NO. 47 IN OUR 37TH YEAR

RUIDOSO, LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO 88345

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1982

Officials, candidate comment on airport study

Elected officials and one candidate were queried about the fate of Sierra Blanca Airport now that a study has found aviation and agriculture incompatible at the preferred airport site on Fort Stanton Mesa. The consensus is that efforts to work out an agreement between Lincoln County communities and New Mexico State University (NMSU), which conducts agricultural experiments on the mesa, should continue.

"I do not think that (the study) is the coup de grace," said Representative Joe Skeen. "It does not shoot the thing in the head."

A team from the National Academy of Sciences (NAS) conducted a $50,000 study earlier this year to determine whether the NMSU experiments and the proposed regional airport can coexist. The office of Senator Harrison Schmitt released the finding of the study—that they cannot coexist on the preferred site, Site B—Monday.

Schmitt told The News Tuesday he will continue to support local efforts to find a site for a new airport, and said the second preferred site on Fort Stanton mesa, Site A, should be considered.

"I think the airport commission and the people of the area have to decide if they are going to renew the request for acquisition of that site (B)," said Schmitt. He suggested that with the study—which he termed a reasonably independent assessment of the value of NMSU research—in hand, the airport commission should take another look at other sites, particularly Site A.

If the commission still finds Site B preferable, Schmitt said, the next step will be to see if the political process would allow acquisition of Site B. Cost has been cited as a major drawback to Site A, as a significant amount of earth moving would be necessary to construct an airport there.

"That's a study, and it's not law. It's not cut in stone as far as what we'll do down there," gubernatorial candidate John Erick stated Tuesday.

Irick said a look will have to be taken at the whole situation to see what can be done as far as persuading the NMSU board of regents and others within the university of the viability of an airport on the mesa.

He added that he still feels as he did before—that Fort Stanton Mesa is the place for the airport—and "we'll act accordingly." Irick noted he has "grave reservations" about the notion that taking several hundred acres out of a 26,000-acre tract would damage the greater area for research.

Skeen expressed hope that the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission (SBAC) and the university can come to an agreement, but said efforts to reach one will have to be done "very delicately and with finesse."

The university, the congressman noted, needs to be convinced that an airport near their experiments is to their benefit as well as the county's. He pointed out that agricultural experimental stations in other parts of the country have much better access by air, and that an airport would thus help the work of the university on Fort Stanton Mesa.

"People want to come and see the work you're doing," he explained.

Skeen stated that funding construction of the airport remains a big concern, even if the site situation were resolved. "I think it all has to go as one," he said, noting that it would gain little to solve the site problem without a commitment of funds for building.

He said research into possible state and federal sources of funds would be advisable. Skeen was asked if he plans to continue to work on the Sierra Blanca Airport situation.

"I've already been very active in it and I certainly intend to maintain a high level of activity in the future," he replied.

"I'll support the community in whatever they decide to do," said Schmitt. He pointed out that backing of state officials, notably the governor, can make the difference in the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) agreeing to allow some of the land on the mesa to be used for an airport.

"The question is—will the responsible state officials support the airport commission in their request," said Schmitt. He indicated a willingness to serve as a mediator if such a request is resubmitted.

The News put calls in to gubernatorial candidate Toney Anaya and senatorial candidate Jeff Bingaman but did not hear from the candidates. The newspaper was unable to contact congressional candidate Caleb Chandler.

The Sierra Blanca Airport Commission meets today to discuss what to do next in light of the NAS study result. Commission chairman Fred Heckman predicted they will seek a political solution—"one way or another."

"The time for studies and delays is over," said Heckman. He noted that the result of the study came as no surprise, paraphrasing its finding, "if there's concrete on the ground, grass won't grow."

"We're not talking facts, we're talking politics," Heckman added.

It appears SBAC will regroup and huddle with its supporters in Washington, while hoping that the new governor will back their efforts at the state level.

Then at some future point, the university must be dealt with, and Skeen sees this as the key to resolving the matter. But he reemphasized the need to handle things carefully.

"We get ourselves bogged down fighting one another," the congressman remarked.

THE DELPHIAN TRIO, composed of (from left) William Leland, Rosemary Silversteen and James Fittz, hams it up prior to its performance this Saturday at the Inn of the Mountain Gods. The chamber music concert, co-sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce cultural committee and New Mexico State University music department, will begin at 7 p.m. and is free of charge to the public.

Bond question near resolution?

Village manager Jim Hine expressed hope Wednesday that the confusion over Lincoln County's bonding classification and its possible effect on the village's sale of water bonds can be cleared up next week.

He hopes the state Supreme Court will hold a hearing on the matter Wednesday in Santa Fe, Hine said.

The confusion was brought on by reclassification of the county from Class C to Class B. If the effective date of the change has already passed, it would invalidate Ruidoso's special election on water bonds in July, as municipalities in Class B counties are ineligible for the special gross receipts tax for water improvements which voters approved.

The village manager and village attorney Lee Huckstep traveled to the capital Friday to confer with the Department of Finance and Administration. Also present were Darrel Fowler of Stern Brothers, the village's bonding agent; Brian McCabe of Suttin, Thayer and Browne, a law firm specializing in bond opinions; and John Conway, an attorney retained to represent the village before the Supreme Court.

Hine said the village asked state Finance and Administration Secretary Kay Marr if her department would support the village or take a neutral position if the matter. He said the department was sympathetic but noncommittal, and that he planned to check back with her today.

A series of letters from the state to the county and village was recounted by Hine. On March 5, county board of commissioners chairman T. P. McKnight was notified of the change in classification.

As the change raises salaries of county employees, commissioners were able to take it into account in budgeting for the new fiscal year. They understood the change would become effective January 1, 1983, however, Hine said.

The village went ahead with the July special election, not knowing the reclassification could affect its right to assess the special tax. On July 15, Hine received a letter from Finance and Administration thanking him for sending in results of the election.

On August 26, another letter informed him that the state planned to notify local businesses that it would begin collecting the tax January 1, 1983.

Then on October 15, Hine was informed by the state that the special election was not held correctly and the Bureau of Revenue was refusing to collect the tax, which would eventually retire $6 million in revenue bonds for water improvements.

This prompted the village council to retain Conway and have him seek a writ of mandamus from the state Supreme Court, which would result in the state agreeing the election was valid and collecting the tax.

If the Supreme Court agrees to hold a hearing Wednesday, Hine will travel to Santa Fe.

"Of all times for this to happen," commented the village manager, "when the bond market is the best it's been in three years."

Water issue in 152-acre Grindstone annexation

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

One of the issues in the cities of today that has polarized residents into clear-cut divisions is the question of growth.

And tied intimately to growth in the arid Southwest is the availability of water. Few people argue against water being of crucial importance when considering municipal expansion in this part of the country, but opinions range widely when persons are asked who is to supply the water, where it will come from and who will ultimately pay for it.

The Grindstone Canyon Resort Community annexation request is slated to come before the Ruidoso council Tuesday, and it will be the first case before the present council of whether to bring new development into village limits.

Councilman Benny Coulston said the council has to consider more than water. "The council will have to look at the total presentation and look at how it (Grindstone) fits into the scheme of things," he noted.

Coulston did not single out water as the primary element of the annexation issue, mentioning that water availability was never a "big item in years past," but he noted that water will have to be considered in planning criteria at some point in time.

That is precisely what Planning and Zoning Commission (P&Z) chairman John Schuller has asked the council for guidance on.

On September 24, the commission unanimously approved the annexation request from Grindstone developer Don Dorman, and sent its recommendation to the council. Approved was annexation of 152 acres in the 300-acre resort community. The approval carried with it designations for single and multi-family residential zones and commercial zones.

The overall design for the development—which is planned to surround the proposed 1,000-acre-foot Grindstone reservoir located south of the main post office—calls for a mix of single-family housing, condominiums, apartments, commercial enterprises, community recreational facilities and conference facilities. Housing is estimated to total 652 units.

After P&Z okayed the annexation, Schuller sent a letter to Mayor George White in which he noted that planning criteria to judge annexations are inadequate because water is not included. But he added that information from the village Water Board now gives the village figures to work with concerning water.

Schuller wrote: "It is my opinion that the Grindstone Annexation and any other potential annexation should first be required to present the necessary water rights to the village before requesting annexation."

Schuller explained this week why he wrote the letter.

"I never could understand why water was not a problem concerning P&Z," he said. "It is one of the most crucial things to planning of this community. Water should never become an exception to planning—it should be a part of it."

Members of the planning commission echo Schuller's sentiment. In a separate letter to the council, the commission pointed out Grindstone met all current criteria required for annexations, but that "conclusive evidence was presented at the hearing, clearly indicating that the Village does not at this time have rights to ... water resources to adequately supply new annexations ..."

The water figures given P&Z were arrived at by the Water Board and Boyle Engineering, consultants to the village. Dividing the amount of water produced over the past three years by the number of house units in the village, the board determined that four house units have used one acre foot of water per year.

As of last May, the board said present housing units and already approved units total 7,418, but that the present water system would support 7,180.

The board also noted that residential lots that have been platted (approved) but not yet built on total 6,831, and if 50 percent of the lots are used for building, an additional 3,415 would be added to the village for a total of 10,833 housing units.

The board determined that even with the planned Grindstone reservoir full and on line, the water system could support 10,100 housing units. Therefore, assuming the rate of building estimated by the board brings the total to 10,833 by the end of the decade, the board said the system would be overloaded by more than 700 residences.

Water issue in 152-acre Grindstone annexation

Taking those figures, the board projected the impact of the Grindstone annexation on the water supply.

According to a graph presented P&Z by water board chairman C. Newton Page, the number of housing units in the portion of Grindstone to be annexed is 321—or three percent of the village total. Page estimated that the units would require 60 acre feet of water to supply annually.

Page also divided that requirement into the 730 acre feet in effluent credit that is now lost downstream. Grindstone reservoir was approved by voters in July so the village can begin to impound that unused water. Page estimated that that meeting the annexation's water needs would require 11 percent of that effluent credit. Put in another way, he said that percentage calculates into a value of $880,000 of the $8 million Grindstone water project.

Based on the projections for the end of the decade, the Water Board recommends to the village that all new annexations be required to bring in the necessary water rights to support planned housing at a rate of one acre foot per four housing units.

Grindstone developer Dorman questions the board's figures. He believes that commercial buildings have not been taken into account in the calculations, and that this would show that more users are consuming water than the "four units to one acre foot" contended by the board.

According to Dorman, that would mean the system could supply more users than the water board, whose figures leave out commercial users, projects.

Dorman also feels that relating use for Grindstone to the water bond issue is a "cheap shot" taken at him, because, he said, "it is irrelevant whether my property is annexed or not—the money will be spent on the project anyhow."

But Page said the water board made its projections before he knew of the Grindstone development, and he believes the council eventually will have to look at water when considering growth.

In a letter to the trustees (council) dated February 1982, Page recommends that growth be limited, and that "costs of obtaining additional water rights and supplies be borne fully by the additional growth areas." He also suggests that annexations be required to bring in sufficient water rights.

Asked Monday if it is feasible for developers to acquire rights for transfer to the village, Page replied that individuals can purchase rights as easily as a municipality. He noted that cities have the power to condemn rights, but he said it is preferable to "put the monkey on the back of the guy who is trying to (annex). It relieves the city of the burden.

"The city's not in the business of expanding and making a profit," Page added. "All the city can do is supply services."

Page also mentioned that requiring developers to bring in water is done in Taos, Aztec, Farmington, Belen and Espanola; which he said is proof the state engineer does not frown on such laws.

A spokeswoman at the Taos public works department said her town does indeed require developers to transfer sufficient water rights to the village to supply the areas to be annexed. Janet Martinez said the law was passed in 1978 because of severe water problems in the town.

Not only does the law apply to annexations, she said, but it extends to anybody wishing municipal water hookups within the town.

Martinez said the town requires transfer at the rate of four-tenths of an acre foot per house. She also noted that Taos has approved at least one annexation since the law was enacted.

Concerning individual acquisition of water rights, Alto Village developer Don Blaugrund said, "It is my feeling you can't develop without water."

Blaugrund, whose 1,200-acre development is outside village limits, has been acquiring water rights since the mid-1960s, and he said he now has over 500 acre feet of rights to supply some 400 houses in the development and a golf course.

"I didn't do anything until I had water," Blaugrund said. But he acknowledges buying water rights is complicated, and becomes more expensive as more buyers chase fewer rights.

Ruidoso Water Corporation member Dan Swearingin agrees. The non-profit corporation was established by the council to search for rights in this river basin. Swearingin said the body has not met and thus has not yet pursued additional rights, but he contends individuals would have "real serious problems" getting rights.

Swearingin, who is an appraiser and real estate analyst, notes that Ruidoso has the power of eminent domain and thus can condemn rights for the benefit of the community. But he said he does a lot of condemnation work, and that it is a "very expensive way of acquiring property."

Swearingin said the difficulty in obtaining water rights adds a dimension of cost to a development that should be considered, but he agrees some measures have to be taken to keep growth within the water supply. He thinks an alternative to achieving a "balance" between development and available water could be controls on issuing water meter connections.

Water Board member Bill Karn also sees limiting meters as a way to control growth. He said that by charging a high amount for water meters, the village could designate the extra money for water rights purchases.

But Karn says a preferable method would be to increase the utility expansion charge (UEC) and to make it more equitable. The UEC is levied on all new construction to be connected to the water and sewer systems. The rates are $200 for a single-family house lot, $500 for a multi-family residential lot and $300 for commercial lots.

Karn thinks the rates "put growth on the backs of residents," because house owners are charged $200, while a multi-family lot, which could contain several condominium units, is charged $500. Karn also notes that P&Z regulations do not stipulate the size of a commercial lot and thus, he contends, several businesses could locate in a development with commercial zoning, and the entire area would be charged $300.

"You could literally annex the United States of America and pay for only one (commercial) lot," he said.

Karn estimates the UEC for the entire Grindstone development would be $17,800, which is considerably less than what he thinks should be levied on Dorman to expand utilities and to go toward purchase of water rights to supply the area.

In the Grindstone case, Karn suggests that the village deduct the cost for purchase of the reservoir acreage from the $880,000 Page estimates the annexation will cost the village in terms of the water project's cost.

In other words, Karn's recommendation is for the village to annex and supply water to the Grindstone development in return for acquiring the reservoir land free from Dorman. In addition, he suggests Dorman pay the balance of the $880,000 to be applied toward purchase of water rights.

In a final comment, Karn noted the water ordinance states that the burden of growth should not be put on the backs of residents. The ordinance reads that the council "has determined that expansion of the water supply system and the sewage (system) to premises not presently served is not a cost which can be justifiably charged to present customers."

Developer Bill McCarty thinks if municipal charges to new developments continue to increase, the village will be able to attract only "elite" buyers.

"The ultimate end is the price of the finished product," McCarty said. "The customer is the one ending up paying for it. The more rules and regulations you pass, the more the cost to the buyer."

McCarty is the developer of the last area to be annexed. He said he paid a $84,000 UEC for 80 single-family lots and 271 multi-family units included in the development, which is called White Mountain

Meadows.

Coulston points out that the development has been annexed in September 1981 and that only a handful of structures have been constructed thus far. Referring to the rate of construction in that area, Coulston disagrees with the Water Board's estimate that 50 percent of the approved lots in the village will be built on by 1990.

Councilman Al Junge also questions that figure. He said, "I'm not totally convinced that the Water Board figures are sacrosanct." He added the council should have another study done on the projected housing, because the board's calculations are the only the village has to go by.

Junge also commented on a statement he made in July in a published letter. In that letter, he wrote: "The present Council has no intention of annexing additional developments unless the availability of water permits."

Junge said because the letter was written several months ago, he does not know if his remarks still stand. But, he indicated that does not mean he no longer believed that water availability should be considered in annexation requests.

Whatever the council decides Tuesday in its deliberations on Grindstone, it is clear that part of the annexation issue is the water situation.

In a final comment, Page said, "One function of the Water Board is to analyze and look for additional water rights. One thing that worries us is we don't want to reduce those rights. We don't want to reduce the availability for present residents."

Chamber wraps up Aspen Festival business

by BILLY ALLSTETTER Staff Writer

The Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce wrapped up Aspen Festival business at a meeting Wednesday and planned to send a letter to both gubernatorial candidates asking for their stands on an airport on Fort Stanton Mesa.

Chamber president Morgan Clough opened the meeting by reading a letter from Clark Carpenter, on behalf of the Ruidoso Lodgers Association, congratulating the Chamber for "a job well done in providing last weekend's 'business booster.'" "It was a big success. We really feel proud of it," said Joan Bailey during her report on the Chili Cookoff. Although the event lost money, all members felt the event had gone extremely well for its first year.

Expenses for the cookoff were $10,320 with income totaling $6,074. There is $2,740 worth of inventory that can be used next year, however.

Bailey said she felt confident that $700 of the $1,606 loss could be recouped from the Lodgers Tax because it was spent on advertising.

Compliments were given to Ron Hemphill, Jim Paxton and Bill Braudi for their excellent organization and production of the games at the cookoff.

Chamber executive director Ed Jungbluth also wanted members to know what a fine job Al Potter and Paul Crown had done in providing beautiful trophies at a cost barely above the price of their materials.

Aspen Festival committee chairman Richard Sandoval said, "I think everything that took place was a success." He called the parade "the best one we have ever had."

The bowling tournament was cancelled because of lack of interest, he said, and there are no plans to schedule it for next year.

The tractor pull was missed, however, and Sandoval said he hopes they can arrange to have one in the future.

A discussion about next year's scheduling followed the summary reports. The general consensus of the board was to try to extend the festival over a longer period next year.

Dates for the Arabian Horse Show, motorcycle festival and mule races are already set. The Arabian Horse Show will be September 16, 17 and 18. The motorcycle festival is scheduled for September 28 through October 2 with the Mule Races planned for the weekend after, October 7-9.

