Foster parenting interest shown

by PAMELLA FIELD
News Staff Writer

After last Monday's article eliciting a cry for more foster parents in Ruidoso, the local Department of Human Services office received several calls. They also received television coverage.

Thursday morning reporter Eve Cress and photographer Russ Kashiwa of KBIM television, Roswell, talked to social worker Betsy Seiler and Abraham DeLeon, a supervisor for the department who came up from Alamogordo.

Though Seiler appeared a little flustered at the attention, she was excited that the story was noticed, and said several people had gone in and filled out applications to be foster parents.

DeLeon said he is glad Seiler is on staff because before she was hired, much of the county coverage belonged to him.

"This town has a lot of social problems that need attention. There is quite a drug problem among kids here," he said.

He said the most important personal qualities needed to be an effective foster parent include stability and being willing to accept a child's parents where "they're at."

DeLeon said an attempt is made to match a child's environment with the type he or she is accustomed to, and that affluence is not a number one priority for a person wanting to become a foster parent. "We consider foster parents as part of a team effort," he said.

November building shows continued climb

Ruidoso's building permits topped $2 million for the second straight month in November, indicating an apparent end to the construction slowdown of late 1982 and early 1983.

Ruidoso issued 36 permits valued at $2,485,393.20, with single-family dwellings and commercial buildings both permitted for more than $1 million.

The November 1983 permits showed an 84 percent increase over the November 1982 permits valued at $1,351,934.

After valuations of over $3 million for four consecutive months in 1982, permits dropped off during the second half of 1982 to as low as $615,769 in December.

Aided by strong commercial building, valuations jumped back up to $2.2 million in March 1983 and stayed above $1.7 million in all of the succeeding months. October and

Traffic study begins

by BILLY ALLSTETTER
News Staff Writer

"I learned lots," said planner John McNamara of his two-day visit to Ruidoso.

McNamara and Kent Lande spent two days last week talking to various local officials about Ruidoso's traffic situation in the first step of a $30,000 traffic study. McNamara, Lande and Rick Pilgrim will be spending the next five months gathering data, analyzing it and talking to local residents in an attempt to find solutions to a number of Ruidoso's traffic problems.

The three men work for BRW, the planning company hired to do a Comprehensive Transportation Plan for Ruidoso. The company has offices in Denver, Phoenix, Breckenridge (Colorado) and Minneapolis. Its contract with the village stipulates $30,000 as a maximum cost, but it could be less, said McNamara.

McNamara and Lande conferred with Planning and Zoning Commission chairman Greg Masters, enforcement officer Paul Davis and Ruidoso Police deputy chief Jim Alston on the current traffic situation. McNamara said he toured the village three or four times making measurements, taking pictures and getting a general picture of traffic flow in Ruidoso.

In his 30 pages of notes, McNamara wrote down many of the problems that are familiar to any Ruidoso resident. He said he quickly discovered that traffic and parking in the midtown area are critical problems. The solution to those problems will be intimately connected to development, he said. With federal funding for municipal projects largely dried up, state and municipal governments, as well as private businesses, will have to bear a larger part of the funding, he said.

The more business develops along side roads such as El Paso and Wingfield Streets, the more money could be available for parking lots, he indicated.

McNamara also mentioned numerous intersections which are hindrances to smooth, safe traffic flow. The "Y" intersection at Highways 70 and 37, Paradise Canyon and Sudderth, Juanita and Sudderth, and especially the intersection of Mechem and Cree Meadows Drive could be improved, he said.

McNamara, manager of BRW's Phoenix office, said he will also be looking at many of the major thoroughfares, such as Hull Road and Paradise Canyon Road, with the idea of future expansion and improving site distances.

In addition to collecting as many statistics as possible and conferring with village officials, McNamara said he and his colleagues plan to hold two or three community workshops during which the public will be invited to add input.

"It's important to understand what the people want," said McNamara.

It is also important to be able to pay for improvements once the solutions have been determined. McNamara said the transportation plan will include suggestions for funding. BRW has worked with highway departments in numerous states including New Mexico, said McNamara. He indicated he can work well with the New Mexico State Highway Department because he has learned how they operate and understands their point of view.

Duane Tinsley, director of community development in Golden, Colorado, said that city chose BRW for a similar study because of their attention to fiscal concerns.

"I would speak well of them," said Tinsley.

"They've worked real well with the staff," said Roswell planning director Ivan Hall.

BRW is currently completing a Comprehensive Plan for Roswell. The company has also done numerous projects for mountain towns such as Breckenridge.

The BRW representatives should return to Ruidoso early in January with some preliminary conclusions and suggestions, said Planning and Zoning enforcement officer Paul Davis. He said he thought Ruidosoans would hear little new about Ruidoso's traffic problems. But hopefully, BRW will offer some new solutions.

