Gordon of the Smokey Bear Ranger District said the cattle will probably graze in the pasture, south of Highway 70, until mid-July.

Downtown to get parking relief

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

Relief is in store this summer for the downtown parking problem, thanks to the help of a private landowner who has loaned the village a piece of property for public parking.

Alto Village developer Don Blaugrund has agreed to let the village create a parking lot on 1.24 acres he owns on Wingfield Street across from the police-courts complex. The lot will hold an estimated 100 to 125 vehicles.

The site is on the corner of Wingfield and Center Street, one block south of downtown.

Chamber of Commerce president James Paxton inspected the site with Blaugrund and street superintendent Jack LaMay Tuesday to determine if it would be feasible as a parking lot.

The land is mostly open, with some large pine trees clustered on one corner and a few smaller trees scattered over the acre. Blaugrund said he wants the tall pines left standing, but the smaller trees can be cut to provide room for parking.

LaMay pointed out the land, which rises in the center, would have to be leveled and filled. He said the lot would be excavated to allow drainage down to Wingfield and Center.

The surface of the lot will be compacted with base course, LaMay said. Assistant village manager Frank Potter said the village is "100 percent behind the idea." He said the street department will provide the manpower and materials to clear and fill the lot. Potter added that the work should start next week, and the lot could be ready by Memorial Day weekend.

Paxton, who has coordinated the idea, also noted that Nottingham's Pub owner Gary Hall will build stairs leading from Nottingham's parking lot to Texas Street. The street is located between Sudderth Drive and Wingfield and borders Blaugrund's property.

Hall said work on the stairs will begin as soon as the village starts clearing the parking site.

Hall noted the new lot will be a big benefit to downtown merchants.

"Any additional parking is just going to help everything," he said.

In addition to clearing and leveling the site, the village will erect directional signs on Sudderth to the lot, according to Potter.

The parking lot will be available to the public at least through the summer. Blaugrund said he offered the site for parking about five years ago, but nothing was done about the proposal.

Now, he said he guarantees it will be free for public parking this summer, and can remain a parking lot until someone offers to buy the commercial tract.

Paxton, who is also on the Planning and Zoning Commission, said use of the site for parking conforms with the property's zoning designation. He estimated the lot will hold up to 125 vehicles.

Chamber planning banquet

by BILLY ALLSTETTER
Staff Writer

The Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce Board of directors Wednesday chose a location for the annual Chamber banquet and appointed committees to work with newly elected officers.

The board accepted a bid from Cree Meadows Restaurant to provide a buffet dinner with three entrees, a choice of salads, rolls, desert, tax and tip for $13.50.

The board has not decided on a speaker for the banquet and does not plan to set a date for the event until it is sure of a speaker's availability.

Board member Tommy Morel said he has had difficulty finding speakers who can come to the dinner. Morel has been trying to find a speaker who will address the group for free.

The board decided to set a ceiling of $1,000 they will pay for a speaker. Morel indicated this will greatly increase his options. The price of the dinner would be raised above the $13.50 base rate to pay for the speaker.

Morel and Chamber executive director Ed Jungbluth will try to line up a speaker this week so the date for the banquet can be set as soon as possible. Jungbluth said they hope to have the banquet sometime in the middle of June.

Morel, vice-president in charge of advertising, named four people to work with him on the advertising committee. The board approved the committee appointments of Morgan Clough, Jim Goodwin, Don Wenner and Bill Happel.

The board also approved the appointments of Joe Loving, Danny Brown, Walt Lindborg and Bill Braudt to the budget committee. Ronnie Hemphill, vice-president in charge of operations and management, will chair the committee.

Joan Bailey was named chairperson of the Aspen Festival committee. Sandy Dacy and Dan Shaver were named to head the two opposing teams on the upcoming Chamber membership drive. Dacy will coach the men's team and Shaver the women's.

The board tabled a recommendation by the insurance committee to drop the maternity benefits from the Chamber's health insurance program. The board tabled the recommendation in spite of a poll indicating a 10-1 opposition to continuing maternity benefits among those insured. The vote was 10-3 in favor of tabling the recommendation.

Danny Brown, who voted to table the recommendation, said he was opposed to changing the insurance coverage until a decision is made about which company the Chamber will use for its insurance program. Other board members echoed his sentiments. The Chamber now has a group health program endorsed by Blue Cross Blue Shield. Sharply escalating premium rates have caused the Chamber to investigate other companies.

Jungbluth said the insurance committee heard a presentation earlier this week about National Equity Life Insurance and is investigating the background of this relatively new company. The Chamber has also received an offer from Time Insurance Company through Benny Coulston.

In other business, the board heard that Chamber membership dropped a net of eight members during the past month, mostly due to nonpayment. This continues a downward trend exhibited over the past few months.

Heard Joan Bailey report that the Retail Merchants Committee will be welcoming new businesses in town, will hold elections soon for a new chairman and is planning to begin work on the Aspen Festival soon.

Heard Jungbluth report that all preparations for the Art Festival are "doing very well."

Heard president James Paxton announce a tax workshop for board members to better acquaint themselves with lodgers' tax, gross receipts tax and other taxes.

Jubilee runs through weekend

by BILLY ALLSTETTER
Staff Writer

In spite of disappointing registration and cancellation of some planned activities, the Golden Years Jubilee is continuing, with two of the biggest activities planned for Friday and Saturday.

"Registration is slow. It's not filling the town, that's for sure," said Nancy Radziewicz, one of the Jubilee organizers.

Radziewicz said about 100 people, most of them Lincoln County residents, had registered for the Jubilee as of Wednesday morning. Organizers were still confused Wednesday why more people did not come to the Jubilee after it was publicized in 11 states.

Radziewicz said participants have most often noted the timing of the festival as a problem. May, being Older Americans Month, spawned competing activities for senior citizens all over the United States. May is also a time of graduations and Mother's Day, which keeps many people close to home.

The meager numbers necessitated the cancellation of three tours planned for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. However, registrants have been taking the tours on their own.

Those that have come do seem to be enjoying themselves. "We've been having a really good time," said Sue Craig, who came with 10 others from Andrews, Texas.

In absence of the tours, the Adult Recreation Center has become the center of activity for the Jubileers. Bette Romans, director of the Adult Recreation Center, said the center has been full every day with registrants playing bridge, 42, dominos and other games. The center had to stay open longer than usual Monday because of the crowds there, said Radziewicz.

The Adult Recreation Center hosted a spontaneous luncheon Wednesday that close to 75 people attended, including Mayor George White and his wife, Ruth.

Jubileers and locals alike filled Nottingham's Pub Monday night for Keith Holder's portrayal of Theodore Roosevelt in the one-man play, "Bully!" Jubilee organizers are hopeful that locals will turn out in force for the Health Fair and Frontier Days this weekend.

The Health Fair, at Jerry Dale's from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday, will feature over 25 health education exhibitors, 10 health screening tests, and counseling and referrals by local doctors. The Health Fair, sponsored by Home Health Services of Lincoln County, is free to the public.

Tests for blood pressure, vision, glaucoma, diabetes, body fat, hearing, anemia and more will be offered free of charge to people of all ages. Local doctors will be on hand to help interpret the test results, offer guidance for potential health problems and refer people to a source of care if needed.

A number of national and local organizations will have booths at the fair to provide health information. The American Cancer Society, American Heart Association, Kidney Foundation, Diabetic Association and Easter Seal Society will be among the national organizations exhibiting at the fair.

Home Health Services of Lincoln County; Mescalero and Ruidoso-

Hondo Valley Hospitals, Lions Club Eye Bank, Lincoln County Mental Health Association, Ruidoso Care Center, Lincoln House, and Ruidoso Chiropractic Clinic will also be exhibiting at the fair.

Lecturers will speak on different health subjects during the fair. Speakers will cover Nutrition and the Golden Years, Home Safety and Protection, and "Everything you wanted to know about Social Security but were afraid to ask."

Outside Jerry Dale's, fire fighting equipment, an emergency medical transport helicopter and an ambulance will be on display. Personnel will be on hand to explain how they operate the equipment.

Very different equipment and skills will be on display at the Frontier Days in School House Park Saturday. Craftspeople will demonstrate frontier skills such as quilting, spinning, weaving, bronze pouring, the art of stained glass, soapmaking and whittling. They will also be selling their wares at the fair.

The Flying J Wranglers, the Out of Hand Band, Indian dancers from the Mescalero Head Start Program and others will provide continuous entertainment throughout the day.

There will also be hog calling, watermelon seed spitting and horseshoe pitching contests during the day.

Historical writer Eve Ball will speak on local history and some of its characters at the Ruidoso Public Library from 3:15 p.m. to 4:15 p.m.

Admission to the Frontier Days is free. A five-dollar lunch will be served at School House Park. The Mescalero Apaches will also be selling their fry bread during the day.

Yallah Zip in Friday's feature

Yallah Zip seeks revenge for a disappointing effort in his last race when he competes in Friday's featured event at Ruidoso Downs.

The Friday card begins a three-day weekend at the mountain track. As usual, all senior citizens will receive free general admission.

Yallah Zip will be a solid contender in this allowance race for three-year-olds going six furlongs. The purse will be $4,000.

In his local debut on May 8, Yallah Zip faced nine sophomores at six furlongs. He took an early lead, while battling outsider Up At Night for the lead, through the early and middle portions of the chase.

He faded at the end and finished eighth as a $1.90-1 wagering favorite.

That was the first start for the Yallah Native gelding since competing last December in the Fall Thoroughbred Futurity at Sunland Park.

As a two-year-old in 1982, the New Mexico-bred runner won three races, with five thirds in 13 outings. He won two races last summer at Ruidoso Downs, including an allowance chase on September 4.

Trained by J. Doyal Roberts, Yallah Zip is owned by L.G. and Helen Rhodes of Abilene, Texas.

Some Other Brother, third in that same race on May 8 with Yallah Zip, may again be a solid threat.

The Restore colt was in the middle of the pack and improved to finish third, just a half-length behind runner-up Damberod as a 22-1 outsider.

Some Other Brother snapped his maiden by drawing out to win by almost three lengths in a six-furlong dash on May 1 at Sunland Park as a 6-5 wagering choice.

The Texas-bred colt is trained by Clifford C. Lambert for owners Robert A. McCashland and Barney C. Green of Eunice.

Here's the field in post position order, with assigned jockeys and weights: 1—Lead Me Careless (114); 2—Spunky Lark (Carlos Rivas, 115); 3—Noble Carry (Leroy Coombs, 115); 4—Some Other Brother (120); 5—Tishie's Image (Steve Asmusen, 110); 6—Al Banco (Mike Lidberg, 114); 7—Southern Rounder (Stuart Dolphus, 120); 8—Yallah Zip (Paul Jaramillo, 110); 9—Southern Rocket (Larry Byers, 115); 10—Cherokee Blade (O.A. Martinez Jr., 115).

Racing continues on Saturday with two featured events. The Kansas Derby Consolation for the second group of 10 fastest three-year-olds from May 6 trial races will be run at 400 yards. The winner will collect $9,682.05 from the total purse of $47,119.31.

The Lincoln County Handicap is set for three-year-old and older runners competing under handicap weights assigned by racing secretary Dean McKinney. The six and one half furlong dash will have a purse of $8,000-added.

Sunday's feature will be the Kansas Derby, the first leg of the Triple Crown for three-year-old quarter horses. The winner of this 400-yard chase will earn $112,957.25 from the gross purse of $327,735.

Post time for each day's 12-race card will be 1 p.m.

Education report nearly ready

A draft report based on a needs assessment study for higher education in Ruidoso and Lincoln County should be ready next week, according to Orlo A. Sundre, dean of continuing education at Eastern New Mexico University at Portales.

Sundre coordinated a survey of area business and professional people and high school students several months ago, and has been preparing the report from the survey data.

"Basically, it's been written," said Sundre, who noted he hopes to deliver the draft report to the Board of Education by Thursday of next week.

Sundre was asked what the survey, which was geared to determining the need for post-secondary education—college-level and vocational-technical—revealed.

"I would say it's encouraging," he said. "The returns we got ... they were really quite positive." He noted that the final chapter of the report will include a summary and interpretation.

Sundre said he was disappointed with the relatively low rate of returned surveys from business and professional people. Of 525 forms mailed out, 193 were returned—about 37 percent.

But Sundre pointed out that employers returning forms provided data on the educational needs of 1,088 permanent employees and 399 seasonal employees.

High school students, a "captive audience," achieved a much better rate of return. Of 520 area students in grades 10, 11 and 12, 452 completed forms.

Of that number, said Sundre, 258 indicated they plan to attend college. That is "a high percentage in my opinion—higher than the average in New Mexico," he noted.

Parents of high school students returned 134 forms from 407 families—a return rate of 33 percent.

Sundre said a final report will be issued after local officials review the draft document.

"We should be able to do that almost immediately," he said.

