"Mirage," a flute, cello and piano trio, will be performing in an afternoon chamber music concert at 3 p.m. Sunday, March 20, at First Christian Church. Co-sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce Cultural Committee and New Mexico State University (NMSU) Department of Music, the concert is free of charge to the public.

The trio, composed of flutist Elizabeth Singleton, cellist Carolyn Fittz and pianist Melba Halamicek, has been termed one of New Mexico's newest and most exciting chamber music ensembles. The group's repertoire includes representative masterpieces from the 17th century through the contemporary.

Singleton, currently a private instructor in the Las Cruces area, holds a Master of Musical Arts degree from Yale University and was a founding member and solo flutist with the Chamber Orchestra of New England. Since moving to Las Cruces a year ago, she has performed with the El Paso Symphony and the El Paso Pro Musica, and has presented many solo recitals. Singleton also founded the Classical Symphony and the Summer Flutes at NMSU series.

Fittz, known to Las Cruces audiences primarily as a soprano, has enjoyed wide exposure as a cello soloist, chamber musician and teacher in the Southwest, Pacific Northwest and East Coast. Her principal teachers have been Gordon Epper-son, Raya Garbousova and Gabor Rejto. Fittz holds performance degrees from the University of Arizona and the University of Cincinnati College Conservatory of Music, and has taught at the University of Arizona, the Shenandoah College Conservatory of Music in Winchester, Virginia, and NMSU.

Currently Fittz maintains a private studio in Las Cruces, manages the Las Cruces Symphony, and is an active soloist and chamber musician in the Las Cruces/Tucson area.

Halamicek, also a private instructor in Las Cruces, received her early training in Indiana, where she made her accompanying debut at the age of eight. She attended Indiana University and the University of Texas at El Paso and received a master's degree in music from NMSU. Halamicek has performed extensively throughout the Southwest, and has appeared with William Leland on KRWG's Opus 22 program and as a soloist for the McDowell Club.

The music program for Sunday's concert will begin with "Trio, Opus 78" by Johann Nepomuk Hummel, who spent several years in Mozart's home as an apprentice to the master. This 16 measure tune is an Ukrainian Dumka that became known in Europe around 1800 and captured the interest of Beethoven, whose variation on the tune was published in 1820.

"Chant de Linos pour Flute et Piano" by Andre Jolivet will also be included in the concert. The composer was formerly conductor and music director of the Comedie-Francaise, technical advisor for music at the French Ministry of Cultural Affairs, and Professor of composition at the Paris Conservatory.

Jolivet's Chant de Linos is a one-movement, sectional work. The Song of Linos was in Greek antiquity, among other things, a funeral lamentation and a complaint interrupted by cries and dances.

Following a brief intermission, the trio will perform Claude Debussy's "Sonate pour Violoncelle et Piano." This piece, composed in 1915, is based on contrast throughout, and is deeply personal. It is full of mystery, sensitivity and irony.

Concluding the concert will be the "Trio" for flute, cello and piano by Bohuslav Martinu, a three-movement beautifully crafted work described as cheerful, busy, graceful and elegant.

The Altrusa Club will host the event and serve refreshments following the concert.

Everyone is encouraged to attend this concert, the third in a series co-sponsored by the cultural committee of the Chamber and NMSU.

Downs plans cleanup effort

by BARBY GRANT
Staff Writer

Ruidoso Downs will be undergoing a facelift soon if Mayor J. C. Day and trustee Harrold Mansell carry out their plans announced Monday to initiate a village-wide cleanup. Mansell stressed the need to enforce a village ordinance which forbids the accumulation of "filth, sewage, garbage, refuse, trash, standing or stagnant water, litter, rubbish, ruins, weeds, brush or any waste matter whatsoever."

The trustee reported that municipal judge Fred Bernard has agreed to back up the section of the ordinance which authorizes the village clerk to serve notice on property not in compliance with the above stipulations. A citation would be issued after 10 days notice was given property owners to clean up the offending property. Mansell pointed out. The judge could then assess a fine of up to $300.

Mansell continued to explain that property which remained "a menace to health or safety" after the property owner had appeared in court would be cleaned up by the village at the owner's expense.

"I think we're going to have to take the bull by the horns," he remarked. "It's the only way to get the village cleaned up."

The trustee said the cleanup campaign can be set up at the next meeting. In the meantime, he requested each trustee "to travel from boundary to boundary" of the village and take notice of property which needs cleaning up.

Also discussed Monday, under salaries and personnel practices, was the employee sick leave policy. Village clerk Wilma Webb reported that employees feel they should be able to accumulate 24 days of sick leave rather than the current 12 days.

After some argument about whether employees should be paid for sick leave not used, trustees voted to permit employees to accumulate a maximum of 24 days of sick leave but not to pay them for days not taken.

Other action taken Monday was to amend the garbage services ordinance to permit commercial property outside the village limits and adjacent to Highway 70 to have garbage picked up by the village. Charge for the service will be $22 per dumpster per month.

In other business, trustees:

—Heard that Hubert Quintana with the Southeastern New Mexico Economic Development District is working on an application for a community development block grant to provide the village with matching funds for a State Highway Department grant to pave village roads.

—Renewed resolution 83-2 concerning the open meetings law.

—Decided to look into purchasing medical payment insurance for coverage of individuals involved in an accident on village property.

—Adopted resolution 83-3, which states that "a person who signs the plea of guilty on a traffic citation and fails to remit specified fine within 30 days will have their license rescinded by the state and will be obligated to pay the specified fine and a $10 administrative fee before driver's license will be reinstated."

—Granted a request for permission for members of the softball association to work on the softball fields to flatten them out. Trustees suggested the different softball leagues get together to work out schedules for use of the fields and present a request at the next meeting. They also discussed the possibility of appointing members of the association to guard the restroom facilities at the field during games in an effort to prevent vandalism.

—Approved the purchase of equipment by the fire department.

—Heard Mayor Day report that the state senate bill which would provide the village with $50,000 from Ruidoso Downs Race Track gross receipts taxes has passed the Senate and was tabled in the House. (Sponsor of the bill, Senator Charlie Lee, reported to The News Monday morning that the bill was actually tabled without prejudice in the House Appropriations and Finance Committee).

—Heard from Day that the Ladies Auxiliary has elected new officers. They are: Vada Leighton, president; Myrl West, vice president; Wilma Webb, secretary; and Betty Day, treasurer. The group plans to sponsor a bake sale April 2 at Gibson's.

Capitan council approves radio system

by BILLY ALLSTETTER
Staff Writer

The Capitan village council Monday approved fire department budget changes for the purchase of a radio communications system and discussed proposed amendments to the existing water ordinance.

The fire department has entered a five-year lease-purchase agreement with Motorola Communications and Electronics Incorporated for a communications system that will include a base station, remote repeaters, 20 pagers and seven hand-held radios. Annual payments will be $6,043.

The budget changes for this year include no increase in the bottom line and will be paid from funds previously budgeted for equipment and operations.

Village clerk Virginia Spall explained that she wanted the changes approved by the council to make sure the allotment of state funds was not endangered.

Village attorney Gary Mitchell asked for guidelines from the council on his draft of amendments to the existing water ordinance.

At last month's meeting, the council agreed to keep the existing water ordinance requiring a separate water meter for each permanent dwelling or premise, but decided to consider amendments for multiple housing and commercial establishments.

The council decided to charge commercial users the same rates as residential users.

For multiple housing arrangements such as apartment buildings, the council will not require separate water meters for each residence. The village will charge a minimum rate for each residence hooked up to the meter, however.

Mitchell explained that a four-apartment complex will have to pay four times the minimum residential rate of $10 for 3,000 gallons of water. The owner will be allowed four times the minimum amount of water, or 12,000 gallons of water, before being charged $15 for each 1,000 gallons above 12,000 gallons used in a month.

Since sewer and garbage rates are determined by the water rates, the apartment owner will also have to pay four times the single residential rate for garbage pickup and sewer.

Questions arose over charges for mobile home parks which have a combination of permanent residents and short-term visitors. Mitchell explained there are now mobile home parks in Capitan which have numerous hookups on one water meter and pay only one minimum fee.

Under the proposed multiple hookup amendment, the owner will have to pay a minimum fee for each mobile home lot in the park. Since many of these lots are vacant much of the time, council members and Capitan residents present at the meeting said they believed that arrangement would not be fair. They also felt it was not fair that the mobile home park owners pay only one minimum fee for all the lots.

Mitchell explained that the village makes its money on the minimum charges and barely breaks even on charges for water used above the minimum.

No mobile home park owners were present and no decision was made. Mitchell said he would draft an ordinance and hold a public hearing at next month's council meeting. He suggested that any interested parties attend the meeting.

"It's their village. Let them put something in it," said councilman Benny Coker.

In other business, the council authorized Mayor Don Stark and village clerk Spall as agents of the village empowered to enter negotiations and sign agreements for purchase of surplus federal property.

Tabled Resolution 83-2 on salaries and personnel practices when council members could not agree upon a policy for compensation time. Council members said they did not want village employees stocking up excessive amounts of compensation time and then using it all at once, leaving the village without an employee for lengthy periods of time.

They could not, however, decide upon what maximum compensation time to allow or what to do in case of emergencies. Mayor Stark suggested tabling the resolution and suggested the council members "get our heads together and put something down in writing," in time for next month's meeting.

—Approved Lois Aldrich to the cemetery board, filling the spot vacated by Georgia Maples, who resigned.

—Turned over a contract for the sale of village property to Terry Strickland to read and sign.

—Agreed to purchase a $20 ad in the Lincoln County Fair Association magazine for best wishes from the village to readers of the magazine.

New pumper truck delivered to village

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

The Ruidoso Volunteer Fire Department last week took delivery of a sparkling new pumper truck that will be the primary fire attack unit in the village.

The Class A pumper truck, capable of putting out 1,000 gallons per minute, was delivered early Friday by Thunderbird Fire and Safety of Albuquerque. It came in about two months ahead of schedule.

