

An Editorial

The following editorial was published in The Ruidoso News May 31, 1979. Now, three years later, the bureaucracy at New Mexico State University and Governor Bruce King can count three more people dead from airplane crashes inside Ruidoso's city limits.

Ron Howard, about whom the 1979 editorial was written, died in a former mayor's back yard, just a few hundred yards from White Mountain School. Chad, Curtis, and Marty Lewis died when their airplane crashed about 5:50 p.m. last Thursday in the Ruidoso State Bank parking lot, 35 yards from the main street.

"I don't know whether Ron Howard's skill as a pilot or the Good Lord placed Howard's airplane on that vacant lot in Country Club. In either case, the residents there, and the entire community, can be thankful.

There isn't a pilot who takes off at the Ruidoso airport who won't admit to more apprehension about takeoff emergencies from this airport than from most. And with good reason.

There's simply no place to go. But down. Howard's plane didn't burn. Many do. If it had, his passengers would have lost their lives along with him. And the people in Country Club might not be talking about their good fortune right now.

But, what if the next plane does burn? Or, what if it makes it just a little farther? Like, maybe, as far as White Mountain School.

Or, let's say the trouble happens even farther away and at a little greater altitude. What if the pilot can make it to the Ruidoso Downs Race Track? That's what all pilots leaving the Ruidoso Airport say they hope for—the race track.

One gas tank from Ron Howard's plane was half a block away from the main wreckage.

What if the next pilot does, indeed, make the race track. But, the plane burns. In your mind's eye, put that gas tank, aflame, up in the stands on a Saturday afternoon.

If this airport is not moved, which a disaster is surely going to happen here. It may happen before the airport can be moved. But, it may not.

Somewhere in this community there are bound to be people who are willing to raise enough hell with the politicians, from the Trustees to the Governor, to override a handful of bureaucrats from New Mexico State University, and get that airport moved.

Drive up to Country Club, or by the school, or down Sudderth on a busy afternoon. Picture a flaming swath a hundred yards long down the middle of it.

Don't just think about it—do something."

In another three years, there will surely be more.—kg

Plane crash fatal to three men

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

Investigators have determined no cause of Thursday's fatal downtown plane crash, but indications point to a rich fuel mixture that could have caused the engine to lose power after takeoff from the municipal airport.

Three men from Norman, Oklahoma, were killed and a fourth was injured in the crash of the single-engine Piper Cherokee Lance airplane that clipped several pine trees behind The Ruidoso News building and Ruidoso State Bank before dropping to the ground after smashing into a tree just yards in front of a row of houses on King Road.

A cabin on King Road received minor fire damage after the fuel tank on one of the plane's wings landed in the yard and ignited. No injuries occurred to persons on the ground.

Burial will be this week in Durant, Oklahoma, for Chad W. Lewis, 41, and his sons, Marty A. Lewis, 23, and Curtis L. Lewis, 18, according to a spokesman for Clarke's Chapel of Roses Mortuary, which is handling arrangements in Ruidoso.

Chad Lewis' brother, Jehu Lewis, 40, also of Norman, is listed in good condition at Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital with back injuries. Hospital spokeswoman Gwyn Carpenter said Saturday Lewis was in "good spirits" and will be released from the hospital sometime this week. Carpenter said Lewis' injuries were not as bad as they could have been, and that he is expected to fully recover after wearing a back brace for a number of months.

The Lewis' had flown into Ruidoso from Abilene, Texas, earlier Thursday to take care of some business associated with stables they kept here before the opening of the racing season at Ruidoso Downs Race Track, the spokesman from Clarke's said.

Tim Morris, manager of the Ruidoso Municipal Airport, said the men did not file a flight plan for the return trip—which Morris said is not required, as was the case Thursday. But the airport manager said they asked about the weather in Amarillo before taking off around 5:45 p.m.

Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) investigators Jim Mascone and Jim Valentine said Friday they are not responsible for finding "probable cause" of the crash, but Mascone indicated the engine's fuel mixture was "a little rich," which he said could have caused the engine to lose power.

"We looked at the spark plugs, which were all right, but maybe they were burning a little rich," Mascone said, and explained an engine can lose horsepower when the fuel-to-air ratio reaching the spark plugs is high.

The investigators arrived early Friday to inspect the crash and to "mentally put the airplane back together," Valentine said. They returned to Albuquerque Saturday after combing over the wreckage and interviewing witnesses to collect information for submission to the National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB) office in Fort Worth, Texas. Valentine said NTSB will determine cause of the crash based on the documentation in about six months.

Bob Chamberlin, an aircraft mechanic at Ruidoso Municipal Airport, said the doomed airplane may not have achieved maximum power at takeoff from the airport's only runway because the fuel injectors were "set at full rich."

Chamberlin said the air-fuel mixture has to be "leaned out" in the thin air at this altitude, which is almost 7,000 feet at the airport. He explained that to lean out the mixture means to adjust it so that more air is drawn into the fuel system. He said the mixture is adjustable from the plane's cockpit.

Investigators weighed other factors that are often significant in plane crashes—two of which are excessive weight and lack of fuel—but found no evidence that those played a role in the downtown crash.

Valentine said weight was no problem on the flight because the Piper was a six-seater and there were only four men on the plane. He also said the passengers were carrying very little baggage.

Morris said the plane "took on some fuel" before departure, which rules out a lack of fuel as a cause for the crash.

Whatever the cause of the crash, officials were united in their praise for the pilot who apparently angled his faltering craft into the trees that are less than 200 feet north of Sudderth Drive, to avoid causing a catastrophe by landing on the main thoroughfare or crashing into the buildings lining the street.

"The pilot was doing absolutely the proper thing," said Fred Heckman, chairman of the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission. Police Chief Richard Swenor, in a letter to Mayor George White, said, "Through sheer luck, the accident damage was minimal," and urged local officials to bestow commendation for the efforts of all the agencies that were summoned to the crash site.

Accounts from witnesses seem to corroborate the plane's lack of power beginning at its moment of departure.

Al Muse, a student pilot who was near the airport when the Piper took off, said the craft "had trouble from the beginning. It just barely cleared the trees at the end of the runway."

Muse said he practiced takeoffs and landings earlier in the day at the airport and was familiar with flying in conditions similar to those Thursday afternoon. High winds were blowing dust into the sky and created moderate turbulence for small airplanes Thursday, said airport manager Morris, but Muse felt winds were not a problem for the aircraft.

Several persons said they heard the plane's engine sputtering as it flew over downtown Ruidoso. But Gene Kenmore said the plane "sounded like it gained momentum" as it passed over his car as he was driving east on Sudderth.

"It came right over the top of my car," Kenmore said. "I saw the plane in my rear view mirror. I rolled down my window and he veered to the left. That motor wasn't stalled, he was trying to get it up."

Mascone said he has not determined who was piloting the craft. He said both men sitting in the front—Marty and Curtis Lewis—were experienced pilots. The plane was equipped with dual controls, he stated, therefore making it difficult to determine the plane's pilot.

Mascone also said he and Valentine interviewed Jehu Lewis Friday, but Lewis told them he was sitting with his back turned to the cockpit in the six-seater and didn't know too much about the crash.

Kenmore said he saw the plane pass over Sudderth and into the trees behind

Lincoln County Abstract Company.

He said the plane "straightened out" as it careened into the trees with full force. Kenmore said he saw portions of the plane breaking off as it descended into the pines.

White Mountain Search and Rescue members retrieved several pieces of twisted metal from the trees Friday. The portions included a landing gear and wing that were ripped off in the swath the plane smashed through before coming to rest on the ground.

Slick Imoe, of 118 King Road, was taking a shower just 30 yards from the crash site. "It sounded like a truck running through the house," Imoe said. "I looked out the window and saw the tree broken, but I didn't see the plane."

His wife Edith said she looked out her living room window after she heard the "racket outside" and saw fire burning the grass and porch of her neighbor Elvin Moore's cabin. She said she called the police, then went outside and began to spray water on Moore's cabin with a garden hose. Moore was in O'Donnell, Texas, at the time of the crash.

Mrs. Imoe said she did not see the plane's fuselage, which was trapped under the tree that broke in half when the plane slammed into it.

The fire scorched Moore's yard and porch. A full propane tank in the front yard was engulfed by flames and the heat caused the escape valve to "pop off," Moore said, but the gas did not ignite. Ruidoso firemen arrived on the scene and extinguished the blaze before the cabin was heavily damaged.

Swenor said police, fire and ambulance crews were at the scene less than two minutes after the first emergency call. Overturn workers pulled the tree off the overturned fuselage and removed the four men.

Emergency Medical Service member Rita Robertson said she sprained her wrist when she lifted the fuselage to free the men trapped inside.

But even such efforts could not save three of the men in the fatal crash.

Criticism over delay of new airport

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

Thursday's fatal plane crash behind the Ruidoso State Bank has inevitably led to renewed criticism of New Mexico State University (NMSU) and government officials for causing delays in local efforts to construct a safer airport on Fort Stanton Mesa.