Sun Country magazine due

by BILLY ALLSTETTER
Staff Writer

The imminent publication of a 96-page color magazine dominated Monday's meeting of Sun Country U.S.A. at the Inn of the Mountain Gods.

Representatives of nine of the 10 member communities also discussed accomplishments for the year that was considered a "turning of the corner" by many.

Sun Country U.S.A. is a regional tourism promotion organization of which both Ruidoso and the Inn of the Mountain Gods are members. The region includes southern New Mexico, west Texas and the state of Chihuahua in Old Mexico.

Pat and Cindy Breedlove of Mountain Productions showed members Xerox copies of the magazine pages that will be sent to printers within a week.

The magazine will include three pages of copy and pictures for each member of the organization. The 100,000 copies will be distributed among members, who will use it as a promotional tool. Members also discussed sending the magazine to selected travel writers, tour brokers and travel agencies which could be influential in directing tourists to the region.

Members appeared very pleased with the magazine and other promotional accomplishments during the year. Ray Walker, executive director of the organization, noted that in addition to the publication of the magazine for the first time this year, Sun Country also published 500,000 Sun Country Brochures, including 50,000 in Spanish.

Sun Country also ran advertisements in Southern Living magazine for three months, generating almost 1,400 requests for information about the region, said Walker.

The group sponsored a "legislative lunch" in Santa Fe during which they familiarized legislators with the organization's activities and lobbied for passage of an increased appropriation to the Travel and Tourism Division of the Commerce and Industry Department.

"I think we were instrumental in getting that legislation through," said

Jack White Jr. of White City. The legislation tripled Travel and Tourism's budget and allocated $750,000 for matching advertising funds used by communities.

Members planned a similar lobbying effort during next year's legislative session.

"I think we opened up a whole new world there," said Darlene Moutray of Carlsbad, Sun Country president.

Members also planned to send representatives to the National Tour Association and American Bus Association conventions in November and December.

Tommy Morel, director of sales at the Inn of the Mountain Gods, attended the National Tour Association last year and called it "one of the neatest things I've ever been to." Morel explained that five-minute one-on-one meetings were scheduled with tour brokers from all over the country, during which he tried to sell the broker on the attractiveness of Sun Country.

"We should definitely be there again," said Morel.

Vietnam vets to travel to memorial

A delegation of Lincoln County Vietnam War veterans will travel to Angel Fire Memorial Day weekend for activities connected with the rededication of the Disabled American Veterans (DAV) Vietnam Veterans National Memorial.

Bob Hagan and Lucky Mulqueen of the Lincoln County chapter of Vietnam Veterans of New Mexico are trying to get word of the trip to all veterans in the county. There will be a meeting at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday, May 24, at Mulqueen's house to finalize plans for the trip.

Free keg beer and a horseshoe tournament will be offered at the meeting, and all county Vietnam vets are invited. The house is the old Dial Electric building behind Sierra Automotive, near the stoplight at Mechem and Sudderth in Ruidoso.

Plans at this time are for a convoy to leave for Angel Fire at 9 a.m. Saturday, May 28, from Hill's Pancake House. Some of the group will be traveling in a converted school bus.

Camping facilities are available in the area. A highlight of the weekend is a Volksmarch, and reunions and concerts are also scheduled.

Details on transportation will be worked out at Wednesday's meeting. Hagan and Mulqueen said they hope 20 to 30 persons will be able to make the trip.

The Memorial Day picnic that Lincoln County Vietnam vets have sponsored the past two years has been moved to Fourth of July this year, because of the Angel Fire trip.

The DAV recently took responsibility for the Vietnam Veterans National Memorial, and rededication of the shrine will take place May 30, Memorial Day. The structure was completed in 1971 through the efforts of Dr. Victor Westphall, whose son David was killed in Vietnam.

It has since been recognized nationally, and was featured on the PM Magazine and Real People television shows. Edward Galian, national commander of the DAV, called it "the most important architectural statement America has ever made."

Those interested in the trip may contact Hagan at 378-4524 or Mulqueen at 257-2798 for information.

Sunday's Altrusa Tour of Homes features five extraordinary houses

Positive Perspectives '83, the Altrusa Club's annual tour of homes, will feature five extraordinary homes Sunday, May 22, from 2 to 6 p.m.

The self-guided tour will allow people to see how builders and owners have used their imaginations to create unique living environments, said Altrusa president Coni Foster.

The home of Jean and Bob Anderson is a multi-level home with a view of either the Capitan Mountains, Sierra Blanca or the Alto Lakes golf course from every room. Built by George Cliff, the house also has redwood decks off each room. The Anderson home also features numerous stained glass windows made by Jane and Jerry Perry.

The home of Paul and Jeannie Whitman also features glass work by the Perrys. The solar and conservation measures of the Whitman home keep monthly utility bills in this all-electric house down to $70 a month, as compared to $500 a month for a similar house built without the energy savings in mind.

Moss rock, extensive copper and seven ceiling fans are other features that will interest the visitor to the Whitman home.

Moss rock is one of the major features of the home of Karen and Joe Loving. Rock walls extend 30 feet into the air on three sides around the front door.

"Standing in the doorway makes you feel small," said Karen Loving.

The high ceilings, skylights and atrium inside, however, contrast greatly with the extensive rock outside. With the kitchen, dining room and living room all contained in one open area, the house is set up to entertain casually. Loving chose the "cool green" scheme of the living room to bring out the color in the moss rock around the fireplace.

Wood dominates the color scheme of the Murray Fasken home. Parquet floors and unfinished wood walls throughout this house provide the background for a gallery of antique and modern art.

The outstanding stone and copper fireplace dominates the sunken living room that is overlooked by an indoor balcony off the master bedroom suite. The master bedroom of the Mark Mathess home has 16-foot pine wood ceilings and a fireplace of its own, as do the living and family rooms.

Majestic views of Sierra Blanca are available from the back of this contemporary house.

Redwood and imported tile surround the six-foot square spa, and redwood lines the sauna in this home.

Tickets for the Altrusa tour of homes are available from any Altrusan for $4. The tickets include a map that guides visitors to the houses. There will also be signs leading to each house. For more information, call Carol Mound at 257-4011.

Tea to honor retiring educators

Retiring Ruidoso School Superintendent Pat Valliant and other school system retirees will be honored at a tea Tuesday, May 24, to which the community is cordially invited.

Beginning at 3:45 p.m. at the high school home economics cottage, the tea will honor former Board of Education president Dave Parks and member C. L. "Bones" Wright; teachers Marie and Tom McNeil and Leroy Gooch; retiring head of food services Alice Allison; and Valliant.

A scholarship fund has been established for Valliant, who is completing his 28th year in Ruidoso Schools administration. Valliant joined the school district in 1955, serving as junior high school principal. He later became high school principal, and has been superintendent for the past 13 years.

"He has been, I think, the glue, the motivating force, the guy who put it all together," longtime high school instructor Dub Williams commented about Valliant.

"What we have in 1983 is a result of Pat Valliant," Williams added.

The scholarship fund was begun by the Ruidoso Education Association (REA) and is open for donations from anyone in the community. The first scholarship will be awarded to a member of the 1983 graduating class.

First consideration will be given to students interested in pursuing a career in education, but the scholarship will not be limited to those students. The recipient must be a senior with a grade point average of 3.5 or better, and the scholarship will be renewable for four years if a 3.0 grade point average is maintained in college.

The fund will be overseen by the high school scholarship committee.

"It (the scholarship) carries through on Pat's belief that everything involved with school is to help the student," White Mountain Elementary School principal Mike Gladden explained. "The scholarship will be characteristic of his career objectives."

It will be a continuing scholarship, with contributions to be deposited in a certificate of deposit to draw interest for future awards. Donations to the Pat Valliant Scholarship can be made at any time in the future.

The public is invited to help with the inception of the scholarship this year and can make contributions now by sending a check to Sandy Gladden, REA president, Drawer 430, Ruidoso High School, Ruidoso, New Mexico 88345.

Residents are also encouraged to attend the tea Tuesday to honor all retiring school district personnel.

Council approves sewer system

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

After hearing only two protests to the new sewer assessment district on Alto Crest and Snowflake Ridge, the Ruidoso village council Tuesday approved the preliminary cost estimate of the system and authorized engineer Tim Collins to design the project.

In presenting the cost figures to the council, Collins said the sewer system will provide service to 80 residential and commercial lots, and will cost an estimated $315,780.

The council will issue bonds to finance the project, which will be paid off with revenues from the property assessments.

Collins noted that three methods of assessment were considered. He said the project cost could have been divided equally among the property owners, or each parcel could have been assessed based on the amount of front footage on a street.

He said the first option would have made the system too expensive for single-family home owners. Under the second option, large commercial lots would not have been assessed a fair value, Collins said, because they have relatively small areas of front footage.

The option Collins proposed and which was okayed by the council was an assessment based on acreage. Under the agreement, property owners will be assessed an estimated $2,676 per acre, to be paid in regular installments over 20 years.

Since many of the residential lots are about a quarter acre, the system will cost most property owners around $700. Collins said some of the commercial tracts will be assessed from $4,000 to $7,000, and the Swiss Chalet Inn will pay over $15,000.

George Peinado, owner of the Snowflake Ridge tract, will be assessed almost $200,000 for the system. Snowflake Ridge encompasses 79 acres of the district.

The individual assessments do not include costs of actually tying on to the system. Collins explained the main collector lines will be laid through the district with stub-outs provided for individual lots. Property owners who want to connect to the system would be responsible for the connection costs.

One of the property owners, Albert Niess, objected to the division of costs because he felt he was being assessed a disproportionate amount for his single-family home compared to the commercial assessments.

Niess said that, according to the plan, he will be assessed $2,475 for his lot, which is just under one acre. Niess pointed out he installed a septic tank on the property in 1979 and has no plans to connect to the sewer line.

If he connects to the sewer system, Niess said he would have a "$4,000 toilet," which figure would include the assessment and the cost of tapping into the line.

Niess also objected to the planned route of the collector line, which he said would require clearing of a lot of forest.

"My protest is about disrupting further timber land when you can go up streets and probably accommodate as many lots," he contended.

Collins pointed out the collector system partially follows the forest route because the route provides the best means for natural flow. He said if the lines are put in only under streets, costly pumping stations would have to be provided in some areas.

W. J. Von Rosenberg also protested the assessment to his property because his lot has no direct access to the planned line. In the vote to accept the plan, the council agreed to remove his property from the assessment.

Also, councilmen Don Dale and Frank Sayer suggested that Niess' assessment be lowered if possible, since he was the only property owner who protested.

Financial consultant Darrell Fowler of Stern Brothers of Albuquerque noted the assessment figures may be lower once the design is complete and the project goes to bid. Therefore, he suggested the cost to Niess could be adjusted later if it remains high.

Also, environmentalist Jim Edwards explained that Niess would be better off connecting to the system because his septic tank will eventually fail.

It was also noted that Niess and other property owners can comment on the plan at another hearing, to be scheduled when the final assessments are established.

Collins said they will be at least two months before the project is ready for bidding.

Williamson, Branum win honors at banquet

by Gary Brown
Sports Writer

Grady Williamson and Claudia Branum received the Greatest Warrior awards for boys and girls, respectively, at the Ruidoso High School all-sports banquet Monday night in the Warrior gymnasium.

The award is restricted to senior athletes who compete in three sports in their final year. Williamson competed in football, basketball and track, while Branum participated in volleyball, basketball and track.

Williamson was also named top offensive back on the Warrior football team and top free throw shooter on the boys basketball team. He finished fifth in the intermediate hurdles at the state track meet and was also a fine 400 meter runner and relay star. The University of New Mexico (UNM)-bound athlete was selected to the all-district 3-AAA first team as a running back.

Branum made all-district in girls basketball, was a starter on the volleyball team and threw the shot put and discus in track. The 5-8 senior is also a standout player on the Rebels softball team in the Lincoln County Women's Softball Association.

There were plenty of other honors dished out at the banquet, which attracted a crowd of about 300 people. Athletes in 10 different sports were honored.

The football presentations were first, with head varsity coach Darrel Stierwalt honoring his players.

Besides Williamson's pick as most valuable offensive back, junior Craig Carson was named most valuable offensive lineman, senior Kyle Flack was picked as most valuable defensive lineman and junior Cyrus Simmons was selected most valuable defensive back.

Stierwalt praised his young team which went 1-9 on the season. The Warriors only lose 10 players to graduation.

The girls volleyball team was honored by first-year coach Elmer Chavez. The Warriors were 9-8 on the season and lost a narrow decision to Tularosa High School in the first round of the district playoffs.

Senior Lori Morel was named most valuable player. She also made the all-district team along with Laura Trapp.

Coach Ron Geyer honored his boys varsity basketball team. The team didn't win a game this season, but was composed mainly of underclassmen who will return next season.