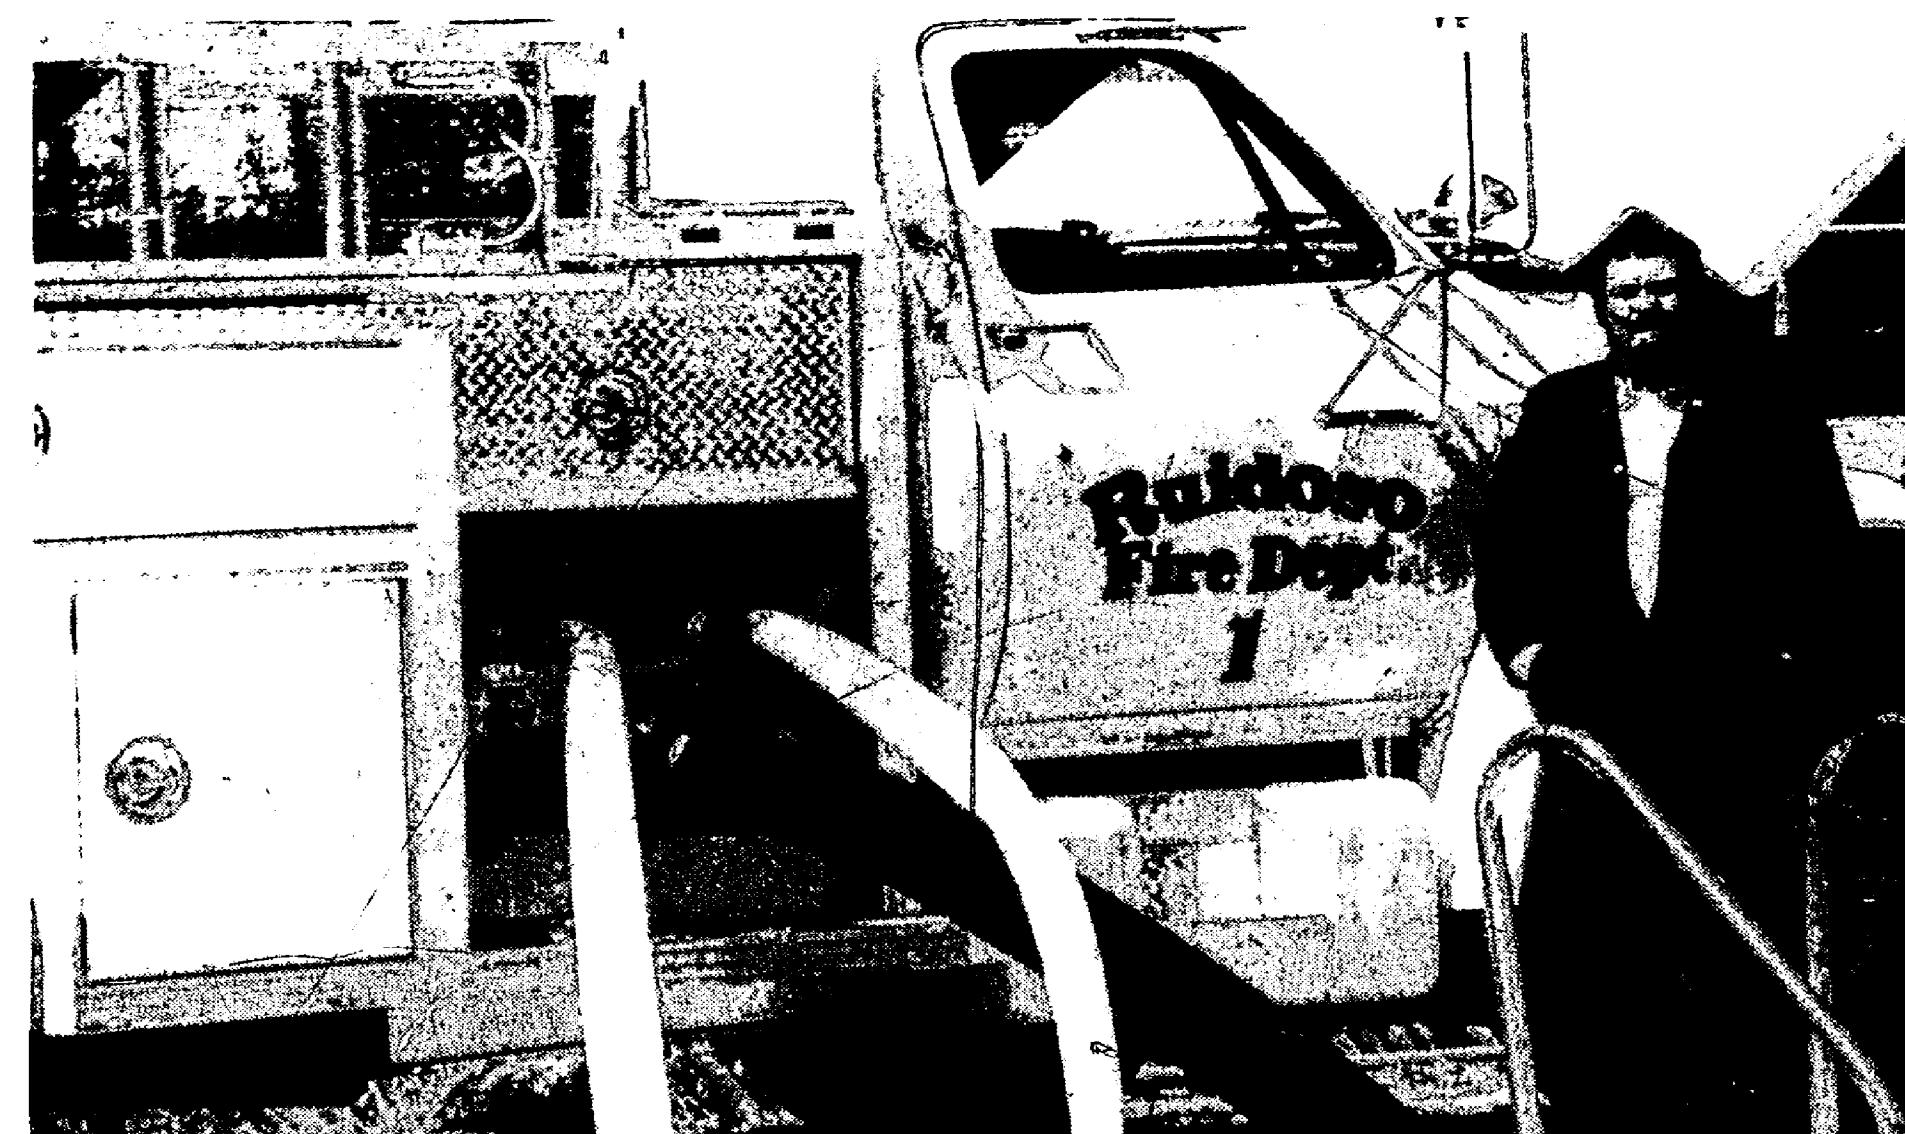

Acquisition of the truck was authorized by the village council last December. The $81,725 purchase came from money set aside for the fire department from a $1.67 million bond issue passed in 1981. The general obligation bond election was proposed to revamp the village sanitation, street, police and fire departments. The fire department received $250,000 of the total.

The new fire truck, with its 750-gallon tank, has the highest carrying capacity of the department's seven trucks. But despite the extra weight—the other big pumpers can hold up to 600 gallons—the truck will still be lighter because of its aluminum construction.

A spokesman for Thunderbird said the totally aluminum truck weighs about 4,000 pounds less than a similar-sized steel model. The advantage of the lighter weight, he said, is it results in less wear and tear to the drive train and brakes, and more speed up hills. This was a major reason why the department chose to buy an aluminum rather than a steel truck. The spokesman also contended the truck is more suitable to rough terrain than a heavier model. "We feel these are made to be abused more than every other truck made," he said.

During preliminary testing of the truck Friday at the municipal swimming pool, fire department personnel expressed some concern the unit would not perform up to standard.

TWO NUMBER ONES are fire superintendent Virgil Reynolds and his new number one truck, a Class A, thousand-gallon per minute pumper.

The $81,725 rig arrived last week and was put through a series of tests at the municipal swimming pool.

The National Weather Service in Albuquerque is predicting mostly fair and warmer weather with variable winds less than 15 miles per hour Thursday. Thursday night and Friday will be partly cloudy and a little warmer with light winds. Chances of precipitation are 5 percent Thursday and 10 percent Thursday night and Friday. The extended forecast calls for partly cloudy and breezy weather Saturday and Sunday with an increased chance of showers.

New village fire truck top of the line

Drawing dirty water out of the pool through a six-inch hose, the pumper would not put out the 1,000 gallons per minute (gpm) it was rated for. As it turned out, dirt and pine needles in the water clogged the suction screen, resulting in insufficient draw.

When the truck was retested Monday with clean water in the pool, it passed with flying colors.

Fire superintendent Virgil Reynolds said the pumper performed "up to our standards," in the second go around. The main test was run with the truck pumping 1,000 gallons per minute at 150 pounds of pressure through a two-inch hose. Reynolds said it held the pressure and volume for the entire 30-minute test.

After the pumping tests, the unit was driven up several steep streets, including Ebarb Drive, Black Forest and Camelot, and Reynolds said it "climbed all perfectly."

In the next few weeks, the truck will be outfitted with its hoses, hose nozzles, clamps, fire extinguishers, air packs and flood lights—all of which were included in the purchase price.

Reynolds said the shiny white unit will be housed in the main fire station and will take over the duty as first response unit. The new pumper is now tops of the line for the department.

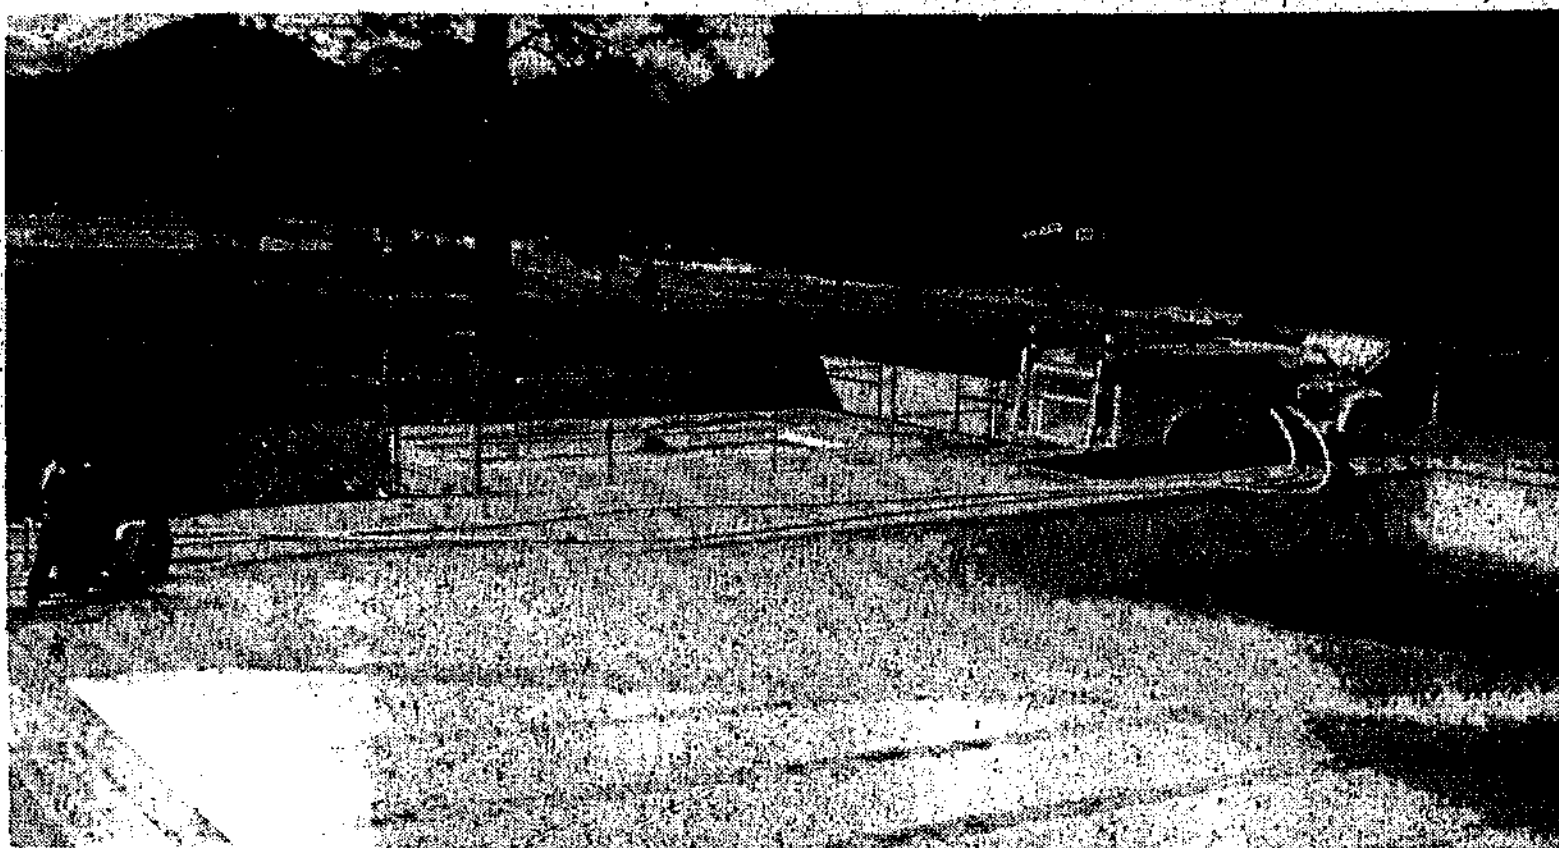

Other department fire trucks include two 750-gpm pumpers, two 500-gpm pumpers and two mini-pumpers that can put out 250 gpm. The mini-pumpers cannot hook up to fire hydrants and are used mainly for small grass and dumpster fires.

Reynolds said department plans to build at least one other substation are progressing slowly. The strategy talked about for the last few years calls for another station in the Upper Canyon and one on the north side of town. The village bought a building last year near the Upper Canyon to house a truck, but the department later decided the access routes were inadequate.

The department now has two substations, one in School House Park and one at the airport. Each houses a Class A pumper, defined as a truck that pumps at least 500 gpm.

AT THE CONTROLS. Fireman Jesse Reynolds gets a feel of the sophisticated control board on the fire department's new pumper truck. Although it looks complicated, firemen say the controls are easier to operate than those on the older trucks.

PUMPING 1,000 gallons per minute at 150 pounds of pressure at the truck is the Ruidoso Volunteer Fire Department's new pumper. The truck was run through pressure and volume tests at the swimming pool, and then tested on village streets before the department accepted it Monday.

Three million-dollar events in 1983 at Ruidoso Downs

Three races with purses estimated in the million-dollar range constitute the brilliant highpoints of the remarkable 1983 stakes scheduled at Ruidoso Downs.

But general manager Donald F. Smith also points to a sharp upgrading of the entire Ruidoso stakes schedule, with most stakes races being infused with increased added money.

"We've added a number of new stakes and have increased the added money by over $118,000," Smith noted. "The 1983 stakes schedule will be the most impressive, by far, in Ruidoso Downs history."

At this point a year ago, just over $484,000 had been allocated in added money for the 1982 stakes list. That figure has jumped to $603,000 for the upcoming season.

The new Ruidoso purse figures will be increased even more, Smith noted, as a result of legislation just passed in New Mexico. So far as Ruidoso Downs is concerned, this means an additional purse boost (over the above figures) by about $150,000. This new increase, Smith said, would be earmarked into overnight purses and some of the stakes races with the least added money.

Once again, the pinnacle of the stakes schedule is the All-American Futurity, the colossal third and final jewel in the famed Triple Crown for two-year-old quarter horses. The gross purse (including three consolation races and nominating and breeding awards) is $2,530,000.

Of this amount, $2 million is earmarked for the grand finale, with the winner raking in $1 million.

The two other million-dollar events are the All-American Derby for three-year-old quarter horses, and the All-American Gold Cup for four-year-old quarter horses.

The Futurity, Derby and Gold Cup — which spotlight the final three weeks of the meeting — are staged at the classic 440-yard distance.

The new season, covering 74 race days, gets rolling on Friday, May 6, and extends through Labor Day, Monday, September 5. Racing will be held each Friday, Saturday and Sunday in May, June, July and August as well as the first weekend in September. Beginning June 2 and continuing through September 1, Thursday racing will also be held. Holiday programs are carded for Monday of the Memorial Day weekend, the Fourth of July and Labor Day. Special Wednesday programs are booked for June 22 and August 10, and a special Thursday program is set for May 12.

Post time will be 1 p.m. on all race days except for possible earlier post times on some trial dates and Labor Day.

Included among the nation's most prestigious quarter horse events are the first two legs of the Triple Crown for two-year-olds. This consists of the Kansas Futurity (350 yards), which carries a projected 1983 purse of $750,000, and the Rainbow Futurity (400 yards), which is expected to top out at around $600,000.

Ruidoso's awesome Triple Crown for three-year-old quarter horses starts off with the $300,000 (estimated) Kansas Derby at 400 yards, and continues with the $575,000 (estimated) Rainbow Derby and the $1 million (estimated) All-American Derby. Both the Rainbow and All-American are run at 440 yards.

In the thoroughbred category, the Ruidoso Mile, long a staple on the Southwest handicap scene, becomes an even more important event. The added money has been hiked from $25,000 to $40,000.

The two richest thoroughbred events are the $125,000 (estimated)

Ruidoso Thoroughbred Futurity at six furlongs and the $100,000 (estimated) Norgor Futurity at four furlongs.

New stakes races for 1983 include the Lincoln County Handicap ($8,000 added) at six and one-half furlongs, the Fine Loom Handicap ($8,000 added) at 870 yards, the Mr. Kid Charge Handicap ($8,000 added) at 400 yards, the Crazy Frills Handicap ($7,500 added) at six furlongs, the Ruffast Handicap ($7,000 added) at five and one-half furlongs, the Big Profit Handicap ($10,000 added) at 550 yards, the Isayolboy Handicap ($15,000 added) at one and one-sixteenth miles, the Rio Bonito Handicap ($8,000 added) at six furlongs, and the Countess Blade Handicap ($10,000 added) at seven furlongs.