Thursday's accident, in which three men from Oklahoma were killed and a fourth was injured, brought to four the number of airplane crash deaths in Ruidoso since 1979. In May 1979, Ron Howard of Ruidoso was killed when his plane crashed in former mayor Lloyd Davis Jr.'s back yard.

Fred Heckman, chairman of the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission (SBAC), said Thursday's deaths cannot be directly attributed to the Ruidoso Municipal Airport, that the proposed airport on Fort Stanton Mesa would have given the pilot a "better chance" to circle and return to the runway after developing trouble on takeoff—a chance the pilot did not have after departure from the present airport.

Ruidoso's trustees met Friday morning and issued a statement criticizing the governor and Legislature for providing only "token encouragement and assistance towards relocating and constructing a new airport."

The statement surrounding the new airport goes back to 1968, Heckman said. At that time, he noted, serious proposals surfaced for construction of a regional airport to replace the dangerous Ruidoso Municipal Airport.

In 1973, the Sierra Blanca Airport Development Committee was formed to "study sites, propose designs, study the environmental impact and economic feasibility" of building a new airport, Heckman said. He said the committee narrowed down possible locations for an airport to two sites on Fort Stanton Mesa, one of which was used for an airstrip during World War Two.

The committee dissolved at the completion of its research and a new joint powers agreement was signed by representatives from Ruidoso, Ruidoso Downs, Lincoln County, the Mescalero Apache Tribe and Capitan. Thus SBAC was formed in 1976 with a purpose "to implement and construct an airport on Fort Stanton Mesa," Heckman said.

But state and federal officials have thwarted SBAC's attempts to build the new airport.

NMSU claims an airport and development associated with it would disrupt agricultural experiments being conducted on the mesa by the university. NMSU leases 26,361 acres on the mesa from the Bureau of Land Management (BLM), and refuses to relinquish the 600 acres Heckman said is needed for the total plan of the airport.

"NMSU is a land hungry university," Heckman said. "It's afraid developers will take the land away from them."

Hope for a solution in the stalemate lies in a contract that was recently signed by the United States Department of the Interior, parent agency of the BLM, granting the National Academy of Sciences $50,000 to review NMSU's research on Fort Stanton Mesa and determine if the airport can coexist with the long-term agricultural experiments.

Heckman said if the study shows the airport and experiments can coexist on the mesa, the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) would reapply to BLM for permission to build the airport.

If BLM turns down another request from SBAC for the land, Heckman said the commission's only alternative would be to take BLM to court.

In the meantime, Heckman worries about the specter of death that hangs over the Ruidoso Municipal Airport.

"It is pathetic we have to keep killing people out of this airport," Heckman said. "How many people have to die before New Mexico State gets the message?"

Ruidoso's trustees asked the same question in their prepared statement. "How many more lives will be lost before State Government will be able to equate the need for an area airport with a "range study, consisting of grass and twig growth?" the statement reads.

The reason the existing airport is considered dangerous is related to its location and the topography of the surrounding area. Because mountains surround the airport on three sides, planes must take off and land in only one direction—south—which brings them directly over Ruidoso.

If aircraft develop trouble after takeoff, there is little chance of returning to the runway. Heckman said the only escape valve for faltering airplanes is directly over Ruidoso and down the Ruidoso River valley, which he said the pilot of Thursday's fatal flight evidently was attempting before crashing in midtown. "He was doing absolutely the proper thing; he was trying to get down the valley," Heckman said. "We're just fortunate other people were not killed on the ground."

Heckman said another problem with the municipal airport's location is that winds are usually blowing from the southwest and do not provide lifting force for aircraft heading downwind after departure from the airport.

He said planes require more lift in the thin air at the airport's altitude of almost 7,000 feet than is necessary for takeoff from lower altitudes. He said the tall winds, like those blowing Thursday, do not offer pilots additional lift.

Airport delay criticized

Former state senator Aubrey Dunn said today about Ruidoso's airport: "You can't leave it where it is. I've said before, and I'll say it again, when I'm elected governor, and I fully intend to be elected governor, I'll put the full power of my office behind getting Ruidoso a new airport in the best, safest place available." When asked whether he would support locating the airport on the controversial Fort Stanton Mesa location opposed by New Mexico State University officials if that site were deemed the safest location, Dunn said, "If that's the best place to put it (the airport) and it takes some real estate dealing, that's what I'll support. You need a new airport."

Shipper billed $4,500 for gas spill cleanup

Ruidoso has billed Whitfield Tank Lines of El Paso, Texas, $4,500 for the cost of cleanup of the gas spill April 6 that left 60 gallons of gas on Wingfield Street behind the midtown 7-11 store and in a pool it collected behind a culvert under South Drive.

Forest Service crews were involved in the cleanup. One of the single highest charges in the bill is $1,100 to replace 50 gallons of AFFF (Aqueous Film Forming Foam) that the Ruidoso Volunteer Fire Department used to neutralize the spilled fuel's flammability.

Cuddy said he would like to extend highest praise to all the agencies that helped avert a major disaster by ensuring the gasoline did not ignite in the midtown neighborhood behind the store where the spill occurred.

WMSAR to meet

White Mountain Search and Rescue (WMSAR) will hold a meeting and training session Tuesday, April 20, at 7:30 p.m. in the Ruidoso Care Center.

Ruidoso emergency medical technicians will present a program for WMSAR strike team members entitled "To EMT or Advanced First Aid Care."

Other business to be discussed includes: new secretary; sign up for the New Mexico Emergency Services Council annual training and meeting at the Philmont scout ranch; and a report on a mission which eight WMSAR members took part in April 6 and 7 at Aqueri Springs in the Organ Mountains.

Boy injured in bicycle mishap

A 15-year-old Ruidoso boy was listed in good condition in Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital Monday morning with multiple lacerations following a bicycle-truck accident on Rowan Road Saturday afternoon.

Police reported Kevin Trapp was injured in a fall from his bike after hitting a bump and sliding under a pickup truck. He was holding on to the back of the truck, that a friend was driving, and was being pulled down Rowan Road on his bicycle, according to police.

Emergency Medical Service responded to the accident and transported Trapp to the hospital, where he was admitted into the intensive care unit.

Ruidoso trustees meet Wednesday

Ruidoso trustees will meet in special session at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 21, at the Village Administrative Center.

Purpose of the meeting, which will precede a workshop on the new village budget, is to discuss land needed for certain water improvements, according to village manager Jim Hine.

Operation Trash is success so far

Operation Trash had a successful first weekend, according to organizer Barbara Duff.

"For the short period of time (to organize and publicize the project), I was really pleased with the activity and interest of the people," she said.

Duff reported that the village landfill was busy over the weekend, as residents took advantage of free dumping. No charge dumping for individuals will be in effect next weekend as well, she added.

Crews were out collecting trash and refuse by request in the village Saturday, and will do so again this Saturday, Duff noted. She asked that refuse be "bagged, boxed or bundled," and that tree limbs be cut to lengths of five feet or less for pickup. Trash should be placed at curbside.

Also, Duff said, Safeway has asked that aluminum cans brought in for recycling be crushed. The store is paying 15 cents a pound for the cans through April 24.

Tuesday, a Salvation Army truck will be making rounds picking up large appliances, furniture, clothing and other items. Duff reminded those who want items picked up to notify the Chamber of Commerce today.

Volunteers are needed for Operation Trash activities scheduled this Saturday, said Duff. Also, residents are asked to notify the Chamber of unsightly areas in Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs.

Duff expressed thanks to Sierra Bake Shop and P and M Lawn and Yard for their help last Saturday. She predicted that if this coming Saturday goes as well as last, "I don't see why we won't have a great day."

Festival ticket sale starts May 1

Tickets for the Third Annual Ruidoso Summer Festival go on sale to the public May 1, at Ruidoso Summer Festival, Incorporated (RSFI) headquarters at the Chamber of Commerce, announced RSFI ticket chairwoman Alicia Carpenter.

"This year, we are offering a cabaret table for eight persons for the five concerts at the Sales Arena for $600. The tickets for the Silver Slipper Soiree will be $15 per person," Carpenter said.

The Silver Slipper Soiree will take place at the Inn of the Mountain Gods, as will the Champagne Brunch. Tickets for the brunch cost $10 per person and may be purchased the day of the event, reported Carpenter.

Bleacher seats for the All-American Sales Arena performances cost $5 per person, Carpenter stated.

Nottingham's Pub will supply symphony picnic baskets prepared for concert-going couples. The baskets will include bread, sausage, fresh fruit, vegetables and cheese. Food baskets may be purchased in the Arena foyer for $9.95, said Carpenter. Baskets may also be reserved in advance for any specific night.

