don't forget Social Security or Civil Service benefits. If you don't know what these benefits are, it's not too soon to find out.
 Once you have started this inventory, the future plans list will become obvious. You will immediately see what steps you need to take to complete the inventory, what adjustments you should make in your assets or debts, and what benefits you and your survivors need more information about.
 This simple inventory of all valuable papers, family data, and financial status could help organize your present plans as well as simplify future estate settlements.

BETH DUBOSE will leave her sales position at True Value Hardware February 3, to enter the nuts and bolts world of aiding starving children in Somalia.

Ruidoso woman chooses to work with starving children in Somalia

Beth Dubose is going to camp February 3. Not a fancy resort camp for healthy, middle class children, but an African refugee camp where hundreds of starving people die daily.

Dubose will be travelling to Somalia, the easternmost country on the African continent bordered by the Gulf of Aden and the Indian Ocean. She'll be working for the International Christian Aid (ICA) organization and her job will be to help find sponsors all over the world for thousands of undernourished and unclothed Somali refugee children.

There are presently 1.7 million Somali refugees from the Ogaden region of Ethiopia living in Somalia. It is purported that one out of every three persons in Somalia is a refugee. According to a December, 1980, United Nations report, 61 percent of those refugees are children. 75,000 of those refugees live in ICA supported camps.

ICA has set up and maintains Horseed, the main camp, and Halgan, which lies eight kilometers from the base camp, in the remote Gedo region of Somalia. 20 field workers supply food, clothing and medicine, and staff six supplementary feeding centers, two general medical clinics, two tuberculosis clinics and an eye clinic.

Although Dubose is a trained emergency medical technician and has worked in ambulances, the ICA actually hired her for her clerical skills. "They hired me for my bookkeeping and typing experience," said Dubose, who presently works as a salesperson at the True Value Hardware store in Ruidoso.

Dubose's work will entail living at the camps for four weeks at a time collating bibliographical information on the children and taking their pictures. She will then go to Mogadishu, the capital of Somalia, where ICA keeps an office. There she will put together identification cards that will be sent to other charity groups throughout the world, and they will seek sponsors for each individual child. Twenty dollars a month provides food, clothing and medical care for a truly needy child.

How did Dubose ever find out about the problems of these refugees living halfway across the world? "I was watching a special television program called 'Ten Days to Death' about two months ago. It showed a bunch of kids dying of malnutrition. Some had walked hundreds of miles to get to a shelter for food and aid. Half of the group, mostly women and children, died along the way. If you ever saw it...it's despairing," said Dubose.

For two weeks she waited and thought about what she had seen on that television program. Then a month and a half ago, she applied for a job with ICA. "Just the kids over there. They didn't start the cotton-picking war, but they're the ones paying for it," said Dubose of her decision to go for it. ICA replied within a week, and told her to start preparing for her new job in Africa.

Preparation for Dubose's work meant getting a passport, filing for a visa for Kenya and Somalia, receiving two cholera vaccinations, a typhoid shot and yellow fever immunization. The yellow fever shot had to be administered by a designated person, and the closest person who has the authority to give the vaccination is at Holloman Air Force Base. Dubose must also protect herself against malaria, and that requires that she take 200 mg. of quinine mixed with 300 mg. of base every day for a week prior to her departure.

ICA will reimburse Dubose for the cost of the shots and passports. In addition, they will pay for all of her travel, food and living expenses. ICA also promised to pay Dubose a monthly salary of $500. On top of all of that, she gets a week's vacation for every five weeks she works. "They (ICA) make you take a week off just for rest because of the intense situation," said Dubose.

However, Dubose's job will be no picnic. She said that for the next year, or more if Dubose so decides, that she will be living in a crowded camp under primitive conditions with a totally different culture, where an average of 300 refugees die a day. Dubose will leave no later than the second week in February, which means she'll arrive in Somalia just in time for the monsoon season. "They said they're having a mild season over there. It's only a 110 degrees in the day," she said.

Dubose said, "I'll have to take a lot of lightweight cotton clothes; blue jeans and T-shirts, but no halter tops or shorts because many of those people are Muslims, and that would offend them." Her bags will also be well stocked with personal items such as shampoo, soap and toothpaste, which Dubose said are very rare items over there.

"I've had reservations about going and I'm still scared stiff, but I don't regret my decision. It's going to be neat. Daddy is more nervous about me going than I am," said Dubose.

A quick look at Somalia

Somalia is an underdeveloped agricultural country that stretches along the Horn of Africa. It is a little smaller than Texas and has about as many people as that state. Most Somalis are nomads and herdsmen, and the country's chief products are bananas, livestock, hides and skins. Until the mid-1970s, Somalia was in the Soviet sphere of influence.

Through early European colonization, an area known as the Ogaden has geographically and traditionally belonged to Ethiopia, but many people of Somali origin continued to inhabit the land and practice the customs handed down to them by their ancestors.

When the Somali Republic was formed in 1960, there were still a lot of Somalis living in eastern Ethiopia and northern Kenya. Somali leaders claimed that those people should have the right to decide what form of government they wanted. As a result, Somalia's relations with its neighbors became tense, and border clashes with both Ethiopia and Kenya broke out frequently. In 1977, fighting between Somali liberation groups and the Ethiopian Army in the Ogaden became heavy. The Somali Army strongly supported local guerrillas, and by the end of 1977, almost all of the total area was occupied by Somali troops. Somalia's lost province had been regained.

