

PLANNING COMMITTEE NIXED

Council vs. P&Z = pro planner?

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

The 1976 Comprehensive Plan—the so-called "master plan" of Ruidoso's development—was found Friday to be tremendously outdated and in need of replacement.

For those reasons, the village council will consider hiring professional planners to do the job when it drafts the 1983-84 budget during workshops this spring.

The state of the master plan was the assessment of the village council and the Planning and Zoning Commission (P&Z) during a joint afternoon meeting. The session was held at the request of P&Z, which wanted to address the inadequacies of village planning.

The decision to seek professional guidance came after the council shot down a flurry of requests from commission members to authorize a planning committee within P&Z.

The main reasons the council did not agree with the idea was the amount of time involved in the rewrite—hours the part-time commission members do not have—and the danger of having "amateur" planners tackle the subject.

P&Z chairman John Schuller has talked of the need for creating such a committee within his commission. In a recent P&Z meeting, he suggested the idea after noting the commission is not fulfilling its charge to both plan and zone the village.

Friday, P&Z members took the opportunity to inform the council of some recent changes in the way the commission operates, and explain why the commission should begin immediately to direct some of its focus at planning.

Commission member Jim Paxton noted that some of the changes were made in the past year to improve the commission's efficiency.

Paxton noted that in 1982, P&Z implemented a requirement that all applications for zoning considerations be submitted to the administrative staff at least 15 days prior to each month's meeting.

He said the provision allows P&Z more time to review applications. Once the information is submitted, a two-member site review committee inspects properties to come under consideration for zoning or planning changes.

The full commission then conducts a workshop to discuss its agenda. It is at the workshop that input comes in from P&Z committees, the village administration, the zoning enforcement division and village departments.

Paxton said several committees have been created in the past year to study specific zoning problems. One of the groups is reviewing all commercial areas, and property along main road arteries where commercial expansion would be preferable.

Another panel is the three-member advisory committee. Members Mill Alcorn, Paxton and Greg Masters sit on the committee, which is the liaison between the full commission and Schuller.

"We're trying to instigate in Planning and Zoning a team attitude," Schuller explained the goal of the advisory group.

Rounding out the committees are the Architectural Plans Review Committee and the Extraterritorial Zoning Commission, both of which have P&Z representation.

Paxton outlined the commission's duties to show the council why P&Z has fluctuated in membership over the past year. It now claims 10 members, a figure which the commission indicated Thursday may need to be increased if a planning board is established.

Greg Masters addressed the council on the need for a new emphasis on planning.

He said planning entails looking at the physical development of the village in relation to neighborhood planning, isolated building areas and zoning.

Masters also said there should be a better interaction between P&Z, elected officials, village departments and residents.

The vehicle by which the strategy would be implemented is an updated master plan.

Masters listed commission recommendations regarding the content of the plan.

In order to establish a "coordinated and harmonious" direction for the village, he said, planners must:

• Preserve and upgrade sound areas, ensuring that poorly planned neighborhoods do not affect the better areas.

• Contain dilapidated and sub-standard areas and analyze ways they can be improved. One way the run-down areas could be upgraded is to step up enforcement of codes and ordinances, Masters suggested.

• Determine traffic problems and offer solutions to the State Highway Department, including cost estimates and sources of revenue.

• Evaluate present sanitation, water and sewer systems, and determine capacities of the utilities and anticipate necessary changes—again including the cost estimates.

Following the outline, Masters said, "We ask that you all give us your blessing to implement a subcommittee to take care of planning." He added that, considering the scope of the project, it may be necessary to hire a full-time planner.

Councilman Frank Sayner agreed the master plan should be updated. But, after telling P&Z its plans for a subcommittee are admirable, he said, "I don't see where you have time for that, plus zoning and making a living."

He added it is probably time for the council to consider hiring a professional to rewrite the plan.

LOOKING AHEAD to the new year's goals and taking pride in past accomplishments, Chairman Wendell Chino called the Mescalero Apache Tribe a "power center for Indian people" at the inauguration of four Tribal Council members Friday.

Mescalero Tribal Council members stress unity at inauguration ceremonies Friday

by BILLY ALLSTETTER

"We are here to start a new year and be positive," said Mescalero Apache Tribal Council member Berle Kanseah at the inauguration of new Tribal Council members Friday.

Most of the speeches by the incoming council members and Tribal Council president Wendell Chino did call for tribal unity, though differences of opinion were apparent in some speeches.

Re-elected Tribal Council members Virginia Klinekole, Joseph Via, Harlyn Via and new member Silas Cochise pledged to "uphold the constitution of the Mescalero Apache Tribe and represent the interests of the Mescalero Apache people... to the best of my ability."

For Klinekole, the inauguration begins her 25th year on the Tribal Council. Klinekole emphasized unity, individual participation in tribal affairs and a need for education in her inaugural speech.

"We need to be with the world today so we can do the best for our children, grandchildren and the older people who have been here along the way," she said.

Harlyn Via told the assembled crowd, "people want leaders to have a strong voice (who) benefit people not themselves."

His brother, Joseph Via, voiced the strongest opinions of the day's speakers. He criticized administrators of the Tribe's enterprises for not presenting financial reports requested three years ago.

"We cannot trust reports on a yellow scrap of paper that can be manipulated by someone in an office," he stated.

He also called for positive action by other council members.

"People that imply that they have those contacts in Washington should use those contacts to lower your rents," he said.

Silas Cochise, great-grandson of the famous Cochise, called for the development of a "winning attitude" by young and old alike.

"Challenges are everywhere," he said. In addition to the winning attitude, he said sharing, caring and understanding are necessary to meet those challenges.

Cochise warned of "dreamstealers" who do not support new ideas, but he also cited the necessity of building a good working relationship with surrounding communities outside of the reservation.

The rest of the Tribal Council spoke, welcoming the inaugurated members and calling for unity. John Shendo Jr. said the tribe must act like an army in putting petty problems aside to support each other.

"As long as we have that unity we can stand together," he said. Most of the speeches by other council members echoed his sentiments.

After all other Tribal Council members had spoken, Tribal Council president Wendell Chino reminded the crowd that the Mescalero Apache Tribe may be small, but that it is a power center for the Indian people's fight for tribal sovereignty and jurisdiction. He listed several battles that the Tribe has won in courts, protecting and extending Indian rights.

Chino then went on to list goals of the Tribe in the coming year. Job creation for members of the Tribe, he said, is the highest priority.

He also stated that water rights are a very important part of the Mescalero Apache Tribe's future.

"We must be on guard to protect our water rights," he said. Chino also warned the Tribe that it must keep an eye on the upcoming legislative session because some members of the state Legislature want state control over the Indian reservations.

However, he noted the Tribe must work with state officials to make sure the Tribe receives its due share of grants and funds.

The Tribe also must work with local, area and state officials to determine what new roads can be constructed as a result of the recently passed five cent tax on gasoline, said Chino. He cited roads in the Pena addition and the road to Eagle Creek, White Tail and Cow Camp headquarters as top priorities. He also spoke of a possible realignment, along Eagle Creek, of the road to Sierra Blanca Ski Resort.

Keeping the fish hatchery open is another goal for the Tribe, said Chino. The hatchery is losing its Department of Fish and Game funding and the Tribe is now working with the Bureau of Indian Affairs to ensure its continued operation.

Chino talked of possible improvements for the Inn of the Mountain Gods, such as another golf course, a larger nightclub and a laundry that would employ more Indians.

Chino ended his speech with a call for participation by individuals to help the council accomplish its goals.

"Your participation is important in all that the Tribal Council tries to do," he stated.

Helen Zink, manager of the Inn, told the audience that in the years since she arrived in 1978, she has seen the Inn go from deep losses to break-even to a profit last year. She also noted that the Inn employs 30 percent Indians and is planning a training program so that more Indians will be employed there in the future.

Roy Parker, manager of Sierra Blanca Ski Resort, also addressed the gathering. He said the resort employs 126 Tribal members—over 50 percent of its employees. Parker said that so far, this year is the best ever for the resort. At this point in the best previous season, 52,000 lift tickets had been sold. This year 78,000 tickets have already been sold.

The inaugural meeting closed with the presentation of plaques honoring Fred Pellman and Alton Peso. Pellman is a past president of the Tribe and Peso was a Tribal Council member for 20 years.

Federal grant promotes fine arts in Ruidoso schools

by BARBY GRANT
Staff Writer

Despite a "no more spending" policy adopted by the local school system due to the state's poor financial condition, students in the Ruidoso School System are being offered a variety of programs never before available. Thanks to the federal government, a little over $15,000 has been allocated to the Ruidoso schools for a fine arts program this year.

The Chapter II federal block grant was awarded to the local schools last fall by the state Department of Education based on a proposal for spending the money which was submitted by the superintendent's office.

According to Katherine Finley, who is coordinating the program for the local schools, Ruidoso has the only totally federally funded fine arts program. She noted that the state has asked permission to pilot test the local program; they will evaluate it and use the project as a model for establishing similar programs in other New Mexico school districts.

The purpose of the project Ruidoso proposed is to "expose students of the Ruidoso School System to the fine arts," Finley explained. Despite the obvious limitations of a $15,000 budget, the program will offer students exposure to drama, music, public speaking, creative writing, drawing and painting, storytelling and dance. Finley said her objective as coordinator is to ensure "just emphasis is given to each area at each grade level."

