Mayor, manager optimistic about state of village

by TIM PALMER

Mayor George White and village manager Jim Hine indicated satisfaction with the current state of the Village of Ruidoso in interviews last week.

And both indicated the current slowdown can be a good thing for the village, as it will allow more time to plan for growth.

The mayor stated that general administration of the village is functioning very well.

"Administratively, I think we've done a fine job—and our staff has done a fine job," White said.

He pointed out, as an area of progress, the dedicated work of the various village boards and commissions. In particular, White cited the water study group, Planning and Zoning Commission, airport advisory board and cemetery board.

"I think that's what my role has been," said the mayor, "to the point that I've been able to select people willing to put the time and effort into working—saving legwork for city hall."

He also indicated pleasure with the performance of village employees, singling out Judy Franzer of the water billing department but adding that he could mention others.

"I think all the department heads are doing their jobs and doing them well," White said. Noting recent reports of an increase of crime in Ruidoso, the mayor said the rise was through no fault of the police department. "I think our police department does a wonderful job—really," he remarked.

White pointed out that the water board is doing everything it can to acquire more water for the village. He added that he is still a firm believer that no more property should be annexed to the village unless property owners bring their own water rights.

This policy is in force in other municipalities, he noted.

"As I look to the future, one of the big problems of our village is water—for the next 10 years," said Mayor White.

He also indicated a need for careful planning in the village.

"I always felt in my bones that with so much building, we're taking too much of our natural landscape and putting bricks and mortar on it," said White.

"I'm glad to see that the Planning and Zoning group is taking a good hard look at the community," he added. The mayor said he has always been an advocate of planned growth—"setting sections aside to maintain Mother Nature's beauty."

The mayor was asked if he feels good about the future of Ruidoso.

"I do," he replied. "I'm optimistic about the future."

"If and when our planning is actually executed to the point we can preserve some of these areas I'm talking about—yes, I'm optimistic. But we will have to have well-planned years ahead of us."

Village manager Jim Hine pointed to 1982 as a year in which the governing body approved budget requests for light and heavy equipment. He also mentioned the remodeling of the terminal building and installation of electronic equipment at the airport.

Also in 1982, he noted, Emergency Medical Services was taken over by the hospital. "I think that was one of the greater accomplishments," he said, adding that he has always felt the ambulance service should be operated by people in the medical profession.

Hine also mentioned that the governing body approved hiring of additional employees for all the major village departments in 1982.

"The public has been very kind and expressed confidence in approving the water bond and sewer bond issues," Hine said. He pointed out that the two issues total $10 million.

"It is the hope of me and the village council that we don't have to go back to the taxpayers for General Obligation tax money for several years," the village manager said.

Hine said he is looking forward to the next fiscal year, since most equipment and personnel needs for the village were taken care of in the year past.

He predicted the village council will look long and hard before spending any more money for equipment or capital outlay. A recent directive from the state requires the village to get approval from the Local Government Division before committing budget increases and changes, he added.

Hine indicated maintenance of roads and water and sewer distribution systems will continue to be stressed. The new wastewater treatment plant, which was completed in 1982, is working very well, he said.

"It's putting cleaner water back into the river than the water that's in the river," he said. "We're extremely pleased with the way that plant is functioning."

As always, Hine is monitoring the fiscal health of the village.

"We're watching closely our receipts," he said. He noted that January has been a slow month for building permits, and that that means fewer water and sewer connections and trash pickup customers.

Cigarette and gross receipts tax revenues have also been dropping, he added.

He noted that he checks with local retailers periodically to see how sales are going.

"I am not proud of the fact that Ruidoso has the highest gross receipts tax in the state of New Mexico," Hine said. But he accepts it, he added, because the voters said they wanted the services and voted the tax to pay for them.

The village manager said Ruidoso is the smallest municipality he knows of with "full service government."

Asked if he is proud of the services the village offers, he replied, "I really am."

"I'm not saying Ruidoso is looking for a hard time economically," Hine said. "What I'm saying is we're watching the national trend and the state trend so we don't get caught in an overspending situation."

"I look for the village to continue to grow, but at a slower pace."

Hine was asked if he sees that as a good thing for the village.

"Yes I do," he answered, "because it will assist us with our planning."

THE THRILL OF VICTORY. A joyful competitor in the New Mexico Special Olympic Winter Games hugs Special Olympics executive director Penny Zannes

Mentally handicapped athletes competed in cross-country and alpine skiing events, then received awards and celebrated with a "Victory Dance" during the Southern New Mexico Special Olympic Winter Games last Thursday.

Cross-country races took place during the morning in a wooded area at Eagle Creek Ski and Recreation Area. More than 40 skiers, of widely varying abilities, competed in 100-meter and one-kilometer races. An enthusiastic crowd of volunteer instructors, parents, and media personnel cheered and helped the athletes around the groomed trail.

While some competitors needed help, others raced around the course swiftly and skillfully. Skill level, however, seemed to have little to do with the amount of fun the athletes had.

"No matter how good they are, they all enjoy it anyway," said volunteer instructor Greg Waterman.

"It's something special they can feel real good about," said Linda Zimmerle, recreation coordinator at the New Mexico School for the Visually Handicapped.

The Sertoma Club, Ruidoso State Bank and Mike Callaghan paid for a lunch prepared by Incredible owner Tom Dorgan and served by a variety of volunteers.

Callaghan's contribution was illustrative of the enthusiasm and goodwill generated throughout the two-day event.

During the opening ceremonies Wednesday night, Nancy Radziewicz said she was telling a friend that she still had not raised enough money and food donations to cover the meal expenses for the Special Olympics when Callaghan stepped up and asked how much she needed. When she said she was about $60 short, Callaghan pulled out a $100 bill and handed it to Radziewicz, she said.

Eagle Creek owner Paul Southwick also talked about the goodwill that pervaded the Special Olympics.

"It's probably the most rewarding thing we do all year long," said Southwick. He explained that instead of working to make money as he does the rest of the year, he is operating just for goodwill during the few days of the Special Olympics.

The athletes competed in alpine events—downhill and giant slalom races—during the afternoon. With spectators, instructors and other athletes watching and cheering, more than 60 competitors skied the 100-meter course. Most of the afternoon 10 or more people stood at the finish line to cheer and congratulate each skier as he finished.

There were award ceremonies for cross-country and alpine skiing in the afternoon. Gold, silver and bronze medals were presented to athletes in numerous age categories.

Elliot Topper, education director at Fort Stanton Hospital and Training School, said the awards are his favorite part of the Special Olympics because it is such an emotional time.

Each medal winner had his opportunity to come to the front of the crowd and stand on the platform where he was presented with the medal and ribbon as everyone cheered his accomplishments.

Commercial parking regulations proposed

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

Traffic may flow a little smoother through midtown this summer if commercial parking regulations drafted by Ruidoso Police Chief Richard Swenor are put into effect.

Swenor proposed three options to the village council last week that would alleviate traffic jams caused by commercial deliveries who often must park in the driving lanes to reach businesses on Sudderth Drive.

Swenor undertook a study of the situation after councilman Al Junge suggested at a recent meeting that steps should be taken to prevent trucks from parking in the middle of the street.

Swenor said delivery trucks have never caused accidents while parked downtown, but they inconvenience motorists who become boxed in behind the trucks when traffic is heavy.

In a report to the council, Swenor wrote the first option for a solution would be to post crucial intersections or areas along Sudderth as designated commercial vehicle zones. He suggested the zoned areas be 100 feet long, which is five car lengths severely restrict long-haulers who cannot afford to waste time while waiting to park. Swenor said he approached the state Highway Department about posting the parking areas and received a verbal okay for the signs.

The chief also noted that other on-street parking areas in town should be posted as no parking zones because of limited space, poor visibility and other adverse road conditions.

Swenor said he has the authority to remedy highway parking problems that he feels endanger highway safety, but he chose only to make recommendations because merchants may want to provide input.

During the parking study, it was pointed out that fire safety measures for commercial fuel carries often are ignored, Swenor reported. He said fire prevention officer Ollie Cuddy will send a letter to fuel transporters reminding them of provisions in the Uniform Fire Code.

Swenor said that among other things, the code prohibits smoking during deliveries; requires drivers to stand by the truck when unloading; and requires deliveries to carry adequate fire extinguishers.

In a final recommendation, the chief stressed that future businesses should be required to have adequate off-street parking areas.

Councilman Junge said the governing body will seek comments from merchants before deciding which parking option is best.

Continental cuts costs after rate hike denied

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

Continental Telephone's Ruidoso office has cut back on employee overtime and vacations since an interim rate hike was denied in early January, said district customer services manager John Van Tussenbroek Friday. But the company has not had to lay off workers as he originally feared.

