

JUNGE, WHITE EXCHANGE BARBS

Sign ordinance approved

The Ruidoso council approved an amended sign ordinance and an agreement with Fawn Ridge water users Tuesday, in a meeting which also saw councilman Al Junge criticize Mayor George White at length.

Action on the sign ordinance came after village attorney Lee Huckstep told the council that certain changes in the ordinance proposed in July had been recommended by the Planning and Zoning Commission (P&Z). He noted that P&Z was still not entirely happy with the ordinance, but that upcoming state Supreme Court rulings could cause the village to want to amend the ordinance.

Councilman Frank Sayner made a motion to adopt the ordinance, with a stipulation that it ban all portable signs and signs with removable letters. Planning and zoning enforcement officer John Cupp pointed out that existing signs which are legal under the present ordinance will be legal under the new ordinance—that the village will not be tearing down existing signs which meet the present ordinance.

"We just will not permit any more of them," he said.

The new ordinance with Sayner's amendment was passed unanimously.

The agreement with Fawn Ridge ends a stalemate of more than a year, during which time a protest by the subdivision against three village water wells has delayed approval of the wells from the State Engineer.

Approval of the agreement by the council came after water board member Bill Karn presented an argument from engineer Newt Page, who was absent, against signing the document. Karn said that Page suggested pump tests on the village and Fawn Ridge wells to determine whether they draw water from the same aquifer. If they do not, he said, the state might remove the protest because the village wells would not affect the production of the Fawn Ridge wells.

Karn expressed concern over commitment of the village to provide up to 12 acre-feet of water per year to Fawn Ridge, which he said was $120,000 worth of water rights.

Junge, who worked out the agreement along with Sayner, said Page's suggestion had been taken into account but that the council felt the agreement was good. Benny Coulston remarked that chances of all four Fawn Ridge wells going dry were remote.

"It's gotten down to a judgmental call on the part of the council," said Coulston. A motion to approve the agreement passed unanimously.

Junge's remarks concerning White were in response to an article in The News September 30. Junge stated that White said in the article that Junge had lied, referring to the mayor's statement that Junge had not contacted the council before seeing that a time clock was installed at village hall.

"I think the mayor is being ridiculous to say I lied," said Junge. He added that the mayor is not on the council because he does not attend the pre-meeting study sessions.

Junge said the idea for the time clock came after he heard comments from village employees about the difficulty of keeping up with their hours.

The time clock was a "low value item" in terms of action or money, he said, and so it was installed. He claimed it was discussed in two study sessions.

Junge said he was trying to fulfill his campaign pledge of having the village run like a business. He said he devised a sign in/sign out sheet for village hall so the receptionist answering the phone would not have to page individuals who were out, and that village manager Jim Hine had agreed it was a good idea.

"If that's interfering with the operation of the village, I stand criticized," Junge said.

Junge denied lying, and said he could not call White (on the time clock) because White was not around. He said he wanted to put an end to something which was "beginning to boil and boil."

The councilman said he had received a "thorough tongue lashing" from White after criticizing White for getting involved in village personnel matters shortly after taking office, and that White had said then, "I won't meet with you fellows at all."

This statement prompted White to interject, "Once again I'm calling you a liar," saying he had refused to meet in the small room used for study sessions. He added that he stands by everything that was said in the article.

Junge said part of the problem was White's refusal to attend the study sessions, and that he had checked and found the sessions are legal if the door is left open and access given to newspaper.

"I don't care what you ever did to me, I would never call you a liar," Junge told White. He added that he has too much respect for the mayor's office and for his elders to do so.

Junge then referred to White's comments that he was proud of the accomplishments of the board of trustees during the time he was a trustee. Junge said the village had not bought a single water right in that time, though the selling price was far less than today.

He also commented on the new village hall, of which he said White and everybody is proud.

"The floor plan in this building is atrocious," Junge said. He added that the building lacks office space and suffers from structural cracks. Citing experience he said he has in commercial building, Junge said the cracks are partly owing to a lack of reinforcement over doorways.

Junge also brought up the purchase of furniture for village hall from a store in El Paso, Texas. He said White knew about the furniture (which was not bid, as required by state law), as did the other trustees, because he (Junge) went and told him.

When then Mayor (Lloyd) Davis asked then purchasing agent Frank Potter to break the law, Junge said, no one stood up. He added that he likes to think he would have. The result, he said, was the furniture cost much more than it would have elsewhere.

"Those are three of the things Mayor White can be proud of over the past three years," Junge concluded. He then said he wanted to bury the hatchet, but that he is as stubborn as White.

White told Junge that as long as Junge continues to do things without going through channels, he is going to criticize him. He said Junge had admitted meeting with a department head without going through the village manager.

"You simply do not know what you're talking about," said Junge. He said that as solid waste commissioner, he talks with department head Jack LaMay regularly.

He indicated that White may have something missing upstairs.

"If there's anything missing upstairs, it's in your head," White replied.

Junge then shifted the subject to last week's meeting of the council and the parks and recreation commission, calling the meeting an unfortunate thing that never should have happened. He said former commission member Dave Anderson had a lot of get up and go but does not know how to direct it yet.

"Dave thought that numbers would force us to do something and it hasn't," said Junge, referring to the people who turned out for the meeting.

"This is what happens when you have an open meeting and it gets out of hand," he added.

Later, Hine reported to the council that he found $8,000 in the budget for a salary for a parks and recreation director for the period from January 1 through the end of the fiscal year June 30. The council voted to advertise to fill the position, after Junge commented that he did not think it would be a full-time job, and that perhaps a retired person could fill it.

Sayner objected to David Sheppard's opinion column on the parks and recreation meeting in Monday's issue of The News, in which it was noted that "Sayner told Anderson he was going to teach him about politics."

He said he had followed that statement with an offer to take Anderson to Santa Fe and work with him on obtaining grant money for recreation, but that this was left out in the column. Sayner said he was withdrawing the offer because of the column, saying he had no interest in going at this time. He indicated he had tried to help and been attacked for it, and invited the columnist to go to Santa Fe instead.

Sayner said there had been no monkey business in connection with the special meeting, and that he was personally offended that such was indicated in the newspaper.

Later in the meeting, Anderson acknowledged the second part of Sayner's statement was an offer to help. "I want to clear up his (Sayner's) reputation," said Anderson.

"Maybe I did push it (parks and recreation) a little too fast," Anderson said. "I felt it was time to get something done."

"At least that's one issue where people did get involved," he noted. Anderson concluded by telling the councilmen they should listen when people show up en masse.

Junge also directed remarks at a recent opinion column in The News about Ralph Rush. Junge claimed the article (sic) described Rush as riding a white horse with a white plume, when his experience with Rush is that "he is a strange man," and not "Don Quixote."

The councilman recounted dealings between Rush and the village dating back some time, and concluded, "So this young man is a very difficult young man to deal with." Rush, said Junge, looks like a man who is going to "sue us on a perennial basis."

Junge indicated his interpretation of the column was that Rush had been mistreated by the village.

Also Tuesday night, the council approved Ordinance 82-17, authorizing issuance of $10,000 in revenue bonds for water improvements. Huckstep explained that the village is going to issue the bonds and buy them in a paper transaction.

"The reason is—it helps solidify our purposes in the matter of our supplemental gross receipts tax," said Huckstep. The $2 million revenue bond issue approved by voters in July has been confused by the state's reclassification of Lincoln County's bonding category.

Huckstep also asked for and was given authorization to proceed with a writ of mandamus with the state Supreme Court and to solicit names of appellate lawyers.

In other business, the council: —Appointed Sayner and councilman Don Dale, at White's request, to meet with Planning and Zoning Commission chairman John Schuller and ask him to reconsider his decision to resign. P&Z member Milt Alcorn voiced support for the move, saying he and other members felt Schuller will be missed if he resigns.

Water hike in Downs dropped

by BARBY GRANT
Staff Writer

Ruidoso Downs trustees decided Monday not to increase water rates after hearing from trustee Jake Harris that he has received tentative approval to tie in the village water system with that of Ruidoso Downs Race Track.

Harris said, "... the track needs storage as bad as we need water." The racetrack is supplied water from five wells, but there is no storage capacity to provide water for fire fighting. Under the tie-in arrangement, Harris explained, "they (would) store water in our tanks for fire protection and keep the village's lines full."

Harris said the board of directors of the racetrack, its former general manager, and the owner of the Ruidoso Downs Race Track property all have indicated they favor the arrangement, but the state Environmental Improvement Division will also have to approve. Harris said he plans to discuss the matter with the new general manager of Ruidoso-Sunland when he comes to Ruidoso.

Harris and trustee Harrold Mansell voiced objections to the proposed water rate increase before the tie-in arrangement was brought up. The increase was first proposed July 12 but has been tabled since a number of residents protested the action at the July 26 trustees meeting.

Mansell explained that he objects to an increase because there was a surplus of funds in the water department budget at the end of the last fiscal year. He said there should be no rate increase unless additional funds were to be used for a specific project.

"I don't want to wait till the time people have to do without water to do anything," mayor J. C. Day retorted. "It would be nice to have enough water for the summer for people to water their yards if they want."

Mansell explained that there are emergency funds available at the time such an emergency might occur. Money should not be taken from citizens when federal money might be available, he stated.

"The only reason we can come up with for a rate increase is to curtail water use," Harris said. "I don't think that's right."

"If it were at any other time but when we have levied an extra tax for sewer, I'd have said okay to the water increase," Harris said. A water rate increase in addition to the jump in the sewer rates would be putting too much hardship on taxpayers, he indicated.

Day reported that if all 104 of the planned Triple Crown condominiums are sold and used part-time, "we're gonna arrive at practically nil water left."

It was agreed that tying into the racetrack's water system would help prevent a water shortage, however, and the proposed water rate increase was finally dropped.

In other business, trustees:

—Awarded the bid for a three-quarter-ton pickup truck to Ed Black Chevrolet of Albuquerque for a low bid of $7,827.73, pending approval by the state of the transfer of funds. Mansell first objected to opening bids on the truck when only two were received. He said the call for bids should have been advertised in a larger area, but later agreed to proceed with the matter.

—Approved upon recommendation of the Planning and Zoning Commission a request from Grannie's Storehouse owners to place a cabin on their property for a restaurant.

—Authorized Day to send notices to three property owners requiring them to clean up their property within 10 days or have the village clean it up at the owners' expense.

—Decided to clean up the medians on Highway 70. Acting police chief Chuck Robinson agreed that the trees in the medians are a hazard.

—Voted to distribute the payroll every two weeks after the new computer system is installed.

—Signed a contract to continue bookmobile services through the New Mexico State Library.

—Granted final approval to replat of lots four and 18 of Middle Cedar Subdivision.

—Agreed to request Lincoln County Farm and Ranch funds for the purchase of a pickup truck.

Suboffice bids opened

by BARBY GRANT
Staff Writer

Bids on construction of the county courthouse suboffice in Ruidoso were opened at the county commissioners meeting Tuesday. A decision on awarding the bid will be made at the November 2 meeting after the architects have made a recommendation to the commission.

Eight bids were received, with the low bid submitted by Timberlake Construction of El Paso, Texas, at $279,900. Silvertown Construction Company, also of El Paso, submitted the second lowest bid of $280,000.

See Gee Engineering Company of Albuquerque, which is currently constructing the courthouse additions in Carrizozo, submitted a bid of $280,791. Beagles Enterprises of Roswell bid on the project at $284,590.56. A third El Paso firm, Halco Construction, submitted the next highest bid at $285,900.