Once again, older quarter horses will have three major targets: the $200,000 (estimated) Rainbow Silver Cup, the $1 million (estimated) All-American Gold Cup, and the $200,000 (estimated) World's Championship Quarter Horse Classic. All three races are run at 440 yards. The Silver Cup and Gold Cup are the exclusive domain of four-year-olds, but the Classic is for three-year-olds and up.

NANCY FLEHARTY

Profile Ruidoso: Nancy Fleharty, the artist

by CATHERINE PALMER

Ugly Woman sits on her bench at 20/20 Gallery grinning at the world through the large peach-colored teeth in her wide red smile. She seems to be smelling something distasteful through her long hooked nose, and the purple-pink hair stands on end.

Nancy Fleharty, creator of Ugly Woman—a lifesized soft sculpture—laughs over the bright starry eyes of her artwork. She needs a mate, Nancy asserts. "Every ugly woman needs an Ugly man."

This sense of humor and bright outlook on life pervades Nancy's art. She divides her time between what she terms her commercial art and her fine arts. You have probably seen those cute mice scampering through the advertisements of several of the local clothing stores. Nancy came up with the idea for her pen and ink drawings and was soon approached by other businesses wanting original ads or logos.

Her true love, however, is her painting.

"The fine arts is who I am," Nancy explains. Her favorite medium is watercolor, though she likes to work with colored pencils and pen and ink.

Born in Novelty, Ohio, Nancy grew up with an affinity for art. She took a lot of art classes, but "never wanted to take it seriously." Nancy planned a career as a veterinarian because of her experience with horses. Her riding and show-jumping came to an end when, at eighteen, she had to have back surgery.

She was encouraged to move West because of her health. After two years at Ohio Wesleyan, Nancy came to Ruidoso with her sister Libby in 1975.

Though she had taken many art classes in college, Nancy felt dissatisfied with what she had learned. While waitressing and working in a ski shop, she continued to take classes and to work on her skills. In 1978 Nancy married Kevin Fleharty, who manages the lounge at Cree Meadows Country Club. She had a daughter, Jasmine—a true "comrade" Nancy feels.

Nancy began her artistic career with her advertisements. Now she works for about six local businesses who feel that her original ideas really help to sell their products. She also has designed the logos for these businesses at about one-sixth what it normally costs in large cities. A new venture is her architectural rendering for Ruidoso's Rex Skellett. In addition, Nancy does birth announcements, invitations and just about anything that her customers need to be made print-ready.

For two years, Nancy has been selling her fine arts. Birds comprise her favorite subject.

"I'm kind of a bird woman," she says with a laugh. In preparation for each painting, Nancy studies the bird and reads all she can about its habits and personality. It is this personality which she tries to convey in her art.

Some of her birds seem more conventional than others, though the rich deep colors Nancy uses bring all her works to intense life. At the gallery now you can see one of her more avantgarde paintings. The two "visiting Southwest secretaries," as Nancy calls them, are birds normally found in Africa and South America. Nancy imagined what they would look like if they made a journey to visit New Mexico. Instead of their normal staid black and white plumage, Nancy has given these secretary birds red head feathers and greenish-yellow bodies.

Nancy also enjoys doing fantasy art. The first painting she sold was of a wizard riding a unicorn. Though most of us envision wizards as ancient men, Nancy portrayed her subject as a "young frivolous wizard." Asked about her goals for the future, Nancy related that her "dying dream is to illustrate children's books. I'm a fairy tale fan."

In August 1981 the 20/20 Gallery opened. Nancy now is president of the co-operative venture. All the artists who are members of the gallery must cooperate in some way, either by paying dues, manning the gallery, or paying higher commissions.

The gallery displays an astonishing number of artistic media. Nancy, Jo Cunningham, Karen Gray, Kathy Travis, Mike Torrez, and Kevin Johnson all have contributed painting in various styles and subjects. Denise Dorn displays her batiks, Betty Monteith her pottery, and Ann Hail her weavings. Stained glass by Melinda Valliant, prints by Juliana Kirwin, and dried flower pictures by Dorothy Reid can also be seen. Jo Burnett provides her cross-stitch samplers, and Libby Beechie (Nancy's sister) exhibits her superbly crafted soft-sculpture dolls. Nancy admits that it is sometimes hard dealing with a lot of different artists. "Artists are basically flaky," she says with a laugh. "It is obvious, however, that Nancy is very proud of the gallery and its success both in the Ruidoso community and with visitors."

She feels that a lot of visitors are surprised when they come into the gallery. Very few of the paintings have the traditional Western themes found in most of the local art centers. Nancy, herself, wants to stay away from what she sees as a fad for Western artwork. She believes that many artists have sold out to this "mass media fad," and are simply out to make a fast buck.

"I won't break down and do cowboys," Nancy states firmly. "It's a prostitution of my art." She does admit, however, that this may keep her broke for a long time.

To Nancy, Ruidoso is a good town for an opportunist. She sees this as a place to follow in the footsteps of one of her favorite artists, Georgia O'Keeffe. Though the woman was not accepted at first, her work was later recognized as brilliantly avant-garde.

"Because she was an individual," Nancy explains, "she will always be one of the greats."

"Ruidoso is so raw," she asserts. It is hard to make it here if you're not aggressive and self-motivated, but if you are, and if you try hard enough, you can reach your dreams.

But for now, Nancy Fleharty just wants to keep working at her art and learning more about her craft.

"That's all that's really important to me is that I get better," she states. "The reward is in getting better."

The Alamogordo Musical Theatre

specializes in musicals and will be bringing a troupe of 63 performers, including an orchestra. Sherman Atwood of Ruidoso Little Theatre suggested taking the whole family to dinner at the Inn before the show and watching the play later. There will be a no-host bar, wine and cheese table, and dessert available at the show. Advance tickets are available for $5 for adults, $3 for children at Don's Pharmacy, Sears, the Chamber of Commerce and the Inn of the Mountain Gods. Tickets will be available at the door for the same price.

Christian musical drama set this weekend

The Christian musical drama, "Living Witnesses," will be presented this Saturday at 7 p.m. and Sunday at 6 p.m. at Gateway Assembly of God Church.

Carlene Wadley is directing the musical, written by Rick Cook and Allene Bledsoe for the 300-voice choir at Melodyland in Anaheim, Calif.

nia. The production depicts through humor, music and drama the account of real-life people whose lives were changed through the ages by Jesus Christ.

Testimonies from 17-year-old David Landrum and local businesswoman Kathy Barnett will be included in the performance.

Wadley said the show will be done in the tradition of Gateway Christmas shows, with complete lighting, costumes and make-up.

The production is free of charge and the public is encouraged to attend. More comfortable seating space will probably be available at the Saturday evening performance, Wadley said.

Mental Health group hosting annual meeting

The public is invited to the Lincoln County Mental Health Association annual general membership meeting at 7 p.m. Monday, March 21, at the Counseling Center in the Sierra Professional Building.

Members will be electing representatives to the board of directors, considering changes in the bylaws, and introducing current directors' staff

The Silver Lining

BY DANIEL AGNEW STORM

Happy Saint Patrick's Day

This will reach you on Saint Patrick's Day, and is being written in early afternoon of Saint Patrick's Eve.

The Vale of San Patricio, named by a priest from Ireland on account of the bright green of the valley and surrounding hills, is out in its festive colors of White Apricot and early plum blooms and the new green of the Weeping Willow.

Here in the vale it is a day reminding you of the Emerald Isle, with sunshine and cloudy sky, and a shower here and there on the horizon, and some of the glens filled with light mist.

The large Apricot tree just south of the house is out in full bloom a giant bouquet of silvery white touched with the faintest tint of pink. Like something in a painting it glows, so still in the sunny air.

The mountain meadow all around the blossoming tree is radiant with the tips of the new grass, hastening out ready for the first day of Spring, and the fresh breath of the fast-growing grass is mingled in the air with the honey-like fragrance of the Apricot Blooms.

Ireland's Poet,
Thomas Moore

Thomas Moore represents his Native Ireland with his verse, almost all by himself. Scotland has several outstanding poets; and England more than one hundred who have a top place among the world's poets.

Here in the house is a handsome, leather-bound volume, gold-embossed of Moore's complete works, almost two inches thick, all in very fine print of very thin pages, and each poem a masterpiece.

After a lapse of hundreds of years, it was destined for Moore to revive the song and poetic spirit of his Celtic ancestors, among whom great poets were numbered by the scores, and everyone was a poet and song maker.

This is suggested in his poem:
"Dear Harp of my Country

In Darkness I found thee
The cold chain of silence
Had hung o'er thee long . . .

Again, like his Celtic forefather Moore's poetic works are also musical compositions, which he often sang himself, like the beloved Mexican composers, Augustine Lara, Manuel Ponce, and Juventino Rosas.

One of Moore's most famous songs:

"Believe me, if all those
Endearing young charms
Which I gaze on so fondly today,
Were to fade by tomorrow,
And fleet from my arms
Like fairy gifts fading away,
Thou wouldst still be adored
As this moment thou art
Let thy loveliness fade as it will,
And around the dear ruin
Each wish of my heart
Would entwine itself verdantly still."

The Great Lesson
The Irish Have Taught

Along in 1836 there was a terrible potato famine in Ireland, and the Irish came by the thousands to this country.

And many of them came to know "man's inhumanity to man".

They made homes out of whatever they could find, and were often referred to as "Shanty Irish." There were signs in the cities saying: "Help wanted — no Irish need apply."

They were living proof that discrimination need not be based on color, for the Irish are about the "Whitest" people in the world. They are so "White" that their thin, fair skin — an adaptation to their cloudy land of little sun — will not permit them to stand much strong sunlight.

But deep down the Irish felt they were as good as anybody else, and went cheerfully ahead, building our railroads, and forming the bulk of our Cavalry in the Union Army in the Civil War.

And today our president is of Irish descent; and is turning out to be one of our very best.

Happy Birthday To Brother Miller

One of Lincoln County's favorite people, Elger E. Miller, known since childhood by his countless friends as "Brother Miller", will be eighty years old to the day on March nineteen.

Brother was born to Fountain Alexander Miller and the former Alice Burdette March 19, 1903 on the spot where the Elk's Lodge now stands.

His parents had a store and post office at this location and also a granary. His father ran the granary while his mother ran the store and post office. The Mesquero Indians sold their oats to the granary, and Brother's father then took it to Captain to Mr. Titworth.

The Mesquero Indians would sell baskets and other hand made things to the store in exchange for groceries and other articles. The Navajo Indians would come all the way from their homes in the north of the state to deal with Mrs. Miller, trading blankets and other of their artistic and handicraft articles.

When Brother was ten years old the family moved to where the Race track now stands; and Brother lives close by to this day.

His father came from Colfax County at the age of fourteen and went to work for "Grandpa Cree" (Lord Cree of Scotland) — and worked for him seventeen years. At the time when the Cree's sold their cattle, 25,000 head, Brother's father was foreman of the entire cattle operation.

Brother was post master of Hollywood for fourteen years, Mayor of Ruidoso Downs for four years, and Deputy Cattle Inspector for thirty-eight years.

A dyed-in-the-wool Westerner in the finest tradition, he has been known all his life for his ready helpfulness and his sunny disposition "in sunshine or shadow" and we wish this well-beloved native of Lincoln County many happy returns of the day and all God's blessings.

No harm intended by bumpersticker

The manager of Sierra Swim and Racquet Club indicated Wednesday that no harm was intended by a bumper sticker issued by the club, and reported the remaining stickers have been destroyed.

Club manager Rick Scoggins said he didn't think of the implications when he okayed distribution of a bumper sticker with the word, "Overdoso," — a play on Ruidoso. The sticker was brought up at a recent Crime Stoppers meeting as having drug connotations.

"We're trying to be good guys here," said Scoggins. He said the sticker was not intended as anything other than an "eye-catcher."

Scoggins claimed he has run off a couple of drug peddlers from the club by taking away their memberships. He added that he is more than willing to work with anybody to fight the drug problem.

"It hurts us all—it hurts the city," he said.

He added that besides destroying the remaining stickers, the club has asked everyone with the sticker on their cars to remove it.

Scoggins also reported on the current status of the club. He said he expects renovation of the health club portion of the facility to be complete by May 1.

Renovation of swimming and tennis facilities will follow, and Scoggins hopes that will be complete by June 1, "so we have a nice summer."

The restaurant and lounge are now open on a temporary private membership basis, Scoggins noted.

Box stuffers 'fess up

The ballot box stuffers in the recent Chamber of Commerce and HN'ZHU'NE' award election have confessed to their crime in a giggling phone call to The News.

Marge Woodul, Realtor with Four Seasons Real Estate, called the News office and confessed the crime after reading an account in the paper. She called it a "natural mistake."

Apparently the receptionist at Four Seasons made copies of the ballots and distributed them to all Realtors in the office, not realizing Four Seasons had only one vote.

The Realtors did not catch the mistake and half of them filled out the ballots. The completed ballots were returned to the Chamber Thursday. Chamber ballot counters discovered the extra ballots and did not include them in the final tally.

"We apologize," said Woodul.

SENATOR CHARLIE LEE spends some time in his office to study legislation that will come before

FRESHMAN REPRESENTATIVE M. B. "Mickey" McGuire discusses a particular issue with a constituent who has called to voice his opinion about a bill.

New Mexico Legislature a happening place

by BARBY GRANT
Staff Writer

Office hours begin around 8 a.m. or earlier—there's the mail to read, calls to take and make, and plenty of studying to do. At 9 a.m. there's a committee meeting, followed at 10 by a three-hour session of the House. There is barely an hour to grab lunch before the committee convenes again at 2. An executive session prolongs the meeting past 5 p.m.