The State Corporation Commission denied the $1.3 million rate increase January 3 on grounds that the telephone company had not proven its need for the interim hike, while a larger, 94-percent permanent increase, is pending.

Van Tussenbroek said Friday the Ruidoso office, which employs 55, is operating in the red since the rate denial because the company is not generating enough revenue to offset costs.

The company can no longer depend on revenue from toll calls since the divestiture of the Bell System and must now generate its own operating income, Van Tussenbroek explained.

Thus the reason for both the interim rate request and a $3.76 million rate increase which would double local telephone charges, said Van Tussenbroek. The Corporation Commission will begin hearings on the permanent rate request March 14.

In conjunction with the hearing, the commission also plans to schedule public hearings on the quality of Continental's service. The hearings tentatively will be held in Ruidoso, Espanola and Truth or Consequences. Corporation Commission spokesman Bruce Campbell said the public forums will be scheduled sometime before May 10, the deadline by which the commission must issue an order on the case.

The mayor of Espanola twice has asked the Ruidoso village council to appropriate money to help pay for expert witnesses to testify against Continental's request at the commission hearing.

But both times, the Ruidoso council has turned down Espanola's request, indicating it does not want to be part of Espanola's intervention in the case.

Before the interim request was denied, the commission agreed to let Espanola, the state Attorney General and an Espanola resident intervene in the rate hearings.

In turning down the interim hike, commissioner John Elliot concurred with chairman Eric Serna that Continental had not proven a financial emergency while the overall hike is pending.

Elliot also said he would like the telephone company to offer measured service—charging by the call rather than a flat rate—in Ruidoso and Espanola, according to a news release.

Van Tussenbroek indicated that, with the new digital switching equipment in Ruidoso, measured service could be offered. He agreed the service would result in lower bills for customers who make fewer calls.

But Van Tussenbroek speculated that the service would not be a great benefit to the company, because it would cost the local office over $400,000 to convert the computer software.

The Ruidoso office also will have an open house in February so customers can view the new computer switching equipment, added Van Tussenbroek.

Committee seeks to protect mountain-town atmosphere of Ruidoso

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

What type of architectural character does Ruidoso have? Is it Southwestern adobe? Or Swiss mountain chalet? Or how about pioneer of the old American West?

Just a short drive through the heart of town will provide anyone the answer to all those questions. Ruidoso definitely has no unified architectural style.

"This town doesn't have a character. You've got a bunch of individuals here; they do their own thing." That description, coming from the head of the Ruidoso Architectural Plans Review Committee, seems to contradict the committee's purpose, which is to ensure buildings blend in with the environment.

But as chairman Mike Mulholland sees it, the town's architecture should reflect the makeup of the population, which is as diverse as the melange of facades on Ruidoso's main streets.

Then if buildings should mirror styles from all corners of the country—even the globe—why have a committee to review architectural designs?

Because, says Mulholland, who was the driving force in getting the building review board established in the mid-70s, if adjustments had not been made in the course of commercial building growth, the one thing that draws many tourists here could have been lost—Ruidoso's mountain village atmosphere.

"The idea originally was trying to protect the environmental feeling of the town—to promote a mountain-town atmosphere," recalled Mulholland. What Mulholland set out to protect is something he admits is mostly intangible and lends itself to various interpretations. Thus, attempting to select a single building motif that complements the Ruidoso atmosphere would be an impossible task, contends the committee chairman.

But there are certain qualities of the mountain village character that are easy to grasp, and it is those aspects which Mulholland set out to preserve.

First and foremost to be considered is the trees—especially the majestic, towering Ponderosas that loom over downtown parking lots and buildings. In fact, it was the disappearance of these natural landmarks on commercial building sites which became the spark that fired Mulholland.

Mulholland said before the review board organized, owners of commercial sites often indiscriminately felled all the trees on their property to facilitate construction and create parking space.

Mulholland and other residents had the foresight to predict that, if such practices went unabated, Ruidoso would have become an isolated, unattractive small town at the foot of Sierra Blanca.

Cut the trees and you sever the community from its surroundings.

After persisting for two years that controls had to be slapped onto commercial construction, Mulholland got his building review committee established in 1977.

The committee, whose membership fluctuates between three and five members, reviews construction and remodeling plans for all commercial structures.

Applicants for commercial building permits must receive approval from the Architectural Plans Review Committee before the permits will be issued.

The plans submitted to the board must include, among other things, building elevations, landscaping plans, parking lot dimensions, location of landmark trees and location of signs.

Some of what the board considers—like parking spaces and signs—is regulated by ordinances, noted Mulholland. But as far as design and landscaping, the board has little power and banks on salesmanship and persuasion to get compliance with its policies.

"A big problem is in aesthetics," the committee chairman said. "That's why we have people on the committee with design experience. We try to come up with an end result that is attractive."

One policy adhered to strictly by the committee concerns landmark trees. Mulholland said the board considers trees at least 32 inches in circumference near the base to be landmarks and worthy of saving.

The board has no power of law to back up its tree guidelines, but, Mulholland notes, most applicants are willing to preserve the larger trees which add to the monetary and aesthetic value of property.

When plans are brought in, the board sometimes hunkers down over the drawings for hours with applicants and suggests changes that may add to the appearance of the property.

Mulholland said the board has been successful in convincing many property owners to design their buildings and parking lots around the landmark trees.

Mulholland said another area besides trees in which the committee gets directly involved is selection of building materials.

In considering building facades, Mulholland said the primary judgement made by the committee is: "Does it look right in a mountain village?"

He said the group, now consisting of four members, will concur with just about any style, but it advises owners to use indigenous materials—being wood, rock, adobe or any masonry—on the exterior.

The suggestions by the committee allow for a wide range of exterior cover. But Mulholland said, "On the extreme end—we would not allow a steel building."

The committee chairman noted several steel buildings are erected in the village, but, so far, owners have agreed to hide the most visible portions of the buildings with wood or rock to make them more attrac-

ive. Again, the review board relies on the power of persuasion to achieve its goals. But as the community grows, competition in the market place also increases, which Mulholland says is a more powerful motivator in forcing merchants to dress up their businesses.

The competition and sophistication is particularly evident in the changing landscape of business signs.

"People used to spend $50 on a sign," Mulholland remembered, "but now they're spending $2,000. It's not because the committee says so but because others are doing it."

"We're getting much more sophisticated business people now, and the investment put into signs reflects that," he added.

The new sign ordinance approved last year regulates such things as size, location and lighting of signs, and Mulholland thinks it has been effective in cutting down some signs that did not conform to the "mountain village atmosphere."

All signs must receive a certificate of approval from the building department. Mulholland said the main problem the committee has with the ordinance is many merchants do not realize it exists or fail to understand its provisions and do not come before the architectural board for advice.

That complaint extends to any matter requiring the committee's approval, Mulholland added. He said many building permit applicants come to his committee with final plans that they find must be changed before the advisory board will okay the design.

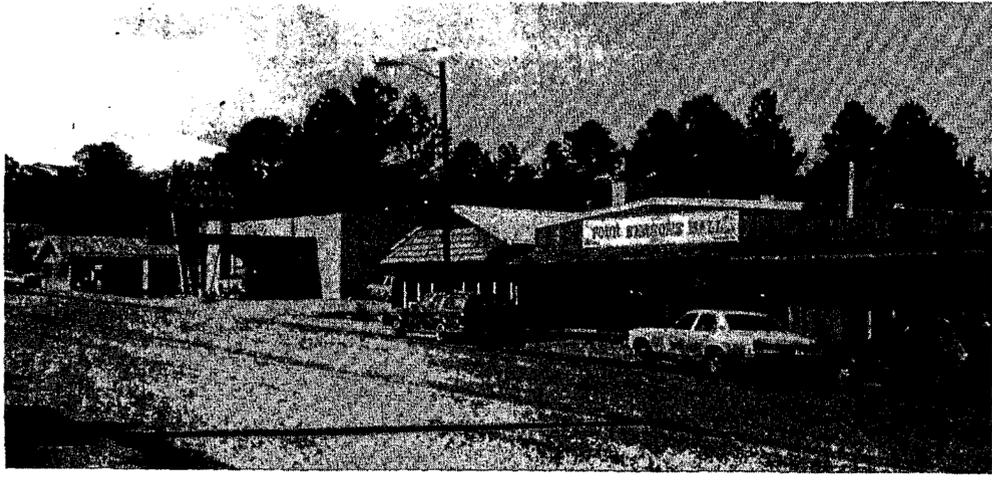

Mulholland said the committee encourages property owners to seek its advice during the preliminary planning stages when changes are easier to make.