However, in February, 1978, Ethiopia, with Cuban support, launched a counteroffensive and recaptured most of the Somali-occupied Ogaden. Somali troops withdrew from the region, but continued to support local liberation organizations. In June of that year, guerrillas captured an Ethiopian base, and by the end of 1978, Somali tribesmen controlled the countryside and some towns, leaving the major cities in Ethiopian hands.

The war had devastated the land and left thousands dead. Wives were without husbands, and many children had become fatherless. Thus began the exodus out of the war-ravaged Ogaden into Somali refugee camps.

Two diabetics receive electronic insulin pumps

Two Albuquerque diabetics had remote-control electronic insulin pumps implanted January 13 at the University of New Mexico (UNM) Hospital/Bernalillo County Medical Center.

The 32-year-old woman and 29-year-old man were the second and third humans to receive the New Mexico Insulin Pump, developed by the UNM school of Medicine and Sandia National Laboratories. A prototype was implanted in Monte Patterson January 7, 1981.

Patterson, a 43-year-old city resident, has been in good health since the implant, said Dr. R. Philip Eaton. Eaton and Dr. David Schade, both of the School of Medicine department of medicine, have directed the insulin delivery system research. The device is still functioning inside Patterson's abdominal wall.

The new patients received pumps similar to the one Patterson is now using, with refinements in the power supply and the pumping mechanism, said Eaton.

Surgeons who implanted the pumps were Drs. Sterling Edwards and Raymond Dobernick, chairman and vice chairman of the UNM surgery department.

The system consists of a refill port implanted beneath the skin above the electronic pump, which is implanted between layers of muscle on the right side. The tiny pump that moves insulin from the reservoir into the abdominal cavity was first developed by Sandia Labs as part of a weapons research project, according to Sandia publications.

A small radio transmitter outside the body can be used to program the rate at which the pump delivers insulin. Patients use the programmer to adjust their insulin levels in accordance with the kinds and quantities of food they eat.

The National Institute of Arthritis and Metabolism recently awarded Eaton $400,000 for the first year of a three-year grant to continue work in refining and miniaturizing the insulin delivery system. The current model is about the size of a deck of cards. Sandia Laboratories will be subcontracted to produce the new equipment.

Eaton said he will allow a month of testing on the newly implanted pumps before filling their reservoirs with insulin. Meanwhile, the patients will be maintained with daily insulin injections.

Directory on conservation environmental groups ready

A conservation periodical called it "one of the most important documents printed in this country for natural resource personnel."

It can give you the name of an organization devoted solely to preserving eagle habitats, or put you in touch with the president of the Trumpeter Swan Society. It can tell you who in Colorado is working to protect the Rocky Mountain Bighorn Sheep or how to contact the New England Wild Flower Society.

The "it" is the National Wildlife Federation's (NWF) Conservation Directory for 1982. The 300 pages of the directory's 27th edition, published this month, list more than 12,000 individuals and 1,800 organizations involved with natural resource use and management in the United States and 115 other countries.

Federal, state and Congressional officials, committees and agencies concerned with the environment are listed in the NWF direction, in addition to citizens' groups and international conservation organizations. The listings typically include the address, telephone number, names of directors, statement of purpose, and the size of each group.

The directory also contains:

- A list of United States and Canadian state and provincial fish and game administrators.

QUESTION—With today's economic picture, it seems that a big chunk of my paycheck goes to just keeping warm in winter. My heating system is electric, but I suppose oil heat isn't much more of a bargain.

For some time now, I have been thinking of going to wood heat, but remembering back when I was a kid when I hauled wood to a hungry wood stove, I'm not sure the savings are worth the labor. Then, too, I don't know if a wood heater would satisfactorily heat my home.

Have you had any experience with a wood stove, and if so, could you clear up some of my questions?

Donnie L., New York

ANSWER—Wood heat can save you money over the more conventional electric and oil systems, but there is surely some work involved. How much of this work you are willing to do yourself has a direct bearing on the possible savings.

If your house isn't well insulated, this is the first step to take. It will greatly improve the efficiency of any system.

You must answer several questions before you can judge the savings from wood. Do you already have a chimney? Do you have an available source of wood where you can cut, and are you willing and able to do so? Do you have a truck in which to haul it? Last, will you enjoy (or at least tolerate) having to keep the stove well fed? If you can answer yes to all these questions, there is no reason you can't benefit from wood heat. If your answer is no to several of the questions, you had better weigh each no for its importance to you. One more point. Before you get too far along, be certain there isn't an ordinance against wood burning in your area. Some cities have such a law.

I am into my second year of burning wood and it has saved me money. I saved enough the first year to pay for the stove and accessories. Most people shouldn't plan on recouping their investment this soon, but it was possible for me. I did cut and haul most of the wood myself, but I figured that I could still save enough to make it worthwhile even if I bought the wood already cut and split. And we were warm.

How long will I be willing to provide the extra labor necessary to burn wood? I don't know. But my original system is still intact and only needs to be turned on. Send questions to: Wilderness Wisdom, P.O. Box 237, Pittsville, Maryland 21850

BY ELLEN KING

Nearly everyone can name off several birds that they can recognize — hummingbird, eagle, ostrich, blue jay, cardinal, crow, duck, swan, and roadrunner, just to name a few. Bird watchers know that identifying other birds can get to be a tad more challenging. As a matter of fact it can become downright difficult. I can glance out my window in the morning and spot a small brown bird sitting on the fence post. I decide rather quickly to rule out ostrich and condor as possible titles. For starters, I pull out the old tattered bird guide and flip over to "Sparrows." Lo and behold there's more than a dozen species of sparrows. If that's not enough to make you tear your hair out, you only have to flip through the bird guide to find out there's several dozen more small brown feathered tykes that resemble sparrows.