Along with Williamson's top free throw shooting award, H. R. Lueras and Gilbert Rivera were honored as most valuable players.

Both Lueras and Rivera were consistent scorers and playmakers. Junior Curtis Palmer was named top rebounder. The 6-3 athlete had a single-game high of 19 rebounds and improved over the course of the season.

Girls basketball coach Sergio Castanon introduced his girls to the crowd and talked about the close games the Warriors had during the season. Most of the Warrior losses were by less than 10 points.

Kody Taylor was named most valuable player and top free throw shooter on the girls basketball team. The senior made the all-district team along with Branum. Jan Huey and Sonja Jefferson were named top rebounders.

Coach Gerald Ames talked about his wrestling team and about the tough competition his wrestlers faced.

Senior Henry Rue, who competed in the 126-pound division, was selected most valuable wrestler.

Rue was honored also as the wrestler with the most pins, while 167-pound Scott Ciraulo had the most takedowns.

The Warrior matmen finished in a third-place tie at the district meet and sent nine men to the state tournament.

Golf coach Leroy Gooch introduced his team to the gathering and named junior Virgil Reynolds as most valuable player.

The Warrior golfers showed improvement over the course of the season. Ruidoso had its best tournament in the final competition of the season at the Deming Invitational. The Warriors fired a 336 total for fourth place. A possible first in the history of Ruidoso athletics occurred when the members of the boys track team named manager Richie Sanchez their most valuable player.

It's believed the first time a manager has ever been given the most valuable honor by a Warrior team.

The track squad had probably the best season of any male team at the school this year, sending four athletes to the state meet and scoring in every event they were entered in.

Head coach Ronny Maskew described the season as "very successful" and called the future bright.

The Ruidoso boys finished fourth in the district meet with a mainly underclassman team.

Ruidoso's girls track team finished second for the second year in a row despite having just 11 athletes on the team.

"The girls we had did a great job," said coach Castanon. "We finished second while Silver City won the district title with 45 girls."

Junior Valerie Garcia was named most valuable player. Garcia has qualified for the state meet three straight years. She's an outstanding relay runner and long sprinter.

Tennis coach Mike Crocker joked with the crowd while introducing his boys and girls tennis teams.

This was the first time in several years Ruidoso has had a tennis team, but the Warriors still did well in district competition.

Ruidoso won two matches in boys competition and three in girls action.

Laura Trapp was named the most valuable player for the girls team, and Ryan Brown was picked as the most valuable player on the boys team. Trapp was unbeaten in regular-season competition while Brown, who is a sophomore, showed much improvement over the course of the season.

Junior Dahn Stirman was named the top cheerleader.

Billy Woodul and Huey were honored with scholar-athlete awards

Jacobson wins race

Candy Jacobson did well for her first time in a competitive race when she participated in a 10-kilometer (6.2 miles) race May 7 in Roswell.

The Ruidoso woman won the overall female championship in the race. She also won the 30 to 39-year-old division crown. She finished in 44 minutes and 15 seconds. There was also a marathon race and a half-marathon race.

"I was very surprised to win the race," Jacobson said. "I thought the times might be faster. I plan on competing in more races this year."

Another Ruidoso runner, Pete Thompson, competed in the half-marathon race and finished in one hour, 43 minutes and 21 seconds. He has been bothered by an injured foot.

Jacobson has been running informally for several years. However, she did not start running seriously in practice until 20 months ago.

"When I stopped smoking, I started to run more seriously," she said. "I ran more to take my mind off smoking."

Over 100 runners competed in the three races.

The old adage, if at first you don't succeed, try, try again, could apply to the status of adult soccer in the Ruidoso area.

Several people have tried to get an adult soccer league started in Ruidoso for the past couple of years. Several years ago an adult league existed with three men's teams and two women's teams. Since then, however, the interest has fallen down.

But soccer enthusiasts keep trying. There will be an informal soccer practice at 1 p.m. Sunday on the White Mountain Middle School field.

"All I really care about right now is getting enough people to play informally," said Darrel Gateley, one of the local people who is trying to get the program started again. "We hope to have informal games where the score will be kept. There are several certified soccer referees in town, along with some people who have played competitive soccer."

Butch Grantham, the former director of the Ruidoso Soccer Association, played with a Dallas Tornado B team several years ago. Bob Gregson, owner of Gregson's Restaurant, played for a team in Manchester, England 18 years ago.

"I think we've got a chance of making it with adult soccer now," Gregson said. "The previous league just sort of dropped out because of lack of interest. However, the way the town has grown over the past couple of years with the increase in youth soccer, I think we've got some increased interest." But adult soccer still has a way to go before reaching a high stage of popularity.

The popularity of the sport among adults over 25 years old isn't as extensive in this country as it is with teenagers and young children.

Soccer didn't really start getting organized into youth leagues until the early 1970's.

As a result, the adult population in this country hasn't been exposed to soccer that much. Many adults don't even know the basic rules of the game.

But that's slowly changing. With more youths getting involved in soccer, their parents are gradually becoming more knowledgeable about the sport.

With luck, the informal soccer games that will be played at White Mountain Middle School could turn into an organized adult soccer league some day.

Turning to football, former Ruidoso High School standout Lon Nunley has earned a starting position on the University of New Mexico (UNM) football team after doing well in spring practice.

The 6-1, 205-pound Nunley is currently a starter at defensive tackle for the always-defensively strong Lobos. UNM lost many defensive starters from last year's 10-1 squad, so Nunley figures to be a big part of the Lobo defense next fall.

Ordorica seeks regional title

David Ordorica has won four state junior boxing titles in less than a year, but the Ruidoso-Lincoln County Police Athletic League (PAL) Boxing Team Athletic will be going for a bigger prize May 28-29.

That is when the Ruidoso High School freshman will compete in the Junior Olympics regionals in Albuquerque against some of the top boxers in the southwest.

Ordorica will be part of a New Mexico junior team that will compete against teams from Colorado and West Texas. The winners from the regional tournament will compete in the national Junior Olympics tournament in St. Paul, Minnesota June 12-19.

Ordorica won the state Junior Olympics 80-pound senior division title last weekend in Albuquerque.

The PAL boxing team is in need of money to finance Ordorica's trip. An open account has been set up at Pioneer Savings for people who would like to donate money for the local boxers. All donations are tax-deductible.

PAL boxing team coach Lucky Mulqueen extends his thanks to those people who have already helped the boxing team.

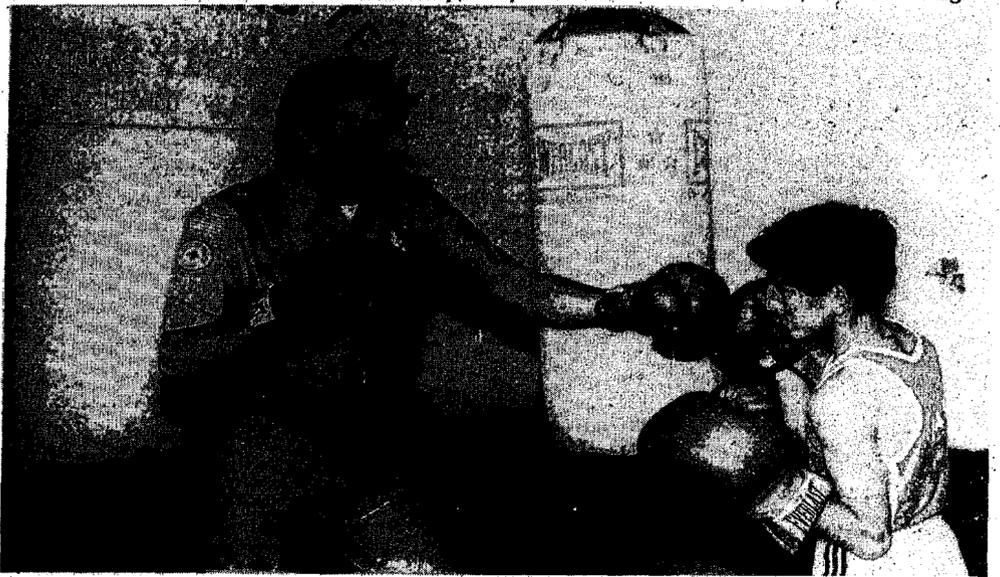

Among those who are donated money are Jim Kerley, Jackie Lawless, Jim Ryan, Allen Frye, Ted Durham and Wayne Ward.

PAL program to begin soon

The Junior Athletic Program, sponsored by the Ruidoso-Lincoln County Police Athletic League (PAL), will begin its spring sessions Saturday, May 28, at the White Mountain Middle School gymnasium.

The sessions will be each Saturday from 10 a.m. to noon. They will continue into the summer.

The program also needs coaches. For further information, write: PAL, PO Box 2330, Ruidoso.

Builders Lighting: a little business that grew and grew and grew

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

Don and June Miner came to Ruidoso fresh from the Artesia farmland almost two years ago, and decided to open a mom and pop lighting and ceiling fan business out of the back of their van.

Now, after planting their names with local builders and harvesting a series of timely offers in the last two years, the duo make up half a corporation that is housed in a 9,500-square-foot building on Suddeth Drive.

And, as they prepare for the first open house of Builders Lighting and Fan Shop this Saturday, Don is already talking of expanding the business statewide.

"If anyone would have said two years ago that we could be doing this well in this short a time, we wouldn't have believed it," reflects the jovial supplanted farmer, who has retained the easygoing attitude of a less hectic occupation.

In less than two years, the Miners have gone from selling a few products out of their van into a highly diversified building supply partnership that has branched out into a handful of satellite businesses.

Out of the showroom-warehouse located in the former Savage Electric building at 1500 Suddeth, the Miners, along with partners Arthur and Merrijo Newton, watch over six related businesses.

With Builders Lighting and Fan Shop as the anchor business, the building supply company has taken into its fleet United Carpet Brokers, Ruidoso Gutter Company, Western Building Supply, Look Out Blinds and Lincoln County Phone Company.

Don explained that Builders Lighting and Fan Shop serves as kind of a parent company for the other businesses. When they started out in the new building, the Miners had no idea the operation would branch out to include the other supply companies.

But as Don says, it is an arrangement that serves each business well. "If someone comes along with expertise we feel we could market, we'll help out," he explained.

What the Miners and Newtons have offered the other businesses is a location out of which to operate; management expertise; and, if needed, interim financing.

In return, the businesses all promote each other when they close deals on building projects. Don Miner, who said he has established a clientele of at least 200 builders, noted he risks his reputation in promoting the other firms. Therefore he must be confident in his partners.

He added that not all the "sub-businesses" taken on in the past year have worked out.

As they prepare for the open house, the Miners can look back and reflect on their successful climb up the business ladder.

When they were selling out of the van, which they still own, the Miners were "just looking for something to do a few days a week." They offered the same prices on lights and ceiling fans as large outlets in El Paso and Albuquerque, and before long their reputation was established with builders.

"We weren't trying to get rich or impress people, but we wanted to do what was fair," Don said. "We found out what they sold (in larger cities) and did the same thing."

The practice worked so well, Don added, that it created problems. "When we were selling out of the van, it was cool for us, but tough on customers." He noted that without an office, they were hard to contact.

Then it was time for phase two. They moved the business out of the van into a building near the main post office. With a place for storage, the Miners were able to buy direct from factories and offer even better prices.

They still operated as a small family business, setting no standard hours and taking on just one employee, Prexy Lopez, who is still with them.

But business prospered beyond their dreams.

Don attributes one reason for the success to the national recession.

"We could approach national companies whose sales were down, and we were able to pick up their lines," he explained.

Some of the major products they now carry are Jenn-Air, Hot Point and Thermador appliances, Prestige Cabinets and Alenco Windows.

Don said they were extremely satisfied with the business at that point. But when Savage Electric put its showroom up for sale, they were faced with a big decision. As Don said, they felt they either had to buy the building or take the chance a large appliance store would move in.

They bought the showroom and planted themselves in the front of the building last July. At the time, they operated out of one-third of the metal frame structure. As circumstances dictated, Savage later moved out of the building, providing Builders Lighting and Fan Shop room for expansion. And, as they say, the rest is history.

As Don roams the expanse of the building, always in pursuit of secretary Carol Miller bringing calls to the boss on his mobile telephone, he talks about branching out into Roswell, Artesia, Carlsbad, Alamogordo and perhaps across the state in the next two years.

It's not that he is restless, as Don says, "I'm as happy as I could be." It is just a reflection of his keen business sense.

With the business steadily growing, it would appear the employees are under constant pressure to perform.

But that is not reflected in the attitudes of the 16 workers. The atmosphere in the shop is patterned after the personalities of the owners, who seem to treat their workers like family members.

"I think probably the first thing I want to do every day is have fun," Miner concluded.

DON MINER relaxes for a moment at his desk—an unusual position for him these days—at Builders Lighting and Fan Shop. The former-turned-businessman has had great success in selling finished home products since he started with just a delivery van two years ago.