Because of the increase in commercial building recently, Mulholland said the board has been forced to meet once a week. When it was originated six years ago, the board met only on call.

The Wednesday meetings, which Mulholland said are always open to the public, start at 1:30 p.m. and often last all afternoon.

In those long weekly sessions, the board is trying to preserve the mountain village atmosphere referred to so often by the chairman. It is a phrase he finds hard to describe, but its meaning is one he readily understands.

"Many people don't realize the influence of the committee on buildings. But it's definitely there," he concluded.

ARCHITECTURAL STYLES ABOUND in the midtown commercial district of Ruidoso. The Architectural Plans Review Committee sees that commercial structures do not mar their natural surroundings, and the committee believes a wide diversity of building styles can be erected without detracting from the mountain village atmosphere.

Cultural committee kicks off $10,000 scholarship fund drive

by BARBY GRANT
Staff Writer

A $500 check from the Ruidoso Woman's Club presented to the Chamber of Commerce cultural committee Thursday kicks off a scholarship fund drive aimed at raising $10,000 for the Ruidoso Summer String Workshops.

Cultural committee chairman met Thursday to organize the drive and discuss the chamber music concert coming up in March.

The first annual Ruidoso Summer String Workshop is scheduled to be held at La Junta Guest Ranch in Alto August 7 through 21. Conducted by faculty members of New Mexico State University and members of the Las Cruces Symphony, the workshop will offer intensive training in the performance of chamber music to thirty young musicians from around the country. In conjunction with the workshop, a total of five performances will be held for the local public at no charge.

The scholarship money is being sought to offset part of the costs for students to attend the workshops and to entice especially talented musicians to apply. It had earlier been pointed out that Ruidoso would be represented on the selection committee, meaning local students who qualified for the workshops could be given top priority.

Scholarship fund committee chairman Mary Parsons agreed to contact local service clubs about donating to the fund. It was decided that local banks and members of the cultural committee will also be approached, as well as various individuals throughout town.

Any amount of donation is encouraged, it was stressed. Anyone wishing to contribute to the scholarship fund may do so by taking or mailing a check to:

Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce
Box 698
Ruidoso, New Mexico 88345
Checks can be made out to Ruidoso Summer String Workshops.

It was also emphasized that all donations will go to the scholarship fund and not to the chamber concerts, which are all free to the public.

The next chamber concert is Sunday, March 20, at First Christian Church. The Ruidoso Altrusa Club will host the event. Chamber music series chairman Jackie Rawlins announced that the church has purchased a new grand piano to be used for the concert.

Plans were made to design and hang posters around town to inform residents of the event. The need to provide group transportation for those who cannot or do not like to drive at night was also discussed. Plans will be presented at a subsequent meeting next month.

Cultural committee chairman Katherine Finley noted that attendance at the concerts should be encouraged.

"This needs to be something that everybody just has to go to when it's here," Rawlins remarked.

Volunteer spirit prevails

By the end of the ceremonies every athlete competing had a chance to stand on the platform and receive a medal.

"Everybody's a winner," said Culbertson.

The exercise, the accomplishment and the recognition is very valuable to the mentally handicapped athletes, said many people who work with them everyday. Penny Zannes, executive director of the New Mexico Special Olympics, said the athletes are very excited about the Special Olympics and talk about it all year long.

"When they say they can't do it, and then they do it, it improves their self esteem," said Topper.

Zannes said the contact the instructors have with the athletes is beneficial to the instructors as well. By working with the athletes, talking to them and teaching them, the instructors overcome preconceptions about mentally handicapped people.

"You realize they are real people," she said.

After the alpine award ceremony, all the competitors and volunteers held hands and formed a "friendship circle." The volunteers all cheered and clapped for the special athletes and received a warm

"thank you" in return.

Later that evening, after dinner served by Beta Sigma Phi, everyone regrouped at the Elks Lodge for a "Victory Dance" with live music and refreshments served by the Ruidoso Woman's Club.

Friday morning, after a breakfast served by the Rotary Club, with sack lunches prepared by the Noon Lions Club, the special athletes departed for their respective homes.

No doubt many of them will return next year as will many of the volunteers.

"There's no way they could stop me from helping next year," said volunteer Glen Ferguson.

Little Theater group plans activities

by BILLY ALLSTETTER
Staff Writer

The Ruidoso Little Theater (RLT) announced auditions for their next play and made plans to sponsor a scholarship and adopt a constitution at their meeting Tuesday night at Nob Hill Elementary School.

Auditions for "Never Too Late" will be held at the elementary school at 7:30 p.m. Monday, February 7. The three-act play was described as a comedy similar to the television show "All in the Family" by director Dan Barrow.

Written by Sumner Arthur Long, the play has three female parts and six male parts. Barrow invited anyone interested in acting to come to the auditions. The play will be performed the last weekend in March and first weekend in April.

The group also announced that it will perform two one-act melodramas, "Egad, What a Cad" and "He Ain't Done Right by Nell," for the Golden Years Jubilee May 19-21. A director and audition dates will be announced later.

The group decided that it is ready now to sponsor a scholarship.

"We are capable right now of providing a scholarship, and I think we ought to provide one to a (high school) senior this year," said RLT director Betty Bennett. Attending members agreed and passed a motion to provide a scholarship "to a deserving senior of this year's graduating class."

Criteria for the selection and amount of the scholarship will be determined by a committee headed by Don Swalander. Other members of the committee are Lois Grushka, Dick Reeves, Dan Barrow and Gary Thompson.

Technical director Hap Hanson showed the group a packet of bylaws, constitution and committees he received from a group of non-profit theaters in Texas. The RLT hopes to use the packet as a guideline for forming its own non-profit organization.

Attorney Archie Witham has already looked over the packet and made changes he believes are necessary for the RLT. Other RLT members responsible for adoption of a constitution will read the packet before typing up a final copy and submitting it to all members for approval.

A contract for meeting and banquet space at the Inn of the Mountain Gods was approved by the group. The Inn has agreed to rent the Wendell Chino Room to the RLT March 21-April 4 and November 21-December 5. The RLT will have the Mescalero Room August 24-September 12. The group also discussed finding facilities in addition to the Inn that they may use for other productions. Many different buildings were discussed as well as many less traditional types of plays.

A committee was formed to look into other facilities that might be available to the RLT. Carl Mori will head the committee which will include Bill Don Knox and Eric Berg.

The group decided that it is interested in expanding its repertoire to include locally written plays, experimental theater and children's plays. The RLT also discussed performing a benefit for Crime Stoppers and providing some instruction to Girl Scouts.

Summer Festival events set

Dates are set and fund raising has begun for the 1983 Ruidoso Summer Festival, announced Ann Denton and Jackie Spencer, president and president-elect of Ruidoso Summer Festival, Incorporated.

"Thrill to the majesty of Beethoven played against the dramatic backdrop of Sierra Blanca. Relax to the lilting strains of a Strauss waltz drifting through the pines and experience the excitement of listening to some of America's musical 'giants,' both classical and 'pop,' in live performances," wrote Denton and Spencer in a recent letter describing the event.

The pair thanked the Texas Little Symphony, its conductor John Giordano and supporters for making the festival a wonderful success over the past three years.

This year's Summer Festival is scheduled for June 3 through 9 and promises once again to offer "a variety of gala events." Opening the 1983 Summer Festival Friday, June 3, will be a Dixieland band/casino night at the Inn of the Mountain Gods new convention center. Among the additional performers and events scheduled this year are classical violinist Daniel Heifetz, classical guitarist Pepe Romero, Roberta Peters, Dionne Warwick, a free Dixieland band concert at Cedar Creek and an art auction.

Denton and Spencer pointed out that 80 percent of the budgetary needs for the Summer Festival are provided by donations. Organizers of the event are seeking the continued support of contributors to help make the 1983 Ruidoso Summer Festival as successful as those in the past.

Persons donating $1,000 or more will be honored as benefactors and those contributing $500 to $1,000 will be listed as members of Los Ruidos. Members of these two groups will also be assured of priority seat selection at Summer Festival events well before tickets are available to the general public.

Anyone desiring additional information about the Summer Festival should contact Denton or Spencer.

Nuclear freeze proponents encouraged

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

Organizers of the Ruidoso chapter of New Mexicans For a Bilateral Nuclear Weapons Freeze have two major obstacles to hurdle if they are to gain more community support.

Fear and distrust of the Russians. "The biggest response I got from businesses was, 'Who is doing this in Russia?'" bemoaned freeze member Terry Coe when he talked about local reaction to the movement.

The message is hard to get across, but local organizers Jan and Randy Bennett are encouraged by the response they have received since starting the chapter a few weeks ago.