Plans are for the chili cookoff to be either the weekend right before or after the Arabian Horse Show.

No dates were established for the tractor pull or parade. It was noted that many of the people attending the motorcycle festival missed the parade this year. Jungbluth said that Police Chief Dick Swenor told him that he would be willing to provide escorts to lead a procession of motorcyclists through town if the Aspen Festival parade was not held during the motorcycle festival.

Jungbluth said the Retail Merchants Committee will discuss the subject at its next meeting and that he hopes the dates can be set as soon as possible so that production of the events can begin.

Sandoval reported that the executive officers felt it proper for president Morgan Clough to write a letter to both gubernatorial candidates asking for their stands on an airport on the Fort Stanton Mesa. In light of the recent findings by a National Academy of Scientists panel that New Mexico State University research on the mesa could not coexist with a regional airport, the Chamber board agreed that it was important to know the candidates' stands and let them know that it is an important issue to the community.

In other business, the board: —Approved the budget report that showed a $6,677 deficit for September; a $8,750 surplus for the year; and a $25,751 fund balance.

—Listened to a preliminary budget proposal for the Chamber's Jeep Party submitted by Jungbluth. Jungbluth said Jerry Bigham had agreed to stage the party at Jerry Dale's. There will be a barbecue, cocktails, country western music and a CJ-5 Jeep given away at the party. The board agreed to set prices for the drawing tickets at $100 and sell 200 of them.

Jungbluth said he planned to have invitations printed and in the mail before Thanksgiving.

—Decided to continue to employ part-time help at the Chamber even though it was not a budgeted item because of the large number of people who visit the Chamber Saturdays.

Ed Jungbluth attends state conference

by BILLY ALLSTETTER Staff Writer

Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce executive director Ed Jungbluth returned from the New Mexico Chamber of Commerce Executives Association (NMCCCEA) conference in Los Alamos last weekend with a guide for small businessmen and tentative plans for a legislative clinic at Santa Fe in February.

Jungbluth, this year's president of the NMCCCEA, said the pamphlet included "everything you need to know at the state level to go into business." The guide includes information about licenses, permits, taxes, insurance and sources of other information.

The pamphlet was prepared by NMCCCEA in conjunction with the Small Business Administration. Jungbluth said the Ruidoso Chamber will add an insert of municipal codes and requirements to the state information already provided.

"We are very proud of this. I think it's a real nice piece of information," said Jungbluth.

The NMCCCEA also made tentative plans for a legislative clinic that business people from all over the state could attend during the next legislative session in Santa Fe.

The clinic would be a one-day event that Jungbluth hopes will include a round-table discussion with state legislators and New Mexico's representatives in Washington.

Jungbluth said the clinic would provide an opportunity for business people to come to the capital and participate in the legislative process on a ground roots level.

During the conference Jungbluth attended a workshop on tax requirements and how to handle an audit, but he said that much of the time during the three-day conference was unscheduled to allow a more informal "idea exchange" between directors of the chambers around the state.

He said that he spent more of his time advising others on subjects such as fund raising and membership drives but added that he also learned plenty at the conference.

This Friday there will be a board meeting of the NMCCCEA in Ruidoso to discuss business that was not taken care of at the meeting last week.

RBA considering spring event

by BILLY ALLSTETTER Staff Writer

Tom Dorgan, recently named president of the Ruidoso Businessmen's Association (RBA), called the first Ruidoso Motorcycle Festival a complete success and asked for ideas for next year's festival as well as ideas for another off-season event in the spring.

Dorgan said he received lots of feedback from people who enjoyed the festival and said they were "made to feel very welcome by the community." He added that many volunteered to act as ambassadors for the RBA, recruiting bikers for next year's festival at other motorcycle rallies throughout the year.

The business community and the Chamber of Commerce were both invaluable help, Dorgan said, thanking those groups. He said he was very impressed with the quality as well as the quantity of contingency gifts donated by local businesses.

One disappointment to many of the festival participants this year was that there was no parade for them to watch and participate in, he noted. He indicated RBA will try to cooperate with the Chamber to either schedule the regular parade during the motorcycle festival or have a parade of its own.

The RBA is in contact with Ed Youngblood of the American Motorcycle Association (AMA) and is applying to become an AMA-sanctioned event next year, Dorgan said.

The festival earned enough money this year to have several thousand dollars to begin next year's promotion, he commented, as opposed to starting with nothing as they did this year.

"It could approach what Aspencade has been in the past," Dorgan said.

Dorgan announced the RBA is open to any interested party in the community who wants to help. He said the RBA is looking for anybody with promotional ideas for another off-season event the RBA could promote in the spring.

Interested persons should call Dorgan at his home or the Incredible or Nancy Radziewicz at the West Winds Motel.

Dramatic improvement in Spencer Seals after treatment by doctor in Greece

by BILLY ALLSTETTER Staff Writer

"I really felt like if he kept going like he was he wouldn't have lasted a month," said Donny Seals of his three-year-old son Spencer, who was suffering from cancer last April. "He just looked terrible."

Today, Spencer is an active, rosy-cheeked child who plays contentedly as his parents tell the story of their abandonment of American medicine and success with a Greek scientist.

In March, Spencer complained of a stomach ache. His mother, Judy, stayed up with him two nights, thinking he had appendicitis. A local doctor examined him and found nothing wrong.

Spencer continued to suffer stomach pains and passed blood in his urine. The Seals' had meanwhile moved to Midland, Texas. At United Methodist Hospital in Lubbock, Texas, Spencer underwent an intravenous pyelogram (IVP)—radioactive dye injected into his veins for X-rays. Doctors found a Wilms' tumor on Spencer's kidney that was malignant and cancerous.

Doctors said cancer had also invaded his liver and lymph glands. They gave the child a 10 percent chance of living more than two years. They recommended surgery to remove the tumor.

An eight-inch by four-inch, 18-ounce tumor was removed surgically along with Spencer's kidney March 16. After surgery, Spencer underwent eight chemotherapy and 11 radiation treatments.

The surgery and subsequent treatments were very hard on the boy, forcing him to move in and out of the hospital a couple of times for dehydration and weight loss. It was about this time that Spencer's parents began to wonder if their doctors had the best answers. They had heard about a doctor in Greece who had a tremendous success rate with cancer patients. Friends and friends of friends had been treated successfully by the man.

They sent a blood sample to Dr. Heriton Alivizatos in Athens, Greece, on April 1. Results of Alivizatos' blood tests showed Spencer had a 7.7 cancer cell rating on a one-to-10 scale. Alivizatos said everybody has some cancer cells in the body but below 2.5 is normal and healthy. Above 8.5 is too much for the doctor to promise any real hope of recovery, the Seals' explained.

It was at that point that Donny Seals thought his boy was going to die if something different were not done. Judy Seals said they

he was so weak."

They made arrangements for flights and treatment through Baron Travel Agency in Fresno, California (the company that handles all Alivizatos' American patients), and left for Athens April 28. They stayed three weeks while Spencer received 17 injections.

"We don't know what was in the injections and I don't care," said Donny Seals of the doctor's secret formula.

He said the doctor refuses to give out his formula until it is recognized as a valid weapon against cancer. Alivizatos told the Seals' the ingredients are simple things you can find in most kitchens.

The Seals' do know that the injections include a number of vitamins among their ingredients. There is a lot of vitamins C, A and niacin. The vitamin A stimulates the thymus gland to produce more disease-fighting white blood cells, said Judy Seals.

The doctor also prescribed a strict diet the whole family has been following since. The diet emphasizes eating fresh foods and avoiding three elements that Alivizatos believes cancer cells thrive on: acid, salt and alcohol. Spencer also has to stay away from milk products because the cancer had invaded his liver.

Within two weeks of the treatments in Greece, his parents could see a real change in Spencer's health. His mother said all of a sudden he had more energy and wanted to eat protein, something he had not wanted before. He gained weight and his cheeks became rosy again.

"He had more energy than he needed and he's been that way ever since," said Donny Seals. Donny saw Spencer go from a child who was too weak to walk to pushing his younger sister around the hotel lobby in her stroller.

Many of the 90 other Americans receiving injections at the same time said they had not expected Spencer to live when they first saw him, and could not believe the change in his health.

The Seals' returned to Texas with instructions to maintain the strict diet and send Alivizatos a blood sample in three months.

Upon their return they took Spencer back to their doctor in Lubbock, who admitted the boy looked great and seemed healthy. According to the Seals, he wasn't ready to give credit to Alivizatos for Spencer's cure, however, and suggested that the radiation treatments must have done some good.

The Seals' sent a sample of Spencer's blood to Greece October 1 and learned three days later that his cancer rating had dropped to 2.5, or normal for healthy people.

"We're just real tickled he's doing so well," said Donny Seals. Seals said the whole family is feeling better since they have adopted Spencer's diet.

The Seals' also wanted to express a "special thank you to the people we haven't told and don't even know." He said he is very thankful to all the people who supported them in their decision to go to Greece, and to people who didn't even know Spencer who dropped money into the Friends of Spencer boxes around Ruidoso.

The trip cost $8,500 dollars on top of the already staggering medical bills here in the United States. Donny Seals said he did not know how much had been donated locally but that they received $6,200 dollars from supporters here and in Texas. Without that money it would have been tremendously difficult to make the trip abroad, he noted.

Fortunately for Spencer, they did make the trip. As Donny Seals said, "I don't feel like he'd be alive if we hadn't taken him over."

HAPPY AND HEALTHY. Spencer Seals, who was suffering from cancer and too weak to walk earlier this year, is now an active and healthy three-year-old.

DECA seafood, steak sale starting

The Ruidoso High School DECA (Distributive Education Clubs of America) chapter is again sponsoring its semi-yearly Truckload Seafood Sale. Many new items, including steaks, will be available for the first time during this sale. Proceeds from the seafood and steak sale will be used to finance the local club's participation at the State Leadership Conference in Albuquerque in January.

Seafood available at the sale includes sea bass, red snapper and cod fillets; walleye, sole and hake; pink Alaska and red Alaska salmon steaks; halibut and swordfish steaks; shrimp, including small cooked, tiger, jumbo, extra large and breaded fantail; king crab and snow crab; whole salmon; whole trout; lobster tails; scallops; frog legs; clams; oysters; smoked salmon or halibut and seafood batter mix.

Steaks available are boneless mini-steaks, T-bones, rib-eyes, Delmonico, top sirloin and boneless strip loin steaks.

Prices on the seafood orders range from $2.95 per pound to $14.50 per pound. Steaks are sold by the box, with prices ranging from $15.70 to $28.70.

Pre-orders can be made until November 3, by calling Eddie Parker, DECA sponsor, at 287-7324 or 378-4684. Order forms are also available at Gibson's, Safeway, Ben Franklin and from any DECA member. Orders will be delivered by the Alaska-

Pacific truck Friday, November 12, and can be picked up at Gibson's parking lot any time from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Seafood and steaks can also be purchased directly from the truck without a pre-order.

The DECA chapter will receive more money from orders placed early, however, so everyone is encouraged to pre-order.

All the seafood and steaks are top quality, Parker noted, with satisfaction unconditionally guaranteed.

The Ruidoso News annual ski insert is being readied for distribution as soon as Sierra Blanca Ski Resort opens.

The deadline for advertising to be included in the issue is Thursday, November 11.

For information and advertising rates, telephone 257-4001 and ask for Carmen Edwards or Judy Frost.

The insert will be included with the regular edition of The News when it is released, with additional distribution scheduled during the peak of the ski season to acquaint skiers with Ruidoso's attractions and services.

PEOPLE

REHEARSALS are continuing for the upcoming Ruidoso Little Theater production, "The Penultimate Problem of Sherlock Holmes," scheduled to open November 12 at the Inn of the Mountain Gods. In this scene, (from right) Sherlock Holmes (played by Dan Barrow), Mrs. Hudson (played by Lois Grushka) and Dr. Watson (played by Bill Knox) are somewhat skeptical yet interested in the tales of Monsieur Dupin (played by Carl Mori), a French detective.

RLT cast brings experience to play

Ruidoso Little Theater (RLT) is currently in the midst of rehearsals for its latest production, "The Penultimate Problem of Sherlock Holmes."

The play will open November 12 at the Inn of the Mountain Gods, as a dinner theater, and will continue through November 13, 14 and 19-21.

Several of the cast members have a surprising amount of theatrical experience. Carmon Phillips plays the part of Professor Moriarty, a central figure in many of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's tales of Sherlock Holmes. Phillips is the owner of the Old Mill Curio Shop and is a longtime resident of Ruidoso.

He acted professionally years ago and is delighted with his present role as Moriarty. Phillips said, "... it has a lot of meat on it."

Carl Mori plays Monsieur Dupin, a French detective of the 1800s. Mori is also known for his area musical productions and has appeared in several previous RLT plays. This is his first serious role, however, others having been more farcical.

Other cast members include Dan Barrow as Sherlock Holmes; Bill Knox as Dr. Watson; Lois Grushka as Mrs. Hudson; Chris Schneider as Inspector Lastrade; Kathy Schneider as Mrs. Piper; Donna

Bruss as Irene Adler; Eric Berg as an English gentleman; Hap Hanson as Dr. Phinuit; and Brenda Pate as Ellen Watson. Betty Bennett is directing the play. RLT is seeking donations of furniture and clothing to add to its permanent collection.

Immediate needs for the set of the new play are vintage furniture and clothing fitting with the middle to late 19th century. Anyone wanting to make a donation may call Cindy Donley at 257-7115 or 258-4043.

Old-fashioned box supper being sponsored by Booster Club

The Ruidoso High School Warrior Booster Club will host an old-fashioned box supper party at 7 p.m. Saturday in the school cafeteria.

All women and girls in the community can make a boxed supper for two, decorate the box and bring it to the gym before 6:30 p.m.

Games like pinning a feather on a Warrior coach and bobbing for apples will be played. Party-goers will also have a chance to throw a pie at the coaches.

The money raised will be used to purchase uniforms for the Warriors.

Several local businesses have donated prizes for the affair. Any merchant who wishes to donate prizes can contact Carol Carter at 257-2966.

Speech, hearing clinic set

Has your pre-school age child had his hearing checked? Do you sometimes wonder if he or she hears you? What about your child's speech and language?

Ruidoso schools and the Sertoma Club are sponsoring a hearing, speech and language checkup day for area pre-schoolers Tuesday, November 2, at White Mountain Middle School.

The checkups are free. They are recommended for children whose parents have concerns in the areas of hearing, speech and language or just want to be sure there is no problem.

Further information and appointment times are available from Karen Tillman at 258-4150 or Sandy Gladden at 257-7324. A bilingual examiner will be on hand November 2.

Covenant Players to present sermon

The Covenant Players will present a traditional sermon with a new application Sunday, October 24, at 9 a.m. at the United Methodist Church in Capitan.

Using the tradition of Christ's parables and the medieval church's use of stories, the Covenant Players will use a new application of presenting the sermon through drama chosen specifically for the congregation.

The two players who will visit Capitan Sunday are one of 68 full-time touring groups of the International Repertory Group that has performed in 18 countries around the world in its 16 years of operation. They have stirred and challenged people to take a closer look at themselves and the practice of their faith.

Capitan honor roll announced

Capitan High School has announced its honor rolls for the first six weeks of the fall term.

Twelfth graders Sherril Aldaz and Robert Parker; 11th graders Dean Shear and Shelly Stowe; ninth grader Stephanie Stowe; eighth grader Katherine Sanchez; and seventh graders Larry Butcher, Stefanie McKinney and Mike Shanks all made the straight "A" honor roll, for which a grade of 90.0 in each class is required.

Eleventh graders Rebecca Barber and Glynn Story; 10th graders Shelly Eldridge, Tiffani Huey, Audrey Joiner, Kay Meador and Laciue Salazar; ninth grader Becky Huey; eighth grader Jeremy Howe; and seventh graders Paula McClain, Chad Reynolds, Kateri Sanchez and Travis York

all made the "A" honor roll, for which an average of 90.0 or above and no grade below 85.0 is required.

Twelfth graders David Beavers and Paul Sullivan; 11th graders Danny Cummins, Kennetta LaMay, Dorraine Morris and Jamie Bussey; 10th graders Pete Hauster, Tammy Dean, Shamaria LaRue, Kelly Marr, Jay McClain and Bobbi Rogers; ninth graders Kimberly Cox, Naomi Fritz, Valerie Garner, Leslie Guck, Jed Hall, Yvonne Montes and Rachel Wilson; eighth graders Jay Eldridge, Ronald Joiner, Mike Luna, John Parker, Ronnie Sanchez and Anthony Stewart; and seventh grader Brenda Griego made the "B" honor roll, for which an average above 85.0 with no grade below 80.0 is required.

Dramatic musical program to be presented next week

A special dramatic musical presentation, "The King of Glory," will be presented at 7 p.m. Friday, October 29, at the La Paz Room of the Holiday Inn, sponsored by Mountain Christian Fellowship.

The program will be presented by Edward Vigil and Jeanne Smith of Roswell Miracle Cathedral. Smith recently released a record album, "The Way of Love."

"The King of Glory" is a story told in song, scripture and commentary on the scriptures. Two stories—the beginning of Jesus Christ's ministry and its final week—are told in parallel, coming together at the last supper.

Special music and sound effects are employed.

The public is invited to attend this special presentation.

Big game meat requested by Boy Scouts

Hunters who would like to donate big game meat for the Boy Scouts Big Game, Beef and Fish Bar-B-Q can call 257-7730, 578-4708 or 257-7361 for information, or ask any Boy Scout.

Also, the deadline for ordering fruitcakes from the Boy Scouts in time for Thanksgiving is November 5. Information is available from Linda at 258-4169 or 257-5184 or from any Boy Scout.