An advisory council has been set up to help Finley reach that goal. Members include the four school principals—Donnie Weems, Mike Gladden, Texie Cole and Tom Hansen; a teacher from each school—Sue Vinsant, Nan Wierwille, Shannon Brown, Danny Flores and Karen Gray; the two educational diagnosticians—Sandy Gladden and Karen Tillman; two parents—Judy Tyson and Jan Fry, a community leader—Donna Willard, and administrative member Sid Miller.

Students interested in drama have already found the opportunity to get involved, thanks to the volunteerism of Peggy Wilson. Finley said the Chapter II program will support the drama group. Wilson is working with and may help defray some of the costs for its recent trip to Albuquerque to participate in the high school theater festival. Wilson is also planning a major theater production in April—the musical, "Cinderella."

Chapter II also provided tickets for 46 students to attend a performance of the Madrigal at the Inn of the Mountain Gods in December.

In addition, both drama and music students will benefit from a new spotlight and microphone cords to be purchased from the $15,000 fine arts budget. And about 30 drama and music students will attend a production of "Fiddler on the Roof" in Portales February 20.

Music activities being sponsored by the Chapter II program are being coordinated by high school band and choral instructor Danny Flores. He plans to host an area horn band in February with selected students from six other bands in New Mexico.

The band members will participate in an all-day clinic conducted by two band professionals from the University of New Mexico, and will present a concert at the high school gymnasium that evening. Local middle school and high school students will have the opportunity to participate in this activity.

Elementary school students and teachers will benefit from a clinic to be held by an elementary education specialist from Eastern New Mexico University (ENMU) February 21. He will work with elementary students and also hold an in-service workshop for teachers in offering music in their classes. Flores said that Larry Sherwood will also be working on music with White Mountain Elementary School classes for about two hours a week.

Flores reported that Ruidoso students are presently not exposed to music in school until they reach fifth grade. This program will offer them "a little more exposure to music at an early age."

"I'm excited about that," Flores remarked.

High school choir students will also get to participate in a clinic—this one to be conducted by an ENMU voice professor next month. Students will sit through critiques on their performances before traveling to Las Cruces for competition in March.

Two music professors from New Mexico State University (NMSU) also will be working with Ruidoso school students. The free chamber music concerts co-sponsored by NMSU and the Ruidoso Chamber of Commerce are being promoted as events for students to attend.

Some of the Chapter II funds will be spent supplementing a planned trip to Dallas and Fort Worth, Texas, by students in the humanities, Art II and music theory classes at the high school. The trip will include visits to a number of museums and exhibits, including the El Greco exhibit at the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts, as well as attendance at a performance of the Dallas Symphony and possibly the Fat Stock Rodeo Show in Fort Worth.

The federal block grant has also made possible the organization of a speech club, giving students the opportunity to get involved in debate, dramatic interpretation, extemporaneous speech and oral interpretation. Sandy Gladden is coordinating activities in these areas and will coach the debate teams along with Katherine Finley.

Gladden said students already plan to compete in debate contests leading to national debate competition and in several speech festivals in the spring. Some students are preparing for competition in the American Legion and other oratorical contests.

Gladden noted that this program has "really helped fill a void we had in the curriculum in high school and has enabled some students to be involved in some constructive, productive activities they couldn't otherwise have been."

Creative writing will be emphasized a bit more in all grade levels in the Ruidoso Schools through the Chapter II program, according to high school art instructor Karen Gray, who is coordinating this area of the project.

Gray said she hopes a creative writing class can be added to the curriculum at some time in the future. For now all teachers are being encouraged to spend some extra time with their students teaching creative writing.

Plans are also being made for publication of a literary magazine at the end of the school year, with selections of poetry and art work students have turned in.

Middle school principal Texie Cole is coordinating efforts to expose students to drawing, painting and related areas through the fine arts program. Plans in this area center around the creation of an in-school art gallery to display prints from local and other New Mexico artists.

And March being Youth Art Month, Karen Gray has arranged for some of the middle school and high school students' own works to be displayed at 20/20 Gallery that month. Gray said the gallery has offered to donate the wall space for that project. She feels it is important for the public to see what the students are doing during the school year, and that this will be a good opportunity to make that possible.

Storytelling is also considered a fine arts program, and activities in this area are being coordinated by White Mountain Elementary School principal Mike Gladden. Before Christmas, students in Gladden's school were privileged to be audience members for middle school students from Shannon Brown's class who read stories they had written.

In May, students in all the elementary schools will get to hear professional storyteller Joe Hays of Santa Fe entertain.

Mike Gladden related that the Chapter II funding is "providing some fine arts activities that are not readily accessible here in Ruidoso."

"Some of the things we have been trying to do through the years," he added, "but with Chapter II money it's making it more possible."

One additional program that has been made possible by the federal grant is dance. A dance class will meet one night a week for 18 weeks for interested high school students. The class will be taught by Glen Barrow and Karen Gray and can be taken for one-half credit.

The class will cover all styles of Western dance, Gray reported, including the Cotton-Eyed Joe and the Two-Step; plus ballroom dances such as the waltz and cha-cha; and a few disco and rock dances.

To encourage participation in the various fine arts programs being offered, about 20 tickets to the Fort Worth Symphony will be awarded to students for outstanding performance in different project areas, Finley reported.

Besides serving to expose students in the Ruidoso schools to the fine arts, the Chapter II federal block grant "serves as a catalyst for teachers and administrators to work together," Finley pointed out. It also should help tie the schools closer to the community, as "one of the goals of the project is to interlace programs at school into and with community efforts," the coordinator added.

Whatever its cumulative effects, the $15,000 grant is certainly an added bonus for the Ruidoso School System this year.

Mike Gladden related that the Chapter II funding is "providing some fine arts activities that are not readily accessible here in Ruidoso."

"Some of the things we have been trying to do through the years," he added, "but with Chapter II money it's making it more possible."

One additional program that has been made possible by the federal grant is dance. A dance class will meet one night a week for 18 weeks for interested high school students. The class will be taught by Glen Barrow and Karen Gray and can be taken for one-half credit.

The class will cover all styles of Western dance, Gray reported, including the Cotton-Eyed Joe and the Two-Step; plus ballroom dances such as the waltz and cha-cha; and a few disco and rock dances.

To encourage participation in the various fine arts programs being offered, about 20 tickets to the Fort Worth Symphony will be awarded to students for outstanding performance in different project areas, Finley reported.

Besides serving to expose students in the Ruidoso schools to the fine arts, the Chapter II federal block grant "serves as a catalyst for teachers and administrators to work together," Finley pointed out. It also should help tie the schools closer to the community, as "one of the goals of the project is to interlace programs at school into and with community efforts," the coordinator added.

Whatever its cumulative effects, the $15,000 grant is certainly an added bonus for the Ruidoso School System this year.

Ruidoso police station operations post in emergency

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

Participants in a disaster planning workshop Thursday designated the Ruidoso Police Department as the central emergency operations center whenever a major flood or forest fire warrants implementation of the county warning and evacuation plan.

The designation came at the third workshop coordinated by the state Civil Emergency Preparedness Division to develop a county-wide emergency plan.

The plan is being developed for flood threats from Lake Mesalero, Bonito Lake, Alto Lake and the planned Grindstone Canyon reservoir.

Ernest Snyder, director of the dam safety program with the Bureau of Indian Affairs in Albuquerque, promoted the plan for the flood below Lake Mesalero.

At the suggestion of Tom Closson, an official with the state emergency bureau who has been conducting the workshops, contingencies for the other county water retention facilities are also provided. Plan drafters suggested it also include guidelines for forest fire warnings and evacuation.

Participants from the village and from state and federal agencies Thursday reviewed the rough draft.

The Police Department was selected as the primary operations center—with branches in every political subdivision of the county—at the suggestion of Ruidoso police lieutenant Jim Alston.

Alston, who drafted the communications section for the plan, noted the police station has the best communications facilities in the county.

Alston also noted the remodeling project of the Ruidoso police/courts complex "will hopefully be a reality this fall," which will result in the facility being a "true emergency command post."

The policeman, who has been working on the design for the police communications center, added that preliminary plans call for a dispatching console with the capability to talk on five radio channels simultaneously.

State Police sergeant Jack Johnson noted that besides Ruidoso, the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department in Carrizozo is the only county law enforcement facility with 24-hour dispatching.

The Sheriff's Department also can communicate on three frequencies, but, unlike the Ruidoso station, dispatchers are limited to talking on only one channel at a time.

Alston pointed out that in considering the primary emergency center, the number of resources available in the area should be looked at.

Closson agreed. He said plan drafters must also consider available housing to absorb the impact of evacuated residents and the influx of state and federal employees who will assist local authorities.

"They'll have the capability of putting together a small village just like that," he pointed out. Johnson noted floods or forest fires are more likely to occur in Ruidoso than Carrizozo, "so this is the logical place," he said.

Following Johnson's comments, the participants agreed the Ruidoso police station should be designated as the control point whenever the county plan is fully implemented.

Since the plan is designed to be put into effect under a number of emergencies, Closson suggested a provision which allows its implementation by individual communities without the okay from each participant.