School bonds authorized under new ruling

A resolution to sell $1 million of the $1.25 million bond issue approved by voters February 1 for the Ruidoso School District was passed by the board of education in a special meeting Tuesday.

Bids will be opened and awarded at 11 a.m. Tuesday, June 28.

Financial consultant Darrell Fowler explained that under recently adopted federal regulations, all bonds issued now have to be fully registered bonds. Ruidoso is the first school district in New Mexico to issue bonds under the new law.

Issuance of registered bonds requires a transfer agent and printing agent, which will cost the school about $1,000 a year for a $1 million bond sale. Fowler recommended

First City Trust of Albuquerque be retained as transfer agent because it has an affiliate bank in Ruidoso, First City National.

Fowler said the new regulation results in making bond sales more complicated and requires more work on the part of fiscal agents.

Lodgers Association, Chamber submit lodgers' tax proposals

by DAVID SHEPPARD
Staff Writer

The Ruidoso Lodgers Association and the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce have different ideas on how lodgers' tax revenues should be spent next year.

And the Lodgers' Tax Committee (LTC) is uncertain which organization has the better proposal for its 1983-84 budget.

The committee tabled the budget proposals at a luncheon meeting Monday and will review them at a study session to be scheduled before the next regular meeting in June.

The main differences between the proposals fall in the total amount of requested expenditures and in funding of individual events.

Lodgers association president Glen Ferguson presented a budget of $125,000 that weighs heavily on seasonal promotional expenses. The lodgers group, which never before submitted an annual budget for lodgers' tax outlays, proposes an allocation of $87,000 for general community promotion, with portions of the amount allocated for each season.

Ferguson said that more should be appropriated for seasonal promotion, which would benefit the entire community. Currently, he said, tax revenues are used mainly for promoting individual events and that "nobody advertises just Ruidoso."

Also, the lodgers association would set aside over $16,000 in contingency funds to promote new events that show promise or for additional ski advertising if winter business is down. In the seasonal promotion package, the group wants $30,000 for ski season promotion, which is up from $27,000 allocated last winter.

Another RLA proposal is to cut in half or eliminate funding for established events that could be self-supporting, which would release money for the contingency fund.

Public money for advertising the fall mule races, which received $2,500 for advertising last year, would be cut to $500 under the RLA proposal. The Chamber of Commerce-sponsored art festival would be reduced from almost $4,000 used for advertising last year to $1,000 next year.

On the other hand, RLA wants LTC to allocate $8,000 for the fall motorcycle festival, double the amount approved by the village council last year.

In addition to the budget proposal, Ferguson asked the committee to consider using for promotion the $54,684 of lodgers' tax money that is being held in bank deposits. He wrote the committee that the money is not helping fill any motel in town.

He also suggested the Chamber should be self-supporting from membership dues—implying it should not receive financial assistance from lodgers' tax—and he sought the committee's support against raising the tax from 2 to 3 percent.

In contrast to the RLA budget proposal, the Chamber suggests across-the-board increases for promoting established Chamber-sponsored events, for seasonal advertising and to meet Chamber costs associated with tourist promotion.

The Chamber proposal, at $106,216, includes line item expenditures of $30,000 for the ski season, $2,500 for fall advertising and $16,000 for summer advertising. The Chamber also wants about $26,000 for printing and postage costs for promotion and to pay the wage of a full-time employee connected with tourist promotion.

In a change from last year, the Chamber is not proposing allocations for events organized by other groups. Chamber executive director Ed

Jungbluth said the other organizations "should speak for themselves."

The committee quickly tabled both budget proposals, and agreed to review them during a study session with representatives from the Chamber and village administration.

In other business, LTC: —Agreed to transfer money between two accounts approved for the Chamber to balance deficits in printing and trade show costs.

—Accepted a financial report from treasurer Archer Wilson that shows a 3 percent decline in collections from the same 10-month period last year. On a bright note, the report shows April collections—totaling $9,307—more than doubled the revenue taken in last April.

'World's Richest Ski Race' possible sponsorship discussed

by BILLY ALLSTETTER
Staff Writer

Community leaders looking into the possibility of hosting the world's richest ski race decided Monday to contact state and regional businesses for potential sponsorship of the race.

Members of the ad hoc committee also discussed a three percent lodgers' tax and matching state funds as possible sources of revenue for the U.S. Open ski race.

Paul Carson, founder and executive director of Pro Ski International, has proposed Ruidoso and Sierra Blanca Ski Resort as the site for the U.S. Open, which will be the culmination of an eight-race professional ski racing circuit in Europe and the United States.

He has asked that Ruidoso raise the money to sponsor the race. In return Ruidoso will receive substantial national publicity through cable television and print media, explained Carson. The money Ruidoso needs to raise has been mentioned at anywhere from $100,000 to $250,000.

Committee members compiled a list of regional businesses which might consider a partial sponsorship of the race along with Ruidoso. In exchange for their money, they will receive exposure in the form of banners and ski race bibs during the race, which will be televised by U.S.A. Network, a cable television network with 17 million viewers.

Walker Redd, general manager of the Ruidoso Inn, said his parent company, Reddington Investments, is very interested in sponsoring some of it.

Members also discussed the possibility of using lodgers' tax funds for race sponsorship. While it was agreed that there is little room for extra expenditures in the current lodgers' tax funds, members believed the ski race might be able to use $1.2 million generated by raising the lodgers' tax from the current two percent to three percent.

The three percent lodgers' tax would also make the village eligible for matching funds from the state.

Chamber of Commerce executive director Ed Jungbluth said he plans to talk to Alex Mercure, Secretary of Commerce and Industry, to get an idea of the chances for receiving matching funds for the ski race.

"I think we've got much better than a 50-50 chance of getting that money," said Jungbluth.

Before approaching the potential sponsors, Jungbluth will talk to Carson to make sure there are no conflicts with national sponsors with whom he is currently negotiating for sponsorship. Members also suggested obtaining more material on USA Network, their areas of dominant influence and actual exposure sponsors will receive.

PUBLIC NOTICE TO ALL OUR CUSTOMERS
CONTINENTAL TELEPHONE of the WEST's scheduled conversion to digital switching equipment for our Ruidoso office has been delayed until approximately July 1, 1983. This is due to last minute modification made by the manufacturer. Until this conversion is made, you will still have trouble dialing long distance 1+xxx-xxxx from prefixes 257, 258, 336 and 671 during the day. When you dial 1+ and get a busy signal, it is because the old switching equipment cannot handle the volume of long distance calls placed during the day. We apologize for this inconvenience and ask you to bear with us. When the new digital equipment is operational, we are sure you will be pleased with your improved service. Our 257 customers will be notified as soon as possible of the exact date when their telephone service will be converted to the new equipment, which will be around July 1. The digital switching equipment for Mescalero and Capitan will be installed starting sometime in late June and will be placed in service around September 1. This will complete our digital conversion for all our customers in White Mountain, Ruidoso, Ruidoso Downs, Capitan and Mescalero. Alto will be converted in February of 1984. Again, we apologize for the inconvenience during this transition period and thank you for your patience.

Jack DiPaolo: 31 years and still active

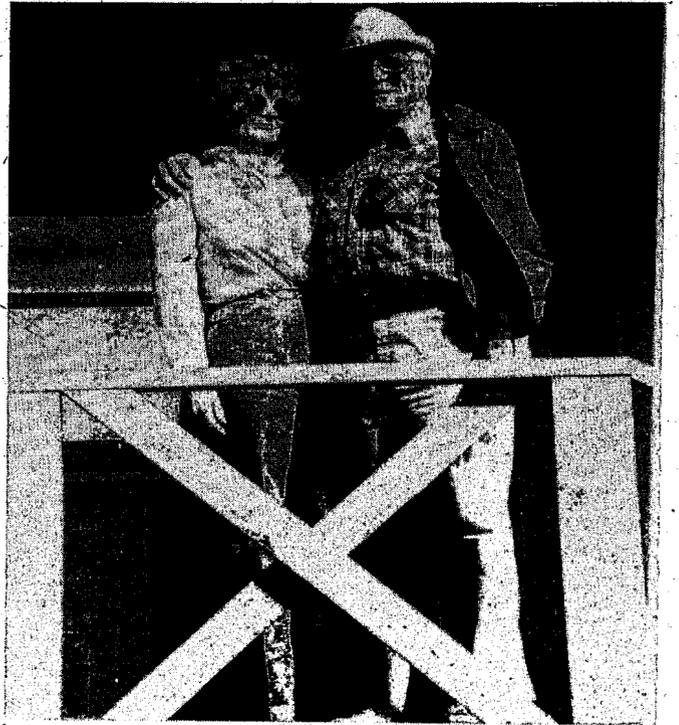

by BARBY GRANT
Staff Writer

Inarguably, one of the pervading forces in Ruidoso is the builders. And one of the pervading forces among builders is Jack DiPaolo. After all, how many local builders have been active here for 31 years; have two streets named after them; and have built three subdivisions, hundreds of residences and three churches, plus the water system in Ruidoso Downs?

Jack DiPaolo is celebrating the opening of his newest construction project, The Paddock, on Highway 37, with an open house this Friday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. The public is invited. The Paddock, a shopping plaza featuring DiPaolo Real Estate, Decorator Studio, Little Tienda and The Front Porch Art Gallery, is only the most recent addition to DiPaolo's long list of accomplishments.

Born in Santa Fe, Argentina, to Italian parents whose move to the United States was decided by the flip of a coin, DiPaolo modestly describes himself as "one helluva nice guy." At 74, he remembers moving to Ruidoso on August 1, 1952, and the myriad things he has done between then and now.

Included in that list is serving two terms as mayor of Ruidoso Downs—during which time he put in the water system there and part of the system in Ruidoso and attempted a merger of the two villages. Other of his activities include serving as: president of the Chamber of Commerce; ambassador assigned the task of meeting visiting dignitaries; American Legion district commander; Evening Lions president; Rotary Club and Elks Lodge member; Knights of Columbus secretary-treasurer; manager of the All-American Turf Club at Ruidoso Downs Race Track; maitre'd at the Chaparral; president of the Highway 70 Association—aimed at promoting travel on that highway stretching from Moorehead City, North Carolina, to San Diego, California; and member of National People to People, an organization of ambassadors in the horse breeding industry.

LONGTIME area builder Jack DiPaolo and wife Barbara stand on the porch of their newest construction project, The Paddock.

DiPaolo, while remaining active in the construction industry, also was for a time a horse breeder, trainer and owner, and a Realtor. His construction projects include San Patricio and St. Eleanor's Catholic Churches, about 250 homes and three subdivisions. Ruidoso Gardens Subdivision in Ruidoso Downs still is affectionately known as Spaghetti Flats, in honor of DiPaolo's Italian heritage. DiPaolo said he just likes to do different things, in explanation of his myriad community involvements.

For now, though, DiPaolo and his wife, Barbara, of DiPaolo Real Estate, plan to enjoy the recent opening of their new shopping plaza and invite residents to stop by Friday for the open house and a visit.

The Silver Lining

BY DANIEL AGNEW STORM

"Your Face Is Your Fortune"

During the last few days I have heard some cheerful word from my native city of Valdez, and all around the place, flowers are blooming and birds are singing that I knew in Alaska.

Therefore memories of my childhood in the Northland are very vivid today (May eighteen).

I remember about this time of year when I was three years old I came in for dinner and mother told me to wash my face. I asked mother why I must always be washing my face and she smiled and looked at me very straight with her blue eyes and said:

"Because, Daniel, your face is your fortune."

The truth of these words has come home to me countless times during the "three-score years and ten" since that day.

Your face is truly your fortune, given to you by your mother and father, and God Himself. It is your sacred badge of yourself, all your own, among the two billion people of this earth.

Did you ever stop to think that we all have two eyes, one mouth, one nose, two cheeks — a face built on the same pattern — and yet you can spot somebody immediately in the vast passing throng of a great city — someone you have not seen in ten, twenty, forty years?

Some years ago, it must have been about 1958, I had this miracle brought home to me in a very striking incident.

Father and I were in Mexico City seated in a large cafe. I noticed a tall handsome, dignified man sitting in a chair by himself, at a table about twenty feet behind father. He had his elbows on the table with his hands folded, with his chin resting on his folded hands, looking at father.

Whether because father noticed I was looking at this man, or whether or not the man's intent staring at the back of his head made father turn quickly around and look back, I know not. "I know that guy," Father said as he turned back to me.

Again father looked back and said, "No I don't either."

A third time he looked and said, "Yes I do too."

With that father turned his chair half around and raising his voice above the din of the cafe he asked: "Your name Blamie Stevens?"

All trace of dignity dropped from the dignified gentleman, as he sprang up from his chair, and in a step or two was at our table with his hand outstretched.