Extension Club to meet Wednesday

The Ruidoso Hondo Valley Extension Club will meet at noon Wednesday, October 27, at the Ruidoso Public Library multi-purpose room for a covered dish dinner.

Mary Ellen Payne will present the program, "Christmas Ideas."

In the Service

Navy Aviation Electrician's Mate 3rd class Christopher L. Lynn, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Walters of Ruidoso, recently deployed to the Western Pacific.

Lynn is a member of Fighter Squadron 213, based at the Naval Air Station Miramar in San Diego, California.

During the deployment the squadron will be embarked aboard the aircraft carrier USS Enterprise. Lynn's Squadron flies the Navy's most sophisticated fighter, the F-14 "Tomcat."

Port visits are scheduled for several Far Eastern and Indian Ocean ports.

Grandson born

Bill and Peggy Taylor announced that they are the proud new grandparents of Parker Joseph Hayden, who was born to Ray and Rhonda Taylor of Evanston, Wyoming, Thursday, October 14, at 4:30 a.m. in Evanston. Parker Joseph weighed five pounds, 13 ounces at birth.

Obituaries

Mary E. Mixon

Mary E. Mixon, 66, died October 14 in Alamogordo. She was born August 14, 1916, at Ballinger, Texas.

Survivors include her husband Donald E. Mixon of Ruidoso; sons Larry C. Mixon of Alamogordo and Stanley E. Mixon of Salt Lake City, Utah; sisters Mazie Mixon of Tulsa, Oklahoma, Joyce Davidson of Dallas, Texas, Dorothy Daugherty of Las Cruces, Rena Fay Longlois of San Angelo, Texas, and Frances Knight of El Paso, Texas; brothers Franklin Knight of Roswell and Edwin Knight of California; three grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Services were October 18 at Roswell. Interment was October 18 at Forest Lawn Cemetery, Ruidoso.

Water issue in 152-acre Grindstone annexation

Taking those figures, the board projected the impact of the Grindstone annexation on the water supply.

According to a graph presented P&Z by water board chairman C. Newton Page, the number of housing units in the portion of Grindstone to be annexed is 321—or three percent of the village total. Page estimated that the units would require 80 acre feet of water to supply annually.

Page also divided that requirement into the 730 acre feet in effluent credit that is now lost downstream. Grindstone reservoir was approved by voters in July so the village can begin to impound that unused water. Page estimated then that meeting the annexation's water needs would require 11 percent of that effluent credit. Put in another way, he said that percentage calculates into a value of $880,000 of the $8 million Grindstone water project.

Based on the projections for the end of the decade, the Water Board recommends to the village that all new annexations be required to bring in the necessary water rights to support planned housing at a rate of one acre foot per four housing units.

Grindstone developer Dorman questions the board's figures. He believes that commercial buildings have not been taken into account in the calculations, and that this would show that more users are consuming water than the "four units to one acre foot" contended by the board.

According to Dorman, that would mean the system could supply more users than the water board, whose figures leave out commercial users, projects.

Dorman also feels that relating use for Grindstone to the water bond issue is a "cheap shot" taken at him, because, he said, "it is irrelevant whether my property is annexed or not—the money will be spent on the project anyhow."

But Page said the water board made its projections before he knew of the Grindstone development, and he believes the council eventually will have to look at water when considering growth.

In a letter to the trustees (council) dated February 1982, Page recommends that growth be limited, and that "costs of obtaining additional water rights and supplies be borne fully by the additional growth areas." He also suggests that annexations be required to bring in sufficient water rights.

Asked Monday if it is feasible for developers to acquire rights for transfer to the village, Page replied that individuals can purchase rights as easily as a municipality. He noted that cities have the power to condemn rights, but he said it is preferable to "put the monkey on the back of the guy who is trying to (annex). It relieves the city of the burden.

"The city's not in the business of expanding and making a profit," Page added. "All the city can do is supply services."

Page also mentioned that requiring developers to bring in water is done in Taos, Aztec, Farmington, Belen and Espanola; which he said is proof the state engineer does not frown on such laws.

A spokeswoman at the Taos public works department said her town does indeed require developers to transfer sufficient water rights to the village to supply the areas to be annexed. Janet Martinez said the law was passed in 1978 because of severe water problems in the town.

Not only does the law apply to annexations, she said, but it extends to anybody wishing municipal water hookups within the town.

Martinez said the town requires transfer at the rate of four-tenths of an acre foot per house. She also noted that Taos has approved at least one annexation since the law was enacted.

Concerning individual acquisition of water rights, Alto Village developer Don Blaugrund said, "It is my feeling you can't develop without water."

Blaugrund, whose 1,200-acre development is outside village limits, has been acquiring water rights since the mid-1960s, and he said he now has over 500 acre feet of rights to supply some 400 houses in the development and a golf course.

"I didn't do anything until I had water," Blaugrund said. But he acknowledges buying water rights is complicated, and becomes more expensive as more buyers chase fewer rights.

Ruidoso Water Corporation member Dan Swearingin agrees. The non-profit corporation was established by the council to search for rights in this river basin. Swearingin said the body has not met and thus has not yet pursued additional rights, but he contends individuals would have "real serious problems" getting rights.

Swearingin, who is an appraiser and real estate analyst, notes that Ruidoso has the power of eminent domain and thus can condemn rights for the benefit of the community. But he said he does a lot of condemnation work, and that it is a "very expensive way of acquiring property."

Swearingin said the difficulty in obtaining water rights adds a dimension of cost to a development that should be considered, but he agrees some measures have to be taken to keep growth within the water supply. He thinks an alternative to achieving a "balance" between development and available water could be controls on issuing water meter connections.

Water Board member Bill Karn also sees limiting meters as a way to control growth. He said that by charging a high amount for water meters, the village could designate the extra money for water rights purchases.

But Karn says a preferable method would be to increase the utility expansion charge (UEC) and to make it more equitable. The UEC is levied on all new construction to be connected to the water and sewer systems. The rates are $200 for a single-family house lot, $500 for a multi-family residential lot and $300 for commercial lots.

Karn thinks the rates "put growth on the backs of residents," because house owners are charged $200, while a multi-family lot, which could contain several condominium units, is charged $500. Karn also notes that P&Z regulations do not stipulate the size of a commercial lot and thus, he contends, several businesses could locate in a development with commercial zoning, and the entire area would be charged $300.

"You could literally annex the United States of America and pay for only one (commercial) lot," he said.

Karn estimates the UEC for the entire Grindstone development would be $17,800, which is considerably less than what he thinks should be levied on Dorman to expand utilities and to go toward purchase of water rights to supply the area.

In the Grindstone case, Karn suggests that the village deduct the cost for purchase of the reservoir acreage from the $880,000 Page estimates the annexation will cost the village in terms of the water project's cost.

In other words, Karn's recommendation is for the village to annex and supply water to the Grindstone development in return for acquiring the reservoir land free from Dorman. In addition, he suggests Dorman pay the balance of the $880,000 to be applied toward purchase of water rights.

In a final comment, Karn noted the water ordinance states that the burden of growth should not be put on the backs of residents. The ordinance reads that the council "has determined that expansion of the water supply system and the sewage (system) to premises not presently served is not a cost which can be justifiably charged to present customers."

Developer Bill McCarty thinks if municipal charges to new developments continue to increase, the village will be able to attract only "elite" buyers.

"The ultimate end is the price of the finished product," McCarty said. "The customer is the one ending up paying for it. The more rules and regulations you pass, the more the cost to the buyer."

McCarty is the developer of the last area to be annexed. He said he paid a $64,000 UEC for 80 single-family lots and 271 multi-family units included in the development, which is called White Mountain

Meadows. Coulston points out that the development was annexed in September 1981 and that only a handful of structures have been constructed thus far. Referring to the rate of construction in that area, Coulston disagrees with the Water Board's estimate that 50 percent of the approved lots in the village will be built on by 1990.

Councilman Al Junge also questions that figure. He said, "I'm not totally convinced that the Water Board figures are sacrosanct." He added the council should have another study done on the projected housing, because the board's calculations are the only the village has to go by.

Junge also commented on a statement he made in July in a published letter. In that letter, he wrote: "The present Council has no intention of annexing additional developments unless the availability of water permits."

Junge said because the letter was written several months ago, he does not know if his remarks still stand. But, he indicated that does not mean he no longer believes that water availability should be considered in annexation requests.

Whatever the council decides Tuesday in its deliberations on Grindstone, it is clear that part of the annexation issue is the water situation.

In a final comment, Page said, "One function of the Water Board is to analyze and look for additional water rights. One thing that worries us is we don't want to reduce those rights. We don't want to reduce the availability for present residents."

Chamber wraps up Aspen Festival business

by BILLY ALLSTETTER
Staff Writer

The Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce wrapped up Aspen Festival business at a meeting Wednesday and planned to send a letter to both gubernatorial candidates asking for their stands on an airport on Fort Stanton Mesa.

Chamber president Morgan Clough opened the meeting by reading a letter from Clark Carpenter, on behalf of the Ruidoso Lodgers Association, congratulating the Chamber for "a job well done in providing last weekend's business booster." "It was a big success. We really feel proud of it," said Joan Bailey during her report on the Chili Cookoff. Although the event lost money, all members felt the event had gone extremely well for its first year.

Expenses for the cookoff were $10,320 with income totaling $6,074. There is $2,740 worth of inventory that can be used next year, she felt.

Bailey said she felt confident that $700 of the $1,606 loss could be recouped from the Lodgers Tax because it was spent on advertising.

Compliments were given to Ron Hemphill, Jim Paxton and Bill Braudt for their excellent organization and production of the games at the cookoff.

Chamber executive director Ed Jungbluth also wanted members to know what a fine job Al Potter and Paul Crown had done in providing beautiful trophies at a cost barely above the price of their materials.

Aspen Festival committee chairman Richard Sandoval said, "I think everything that took place was a success." He called the parade "the best one we have ever had."

The bowling tournament was cancelled because of lack of interest, he said, and there are no plans to schedule it for next year.

The tractor pull was missed, however, and Sandoval said he hopes they can arrange to have one in the future.

A discussion about next year's scheduling followed the summary reports. The general consensus of the board was to try to extend the festival over a longer period next year.

Dates for the Arabian Horse Show, motorcycle festival and mule races are already set. The Arabian Horse Show will be September 16, 17 and 18. The motorcycle festival is scheduled for September 23 through October 2 with the Mule Races planned for the weekend after, October 7-9. Plans are for the chili cookoff to be either the weekend right before or after the Arabian Horse Show.

No dates were established for the tractor pull or parade. It was noted that many of the people attending the motorcycle festival missed the parade this year. Jungbluth said that Police Chief Dick Swenor told him that he would be willing to provide escorts to lead a procession of motorcyclists through town if the Aspen Festival parade was not held during the motorcycle festival.

Jungbluth said the Retail Merchants Committee will discuss the subject at its next meeting and that he hopes the dates can be set as soon as possible so that production of the events can begin.

Sandoval reported that the executive officers felt it proper for president Morgan Clough to write a letter to both gubernatorial candidates asking for their stands on an airport on the Fort Stanton Mesa. In light of the recent findings by a National Academy of Scientists panel that New Mexico State University research on the mesa could not coexist with a regional airport, the Chamber board agreed that it was important to know the candidates' stands and let them know that it is an important issue to the community.

In other business, the board: —Approved the budget report that showed a $6,677 deficit for September; a $6,750 surplus for the year; and a $25,751 fund balance.

—Listened to a preliminary budget proposal for the Chamber's Jeep Party submitted by Jungbluth. Jungbluth said Jerry Bigham had agreed to stage the party at Jerry Dale's. There will be a barbecue, cocktails, country western music and a CJ-5 Jeep given away at the party. The board agreed to set prices for the drawing tickets at $100 and sell 200 of them.

Jungbluth said he planned to have invitations printed and in the mail before Thanksgiving.

—Decided to continue to employ part-time help at the Chamber even though it was not a budgeted item because of the large number of people who visit the Chamber Saturdays.

Ed Jungbluth attends state conference

by BILLY ALLSTETTER
Staff Writer

Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce executive director Ed Jungbluth returned from the New Mexico Chamber of Commerce Executives Association (NMCEA) conference in Los Alamos last weekend with a guide for small businessmen and tentative plans for a legislative clinic at Santa Fe in February.

Jungbluth, this year's president of the NMCEA, said the pamphlet included "everything you need to know at the state level to go into business." The guide includes information about licenses, permits, taxes, insurance and sources of other information.

The pamphlet was prepared by NMCEA in conjunction with the Small Business Administration. Jungbluth said the Ruidoso Chamber will add an insert of municipal codes and requirements to the state information already provided.

"We are very proud of this. I think it's a real nice piece of information," said Jungbluth.

The NMCEA also made tentative plans for a legislative clinic that business people from all over the state could attend during the next legislative session in Santa Fe.

The clinic would be a one-day event that Jungbluth hopes will include a round-table discussion with state legislators and New Mexico's representatives in Washington.

Jungbluth said the clinic would provide an opportunity for business people to come to the capital and participate in the legislative process on a ground roots level.

During the conference Jungbluth attended a workshop on tax requirements and how to handle an audit, but he said that much of the time during the three-day conference was unscheduled to allow a more informal "idea exchange" between directors of the chambers around the state.

He said that he spent more of his time advising others on subjects such as fund raising and membership drives but added that he also learned plenty at the conference.

This Friday there will be a board meeting of the NMCEA in Ruidoso to discuss business that was not taken care of at the meeting last week.

RBA considering spring event

by BILLY ALLSTETTER
Staff Writer

Tom Dorgan, recently named president of the Ruidoso Businessmen's Association (RBA), called the first Ruidoso Motorcycle Festival a complete success and asked for ideas for next year's festival as well as ideas for another off-season event in the spring.

Dorgan said he received lots of feedback from people who enjoyed the festival and said they were "made to feel very welcome by the community." He added that many volunteered to act as ambassadors for the RBA, recruiting bikers for next year's festival at other motorcycle rallies throughout the year.

The business community and the Chamber of Commerce were both invaluable help, Dorgan said, thanking those groups. He said he was very impressed with the quality as well as the quantity of contingency gifts donated by local businesses.

One disappointment to many of the festival participants this year was that there was no parade for them to watch and participate in, he noted. He indicated RBA will try to cooperate with the Chamber to either schedule the regular parade during the motorcycle festival or have a parade of its own.

The RBA is in contact with Ed Youngblood of the American Motorcycle Association (AMA) and is applying to become an AMA-sanctioned event next year, Dorgan said.

The festival earned enough money this year to have several thousand dollars to begin next year's promotion, he commented, as opposed to starting with nothing as they did this year.

"It could approach what Ascencade has been in the past," Dorgan said.

Dorgan announced the RBA is open to any interested party in the community who wants to help. He said the RBA is looking for anybody with promotional ideas for another off-season event the RBA could promote in the spring.

Interested persons should call Dorgan at his home or the Incredible or Nancy Radziewicz at the West Winds Motel.

DECA seafood, steak sale starting

The Ruidoso High School DECA (Distributive Education Clubs of America) chapter is again sponsoring its semi-yearly Truckload Seafood Sale. Many new items, including steaks, will be available for the first time during this sale.

Proceeds from the seafood and steak sale will be used to finance the local club's participation at the State Leadership Conference in Albuquerque in January.

Seafood available at the sale includes sea bass, red snapper and cod filets; walleye, sole and hake; pink Alaska and red Alaska salmon steaks; halibut and swordfish steaks; shrimp, including small cooked, tiger, jumbo, extra large and breaded imitation; king crab and snow crab; whole salmon; whole trout; lobster tails; scallops; frog legs; clams; oysters; smoked salmon or halibut and seafood batter mix.

Steaks available are boneless mini-steaks, T-bones, rib-eyes, Delmonico, top sirloin and boneless strip loin steaks.

Prices on the seafood orders range from $2.95 per pound to $14.50 per pound. Steaks are sold by the box, with prices ranging from $15.70 to $25.70.

Pre-orders can be made until November 3, by calling Eddie Parker, DECA sponsor, at 267-7224 or 378-4884. Order forms are also available at Gibson's, Safeway, Ben Franklin and from any DECA member. Orders will be delivered by the Alaska-

Pacific truck Friday, November 12, and can be picked up at Gibson's parking lot any time from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Seafood and steaks can also be purchased directly from the truck without a pre-order.

The DECA chapter will receive more money from orders placed early, however, so everyone is encouraged to pre-order.

All the seafood and steaks are top quality, Parker noted, with satisfaction unconditionally guaranteed.

The deadline for advertising to be included in the issue is Thursday, November 11.

For information and advertising rates, telephone 257-4001 and ask for Carmen Edwards or Judy Frost.

The insert will be included with the regular edition of The News when it is released, with additional distribution scheduled during the peak of the ski season to attract skiers with Ruidoso's attractions and services.

Dramatic improvement in Spencer Seals after treatment by doctor in Greece

by BILLY ALLSTETTER
Staff Writer

"I really felt like if he kept going like he was he wouldn't have lasted a month," said Donny Seals of his three-year-old son Spencer, who was suffering from cancer last April. "He just looked terrible."

Today, Spencer is an active, rosy-cheeked child who plays contentedly as his parents tell the story of their abandonment of American medicine and success with a Greek scientist.

In March, Spencer complained of a stomach ache. His mother, Judy, stayed up with him two nights, thinking he had appendicitis. A local doctor examined him and found nothing wrong.

Spencer continued to suffer stomach pains and passed blood in his urine. The Seals had meanwhile moved to Midland, Texas. At United Methodist Hospital in Lubbock, Texas, Spencer underwent an intravenous pyelogram (IVP)—radioactive dye injected into his veins for X-rays. Doctors found a Wilms' tumor on Spencer's kidney that was malignant and cancerous.