A day in the life of a New Mexico legislator could not be described exactly as fun-filled, although perhaps action-packed would be appropriate on some occasions, in a mild sense. Mostly the days are filled with just sitting and paying attention and casting votes on some important and many not-so-momentous issues.

But there is something in the atmosphere at the Legislature that is electrifying—an awareness of the power wielded there, of the democratic machinery in action.

Representative Mickey McGuire and Senator Charlie Lee are involved in this legislative process on behalf of the residents of this district, and they recently shared some of their time and their thoughts on that involvement.

McGuire, near the completion of his first session as a legislator, was blessed with a leisurely morning last Friday by not having a meeting until 9 a.m. Occasionally the first meeting begins at 7 a.m. and usually something is scheduled for 8 at the latest.

McGuire feels lucky as a freshman to have been appointed to the House Appropriations and Finance Committee, which he terms "the learning committee." Because all bills dealing with money must pass through this committee, it offers a perfect opportunity to "learn how it works," McGuire explained.

He also sits on the Voters and Elections Committee and Enrolling and Engrossing, a committee to which freshmen are appointed to edit bills before they go to the governor.

On this particular day the Appropriations and Finance Committee convened at 9 a.m. to hear a presentation by the editor of Inc. Magazine on the prospects for high technology small business in New Mexico. Following this presentation was a debate on House Bill 80, which would require government agencies—including cities and counties—to conduct a cost benefit analysis before making any purchases or performing any services.

A speaker for the opposition was permitted to present arguments against the legislation, after which the bill was quickly tabled without prejudice. Most bills with any kind of fiscal impact are tabled in this manner until all money requests can be totaled and then voted on.

Legislative finance committee analysts serve as fiscal experts for committees having to deal with money bills. A fiscal impact report on each bill is prepared by the analysts and made available to each committee member, analyst Karen Krakowski explained.

She pointed out that about half the Appropriations and Finance Committee members are freshmen, but it is "the most impressive group of freshmen I've ever seen."

The House of Representatives convened at 10 a.m. and, as McGuire makes it a point to "be where I'm supposed to be when I'm supposed to be and on time," he hurried from the committee meeting room to the House chamber to arrive before the session began.

The following three hours were taken up with adoption of committee reports and passage of 12 bills and one memorial, only one of which prompted any real debate. Senate Joint Memorial 4 requested the Board on Geographic Names to name a mountain previously unnamed in Sandoval County to Voice of Christ the King Mountain. The memorial passed by a vote of 50 to 11.

By the time most bills have reached the floor of the House for a vote, they have been heard by at least two committees, giving representatives some basis for their vote in the House.

"It is my feeling that if it has gotten this far through all the committee hearings and the floor of the Senate, I'll vote for it," McGuire pointed out. He said this is true unless there is a reason he feels it should not pass.

Senator Lee agrees that legislators must depend on the judgment of committee members in deciding whether or not a bill should be adopted. With 1,200 to 1,500 pieces of legislation introduced in a 60-day session, the task of studying each and every bill is an impossible one.

Lee, now in his third year as a legislator, admitted that during his freshman session he did try to read every bill. The senator soon realized the immensity of the task, however, and now realizes he can be expected to study only those bills to be heard by the committees on which he serves. Lee sits on the Corporations Committee and Conservation Committee.

Representative McGuire pointed out that one tends to learn which legislators' judgment can be trusted above others, and that freshmen usually adopt a mentor among the senior members of the Legislature.

"You have to key on someone to develop respect for and to ask information from," the freshman representative said. But he said he has not found any legislator who would not offer his help to the freshmen.

Senator Lee backed this up by pointing out that "it has always been the practice to do that."

"It's a natural tendency when you see a freshman ... having problems ... because he is unsure how to handle legislative procedures. Most senior members are very helpful and thoughtful about trying to guide members because they've all been there; it's the courteous thing to do," he commented.

But, the senator added, after they have had the experience, "then it's every man for himself."

Lee remembers the frustration of the first year in the Legislature, though. "You just want to throw up your hands and go home."

"Every legislator here has gone through the same problems," he continued. "You're thoroughly sick of the process after the first session."

Freshman McGuire admits that there were times during the second and third weeks when he began to question whether he would ever make it through. The amount of time required is a drain and the amount of information to be absorbed is overwhelming, he indicated.

But Senator Lee knows a cure for the "legislator's blues"—going home.

"It's good to go home," he stated. "You tend to sit in this round building and you tend to think this is the whole world and you're having such an affect on everybody's life." Lee said when he goes home, however, he discovers that the folks there have not even been keeping up with the proceedings of the Legislature and prefer not to concern themselves with it.

"It keeps your mental attitude balanced," he admitted. "If you stay here you tend to think this is too important; you're too important; the process is too important, and it's not that important to the people at home."

One indication of the lawmakers' importance to the general public is input received from constituents during sessions. McGuire said he has gotten input from constituents only about particular issues of major concern to them. One disappointment, he said, has been in hearing from a constituent about an issue the caller really knows little about.

The representative indicated he does not give too much weight to opinions offered from constituents who obviously were persuaded by someone else to show interest in the issue.

"Legislators are really interested in the views of constituents, but they want to be able to know those feelings are based on facts and figures that can be backed up, not plays on emotional issues," McGuire pointed out.

Both McGuire and Lee related that citizens often are unaware of the true implications of a piece of legislation or of the total impact of a bill for which they are pushing. Senator Lee pointed out that a bill can be amended so many times before final passage that a constituent may find it nearly impossible to keep up with it.

Lee said he makes an effort to keep constituents who have shown interest in a bill informed of its changes in order to determine how the constituent feels about it.

Situations occasionally arise in which a legislator's personal judgment on an issue conflicts with his constituents' opinions, however, in which case a value judgment must be made on which side to vote. Senator Lee and Representative McGuire both indicated they would remain true to their own feelings when such a conflict occurs.

"You make a judgment decision and hope you're right," the senator explained. "You hope your constituency understands and looks at your whole record and does not judge you on one issue."

McGuire explained that he feels his being directly involved in the legislative process affords him a more complete understanding of the issues being decided than individuals outside the system have. He also believes his constituents elected him to make those decisions.

An additional difficulty pointed out by Lee is in trying to represent portions of several different counties making up one district "and at the same time you have to look at the overall picture of the state." He further illustrated this point by noting the broad variety of interests within his district, which include agriculture, recreation, military, two county governments, five school districts and a university branch.

"It's been a challenge, to say the least," the senator admitted.

The people encountered and the education received are what make it all worthwhile, though, Lee noted.

"I really like to campaign; I enjoy meeting people," the senator remarked. "That part of politics I thoroughly enjoy." The other enjoyable aspect of serving in the Legislature is the education, he noted.

"It's been the best education I've ever had," Lee explained. This is the case because legislators deal with such a diversity of issues that they invariably learn something about each in the process.

"A wealth of information is what the whole process is," he stated.

McGuire has been busy this session being educated in the process itself. Freshmen go through a brief orientation and are expected to study their handbooks to learn the procedures for introducing legislation and speaking in a House session. Members of both legislative houses address each other through the speaker or president. But as a representative, McGuire is referred to as "the gentleman from Lincoln," while Lee is referred to as Senator Lee in the Senate chamber.

Lee explains the difference as one in formality, with the House of Representatives typically being the more informal group. But the reason for both methods of address is to keep discussions impersonal and unheated, according to the two legislators.

McGuire explained that House members must address each other through the speaker and by avoiding names because "it takes away some of the heatedness" and to "try to keep things neutral."

Lee explained that the purpose for the formality in the Senate is the same—"to keep things from getting hot and heavy, and it keeps us from being personal."

When the members have to work together on a daily basis for 60 days straight, they cannot afford to deal with personalities when deciding issues. As Lee pointed out, two legislators may be adamantly opposed on one issue and in perfect agreement on the next.

One lack of agreement observed concerns the seemingly suspicious attitude of some senior members of the legislature. Freshman McGuire commented that he fails to understand the attitude of many lawmakers in questioning everyone and everything presented to them.

Senator Lee, however, admitted that he has developed a tendency to question everything with an attitude of doubt.

"You have a negative attitude about legislation until a legislator proves otherwise," he said. "You have to do it; it's the only way to find out. If you accept what they tell you on face value you're not getting all the information," he continued.

Lee admits that he failed to understand the need for so many questions and seeming doubt until he had spent some time in the Legislature. "I had to develop an attitude of questioning, and the longer I stay here I'm sure I'll be more that way every day."

The senator feels that is one of the lessons to be learned by freshmen. Indeed, McGuire admitted that perhaps he will come to see the need for developing a questioning attitude as time progresses.

Something else the veteran senator pointed out that freshmen have yet to learn is how to pace themselves. "Freshmen try to do everything. After a couple of years you begin to pace yourself on what you can do."

Lee advised that setting a pace for oneself is necessary to avoid becoming so hurried that one loses his feeling for people and his sincerity.

Despite the fact that there is so much to learn, McGuire feels this—his first session has been a pretty good one, involving a lot of tough decision making because of the adverse financial condition of the state.

"I've attempted to make sure everybody suffers about the same kind of situation," the freshman representative said in explanation of his voting philosophy on fiscal matters.

He has already learned a lot in the 60 days spent in the Roundhouse, including that the negative stereotype the public tends to pin on politicians is false. Although he personally never viewed politicians as all bad, he has discovered that most all of them are just the opposite.

Lee also made this discovery during his early involvement in the Legislature.

"I think we all presume probably most Legislators ... are a little dishonest," the senator admitted. "You find out that's really not true."

"I think on the whole legislators are credible." He feels outsiders hold on to the false stereotype because they are not that close to the political process. "They don't participate in it as much as they should."

"I would like to see people more involved—whether I agree with them or not; that is what keeps our form of government moving," Lee remarked.

Of course, having concerned representatives and senators like McGuire and Lee also helps!

PHYSICIAN ASSISTANT Nancy Guck examines a patient's record in her cozy office on Main Street in Capitan.

'Physician Assistant' suits Nancy Guck

by BILLY ALLSTETTER and ELIZABETH FOX

With the constant innovations in medical technology, physicians are finding more and more of their precious time being devoted to learning the latest technical advances in medicine. Keeping current on health care has given rise to the use of physician assistants to aid physicians in their medical practices.

A physician assistant (P.A.) is a member of a health care team utilized by physicians to increase accessibility to quality health care, provide comprehensive health services, and improve the continuity of patient care.

There is one practicing physician assistant in Lincoln County. Nancy Guck, P.A.C. (the C. means certified) operates the Capitan Clinic in Capitan under the supervision of Doctors Lance Kirkegaard, R. A. Beechie, Paul Whitman and Paul Echols in Ruidoso.

Physician assistants, working under the supervision of a physician, can provide health care services in rural areas and underserved communities. Attracting and retaining doctors is a chronic problem residents face in rural areas.

Guck has seen this difficulty since she entered the health care field at the age of 14 as a nurse's aide in Montana. She faced it again soon after she arrived in Lincoln County in 1973.

Carrizozo's Lincoln County Memorial Hospital, where Guck had been working as a Licensed Practicing Nurse, folded in 1974 because the community could not support the facility.

When Guck moved to the Carrizozo Health Center she had to assume more responsibilities than a nurse normally does. She performed laboratory tests, X-rays, ambulance and office work.

The National Health Service Corps recognized the need for a physician assistant at the health center and offered to pay Guck's way through the Medex Project, an intensive physician assistant training program. Guck applied along with 1,000 others and was one of only 17 accepted to the program.

"I was real proud of that," she said. Physician assistants usually have at least two years of college, and more typically, bachelor's degrees in premedical sciences before their admission into a physician assistant program.

Most programs are two years long. The Medex Project was a "12-month, 12-hour a day" program, according to Guck.

"It was probably the most difficult time of my life. It was extremely stressful," Guck recalled.

These programs train physician assistants in biomedical, behavioral and clinical skills. Topics covered are anatomy and physiology, pharmacology, physical diagnosis, biochemistry, internal medicine, surgery, pediatrics, obstetrics and gynecology, psychiatry and family practice.

Guck's training was in family practice. However, when she completed the Medex Project, her position at the Carrizozo Health Center had already been filled.

She worked in Ruidoso for Dr. Beechie for a year, but received many requests to open a clinic in her hometown, Capitan. With the help of Dr. Kirkegaard, she opened the Capitan Clinic in April 1982. She said she sees mostly older people, children and emergencies.

Physician assistants can reduce waiting time, perform less-hurried exams, and allow physicians more time for difficult cases.

"I take a load off my doctors," she said. "They're not overworked and burnt out with minor things."

Current evidence also suggests that physician assistants have greater patient rapport, plus more comprehensive care and improved compliance. Patients report that physician assistants are caring, willing to listen, explain medical situations and treatment, and assist the whole family in medical care.

Guck agrees. She believes patients are more willing to come to her small clinic in Capitan than to a larger, impersonal hospital. Her patients are better acquainted with her and not threatened by her, she believes.

"I've seen patients that haven't been in 10 years," she said. "I've been able to direct them into the system."

Guck told the story of a young boy who came into her clinic for a cold. She found out during the course of her examination that he had also been suffering from back pain for a year. It turned out the boy had a tumor on his kidney. Guck sent him to the hospital where the tumor was removed before it became a serious problem.

In addition to being less threatening than a hospital, Guck said she is closer and cheaper for many of her patients.

For example, if a resident of Capitan comes down with a serious case of strep throat at night, he can call her locally any time of day or night and she will make a visit for approximately $25. If she weren't available, the patient would have to drive all the way to the Ruidoso and pay closer to $150 for attention at their emergency room, she said.

Charges are not nearly so disparate in normal daytime cases, but Guck said she does charge less than a fully qualified doctor.

She emphasized, however, that she is not a fully qualified doctor and cannot provide all the services a doctor can. She has to work under the supervision of a doctor.

"I think it's working out great," said Kirkegaard of the arrangement between the Ruidoso physicians and Guck's Capitan Clinic. "All in all, we're really pleased with her judgment."

He noted that Guck refers patients to a physician when it is appropriate, and treats those ailments she is trained to treat herself.