The Ruidoso Summer Festival schedule is as follows:

- Friday, June 4—Dixieland Band Concert at the Sales Arena, 8 p.m.
- Saturday, June 5—Leonard Pennario (guest artist) at the Sales Arena, 8 p.m.
- Sunday, June 6—Champagne Brunch at the Inn of the Mountain Gods, 11 a.m. Concert on the Green, 12:30 p.m.
- Monday, June 7—The Silver Slipper Soiree at the Inn of the Mountain Gods, 8 p.m.
- Tuesday, June 8—Robert Davidovici (guest artist) at the Sales Arena, 8 p.m.
- Wednesday, June 9—Shari Lewis (guest artist) at the Sales Arena, 8 p.m.
- Friday, June 11—Roger Williams (guest artist) at the Sales Arena, 8 p.m.

Rezoning ordinance signed

Mayor George White signed the ordinance Friday granting a commercial zoning to the Sierra Swim and Racquet Club property which is the proposed site of a Hilton Inn.

But White attached a memo to Ordinance 82-4 stating his reasons for questioning the legality of the ordinance.

Despite the possibility of further legal action to try to block the rezoning, representatives of the hotel project said they plan to proceed immediately with the development.

Rick Bowers, a local Realtor associated with the project, said the sale of the racquet club should be closed within 10 days. He predicted that the club facility will reopen within 30 to 45 days, after an extensive cleanup.

Bowers said that architectural and engineering specialists will be arriving today, and that actual construction of the hotel should begin in 90 to 120 days.

White said he attached the memo to the ordinance at the advice of the state Attorney General and the Municipal League legal counsel.

"Although I have signed Ordinance Number 82-4, by my signing of it, I do not intend to warrant or represent that the ordinance was passed in accordance with law," the memo reads.

It then lists reasons for his questioning the validity of the April 13 trustees' action, when a motion to adopt the ordinance passed by a vote of 2-1.

White cited Section 3-17-4 of the state statutes, which says "If a majority of all the members of the governing body vote in favor of adopting the ordinance or resolution, it is adopted."

He then cited Section 3-12-2, which says that the governing body consists of five members—the mayor and four trustees.

The memo notes that three is the majority of a five-member body, and that Ordinance 82-4 did not receive three "aye" votes. At the April 13 meeting, trustees Frank Sayner and Benny Coulston voted in favor of the rezoning, Al Junge voted against it, and Don Dale was disqualified for having joined the board after a hearing on the proposed rezoning took place.

White, as mayor, does not vote except to break a tie.

"By affixing my signature to the ordinance, I am only validating it as required by law..." White's memo reads.

"For all practical purposes it's settled—but undoubtedly the courts will settle it," White said Friday.

Gary Mitchell, who represented several persons protesting the rezoning before the Planning and Zoning Commission and the trustees, said that some of his clients have indicated a willingness to appeal the decision in District Court.

Downs P&Z to meet

Ruidoso Downs Planning and Zoning Commission will hold a special meeting tonight to meet with representatives of Triple Crown Condominiums concerning the planned condominium project at the site of the Chaparral Motor Hotel.

The meeting will be at 7 p.m. at the municipal building.

Irick picking up his low key campaign for governor

by WILL TURBOW
Staff Writer

A frequent response many Ruidosoans give when asked about Republican gubernatorial candidate John Irick is "Who? I'm not familiar with him."

"We've operated a very low key campaign... We're starting with what we consider to be our name identification plan," said Irick in a recent interview with The News.

Irick explained that the first phase of his campaign strategy was devoted to forming strong base organizations in all 33 counties of New Mexico.

Irick said he feels good about his campaign and added that he believes his campaign is well organized at the county level. He commented that he feels particularly strong in the southeast corner of the state.

Irick pointed out that he received 134 delegates from the southeastern portion of the state at the recent Republican state convention, as opposed to 40 for his opponent, Bill Sego.

Irick said he has had and will continue to have a heavy schedule talking to Republicans around New Mexico.

"Working among Republicans is the name of the ball game in the primary," Irick said.

However, Irick stated that he is now ready to launch the second phase of his nomination campaign—getting the name Irick well known on a statewide basis.

"The main way in a political campaign at your use to get identification is to advertise in the newspapers, radio and television," said Irick.

No money had been spent on that portion of the campaign yet, noted Irick, but he added that now is the perfect time to start a media campaign and get his name across the public.

"We think we're right on schedule," said Irick. He commented that 45 days is ample time to improve his name identification before the Republican primary.

Irick stated that he established a primary budget of $250,000. He reported that about $125,000 has been spent to date. He plans to spend another $125,000 on a media campaign. Irick added that if he gets the Republican gubernatorial nomination, he will spend another $400,000.

"Dollar for dollar, we'll come out just about even," Irick said. He noted that about $125,000 has been raised in contributions so far.

On the subject of Sego's accusations against Irick and Sego's wanting to debate him, Irick said, "I haven't spent too much time responding to him. I see no useful purpose in me debating him."

The reason for that, explained Irick, is that the Republican philosophy is enough alike that there should be no need to debate. Irick added that he has debated Sego many times in the state senate.

"I'd rather fight Democrats. I don't like to run against Republicans," said Irick.

Irick said he's been concerned for a number of years about the need for a regional airport for Ruidoso.

"It's a must. As governor, I'll do everything I can to help you," said Irick.

The governor should have enough power to move the New Mexico State University (NMSU) regents into making accommodations to solve the problem, Irick commented.

He said if the land on Fort Stanton Mesa is the only suitable land for a regional airport, then that land should be taken out of NMSU's hands. An alternative Irick proposed is a land swap. He explained that NMSU's cattle and range land experiment could be moved onto other state lands.

"Your water to me is the most serious problem. I hear you're really getting down to critical points in water, although I haven't studied that particular problem for Lincoln County and Ruidoso specifically," Irick said.

Addressing the question of the Mesquero Apache Tribe (MAT) applying for water drilling rights near the headwaters of the Rio Ruidoso, Irick commented that he agrees with the state engineer that the Indians are entitled to water rights, but not any more than are adjudicated for them. He added that MAT should not be in any position to take away water that Ruidoso needs if it impinges on Ruidoso's water rights.

"I would use an even-handed policy of providing highway maintenance and new construction," Irick said.

Irick stated that funds for highways will be appropriated where they are needed most. He said highways are a universal problem as far as the state is concerned. Irick noted that a statewide survey revealed that highways are the second most talked about issue by New Mexicans.

"Tourist areas, like Ruidoso, would be a top priority," Irick said. He added it would be extremely important for a tourist area with a race track to construct and maintain good highways.

Irick also commented that it is important for southeastern New Mexico to have good roads. He said drilling equipment must be transported in that area if the southeast corner of the state is to benefit from its oil and gas reserves.

Though highways may be the second most talked about campaign issue, Irick reported that education is the number one issue talked about by New Mexicans.

Irick mentioned that in 1971, 35 percent of New Mexico's high school students needed remedial education before doing college level work. He reported that in 1982, 60 percent of the students needed remedial education. He called these figures "an indictment of the public schools."

Irick stated that after the primary he will put out a plan dealing specifically with New Mexico's educational system. He said the plan will involve accountability with everyone involved in the school system: students, parents, teachers, principals, school superintendents and school boards.

"No question about it. New Mexico's economic development rests with very high technology. We've got to have people that have the basics in public school," Irick said.

In addition to highways and education, Irick has made what he calls the "deplorable condition of state government and agencies" a top priority.

Irick said New Mexico probably has more bad government today than ever before. There has been abuse of office and general mismanagement of state government, stated Irick.

He claimed that the present administration of Democrats and Governor Bruce King have gathered "every public hack" in the state and placed them in office. The people are not qualified, and the results can be read in every newspaper, Irick commented.

He reported that New Mexico has 40 percent more state employees than its sister state, Arizona. He said for every 10,000 New Mexico citizens, there are 250 state employees. For every 10,000 Arizona citizens, there are 160 state employees, Irick claimed.

He said this shows that state government and agencies are excessively loaded with people that are not needed. He believes the same job the current Democratic administration is trying to do can be done with fewer employees. Irick added that it is not the function of state government to furnish employment for its citizens.

Irick proposes to eliminate some state agencies and to merge others. There are plenty of qualified people around who would like to serve New Mexico, said Irick.

"There's no shortage of good people, but you can't get them by trying to repay political debts. You've got to straighten out state government before you can do anything else," he said.

Irick has taken a firm stand on crime and has also made that issue a top priority of his nomination campaign. He mentioned that 72,000 serious crimes were committed in New Mexico during the last reporting year, with about 8,000 of them falling into the violent crime category.

"If elected governor, I would move swiftly to create a New Mexico Bureau of Investigation. This agency will be staffed by New Mexico's finest criminal experts and investigators to work with local authorities to combat both violent and white collar crime," Irick said.

He went on to say that the bureau will be capable of moving a task force into any part of the state on invitation or at the governor's request to handle criminal activities.

On the subject of the penitentiary's problems, Irick said his proposal is to be a little patient with the present officials. He stated his belief that progress is being made.

"I hope that by election time the situation has stabilized," said Irick. If it hasn't, he said, he will institute any kind of program that will work.

