Parents get drug education

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

"In this day and age we have to accept that we are a drug-oriented society... don't get upset about it, it's a fact of life."

And because drug use, particularly marijuana smoking, is so prevalent in society, a large group of Ruidoso parents are intent on learning more about the local drug scene.

The quote came from Ruidoso Police Chief Richard Swenor, who, with detective Hazel Poissot, addressed about 150 parents and children at the Ruidoso First Christian Church Sunday afternoon on various drug-related topics.

The parents, urged to attend the meeting through a letter that was widely circulated by a small group of women last week, were shown drug samples and drug paraphernalia, and told how to look for signs of drug use in their children.

Ben Casey, one of the organizers, established the meeting's purpose in his opening introduction.

"Kids today operate under a whole different system than us parents remember," he said. "Whether we like it or not, drug and alcohol abuse in our society is a problem. If parents understand more, it makes it easier to communicate."

Poissot performed a brief show-and-tell using several illicit items from a table crammed with drug paraphernalia confiscated over the years.

From miniature pipes and neat stash boxes to floor-standing bong, from innocuous-looking cosmetic cases that doubled as cocaine trays to a fancy belt buckle that turned to be a marijuana pipe on its flapside, the detective took the group on a quick tour through the cache.

Noting that drug paraphernalia is illegal in New Mexico, Poissot explained that drug users have invented "ingenious" instruments with which to get high.

One of the most common in use in Ruidoso, Poissot said, is an empty soft drink can that, with a few strategically punched holes, becomes an effective pipe.

In addition to showing parents various items in use, Poissot advised them on the signs that betray drug use.

When children come home from a party, bloodshot eyes and a softer voice may indicate they are high, she said. Also, the kids "won't want to talk to mom and dad" if they are on drugs, she added.

Swenor reminded the group that Ruidoso is no different than other communities in that it has a drug problem. But, he said, police do not consider drug use a serious problem here.

The police chief de-emphasized marijuana use. Although he estimated 70 to 80 percent of local high school children have tried marijuana, he said not every child "becomes a raving maniac because he's smoked a joint."

"We don't get totally paranoid on mere use of marijuana," Swenor said, and stressed his department is more concerned with pushers and hard drug users.

Emphasizing narcotics and other hard drugs, Swenor pointed out that society has become complacent toward drug use, and it has reached the point where many people believe there is a pill to cure any ailment. This dependence on prescription pharmaceuticals—with valium as one example—is "extremely dangerous," he said, because it is so common.

But neither marijuana nor narcotics use is the big problem in Ruidoso, according to Swenor.

"Alcohol is our biggest problem right here in Ruidoso. Not drugs—alcohol," he stressed. The police chief noted about 60 to 70 percent of violent crime in the village last year involved alcohol.

Turning back to marijuana use, Swenor advised the parents against overreacting. He noted that when a child is found in possession of or smoking marijuana, police prefer to handle it privately with the child and parents.

He said juveniles found in possession of less than an ounce are referred to the juvenile probation officer, who, in cooperation with juvenile court, decides on the punishment, which is usually not severe.

Policeman Danny Steward, who is designated juvenile police officer, said he is more frightened by paint sniffing than marijuana. Noting an ounce of pot now sells for about $70, Steward said it is much cheaper for a kid to get high on paint fumes.

Swenor also pointed out police often hear reports of parties where cocaine is openly used. But he added they cannot always make busts on the information because it does not establish probable cause.

Responding to a question, he explained probable cause is established by police who witness a crime themselves; or it can be based on information from a reliable source. Without probable cause, he said, a judge will not sign a search warrant.

One woman asked if police have heard of drug pushing at grade schools. Swenor acknowledged that a report came in that someone was trying to sell in the White Mountain schools parking lot, but he said nothing turned up during surveillance of the area.

State Representative and local school teacher Marvin "Mickey" McGuire briefed the audience on a trip he made to Washington, D.C., where he attended a seminar on teenage drug use.

Titled "Teenage Drug and Alcohol Abuse," the seminar was held for representatives attending the National Conference of State Legislators last week.

McGuire said parents' discovery of substance abuse by their children will cause three reactions. The first, he said, is the "Great Wall of Denial," when parents will say "not my kids."

The next response is the "Helpless, Hopeless Syndrome." When at this stage, parents accept that their children are involved in drugs or alcohol, but avoid the problem because they feel no hope exists.

Another reaction is called the "Pin the Tail on the Donkey Syndrome." Instead of dealing with the problem head on, this reaction results in parents blaming the schools, police or their children's peers.

McGuire also informed the group about a Maryland program organized at a children's program called "Students Helping Other Students," or SHOP. He said high school students in the program learn about drugs in an intense, first-hand training course, then relay their findings to classes in the school system.

McGuire said at the close of the meeting he would like to win state financing for such a program in New Mexico schools.

Before the meeting ended, police lit clumps of marijuana to acquaint the audience with its smell.

Water protest heads for State Engineer

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

The water protest filed by several valley water rights owners against the Village of Ruidoso last year is on its way to a hearing with the State Engineer.

According to village manager Jim Hine and village clerk Leon Eggleston, the council held a closed meeting with water attorney Neil Stillinger Friday and decided to request a hearing with the State Engineer on the protest.

The protestors, who represent 11 farms located between the old and new sewer plants, filed a written protest with the State Engineer in May against the change in effluent discharge points.

They claimed the change in discharge from the old to the new sewage plant was detrimental to their established water rights.

The old plant, located east of the high school, is about 6 miles upstream from the new Biscuit Hill facility, which opened in June. The Biscuit Hill plant discharges treated effluent into the Rio Ruidoso, as did the old plant before it closed down.

The State Engineer's District II supervisor in Roswell negated the effluent credited to the village water rights until the protest is resolved. Ruidoso plans to use the credit, about 730 acre feet annually, to fill the proposed Grindstone reservoir.

The village formed a committee to negotiate with the protestors and the two parties devised several options for a solution.

Eggleston noted the negotiations evidently have reached a point now where the village needs a qualified opinion on the options. He said the council instructed Stillinger to request an administrative hearing with the State Engineer.

Also, on the advice of Stillinger, the council decided to retain a consulting hydrologist to study the village water system. Hine said the hydrologist would work for the village only when requested by the council.

Downs trustees work on police budget

Ruidoso Downs trustees called a special meeting Thursday for the purpose of resolving problems with the police department budget, but adjourned after deciding to settle the matter at the next regular meeting.

Police clerk Wilma Webb reported. Funds budgeted for the police department for this fiscal year will be exhausted by the end of the month in animal control or telephone expenses. (SEE PAGE 2)

Computer revolution making inroads on local business scene

by BARBY GRANT
Staff Writer

What do attorneys, insurance companies, banks, newspaper publishers, McDonald's, real estate appraisers, retail stores and astrologers in Ruidoso have in common? They all have joined the swelling ranks of computer revolution.

Computers around town are used to draw up wills, calculate insurance premiums, keep account of banking and records, handle newspaper circulation subscriptions, and regulate cooking time for Big Macs!

"Anything it can do that we don't have to," is what the computer at Services Unlimited is used for.

Local astrologer Carma Oliver leases a Radio Shack computer which figures the positions of the planets at any given time. The information the computer prints out is used by Oliver to do personal astrology readings.

Attorney Ron Harris has a Lanier Word Processor at his office. The machine is programmed to construct a variety of standard legal documents at 550 words per minute, saving 40 to 50 percent of the time it would take a secretary to do the work.

Harris' son Brian experiments with a Radio Shack computer at home, re-programming the video games to play a little differently.

The IBM System 34 computer at Ruidoso State Bank does the work of about 20 to 30 people, according to Coburn Lewis, electronic data processing manager at the bank. The centralized information feature of the computer system reduces the time a customer spends getting a complete update of all his accounts from 30 to 45 minutes to less than 10 seconds.

Real estate appraiser Dan Swearingin's computer will predict the outcome of a given hypothetical situation for a prospective business investor. "What if my income is less than expected?" or expenses are higher than anticipated?" you ask the machine. The answer may indicate whether the investment risk is worth taking.

A number of employees around town get their paychecks from a computer, and consumers get a lot of bills every month drafted by computers.