Besides giving people access to health care they might not otherwise have, Kirkegaard added, Guck helps those people have confidence in the health care system in the county.

"You have to be able to say 'I don't know,'" Guck explained. In that case, she asks advice from her preceptor doctors or sends the patients to be examined by them.

She has full prescription privileges except for narcotics and controlled substances. Her clinic is also without most of the machinery and laboratory equipment available at the Ruidoso-Hondo Valley Hospital.

Physician assistants can be found throughout New Mexico providing a wide range of medical services to patients. Rural communities are benefitting from the availability of physician assistants and the quality of care received from these paraprofessionals.

"I really think there's a big need for rural medicine," said Guck. And she is working to fill that need in Lincoln County.

Solar seminar offered

The New Mexico Solar Energy Institute at New Mexico State University will present a "Solar Retrofit" evening seminar from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Thursday, March 24, at Cloudcroft High School.

To "retrofit" means to add solar to an existing home or building. Otero County Electric Cooperative is co-sponsor of the seminar.

Topics include basic weatherization—walls, windows and roofs; mechanical systems and conservation hardware; solar retrofit design, construction and operation; solar greenhouses and management; and access to resources and open discussion about books, blueprints, do-it-yourself plans, scale models and design review.

For information on the seminar, call Wayne McGee at 682-2521 in Capitan.

Commercial and residential burglaries believed solved

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

Ruidoso Police Department investigators solved five burglaries last weekend with the arrests of three suspects. Two of the burglaries were commercial, the other three were residential.

RPD Operations Commander Dave Pfeffer said Arden Hosetosavit, 37, of Mesalero, is being held in custody and charged with recent burglaries of Brunell's, Olma's Style Shop and a private residence on Papoose Trail.

Also arrested over the weekend were David Hungerford, 20, of Ruidoso, and Rebecca McDougal, 19, also of Ruidoso. Hungerford was charged with burglary, two counts of fraudulent signing of a credit card and possession of marijuana under one ounce. He was released on $5,000 bond.

McDougal was charged with one count of receiving stolen property. She was released on $2,500 bond. Pfeffer said the charge stems from McDougal allegedly receiving a stolen television from two juveniles.

The juveniles, who he preferred not to identify, were charged with residential burglary. They were referred to Children's Probation Officer, Jane Parnell, Pfeffer said.

Pfeffer said two tips over the Crime Stoppers telephone led to the arrest of Hosetosavit on March 9. The tips were related to the commercial burglaries. Neither of the informants wanted a reward, Pfeffer noted.

Hosetosavit is charged with breaking into Brunell's the night of February 26-27 and Olma's the night of March 5-6. Around $150 worth of clothing was taken from Brunell's and $330 worth of jewelry was taken from Olma's Style Shop.

The suspect also is charged with burglary of $480 worth of clothing and household items. Pfeffer said the burglary of Brunell's and the residence occurred on the same day.

Hungerford is charged with stealing an $1,800 stereo system from the Paul Sergeant home on Block D Highway and with taking a woman's purse from the Main Post Office and using her credit card. The woman reported she had $500 cash in the purse when it was stolen. None of the money was recovered.

Pfeffer said the marijuana charge against Hungerford was filed after he was arrested. The substance turned up during a body search before Hungerford was jailed, he reported.

McDougal allegedly received a $250 color television that was stolen from the Roland Lowe residence on Riverside Drive. A witness reportedly saw the juvenile boys give the television to McDougal.

Pfeffer said all the burglary suspects confessed to the crimes after being arrested.

Golf scramble ends in three-way tie

Around Sports with Gary Brown

Sunday's benefit golf scramble at Cree Meadows Country Club wound up with three teams in a tie for first place.

The team of Bob Dunn, Virgil Reynolds Sr., Don Dale Jr., Toy Henson and Ken Espinosa shot a 62 in the best-ball competition.

Matching that score was the team of Bill Hirschfeld, Bob Wornack, Skeet Cates, Karon Petty, Dion Lopez and Denny Loverin.

Also shooting 62 was the team of Virgil Reynolds Jr., Bill Happle, Charlie Bochart, Louie Herrera, George Cliff and Jean Howden.

Sunday's event raised about $1,000 for the high school and middle school golf programs. Sponsors included Tom Hornbuckle, Cree Meadows Country Club, Alto Construction, Hassell Construction, Doug Bass and Associates, White Mountain Title, Savage Electric, Perceet Parks and Associates and Inn of the Mountain Gods pro shop—Jack Warlick and Ted Martinez.

Other sponsors were John Howden Construction, Bill Neal and Sonny Edwards.

HOPEFUL CHAMPION. Shane Watts skis through racing gates in preparation for the Handicap National Ski Championships in Squaw Valley, California, March 21 through 26.

by GARY BROWN

There were many Cinderella stories to the 1983 New Mexico State boys' basketball tournament in Albuquerque last weekend.

However, none were bigger than the Lovington High School Wildcats' drive to the AAA division championship.

Lovington was only seeded fourth in the district 4-AAA tournament but finished second, losing to Tucumcari High School by 26 points in the district title game.

The Wildcats then took three straight victories in the state tournament for the state crown.

Lovington, which finished the season with a mediocre 14-14 overall record, nipped Bernalillo High School 78-76 in the first round and Deming High School 76-74 in the semi-finals.

The Wildcats then stunned heavily favored Tucumcari High School by a 92-81 score for the championship.

Oh, there were other excellent teams in the tournament. Eldorado High School won the AAAA title with a thrilling come-from-behind 60-59 victory over Los Alamos High School; Escalante High School nipped Pecos High School 64-62 for the AA championship; and Cliff High School won the A division crown with a 65-56 win over Rehoboth.

and Cobre High School, the AAA division's top-ranked teams, in the first two rounds of the tournament.

Thus, Tucumcari, with 8-5 Mike Downs leading the way, was expected to romp over Lovington for the title.

But somebody forgot to tell the Wildcats they were supposed to lose. Lovington defeated Tucumcari with an excellent fast-break offense sparked by 6-1 Vince Homer and 5-9 playmaker Perry Howard.

Lovington showed its fast break to Ruidoso High School fans when it defeated the Warriors in December.

Another surprise in the AAA division was the performance of Deming, the district 3-AAA runnerup.

After being badly beaten by Cobre in the district championship game, Deming finished third in the state tournament. It edged Kirtland Central High School 58-56 in the opener before being nipped by Lovington in the semi-finals.

Deming gained third place by rolling over Taos 87-79 Saturday. The win was satisfying for Deming as it partially avenged last year's disappointing finish, when the Wildcats were eliminated in the first round.

But in the end, the biggest surprise of the tournament was Lovington, a team which was lucky to even make the tourney.

Warrior golfers third at Artesia tourney

The Ruidoso High School golf team made a strong showing at last weekend's Artesia Invitational, placing third among six teams.

Lovington won the tournament and New Mexico Military Institute was second. The Warriors finished ahead of Eunice, Artesia and Tucumcari.

Virgil Reynolds paced the Warrior effort with a score of 81 over 18 holes. Billy Taylor and Tommy Crow each shot 95; Gary Gregson had an even 100; and Bill Bomar fired a 121.

Coach Leroy Gooch was pleased with his team's performance and predicts further improvement for his linksmen.

"I think they're going to take 10 strokes off their game pretty quick," he said.

The Warriors travel to Las Cruces Friday for a tournament. Gooch expects 14 or 15 teams to compete there.

Women's softball meeting set

The Lincoln County Women's Softball Association will have a general meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday, March 31, at Ruidoso Public Library.

This is an organizational meeting to vote on bylaws for the upcoming season. All prospective teams should have representatives present, and all interested persons are invited to attend.

For more information, call Susan Keeton at 257-7195 or 258-4220.

Men's softball meetings

The Ruidoso Men's Slow Pitch Softball League is meeting at 7 p.m. Friday, March 18, at Ruidoso Public Library.

All sponsors and team representatives should be present for this final organizational meeting. For further information call Tim Eckerdt at 378-4279.

Ruidoso Men's Fast Pitch Softball Association meets at 7 p.m. Tuesday, March 22, at K-Bob's.

All interested persons are invited to attend. For information, call Dennis Martin at 257-4589.

Watts to nationals

Shane Watts has qualified for the 1983 National Handicap Ski Championships in Squaw Valley, California, March 21-26. Watts qualified in regional races at Breckenridge, Colorado, last weekend.

Watts, 17, has been working and training at Taos Ski Area since January 10. He will be competing in the junior men's division.

Last year Watts won two gold medals and a silver in the nationals. This year he hopes to come home with three golds, said his mother, Judy Miller of Ruidoso.

The fastest racers at the Nationals will compete in the Handicap Olympics in Austria in 1984.

CHANGE IN LONG DISTANCE CALLS

Beginning March 1, long distance calls billed to a third number which are made from Continental and Mountain Bell public phones will not be completed unless someone at the billing number accepts the call. The change in policy is being made to protect customers from being billed for calls they didn't make and to reduce long distance telephone fraud.

Operators will tell customers, "I'll check that number and connect you." If the third number is busy or doesn't answer, the operator will say, "Your billing number is busy or doesn't answer. I will need verbal acceptance from your billing number or alternate billing such as Calling Card before the call can be completed." The verification attempt takes approximately 30 seconds.

"This is only a logical extension of our collect call practice," said Dee Monsen, Manager-Telephone Services for Continental Telephone Company of the West. "The revision is designed to protect customers from being charged for calls they don't make. Misbilled calls from public telephones are growing at an alarming rate. Customer dissatisfaction with the present third-number-billing practice is growing as a result. In the long run, telephone rates customers pay are affected by fraudulent use of the company's facilities," he said.

"Third Number service will still be offered to customers, and infrequent users of public phones won't notice much change. But a customer who has to make several calls from a public phone and bill them to a third number may want to consider an alternate method of billing," said Monsen.

Operators are also advising customers that if no one accepts the charges at the third number, alternative methods of paying for such calls are available. They include calling collect, paying for the call with coins or using a calling card.

Customers can obtain Calling Cards by calling their local Contel business office and avoid any inconvenience created by this policy change.

New Thought Group

"test all things"

"We look into anything, from lasers to plants of the Southwest as security to health," said Carmon Phillips of the New Thought Group.

"It certainly is mind provoking," said New Thought Group member Donna Bruss.

Member might be a strong name for this loosely affiliated group that is interested in "exploration of all areas of the mind and body," as Phillips explained it.

There are no officers, no dues and no membership counts in the New Thought Group. Anywhere from 10 to 25 people attend the weekly meetings, but no one is the leader or spokesperson. It is somewhat difficult to find out just what the group is about.

Cindy Breedlove, who along with her husband brought one of the first speakers to the group, called the New Thought Group a loose affiliation of people interested in positive thinking and searching for "tools for serenity and peace of mind."

The group meets the first Thursday of every month in village hall to listen to a speaker. Other weeks they meet in different peoples' houses to further investigate their areas of interest.

Speakers and areas of interest are decided by the group, said Phillips. A list of potential subjects is compiled by the group and voted on as the need for new subjects arises.

Handwriting analysis, astrology, numerology, holistic medicine, reincarnation, auras and Kirlian photography are some of the subjects the group is interested in.

Many of the subjects are first broached at the monthly meetings in village hall. Members of the group who know someone or know of someone who is knowledgeable in a field ask the person to come and speak. Lecturers have come from all over New Mexico and are not paid except with what is gathered in a plate passed around the group.

Sometimes the lecturer speaks on specific subjects as Kirlian photography, or on less defined subjects such as "being, living and living better"—the topic of chiropractor Herb Bailey at the last meeting.

Although there is a wide variety of subjects examined, there do seem to be a few principles and practices that are evident in all the meetings.

One of the ideas many of the speakers stress is a person's responsibility for his life and happiness.

"It is never the problem that's the problem. It's how I'm going to be when faced with the problem," Bailey said at a recent village hall meeting.

Positive thinking as one of the keys to taking control of one's life and making it better is the theme of many of the speakers—positive thinking and positive acting. If we accept ourselves as good people and believe that we can live a better life, it will happen, they believe.

"Assume it's your life and you can live it the way you want," said Robert Waterman, president and founder of Southwest College of Life Sciences in Santa Fe.

Instead of searching outside of ourselves, speakers have stressed, the inner self as a source of power and direction. God is not far away in some distant heaven. He is inside of all of us and we must tap into that source.

Meditation is one of the means to tap into that source. The meetings at village hall are often begun with a short meditation led by a member of the group. People are encouraged to look into themselves and concentrate on the light within.

While the village hall meetings are more of a lecture by one person, the weekly meetings at members' homes are more of a discussion.

Subjects are usually examined for a month at a time. During February the group examined the Seth Material, and March has been an examination of auras.

An aura is described as an energy field surrounding the body which relates to the physical, emotional and mental-spiritual dimensions of consciousness.

"When we are disturbed, in emotional conflict, carrying guilt or holding judgments against ourselves or others, the smooth, radial flow of the energy field is disrupted," said Waterman. "Imbalances in the aura can result in physical emotional and mental distortions or weaknesses."

The group has been examining how to sense and balance auras this month.