Service Contractors, the only Ruidoso firm bidding on the project, submitted a bid of $299,344. The remaining two bidders were Atlas Construction of Las Cruces and Bill Stuckman of Albuquerque. A bid of $292,800 was submitted by Atlas, with Stuckman offering the highest bid at $307,000.

Gordon Herkenhoff and Associates, project architects, had estimated the cost of the suboffice construction at $269,688, according to Miguel Cheng-Guajardo, representing the firm at the meeting.

Commissioners decided Tuesday to call for bids on computer equipment for the new courthouse building in Carrizozo after rescinding the contract previously signed with Western Programmers of Albuquerque.

Commissioners had signed a lease purchase agreement with the firm under state contract before discovering that Western Programmers is not an authorized representative of the corporation which has a state contract.

Under the State Purchasing Act, local governing bodies are required to call for bids on any materials or services over $2,500, with several exceptions. One exception is for the "purchase of materials or services at or less than prices stipulated in current federal supply contracts from a supplier or authorized representative."

Western Programmer president C. A. "Bart" Bartlebaugh III said "we're not very happy with it" when told of the decision to rescind the contract. Bartlebaugh tried to convince commissioners that the State Purchasing Act had not been violated because they are leasing the computers with an option to buy, which is permitted as an exemption to the requirement to call for bids.

County manager Suzanne Cox reported that a lease purchase agreement is considered buying rather than leasing.

Bartlebaugh also argued that Western Programmers is permitted to sell computer equipment under state contract, but Cox said the state informed her there is no record that the firm is an authorized representative.

Commission chairman Thomas P. "Cotton" McKnight interrupted Bartlebaugh's argument to make a motion to call for bids on computer equipment, which was quickly seconded by commissioner Ben Hall and passed.

Bids will be opened at the November 2 meeting.

In other business, commissioners: —Agreed to submit a request to the U.S.

Firemen teaching awareness

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

The Ruidoso Volunteer Fire Department (RVFD) and village fire prevention officer Ollie Cuddy addressed over 1,000 Ruidoso students this week on fire prevention and awareness.

Firemen Barry Cole, Danny Garcia, Jesse Reynolds and Eddie Espinoza addressed students at the White Mountain schools and Nob Hill Elementary School as part of a drive to distribute fire awareness information before the start of the holiday season, when a high number of house fires usually occur.

Cole explained that the awareness campaign began with National Fire Prevention Week last week, and will last three months.

"We're trying to educate the kids, and they in turn help us educate the parents," Cole said. "We're stressing fire prevention for the young ones—for them to be aware and know how to get out of a burning house, so they don't panic."

Cole noted that children are prone to hide when a fire breaks out in a house. He said part of the campaign—called Operation Edith—is teaching children and parents to map escape routes from the house, and to practice getting out of a burning house. Edith is an acronym standing for Exit drill in the house.

Speaking to a group of 500 children Tuesday at White Mountain, Garcia said the fire department wants "Ruidoso to know we care about your safety."

The department handed out 10,000 pieces of literature to the children. Among the items are: report cards on home hazards that the children are to fill out and return to their teachers; skill posters showing how to "stop, drop and roll;" fire hazard color posters that will be judged for the best artwork and hung at village hall; babysitter guides; kitchen safety guides that teach how to make a fire extinguisher out of a coffee can and baking soda; and fire safety pamphlets and book covers.

Cole said the department also stresses that children memorize the police department phone number—257-7365—so they can call in an emergency when they are forced out of the house by fire.

Cole said the literature was supplied by an insurance company and donated by Perieet, Parks and Associates.

A FANCY and informative book cover is one of 10,000 handouts the Ruidoso Volunteer Fire Department gave to over 1,000 students this week. Here

YOU CAN BET THEY'RE READY. Ruidoso's own Best Bet Jazz Band is getting ready to leave for the first annual Sedona Jazz and Fine Arts Festival October 16 in Sedona, Arizona. The ensemble will be one of the 13 featured groups at the event sponsored by the Sedona Art Center. Dick Shaw said the event will be covered by ABC-TV. The group has been playing together for most of 20 years, and now can be heard every Sunday evening at the Inn of the Mountain

Gods. The musicians depart tomorrow morning in a motor home donated by Sierra Blanca Motors. Shaw said they will be taking brochures to promote Ruidoso in Sedona. The musicians are, from left: Leroy Gooch, bass, piano and vocals; Bill Gross, vibes and piano; Art Holt, trumpet; Ginny Stephens, vocals; Teddi Sullivan, piano and vocals; Dick Shaw, percussion; and Don Davis, guitar and vocals.

School board approves clinic

by BARBY GRANT
Staff Writer

The Ruidoso Board of Education Tuesday approved a request to conduct a preschoolers speech and hearing clinic in portable classroom buildings at White Mountain Middle School. The clinic is sponsored by the Sertoma Clubs and is scheduled for November 2.

Personnel from a Sertoma speech and hearing clinic in El Paso, Texas, will be brought here to conduct the local clinic, with costs to be underwritten by the Ruidoso Sertoma Club. The clinic will be free of charge to the public.

The purpose of the clinic, according to White Mountain Middle School diagnostician Karen Tillman, is to detect possible speech and hearing problems in children before they begin school so that special attention can be provided before it is too late.

Sertoma Club officers Ronnie Ludwick, Larry Montero and Walter McAllister plus project chairman Frank Pope were present to explain the clinic to board members. Board president Dave Parks expressed thanks to the club for their work in this area.

The school board also voted to continue paying Mickey McGuire his teaching salary during legislative sessions if he is elected State Representative, but to deduct the amount used to pay a substitute while he is away from the classroom.

Associate superintendent Sid Miller reported that, according to the attorney for the state board of education, there are no established guidelines to follow in making such a decision. The board is not obligated to pay his salary while he is away from school, Miller said, but they may if they wish.

Board members decided that they will later establish a "civic duty" policy to cover any possible similar situations in the future.

In other business, school board members:

—Awarded the bid on fireproof files for the administration office to Van White's Albuquerque Safe Company for the low bid of $5,064.

—Awarded bid on construction of a retaining wall for the high school football field to Pritchett Construction of Ruidoso, which submitted the low bid of $2,366.

—Awarded the bid on construction of a concrete area for the high school cheerleaders to Pritchett Construction for a bid of $2,882.

—Awarded the bid on a tractor and equipment to Smith Machinery of Roswell for the low bid of $11,165.

—Granted a request to conduct a Weldon Drew basketball camp at the high school July 17-22, 1983, for a charge of $700. This is an increase of $200 over the amount charged for use of the facilities this year.

—Approved school board meeting dates for 1983. The board will continue to meet the second Tuesday of each month at 7:30 p.m.

—Authorized the superintendent or associate superintendent as official representative for the filing of public law 81-874 application for the school year 1982-83.

—Heard from superintendent Pat Valliant that enrollment after 20 school days is 1,612, lower than the figure after the first several days of school, but still higher than projected enrollment.

—Granted approval to Rick Simpson to replace one of the privately owned school buses.

—Tabled a request for use of the high school shop facilities for a carpenter apprenticeship program, asking that more information about the classes be made available at the next meeting. The program, sponsored by the Carpenter's Education Association, would be free of charge to students.

—Were introduced to the new teachers at White Mountain Elementary and Middle Schools by their principals.

Hunger Project seeks to end world hunger

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

Wendy Knight has a vision that world hunger can be eliminated in our lifetime if we all increase our awareness that we are part of the grand scheme and that we can do something to help wipe out the problem.

Knight is one of 2.2 million members of the Hunger Project who, along with patriots around the world, will devote a little thought and time this Saturday to World Food Day. The day is described as the second annual celebration of the sufficiency of the earth and a tribute to the people who produce food.

"I will take that day in particular to be conscious (of world hunger)," Knight said in an interview Monday. "I mean, I don't have all the answers, but being aware is the first step for me. That's my responsibility."

Knight said the goals of the worldwide organization are to support research and projects to help populations eradicate hunger and to get the message out that starvation can be eliminated.

"It's too easy to believe it's hopeless that hunger can be solved, and not even try to get something started," she said. "But we're moving into an age now where the old concepts aren't going to work. We're widening our scope of belief."

—Accepted the low bid of T. E. Arrington of Ruidoso of $29,451 for a metal building for the street department.

—Approved Dale's recommendation from the jail committee that architect John Moore be invited to present a proposal on a new police complex.

—Approved restaurant beer and wine licenses for Apple Factory Restaurant and Fantail Restaurant.

—Approved a six-inch side lot line variance in Alto Crest; a replat in Singing Pines; two replats in Middle Cedar; and a replat in C. A. Elland Tract.

—Was informed by Huckstep that Ruidoso Water Corporation articles of incorporation have been returned by the state.

Food sanitation school set

All owners, managers and operators of local eating establishments and/or bars are invited to attend a food sanitation school sponsored by the Environmental Improvement Division (EID) Wednesday, October 20, from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. in the multi-purpose room at the Ruidoso Public Library.

The program manager for food sanitation in New Mexico, Gunther Werner, will be here from Santa Fe to present the class. Werner will explain the requirements for passing EID's food sanitation inspection, reviewing in detail each of the 44 items on the inspection form.

LTC tables Chamber request

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

The Lodger's Tax Committee (LTC) Wednesday tabled a request from the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce for lodger's tax money to defray expenses above the budgeted advertising costs of the Ruidoso Motorcycle Festival.

The action led to a heated exchange between LTC member Clark Carpenter and Chamber executive director Ed Jungbluth after Carpenter made a request that LTC be presented the statements showing the cost of ads, after the advertising has been paid.

The committee tabled consideration of the extra costs to advertise the motorcycle festival after chairman Ed Hyman asked that organizers of the event, the Ruidoso Business Association (RBA), come before LTC next month with an itemized list of unbudgeted expenditures.

Jungbluth requested the reimbursement because he said the Chamber already had paid for the additional advertising. Jungbluth noted the Chamber was involved in the matter because LTC had asked it to manage advertising for the business group.

The additional advertising, which cost $569, was paid for shortly before last month's motorcycle festival, it was reported. Jungbluth noted that LTC had approved $4,000 for RBA advertising in the summer, but he said the first-year organization was hasty with last minute promotion and went over the ad budget.

In addition to the $569, Jungbluth requested reimbursement for $961 that was approved and spent on the 1981 motorcycle event but was not billed until the present fiscal year. The total request for the extra festival advertising thus came to $1,530.

Jungbluth said the Chamber did not know about the extra ad costs until after the RBA already had bought the ads and was billed for them. He said the Chamber had spent its own money for the festival, and was looking for reimbursement.

Hyman said he would like the RBA to come before LTC and explain why it went over budget. He also asked if the organization had gained profits from this year's festival, and if those profits could apply toward the Chamber's costs. Hyman added he wanted the RBA to justify the extra expenses.

Following the discussion, Carpenter proposed that organizations requesting lodger's tax funds be required to submit statements on their advertising costs to LTC after the ads are paid.

Jungbluth disagreed with the proposal. He argued that the Chamber already turns over all its advertising bills to be reimbursed by lodger's tax funds to village clerk Leon Eggleston and that the statements are on public record. He said it is "past the point of sensibility and good business" if he has to do the same thing with LTC.

Jungbluth said he wouldn't "sit still" for the proposal and that he thought such a requirement is out of the scope of the LTC. Jungbluth said he will ask the village council to redefine the purpose of the committee.

But Carpenter countered that he felt there is no reason for the committee to meet if it cannot question individual bills that come in after LTC has approved the entire lodger's tax budget.