Despite the evidence of abundant computer use throughout town, Doug Conley, owner of a computer consulting firm in Ruidoso, believes the computer revolution has not yet hit. Three factors—price, software availability and service—are serving to block the computer revolution, Conley feels.

Many small businesses are not able to economically justify the purchase of a computer, Conley explained. The savings a computer brings to a business often do not outweigh the purchase price of the computer.

John Hall, president of SDC Realty, agrees that his firm's computer is not cost-effective. He said he doubts the computer will ever save the company enough to make up the $20,000 purchase price. The computer requires an additional employee to operate it, and therefore costs the company an additional salary.

But Conley feels "the high price of getting things done without a computer is beginning to match the high price of getting a computer." He feels the downward trend of equipment prices will continue over the next eight to 10 years as demand increases and technological advances make computers less expensive to construct.

A second factor limiting the use of computers in this area is the relative inavailability of appropriate software, Conley pointed out. Few software firms are willing to create programs that would be useful only to a handful of small, family-owned businesses such as are common in Ruidoso. Conley feels this problem will remain for a few years but that software will become more available as computer users increase.

The third factor holding back the computer revolution is a lack of sales and service nearby. Being in a somewhat remote area is a hindrance when service is required. The nearest service centers often are as far away as Albuquerque, Dallas or Denver, Conley pointed out. Many prospective computer buyers are leery of making such a sizable purchase when service is not readily available.

But many local business owners have taken the step toward the computer age and indicated the machine is a great time and money saver. NAPA Auto Parts Store manager Kim SHAPIR said his firm's computer would have to be replaced by two employees if it were given up.

Real estate appraiser Swearingin called computers "crotchety, difficult and exacting," but admitted he could not operate his business without one now. He is, in fact, president of a national group of appraisers with TRS-80 computers.

Ruidoso village clerk Leon Eggleston said the village's IBM System 34 computer will save him significant time typing and re-typing every time a change is made in the municipal codes. That task is in the process of being turned over to the computer.

Ruidoso News circulation manager Rolland Ramos said The News' computer eliminates the need for an employee to spend half a day every week doing payroll, and saves 45 minutes to an hour between the time each issue rolls off the press until it is delivered.

Interest in computers among local business people is evident by the turnout at the computer course conducted by Conley and sponsored by Friends of the Library in January. Conley said 85 people enrolled in the program, which was basically an introduction to computers course for prospective buyers. Conley said he would like to teach additional courses in the area if interest warrants.

He warns prospective buyers to learn as much as possible about computers before approaching a computer salesman. "Salesmen of computers are notoriously unreliable," he commented.

Knowing that computers are destined to touch all our lives and play quite a large part in the future, we would probably all do well to heed Conley's warning and learn as much as possible about computers—prospective buyers or not.

'Can do' for Cantu in Pinewood Derby

by BILLY ALLSTETTER
Staff Writer

"This is my first time. This is going to be fun," said Arnold Cantu as he ran his hands over the unshaped block of pinewood. He emptied the blue and yellow box and examined the four nails, four plastic wheels and numbered decals.

During the next four weeks these rough and separate pieces would become Arnold's entry in Cub Scout Pack 59's Pinewood Derby. All 17 boys who entered the race started with the same official Cub Scout kit, but the cars that appeared at the races April 17 varied widely in design, appearance and speed.

When Arnold left the pack meeting with his unassembled kit, he said he had some ideas for a "sportscar," and planned to draw them before starting to work on the car.

A week later he had carefully drawn both a side view and top view of his plans on a piece of graph paper. Narrow at the front, the car rose to the cockpit and windshield, then swept back down at the back.

He said his father, Arnold Senior, had helped him with the design, telling him about aerodynamics that might help the car move faster. His father had also advised Arnold to include weights at the back of the car to speed it down the track.

With the plans drawn up, it was time to begin shaping the car. Arnold ran down into the basement of his house and came back with the jigsaw. He drew lines on the car and borrowed a vice from the next door neighbor to hold the car in place.

It seemed a little scary that Arnold, age ten, was preparing to handle the power saw himself. He said he had done it before and began to cut the pinewood.

He handled the saw well but wobbled a couple of times and asked for help. Next he asked me to do some of the cuts myself—and I could see how parents might end up building their son's car all by themselves.

We compromised and I helped Arnold guide the saw along the lines. The rough-cut car looked pretty rough. But Arnold took out the sandpaper and began smoothing and shaping the car's body.

He would rub for about 20 seconds, check his progress, rub about 15 seconds and check his progress again. It didn't seem to go as fast as he expected but he kept at it, covering himself and the deck with fine pine dust.

Finally, the car was smooth and shaped like he wanted it. He ran his hands over the sleek body and pretended to race it along the deck railing.

"I can't wait till it's done," he said.

The next week he painted it. The first night he covered the body with red paint. Another night he painted the gold racing stripes, using masking tape to help him keep the lines straight. The gold paint still managed to stray from the straight and narrow, but the block of wood began to resemble a model race car.

Enthusiasm must have faded a little after that, because he didn't do much to the car until the weekend of the race. In fact he almost forgot when the race was, and it was Sunday's last-minute rush that got the car ready for the 1:30 weigh-in.

About noon Arnold Senior, Arnold Junior and mother Beverly Cantu were all standing in the kitchen watching Arnold Senior drill holes into the car. After drilling out a large hole in the back, he stuffed a few fishing weights in the car and weighed it on the Weight Watchers kitchen scale they had borrowed from a friend.

The car was light. The weight limit for the derby was five ounces, but the Cantus had trouble making the car weigh more than four ounces, if the Weight Watchers scale could be completely trusted.

At one Arnold Senior had to go to work, and the car still weighed only four ounces. I helped Arnold drill another hole and we stuffed more weights in the car, but it seemed to make no difference. It was 1:15 and Arnold still had to paint over the weights and put on the decals. Four ounces would have to do.

The red jar of paint had dried out. Time for a change in strategy. Paint it gold. In a final attempt to increase the weight, Arnold and his mother decided to pour paint into the drilled holes to fill the spaces between the weights.

"Nothing ventured, nothing gained," said Beverly.

The pouring paint spilled a little and Arnold decided to paint the whole back side gold. But at least none of it got on the kitchen counter. At 1:30 the car was ready, as long as Arnold did not tip the car on its side and spill the paint.

The race track was 30 feet long with raised centers to guide the cars. The cars started about four-and-a-half feet high and rolled downhill to the finish line.

Arnold won his first race by many car lengths. It seemed like he had a fast car and he flashed a quick smile. He barely lost his second race to one of the "peanut oil kids" who seemed to have discovered the secret wheel lubricant in their kitchens.

But the event was double elimination and Arnold was not out of it yet. In his third race he came from behind to win and stay alive in the competition. Arnold began to feel pretty confident in his car by then.

"I think I might win, at least third," he predicted.

The fourth race he won. By now less than half of the original entries were still competing. But the fifth race he lost, and so he was eliminated from the derby.

He shook his head and retrieved his car. He sat down next to his mother and rolled the car along the table.

The races continued and winners were chosen but Arnold did not pay much attention.

He looked at other boys' cars after the race and compared them to his. His mother and he discussed plans for next year's model while he vroomed and rolled his car on the table top.

He may not have won, but there is still next year. In the meantime he has the car that he made.

"I'm going to play with it," he said with a smile as he prepared to leave.

Crime Stoppers gives first drug reward

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

Crime Stoppers' campaign against drug trafficking has generated a lot of interest in the community, and has led to the first drug bust and reward payment, noted board president Richard Sandoval Thursday night.

Sandoval announced to the Crime Stoppers board of directors that a $500 reward was paid last week to a person who informed police about alleged drug traffickers.

Shortly after the board announced in March the unconditional reward offer for information leading to arrests and indictments of dealers, an anonymous caller tipped off police about suspected activity and the tip led to five arrests.

Two of the persons arrested were allegedly selling marijuana and LSD, a hallucinogen. Magistrate James Wheeler bound them over for trial in District Court after a preliminary hearing.

Wheeler said Friday he fined two other persons $50 each for possession of under one ounce of marijuana. Another man was indicted under the same charge, Wheeler said, and his sentence is pending. They were all arrested in the same bust.