All is not lost however. A little attention to detail will get this bird identified. First, I need to notice contrasting colors on the bird. A black cap, a yellow throat or a dark belly stripe will differentiate between several species. Wing patches of gray, black or white are also distinctive. Tail feathers are another good key. Tail feathers may be either striped or solid or they may be bordered by a white outer margin.

Next, the special equipment of the bird should be noted. This might be the hooked bill of a sparrow hawk or the short chunky bill of a seed eating finch. Feet are also specialized, as in the talons of an owl or the webbed feet found in waterfowl. Woodpeckers have their own brand of footwear that appears almost like the letter "X".

Lastly, the behavior of the bird can be an aid in identification. A nut-hatch will take an upside down approach to walking on a tree trunk and an oriole will build a sock-like nest. Some birds will cheep and others will whistle or trill. Some birds will fly in an arrow straight line and others will travel with gentle dips in their line of flight.

All these details go together to identify a bird accurately. Sometimes only an expert can differentiate between some species, so don't give up if you can not pinpoint a bird exactly. A keen eye and practice are the key. Good luck.

SANTA FE—Problem: Name at least one branch of state government whose budget was going to get cut sharply by the 1982 Legislature.

Correct answer: Commerce and Industry.

Lawmakers, especially the conservative coalition in the House, just don't think this is an agency which has earned its keep.

It won't now get the bad cuts it might otherwise have sustained, because Russell Autrey, former legislator and one-time protégé of John Mershan, a House power if there ever was one, is temporarily in charge there.

Who ran it before?

John Salvo, now on administrative leave because he bets on football games, a man whose main claim to the job seems to be that he was school superintendent in the district where Bruce King's brother Sam headed the school board.

If Salvo stays gone while the Legislature's in town, the whole department will profit.

There will be more money without Salvo than there would have been had he stayed there—which might help to explain why the Governor put him and Dickie Montoya, boss at the Public Service Commission, on leave.

The message to them: Get lost for now. Come around after the legislators have gone home, and we'll decide then what to do with you.

Though parts of the Commerce and Industry Department do a good job, they seem more than any other agency of state government at the moment to have a tough time telling lawmakers what they actually accomplish.

Legislators in New Mexico are not full-time occupants of their posts. They come to Santa Fe for only a small part of the year, even those who are on interim committees which meet up here once a month or so.

They don't always know what questions to ask to educate the story of what an agency accomplishes.

If the people making the agency presentations are shy, hesitant, unprepared, full of bull, blustering, feeling threatened, or otherwise in some state of mind which gets in the way of communication, they are likely to do a poor job of telling the lawmakers what they need to know.

More often than not, Commerce and Industry, at least in recent years, has been represented by those who did such a poor job.

John Salvo may come back to run that agency, though at the moment it doesn't seem likely.

If he does, he would know that the one thing which most worried those who had to appropriate the bucks while he was there was a clear feeling, which he himself communicated, that he was never truly in charge.

Coolness and calmness impress legislators a lot more than frantic scrambling, excuses, or even the over-elaborate self-justification which comes from a Salvo associate, Bob Davis of New Mexico Magazine.

Autrey will do a lot better in getting bucks for the department, not least of all because most of the legislators who listen to his pleas are his former buddies.

Part of Bruce King's strength when he first became our governor was the fact that he was a one-time legislator. That meant he had enemies among lawmakers (those whose bills he had helped to shoot down) but it gave him a large reservoir of good will with lawmakers as well.

He used that then.

Why did he forget about it during his second term, when he named people with no credentials with legislators like Salvo and Larry Ingram and Eric Serna to office, instead of a host of old legislative cronies who would have done things a lot more effortlessly than these men did?

Dear editor:

The Special Olympic benefit dance and auction on January 15 at Jerry Dale's was a tremendous success thanks to the generosity and kindness of the businesses and individuals who have helped to make the first annual 1982 New Mexico Winter Special Olympic Games at Eagle Creek Ski Area possible.

The money raised that evening, along with the many generous donations that have also been received, will give the 100 mentally handicapped individuals from southern New Mexico and Texas the opportunity to experience the enjoyment of learning and competing in cross-country and Alpine skiing, which, otherwise, they may never have had that chance.

The Special Olympians and volunteers thank those individuals who donated at the door, those who bought the items auctioned off, and the following contributors, whose contributions are and will be much appreciated.

Jerry Bingham of Jerry Dale's/Cousins, Wall Lindborg of Jerry Dale's/Cousins, Jim Woolridge-auctioneer, Jim Winniford-auctioneer, Clay Mac-auctioneer and band member, Nancy Radziewicz-auction coordinator, Ellen Miller of Madra's, Helen Gable Reeves of A Place in the Sun, Gary and Melinda Hall of Nottingham's, Bruce McElya of Images Southwest;

Dear editor:

POLITICAL DIRECTIONS
Thank you fellow Ruidosans, for your calls, letters, and support in my campaign for Mayor of your village. I would especially like to thank the police officers and village employees that reaffirmed my feelings that a change in government is way past due.

After much thought and by talking to a lot of people, I have decided to withdraw my bid for Mayor. I have decided it is more important for Ruidoso not to take the chance of splitting the ticket. I love Ruidoso and its people too much to split their vote between George White and myself and let Lloyd Davis get back into office. Nothing could be worse for the future of Ruidoso than for Davis to have another four years of expensive mistakes like the past four years have been.

