THE PROUD NEW OWNER of the Sierra Swim and Racquet Club, James L. Wimberly, surveys the 13 acres of property he purchased Friday afternoon for $1.3 million.

Racquet Club sold Friday

Sierra Swim and Racquet Club is under new ownership as of Friday afternoon, when James L. Wimberly Enterprises purchased it for $1,300,000 in a foreclosure sale.

Ruidoso State Bank, which held a mortgage of $832,612.11 on the property, was the only other bidder in the sale, offering $1,044,069.84.

Wimberly, who owned the property before selling it to Sierra West Limited in December 1979, held a mortgage on the racquet club for about one-half million dollars. He said he did not really expect to buy the property Friday, but bid on it "as an investment and to protect my existing investment."

Wimberly purchased three tracts of land in the sale, totaling about 13 acres. The racquet club facility sits on a 6.44 acre tract, with the remaining property contiguous to it. Tentative plans call for the present facility to be reopened within 60 to 90 days, Wimberly said, with the club to remain a private swim and racquet club.

Included in the facility are a whirlpool and sauna, therapy pool, olympic size swimming pool, eight tennis courts, a complete Universal gym, indoor handball and racquetball courts and a restaurant and bar, Wimberly reported.

He said he plans to bring in outside professional people to operate the club and that "members and potential members can expect many added facilities that the new operators feel are a necessity for this type operation." He said memberships will be available to the public, with guests welcome for a daily fee.

In addition to these plans, Wimberly said "the public can expect extensive development of adjacent lands, a complete change in next year's landscape and upgrading of all facilities, indoor and outdoor." He would not elaborate on plans for the development of land surrounding the club other than to say "it will be resort oriented, possibly with some permanent rental-type apartments."
"All contiguous land will be developed,"

Wimberly stated. He said the development projects will be "compatible to but separate from" the private health club facility.

The new racquet club owner emphasized that the property will be "professionally managed with professional people at all levels." He feels that past problems with the racquet club have been a result of "inexperienced management." Wimberly said he thinks professional operation and management of the facility will make a difference in its success.

The racquet club was constructed in 1976, and Wimberly purchased an interest in it later that year. He purchased the facility in total in 1978 and sold it to Thomas S. Mackie Jr. (Sierra West Limited) in December of 1979. The racquet club has been closed, however, since January 1982, and a petition for foreclosure of lien was filed against it by Ruidoso State Bank in May 1981.

During this time, Vista Enterprises of El Paso, Texas, developed plans to purchase the property for construction of a Hilton hotel. The firm's request to have the land zoned commercial was heard by the Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission (P&Z) in February 1982, and by the village council in March and District Court in July.

The decisions of P&Z and the council to grant the zoning request were overturned in District Court, however, and the plan for a Hilton at the site was abandoned.

Wimberly said Friday he wants to "let people know the thing is now properly financed and won't be going through the problems it has had in the past." He did admit, however, that "after extensive improvement of all facilities there's always a possibility that the club portion will be for sale." Wimberly pointed out that "my business is development and investments, not operating a business."

But the new racquet club owner did make a promise.

"I would like to promise the people, both visitors and permanent residents of Ruidoso, that the club will be what they've always expected but maybe not received in the past. I will promise a facility that the whole town will be proud of."

Study finds airport, experiments cannot coexist

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

The National Academy of Sciences (NAS) team of scientists that was evaluating New Mexico State University (NMSU) research on Fort Stanton Mesa has concluded that a regional airport and the research cannot coexist with the 26,000-acre experimental ranch.

Senator Harrison "Jack" Schmitt's office released a statement this morning in which the senator said he is "very disappointed" in the results of the study, but that he feels the study itself is reliable.

Fred Heckman, chairman of the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission (SBAC), said his commission will meet Thursday at 1:30 p.m. at the Ruidoso Downs municipal building to review the academy's findings.

Schmitt's press secretary, Julian Barber, quoted the senator as saying, "The Academy has concluded that development of a regional airport on the mesa would eliminate responsible range and livestock research activities. These activities, according to the (academy) report, could not be duplicated elsewhere."

Schmitt continued, "Everyone would agree without question that the Fort Stanton location is the safest site among the alternatives for the airport. Unfortunately, the two activities appear to be mutually exclusive."

Schmitt said the decision whether to locate an airport on the mesa is now left to federal, state and local officials. Those officials must also decide whether the need for an airport on Fort Stanton outweighs the value of the research being conducted there, he noted.

Schmitt added that if SBAC decides to pursue sites on Fort Stanton Mesa, the commission will need approval from the governor, the state director of the Bureau of Land Management, and Secretary of the Interior James Watt. Schmitt noted that the Federal Aviation Administration already approves the location on the mesa preferred by SBAC, known as Site B.

Schmitt said he views the study as reliable because the NAS places a high priority on its integrity and would not place its reputation in jeopardy by publishing subjective or insupportable findings. He said, "While I am not happy with the implication of the findings, we all agreed to accept an independent, third party evaluation."

"The result certainly does not change the critical need to find a safe alternative to the existing airport of Ruidoso," Schmitt continued. He said he will sit down with Lincoln County officials to consider alternatives and proceed as quickly as possible to build a new, safe airport for the county.

Free chamber music concert set for this Saturday

by BARBY GRANT
Staff Writer

The first in a series of four chamber music concerts to be presented jointly by the Ruidoso Chamber of Commerce Cultural Committee and New Mexico State University Department of Music is scheduled for this Saturday, October 23, at 7 p.m.

The concert will be presented in the Mesalero B Room at the Inn of the Mountain Gods, free of charge to the public.

This Saturday's concert will feature The Delphian Trio, composed of violinist Rosemary Silversteen, cellist James Fittz and pianist William Leland. All are members of the performance faculty at New Mexico State University (NMSU). The program will include the Beethoven "Trio in E flat Major, No. 1," Ernest Bloch's "Three Nocturnes," and "Trio, Opus 120" by Gabriel Faure.

The violinist of the The Delphian Trio is professor of violin at NMSU and concertmaster of the Las Cruces Symphony at NMSU. Silversteen was formerly resident and touring violinist at the University of British Columbia Yukon Campus. She has also been involved in the music program at the University of Houston in Texas, and was concertmaster of the Houston Ballet Orchestra and soloist with the Houston Symphony Orchestra.

Silversteen has both bachelor's and master's degrees from the Juilliard School and has performed in Canada, Alaska, Hawaii, Mexico, Italy, Holland and throughout the continental United States.

James Fittz, principal cellist of the Las Cruces Symphony, began his formal study of music at the age of five. He won first prize at the International Music Competition in Tokyo, Japan, as a high school student and has studied with internationally renowned artists, including Gordon Epperson and the late Yoshio Sato.

Fittz holds Master of Music and Doctor of Musical Arts degrees in cello performance and music literature from the University of Arizona. He taught there, at Central Washington University and the Shenandoah Conservatory of Music before joining the faculty of NMSU.

William Leland, pianist-in-residence at NMSU, has been acclaimed throughout the United States and in Europe for the spontaneity and freshness of his playing as well as for his technical and artistic mastery. He graduated from the Philadelphia Conservatory in Pennsylvania and has studied privately with Hans Barth and noted Swiss pianist Karl Engel. He later earned his doctorate degree in piano performance at the University of Cincinnati in Ohio. While studying with Engel, Leland was chosen to play a series of solo recitals in West Germany under the sponsorship of the U.S. Information Agency. His recording of Scott Huston's "Penta-Tholo!" was recently released by Opus One records.

Additional chamber music concerts are scheduled in Ruidoso for Saturday evening, November 20, hosted by the Altrusa Club; Sunday afternoon, March 20, hosted by the Garden Club; and Sunday afternoon, May 8, hosted by the Woman's Club. All will be performed free of charge to the public, at the First Christian Church.

Also planned is an annual summer string workshop, the first to be held during two weeks in August of next year at the La Junta Guest Ranch in Alto. The purpose of the workshop is to offer intensive training in the performance of chamber music to 30 high school and college students.

The workshop has been held near Cloudcroft for the past three years, sponsored by NMSU and the Las Cruces Symphony Association. Fittz and other representatives from the workshop sponsors visited Ruidoso in early August this year to introduce the idea of moving the workshop to Ruidoso.