"There is no panacea. There has been no program established in the world that is the answer. If there was, we'd all be using it," Irick said.

Irick commented that he would like to institute a program making discounts available to those over the age of 60.

"As governor, I will contact the 7,300 retail businesses in this state and ask them to voluntarily give a discount on their prices for services and products to senior citizens. I will establish an identifying card for New Mexicans over the age of 60, called a Zia Card, which will identify them as eligible for those voluntary discounts," said Irick.

Irick—who claims to have taken a conservative stand before it became the popular thing to do—expressed his support for President Reagan and his programs. Reagan has turned runaway inflation around, Irick believes, and the economy is now heading in the right direction.

Irick said he thinks the new federalism and the block grant concept are good ideas. Irick sees this as an opportunity to gain some of the state's sovereignty lost in the last 30 years.

New Mexicans and Ruidosoans know what their social problems are, stated Irick, and they can figure out solutions to those problems better than Washington can.

"I've always been in favor of WIPP (Waste Isolation Pilot Project) because I live among nuclear safety people," said Irick, who is from Albuquerque.

He mentioned that 90 percent of the world's nuclear experts live in Los Alamos and Albuquerque, and they have told Irick that WIPP is unequivocally safe. Besides being a part of our nation's technology, Irick commented, WIPP will serve as an economic boom to Eddy County.

"We have really blown it. Four or five years ago, we had a great opportunity to exact tribute out of the federal government. We could have obtained $200 to $250 million to improve our highways to get that stuff (nuclear waste) in and out of there, but we waltzed around, lost our leverage and now they (federal government) are doing it (WIPP) without consulting us," Irick said.

Although Irick pointed out that he introduced the Solar Development Act, he said he is a proponent of the worldwide development of nuclear energy. Irick said he believes nuclear energy is the ultimate answer to the United States' energy problems.

Irick said he wants to be governor because he is qualified and because he understands state government. Irick served in the New Mexico State Senate for 10 years and has been a member of many Senate committees.

Said Irick, "I've been around long enough to know where the right levers and buttons are to put the pressure on to get the job done. You can only do so much in the Legislature. The executive department is where things are done."

Officers elected are Darla Lathan, president; Charlie Cooper, vice president; Beth Nosker, recording secretary; Greta Cabot, corresponding secretary; Nellie Jones, treasurer; Myrtle Williams, sergeant-at-arms; Ofelia Salas, chaplain; Angie Provine, pledge chairman; Carrie Godley, historian. Retired School Employees to meet

The Lincoln County Retired School Employees will hold their last meeting of the current school year on Thursday, April 22, at 2 p.m., in the REA building in Carizozo. Mary Crenshaw will give a program on recent changes in the Health and Social Services programs as they may affect older citizens.

Downs auxiliary active

The Ruidoso Downs Ladies Auxiliary now has 27 members, according to Betty Day. Day noted that current projects of the group are cleanup of All-American Park and highway medians during Operation Trash, and painting and carpeting of the judge's chambers in the municipal building.

She called the first fund-raising project of the auxiliary—a bake sale—"a huge success," and said the next such project is a rummage sale May 7 and 8. Anyone who wants to donate items to the sale may call 378-4396, 378-4531 or 378-4223 to arrange for pickup, Day said.

Hondo blood drive a success

The community of Hondo donated 18 pints of blood when the United Blood Services mobile unit was at the Hondo school recently. The La Junta Extension Homemakers Club co-sponsored the blood drive. "The demand for blood is rapidly increasing as its tremendous therapeutic value is realized," said Phyllis Zumwalt, president of the Lincoln County Extension Homemakers Council. "Safe blood of all types must be available around the clock to assure the good health of our community," she said. A second blood drive will be sponsored by the group at the fellowship hall in Tinnie July 4, according to Zumwalt, "because we realize it is too late to donate when an emergency arises." The blood requires six hours to process, she explained.

The Ruidoso News

SPORTS

Around Sports

with Gary Brown

The 1982 major league baseball season is only a week-and-a-half old but already there are some surprises in the standings.

The biggest news would have to be the Atlanta Braves leading the National League's Western Division. The Braves, with plenty of power but supposedly lacking in pitching, have been playing superb team ball. It's still hard to see Atlanta going all the way in the division title race but they could make it interesting for a while.

Chicago has been leading the American League's Western Division but that's not as big a surprise as Atlanta's play. The White Sox have a lot of talent on their team and have the ability to win their division. Still, Chicago has a history of falling just short of the division title or pennant in the past 20 years. The White Sox haven't won a pennant since 1959, when they outlasted Cleveland and New York.

In the National League's Eastern Division, the New York Mets have been a surprise. The Mets appear to be a lot stronger than last season, as they picked up former Cincinnati standout George Foster during the off-season. Put Foster's bat besides Dave Kingman's and the Mets have a lot of hitting power.

No team has really dominated play in the American League's Eastern Division yet. Cleveland has looked good at times but it probably doesn't have the overall talent to win in that division. The Yankees and Milwaukee will probably start asserting themselves in the next two months.

It would be nice to see teams like Atlanta, Cleveland, Chicago and the Mets win their divisions this season.

It's not likely, however. Baseball's honors usually go to the teams with the most bucks who can afford the top free agents. The White Sox, Indians, Mets and Braves generally do not have the bargaining power to win the free agent battle.

It will probably be more of the same in the 1982 season. It usually takes the top teams about two months to gain control in their division races.

I still see Montreal winning the National League's Eastern Division and Houston taking the Western Division championship. It should be New York as the American League's Eastern Division champion and Oakland as the Western Division winner.

It's unfortunate that there's a disagreement between the three local softball leagues about the use of the field in Ruidoso Downs.

All three leagues are entitled to play on the field and there should be some way of rotating schedules so that the field could be available for all the teams to play on.

Softball is an entertaining game that a lot of adults enjoy playing. It would be unfortunate if some teams were not able to play their full schedules because of disagreements over use of the field.

RUIDOSO GIRLS FINISH SIXTH

Nunley's double win sparks Ruidoso

A great double victory by Lon Nunley sparked Ruidoso High School's boys track team to a fifth-place finish in the Roswell Invitational Friday night at Roswell High School.

The Warrior girls came through with a sixth-place finish in the eight-team meet. Nunley threw the discus 167-8 feet for first place and a state best. All of his throws were at least 163 feet. He also won the shot put with a 50-1 effort on his last throw.

The talented senior also finished fifth in the 100 meters and anchored Ruidoso's 800 meter relay team to a second place finish with a 1:33.45 time, five seconds better than its previous best.

The Warriors scored 33 points. Goddard of Roswell won the meet with 75 points and Clovis was second with 68. Lovington was third with 61 points and El Paso High School was fourth with 49 points.

Ruidoso was again strong in the relays. Besides their second place finish in the 800 meter relay the Warriors took a third in the 1,600 meter relay with a seasonal best of 3:36.91. Clovis won the event with a fine time of 3:24.04. Clovis also won the 400 meter relay with a state best time of 42.88. Ruidoso did not place in that event but recorded a seasonal best of 44.90.

Don Nunley, Grady Williamson, Scott Neal and Peter Garcia ran on the Warriors' 1,600 meter relay squad. Williamson, Neal, Lon Nunley and Don Nunley made up the 400 meter and 800 meter relay teams. Junior Billy Woodul was third in the javelin with a 149-5 effort, just under his personal best of 150-6.

Williamson, also a junior, did well in the 100 meters, finishing fourth with a seasonal best of 11.15. Garcia, running the 300 meter intermediate hurdles for the first time, recorded a 43.29 time for fifth place.

Freshman Cisco Bob was fifth in the 3,000 meter run with a 9:43.55 time. He also ran in the 1,500 meters and recorded a personal best of 4:21.0.

Perhaps the most outstanding individual of the boys' meet other than Nunley was Lovington's Mark Dunn. Dunn won the 110 meter high hurdles in 14.22 (he has a best of 13.9), took the 100 meters in 10.94 and won the long jump with a 22-4.5 effort.

Sheri Dennis came through with a good effort to spark the Warrior girls. She was fifth in the 100 meters with a 12.81 and fourth in the long jump with a 16-1 leap.

Ruidoso's 1,600 meter relay team of Jackie Jefferson, Deanna Peso, Lillian Lopez and Valerie Garcia was fifth with a 4:35.01 time. The Warriors had been undefeated in that race until Friday.

The medley relay team of Dennis, Gia Rose, Lopez and Judy McCoy finished fourth with a 2:07.0 time. McCoy ran a strong 400 meter leg for the final placing.

Jefferson also finished fourth in the 1,500 meter run with a 5:34.64 clocking, two seconds faster than her previous best.

Lopez just missed placing in the shot put with a sixth place effort of 30-9.

Warrior girls' coach Sergio Castanon was pleased with his team's performance.

"We just went down there with the idea of improving our times," he said. "The competition was the toughest we've had this season and we still improved our times. I'm very satisfied."