Speaking with a slight British accent, the man said, "I knew that I had known you, but for the moment, I couldn't..."

"L.W. Storm," said father. "Of course, of course, Lynn Storm, Lynn Storm!!!"

Blamie Stevens had been father's close friend in Valdez, and they had not seen each other since about 1911, when they were about thirty years old. They spent two days talking over old times, and Mr. Stevens showed us the city of Mexico where he had been living for some time.

"What I have of Ugly I Have of Good."

Back in the twenties and a little before lived a man who was certainly the most famous bronc rider of all time, Booger Red.

As a child on the fourth of July, the old timers said, he was celebrating. He put some gun powder in the hollow of a tree and lit it, not getting out of the way soon enough. The exploding powder burnt his face horribly and left him marked for life.

It just so happened that he was born with an almost super-human ability to ride a bucking horse; and through the years, became famous for his remarkable ability and easily recognized for his terribly mutilated face.

Yet Booger turned his misfortune into his own advantage, joking no end about his appearance, and said he was the most easily recognized man in the world.

About 1934 or five I was at the rodeo of the Roswell Fair, and happened to meet an old time bronc rider. He was a Creek Indian from Oklahoma, who was very friendly and full of old-time stories of his experience. He had a facial characteristic that you see only once in two or three million people. His face was fixed with a pleasant smile, as if the world were one continuous source of joy. This expression never changed whether he spoke of sad or happy experiences.

Did he know Booger Red? "Oh, sure, real well."

I asked if he were really as good as they said, and he said he was "give up to be the best that ever lived."

He said that Booger was present at a rodeo long after he had retired, and that there was a rodeo horse that none present could even begin to ride. Someone spotted Booger Red in the crowd and asked him if he thought he could ride the horse. Booger came out on the horse sitting backwards in the saddle, waving his hat to the crowd.

This Indian Rider said that Booger Red was the friendliest fellow in the world, never seeming to have a care in the world.

I asked if Booger was really as ugly as they said, and this fellow, without changing the permanent smile on his face, uttered some of the most expressive words I have heard in my life:

"He was that ugly you had to cry for him."

The great and lovable Booger Red was a living testimony to the old Mexican saying:

"Lo que tengo de feo, tengo de bueno."

("What I have of ugly I have of good.")

And also the old saying familiar to us all:

"Handsome is as handsome does." So always wear a smile of good will upon your "fortune"; for this will spread the great wealth of friendliness.

OH NO... I missed getting my RUIDOSO NEWS!

ART, DINING AND ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE

Cliff Lambert high on Running Bucket

by MARK GORDON

Cliff Lambert isn't willing to admit Running Bucket is as good as Bold Ego, but then again, he's mighty proud of his three-year-old standout.

"Running Bucket's a really nice horse, but I don't think he's as fast as Bold Ego. He may have more stamina than Bold Ego. We'll certainly find out about that," said the veteran trainer.

Running Bucket demonstrated his talents with a convincing two and one half length victory over late charging Code's Draconic in Sunday's featured $8,725 Aspen Handicap over five and one half furlongs at Ruidoso Downs.

Ridden expertly by veteran Joe Martinez, the Insubordination colt hugged the rail in third place for much of the early going around the first turn. The leaders, El Jesters Pride and Big Bid dueled for the lead.

But about halfway down the backside, Martinez quickly asked Running Bucket. He started forging past, El Jesters Pride and Big Bid and took a clear lead into the stretch. He was under no pressure at the end of his journey, accomplished in 1:07 3-5.

"I'm extremely pleased with his race," Lambert said. "I think his best distance is six and one half furlongs or seven furlongs."

While Running Bucket didn't run in the Kentucky Derby as did Lambert's former pupil, Bold Ego, the veteran trainer thinks the right decision was made to keep Running Bucket out of the Louisville Run For The Roses on May 7.

"Sure, we're probably a little disappointed we didn't run him in the Derby, but I think we did the right thing," he added.

Bold Ego competed in all three Triple Crown races two years ago, finishing second in the Preakness Stakes at Pimlico in Baltimore in his finest outing.

Running Bucket's outstanding moneyline as a two-year-old in 1982 certainly would have qualified him for a spot in the first leg of the Triple Crown for three-year-old thoroughbreds. He captured six of eight races with two seconds for earnings of $266,455.

This season, he had four disappointing efforts at Oaklawn Park in Hot Springs, Arkansas, one seventh-place finish at Sunland Park on April 16 in the Riley Allison Derby Prep, and then won the $47,544 Riley Allison Derby over one mile on April 24 at Sunland Park.

As the 8-5 wagering favorite, Running Bucket returned $5.20, $3.60, and $3.00.

Code's Draconic, who benefitted from a fine ride by Wayne Buehrer, finished second as a 3-1 third-wagering choice. The Draconic filly paid $3.60 and $3.00 to place.

Smooth Wind, under Richard Bickel, took third and returned $3.60 to show. Promised Kingdom, the 9-5 second-wagering choice, was fourth.

Larry Byers: which to ride?

by MARK GORDON

Larry Byers admits he has a difficult choice.

"Is it good to have a choice like this? Yes and no. It's good to have the choice, but it's bad to have to make it," said the veteran jockey as he approaches Sunday's featured Kansas Derby at Ruidoso Downs.

Byers is faced with the task of deciding which of four horses to ride in the Kansas Derby, the first leg of the Triple Crown for three-year-old quarter horses. The 400-yard dash is worth $112,957 to the winner from the gross purse of $327,735.

So it's important Byers selects the one he feels will have the greatest chance of winning.

"I've had two or three horses in some big races, but I've never had four in one," he said.

The veteran of 35 years of riding experience qualified four horses from trial races run on opening day, May 6. He gained two Derby entrants from the strong stable of trainer Jack Rube, one from trainer Clifton Dean, and one from trainer J.B. Montgomery's stable.

Mr Phillips, who had the third fastest qualifying time with a 20:68 reading, while running second in the 11th race, and Dealin Easy, who tied for the sixth fastest qualifying time, while winning the sixth trial heat by three and one fourth lengths, are from Dube's stable.

"Dealin Easy is a nice colt. I qualified for a futurity at Del Rio (Val Verde Downs) on him (he later ran second in the 330-yard event on April 11). He's a good gate horse who tries hard," Byers explained. "That was the first time I rode Mr Phillips. He's a nice horse, who I think will run big in the finals. I'm glad he ran as well as he did in the trials," said the popular Southwestern rider.

Byers also qualified with Bartendress, trained by Clifton Dean for well-known Ruidoso Downs horseman Sam F. Henderson of Odessa, Texas.

"Her record speaks for itself. She floundered a little bit at the start of her trial race, then got up and really ran," he said of the brilliant Beat A Native filly.

Bartendress won nine of 17 starts as a two-year-old in 1982 with three seconds and one third and collected $133,982. She's undefeated in two tries this spring.

Byers' final entrant in the Derby is Sparkling Sooner, a Sparkling native colt who recorded the fifth fastest qualifying time while running second to Call Me Favorite in the seventh division.

"He ran a big race in the trials and may have surprised some people," he said. That was the first time I was on him. I think he'll run a good race in the Derby," he explained.

Byers hasn't won a Kansas Derby, although he has taken the Rainbow Derby, the second leg of the three-year-old Triple Crown on three occasions—in 1967 on Barbara 3, in 1971 on Bunny Bid and on Rocket Jet Bug in 1980.

"I must make a choice. I hope I make the right one," he said.

Jockey/Trainer of the week

by MARK GORDON

Henry Uriegas and William F. Leach have done well together.

They combined to win four races over the past four-day racing weekend at Ruidoso Downs. That performance earned Uriegas jockey-of-the-week laurels while Leach jockey-trainer-of-the-week honors for the second weekend of horse racing this season at the mountain track.

The pair combined to win with Maid of Caesar ($90) in the eleventh Kansas Futurity trial race on Thursday, captured consecutive Kansas Futurity trial victories on Friday with Double Dutch Bus ($44.80) in the fourth and Kiply Bar ($27.40) in the fifth and then completed the fine weekend with Bolting ($7) in Sunday's second race.

Uriegas' four-win weekend boosted him into a five-way tie for third in the jockey standings. He's won four of 13 races with one second and one third for a fine winning percentage of .307.

Veteran quarter horse rider Jerry Nicodemus leads the jockey charts with six triumphs, one second and four thirds from 16 mounts. His percentage is a remarkable .375.

Nicky Wilson is second with five wins, one second and two thirds for a winning percentage of .227, while Salustio Burgos, last week's leading rider, is in third with five wins, six seconds and no thirds.

Larry Byers, Uriegas, Troy Crissup, Carlos Rivas, Pedro Benitez and Richard Bickel complete the top rider charts.

Leach had a superb weekend, winning six races to give him seven wins, five seconds and three thirds from 28 starts. His winning percentage is an excellent .250.

The Brady, Texas, trainer is back in his familiar spot—he was last season's Ruidoso Downs leading trainer with 53 triumphs.

H. Don Farris is in the runnerup position with six wins, one second and three thirds from 13 mounts for a tremendous winning percentage of .461. Jack Dube is third with four wins, five seconds and one third from 20 attempts for a .200 winning percentage.

Arnold E. Simmons, Fred I. Danley, Terrill E. Davidson, C. Dwayne Gilbreath, Thomas A. Riley and Jack W. Brooks round out the top trainers.

Racing resumes on Friday at Ruidoso Downs with a 12-race card.

Saturday's main events include the Kansas Derby Consolation at 400 yards for the second group of 10 fastest three-year-olds from Kansas Derby trials on May 6, and the Lincoln County Handicap. The Lincoln County Handicap is for three-year-old under handicappers running under handicap weights assigned by racings secretary Dean McKinney over six and one half furlongs for a purse of $8,000-added.

Sunday's key event will be the Kansas Derby, the first leg of the Triple Crown for three-year-olds. The 400-yard dash will offer the winner $112,957.25 from the gross purse of $327,735.

Post time for each day's program will be 1 p.m.

KEEPING CALM. Calm Tom holds the top qualifying time of 20.63 seconds for Sunday's finale of the $327,735 Kansas Quarter Horse Derby at Ruidoso Downs. The 400-yard classic hands the winner almost $113,000. Calm Tom, owned by Ralph Shebester of Wynnewood, Oklahoma, won his trial heat by a neck. Tory Crissup is the jockey.

Calm Tom sets sights on win

By DICK ALWAN

A week ago, C. David Drake, a trainer whose youth belies the deep quality of horses in his stable, put in a call to one of his owners, the prominent Ralph Shebester of Wynnewood, Oklahoma.

The call was made shortly after trials for the $327,735 Kansas Derby, and started out like this:

"Mr. Shebester, are you sitting down?"

"No, why?"

"I've got some great news for you, and it may be quite a shock," Drake went on.

"That's all right, tell me the news."

"Calm Tom just set the fastest qualifying time."

After hearing that report, Shebester could have been forgiven if he'd called for a straight-back seat as well as a rocking chair. It's not that Shebester is any greenhorn when it comes to producing stakes-winning quarter horses, but it must be a great surprise when a crack stakes prospect explodes out of left field.

Calm Tom, admittedly, appeared to have the right makeup. Look at his record: 4-3-3 from 16 starts last year, winnings of nearly $50,000. But neither trainer Drake, nor owner Shebester really felt Calm Tom could cut it at Ruidoso, and had agreed to turn him out if he didn't make a dent in the Kansas Derby Trials. So instead of heading home to Wynnewood, the colt goes in the May 22 finale, perhaps as the second- or third-favorite.

Can Calm Tom manhandle the likes of such heavy sluggers as Call Me Favorite and Bartendress? Drake puts it this way: "Calm Tom is a good gate horse, but not a great one. A couple of times — like when he set the fastest time for the Hopes and Dreams Futurity — he really broke well. To win the Kansas Derby, he has to be super. He has to get an exceptional start."

As Drake tells it, Shebester always felt Calm Tom was a "good" horse.

"But he didn't look for him to run as fast as he did in the Kansas Trials." With that performance alone, Drake says Calm Tom's value "has really jacked up, and if he wins the Derby, his value would probably quadruple."

Drake was behind the starting gate for the Kansas Derby Trial and sizes up matters this way: "His initial jump was good, but he was a little sluggish for the next 100 yards. Then he got himself wound up and began moving. As soon as the race was over, I rode my pony horse down to the finish, and one of my friends called out: 'Hey, you won!' When they flashed the winning time — 20:63 — I was pretty thrilled. In fact, it was unbelievable. It took a day or so for all of that to sink in."

When you're 21, and you're training the top qualifier for the Kansas Derby, that rates high marks. But Drake had an even greater experience. That came in 1981 when he qualified Yeller Fuel for the finale of the $787,350 Kansas Futurity.