Jungbluth accused Carpenter of doubting the Chamber's integrity if he has to prove where the Chamber spent funds.

Hyman and LTC member Slover Cape said they did not want to see individual bills, unless specific items—such as the case with RBA going over budget—are questioned.

The committee made no motion on Carpenter's request.

In other business, LTC:

—Approved allocation of $2,000 to the Chamber for membership fees in the Sun Country USA regional promotional organization.

—Approved $10,000 for the Chamber to participate in two Texas trade shows next year.

—Approved $2,971 to defray Chamber costs connected with tourist promotion for the first fiscal quarter of 1982.

—Approved $2,251 to defray Chamber expenses in getting a summer advertising campaign started. Jungbluth said the money paid for ads for the campaign, but because of delays getting summer advertising under way, the material will not be used until next year.

—Approved a request from Eggleston to change the form of the monthly report of lodger's tax collections and disbursements. Eggleston reported that tax receipts for September were $13,884; bringing the yearly receipts so far to $88,696. Disbursements for September were $5,573.

Muzzle-loader hunting season opening Saturday

Muzzle-loader hunting season will be open on the Lincoln National Forest from October 16-24. Hunters are requested to respect private land and to observe safety rules.

Temperatures are getting colder in the mountains and winter storms can move in suddenly, so all visitors are reminded to come prepared with sufficient clothing and supplies. Snow flurries are possible in the higher elevations.

Fuelwood gatherers have been making heavy use of fuelwood areas. As fuelwood areas are usually closed during wet weather, fuelwood cutters are asked to always check with the district they plan to visit for current conditions before they leave home. Numbers to call are: Smokey Bear at Ruidoso, 257-4095; Cloudcroft, 882-2551; Guadalupe at Carlsbad, 885-4181; and Mayhill at 687-3411. All fuelwood areas on the Lincoln Forest require fuelwood permits.

Temperatures have been down to the teens on the Smokey Bear District at Ruidoso; highs are ranging in the 50's. Fall colors are at their peak near Nogal Canyon, Sierra Blanca Ski Resort and Montjeu Peak Motorists are advised that guard rail and road work are underway on NM 532, the Sierra Blanca road. Bonito Lake and streams are full, with fishermen scarce during the week, but more numerous on weekends. All campgrounds are closed for the season except Three Rivers, which is open year-round, Cedar Creek Picnic Area is open. Trails are open.

Lower Sleepy Grass Campground is open on the Cloudcroft District. Temperatures are ranging from the low 20's to the high 50's. Construction continues on NM 24 south of Cloudcroft, and there may be long delays and hazardous conditions. Fall colors are good near the Carr Canyon Picnic Area.

Sitting Bull Falls Picnic Area is still receiving heavy weekend use on the Guadalupe District. Roads and trails are open and dry. Temperatures are ranging from low 40's to high 70's.

Wayland Canyon, near the lower Agua Chiquita on the Mayhill District, is a good place to view fall colors. James Canyon Campground is receiving moderate use. Fishing is fair on the Penasco River. Temperatures are ranging from the mid 40's to high 70's.

traditional course of sending food or donating money to buy food for hungry people is not the best means of eliminating hunger.

"That's the bottomless pit way," she said. "There will always be another mouth to fill. It's a process of educating rather than just feeding people once. It's better to show them how to take care of themselves."

"The world is drawing closer and closer. The things we do have an impact on other people and what they do has an impact on us. The next step is participation in other people's lives, but with more compassion than it has been done in the past. It's to realize we don't do it the way you do, and to help in their environment in a form that works for them."

Knight said since she joined the Hunger Project last year, she has become confident that the problem of world hunger will be solved. When asked what the average person can do to help, she suggested that we contemplate about hunger. As she puts it, the first step to assisting is to realize there is a problem, and that something can be done to solve it.

"I think the purpose of the Hunger Project is to bring people's awareness to the fact we can create a better world."

Knight said "education to the organization go toward agricultural development and research and educating people. She pointed out that country music performer Kenny Rogers has donated a $1 million award to be given to an educator who has done the most to inform people about hunger. Such is an example of the growing support for the movement, she noted.

Knight said she hopes "persons will at least start questioning how they fit into the scheme," after being informed of the Hunger Project.

Knight adds that anyone wishing to participate in World Food Day Saturday is invited to attend a session devoted to the day at the L. T. Godfrey Athletic Center at New Mexico Military Institute in Roswell starting at 1:30 p.m. Dr. Gerald Thomas, president of New Mexico State University, will be the featured speaker.

Ruidoso spikers top Tularosa

Rallying from a first-set loss, the Ruidoso High School varsity volleyball team took a decisive victory over visiting Tularosa High School in a district 3-AAA match Tuesday night.

The Warriors lost the first set by a 15-9 margin but came back to win the second set 15-3 and the third set 15-10 for the victory. The Warriors are now 3-2 in district competition and 7-4 overall.

"It was really a team effort," said head Warrior coach Elmer Chavez. "We got off to a rough start in the first set, but came back strong."

"Lisa Williams did a great job coming off the bench. It was definitely her best match of the season and it probably earned her a starting spot."

After losing the first set, Ruidoso played a great game in the second.

Kody Taylor served the first two points for the Warriors, who never trailed in the set. Lori Morel served four more points and Ruidoso breezed in from there.

In the third set, Tularosa took an early 3-1 lead but the Warriors crept back gradually and scored six straight points to take the lead for good.

The Wildcats good the Warrior advantage to 7-6 but an outstanding spike by Williams gave the ball back to Ruidoso. Taylor served one point and Dodie Baldonado two for a 10-6 Ruidoso margin.

Tularosa fought back to close the margin to 10-9 but the Warriors scored three straight points for a 13-9 advantage. The Wildcats closed the margin to 13-10 but Laura Trapp served two straight points for the Warrior victory.

The Ruidoso junior varsity lost to Tularosa in two sets, 15-10, 15-6.

"The girls played well as a team," said Ruidoso junior varsity coach Nancy Holland. Ruidoso is now 0-5 in district junior varsity action.

Ruidoso returns to action Saturday when it travels to Deming for a critical district match.

Ruidoso lost to Deming in three sets two weeks ago. The Warriors won the first set by a 15-11 score but lost the second set 15-9 and the third 15-4. Deming is rated as one of the district favorites for the state tournament.

Around Sports with Gary Brown

The first Inn of the Mountain Gods Pro-Am Celebrity Golf Tournament Monday was a success in every way.

Local golf fans got to see some of the top professional golfers on the tour compete, as well as many of the better amateurs around.

A course record was set by pro Dave Eichelberger, who scored a seven-under-par 65. Charles Cuddy tied the old record with a 67 and there were several other fine performances.

For a while, the threat of rain or even snow presented an obstacle to the success of the tournament. But the weather turned out to be clear, if sometimes cold.

Although actor Dale Robertson was the only celebrity at the tournament, there's a good chance more celebrities will compete next year. The tournament was put together very quickly this year and many pro golfers and celebrities had already committed themselves to other activities.

People like Oakland A's manager Billy Martin, former Dallas Cowboy stars Roger Staubach and Walt Garrison, and several actors were among those contacted by the tournament organizers.

Perhaps the only disappointment of the tournament was the rather small gallery crowd, around 500 people. Some people connected with the tournament were hoping for around 1,000 to 1,500 people in the gallery.

However, the crowds should increase next year. The tournament will be known to sports golfers and people involved in sports promotion and that should attract more people.

The World Series between the St. Louis Cardinals and Milwaukee Brewers presents two teams with contrasting styles.

The Brewers hit more home runs than any other team in baseball this season, banging out 216. They also have a team batting average of .279. In contrast, St. Louis had a batting average of .264 and only hit 66 home runs this season, the fewest in the majors.

However, Milwaukee's pitching staff had a mediocre 3.90 earned run average (ERA) compared to a fine 3.33 ERA for the Cardinals. Moreover, the Cardinals had an outstanding 1.33 ERA in the playoffs compared to a poor 4.76 for the Brewers.

St. Louis also has an edge in speed and defense and that wins a lot of ball games. The Cardinals also have an edge over the Brewers in sacrifice bunts.

Who do I like as the winner?

It should be one of the better World Series in recent years. However, the Cardinals' better balance, pitching and defense should prevail in six or seven games.

Pitching is still the single most important key to winning baseball games, particularly the World Series and pennant playoffs. St. Louis has more than enough pitching to win.

LORI MOREL of the Ruidoso High School varsity volleyball team spikes the ball over the net during Tuesday night's game with visiting Tularosa. The Warriors topped Tularosa in three sets to raise their district mark to 3-2 and their overall record to 7-4.

Youth sports on tap Saturday

Youth soccer matches and Little League football games are on the schedule for Saturday.

The Ruidoso Soccer Association youth soccer matches will be held at White Mountain Middle School.

In under-eight action, the Cobras will tangle with the Celtic at 11 a.m. and the Bandits will meet United at 1 p.m. Under-12 competition will see the Rowdies play the Tornado at 10 a.m. and the Cosmos tangle with the Strikers at 1:30 p.m.

In under-16 action, the Strikers will host White Stars at 11:30 a.m. The Celtic will travel to Alamogordo for a 1 p.m. contest.

The Little League football games will be played at either Ruidoso High School or White Mountain Middle School, depending on the weather. If it rains, the games will probably be played at the middle school.

The Hornets and Lions will tangle in a Minor Division game at noon. In Major Division competition, the undefeated Colts will take on the Broncos at 1 p.m. and the Cowboys and Steelers will play at 2:30 p.m.

The Colts are 4-0 in league play and 6-0 overall. The Cowboys are 2-2, followed by the Steelers with a 1-2-1 mark and the Broncos with an 0-3-1 record.

Boxers to compete in Warrior gym Saturday

Some of the top amateur youth boxers in New Mexico will participate in "Saturday Night at the Fights," a program hosted by the Las Piedras Boxing Team (LPBT) of Ruidoso at the Ruidoso High School gym Saturday night.

The program is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. David Ordorica will carry the LPBT's hopes for a victory. Ordorica, who also plays on the Ruidoso High School junior varsity football team, is a rugged fighter in the 70-pound division. He won the Silver Cup title in Albuquerque last weekend.

Some of the other top boxers who will compete in the program include Henry Anaya Jr., Johnny Tapia and Pete Marinez Jr., all of Henry's Boxing Club of Albuquerque. These three fighters recently won national titles in Golden Gloves competition.

Martinez fights in the 85-pound class, Anaya in the 139-pound class and Tapia in the 106-pound class.

Ringside seats will be $5 and general admission seats $3. Children under 12 will be admitted free.

A doctor is needed for pre-fight physicals from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. in the gym. The physicals are basic pre-fight physicals.

Any doctor wanting to help can call LPBT coach Lucky Mulqueen at 257-2798.

Boxing clinic scheduled

A boxing and officials clinic open to anyone will be conducted from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday in the Ruidoso High School gym.

Registration will be held at 5 p.m. At 5:15 p.m. there will be a demonstration of how to be a referee, and at 5:45 p.m. there will be a 15-minute open book test with 25 questions. At 6 p.m., anyone wishing to belong to the New Mexico Boxing Association (a division of the United States of America Amateur Boxing Federation) can take a half-hour test. This test is not open book and will have 100 questions.

There will be a $12 registration fee and a rulebook can be bought for $6. Patches will cost $3 and a pin will cost $1.50.

Alan McChesney, a local architect and boxing official, will be on hand.

Warrior Booster Club to host supper party

The Ruidoso High School Warrior Booster Club will host an old-fashioned box supper party Saturday, October 23, at 7 p.m. in the high school gymnasium.