Sandoval said the reward payment, the first made by the local chapter,

"was a worthwhile $500," and that the announced anti-drug campaign has led to increased drug awareness in the community.

Ruidoso Police Department detective Hazel Poissot told the board she has started giving informal presentations to parental groups on drugs. Poissot said the purpose of the gatherings is to increase parents' awareness of certain drugs and paraphernalia to which their children may be exposed.

"This is to educate the parents," she said. "The kids already know what's available."

Police lieutenant and Crime Stoppers coordinator Dave Pfeffer said the demonstrations, which were requested by the parents, are obviously an offshoot of the Crime Stoppers campaign.

But, cautioning against an over-reaction to drug use, Pfeffer contended, "There is not a real bad problem in Ruidoso."

Sandoval disagreed. "Every drug problem is a real bad problem," he countered. Pfeffer said all he meant was residents should realize Ruidoso is not unique and experiences the same problems as elsewhere.

To assuage concerns the police department is avoiding enforcement against drugs, Pfeffer said investigators check out all leads, but they are restricted by a lack of money, personnel and time from concentrating on drugs exclusively.

Glen Ferguson asked Pfeffer why the department does not use its police dog in searches to sniff out drugs.

Pfeffer noted the dog is not authorized for drug searches. He added that police cannot arbitrarily conduct searches, and that police must establish probable cause to obtain search warrants.

In addition, he said, "We're not pointing our fingers at one organization," referring to recent complaints that a big drug problem exists in the schools. He noted illegal drug use and selling is a problem of the entire community.

Mark Paz expressed the same sentiment and stressed the drug awareness demonstrations are intended only as an educational tool. Paz said after the meeting he feels the schools are being unfairly criticized by a parents group as a haven for drug traffic.

One of the parents, Laura Casey, indicated in a published letter last week that children are being pressured about drugs from friends at school and on the school buses. She also claimed grade school and mid-school children are being approached about drugs.

Poissot reiterated the awareness meetings are meant only to educate, and that no institutions or organizations are being faulted.

In other business, Crime Stoppers established a "Policeman of the Year" award that will be given away at the annual fund-raising banquet. Sandoval said heads of area law enforcement agencies will work with him on making the yearly selection.

The board also received a financial report from treasurer Bill McCutcheon that shows a $4,152 balance in the reward fund. The chapter received an additional $442.50 in drink receipts from the Jerry Dale's fund-raiser in February.

Also, the board was instructed by Pfeffer in classes of misdemeanors and felonies and possible penalties.

Pfeffer said he will present different crime topics to the board at each month's meeting. Sandoval said the instruction is beneficial, noting, "It's imperative we know more about what we're dealing with."

Before adjourning, the board was told by Paz that a local sign painter has agreed to make custom signs for Crime Stoppers. Members voted on including the 257-4545 Crime Stoppers telephone number and the Neighborhood Watch name on the signs.

Lincoln Pageant land to be transferred

The pageant grounds at Lincoln State Monument will belong to the Lincoln Pageant and Festival Corporation as soon as appropriate deeds are signed and filed in Lincoln County, the Museum of New Mexico board of regents learned Wednesday.

"We're very pleased to turn the property back to this non-profit group so that they can continue to produce the annual Last Escape of Billy the Kid Pageant," said Thomas J. Caperton, Museum of New Mexico monuments chief.

Museum spokeswoman Mary Wormley provided background on the issue of ownership of the pageant grounds to The News.

The pageant grounds were given to the state of New Mexico in 1961 by the Lincoln County Society of Arts, History and Archeology. The grounds were administered by the Old Lincoln County Memorial Commission until 1978, when the commission's powers were reduced and the Lincoln properties were transferred to the Museum of New Mexico.

The enactment of the Last Escape of Billy the Kid Pageant has been an annual summertime event since 1949. It was organized each year by an informal group of Lincoln residents until recently, when the group was formalized as the Lincoln Pageant and Festival Corporation.

After difficulties over lease terms, insurance and care arose in August 1982, the Museum of New Mexico began investigating the possibility of turning the ground permanently back to the residents of Lincoln.

A clause in state statutes was discovered that says if land is given to state with no involvement of funds and the state does not use the land as specified, the property can return to the group that donated the land.

Since the state never actually produced the pageant, the Attorney General's office decided the pageant ground could revert to the successor of the Lincoln County Society of Arts, History and Archeology, which is the Lincoln Pageant and Festival Corporation.

The Lincoln Pageant and Festival Corporation filed a "friendly suit" to gain ownership of the property. The suit never went to court because the state did not contest.

The pageant is a reenactment by local residents of portions of the Lincoln County War of the 1880s and the escape of outlaw Billy the Kid from the Lincoln County courthouse.

auto repair and maintenance, supplies and capital outlay, Webb explained. The situation was brought up at last Monday's regular meeting, at which time trustees decided to contact the state Department of Finance for permission to transfer funds to cover expenses for the remainder of the fiscal year.

Webb reported that the state advised the village to adopt a resolution for the transfer, after which the request would be processed immediately. The special meeting was called for that purpose, she said, and for the purpose of voting on the purchase of two used State Police vehicles now available. In discussing the matter, however, trustees favored lease-purchasing two new vehicles rather than buying used cars, in an effort to avoid expensive maintenance and repair bills.

It was decided that the budget transfer and proposed lease-purchase agreement will be acted on at the next regular meeting Monday, April 25. Trustees also voted to schedule a public hearing for that date on the expenditure of revenue sharing funds.

Lionesses to meet

All area women are invited to attend a general meeting of the new Rio Ruidoso Lioness Club Tuesday, April 19, at noon at Whispering Pine Restaurant.

Those attending may become charter members. For additional information, call 257-5888.

Special Olympic participants need sponsors

Albuquerque will be hosting the statewide Special Olympics the first weekend in June, and 10 to 15 mentally retarded persons from this area will be able to participate if sponsors can be found to pay the $25 registration fee per athlete.

The registration deadline is April

30. Many mentally retarded in Carrizozo, Capitan and Ruidoso have never participated in Special Olympics, but the Area 13 (Lincoln County) Special Olympics advisory council is working to change that. Members of the council hope to enable some local participants to compete in track and field at the state level in June. The council hopes to later host competitions in this area.

Anyone who would like to sponsor one or more of the athletes should call Area 13 Special Olympics coordinator Mary Lee Cates at 258-4150 or 257-5045.

Musical to be put on by sixth graders

The musical, "Feelin' Good," will be presented at the Inn of the Mountain Gods by White Mountain Middle School sixth graders Monday, April 18, at 7:30 p.m.

The public is invited to attend the program. No admission will be charged.

"We encourage the public to spend 45 minutes 'feelin' good' with us," said the school staff and students.

The musical, directed by band instructor Leroy Gooch emphasizes good health through exercise, proper diet and health checkups. About half the sixth grade class will be involved in the production, which provides students with an opportunity to perform on stage and get some musical exposure.

The production features some original costumes, and songs such as "Feelin' Good," "Use Your Head," and "Exercising."

Warriors record top times at Roswell track invitational

Around Sports

with

Gary Brown

by Gary Brown
Sports Writer

Improvements in times and marks were the rule for the Ruidoso High School boys and girls track teams in the Roswell Invitational Friday night at Roswell High School.

The Warrior boys only scored two points and the girls had four points. However, most of the schools in the invitational were from the AAAA division.

Jackie Jefferson led the Warrior girls with a 5:34.05 time for third place in the 1,500 meters. Ruidoso's boys were paced by sophomore Curt McClellan's fourth-place finish in the 800 meters with a 2:06.8.0 clocking. McClellan improved his previous best time by almost a second.

Another sophomore, Cisco Bob, rebounded from a two-week injury layoff to finish sixth in the boys' 1,500 meters in 4:15.8. He just missed fifth place at the finish line. Bob finished fourth in the state AAA division meet last season and has a best of 4:13.29 this year.

"Considering the fact Cisco hasn't competed in two weeks, the fact that he ran his second fastest time ever was very impressive," said Warrior head coach Ronny Maskew.

"I thought McClellan ran a very good race. We were hoping he'd improve on his previous best and he did."