Drake's current squadron consists of eight head, including Turn Bugs Loose, whose record includes a fifth in last summer's Rainbow Derby, a second in a Kansas Derby Consolation, and earnings of some $60,000. He also has the filly, Alive At Five, who's banked almost $50,000.

Calm Tom, of course, is Drake's most astute student. "He's a very well-dispositioned colt, easy to train, real sound, and he has no leg problems," Drake goes on. "Even though he set the top qualifying time, I don't think he'll be the Kansas Derby Favorite. When the fans compare past performances, they'll prefer Call Me Favorite. That would be fine by me. I'd rather not be the favorite. If you're the favorite, everyone expects you to win, and if you don't win, that's really bad."

Last summer, Calm Tom had a short, uneventful campaign at Ruidoso. Later, at Blue Ribbon Downs in Sallisaw, Oklahoma, the colt set the fastest time for the $400,000 (or so) Hopes and Dreams Futurity, ran fifth and earned some $25,000. Last October, he ran third in the Shebester Futurity at the same track, earning another eight grand.

If Calm Tom flashes home first in next Sunday's Kansas Derby, he'll pocket nearly $113,000, and his career income will inflate up to the very respectable $160,000 range.

But if Calm Tom needs a super-fast getaway, is there anything Drake can do, in his training methods, to convey this message?

"Not really," he says. "When they're three-year-olds, patterns are already set, and whatever they're going to do, they're going to do. But he loves this climate and responds well to the altitude and track surface. I think he'll be sharper for the finale than he was for the trials."

Ruidoso Downs Hoofbeats

by MARK GORDON.

FIVE HORSES WHO PASSED under the gavel at the 1982 All-American Select Quarter Horse Yearling Sale at Ruidoso Downs earned berths in the 33rd running Kansas Futurity after 30 trial races on Thursday and Friday. The five Sale Graduates included Fine Looking Man, a $55,000 purchase; Jest Real Easy, an $8,300 buy; Sassem Easy, an $11,000 sale horse; Bar Forth, who was repurchased for $42,000; and Double Dutch Bus, who sold for $14,000. Trainer H. Don Farris had the best luck of any conditioner, saddling three horses who gained spots in the first leg of the Triple Crown for two-year-old quarter horses. He earned spots in the May 29 finale at 350 yards with Easily A Twelve, who ran the fastest clocking with an 18:05 reading of the 276 entrants; Jest Real Easy and Meganette. Easily A Twelve tallied a one and one fourth length decision in the 29th trial heat to remain undefeated. She's won all four career starts, including the lucrative West Texas Futurity in late March at Sunland Park. With earnings of $86,530 for Farris and co-owner Don E. Keith of Bakersfield, California, she has the biggest moneyline of the 10 Kansas finalists. Only one entrant failed to win his race. Meganette, who ran second to Bar Forth in the 25th trial heat, qualified for Friday's five entrants with an 18:18 clocking. Five Texas-owned horses earned Kansas spots, while four with New Mexico owners and one Oklahoma-owned horse will compete for the winner's share of $216,654.80 from the gross purse of $655,615. The finale was restricted to the five fastest runners from Thursday's 15 trial heats and the five swiftest competitors from Friday's 15 trial races. Allotta-Dial, a Dial Jester filly, had the fastest Thursday clocking with an 18:08 reading while taking the opening race by one length under veteran rider Larry Byers. She's trained by Jack W. Dube for owner Jack F. Fletcher of Simonton, Texas. All trial races were run into a fierce headwind.

THE COMPLETE LIST of Kansas Futurity qualifiers and their times: (From Thursday) Allotta-Dial, 18:08; Fine Looking Man, 18:11; Raise A Dandy, 18:13; Jest Real Easy, 18:13; and Sassem Easy, 18:18. (From Friday) Easily A Twelve, 18:05; Bar Forth, 18:09; Meganette, 18:18; Firewater Fancy, 18:18; and Double Dutch Bus, 18:20.

TRAINERS JACK DUBE, H. Don Farris, Larry Keiter and William F. Leach each won two consecutive races during the Thursday and Friday trial heats for the Kansas Futurity; Dube won Thursday's fifth with Oh Whata Viking ($4.60) and the sixth with Tynys Rose Bud ($2.20) and also took the opener with Allotta Dial ($4.00) for a three-win day. Steve Harris rode Oh Whata Viking and Tynys Rose Bud while Larry Byers was on Allotta Dial. H. Don Farris took the ninth on Thursday with Vital Link ($4.40) and the tenth with Jest Real Easy ($3.00). Jerry Nicodemus was aboard both winners. Larry Keiter captured the ninth on Friday with Shes Mighty Right ($4.60) and the tenth with Bar Forth ($3.60). Gary Sumpter was on both horses. William F. Leach, last season's champion trainer at Ruidoso Downs, won Friday's fourth race with Double Dutch Bus ($44.80) and the fifth with Kipty Bar ($27.40). Henry Uriegas was on both victors.

JACK W. BROOKS, one of quarter horse racing's finest trainers, continues to have "seconditis". He saddled 20 horses in the two days of Kansas Futurity trials and captured two wins with six seconds and nine thirds. He's saddled 37 horses through the first two weekends and has tallied 3 wins, with 11 seconds, and 5 thirds. Brooks finished second in the 1982 trainer standings at the mountain track with 49 victories and had a .253 winning percentage, the highest of any top ten conditioner.

WELL KNOWN TELEVISION and screen personality Lorne Greene was a Friday visitor to Ruidoso Downs. He presented a blanket to a Kansas Futurity trial winner while he attended the races. Greene is best known for his portrayal of Ben Cartwright on the long-time television fixture, Bonanza.

RUIDOSO DOWNS PATRONS were treated to a new innovation on the main infield tote board. The up-to-the-minute total pool for all quinnells, the two trifectas and the daily double were shown, giving fans a pool bet in each category throughout the up-to-the-minute count on the total betting pool during each wagering period.

COALCREEK LADYBUG, a four-year-old Mr Hay Bug mare, won the first division of the Go Together Handicap for the second consecutive year. A year ago, she ran the 350 yards in 18:13 and paid $15.40 to win, while on Saturday, she toured the 350-yard course in 17:71 and returned $18.60 to win. Trained by Dawn M. McDaniel, she was ridden by Nicky Wilson for owner Ernest F. Fanning of Coalgate, Oklahoma.

WAGERING FAVORITES enjoyed considerable success during the 30 trial races run on Thursday and Friday for the Kansas Futurity. Fifteen of the public's choices posted triumphs while nine ran second and four ran third. Only two of the 30 selections finished worse than third—quite a tribute to the handicapping abilities of the mountain track patrons.

BOLTING, who was purchased for $8,000 in the 1982 Tenth Annual Summer Sale For Selected Thoroughbred Yearlings at Ruidoso Downs, made a smashing racing debut in Sunday's second race. The two-year-old Bold Hitter gelding scored an easy six and one fourth length victory in a four-furlong test for maidens. His time was a rapid :46.45 under a fine ride by Henry Uriegas. Trained by William F. Leach, Bolting is owned by John May and Leach of Ft. Stockton, Texas. As the 5-3 second wagering choice, Bolting paid $7.00 to win.

SUNNILY SMASHED, one of the standout two-year-old fillies last year in New Mexico, won her 1983 debut at Ruidoso Downs by taking a three quarter length decision over outsider Pereloom in Sunday's eighth race at five and one half furlongs. The Sunny South roan filly was on the pace throughout and pulled away from a determined bid by Pereloom in the final strides for her victory in 1:09.2-5. As a two-year-old last year, Sunnily Smashed won five races with three seconds and one third from 11 tries. She's trained by William F. Leach, who owns her with Carol Childs and Sue H. May of Ft. Stockton, Texas. As the 7-10 wagering favorite, Sunnily Smashed paid $3.40 to win.

TRAINERS JIMMIE CLARIDGE and William F. Leach each won two races on Sunday's program, while Joe Martinez won two consecutive events. Claridge took the fourth on Joy Elect ($18.60), and won the twelfth on Super Champ ($6.60). Pedro Benitez rode Joy Elect, while Joe Martinez was on Super Champ. Each won the second with Bolting ($7.00), and the eighth with Sunnily Smashed ($3.40). Henry Uriegas won on Bolting, and Richard Bickel was on Sunnily Smashed. Martinez won the featured Aspen Handicap with Running Bucket ($5.20) for trainer Clifford C. Lambert, and took the twelfth on Super Champ.

Call Me Favorite heads Derby field

by MARK GORDON

Call Me Favorite, who competed in two of last year's Triple Crown events, heads the field for Sunday's ninth running of the Kansas Derby at Ruidoso Downs.

The Derby, set for 400 yards, matches the 10 fastest runners from 12 trial races combining 108 three-year-olds (run) May 6. The winner of this first leg of the Triple Crown for three-year-old quarter horses, will collect $112,957.25 from the gross purse of $327,735, the second richest since the race's inception in 1975.

Call Me Favorite is certainly a viable factor in this sophomore classic.

She has the largest moneyline of the 10 entrants—with career earnings of $247,072, based largely on a brilliant two-year-old season.

The Victory Stride filly posted four victories with four seconds and one third in 10 outings in 1982 for trainer H. Don Farris. She ran second in the Kansas Futurity, the first leg of the two-year-old Triple Crown, captured a head win in the Rainbow Futurity Consolation, and then placed fourth, just one and one fourth lengths behind winning Mr. Master Bug in the $2,530,000 All-American Futurity, quarter horse racing's most lucrative and prestigious event.

In her trial race, Call Me Favorite scored a frontrunning one-length victory in the seventh heat as a 3-5 wagering favorite. Her time of 20:67 was the second fastest of the trial competitors.

She will be coupled in the wagering with Shesa Goody, third-place finisher in the 11th division, as part of a Clarence Scharbauer Jr.-owned entry. The Midland, Texas, owner's entry will be trained by H. Don Farris.

Calm Tom, a Showum Jet colt, had the fastest qualifying time with a 20:63 reading while taking a neck verdict in the 11th heat. Although he paid $30 to win his Derby trial, Calm Tom has fine credentials. He won four of 16 starts as a two-year-old and collected $48,835 while racing five times at Ruidoso Downs and the remainder at Blue Ribbon Downs in Sallisaw, Oklahoma.

In three outings this season for trainer C. David Drake, Calm Tom has gathered one win and one second. He's earned $2,066 this year for owner Ralph W. Shebester of Wynnewood, Oklahoma.

Two other entrants in the 11th trial heat also gained Derby berths. Mr. Phillips, a neck behind Calm Tom and Shesa Goody, who ran third, yet just a nose back of runnerup Mr. Phillips, will also compete in Sunday's Derby.

Mr. Phillips, a Windy Byon gelding, has two lifetime wins with three seconds and one third from nine trips for trainer Jack W. Dube. She's collected $39,454 for the estate of Jack R. Delmar of Richmond, Texas.

Shesa Goody, a 3-10 wagering favorite in her trial race, just missed winning her trial. As a two-year-old, Shesa Goody won four races, with three seconds in nine attempts and won $56,704.

Mighty White Hope, a Mighty Te filly, is the only Derby entrant who is a graduate of the 1981 All-American Select Quarter Horse Yearling Sale at Ruidoso Downs. She was a $27,000 purchase.

Here's the field with the qualifying times: Calm Tom (20:63); Call Me Favorite (20:67); Mr. Phillips (20:68); Shesa Goody (20:69); Sparkling Sooner (20:78); Dealin Easy (20:80); Heza Sissy (20:80); Mighty White Hope (20:81); Top Moons Gay (20:83); and Bartendress (20:86).

Bartendress' ability to show in Derby?

BY MARK GORDON

Even Sam F. Henderson doesn't know Bartendress' true ability.

"She's never run as fast as she can," said the filly's owner. "I don't think everything has ever been just right for her. I've seen two or three of her races and what she did the last 100 yards or so was unbelievable."

The Beat A Native filly will get another chance to prove her talents when she competes in Sunday's ninth running of the Kansas Derby over 400 yards at Ruidoso Downs. The winner of this 400-yard classic, the first leg of the Triple Crown for three-year-old quarter horses, will earn $112,957.25 from the gross purse of $327,735.

Bartendress' effort in the 10th Kansas Derby trial race on May 6 confirmed Henderson's description.

Despite stumbling slightly at the start, Bartendress roared through the last 100 yards to tally a neck win in 20:86. Although that time tied Chicks Etta Wind for the 10th and final position in the Derby, Henderson won a shake for the final position.

"I don't think she's ever run as fast as she really can. It seems like something always happens and she just runs fast enough to win," said the Odessa, Texas, horseman.

"In the New Mexico Futurity (last September in Albuquerque), she was absolutely flying at the end. In the Shue Fly stakes (last October at Sunland Park), she got wiped out at the start and then won by one and one half lengths. It bogged my mind," he added.

Despite her troubles in several races, Bartendress has compiled an outstanding record.