I have decided to run for Village Council instead. Perhaps a political "step down", but just as great an honor. I am now backing our NEW MAYOR, George White and I hope and pray that everyone else in Ruidoso will do the same. George White is an honest man whose priority is the health of Ruidoso. He has a genuine concern for the orderly growth of Ruidoso in the future. George White was an excellent Mayor the last time he was in office. George White is now a member of our Village Council and has always stood up for his belief of what is right for the Village of Ruidoso.

I am also backing Al Junge for Village Council. Mr. Junge has a wide background in business and if you have read the Ruidoso News over the last four years you may have read some of the 200 letters J. A. "Al" Junge has written. From these letters you can get an insight into Mr. Junge's genuine concern for Ruidoso and its residents.

This election and Bond Issue is perhaps the most important election ever in the history of Ruidoso. Never has there been any more reason for you, the voting residents, to turn out to vote.

I cannot encourage you enough to discuss the issues, to call and talk to the candidates personally. If you would like to know more about me or find out how I feel about the issues then please contact me any time at all.

I feel that a Councilman is your servant in public office.

Dear editor:

IT WON'T BE EASY:

By now everyone knows that the motorcycle convention will not be held next fall, as a part of the Aspenade Celebration.

The Motorcycle Convention has been moved to New York State by its promoter, Mr. Til Thompson.

Will it be missed?—you can make book on it.

To suddenly face the prospect of losing several millions of dollars in our economy will be felt by those businesses who depend on Aspenade for a temporary "shot in the arm" between the end of the racing season and the arrival of the ski season.

After many years of successfully operating and directing the Motorcycle Convention in Ruidoso why, suddenly, with little advance notice, did Til Thompson make such a drastic move? I am sure that money was a deciding factor, however, we can't overlook the cool attitude towards the Motorcycle Convention that was expressed by some, including members of the Ruidoso Governing Body. Perhaps this fact played a part in the move from Ruidoso.

In the meantime our Chamber of Commerce is getting into high gear in an attempt to fill the void left by the cancelled convention.

Attitudes are positive and determination to do "whatever is necessary" was evident at the special Chamber Board meeting which was held on January 22.

A lot of work lies ahead—I wish them well.

J. A. "Al" Junge

Dear editor:

In reply to your editorial of December 31 concerning Ruidoso's growth.

While growth is a sign of progress, unplanned growth can be a disaster. The quality of life for all of Ruidoso's citizens should be the first consideration. A reasonable, workable land use plan should be decided upon with citizen input encouraged.

Acknowledging that Ruidoso is not Dallas I have seen what has happened here. The last five years of sunbelt growth in Dallas have resulted in high inflation, a doubled crime rate and traffic is a nightmare.

I am looking forward to moving permanently to your lovely village in a few years. Hopefully it will retain its charm.

Dear editor:

Concerning the letter from C. Cattel; Whether or not MAT could "squeeze us out," I really doubt that. But Chino would certainly like to have that kind of power.

As far as manipulating the reporting of Chino's speech; K.G. and C.D. did not. And as far as the public believing "dribble", that would be true in the case of her letter.

There were about 50 businessmen at that luncheon, and I believe they would all take issue with Cattel's opinionated accusations. Perhaps she should take her own advice.

Personally, I don't like mush in any case; whether from MAT or letters to the editor.

Carping about the growth problems in Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs, by aspirants for the offices of mayor and trustee, is part of the "fun" associated with being a candidate.

Or so it seems.

It's easy for a candidate to say both villages need more water, more water storage, better solid waste disposal service and surfaced streets.

But it's a lot harder to come up with plans to provide these improvements.

Especially with plans that are affordable.

Looking down the road five or ten years, to determine our needs then, is difficult — anyone's guess as to what living conditions will be like then is as good as any other person's.

A means to provide orderly, controlled, development in both villages is sorely needed.

Perhaps what's needed is a capable, full-time planner, to keep on top of developments with an improvement program that's flexible enough to incorporate changes as required.

We hope that those candidates espousing changes will come up with workable ideas, bearing in mind that these ideas must be affordable. Money. That's always the sticker.

Progress is here to stay. We can but hope that the governing bodies can find solutions to our growth problems, solutions all of us can live with.

We'd like to see a lot more in the way of ideas for bringing about a successful future in the Ruidoso/Ruidoso Downs area, and a lot less carping. — CD

HANG TOUGH, PETE

Senator Pete Domenici is fixing to get the attention of his colleagues ... 'cause Pete's gonna try and plug a loophole allowing Senators and Representatives to deduct $75 daily for expenses whilst they're in the capitol.

And this $75 a day dealie must be frustrating to the Internal Revenue Service snoopers/sleuths, 'cause they can't audit the deductions.

Of his proposal, Senator Pete said: "This loophole would, in effect, exempt legislators from paying any taxes. No business or individual would be allowed a blanket deduction such as this and we in Congress should not be given any special treatment."

Discounting, we presume, the lagniappes that just naturally fall as just dues to these stalwarts ... in deference to their position.

And the Senator went on to say: "How can we in Congress reform the tax code and close unnecessary tax loopholes for special interests when we won't even get rid of our own special interest? It is up to Congress to show the example by making this the first tax loophole closed."

It'll be interesting ... as Pete makes his move ... to see how his cohorts will react ... 'cause those guys/gals in the hallowed halls of Congress generally don't take kindly to having their goodies taken away ... so hang in there, Pete ... get that axe blade honed to a fine cutting edge ... chop down this tree of benefits ... and let the chips fall where they may.

SIZEABLE REFUND

According to Senator Jack Schmitt the United States Geological Survey (USGS) guys is gonna refund New Mexico $1.2 million ... gleaned from overpayments of oil windfall profits taxes on Federal lands.