He also noted that many areas in the county are not threatened by floods or forest fires, but he stressed that each political subdivision should sign the document so elected officials will have a solid basis for requesting state and federal assistance for any disaster.

"If you put in here you have a warning plan for the entire county, it would comply with civil preparedness (regulations)," Closson said.

Before the final draft is signed, he said, contact points should be established in all Lincoln County communities.

Closson also emphasized that accurate documentation must be provided for every step of a disaster response. He said written records are necessary in order to apply for recovery funds, and will protect officials from liability.

He pointed out one area in the rough draft the state emergency preparedness office changed because such documentation had been omitted.

In the public information annex, it was suggested the media liaison to the executive operations group be allowed to release verbal warnings to the media when lack of time in an emergency precludes writing a statement and obtaining official approval for the release.

Closson said his office agreed releases may have to be disseminated verbally, but the public information officer then should be required to write a summary of the release for the records.

"I want to try to impress upon you that you must document your actions. You're responsible for life and property; you can't do it just on a verbal basis," he emphasized.

Closson also told the group that several details—pertaining mainly to evacuation shelters and recovery—are left out of the 50-page plan because the material is available elsewhere.

He said the county Crisis Relocation Host Plan should be used in conjunction with the flood and forest fire warning plan. He said the host plan includes information on shelters, traffic control, food sources and registration of evacuees.

"Why do it again?" he suggested. The host plan is a guideline for relocating persons from target areas to host areas during a nuclear attack threat.

Stressing the need for having a broad-based document, Closson related the plan to his experience with contingency plans in the military.

Referring to the direction and control segment of the plan he said, "This particular wheel... it's been my experience that every time you make a plan, you've got to build a new wheel. Hopefully, with this, you will not have to recreate a wheel with subsequent plans."

Closson will review suggested changes in the plan and rewrite it into a final draft to be presented to local officials.

Council vs. P&Z = pro planner?

The commission voiced approval of seeking professional guidance on the project, but it pressed for council's okay for a P&Z planning committee.

But councilman Benny Coulston argued, "If we start now with a committee of volunteer help, I don't think you can overcome five or 10 years of neglect."

Assistant village manager Frank Potter noted the 1976 draft involved a tremendous amount of time from professional consultants and P&Z. And, because the funding was cut off, he added, the plan still was not fully completed, which became a major cause for some of the poor planning Village attorney Lee Huckstep advocated a new master plan, and revised zoning and subdivision laws to complement it.

He said the "piecemeal approach" to planning is getting the village into severe trouble, and he recommended against a P&Z committee of planners, saying "You get what you pay for."

Huckstep said that because of huge gaps in the P&Z "Blue Book" of ordinances, the village has wound up with a "menage of uses" in several areas.

Councilman Don Dale concurred with the rest of the governing body that trained planners should be brought in. He also recommended that P&Z form a committee to dig up facts and figures for the experts to work with.

Potter sided with the idea, and stressed to the council there's "got to be some bucks forked out," for the duration of the rewrite.

P&Z member Mike Mulholland suggested the village contact the state chapter of the American Planning Association for help. A newspaper article Mulholland clipped noted the president of the state chapter has proposed to help small towns get professional help for planning.

Mayor George White agreed to contact the official about the program.

Following discussion on the article, Coulston suggested P&Z contact planning departments at New Mexico State University and the University of New Mexico and propose the idea of redoing the master plan as a student project.

After lengthy discussion of the alternatives, it appeared P&Z was not satisfied with the council's advice.

"The whole idea behind this thing is an attempt to get planning in an area which is not rhetoric but is action," said Schuller.

"There is nothing quite so demoralizing to a committee or to a group to be compromised in their efforts," he continued, and added he did not want a "cold towel" on the committee proposal.

But Dale said P&Z has the cart before the horse, and said he wanted the commission to devise cost estimates before the new budget is drawn up.

Huckstep explained why he thought an amateur planning committee is dangerous. He referred to a pending lawsuit in Albuquerque that was filed as the result of rezoning that did not comply with the city's master plan. "You just can't rezone against someone's will," he argued.

Alcorn said he did not want to be given excuses against the proposal, and noted he felt the idea is worth taking a chance, even if it makes the village susceptible to lawsuits.

Bickering continued on P&Z's recommendation, but the council did not acquiesce. The discussion ended with Mayor White advising the commission that "the absolute best approach" is for P&Z to work up estimates to be considered for next year's budget.

Before the meeting was adjourned, Mulholland presented a "flow chart" proposing a new way of introducing zoning ordinances. He asked the council to study the chart, and make suggestions to P&Z before the commission's next meeting.

Progress toward Downs 'horse ordinance'

by BARBY GRANT
Staff Writer

Ruidoso Downs residents and trustees at Thursday's town meeting worked out a probable solution to the unresolved proposed ordinance regulating livestock and fowl within the village limits.

A committee of residents had drawn up and presented an ordinance to the board of trustees in November, but trustees sent it back to committee for reworking. The board rejected the proposed ordinance as being too vague and therefore open to interpretation.

Trustees also complained that the public had not been given the opportunity to have input into wording of the ordinance. They insisted that two public meetings be held to amend that situation.

The main differences between the proposed ordinance and one already in effect were a change from 50 feet to five feet as the space required between housing for animals and adjacent property lines, regulations for the removal or treatment of manure.

Discussion at Thursday's meeting centered around whether horse owners should be required to remove manure from large areas or pastures. The proposed ordinance stipulated that "all manure shall be picked up daily from stalls and every two weeks from large areas" or treated so as not to attract flies or create a health hazard.

The ordinance now on the books reads, "all manure shall be removed daily from the Village or shall be stored in fly-tight containers." Trustees Harold Mansell and Bob Power told residents that the intent of the ordinance, however, was to require manure to be picked up only from small areas.

Mansell indicated that it was assumed waste would not need to be cleared from pastures because it "would go back to nature, and you wouldn't have a mess."

Power indicated that he would vote to approve the ordinance if it just stipulated that all areas with horses are to be kept clean enough so neighbors will not complain. It was agreed, however, that such wording would be too vague and leave the regulations open to interpretation.

It was finally agreed that the ordinance should require horse owners to clean up after their animals if the animals are kept in a stall or small area, but not if they roam on at least one-eighth acre of land, unless manure piles up in a small area.

Also discussed was the requirement in the proposed ordinance for any shed, shelter or housing for animals to be at least five feet from the adjacent property line. The present ordinance stipulates that there must be at least 50 feet between a shed or shelter for animals and any dwelling, place of business or street.

Enforcement of that requirement a few months ago is what led to the committee of residents being formed to rewrite the ordinance. Many horse owners in Ruidoso Downs own property which is only 50 feet by 100 feet, it was reported, and find it impossible to keep their horse 50 feet from any other property.

The committee changed the stipulation to five feet, pointing out that this was in accordance with planning and zoning setback requirements for buildings. Trustees questioned whether the setback requirement is five feet or seven-and-a-half feet, finally determining that it depends upon the type of building.

Also mentioned Thursday was the possible need for exceptions to the rule that "the number of animals shall not exceed one animal per one-eighth acre of land..." Mansell pointed out that some horse owners may wish to place several horses on their property temporarily for breeding purposes. He suggested that residents may want to address that type of situation when making changes in the proposed ordinance.

Power stressed that residents should not be permitted to keep horses on 50-foot wide lots, however, saying there is not adequate space for them.

Power also reported that "I think 90 percent of the people who live in any town in New Mexico violate the (livestock) ordinance. The only time it's enforced is when there's a complaint from a neighbor."

Municipal Judge Fred Bernard stated that the ordinance has to be written "strictly for guidelines." Chief of Police Charles Robinson and Bernard both pointed out that they use common sense in issuing citations and deciding cases involving violation of municipal ordinances anyway.

Village residents decided they will meet again to revise the proposed ordinance where needed and return it to trustees for approval.

Devil Bill heads EMS Instructors' Council

by BILLY ALLSTETTER
Staff Writer

Devil Bill Adams, training coordinator for the Lincoln County Ambulance Service, was selected as chairman of the Emergency Medical Services Instructors' Council, Region III, at their first meeting in Albuquerque Thursday, January 6.

Adams, who is also director of the Sierra Blanca Ski Patrol, received his Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) certification in 1972, one of the first years of the program. He has been teaching EMT courses since 1973.

The instructors' council, consists of instructors of EMT courses around the state. Its purpose, according to Adams, is to provide the instructors, especially those from rural regions, the opportunity "to review and comment on policy, quality assurance and curriculum," of the Emergency Medical Services Academy in Albuquerque.

The Emergency Medical Services Academy is a branch of the University of New Mexico School of Medicine, which is responsible for instruction of medical personnel from EMTs through paramedics. The academy is also responsible for the teaching and instruction of EMT instructors.

Adams said the instructors' council is an effort by the academy to create an outreach program for the EMT community throughout the state.

"Quite frankly, the Academy can't reach a lot of people," said Adams. The Academy is based in Albuquerque and teaches only two-week intensive courses during the day. Many people are not free to take time away from school or work to attend those courses.

Many throughout the state take night courses from people like Adams and are subject to different limitations and requirements, said Adams. The instructors' council is an effort to make these differences known to the Academy.