A number of student and faculty performances will be offered in connection with the workshops.

Everyone is encouraged to attend this Saturday's chamber music concert to show support for the program.

Nogal holding on to hope of improved water system

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

The tiny town of Nogal is cradled in the northern arms of the Sacramento Mountains about 20 miles northwest of Ruidoso on Highway 37. The people in the town were a fortunate lot in the 1940s when the Southern Pacific Railroad granted them a minuscule water right to Bonito Lake which allowed the town to pipe in the commodity cheaply to about 30 residents.

They were fortunate, that is, until their miniature municipal system began to deteriorate.

About three years ago, the town's water tank rusted so badly that it could no longer hold its supply. Added to the loss of storage, the filtration system rotted and no longer could be used. Users still received water, but it was delivered directly from the mountain reservoir.

The source also became undependable. Whenever the city of Alamogordo—the operator of the distribution system from the lake—shut down the branch line through Nogal for repairs, the pipes went dry. When the works cranked up again, the liquid oozing out of the taps was filled with crud from the aged pipes.

The Nogal Domestic Water Users Association—the group of original water right holders connected to the system—decided it had to do something shortly after the tank went dry.

It applied for and received state approval for a water system construction grant, and the association retained an Alamogordo engineer to design the specifications for the rehabilitation project.

That was three years ago, and the engineer has yet to complete the design. The users occasionally still lose their water, they still have to boil the cloudy water when service resumes and, to add to their problems, the state agency controlling the grant money has threatened to cut off the subsidy if the engineer does not submit the plans in two weeks.

Sixty-year-old Opal Greer, Nogal postmistress and president of the water users association, is tired of the delays, and is ready to quit if the project goes down the drain.

"If it doesn't go through now, I'm going to resign. I'm tired," bemoans the soft-spoken Greer, who has headed the association since the project's inception.

Greer is the leader of the 31-member association which consists mainly of retired homeowners. She said she took over after Pete Jones stepped down from the post three years ago.

Organizing the project did not seem to be much of a problem. The grant money was available for some of the costs, and most users agreed to pay higher water bills to pay off a Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) loan that would match the state grant to finance the entire cost.

And the association hired Alamogordo engineer Barry Burke of Burke Collins Associates to design the system and handle the paperwork. His fee, Greer said, would be paid upon the approval of the design, which is the condition for the release of the funds.

But neither FmHA nor the state Environmental Improvement Division (EID) has approved the plans. In fact, the project has fallen so far behind that EID wrote Greer in August and warned that if construction bid specifications are not received by November, EID will rescind the grant.

When contacted last week, Burke said he was working on the specs and expected to meet the first of November deadline. But he said he was unsure what improvements will be included in the plan, and he said he did not know what the system will cost.

But Greer said Burke met with her over a week ago, and that he told her he had submitted the plans to be inspected. She added that Burke thought the construction could start in the spring.

Lou Andez, FmHA loan technician at the district office in Roswell, said her agency rejected Burke's preliminary design in mid-August, and asked him to consider several options that would decrease the cost of the project.

"We don't want the water rate schedule to overburden everyone," Andez noted. The administrator said Burke's first plan would have required an $84,000 loan from FmHA, plus the state grant, to finance.

EID has agreed to pay 40 percent of the project up to $100,000. The projected state grant is nearly $71,000, said Joanne Fagan of EID.

Andez estimated that yearly repayments would be over $10,000, which would require minimum monthly water bills over $20 for the 40-some-odd users.

In a letter from the FmHA dated August 12, Andez said, engineers studying the project for FmHA asked Burke to consider changes in the design. One of the options they asked of Burke was to study the possibility of rehabilitating the present filter instead of replacing it, as Burke had suggested, according to Andez.

Asked Friday if he revised the plans for a new filter, Burke said he was still leaving open "the option for myself" whether to include a new filtration system in the plans, or to repair the old one.

He said the project is "essentially to improve the filter system and to replace the majority of the distribution system, and to provide some storage tanks." Asked if the plan will call for more than one tank, he said he did not remember the amount of storage, only that there would be adequate treated water storage.

Nogal hopes for improved water

He said the new system will also include a pumping facility to deliver water in areas that are not now served.

Burke said he has been working on the project since its beginning in late 1979, and that he will turn in the plans by November. But he added he was not yet sure what the system will cost.

"I don't know how much it will cost. I don't remember what it was," he said.

Andez said FmHA inspectors also disagreed with Burke's estimate of the amount of users who would pay back the loan. She said Burke counted 50 to 60 households that would connect to the system, but the FmHA came up with about 40 users. She said Burke counted vacant lots in his study.

Andez noted that FmHA will not rescind the offer of a loan for the project if Burke's figures are not substantially changed, but she added the agency wants to ensure the design is cost effective for the number of users.

The cost of the project—at an estimated $155,000—and the resulting increase in municipal water bills has caused some residents to drill their own wells and not commit themselves to higher rates.

Archie Witham, director and treasurer of the water association, is one of the original water right holders who has not signed up for the new system.

"We charge $5 per month to each member with active taps now," explained Witham. "They told us when the project started out that the rate would be $7.50 to $12.50 per month minimum."

"Now they told us it would be a $20 minimum monthly bill! To me, that is conclusive proof the system was a failure."

Witham speculated that 50 percent of the residents in the small town have wells and more have thought about drilling wells. Postmistress Greer estimates that a total of 50 families, including no more than 10 children, live in Nogal, and about 40 have signed up for the new system.

What bothers Witham is that many of the residents served by the present system do not have wells, and cannot afford to drill them. Witham added that many of those users are on fixed incomes, and will find it hard to pay $20-plus monthly bills.

Witham thinks the high cost of the original system design can be reduced if the town does not commit itself to supplying new homes in the hills skirting Nogal. He said Burke's first plan was either to put storage facilities on a higher location than where the tank is now, or install pumps to reach the higher areas.

But Witham would like to see the project limited. "If we do nothing but serve the original 31 members, we should get a new 20,000 gallon storage tank and a filter system."

Witham explained the water association was set up to build and operate the municipal system after the Southern Pacific Railroad granted approximately half an acre foot per year—or 180,000 gallons—of Bonito water to Nogal in 1946. The railroad built Bonito Dam to supply its line through Carrizozo.

Nogal installed a small filtration system, a 10,000-gallon storage tank and a two-inch line that branches off a 10-inch line owned by Alamogordo, so it could use its water right. Witham said the equipment was designed to last 20 years.

Three years ago, the system broke down.

Witham said only 24 taps on the system are still active, and that residents already use more than the 15,000 gallons per month the town has a right to.

The association's treasurer also noted that Nogal has no surplus funds in its coffers to contribute toward the new system.

In fact, the lack of money in the association led to problems between Greer and EID. The health agency requires that municipalities measure daily the turbidity in the water supply, and test bacteria levels monthly. Greer fell behind on the tests because, she said, nobody could afford to deliver samples to the Ruidoso EID office.

Hari Mukhoty of the Ruidoso EID office said he filed charges six months ago in Magistrate Court against Greer because she was behind several months. But Mukhoty added he understands the financial situation of the small town, and has decided not to press for a court date.

"They didn't have the money there," he said. Mukhoty said EID supplied Nogal with equipment to take the water tests, and since then Greer has complied with the health laws.

Mukhoty added that, even though Nogal water is filled with sediments from the old pipes periodically, the water has always been safe to drink. He said the water is chlorinated at the lake by the Alamogordo water department.

The households connected to the system have put up with dirty water for so long, Greer noted, that residents know what to do when brown liquid flows from the tap.

"Some people have been at it so long, when they see mud, they know it's time to boil water," she said.

After Burke told her the paperwork had been sent in, Greer indicated her hopes brightened that construction would soon begin. But Burke said Friday he would not have the design finished until EID's deadline.