All women and girls in the community can make a boxed supper for two, decorate the box and bring it to the gym before 6:30 p.m.

Games like bobbing for apples and pinning a feather on a Warrior coach will be played. Party-goers will also have a chance to throw a pie at the coaches.

Money raised will be used to purchase uniforms for the Warriors.

The booster club wishes to thank the following merchants for their contributions to the party prizes.

The merchants and the prizes they're offering include: Roxy's Hair Shoppe, offering a shampoo and set; Big-T, offering four dinners; K-Bob's, offering a dinner for two; Tru-Value, offering a flashlight; McDonald's, offering meal certificates; The Arena Western Store, offering $30 gift certificates; Steed's Ski Rentals, offering Western ski vest; Swain's, offering brass wall key holder; Jackalope Square, offering wood jar; Western Auto, offering calculator; Hospital Pharmacy and Ruidoso Drugs, offering Kodak Instamatic Camera; White's, offering a baseball glove; Big John's Bar-b-que, offering dinner for two; El Charro's, offering buffets for two; Poliwogs and Pigtails, offering a $10 gift certificate; Don's Pharmacy, offering a surprise; and Aspen Tree Book Store, offering a New Mexico recipe book.

If other merchants wish to donate door prizes to the booster club fund raising box supper, they should contact Carol Carter at 257-2986.

Inn hosts assistants' tourney

The annual Sun Country Section Assistants' Golf Tournament is being held today and Friday at the Inn of the Mountain Gods.

Over 20 assistant professionals from golf courses around the Southwest are competing in the tournament. The tournament is a 36-hole affair.

Dode Forrester and George French from the Inn are competing in the tournament along with Donnie Johnson of Cree Meadows Country Club.

The tournament is held at a different golf course in the section each year.

Capitan, Reserve to play

The Capitan High School varsity football team will play probably its biggest game of the season when it travels to defending state A division champion Reserve for a 3 p.m. game Friday.

Capitan, 3-1-1 on the season, lost to Reserve in the state finals two years ago. Last year the Tigers were edged by Texico 7-6 in the semi-finals.

Capitan has had its ups and downs so far this season. The Tigers opened the season with an impressive 27-6 victory over Cloudcroft but fell to Texico 13-0 in the second game of the season. The Tigers came back for a 33-8 win over Hagerman and a 24-14 victory over a tough Tatum squad before being held to a tie with AA division Dexter two weeks ago. Capitan had a bye last week.

The Tiger defense was outstanding against Dexter but the offense struggled. Head coach Mel Holland and his assistants have been having problems with injuries on the offensive unit.

Quarterback Grady Lee Eldridge has been having problems with his back and offensive guard Sammy Castillo is out for the season with a broken arm.

After the Reserve game, Capitan closes out the regular season with home contests against Mountainair and Carrizozo.

ELECT LEANDRO VEGA JR.

Leandro Vega Jr. is Republican candidate for Lincoln County Sheriff, a position for which he is very highly qualified. He was previously elected Lincoln County Sheriff in 1965 and served in that capacity for four years; again re-elected Lincoln County Sheriff in 1972 and served in that capacity for an additional four years.

The following are some of Leandro's qualifications for the Sheriff's Office:

- *Graduate of the New Mexico Law Enforcement Academy
- *Fully certified to serve as a law enforcement officer
- *Served four terms as Lincoln County Sheriff
- *Served eight years as Deputy Sheriff with Lincoln County Sheriff's Department.
- *Served one year with district Attorney's office as criminal investigator in Lincoln and Otero Counties.

The County Sheriff is the chief law enforcement officer in the county, a very heavy and significant responsibility. Leandro is extremely competent, knows the county and its people and will fairly administer this office. Leandro Vega would greatly appreciate your vote and support on November 2, election day.

Eichelberger sets course record in

by GARY BROWN
Sports Writer

Dave Eichelberger, whose mother has a home in Alto Village, played outstanding golf all the way in winning the pro title at the first Inn of the Mountain Gods Pro-Am Celebrity Golf Tournament Monday before 10 fans.

Eichelberger, a 38-year-old pro from Fort Worth, Texas, fired an excellent even-under-par 65 for a new course record. He beat out Charles Coody, who held the old course record with a 67. The previous record was held by Tommy Hornuckle of Ruidoso, Cree Meadows Country Club assistant pro Donnie Johnson, and Tev Haskins of El Paso, Texas.

"I felt I played real good today," Eichelberger said after completing the 18-hole competition. "I had seven birdies—three on the front nine and four on the back. The greens were excellent. It's a real good course. Some of the guys who played here for the first time were surprised."

Eichelberger has played on the Inn's course before, usually once or twice a year. He won $1,000 for his first place performance. He also had a $1,000 guaranteed purse that all the pro golfers received. His pro-am team, which included Ruidoso High School golf coach Leroy Gooch, Bruce Green and Brett Mills, finished in a three-way tie for seventh. The Fort Worth golfer won $225 for that effort, bringing his total winnings to $2,225.

John Mahaffey's team and Brad Bryant's team tied for the pro-am team title with 15-under par handicap totals at 57. Mahaffey's team consisted of Allen Harrison, Louis Rowland and junior golfer Bryan Dwinell. The Bryant team was made up of Bill Neace, Jack Deason and junior Bryan Zachary.

There were a total of 11 pro-am teams in the competition.

Following Eichelberger and Coody in the pro competition were Bryant (a University of New Mexico graduate and former Alamogordo resident) with a 68, Mahaffey with a 69, Lou Graham with a 71, Tom Purtzer with a 72, George Archer with a 74, Fuzzy Zoeller with a 74, Dave Hill with a 74, Lon Hinkle with a 75 and Bob Murphy with a 77.

Coody picked up $850 for his second place finish. Bryant won $750, Mahaffey $600, Graham $500, Purtzer $400, Archer $225, Zoeller $225, Hill $225, Hinkle $125 and Murphy $100.

Mahaffey and Bryant each won $925 for their pro-am team victories.

Hinkle and Hill each won $875 for their third place pro-am efforts (each team scoring a 59). Hinkle's team included Phil Patterson, L. C. Squires and Billy Taylor; while Hill's squad was made up of Hal Cliff, Bill Happel and Dee Green.

The Purtzer, Murphy and Graham teams finished in a fifth place tie at 60 with the three pros each picking up $450. Graham's team included actor Dale Robertson, Jim Abercrombie and Donnie Cortez. Purtzer's team included Danny Wimberly, Bobby Bales and Sean Murphy. Murphy's team included Doug Bass, Ralph Lund and Dan Irwin.

The Archer and Eichelberger pro-am teams each finished at 11 under par with the two pros each winning $225. Teddy Martinez, Chuck Hawthorne and Kent Jones belonged to Archer's team.

Zoeller's and Coody's pro-am teams finished in a tie for last with 62 totals. Members of Zoeller's team included Jerry Jones, Jeff Good and Jay Glover; while Bull Durham, Warren Hairford and Harold McCreary made up Coody's team. Coody and Zoeller each won $112.50 for their pro-am team finishes.

Coody, a resident of Abilene, Texas, was fairly pleased with his second place performance in the professional standings.

"I didn't play too badly," he said. "I had six birdies and one bogie. I shot a 32 on the front nine and 35 on the back nine. This course is good, one of the better mountain courses."

Zoeller, one of the most colorful golfers on the Pro Golfers Association (PGA) tour and also one of the game's longest hitters, started out as if he was going to win the pro title easily.

After 11 holes, Zoeller, a resident of Albany, Indiana, was four under par. However, on the 12th hole, he hit a ball into the rocks near Lake Mescalero and lost four strokes on that hole. From then on, he fell behind the leaders.

Graham's team was the first to tee off at 10 a.m. and Mahaffey's was the last (going out at 11:50 a.m.).

Tommy Morel, Director of Sales and Marketing for the Inn, was pleased with the way the tournament turned out.

"Everything was excellent," he remarked. "Many of the pros were saying that it was the finest first-time tournament they had ever attended."

Proceeds from the tournament will go to junior golf in New Mexico.

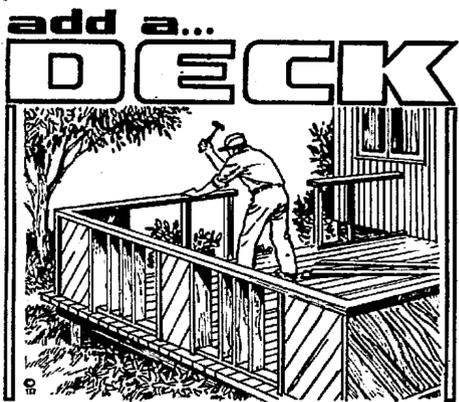

THE WINNER! Dave Eichelberger walks off the 18th hole with a smile on his face after winning the pro title in the first Inn of the Mountain Gods Pro-Am Celebrity Golf Tournament Monday. Eichelberger, whose mother has a home in Alto Village, set a course record with a sizzling 65. Charles Coody finished second with a 67, tying the old record.

IT'S IN! With Sierra Blanca standing out in the background, Brad Bryant sinks a putt during the first Inn of the Mountain Gods Pro-Am Celebrity Golf Tournament Monday. Bryant finished third in the pro competition with a fine 68. The University of New Mexico graduate also led his pro-am team of Bill Neace, Jack Deason and Bryan Zachary to a first-place tie. The team scored a handicapped 57.

HERE IT COMES. Hal Cliff of Ruidoso watches the ball after a putt during Monday's first Inn of the Mountain Gods Pro-Am Celebrity Golf Tournament. Cliff was one of three amateurs who teamed with pro Dave Hill. The Hill team finished at a 13-under-par 59 for a third place tie in the pro-am competition. Other members of Hill's team were Bill Happel and Dee Green.

THERE IT GOES. The gallery watches Fuzzy Zoeller stroke the ball into the wild blue yonder from the tee of the 18th hole during Monday's Inn of the Mountain Gods Pro-Am Celebrity Golf Tournament. Zoeller, one of the more colorful golfers on the pro tour, finished in a three-way team tie for seventh with a 62 for the 18 holes.

County golf tourney to begin

The first Lincoln County Golf Championships will be held Saturday and Sunday at Alto Lakes Golf and Country Club and Cree Meadows Country Club. The entry fee is $40, which includes all fees and cart. Each player will play 36 holes—18 at Cree Meadows and 18 at Alto. Prizes will be awarded in each flight. A plaque will be displayed at each course with the winner's name.

Late frost results in light harvest for area apple growers

Damage from a late spring frost to apple blossoms in orchards along the Rio Ruidoso and the Bonito Valley has resulted in a light apple crop in those areas this year.

Driving east of Ruidoso on Highway 70, it is apparent the most severe damage to the crop occurred between San Patricio and Hondo, as the trees in that area along the valley bore no fruit.

But the orchards closer to Ruidoso, planted in the valley bottom just east of Ruidoso Downs, perhaps came in with the best crop among nearby orchards.

Bill Pippin, a hobby apple grower in Ruidoso Downs, has several apple trees on his property and he is now selling fruit from what has been an abundant harvest. Pippin's handful of trees came through the frost unscathed because, he noted, the blossoms peaked after the last killing frost.

Other growers between Ruidoso and San Patricio also experienced such good fortune. All who were contacted reported at least a portion of the normal crop because the fruit buds were not caught at the height of bloom by the frost.

Pippin's neighbor Eddie Estavillo grows over 100 trees on his property, which lies just to the east of Pippin. Estavillo's harvest was not as good as Pippin's, but he said he is pleased that he has salvaged a crop this year.