EMTs are primarily ambulance drivers who are usually the first qualified medical personnel to arrive on the scene of an accident. Their job, explained Adams, is to assess the patient's condition, stabilize him and get him to a hospital as soon as possible.

There are many others in Lincoln county who are EMTs. All members of the Sierra Blanca Ski Patrol are trained EMTs. There are EMTs on the White Mountain Search and Rescue Team and local police and fire departments, and others who live and work in remote areas.

The EMT program was initiated in 1972 by Dunlop and Associates for the United States Department of Transportation. The idea behind the program was to have "trained emergency medical people out where the accidents occur," said Adams.

In a primarily rural state like New Mexico, Adams said, it is especially important to have a widely distributed network of EMTs who can reach and attend to an accident victim quickly when a hospital can be hours away.

Adams said that before the program began, there was usually only one driver with each ambulance. He was maybe trained in elementary first aid and carried no attendant with him. The driver "slammed the patient into the back of the ambulance" and drove to the hospital.

Ambulances today are equipped with a minimum of a driver and attendant, both trained EMTs, who assess and stabilize the patient before placing him in the ambulance.

Today, there are approximately 60 EMTs in Lincoln County, estimates Adams.

"We've got EMTs everywhere you can imagine," he said. "We're saving a hell of a lot of lives with the program."

Most of the EMTs have been taught by Adams, although he gives credit to Dr. David Rouleau, who began the EMT training program in Lincoln County.

"We were way ahead of the region," he said.

DEVIL BILL ADAMS, training coordinator for Lincoln County Ambulances and director of the Sierra Blanca Ski Patrol, has been named chairman of the newly created Emergency Medical Services Instructors' Council.

Local 4-H Club to organize

The Ruidoso 4-H Club will have its organizational meeting to enroll members and choose project areas this Tuesday, January 18, at 6:30 p.m. at First Presbyterian Church at Nob Hill.

The club was informally organized last summer and has been involved in several community service projects. Tuesday's meeting will be for the purpose of formally organizing and electing officers. Members will also decide what type of projects they would like to work on.

Club leader Robyn Garrett and county 4-H agent Rick Richardson will conduct the meeting. Richardson said the club also needs project leaders and encourages adults and teens with special interests who would like to work with 4-H to attend also.

The regular 4-H Club is open to young people ages nine to 19; seven- and eight-year-olds may join the booster program. Booster members may participate in all local activities but not in district or state competitions. Parents of all prospective members are invited to attend Tuesday's meeting.

Enrollment now open for college courses at First Baptist Church of Ruidoso Downs

Enrollment is now open for college credit courses at First Baptist Church of Ruidoso Downs, announced pastor Dale McCleskey.

The church was recently accredited as a branch of Wayland Baptist University of Plainview, Texas, and students may take this spring semester's two course offerings for credit from that institution.

The two courses are Old Testament Survey, taught by McCleskey, and New Testament Survey, taught by Jerry Mauldin. The classes, to run about 18 weeks, will meet Monday evenings from 7 to 9 at the church, starting January 17.

Cost is $25 to audit either course; $35 to take a course for two hours credit from International Baptist Bible Institute; $60 to take a course for two hours credit from Wayland Baptist University.

McCleskey said the church is authorized to offer up to 72 hours of coursework as a branch of Wayland Baptist. The potential exists for the program growing into a community college for the area, he noted.

Further information is available by calling the church at 378-4611 or 378-4628.

Big men impress as Warriors lose to Truth or Consequences

Around Sports

with Gary Brown

by GARY BROWN
Sports Writer

Despite an excellent effort from its front line, the Ruidoso High School boys varsity basketball team lost to Truth or Consequences High School by a 61-39 decision Saturday night in a district 3-AAA contest on the winners' court.

Ruidoso started the game with a four-corner offense against the Tigers and stalled for the first minute-and-a-half. Truth or Consequences scored after a turnover but freshman Danny Ullmann of Ruidoso scored soon after to tie the game at 2-2. The Warriors made several mistakes during the rest of the first quarter and the hosts led 13-2 at the period break.

Ruidoso left its four-corner offense in the second quarter and began to dominate the boards as Ullmann, junior Curtis Palmer and sophomore Stanley Sluder played excellent ball under the basket.

But Truth or Consequences continued to take advantage of Warrior miscues and missed free throws and took a 34-16 lead in the locker room at halftime.

The Warriors outscored the Tigers 12-8 in the third period to trail 42-28 at the quarter break.

Ruidoso moved to within 12 points early in the final quarter but Palmer then fouled out and Ruidoso lost part of its rebounding strength. Grady Williamson and Gilbert Rivera were playing with their fourth fouls and the Warriors had to be careful not to foul.

Truth or Consequences raised its edge to the final 22-point margin as it made 10 foul shots in the final period as the Warriors played with reserves in the last minutes.

Ullmann played his best game of the season, scoring 15 points and grabbing 12 rebounds. Palmer added eight points and 11 rebounds, while Sluder scored four points and grabbed nine rebounds.

"It was definitely Dan's best game of the season," Warrior head coach Ron Geyer said. "We got real good play from our big men and we controlled the boards after the first quarter."

"We played much better than we did against Capitan (also a 61-39 loss Friday night). We also shot well from the free throw line, making 63 percent of our shots. However, we missed some shots at important times, which hurt us."

Ruidoso, now 0-2 in district action and 0-10 on the overall season, will compete in the Dexter Tournament Thursday through Saturday.

Ruidoso will tangle with Dexter High School at 8 p.m. in the final game of the first round Thursday. Other teams in the tournament will include Capitan, Jal, Hatch, Hagerman, Weed and New Mexico Military Institute (NMMI).

Geyer was optimistic about his team playing better in the upcoming tournament.

"If we can get some more good play from our big guys and a good effort from our guards, I think we can stay with Dexter," he said.

Ruidoso lost to Dexter by a 48-31 score last month but the Warriors' front line has improved a lot since then.

The Warriors finished sixth in last year's Dexter Tournament, beating Weed and losing to Capitan and NMMI.

NMMI is rated as the favorite in this year's tournament. The Colts have a huge front line with one 6-7 player and one 6-6 athlete.

Warrior JVs rout Tigers

Getting a balanced attack with 11 players hitting the scoring column, the Ruidoso High School boys junior varsity basketball team rolled over Capitan High School by a 65-22 score Friday night on the losers' court.

The victory was Ruidoso's second of the season against seven losses and the Warriors were in command all the way.

Ruidoso took an 8-3 lead at the end of the first quarter and increased that in the second period to 22-10. The Warriors had a big height advantage inside with 6-3 Dan Ullmann and 6-3 Stanley Sluder dominating the boards and getting uncontested lay-ups.

Ruidoso blew the game wide open in the third quarter, outscoring the Tigers 19-5 for a 41-15 quarter break advantage.

In the final period, the Warriors outscored Capitan 24-6 for the final margin of victory.

Ullmann led the winners with 13 points and Sluder added 10. Kenny Espinosa and Curtis Pearson each had eight points while Capitan's junior varsity will have its next game at Cloudercroft High School the same day.

Sophomore Dewey Keller topped the Tiger scoring with nine points.

The Warrior junior varsity will resume action tonight at 7 with a home game against the Goddard High School junior varsity. Ruidoso will then be idle until the Friday, January 28, game at Roswell High School. Capitan's junior varsity will have its next game at Cloudercroft High School the same day.

Little League needs coaches

The Ruidoso-Sertoma Little League basketball program needs coaches and referees for its games.

The season will begin early next month and games will be played at White Mountain Middle School Monday, Tuesday and Thursday. There will be some clinics later this month.

Anyone wishing further information can call Roy Seay at Ruidoso State Bank at 257-4043.

The Ruidoso-Sertoma Little League basketball season schedule is near finalization despite several problems, according to coordinator Larry Montero. Hondo School basketball teams have been working out at White Mountain Middle School this season because of the fire which destroyed most of the Hondo School buildings last summer. Last season the Little League program was held at the middle school gymnasium, but because of Hondo's teams practicing there this season, the Little League players won't be able to start regular games until early February.

"We're planning to have six 90-minute clinics later this month at the middle school gym," Montero said. "They'll be from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. We can use the gym after 7 p.m. now because Hondo practices earlier, but we won't be able to start the actual games until early February when we can get in the gym before 7. We'll have three games a night Monday, Tuesday and Thursday during the season."

The league—which will begin its fifth season—had signups last week so everything's go for the season next month. After the clinics are held, teams will be selected and the season will begin.

Each team will play the other squads in the league one time apiece. After the regular season, there will be a league double-elimination tournament at the White Mountain gymnasium.

No games were scheduled for Wednesday because there are church and Cub Scout meetings that night and many of the youths are involved in those activities.

The league still needs coaches and referees to help with the clinic and the games.

Although the Little League program is getting a late start this year, it should still bring plenty of benefits for the youths involved in it.

Some of the players on the Ruidoso High School and White Mountain Middle School basketball teams this year got their competitive basketball starts in the Little League program.

It's really the only chance for youths in the Ruidoso area to play competitive basketball before they go to the middle school. The Little League program gives youths a chance to develop skills and learn what it's like to compete against other kids on a friendly basis.