Last Monday, Jan told a small gathering of supporters that several business owners and managers have been contacted by Coe, and over 90 percent endorsed a question on nuclear arms negotiations.

The list, with signatures of over 50 business people, was circulated among the group at the meeting.

"I'm really surprised about the response Terry got," said Randy Bennett.

The question asked citizens if they would support bilateral negotiations for a verifiable nuclear arms freeze.

The key words in the question, and ones organizers say are the most difficult to get across, are "bilateral" and "verifiable." The words are seen as buzz words by many, the Bennetts admit, because people do not think the Soviets are willing to negotiate and cannot be trusted to abide by an agreement.

Freeze organizers also do not know if the Russians will negotiate, Randy notes, which he said means "we have to try twice as hard" to encourage our government to press for freeze talks.

When the question of trust is asked of Randy, he replies that the approach does not depend on honesty. As noted in an informational brochure on the freeze, both sides already have the technical means for verification. Our reconnaissance satellites are so sensitive, the brochure claims, that they can read a car license plate in Moscow.

Once people realize the freeze movement emphasizes the negotiations must be mutual, the Bennetts indicated, support is more easily gained.

While strong support in Ruidoso is slow in coming, it appears more and more Americans are listening to the idea. Randy Bennett told the group at the library Monday that several states have passed referendums asking the government to negotiate for a freeze.

He also noted a memorial calling for negotiations on a freeze will be considered by the New Mexico Legislature.

The memorial is one of two bills on the nuclear weapons freeze before the two legislative chambers, said District 56 Representative Marvin "Mickey" McGuire Wednesday.

McGuire said, "I would probably support it," as long as the memorial calls for bilateral negotiations toward a freeze.

Memorials are not binding actions, said McGuire, but are opinions formally expressed by the lawmakers. If the bills pass, a signal will be sent to Washington that New Mexico favors freeze talks, McGuire added.

Representative Richard Knowles, whose district includes part of Lincoln County, is sponsoring the house bill. He said Thursday his bill calls for a "mutual, verifiable freeze at balanced levels."

Knowles said the proposal, along with a Senate-House joint bill calling for a halt on nuclear weapons, has been sent to committee. At the Monday night meeting, five supporters signed up to lobby the state and national delegations whenever such bills are considered. The lobbyists join a statewide network of people who will make sure the freeze question is not forgotten by lawmakers.

The Bennetts said the main emphasis of the local chapter in coming months will be directed toward contacting representatives.

The chapter will also try to generate more local interest. The meetings have attracted only a handful of interested residents so far, but organizers hope to bring in larger audiences by scheduling speakers and film showings at the library. The chapter will also circulate a petition that calls for a "mutual freeze on the testing, production and deployment of nuclear weapons" which would be an "essential, verifiable first step" to halting the nuclear arms race.

The petition aims at demonstrating to political representatives a strong local following—an important step to achieving the ultimate goal.

But the immediate goal of the Bennetts is just to get the message across.

"Our purpose is to stir public debate and keep the issue up front as much as possible," explained Randy. "We want to get people to think about it, to read both the pros and the cons."

"Education is the key, but it takes time to educate. It won't happen overnight."

The chapter will meet the second and last Thursdays every month through May at the public library. A speaker representing the Physicians For Social Responsibility association is tentatively scheduled for a late February meeting.

Cartwright looks forward to serving as pastor of First Baptist in Ruidoso

The Reverend Wylie Cartwright, for many years a Home Missionary for the Southern Baptist Convention, looks forward to making Ruidoso his home as pastor of First Baptist Church.

The San Angelo, Texas, native started preaching 30 years ago, at age 16. At about the same time, he and his wife Patsy Jean were married.

Cartwright has attended Texas Christian University, New Mexico State University, East Texas Bible Institute and Golden Gate (California) Seminary. He is currently working on a doctorate in theology from International Bible Baptist Institute, of Florida.

The new pastor is not a stranger to Southern New Mexico.

"I'm quite familiar with the area," he said, noting that he has pastored at Roswell and Hobbs. His years as a Home Missionary also took him to churches in California, Arizona, Texas and Oregon.

Cartwright was asked if he is here to stay.

"Oh yes," he replied. "I anticipate a long tenure and a good one." He said he sees tremendous potential for First Baptist Church of Ruidoso and for Ruidoso itself.

The pastor pointed out that all churches in this area have a unique ministry in that they can minister to people who come here for recreation.

He pointed out that a new building at the church—that includes a gymnasium, meeting hall and office space—will soon be put in service.

Of his congregation, the Reverend Cartwright called them "a really far-sighted group of people."

"They have a good vision of the community and its needs," he remarked.

Cartwright noted that the church is currently establishing Sunday school programs for young adults.

Mid school bands to perform

A pop concert featuring the White Mountain Middle School concert band and jazz/rock group will take place at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, February 1, at Ruidoso High School gymnasium.

The pop concert, which was rescheduled from January 20 owing to bad weather, is free of charge to the public.

Among the numbers to be performed is the theme from "Chariots of Fire," by Vangelis.

Art Festival being organized

Anyone interested in helping with the 12th Annual Art Festival is invited to an organizational meeting at the Chamber of Commerce at noon Thursday, February 3. Those attending are encouraged to bring their own lunches.

Volunteers are needed for all committees. For more information, contact Fiodie Wilson at 257-4745.

Family therapy lecturers to speak at New Thought meeting Thursday

Nationally known speakers Nancy and Ron Rocky will present a lecture entitled, "Why You Feel and Act the Way You Do," this Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Ruidoso village hall.

The lecture will include insight into others' actions and feelings, and increased self-acceptance and understanding of others. The talk will not deal with personal emotional stability.

The Rockeys recently moved to Ruidoso from Boston, Massachusetts, and are opening a printing business. Both have Master's degrees in Family Therapy and have lectured throughout the U.S., Canada and the Caribbean.

The public is invited to attend the lecture, which is sponsored by the New Thought Group. Admission is free, but there will be an offering for those who want to contribute. Coffee and refreshments will be available preceding the lecture.

Deadline changed for Jubilee participation

Merchants and lodgers who received letters asking for their participation in the Golden Years Jubilee discounts should disregard the deadline for replies, according to Ruidoso Business Association member Glen Ferguson.

Letters were mailed later than planned, and those contacted are encouraged to send in replies this week. Deadline for the replies has been moved to Monday, February 7.

Correction

The News incorrectly reported in last Monday's edition that Jackalope Square opens at 11 a.m. The correct opening time is 9 a.m.

PEOPLE

Library to sponsor special events, reading hour

The Ruidoso Public Library has announced sign-ups for a special events series and pre-school story hour.

Fifth through eighth graders are invited to attend special events in the multipurpose room of the library on Thursday afternoons from 4 to 5 p.m. Movies and special guest speakers will entertain students.

The first special event will be Thursday, February 11, from 4 to 5 p.m. The series will continue until summer vacation.

Librarian Ingrid Schmitz invites all students to inspect the new book collection and read the books. Those attending the special events series can receive credit and prizes for books read. Schmitz also encouraged students to bring a friend and a game that they can play while at the library.

The pre-school story hour will begin Tuesday, February 22, at the library. Sessions are available on Tuesday and Thursday from 10 to 11 a.m. for children ages three through five. Classes are limited to 20 students, and parents are encouraged to sign up any time after Tuesday, February 1.

Children will enjoy puppet shows, stories and movies. Schmitz said the children will be introduced to a number of concepts such as song, dance, creative dramatics, arts and crafts. They will also enjoy each other's company and learn to get along with each other, added Schmitz.

Those interested in either of the classes should call the Ruidoso Public Library at 257-4335.

Warrior girls edged by Colts

Turnovers again played a large part in the outcome as the Ruidoso High School girls varsity basketball team fell to Silver City High School by a 47-44 score Saturday night on the winners' court.

Ruidoso, now 2-3 in district 3-AAA action and 7-7 overall, will resume play Tuesday night at arch-rival Tularosa High School.

The Warriors threw the ball away twice in the last minute of the contest to lose a one-point lead and the game.

Silver City led most of the game but could never pull away from Ruidoso. The Colts held a 16-5 edge at the end of the first period and increased their lead to 25-15 at halftime.

The Warriors closed the gap to 35-29 at the end of the third quarter and fought back to take the lead before the two fatal turnovers.

Senior Kody Taylor led the Warrior scoring with 13 points, and senior Claudia Branum added 12. Lillian Lopez added seven points, Gia Rose six, Stacy Ivy five and Jackie Jefferson one. Ivy led the Ruidoso rebounders with eight grabs, and Lopez added seven.

Despite the defeat, Warrior head coach Sergio Castanon felt his team played well.