Boys' coach Ronnie Maskew was also pleased with the performance of his team.

"We improved almost all of our times," Maskew said. "I'm very pleased since we did so well against some tough competition."

"Some of the other coaches also commented on how good our young freshmen and sophomores looked. They may not have placed high but in a couple of years they should be really tough."

Both the Warrior boys and girls teams will compete in the Artesia Invitational Friday. The meet will be a state meet qualifier affair. Athletes can automatically qualify for the state meet by equaling or surpassing the standards set up for the state meet.

Ruidoso golfers ready for local invitational

Ruidoso High School's golf team will host its fifth annual Ruidoso Invitational Friday and Saturday.

The tournament will be a 54-hole affair and will be played at the Inn of the Mountain Gods, Cree Meadows Country Club and Alto Lakes Golf and Country Club.

There will be 15 teams entered in the tournament, including host Ruidoso. The other schools are Alamogordo, Cobre, Silver City, Truth or Consequences (T or C), Deming, Las Cruces, Mayfield of Las Cruces, Lovington, Jal, Artesia, Portales, Socorro, New Mexico Military Institute (NMMI) and Roswell.

The first 18 holes of the tournament will be played at the Inn of the Mountain Gods

Friday morning starting at 7:30 a.m. Friday afternoon the golfers will go to Cree Meadows for the second 18 holes, and the final 18 holes will be played at Alto Saturday morning.

Ruidoso held a non-scoring practice session with Alamogordo Saturday at Alto and coach Leroy Gooch liked the way his golfers played.

"They're doing better than before," Gooch said of his four golfers. "They enjoyed themselves out there and got a lot of practice in."

The members of the Warrior team are Virgil Reynolds, Billy Taylor, Tommy Crow and Dion Lopez. Reynolds is a sophomore and the other three are freshmen.

The public is invited to watch the tournament both days.

LILLIAN LOPEZ of Ruidoso High School's girls' track team throws the shot put in competition at the Roswell Invitational Friday. Lopez threw the shot put 30-9 for sixth place. She also ran on two of the Warriors' relay teams. The Ruidoso girls finished sixth in the eight-team meet, which involved several of the top teams in New Mexico.

Sierra Blanca sets season ski record

Sierra Blanca Ski Resort had its best year ever in the recently completed 1981-82 ski season.

The resort sold 202,862 ski lift tickets, breaking the previous record of 200,923 tickets sold in the 1979-80 season. This season's mark was far above that of last year's, which was around the 130,000 mark.

"We would have probably had considerably more tickets sold if we had had a normal Christmas season this year," said Roy Parker, manager of the ski resort. "This season's Christmas business was down from two years ago. We did very well in January and February."

"Our business during those two months was possibly the best it's ever been in those months. We did very good for most of the season."

The resort set a single-day record for ski tickets sold on Saturday, January 16, when 5,553 tickets were issued. That broke the old record of 5,357 tickets sold two seasons ago.

The resort opened for skiing December 3 and closed April 4. Last season the resort opened at Thanksgiving and closed April 12. However, business was lackluster in January and February, usually the best months of the season.

Several improvements are planned for next season. One is a new chairlift that will rise to 11,450 feet and be called Apache

Youths can still sign up for soccer

Anyone interested in playing in the Ruidoso-Sertoma Soccer Association youth leagues this spring can still sign up at Morgan's Mountain Sports this week.

Any boy or girl from five to 16 years of age can register for the league. Both new and returning players must register and bring a parent or guardian with them. New players must also bring proof of age.

The registration fee is $12. The youths can register up to Friday. The season begins Saturday with the matches being played at White Mountain Middle School.

Bowl Chair six. Currently, the highest point of the resort is 11,400 feet at the top of the Gondola lift.

The expansion will also include snow-making machines for chair four. Part of chair four is for intermediate skiers and the other part is for beginners.

The current snow-making machines supply enough snow for chairs three and five. These chairs are for beginners and novices.

Plans are for the number of snow-making machines to be increased from six to 15 or 20.

Little League needs umpires, coaches

The Ruidoso Little League Baseball program is looking for more coaches and umpires for its teams and games.

There is especially a need for umpires and coaches in the eight and nine-year-old Pee Wee Division.

Anyone interested in becoming a coach or umpire should contact Jim Clements at 258-4047 after 6 p.m. Before 6 p.m., contact Clements' wife Linda at Ruidoso State Bank (257-4043).

The season is scheduled to begin next month.

Inn to have tournament

The fourth annual Inn of the Mountain Gods Invitational Pro Scratch Golf Tournament will be held tomorrow and Wednesday at the inn's course.

Each foursome will be made up of one professional and three amateurs. About 27 to 30 teams are expected to compete.

Various professionals from New Mexico and the El Paso, Texas, area have been invited to the tournament. Each professional will bring three amateurs to the tournament. The cost is $75 per person.

Rollerettes wow students at Hondo and Roswell

Gary Brown
Sports Writer

Ruidoso's Rollerettes roller skating team is a unique group.

The group of local youths from ages five to 17 is the only skating performance team in the area and may be the only one in the entire state.

Thus, they give frequent performances for schools and groups in the southeastern New Mexico area.

Friday the Rollerettes traveled to Hondo School and Berrendo Middle School in Roswell to give performances. At both schools the student bodies gave the Rollerettes standing ovations.

Carol Pearch, director of the team, says the program is a low key one.

"We basically teach the kids to develop their ability in roller skating but also to have fun," Pearch said. "We teach them to stop, start and spin on roller skates."

Pearch also manages Skateland. Her parents, Bill and Ann Wilson, own the skating facility. Pearch has been director of the team for three years. Before that, her parents directed the team from the time they bought Skateland in 1975.

Deann Keith, Pearch's assistant, is a senior at Ruidoso High School. She performed an elegant version of "Music Box Dancer" at both the Hondo and Berrendo performances.

Keith's older sisters, Karen Beasley and Donna Duke, joined Deann in a skating dance done to the music of "Mockingbird Hill" at the two performances.

The Rollerettes did 11 skating acts Friday at both Hondo and Berrendo. Most of the acts were done by different age groups.

The youngest group of skaters, those youths in kindergarten, first grade and second grade, did acts to the music of "Baby Elephant Walk" and "Hokey Pokey".

An older group made up of kids in the third, fourth and fifth grades did "March from the River Kwai" and "Over the Rainbow."

The senior team, made up of high school students, skated to the tune of "You Can't Roller Skate in a Buffalo Herd," "Tara's Theme," and "Yellow Rose of Texas." The latter dance starred Donna Duke.

Pearch had little experience in performance or competitive skating before she became head instructor of the Rollerettes. But her desire to teach the kids has more than made up for her lack of experience.

There are 36 youths involved in the program and all are from the Ruidoso area. The skaters practice every Monday after school at Skateland.

The Rollerettes' next performance is at Skateland, Monday, April 26. The youths will perform for a group from Fort Stanton.

Members of the Rollerettes are: Marnie Wallace, Kerith Johnson, Kim Jones, Crissy Crocker, Bridget Nelson, Tiffany Thompson, Teresa Burgess, Cobey Shaver and Jeri Ann Keeton.

Other members are: Marcie Rue, Dana Rossi, Natasha Mulqueen, Myda Garcia, Cindy Morgan, Marnie Warlick, Tana

Eby, Scott Clark, Crystal Owens, Stacey Lee and Julie Bailey.

Local wrestlers in Albuquerque meet

The Ruidoso Wrestling Club sent nine wrestlers to the Eldorado Freestyle Tournament in Albuquerque Saturday and they got a lot of experience, according to coach Gerald Ames.

"We saw some awfully good wrestlers," Ames said. "It was an individual affair, no team scoring, and the kids gained a lot of experience from it."

Scott Ciraulo, a sophomore at Ruidoso High School and a state high school tournament veteran, finished third in the 178 pound division. He competed in the 167 pound division in regular high school competition.

Another impressive performer was freshman Kevin Jameson, who competed in the 143 pound division. Jameson won one match, an impressive decision over a tough wrestler from Del Norte High School in Albuquerque.

Several of the local wrestlers got a chance to wrestle Bo Wade of Eldorado High School in the 123 pound class. Wade, a four-time state champion in the AAAA division, won all the matches but the local youths learned a lot.

"We took three sophomores, four freshmen and two eighth graders to the tournament," Ames said. "It wasn't like we took our varsity high school team there. They did well and gained from the experience."

Ruidoso will compete in another freestyle tournament in Carlsbad Saturday.

Inside The Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE — Things seemed to be going by twos up here on Monday.

There was one group of legislators, referred to as "the leadership," which was making plans for reaction to federal orders about redistricting our Senate and House.

Though the real leadership includes Representative Ray Sanchez of Albuquerque, who is majority leader in the House, he was not in that "leadership" group.

He appeared instead in the second — a group of liberal Democrats who spent time with the Governor after the official leadership gathering had gone home.

Thus the chief executive was obviously hearing at least two sets of proposals about how to handle the problems.