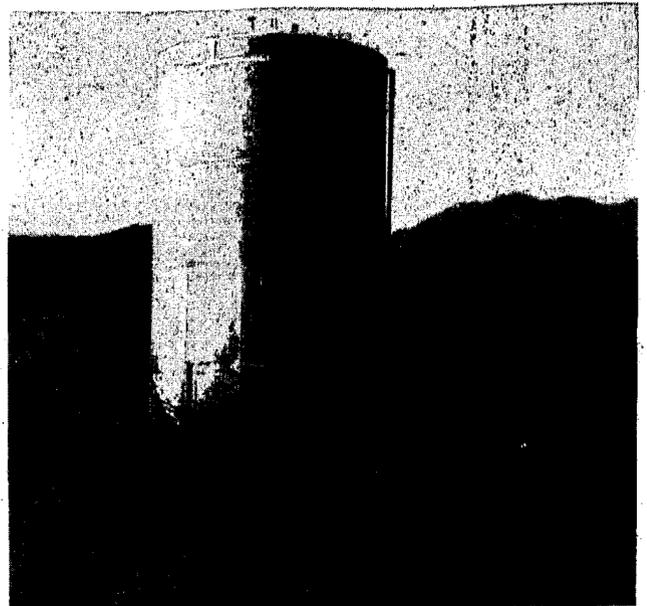

Joanne Fagan said EID expected to receive the plans in two weeks. The letter was written to Greer in August warning of the deadline because of a clause in the Water Supply Construction Act which reads the EID director may rescind grant allocations if "diligent effort toward progress of the project is not being made."

Fagan said a section of the act also requires that projects be reviewed one year after application for a grant, if a project has not gone to bid, and that EID requires applicants to show cause for project delays. The letter states the grant award was extended in 1981 for one year, and the extension expired last June.

She added that the November 1 deadline for the grant was chosen because Burke had indicated he would submit the bid specifications to EID engineers by the first of October. She also wanted to advise Greer to write a letter to the agency if Burke does not meet the deadline, and explain the engineer is making progress. Fagan indicated the date may be extended if Greer does so.

Greer said Friday she will write the letter if the plans are delayed further. But she concluded, the delays have made her weary, and she will step down from the president's position if the setbacks continue.

In the meantime, Nogal's water situation, like its water, remains unclear.

LIKE A DEFEATED SENTINEL, Nogal's worn out water tank stands over the small town. The dark streaks on the 10,000-gallon tank are rust stains where water has leaked out of numerous holes.

POWER STORAGE. Indian Health Services sanitarian Tom Hunt checks one of the 10 batteries that store the electricity converted from sunshine by photovoltaic cells. The batteries are three feet deep and stored in sand to keep temperatures constant.

Photovoltaic solar system gives light to Apache family

by BILLY ALLSTETTER
Staff Writer

The Anasazi Indians were some of the first humans to use solar energy in their homes—at around the time of Christ.

Their dwellings in northern New Mexico were set back into cliffs that let in the warmth of the sun during the winter months when the sun moved in a low arc. In the summer, when the sun passed much higher in the sky, the dwellings were shaded and cool.

Today the Mescalero Apache Indian family of Santiago Valdez is using solar energy to bring electricity to their remote home at the foot of Sierra Blanca. More than five miles from the nearest power lines, Valdez, his wife and the nine children still at home are using two five-foot by eight-foot solar photovoltaic panels to convert the power of the sun into electricity for their home.

For all 58 years that Santiago Valdez has lived in his home up Golondrina Draw on the west side of Sierra Blanca, he has lit his house with kerosene lamps. These provided marginal light and had to be continually refilled. Until six weeks ago, his home was the only one on the reservation not to have the electricity we all take for granted.

Tom Hunt, whose job as sanitarian for the Indian Health Services (IHS) is to "provide better, more wholesome living environment" for the Mescalero Apache Indians, was looking for a way to bring safer, better light to the Valdez home. A few months ago Salvador Reyes, an engineer with the Albuquerque office of IHS, called Hunt with the news that there was money available from the Department of Energy (DOE) for a solar project.

With DOE providing the money and IHS providing the engineering, a photovoltaic system could be installed at the Valdez home.

"I didn't believe him," said Valdez of the first time Hunt told him his house would have electricity without hooking up to the power company's lines. But the project began. Hunt started the administrative workings and Reyes began to design the system.

"The photovoltaic phenomenon—the process by which light is converted silently and directly into electricity, without the elaborate machinery we usually associate with the generation of electricity—is elegant," wrote Paul D. Maycock in his book, "Photovoltaics—Sunlight into Electricity in One Step."

A photovoltaic system has no moving parts. The only maintenance necessary is to make sure the batteries are filled with water and the terminals are clean.

Electricity is generated when photons, energy packets from the sun, strike the silicon surface of the photovoltaic cell, exciting electrons enough that they escape their orbits around the silicon nucleus and travel down conductor wires. Electric current—electrons running down the wire and eventually back to the silicon cell—is what runs lights and other appliances.

Reyes, the project engineer, designed a system that generates Direct Current (DC) using the two five-foot by eight-foot photovoltaic panels that charge 10 special "deep cycle" batteries that provide electricity to the house.

The two panels sit in back of the Valdez home. They have three possible settings for different seasons that allow the panels to face the sun as directly as possible and soak up as much sun as possible.

Valdez may not have believed in Hunt's plan at first, but now his result is sitting in his backyard, next to the clothes line.

"It's pretty good. We have bright lights," said the impressed Valdez.

Even on cloudy days, the flick of a switch turns on bright lights. The batteries have a storage capacity of about six days use and there is a meter on the inside of the house that tells when the batteries are getting weak.

Valdez says his kids are especially excited about the electricity. They did not like filling and lighting the kerosene lamps alone and often went without light instead.

"The kids can do their homework," said Valdez. But the luxury works both ways, because Valdez says now it is difficult to get the kids to bed early.

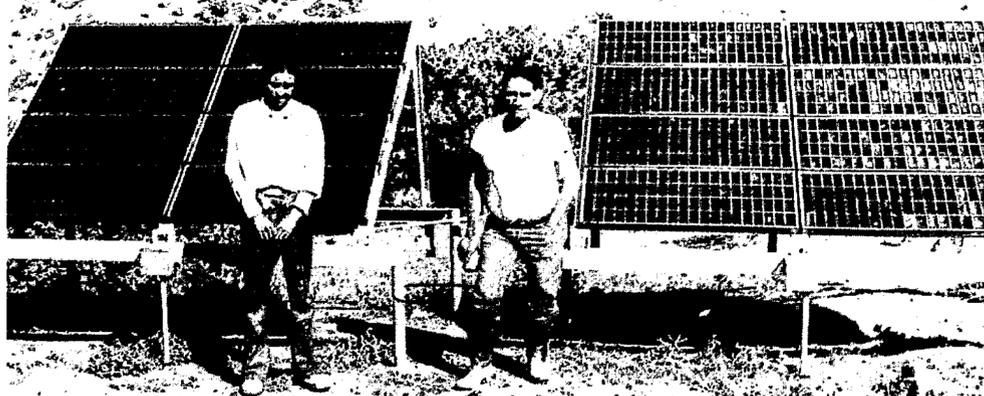

Mrs. Valdez likes having electricity but is less enthusiastic. "I still can't run a washer with it," she said. Since the power provided is DC, like batteries, and not AC as most homes have, different appliances are necessary.

DC refrigerators are available and the Valdez family is looking into purchasing one. Washing machines, however, are much more difficult to find. A washing machine would mean a lot to a woman who has to hand-wash clothes for 11 people.

Inverters to change the power to AC are available but they are very expensive. Reyes did not include an inverter in his design. He said lighting was the top priority of the system and that inverters are only 80 percent efficient and would drain the 500-watt system excessively.

There is hope that a DC washer can be found. But in the meantime, the lights in the Valdez home are bright, the kids can do their homework and the television runs day and night.

"We have been able to upgrade their living environment," said Hunt.

Counseling Center director brings varied experiences to job

by BILLY ALLSTETTER
Staff Writer

"I feel I bring a vast variety of experiences into this," said J. L. Wilson, recently appointed director of the Counseling Center in Ruidoso. Indeed, he does.

Before he entered the counseling field five years ago, Wilson owned a steak house and a river running company. He was also a partner in a ranch (and still is), a disc jockey and a worker on oil pipelines in Alaska and the Andes mountains of South America.

In a field where understanding and empathy with people's problems is crucial, Wilson sees the wide variety of experiences as being very helpful.

Wilson brings much more than just breadth of experience to his job, however. He has always had an interest in counseling, he said, and his educational background is in that field. He has a master's degree in behavioral science from Northeastern University in Tahlequah, Oklahoma.