And along with USGS getting its act together ... what with deciding they'd collected too much from the state ... they're gonna sorta revise the way they're handling oil and gas royalties collected from Federal and Indian leases ... 'cause they're suspicious ... allegedly, of course ... that about $300 million a year ain't being reported ... why it probably isn't even being paid ... and USGS sure do want to get their gloms on that kinda loot ... which'd probably fund all kinds of scientific undertakings ... and keep Interior Secretary James Watt busily engaged in such pursuits ... which might help keep him outta mischief ... no?

'Course collecting that money'd cut into someone's profits ... which shouldn't bother the USGS guys all that much ... no?

ON PROBING GAMING

Tuesday it had to have been ... 'cause that's the day John Salvo, Commerce Department honcho, and Richard Montoya, Public Service Commission head, got a little ink 'cause they'd up and resigned ... due to allegations they'd been making some wagers on sporting events ... right at ice tea time, Shakey Pete espied me ... quietly sitting at a table ... quaffing a refreshing ice tea.

Right off I knew something was botherin' Shakey ... 'cause, he was sidling toward me ... and when Shakey's in a sidling mood ... it generally means he's been up to no good ... like maybe he's been thinkin' ... which is just about always a disaster ... for me ... 'cause he likes upsettin' my day by tellin' me what he's been thinkin'.

So ... after Shakey'd taken a sip of his ice tea ... I asked him what was bugging him ... and, know what, he was concerned about those two guys as is allegedly involved in some nefarious gambling schemes ... as handed in their resignations to Governor King.

"Way I see it," Shakey said, "King don't give a hoot about those $1, $5 even, wagers ... but he's worried about these public servants maybe wagerin' $100 or more ... all in the spirit of making the sport they're wagerin' on a little more interesting ... which it sure do, especially when the rent's riding on who wins."

Shakey about talked himself hoarse ... so I figured this couldn't get anything but better ... so I ups and orders a refill to down.

"But," Shakey said, "didja read what King said to reporters after those two ... uh ... Salvo and Montoya'd resigned?" ... I allowed as how I'd read nothing ... "And that's what you'd a learned if you'd read the governor's words ... 'cause that's exactly what he said ... nothing."

"Deal like that, breaking as the legislature's fixin' to get down to money business, musta been mighty upsettin' to Bruce ... 'cause he don't seem to like no scandals cropping up to down grade his administration ... 'cause I don't figure we've seen the last of Bruce's politickin' ... 'cause it's in his blood," Shakey sorta paused ... like he was hopin' to get his second wind ... and maybe another ice tea refill.

"Way I figure it," he said, "if King frowns on a little friendly wagering hard enough, those guys'll have to start playing the ponies ... which'd for sure'd drive him up the wall."

BRIEF BYT: Nothing like falling off your high horse to make you appreciate Sheppard ponies ... CD

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

At the last regular meeting of the Planning and Zoning Commission, there was a discussion concerning the possibility of changing the zoning of the racquet club area to accommodate a Hilton Inn. A Hilton Inn would be good for the city—providing more jobs, revenue, and TRAFFIC. As a resident of this area, I can say without a doubt, that as a result of the increased traffic on White Mountain Drive due to the recent building of condominiums, this is the last thing the residents of this area need.

Mr. Dickey seems to feel that the school board has no right in expressing their opposition to the plan. I believe they have every right! When was the last time you took your child to school? Some drivers slow down to 35 M.P.H. Increased traffic will not help protect our children.

I am all for a Hilton Inn in this community, but this area is not the most feasible as far as traffic density is concerned. If you feel the same way, please come to the next P & Z meeting, February 1 at 9:30 a.m., at City Hall to let the commission know your views.

At the present time, due to an oversight, this area has no zoning classification. Now is the time to set the record straight. This is a residential area, not commercial. We do not want or need a commercial development in this neighborhood.

NEA sculptors' fellowships available

March 4 is the deadline for practicing professional sculptors to mail applications to the Visual Arts Program of the National Endowment for the Arts (NEA) for its $25,000 Sculpture Fellowships.

Starting this year, most of the Endowment's fellowship grants to visual artists will be for $25,000, in contrast to the previous $12,500 awards. The program will continue, however, to award a few grants to emerging artists, and this stipend has been increased to $5,000 from the previous $3,000.

This higher fellowship amount more accurately represents a level of annual support for working artists, and recognizes the value to the work that these artists do. With this more substantial funding, artists ready to undertake major work will be able to devote to it the necessary time and materials.

These higher amounts, combined with fewer dollars in the NEA appropriation, will of course mean that fewer fellowships can be awarded and that competition will be stiffer than ever. In recent years, only about three percent of fellowship applications have been funded. There is nothing to be gained by submitting work to this national competition unless it is ready to be evaluated in a rigorous professional context, the NEA guidelines point out.

Applications must be accompanied by 10 slides of recent work plus, if desired, not more than two catalogs of recent exhibitions and/or not more than three reviews of recent work.

Artists may make only one fellowship application per funding period in the Visual Arts category. Students pursuing graduate or undergraduate degrees, or nonprofessionals who engage in artwork as a hobby, are not eligible for the fellowships.

Complete information, guidelines, and application forms may be obtained by writing to the Director, Visual Arts Program, National Endowment for the Arts, 2401 E St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20506. Information and application forms are also available from the New Mexico Arts Division, 113 Lincoln Ave., Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501. The Arts Division's telephone number is 327-2061.