Doctors said cancer had also invaded his liver and lymph glands. They gave the child a 10 percent chance of living more than two years. They recommended surgery to remove the tumor.

An eight-inch by four-inch, 18-ounce tumor was removed surgically along with Spencer's kidney March 16. After surgery, Spencer underwent eight chemotherapy and 11 radiation treatments.

The surgery and subsequent treatments were very hard on the boy, forcing him to move in and out of the hospital a couple of times for dehydration and weight loss.

It was about this time that Spencer's parents began to wonder if their doctors had the best answers. They had heard about a doctor in Greece who had a tremendous success rate with cancer patients. Friends and friends of friends had been treated successfully by the man.

They sent a blood sample to Dr. Heriton Alivizatos in Athens, Greece, on April 1. Results of Alivizatos' blood tests showed Spencer had a 7.7 cancer cell rating on a one-to-10 scale. Alivizatos said everybody has some cancer cells in the body but below 2.5 is normal and healthy. Above 8.5 is too much for the doctor to promise any real hope of recovery, the Seals' explained.

It was at that point that Donny Seals thought his boy was going to die if something different were not done. Judy Seals said they he was made arrangements for flights and treatment through Baron Travel Agency in Fresno, California (the company that handles all Alivizatos' American patients), and left for Athens April 28. They stayed three weeks while Spencer received 17 injections.

"We don't know what was in the injections and I don't care," said Donny Seals of the doctor's secret formula.

He said the doctor refuses to give out his formula until it is recognized as a valid weapon against cancer. Alivizatos told the Seals' the ingredients are simple things you can find in most kitchens.

"The Seals' do know that the injections include a number of vitamins among their ingredients. There is a lot of vitamins C, A and niacin. The vitamin A stimulates the thymus gland to produce more disease-fighting white blood cells, said Judy Seals.

The doctor also prescribed a strict diet the whole family has been following since. The diet emphasizes eating fresh foods and avoiding three elements that Alivizatos believes cancer cells thrive on: acid, salt and alcohol. Spencer also has to stay away from milk products because the cancer had invaded his liver.

Within two weeks of the treatments in Greece, his parents could see a real change in Spencer's health. His mother said all of a sudden he had more energy and wanted to eat protein, something he had not wanted before. He gained weight and his cheeks became rosy again.

"He had more energy than he needed and he's been that way ever since," said Donny Seals. Donny said Spencer go from a child who was too weak to walk to pushing his younger sister around the hotel lobby in her stroller.

Many of the 90 other Americans receiving injections at the same time said they had not expected Spencer to live when they first saw him, and could not believe the change in his health.

The Seals' returned to Texas with instructions to maintain the strict diet and send Alivizatos a blood sample in three months.

Upon their return they took Spencer back to their doctor in Lubbock, who admitted the boy looked great and seemed healthy. According to the Seals, he wasn't ready to give credit to Alivizatos for Spencer's cure, however, and suggested that the radiation treatments must have done some good.

The Seals' sent a sample of Spencer's blood to Greece October 1 and learned three days later that his cancer rating had dropped to 2.5, or normal for healthy people.

"We're just real tickled he's doing so well," said Donny Seals. Seals said the whole family is feeling better since they have adopted Spencer's diet.

The Seals' also wanted to express a "special thank you to the people we haven't told and don't even know." He said he is very thankful to all the people who supported them in their decision to go to Greece, and to people who didn't even know Spencer who dropped money into the Friends of Spencer boxes around Ruidoso.

The trip cost $8,500 dollars on top of the already staggering medical bills here in the United States. Donny Seals said he did not know how much had been donated locally but that they received $5,200 dollars from supporters here and in Texas. Without that money it would have been tremendously difficult to make the trip abroad, he noted.

Fortunately for Spencer, they did make the trip. As Donny Seals said, "I don't feel like he'd be alive if we hadn't taken him over."

HAPPY AND HEALTHY. Spencer Seals, who was suffering from cancer and too weak to walk earlier this year, is now an active and healthy three-year-old.

RLT cast brings experience to play

Ruidoso Little Theater (RLT) is currently in the midst of rehearsals for its latest production, "The Penultimate Problem of Sherlock Holmes."

The play will open November 12 at the Inn of the Mountain Gods, as a dinner theater, and will continue through November 13, 14 and 19-21.

Several of the cast members have a surprising amount of theatrical experience. Carmon Moriarty plays the part of Professor Moriarty, a central figure in many of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's tales of Sherlock Holmes. Phillips is the owner of the Old Mill Curio Shop and is a longtime resident of Ruidoso.

He acted professionally years ago and is delighted with his present role as Moriarty. Phillips said, "... It has a lot of meat on it."

Carl Mori plays Monsieur Dupin, a French detective of the 1800s. Mori is also known for his area musical productions and has appeared in several previous RLT plays. This is his first serious role, however, others having been more farcical.

Other cast members include Dan Barrow as Sherlock Holmes; Bill Knox as Dr. Watson; Lois Grushka as Mrs. Hudson; Kris Schneider as Inspector Lastrade; Kathy Harrison as Mrs. Piper; Donna

Bruss as Irene Adler; Eric Berg as an English gentleman; Nap Hanson as Dr. Phinuit; and Brenda Pace as Ellen Watson. Betty Bennett is directing the play. RLT is seeking donations of furniture and clothing to add to its permanent collection.

Immediate needs for the set of the new play are vintage furniture and clothing fitting with the middle to late 19th century. Anyone wanting to make a donation may call Cindy Donley at 257-7115 or 258-4043.

Old-fashioned box supper being sponsored by Booster Club

The Ruidoso High School Warrior Booster Club will host an old-fashioned box supper party at 7 p.m. Saturday in the school cafeteria.

All women and girls in the community can make a boxed supper for two, decorate the box and bring it to the gym before 6:30 p.m.

Games like pinning a feather on a Warrior coach and bobbing for apples will be played. Party-goers will also have a chance to throw a pie at the coaches.

The money raised will be used to purchase uniforms for the Warriors.

Several local businesses have donated prizes for the affair. Any merchant who wishes to donate prizes can contact Carol Carter at 257-2865.

Speech, hearing clinic set

Has your pre-school age child had his hearing checked? Do you sometimes wonder if he or she hears you? What about your child's speech and language?

Ruidoso schools and the Sertoma Club are sponsoring a hearing, speech and language checkup day for area pre-schoolers Tuesday, November 2, at White Mountain Middle School.

The checkups are free. They are recommended for children whose parents have concerns in the areas of hearing, speech and language or just want to be sure there is no problem.

Further information and appointment times are available from Karen Tillman at 258-4150 or Sandy Gladden at 257-7324. A bilingual examiner will be on hand November 2.

Covenant Players to present sermon

The Covenant Players will present a traditional sermon with a new application Sunday, October 24, at 9 a.m. at the United Methodist Church in Capitan.

Using the tradition of Christ's parables and the medieval church's use of stories, the Covenant Players will use a new application of presenting the sermon through drama chosen specifically for the congregation.

The two players who will visit Capitan Sunday are one of 68 full-time touring groups of the International Repertory Group that has performed in 18 countries around the world in its 16 years of operation. They have stirred and challenged people to take a closer look at themselves and the practice of their faith.

EDWARD VIGIL, HIS WIFE LAURA AND JEANNE SMITH

REHEARSALS are continuing for the upcoming Ruidoso Little Theater production, "The Penultimate Problem of Sherlock Holmes," scheduled to open November 12 at the Inn of the Mountain Gods. In this scene, (from right) Sherlock Holmes (played by Dan Barrow), Mrs. Hudson (played by Lois Grushka) and Dr. Watson (played by Bill Knox) are somewhat skeptical yet interested in the tales of Monsieur Dupin (played by Carl Mori), a French detective.

Capitan honor roll announced

Capitan High School has announced its honor rolls for the first six weeks of the fall term.

Twelfth graders Sherril Dean Shear and Robert Parker; 11th graders Alan Sechar and Shelly Stowe; ninth grader Stephanie Stowe; eighth grader Katherine Sanchez; and seventh graders Larry Butcher, Stefanie McKinney and Mike Shanks all made the straight "A" honor roll, for which a grade of 90.0 in each class is required.

Eleventh graders Rebecca Barber and Lynn Story; 10th graders Shelly Eldridge, Tiffant Huey, Audrey Joiner, Kay Meador and Lacie Salazar; ninth grader Becky Huey; eighth grader Jeremy Howe; and seventh graders Paula McClain, Chad Reynolds, Kateri Sanchez and Travis York

all made the "A" honor roll, for which an average of 90.0 or above and no grade below 85.0 is required.

Dramatic musical program to be presented next week

A special dramatic musical presentation, "The King of Glory," will be presented at 7 p.m. Friday, October 29, at the La Paz Room of the Holiday Inn, sponsored by Mountain Christian Fellowship.

The program will be presented by Edward Vigil and Jeanne Smith of Roswell Miracle Cathedral. Smith recently released a record album, "The Way of Love." "The King of Glory" is a story told in song, scripture and commentary on the scripture. Two stories—the beginning of Jesus Christ's ministry and its final week—are told in parallel, coming together at the last supper.

Special music and sound effects are employed.

The public is invited to attend this special presentation.

Big game meat requested by Boy Scouts

Hunters who would like to donate big game meat for the Boy Scouts Big Game, Beef and Fish Bar-B-Q can call 257-7730, 378-4708 or 257-7381 for information, or ask any Boy Scout.

Also, the deadline for ordering fruitcakes from the Boy Scouts in time for Thanksgiving is November 5. Information is available from Linda at 258-4169 or 257-5184 or from any Boy Scout.

Extension Club to meet Wednesday

The Ruidoso Hondo Valley Extension Club will meet at noon Wednesday, October 27, at the Ruidoso Public Library multi-purpose room for a covered dish dinner.

Mary Ellen Payne will present the program, "Christmas Ideas."

In the Service

Navy Aviation Electrician's Mate 3rd class Christopher L. Lynn, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Walters of Ruidoso, recently deployed to the Western Pacific.

Lynn is a member of Fighter Squadron 213, based at the Naval Air Station Miramar in San Diego, California.

During the deployment the squadron will be embarked aboard the aircraft carrier USS Enterprise. Lynn's Squadron flies the Navy's most sophisticated fighter, the F-14 "Tomcat."

Port visits are scheduled for several Far Eastern and Indian Ocean ports.

Grandson born

Bill and Peggy Taylor announced that they are the proud grandparents of Parker Joseph Hayden, who was born to Ray and Rhonda Taylor of Evanston, Wyoming, Thursday, October 14, at 4:30 a.m. in Evanston. Parker Joseph weighed five pounds, 13 ounces at birth.

Obituaries

JUNIOR VARSITY PLAYS AT CHAPARRAL

SPORTS

Ruidoso travels to Wildcat den

by GARY BROWN Sports Writer

Around Sports with Gary Brown

The Ruidoso High School varsity football team will be looking for that elusive first victory of the season when it travels to Deming High School for a 7:30 p.m. game Friday.

Ruidoso, 0-2 in district 3-AAA action and 0-7 overall, is coming off a 30-9 loss to archival Tularosa last week. The Warriors were again hurt by mistakes and inexperience.

"Deming is similar to Tularosa and Cobre," said Ruidoso head coach Darrel Stierwall. "They started out the season with a pro-set offense but have since changed to an I-formation and have done better."

Deming is 1-1 in district action and 2-5 overall. However, the Wildcats' only district loss was to defending champion Silver City by a 48-7 margin last week. Since Silver City is at least as good as it was last year, Deming's ability should not be dismissed because of that defeat.

The Wildcats defeated Tularosa 20-6 in the district opener and have several quality all-district caliber players. Tackle George Wertz, a 230 pounder, is perhaps the best lineman in the district. He was good last year and is even better this season.

Fullback Ernest Wilson is another returnee from last year, and at 175 pounds, combines both speed and power. Kelly Gannaway (160 pounds) is the quarterback. Offensive guard Jesus Montes (185 pounds) and nose guard Kevin Fields (180 pounds) add size to the Deming lineup.

The Warriors don't plan any changes in their offensive and defensive starting lineups this week. A couple of players have minor injuries but should still be able to start.

Senior Billy Woodul is again scheduled to start at quarterback while Grady Williamson will go at wingback, Eric Strobel at halfback and freshman Mark Langston at fullback.

David Swalander will again go at center while Craig Carson and sophomore George Gresham will go at guard. Carson at 175 pounds and Gresham at 180 pounds are the biggest Ruidoso players.

Kip McClellan, Chris Wynn, Robert Swanner, Scott Ciraulo and Kevin Jameson will probably rotate at the two tackle spots. Gary Burgess and Mike Douglass will share the tight end duties while H. R. Lueras, Curtis Palmer and Justin Smith will play at split end.

On defense, Swanner and Burgess should start at end, while sophomore Manuel Montano and Ciraulo will probably go at tackle.

Kyle Flack is scheduled to go at middle linebacker again, Tommy Crow and Strobel will probably share one linebacker spot while Gresham should start on the other side.

Freshman Russell Easter and Cyrus Simmons will go at safety while Mike Williamson, Grady Williamson and David Landrum are scheduled to play at cornerback.

The Warriors' running attack has probably been their strong point this season. Williamson has rushed for almost 300 yards in the past three games and Strobel has scored six touchdowns on the season. Langston ran for 90 yards against Cobre two weeks ago and has shown steady improvement. He has scored two touchdowns this year.

MARK LANGSTON

Woodul has had hard luck passing in the past couple of games as he has had several sure completions dropped. Still, he has a strong arm and has some receivers with good quickness. Palmer, in particular, has shown improvement in the past two weeks.

But the key to a Warrior victory may rest with the defense.

"We'll have to stop their running game," Stierwall said. "They've been a bit more effective with that than their passing. Wilson is a 175 pounder and that's more than any of our running backs weigh."

The Ruidoso junior varsity, also winless, will seek a victory against Chaparral Middle School of Alamogordo on that team's field at 3:15 p.m. today.

Chaparral has 58 players on its roster compared to 20 for the Warriors.

Easter will start at quarterback for the Warrior junior varsity. Brett Maul will probably start at fullback while Mitch Mullican will go at wingback and Randy Reynolds is slated for halfback.

Bobby Dickinson will probably go at tight end while Steve Gonzales and Kerry Jameson will share the split end position. Chip Ramsey and Tony Garcia are slated for tackle while Mark Flack and Kyle Jameson will go at guard. James Herrera will be the center.

Ramsey and Garcia will start at end on defense. Chris Woodul and Herrera will go at tackle while Maul and Kerry Jameson should start at outside linebacker. Dickinson will go at middle linebacker.

The Warrior defensive backfield will probably include David Ordorica, Mike Williamson, Mullican and Tracy Gann.

Against the Roswell ninth graders last week, the Warriors performed well defensively in a 6-0 loss. Only a fumble return for a touchdown in the first two minutes of the game prevented Ruidoso from gaining a tie.

Well, the National Football League (NFL) players' attempt to placate the fans didn't work out.

The first "All-Star" game scheduled to take the place of the regular season games while the players are on strike only sold 8,760 tickets in Washington D.C. Sunday. The actual crowd at the game was less than that.

The game itself, which pitted the American Conference (AFC) Eastern Division All-Stars against the National Conference (NFC) Eastern Division All-Stars, was pretty entertaining. The NFC team took a 23-22 victory and there were plenty of dramatic offensive plays.

But the game really meant nothing. Some players from the AFC Central Division were chosen to play because the two Eastern Division squads didn't have enough players.

Most pro football fans don't care about so-called "All-Star" games. Although a recent survey indicated that about 50 percent of the American people don't care whether or not the players return to their teams soon, most long-time fans still wish the strike would come to an end quickly.

The NFL season gradually builds to a climax by the holiday season and it dominates the media sports coverage at that time. Not even the college football bowl games can equal the excitement and anticipation provided by the NFL playoffs.

More betting is done on NFL games than on any other team sport in this country. The holiday season would seem almost incomplete without pro football.

If the NFL is to be salvaged in any way, the strike will have to end by next week at the very latest. Anything less than 12 games will make the season meaningless.

The presence of mediator Sami Kagel might hasten the end of the strike but he's going to have to move awfully fast.

Both the owners and players seem to be fairly fixed in their ideas of how much the players should get.

What's really frustrating about the whole situation is that both sides had about eight months between the end of the 1981 season and the beginning of this season to work things out.

They didn't, though, and now the pro football fans of America are suffering because of it.

Jimmy Connors may be enjoying his best year of tennis since 1974 but he still hasn't completely grown up.

Connors, competing in the Custom Credit Australian Indoor Tennis Tournament last weekend, was eliminated by Gene Mayer in the semi-finals. Connors complained that the umpire should be replaced because he was making some judgment errors.

The umpire was replaced but Connors still lost the match.

Many tennis followers thought Connors had outgrown that kind of childish behavior but it's obvious he hasn't.

It's funny why professional tennis has so many "crybabies" in its ranks. The sport is demanding and the top players must work long hours to be at their best. In past years, before Connors, John McEnroe and Ilie Nastase came on the scene, there were hardly ever any problems with obnoxious competitors.

For all the talent of the above three players, I'd rather root for someone like Arthur Ashe or John Newcombe. In their finest days, they had both talent and sportsmanship.

Yacht Club to hold benefit fun run

The Rio Grande Yacht and Sporting Club of Albuquerque is sponsoring a four-mile fun run November 7 to benefit the Ronald McDonald House, a home away from home for seriously ill children and their families. The run will begin at 9:30 a.m. at the Yacht Club. The entry fee is $7 and includes a brunch served at the conclusion of the race. Awards will also be presented in five running categories.

For registration information, call the Yacht Club at 243-9590. All proceeds will go to the Ronald McDonald House.

IT'S GOING TO BE A PASS. Ruidoso High School quarterback Billy Woodul (right) gets ready to throw a pass while wingback Grady Williamson blocks in a recent football game. Williamson and Woodul have been big parts of the Warrior offense all season and will be a key part of the Ruidoso offense against Deming Friday night.