In 1982 as a two-year-old, Bartendress won nine races with three seconds and one third in 17 appearances for trainer Clifton Dean. She collected $133,982.

Her major victories include taking the New Mexico Futurity by a half-length on September 21, capturing the mer's $728,085 Rainbow Futurity, the second leg of the Triple Crown for two-year-olds.

Bartendress appeared to be a winner, had trouble while finishing second and then was disqualified and placed tenth for interference.

"That was one of the biggest disappointments I've had in racing," he explained. "She looked like a winner, then started slipping and sliding and still ran second. But that's racing luck—it swings both ways. It was a gut-wrenching deal, but I was proud just to be in the Rainbow last year."

Nevertheless, Henderson said Bartendress has more than compensated for that race.

"Anytime you win a stakes race, it makes up for things which have happened in the past. She's certainly redeemed herself for all she's done since that happened," he noted.

In his 18 years as a horse owner, Henderson gave Bartendress quite a compliment.

"She's the kindest, most intelligent and soundest horse I've ever had," he said. "I've never had a horse like her. I'd rank her with Dream Rocket, who was one of the most exciting fillies I've ever seen. She'd leave the starting gate three or four lengths in front."

"She qualified for the Kansas, Rainbow and All-American Futurities in 1982, but I'd rank Bartendress right up there with Dream Rocket," Henderson said.

"Just once, I'd like to see everything go right for her," Henderson said.

Shue Fly Stakes by one and one half lengths on October 23 at Sunland Park, and winning six trial races. She also earned berths in the West Texas Futurity at Sunland Park and the Champion of Champions Classic at Turf Paradise in Phoenix in mid-November.

Despite that outstanding performance, Henderson also suffered a major disappointment in last sum-

The Carrizo Lodge, 257-9131

Congratulations to the Inn of the Mountain Gods for their beautiful new magazine; it is a credit to the Inn and to the Breedloves who put it together. We are proud of our neighbors who bring a great deal of business to Ruidoso.

Our exciting news — Carrizo Lodge has just been designated as a National Historical Monument, the state designation was previously made.

Grace Knox, Ted Robertson, William Schultz and Mike McCullough will be starting art classes June 6th; sign up today with one of these professionals; the quality of art work being done here at Carrizo is amazing.

The papers are ready for homeowners to sign to hook onto the sewer line that is being laid down the Carrizo Canyon Road. For further information call 257-9131.

The Carrizo Room will be open for your dining pleasure this Friday and Saturday evening; dinner will be served from 6:00 to 9:00 featuring prime rib, trout grillade and barbecue brisket. Make plans to dine and to dance to the music of Pam and Bill beginning at 8:30.

SANTA FE—We'll never know who killed Jerry Magee.

That's a tragic thing. Magee was a good corrections officer at the New Mexico penitentiary who was obviously intent on becoming a better one. (We need lots more of his kind.)

He was stabbed to death on the night of August 30, 1981, by a prisoner unknown, after he was ordered into Cell Block 6 at the pen at lockdown time (1:30 a.m. for that particular cell block), despite the fact that the shift commander allegedly knew inmates were planning trouble because he had witnessed the gathering storm with his own eyes.

Magee may have been killed by the first stab wound he took, under his armpit, which put forth, according to one who was there, a "massive amount of blood."

Three inmates (Angel Munoz, Tony Aguilar and Juan Baca) were charged with murder as a result of the incident.

On Monday, May 9, Munoz, the only one so far tried, was acquitted. It appears there is doubt whether the state will bother to proceed against the other two.

Well, in the first place, it's always hard to make a case against prisoners who operate outside the view of non-prisoners. We found that out, doubled and redoubled in spades, in the cases which came to trial as a result of acts allegedly committed during the bloody prison riot a few years ago. Prisoners don't make very dependable witnesses for either side in a legal action. Since they know they will be locked up again, when their testimony is concluded, among the very persons against whom the may now be giving it, they sometimes do not tell the whole truth.

It is also possible that in this and other instances, the investigations performed after the act are not models of procedure.

That may have been the case when Magee was murdered.

Staff at the pen that night was apparently so demoralized (a natural reaction) that, we are told, there was no debriefing or interrogation of anyone who might have been even a partial witness to the affair, and no investigation was begun immediately. In fact, no control-room report of the incident appears to have been filed that day; and the person who should have done so went on vacation and subsequently quit, without ever returning to the penitentiary.

In other words, when Munoz was finally brought to trial, there was little hard evidence for the prosecution to use—and the same thing applies to any future trials of Aguilar and Baca. About the only source of evidence was the word of other convicts, who, in addition to the problems mentioned above, swore and forswore one another in all directions. ("I did it," "No I didn't," "He did it," "No he didn't.")

All that is very discouraging. So is other word reaching this column which suggests there will be further trouble at the pen during the summer ahead.

More about that on another occasion.

GAS TAX BARGAIN

Who's going to foot the bill for 70 million tons of gravel, 3.9 million feet of guard rails, 1.9 million tons of cement and 5.7 million feet of fencing?

We are, it goes without saying, all of us who buy gasoline to keep our cars rolling.

Some of us get testy over the additional federal tax of five cents a gallon that took effect on April 1, but in the end we will be the beneficiaries. Those construction materials itemized above will go to improve the nation's highways and make them safer. In addition to this, some of the tax money will aid mass transit systems, something, again, which represents a very important public benefit. And this transfusion for the economy will provide some 320,000 jobs in construction and related industries.

All the Federal Highway Administration assures us, for an estimated $30 per year for the average car, it's not a bad bargain.—Alamogordo Daily News

ROSWELL'S FINEST LADY

You won't find many police officers more resourceful than that Roswell lady who turned a hostage situation with shots fired into an injury-free capture with a bit of quick thinking and action.

Officer Carol Ann Stacy walked into a tense and potentially deadly situation and defused it, step by step.

After first talking an armed man into releasing all of his hostages except for his estranged wife and Officer Stacy, the policeman talked and watched until the gunman relaxed his guard.

She snatched the man's gun away and called for help. In a second the man was subdued and the deadly potential of the situation was ended.

Officer Stacy brought the tense situation to a bloodless conclusion by placing her own personal safety in the balance and doing the right thing on everybody's behalf. But then that's what we expect of our police officers day in and day out, isn't it?

Officer Carol Ann Stacy's heroism was a credit to herself and the training she received from her department, as well as to her fellow law enforcement officers everywhere. —Albuquerque Journal

Editorial

The lateness of the winter, and the resultant short gap between the end of ski season and the beginning of racing season, made for a very short "slow time" in Ruidoso this spring.

This was a good thing for the local economy, of course. But many Ruidosians have come to appreciate their twice-yearly slow times, and may have thus felt shorted.

The past several weeks have certainly not been a slow time for news. And it can wear on a person—whether he's making news, reporting news, commenting on news or reading the news.

So despite the fact it has already passed, we would like to acknowledge spring of '83 slow time by limiting our comments today to:

• Giving an "E" for effort to organizers of the Golden Years Jubilee. In concept, it still sounds like a great idea, and we hope you continue with it.

• Giving the "Writer's Cramp Award" to Gary Myers for signing 1,200 Summer Festival posters. Owners of those posters (a bargain at $30) will have a nice work of art.

• Giving a round of applause to the athletes and coaches who represented Ruidoso High School so well at the state track meet. To all the seniors, good luck in the race of life.

• Giving the "Eye of the Tiger" award to David Ordorica, who copped another state junior boxing title Saturday. Coach Lucky Mulqueen deserves plenty of credit, too.

Now if we can make it to late October.—TP

Reporter's Round by Billy Allstetter

Now that taxes have been paid, it's time to plan for the next year. In the last ten days I have seen proposals for four different budgets.

Figures, estimates, line items, expenditures and revenues; a bewildering array of numbers parading across my desk. Hundreds, thousands, millions (!!) of dollars being earmarked and destined for spending over the next year.

If money talks, then this is a very loud time of year. Everyone is trying to get their opinion on spending heard.

Or is everyone? I wonder just how aware most of the people are about what is going on. Expenditures are being planned for all the city services of Ruidoso, Capitán, Ruidoso Downs. Lodgers' tax, a relatively small but always controversial expenditure, is being planned as are many others. Do you know how your money is being spent?

I was at some of those meetings and I still don't know how it's all being divvied up. I guess that shows my ignorance, or, I hope, the complexity of the subject.

I just hope our local governments don't follow the example of the federal government, whose executive leader promised during his campaign to balance the budget and has already broken deficit spending records only halfway through this year.

Ruidoso plans to raise wages four percent but take home pay will actually be less! Rising costs of health insurance, workmen's compensation and other fringe benefits can be credited for that.

The Lodgers' Tax Committee has received two proposals for the way it spends money this year. Both the Ruidoso Lodgers Association and the Chamber of Commerce have submitted budget proposals. Although I may disagree with parts of the lodgers' budget proposal, I find their extra input a refreshing break from the budget planning by village officials with little or no input from the public whose money it really is.

At the second Capitán budget hearing (the press was not notified of the first) the village clerk ran through the list of expected revenues and planned expenditures while council members followed on the sheets they had been provided.

The public that was present were given no lists and only heard a long string of numbers. To me it seemed impossible to compare the proposed budget with last year's or to get a clear idea of which areas were receiving more emphasis.

It was only made clear that there would be a considerable amount of deficit spending this year in Capitán after questioning at the end of the meeting. It should also be noted that the deficit spending will be financed by unexpected surplus revenues from last year.

It seemed very hard at the Capitán meeting to get a good picture of how the public's money is being spent. I don't really understand much about the Ruidoso budget either.

I guess that is what we elect our council members to do: spend our money, wisely. It just made me a little nervous to hear all those huge figures rattled off and accepted without any substantial input from the public.

Possibly the local press should be doing a better job of informing the public how its money is being spent. Possibly nobody cares.

It did feel like participatory government when the subject of revenue sharing came up, however. At that point it was made clear how much money would be available from the federal government during the next year and comments were solicited from the public.

When two people attending the Capitán meeting said they thought the money should be spent on street repairs, the council members agreed and decided to spend it there. It was somehow exciting to be a part of government that listened to the public when deciding how to spend its money.

The additional input into the lodgers' tax budget is encouraging in the same manner. That's what democracy is about as far as I can tell: public input into the functioning and direction of government.

All the decisions have not yet been finalized. It's late but there is time for public input on the spending of public money. Ruidoso, Ruidoso Downs and Capitán will all have budget hearings during their next meetings. The Ruidoso and Capitán hearings will be the final ones. There are lots of dollars—lots of power—being allocated at these meetings. If you want to know more about the functioning of government and have a voice in the spending of that money, especially the revenue sharing funds, go to the meetings.

HELLO THERE is what this Indian elephant could be saying. This elephant lives at the Albuquerque Zoo along with an African elephant. The zoo has a wide range of animal life for people to view.

NATIONAL BIRD. This bald eagle at the Albuquerque zoo stands in noble defiance to the gradual elimination of his species. The bald eagle is the national bird of the United States and is protected by law. The bald eagle lives mainly in Alaska during the summer months and travels south to New Mexico and other states in the winter. Its numbers have decreased greatly in this century.

TAKING IT EASY is this female leopard of the Albuquerque Zoo. This leopard lives in a compound with another female and a large male. Leopards are considered to be one of the most aggressive members of the cat family, although this one seems to be at peace with the world.

Enjoying the sights of the zoo

Since I was a small child, I've always had a deep interest in wildlife. I've always liked to view animals in their natural habitat or at zoos, mainly to observe their mannerisms.

So when I went to Albuquerque last weekend to cover the Ruidoso High School track team at the state meet, I found some free time Saturday morning to spend at the Duke City's zoo.

It's located near the Old Town section of Albuquerque and is undergoing some remodeling, along with addition of several types of animals.

For some reason, I've always had an interest in flesh-eating mammals and birds. So naturally, the first thing I did when I entered the zoo was to look for the birds of prey section, the big cats section and the bears section.

I went to the birds of prey section first, rounded the corner of a wall at the entrance and saw a bald eagle looking at me through a cage.

The bird didn't seem that big, probably no more than 30 to 32 inches from head to tail. It never spread its wings, so I didn't get a chance to see how big its wingspread was.

But its talons and beak were the most impressive things about it. The bald eagle feeds mainly on fish and carrion, and is generally not a feared hunter like its cousin, the golden eagle.

However, that beak and talons were enough to convince me it could do a lot of damage to anyone or anything that confronted it.

The rest of the birds of prey section was disappointing. There was a red-tailed hawk, a horned owl and a couple of vultures. I was disappointed there weren't any South American or European species of eagles. Those continents are home for the largest and most powerful eagles.

But the big cat section was well worth the walk to it.

The first cat I saw was a huge Siberian tiger in a small building with a water moat around it. The Siberian tiger is the biggest cat in the world, sometimes weighing as much as 750 pounds.