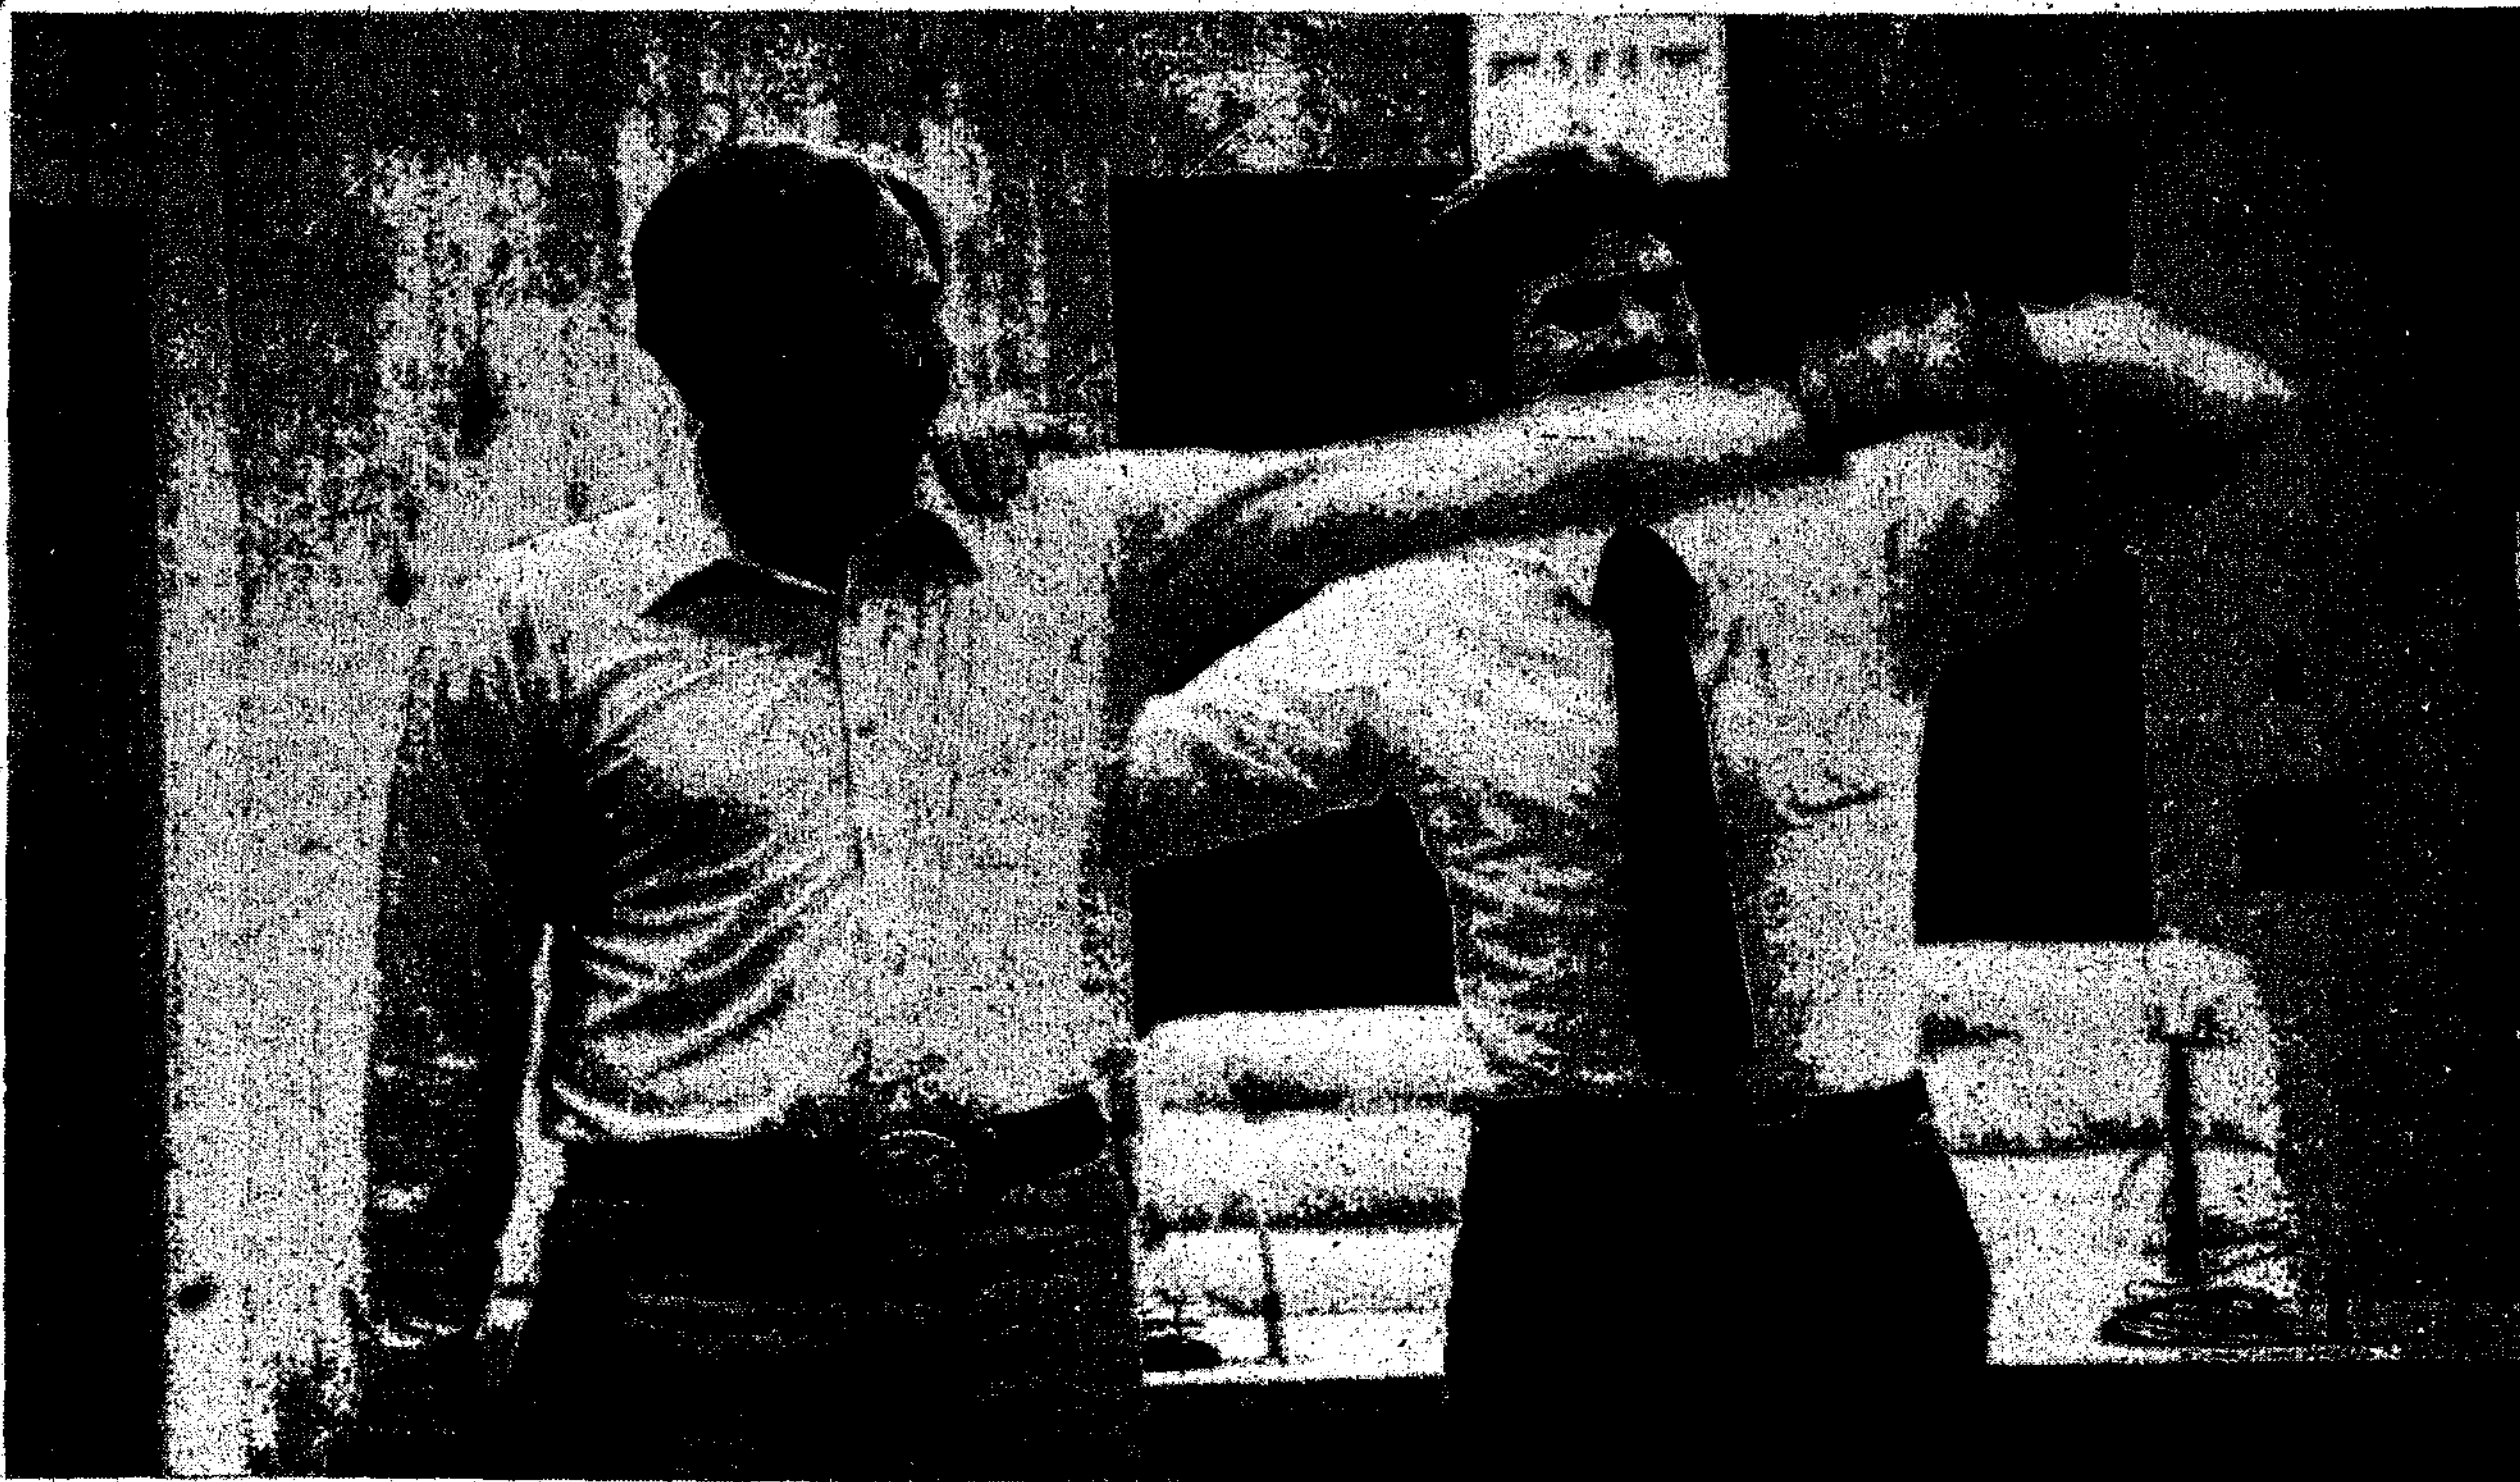

One group member who is knowledgeable in a specific subject will usually lead the discussion, but there is room for questions and discussion by anyone.

Connie Harris noted that this question and answer approach to metaphysical subjects is one of the things she most appreciates about the New Thought Group. She compared it to the Catholic Church, from which she said she could rarely get individualized answers to her questions about her life and its beliefs.

There is also a healthy amount of humor and skepticism among the group members, said Phillips. At a recent meeting group members were joking about sitting on each other's auras when they were too close to each other. After Waterman's talk about auras, there were obviously people who did not accept everything he said.

The meetings are in different houses different weeks. Sometimes the meetings are announced in the paper, but Phillips at the Old Mill Curio Shop also acts as a central communications point.

"Test all things and hold fast to things that are good," said Phillips, paraphrasing the Bible.

"EXPOSE YOURSELF TO THINGS YOU DON'T BELIEVE," was the advice of chiropractor Herb Bailey at a recent meeting of the New Thought Group. Bailey demonstrates extremely differing strengths in the arm of Ron Toya, caused by holding vials containing varying substances such as valium, vitamin C and sugar.

New counselor stresses her clients' needs

by BILLY ALLSTETTER
Staff Writer

"The most important thing is for the client to figure out how to take care of his own needs," said Barbara Edwards, recently arrived counselor at the Counseling Center.

Edwards said some counselors believe it is their duty to solve a client's problems. Edwards, on the other hand, believes in helping people help themselves.

"I let them make up their own mind," she said.

Edwards describes herself as an eclectic, using a variety of theories and practices to help her clients sort out and clarify their problems.

One of the tools she mentioned is transactional analysis. This practice is based on the theory that people act in three basic modes: the adult, the child and the parent.

She explained that a couple may act in a parent-child relationship with one partner always taking the dominant admonishing role, which prevents a more rational adult-adult relationship and better communication.

"I use it because it helps people see where they're coming from," she said. Once they see their own situation better, they can take positive moves to deal with their problems, she explained.

Edwards has been working at the Counseling Center since January 31 and has quickly picked up a substantial caseload. In addition to counseling at the center, she travels to Carizozo to counsel once a week. She noted that she has been able to lighten the caseload of administrator J. L. Wilson, freeing him to attend to more of his administrative duties.

Before coming to the Counseling Center, Edwards worked for five years as a counselor with the Work Incentive (WIN) program in Las Cruces. She helped welfare recipients make job choices, adjust to new jobs and deal with problems associated with holding down jobs and raising a family.

Edwards has a bachelor's degree in psychology from the University of Southern Florida and a master's degree in guidance and counseling from New Mexico State University.

At the Counseling Center, Edwards said, she uses many of the same techniques she did with WIN, but is freer to do "deeper, more therapeutic counseling."

It took only a week for her to adjust to the new situation, she said. She added that she is very happy with the staff at the Counseling Center. She said everyone has been very supportive and helpful.

When not at work, Edwards likes to practice photography with her husband Jim. Jim's photographs, including two award-winners, hang on the walls of her office.

Barbara and Jim are also members of White Mountain Search and Rescue. Barbara has some first aid training and plans to take a course in cardiopulmonary resuscitation this spring.

At the Counseling Center, she will continue to administer to clients' mental and emotional needs by "helping people help themselves."

Winter winding down

Winter sports activities are winding down on Lincoln National Forest. Enthusiasts are still finding good spring skiing at Sierra Blanca and fair snow conditions on parts of Cloudcroft district. On other districts thoughts are already focused on Spring.