He entered the field professionally five years ago with the Amarillo Mental Health Association and moved up from the lowest caseworker position. He came to Ruidoso in January 1982 to work at the Counseling Center.

Harper. When Harper left for Arizona in August, Wilson became director of the center.

Ray Hugger, executive director of the Alamogordo Counseling Center, oversees the Ruidoso center. He chose Wilson, whom he said came very highly recommended by members of the community, for the director's job.

"I was impressed by his commitment to the center and his enthusiasm for helping people," said Hugger. Wilson, he added, has not let him down.

"He has put in for a number of good ideas and followed them through," said Hugger. Hugger also noted that hours of service to the community and percent of worker's time in direct contact with patients have both increased since Wilson became director.

Wilson said that he usually counsels adults individually but also does some couple and family counseling. The cost is variable—determined by a family's income and the number in the family.

Wilson generally uses Gestalt therapy and hypnosis with his patients.

"Everybody has options to change," said Wilson. Gestalt therapy concerns itself with resolving problems. Wilson said and what you are going to do to change it."

Hypnosis is a tool he uses often in his counseling sessions. He said the conscious mind is resistant to change and often bound up in routines and patterns that cause pain and anxiety.

Wilson said hypnosis is a nonconfrontive way to "open up new channels that your conscious was blocking."

In the sessions, Wilson often tells stories to the hypnotized patients. The stories can be about a garden or horse training or anything that seems unrelated to the patient's life.

Wilson said he tailors the story to parallel the life situation of the patient. He offers different alternatives to the person.

"I don't tell anyone anything. I suggest things," he explained. "Most people describe it as one of the neatest experiences they have had."

In addition to individual counseling, Wilson said he wants to move more into public education and workshops. He is offering a number of short workshops in November on subjects such as stress management, time management and assertiveness training.

Wilson said he aims for an "informal, involved workshop," in which people can discuss and explore issues that concern them.

The workshops will be learning experiences, he added, and he hopes to reach people who do not normally come in for therapy. They will be given one night and last about two hours, he said. People interested in the workshops should call the center at 257-5038 by November 1.

The workshops are a part of an effort by Wilson to involve the community more with the Counseling Center. If he can involve the community more and generate more money locally, he said, the community can have a bigger voice in how the center is run. Then the center can provide more services the community desires.

Wilson said he also hopes to familiarize himself with more people in the community. When they see that he does not have a goatee and speak with a German accent, but wears cowboy boots and has a familiar Southwestern drawl, they may be more willing to come in when they have problems.

Listening to and helping work out people's problems all day is a very emotionally taxing activity. "Burnout" can overwhelm some psychologists, Wilson, however, seems unlikely to suffer.

"He's very easy going and capable. He never loses his cool," said Greer Fortenberry, office manager at the center.

Activities to help Beverly Day set

Beverly Day is a seventh grade student at White Mountain Middle School, but she has missed most of this school year so far.

Change taken in hold-up Sunday

Ruidoso police reported this morning that an employee of the Holiday Bowl was held up at knife point early Sunday morning by two Spanish males.

According to police, the suspects forced the employee to open the door of the bowling alley at about 12:05 a.m. Sunday and stole change from a jukebox. Police report some of her hospital expenses, White Mountain School students and staff have planned several fund-raising projects to continue through Halloween.

Both White Mountain Elementary and Middle Schools will be showing a movie to students for $1 admission, with proceeds to go to the Beverly Day fund. Members of the middle school home economics club will sponsor a concession stand during the movie to raise money for the fund.

Students will also be placing coffee cans in a number of local businesses and will be trick or treating on Halloween to collect money for the fund.

All money collected will be placed in an account at Ruidoso State Bank for Beverly. Anyone wishing to donate directly to the account may do so through the bank.

Beverly's mother, Barbara Day, said Thursday that Beverly seems to be doing well following her surgery. The 12-year-old has remained active despite her handicap, having participated in the handicapped skiing program at Sierra Blanca and enjoyed other sports activities.

Beverly lives in Ruidoso with her aunt and uncle, Patty and J. B. White.

The Holiday House Coffee Shop has had its permit to operate reinstated by the Environmental Improvement Division (EID), according to Ruidoso EID Environmentalist Hari Mukhoty. The license was suspended earlier this month for repeated violations of the New Mexico Food Service Regulations. Mukhoty reported that the restaurant has complied with all regulations so he reinstated its permit Friday. If compliance with the regulations is not maintained, however, the permit to operate will be revoked, Mukhoty said. He will perform another inspection of the coffee shop in about one month, he noted.

The Dreamer

BY DANNIE STORM

The North Wind
"The North Wind does Blow
And we shall have snow
And what will poor Robin do then?
He will hide in the barn
To keep himself warm
And hide his head
under his wing.
Poor thing!"

This childhood poem came to mind yesterday, October fourteen when the North wind was blowing straight off the snow banks piled only a few miles up the way — and a great flock of robins came flying into the land chirping their cold weather notes as they settled on the REA wires and on the yard fence posts and began drinking from the Metates.

When the Robins stop this way, you know that they are just a jump ahead of the cold blast, and the cold wave has come to a halt right here where the Robins have camped — like the Indians of old, on their way south ahead of the advancing snow.

Following the Robins came bands of Western Blue birds, their bright silken coats and red vests flashing in the sun against the October sky — a matching color for these birds of happiness.

Indian Summer Begins
And today, just before high noon, the Blue Birds are all close around the house in company with the Robins, the orange scarlet breasts of the Robins and the red, white and blue of the Blue birds shining in a warm sun. The air is balmy and mellow with not a movement in grass, leaves or evergreen branches.

On a signal from Jack Frost, the vast host of snow flakes, the chilling blast, the numbing cold — all were stopped in their tracks just north of here, and that little season within a season, the pride and joy of the whole year has arrived, and we are in Indian Summer.

In the quiet stillness of the air, distant sounds seem close at hand. The calm notes of the crow seem only just above the roof, and you see him half a mile overhead in the air, motionless without movement of wing — poised in the pure blue, coasting on some high air current, not felt here on the green and golden sunny ground.

On the fourteenth, high in the air you heard the drum-beat of those marchers of the sky, the Sandhill Cranes, flying south in a "V" formation — singing in rhythmic chorus their shrill, far-carrying chant, sending their message to all the land below that summer is gone and winter is almost here.

And all in one day, here on the gladsome call of the crow, announcing from on high the first day of Indian Summer.

Corina, The Cat
Watches the Typewriter

Corina, the green-eyed Holloween Black Cat of the Storm Ranch is fascinated by the typewriter. She has been perched here, trying to figure out the reason for all this chatter.

Just now she grabbed the top of the page with both front paws and tried to drag the paper out of the mashing, much as to say, "This is terrible corn. We can not let it go out."

The Leaves Turn
Little By Little

This year the Leaves of the Oak, Walnut, Box Elder, Wild Cherry, and Wild Grape are much later than usual in turning their colors. And the Oak Brush along the hill sides is just beginning to show a little orange and light crimson, while in other years by this time, the hill-sides are usually out in full oak brush color.

This may mean that we will have a long Fall and Indian Summer, with true winter coming late in the valleys running down from the White Mountain.

Let us rejoice and be grateful to The Lord for Glorious Indian Summer.

Warriors beaten by Wildcats

Around Sports with Gary Brown

The Ruidoso High School varsity football team suffered its seventh defeat of the season against no victories when it fell to visiting Tularosa 30-9 Friday night in a 3-AAA district game.

The visitors dominated the game after the Warriors opened the scoring early in the first quarter.

On Ruidoso's second possession of the game, the Warriors struck very quickly. After receiving the ball at the Ruidoso 45, Warrior quarterback Billy Woodul hit wingback Grady Williamson with a short swing pass at the 50. With three blockers in front of him, Williamson eluded one Tularosa tackler and sprinted down the sidelines for the touchdown with 7:42 remaining in the quarter. Robert Swanner kicked the extra point and Ruidoso held a 7-0 advantage.

But it didn't take very long for the Wildcats to strike back and even the score. The Wildcats drove 68 yards in 10 plays for the tying touchdown.

The big play in the drive was a fourth down pass interference call against Ruidoso which gave Tularosa a first down on the Warrior 15.

From there, the Wildcats scored in three plays with Epifanio Martinez going over from the three. The extra point kick was good and the game was tied at 7-7.