Here's hoping the Little League program is a big success this season, despite all the problems it has had.

The National Basketball Association (NBA) can be divided into two groups of teams this season.

Philadelphia, Los Angeles and Boston are head and shoulders above the rest of the teams. The defending champion Lakers have gained control of the Western Conference Pacific Division while Philadelphia and the Celtics are dominating the Atlantic Division and the entire Eastern Conference.

This isn't a very good situation for a league which hasn't had a defending champion repeat since 1969, when Bill Russell was leading Boston to title after title.

The NBA prides itself on team balance and the theory that it's easy for a pro basketball team to go from the bottom to the top in a short span of time.

However, Los Angeles, Boston and Philadelphia have established mini-dynastys and it's unlikely that any team will come close to them in the playoffs this season.

Ruidoso girls hurt by mistakes in loss

Mistakes proved to be the downfall of the Ruidoso High School girls varsity basketball team as it fell to Truth or Consequences High School by a 48-43 score on the winner's court Saturday night in a district 3-AAA contest.

The Warriors—now 1-2 in district action and 4-4 overall—committed 19 turnovers in the second half, including three near the end of the contest.

Ruidoso was leading by four points with a minute-and-a-half left but threw the ball away three times and the Tigers took the victory.

"We just made the mistakes and missed some shots," said Warrior head coach Sergio Castanon. "We were just flat like we were in the Cloudercroft game. It was a bad game. I just couldn't get the girls up. I don't think the long trip had anything to do with it. The Warriors trailed 13-8 at the first quarter break and 21-20 at halftime. However, Ruidoso rallied in the third period to take a 33-31 lead into the final quarter.

Truth or Consequences got hot in the final period and outscored the Warriors 17-10 for the victory.

Kody Taylor led the Warrior scoring with 19 points but no other player hit double figures. Senior Claudia Brannum had six points while sophomore Stacy Ivy tallied five points. Sisters Sonja and Jackie Jefferson each scored four points.

The Warriors will host Tularosa High School in another district contest Tuesday night.

Ruidoso wrestlers defeat Colts 34-26

The Ruidoso High School wrestling team evened its season dual match record at 1-1 with a 34-26 victory over New Mexico Military Institute (NMMI) Saturday night in Roswell.

Ruidoso got victories from Randy Pierce, Gervase Peso and David Swalander plus a tie from Scott Ciraulo. The Warriors also got forfeit wins from Henry Rue, Chuck Schmidt and Chad Surmack.

Pierce took an easy 8-2 decision over the Colts' Chet Brown in the 119-pound class. Peso scored two points in the final period to take an 8-6 victory over Billy Joe Delce in the 138-pound division. Peso's points came on a penalty and an escape.

Swalander won the 145-pound class with an impressive 7-2 decision over Chris Caird, and Ciraulo tied Alfonso Vigil 1-1 in the 167-pound division.

Ruidoso freshman James Herrera performed well before losing to Paul Carbone 10-7 in the 155-pound match. Herrera led going into the final period.

Zack Swalander lost a 9-3 decision to Gary Jackson in the 132-pound division, and Gary Burgess of Ruidoso was pinned by Mike Cunningham in the 185-pound class.

In junior varsity matches, Manuel Montano of Ruidoso was pinned by Kimball Hewitt in the 132-pound division, and Kevin Jameson lost a tight 7-5 decision to Ken Dominguez of NMMI in the 145-pound class. The Colts only had two junior varsity wrestlers.

Warrior head coach Gerald Ames was pleased with his team's victory.

"I was real pleased with the way the guys wrestled," he said. "They're very tough in the heavier weights and our guys did a good job overall. Ciraulo has always had a tough time against the guy he wrestled but he earned his point while the other guy (Vigil) got his point on a penalty call."

"James Herrera also did a really good job. He was leading going into the final period and he'll continue to get better. The best thing about the way our guys worked tonight was the fact they didn't stall. At a place like Los Lunas, they'll call you for stalling a lot."

The Warriors will compete in the Carlsbad Tournament Friday and Saturday, January 21-22.

Chavez to compete in indoor track meet

by GARY BROWN
Sports Writer

Ruidoso High School girls volleyball and boys junior varsity basketball coach Elmer Chavez will compete in a one-mile walking race in the Albuquerque Jaycee Invitational indoor track meet at Tingley Coliseum Saturday, January 22.

Chavez, who won state Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) age-group walking championships three times as a teenager, plans to use the race as a warmup for more races this summer. "This is just a warmup," he said. "In the summer, I plan to train and race more seriously."

Chavez puts in about 65 to 70 miles a week of running and walking. The 24-year-old Warrior coach has been walking and running competitively since he was 13 years old. He was a serious candidate for the 1980 United States Summer Olympics team before this country pulled out of the competition.

The Warrior coach made All-American in the 20-kilometer walk while a student at Lubbock Christian College in Texas.

Chavez has a good deal of experience in track, as he coached the Grants High School girls track team for two years before coming to Ruidoso last fall. He will be the assistant coach of the Warrior girls track team this spring.

Some of the better walkers in the Southwest are expected to compete in the one-mile walk race at Albuquerque.

Capitan hoopsters defeat Warriors

The Capitan High School boys varsity basketball team used a strong inside game to defeat Lincoln County rival Ruidoso High School 61-59 in a non-district game Friday night at the Tiger gymnasium.

The game was close in the first quarter as the teams traded baskets almost evenly. The score was tied four times in the period before the Tigers took a 20-16 edge at the quarter break.

Capitan gradually pulled away from the young Warriors in the second period as Grady Lee Eldridge and Danny Cummins dominated action under the boards. Eldridge hit two free throws to give the Tigers a 24-18 lead two minutes into the period, but Grady Williamson of Ruidoso came back with a short jumper to close the gap to 24-20.

However, Capitan outscored the Warriors 6-1 the remainder of the period to take a 30-21 advantage into the locker room at halftime.

The two teams fought to a virtual standstill in the third quarter as Capitan outscored the Warriors 13-12 for a 43-33 advantage entering the final period.

Buckets by Cummins, Eldridge and Todd Proctor gave the Tigers a 49-33 edge early in the final quarter and they breezed the rest of the way.

Proctor led the Tiger scoring with 18 points, while Eldridge and Cummins each scored 14. Eldridge picked off 12 rebounds and Eddie Davis grabbed nine.

Mescalero to host tourney

The first Six Foot and Under All-Indian Men's Basketball Tournament will be held at the Mescalero Community Center gymnasium Friday, Saturday and Sunday, January 28-30.

Williamson and H. R. Lueras each scored seven points for the Warriors. Freshman Danny Ullmann added six points while junior Curtis Palmer led the Ruidoso rebounders with five grabs.

Capitan head coach Kendall Lewis felt his team played well in its victory.

"It was probably our best game of the year," he said. "We had four bad games on offense before this game, but we played well on both offense and defense this time. Our guys really did well inside."

"I realize Ruidoso has a young team and I hope they don't get down on themselves."

Ruidoso head coach Ron Geyer had praise for the Tigers. "They just outplayed and outthusted us," he said.

Both teams will compete in the Dexter Tournament Thursday through Saturday. Capitan will open Thursday with a 2:30 p.m. game against Jal High School, while the Warriors will tangle with Dexter High School in the first-round finale at 8 p.m.

Vandalism strikes middle school field

by GARY BROWN
Sports Writer

Vandalism has reared its ugly head at White Mountain Middle School, spoiling a lot of hard work by students, teachers and Ruidoso residents.

Two baseball backstops were extensively damaged by vandals last weekend and one of them will have to be completely replaced.

"Someone, probably Sunday night, drove out on the field and apparently tried to pull the backstops out with a large chain," said White Mountain head football coach Terry Wharton. "One of them had its foundations pulled out and will have to be replaced. The other one—a double backstop—suffered some damage but can be fixed. I believe it was done Sunday night because I was at the school for a while Saturday evening and also for a time Sunday and I didn't notice anything wrong."

The backstops were built by students, teachers and residents in the spring of 1980 and have been used for baseball and softball games.

Wharton and White Mountain principal Textie Cole believe the person or persons who did the damage used a pickup truck or some other large vehicle.

"You can tell by the track the vehicle left it was something like that," Wharton said. "There are tracks all over the field and the person's windshield was torn out in the process. It's still on the field."

Cole feels there isn't any way the damage could have been done by accident. "The backstops are too far from the road for anyone to accidentally drive off and hit them," she said. "It's probably a case of pure vandalism."

The backstops are located about 150 yards from the road leading to the middle school.

Wharton thinks it will be fairly expensive to replace the backstops.

"People volunteered to do the labor when the backstops were built so the cost wasn't that much, around $600 apiece," he remarked. "I think it will cost around $1,000 to have the one backstop replaced and another $200 to $300 to repair the other one."

The middle school is one of the main recreational facilities for Ruidoso sports.

Warrior fresh splits a pair

The Ruidoso High School boys freshman basketball team got ready for its home game with the Goddard High School freshmen tonight with a fine come-from-behind 51-48 win over the Hondo School junior varsity Friday night in the Warrior gymnasium.

points and several other players scored four or more points.

In a game Thursday afternoon, the Warriors traveled to Tularosa High School and lost a tight 41-40 decision to the Wildcat freshmen.