Arbor Day found a Forest Service representative and a Webelos Cub Scout pack planting trees in front of White Mountain Elementary School in Ruidoso. Twenty-five to 30 pinon pine, ponderosa pine and alligator juniper seedlings were supplied by the USDA Forest Service and planted by Cub Scout Pack 59. The Scouts' efforts helped them earn forester achievement awards while providing landscaping and beautification at the school.

Elsewhere on Smokey Bear Ranger District there is deep snow in the high country and mud at lower elevations. Call Sierra Blanca Ski Area, 257-9001, for the latest ski report. Fuelwood areas are inaccessible due to muddy roads; call the ranger station at 257-4095 for current conditions before going to cut wood. Three Rivers Campground is open.

On Cloudcroft Ranger District conditions for sledding and tubing are good to fair at Upper Karr Canyon but parking is limited.

Tip leads to bust

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

Ruidoso police busted four persons Tuesday on drug charges after the department received a tip on the Crime Stoppers telephone.

Arrested were Timothy Ransom and Jonni Valesky on charges of possession of marijuana with intent to sell and possession of LSD. Also arrested were Don Hoffman and Zachary and Kimberly Payne, all for possession of marijuana.

Operations Commander Dave Pfeffer said police raided a house on Third Street rented by Ransom and Valesky, based on information received from an anonymous caller.

Found in the residence were approximately two pounds of marijuana, 77 small marijuana plants and several LSD pills. LSD is a controlled substance.

Hoffman, another renter at the house, was charged with possession of the plants, said Pfeffer, because they were found in his room.

The Paynes, of Nogal, were apparently visiting the residence at the time of the bust, according to Pfeffer. Valesky and Ransom were released on $10,000 appearance bonds. Hoffman and the Paynes were released on their own recognizance.

Pfeffer said the informant will be the first to receive a $500 reward from Crime Stoppers for providing information on drug traffickers.

Yours and Ours

Inside The Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE — The objective outsiders didn't think much of the Governor's Organized Crime Prevention Commission.

They are the Institute for Intergovernmental Research, called in from Tallahassee, Florida, to take a look at GOCPC and recommend what should be done with it.

Here's one of the observations they made:

"In its almost ten years of existence, it appears that the Commission has not assessed or defined, in any comprehensible terms, the nature and seriousness of organized crime problems in New Mexico, nor has the Commission prepared a comprehensive plan or programs to suppress and control organized crime as required in the 1973 legislation under which it was created."

About the best thing the IIR found to say was "a very dedicated group of lay citizens have served and are now serving as Commissioners."

As for its professional staff, they say this: "Recent involvement in routine law enforcement matters as well as loss of recognized organized crime expertise raises questions not only about the Commission's uniqueness and expertise, but even more importantly, questions about the Commission's future purpose, capabilities, and viability."

You can see why Toney Anaya is suggesting that the organization be disbanded and the lay members reduced to an advisory capacity.

That phrase about "recent involvement in routine law enforcement matters" gets to the heart of one of the Institute's criticisms — that GOCPC, founded to be an intelligence-gathering operation, simply changed itself unilaterally and with no direction to do so from the Legislature which created it, into another cops-and-robbers operation. The report refers to this as "supplanting or usurping the normal functions of duly constituted state and local law enforcement agencies."

But the report probably gets to its most cogent arguments about why things should be changed in this operation when it talks about conditions at the very beginning.

It puts it like this:

"New Mexico differs from other states (which have such operations) in that a statewide investigating commission was created in the absence of a clear showing of a pervasive presence of nationally syndicated organized crime groups operating in the state. Nor did evidence exist of corruptness or ineffectiveness in combating organized crime on the part of law enforcement and prosecutive agencies in the state."

Just what a lot of us have been saying for many years — this thing was probably unnecessary from the very beginning.

What's more, the other matter which has worried many of us here disturbed these examiners as well.

They put it this way: "To assure individual rights of privacy, the Commission's policies and practices governing intelligence gathering and the purchase of information and evidence, including the use of confidential informants and evidence, including the use of confidential informants, need to be evaluated ... to assure due process of law."

This writer has many reservations about the present Anaya recommendation for multi-county grand juries, but he agrees most strongly with the Governor's attempt to close down the Organized Crime Prevention Commission, which was probably never needed in the first place and costs us about $800,000 a year to continue.

Letters to the Editor

DEAR EDITOR:

On Wednesday, March 9, near the vicinity of Pizza Hut and Two Rivers Park, walking along Sudderth, we saw something that we could barely believe we actually saw. Two male individuals in their twenties were walking along the edge of the road. Accompanying them, were two large dogs.

Attached to one of the large dogs was a long leash with a small puppy, approximately three months old — supposedly to be following the bigger dog. It was very obvious however, that the puppy was not "following." It was literally being dragged on its stomach like a piece of material or a rug. This "thing" had no life-like signs to it whatsoever. We could not believe what we saw. Surely this had to be a joke of some sort. I mean "nobody" would actually let something like that happen. We drove down the road a short distance discussing what we'd seen, and we decided to turn around and go back — just to satisfy ourselves that what we thought we had seen wasn't actually true. By the time we got back, they had crossed the street over by Two Rivers Park, and what we had seen was true, only what we were going to see was even worse. This poor puppy, practically dead in his tracks, was standing about thirty feet from these two individuals and the bigger dogs. Only this time, the individuals were throwing rocks at the puppy. To shorten all the details, to our knowledge three witnesses later saw them pick the puppy up and start hitting him, and blood was coming from his little body. They later attached him to the back of one of their belts, and continued dragging him on.

One of the witnesses called the police department and was told they would have to call Animal Control. The Animal Control unit did go down and investigate the situation for themselves. However, instead of picking the puppy up and taking it away from these "people," he was told by the two individuals that they were only "teaching the puppy how to lead." Some lesson.

People like this don't even deserve to own an animal. On the other hand, are there really people naive enough to believe a statement like that, even after they saw what kind of shape the puppy was in? It seems so strange that our Animal Control Department can't do something about a situation like this. What are they out there for and is there not a law against animal abuse? Why is it something can not be done to protect our animals from these "so-called" people. Sometimes it is hard to distinguish between who the animals really are. There is only one word to describe someone who would treat an innocent puppy like that — SICK.

We hope the puppy is dead. It would be so much better off than going through torture like that from now on — whatever little time it may have left after that "living nightmare." These individuals are known to be local.

Signed,
SUSAN STARNES
SANDRA DACY

POINT ON A POINT

A New York science teacher named Zindel Elmer has taken the mighty New York Times to task for moving a decimal point to ill effect.

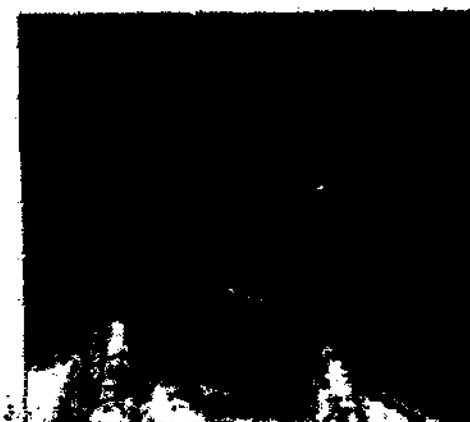

He has a point, and not a decimal point.

Elmer faulted a story about 138,000 kilowatts of wind power because it said this was "just .008 of one percent of the 17 million kilowatts of steam, hydro, geothermal and nuclear generating capacity on which (the utility involved) can draw." Said he: "138,000 is eight-tenths of one percent of 17 million, not eight-thousandths."

Right on, Zindel Elmer! As you note, "we proponents of ecological power have enough inertia to overcome without having to deal with sloppy arithmetic." — Alamogordo Daily News

by Dave Sheppard

'Twas the ides of March on the 15th, which also marked for me an anniversary in Ree-uh-doso.

At this time last year I planted my feet for the first time in the piney soil of the Rio Ruidoso Valley and began to wonder straightaway what type of mountain town editor Tim Palmer had lured me to.

Was this a slow-paced hamlet between the ski area and the race track, where country hicks who spit tobacco juice at Yankees ruled the turf? Or was it more akin to a slick Colorado resort where rich city slickers built fancy condos and came to town to cavort with the locals?

I recall immortalizing those initial thoughts in the first Reporter's Round of The Ruidoso News. I had fully expected rednecked police to be hanging out at Gertie's Diner (now I realize it's actually the Holiday House) chewing the fat and waiting for foreign (Texas) license tags to whip by.

I thought the fire department volunteers would be sitting on the running rails of their polished war-surplus tankers with straws in mouth waiting for the next call from widow Gutenberg to come rescue her cat.

The village leaders, in my mind, would be a group of businessmen (certainly no women on the board in a such a small town) considering such weighty matters as letting the VFW use the town park for a picnic or getting their wives to organize a bake sale with the money going toward purchase of a new-used police car.

I was completely taken aback in those first few Ruidoso weeks to learn my preconceptions were inaccurate. Astounded, was I, to observe all the activity everywhere I looked in village government.

The police turned out, quite to my pleasure, to be a very professional and sophisticated force. Thanks to an up-and-at-'em chief who insisted on quality first, the department laid claim to having the top rookies in the state. It had a highly trained police dog/handler team, and the head honchos were finalizing plans to remodel and expand the police station.

I also was surprised to find out the volunteer firemen didn't have to fix up and polish the equipment; the fire department had paid men assigned to such tasks. And the heck with those old tankers, the Ruidoso Volunteer Fire Department had the equipment to extinguish any blaze facing them. Now it's been further updated with the arrival of a brand new 1,000-gallon per minute pumper last week.

As for the council, well, they do meet formally to grant requests for use of town parks, and they do engage in petty internal squabbles that sometimes occupy too much meeting time.

But they also have dealt with big-time matters in the past year.

Foremost on the list had to be the slick selling campaign in the spring for the $8 million bond election for a new reservoir. In an attempt to sway a vocal minority of skeptics, the council warmed us up to the issue in a series of meetings. Demonstrating the village water problem vis-a-vis growth with an assortment of charts and graphs, the council adeptly won support for the project from a large majority of voters.

The council also took several strides toward the future by authorizing thousands of dollars worth of equipment purchases for all village departments. Indeed, so much equipment was bought by the governing body in the past year—from police vehicles to computers to a bulldozer—that it often seemed like a mass refurbishing of the entire village.

Departments were shuffled and one was created. Sanitation and Streets were combined under the tutelage of superintendent Jack LaMay and Emergency Medical Services was sent over to the hospital. Another big step was taken for the future when the council created the Parks and Recreation Department in recognition that today's municipal population demands public recreation services.

If there was one underlying theme to the surprising amount of activity, I guess I would call it Ruidoso in transition—or attempting to move from the old to the new.

And, like anything undergoing a period of change, some of the plans talked about have seemed to be just that—talk.

The debacle over the Hilton Inn last year exposed me to the types of great dreams hyped up for a small town, only to go unrealized. In the Hilton case, the downfall could be attributed to insufficient planning and homework done by the developer, which resulted in the loss of the site. Now there's talk that a $16 million super hotel will fill the gap left by the unrealized Hilton dream. Will that also be nothing more than hype?

A lot of talk also centered on the Grindstone reservoir project. Although now the village has the finances approved to back up the talk, to some Ruidosoans, the ones who remember the last reservoir project that never was, the council will have to dig that hole, build the dam and most of all FILL it, before it all seems to be more than talk.

And, talking about filling it, that is the directive given to the Water Development Corporation. Probably the most difficult task of any village committee was given to the non-profit board when asked to get us more water rights. Will they ever convince valley farmers the village needs are greater than theirs? Of course, access to public coffers for payments helps.

Finally, talking about difficult tasks, what about the one guiding the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission? Their dream has gone unrealized for almost a decade. How much longer will the issue be talked about?

In short, a lot of energy in the past year has been put into many projects that have set the stage for Ruidoso's future. And if this town is going to get to where it's going (wherever that is) other plans will have to get past the point of discussion.

PRETTY LADIES ALL IN A ROW. Finalists in the Miss El Paso Beauty Pageant were on hand at Sunland Park over the weekend, and posed prettily in the winner's circle. At center: Miss El Paso 1982, Krista Lutz.

Bob Dolman steady as he goes

Bob Dolman, 57, is a well-known trainer in the Southwest even though he hasn't produced a handful of stakes winners.

Dolman is the steady, patient sort, the kind who keeps plugging away, quietly building a good reputation for himself.

Earlier in the current Sunland Park season, Dolman and his crew launched Rhome Rullah to a neck victory (at 25-1) in the Pan Zareta Stakes. The surprising thing is the fact it was Dolman's first stakes victory.

"It took about 10 years to get that first stakes win," Dolman says, smiling in a way which seems to suggest it probably doesn't make that much difference. He points out, perhaps with tongue-in-cheek: "There are many trainers who never win a stakes race."

If Dolman is overly patient and philosophical in his racing outlook, perhaps that's due to the long and winding vocational path which brought him into the business. His primary career is that of an air traffic controller. But after an 18-year stint, which took him to Alaska and finally El Paso International Airport, Dolman concluded it was time to try something different.

He decided it might be entertaining to be retired for a while and "just fiddle around." Those easy-going days suited his nature, but there was one hitch: "You tend to run out of money."

He launched into a plastic bottle manufacturing business in El Paso — and promptly found himself in a financial quagmire. A year-and-a-half later, with great relief, he sold out.

Once again, he began looking for a new career. Enter Buster Pollard, a close friend of Dolman's and a prominent trainer at Sunland a dozen years ago. (Pollard is now a top-dog trainer in Northern California). When Pollard suggested the two of them buy a race horse together, Dolman (who'd been raised on a ranch in Oklahoma) quickly agreed. The two put up $2,000, went to California, bought a horse called Kodiak Kid, brought him to Sunland, and Kodiak Kid won four straight.