The second quarter proved to be the downfall of the Warriors as Tularosa used its superior size to score two touchdowns while holding Ruidoso scoreless.

Martinez dove over from the one for one touchdown and Chris Gomez ran 23 yards for the second touchdown. Both touchdowns ended 50-yard drives. Tularosa took a 21-7 lead into the second half.

Tularosa added its fourth touchdown on a two-yard run by quarterback Chris Cerny late in the third quarter. Cerny, who passed for 82 yards on five of eight passes, hurt the Warriors with several clutch passes in the drive.

The Ruidoso defense rose up to add the Warriors' final points of the evening late in the final quarter.

Tularosa was on its two yard line when Cerny was tackled for a safety by Tommy Croy.

However, the Wildcats added three more points on a 20-yard field goal by Warren Sidwell in the closing minutes of the contest.

Ruidoso head coach Darrel Stierwalt was naturally disappointed about the Warriors' second defeat in district action. "We thought we were going to win after our early touchdown," he said. "The guys were really high on the game. However, Tularosa executed well and didn't have any turnovers and that was the difference."

Williamson was the top offensive standout for the Warriors. Besides his 55-yard scoring pass, he also ran for 45 yards on a play in the closing minutes of the contest, the longest run from scrimmage for a Ruidoso player this year.

The Warriors ran for 113 yards and passed for 75 more. Woodul completed three of 13 passes. However, the Warriors could only get four first downs to 21 for the winners. Tularosa had 230 yards rushing and 82 passing.

Ruidoso will finish its season on the road with three games, starting at Deming Friday. Deming, considered to be a contender for the district championship this season, lost to defending champion Silver City 48-7 Friday night.

Deming is now 0-2 in district action and 2-5 overall.

MIKE WILLIAMSON (20) of the Ruidoso High School varsity football team tackles c Tularosa ballcarrier during Friday night's game at the Warrior field. The winless Warriors lost the game by a 30-9 score and will travel to Deming for a 7:30 p.m. game this Friday.

lower weight classes. Boxers in the middleweight and lightweight divisions, for example, depend more on skill and agility than power.

Generally, smaller boxers provide the fans with more excitement than do the larger fighters.

But the heavyweight division has the glamor because the biggest boxers are naturally in that division. The heavyweight champion is quite often looked on as the most celebrated athlete of his time.

This has been particularly true with champions like Jack Dempsey, Joe Louis and Ali.

How well boxing does in the future will probably depend on how the heavyweight division fares.

It looks like the local golf season is over for another year.

Local golfers will hang up their clubs (at least part of the time) and wait until the spring comes for more tournaments.

The first Inn of the Mountain Gods Pro-Am Celebrity Golf Tournament last Monday was the highlight of the season.

For the first time in my life, I got to shake hands with a big-time actor, Dale Robertson. Robertson was the only celebrity in the tournament but Inn officials are optimistic more will come next year.

Wendell Chino, President of the Ruidoso Apache Tribe, committed the Inn to another tournament next year at the awards banquet following the tournament.

It looks like local golf fans will have a lot of pro-am celebrity tournaments to look forward to in the future.

Boxing needs a few heroes. The sport doesn't really have any "glamor" athletes since Muhammad Ali retired and Sugar Ray Leonard suffered his eye injury.

Larry Holmes has proven he's one of the better heavyweights in the history of the sport, but he's just not a flamboyant personality. Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini, the lightweight champion, could develop a large following but he needs more fights under his belt.

For years the sport has had its reputation damaged by reports of underworld domination of its activities. Some of the stories were true and some weren't.

Now, with no real personality dominating the fight game, the sport could be in trouble.

Much of the problems with boxing exist in the heavyweight division. Holmes pretty much stands by himself as the dominant fighter. The World Boxing Council (WBC) champion has already defeated World Boxing Association (WBA) champion Mike Weaver and dispatched of Gerry Cooney easily last summer.

Holmes will fight Randall "Tex" Cobb November 28 at a site yet undetermined. Cobb, who is currently training at the Inn of the Mountain Gods, is a good puncher, and he has a strong chin and an unlimited amount of courage.

Whether that will be enough to stop Holmes remains to be seen.

If Holmes keeps his title, he might retire soon and there would probably be a runoff for the title. That may spark an increased interest in the sport, particularly in the heavyweight division.

Braves roll over Carrizozo

The White Mountain Middle School A football team took its fourth victory quarter on a 15-yard run. Bryan Mack added the two-point conversion and the Braves held a comfortable 32-0 lead.

Carrizozo scored its only touchdown of the game late in the third period but the Braves struck soon after to conclude the game's scoring.

Bubba Miller returned the kickoff following the Grizzlies touchdown to Carrizozo 45. The Braves scored in six plays with Mack running 15 yards for the touchdown. The extra point attempt was no good.

"We played as good or better than we did the first time against Carrizozo (a 30-0 Braves win)," said White Mountain head coach Terry Wharton. "We put in a new offense this week and it was amazing how quick our starters adjusted to it."

The Braves will conclude the season with a 6 p.m. game against Tularosa Wednesday at Ruidoso High School. White Mountain topped Tularosa 22-0 in the first meeting between the two schools.

Roswell nips Warrior junior varsity

Despite a strong defensive effort, the Ruidoso High School junior varsity football team suffered its fifth loss of the season against no wins when it fell to host Roswell High School by a 6-0 score Thursday afternoon.

The only touchdown of the game was a 30-yard fumble recovery and score with 6:31 left in the first quarter. That turned out to be enough, however, as the tough Coyote defense held the Ruidoso offense most of the game.

The Warriors almost scored in the first quarter when they drove to the Roswell 10 yard line. However, a Warrior defender picked off a Russell Easter pass and Ruidoso failed to score.

Ruidoso crossed the 50 yard line a couple of times more during the game but couldn't punch the ball in.

The defense turned in an outstanding effort, however. Tracy Gann and Justin Smith each intercepted a pass and offensive tackle-defensive end Chip Ramsey recovered a fumble. Ramsey did a good job both ways and probably had his best game of the season.

Mitch Mullican, Randy Reynolds and Mike Williamson did well running with the ball for the Warriors. Williamson had Ruidoso's longest gain of the game, a 16-yard run in the third period.

Warrior head junior varsity coach Jim Ramsey was pleased with his team's effort despite the loss.

"It was probably our best defensive game of the season," he said. "Again mistakes hurt us but our guys really hit tonight. We had some problems on offense because some of our guys hadn't played that much at their positions."

Ruidoso will finish the season with travel games versus the Alamogordo eighth graders and Goddard of Roswell the next two Thursdays.

Reserve tops Capitan

Capitan High School's varsity football team ran into defending state A champion Reserve Friday afternoon and lost a 28-6 decision on the winners' field.

The Tigers, now 3-2-1 on the season, fell behind 14-0 in the first quarter and could never catch up. Capitan scored its only touchdown on a 30-yard pass from quarterback Dewey Keller to Tim McElhannon in the final quarter.

The Tigers will finish the regular season with home games against Mountainair Thursday night and arch-rival Carrizozo Friday, October 29.

Carrizozo is on a hot streak, having dumped Mountainair 47-0 Friday night. The Grizzlies are now 4-2 on the season.

Tourney rescheduled

The first Lincoln County Golf Championship was postponed this weekend due to the fact many local golfers were competing in other tournaments.

KEVIN JEFFERSON, (left) of the Las Piedras Boxing Team, battles Steve Tapia of Henry's Boxing Club of Albuquerque in a 70 pound bout at the "Saturday Night at the Fights" Saturday at the Ruidoso High School gym. Jefferson lost a close decision. Jefferson and his teammate David Ordorica will compete in the state championships at the Alamogordo City Gym this coming weekend.