"Last year the frost got everything," said Estavillo, who is a retired pressman and has been operating the valley orchards for a couple of years.

Estavillo finished the Golden Delicious harvest last week, and he expects to bucket all the Red Delicious by this weekend. His crop of Golden Delicious fared better than the Reds this year, he estimated, but he said an unusually heavy investigation of worms over the summer damaged a lot of the Golden.

Estavillo was not worried about the present cold spell ruining the apples still hanging. In fact, he looked forward to some nippy temperatures. A mild frost near the end of the growing season makes the apples mature quicker, he noted, and it adds a sweeter, juicier taste to the pulp.

Next door to Estavillo is the Tull Stansell Estate owned by June and Leonard McCutcheon. The McCutcheon orchards are scattered throughout nearly 30 acres along the Rio Ruidoso drainage and include Winesap, Golden Delicious, Red Delicious, Jonathan and Rome Beauty trees.

Laroy Leighton, foreman of the McCutcheon orchards, also estimated about one-third of a normal crop this year. He said the April frost got the majority of the apple blossoms, but like Estavillo, he compares this harvest favorably to last year's, when the fruit blossoms were devastated by a late, killing frost.

"It's going real good this year," Leighton said. "The cooking apples seem to be the best—the Rome Beauties and the Winesaps. The Golden's don't seem as good."

Leighton said the Red Delicious trees were at the most vulnerable stage of the bloom when the last frost hit, and consequently, those trees bore no fruit. Also ruined by the frost were about seven acres of Bing Cherry trees that are planted on a plateau above the Tull Stansell apple trees.

The unpredictability of the weather is something all the growers have to tolerate. Leighton thinks growers in the upper Rio Ruidoso valley were fortunate this year because trees come to blossom later than fruit trees lower in the valley, and were not damaged as severely by frost this year.

But the late frost was inconsistent, which Leighton noted is typical of a cold snap. In the largest orchard on the estate, he pointed out several trees that bore no fruit this year. Some neighboring trees, however, were overloaded with ripe fruit.

The spring frost was not the only cause of weather damage. Some of the apples are pocked by small blemishes, which Leighton said are the scars received from hail stones. But he said hail storms were infrequent and isolated last summer, resulting in only minor damage.

Like his neighbor, Leighton looked forward to some light frosts before all the fruit is brought in.

"We've had two nights where there's been ice. It makes all the apples better; they go ahead and top out then."

Leighton is not concerned that nightly frosts will kill the crop before it is all picked because, he said, a freeze has to last throughout the day before mature apples are killed. But Leighton said growers are having difficulty keeping pickers this year, which has slowed down the harvest, and may mean some of the apples will be left to rot if they are not picked soon.

He said the Tull Stansell Estate normally reaps up to 2,500 bushels from 1,600 apple trees. So far, he estimated, about 300 bushel boxes are stacked in the warehouse, and he figures the total will amount to 800 bushels by harvest's end.

The last bumper crop on the estate was two years ago, and, after last season's loss, Leighton said he was happy to bring in even a light crop this year.

Farther down the valley, the orchards in Glencoe are producing about the same percentage of the crop as those near Ruidoso Downs.

The Glencoe and Montes fruit stands, a mile apart on Highway 70, are both supplied by the Johnny and Cleo Montes orchards in Glencoe.

Cleo Montes said their orchards were lightly damaged by the spring frost, but many of the fruit buds blossomed late and thus were spared. She estimates the crop will be less than half of normal.

"It wasn't that bad with the late frost," she explained. "We've got a clean, medium size apple this year."

Cleo said her orchards received no hail damage this year, but she and her husband had a hard time controlling the worms. "We sprayed five or six times, but we can't get rid of all the worms," she said.

Cleo has been an apple grower for 30 years and feels she understands the business as well as anybody. Last year was a decent crop in her Glencoe orchards—which comprise about 1,000 trees—and the current crop she described as acceptable.

The next stop along the Rio Ruidoso valley apple growers is where the most severe frost damage occurred last spring. Some of the fruit stands near San Patricio are boarded up for the season, and at least one stand that remains open has trucked in the apples it has for sale.

Paul Chavez, owner of Pablos' Fruit Stand on Highway 70, said the blossoms on his 100 apple trees were wiped out by the late cold snap.

To supply his stand this autumn, he has transported Red Delicious, Golden, Rome Beauties and Winesaps from Mimbres, a town east of Silver City.

He said neighboring apple growers suffered the same losses he did and had to close their stands this year, but his remains open and he is doing a brisk business selling chili ristras and the imported apples.

Down the valley near Hondo, however, growers had some fruit to harvest, albeit the crop was a light one.

Bert and Myrtis Pfingston, owners of the White Mountain orchards near Hondo, completed the harvest two weeks ago, which Myrtis said is an indication of how light the crop was.

"The crop was very light, but that was understandable," said Myrtis. "Ordinarily, we go until a killing frost. There was some fruit, but not the volume that we would ordinarily expect to have."

The Pfingstons, owners of some 8,000 apple trees, have orchards planted at varying elevations in the Bonito Valley. Some of the plots were evidently in warm pockets of air during the spring cold snap, and came through the growing season bearing a decent crop. Other orchards, Myrtis noted, were damaged by the frost.

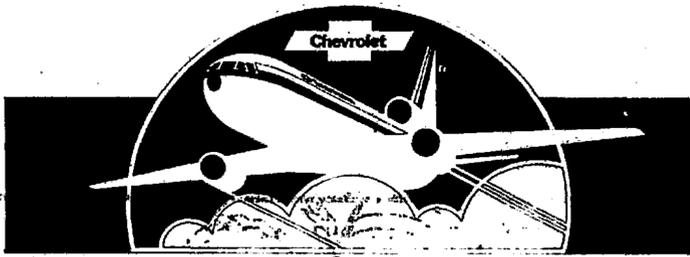

Red Delicious were hit the hardest, she said, while Golden Delicious, a late bloomer, fared better.

"It was a small crop proportion," she said. "But it wasn't a complete, complete failure."

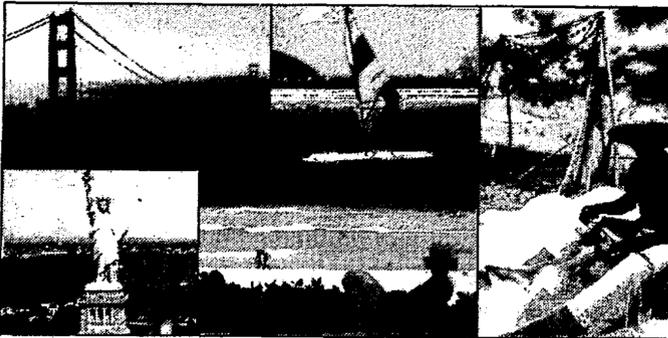

REAPING THE BOUNTY from a Rome Beauty apple tree is Sandra Salas, who is picking at the Tull Stansell Estate this fall. Sandra and another picker filled 15 bushel boxes in one morning last week—a small dent in the estimated 800 bushels of apples the estate will produce this year.

Leased Floodlighting A Bright Idea For Business Security

Wise businessmen know that wide area outdoor lighting is one of the best business security ideas around. Well-lighted areas like store entrances, stairways, or storage areas can mean fewer business losses from vandalism or after-dark accidents. These metal halide units are automatic . . . turn themselves on at dusk and off at dawn. And outdoor leased metal halide units give you more light for your money than incandescent bulbs. Call Texas-New Mexico Power Company today and ask to have outdoor leased floodlighting installed on your property.

SORTING THE ROMES in the Tull Stansell Estate warehouse is foreman Laroy Leighton. The wooden bushel boxes holding the apples date back to when Ruidoso Downs was called Green Tree. The boxes, Laroy points out, can still carry a hefty load.

FRESH FROM THE ORCHARD apples are in abundance at the Montes fruit stand in Glencoe. Cleo Montes displays a bag of plump red apples.

The Silver Lining

BY DANIEL AGNEW STORM

"The Big Parade"
On this bright October day with a few white clouds in the deep blue sky, and the oak brush out south beginning to turn a little, I began thinking of what a nice send-off the Aspen Festival Parade gave to the season of Autumn.

And then my thoughts turned back to one of the great motion pictures of years past: "The Big Parade" telling of World War I, and starring Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe.

I remembered back to other parades in some of which I was privileged to walk or ride.

The Storm Ranch Dog, Shady Logan, used to look forward to the Aspen parade. As we approached Ruidoso and he heard the sounds of celebration, he would be all eyes and ears, and he would be straining on the leash until he could be walking in the parade. He loved the bands, the horses, and mostly the children.

Hardly could you imagine a more delightful sight than the tiny children at the curb side, their angelic little faces aglow with the sight of their first-parade.

I came out a winner in many ways at the parade. Mr. Don Bartlett, before the start of the parade presented me with a pair of blue and white sleeve garters of the style of the late eighteen hundreds. They used to be a part of a man's go-to-meeting clothing, along with the ruby or diamond stickpin in the tie, and the gold watch chain going from one vest pocket to the other. Also I received a free meal ticket to the Big T family restaurant from Mr. Don Brooks.

You could see that many hours and days of devoted and pleasant work by thousands of folks went into the making of this great parade, which is in a class by itself as an Autumn celebration.

A Note From Jack Frost
Dear Friends of Lincoln County:
Well, once again you folks have done yourselves proud with your parade — putting on surely one of the best I have seen. I would not be human if I did not swell with pride at this celebration in my honor. My birthday is October first, and this parade was surely a nice birthday present.

I have not been down your way since last Spring, and as you will notice, by the leaves — and the temperature, I drifted down this way just after my birthday. It is great to be back here, and I hope to bring you the best and most colorful Fall and Indian Summer in a long time.

I will be seeing you up and down the valleys, and until then I beg to remain, yours ever the same,

Wayne Kasuboski Celebrates Birthday
The Storm Ranch was honored on October Ten, by Wayne Kasuboski of Roswell, on the occasion of his birthday — along with his wife, Judy and her father and mother, Willard and Althea Brownson, and their friend of many years Hazel Stolberg.

Other members of the Kasuboski family were daughter Anisa, and sons, Dannie, Joey, and Bobbie.
On his first visit was the Kasuboski new family dog, the little Sheltie, Rusty.
We wish Wayne many happy returns of the day and all God's blessings.

ART, DINING AND ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE

Sunland Park kicks off fall season October 15

Emphasizing speed for the fans and safety for the participants, Sunland Park is anxiously awaiting this week's opening of the longest horse racing season in New Mexico.

The 85-day meet begins on Friday (October 15) and extends through May 1. The 30-day fall season runs through December 29 with a 12:30 p.m. post time each day at the west El Paso track.

The fans will immediately notice the major improvement designed for them. The Amote 300 mutuel machines have been installed to drastically increase the speed in the mutuel lines.

Each of the 70 machines will sell and cash tickets of any whole dollar amounts, eliminating separate lines for selling and cashing tickets.

"Another feature of the new machines is they all will cash previous days' tickets. Before it tied up one window and there was a lot of paperwork," explained Sunland Park mutuel manager Jerry Knott.

Patrons will also be able to go to any window and make a wager on any race that day. They can bet the entire program before the first race is run.

The trifecta, where patrons try to select the first three finishers in order in one race, will also make its Sunland Park debut.

The Trifecta, which will be held on the eighth race, was successful in its first year this summer at Ruidoso Downs, Sunland Park's sister track.

Sunland Park will also provide a $1 trifecta box where a patron can bet $6 and get all possible trifecta combinations with three horses. In this case, the winning payoff will be half the figure posted on the tote board.