Included in those problems, of course, was the question of whether or not to hold two primaries.

Late in the day, Governor King was still adamant about holding primaries on June 1 for all offices other than legislative ones, though his resolve seemed a little shakier than the week before.

The legislative leaders were obviously the ones who want only one primary, which would probably have to be held some time in September.

They are obviously worried that if they hold a primary just for legislators, nobody may come.

The views of candidates on that topic added further discord to an already snarled-up situation. Some denounced the thought of putting the primary off (largely those who see themselves as leaders in their respective races now), while some greeted the idea with glee (largely those who feel their campaigns got off to a slow start and have by now begun to gather steam).

In other parts of town, other pairs were developing.

Bill Richardson, candidate for Congress from what we presume is still to be called the third district, said he was preparing to file suit to have the courts say that provision in one of the redistricting laws which would strike down the Congressional districts as well is unconstitutional.

Meanwhile, Dave Fernandez of Taos, who wants to run for the same post, was telling us he plans to go into the courts to get the same provision declared constitutional.

What might have been a quiet election year has turned into the most scrambled-up one in recent times.

Where and how it will all end nobody knows.

Why file as a candidate by the petition route after you have failed to get on the ballot by garnering an appropriate share of convention delegates?

Partly because you have nothing else to do.

Take Fabian Chavez and Les Houston. They've invested months and thousands of dollars in an abortive effort to get their names on the ballot by the convention route. It didn't work.

So what is there to do now?

Why not go all the way? Why quit now? You might as well make that one last push — though anyone who is realistic (and an unrealistic politician is a sorry sight indeed) knows there is little hope of eventual success from that take-off point.

As a close Chavez fan said, "We have nowhere to go but up."

Houston, of course, maintains this was his plan all along — a notion that is contradicted somewhat by his boasts before the convention about how he would come in second among the candidates, with delegates enough to give some away to others who needed them.

Oh, well. Poles always get to boast a little.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

We read with interest the Reporter's Round, written by reporter Will Turbow about his personal feelings during the Jewish observance of Passover. The depth of understanding which he received through his family and religious background serves him well in his remarks.

His comments on the situation as it exists in El Salvador, however, show an amazing lack of information and bias, particularly for a reporter.

Example — Will expresses grave doubts about the validity of the Salvadoran election in which 80 percent of the electorate voted and 20 percent abstained.

In case he has never read about our own elections, this is a greater turnout than the United States elections. Perhaps he also questions their validity.

Example — Will takes offense at the term "The Left" being applied to the guerrilla groups who have terrorized the populace, disrupted their lives, killed their relatives and deliberately wrecked the nation's economy.

I would ask what else you can call the five guerrilla groups — four of which are led by self-termed Marxists and the fifth an open avowed communist.

Perhaps he would look at them through rose colored glasses and naively call them "Agrarian Reformers" — as we once did Castro until Castro saw fit to end the pretense and announced in no uncertain terms that he was and always had been a communist and anyone who believed otherwise was a fool.

For Will's benefit, there are approximately 4.9 million people in El Salvador of which about 1.9 million are eligible voters. Of this 1.9 million citizens of eligible voting age some 1.4 million chose to ignore the threats of terrorists and guerrillas and voted approximately 60 percent for moderate to extreme Right Wing parties and 40 percent for the present party in power, which ranges from Center to Right Wing depending on the observer's point of view on any given issue.

Approximately 500,000 did not vote at all and are assumed to be passively or actively supporting the guerrillas which, incidentally, are estimated at between 4,500 and 6,000.

I think we all realize full well that the present regime has demonstrated itself to be unable to control the oppressive and totalitarian policies of many of its leaders and associates. The election indicates a majority desire for even stronger Right Wing leadership perhaps based on the people's desire to end the terrorism being waged through the countryside by the guerrilla bands even at the expense of some of the personal liberties they now have.

It is hard to understand Will Turbow's logic wherein he professes to oppose violence by a military junta but seemingly endorses that same violence and terrorism if carried out by the Marxist-led guerrilla bands.

The people of San Salvador, as oppressed and unhappy as they are with the current junta, demonstrated quite clearly that they are not at all ready to trade a dictatorial Right Wing regime for a dictatorial Marxist regime.

They have had ample opportunity to observe what happens when that was done in China, Cuba, Cambodia, etc. They truly understand the phrase "Out of the frying pan and into the fire," is not the answer.

It may well be that our support currently is going to the lesser of two evils, but that is still better than doing nothing for a people who need help desperately. Every Marxist-Communist takeover in history has proven itself to be vastly more oppressive and dictatorial than the regime it replaced.

Tom Kelham

Dear editor:

It seems to me that local gasoline dealers have received a considerable amount of adverse publicity. Due in no small part to the Ruidoso News' (over) coverage of gasoline prices.

If we in Ruidoso "deserve to know why" we are paying more for gasoline than "elsewhere in the state", don't we also deserve to know why we pay more for other goods and services, ie groceries, food in certain restaurants, alcoholic beverages, automobiles, professional services, etc., etc. If gasoline dealers in Ruidoso are sent questionnaires by Retail Merchants Committee asking why fuel prices are higher here than "elsewhere in the state", perhaps the same question should be addressed to other merchants regarding prices on their commodities and services. It seems grossly unfair to single out a group of merchants who are selling the same commodity, and demanding an explanation for "the gas price ripoff". Conversely, why does a small newspaper charge the same price per copy as a much larger newspaper? A small example perhaps, but one which hopefully illustrates my point.

You are right when you state that "Ruidoso does not need a reputation as a good place to avoid because of its high prices". It certainly won't be avoided because of high gasoline prices alone.

Respectfully yours,
 Gene Etter

Dear editor:

I am interested in writing a biography of the Reverend Hunter "Preacher" Lewis and would like to base much of it on the stories and anecdotes told by the people who knew him during his ministry in New Mexico from 1905 to 1948.

Anyone who knew the late Preacher Lewis during his ministry is asked to share any stories about him. I am also interested in letters from, news clippings about, and photographs of Preacher Lewis.

Please write to John Colburn, 1945 Ratner Circle, El Paso, TX 79936, telling what information you have. Do NOT send any letters, clippings, or photographs at this time.

John W. Colburn

Editorial

Cooperation is the name of the game when it comes to progress for Ruidoso.

This is especially true when cooperation yields money which is invested for the good of all—as is the lodgers' tax.

The lodgers' tax is a two percent tax which is charged, by state law, to persons renting an accommodation for a period of less than 30 days.

Those who rent their motel rooms, condominiums, cabins or other lodging facilities to visitors are responsible for collecting the tax.

The tax receipts are then turned over to the Village of Ruidoso. The village, advised by the Lodgers' Tax Advisory Committee, then spends the money to advertise Ruidoso and promote tourism.

It's a very nice little system, and one that works very well. It has been estimated that for every dollar of lodgers' tax revenue spent advertising Ruidoso, ten dollars or more are spent by visitors attracted by advertising.

There is one problem, however. Some of the lodging proprietors have been failing to collect the tax.

As a result, an estimated $30,000 to $50,000 in revenue that could be used to promote Ruidoso is lost.

Those who are seeking to correct the problem feel that ignorance of how the tax works is the main reason some people are failing to collect it.

No vendetta is being waged against these people, just an effort to get them on board. We support that effort, and encourage anyone with questions about the lodgers' tax to contact the village.—TP

Reporter's Round

by

Barby Grant

Ruidoso is, I have discovered in my two months here, a very fast growing little resort community, which is no great revelation to anyone who has lived here longer than I have.

Building permit records have been broken more than once in the past several months, and condominiums are going up everywhere. Sierra Blanca Ski Resort had its biggest year ever this winter and Ruidoso Downs Race Track is undergoing an expansion and improvement project costing more than $2 million.

In fact, trustee Al Junge thinks Ruidoso has grown so much that its village trustees should be promoted to city councilmen (or councilpersons—after all, even a "good, responsible woman" may be in the position someday.)

Yes, Ruidoso is expanding at an almost amazing rate to accommodate the ever-increasing influx of tourists which Harmony Valley needs to survive.

But, lest we forget, a few of us reside here year round, and we have needs, too.

Granted, it appears that village officials are serious about finding methods to prevent the seemingly inevitable water shortage, which certainly affects residents.

And roads are being paved, a new high school is to be built and the hospital is continuously updating its services, all of which is appreciated by us year-round residents. But these services are to be expected by taxpayers.

All of this is leading up to, in case you've been wondering, my assertion that Ruidoso needs a community theater/cultural arts center.

I realize I am far from the first to entertain the idea; in fact, I located a few articles from past issues of The News concerning study being conducted by a cultural committee of the Chamber of Commerce on the possibility of establishing a large cultural arts and community center for the Ruidoso area.

One article, from December 15, 1980, reported committee member Dorothy Faye Kimsey as stating that Fort Worth symphony supporters said "financing the construction of a cultural center was 'no problem,' since a number of philanthropists across the country were willing to invest 'millions' in such projects."