Jefferson defeated in close bout at 'Saturday Night at the Fights'

Kevin Jefferson of the Las Piedras Boxing Team (LPBT) of Ruidoso lost a close 3-2 decision to Steve Tapia of Henry's Boxing Club of Albuquerque in a 70 pound bout at "Saturday Night at the Fights" Saturday night at the Ruidoso High School Gym. The only other LPBT boxer scheduled to fight, David Ordorica, couldn't compete because no other boxer in his 70 pound division wanted to fight him. Ordorica won the Silver Cup title in Albuquerque October 8. Jefferson dominated the first round against Tapia but tired in the second round as Tapia controlled that round. The third round was virtually even. "Kevin just ran out of gas," said LPBT coach Lucky Mulqueen. "He was tired in the second round but came back pretty well in the third." Jefferson's fight was the third bout of the evening on a nine-fight card. Noel Sanchez of Strubhar's Boxing Club of Las Cruces took a decision over Clayton Martinez of Henry's in the first fight of the evening, a 50 pound bout. The second fight saw Frankie Sanchez of Strubhar's take a close decision over Charles Anaya of Henry's in a 60 pound division bout. After Jefferson's fight, Mike Sanchez of Strubhar's took a decision over Pete Martinez of Henry's in a 90 pound division fight. Robert Saucedo of Strubhar's took a decision over Tony Payne of Magdalena in another 90 pound fight. Martin Sanchez of the Las Cruces Police Athletic League took a decision over Richard Medina of Strubhar's in a 100 pound division fight. A 106 pound class fight saw Fluffy McGuinness of Henry's win a technical knockout (TKO) over Johnny Perez at 34 seconds of the first round. McGuinness came at Perez early with a varied assortment of punches and was very impressive.

Mark Pelletier of Arroyo Del Oso Golf Course near Albuquerque shot a three-under-par 69 Friday to win the two-day Sun Country Section Assistants' Golf Tournament at the Inn of the Mountain Gods. Pelletier finished with a two-day total of 143, beating out Henry Sandies of the University of New Mexico South Golf Course by two strokes. Sandies had a 145. Pelletier fired a 74 Thursday and was third in the 17-man tournament entering Friday's round. Cree Meadows assistant pro Donnie Johnson led the tournament after Thursday's competition with a one-under-par 71. Terry Toby of San Juan Country Club was second going into Friday's round with a 72. totals. Johnson shot a 76 Friday while French fired a 75 Thursday and a 72 Friday. Johnson started slowly Friday, then got three straight birdies on the ninth, 10 and 11th holes but failed to hold off the first three finishers. Dave Brown of Paradise Hills Country Club finished sixth with a 148 total after holding the third spot after Thursday's round. He fired a 73 Thursday and a 75 Friday. Dave Donache of the El Paso (Texas) Country Club finished seventh with a 153 total (76 Thursday and 77 Friday) while Rick Rondo of Coronado Country Club and Jim Surber of Santa Fe Country Club tied for eighth with 157 scores. Rondo had a 79 Thursday and a 76 Friday. Surber fired a 79 Thursday and a 78 Friday. Doug Alverson of Cleo Vista Golf Course

The Ruidoso High School varsity volleyball team took a giant step toward a possible district championship when it defeated host Deming in two sets Saturday afternoon. Ruidoso, now 4-2 in district 3-AAA action and 8-4 overall, took the first set by a 15-10 score and the second by a 15-8 score. The Warriors lost to Deming in three sets two weeks ago but showed vast improvement in the victory Saturday. "The difference this time was that we played together as a team," said senior Kody Taylor. Ruidoso, which has now won four straight matches, broke open a 10-10 tie in the first set by scoring five straight points for the victory. The score had been tied several times in the set. In the second set, the Warriors held an 8-4 advantage but the hosts scored four straight points for an 8-8 deadlock.

However, Ruidoso then scored seven straight points for the victory. "Lori Morel and Lillian Lopez did a great job spiking the ball," Ruidoso head coach Elmer Chavez said. "We're really starting to hit the ball and playing well as a team." Chavez feels his team is peaking for the district championship at just the right time. "We've got T or C (Truth or Consequences) here next Saturday for two matches," he said. "They finished second in the state last year and have everybody back from that team. The team that wins next week will have the inside track to the title." T or C has both talent and experience on its squad. The Tigers have one six-foot player on their team. The Ruidoso junior varsity lost to Deming in two sets. However, the Warriors had to forfeit the first set because the Deming officials said they arrived late for the match. Ruidoso is winless in district junior varsity competition. The matches with T or C Saturday will start at 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. The varsity will play first in both cases, the reverse of what usually is the order.

RUIDOSO HIGH SCHOOL VOLLEYBALL PLAYERS practice setting up the ball during a recent practice. The Warriors will host Truth or Consequences in a key district 3-AAA doubleheader Saturday. The winner will probably take the district round-robin title.

New phys ed program instituted at WMES

WINDMILLS are good limbering-up exercises, as White Mountain Elementary School teacher Susan Keeton (far right) demonstrates to her physical education class.

Physical education is an integral part of a student's school experience. It has been theorized that a child's physical well-being has a direct influence on his classroom habits.

In keeping with this philosophy, a new physical education program has been instituted this year at White Mountain Elementary School. In the past, the principal and two teachers directed a phys ed program in which each grade participated for about nine weeks. The classroom teachers were responsible for the physical education of their own classes the rest of the year.

Principal Mike Gladden said that he administered the President's Physical Fitness Test during the time this program was in effect and was "alarmed at the lack of physical stamina and coordination" of students. He decided a more consistent program of exercise was needed.

At the beginning of this school year, eight instructors were asked to volunteer to design and direct a regular phys ed program. The volunteers include Cindy Geyer, Jim Hickerson, Mark Kashmar, Susan Keeton, Pat Mulholland, Betty O'Dell, Jane Tully and Willy Mae Victor. Each of the eight staff members conducts a phys ed class for about 50 students three times a week for 30 minutes.

"We are trying to coordinate skills from grades three through five to where the children will achieve physical endurance, coordination and appreciation of skills they can use for a lifetime," Gladden explained. "The emphasis is on movement activities."

The eight phys ed instructors said they are working on developing agility, flexibility, coordination and endurance in the students.

"There seems to be a misconception that kids are real limber," Kashmar said, "but they're not." He said that 15 to 20 percent of the students cannot bend over and touch their toes.

Kashmar also said that he is trying to teach some of the youth football players that there is more to athletics than football.

Another important aspect of the new program is to "develop better attitudes about p.e.," O'Dell noted. Some of the students began with negative attitudes about exercising, she said, but they seem to enjoy it now.

The teachers agreed an important goal is to get the students "to just enjoy being physical," and not to think of phys ed as a class they have to take but as something they should enjoy for the rest of their lives.

Most of the eight instructors begin their phys ed sessions with stretching and limbering exercises and then concentrate on a particular set of activities.

Before the year began, the teachers discussed the skill areas they felt needed attention. They decided to work on developing skills involved with volleyball, basketball, soccer, rope jumping, rhythm activities, softball, Frisbee, running, and track and field, Keeton reported.

Due to the limited equipment available and limited time to use the gymnasium, the teachers schedule each of the activities at different times. The school is in the process of purchasing additional equipment to facilitate the new phys ed program.

Another goal of the phys ed instructors is to develop a total structured physical education curriculum. "We're still feeling our way as far as a total p.e. program," the teachers said.

Gladden noted, though, that "participation and enthusiasm are very high."

"Looking at the kids out there, you see a great deal of positive participation," the principal pointed out.

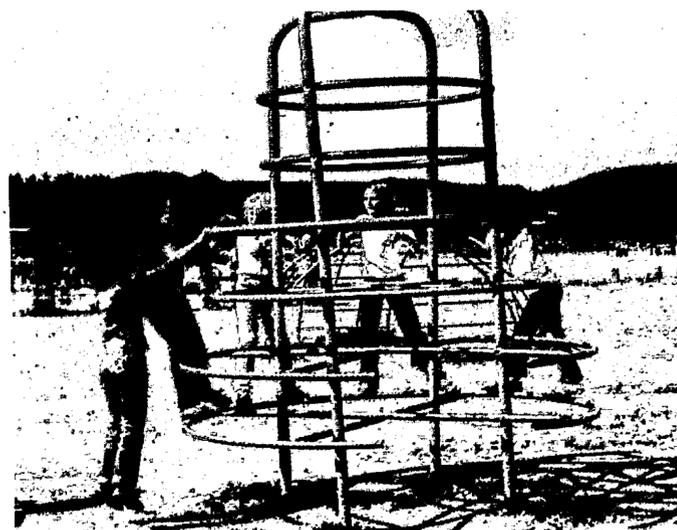

He said he would like to develop some skills tests to measure the growth of each student in the area of physical education. He added that he will probably conduct some tests this spring to measure the effectiveness of the new program.