"I'm sure they will," said Davis.

Search on for two lost skiers

The White Mountain Search and Rescue (WMSAR) squad began searching the Bonito drainage for two lost skiers after a friend reported them missing Sunday evening.

The search for Bill Keller, 23, and Roy Ranne, 21, is concentrated in the Bonito drainage along U.S. Forest Service trail 19, but may be shifted to the Three Rivers area if the skiers are not found on the Bonito side, said search coordinator Rex Skellett.

The skiers were last seen at the top of Capitan run at the Sierra Blanca Ski Area at about 1:15 p.m. Sunday, said Skellett. They were supposed to meet a friend, Tobin Routh, at about 3 p.m., said Skellett. When they did not show up, Routh notified the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department.

The Sierra Blanca Ski Area Ski Patrol found ski tracks leaving the ski area, headed towards the Bonito drainage, said Skellett. WMSAR began searching at about 2 a.m. Monday morning, said Skellett. Skellett said at least one of the lost skiers is from Ruidoso, but was not sure about the other.

Tree cutters warned of possible consequences

As in years past, the Ruidoso Police Department is noticing a problem of persons cutting trees on private property.

"I sure would hate to spoil somebody's holiday by hauling them off to court," said Deputy Police Chief Jim Alston. He noted the offense can range from petty to grand larceny, depending on the tree.

"Know where you're cutting and that it's legal," said Alston. Information on cutting of Christmas trees is available from the Smokey Bear Ranger Station.

Prank gets scary when gun comes out

by PAMELLA FIELD
News Staff Writer

Local school officials say the extent of pranks and discipline problems with Ruidoso students is minimal. One student who moved from out of town said, "Yes, that's true. This is a very disciplined school. I went to a school before where my science teacher used to smoke pot during lunch."

The student, Michael Smith, is a senior at Ruidoso High School. He and several of his friends are still talking about an event Halloween night that left them rattled.

Smith said the traditional thing for students to do on Halloween is to "egg" each other. By this he means they throw eggs at each other. He said the intention is not to hurt anyone or damage any property.

Last Halloween he was with a group of kids in a truck—two in front and eight in the back. He said they were chasing a car carrying four kids. The car pulled into the Blue Spruce Lodge and the truck followed.

He said they started throwing eggs at each other when a man came out and yelled, "Get off my property."

Smith said the kids attempted to leave and started to pull around the driveway. He said a second person then came out and fired a gun two times.

Smith said the man with the gun then ordered the kids to line up outside the truck and pointed the gun at them. He said the man said, "If anyone tries to leave, I am going to blow them away."

He said the man who fired the gun then called the police, and when the police arrived it seemed the man was not going to give up the gun.

He said the police finally got the gun, and the police record of the incident said the man requested a receipt. It said the gun was a .22 caliber pistol.

All 14 of the kids at the police station were required to fill out forms describing the incident. They were each given three months probation and 30 hours of civil service work to do. The person firing the gun, Don Perkins, was charged with discharging a firearm within village limits and given six months probation.

When Perkins was asked if he wanted to describe his side of the story he refused. He said he required the reporter to bring a boyfriend, a policeman—six of them if necessary—and then he would talk about it.

"Which one of those parents are you?" he asked.

Jane Parnell, children's probation officer of Lincoln County, said she was involved with setting up the service work with the school. She said the administration at the school would oversee the work projects.

High school principal Tom Hansen said the students are involved with projects such as cleaning the shop, picking up trash and doing other tasks that might be assigned by a teacher.

He said again that as far as he knows there are not a lot of pranks occurring, and that egging in Ruidoso is a tradition.

"I doubt that they have any malicious intentions," he said.

Middle school principal Texie Cole said discipline there is a "minor" problem. She said there might be small disagreements, but she was not aware of vandalism occurring on or off the school grounds.

Senior Craig Carson, another student who was involved in the Halloween incident, said he has been egging every year since his freshman year.

When asked about the incident at the Blue Spruce Motel he repeated Smith's story. He said the incident was the talk of the schools for a few days.

He expressed a desire to have a center to go to. "The Place (name of a former teen center) needs to be reopened," he said. "We need a place to go to where we can have dancing, video games. There is nothing to do here for teenagers."

Parnell said "there's things they could do, but it will require some effort on their part."

Hansen said "every student in every town that I've ever lived in says there's not enough to do."

Teachers share thoughts on importance of second grade

CARRIE GODLEY

Carrie Godley

Carrie Godley is a soft-spoken woman with warm brown eyes. She has been teaching for over 30 years.

"I've known since the third grade that I wanted to be a teacher," she said, smiling.