The Ruidoso 800-meter relay team of Mike Douglas, Grady Williamson, Eric Strobel and Steve Snidow knocked almost three seconds off its previous best by running a non-scoring 1:34.7. The same four runners also ran a seasonal best of 3:40.0 in the 1,600-meter relay.

"We were really pleased with our 800-meter relay time," Maskew said. "We hoped to improve a bit in the 1,600-meter relay and we did."

Douglass and Williamson also did well in open heats. Douglass ran a personal best of 23.3 in the 200 meters while Williamson won his 400-meter heat in 54.1. He elected to bypass the finals of the 400 meters in favor of running the relays.

The Warrior distance crew also showed improvement in the 3,000 meters. Sophomore Francisco Olvera won his heat in a personal best of 10:05.11, although he didn't place in the overall standings. He improved over his previous best by 13 seconds.

Freshmen Ivan Shaw and David Ordorica also showed improvement in the 3,000 meters. Scott ran a 10:09.5 and Ordorica a 10:32.8. Ordorica's time was 15 seconds faster than his previous best.

Ordorica and David Landrum each ran 4:55.0 in the 1,500 meters.

Freshman Russell Easter had a good day, improving his 300-meter intermediate hurdles time to 46.5 and long-jumping 17-8½, a foot over his previous best. Senior Chris Wynn also showed improvement in the intermediate hurdles, knocking his best time down by two seconds to 49.0.

In the shotput, senior Chris Sanchez and sophomore George Gresham posted their best-ever marks. Sanchez threw the round ball 38-2 while Gresham had a best of 37-1.

Besides Jefferson's third place in the 1,500 meters, the only other points by the Ruidoso girls team was a fifth place 4:31.32 time in the 1,600-meter relay. Deanna Peso, Gia Rose, Stacy Ivy and Valerie Garcia ran on the relay squad.

Jefferson joined Rose, Ivy and Garcia on the 400-meter relay squad which ran a 55.2 time.

Peso also finished seventh in the 3,000 meters with a 12:49.0 time, while Rachel Kaydahzime was eighth with a 12:52.0 clocking.

The Warrior boys and girls will compete in the Artesia Invitational Friday. Saturday the Ruidoso girls will compete in the Rose Relays at Tularosa High School.

There is an epidemic spreading in Ruidoso.

It's an epidemic of apathy—and high school sports could suffer as a result of it.

I attended the Ruidoso High School Warrior Boosters Club meeting Thursday night and there were only four parents in attendance. Most of the coaches were there, as well as athletic director Doyle Howell, but the turnout among the parents was very disappointing.

The meeting was held to discuss the all-sports banquet which takes place in May every school year. There was even a discussion about cancelling this year's sports banquet unless more parents agreed to help.

"We should have more people here," one parent said. "Other towns like Artesia have a lot more parents in attendance at meetings like this."

The sad part of it is that the high school kids will suffer because of the apathy.

Howell said the attendance at the booster club meetings has been poor all year.

"This meeting was typical of the ones we've had since the end of football season," Howell said. "The attendance has been terrible. We usually have around four or five parents attend each meeting. I don't know why it is but we've always had poor attendance every year after the football season."

Attendance at the Warrior boys and girls basketball games this past season was poor, averaging around 100 to 150 people a game. Often, only three or four parents of the players attended the games. Those parents who attended the games should be praised for their support of the teams.

Some people may have lost interest in the high school sports programs because the teams have been on the losing end of the scoreboard most of the time this school year.

That's all the more reason to unite behind the Warriors. When the going gets tough, the tough get going. Some people have criticized the coaches but do nothing to help the teams.

Ruidoso has been going through a rebuilding stage this school year and a large number of sophomores and freshmen have played on the varsity squads. Whenever this happens, a team is bound to make mistakes because sophomores and freshmen are inexperienced.

Every school has losing seasons and some go through a long stretch of mediocrity. Indeed, some schools annually produce cellar-dwelling teams.

Ruidoso High School is going to have some better days ahead. Let's not abandon the Warrior teams just because victories have come infrequently this year.

Braves shine in track meet

Several White Mountain Middle School track athletes competed in the Berrendo Invitational Thursday in Roswell and came home with a fifth-place finish in the eighth-grade boys division.

Kirk Taylor, Jeff Willingham, Billy

Harrison and Bubba Miller competed in three relays and accounted for all the Braves' points.

The speedy quartet ran a 52.2 in the 400-meter relay for third place, a 1:48.0 for fourth in the 800-meter relay, and a 4:14.0 for second place in the 1,600-meter relay.

Softball league to have meeting

The Lincoln County Women's Softball Association will hold a meeting at 7 p.m. Friday, April 22, at the Ruidoso

Public Library.

Team representatives need to be present to vote.

TAKING THE LEAD. Ruidoso High School girls track runner Deanna Peso (front) takes the lead over a Goddard runner in the 3,000 meters Friday at the Roswell Invitational.

Peso finished seventh in the event and also ran on two relay teams for the Warriors.

Ruidoso to have frosh grid team

Ruidoso High School will have a freshman football team this fall.

The Warriors, who began spring practice this morning, have already scheduled five games for the freshmen and hope to add a sixth.

"We're going to have the freshmen play Thursday, the varsity Friday night and the junior varsity Saturday," said Warrior head coach Darrel Stierwalt.

"We want to give the freshmen a chance to play together as a group and get as much experience as possible."

Most of the sophomores and juniors with limited experience will play primarily on the junior varsity, while the seniors and top juniors and sophomores will play on the varsity.

All of the coaching staff will participate in the coaching of the freshmen players.

The Warrior players will hold spring practice in the morning before school until May 13.

Stierwalt and his assistants should have an experienced varsity team next fall with 24 of last year's players returning.

Ruidoso will have depth at most of the offensive and defensive positions.

Cyrus Simmons, Russell Easter and Mark Langston are among the returnees who will vie for the starting quarterback job. Simmons was a starting defensive back last season and also had some playing time at quarterback. Easter played at defensive back on the varsity and quarterback on the junior varsity. Langston, who was the starting varsity fullback last season, played quarterback at White Mountain Middle School.

Keglers to hold dinners

The Sierra Blanca Women's Bowling Association will hold its awards banquet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at K-Bob's Restaurant.

Women from the local leagues will attend the banquet.

Another banquet will be held Tuesday when the Tuesday Night Mixed League holds a pot-luck dinner at 7:30 p.m. at Holiday Bowl.

Texas-New Mexico Power Company today said they were writing the hospital administrators in their service area to call attention to their termination policy for people who are ill.

C. N. Bundick, District Manager in Ruidoso, said the Public Service Commission of New Mexico has established the rules that the Company follows. The Company must eventually collect the bills, however, it has always been Company policy to work with customers who are temporarily unable to pay their bills.

If terminating electric service would further impair the health of an ill person, that person or their representative should contact the District Manager of Texas-New Mexico Power Company in the community in which they live. In most cases a physician's certification will be required.

The policy allows people to defer payment of their electric bill, or arrange for partial payment. The policy does require payment of the electric bill, but gives the customer an opportunity to pay the bill over an extended period of time.

Warrior netters have mixed results

There were mixed results for the Ruidoso High School boys and girls tennis teams over the weekend.

Last Thursday the Warrior boys fell to visiting New Mexico Military Institute (NMMI) 9-0 while the girls defeated the Colts 8-1. Saturday Ruidoso traveled to Lovington High School and lost both matches by a 7-2 margin.

The highlight of the week was Laura Trapp extending her record to 5-0 in girls action with two more two-set wins. Both the boys and girls teams are now 1-4 in district play and will travel to NMMI for a 2 p.m. match Tuesday.

In the boys match against NMMI, the visitors showed why they are perhaps the best team in the district.

Ryan Brown of Ruidoso lost to Mike Sheen of NMMI, 5-7, 6-4, 6-3, in the top-seeded match. Eduardo Fernandez of the Colts topped Billy Woodul of the Warriors, 6-1, 6-4.

In other single matches, Jeff Rose of NMMI topped Mike Smith of Ruidoso, 6-2, 6-0; Lane Tohee of NMMI beat Jim Smith, 6-2, 6-3; Mark Delaney of the Colts topped Zack Swalander, 6-4, 6-0; and Taison Ripley of NMMI defeated Dallas Draper, 6-0, 6-1.