Braves dump Tularosa, end season

White Mountain Middle School concluded a very successful football season with a 28-0 shutout of visiting Tularosa Wednesday night at the Ruidoso High School field.

The Braves, who ended the season with a 5-1 mark, dominated the game from the start offensively and defensively.

White Mountain hit the scoreboard for the first time early in the first quarter after Bubba Miller recovered a Tularosa fumble on the visitor's 12.

Three plays later, fullback Billy Harrison ran through the middle for the score from the three. Halfback Jeff Willingham ran the ball over for the two-point conversion and White Mountain held an 8-0 advantage. The Braves added their second touchdown on a 19-yard run by Toby Rue as the first quarter ran out. The run for the conversion was no good but White Mountain still held a 14-0 advantage.

The score stayed the same the rest of the first half as the aggressive Brave defense kept the Wildcats constantly bottled up in its own territory.

White Mountain added its third touchdown in the third period on a six-yard run by Willingham. Some fine running by Willingham and Brian Davis set up the score. Quarterback Kirk Taylor ran the ball on the keeper to the right side for the two-point conversion and the Braves increased their lead to 22-0.

Aaron Von Rosenberg added the final White Mountain touchdown on a four-yard run with 5:23 left in the game. The extra point attempt was no good but the Braves had their final 28-0 margin of victory.

Earlier in the season, White Mountain had beaten Tularosa by a 22-0 score. Terry Wharton, the Braves' head coach, felt his team played better this time.

"We were able to do just about as well with our second and third teams as with our first team tonight," he said. "That's the strongest point about our team."

"I don't know if our talent is any better than last season but we have more depth and overall talent this year."

The Braves lost their opener to Dexter by a 22-0 score before winning the next five contests for a 5-1 record.

Warriors to host tough Tigers

It will be the biggest weekend of the season for the Ruidoso High School varsity volleyball team when it hosts powerful Truth or Consequences (T or C) in a district 3-AAA doubleheader Saturday. The Warriors are 4-2 in district action and 7-4 overall. T or C has just one loss in district play. If one team wins both matches, it will virtually clinch the round-robin title and an automatic berth in the state tournament next month.

The first varsity match will begin at 1 p.m. followed by two junior varsity matches in a row. The second varsity match will conclude the day's activities.

Warrior head coach Elmer Chavez likes his team's chances. "We've got a real good chance," he said. "I like our chances of winning the district title better than anyone's, even if Ruidoso wasn't my team."

T or C has a height advantage over the Warriors with one six-footer in the lineup. Ruidoso's tallest player is 5-8 Claudia Branum. However, the Warriors have some advantages over the Tigers.

"We're quicker and we've got good team play," Chavez commented. "If we beat T or C twice, even if we split with Cobre and Silver City the next week and tied for the title with T or C, we'll win the state tournament and because we would have beaten them twice."

Besides Branum, other Ruidoso players who should start against the Tigers include Lillian Lopez, Lori Morel, Kody Taylor, Dodie Baldonado and either Laura Trapp or Lisa Williams.

The Warriors' bench has improved during the season and should help Ruidoso against T or C.

Ruidoso has defeated Silver City and Cobre and split with Tularosa and Deming in its six district matches.

The Warriors also took third in the Capitan Tournament, losing only to AA division power Dexter.

Ruidoso's junior varsity, although winless in district action, has shown steady improvement.

If Ruidoso finishes second in the district round-robin race, it will get a first round bye in the district playoffs. The district round-robin champion will play the winner of the district playoffs for the overall district title. Both the first and second place teams in the overall standings will advance to the state tournament in Albuquerque.

DAVID ORDORICA of the Las Piedras Boxing Team (LPBT) of Ruidoso will compete in the United States of America Amateur Boxing Federation (USA-ABF) New Mexico championships Friday through Sunday at the Alamogordo City Gym. ## Ordorica peaking for state boxing tournament

David Ordorica of the Las Piedras Boxing Team (LPBT) of Ruidoso will compete in the United States of America Amateur Boxing Federation (USA-ABF) New Mexico championships Friday through Sunday at the Alamogordo City Gym.

Ordorica will fight in the 70 pound division. He won the championship in that weight division at the Silver Cup Tournament in Albuquerque two weeks ago.

The LPBT boxer, who also plays on Ruidoso High School's junior varsity football team as a defensive back, wasn't able to participate in the "Saturday Night at the Fights" competition last weekend at Ruidoso High School because no one was willing to fight him.

However, Ordorica won't have to worry about that happening at the state championships because the fighters must qualify to get to the finals. If there's an odd number of fighters in one weight class, one fighter draws a bye to the next round.

"David has looked real good in practice," said LPBT coach Lucky Mulqueen. "He's ready for the competition."

Friday's first round will begin at 7:30 p.m. while the second round Saturday will start at 7 p.m. and the finals on Sunday begin at 3 p.m.

Colts go for ninth crown, youth soccer teams play

The Colts will go for their third straight Ruidoso Little League Football Major Division championship when they play the Cowboys at 8:30 p.m. Saturday at Ruidoso High School.

The Colts are undefeated this season with a 5-0 league record while the Cowboys have compiled a 3-2 record. The Steelers, with a 1-3-1 mark, will take on the 0-4-1

Broncos in the third place game at 1 p.m. In Minor Division action, the Hornets take on the Lions at noon.

Last weekend the Colts rolled over the Broncos 28-0 and the Cowboys nipped the Steelers 18-12 in overtime to advance to the finals. The Lions topped the Hornets 14-0 in the Minor Division game.

In case of heavy rains and a wet field, the games will probably be changed to White Mountain Middle School.

Youth soccer matches will also be held Saturday at White Mountain Middle School. The first match begins at 10:30 a.m.

One of the top matches last week saw the under-16 Strikers and Celtic battle to a 2-2 draw. In an under-12 match, the Tornados edged the Rowdies 3-2. Mikki Roller scored all three Tornados goals while Eric Collins and Buster Conley scored the Rowdies' goals.

Capitan gridders to host Mountainair tonight in must-win contest

The Capitan High School varsity football team faces a must-win situation when it hosts Mountainair High School at 7:30 tonight.

Capitan, 3-2-1 on the season, must defeat Mountainair and arch-rival Carrizozo next week to have a chance at the A division state playoffs.

The Tigers lost to defending state champion Reserve by a 28-6 score last Friday and have struggled offensively of late.

"We're having a few problems on offense," said Capitan head coach Mel Holland. "However, we had a good practice Monday and we're ready. We're just about ready injury-wise except for Grady (quarterback Grady Lee Eldridge)."

Eldridge has missed four games with a back injury and is probably lost for the season.

Dewey Keller has taken Eldridge's place at quarterback and has done a good job. He threw four touchdown passes in a 39-9 victory over Hagerman earlier in the season.

Other members of the Capitan backfield include fullback John Todd Aguilar, halfback Danny Cummins and flanker Eddie Beavers.

Tackle Todd Proctor and guard Paul Sullivan have been consistent performers in the offensive line. Proctor and Aguilar (at outside linebacker) have been standouts on defense.

Mountainair hasn't done well this season. It lost to Carrizozo by a 47-0 margin last Friday.

"They're having problems," Holland said of Mountainair. "They've got a lot of new kids with not much experience."

NOTES: Texico, a team which beat Capitan 13-0 in the second game of the season, is ranked first in this week's Associated Press A Division state poll. Tatum is ranked second, Reserve third, Carrizozo fourth and Capitan fifth. The Tigers have made the state playoffs the past two seasons, finishing second in 1980 and losing to Texico by a 7-6 margin in the semi-finals last year. Reserve won the title both seasons.

Golf tourney set for week

If enough golfers sign up, the first Lincoln County Golf Championships will be held at Alto Lakes Golf and Country Club and Cree Meadows Country Club Saturday and Sunday.

The tournament was scheduled for last Saturday and Sunday but not enough golfers signed up for it. Several local golfers competed in other tournaments in the area last weekend.

One local golfer, Tommy Hornbuckle, teamed with Carlton Blewett of Roswell to win the second annual General's Cup Golf Tournament championship flight last weekend at New Mexico Military Institute in Roswell.

Only golfers who live in Lincoln County can compete in the tournament. The tournament is sponsored by the Ruidoso Evening Lions and golfers can sign up at either the Alto golf course or Cree Meadows.

What are high school students up to on weekday mornings at 7:30 a.m.? Most are probably getting ready for school, some are possibly even still in bed.

Not the Ruidoso Varsity Cheerleaders! This group of vivacious young ladies has met nearly every morning at 7:30 a.m. since last April to practice chants, cheers and routines.

Visiting one of these early morning practices, one would expect to find sleepy-eyed, yawning girls dragging into the gym and plopping down to rest on the bleachers.

However, with a bounce in each step they enter the room, greeting one another with smiles and laughter. What a breath of fresh air these teenagers are with all their bubblyness and enthusiasm.

After a short discussion concerning that weekend's activities (a pep rally on Friday afternoon, the Warriors' game the same night and the Aspen Festival parade on Saturday), the girls jumped up to practice the cheers and routines they would be executing during the weekend.

With watchful instruction from their sponsors, Sandy Gladden and Maggie Hawthorne, the girls smoothed out the rough edges on each routine and finished up with the polished version of each.

It is apparent that each of these girls has spent a tremendous amount of time practicing and learning to keep in step with all the others.

Following practice, the girls sat down and shared their thoughts on cheerleading, its pros and cons, and their reasons for wanting to be chosen as cheerleaders.

Many of the girls could hardly wait to speak and sometimes two or three spoke at once in their excitement to share their feelings.

It was unanimous that each girl had sought cheerleading for the experience and the fun and to help school spirit and team spirit.

Despite the range of personalities among the 12 of them, the girls feel they have grown close to each other and continue to feel closer each day. Many didn't know the others when they were selected to represent the school and admitted they had a fear of getting along with each other.

One noted that even though problems come up between them, they always get them settled. And all agreed that a problem is best settled if it never gets out of the group.

Sponsor Sandy Gladden asked the girls, "What is the worst thing about being a cheerleader?"

In unison the girls answered, "Bad feelings toward cheerleaders." These bad feelings include the idea that cheerleaders are stuck-up.

Being in the "eye" of the whole student body, the girls face a lot of pressure from their peers. Gladden noted that often when one of the girls does something wrong, the whole group of cheerleaders is chided, or the fact that the girl is a cheerleader is seen as the reason for her actions.

But, as Rachel McCoy stated, "You just can't let it get you down."

So how does cheerleading affect a girl personally? "It's given me more confidence in myself," Terri Candelaria said. With an overwhelming response, several of the girls stated their answers: "I can talk to people better;" "I take school more seriously;" "You're not scared to act crazy;" "You learn to laugh at yourself when you make mistakes."

The Ruidoso Varsity Cheerleaders have a tremendous talent for keeping "up" throughout each game. When asked how they keep their enthusiasm, one of them laughed and said, "she (Sandy Gladden) carries a whip!"

But upon serious consideration each noted that the band's playing and the idea that there is always another game both help them. Also, the girls try to keep each other cheered up.

The girls view their sponsors as "the best." "They're more than sponsors. We feel close to them ..." Dahn Stirman noted. "I feel like I could discuss a personal problem with them."

An air of unity is evident in this group of young girls and their sponsors, who have generously donated time and effort to benefit others.

Gateway Church of Christ strives for unification of Christians

by HARRY GRANT
Staff Writer/Photographer

Gateway Church of Christ, according to its minister Carl Parsons, is "striving to be a New Testament Church."

This means that the church models itself upon New Testament scripture. For example, because there is no mention of instrumental music in the New Testament, all singing in the church is a cappella.

The church also makes a distinction between elders or pastors and ministers, according to New Testament description. Parsons is considered the minister, but he pointed out that he has no more right to perform any religious service than any other member.

The elders are the leaders of the church,

Parsons explained, and chose him to provide preaching services for the congregation. The elders also outlined Parsons' duties as minister, listing his first priority as evangelism.

"The main purpose of the church is to evangelize the world," the minister reported. "As we do that we do other things that are good."

Evangelism involves "simply bringing people to Christ and true conversion," which is accomplished through Bible studies, Parsons explained. He reported that members of the Church of Christ are always willing to set up a schedule of Bible studies, preferably one on one, with anyone who desires to study with them.

Parsons' second priority as minister of the Gateway Church of Christ is to provide sermons and classes for members of the congregation. The schedule of services now includes Sunday morning Bible class at 9:30, with classes for infants through adults; Sunday morning worship service at 10:30; Sunday Bible class for children at 5 p.m.; and Sunday evening Bible study at 8. Wednesdays, there are evening Bible classes for infants through adults, replaced by a devotional service on the second Wednesday of each month. There is also a Ladies' Bible class Wednesdays at 9:30 a.m.

Various elders, deacons and other members of the church help teach several of the classes. "The classes are very beneficial to anyone," Parsons noted. "All services are always open to everybody ... We have nothing to hide; in fact, we have everything to share."

Another priority on the minister's list of duties is hospital and care center visitation. The elders are in charge of leading a Bible study at the Ruidoso Care Center every Monday night and on Friday nights members lead singing there.

Parsons visits hospitalized church members and other patients referred by members. The minister regretted that time does not allow him to visit all the hospitalized patients, but he said other church members go visiting at the hospital when they can.

"I try not to do any more than I have to," Parsons said, "because I want others to learn how to do it." The minister explained that the Bible outlines a specific goal for church leaders, which is "to prepare God's people for works of service."

Parsons said he and the elders and deacons work "to mature the congregation to serve; the less I do, the more they mature to do."

"I basically try to work myself out of a job," Parsons commented.

He has only had the job since January 1980, however, when he moved to Ruidoso from Bloomfield, where he was employed as a journeyman plumber and was preaching part time. Parsons first began preaching as a high school student in Farmington, but later entered college to study engineering.

After one semester at New Mexico State University, Parsons began working as a plumber. After two years of plumbing, he decided to enter the Sunset School of Preaching in Lubbock, Texas. After completing studies there, Parsons was involved in the ministry in Gallup, in Holyoke, Colorado, and in Bloomfield before moving to Ruidoso and Gateway Church of Christ.

When he did begin his service as minister here, the church had a membership of 145, but now lists 195 persons on its membership roll. Parsons attributes this growth in part to the growth in the community overall and also to the fact that the church does have a full-time minister now.

Parsons said that Churches of Christ throughout the country are continuing to grow, although church attendance in general in the United States is on the decline. The minister quoted a recent issue of "U.S. News and World Reports" as saying that commitment to any denomination or religious belief is the lowest it has ever been, at 49 percent.

Parsons believes he understands the causes behind the decline of religious commitment.

"I know other denominations have turned away from the inspiration of scripture," the minister stated. He indicated that this turns away individuals who may be seeking a church affiliation.

The decline in church involvement is also "an outgrowth of materialism," Parsons said. "Man cannot serve God and money," he explained. "People choose a master and a lot of people have chosen money."

The churches which continue to grow are "those that make an emphasis on the inspiration of scripture," Parsons commented. He said these are usually the churches labeled evangelical or fundamental.

But Parsons is quick to point out that he does not agree with these labels or even identification according to denomination.

"The Church of Christ is just the Church of Christ," he stated. "We don't consider ourselves a denomination." Parsons stressed that the Church of Christ is un-denominational. He said there should be no church denominations, according to New Testament scripture.

"The scripture says there is one body," Parsons noted. "Jesus wanted one universal church—the body of Christ. "We want people united together; that's what we're after," Parsons explained.

"We're very actively seeking to do away with denominations."

Parsons said Church of Christ members are doing this through studies of the Bible with other individuals. The Bible advises that nothing should be added to nor taken away from scripture, the minister pointed out. When denominations write their own creeds, they are adding to scripture, Parsons believes.

"I believe others worship in error," he commented, "but are still part of the body of Christ."

Parsons and other Church of Christ members feel it is their responsibility to lead others to the same belief and to a reliance solely on the Bible.

The minister said he feels it is an attainable goal for all Christians to unite as a universal, un-denominational body of Christ.

That, he concluded, is what the Church of Christ is striving toward.

MINISTER CARL PARSONS has been at Gateway Church of Christ since January 1980 and hopes for the day there will be a universal un-denominational church.

GATEWAY CHURCH OF CHRIST has been in its present location since 1955 and currently houses about 195 members during Sunday and Wednesday services.

Mescalero reservation hotbed of elk hunting

by GARY BROWN
Sports Writer

People who go elk hunting on the Mescalero Apache Reservation are going after some of the most prized big-game animals on the North American continent. Some of the big bull elk weigh as much as 650 pounds or more, skinned and without their antlers. "The average bull elk will weigh around 560 to 600 pounds without skin and antlers," said Jo Kazhe, coordinator of the Inn of the Mountain Gods sports activities and package hunts. "The cows generally weigh between 350 and 450 pounds."

Kazhe, who has worked at the Inn for five years, organizes the Inn's package hunts during the different hunting seasons. This year's package bull elk hunts were held last month. The open hunt bull elk season lasted from October 9-17 this year while the open hunt cow season begins Saturday and ends Sunday, October 31.

A license for open bull elk hunting on the reservation costs $2,300 while a license for hunting cow elk costs $250. Open elk hunts just include the cost of the license. Anything else is of extra cost. However, a package bull elk hunt will cost $4,695 per hunter including the license and many other features. The package includes five nights lodging at the Inn of the Mountain Gods and one guide per hunter until a kill is made. Breakfast and field box lunch for four hunting days, horses, standard skinning and processing and packing out of game are also included in the package. Some extras are also offered at separate prices from the package.