About that time, Dolman was approached by a gentleman who had 11 thoroughbred yearlings in need of breaking. Dolman agreed. The following year, he launched his training career with a three-head stable. The operation has steadily grown over the years. Currently, he runs a 15-head string, and has three grooms on his pay roll.

Whether it's a stakes race or an ordinary race, Dolman says you "never get tired of winning." He goes on: "It's a team effort — starting with the horse, the owner, the trainer and the jockey. They're all a unit. I still get butterflies when one of my horses wins a race — even if it's just a cheap claiming race."

It was particularly satisfying to win the Pan Zareta with Rhome Rullah, he says, since the filly had run into some ill fortune earlier in her career. "Last spring, she got a sore throat and ran out of the money in the Allison trials here at Sunland. Last summer, she made the Ruidoso Thoroughbred Futurity, but got wiped out on the first turn."

One of Dolman's better minor successes was the thoroughbred, Casey's Shadow, whom he bought for $4,000 in partnership with the wives of three owners. "We won about 10 races with him," he says. Another time, he shelled out $2,500 for the poorly-named Cadaver, but the gelding came through, earning about $7,500 in the next month-and-a-half.

Dolman is now getting ready for the Ruidoso meeting, where he expects to campaign a string of about 15-20 head. As usual, he's optimistic. "When the team works, and everything fits into place, and you win a race, it's a hell of a feeling," he says. "It's all worth it."

Spray chosen for show in Dallas

Craftsperson Donna Spray of Alto has been selected one of 300 exhibitors at the fourth annual American Craft Council Craft Fair in Dallas, Texas, March 25-27.

Spray designs and constructs original bronze jewelry. Using an oxy-acetylene torch, she melts, stretches, or forges bronze rods into jewelry.

Attendance at the fair is projected to be more than 10,000, in addition to the 1,500 registered buyers representing specialty and department stores from across the country.

Spray exhibits her work locally at The Roadrunner.

Southern Ship coasts

Southern Ship coasted all the way while racking up a seven and one-fourth length win in Saturday's mile headliner at Sunland Park.

Although the gelding's recent form included no outings at the mile distance, Sunland partons were pretty well sold on the gelding and made him the favorite at just over even odds.

Piloted by Salustio Burgos, Southern Ship took control at the start and was never put to a serious challenge. He coasted down the backstretch, then opened up boldly at the head of the lane.

The roan gelding, owned by Herman and Sony Lee Roethemeyer of Odessa, Texas, ended the mile with a seven and one-fourth length gap. He clocked the distance in 1:40 2/5 seconds, returning mutual payoffs of $4.20, $2.80, $2.20.

The win was his third out of his last four starts and was worth a $2,040 slice out of the $3,400 allowance purse.

Depth Ruler beat out Damberod by a half-length for the place slot, refunding $3.60 and $2.60. The show payoff on Damberod was $2.60.

Fajitas are rich tender cuts of beef, often called "Beef Skirts". They are so popular in the Rio Grande Valley that local residents hold "fajita cook-offs" instead of the traditional Texas "chili cook-offs." Charcoal broiled, wrapped in a warm tortilla, served with beans and salsa.

Sunland Park Hoofbeats

BY MARK GORDON

WINDY CITY QUEEN has suddenly developed into the most promising two-year-old quarter horse running at Sunland Park. She blazed to a 16.87 clocking while winning her maiden test in 330-yard dash earlier this spring. That was the fastest 330-yard reading this season until she bettered that mark with a swift 16.81 while setting the fastest qualifying clocking for the 12th running of the West Texas Futurity set for Sunday, March 27. She drew clear for an easy three and one-fourth length victory in the ninth of 13 trials on Friday and appears clearly to be the horse to beat in the finale.

SHE WAS THE SHORTEST mutual price of the day, returning a paltry $2.60 to win as a 3-10 favorite. Trained by veteran conditioner Jake Cascio, she was ridden by Gary Sumpter for owners William E. Gahlberg and James Kelly of Oak Brook, Illinois. Trainer H. Don Farris qualified three horses into the finale — Call It Charisma, Easily A Twelve and Jest Real Easy, who was sold for $3,300 in last summer's All-American Sale For Select Quarter Horse Yearlings at Ruidoso Downs. Trainer Jack Brooks, who saddled Mr. Master Bug to a win in last Labor Day's $2,530,000 All-American Futurity at Ruidoso Downs, qualified Warm Thoughts, Fillies dominated the finale with seven "ladies," two geldings and one colt earning a chance to run for a winner's share of $82,914.85 from the total gross purse of $236,899.57.

THE LIST OF QUALIFIERS and their times: Windy City Queen (16.81); Jets Joy Deck (16.96); Warm Thoughts (16.97); Call It Charisma (16.98); Like A Haint (17.01); Jest Real Easy (17.01); Really And Truly (17.07); Easily A Twelve (17.07); Moons Lady Levi (17.08); and Feature Going (17.08).

FOUR TRAINERS EACH SADDLED two winners on Friday's West Texas Futurity trial day. Jack W. Brooks had Patti Dash ($6.20) in the first and Warm Thoughts (19.60) in the eighth. Jacky Martin rode each horse. Fred L. Danley had Pony Rod ($98.40) in the second and On A Stormy Day ($2.80) in the sixth. Dalustio Burgos was on Pony Rod with Richard Bickel on On A Stormy Day. H. Don Farris saddled and jockey Jerry Nicodemus won with Easily A Twelve ($3.00) in the fifth and on Jest Real Easy ($4.00) in the thirteenth. J. B. Montgomery won two consecutive races with Jimmie Hunt riding Like A Haint ($7.20) in the eleventh and Larry Byers riding JB

Moon ($21.60) in the twelfth.

PONY ROD SET A SEASONAL HIGH win payoff when he scooted to a one-length victory in Friday's second trial race for the West Texas Futurity. He paid $98.40 to win; the top return for a $2 win ticket this season. Ridden by Salustio Burgos for trainer Fred L. Danley, Pony Rod is owned by James A. Drake or Rita J. Danley of Farmington. That eclipsed the previous high before last weekend of $90.60 on Special Irene, who won on December 18.

WITH THE MUTUEL HANDLE running slightly ahead of last year's previous record-setting pace, all purses at Sunland Park have been given a modest increase. In races worth $4,000 and lower, the purses have been raised by $200. "We're really pleased to be able to offer our loyal horsemen an opportunity to race for more money," said racing secretary Dean McKinney. He said future purse increases would depend on the mutuel handle.

DESPITE STUMBLING AT THE START, Call Caleb showed his class and determination while recovering under a superb ride by Jerry Nicodemus to win his 1983 debut Saturday at Sunland Park. The three-year-old Reb's Policy gelding had been idle since posting a win by almost one length in the $162,383 Sunland Park Fall Quarter Horse Futurity last December 19. Call Caleb registered a driving one-length win over outsider Shawne Cat in a 400-yard allowance race for three-year-olds. His time was a rapid 19.86, just a shade slower than the 19.72 time he recorded while winning the Futurity. That 19.72 reading is the best 400-yard clocking this season. Call Caleb is trained by H. Don Farris, who owns him with Don E. Keith of Sunland Park. As a 1-5 wagering favorite, Call Caleb paid $2.40 to win. He has now gathered four triumphs with four seconds in nine outings and earnings of $138,179.

PLANET DANDY SET THE LARGEST winning margin of any horse this season at Sunland Park when he galloped to an easy 12-length victory in Saturday's 12th race. Under a fine ride by apprentice Dale Cordova, the six-year-old Turalea gelding took the lead nearing the far turn, then gradually increased his margin while winning in 1:54 4/5 for the mile and one-eighth chase for $2,000 claiming horses. It was Planet Dandy's second win in his last three races. Trained by Mark W. Harper for owner Gary O. Hawkins of El Paso, Texas, Planet Dandy paid $11.40 as the third wagering selection. It was the fourth career victory in 33 outings for the Colorado-bred horse.

JAY EM JAY AND BUGSAWAY combined for the season's largest quinella payoff when they took the top two positions in Sunday's fifth race at 440 yards. Christopher O'Dell rode Jay Em Jay to a $98.20 payoff, the second-largest win payoff this season while Leroy Coombs steered Bogsaway, an 8-1 risk, to second in a claiming race for $3,200 horses. The 4-1 payoff was $702.40, breaking the previous high return of $665.40 set by Rojo Bandito and Easy Axe on October 17.

KAFE SNOOPER WON HIS FIFTH consecutive race and his sixth this season when he drew clear for a half-length decision over Rushing Silver in Sunday's ninth race at six furlongs. The five-year-old Kafe Bush gelding is tied for the winningest horse honors with Easter Honor, who also has won six races this meet. Kafe Snooper started by winning a $2,500 claiming race at six furlongs on November 13, then defeated $4,000 opposition on January 9 and stopped $5,000 horses at six furlongs on January 21 and again at five and one-half furlongs on February 12. Sunday's race was for $6,250 animals. Jockey Ruben Miranda has been aboard for all the victories. Lewis L. Germany trains Kafe Snooper for owner Grady D. Hopper of Dallas, Texas.

WINNING POST POSITIONS: No. 1 — 71, No. 2 — 77, No. 3 — 96, No. 4 — 83, No. 5 — 86, No. 6 — 75, No. 7 — 76, No. 8 — 51, No. 9 — 47, No. 10 — 47, No. 11 — 7, No. 12 — 6.

TRAINERS BOB E. ARNETT AND LEWIS L. GERMANY each recorded two victories on Sunday's program. Arnett won with Lil Motor Scooter ($4.00) in the third for owner Bob V. Ballard Jr. of Carlsbad, N. M., and then took the featured eleventh with Scots Sissy ($4.60) for owner Anthony Williams of Albuquerque. Joe Ober rode Lil Motor Scooter while Mike Lidberg was on Scots Sissy. Germany won the second with Atom Sam ($4.20) and then won the ninth with Kafe Snooper ($8.80). Both horses are owned by Grady D. Hopper of Dallas, Texas, and ridden by Ruben Miranda.

SUNLAND PATRONS BET a whopping $1,163,160 over the three-day weekend. The set was topped by Sunday's $450,910, which was the third best so far in the '82-83 season. The big weekend kept Sunland on course toward another record-setting year. The current daily wagering average now stands at $338,120, a gain of two percent over the $331,557 at this point a year ago. The total handle this far is $21,301,555.

Windy City Queen top qualifier

Windy City Queen, a filly owned by William Gahlberg and James Kelly of Oak Brook, Illinois, carved out the fastest qualifying time in Friday's West Texas Futurity elimination heats at Sunland Park.

Windy City Queen stopped the 330-yard clock in 16.81 seconds and emerged as the likely favorite in the grand finale slated for March 27.

The gross purse of the West Texas Futurity is $236,899 with almost $83,000 earmarked for the winner. Windy City Queen, going after her second straight win, raced as a heavy favorite in the ninth of 13 trial spins. She quickly established a length lead under Gary Sumpter, then drew away in the final stages to win by three and one-fourth lengths.

Windy City Queen, by Windy Ryan out of Coaltown Queen, is trained by the veteran Jake Cascio. The mutuel payoffs: $2.60, $2.40, $2.40.

Here are the other qualifiers:

— Jets Joy Deck, 16.96, owned by Leon Howard of Caddo, Oklahoma.

— Warm Thoughts, 16.97, owned by Jon Brannon of Choctaw, Oklahoma.

— Call It Charisma, 16.98, owned by H. Don Farris and Don Keith of Sunland Park.

— Like A Haint, 17.01, owned by A. Bruce Green and J. Phillip Patterson of Purcell, Oklahoma.

— Jest Real Easy, 17.01, owned by Connie Danley of Alamogordo.

— Really And Truly, 17.07, owned by Terry J. Wall of Sulphur, Louisiana.

— Easily A Twelve, 17.07, owned by H. Don Farris and Don Keith of Sunland Park.

— Moons Lady Levi, 17.08, owned by Clary Spencer of Edmond, Oklahoma.

— Feature Going, 17.08, owned by Sam Henderson of Odessa, Texas.

STRETCH RUN DOES IT. Scots Sissy pulls ahead headliner by a neck. Mike Lidberg is up at the wire to win Sunday's Sunland Park

Battle of Lidbergs continues

Jockey Mike Lidberg drove Scots Sissy to a narrow neck victory in Sunday's headliner at Sunland Park and continued the nip-and-tuck duel for the seasonal jockey lead with his younger brother, David.

The victory was Mike's 56th of the season and put him only one notch away from the lead slot occupied by David.

David, 18, managed to stay one jump ahead of Mike, 22, by scoring twice in the afternoon. He won with Wellrose ($12.80) in the fourth and Hezahare ($9.20) in the eighth.

The duel between the two Lidbergs marks the first time in Southwest racing history where two brothers have been so closely locked in a struggle over a jockey championship.

Another sidelight to Sunday's program was the fact a crowd of 3,379 pushed $450,910 through the mutual windows on the 12-race card. That was the third highest handle of the '82-83 meeting, and kept the current business trend on course toward another record season.

During the early going of Sunday's six-furlong allowance feature, Scots Sissy appeared to be lagging too far behind. He was in fourth place, perhaps as much as six or seven lengths off the pace. The 3-2 favorite, Fabulous Too, carved out a snappy pace while shooting for his fifth straight win. But Fabulous Too was unable to shake off the pesky 22-1 outsider, Reverend Blu Jeans. The latter naggged the people's choice most of the way, then took command by a head at mid-stretch.

Jockey Lidberg got Scots Sissy shifted into high gear at the turn for home and the capable gelding steadily picked up steam. He moved extremely well in the final stages, grabbing the lead just a few jumps from the wire.

Scots Sissy, a four-year-old gelding, is trained by Bob Arnett for Anthony Williams of Albuquerque. The win, his first of the year, was worth a $2,040 slice out of the $3,400 purse. The mutual payoffs: $4.60; $3.20, $2.40.

Reverend Blu Jeans, piloted by F. O. Martinez, handed out $17.20, $4.80. Fabulous Too, with Ruben Miranda up, finished third in a game try, returning $2.80.

Scots Sissy was clocked in 1:11 flat, only a second shy of the seasonal mark.