Ruidoso—now 3-5 on the season—traded 22-11 at halftime but put on a full court press in the second half and scored 27 points in the third quarter.

Bigham led the Warriors with 12 points and Jeff Slatton added six points. Dix and Randy Reynolds each added six points.

Of Ruidoso's five losses this season, three were to powerful Truth or Consequences High School and the other two

"The guys just decided they wanted to play ball and came out and started shooting the ball," Warrior coach Thurman Sanchez said. "I'm really proud of them."

were by one point. The Warriors fell to Alamogordo High School by one point in an overtime game last month.

Tonight's game with Goddard will begin at 5:30 p.m. The Warriors-Goddard boys junior varsity walk race will follow.

Jason Bigham scored 21 points to lead the Ruidoso attack. Omar Dix added 17

HONORING THE POLICE. Ruidoso mayor George White (right) presents police chief Dick Swenor with a plaque praising the police department for its work helping the Ruidoso Wrestling and Athletic Program this winter. The award presentation was given at the program's final winter session Saturday in the Ruidoso High School gymnasium. About 40 youths were given certificates by the mayor for their participation in the program. The program held a car wash Sunday and earned $150 for the Crime Stoppers program.

Junior varsity girls nipped

The Ruidoso High School girls junior varsity basketball team lost a couple of close decisions over the weekend.

Ruidoso fell to the visiting Hondo School varsity by a 33-28 score Friday night, then lost at Truth or Consequences (T or C) High School 48-43 Saturday evening.

Against Hondo, Kerry Thomas scored 11 points and Gia Rose 10 for the Warriors. Erratic passing hurt Ruidoso as it had many turnovers.

The Warriors played better against T or C Saturday, holding a slim 24-23 lead at halftime.

The game was close the rest of the way but the Tigers finally pulled the victory out in the last 30 seconds with some clutch free throws.

Rose led the Warrior scoring with 16 points and Thomas added 13.

"They played the best they've ever played," said Warrior coach Nancy Holland of her athletes' game with T or C. "The game was close all the way."

Mountaintops top Los Alamos

by GARY BROWN
Sports Writer

The Ruidoso Gymnastics Academy (RGA) Mountaintops competition team scored an impressive 133.65 to 128.05 victory over Los Alamos Saturday afternoon at Los Alamos.

Amy Thornton continued to show why she is one of the top Class III gymnasts in the area as she won every event in the 11-and-under division for the Mountaintops.

Thornton scored an outstanding 9.0 on the balance beam and also had an excellent 35.0 all-around total.

Karen Gann qualified for the state meet with a 32.3 in all-around competition. Thus, all five members of the Mountaintops have qualified for the state meet.

Hillary Held of the Mountaintops was first in the 12-and-over balance beam with an 8.7 and first in the floor exercise with an 8.85 score.

Amy Richardson was second in the 11-and-under division with a 33.0 total in the all-around competition.

Daphne Duncan was unable to compete in the meet.

"I thought our team did outstanding in general," Mountaintops coach Tom Hart said. "We missed Daphne's talents but she couldn't come to the meet for personal reasons. This was probably our best performance of the season."

The Mountaintops will travel to Albuquerque Saturday, January 22, for a meet with the Gold Cup team.

WORKING OUT. Karen Gann of the Ruidoso Gymnastics Academy (RGA) Mountaintops competition team shows her talents on the uneven parallel bars in a recent practice.

Gann qualified for the state Class III meet by scoring a 32.3 in all-around competition against Los Alamos Saturday.

BALANCING ACT. Hillary Held of the Ruidoso Gymnastics Academy (RGA) Mountaintops competition team works on the balance beam during practice. Held has qualified for the state meet and is a good performer in every event.

Local boxers lose decisions

Las Piedras Boxing Team (LPBT) boxers David Ordorica and Kevin Jefferson lost close decisions in a tournament in Roswell Saturday night.

Both athletes lost 3-2 decisions. Ordorica's loss was especially frustrating for coach Lucky Mulqueen.

"David had him the entire bout," Mulqueen said. "The other guy didn't take a step forward during the match. Both decisions were judgement calls."

The LPBT will host the Elks Invitational Saturday, February 19, at the Elks Club. The competition will begin at 7 p.m. Admission will be $3 for adults and $1.50 for youths. There will also be a concession stand.

The invitational was originally scheduled for Saturday, February 12, but was put back a week because the state championships are that weekend.

The Dreamer

BY DANNIE STORM

Sunny Days Of Early Winter
Seeming to resent his early blasts of cold weather and deep snow, Jack Frost has let up here in mid-January with one sunny day after another.

On the morning of January fourteen (today, as I send you this message) the sun rose over Sunrise Mountain, peeking through the Pinon Tops, turning them into vibrating trees of golden fire—and then sending rainbow shafts from its round golden face, as it looked down upon a valley so quiet and so still that you could hear the sounds of the water flowing over rocks down where the river ran among the leafless Walnut, Oak, Wild Cherry, and Box Elder trees.

At this distance (at the house) and with so many tree sound barriers between, the only time you can hear the river (generally speaking) is when it is running in flood. With nothing but the river's whispered lullaby to be heard, the mountain morning spoke more eloquently in its silent language.

The motionless Cedar and Pinon trees welcomed the morning sun, glowing in their winter colors of Christmas green and soft emerald touched with gold. All the long shadows on the golden meadows were of deep and light shades of lilac and purple, and the patches of snow on the shady side of the world glistened and gleamed in the early sunlight.

The sun, shining upon the little low islands of snow, sent a sweet flavor into the air. I was reminded of something our Uncle Jerome once said of the early morning air on the desert, that it tasted like vanilla ice cream.

The Undying Love Of Our Dog Friends
Several years ago, I forget now, around 1975 I used to have a trash pile in a deep gully north west of the house.

It was a year of deep snow, and just before Christmas my friend of many years, Elfege Polaco, and I were over wading through the snow, looking for Christmas trees. Elfege held up his finger for silence, and then said:

"Parece que oigo alguien llorando" (It seems I hear someone crying.)

Over at the trash pile was a mother dog and six small puppies "llorando". The mother dog had made a home for herself and family under a piece of old rug.

"See there," said Elfege. "Mi Tata Dios has brought you here so that you can take care of these poor little dogs. Just look at them. Poor little things. Poor little things. (Fobrecitos, Fobrecitos.)"

And with that this stalwart man who fears not the devil himself, burst into tears.

One of the most picturesque of the many quaint idioms of the Hispanic people of Lincoln County is their expression "Mi Tata Dios" which means My Granddaddy, God.

This term is in part an outgrowth of the Hispanic people's love and reverence for their elders.

Every day I went up and fed this little family, and became daily more fond of them, and also more fully conscious of my promise to Mi Tata Dios.

As the snow began to melt, the little pups began to get the "wandering blues", one in particular. I would find him way down on the highway right-of-way. At the sight, my heart would come into my mouth and I would take him back, encountering his brothers and sisters in all stages of arriving at the road.

A Very Good Side Of Human Nature

One by one I was able to give the little dogs away, and came to know a very good side of human nature. Folks would say, "I can't afford a dog. And I have no place to keep one. And I already have a dog."

But after holding the little fellow a while, they would break down.

"All right then, he is so cute. Well I will have to take him all the way to Lubbock, but he has won me over."

I found homes for all the puppies, but it was in finding a home for the mother I came near suffering a nervous breakdown.

Finally in front of the Hollywood Food Mart I met Mrs. Bea Adams, and with the black mother dog in arms, made the sales pitch of my life. This dog was kind, faithful, intelligent, gentle and would fill a longing spot in her life.

Bea shook her head, stating her limited means of making a home for a dog at her trailer house in the trailer park. And then the velvet brown eyes of the dog met the sky-blue eyes of Bea and it was love at first sight.

Through the years, every time I met Bea I would ask about the dog, until the time came when she would answer without my asking, saying that it was a most loving and faithful companion.

A few days ago, I met Bea in front of Hollywood Food Mart on her way home, and she began to speak, and broke down. After several attempts she told me in broken words that her dog, Nancy had left her, that she had become very ill, and Dr. Willard did everything to try to save her.

I told Bea of the time that Shady left me, and that the little Coyote Collie, my inseparable companion for fourteen years, often comes to visit me from the spirit world when I need him most. That she had made a most happy home for a loving companion, and that as John Greenleaf Whittier says in his poem "Snowbound"

"Love can never lose its own". So this is an opportunity to say that Bea Adams is a noble, compassionate, thoroughly admirable Christian Lady, and a valuable friend.

Yours and Ours

Inside The Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE—What's new with organized crime in New Mexico?

Very little. Even to talk about "organized" crime in our state, you have to define things carefully.

The Governor's Organized Crime Prevention Commission has developed its own meaning of that word.

To the ordinary citizen, "organized" crime probably means something having to do with the Mafia, or Cosa Nostra, or The Syndicate, or whatever the people who write the lurid books and magazine articles are calling it this month.

It would appear to be true that there is some sort of organized crime in this country, of a sort operations like the Federal Bureau of Investigation wouldn't admit existed for many years. (They were too busy infiltrating Communist cells and other relatively impotent groupings.)

Does that kind of organized crime operate in New Mexico?

Is Mora threatened by it? Has it infiltrated Bloomfield, Loving and Floyd? Not really.