Shreen and Fernandez topped Brown and Woodul in three sets of the top-seeded doubles match, 6-2, 4-6, 6-3.

Rose and Tohee beat the Smith brothers, 7-6, 7-5, while Delaney and Ripley topped Draper and Swalander by a 6-4, 6-4 score.

In girls action, Trapp topped Elsie Cobb, 6-0, 6-0 while Mary Gaddy of Ruidoso beat Debbie Haremark, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

Tina Sanchez of the Warriors edged Carmen Ruiz by a 6-4, 6-4 score in the third-seeded match, while Rachel McCoy of Ruidoso beat Adela Lopez, 6-1, 6-2, in the fourth-seeded match.

Laura Tyson continued her fine play with a 6-0, 6-0 win over Denise Stoner of NMMI, and Donna Mobley of Ruidoso defeated Alexandra Gezelman, 6-0, 6-0.

Trapp and Sanchez fell to Cobb and Haremark in the top-seeded doubles match, 7-5, 6-1. Tyson and McCoy beat Ruiz and Lopez, 6-2, 6-1, while Robin Rhodes and Michele Morrow of Ruidoso topped Stoner and Gezelman, 6-1, 6-4.

Saturday's competition saw the Lovington boys avenge a previous loss to the Warriors. However, Ruidoso was without Swalander and Bart Bowen. Bowen, who started the school year at Ruidoso, moved to Colorado and then back to Ruidoso. He had to wait out a 20-day eligibility period and will be eligible to play this week.

Brown lost a 6-1, 6-3 decision to Norman Choate of Lovington in the top-seeded match. Brown had defeated the talented Lovington athlete in the first meeting between the two players last month.

Matt Siebenlist of the Wildcats edged Woodul in three sets, 6-1, 6-7, 7-6. Shannon Wood of Lovington topped Mike Smith, 6-1, 7-6.

Paul Siebenlist of the Wildcats defeated Jim Smith 6-1, 6-3. Gabby Rodriguez of Lovington topped Draper, 7-5, 6-2, while Greg LaPour beat Cache Mundy of Ruidoso, 6-2, 6-1.

In doubles action, Brown and Woodul gained a measure of revenge for their singles losses with a 6-1, 6-4 win over Choate and Wood.

Paul and Matt Siebenlist beat the Smith brothers, 6-4, 6-3, while Draper and Mundy topped Rodriguez and LaPour, 7-6, 7-5.

In girls singles action, Trapp beat Shella Caudill in two sets, 6-3, 6-3.

Gaddy lost to Lanette Grubb of Lovington 6-1, 6-1, while Ann Strickland of the Wildcats defeated Sanchez, 6-3, 6-4.

McCoy lost a see-saw match to Kathy Morgan of Lovington. Morgan won the first set easily, 6-1, but the Warrior athlete came back to take the second set by a 6-0 score before losing the third, 6-3.

Tyson beat Mary Golf of the Wildcats by a 6-0, 6-0 score while Laura Smith beat Mobley, 6-1, 6-2.

In doubles action, Trapp and Sanchez fell to Caudill and Grubb, 7-6, 6-1, in the top-seeded match.

Strickland and Morgan topped the Warriors' Gaddy and Tyson, 6-4, 6-0, while Golf and Smith beat Mobley and Rhodes, 6-4, 6-7, 6-4.

Warrior coach Mike Crocker felt his teams played well despite three losses against one win.

"We're losing a lot of close matches," he said. "We did win what I believe was our first tiebreaker, though, and our kids are getting more experience. I think the addition of Bowen will help our boys team a lot."

Crocker praised the excellent play of Trapp.

"She's won 60 games while losing just 16," he said. "She's won every set she's played. I think she'll be the top seed at the district tournament (Saturday, May 7, at Portales) and have an excellent chance of making the state tournament."

Babe Ruth league to have signups

Signups for Babe Ruth baseball will be held from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in the foyer of the White Mountain Middle School gymnasium.

Youths 13 to 16 years old can sign up for the teams. Youths should bring a $15 entry fee to the signups. The youths will be given a form to have a parent or guardian sign.

Ruidoso hasn't had an organized baseball team for youths over age 12 in at least two years. According to Larry Sherwood, a coordinator for the program, that may change this year if enough youths sign up.

"We've had verbal commitments from at least 30 kids," Sherwood said. "We'd like to have about 45 kids in the program but we could get by with 30."

There's a possibility the Ruidoso teams could play squads from other areas. Anyone wanting further information can call Sherwood at 258-4088.

Busy week ahead for golf followers

Golf fans in the Ruidoso area will find a lot to keep their interest this week as two tournaments will be held here.

Tuesday and Wednesday the Sun Country Section Pro-Scratch Tournament will be held at the Inn of the Mountain Gods. The Ruidoso Invitational for high school golf teams will be played Thursday and Friday at the three local courses.

A total of 30 four-man teams will compete in the Pro-Scratch Tournament. Most of the club professionals from the section will compete in the tournament. Each team will have one pro and three amateurs.

Jack Warlick, head professional at the Inn, will compete along with his assistant, George French. Cree Meadows Country Club professional Bob Hickson and Alto Lakes Golf and Country Club professional Vic Beach will also compete.

The tournament will be a two-betball competition over 36 holes. The teeoff time Tuesday is 9 a.m.

The high school tournament will be a 54-hole competition. The first 18 holes Thursday morning will be at the Inn with the second 18 holes that afternoon at Cree Meadows. Friday's final round will be at Alto.

Some of the better high school teams in New Mexico will compete in the tournament.

Several Tigers qualify for state A track meet

The Capitan High School boys track team qualified several athletes for the state meet during the Santa Rosa Relays Friday.

Capitan's 400-meter relay team of Eddie Beavers, Danny Cummins, Paul Sullivan and Tim McElhannon qualified for the state A division meet with a 45.4 third-place time.

The medley relay team of Beavers, Sullivan, McElhannon and Robert Parker finished fourth with a state-qualifying time of 3:54.0.

Athletes who qualified in individual events included Todd Proctor in the discus (125 feet), Parker in the high hurdles (15.5) and McElhannon in the 400 meters (53.7).

Parker is the defending state champion in the high jump but has not peaked yet this season. He has a best of 5-11.

"We think he's ready to go," Tiger head coach Mel Holland said of Parker. "He had an injury but is feeling good now."

No Tiger girl qualified for the state meet but several had fine performances.

Becky Huey placed third in both the 100-meter hurdles and the 75-meter hurdles.

The Capitan 1,600-meter relay team of Becky Huey, Patti Huey, Tiffany Huey and Janet Johnston finished fifth. The 800-meter relay team of the three Hueys and Tracy Herd finished fourth.

Capitan will compete in the Moriarty Invitational Saturday.

TOP BOY NETTER. Ryan Brown of the Ruidoso High School boys tennis team returns the ball during a match against New Mexico Military Institute Thursday afternoon on the Sierra Swim and Racquet Club courts. Brown is the top-seeded player on the Warrior team. Ruidoso is 1-4 in both the boys and girls divisions.

Fishing big industry in state

MESCALERO CHAMPS. Adobe Bro.'s team member Tino Aguilar presents trophies to Candace Garrett and Gail McIntosh after his basketball team placed second in the Mescalero Men's Basketball League and won the end-of-the-year tournament. Garrett and McIntosh accepted on behalf of C Garrett Designs and EGM Linens, sponsors of the team.

The kid with a cane pole and a packet of fishhooks, the bass angler with a multi-thousand dollar investment in a fast boat, electronic gear and graphite rods, and the family out for a week or weekend of fishing—all are part of New Mexico, and all, as fishermen, are part of a major state industry.

Figures compiled by the Department of Game and Fish show that anglers contribute more than 10 percent of the dollars generated by tourism and travel in New Mexico, according to Richard McCleskey, chief of the department's Fisheries Division.

"Our estimate is that the state's fishing industry generated about $121 million during the past fiscal year," McCleskey said, "and that's probably conservative."

The state's total travel and tourism industry accounted for approximately $1.2 billion in fiscal 1981, the last year for which total figures are available. Mike Patel, of the state's Tourism and Travel Division, told the Game and Fish Department.