"When kids leave the fifth grade, they should be able to throw a ball properly and kick a moving ball properly, and I feel like that's what this program will be able to show us in the end," Gladden stated.

"I'm really excited about the benefit that gives to our school," he added.

"Oftentimes (physical education) is considered a frill but it should be right up along with academics," said Gladden. "I think we'll see a correlation between physical fitness and study skills."

THREE DEEP is a game that develops running skills and requires concentration, as Cindy Geyer's phys ed students were learning last week.

LEARNING TO THROW AND CATCH a ball properly are important skills to learn before getting involved in playing a softball game, a fact which Jim Hickerson is trying to teach his physical education class.

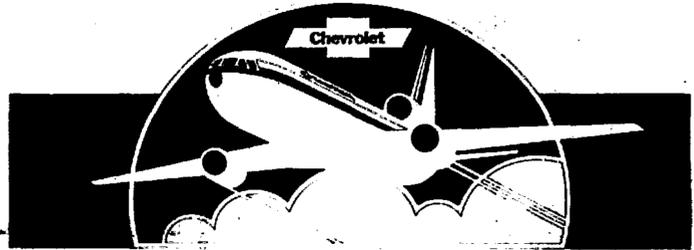

PHYSICAL EDUCATION INSTRUCTOR Pat Mulholland works on relays with her class, to strengthen running and coordination abilities.

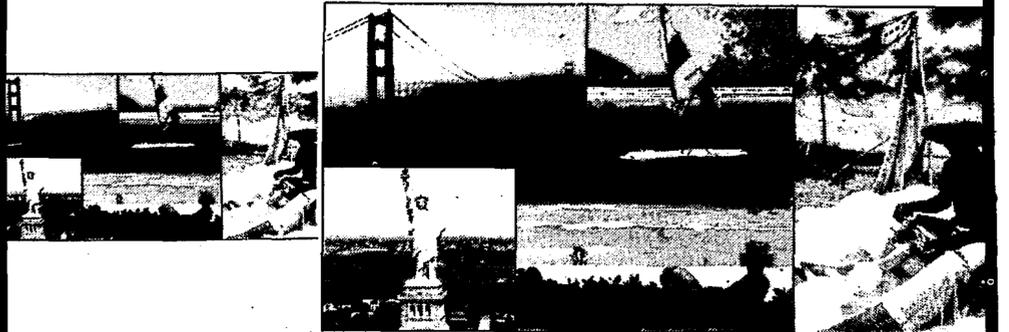

JUMPROPE RELAYS are good coordination developers, for boys as well as girls. Susan Keeton's class is taking advantage of the large parking lot area in front of the elementary school to practice such activities.

PLEASURES OF PARIS
 Paris is many people's dream city, from the Champs Elysees to the Eiffel Tower, from cooking schools to haute cuisine. Here's a quick tour.

The left bank is for cafes, galleries, street minstrels. Visit the Luxembourg Gardens, stopping first at a local market for the makings of a picnic.

On the right bank you'll find the Louvre, and also a noteworthy piece of architecture, the Pompidou Art Center. It has its fans and its detractors, but it's certainly different: rather like a building with all its plumbing on the outside, or something unfinished. The interior galleries, however, are quite splendid.

Between the banks, of course, is the Seine. An extremely pleasant way to get a feel of the city is to take a tour on the little riverboats, the "Bateaux Mouches." One of these—the Litote even doubles as a hotel off-season.

Paris addresses are followed by a five-digit code, like our zip codes. The last two digits indicate "arrondissements," or areas of the city. If you study a map or areas of the city, you'll be well on your way to finding your way around.

Inside The Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE — Who will be our next governor?

The man who gets out the vote. Which of the two candidates will that be?

Remains to be seen. Ask us on November 3.

Things operating in favor of the Republican candidate:

— The get-out-the-vote campaign for this side of the ballot this year is reported to be far and away the best that party has ever mounted.

Getting out New Mexico Republicans, however, in years in which there is no favorite of their running for the presidency, is very difficult indeed. They are, by and large, too far above the electoral process to understand that what they do in "off" years (when Reagan and Goldwater are not running for anything) actually affects the state and the nation. (They couldn't care less about those crude people in that strange building called the courthouse, except, possibly, for those who assess the worth of their real property.)

If they can be gotten out (a chancy proposition at best), they could make a large amount of difference.

— There seem to be more northern Hispanics who have committed themselves to the downfall of Toney Anaya this year than ever before.

Toney, despite his own background, is not the apple in the eye of all those whose language at home started out as Spanish.

There are some (many?) who consider him a kind of vendido — a sell-out, one who would let his own people down if there was anything to be gained from the Anglos by doing so.

If all of these gather together between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m. on the second day of November, they could inflict a few wounds.

(In recent years in New Mexico, all gubernatorial candidates who have lost have lost from a mere few wounds.)

Things operating in favor of the Democratic candidate:

— Labor.

The unions reportedly know how to get out all their "preferred voters" before the polls close. If they can be depended on — and in another year of Right to Work as a critical issue, they probably can — they will pile up a strong and lasting foundation for Anaya.

If there is a weak aspect here, it is the fact that the unions appear to do over and over what they have done before. There is little sense of inventiveness and originality among these people. They sometimes seem to be doing only what Samuel Gompers, the cigarmaker, taught them to do back in the early years of this century.

There is also the question of whether or not the spouses, wives or husbands of union members, really, when behind the green curtain, do what the more notable member of the family has pledged to do.

(These days, you can't trust anybody.) — Registration.

This counts a lot in years in which neither candidate has turned the voters on.

(This is such a year.) Old habits die slowly.

Voters who are Democrats, in years like this, tend just to go in and punch the right lever, even though they may have little or no real loyalty to the man at the top of the ticket.

Anaya is undoubtedly counting on a lot of this kind of voting. If he gets enough of it, he will be in.

The deciding factor this year, as this writer sees it, comes down to this — an element which favors neither of the two candidates:

How many Hispanics go into the polling place and say, "He's a son-of-a-bitch, but he's our son-of-a-bitch" and push the Toney Anaya lever; and how many Anglos go behind the curtain and say, "We're not gonna have another one of THEM in the Roundhouse for another 20 years."

This year's gubernatorial election in New Mexico could well be decided on who has the most prejudiced supporters.

Not a pretty picture, but there it is.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

Council Under Fire
On Tuesday, October 12, 1982, city council had one heck of a meeting. During this meeting on city affairs, about 50% of the discussion was over newspaper articles targeted at council members, some by the people and some by the paper itself. Even one by council members taking pot shots at each other.

The first attack was upon councilman Frank Sayner. Frank if your challenge to me was genuine, then our end result will far outweigh any criticism heaped upon you. All will see this and know your word is true as I strongly believe it is.

Another article was brought up by Councilman Al Junge. It dealt with my methods of communication to the public about council and Parks and Recreation meetings. It was said by Mr. Junge that I was not yet mature in my tactics toward political issues such as P & R.

My answer to this is simple, my tactics are not political, therefore they seem to you to be haphazard. Mr. Junge I am an experienced person in business for my limited life span so far, and I have an acute eye for human needs which qualifies me as somewhat of a psychologist, not psychiatrist mind you, but one with a humanistic business attitude. As a businessman, and an energetic one at that, I know you can't wait until next year for decisions to be made or a good DEAL might slip away. (P & R)

Mayor White and Al Junge showed our young people how to treat one another in their dispute about news articles directed at each other. You taught us to point out our neighbors' faults, and then, do our best to embarrass them in the public's eye.

Gentlemen, we all have received criticism from the newspaper as well as encouragement, let's welcome such reactions, they let us know our efforts are not wasted and the public will be informed on what's happening around them.

I'm not writing this article to step on anyone's toes, but to wake us up to the fact that when operating a city, people are not business inventory and must be handled differently than machinery. Mr. Junge I know your platform was based on running Ruidoso like a business just don't forget what your inventory really is!

In a final note I would like to say that Ruidoso is very lucky to have a newspaper that is more concerned about what's going on here in this town rather than depressing us with national death statistics and a faltering economy. The various controversial points brought out in the paper promote community concern and allows interaction to exist. It is one good way to reach a lot of people and all you need is pen and paper!