There will also be a $1 wheel, where customers may select the horse they feel will win and hook it with every other combination of second and third-place horses.

There will be win, place and show betting on every race. A daily double will be again used for the first and second races. The longtime Southwest fixture, the big Q, will be held on the last two races each day.

A Fontana safety rail has been installed as the inner rail around the main mile running surface. The system has also been placed as the inner rail on the six-furlong chute and the quarter horse racing chute.

"Basically, it's the safest railing ever made with a gooseneck pole underneath. It's unlike other rails since it's safety on the top and safety on the bottom. All avenues as far as safety is concerned are covered," said Richa Fontana, president of the Fontana Products of Alta Loma, California, which developed the product.

"Even the horses are protected. If a horse hits the bottom pole, it will give, but we'd rather replace a $30 pole underneath than a $30,000 horse."

The rail, costing more than $100,000, was installed over a three-week period this summer.

The same safety rail made its debut this summer at Ruidoso Downs.

While the fans and rider will see changes, so will the horsemen, who will have increased purses and several chances at major purses.

New racing secretary Dean McKinney hopes the increased purses will attract better horses for the Sunland Park patrons.

The track's major thoroughbred event, the Riley Allison Futurity, is again set for closing day on May 1. The purse is estimated at $360,000 for one of the nation's most prestigious races for two-year-olds.

The Sun Country Futurity for two-year-old quarter horses, will have an estimated purse of $325,000. It will be run on April 24.

Other major spring races include the West Texas Futurity, with a $250,000 estimated purse for two-year-old quarter horses on November 21; the Sunland Park Fall Quarter Horse Futurity, with a $100,000 estimated purse for two-year-olds on December 19; the Sunland Park Fall Thoroughbred Futurity, with a $50,000 estimated purse for two-year-olds on December 12 and the Sunland Park Fall Quarter Horse Derby, with a $25,000 estimated purse for three-year-olds on December 5.

Don Smith, in his first year as Sunland Park general manager, is hoping the daily average can better last year's record total of $349,182. That figure was a sparkling gain of 21.48 percent over the previous season and was the highest average since Sunland Park opened in 1959.

Friday's highlights will be trial races for the Shue Fly Stakes.

The 10 fastest qualifiers from Friday's trials at 400 yards will advance to the Shue Fly Stakes on October 23. The purse for the season's first major event for two-year-old New Mexico-bred runners will be $5,000-added.

Saturday's main event will be the Fast Gas Handicap at five and one half furlongs. Three-year-olds will seek a $5,000-added purse.

Rich Fontana can't say enough nice things about Sunland Park race track and its management.

"They saw a new product that's so much safer. I'm very pleased. A lot of tracks fight the thing and don't want to spend the money, but Sunland Park was great," he said.

Fontana is president of Fontana Products, which develops and installs the Fontana Safety Railing System for horse race facilities.

Cost of the new Sunland rail is $125,000.

When patrons attend Sunland Park's opening day of the 85-day horse race meet on Oct. 15, one of the major improvements they will notice is the new inner rail extending all around the mile running surface. In addition, the six-furlong and the 550-yard quarter horse chutes also have the new inner railing.

"Basically, it's the safest railing ever made with a gooseneck pole underneath. It's unlike other rails since it's safety on the top and safety on the bottom. All avenues as far as safety is concerned are covered. Even the horses are protected," he explained. "If the horse hits the bottom pole, it will give, but we'd rather replace a $30 pole underneath than a $30,000 horse."

Sunland officials listed

Don (Curly) Smith heads a veteran contingent of officials who will preside at this season's Sunland Park horse race meet.

The 85-day season begins Friday and continues through May 1. Post time will be 12:30 p.m. for each Friday, Saturday and Sunday race program of the 30-day fall season which ends December 19.

Smith, who recently was named Sunland Park general manager, served in an official capacity for 22 years at Los Alamitos near Los Angeles. He was vice president, racing secretary and director of racing at the West Coast plant. Other administrative officials include Rick Henson, director of horse sales; Jerry Knott, mutuel manager; Bill Thomas, administrative assistant and public relations; Ryk Griffin, comptroller; and Dick Alwan, news director.

Racing officials include Bobbie Harmon and Bruce Brinkley, stewards; Dean McKinney, racing secretary; Gordon Graham, assistant racing secretary; Dean Turpitt, starter; Dean Brewer, track superintendent; William Pitt, track veterinarian; John Payne, stall superintendent; Dickye Turner, horseman bookkeeper; David Keiter, paddock judge and morning line; Randall Summers, identifier; Jerold Casey, clerk of scales, entry clerk and jockey room custodian; Harry Hedeman, entry clerk; Jack Chambers, head clocker and Geneva Bryant, Lorana Rushing and Flita Parker, clerks.

Other officials include Harry Henson, announcer; Tom White, security; Isabel Valdiva, maintenance superintendent; Dorothy Dillard, Ruidoso nominations secretary; Jan Buehrer, Sunland Park nominations secretary and insurance; Shelby Ownbey, assistant mutuel manager; Susan Cade, executive secretary; Bobbie Jo King, assistant to the comptroller; Bill Pitt, track photographer; Gaston de Bayona, public relations in Mexico; Manny Martinez and Shirley Wallace, host and hostess; Julie Cano, concessions manager; Mark Gordon, assistant news director; Ann Adams, advertising; Dr. Ward Cheslet and John Johnstone, track physicians; and Jeanne Cervantes, track nurse.

The New Mexico State Racing Commission has assigned Jeff Thrasher as state steward for the Sunland Park meeting.

Race purses increased

Sunland Park has announced a purse increase in its races even before the meet has started.

The west El Paso track, which opens its 85-day horse race meet Friday, has hiked each race by $200. The only exception will be the minimum purse which will remain, at least temporarily, at $1,800.

Mr. Smith decided to gamble on it a little and go with a $200 increase.

Sunland Park is hoping to better last season which was the best in the track's history. The daily average was a record $349,182 and closing-day last May produced a record one-day mutuel handle of $603,355.

The campaign opens Friday with four trial races for the Shue Fly Stakes. Saturday and Sunday programs are also set for opening-weekend.

Post time each day will be 12:30 p.m.

Shue Fly Stakes trials Friday

A total of 31 two-year-old New Mexico-breds have been entered in trial races for the Shue Fly Stakes as Sunland Park opens its 85-day horse race season Friday.

The trials, each at 400 yards with a purse of $1,800, will be run as the third through sixth races on the opening day card of 12 races.

The 10 fastest runners will earn spots in the Shue Fly Stakes over 400 yards on October 23. The purse will be $5,000-added.

"Mr. Smith (new general manager Don Smith) and I talked about it and maybe we were on the conservative side with a $200 raise," explained racing secretary Dean McKinney. "We really weren't sure what the devaluation of the peso would do to our business. Mr. Smith decided to gamble on it a little and go with a $200 increase."

Other officials include Harry Henson, announcer; Tom White, security; Isabel Valdiva, maintenance superintendent; Dorothy Dillard, Ruidoso nominations secretary; Jan Buehrer, Sunland Park nominations secretary and insurance; Shelby Ownbey, assistant mutuel manager; Susan Cade, executive secretary; Bobbie Jo King, assistant to the comptroller; Bill Pitt, track photographer; Gaston de Bayona, public relations in Mexico; Manny Martinez and Shirley Wallace, host and hostess; Julie Cano, concessions manager; Mark Gordon, assistant news director; Ann Adams, advertising; Dr. Ward Cheslet and John Johnstone, track physicians; and Jeanne Cervantes, track nurse.

She sped to a half-length win in the $96,947 New Mexico Quarter Horse Futurity on September 21 at the New Mexico State Fair meeting in Albuquerque.

She has also qualified for several major futurities this season, including the West Texas Futurity at Sunland Park, the Rainbow Futurity and the All-American Futurity First Consolation on Labor Day at Ruidoso Downs.

Overall this season, Bartendress has collected six victories with three seconds and one third from 13 starts for trainer Clifton

Since June of this year, Cablevision has been broadcasting area events on cable channel 11, including Ruidoso Village Council meetings every Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. These rebroadcasts are made as a public service in order to provide all members of our community with access to local events that they might not have an opportunity to attend.

In order to continue providing our subscribers with the best in local programming, we urge our subscribers to fill out the questionnaire and return it to Cablevision's office at 1108 Sudderth Dr. or mail to P.O. Box 280, Ruidoso. The information provided by these questionnaires will help Cablevision determine the type of local programming its subscribers would most like to see.

I would like to see weekly coverage of:

Lodgers posted on fire prevention

by BILLY ALLSTETTER
Staff Writer

The Ruidoso Lodgers Association (RLA) Tuesday presented 1,000 copies of fireplace safety regulations to fire prevention officer Oliver Cuddy and saw a film on fire prevention presented by Steve Makowski, fire management officer of the Smokey Bear Ranger District.

The regulations, printed compliments of the Ruidoso Lodgers Association, were given to Cuddy so that he can distribute them around town. Association members also took copies to post near fireplaces in their own establishments.

The safety regulations listed two new rules that were not included last year, and were printed in both Spanish and English for the first time. The new regulations advise disposing of only cold ashes and warn of a $300 fine plus damages for fire caused by negligence.

Makowski prefaced his film, "Safeguarding Forest Homes," by saying, "Fire prevention is basically awareness."

The film began by outlining the elements of a fire and factors affecting their size and intensity. The three elements necessary for any fire are oxygen, fuel and heat with an ignition agent to start it. Removing any of these elements will make it impossible for a fire to occur.

Exposure, elevation, slope and weather all affect the likelihood of a fire starting and its size. All these factors can affect the type of vegetation and thus the amount of fuel available to burn.

South and westerly exposures are much drier as a rule. More fires start on these slopes than north and easterly ones.

Higher elevations generally have lower temperatures, higher humidities and more precipitation, creating a lower fire hazard.

The greater the slope of a hill the quicker a fire will spread and the harder it is for firefighters to get to the fire.

The film pointed out that these factors should be taken into account when purchasing a home or building lot.

Weather—precipitation, humidity and temperature—all affect fire danger.

The first and best defense for the homeowner against fires is the elimination of fuel. One should remove dead organic fuels such as dead branches, leaves and duff from around the house and the bases of nearby trees. Thinning of trees to at least 15 feet between crowns can prevent intense crown fires. Pruning trees to get rid of dead branches is also recommended.

In addition to a fire extinguisher, one should have a number of firefighting tools around the house. These include a ladder, buckets, a pointed shovel, a rake, a hoe and a saw. Time is critical for fighting fires and anything done to slow their advance while waiting for the fire department can be helpful.

One should also inspect the interior of the house for fire hazards such as overloaded circuits, frayed cords and oily rags.

Ashes from fires in the fireplace should be disposed of carefully and only when cold. Ashes should not be thrown into dumpsters where there is an abundance of paper and other materials that could ignite.

After the film was over, Cuddy reviewed some of the local fire ordinances. He said that a requirement for spark arrestors on all chimneys took effect October 1. However, he said that some time will be allowed to elapse before enforcing the ordinance in order that homeowners will have time to install arrestors.

RLA president Clark Carpenter told the group the RLA board of directors approached Sierra Blanca Ski Resort manager Roy Parker with a proposal for midweek discount lift tickets to be managed by the lodgers.

The board's hope, said Carpenter, is to use the discount tickets to put together a midweek ski package that would lure more tourists to the area. Parker made no commitment and said he would get back in touch with the board late this week, Carpenter reported.