There is a very high hunter success rate with elk on the reservation. The odds of getting one of the animals rate better than 90 percent, according to recent figures. Kazhe has a store room at the Inn's skeet range where hunters who want their elk mounted can leave the animals. The Flagg Group Taxidermists of Dallas, Texas, mount the animals and also skin and process the creatures after the package hunts. "Bill Flagg and his people will mount the animals for the hunters after the last hunt," Kazhe said.

The elk native to the Mescalero-Lincoln County area became extinct around 1900. However, the tribe brought 162 Rocky Mountain elk from Yellowstone National Park to the reservation in 1963 and their number has steadily increased since then. An estimated 3,000 elk now live on the reservation.

Elk range over much of the North American continent in varying numbers. The big deer can be found in most of the Rocky Mountain states, Washington, parts of California and Oregon, Canada and Alaska.

In Europe, the word elk is used to describe a close relative of the North American moose. The closest relative of the North American elk in Europe is the red deer, an animal which can weigh as much as 400 to 500 pounds among the larger stags.

THESE ELK HEADS are kept in a storeroom at the Inn of the Mountain Gods skeet range. Hunters who want their elk trophies mounted have them kept there until the Flagg Group Taxidermists of Dallas, Texas, mount them. The Flagg group also does skinning and processing of the animals. The Mescalero Apache Reservation has one of the better elk herds in the Rocky Mountain area.

Ordinance draft reviewed

The Ruidoso Business Registration Committee (BRC) received copies of village attorney Lee Huckstep's draft of their recommended changes to the ordinance concerning seasonal or intermittent conduct of retail business at their meeting Wednesday.

Members agreed on one substitution and decided to read the draft more carefully on their own before submitting it to the village council. The committee agreed that Huckstep's Huckstep's draft more carefully on their own before the meeting to make sure that it meets their approval. draft appeared to agree with their ideas except that he had written that a business permit need be applied for only three days before the anticipated need. They decided to stick with their recommendation that the permit need be applied for five working days before the anticipated need.

Members said they hoped to submit their proposal to the village council at its meeting October 28, but agreed to read

DWI arrest made after accident

The driver of a pickup truck was arrested for driving while intoxicated and reckless driving early this morning following an accident in which a passenger in his vehicle was injured and taken to the hospital.

According to the Ruidoso police report, Lee Omsrud, 22, of Alto was the driver of the vehicle that went off the road about 2 a.m. near Barcus Road and Country Club Drive and struck some trees, a fence and a dumpster before coming to rest against a house.

Chesna Riley, 22, of Ruidoso was taken to Ruidoso-Honda Valley Hospital for a possible broken ankle. A hospital spokeswoman said Riley was treated and released.

Riley and another passenger, Joe Winfield, 24, of Alto, were booked for riding with a DWI driver. Police report that all three persons were released on bond this morning.

THE NEW PIONEERS

Treasury Bill rates on excess checking account balances. That's the new Pioneer Sweep Account. It enables balances in excess of $2,000 to automatically be swept into a high yield account, earning you even greater interest. Greater, even, than the six-month Treasury Bill Auction Rate.

Your first $2,000 is federally insured. Balances over $2,000 are "swept" into a repurchase agreement. Since this type of obligation is not a savings account or deposit, it is not insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation. However, balances over $2,000 are backed by U.S. Government or Agency Securities.

Now, earn 1/4% more interest than the six-month Treasury Bill Auction Rate on your excess checking account balances. You can do it with the new Pioneer Sweep Account. Just another in a series of innovative services from the New Pioneers. See us today, and stop losing interest.

McKinney, racing secretary

by DICK ALWAN
Dean McKinney is a new face in the racing secretary's office at Sunland Park, but he's no stranger to Southwest racing. A few weeks ago, he took over as racing secretary at Sunland. In another month, he'll start looking ahead to another phase of his responsibilities — the Ruidoso Downs racing office. "I haven't even started thinking about Ruidoso," McKinney, 52, smiles in that good-natured way of his. "My first thought is to get the Sunland racing program off and running. After we get through the first couple of weekends, we'll start thinking about Ruidoso."

McKinney, in his position as racing chief of Sunland and Ruidoso, has quickly become a high-profile official in Southwest racing.

But he knows the Southwest — having been reared to this part of the country — and he certainly knows the racing layout. His background included racing positions at Sunland, Ruidoso, and numerous tracks around the nation.

Originally from Carlsbad, McKinney, as a youngster, found himself in Weed (not far from Ruidoso) when his family moved to the small mountain hamlet. Later, his folks resettled in Raton, and McKinney, as a youngster weighing only 122 pounds, found employment at La Mesa Park. He worked as a groom and exercise rider.

The Korean War rolled around, and McKinney wound up in the Marine Corps. Six years later, he was back in civilian life, wondering what to do with himself. His wanderings took him to Evangeline Downs in Louisiana where, in 1965, he wrangled a position as maintenance superintendent. Later, he worked as a clocker, then placing judge, and when his third season at Evangeline came up, McKinney was named racing secretary.

Later, he assumed the same position at Park Jefferson in South Dakota. Officials at Ruidoso Downs beckoned, and McKinney became racing secretary at the famed mountain course for three seasons, beginning in 1970. (During those years, he also worked as racing secretary at Buelah Park outside Columbus, Ohio, and at Latonia in Kentucky.) Opportunity for bigger and better things appeared to be in the offing when he was signed up by Parr Meadows in Long Island. But Parr Meadows, intended to be a major quarter horse facility in the Eastern market, lapsed into a financial stalemate. The track lasted only one season.

McKinney worked the fair circuits in Idaho, South Dakota, Arizona, and for two seasons (1978-79, 1979-80) he was racing secretary at Portland Meadows in Portland, Oregon. For three seasons (through 1983), he was a steward at the Downs at Santa Fe, and for the past two years, he was a placing judge at the New Mexico State Fair. His background also includes two stints at Sunland.

McKinney is obviously pleased to be back in the job he loves most. He says: "When you're a racing secretary, you can't really see the end results of what you do — the racing card, the wagering handle, the crowds, and the responses from the public and horsemen. When you're a steward, there's not much visibility to the things you do. It's a lot more gratifying being a racing secretary."

Although McKinney has been working in the Southwest in recent years, it still takes a readjustment to sit down at the racing secretary's desk. He explains: "I hadn't been a racing secretary for two and one-half years. It's not a relearning process. It's more a matter of setting up procedures. You have to think out each step so you can have a well-run office with a minimum of confusion."

McKinney also had to put himself through a crash course in current Southwest racing. He explains: "After you've been away from an area for a number of years, you lose track of the horses. You know all the trainers, of course — but you don't know what horses they've got. So it takes a while to learn what trainers have what horses."

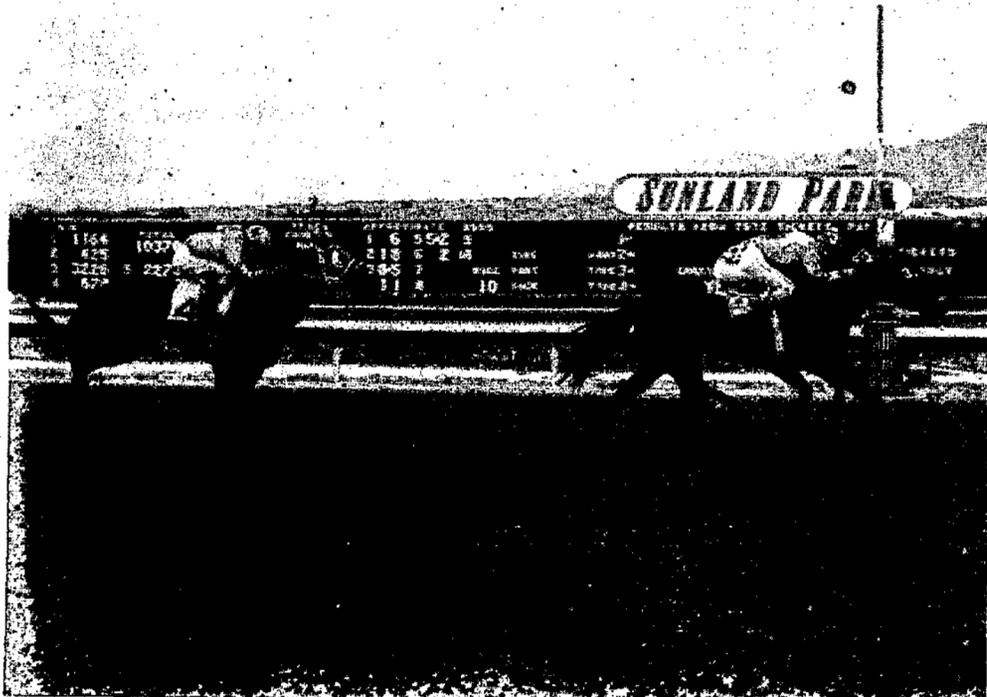

About the first thing McKinney did after setting up shop at Sunland was to put together his "tab" file — a kind of cross-reference system which breaks down all the horses on hand by age, sex and class. With information distilled in this manner, a racing secretary can then get into his most important task — piecing together a racing program."

McKinney, in the weeks prior to the kickoff of the Sunland season, was kept busy approving and disapproving horses for the current meeting. "In some cases, you can give a trainer all the stalls he wants. In some cases, you can't give him any. You feel sorry for a trainer who can't race here, because we don't have a place to put him. Normally, I write him a letter, telling him I can't accommodate his request, and I suggest he check with us later. It's a diplomatic situation, but it's possible to tell a guy 'no' without hurting his feelings."

McKinney says a big part of his job is serving as a buffer between the horsemen and management. An endless flow of problems come across his desk — everything from leaky faucets to a backup of manure — and McKinney tries to get each problem solved by going to the right department head.

Among the many delicate chores a racing secretary does is the assigning of weights in handicap races.

"With me, it's never been a problem," he says. "It's a personal opinion. There are no fixed rules. You can get six racing secretaries, ask them to assign weights on a given field, and all their assignments can be different. Weights are assigned by virtue of what a horse has done — and who he's raced against. It can be a problem when you've got a horse like Bold Ego, or Copper Case, and there aren't other horses of that caliber on the grounds. You want the horse to enter, you want the race to go, but you know the trainer won't run him with too much weight. It's like walking a tightrope."

IT WAS A MATCH UP. Match Strides (on the outside) noses ahead in the final jumps for a narrow win in the Fast Gas Handicap Saturday at Sunland Park. Match Strides was ridden by Betty Harless as an 8-5 favorite in the five and one-half furlong sprint for three-year-olds.

Match Strides tops in Fast Gas

Match Strides, a colt owned by Elizabeth Smith of El Paso, Texas, fought off Agapi Mou in the final strides and wrangled a head victory in Saturday's Fast Gas Handicap at Sunland Park.

The five and one-half furlong sprint for three-year-olds offered a total purse of $5,800. Match Strides, trained by Coy Hendrix, earned $3,480.

Launched as an 8-5 favorite, Match Strides returned $5.20, $3 and $2.60. Betty Harless was in the saddle. The winning time was 1:05 1/5 seconds.

The victory gave Match Strides a badly needed boost in prestige. Considered a top stakes prospect, the colt had taken it on the chin in his last two starts. On both occasions, he'd backed off badly in the final stages.

But in the Fast Gas Handicap, Match Strides didn't weaken after setting a quick pace. As he neared the wire, Agapi Mou, going after his fourth straight win, moved up between horses — and snared the lead.

Match Strides had enough in reserve to grab the lead once again. The victory was his second of the year.

Agapi Mou, ridden by Louie Gomez at 5-2, returned $3.60 for place, $2.60 for show. Stash It, an 11-1 outsider handled by Mike Lidberg, finished third and returned $3.80.

Double B. Express wins Lewis

Double B. Express staged his typical cliff-hanging heroics while steaming to a neck victory in Sunday's $5,800 Don Lewis Memorial Handicap at Sunland Park.

The gelding was in fourth place in the upper stretch of the six-furlong battle, about four lengths off the pace.

Fans who weren't familiar with the gelding's stretch tactics probably figured his goose was cooked. But jockey Casey Lambert, flailing away with the whip, managed to alert Double B. Express to the fact time — and terrain — was running out quickly.

The sturdy seven-year-old shifted into high gear and went to the inside to find running room. There was plenty of air space at that side of the track, particularly since the favorite, Special Hank, was drifting out steadily.

It was a wild scramble to the wire, with Special Hank desperately trying to keep a dwindling advantage. Double B. Express closed steadily with each stride and hit the wire a neck in front. The six-furlong clock was stopped in 1:10 3/5 seconds, the fastest time so far in the young season.

Double B. Express, who has to rank among the greatest handicap horses ever to campaign in the Southwest, picked up a victory purse of $3,480. That pushed his 1982 money line up to $43,287. It was his sixth win of the year. The Lewis career income now stands at $206,579.

Double B. Express is trained by Cliff Lambert for Double B. Ranch of nearby Anthony, New Mexico. The Lewis champ carried the topweight of 122 pounds, two pounds more than the load handed Special Hank.

Most of Sunland's 3,571 patrons apparently figured the six-furlong distance was more suited to Special Hank's speed tactics, and made that one a slight favorite over Double B. Express. Fans who held tickets on Double B. Express collected mutual returns of $5.20, $2.80 and $2.20.

Special Hank, ridden by Salustio Burgos, broke at the head of the pack and gamely tried to lead all the way. The gelding was still churning up the dust when he found himself hooked by Double B. Express in the final strides. Special Hank earned $1,276, which pushed his '82 earnings up to nearly $20,000, and returned $2.60, $2.20.

Bet On Me, a 7-1 shot, got in third under Mike Smith, paying $2.40.

The first Sunday of the new season was quite a success as the handle reached $386,203, well over the $328,983 recorded on the same day last year.

Hornero edges two foes

Hornero, a stakes horse owned by Virginia Byrd of Odessa, Texas, took a drop in class for Friday's opening day headliner at Sunland Park and came through with a narrow victory.

The seven-year-old rallied from far back in the nine-head field and churned up the dust in the final stages of the mile chase under allowance terms.

He barely won in a three-horse finish which also involved Dollinair and Court Compliance. The latter, a 5-2 shot, set much of the pace.

Ridden by Vickie Smallwood at 114 pounds, Hornero earned $1,900 out of the three-grand purse and returned mutual payoffs of $5.80, $3.20, $2.40. Dollinair, a 5-2 shot handled by F. O. Martinez, dished out $3.20 and $2.20. Court Compliance paid $2.40.

Friday's program also included four 400-yard trial races for the upcoming $23,976 Stue Fly Stakes. The top qualifier was the standout Billy Bartendress, who flashed to a five-length win and stopped the clock in 19.89 seconds. She's the property of Sam Henderson of Odessa, Texas. The filly raced as a 1-5 favorite.

The other qualifiers: Glorys Magic Miss, 20.18; Wranglers Go Man, 20.25; Just As Easy, 20.38; Mighty Manor, 20.54; Tokum Jet, 20.55; Easier Chicklet, 20.56; St. Who, 20.56; Feature Leader, 20.58; Cletos Easy Jack, 20.59.

The '82-'83 Sunland season got off to a flying start as 2,457 fans turned out and wagered $289,099.

Friday's program also marked the debut of Trifecta wagering at Sunland (on the eighth race). The first Trifecta attracted a healthy wagering pool of $24,990 (well over typical quinnella wagering on Friday) and produced a $300.80 payoff on a $2 ticket.

A 24-hour "hotline" will be in operation this season at Sunland Park.

Fans can dial (505) 589-8989 for general information, race results, qualifiers for derbies and futures, and scratches. A wrap-up of each day's results (with Announcer Harry Henson's call of the feature race) will be available shortly after the last race.

by MARK GORDON
BARTENDRESS ZIPPED to the fastest qualifying time during the four trials on opening-day on Friday for Sunland Park's Shue Fly Stakes. The brilliant Beat A Native filly roared to a 19.89 clocking while winning the fourth and final trial by an impressive five lengths over 400 yards. It was her third straight victory, which includes a half-length score in the $96,947 New Mexico State Fair Futurity in September at Albuquerque. She's posted seven triumphs with three seconds and one third in 14 appearances this season for trainer Clifford Dean. She's collected $115,397 for owner Sam F. Henderson of Odessa, Texas. This will be Sunland Park's major race for two-year-old New Mexico-bred quarter horses. The winner of the 400-yard event this Saturday will collect $11,989 from the total purse of $23,978. The second-fastest qualifier was Glorys Magic Miss, a Gray Ship filly, who has won three of her four lifetime outings for trainer Danny J. Hunsaker. She took the first trial heat by one and one-half lengths in a rapid 20.18 under jockey Chris O'Dell.

THE COMPLETE LIST of Shue Fly Stakes qualifiers and their times: Bartendress (19.89); Glorys Magic Miss (20.38); Wranglers Go Man (20.25); Just As Easy (20.38); Mighty Manor (20.54); Tokum Jet (20.55); Easter Chicklet (20.56); St. Who (20.58); Feature Leader (20.58); Cletos Easy Jack (20.59).

DUANE L. STERLING made a rare debut as a jockey by winning his first race on a recognized race track when he piloted Zasa Star to a head victory in Friday's second race. The 17-year-old apprentice is the son of former jockey and now veteran Sunland Park trainer Duane H. Sterling. Zasa Star is trained by Cecil Crabtree (co-owners A. D. Bowen and Bill Brewington of Abilene, Texas). As the $120-1 wagering favorite, Zasa Star returned $5.40 to win.

BOLD EGO RAN second to favored Mad Key in last Wednesday's $16,850 Inaugural Handicap at Turf Paradise in Phoenix. Ridden by Casey Lambert, the four-year-old Bold Tactics colt was a $170-1 second favorite. He was beaten by a half-length in the five and one-half furlong sprint which was run in a blazing 1:02. Bold Ego, the 1980 Riley Allison Futurity winner at Sunland Park, is trained by Clifford Lambert and is owned by Dan Ursehoff of Canadian, Texas, the Double B. Ranch of Anthony, New Mexico, and Dr. Joe Kitch of El Paso, Texas.