This particular tiger was taking a morning nap when I approached. It woke up shortly and glared at me while it was still lying down.

I didn't realize how big it was until it got up and walked around. It looked like a small horse.

The Siberian tiger deserves the title "King of the Beasts" far more than its smaller cousin, the lion.

There were a couple of lions in the building next to the tiger. They appeared extremely tame, but I was still reluctant to approach the cage.

I took a couple of photos of the male lion with its huge mane. It just stared back lazily at me.

There was also a mountain lion and two half-grown jaguars in the cat section. But by far the most interesting cats there were three leopards—one male and two females.

A full-grown male leopard may only weigh around 150 pounds, but it's far more fierce and high-strung than the lion and even the tiger.

The male leopard looked at me and growled several times. The smaller female leopards didn't appear bothered by my presence.

"I wouldn't exactly call leopards fierce," said a caretaker at the zoo. "However, they're extremely nervous and distrustful."

The zoo also plans to add some cheetahs to the big cat section in the near future. The cheetah is a dog-like cat from Africa. It doesn't have the sharp claws that most cats have, but it is probably the fastest land animal in the world, sometimes traveling as fast as 50 miles an hour.

The bears at the zoo were limited in number.

There was a huge polar bear, an American black bear (similar to what we have in Lincoln County) and a small bear from India.

There weren't any grizzlies, unfortunately. The grizzly is probably the most feared meat-eating animal in the world, sometimes weighing more than 1,000 pounds and not that hesitant about attacking humans.

I also took pictures of a couple of elephants—an Indian elephant and an African elephant. The African elephant is the biggest land animal in the world, taller and with bigger tusks than his Indian cousin.

The Indian elephant proved to be a good subject for my camera, but the African elephant stayed a good distance away from me.

The rest of the zoo had a wide assortment of wildlife ranging from giraffes to monkeys and small birds.

All in all, I had an enjoyable experience viewing some of nature's most interesting animals.

I may go back to the Albuquerque Zoo soon.

Wildlife officers conduct deer roundup for study of trends

LOCAL WILDLIFE OFFICER Ernie Sandoval (right) and fellow Game and Fish Department workers restrain a Guadalupe Mountains mule deer during a recent research project near Carlsbad.

Photos and text by Gary Lantz

A DOE MULE DEER, following capture and pregnancy testing by New Mexico Game and Fish Department biologists, is released back into the wilds of the Guadalupe Mountains. The doe wears a radio transmitter collar.

The day's work began at 4 a.m. atop a remote and windy mesa in the Guadalupe National Forest. A mild norther had blown down across the ruggedly serrated landscape the afternoon before, and the air, hanging quietly just before the first glint of false dawn, had a hard chill for the first week of May.

The men and women assembling at the Guadalupe Christian Camp had dug out their winter-issue coats and coveralls before downing several quick cups of coffee and a bland serving of scrambled eggs. They were a cross-section of professionals accustomed to dark beginnings for their day's work: wildlife biologists, game rangers, foresters, and a sleepy-looking helicopter pilot who looked as if he hadn't reached an overnight compromise with his stiff bunk bed. He would be the air-borne workhorse of the soon-to-come wildlife rodeo.

By the time the pilot could see to fly, the crew had 1,500 feet of stout netting stretched across a tabletop-flat, juniper and cholla-studded ridge.

Finally, in the distance, came the chugging of the chopper, then suddenly, the high-pitched sounds of its rotors biting air. Those waiting near the net scrambled for cover. The helicopter was coming in low, twisting and pivoting, circling and cutting back across its own invisible tracks like a cutting horse given wings. Then, within seconds, it was over the net, which ricocheted with unseen impact. There was a scramble of bootleather, the sounds of a short scuffle, and the first of 30 Guadalupe mule deer was blissfully drugged and ready for the examination that may determine how successfully her kind will cope in coming years.

The day stretched out into 14 long hours as the net was moved again and again and the helicopter pilot kept up his ceaseless and nervy scouting and diving. When the evening shadows began to stretch over the rugged canyons, some ten does had been trapped and tested. Four a.m. would come again especially early for the tired crew.

But that's the way it is with wildlife research. Even with modern technology—helicopters, for instance—it's chancey. Wild critters don't respond like their domestic counterparts, and besides, they have the home field advantage: in this case, a particularly rugged one.

Yet wildlife professionals are a patient lot, and in the end the allotted number of does were captured, pregnancy tested, weighed and measured, fitted with a radio transmitter collar, and released. These does, along with animals from several other study areas, will be periodically monitored from the air.

Resulting information will be computed along with on-going data gathered on nutrition, survival, legal and illegal human harvest, habitat and climate influences. Over a period of years and the processing of a diversity of information, wildlife researchers will begin to see trends developing in the cycles of New Mexico mule deer herds. They will be able to compute—not guess—at what is happening to area populations, and why.

As the computer model develops, wildlife workers should be able to predict, given hypothetical or actual circumstances, what will happen to deer population should any number of natural or human influences prevail. The beneficiaries of this ability to predict and adjust will be the scientific community, the sportsmen of New Mexico and surrounding states, all lovers of wildlife, and of course, the mule deer herd itself.

It's the computer age sticking its neck into an unexplored realm, one that would seemingly resist high technology. Yet the research has initiated a relationship that already promises to give biologists more information about wildlife and the land than they've collectively accumulated in traditional ways since the landing at Plymouth Rock.

But like everything else in the wildlife research field, it still begins at 4 a.m., while men in blue uniforms sip lukewarm coffee and watch for the dawn.

THE HOME PROTECTION PLAN

It is tougher to sell a home today. And your home needs every advantage it can get. And a good real estate person should show you ways to make your home more attractive to buyers. A very tangible plus for the homeseite is the Home Protection Plan.

Essentially, it protects the home buyer against major repair or replacement costs on heating and electrical systems and major appliances for a full year. And its value to the home buyer can far exceed its small cost to the home seller.

It's one idea. We have more.

And we feel that even in a tough market you can still get the right price in a reasonable time with the right help. We'd like to help.

Handicapped skier program, founder Diana Person: both very special

Diana Person nearly cries with laughter when she recalls the day she found herself walking under the gondolas at Sierra Blanca Ski Resort with an artificial leg tucked under her arm.

"You better believe I got some strange looks from the people on the gondola," says Diana. Now what is a nice woman like Diana doing carrying an artificial leg up the slopes? And why is she laughing?

Diana runs the school for handicapped skiers at Sierra Blanca. When one of her students, a man with both legs amputated, forgot the special belt to hold on one of his legs, his artificial leg suddenly took off down the hill without him. By the time Diana had retrieved the errant leg, both she and the student were laughing.

They were laughing at the incongruities of life. Laughter is good medicine.

For the last 19 years, Diana has been a ski instructor. "I was teaching upper level skiers," says Diana. But when she looks back on it now, she knows that she was getting bored with it.

When the first amputee war veteran from Fort Bliss asked for help in learning to ski, Diana immediately jumped at the chance. It was a challenge, and she likes a challenge.

"My stepfather was a double amputee, and he was blind," explains Diana. "I didn't have to deal with the initial discomfort of being around someone who is handicapped."

Since that day, over seven years ago, Diana has been deeply involved with teaching handicapped people to ski. Her program has grown from nine students that first year to 550 students this past ski season.

Diana's students are blind people, the mentally retarded, and people with muscular dystrophy, multiple sclerosis, brain damage, strokes and amputated limbs. In her straightforward manner, Diana says, "If they can stand, we can teach them to ski."

The school at Sierra Blanca is run by three paid staff persons and 39 volunteers. The volunteers are mostly Ruidoso skiers who donate their time and talents.

The volunteers must get special training from Diana's staff, which consists of three days of an intensive on-the-hill clinic. Diana must feel a volunteer is a strong enough skier, at least a strong intermediate. When the volunteers are at this point, they are assigned a beginner skier.

DIANA PERSON

Volunteers were the winning ingredient in the 1983 Special Olympics.

"We really would have been in trouble were it not for the local high school kids. Only because of the Ruidoso high school kids were we able to have a one-to-one ratio of volunteers and Special Olympics participants," explains Diana. The Special Olympics were held at Eagle Creek Ski Area.

While I was interviewing Diana, the phone rang. It was a new student who wanted to start ski lessons. The conversation went something like this: "What is your handicap? Is the hip joint atrophied? Does the knee hyperextend? Does the knee buckle? Yes, we can start tomorrow..." Her voice was relaxed. She was at ease with the topic at hand.

Many people are not at ease around handicapped people. For this reason Diana is particularly cautious of the type of news coverage her program receives.

"I make it clear that these students are people. This is no freak show," declares Diana.

A few years ago, PM Magazine asked Diana if they could do a story on her special ski school. To their great surprise, Diana said thanks but no thanks. She was still reeling from some insensitive press coverage and was in no mood for more of the same.

After receiving the unexpected rejection, a program manager offered her viewing rights before the show was aired on television. This is an offer rarely made by television producers. Only after this compromise would Diana agree to the filming.

The benefits of the ski school to the actual students are many. In some cases, strenuous physical exercise will prolong the lives of students. Multiple sclerosis is a disease that attacks the nervous system. The disease is fatal.

One student with multiple sclerosis had severe bouts with paralysis. If he stayed active, if he skied, he was able to stay out of a wheelchair. If he spent a winter off the slopes, he found himself back in the wheelchair. At this writing, he has been able to stay active enough to keep himself out of a wheelchair for over two years.

Physical therapy is an integral part of your life if you have cerebral palsy. "And physical therapy can be boring as hell," says Diana. For some of the kids with cerebral palsy, skiing is used as an incentive to try harder in physical therapy.

Cerebral palsy is not an increasingly degenerative disease. It is caused by brain damage, child abuse and lack of oxygen to the brain, among other causes.

Once the damage is done, the disease does not continue to worsen. In this respect, there is much that can be learned by a skier with cerebral palsy. On the other hand, Diana feels it is also one of the most frustrating handicaps.

"The body just won't listen to the mind," explains Diana. "The student realizes that they must make a right turn, and they consciously think the command. That's where the trouble starts. The body might not receive that command until far too late."

Diana feels that people who are blind have been the easiest to teach to ski. The people who were born blind do not have the fears of blindness that sighted people have.

It is still a boggling sight for many people when a blind skier comes blasting down the expert slope. Three national and one international skiing champions—from the School for the Visually Handicapped in Alamogordo—have gone through Diana's ski school.

Skiing has been shown to improve the mental outlook of handicapped students. Skiing is regarded as a difficult sport. When crippled children can actually ski, it gives them confidence to try other things.

They realize they may have to do things in a different way, but it does start the thinking process.

"What will it take to learn another sport? Maybe I can go camping. Maybe..."

Text by Jackie Sheehan

The ski school offers the public a chance to see handicapped people participating in an exciting sport. Diana recalls a time she said truly impressed Roy Parker, manager of Sierra Blanca Ski Resort and a strong supporter of the special ski program.

A woman, who was an amputee, had such little strength that she conserved what she had by crawling to the ski lift. She loved to ski and obviously would do anything to get there.

"The more that the handicapped are mainstreamed, the sooner the stigma will disappear," says Diana. She thinks that instead of trying to avoid handicapped people when we meet them, we should make contact. "Ask how they lost their leg," suggests Diana, "rather than pretend you don't notice."

The handicapped ski school was initially given a $5,000 gift by a Ruidoso woman who wishes to remain anonymous. Since that time, the program has relied on private donations, which have amounted to $20,000 each year. Diana did not realize how supportive Ruidoso is until she started working with the handicapped.

"Ruidoso has worked its tail off to support this program," says Diana. Local working people have sponsored fund-raisers, including the CB group. "They worked for three weeks straight, on 24-hour shifts, talking to truckers, offering coffee and donuts. They also sponsored a Western dance. All to collect money for the handicapped program."

What about state or federal money? Diana wants to stay clear of federal money. She doesn't want the money pulled out from under her at some point, and she also doesn't want the red tape inherent with state or federal funds.

There is no denying that the special equipment essentially needed for the handicapped program is expensive. Special buckles are needed on the boots of people with Downe's Syndrome to accommodate their much heavier calves.

Outriggers are needed. Outriggers look rather like a crutch attached to the forearm with a ski at the bottom.

The ski program has been free to all handicapped people. That includes lessons, equipment and lift ticket. Starting in the fall of 1983, people over 18 will pay half price for lift tickets.

Diana has only praise for Roy Parker and Sierra Blanca Ski Resort. "It is one of the few areas where the management will allow this type of program," says Diana.

The Handicapped Skiers Association will be working on a new financial approach this summer. "It is so easy to show benefits from this program," Diana says confidently. The board of directors is currently in the process of working out the details on their financial plan.

"Our final plan is to operate off the principle of an endowment and to pay our own way to the ski area," explains Diana.

That day may be far off in the future. But with Diana Persons at the helm, who knows?