The fishing industry not only produces significant income to sporting goods stores, lodges, gas stations and grocery stores, but also to the state itself, in the form of taxes and license fees.

"The state's general fund receives at least five percent of the expenditures back through gross receipts, income and other taxes, for more than $6 million, plus the Department of Game and Fish receives almost $2.5 million in license fees," McCleskey said.

More than 330,000 anglers—256,000 licensed fishermen and an estimated 80,000 unlicensed juveniles—spent more than 2.6 million days fishing in New Mexico at an average daily cost of almost $48 per day.

"The average resident, licensed angler spends $40 per fishing day, including gear, licenses, travel and lodging, and the average nonresident spends just under $90," McCleskey said. "An average $16 per day is spent by and on unlicensed juveniles."

Costs of large, long-term investment items such as campers, motor homes, boats and boat motors are prorated to include their proportionate value to the fishing industry.

Thirty-five percent of the state's anglers—83,000—are nonresidents. Seventy percent of the nonresidents purchase trout stamps or validations; 30 percent fish the state's warm-water reservoirs and streams exclusively.

Ninety percent of the resident anglers purchase trout fishing privileges.

Rainbow trout, planted as catchable-sized fish as well as smaller fry and fingerlings to grow to catchable size, account for approximately half of the state's total fish harvest; and trout and salmon of all species account for approximately two-thirds of the total. Warm-water species—catfish, bass, crappie, walleye and sunfish—make up the remainder in typical years.

The department hatches, rears and plants most of its own trout via its six trout-rearing stations: Red River near Questa, Lisboa Springs near Pecos, Seven Springs in the Jemez Mountains, Rock Lake at Santa Rosa, Parkview near Chama and Glenwood in south western New Mexico. It also trades for or purchases trout and salmon eggs.

It depends primarily on federal hatcheries for warm-water species such as bass and catfish to supplement the natural reproduction in the state's warm-water lakes.

Professor Enchilada says:

The waiting is nearly at an end!

Tomorrow—Tuesday, April 19—is Rotary Enchilada Day. Ruidosians whose taste buds have been tingling with anticipation for weeks will be heading for the Elks Club between the hours of 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. to feast on la comida sabrosa Mexicana!

Besides the good food and good fellowship—half the fun of Enchilada Day is seeing so many friends there—the event serves a worthy purpose. Proceeds go to various Rotary projects and community organizations, which in the past have included White Mountain Search and Rescue, Ruidoso Minilateral Alliance, Home Health Services, Boys State and Ruidoso-Hondo Valley Hospital.

So while you eat well and enjoy the good company, you will know your ticket price goes to better Ruidoso. Que maravilloso!

The Dreamer

BY DANNIE STORM

Thomas Jefferson's Birthday
Somehow, in the weather so unlike April, I lost in the shuffle the birthday of one of history's greatest men, Thomas Jefferson, born April 13, 1743 in Shadwell, Albemarle County, Virginia.

Jefferson was our third president and one of our most gratefully remembered, not only by our people but by all the world.

He wrote the Declaration of Independence, a document surely divinely inspired:

"... We hold these truths to be self evident, that all men are created equal. That they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, among which are Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness."

His father was of Welsh descent, a highly intelligent man, an engineer and surveyor and also farmer. On his mother's side he was descended from the Randolphs, aristocratic Virginians of English origin.

Red haired with sandy complexion he was tall and lightly built and very active. He had a great fondness for horses, and was an all around athlete. Yet though physically strong and durable he was gentle by nature. He was an architect, musician, a botanist, and a scholar of the widest interest.

Like his close friend and mentor, George Washington, whom he called:

"The Best of Great Men and the Greatest of Good Men," Jefferson was a farmer at heart. He tried to grow every tree, vine, shrub, bush or flower that the climate would welcome on his vast estate. And he liked nothing better than to ride over his beloved Monticello, which he made into a model of architectural beauty, landscaping harmony and agricultural excellence. His home became a world famous landmark, and so remains to this day.

Graduating from William and Mary College at the age of twenty, he began the practice of law, which was a foundation, like for many of his time, for the political career into which events forced him.

One of his many accomplishments during his presidency was the Louisiana Purchase, the acquisition of that vast territory in the heart of North America, which sealed the destiny of the United States as a world leader.

In a time of the greatest strife and turmoil in the physical world and also in the world of ideas, Jefferson, though staunch in his own ideas, remained always good tempered and cheerful.

Often called the "Father of American Democracy," Jefferson had a deep and unwavering faith in his fellow man.

The encyclopedia says of Jefferson: "He hated the 'morbidity' of debate, believing men were never convinced by argument, but only by reflection, through reading or unprovocative conversation; and this belief guided him through his life. "Jefferson, in short, had an unlimited faith in the honesty of the people; a large faith in their common sense; believed that all is to be won by appealing to the reason of voters; that by education their ignorance can be eliminated; that human nature is indefinitely perfectible; that majorities rule, therefore, not only by virtue of force, but of right. His importance as a maker of modern America can scarcely be overstated; for the ideas he advocated have become the very foundations of American Republicanism. No other man's ideas have had anything like an equal influence upon the institutions of the country."

Let us say a prayer of thanks for Thomas Jefferson.

Spring Finally Gains the Upper Hand

After one of the most bitter struggles for possession of the world that this area has ever seen, Spring has finally turned the tide, with Winter slowly giving ground.

Today, April fifteen, in late afternoon, the North Wind is blowing gently yet without the sharp weapon of Arctic cold piercing the evening air.

The incense of new leaves is on the breeze, not a patch of snow is to be seen, among the evergreens.

The sun, high in its daily arching journey, has warmed the chill out of the land, especially on the sunny side.

The orioles, doves, house finches and jays are no longer feeding in the yard, and have gone feasting at the banquet table of Mother Earth, now being spread throughout the Mountain World.

And the first notes of bird songs of Spring are gladdening all the glens.

SALESPERSON OF THE YEAR. Susan Miller smiles as she tries on the diamond ring given to her by Tommy Perteet and Dave Parks for being Perteet Parks and Associates' 1982 Salesperson of the Year.

Susan Miller honored by Perteet Parks

Perteet Parks and Associates honored Susan Miller as 1982 salesperson of the year during a banquet Friday night at Cree Meadows Restaurant. Miller, who sold over $2 million worth of real estate in Ruidoso last year, was also selected as salesperson of the year for the whole Multiple Listing Service of Ruidoso.

After office manager Bill Willis presented Miller with a small plaque and pen holder, Tommy Perteet and Dave Parks called her back up to present her with a 21-diamond ring in appreciation for her work.

Miller has lived in Ruidoso for 21 years and taught all levels of school for 19 years before taking up real estate sales full time in June of 1981.

"You have to look like a woman, act like a lady, think like a man, work like a dog and enjoy it like a kid," said Miller, explaining her success. "I love Ruidoso. It's easy to sell something that you love," she added later.

Miller said there are advantages and disadvantages to being a woman in the real estate business. Women generally choose a house to buy and Miller knows what they want, she said. On the other hand, women have to prove that they have a brain—a business sense—in order to gain the confidence of buyers.

Looking toward the summer, Miller is optimistic. She believes both the economy and the mood are up.

"I can't wait. I think it's going to be good," she said.

SLOWING DOWN STATE SPENDING

It is with wry amusement that we note a ban on state employee travel becomes public while its author, Gov. Toney Anaya, is traveling out of state. But it is with approval that we acknowledge Anaya's cost-saving intentions in restricting both travel and new hiring by state agencies. In these tight times, when taxes are being raised significantly and personal budgets are being tightened in the face of a wheezing economy, some belt-tightening by state government is also appropriate.

Time will tell whether the freezes are more form or more function, but the praise or blame will be easy to apportion. Anaya said his office will take responsibility for approving all out-of-state travel and new employee hirings.

If state government were to either remain the same size or grew smaller, without giving up too much in the way of efficiency, Anaya's freeze could prove to be one of his most significant contributions.