Hence the definition developed by the Governor's operation in this area: Whenever two or more people get together to commit a crime, that's "organized."

If they didn't have that definition, how would they find anything to oppose?

If the Mafia is anywhere in New Mexico, it might conceivably be in Albuquerque, where the stakes are now large enough to interest the lowest ranks of the criminal brethren who cannot make it anywhere else.

Does the state need to mount a full-fledged campaign just to protect Albuquerque?

And does the campaign it presently has even do that?

Those of us who remember the day the man who ran this operation was sitting in a bar in full disguise when someone who knew him well came in and said, "Oh, hi, Sam," are inclined to wonder about its efficacy.

Cops like to be mysterious, just as everyone else does.

But what has this "mysterious" group accomplished?

There are suggestions that it has leaked material to the Albuquerque Journal, if that is an accomplishment.

It is sometimes mentioned by high-ranking officials as an example of our vigilance against crime. (Governor Toney Anaya: "All those named to Cabinet posts will be investigated by the Crime Commission or an equivalent.") Ask him to show you the results of these investigations; it is highly likely they did not take place. If they did, they probably consisted of going through the agency's files to see what clippings about these appointees were contained there. Where would such clippings come from? Why, from the Albuquerque Journal, of course.)

A true investigation of Anaya appointees would cost somewhere between $1,500 and $1,800 apiece.

Do you think that much money from the transition budget was spent for that purpose?

No. The real purpose of the Governor's Organized Crime Prevention Commission is not to accomplish anything but to make the citizens feel good as they drop off to sleep at night.

Why not abolish it to save money, without telling people it is no longer there?

Let's see if anybody notices the difference.

Letters to the Editor

DEAR EDITOR

I have just returned from a meeting, "COMMISSIONERS UPDATE", held in Albuquerque on January 5 and 6, and put on by the New Mexico Association of Counties. A day-and-a-half was devoted to telling new commissioners of their responsibilities as members of the governing body of the county. In short, much of what we must do is mandated by law, not only what we must do but also when we must do it. Much time was spent telling us what we cannot do. It seems that everyone has rights which we are obliged to honor without fail. Indeed our constituents have their rights as do employees, and most certainly prisoners have their rights. I came home wondering if there really is a way for us to function completely legally. The open Meetings Law, the Civil Rights Law, the Prisoners Rights Law to mention a few. Some of the decisions that our judges are handing down as a result of these laws are terrible. It makes one wonder "Why did I ever get into this job?" On the other hand one cannot better the situation by quitting. I am more determined to stay with it and do the very best I know how. We all need to talk to our legislators and voice our concerns about the effect some of these laws are having. I expect to continue working through the Association of Counties to try to effect some changes as they lobby the State Legislators before and during the coming sessions.

John A Hightower
 Lincoln County Commissioner

Clipped Comment

FREE SPEECH CURB

If those who cherish the First Amendment guarantees of free speech and a free press are feeling battered about the ears lately, they have good reason for that. We are in an era of insistent government efforts to curb and/or manipulate those freedoms.

Most recently, personnel of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration have been ordered not to "provide information to any member of the news media concerning OSHA-related matters (unless expressly authorized to do so)" by the agency's chief legal officer.

It is one more effort to limit what we can know about workings of our government. Alamogordo Daily News

DEAR MR. PRESIDENT,

Something has got to give. The massive budget deficits that are looming on the horizon frighten me. I am frightened by the Soviets, also, but I fear the budget deficits, in these proportions, even more.

America is challenged both from within and without. She always has been. It seems to me, Mr. President, in evaluating our current condition, that we must determine which is our most "clear and present danger."

While acknowledging — even emphasizing — the need to maintain a defense system capable of dealing with the threat of armed aggression by Soviets and others, it appears to me, Mr. President, that the disintegration of our economic system, and a large part of our American society along with it, is the greater present threat. I fear, Mr. President, that a deficit of $300, $200, or even $100 billion would pose such a threat. As I say, Mr. President, I'm scared about the prospect. — Lovington Daily Leader

ECONOMIZE

In my estimation, 1983 can be the start of long-lasting good times. It won't be easy. A lot of people are hurt economically and will continue to be. If we will face the fact that we have overspent for 50 years and really try to economize we can make great improvements.

Since the 1930s we have overspent and depended on the federal government to be the "Rich Uncle" for all of us. That is not the way it works. The federal government can only give a part of what they take from us. Government never creates wealth. IT consumes wealth.

When we complain about the federal deficit we are complaining about the symptom and ignoring the cause. Every state, county, city, school district and many individuals have been asking for a handout. The politicians in Washington want to please their constituents by giving them what they ask for. That is how they get re-elected. It is a matter of survival for them.

If the people in this great land will decide to be self-sufficient and quit asking for handouts, things would improve in a hurry. — The Chandler Arizonan

Editorial

The Ruidoso Lodgers Association deserves some answers as it seeks to learn which local lodging establishments are not paying the two percent lodgers' tax.

It has been suspected for some time that not all establishments required by law to collect the tax and turn it over to the Village of Ruidoso are doing so.

Village councilman Al Junge last year attempted to rectify the problem by inviting all non-participating establishments to step forward and add their names to the tax rolls.

Very few, if any, complied.

Now the Lodgers Association is raising the issue again. The group has turned to the village in an effort to find out which lodges are signed up to pay.

The village clerk is prevented by state statute from revealing "any information contained in the return of any taxpayer," so he is understandably reluctant to divulge the names of paying establishments.

But in its position as lodgers' tax collector, the village should cooperate fully with the Lodgers Association in its efforts to identify the deadbeats. This could be done by having the village attorney ask the District Court for a ruling on release of the names (and only the names) of those places that are paying.

Those establishments which are evading the tax are getting a free ride and should not be allowed to get away with it.—TP

On the Village beat with Tim Palmer

Do you have the feeling lately that lots of people are clamoring for your money? There is an advertising blitz on for the saver's dollar. Banks and savings and loan associations are using newspapers, radio and TV to encourage savers to move their money into new types of accounts.

Among the three local banks, Security Bank has been very visible in promoting its "HIYA" account. That's the one with Lloyd Bridges in the ad.

I talked with Wayne Rogers, president of Security Bank, about the push for depositors.

Its purpose, he told me, is to attract funds that left banks and savings and loan associations in recent years and went into money market funds like Merrill Lynch and Shearson American Express.

A shift back into banks and S&Ls is intended to make more money readily available to borrowers, and hopefully to get the economy moving again, Rogers added.

Tight credit brought on by a decrease in the amount of money available to loan in local communities has an adverse effect on local economies, Wayne pointed out.

The appeal to savers of putting money into a bank or savings and loan, he noted, is that the money is insured by the federal government.

Within a few months of President Reagan's signing of the Garn-St. Germain Act October 15, banks were allowed to offer two new types of accounts, and the race to attract depositors escalated.

The first was the so-called "Money Market Account," which became available December 14. This account requires a minimum deposit of $2,500. It earns a high interest rate, but unlike certificates of deposit, does not require the money to be left in the account for a certain period of time.

Another characteristic of this account is that the depositor can make up to six withdrawals per statement cycle, with no service charge.

In January, banks began offering Super NOW accounts. These are high interest-earning checking accounts, also with a $2,500 minimum balance.

However, they do carry a service charge per check. Right now, the two types of accounts (both called "HIYA" accounts at Security) pay the same rate of interest. But the rate on the checking account is expected to drop everywhere after the initial promotional period.

"If I were a depositor with enough funds to maintain both, I'd look seriously at maintaining a traditional minimum balance checking account," Wayne said.

This combination—money market account and regular checking account—allows the saver to take advantage of the high interest and liquidity of the money market account while paying no more than before for checking.

Wayne indicated that response to the new accounts has been greater in the "money centers"—big cities where a lot of financial activity is centered—than in small towns. The small communities, which he believes have savers who are more loyal to local institutions and more cognizant of the insurance factor, possibly didn't lose as much money to Merrill Lynch and the others to begin with.

"I think the small town banks will witness more internal transfers," said Wayne. He noted that transfer of funds from one type of account to another within the same bank drives the bank's costs up. But competition from without motivates a bank to push the new accounts.

Banks nowadays have to be more sophisticated and wiser in the way they use money, Wayne told me, echoing a sentiment I had heard from another banker.

He explained that with more profits now going to the saver, the banks themselves have to look for ways to cut costs.

Generally, Wayne told me, a bank needs a five percent spread between the interest it pays on money and the interest borrowers pay to it, to do "just an average job of being profitable."

He informed me that the traditional place for banks to borrow money is from depositors.

"In the truest sense, a deposit is nothing more than a loan to the bank," he said. And about 99 percent of Security Bank's funds come from that source, "John Q. Public—the depositor."

With 14 different "instruments of deposit" at his disposal, the banker must tailor the account to the customer's needs in much the same way as he would tailor a loan to the customer's needs.

"We sit down and interview a depositor and try to find out what they're looking for, and match the deposit to their needs," said Wayne.

Though Security Bank does not yet offer anything as diverse as discount stock brokerage service for customers, Rogers believes the day may not be far away. When demand picks up, he predicts, banks will react.

Wayne quoted Dickens when I asked him what it's like to be a banker in this day and age—calling them the best of times and the worst of times.