Carpenter said RLA has been trying for four years to arrange discount lift tickets and put together a ski package with no luck. Some individual motels have their own packages but there is no village-wide agreement.

Carpenter also said the board asked the village for the lodger's tax roll but had not received a copy after a couple of requests. The board is concerned that many lodgers are not paying the tax, he noted.

He said there is only $100,000 a year spent for advertising Ruidoso and he thinks more should be spent. Since the money for advertising is taken from the lodger's tax revenues, Carpenter said, the board hopes to collect taxes from those who should be paying and thus have more money for advertising Ruidoso.

In other business, RLA:

- Notified members of a referral service in which members could call central phone numbers if they have either empty rooms or customers they cannot accommodate. Carpenter said for cabins to call Bill Rawlins at Ruidoso Lodge; for motel rooms, Glen Ferguson at Nob Hill Lodge; and for condominiums, Don Winter at Alpine Lodge.
- Formed a committee to look into having a local linen service do lodgers laundry instead of sending it to Roswell or Alamogordo.
- Thanked Lois O'Brien and Betty Shaw for organizing the RLA social at the Flying "J" Ranch. O'Brien said she would organize the Christmas social.
- Thanked Glen Ferguson for organizing the RLA Poker Run at the motorcycle festival.

Fish kill damages announced

The state Department of Game and Fish has released details on the collection of damages for a fish kill caused when gasoline spilled into the Rio Ruidoso February 4 at Sudderth and Mechem Drives.

The department collected $6,245 from the insurance carrier of InterCon Construction Company, whose workers were removing gasoline tanks at the corner where a service station previously was located.

A news release on the collection says it took Game and Fish eight months to collect the damages because legal proceedings first were initiated against the Southland Corporation, the owner of a 7-11 store that was being built on the site at the time of the spill.

The damages include $5,000 to pay for replacement of an estimated 2,500 fish that were killed in a one-mile stretch of the river, and $1,245 for Game and Fish expenses.

The department said most of the fish killed were brown trout as rainbow are not stocked in the Rio Ruidoso during the winter.

Yours and Ours

Inside The Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE — We came to see the Fantus Report.

We did not get it. Instead, a couple of hundred people in the auditorium of the State Land Office building were told that we could buy a copy.

Cost: $5 each. That was after the state of New Mexico had paid this organization $40,000 to prepare the report.

We'll just have to borrow one if we want to see every word in it.

The report on the contents of that Fantus production, as given by David Kozlow of that company, did once again shine light on the vexing question of a Right to Work law for New Mexico.

Kozlow said that about half the companies which plan to relocate to another state use the presence or absence of such a law as a prime criterion.

That means states without such legislation do not ever get considered.

Many here see the resurrection of that question as a possible aid to the gubernatorial hopes of John Irick.

The big man from Albuquerque is for such a law, while Toney Anaya is against it.

Every time the issue raises its head, however, it does more to make labor people in the state inclined to present a solid front. Every time it gets mentioned, it makes it more likely that they will turn out en masse for Toney.

So once again we have that spectacle we have seen in the last few years: those on one side, either pro or con Right to Work, totally convinced of the rightness of their position, and totally unable to convince anyone of opposite view to change.

Head-butting, in other words — with the winner likely to be the one who can produce the most heads.

And in case you don't believe Big Labor takes this question seriously, two of the top-rankers in the AFL-CIO were in Santa Fe to hear the report from Fantus.

One of them is Ray Dennison, labor's top lobbyist on Capitol Hill, who knows New Mexico from past work here during Joe Montoya campaigns.

They will also stay around long enough to help check out the state of their unions' get-out-the-vote drive.

There could be some reluctance on the part of legislators to use severance tax money to build railroad lines into the state's developing coalfields now that the Navajo Nation has filed its massive lawsuit.

The tribe is asking the courts to declare that two million acres, including most of the area where 13 billion tons of coal reserves are thought to lie in northwestern New Mexico, was wrongly taken from them.

Among defendants in the suit, along with the federal government and the state, are some of the largest coal producers and the Santa Fe Railroad.

Action on the suit, which will probably drag on for years, could be seen by some as clouding title to anything in the area, which goes far enough to the east from the present reservation to include the entire town of Cuba.

Indians not only want all surface and subsurface rights in the land, but they also claim damages for the trespass there and the profits taken out since 1911.

Timing of the suit, just as Tribal Chairman Peter McDonald faces stiff opposition in his race against Peterson Zah, could hardly help being perceived as political. Total of all those who ran in the primary against McDonald turned out to be more votes than McDonald got, leading some anti-McDonald people to hope he might be overturned as he seeks his fourth term.

That's less likely since Raymond Nakai, one primary opponent, threw support to McDonald.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

After reading Thursday's article concerning the proposed Parks and Recreation Department for Ruidoso I was left somewhat angry but amused. The council's decision to purchase and operate the water slide would be commendable only if past operation of the pool itself by the village had proved profitable. (According to past News articles it hasn't). I understand that the existing facilities need a considerable amount of repair — which only adds to the questionable decision to use these funds to buy the slide. Are we also really to believe that the village would use future revenues for the parks and recreation programs? C'mon!

The council should be happy in the fact that Dave Anderson is so enthusiastic about such a program. We're always hearing about voter apathy and lack of interest by the constituency. Now, here's a case where concerned citizens are showing up to listen in on a public meeting to support a cause they are concerned with. The council reportedly was embarrassed and probably rightly so. Why, may I ask, was the council displeased with Anderson's handling of the issue? I regard his enthusiasm and spirit as rare virtues — that if carried over to other aspects of our local government might dissolve some of the bureaucratic red tape most Americans are nauseated with.

Take a moment to stop and think. What would a parks and recreation department represent? In my own definition it would be a way to encourage vital human qualities such as: physical fitness, cooperation, spirit, sportsmanship and camaraderie. Let's have something for our young people who lack the income to belong to local country clubs, or have to be content with limited facilities and resources to have a good time and a break from our work. We do represent a large constituency in this town. Employers, you know it's difficult to run a business in this town. I contend that a large part of the reason that there is such a high turnover rate with employees, is that there are no such established activities to encourage us to stay here. Which brings me to another issue concerning higher education.

Sincerely,
Michael Torrez

Dear editor:

As an interested citizen and registered voter, I attended the past two City Council meetings. My specific interest in these meetings was the hope of finally getting a Parks and Recreation Department organized and a director hired.

I am deeply disappointed in the city councilmen and the Parks and Recreation Committee members who are obviously not interested enough in this project to push and encourage it and give the citizens of Ruidoso what they want and need. Many of us will remember this at election time. At the October 5th meeting a "round table" discussion was held and it was an accurate analogy. The councilmen and P&R members talked in circles, wasting time on petty issues and avoiding the main purpose of the meeting, which was getting a director hired or the approval of a motion to do so.

The first point of lengthy discussion was whether or not Dave Anderson was supposed to be on the P&R committee. The councilmen and other P&R members were trying to make Anderson appear to be an interloper on their territory. Mayor White failed to point out it was he who appointed Anderson to the committee. Why wasn't this mistake brought up before now? No mention was made of the fact that Anderson has done more work towards creating a P&R Department than the four other committee members put together.

The second point of lengthy discussion was "why are all these people here?" referring to the 20 (twenty) or so interested and concerned citizens who showed up for the meeting. The council let us know we were unwelcome intruders and did not acknowledge raised hands of persons with questions and comments. Should we be made to feel like intruders at a meeting that is by law a public meeting?

These men from City Hall are belittling the efforts of the men and women who have worked hard the past months to get this department going.

Can we expect some support and cooperation from these men in the future or will we just have to change the entire city council at the next election?

Carla Daves

Dear editor:

I'm writing to correct what I feel is an injustice done to Frank Sawyer regarding his "challenge" to a member of the Park and Recreation Commission, namely Dave Anderson, in the October 5 meeting. His "challenge" to Dave was to put together a prospectus for construction costs on multi-purpose field and facilities for use by the community and Frank's "lessons" were to be to go with us to Santa Fe and "teach" us how to go about getting money for this purpose. He "wagered" as that we would leave Santa Fe with the money or at least have gotten the ball rolling in the right direction. As I was the closest in proximity to both men when the "challenge" was said, I feel I heard it correctly; in fact I accepted the "challenge" along with Dave.

Frank's "challenge" and offer of "lessons" in politics was the most constructive, positive thing to happen in that meeting, and I think the record should be set straight in regards to it.

It's time we drop the petty as well as semantical differences pertaining to our Parks and Recreation Department, put our collective energies together, and turn it into a vibrant and positive force in our community.

Sincerely,
Dave Warren

Dear editor:

In an effort to clarify an apparent misconception by Mr. Lucky Mulqueen in his letter to the Editor, which appeared in the October 11 issue of The Ruidoso News, regarding, "By what authority can the Police Chief bar the public from a meeting of elected officials?" Mr. Mulqueen's answer is none!

However, the Undersigned believes Mr. Mulqueen is referring to the Undersigned, who acts as the Master of Arms during public meetings of the Governing Body, asking citizens who were not awaiting a scheduled Civil Air Patrol Meeting in the Council Room-Auditorium to leave and advising that a published meeting between the Village Council and the Parks and Recreation Committee would be held in the Council Chambers (a small conference room in the Municipal Administrative Center), as it was the Undersigned's understanding that the latter meeting was to be a work session between the two groups versus an open public forum. The Undersigned regrets Mr. Mulqueen's misconception, but a clarification is felt necessary to preclude any further misconceptions or misinterpretations of the Undersigned's role in the community.

Sincerely,
Richard S. Swenor
Chief of Police

Dear editor:

We, the members of the Ruidoso Lodger's Association, would like to take this time to thank the Ruidoso Business Association for sponsoring the Ruidoso Motorcycle Festival. Without the motorcycles in town, it certainly would have been a very dull week in Ruidoso. Everyone at the tent and convention center really seemed to be enjoying themselves. Many of the comments from the cyclists were "we'll be back next year!"

Again, RBA members, thanks for all of your time, planning and hard work on making this a very successful week.

Thanks also goes out to the lodgers who assisted in the R L A Poker Run.

Aspen Festival '82 was a tremendous accomplishment.

In the relatively short time from the demise of the Aspencade Motorcycle Convention to this year's turning of the aspen leaves, the Chamber of Commerce, the Ruidoso Business Association and the Inn of the Mountain Gods dreamed up, organized and promoted their first-time events.

The Ruidoso Motorcycle Festival obviously built on the Aspencade tradition. But the new event showed the potential of growing into something bigger than anything of the two-wheeler kind we have ever seen.

The mule events showed again there is no telling how far the Ruidoso Downs Mule Skippers can go with this unique and popular pastime. President Melvin Means merits special mention for his tireless efforts.

A new event which brought Ruidoso great exposure statewide was the Inn of the Mountain Gods Pro-Am Golf Tournament. The tourney received Associated Press and major newspaper and regional television coverage. The staff of the Inn is to be congratulated on a first-class job.

And of course, our hat is off to Ed Langhans and the entire Chamber for coordinating everything.

All in all, it was a super couple of weeks from the Arabian Horse Show to the parade to the golf to the golfers. This year's Aspen Festival has set the future autumn in Ruidoso. TP

Reporter's Round

by Billy Allstetter

Whew! Aspen Festival has blown in and out of town and now it will be quiet for a few weeks. But as I look to other newsworthy happenings in town my mind still swirls with images and impressions of the festival.

The motorcycle festival reminded me of the old saying that the only difference between men and boys is the cost of their toys. Although I don't think I can limit it to just men and boys—there were plenty of women proudly polishing their hard-earned motorcycles.