"Now the girls know what they'll have to do to do well in the district tournament," he said. "We didn't play bad except at the very beginning of the game and the end when we made some costly turnovers. The girls played one of their best games of the season."

Ruidoso must now focus its attention on Tularosa.

The Warriors defeated Tularosa 50-35 two weeks ago on the Ruidoso court, but the Wildcats have always been tough in their own gymnasium. Tularosa nipped the Warriors by three points in the opening round of the district tournament last season on the Wildcat floor.

The junior varsity contest will begin at 6 p.m. with the varsity game following it.

Warrior boys fall to Roswell, Colts

by Gary Brown
Sports Writer

The Ruidoso High School boys varsity basketball team lost a couple of games over the weekend to tough foes.

Ruidoso traveled to Roswell High School Friday night and dropped a 59-24 decision to the Coyotes. On Saturday, the Warriors fell to Silver City High School by a 90-42 score to drop to 0-3 in district 3-AAA play and 0-12 overall.

RUIDOSO (24)
Williamson, 2, 8-10, 12; Lueras, 1, 4-4, 6; Ullmann, 1, 0-0, 2; Simmons, 0, 2-3, 2; Easter, 1, 0-0, 2; TOTALS, 5, 14-17, 24.

ROSWELL (59)
Miller, 4, 5-5, 13; Roberts, 5, 0-0, 10; Stovall, 4, 0-0, 8; Keller, 3, 1-3, 7; Pleasant, 3, 0-0, 6; Williams, 2, 0-2, 4; Byrd, 3, 1-1, 7; Montoza, 1, 2-3, 4; TOTALS, 25, 9-14, 59.

Ruidoso loses junior varsity contest, 55-36

The Ruidoso High School boys junior varsity basketball team gave Roswell High School all it could handle before losing 55-36 Friday night on the winners' court.

Ruidoso will return to Roswell High School tonight for a game with the Coyote sophomores.

Ruidoso led early in the first quarter and only trailed by one point, 23-22, at halftime. However, the hosts gradually pulled away in the third period and took control of the contest in the final quarter.

The Warriors led 6-0 before the Coyotes could get on the scoreboard. Two baskets by Stanley Sluder and one by Dan Ullmann gave Ruidoso its early edge.

Sluder, Ullmann and Russell Easter each scored eight points for the Warriors. Patric Pearson and Jesse Reynolds each added four points. Dion Lopez and Mark Langston scored two points apiece.

RUIDOSO (36)
Easter, 4, 0-0, 8; Ullmann, 4, 0-0, 8; Sluder, 4, 0-1, 8; Pearson, 2, 0-0, 4; Lopez, 1, 0-0, 2; Langston, 1, 0-0, 2; Reynolds, 2, 0-0, 4; TOTALS, 18, 0-4, 36.

ROSWELL (55)
White, 5, 8-10, 17; Wheeler, 7, 0-0, 14; Vaughn, 1, 5-5, 7; Coffman, 3, 2-2, 8; Cathige, 1, 0-0, 2; Haver, 2, 0-0, 4; Aldridge, 1, 1-4, 3; TOTALS, 20, 15-22, 55.

The Warriors suffered through some poor shooting in the Roswell contest, making just five of 34 shots from the field.

Ruidoso fell behind by a 13-4 score at the first quarter break but played better in the second quarter, scoring 14 points and trailing 28-18 at halftime.

However, Roswell broke the game wide open in the third period, outscoring the Warriors 23-8 for a 50-26 advantage.

Grady Williamson led the Ruidoso scoring with 12 points, making eight of 10 free-throw attempts. H. R. Lueras added six points. Jimmy Miller led Roswell with 13 points.

Against Silver City, the Warriors were hurt by the Colt press and fell behind 28-7 by the end of the first quarter. Silver City dominated the game from then on, although Ruidoso did score 16 points in the third quarter.

Williamson again led the Warriors in scoring, tanking 18 points. Curtis Palmer added eight points, and freshman Dan Ullmann scored five points.

"We just didn't play well against Silver City," Warrior head coach Ron Geyer said. "Their press bothered us, and it was a physical game. We're young, and we're not really strong enough to play that type of game."

"For the rest of the season, we'll probably let our sophomores and freshmen who've played some in both the varsity and junior varsity games concentrate four full quarters on the junior varsity game. You're only allowed to play five quarters in one night, and we've had to split some of our players up between the varsity and junior varsity games."

Ruidoso will resume action Friday when it travels to Tularosa High School for varsity and junior varsity games.

NOTES—Geyer and assistant coach Elmer Chavez would like to join girls' varsity coach Sergio Castanon in thanking the people who took part in the drawing for the cord of wood last month. The money raised from it was used to buy sweaters for the girls and boys teams.

RUIDOSO WINS. Gervase Peso of the Ruidoso High School wrestling team gets Kelly Johnson of the Carlsbad High School junior varsity down in Saturday's match at the Warrior gymnasium. Peso pinned Johnson in the second round.

Ruidoso girls junior varsity loses

The Ruidoso High School girls junior varsity basketball team was unable to continue a hot first quarter pace and lost a 45-34 decision to Silver City High School Saturday night in the winners' gymnasium.

Ruidoso took a 13-6 lead in the first period but couldn't put any points on the scoreboard in the second quarter as Silver City scored 19 for a 25-13 halftime advantage.

The second half was played evenly, but the damage was done for Ruidoso.

Keri Thomas led the Warrior scoring with eight points. Gia Rose and Yelena Seelbach each added six points.

"The first quarter was the best we've ever played," said Warrior coach Nancy Holland. "However, we couldn't do anything right in the second quarter, and that was the ballgame."

"They had three girls who were around six feet tall, and they played them a lot in the second and third quarters, and that hurt us."

Ruidoso will travel to Tularosa High School for a district 3-AAA contest Tuesday night. The Warrior junior varsity will play at 6 p.m. with the varsity game following it.

Warrior wrestlers win three times

The Ruidoso High School wrestling team captured three straight dual-match wins over the weekend to move its seasonal record to 4-3.

The Warriors rolled over AAAA division

Roswell High School by a 41-30 score Thursday night on the Warriors' mat. Saturday, Ruidoso defeated the Carlsbad High School junior varsity 33-25 and New Mexico Military Institute (NMMI) 33-20 in a quadrangular meet in the Warrior gymnasium. In another match Saturday, the Ruidoso junior varsity and White Mountain Middle School took on Carlsbad Junior High School in a non-scoring affair.

"We did very well against Roswell," Ruidoso head coach Gerald Ames said. "However, against Carlsbad and NMMI, we didn't show much intensity. Perhaps we were a bit tired."

Against Roswell, Chuck Schmidt, Henry Rue, Gervase Peso, David Swalander, Scott Ciraulo and Gary Burgess picked up pin victories for the Warriors.

Schmidt picked up a pin in the first period of the 114-pound division over Arthur Portillo, and Ciraulo got a first-period pin over Sammy Marquess of Roswell in the 167-pound class.

Burgess got a third-period pin in the 189-pound division, Swalander a third-period pin in the 147-pound class, Peso a third-period pin in the 138-pound division and Rue a second-period pin in the 128-pound class.

Randy Pierce of Ruidoso won a lopsided 28-1 decision over Richard Espinosa in the 121-pound competition.

Against the Carlsbad junior varsity,

Peso, Schmidt, Rue and 132-pound Manuel Montano took pin victories. Ciraulo took a tight 6-5 decision over Leo Vasquez; Pierce beat Scott Caddell 12-5, and 157-pound freshman James Herrera took an 11-7 victory over Les Towney.

Burgess was pinned in the second period but held a 5-0 advantage before getting pinned.

Ruidoso's victory over NMMI saw the Warriors get four forfeit victories while losing one match on a forfeit.

Rue, Schmidt, 165-pound Chad Surmick and 96-pound Bronson Rue took the forfeit victories.

Pierce was the only Warrior to win by a pin as he downed Chet Brown in the third period. Swalander took a decisive 12-3 victory over Ken Dominguez, and Ciraulo defeated Alfonso Espinosa 10-5. It was Ciraulo's first victory over Espinosa this season.

NMMI and the Carlsbad junior varsity fought to a 33-33 tie in the other match Saturday afternoon.

Ruidoso will travel to Roswell Thursday for dual matches with Goddard High School and Tucumcari High School at Goddard. The first match will begin at 6:30 p.m.

Saturday the Warriors will travel to Alamogordo for district 3-AAA matches with Silver City High School, Deming High School and Cobre High School.

Capitan cagers win two

Capitan High School's boys varsity basketball team jumped off to a 2-0 record in district action when it defeated Cloudcroft High School and Hagerman High School over the weekend.