ART, DINING AND ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE

Sunland Park Hoofbeats

BY MARK GORDON

NERVINO MAY NOT be the most expensive horse running at Sunland Park, but he certainly is one of the most efficient and popular with New Mexico race fans. The eight-year-old Native gelding led throughout in scoring a half-length victory in Saturday's seventh race at five and one-half furlongs. That was the 17th career victory for the veteran campaigner, who has won at distances from four to seven furlongs. He's tallied seven triumphs at Ruidoso Downs, four at the New Mexico State Fair meeting in Albuquerque and six at Sunland Park. His current owner, Finis F. Westbrook of Sterling City, Texas, is the fifth owner he's had. He's trained by Jimmie Claridge. His best season was in 1981 when he scampered to six victories, including three straight wins in September and October. Victor Escobar rode him to his $5,800 win on Saturday.

ANOTHER HORSE, Doctor Gat, won his first race in more than three years when he tallied a five and one-fourth verdict in Saturday's featured race at six and one-half furlongs. The six-year-old Peirone horse was one of the West Coast's most promising juveniles during his two-year-old season in 1978, but an injury sidelined him 1981 when he made his comeback bid at Sunland Park. Doctor Gat's last victory was an allowance race win at Bay Meadows near San Francisco, California, on November 28, 1978. Ridden by Louie Gomez, he paid $6.80 as the second wagering choice in Saturday's Sunland main event. He's owned by Dr. Robert O. Gathings of Albuquerque and is trained by Ike Danley.

STARTING FRIDAY, Sunland Park will add a 12th race to each day's program. The fall season began with 12 races each day, but was gradually shortened to 10 races due to the decreasing daylight hours. With daylight hours now increasing, Sunland Park will present 12 races for each day's program throughout the rest of the spring season except for trial race days. Post time will stay at 12:30 p.m., until February 19 when it will switch to 1 p.m.

BOLD FIGHT, who won the 1980 Riley Allison Futurity at Sunland Park, ran second to To B Or Not in Saturday's featured $66,550 Sierra Madre Handicap at Santa Anita Park, California. The Southwest bred and raised speedster was ridden by another Southwesterner, Cash Assmusen, who is making his first extended stay at the Los Angeles-area track. The winner, ridden by Laffit Pincay Jr., ran the six and one-half furlongs in 1:14 4/5. J. D. Barton of the Double B Ranch in Anthony, said Bold Ego will campaign later this spring in Hot Springs, Arkansas.

JACQUE LACKEY has left her post as chart taker at Sunland Park to join her husband, James, who will ride at next month's quarter horse meeting at Centennial Race Track near Denver, Colorado. Jacque, 28, served for almost a year and a half taking the positions of each horse as called by veteran Daily Racing Form New Mexico correspondent Bob Dudich. "She was the best chart taker I've ever had by far," said Dudich who has seen New Mexico racing for more than 20 years. "I've really enjoyed the Form. I hope I can work for them again," she said. She added that James would ride at Los Alamitos near Los Angeles after the Centennial season ends. "We really like Ruidoso. Maybe we'll be back there sometime."

SATURDAY'S SIXTH race was named in honor of the $30 million Easy Jet Syndicate, which owns quarter horse racing's top stallion in terms of money won by his offspring. Mrs. Harriet Peckham of El Paso, Texas, the syndicate manager, and Richard Wolfe of League, Inc., of Dallas, Texas, among other syndicate members, made the victory presentation. League, Inc., is the largest and newest share holder in the Easy Jet Syndicate. The syndicate held its annual meeting earlier Saturday at the El Paso Country Club.

TRIGGER FALLEN in his bid to win five straight races when he finished fourth in Sunday's seventh race at five and one-half furlongs. He was the 2-1 second favorite under jockey John Cushing. The eight-year-old First Balcony gelding was second entering the stretch but faded slightly as the 8-5 favorite, Pineapple Miss, zoomed to a one and one-half length win. Trigger is owned and trained by William Thompson of Ruidoso Downs.

TWO MUST BE jockey Willie Lovell's favorite number. The veteran jockey who holds a commanding lead in the spring season jockey race after 12 days has tallied two victories on six race days. He won two races on each day's program during the second weekend (January 8-10) and won two on Friday's and Saturday's cards. Eight of his wins have come for trainer James Curry, who is also off to a rapid start in the trainer's standings after the first four weekends of the 55 day spring campaign.

OTHER JOCKEYS piloting two winners included Larry Byers who rode Lefty Right ($4.40) in the second and Hey Me Again ($7.80) in the fourth race on Friday. On Saturday, Louie Gomez and Leroy Coombs each won two races. Gomez won with Cam Jack ($12.20) in the third and on Doctor Gat ($6.80) in the featured ninth event while Coombs scored with Mr. Leo Bug ($4.40) in the second and on Toddler ($4.40) in the fifth. On Sunday, Kenny Roller and apprentice Casey Lambert each recorded two victories. Roller won with Stomp Dancer ($9.20) in the featured Thunderbird Handicap and also on Strongly ($10.60) in the 11th. Lambert won aboard Pineapple Miss ($5.20) in the seventh and on Ridan Chic ($4.40) in the 10th.

THE DAILY WAGERING average for the two part 1981-82 season now stands at $305,578, which is an increase of 26.3 percent over the comparable average of $241,935 at this point a year ago. Sunland's upswing continued even in competition with the Super Bowl. Over the weekend, the three day handle was $946,100 a gain of 23.83 percent over Super Bowl weekend last year.

THE BEST POST positions over the weekend were the Nos. 7 and 10 with five winners each. The seasonal totals: No. 1 — 34 winners, No. 2 — 54, No. 3 — 47, No. 4 — 44, No. 5 — 50, No. 6 — 37, No. 7 — 20, No. 8 — 50, No. 9 — 43, No. 10 — 41, No. 11 — 0, No. 12 — 0.