Apparently the committee was disbanded when efforts to obtain historical building status for Carrizo Lodge were unsuccessful. The lodge was being studied as a possible site for the cultural arts center, according to the newspaper articles.

Harvey Foster, who was involved with the cultural committee, indicated that the committee suffered from lack of direction, in that too many different ideas were offered on what could be done.

He said he has talked with numerous people recently who would like to see a cultural center in Ruidoso, though.

And I have talked to several people, also, who are very much interested in having a community theater/cultural center in Ruidoso.

Tom Hansen, Ruidoso High School principal, expressed his feeling that there "is a vast need in this community for a theater." More than 150 kids in the community tried out last year for the school's drama program production, he said.

The school board's long, long range master plans call for the building of a theater at the new high school, but concentration now is on the 20-year plan to include three phases of building of the new high school and renovations for the other schools.

Hansen said he and the board members are currently looking for ideas for private sources and endowments to help fund a community theater, but "it will take a community effort."

Jean Steinbrecher, co-sponsor of the high school Drama Club and director of the recent production of "Godspell," said students need a strong drama program now and "have demonstrated a real strong desire to have it."

Unfortunately, there is currently no space available for such a program at the school, despite the desires of the principal and students to have one.

Ron Silver, who has been involved in theater in California, as an actor, writer and associate director, said he is interested in beginning a dinner theater or repertory theater in Ruidoso.

He co-produced and independently directed the play, "Love, Sex and the I.R.S.," recently at the Inn of the Mountain Gods. Ron said he has plans to produce Neil Simon's "The Sunshine Boys" here in the near future.

At last Tuesday's village trustees meeting, it was suggested by Ed Hyman, of the Lodgers' Tax Committee, that lodgers' tax funds could be used as seed money for a convention center/coliseum.

Ergo, if there are people in the community interested in participating in theater, and if there are people in the community interested in viewing theater productions, and if there is a source of funding for a theater/convention center/coliseum/cultural arts center, or whatever, I wonder why Ruidoso still has no such structure. Could it be a simple lack of organization or communication? Surely not.

 MORE CRUISE TIPS
 There's more to choosing a cruise than where and how long. Here are some additional guidelines.
 Which ship to choose? All cruise ships are basically floating hotels, but some are more luxurious than others. You may want the full treatment—Las Vegas-style entertainment, the works—or simply be looking for sun, sea air and congenial people. Some ships and cruises attract a younger crowd, some older, some more diverse.
 Picking a cabin: as a rule of thumb, inside lower-deck cabins are least expensive, outside upper-deck one most. Cabins with bunk beds are usually smaller and less expensive than those with two lower berths. Think realistically about how much time you'd expect to spend in your cabin, and decide accordingly.
 One way to compare the relative prices of different cruises is cost per day. To arrive at this figure, divide the price by the length of the cruise. This must be adjusted if airfare is a factor. Average cruise cost-per-day can run anywhere from $50 to $200 per person, depending on the ship, the cruising area, the length of the cruise, and the time of year.
 Your travel experts at Ruidoso Travel, Pinetree Square, phone 257-7361 have all the information you'll need to plan a cruise, or any type of travel. See us soon.

JOEY GARCIA gives male care center residents haircuts every Tuesday and Thursday. The First Christian Church sponsors a beauty shop for women residents on Mondays. Here Garcia gives ex-boxer Porfirio Archuleta a haircut.

Care Center honors volunteers this week

April 18 to 24 is National Volunteer Week, in honor of the millions of individuals across the nation who contribute their time and energy to making our communities better places to live.

It is particularly fitting to give recognition to the Ruidoso Care Center volunteers, who play an important role in the lives of our nursing home residents.

A lot of credit is deserved by a lot of individuals and groups who donate something of themselves to the care center, said Leshia Dunn, activities director at the Ruidoso Care Center.

For example, Dunn said, the National Honor Society brightens up the care center by sending flowers once a month. The high school Distributive Education Club (DECA) has donated money for the purchase of the center's new van.

The Altrusa Club of Ruidoso benefits the care center by doing one-on-one visitations with residents. Dunn stressed that this is especially important for bedfast residents who often do not even have a chance to talk with their nursing home comrades.

Also, Altrusa takes residents out to dinner in the dine-a-friend program. One day a month, a local restaurant participates in the program and provides meals for four residents, said Dunn. This gives the people in the care center a chance to get out and see people.

The Eastern Star women invite residents to parties, which makes the elderly feel wanted and appreciated, Dunn commented. Care Center administrative director Betty Mills added that the Noon Lions Club's monthly bingo game is a big boost to the nursing home residents.

The First Christian Church sponsors a beauty shop for the women every Monday morning, stated Dunn. Joey Garcia provides a barbershop service to care center men on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Of course, Dunn said, there are many individuals who volunteer, but one man in particular is always at the Ruidoso Care Center helping in every way he can. That man is T. D. Gartman.

Mills described Gartman as the most perfect example of a Christian man that she knows. She stated that he puts in more time than many full-time employees.

Another much appreciated volunteer group is the Ruidoso Ministerial Alliance, noted Dunn. Each Sunday at 4 p.m., a different church puts on a service for care center residents. Dunn noted that the Church of Christ visits the care center once a week for singing and Bible study.

However, many more volunteers like Gartman are needed, added Mills. Dunn said it is beneficial for care center residents to see other people besides the ones they see every day.

Dunn stated that volunteers are needed in all aspects and areas of the care center. More people are desperately needed to visit residents on a one-to-one basis. The folks at the Ruidoso Care Center would also like to learn new things, so Dunn encourages anyone with special talents or skills to drop by the center and see how they might help.

Although some school classes have adopted a grandparent, individuals—especially younger people—are needed to come up to the care center and share their love with the older folks, Dunn said.

She explained that many of the care center residents have no family, but they love kids. She stressed that young kids who adopt a grandparent can really make the difference to an older person who often has nothing to look forward to except looking out the window.

"Something we really need and don't have are volunteers to write letters. They (residents) really enjoy the mail, reading it and writing back," Dunn said. She said even if letters are written to care center residents from locals, it makes all the difference in the world to them.

The American Health Care Association (AHCA) reported that any nursing home has built into it all the conditions for social "i" trouble—isolation and institutionalization. Elderly persons living in any setting are vulnerable to social isolation. AHCA noted that any individual is prey to institutionalism when part of a large-group living arrangement and a schedule.

From A to Z, there are a variety of activities for volunteers to choose from in helping make Ruidoso Care Center a better place for its residents to live.

Former care center activities director Toni Scarbrough had this perspective on voluntarism among the elderly. The elderly, through their hard work, have made life easier for the following generations, and they need to be thanked, she said. The people of our community should support the people that got them here, added Scarbrough.

Said Dunn, "Come up and visit with the people here—it lifts their spirits and makes them feel better . . . They feel more like a part of the community."

JUST VISITING and sharing thoughts are very important to care center residents. A resident and her guest get together to laugh over old times during a bright Ruidoso morning on the Edith Coe Rigsby patio.

TUESDAY MORNINGS are arts and crafts time for Ruidoso Care Center residents. Arts and crafts are great therapy for the elderly and can be sold in the Country Store or used to brighten up a room. Carole Shelton assists Lizzie Commanche make a colorful wastebasket.

Care of plants prevents disease

Starting vegetable garden plants can be little tricky.

Gardeners who want to get started early often start their vegetable seedlings indoors, or in a cold frame. However, early spring is the time when young plants are most susceptible to a disease called damping off, or seedling blight, according to Emory Shannon, Extension plant pathologist for New Mexico State University.

Damping off is caused by fungi that attack the seedlings both before and after they emerge from the soil, and there are several fungi involved, Shannon said.

"They all cause a blight, or rot, of the lower stem and roots of the plant. Affected plants often appear to break off near the soil line," he said.

Although many different plants are susceptible to damping off, peppers, tomatoes, beans and petunias are most frequently affected.

The best way to control damping off is through cultural practices that eliminate or inhibit the disease causing fungus, Shannon said.

"Start with clean soil, soil that you are reasonably sure is free of disease causing microbes. It helps to use a packaged soil mix or a homemade mix of pasteurized garden soil," he said.

It's possible to pasteurize a soil mix in the kitchen oven. Spread four inches or less of the soil mix in glass or metal baking dishes, then cover the dishes tightly with aluminum foil. Put a candy or meat thermometer through the foil in the center of the soil mixture.

Set the oven to 180 to 200 degrees Fahrenheit and heat the soil until the surface temperature reaches 180 degrees. This should take about 30 minutes.

"Allow the soil to cool and you have clean soil, ready for use," Shannon said.

Pasteurized soil won't stay that way if the home gardener uses pots or tools that can contaminate it again. These items should be disinfected with a household bleach solution by soaking pots and utensils in a solution of one part bleach and nine parts water.

The bleach solution will cause corrosion, so be certain to rinse the tools thoroughly with water after the bleach bath.