The Tigers traveled to Cloudcroft Friday night and edged the Bears 51-49. Saturday Capitan rolled to an easy 59-49 win over Hagerman on the Tiger court.

Jon Todd Aguilar rebounded in a missed shot with two seconds left to give Capitan its win over Cloudcroft. Robert Parker led the Tigers with 17 points. Parker is coming off an injury and still isn't 100 percent well, according to Tiger coach Kendall Lawlis. Against Hagerman, the Tigers took a 20-10 lead in the first quarter and held off the visitors the rest of the way.

Danny Cummins led the Capitan scoring with 13 points. Parker added 12 points, Proctor 11 and Eddie Davis 10.

Davis had seven rebounds and Proctor six as the Tigers did well on the boards.

Capitan will host Hondo School Friday in another district game. Saturday the Tigers will travel to Lake Arthur High School.

The Tigers are now 10-3 on the overall season.

Amy Thornton finished second, and Amy Richardson was third in the all-around competition of the nine to 11-year-old division to highlight the Ruidoso Gymnastics Academy (RGA) Mountaintops' performance in the district III gymnastics meet at the RGA gymnasium Saturday.

The Mountaintops finished a close third in the three-way meet with 100.80 points to 102.90 for Alamogordo and 101.85 for Mesilla Valley of Las Cruces.

Thornton and Richardson did an excellent job in every event of the nine to 11-year-old division. Thornton scored 33.95 points for the four events while Richardson tallied 32.75 points. Dina Burgess of Mesilla Valley was first with a 34.00 total.

The talented Thornton was first in the floor exercise with an 8.9 total and first in the vault, also with an 8.9 score. She was second in the uneven bars with an 8.55 score and fourth in the balance beam with a 7.6 total.

Richardson tied for first in the beam with an 8.55 score, was third in the uneven bars with an 8.10 score and third in the vault with an 8.10 score. She also scored a 7.95 in the floor exercise.

Hillary Heid of the Mountaintops finished fourth in the all-around competition of the 12 to 14-year-old division with a 34.05 total. Heid was first in the beam with an outstanding 9.05 total, third in the floor exercise with an 8.3 and third in the vault with an 8.7. She also scored a 7.5 in the uneven bars.

Daphne Duncan of the Mountaintops scored a 32.70 in the all-around competition of the 12-14 age division. She was fifth in the floor exercise with an 8.63, fifth in the vault with an 8.3 and sixth in the beam with an 8.0. She also scored a 7.85 in the uneven bars.

Karen Gann scored a 31.25 total in all-around competition. She was fourth in the beam with an 8.35 score. She also scored a 7.45 in the vault, 7.35 in the uneven bars and 8.10 in the floor exercise.

Mountaintops coach Tom Hart felt his team did well even though it finished third. "Two points between the winner and third place isn't much," he said. "The girls did about what I expected of them, and I'm proud of all of them."

"Amy Thornton did really well in the floor exercise and vault; Amy Richardson did good on the beam, and Hillary Heid did a good job all-around. She's improved a lot."

The state Class III meet will be held in Albuquerque Saturday, February 12. All five Mountaintops athletes have qualified for the state meet.

Ruidoso fresh top Wildcats

The Ruidoso High School boys freshman basketball team took a convincing 39-27 victory over visiting Tularosa High School Friday night in the Warrior gymnasium.

Ruidoso is now 4-7 in the season and will conclude the campaign with a 5:30 p.m. game today against the Roswell High School freshmen in Roswell. This game was a late addition to the Warrior schedule.

Omar Dix led the Ruidoso scoring with 20 points and Jason Bigham added nine. Trent Tolbert added four points and Randy Reynolds, Michael Williamson and Mitch Mullican each had two points.

Ruidoso had a 14-12 advantage at halftime and gradually increased it in the second half.

"The guys came out and played basketball like they're capable of," Warrior coach Thurman Sanchez said. "It was Parents Night and the kids played really well."

Braves cagers top Holloman

The White Mountain Middle School boys basketball team gained revenge for two previous losses by topping Holloman 46-41 Thursday afternoon on the losers' court.

White Mountain is now 11-4 on the season and will conclude the year with a game at Tularosa Thursday.

The Braves did a noble defensive job on 5-9 Holloman star Noble Bellemey, holding him to 15 points. Bellemey has averaged 30 points a game this season. He was a standout in Holloman's two previous victories over White Mountain.

"We just used a zone defense and forced him to take a lot of bad shots and make some turnovers," Brave coach Dean Hood said. "No one person did the job but the team as a whole stopped him."

White Mountain led by a 24-20 score at halftime, but the hosts came back to lead 34-32 at the third quarter break.

However, the Braves had one of their best shooting quarters of the season in the final period, outscoring Holloman 14-7 for the victory.

Jeff Willingham led the Brave scorers with 18 points and Brian Davis added 12. Mike Grant scored eight points and Justin Shaw six for White Mountain.

The Brave B team lost a 38-31 decision to Holloman.

Lance Willard led the Brave attack with seven points, while Dalton Hamilton, Jeremy Lane and Jason Lewis each added six points.

Against Tularosa, the White Mountain girls A team will play at 1 p.m., followed by the boys A game and the boys B game.

THE WINNERS. Dina Burgess (center) of Mesilla Valley took first place in the all-around competition of the district III gymnastics meet nine to 11-year-old division Saturday at the Ruidoso Gymnastics Academy (RGA) gym. Amy Thornton (left) of the RGA's Mountaintops team was second, while Amy Richardson (right) of the Mountaintops was third.

Jefferson wins regional title

Kevin Jefferson of the Las Piedras Boxing Team (LPBT) of Ruidoso took an easy decision over Leonal, Tarin to win the Regional Golden Gloves 70-75 pound intermediate title Saturday night in Roswell.

Tarin had won his bout Friday to advance to the finals against the 13-year old Jefferson.

"Kevin looked good," LPBT coach Lucky Mulqueen said. "He won it easily and his footwork was excellent. He still needs to use his right hand more."

David Ordorica of the LPBT didn't fight because there wasn't anyone in his weight and age class. He was scheduled to compete in the senior division 75-80 pound class.

The LPBT will host the Elks' Invitational Saturday, February 19, at the Elks' Club.

Admission will be $3 for adults and $1.50 for youths. There will also be a concession stand.

The Dreamer

BY DANNIE STORM

Mary Susan Granger— Services were held January 26 at the Holy Mount Church in Ruidoso, and January 27 in Marfa, Texas, for Mrs. Mary Susan Granger, who was called home by Our Lord on January twenty-four.

Mrs. Granger was a devout and very beloved member of the Church of The Holy Mount in Ruidoso. She was always cheery and an inspiration to her many friends; and we all take comfort in knowing she has been welcomed by Our Lord in Heaven.

Elmer L. Green Services were held on January 26 in Ruidoso, and in the National Cemetery in Santa Fe, for Elmer L. Green who was called home by Our Lord on January twenty-three.

Elmer was born in Weed, New Mexico April 27, 1902, of a pioneer New Mexico family. He was a devout member of The Church of God and lived the life of a Christian gentleman always helpful and kind to friend and stranger alike.

He was a veteran of World War II and the Korean War, with years of distinguished service in the Air Force.

Among his survivors are two grandsons, Leon and Edward May of Carrizozo, my friends for many years. Elmer will be kindly remembered by all of us always, and we all take comfort in knowing he has gone to his reward in Heaven with Our Lord.

Bear Bryant Paul "Bear" Bryant, like all great men, was very modest. Although he was "the winningest coach of all time" he took little credit for the success of his team.

You never heard The Bear talk about winning very much; he brought his teams up to a high point of excellence and let the winning take care of itself.

He had that quality of great leaders of inspiring men to do their best for him. And like all dedicated coaches he made it clear to his athletes that when it came to the rules of sportsmanship and of training, they would "walk the chalk line."

This gained the deep respect of his players, who knew as all young people do, that this was for their own lasting good.

Clearly conscious that he had charge of young lives at a most impressionable period, he instilled practice of fundamentals that made for winning not only on the football field, but also in the game of life itself.

And here, again like all great coaches, he was a builder of men.

Countless of his former players in all walks of life have expressed their gratefulness through the years for the character-building influence and the inspiration given by their coach in their football days. And this sound training has been passed on, and on.

The great out-pouring of love for this splendid American at the time of his leaving us is a fitting send-off into our Heavenly Home with Our Lord.

Yours and Ours

Inside The Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE—Let's talk about paying our legislators.

The men and women who serve us during one 60-day legislative session in odd-numbered years and one 30-day session in even-numbered years are proud of the fact that they do not get a salary.