PERSEVERANCE finally paid dividends for Duke's Commander. The three-year-old Zonic gelding broke his maiden after 13 unsuccessful efforts by rallying for a half-length victory in Saturday's opening race at six and one-half furlongs. He had finished second, beaten a neck both times, in his latest two outings at Ruidoso Downs, so the wagering public made him a 6-8 favorite. Ridden by Larry Byers for trainer Edward J. Thompson, Duke's Commander is owned by Ben W. Peoples of Odessa, Texas.

TRAINER WILLIAM A. THOMPSON saddled two consecutive winners on Friday's program. He won with Hornero ($5.60) in the 10th race for owner Virginia L. Byrd of Odessa, Texas, and then captured the 11th with Brazos Native. Thompson owns Brazos Native, who returned $11.80 to win. Vickie Smallwood rode Hornero while Larry Byers was aboard Brazos Native. Trainer Tia Henson also saddled two winners, scoring with Navoned Miss ($15.80) in the first and Sultry Susana ($7.40) in the eighth. Both horses were ridden by Ramon Apodaca for owner Robert N. Hillin of Odessa, Texas.

ON SATURDAY, Edward J. Thompson and Coy Hendrix each saddled two winners. Thompson sent Duke's Commander ($4.40) for owner Ben W. Peoples of Odessa, Texas, and Printer's Devil ($15.60) for owner Thomas K. Criswell of Plainview, Texas. Larry Byers rode Duke's Commander while Paul Jaramillo guided Printer's Devil. Hendrix saddled Stellar Jay ($4.60) for Gerald R. Roberts of Lamesa, Texas, and Match Strides ($5.20) for Elizabeth J. Smith of El Paso. Betty Harless was aboard Match Strides.

ON SUNDAY, trainer Richard A. Nolen and Clifford C. Lambert each won two races. Nolen saddled consecutive winners in the third with Charge Past Em ($17.20) and in the fourth with Classy Amber ($6.00). Mike Lidberg rode Charge Past Em, who is leased by Homer W. and Ronnie Richardson of Lubbock, Texas, to Burl W. Masters. David Lidberg rode Classy Amber, who is owned by Monte R. and Marilyn B. Ferrell of Artesia.

LAMBERT WON with Lessthanime ($6.00) in the eight for owners Byron Ritchie and Tommy W. Stephens of McCamey, Texas, and with Double E. Express ($5.20) in the featured Don Lewis Memorial Handicap for Double B. Ranch of Anthony. Casey Lambert rode both horses.

MIKE LIDBERG rode two consecutive winners on Sunday's program. He started with Easy Axe ($33.00) in the second for trainer Fred J. Hardy and then took the third on Charge Past Em ($17.20) for trainer Richard A. Nolen.

FAVORITES ENJOYED fine days on opening day and Saturday as eight public selections won on Friday including Zasa Star ($5.40), Wranglers Go Man ($3.20), Mighty Manor ($4.00), Bartendress ($2.40), Sultry Susana ($7.40), Big And Sassy ($3.20), Hornero ($5.60) and Grin's Easter ($4.00). Saturday's winning favorites included Duke's Commander ($4.40), Count The Clown ($5.00), Stellar Jay ($4.60), Six Doubles ($3.00) and Match Strides ($5.20).

KINGS PLACE won his third straight race when he took Sunday's 11th race by a nose. The eight-year-old Truxton King gelding won his only two starts in September at the New Mexico State Fair at Albuquerque and then won his Sunland Park opener in a game win over Foggy Turn at six furlongs. He's owned by Glenda B. Morse and Marilyn Like of El Paso. Willard R. Morse is the trainer and Louie Gomez again steered the Texas-bred runner into the winner's circle.

JOCKEY LOUIE GOMEZ became the first rider this season to win three races on a single program. He started with Rojo Bandito ($5.20) for trainer Jimmie D. Claridge, then took the 11th aboard favored Kings Place ($5.60) for trainer W. R. Morse and won the 12th race aboard Klinton ($18.00) for trainer John L. Danley.

THE 1982-83 SEASON got off to a booming start as the handle for the three days topped the coveted million-dollar mark. The final tally was $1,073,674. On opening weekend a year ago, there was Saturday and Sunday racing, and the total was $736,372. Sunland officials were especially pleased over Friday's opening-day handle of almost $280,000. Sunday's $385,203 was a hefty gain of 17.39 percent over the same day last year.

AFTER THREE RACE DAYS, the top post position is the Number 5 slot, which produced 10 winners. That's twice as many as any other post. Interestingly enough, six of those winners were quarter horses. Here's the breakdown: No. 1 — 5 wins, No. 2 — 2, No. 3 — 4, No. 4 — 3, No. 5 — 10, No. 6 — 3, No. 7 — 5, No. 8 — 1, No. 9 — 2, No. 10 — 1, No. 11 — 0, No. 12 — 0.

Calligraphy workshop set at Carrizo Lodge

A weekend calligraphy workshop will be taught at Carrizo Lodge November 6 and 7 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Bob Phillips of Roswell will instruct the classes, which are designed for students who have completed a basic calligraphy course.

Phillips has taught workshops in Lubbock and Abilene, Texas; and in Albuquerque, Carlsbad, Hobbs, Artesia, Roswell and previously in Ruidoso. He is widely acclaimed for his unique manipulation techniques and is currently developing a calligraphy manual for publication.

Phillips has won numerous prizes for his work, which is displayed at Los Corrales Gallery in Corrales and in many private collections. His commercial calligraphy is frequently commissioned by businesses, organizations and individuals.

He has studied with some of the nation's top calligraphers, including Thomas Ingnire and Jacqueline Svaren, and with England's David Howells. Phillips is a member of the Western American Society for Italic Handwriting, Albuquerque's Escribiente and Roswell's Opulent Order of Practising Scribes.

Cost of the weekend workshop in November is $40, which includes the studio fee and refreshments. The first day's class will concentrate on form and function, involving the decision-making process and order of considerations in layout and design.

Day two will feature the elements of expression. This concerns the conscious use of scale, movement, style, color and texture in translating letterforms into expressions of feeling and mood.

Those wanting to register for the calligraphy workshop or needing additional information can call 237-2375 or write Carrizo Lodge, Drawer A, Ruidoso.

Memoirs of J.D. Simms column now available

"Cowboys, Indians and Pulpits," the memoirs of J. Denton Simms, has recently been published and is available from Los Hermanos Publications in Albuquerque.

J. Denton Simms moved from East Texas to Three Rivers in 1905, when he was 18 years old. His family became neighbors with individuals who had recently survived the Lincoln County War. As homesteaders, they struggled to survive by raising livestock and produce.

The book tells of Simms' experiences with pioneer lawyer, legislator and rancher A. B. Fall and other well-known characters from early Lincoln County history.

Simms worked for about a year, from 1907 to 1908, as a carpenter's helper in Carrizozo, building warehouses and loading platforms near the railroad station. He later managed the trading post in Mesalero.

Simms eventually became a missionary to the Jicarilla Apaches in Dulce and retired in 1977 as a pastor in Albuquerque. J. Denton Simms died in 1979, just before his 81st birthday, but had completed most of the work on his autobiography. His son, Harper Simms, completed and edited the work for publication.

Dr. Don Simms, another of J. Denton Simms' sons, has lived in Ruidoso since 1962. Many people in this area knew his father, he said, and may be interested in receiving a copy of his memoirs.

The book can be purchased for $9.50, plus 50 cents postage and handling, from Los Hermanos Publications, 1111 Morningstar Drive N.E., Albuquerque, NM 87110.

Inside The Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE — "When a kid's in trouble and doesn't get help, he doesn't go away. He grows into one of the angry, dangerous, unproductive adults who fill our jails and mental hospitals."

The quote is from a special-section tabloid, prepared as an insert into some New Mexico newspapers by our state's Youth Work Alliance.

If you saw it, sorry about repeating what was contained in it, but the fact is that much of it bears repeating — and repeating and repeating and repeating, until we all thoroughly understand it and decide to do something about it.

Kids, the report says, are our primary resource. So how come in our state physical and sexual abuse of children is common? How come children under 18 make up 70 percent of our welfare population? And how come one of our kids is twice as likely as an adult to be living in poverty?

Here are a few more statistics to contemplate:

— New Mexico kids are twice as likely to be below the normal physical growth charts as the national average.

— Homicide is the fourth-leading cause of death for children under 14 in our state. (Homicide-murder!)

At this moment, as many as 1,200 New Mexico kids are living in foster homes. The average number of such homes each of these kids will live with before growing up is three — three different families, three different points of view, three different kinds of handling. One unfortunate lived in a total of 14 such places in his lonely lifetime.

— Almost 9 percent of our state's school-age population drops out each year. In flat numbers, that comes to almost 8,000 children per year who terminate their education, which may be the only chance they have in the world.

— One in every six babies born in New Mexico has a teen-age mother. Of all children born in the state in a year, 21 percent are born to unmarried parents. Three out of every ten abortions in the state are performed on teen-age girls.

— Studies show that 37 percent of the state's teen-agers are current users of alcohol and 16 percent are marijuana smokers. Over 2,000 kids are arrested in our state each year for drug-or alcohol-related offenses.

— Last year, 500 children were referred to the Department of Health and Environment for treatment of severe emotional problems, and we only have hospital beds for 271 of them. The rest went untreated.

— A recent study shows there may be as many as 350 seriously disturbed delinquents in the state, the kind who may well end up killing themselves or someone else. We have beds for exactly 12 such children, all at the State Hospital in Las Vegas.

Are you tired of hearing about all this? Is this too many statistics?

Well, take just one more: 450 teen-agers were killed in our state in traffic accidents in a single year. That rate of death for such kids is almost twice the average figure for the nation as a whole.

The problem with all the words printed above is that they reduce human beings, young and vulnerable human beings, only to gross numbers.

That's not reality. What we are talking about here is living, breathing kids, the kind, as the cliché says, who could be our own sons and daughters.

They need our help. As Gerald Ortiz y Pino, who runs the Youth Work Alliance said, "Kids don't vote. They don't form political action committees, hire lobbyists or write position papers. So their needs sometimes get ignored, and it's up to the state's concerned adults to take action to end the wasteful treatment of this primary resource."

It's our job, and we have to do it.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

I would like to comment on the city ordinance proposed to regulate itinerant merchants. I believe the ordinance as proposed is discriminatory and probably violates the Federal Right to Work Act. Any merchant who wishes to avoid these regulations need only get around them by setting up in any parking lot covered by an existing business license. Therefore, I believe:

1. It is discriminatory to ask for any notice previous to granting a license.
2. It is discriminatory to ask the merchant to pay more than a pro-rated fee for doing business in Ruidoso.
3. It is discriminatory, even ridiculous, to ask an itinerant merchant to provide bathroom facilities when major businesses in Ruidoso do not.
4. Such an ordinance would either discriminate against itinerant merchants or would further restrict the personal freedom of local residents such as those who would like to have garage or farm sales.

The proponents of this ordinance are enacting this under the guise of consumer protection. It is my belief that their proposals are, in reality, an effort to restrict trade (competition). To me, this is a basic violation of individual freedom.

If the proponents of this ordinance truly want consumer protection, let's have an ordinance that is fair. A modest fee with immediate issuance to anyone who can show a permanent address to be contacted at would suffice.

Finally, I would like to let Dave Anderson know of my appreciation for his efforts. Dave is not perfect but he has accomplished the first step towards what many of us have talked about for years. Congratulations Dave.

Sincerely,
Joseph A. Zagone

Dear editor:

The Ruidoso High School Cheerleaders would like to take this opportunity to thank individuals and the community for the support given them.

First, the RHS Booster Club sponsored the cheerleaders at the National Cheerleaders' Association Clinic in Albuquerque this past summer. We worked hard and learned a great deal.

The community as a whole was very supportive of our fund-raising car wash which will allow us to purchase many of the items necessary for promoting spirit at RHS.

During Homecoming Week, the Ruidoso Police Department and Chief of Police Richard Swenor were so supportive of our activities and became a part of them.

Finally, the Ruidoso News staff, especially Tim Palmer, Barby Grant, Gary Brown, and Debbie Owen, has provided excellent news coverage of all our activities. KRRR and Ed Hyman have also given us a great deal of radio coverage and support.

We hope to contribute to the high school and community as much as we benefit from cheerleading. We thank all of you for your support of us in this endeavor.

Sincerely,
RHS CHEERLEADERS

Dear editor:

A few months ago (while the National Academy of Sciences team was in this area) I told you good folks of Harmony Valley that the team, made up of college professors, would not find in favor of Lincoln County (concerning the Fort Stanton Mesa site for a county airport).

These so-called experts (college professors) would never ever take a stand against their colleagues over at the State University.

This was not a study conducted by an impartial third party, as Jack Schmitt has tried to imply. I am sure the SBAC has let Mr. Schmitt know how we were treated by the National Academy of Sciences team when they were here on their fun junket to New Mexico.

So if Schmitt can not push harder for us, then who needs Schmitt?
Come on folks, we can't let this issue die.
Martin Rose

Dear editor:

SHADE TREE DIPLOMACY
Nearly two years ago Ruidoso drilled three wells near the Fawn Ridge community.

Fearing that the new city wells would affect their water supply, Fawn Ridge filed a protest with the State Engineer.

Since that time a $100,000 investment by Ruidoso in these wells has gone unused while negotiations by both parties and their attorneys have gone on and on — with no results.

The Ruidoso Council recently appointed Councilman Sayner and myself to hold independent negotiations with Fawn Ridge in an attempt to work out a plan whereby we could use our wells and at the same time Fawn Ridge would be protected should our wells cause a deterioration of their water supply.

Quiet diplomacy without publicity and with the cooperation of both parties resulted in an agreement which was signed on October 12, 1982.

The agreement, which was acceptable to both parties including the respective attorneys, took less than 30 days to complete.

Thanks to Bill Elliott and Fawn Ridge — Cooperation still works!
J.A. "AJ" Jung

Editorial

Figures from the Tourism and Travel Division of the state Department of Commerce and Industry confirm something everyone knew already: tourism is big business in New Mexico.

But growth of the industry lags behind national and regional rates of increase, and this is cause for concern.

According to the state agency, New Mexico's travel industry produced more than $1.2 billion in gross receipts in 1981.

This represents a 7.3 percent increase over the 1980 total. Statewide, tourism generated 36,817 jobs in 1981—one percent more than in 1980.

Almost $44 million was spent on tourism in Lincoln County last year (sixth among New Mexico counties), and the industry filled 1,345 jobs.

Tourism and Travel, which promotes this vital industry, currently has a yearly operating budget of around $1.3 million. Recognizing that proportionately few dollars spent result in many dollars earned, the agency is asking the Legislature for a budget increase of more than 300 percent.

If the Legislature does not want the state to remain a backwater of the West as far as tourism is concerned, it will put more money into promotion of the industry.

And Ruidoso, which has a healthy sum of lodgers' tax money sitting in certificates of deposit, would do well to think about putting that money to its intended use.—TP

Reporter's Round

by Barby Grant

In my first attempt at filling the space allocated for Reporter's Round, back in April, I "asserted" that Ruidoso needs a community theater/cultural arts center. As a result of that column, I was dubbed a "culture vulture" by other members of the editorial staff. This column will probably reinforce that opinion, but I'm excited about the prospects for additional cultural offerings in Ruidoso in the near future.

In researching the earlier column, I discovered that at one time there had been an active cultural committee of the Chamber of Commerce. It had more or less disbanded, however, apparently due to lack of direction.

The cultural committee was recently reorganized to assume sponsorship of a chamber music series, which will include student workshops and faculty concerts in Ruidoso presented by New Mexico State University. Representatives from NMSU and the Las Cruces Symphony were in Ruidoso in August to introduce themselves and plans for the program to potential local supporters.

The first chamber music concert is scheduled for this Saturday at the Inn of the Mountain Gods at 7 p.m. The program is free of charge to the public and will feature a violin, cello and piano trio. "Chamber music by candlelight" is how one member of the cultural committee described the evening to come. Tables for six will be arranged in the Mesalero B Room at the Inn, with wine, cheese and soft drinks available. The trio, all faculty members at NMSU, will be attired in black tails and the program will include works by Beethoven, Ernest Bloch and Gabriel Faure.

Additional concerts are scheduled for November 20, March 20 and May 8 at the First Christian Church, and each will be hosted by a local service club—namely Altrusa, the Garden Club and the Woman's Club. The performances will all be free to the public.

The first Ruidoso String Workshop is scheduled for August 7-21, 1983, at the La Junta Guest Ranch in Alto. The purpose of the workshop is to offer intensive training in the performance of chamber music to about 30 high school and college age students. A total of five student and faculty concerts/recitals are to be performed for the public in conjunction with the workshop.

The cultural committee is currently working on the establishment of a scholarship fund for gifted young musicians to attend the annual summer workshop. Committee members are seeking donations of any amount to add to the fund. This includes of Nogal is heading the organization of the Ruidoso String Workshop and would probably be glad to accept any donations, as would, most likely, the Chamber of Commerce.

Also exciting is the fact that the drama department of NMSU has indicated an interest in initiating a summer stock program in Ruidoso. And when the university's art department got wind of the drama department's interest, it expressed a desire to establish an "Assembling of the Arts," which would offer music, drama and art programs throughout the summer in Ruidoso.

But most of this is in the idea stage thus far and will take considerable planning, organization and support to materialize. The best way to show support for such programs is to attend the chamber music concerts already scheduled, especially the initial performance this Saturday evening. Not many opportunities are presented these days to attend an event of this type at no charge—and no donations will be sought during the performance.

A well-attended concert will serve as evidence that Ruidoso residents are genuinely interested in the arts and that NMSU has chosen wisely in selecting a site for the development of such programs.