At any rate, we applaud his intentions and wish him success in carrying it out — as soon as he gets back to New Mexico from that trip. — Albuquerque Journal

PSYCHIC RESEARCH

Many scientists are inclined to dismiss investigation of psychic phenomena as claptrap having no connection with true science. This attitude, often put forward with an air of righteous indignation, reflects a decidedly unscientific rejection of scientific method.

LET'S STAY FRIENDLY

Lets' cool it at the bridges. Juarez and El Paso enjoy friendly interaction, which must continue.

Every country has regulations to be obeyed by citizen and visitor alike. Sometime ago, Mexico issued a list of essential items not to be taken out of that country. It is widely displayed in Juarez stores and at the international bridges.

U.S. citizens have no alibi for trying to smuggle these items out of Mexico and no reason to complain if they are confiscated.

If, while removing these items, Mexican officials confiscate others not on the list, some small cause for complaint may exist.

However, U.S. citizens should recognize they are visitors to Mexico, and if they expect to be treated with courtesy, it should be a two-way gesture.

Ugly incidents at the bridges are unbefitting to the people of both nations. — El Paso Times

SANTA FE—Well, if anybody can do it, maybe Alex Mercure can.

His assignment is to make an intensive effort to find new jobs for New Mexicans.

To help him do that, the Legislature gave him an entire new approach to the project — an agency which does nothing but promotion, for tourists and for industry.

It also gave him some strong exceptions to the personnel law, so he can pay salaries likely to attract people of professional standing and can fire them if they don't produce. What's more, it budgeted enough money for advertising campaigns to give the state its first shot at making a major impact in the media.

For employees of the Department of Commerce and Industry, as it presently is, the Legislature created a lot of headaches. Nobody knows whether he or she will still be around come July 1.

That's when the new Economic Development Division comes into being.

We'd suggest to Mercure and his deputy, Lou Higgs, that they give those employees they plan to keep lots of tender, loving care between now and the start of the next fiscal year, so they will know they are wanted. Otherwise, morale could be at a new low by the time the re-formed agency gets off the ground.

The writer admits to having had considerable reservations about this bill as it made its way through the lawmaking process. It was not the brainchild of Mercure and Higgs. In fact it went back to Mercure's predecessor, Russell Autrey, who ran things at Commerce and Industry during the last months of Bruce King's reign.

Originally it was probably the creation of Jim Garvind, boss of industrial development, who has had something like this in mind for years.

But Mercure came along just in time to be given the assignments resulting from the legislation.

We all wish him well.

If he can use the new set-up successfully, along with the new law setting up an improved Industrial Finance Authority, he will get his name in the history books.

Right now our state couldn't need anything more than it does new or expanded payrolls.

Stop the presses!

House Republican leader Hoyt Pattison, mentioned here recently as one who might not throw his hat back into the ring next year, says he has no such intention.

As things look now, he plans to be back in the race — which more or less means he plans to be back in the House.

The reason folks don't like you predicting they may lay back before they have made up their minds is that it stirs up opposition. That's something Pattison hasn't had a lot of in his eleven runs for office, and he'd like to keep it that way.

The new man named to head what will be the Film Division of that Economic Development Department is called Sjon Ueckert.

You pronounce that, if our sources are correct, just about like John Eckert.

With a monicker like that, he may stand out in the memories of the film producers.

specimens to the lab, and report it to the district health office, under-sheriff Cox's sheriff department don't have to do this, because apparently like he told me that's just silly city shit and we don't have to do it. After all deputy Cox said there hasn't been any reports of rabies in the area. Well, I wonder where he gets his information, because I had some positive cases in the area and he never called me. I don't know how the man felt, but it didn't relieve me when Cox said, no way, we're not at fault for neglect. Maybe I didn't see it in the state and county laws regarding rabies suspect animals and bites, where it might have said (except deputy Cox.)

But then of course, the Lincoln County Commissioners are, or at least attempting to spend money with only a gentleman's agreement. So what if the law says there has to be a legal contract signed. Apparently they must have discussed this with the sheriff's office and decided, well, we can do what we want to.

The gentleman's agreement was to furnish the legal authority to continue the old contract, that didn't happen, then the gentleman's agreement to furnish a new contract, well that didn't happen either. Then I am supposed to work on a gentleman's agreement, which they legally could not pay for, well, this didn't happen either.

Well, there is no doubt in my mind the county commissioners and the sheriff's department have a very clear view of the basic structure of animal control at a county level.

First thing to do is to go to Ruidoso and politic for the votes and get elected, then just sit back and do nothing to promote animal control, because the dogs won't stay in the county, they'll all go to town sooner or later. And if someone does get bit by a wild cat, well so what, if he has the money then take the shots. Once they dogs get to Ruidoso, its their problem, let them keep them three days, and send the head up to the lab. We don't have to do anything, but if we do, it'll be just what we want to do, and not even state law can change that, apparently.

Myself being a private contractor, cannot just go to work when they ask, like a hired hand. When the sheriff's office and the county commissioners can't honor a contract that didn't cost them anything, or honor a gentleman's agreement to furnish a commission card and a contract to be signed, how can any legitimate contractor be expected to invest $8,000.00 to $9,000.00 into a gentleman's agreement with this county when they have admitted they aren't even going to obey the state laws.

When elected officials can spend tax money with only a gentleman's agreement when they won't even honor a written one, just throw away a rabies suspect specimen, and don't even report it, or give someone's pet away after only a few hours, and say we don't have to keep them three days, when the law says they do, have totally destroyed their credibility in the eyes of any contractor and confidence and security of it's citizens.

JACK SNIADZICKI

Letters to the Editor

DEAR EDITOR:

At the March 1, '83, County Commissioners meeting, they did approve a four-month contract for animal control for $1,300.00 per month. Before any duties can be performed or anyone can be paid, there must be a signed contract prepared by the D.A.'s office.

After repeated calls to the county manager's office, and to the sheriff, to when will the contract be finished so it could be signed, and services can be resumed, their only reply was "The D.A. has not sent it back yet."

It is my understanding that a county in the state of New Mexico, cannot legally conduct formal business without a legally written and signed contract-prepared by the D.A.

After Tom Sullivan was elected to office and prior to his installation, I questioned him as to his plans for animal control. I, at this time informed him if he wished for me to continue with the current contract, I would need a county commission card, for the legal authority to continue services under his administration. Tom Sullivan wished for me to continue the contract, and he would supply the required commission cards, when he officially took office as sheriff. Tom Sullivan never did furnish a commission card. After two weeks without authority to perform my duties, I again called the sheriff and advised him I needed the commission card to legally do animal control in the county.

Well, the new sheriff just said, "Go ahead and work, just tell them I said it was all right."

When this was proposed to me by the sheriff I immediately thought how I would look standing in magistrate court when the judge asked, by what authority did you write this citation? And I could only say, "Tommy said it was O.K."

Well at this, I realized what I had to work with, and since I was paying all the costs, and the sheriff's department or the county commissioners were not paying and also showed no attempt to co-operate, I realized the only thing to do was to terminate the contract.

On January 12, 1983 I did send a termination notice to the county manager's office by certified mail.

The county manager requested I attend the January county commissioner's meeting, which was when the total sum of nothing for three months was to be settled. While animal control continued to get out of hand during the first three months of this year, a lot of things came to light.

The county had a complete animal control program, which I was paying all the cost, but the sheriff neglected to furnish the legal authority to continue this contract.

Even though the law, under county ordinance states that animals will be impounded and kept for three days, under-sheriff Cox advised me that they would do things the way they want.

Well, apparently they can, because they are.

When a man in Hondo was bitten by a wild cat, they just threw it away.

While the state law says the sheriff's office will send these

Is there hope for public education?

Signals from Santa Fe give some grounds for optimism. The state Board of Education recently tightened requirements for high school graduation and voted to press on with teacher testing programs in state universities.

According to the state assistant school superintendent, the new graduation requirements came about because the Board of Education and state education administrators share a belief that achievement expectations for New Mexico students have been too low.

The new ruling increases the number of required courses and specifies additional math and science courses—a response to the increased orientation of society toward technology.

Evidently, there also exists the feeling that expectations for new teachers have been too low. The board approved plans submitted by nine universities to test the basic skills of students majoring in education, beginning July 1.