They often rise to their feet in the House or the Senate to brag about the fact that they are not paid a weekly wage.

Big deal. Does being paid so much per day for every day you serve really differ all that much from being given a salary?

If you get a check from the state, does it say what you got it for?

Not a bit. Hence, when the members of the House voted to give themselves $75 per day in per diem, that was as good as a raise in "salary."

What's more, when voting themselves that extra money, they were probably acting in a totally illegal and unconstitutional manner.

From the press gallery, one was amazed that nobody raised that issue.

Surely, one would have thought, somebody on the floor of the House might just have remembered that it is unconstitutional to enact post-positive laws—that is, those which say something happened during the period before the vote took place.

In this case, House members voted to give themselves $75 per day effective from the day the constitutional amendment on the subject was certified. That was back in late November.

The vote in House on this matter was on January 26.

Thus we had a case of legislation which purports to affect the past tense.

That's supposed to be against the law. How come nobody raised that issue? Is it because all those in the House who might have done so want the $75 per day?

Those who voted for that bill will have other problems.

The Internal Revenue Service (i.e., the feds) want you to account for all the money you make in per diem if that amounts to $75 per day.

So legislators could end up having to pay income tax on this sum.

If they'd been less greedy, they could have stayed below the IRS magic number, in which case they would not have to provide all those receipts to show what they spent to live in Santa Fe.

What they did was take a gamble. They think the IRS is about to move up the daily rate above which one has to pay taxes.

Good luck, kids. But if you have to report every dime as regular income, don't come crying to us. The ordinary citizens would have been content to see you take $55 a day, which would have kept you under the federal top level.

It's a strange legislative session.

No spunk, no spirit, no caring—in either Senate or House.

In short, a bore.

Anaya's on the fourth floor, trying to learn his job. Down below, the lawmakers don't seem to think things matter.

Who's taking care of New Mexico?

Letters to the Editor

DEAR EDITOR:

I write this in response to an opinion written by Tim Palmer of The Ruidoso News concerning the "Bad Press" which he feels James Watt has received lately. The editorial contends that the press and certain politicians of this state look only at Watt's bad points and mistakes while unfairly ignoring all the right things he has done. And further, Mr. Palmer brands the press as a manipulator of public opinion as it concerns the Secretary of State. Allow me to completely disagree with those observations.

When Watt and Anne Gorsuch of the EPA were appointed they began proposing ideas with respect to the environment which were found to be disagreeable to a majority of Americans as proven by legitimate polling. My reaction to these two is one of absolute outrage. Never in the history of this country's politics have two people stirred up so much controversy over environmental questions. One of their first moves was to go for the throat of the clean air and water act, gutting it of any power to enforce. Next came the idea of mining in wilderness and forest areas. As we all know, the list continues on.

Finally, Congress put the skids on some of the Secretary's scheming by denying him funds. So Watt did the politically expedient thing and shut up. He quit talking to the press. He quit talking to anyone and faded quietly away for several months. Upon his return he seemed to walk the line on many issues of controversy. He, in public, seemed to be a changed man, a real nice guy you know. Behind the scenes he still entertains the ideas and proposals of Big Business and Big Energy. So I must ask the question, who is manipulating whom? It is not so one-sided as Mr. Palmer would have you believe.

In my opinion, Watt and Gorsuch are a real and genuine threat to the remaining natural environment and to clean air and potable water. Thank God the press remembers who these two are and where they came from. I think if they found themselves outside the power of presidential directive, they would be laughed right off of their soap box. It seems odd to me that non-elected officials would have such wide ranging control over our land.

I am an artist and my subjects are the remaining wild and natural places around the Southwest. I do not wish to see my potential diminished by unnatural causes. That is a bit selfish I know, but without clean air, drinkable water, and arable land, there is really nothing left.

So I would say to the press, rave on all you like about James Watt and his consort, or anyone else who could affect our lives so dramatically. And unless Mr. Palmer would accuse the press of practicing yellow-journalism, he has not a thing to bitch about.

BRUCE W. McELYA

DEAR EDITOR:

Misguided Smoke Signals
 As you reported in your editorial of 1-24, the news handling of statements made by Interior Secretary James Watt was a total fiasco and did a grave disservice to accurate journalism reporting serving only the publicity seekers.

As reported later (a lot of folks read only the initial inaccurate news report) the statement by Mr. Watt which supposedly demeaned the Indian Nations was entirely inaccurate. Mr. Watt simply said that the Federal Government was too involved in Indian affairs and should give more authority to the Indian Nations.

It is puzzling why the Indians immediately raised a hue and cry asking for Watt's resignation — perhaps someone misread the smoke signals.

The newspapers are currently reporting that outgoing Peter McDonald is leaving his high Indian office with the Tribes records in disarray. If so, perhaps the Tribes should stay home and take care of business and pay less attention to misinterpretation of the news.

Perhaps, Mr. Editor, as you so state — some people want the publicity regardless of accuracy or the harm it brings to others.
 J. A. "AL" JUNGE

Editorial

Ruidoso certainly didn't set out to earn itself a pat on the back when, for the second year, the village opened its heart to the Southern New Mexico Special Olympics Winter Games.

That's not what service is all about.

But doggone it, the response of the community to this wonderful event was so great, it deserves to be acknowledged.

The list of organizations, businesses and individuals that pitched in to make the Special Olympics really special is a long one. The service clubs, the ski shops, the Chamber of Commerce, the banks, Eagle Creek Ski Area, the high schools ... it goes on and on.

Organizers of the event are to be commended for the skillful job they did. Thanks to the efforts of volunteer instructors, and the magic of Special Olympics, youngsters who had never skied became Olympians in two days.

The participants in Special Olympics impressed everyone with their well mannered behavior. They and their chaperones made it a point to say "thank you" to volunteers.

But it is really the community that should say, "thank you" to the event's participants and organizers.

You gave so much to us by your being here.—TP

On the Village beat with Tim Palmer

It is always exciting to see someone who is the best in the world at what they do, doing what they do best.

A tremendous field of world class athletes did their thing at the 20th anniversary Albuquerque Jaycee Invitational Indoor Track Meet the weekend before last, and it was great to be there.

The first event of the evening—the women's 60-meter dash—featured Evelyn Ashford. She had broken her own world indoor record the night before in Los Angeles, and was clearly the one to beat in Albuquerque.

Evelyn is like a quarter horse—built for short bursts of speed. Looking at her through the binoculars, I noticed two things in particular.

The first was the incredible muscle development in her upper legs. The second thing was that she runs in what I guess you would call a body skin, or Danskin.

I imagine the reason for that is because the extra weight and wind resistance of shorts and a jersey might cost hundredths of a second of time.

And man does she fly! A distinctive forward-from-the-waist running style propels her down the track like a rocket sled.

Ashford won the two dashes (60 yards and 60 meters) in an awesome display of speed. But after the second win, skipping back along the track and waving happily to the crowd, she moved with the grace of a ballerina.

Evelyn Ashford is clearly an athlete whose time is now, and it was a joy to see her in her prime.

Another event that featured a world record holder was the pole vault. Billy Olson, like Ashford, had broken his own world record the night before in LA.

His biggest moment in Albuquerque turned out to be his introduction, as he was eliminated early. I read later that he had aggravated a hamstring injury in California.

One thing about track meets—you have to stay aware of what's happening. Otherwise you might miss something, particularly in the field events.

Fortunately, my dad and I were paying attention when vaulter Brad Pursley of Abilene Christian started down the ramp, picking up speed. The crowd held its breath as he planted his pole and swung up, back, then catapulted over the bar at a height of over 18 feet.

The announcer informed us it was the highest pole vault ever in New Mexico, which made me feel good to have seen history in the making.

A familiar black-and-white caught my eye in the milling crowd at the track meet. It was a Del Norte High School letter jacket.

It gave me a start to notice the numerals on the sleeve—88—representing the year of graduation. They were the reverse of the 88 I had on my jacket. Time flies faster than a sprinter.

But I was proud to see my alma mater sweep the boys' high school mile—Del Norte runners took first, second and third.

Another running event that was a lot of fun to watch was the "Devil Take the Hind-most Mile." In this race, the guy who is last after three laps has to drop out. (A mile is 10 laps.)

This continues for every lap until just three guys are left to run the last lap. So you have the jockeying for the lead among the frontrunners (and these guys are good milers—around 4:10 indoors), and you get some great battles among the guys at the back of the pack as they try to keep from being eliminated.

One of the contestants—and the last guy to go out—was Web Loudat, who won the high school mile in the first Albuquerque indoor invite in 1964, running for Roswell. At 36, Web really hung tough.

One reason I wanted to see the track meet was that I've been doing some running, and I wanted to see how the top runners do it. Well, I didn't discern anything that looked like a secret I can use.