Chamber of Commerce executive director Ed Jungbluth said "we've had preliminary interest that's been mind-boggling." But getting a lot of people to actually show up is always another matter. Ed, though, is being optimistic and is planning for about 75 audience members Saturday evening. It seems to me that at least that many people should be thrilled to have the opportunity to attend a FREE chamber music concert, especially now that most of the visitors have gone home and the locals can enjoy it all to themselves.

And now that the cultural committee has a basic direction, it should become once again an active group. Between working out details and planning and organizing the summer string workshops, chamber music concerts and possible summer stock and "Assembling of the Arts" programs, committee members should have plenty to do.

Who knows, they or another group may even initiate a study of possible locations and sources of funding for a community theater/cultural arts center as permanent housing for the numerous programs to be offered.

Their excitement about such a project, however, may depend on the turnout Saturday evening.

GREAT NEW PLANE

It was not much like old times when the widely jumbo jets appeared, or when jets began to replace piston-engine aircraft. Still, the advent of the Boeing 767 did not pass without due notice.

Nor should it have. For this 197-passenger plane offers both some new passenger amenities and, more importantly, quite a number of what might be called behind-the-scenes advances.

At the top of the list, probably, stands a one-third improvement in fuel efficiency. Though the plane is a giant, cockpit computers reduce the size of the crew to only two. Maintenance is easier, and cheaper, due to newly evolved construction techniques.

The 767 is not expected to sell very fast, commercial aviation being in the doldrums just now. But it looks like a great plane, and its time will surely come. — Alamogordo Daily News

GOOD JUDGMENT

A judge in New Mexico has the right idea.

Noting there are too many armed robberies, Southern New Mexico's Third Judicial District Judge Joe Galvan in Las Cruces has promised anyone convicted of the crime a rest in the Penitentiary of New Mexico.

Since the New Mexico penitentiary borders on the edge of infamy, the threat of sentence of time in that institution should serve as a deterrent among those knowledgeable.

A threat of a stint in any jail or penitentiary should deter anyone from crime, but laxness in prosecution or the failure of some judges and some juries to impose time-to-serve in convictions undoubtedly has contributed to a more frivolous attitude of grabbing a weapon and taking what is wanted.

Galvan also noted that increasing frequency of armed robberies has caused storekeepers to arm themselves for their own protection. This, he claims, increases the danger of injury and death.

It is not only storekeepers and the situation is not only in Las Cruces. It is everyone and everywhere. Witness the many homes and stores now graced with bars over doors and windows, extra locks, guard dogs and neighborhood security guards.

Galvan may not have the whole answer, but he is going in the right direction. If being convicted of using a pistol or rifle means time in the pen, fewer potential and habitual criminals will be prone to do so.

His threat should be the rule — everywhere. — El Paso Times

THERE ARE NO LOSERS IN THIS FIGHT. The battle was between Tricia Seelbach (left), co-manager of White Mountain Abstract, and Gladys Hjalquist, branch manager of Lincoln County Abstract, to see who could raise the most money for the just-ended cystic fibrosis "Breath-of-Life Campaign." Lincoln beat White Mountain by $1,015 to $740. Wayne Townsend (center), local campaign chairman, said Ruidoso donated a total of $2,585 to combat the disease. Tricia said she will challenge Gladys again next year.

PUSHMOBILE PRACTICE. Cub Scouts Andy Oranther and Zack Francis practice for the district pushmobile races last Sunday in Roswell. Ruidoso brought home no winners but everyone got in plenty of racing, according to Pock 59-leader Jimmy Goodwin.

The Silver Lining

BY DANIEL AGNEW STORM

The Oak Brush Begins To Show Its Colors Of Indian Summer

Today, October nineteen, you look out to the south and the patches of oak brush patterned among the evergreens on the hillsides to the south, have during the night, put on some of their most brilliant colors. Where yesterday there was just pale yellow and light orange, today just after high noon, you can see patches of light crimson, apricot yellow, Halloween orange, lemon yellow, and deep maroon. Down in the winding valley below are the matching gold, ember, deep crimson, bronze, and sunlight yellow of the Box Elder, Wild Grape, Woodbine, Oak and Cottonwood and Lombardy Poplar.

To add to the joyful Indian Summer picture, the Blue Birds, Robins, and just here lately, the pride of Autumn, the Snow Birds, are flying about, singing in the mild and fragrant air.

"Rich Man, Poor Man"

It is during these October days under skies of blue that our cup of life fills to the brim within us and overflows. There is a thrill of deep gratefulness throughout our being, for the precious gift of life itself.

Years ago on the mantle piece of the beloved Dr. L. B. Boellner of Roswell, there was one of these little musical jugs bearing the words: "There is no wealth but life."

When you picked up the jug it played the tune to this ancient little German song, which went into the things that make up life: health, love, devotion, thankfulness, reverence.

During the last several weeks the words of a childhood rhyme have been coming to mind:

"Rich man, poor man
Beggeman, thief,
Doctor, lawyer,
Merchant chief . . ."

When we left the old countries across the water and came to these shores, we bundled up the good things of over there to take with us; and left behind the things that were no good.

We took with us our language, with its literature; our laws, our best traditions, and our religion.

Among the several things we left behind was the system by which great masses of people were locked for life into classes. Yes, and their children and grandchildren would be imprisoned in this system of limited opportunity.

It is plain to see "the multitude of sins" which this strait-jacket of human development could bring about; and the world has seen the opposite in the American way, by which people who came here with their earthly possessions carried in small bundles, and who rose to wealth and service to mankind — not by the hundreds, not by the thousands, but by the millions.

But the things and concepts rejected by our forefathers, and left behind across the waters, have a way of trying to sneak across to this land where they do not belong.

You read, and you see and you hear those who try to divide us into classes: the white collar class, the blue collar class, the lower middle class, the upper middle class, the jet set, and the poverty level.

"Every American Is Rich"

Of course, as Americans we do not take these names of classes very seriously; and the attempt to classify us as rich and poor falls a little flat in a country where we are all rich.

We are all rich because we have that priceless possession that people in most other countries are willing to risk their lives (and are doing so every day) to obtain.

And that possession is freedom — freedom of opportunity, the right and the privilege to make the most of our life. The "poor" are becoming "rich" every day, as the financial fortunes of thousands improve. A man may wake up one morning and find himself suddenly rich.

Zane Grey wrote "Riders of The Purple Sage," the greatest western novel ever written, as a work of love never dreaming of financial success. The royalties came pouring in, and Grey was a millionaire before he knew it.

So, all in all, the attempt to pit "rich" against "poor" is good for a laugh at best.

"The Money-Happy American"

Here is another big laugh. There has never in history been a nation of people so little concerned with money for its own sake as Americans; and no nation on earth has been even close to as generous as we in our help to other nations — setting them up in business after conquering them in war. (Ofentimes to be hit right in the burr of the ear by these same nations in the area of trade and commerce).

The great fortunes have been made through service to mankind, such as those of Henry Ford, Rockefeller, Carnegie and others — whose benefits to the world are increasing to this day. The American generosity with money is legendary.

The True Wealth

Toward the end of his days, the great Spanish writer, Miguel Cervantes, was practically penniless; and a friend told him what a pity it was that he had nothing to show for his service in wars, his long imprisonment by the enemy, his novels and poems, his aid to those in need.

Cervantes answered with a smile, "I have what I have given."

And here the beloved Spaniard gave us an insight into the words: "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moths and rust doth corrupt; but lay up for yourselves treasures in Heaven . . ."

NMMI—91 years serving New Mexico and America

by BILL G. EASTHAM
 Major, NMMI, Public Affairs Officer
 On September 3, 1891, Colonel Robert S. Goss, newly arrived from Fort Worth, opened the doors of Goss Military Institute in Roswell with a faculty of five and a class of 20 resident boys and 12 girl day students. Two years later it was renamed New Mexico Military Institute (NMMI) by the Territorial Legislature, which had designated it a territorial school.

If the legislators had been more concerned about the school's financial condition and less concerned about its name, they might have remembered to allocate some money for its operation. They failed to do so, however, and it had to be closed in the spring of 1895.

Even then the townspeople, who numbered less than 1,000, realized the potential importance of the fledgling institute, and campaigned vigorously to have it reopened. Within a short time, two things happened which guaranteed the institute's future: James J. Hagerman deeded 40 acres to the territory which was to become the nucleus of the present 112-acre campus, and the Legislature authorized a bond issue for construction and a tax levy to provide income for the seven territorial institutions.

The school was reopened September 6, 1898, in the first permanent building on the new campus, and it has since become the finest military institution in the West.

NMMI annually enrolls more than 900 cadets from more than 40 states and a dozen foreign countries in its three-year college preparatory high school and two-year junior college. The enrollment is about evenly divided between the two divisions, and this year includes 75 girls.

Instruction in four academic divisions plus physical education is provided by 100 faculty members, nearly all of whom have master's degrees and many who have doctorates. The average pupil-teacher ratio is 18 to one, considerably lower than in most public institutions.

In addition, a staff of about 145 provides administrative and logistical support and maintains the sprawling complex of military Gothic-style buildings and spacious lawns, athletic and parade fields.

Students with academic problems are given individual tutorial assistance by their instructors. A full-time staff of counselors is also available in the Student Assistance Center for career counseling and other academic assistance.

In the prospectus that he wrote in preparation for the opening of his institute, Colonel Goss said: "Let it be clearly understood that if this is not a Military School, it is nothing . . ." That tradition is as strong today as it was in the institute's earliest days.

Every cadet takes Reserve Officers' Training Corps (ROTC) Leadership Development in high school and Military Science in college. Those who chose to do so can take the advanced Military Science course during their college years and receive an Army commission along with their Associate of Arts degree. They are then deferred from active duty until they finish their baccalaureate degree, after which they are obligated to three years of active duty.

Known as the contract program, cadets who choose to go to six weeks of basic camp at Fort Knox, Kentucky, during the summer following graduation from high school, and six weeks of advanced camp between their college freshman and sophomore years. They are paid a monthly stipend of $100 for nine months each year and can compete for ROTC scholarships which pay for all tuition, fees and books. Numerous other scholarships are available to NMMI cadets, regardless of whether they are on the ROTC contract program. Nearly 350 students received more than $257,000 in scholarships from 85 sources for the current school year. And the scholarship program continues to grow, thanks to an active development program and the generosity of NMMI alumni.

In addition to above-average academic opportunities, every NMMI cadet is offered an opportunity in team and individual sports. The $3 million L. T. Godfrey Athletic Center, dedicated just two years ago, is one of the finest facilities of its kind, containing four basketball-size, multi-use courts, an Olympic-size swimming pool, four racquetball courts, weight and exercise rooms, saunas and other facilities. Adjacent to the athletic center are 12 asphalt tennis courts built at the same time.

NMMI has an interscholastic schedule in football, basketball, wrestling, baseball, tennis, swimming, rifle marksmanship, golf and orienteering. In addition, more than 15 other sports and activities, such as boxing, bowling and kayaking are available on a club-sponsored basis. Nearly all sports and activities are offered in both the high school and college divisions.

Many special interest organizations, such as language clubs, a chess club and ethnic clubs are also available, and the yearbook and cadet newspaper are produced entirely by student staffs.

One of the institute's most important administrative tools — its computer system — has become one of its most popular classroom subjects. A half-dozen classes in programming techniques, ranging from mathematics to business administration, are offered, and the computer can also be used as a study aid by cadets who need special assistance.

The school library, which contains more than 85,000 items, also has the latest in computerized information retrieval and book exchange services. A new library/learning resource center currently in the planning stages will offer even more up-to-date services and considerably more space for storage and study areas.

Groundbreaking is scheduled October 21 for a new addition to Pearson Auditorium, a 1,400-seat facility which serves as a community center in addition to an assembly and entertainment center for the cadets. It will contain a spacious rehearsal room for the regimental band and other musical groups, in addition to individual practice rooms and a small auditorium and stage.

Like all other state-supported institutions in New Mexico, NMMI is governed by a policy-making board of regents. Current members of the board are Jerry N. Smith of Roswell, president; Mrs. Ethel Olson of Alamogordo, secretary-treasurer; Charles A. Joplin of Hobbs; Albert S. Romero of Santa Fe; and J. Penrod Toles of Roswell, who will step down at the end of this calendar year after 12 years, which included eight years as president.

The superintendent is Major General Gerald Childress, who took over in 1977 after retirement from the Army as a brigadier general. Childress had a distinguished 26-year military career that reached from the Pentagon to Vietnam and back again, and is widely recognized as one of the strongest superintendents in NMMI's history.

The academic dean is Colonel Robert Wagner, also a career military man, who has the distinction of holding two doctoral degrees in physics and is considered a brilliant academician and administrator. NMMI's slogan is, "Preparing tomorrow's leaders today." A recent survey of alumni showed that it is more than just a slogan, with an unusually high percentage of graduates employed in high-paying professions and occupying important positions in their respective communities. In June 1909 the War Department, now the Department of the Army, conducted a formal inspection of NMMI and designated it a "Military School with Honors." It has never since received the equivalent designation since then, and the traditional annual formal inspection has become a source of pride for the cadets. This is just one of the reasons NMMI is often referred to in educational and military circles as "the West Point of the West."

THE NEW MEXICO MILITARY INSTITUTE Corps of Cadets stands at attention in the Hagerman Quadrangle.

SUPER NICE MOBILE — Located on 1/4 acres. Close to race track. Zoned for horses. Large redwood deck. $63,000.

CLEAN AS A PIN AND READY TO MOVE RIGHT IN — For only $57,500 you can have this two bedroom, one bath house located on two lots. Recently remodeled, new carpet, kitchen and bath areas and beautiful fireplace sure make this one of today's best buys! Possibility of good owner financing, too. (Extra room could be a third bedroom if you need it.)

SECLUDED LOCATION — This large home enjoys quiet spot with tall pines and yet lots of sun. Three bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths, gameroom (complete with pool table) and well furnished remainder of house makes for comfortable living anytime. Assumable mortgage covers home and middle of these three lots, so you could sell off the vacant lots on either side of the house if you so desire. Or hold on to 'em for the elbow-room everyone's longing for these days!

HAVE THE NATIONAL FOREST FOR A NEIGHBOR — Three contiguous lots, totaling almost an acre, adjoining the Lincoln National Forest. Who could complain about a neighbor like that? Zoned for mobile homes or build that log cabin in the pines, suit yourself. Good owner financing available, or they will consider a trade for another building site that's easier to get to in winter weather.

$40,000 DOWN GETS YOU ONE OF TODAY'S BEST BUYS!! — Surely there is one among you that can recognize a super opportunity. It will take $40,000 down to cash out the owners' equity, but you'll get in a nice three or four bedroom home at well below the square footage costs you hear today that usually bring on mild coronary attacks!

CAN'T KEEP THIS ONE A SECRET — New 3 bedroom house on paving, has all city utilities, custom cabinets and central air for the little Mrs. or Ms. What am I saying? Husbands enjoy eating steaks cooked that way too! Another place that's truly priced right!

ASSUME A 13% LOAN AND ENJOY THE VIEW — One of the best views available of Sierra Blanca can be enjoyed from nearly every room of this place. $67,300.

OOPS!! THAT ONE IN AIRPORT WEST SOLD — But we do have other mobile home lots available. Get one and get settled before the deep snows fly!

LARGE HOME IN COUNTRY CLUB ESTATES — 4 bedroom, 2 bath, double garage and fenced back yard for the puppy or kids! And the only thing that could obstruct that view would be clouds over the mountain. Check it out for yourself.

WHAT CAN YOU GET FOR JUST $13,000? — Well, don't just sit there trying to figure it out — Call and find out from one of our sales professionals!

"Security Bank offers us what a lot of banks can't"

Gary and Sheryl Garner are co-owners of the new McDonald's restaurant in Ruidoso. They do all their banking, both personal and business, at Security Bank. "The bank offers assets, services and lending power that the other banks can't or won't match," says Gary. "We also like the friendliness of their people. Don Shaw, our officer there, has been a great 'partner' to have in business." "We like doing business with banks owned by Bank Securities," adds Sheryl. "Our son has been a customer of their bank in Socorro, and so when we moved here, we had no trouble finding a good bank."

Capitan 4-H photographers like animal subjects

Though Jim Bob Allen, 11, and Scott Dye, 12, are relative newcomers to photography, each has taken award-winning pictures.

Efforts of the two Capitan 4-H Club members were recognized by photography judges at the Eastern New Mexico State Fair in Roswell and the New Mexico State Fair in Albuquerque last month.

Jim Bob is the son of Butch and Tommie Allen. He said he got interested in photography after his mom took a class in it and showed him what she learned.

Asked where he gets ideas of what to photograph, Jim Bob said, "I just go outside and I'll think of 'em."

Scott, the son of Gordon and Dorine Dye, also credits his mom with helping him get started. He used the camera she got for her birthday in a 4-H photography class taught by Tommie Allen.

Some books he read on photography helped "a lot," said Scott.

The two boys indicated they plan to continue taking pictures. Obviously, both have a good eye for it.

Toney Anaya Is Content to be Labeled A Puppet of Big Labor Officials.

Are You Content to Have Him as Governor?

Roswell Daily Record

"Toney Anaya, seeking the Democratic Party nomination for the U.S. Senate, Friday told labor delegates here that he does not mind being referred to as a 'puppet of organized labor.'"

Big Union money is pouring into New Mexico in an attempt to elect Toney Anaya as the next Governor. During his primary election campaign, Toney Anaya took in over $72,000 from union special interests. This may represent only the tip of the iceberg of the cash union fatcats will spend to get Anaya elected as their Governor in New Mexico. You can be sure that union bosses expect something for the money they're spending on Toney Anaya. And the price may be paid out of your tax dollars, and the health of your state's economy.