Noted author will attend opera premier

Author and liturgical artist Betty John of Green Vallen, Arizona, will attend the premier performance of her two act drama "Ruth" in Alamogordo, at 3 p.m., on February 21. The work, adapted as a liturgical music drama, is in the form of an "opera" and was composed by Dr. Martin R. Rice, conductor of the Alamogordo Community Chorus and Orchestra, who will be on the podium for the performance at Christ Community Church. Pastor Jack Brock of Christ Community Church will narrate the action between musical numbers as the music drama will not be staged, but presented in "oratorio" form.

Betty John is a liturgical artist working in enamele, an author, a former war correspondent, and a former syndicated medical columnist (news, not advice). She has had many "one person" art shows in Ohio, and in Arizona, New Mexico, and elsewhere, and has taken many awards internationally as well as nationally.

Singing the roles of Ruth, Naomi, Boaz, Lem, and Achsah, the principals of the "opera" will be sopranos Sara Chambers, Jennifer Jacobs, Lynn Spillane, altos Marian Farrar and Diana Hamilton, tenor Mark Sharp, and baritone Doyle Rexrode. Accompanist of the chorus is Pat Miller who will be joined by Professor David King of New Mexico State University, Alamogordo, to share the performance of "Ruth" and the Brahms "Liebestieder Waltzes."

Tickets to the performance are available from chorus members and at ticket outlets in Alamogordo including Squash Blossom II, or may be purchased at the door.

Stomp Dancer wins Thunderbird

Stomp Dancer, a gelding who'd been foiled in stakes competition at Sunland Park and the New Mexico State Fair last year, got his revenge on Sunday.

Stomp Dancer made his 1982 debut in the $6,000 Thunderbird Handicap at Sunland Park and came alive at the top of the stretch. The gelding, as if sensing victory, suddenly went into overdrive and kept pouring it on throughout the stretch of the six furlong battle limited to three-year-old colts and geldings.

When he hit the wire, he was a length in front, and still picking up steam. Kenny Roller was up.

Stomp Dancer collected $3,600 to go with the $13,845 he made last year with a record of 3-3-0 from nine starts. The gelding is trained by Doyle Guffin for Jack Green and Louis Lugaard of Ada, Oklahoma.

Fans who made Stomp Dancer a 7-2 shot in the eight-head field reaped payoffs of $9.20, $4.20 and $2.60. The winning time was a so-so 1:11 flat.

The last time Stomp Dancer tested the water against stakes hopefuls was on November 20, when he went in the trials for Sunland's prestigious Fall Thoroughbred Futurity. He didn't threaten. Earlier in the year, he conked out in the A. C. Kemp Memorial Handicap at the New Mexico State Fair.

But Stomp Dancer began indicating a return to form when he made his final start of 1981 in a five and a half furlong sprint on December 12 and finished second.

In Sunday's Thunderbird Handicap, the gelding broke in fifth place, gradually gained ground, then reached the top of the stretch in fourth place. At that point, there was a lot of shifting going on in the struggle to take command, but Stomp Dancer quickly settled the issue with a power burst.

Platoon Star, the 8-5 favorite going after his fourth straight win, moved well out of second place but was unable to collar by the winner. Platoon Star, well piloted by Betty Harless, earned $1,320 and dished out $3.20 and $2.20.

Era Tiempo, packing odds of just under 4-1, also came on at the end, finishing third. The show payoff: $2.40. Willie Lovell was up.

Blade's Ruler, expected to be a factor in the race, was never in the chase.

DR. GAT TOOK a dip in class for Saturday's six and a half furlong feature race at Sunland Park and turned the affair into a romp.

The six-year-old ripped up his eight rivals with ease, cruising to a five and a half length victory.

The issue was never in doubt, since Dr. Gat, well piloted by Louie Gomez, took control shortly after the break and opened his advantage at will, for two other appearances at the meeting, Dr. Gat ran second to the stakes star, Gluver D., and finished sixth in the Sunland Express Handicap.

Saturday's crowd of 3,374 made Dr. Gat the 5-2 second favorite. The payoffs: $6.80, $3 and $3. Dr. Gat is owned by Dr. Robert O. Gathings of Albuquerque. First place was worth $2,280.

Pappa J., the favorite handled by Richard Bickel, closed eagerly to finish second ($2.80, $2.60). Valhalla Express, a 7-1 pick, also made up ground belatedly and took third, returning $4.20.

The winning time was 1:17 4/5 seconds.

DYNAMO JET, a colt who struck out in eight trips to the post last year, enjoyed a change of fortune in Friday's headliner at Sunland Park.

The four-year-old made his Southwest debut in the six furlong headliner and charged out of fourth place to win handily by two lengths. He clocked the distance in a windy 1:12 4/5 seconds and returned mutual payoffs of $21.80, $5.40 and $4.60.

Dynamo Jet is owned by D. M. Smith and Keith Lauer of Dalhart, Texas. Victor Escobar was at the controls. Last year, Dynamo Jet's eight outings produced a zero income. But he collected $1,800 out of the three grand purse attached to Friday's headliner.

Peaceful Success, the 8-5 favorite ridden by Daany Summerow, moved gamely in the final stages and finished second ($3.40, $2.80). Third went to Silky Value, a 7-2 shot handled by Jesus Terrazas. The show payoff: $3.

Hap Canning's Plucky Hussy switched him from claimers

BY DICK ALWAN

R. A. (Hap) Canning's business is the raising of Brangus cattle, and his is no small operation. The Canning spread near Capitan, (population 400) is nearly big enough to require a seat in the state legislature. It covers 65,000 acres, which translates into about 100 square miles. That gives Canning's 1,500 head of cattle plenty of elbow room.