In addition to these sanitary measures, the seedlings should be grown under conditions that discourage damping off, Shannon said. Some plant seeds can be sown directly on the soil surface and covered lightly with some sphagnum moss.

"Since excess moisture favors the damping off fungi, water the soil only lightly, then put the soil and seeds in a warm location until the seedlings emerge," he said.

After the seedlings are up, they should still be watered sparingly. When the seedlings are large enough for transplanting, be sure to use clean soil and equipment again.

"If you follow these steps, you should have early plants that are vigorous and healthy. They will be ready to perform well in the flower or vegetable garden," Shannon said.

GOOD HEALTH HABITS are practiced daily by students and charted in Nadine Gartner's fourth and fifth grade class at Ruidoso Christian School as an illustration of the importance of establishing such habits in maintaining mental and physical well-being.

READING IS A PLEASURE when a trip to Big T with the school principal is awarded to students reading the most books in a month. From the left, Weldon Smith (133 books), Luisa Tam (113 books), Jennifer Stevens (233 books) and Kansas Miranda (146 books), second graders in Chris Farrington's class at Nob Hill Elementary, read the most books to their parents at home during the last month, which entitles them to a treat with principal Donnie Weems.

Silk coming back as popular fabric

Mother Nature's wonder fabric, silk, has been called the queen of fabrics. Silk is making a comeback on the clothing racks and in fabric stores for the American consumer.

"Beautiful silk shirts and jackets for women and men, silk skirts and dresses, lingerie and luxurious silk evening apparel are tempting consumers from coast to coast," said Susan Wright, extension clothing specialist for New Mexico State University.

Man-made fibers have tried for years to equal the luster, softness, drape and overall quality that silk worms produce when they build their cocoons of silk fibers, Wright said.

Rayon, acetate, nylon and some polyesters have all been touted as the equal of silk. These are all modern fibers, but the attempt to duplicate silk has been going on for centuries.

As early as 1664, scientists tried to produce artificial silk fibers. Rayon was first made in the United States in 1910, and it was called artificial silk until 1924. Manufacturers of silk garments complained about the original name until it was changed, Wright said.

Silk is known for the beauty of the fabrics it is woven into, and these fabrics are highly durable if handled with care. But silk differs in many ways from the synthetic fabrics Americans have become accustomed to.

"Silk doesn't have the easy care, wash-and-wear characteristics that we enjoy with acrylics, nylons and polyester," Miss Wright said. "If your lifestyle calls for clothes that are tossed into the washer and worn again right out of the dryer, you're one of the people who shouldn't buy or make silk garments."

Silk is best used as a luxury fabric for special occasions, she said. "Dry cleaning is preferred over laundering to preserve fine silk fabrics. Some silk items can be washed, but they should be washed carefully by hand in cool water and with gentle detergents."

Silk is a protein fiber, like wool. This means cool temperatures have to be used for washing, drying and ironing. Some of the wrinkles will hang out of silk after it is cleaned, but most silk garments have to be steam pressed after washing, and after each wearing. Silk should be ironed while it is slightly damp for best results.

Silk has some other disadvantages that limit where and when it can or should be worn. It's more expensive than any synthetic, so more care is essential. Sunlight, even filtered sunlight, can weaken silk quickly, which means silk won't be durable in sportswear, for most outdoor garments, or in draperies.

Perspiration also weakens silk and some dyes bleed or run from the silk fabric onto any other garment that is being worn.

Pure white silks will yellow with age, or if bleached with chlorine. Mild hydrogen peroxide bleaches, or sodium perborate bleaches, can be safely used with silk, Miss Wright said.

CRITTERS LIKE THESE inhabit their own world, yet add to our world. A nonchalant mule, a relaxing dog, a pair of salt-licking cows and a coal black cat are among our animal neighbors.

Wilderness Wisdom

with Wayne Calloway

Well, it's been quite awhile since I've beat the drum about gun control, and I planned it that way. The gun issue is a well worn one and people cringe at its very mention. Pro and con issues can now be memorized, and neither side seems to make progress with the other. Partly, maybe, because they don't listen; only talk. If asked, I'll throw my two cents worth in. Okay, so I wasn't asked this time, but I'm a little tired of some of the things I hear. I talk, and listen, to advocates on both sides of the issue. Some make sense, some are middle of the road, but boy, some are really left field ideas. In fact, a few are nearly stupid.

Anyone who has even occasionally followed my column over the past five years doesn't need to be told that I am against most of the additional gun control proposals and laws. I don't think I run that fact into the ground, but I am a hunter and owner of several firearms, including handguns.

Let me first state that I believe anyone convicted of a gun related crime should be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law. The legal capability is there, but too often judges aren't choosing to give harsh enough sentences. You tell my why; I don't know.

My own state seems on the verge of passing a law that would demand a one year mandatory jail term for carrying or transporting a handgun without a license. It also states that this sentence "could" be waived if the judge was convinced of no criminal intent. But to me, there is little comfort in that statement. Now listen here. This state has no mandatory jail sentence for murder, rape, arson, burglary, or other violent crimes. Yet, an innocent citizen enroute to a target shooting outing could face a one year term if his firearm wasn't licensed. Is this a quest for additional money from licensing? And must we let the murderer out of prison early to make room for this handgun violation? I thought we were innocent until proven guilty.

Too many handguns around, you say? Maybe. Probably too many cars and knives also. They simply cannot be legislated off the streets. They can be replaced under the counter faster than they are taken away. But criminals are definitely in favor of tighter gun control laws. Theirs aren't registered anyway, and if we give ours up they won't have so much anxiety about coming into our homes.

Before you take a hard stand on the issue, take time to get the facts. Don't rely on other's opinions. It's an important issue; don't base your opinion on feelings or emotion.

Helen Mirren stars as Titania, the Queen of the Fairies in the BBC-TV/Time-Life Television production of Shakespeare's classic comedy, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," airing on PBS.

Shakespeare's great comedy

"A Midsummer Night's Dream," perhaps the most popular comedy in the English language, will air Monday, April 19 on PBS. (Check listings for exact time.)

The series is a co-production of BBC-TV and Time-Life Television and is the third presentation in Season Four of "The Shakespeare Plays," a six-year series which will eventually present all 37 of Shakespeare's dramatic works.

"A Midsummer Night's Dream" is a complex, comic love story. There are quarrels between the fairy royalty, misplaced spells and things generally go awry in an enchanted forest.

Helen Mirren stars as the luminous Titania, the Queen of the Fairies and consort to Oberon, played by Peter McEnery.

In the 400 years or so since it was written, "A Midsummer Night's Dream" has become one of the most studied works of literature. The underwriters of the telecast, Exxon Corp., Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. and Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., have supplied free classroom materials, such as study guides, posters, recordings and teacher's handbooks, to junior and senior high schools all over America for the telecast.

Spinning off success

by Steve K. Walz

Can you name the only TV series to have spun off five of its characters into successful series of their own?

If you guessed ABC's "Happy Days," you guessed correctly. The sitcom, which began as a 1972 "Love American Style" vignette, has been the cornerstone of ABC's prime-time attack since January 1974 when it joined the network on a weekly basis.

"Happy Days" was originally a piece of 1950s nostalgia, which focused on the Cunninghams, a typical American family of that decade. But viewers soon were attracted to two characters: the clean-cut Richie Cunningham (Ron Howard) and the leather-jacketed Fonzie (Henry Winkler). Despite their different lifestyles, their relationship flourished.

Once they had established Fonzie and Richie's relationship, the show's writers began concentrating on other characters such as Fonzie's two lower-middle class friends, Laverne and Shirley (Penny Marshall and Cindy Williams). They were given their own series in 1976, which has become successful.

To the producers' (Paramount) credit, they insisted that the characters grow older as the series moved chronologically from the late '50s into the early '60s. Unfortunately, there were times when the show became too predictable. It seemed as if Fonzie would always be there at the last minute to smooth over conflicts in an episode's plot.

To restore interest and to offset the supercool Fonzie, a manic alien named Mork was introduced in a special episode. The reaction to the character, played by comedian Robin Williams, was overwhelming. As a result, Williams was also given a prime-time series, "Mork and Mindy," which debuted in 1978 and has been airing ever since.

Ron Howard left the show last year. But his character hasn't been written out of the show's story line. Meanwhile, Fonzie's role has been de-emphasized in favor of Erin Moran who plays Joanie, a precocious teen-ager, and Scott Baio, who plays Chachi, her boyfriend. They were recently given their own show, "Joanie Loves Chachi," which looks promising.

As long as the producers and writers can inject talented young performers into the series, "Happy Days" will continue to be a successful pipeline for new projects

PAROLE

James Naughton (pictured, right, with Mark Soper) stars in "Parole" as a dedicated Boston parole officer whose experiences with a troubled young parolee highlights the problems many former offenders encounter when they return to society. "Parole" will air on the "CBS Tuesday Night Movies," TUESDAY, APRIL 20.