My thanks goes out to all persons concerned with the Parks and Recreation issue. Thanks for your support in whatever capacity it might be. I urge you to keep abreast of all issues and let our councilmen know your interests.

Thanks,
Dave Anderson

Dear editor:

We have just recently had the pleasure of taking our young soccer team up to Ruidoso for a game with the Ruidoso Tornado. This was our second trip and we hope to make it a semi-annual match. The kids and parents had a great time on both visits. Ruidoso has an excellent soccer program and very fine officials.

We understand the league is in need of coaches and officials. What a fine way to be a great service to the community and its children! Perhaps an article and a picture or two once during the season could help their efforts. Our game results are published once a week which has made a very big hit with the soccer fans in Las Cruces.

As for our seasonal match with the Ruidoso Tornado, we are 0 for 2. That however, will change next time. We hereby issue a challenge to you to send a team here for a match.

Thank you very much for your time. I do hope you print this for your local soccer fans to read.

Pete Ryan, Coach
Astro Lancers
Las Cruces

Dear editor:

The parade this year was one of the best ever! Pretty much just home town folks with a few neighbors as guests. The way it should be. With one exception.

I thought the float, "The Best Little Whorehouse in Ruidoso" was, if not just plain immoral, was extremely distasteful. The ladies carrying the banner "Down With Evil" was a slap in the face to those of us who still consider morality of extreme importance. The remarks made by the "ladies" walking alongside of the float were not appreciated.

Our parade is to be a family affair, and while I can translate "Whorehouse" into "Warehouse" this year, I won't be able to get away with it next time around.

The chamber informed me they had no idea who the people were, (just residents) or what their float would be. I would suggest, they form a screening committee for the entries next year. I know as a Christian I do not stand alone in my feelings about this matter and surely our town as a whole does not condone such an "enterprise." Let's not leave open for ruin one of the few events left that the children in all of us can appreciate and enjoy with our own children.

Sincerely,
Mady Holstein

Dear editor:

An Open Letter to:
The Stormy Edwards, Mimi Osbourns, Ken Greens, Mac McDougals, Barry Morgans of the world.

If there is one thing I hate, it's a poor winner. For three straight years I've suffered the indignities of orange (burnt orange of course) crepe paper wrapped around the front door of my business, phone calls late in the evening telling me the score until I was nauseated. Talk all winter long as to who had the best team. My dogs have snapped at my ankles as I passed through my living room, looking at me as if it were my fault.

When I die, I know I'm going to heaven, because I've listened to Longhorn fans for so these many years.

Needless to say, I would never stoop to anything so low as to gloat over a victory. I wouldn't say Saturday's game was the game of the century — maybe just the decade.

To show that I am not a sorry winner, I must conclude by saying Oklahoma 28 - Texas 22 and two final words — Boomer Sooner.

POLICE: 257-7365

FIRE: 257-7365

Ruidoso firemen were in the schools last week stressing fire prevention and awareness of fire dangers to schoolchildren.

One thing firemen encouraged students to do is memorize the telephone number to call in case of fire, 257-7365.

It occurred to us that if the number was written out and taped to the telephone, it could serve two purposes.

First, it would be there when needed for emergencies. Second, it would probably be memorized in no time by family members who would see it each time they use the phone.

So we invite you to take a pair of scissors, cut the police and fire phone number from the newspaper, and tape it to your telephone.

257-7365. You've probably about got it memorized already.

Be sure your children do, too.—TP

On the Village Beat

with
Tim Palmer

The present village council has been in office for about seven months now. And for about seven months, the council has been divided.

Trading of accusations and insults has enlivened several meetings. While meetings like the one last week make "good copy," and are entertaining in a perverse sort of way, I doubt that they help the council do its job any better.

A look back through the files at reports on meetings and actions of the council enabled me to trace the history of the present body, relationship-wise.

At an organizational meeting March 15, new mayor George White told his colleagues, "I would hope and pray we have cooperation with the mayor and the rest of the council from here on in. Let petty jealousies, petty ideas somebody may have, be cast aside."

How's that for an example of dashed hope and unanswered prayer?

On Thursday, March 18, George told The News that "by law the mayor hires, fires and supervises personnel."

On Tuesday, March 23, Don Dale was named to fill the vacant seat created by White's election as mayor. Also, Frank Sayner read a prepared statement decrying a "state of confusion" caused by White's role in personnel. Sayner reported that entire village departments were talking of walkouts, and that morale was "poor, poor."

"We are going to have several years of poor government if this friction continues," commented Benny Coulston.

On April 8, White walked out of an executive (closed) session of the council at which purchase of land for the proposed Grindstone reservoir was discussed. A tenuous conciliation between White and the others was made later in the meeting, after the doors were opened.

White acknowledged the village personnel ordinance, passed at the last meeting of the previous council, neutralized his role in personnel. "It's taken my powers away from me," he admitted.

Al Junge told the mayor he (White) had not been too smart since the election. "The voters were not entitled to all the problems they have had," said Junge.

April 27, the name of Ruidoso's governing body was officially changed from board of trustees to council. Junge had previously referred to the change as a "prestige deal." I wonder if the council will have any prestige left at all when the mudslinging stops—if it does.

Also on April 27, the council set July 6 as the date of a special election on an $8 million water capital improvements program—to be financed with a $2 million general obligation bond issue and a $6 million revenue bond issue.

At a special meeting June 2, water board member Newt Page recommended to the council that a moratorium be placed on an annexation until completion of the Grindstone dam. The council refrained from doing so, with Junge saying, "I think you're going to have to trust the council to keep tight rein on this thing."

On June 15, Mayor White announced his opposition to the bond issues. He cited the council's refusal to place a moratorium on annexation, despite the recommendation of Page and Planning and Zoning Commission chairman John Schuller.

George took a self-righteous stance, pointing out that he had gone on record the year before with a promise to campaign actively against any bond issues for water system expansion unless development was curtailed.

Until then, George had been very quiet since being chastised. My thinking at the time was that opposing the bond issues was at least partly his way of saying, "I'm still here, and I'm going to swing some political clout and show you so-and-so's."

On July 6, the bond issues passed easily. Things were pretty quiet for a while, but when Junge's indiscretions at village hall came to light, White took the opportunity to comment on them. This led to last week's "bloodletting" as one observer called it.

There is one pertinent question that arises from all this: Does the feuding and division hurt the effectiveness of the governing body?

"No, I don't think so," said Don Dale when I asked him. The council is plugging right along on its projects, he noted. "Needless to say, I don't like to see the quarrel go on," he added.

"I haven't noticed any adverse effect," said Benny Coulston. "I guess two people can disagree."

Both men also commented on White's refusal to attend the pre-meeting study sessions as long as they are held in the small council room—a position that caused Junge to assert that the mayor is not even on the council.

Dale said he is neither for nor against keeping the study sessions in the small room, and that he will go along with the wishes of the majority.

"The mayor is always an integral part of any governing body," said Dale, indicating that he would like to see more participation on George's part in council matters.

"I wish the mayor would come," said Coulston. "It would keep him more aware of what the other four gentlemen are thinking."

"Yes and no," he answered when asked if he favors keeping the study sessions in the small room. Benny feels the informal, "round-table" atmosphere in the small room is conducive to dealing with routine items on the agenda.

But knowing George, he will stick by his guns. I could have used this space to go over the accomplishments of the present council, which are numerous. But the positive things the council is doing are diminished by the fussing and fighting. I hope, as Junge said the other night, that he and George can bury the hatchet, and not in each other. Of course, if Al hadn't prefaced the wish by putting George down for 15 minutes, it might be easier to do.

"They always treat me nice."

Ted Bennett is owner of Bennett's Deli and Meat Market, one of the few independent grocery stores in Ruidoso.

Ted banks at Security Bank because he likes our people. "Everybody — from the tellers to my lending officer, Wayne MacGuffin — is always very helpful," he says.

Ted originally came to Security Bank for help with a loan. He was so satisfied that he opened a commercial account. And just recently, we provided financing so Ted could remodel his store.

He says, "I like to keep my customers happy. And I like a bank that tries to keep me happy."

We'd like to help you with all of your banking needs. Call Wayne MacGuffin at Security Bank of Ruidoso. 257-4611.