With such a far flung empire to watch over the even plots his own plane to get about, and lands on a private airstrip near his front door, it's easy to understand why Canning doesn't have a lot of time to dabble in other business — like race horses.

Over the years, though, he's managed to keep his foot in the racing door. But Canning is not one to throw good money after bad. And he's not one to get emotional over a business decision. His philosophy on race horses: "I don't believe in spending a lot of time or a lot of money trying to get a stakes horse. I've been racing horses since 1967, and it's mostly a hobby. I usually have only one or two in training, and they're usually claimers. If they don't play their way, I bring them back home."

Neither is this tiny racing enterprise supported by any massive breeding operation. Canning says, almost with pride borne from everyday horse sense: "I have a two-mare breeding farm."

But these theories have been going through an overhaul since the spring of last year, and Canning's emotional temperature has risen drastically. It's all due to the fluke circumstances which handed him half interest in one of the top properties in the Southwest — the three-year-old filly, Plucky Hussy. Not only has Canning lifted his sights from low brow claiming horses, he's now dreaming the loftiest dream of all — a possible crack at this year's Kentucky Derby.

It used to be good for laughs, saying you've got a horse from New Mexico and want to run in the Kentucky Derby. Mention such a thought and people would crack up and call for a man in a white suit to lead you away quietly. That's changed now — thanks to Bold Ego, the colt who won Sunland Park's $208,359 Riley Allison Futurity in 1980, then went on to bag four major stakes at Oaklawn Park (Arkansas), ran in last year's Kentucky Derby, then scored a brilliant second in the Preakness Stakes. Another El Paso-owned horse, Pass The Tab, ran sixth in that same Kentucky Derby.

Plucky Hussy, in case anyone's memory has to be jogged, followed in Bold Ego's footsteps with a tremendous win (at 22-1 odds) in last year's Allison. The filly earned $124,345 out of the $281,220 gross purse. But after launching that kayo blow in the Allison, the filly dropped out of sight. All is well, however, and Plucky Hussy is now in Kentucky, in the hands of the nationally prominent trainer, Jack Van Berg. Within the next few days, she'll be shipped to Oaklawn Park.

"There's about three good races for fillies in March," Canning said. "But Jack will decide where to run her. If she does well, and can handle a distance, there are $250,000 races for fillies toward the end of the season. After that, we're possibly looking at the Kentucky Derby."

So how did Hap Canning, the savvy businessman who prides himself on running cheap claimers, get his hands on a starlet like Plucky Hussy? Purely by chance, he said. The story goes like this: "A good friend of mine is Clayton Hugg, who used to be a steward for many years in Louisiana. He's about 75 now, and doesn't like to get too involved with the headaches of a day-to-day racing stable. About a year ago, he asked if I'd like to go into partners with him on a filly he'd bred. This was Plucky Hussy. If I'd furnish the training and expenses, he'd furnish the horse."

"My first thought was this — I need another horse like I need a hole in the head. But Clayton and I had been friends for so long, and I figured our partnership would give me a chance to really learn the racing business from someone who knows it. I certainly liked the looks of the filly. So I told him, 'Let's go ahead with it.'"

Plucky Hussy, went into the training, and like the owner of any brand new two-year-old, Canning began to whip up enthusiasm. Things shifted into high gear when Plucky Hussy won her first start by about five lengths. "We began to think we had a pretty good horse," he said.

Next came the trials for the Allison Futurity. In order to assure a starting berth, you have to win. "Coming around the corner (the turn for home), Plucky Hussy was about three lengths back. But she caught Pride Of Loom right at the finish," he said.

Thus was set the stage for the Allison

Futurity, and Canning and Hurst who'd taken turns spending nights in the barn with Plucky Hussy — found themselves with a starter in the biggest thoroughbred race in this part of the country. But all pre-race talk centered on Match Strides — so much that Canning felt his chances were not the best.

When the bell sounded, Plucky Hussy exploded, took control like a tigress running down her supper, and led all the way for an easy win. Canning lapsed into shock — but got his bearings soon enough and joined the mob in the winner's circle. "I don't remember all of it too clearly," he said.

After the filly was shipped to Ruidoso for professional coverage, she slipped a bone in her right front ankle while winning the Allison. She was vanned to Capitan to spend six weeks in a stall, wearing a cast. No operation was needed, but three veterinarians agreed on the best course: a long rest to allow the chipped bone to heal. That's how Plucky Hussy spent the summer.

Plucky Hussy is now back in full training and all signs are positive. "Everything is fine," Canning said. "There's no heat, no soreness in her legs, and she's taking to the training very well. It looks good."

All IRA's may look the same. Until you retire.

E.F. Hutton invites you to a seminar on how the new tax law affects IRA.

Under the new tax law, the Individual Retirement Account (IRA) is now available to everyone who works for a living. If you don't have a company pension plan, and IRA is essential. As we all know, Social Security benefits just aren't enough anymore.

If you have a company plan, an IRA could mean the difference between simply retiring, and retiring well.

What makes an IRA from E.F. Hutton different? With many IRA's your investment choices are limited. But with E.F. Hutton you have many investment options. Options that let you change your investment strategy as the market changes. So you have a better chance of getting the highest possible return each year.

All this and more is explained in E.F. Hutton's informative and free seminar.

For Reservations call the E.F. Hutton IRA number collect: 265-5561 All Seminars begin at 7 p.m.

When: Thursday, January 28, 1982
Where: Ruidoso, Holiday Inn

I cannot attend, but please send me more information on the new IRA.