The success of the festival looked very much in doubt to me when it rained all day Thursday. The muddy streams running through the middle of the Hospitality Tent and the pinstrippers trying to protect that fine work from the erratic and ever shifting drips of water did not seem like the stuff of a successful festival.

Then when the sun burst out in full force Friday and the cycles began to roar into town it looked more like it should.

Those people trying to "bite the wiener" are images I will never forget. Almost like fish rising to the bait with mouths wide open, they strained to chomp down on the mustard-covered hotdogs hanging from a string as they passed under on the bikes. Usually they only ended up nipping their tongue or catching a wide swath of mustard across their faces. Or even worse, consider the fate of Janet Lund from Ames, Iowa, who had to eat the four inches of raw, mustardy dog she bit off to win the event.

The parade this past weekend was an unexpected pleasure. To tell the truth, I was not very enthusiastic when I was assigned to photograph it at School House Park. I couldn't imagine anything being of any real interest to this jaded immigrant from the big city. But as they say, everybody loves a parade, and I was swept up in the event enjoying the creativity and hard work of all the entries.

My favorite, though, had to be those mystery ladies who were part of the Best Little Whorehouse in Ruidoso float. It seemed to me that I really should interview that blonde beauty who wore the cowboy hat and Danskin—at my house, maybe, over a candlelight dinner. She must have a fascinating story to tell.

The mule races lived up to their billing as a fun time watching those stubborn and unpredictable animals. I had to laugh when the mules would break out of the gate and one or two would weave wildly back and forth through the lanes taking their own special course, or at the riderless mules wandering around the track after the race was over. Luckily no one got hurt badly, although Alan Askins went to the hospital Sunday for a few X-rays and was wandering around afterwards with a sore back and a scratched nose. He had to pick up the story of the tumble of his mule Abby from his friends because he couldn't remember it. The mule races were a highlight of the festival. The mule skippers were a sight to behold. The mule skippers were a sight to behold. The mule skippers were a sight to behold.

Sense & Nonsense

U.S. Sen. Pete Domenici

Kennecott Minerals Company and Mitsubishi Corporation of Japan recently announced plans to rebuild the copper smelter in Hurley at a cost of $100 million. This was good news for an area of the state that has been devastated by high unemployment in the copper industry. Not only will it provide about 500 temporary jobs in the area for construction, but will substantially improve the economic picture by creating permanent jobs when the new smelter is finally in place and operating. The old smelter has been closed since April.

But there is more to this story. It took a concerted effort by the copper management and labor officials, environmentalists, state and federal agencies, and the Congress to make this modernization of Chino Mines operations a reality.

It started back in December 1980, when Kennecott and Mitsubishi Corporation of Japan entered into agreement to revitalize the Chino Mines operation. One obstacle to the plan was the granting of a revision to the state implementation plan (SIP) called "multi-point rollback."

"Multi-point rollback is an improved procedure to measure sulphur emissions from copper smelters. Other industries, such as coal and oil, have a rather constant level of emissions which can be measured and controlled.

Copper smelters have peaks and valleys in sulphur emission levels depending on the state of production. At times, sulphur emissions are substantially below emissions standards and at certain periods they may peak slightly above emissions standards.

The only way out in the past would have been to reduce copper production to meet these standards. Now, with multi-point rollback a new system of averaging, the new smelter could run at full production at all times.

It became clear to everyone involved that a new smelter would be in the best interest of all.

Despite an adjustment of the standards with "multi-point rollback," the new smelter would be more successful than the old smelter in removing sulphur emissions. Instead of recovering just 60 percent of the emissions, the new smelter will remove more than 92 percent of the sulphur from the air.

In short, a unique situation occurred. Copper workers and industry representatives, environmentalists and state and federal officials all worked together to find the best solution to the problems. They worked, not just to clean up the air, but to upgrade the economic climate as well as to create permanent, stable jobs and a viable copper industry in the area.

More of these types of meetings are necessary in other parts of New Mexico and across the nation. To set a course for economic prosperity and a clean environment for our children, we must start now to find solutions to the critical problems we face. We all want clean air and clean water. We all want viable industries where we can find stable, permanent jobs to earn our livelihood.

The Chino Mines operation shows that these goals can be realized. By modernizing the facility with a total $280 million operation, rebuilding the copper smelter and installing a copper concentrator, they will have achieved three purposes:

— They will have increased production at Chino Mines by more than 60 percent when the concentrator and new smelter are completed.

— They will have increased employment in the area, from about 15,050 to more than 17,000 employees.

— And they will clean up the air around the smelter operation by recovering more than 92 percent of sulphur emissions.

Hopefully, this will be the start of better times for New Mexico's beleaguered copper industry.

LEGAL NOTICE

VILLAGE OF RUIDOSO, NEW MEXICO

NOTICE OF REOPENING OF ORDINANCE NO. 82-17

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN of the title and of a general summary of the subject matter contained in Ordinance No. 82-17, duly adopted and approved by the Village Council of the Village of Ruidoso on October 12, 1982. A complete copy of Ordinance No. 82-17 is available for public inspection during the normal and regular business hours of the Village Clerk in the office of the Village Clerk, Village Hall, Ruidoso, New Mexico.

THE TITLE OF ORDINANCE NO. 82-17 IS: AN ORDINANCE AUTHORIZING THE ISSUANCE OF THE VILLAGE OF RUIDOSO SUPPLEMENTAL GROSS RECEIPTS TAX REVENUE BONDS, SERIES DECEMBER 15, 1982, IN THE PRINCIPAL AMOUNT OF $6,000,000 (OF WHICH AMOUNT $10,000 IS TO BE ISSUED AT THIS TIME) FOR THE PURPOSE OF DEFRAYING THE COST OF CONSTRUCTING, EQUIPPING, ACQUIRING, ENLARGING, IMPROVING AND EXTENDING A MUNICIPAL WATER SUPPLY SYSTEM FOR THE VILLAGE, PROVIDING THAT SAID BONDS WILL BE PAYABLE AND COLLECTIBLE FROM THE SUPPLEMENTAL GROSS RECEIPTS TAX REMITTED TO THE VILLAGE AS AUTHORIZED BY SECTION 19-15 N.M.S.A., 1978 COMPILATION; PROVIDING FOR THE DISPOSITION OF THE RECEIPTS DERIVED FROM SAID TAX PROCEEDS; REPEALING ALL ORDINANCES IN CONFLICT HEREWITH; AND DECLARING AN EMERGENCY.

The following is a general summary of the subject matter contained in Ordinance No. 82-17: Preliminary to the issuance of the distribution of a Supplemental Municipal Gross Receipts Tax to the Village (herein "Pledged Revenues") pursuant to Section 19-15 N.M.S.A., 1978 there is no outstanding pledge of Pledged Revenues, the renewal or the water supply project (hereafter defined) and the acceptance of the proposal of Stern Brothers & Co. of Albuquerque, New Mexico for the purchase of all of the "Village of Ruidoso Supplemental Gross Receipts Tax Revenue Bonds, Series December 15, 1982" (herein "Bonds").

Sections 1 through 4 define terms used in the ordinance, ratify previous action by officers of the Village; authorize constructing, equipping, acquiring, enlarging, improving and extending a municipal water supply system for the Village (herein "Project") and the issuance therefor of the Bonds, in the principal amount of $10,000, payable from the Pledged Revenues.

Section 5 provides details of the Bonds including but not limited to provision for dating the Bonds, specifying $5,000 denomination, providing for a rate of interest equal to 12% per annum until the maturity of the Bonds payable July 1, 1983 and semiannually on January 1 and July 1 of each year, the place and manner of payment of principal and interest of the Bonds, provide that the Bonds shall mature on January 1, 1986, and provide for continuation of interest upon nonpayment of principal at maturity.

Sections 6 through 10 provide, for the prior redemption of some of the Bonds under specified terms and conditions; that the Bonds are special obligations payable solely from the Pledge Revenues; and that the Bonds are for execution of the Bonds, and further provide for the form of the Bonds and registration thereof.

Sections 11 through 15 provide for the execution and delivery of the Bonds; for the disposition of proceeds of the Bonds into several funds and obligations in connection therewith; for the creation and administration of the Income Fund and Bond Fund for the Bonds; for the administration of all funds and special accounts created by the ordinance; the places and times of the deposits into the funds and accounts; character of the funds and the investment of the funds and accounts; that the proceeds of the Bonds will not be invested so as to result in such Bonds becoming arbitrage bonds and in the loss of tax exemption of interest on such Bonds; and that the Bonds constitute an irrevocable and first lien (but not an exclusively first lien) on the Pledged Revenues.

Sections 16 through 18 set out the terms and conditions under which parties lien obligations may be issued, prohibit the issuance of obligations having a superior lien, permit the issuance of obligations having a subordinate lien, set forth the terms and obligations relative to refunding obligations and provide for equality among the Bonds in the application of the Pledged Revenues.

Section 19 provides protective covenants whereby the city covenants with each bondholder for the protection of such holders covering such matters as prompt payment of bond principal and interest, records, audits, extending interest payments, performing duties, other liens or Pledged Revenues, duty with respect to amount of Pledged Revenues, prohibition against impairment of the bond contract and the equality of the Village's existence.

Sections 20 through 31 set forth defeasance provisions; delegate certain powers to Village officers; describe events of default; provide for remedies and duties upon default; provide for a method of enforcing the ordinance; provide separately and repealer clauses; provide for the amendment of the ordinance; provide an irrevocability clause and emergency clause and provide for effective date and a summary for publication.

There also is contained a statement by the Mayor that this ordinance is an emergency.

COMPLETE COPIES OF THIS ORDINANCE ARE ON FILE IN THE OFFICE OF THE VILLAGE CLERK AT THE VILLAGE HALL, RUIDOSO, NEW MEXICO, AND ARE AVAILABLE FOR INSPECTION DURING REGULAR OFFICE HOURS. THIS NOTICE ALSO CONSTITUTES COMPLIANCE WITH CHAPTER 350, LAWS OF NEW MEXICO, 1978.

WITNESS My hand and the seal of the Village of Ruidoso, New Mexico, this October 12, 1982.

JUST $8,500 FOR A LOT ON PAVING — Yes, and if you recognize a good deal when you see it you won't delay another day! All city utilities are a bonus.

ALTO VILLAGE LOTS — $8,000 to $18,000. For speculative buying or secluded location for that place you've always wanted to build. We have an excellent selection for you.

BUILDER SAYS SELL — Super, well built, no hidden cheap materials covered up with "cosmetics" to fool you on this 2 bedroom, 2 bath house. In town but secluded area offers you more for your money than most comparably priced properties on the market today.

RENTAL PROPERTY? — Ruidoso's continued record-breaking growth makes being a landlord one of today's soundest investments. We have several listings with exceptional rental potential. Maybe you could use a tax shelter.

COMMERCIAL LOTS ON SUDDERTH — Recent traffic count verifies this location is one of Ruidoso's most desirable. Highly visible from all directions, priced below appraisal. Let your imagination and creativity fly, have your own business on this choice commercial site!

NO CREAM PUFF BUT PRICED RIGHT! — Close to downtown, overlooks Ruidoso River but just outside city limits. $13,000.00 total price.

UNDER $10,000.00 — Another place that needs some (would you believe lots?) of work but it will keep you out of the rain. At this price you can sure afford to do your own fixing-up.

NEW AND IN ALTO VILLAGE — Different styles, floor plans and locations, but each of these homes enjoys memberships in Alto Village. We have several to choose from, one will surely meet your needs.