"You really have to work harder at making a bank work these days than you ever had to before," he said. But the variety of opportunities makes the work exciting.

And what role does Wayne Rogers see Security Bank playing in the future of Ruidoso, I wondered.

"Our emphasis in the future is going to be to assist the local economy," he said. "The more of the savers' dollars can be retained locally, the better job all the savings institutions should be able to do in aiding the local economy."

say thanks.

Thanks for books and pens and paper, thanks for wood to build our homes, for firewood to keep us cozy in them, thanks for violins and cellos and guitars. Trees give us a lot. Don't take them for granted. Please be careful. A tree will thank you.

Only you can prevent forest fires.

TAKE A BREAK
By Staff Of Ruidoso Travel

VISITING EGYPT
Egypt, with its ancient history and awesome pyramids, has always exerted a great fascination for travelers.

High season is our winter. Hotel space is limited, so it's advisable to book six to twelve months in advance. Package tours buy up blocks of hotel space, so you will have better luck finding a room when you want it by buying a package.

Egypt is one of the driest countries in the world, as well as one of the hottest. November to March are the most comfortable months. December and January are virtually the only time you will ever see rain, and even then, not much.

If you don't have time to tour the whole country, best bet is to spend at least a week based in Cairo. From here you can easily get to Giza for the Pyramids and the Sphinx; to the Museum of Antiquities and the Bazaar; to Memphis; and to Alexandria.

Bargaining is a fact of life in Egypt. Except for Government-owned facilities, hotels, and major department stores, you're expected to bargain down prices for goods, taxis etc. It's part of the fun.

Whether you're traveling around the corner or around the world, see us at Ruidoso Travel.

People throughout the state are saying HIYA!

The High-Interest Yield Accounts from Bank Securities.

It seems like more and more people are saying "HIYA!" lately.

That's because more and more people are opening High-Interest Yield Accounts from their Bank Securities hometown bank.

And now, there's two great ways to say "HIYA."

The HIYA Investment Account: Gives you the high interest of a money market account, with the safety of an insured savings account. Plus, you can write up to three checks a month without penalty.

The HIYA Checking Account: Gives you most of the benefits of the Investment Account—plus unlimited checking privileges.

So now you can earn money market rates with an account best suited for your needs.

Drop by your Bank Securities hometown bank today and say, "HIYA!" We'll set you up with a high-interest account that gives you more than a lot of interest.

LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE OF PROPERTY TAX REVISIONS/REQUIREMENTS
 Property which was valued in 1982 in this country by the county assessor is not required to be reported or revalued for 1983 or subsequent years, EXCEPT FOR:
 1. mobile homes,
 2. livestock, and
 3. land used for agricultural purposes

If, for any reason, your property was not valued last year and it is subject to valuation this year, you are required by law to report the value to the county assessor on forms provided either by mail or at the assessor's office. In addition, all non-governmental entities (property owners) which claim to be exempt from the property tax must report their property and claim their exemption for 1983.

Reports for mobile homes, livestock, land used for agricultural purposes, property not valued last year and claims for exemption by non-governmental entities must be completed and mailed or delivered to the county assessor not later than the last day of February. If you made improvements to your real property and:
 1. the improvements cost more than $1,000 and
 2. a building permit for the improvements was not issued, you must report the nature of the improvements and their cost to the assessor no later than the last day of February. These reports must be on forms provided by the assessor.

If you believe your property decreased in value during the preceding year, you must report, on forms provided by the assessor, a signed statement which:
 1. describes the property affected,
 2. states the amount you believe the value has decreased,
 This statement must be filed with the assessor not later than the last day of February.
 If the veteran's exemption was claimed and allowed in 1982, no new claim for that exemption is required to be filed. However, if that exemption was not claimed and allowed in 1982 and it is now claimed, claim must be made by the last day of February by filing with the assessor the form provided by the assessor.

If the head-of-family exemption was claimed and allowed in 1982, no new claim for that exemption is required to be filed. However, if that exemption was not claimed and allowed in 1982 and it is now claimed, claim must be made by the last day of February by filing with the assessor the form provided by the assessor. Beginning in the 1983 tax year, taxpayers are responsible for declaring their property classification to the assessor as residential or nonresidential. When the declaration is accepted by the assessor, it shall remain as such and need not be made in subsequent years unless the classification changes. If a taxpayer has not declared their property to be residential in 1982 and desires that classification for 1983, they must complete a declaration of residential classification and return the signed declaration to the county assessor's office by the last day of February, 1983.

Certain mineral property and personal property of contractors operating in more than one county are required to be reported to the Taxation and Revenue Department, Property Tax Division, Office of New Mexico in Santa Fe. Information about property to be reported to the Taxation and Revenue Department, Property Tax Division can be obtained from the county assessor or the Taxation and Revenue Department, Property Tax Division, Central Assessment Bureau, P.O. Box 33, Santa Fe, New Mexico 87508. Phone: (505) 998-2290, Extension 540. TOOTSIE from Columbia Pictures. Directed by Sydney Pollack, screenplay by Larry Gelbart and Murray Schisgal. Starring Dustin Hoffman, Jessica Lange, Terri Garr, Bill Murray. Rated "R." * * * * *

By J.T. YURKO

Winning the Academy Award for "Kramer vs. Kramer" is a tough act to follow, but then again Dustin Hoffman needed that performance to follow his other "tough act to follow roles" such as Ratso Rizzo in "Midnight Cowboy" or Benjamin in "The Graduate."

Hoffman's role as "Tootsie" however, will certainly garner him another Academy Award nomination at the least. But be prepared for all the jokes about whether he should be nominated for the "best actor" or "best actress" award.

Hoffman slips into drag here but the role is never a drag. "Tootsie" is intelligent, human and vastly entertaining. It's also one of the best films of the year.

Along with Hoffman's superb performance, everything goes right in this film. All the other performances are top-notch, especially those of Terri Garr and Jessica Lange. Dabney Coleman basically reprises his chauvinistic pig persona from "9 to 5," and veteran Charles Durning has the misfortune to fall for the charms of Dustin Hoffman in his female attire. Bill Murray's role is small but hysterical.

Hoffman is thrown into this peculiar situation because he cannot find work as a male actor. He plays a chronically unemployed actor who takes drastic action — dressing as a woman — to land a role on a soap opera. This situation presents some awkward moments in his personal as well as professional life.

Under the capable hands of screenplay writers Murray Schisgal and Larry Gelbart, these awkward moments are not only funny but delightfully perceptive about the relationships of men and women.

Gelbart's name should be familiar to you. Along with writing such shows as "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," Gelbart has penned 97 episodes of "M*A*S*H." With talent such as that, the light touch of director Sydney Pollack, and Hoffman's remarkable performance, "Tootsie" is a must-see film.

SOUND COUNTRY

MCA Records has pulled another winner off the current Don Williams album with his current single, "If Hollywood Don't Need You."

This is another Bob McDill song that's as smooth as red-eye gravy and will no doubt be just as strong.

Don Williams

Monument Records has created a new duo team, bound to be an instant hit. The label, which had been dormant for many years, was recently reactivated with the release of some tracks that had been in its vault.

The most potent offering is the Dolly Parton-Willie Nelson duet, "Everything's Beautiful In Its Own Way." It's a Parton-penned song and jugging from the success of Dolly and Willie's records, this one looks like a sure top-10 smash.

If you think you've heard the current Leon Everette single before, you probably have. "In the Shadows of My Mind" was a minor hit in 1975 for Vortton Oxford.

Crystal Gayle kicked off 1983 with a major tour with Kenny Rogers.

The pair previously toured together in spring 1981 and teamed for three nights at the grand opening of the Irvine Meadows Amphitheater near Los Angeles later that summer.

In addition to touring with Rogers in January and March, Miss Gayle will perform several concerts of her own.

One of those takes place Feb. 28 at Jones Hall in Houston, where she'll join Liza Minnelli, Ann-Margret, Margie Hames and the Houston Symphony Orchestra in a benefit concert for the Stehlin Foundation for Cancer Research. The event is billed as "A Million Dollar Evening" and concert tickets are priced at $500 each.

The other main event on Crystal's calendar is the annual Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo set for Mar. 3 at the Astrodome. Her shows there in February 1981 broke two attendance records, including one previously held by Elvis Presley.

TV Nostalgia

By Marie Landiorio

The longest-running animated series in prime-time history was the Hanna-Barbera production "The Flintstones," a parody of modern suburban lifestyles set in the Stone Age.

The characters in the cartoon series all behaved and spoke in a contemporary manner, though they lived in the prehistoric city of Bedrock. Despite the rocky surroundings, there were many "modern" conveniences in their split-level caves, such as a vacuum cleaner (a baby elephant with a long trunk) and a garbage disposal (a famished buzzard stashed under the sink).

"The Flintstones" was always as much adult satire as children's fun. In many ways it resembled Jackie Gleason's popular program "The Honeymooners," especially in the relationships between the principal characters. After running on prime time for six years, "The Flintstones" and its many spinoffs continued on Saturday morning well into the 1970s.

Question: "Can you name the two couples who were featured on 'The Flintstones'?"

Answer: Fred and Wilma Flintstone, Barney and Betty Rubble