In the second phase of the program, state university graduates and new state residents seeking their first New Mexico teaching certificate will be tested on general teaching skills and basic subject knowledge, starting next year.

And it was interesting to note the rare occurrence statewide last week of certain teachers not having their contracts renewed. This gives further grounds for optimism that public education may be able to improve itself from within.—TP

by Gary Brown

The Ruidoso area has an abundance of wild bird life, many species of which have undeserved reputations. I'm talking about birds of prey, which in this area include the golden eagle, bald eagle and many types of hawks and owls.

Some people view birds of prey as evil because they kill other birds and animals, not realizing they do so to stay alive themselves.

Legends have cropped up over the centuries about eagles carrying human babies away and killing cows and full-grown sheep.

Most of these legends are absurd. The average eagle only weighs around 10 pounds and can't carry away anything more than half its weight.

Some of the larger eagles such as the harpy eagle of South America, the Siberian golden eagle and the monkey-eating eagle of the Philippines can kill animals bigger than themselves. Golden eagles on the Soviet Union-China border have been trained by human handlers to kill wolves, adult deer and other large prey. The harpy eagle, probably the biggest and most powerful of all eagles, can kill medium-sized pigs and tear dogs and monkeys to pieces with its massive talons.

However, generally eagles will stick to taking prey much smaller than themselves, such as rabbits, squirrels and fish.

Still, old legends of past centuries have damaged the reputation of birds of prey, and their numbers have suffered as a result. Hunters have ruthlessly killed these birds in enough numbers to make some species rare—the monkey-eating eagle being a good example. It is protected by law of the Philippines government as are the bald and golden eagles in the United States.

Hawks and owls have also caught the anger of uncaring or unknowing humans.

The red-tailed hawk has been shot down in great numbers because it is believed to be a "chicken hawk." In reality, the red-tailed hawk feeds almost completely on mice, squirrels and other small mammals. It hardly ever attacks a farmer's chicken coop.

The main culprits as far as stealing chickens goes are the goshawk and the Cooper's hawk.

The goshawk is probably the biggest and most aggressive hawk on the North American continent. It will attack chickens and has even been known to attack and injure men who approach its nest. The Cooper's hawk is a smaller cousin of the goshawk but is also a very aggressive bird.

However, most of the hawks we see in this area are red-tailed hawks or red-shouldered hawks, definitely not the type which will swoop down in a farmer's yard and steal away his chickens.

The great horned owl offers both good and bad tidings. It performs a vital service by eating many types of rodents, but it also has been known to attack domestic animals such as house cats.

There have been many instances of people killing a horned owl after it had killed their cat. The owl hunts at night and is very silent in its attack. A cat, although it will generally weigh more than the owl, does not usually hear the owl approach until the bird's talons are in its back and neck. By then, it's all over for the cat.

Still, the services the bird gives mankind—by getting rid of animals and birds which may carry diseases or be on the verge of overpopulation—are valuable.

In truth, most birds of prey are more helpful than harmful and do not deserve the negative tags mankind has given them.

So when you're out hunting this weekend, don't pull the trigger on any bird which looks like a bird of prey. You may be breaking the law and hurting a potential friend also.

Speaking of birds, the New Mexico wild turkey season opened last Saturday.

These birds, some weighing as much as 40 pounds, are generally considered to be one of the most valuable game trophies in New Mexico.

They are in abundance in this area and there is no risk of their population falling into extinction.

Hunters I've talked to consider wild turkeys to be extremely crafty and hard to catch.

Some hunters consider turkey hunting the thrill of a lifetime, and they'll have over two weeks to experience that thrill. The season will end May 1.

Camp prepares kids for computer age

According to camp instructor Kurt Steinhaus, a summer computer day camp sponsored by the Space Center in Alamogordo will invite campers to develop courage—to venture—to ask “what if?”—while learning about computers.

Steinhaus said, “The camp is designed to encourage kids to try new options or take a different path, even to learn by making mistakes.”

Space Center director Bob Content said the idea is to prepare the children in this area for the 21st Century.

Content said, “Many colleges are already requiring students to have microcomputers; it is imperative that we begin preparing our children now for stiffer college requirements that will include a knowledge of computers and some proficiency in their use.

“In order to make the camp exciting and fun as well as educational, we will have some time for video games and computer art, with prizes for the best programs,” Content said.

The camp will be set up in three two-week sessions, with each session designed for a different age group. There will be one instructor, Kurt Steinhaus, and two assistants, Thad Bowers and Kathleen Gallaway.

Steinhaus received his M.A. degree in music education from Eastern New Mexico University with thesis work in computer-assisted learning and is currently teaching band in the Alamogordo Public School System.

His resume lists an interest in home computers as well as experience as a Camp Counselor with the YMCA Summer Camp in Los Alamos.

Gallaway, a 1982 graduate of Alamogordo Senior High, is a cooperative teacher at Buena Vista Elementary and a student of secondary education at New Mexico State University.

Bowers is not only a student at Alamogordo Mid-High, he also works at the Clyde W. Tombaugh Space Instruction Center as a planetarium operator. He is involved with the computer programming of new planetarium shows.

Morning programs, with younger campers, will be planned around the computer language LOGO. LOGO offers a simulation of a real-world environment and encourages learning by discovery, the natural way that a child finds out about the world. Problem solving, logical sequencing, decision making, self-direction—these are skills developed by exploring the LOGO environment.

Afternoon sessions, with junior high and high school campers, will be planned around BASIC computer language. The real advantage of learning BASIC is that it can be found on most computers. The camp program is a beginner's all-purpose instruction code.

The first two-week session, June 20 — July 1, will offer the LOGO program to grades 3, 4, and 5 from 8:30 to 11:00 a.m. and the BASIC program to grades 6, 7 and 8 from 1 to 4 p.m.

The second two-week session, July 11 — July 22, will offer two LOGO programs for kindergarten through 2nd grade, one from 9 to 10 a.m. and one from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. The afternoon session for grades 9 through 12 will offer the BASIC program from 1 to 4 p.m.

The third two-week session, July 25 — August 5, will offer LOGO for grades 5, 6 and 7 from 8:30 to 11:00 a.m. and BASIC for grades 8, 9 and 10 from 1 to 4 p.m.

Sessions will be limited to an enrollment of twenty with a minimum of ten campers needed to initiate each program.

Content said, “Registration will be handled by Community Education but if anyone would like more information, they are welcome to call the Space Center, 437-2840.”

LATEST FROM THE BAGGAGE FRONT
Some changes have been made in the rules pertaining to the liability of U.S. airlines for lost or damaged luggage.

First, an airline cannot limit its liability to less than $1,000 per bag. This does not mean you are automatically entitled to $1,000 for a lost bag; you must be able to substantiate the value of your bag and its contents with receipts.

If your bag is worth more than $1,000, you should pick up extra insurance. This is sold at airports, or as part of the more extensive travel insurance you can buy when you plan your trip.

The airlines can disclaim liability for fragile or perishable goods in your luggage. This must be plainly stated on or with your tickets.

One happy note: it is very rare for airlines to actually lose your luggage permanently. Often a "lost" bag will arrive on the next flight.

PBS in the spotlight

Dame Judith Anderson is featured as the nurse in the PBS adaptation of the Greek tragedy "Medea," airing Wednesday, April 20.

A powerful 'Medea'

Dame Judith Anderson, as the nurse, and Zoe Caldwell, as Medea, co-star in the television adaptation of Euripides' tragedy "Medea," airing Wednesday, April 20 on PBS as part of the "Kennedy Center Tonight" series. (Please check local listings for time.)

"Medea" depicts the ultimate revenge of a passionate woman, scorned by her ambitious husband bent on marrying his way to new power and riches. Her love for her husband turns to hatred and horrible revenge, their two children becoming the victims of her rage.

When Euripides created the original "Medea" in 431 B.C., it was the first time in Greek theater that the true feelings and emotions of a woman were portrayed. Medea had magical powers, yet she spoke for women whose passions could boil into horrendous rage when tormented and rendered powerless by the men they have loved.

The play is a dynamic example of interest in the heart of a woman, a subject generally ignored by Athenian theater of that day.

Mark Cullingham Directed; Mary Rawson is producer and Dale Bell is executive producer with Barry Weissler.