All I could do was be awed at the way the distance runners, like half-mile winner Mark Belger and miler Doug Padilla, let their legs carry them in perpetual precise motion.

At the world class level, there doesn't seem to be much physical variation among the runners. The ones who have enough of a finishing kick win.

An athlete to whom the label "poetry in motion" can be attached is high jumper Dwight Stones. He was a study in the mental side of sports performance as he waited to start his approach.

Though it seemed that every eye in the coliseum must be upon him, he appeared to withdraw into a state the athlete in a mental sport must achieve—a balance of concentration and relaxation.

Then he would rock back, and take off slowly and smoothly into his approach. The leap itself seems like an extension of the running steps toward the bar—a smooth glide up and over.

Stones finished second to Brian Stanton, but both men cleared 7 feet plus. To me, humans leaping a foot and more over their own height is an amazing feat.

Despite all the world class track stars present, the most memorable race of the night was the high school girls' mile relay.

Eldorado High opened a wide early lead; its lavender-suited (with striped shorts!) blonde runners appeared to be putting a lock on the race. But in the last laps, the anchor leg for Sandia began to gain ground.

Finally, she pulled even. The image of those two girls running their hearts out down the straightaway is the one that sticks in my mind.

It was the kind of thing to see youths doing that makes you feel really good. All in all, it was quite an evening. I even got to root for a fellow Ruidosoan, since Elmer Chavez was in the mile race walk.

Yep, Coach, that was me yelling "Go Elmer" every time you came around. And I'm sure you enjoyed the evening as much or more than me.

Now how are we going to get a track for Ruidoso High?

TAKE A BREAK
 By Staff Of Ruidoso Travel

BUDGET DINING ABROAD
 Sticking to restaurants—particularly hotel restaurants—when traveling abroad can be both expensive and boring. Certainly good restaurants can be a highlight of your travel, but you can stretch your budget and broaden your horizons by considering some alternatives.

If you're not a big breakfast eater, follow your nose to the freshly baked breads and pastries at local bakeries, which make a splendid continental breakfast when accompanied by juice or coffee. Then, too, a light breakfast will leave you hungrier for lunch which is a good idea—restaurant lunch menus are often identical to those served at dinner, but can be considerably less expensive. Consider eating your main meal midday, followed by a light supper.

Bread is usually a bargain—it's filling, and every country seems to have its own delicious, special sort. But watch out in restaurants for "bread and butter" charges—that basket on your table may carry its own price.

Great snack foods can often be bought on the street. Try the gaufres (small waffles) from Brussels vendors, or paper cones of frites (french fries) in Antwerp or France. Fish and chips, wrapped in newspaper, are a filling snack meal throughout Britain.

To satisfy your appetite for travel, contact your travel experts at Ruidoso Travel.

POPCORN Video

By James Smethurst

On Feb. 1, The Movie Channel will show "Star Wars" for the first time on cable-TV.

What can be said that hasn't been said. Not much. Next to "Gone with the Wind," "Star Wars" has to be about the most-watched movie of the 20th century. Nonetheless, you'll probably want to see it again.

The acting is non-existent. Alec Guinness, who plays the old, mystic space samurai Obi Wan Knobi, is the only class actor in the film, although Harrison Ford as the rogue hero Han Solo is also quite good.

However, Guinness does not exactly have a meaty role — he spends a large part of the movie as a disembodied spirit. The real stars of the film are two animated robots — R2D2 and C3PO.

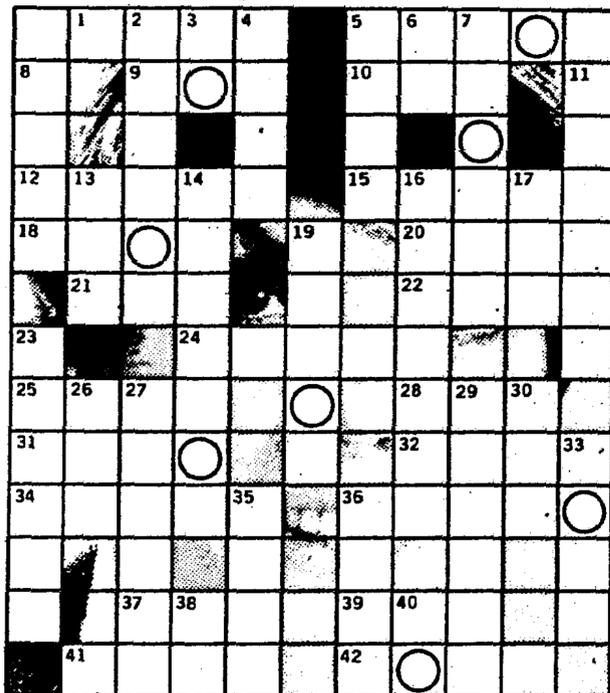

But then that's the whole point of the movie — to make it as much like a comic book with live characters as possible. The action is composed of Marvel Comics, old Flash Gordon serials and the samurai movies of Akira Kurasawa (whose "Hidden Fortress" bears a marked resemblance to "Star Wars.>").

As in a comic book, the action keeps moving relentlessly, the visuals are outlandish (there is a scene in a sleazy intergalactic bar that's hilarious), the jokes are broad, the heroes good and the villains evil.

George Lucas is able to pull this all off with an obvious admiration for this genre, with an humor that doesn't allow him to take this stuff too seriously and with a sense of timing that keeps the action going in a way that holds your attention through the movie.

SPORTS PROBE

Rashad to NBC; HBO airs grid history

Minnesota Vikings wide receiver Ahmad Rashad, one of the leading pass catchers in NFL history, has been signed to an exclusive multi-year contract as an NBC sports-caster. Rashad, 33, already has five years experience as a radio and television sportscaster in the Twin Cities. At NBC, he is expected to report on a variety of sports assignments include color commentary on NFL telecasts and reporting duties for "SportsWorld."

sive, in-depth retrospective of the game, airing Sunday, Jan. 30. The program spans nearly nine decades of pro football in this country, tracing its roots in the muddy, rural Midwestern fields to the climate-controlled sports palaces of the '80s. The show combines rare and historic film clips with new, original footage as well as interviews with many of football's most important personalities.

Merlin Olsen

Rashad, a graduate of Oregon, is the Vikings' all-time career reception and receiving yardage leaders. He finishes his career with 495 catches, 13th in the all-time NFL record book.

CBS TEES OFF — CBS Sports has increased its coverage of professional golf tournaments in 1983. The network will cover 16 events including expanded coverage of the Masters, TPA Championship, Memorial Tournament, World Series of Golf, Bing Crosby National Pro-Am and, for the first time, the LPGA McDonald's Classic.

SUPER TEAM — Merlin Olsen and Dick Enberg will be NBC's broadcasting team for Super Bowl XVII, this Sunday, Jan. 30. The duo have worked as a team at two previous Super Bowls. Olsen will be the game analyst and Enberg provides play-by-play.

GRID HISTORY — HBO Sports will air "The History of Pro Football," an exclu-

AIRPLANE II: The Sequel, from Paramount Pictures. Written and Directed by Ken Finkleman. Starring Robert Hays, Julie Hagerty, Lloyd Bridges. Rated 'PG' ★ ★

By J.T. YURKO

This week's column should have the title "Sequels and Second Takes." Comedy movies are few and far between, and when a successful one comes along, filmmakers will do almost anything to make sure that they can tap the comedic gold mine one more time.

One of the movies under examination here is a straight sequel to the vastly successful "Airplane!" but in the other film the producers had to rob the celluloid grave to come up with one more "Pink Panther" movie.

"Airplane II: The Sequel" contains much of the same nonsense and non sequiturs as the first film — remarkable considering that the writers and directors of the original film had nothing to do with the sequel.

Writer/director Ken Finkleman has managed to copy the style of humor quite well here, but that is really the film's major downfall.

Those wildly insane characters, those absurd Marx Brothers-style jokes that made the first film such a delightful farce, are now simply reworked and re-hashed. There's no progression or advancement of the humor.

There are lots of jokes and gags, almost too many to catch them all. Included are a few references to other films, such as "2001" and "Invasion of the Body Snatchers." Yet the feeling is that it's all been seen before.

As for the "Pink Panther" film, this must have been done as an exercise by Blake Edwards to see if he could assemble the outtakes of other Peter Sellers movies and make a script to fit them. As many you know, exercises can be boring — and this one is.

Exercising can also be a strain, and the plot shows the strains of trying to bend to fit the Sellers clips. These clips should have been simply strung together in a documentary/tribute to Sellers instead of re-merchandising the face on the cutting-room floor.