Godley believes in teaching with movement when possible. She uses a book called "Verses and Movement" by Grace Nash, who emphasizes more movement integrated into teaching methods, because "with increased movement there is more retention."

Every Wednesday morning Godley can be found in the cafeteria teaching folk dancing. She said principal Roger Sowder has joined in and the children really enjoyed it.

Godley said she likes to dance Western and square dancing with her husband, Jim. She seems to have a Western spirit and often wears Southwestern jewelry, made or inspired by her husband, who is a silversmith.

One of her main concerns about school is trying to emphasize the importance of attendance. She said she has a couple of students this year who have been absent nearly half the time. After a while, she said, it is impossible for them to catch up.

Having a past experience of working in a one-room country school with no electricity and no running water, and having a running knowledge of Southwestern history, she offers different teaching perspectives to her classroom.

Godley received a bachelor of arts degree from Eastern New Mexico University in Portales in elementary education several years ago. She later got a master's degree from Western New Mexico University in Silver City.

She reflects again on the importance of attendance.

"I received an attendance award for perfect attendance in grades one through eighth," she said.

Sue Vinsant

"We're going to start out the day with a spelling lesson. You need to sharpen a pencil," said Sue Vinsant, second grade teacher.

Owners of curious eyes and faces sat erect with their workbooks and pencil in hand as Vinsant continued: "Listen ... with ... say it ... what's the first sound? Second sound?"

Vinsant is in her fifth year of teaching. She has experience in the past with teaching in Kermit, Texas (about 40 miles west of Midland and Odessa).

She said she stresses children to do "the best they can," and also that she stay informed.

"It's necessary to stay one step ahead of them—to ask new questions and learn new points of view," she said.

Vinsant has a pair of lovebirds in her class that she keeps hoping will eventually mate so her students can experience watching the life-cycle in the animal kingdom.

The birds are quite noisy, especially early in the morning, but she said the students are not bothered by them.

She said having her class increased from 19 to 24 when one of the teachers was pulled into another grade has placed a strain on her class, though not an unworkable one. She said it is "unbelievable what a difference just having five less students can make in terms of having time with the students."

Vinsant has a bachelor of arts and a master's degree in elementary education from Eastern New Mexico University in Portales. She is single, and when asked what life is like for a single professional woman in Ruidoso, she laughed.

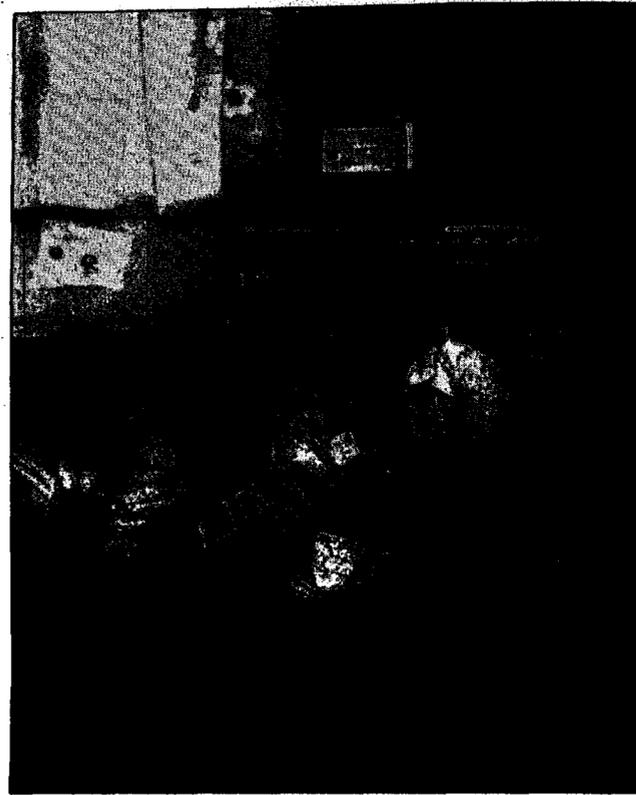

"Well, that is another story," she said.

LINDA SKELLETT

Linda Skellett

Teacher Linda Skellett has taught in the country's second largest school district, and student-taught in the Watts area of Los Angeles. When she came to Ruidoso, she said, "I came from the sands of Malibu to this."

Though she said it was difficult at first, she now says she would never go back.

Skellett teaches in the Little Red School House, a portable classroom behind the regular building. It has all the class and character of an old-time school house, but the convenience of being close to the main building.

She said she believes the range of students she taught has given her a sense of perspective. Her main purpose as a teacher, she said, is "to entice children and help them be aware of the world. They can be learning wherever they are, whether in a classroom or not."

Skellett and her husband Rex (Duane) have parented "children who are very different from each other," and she believes this has impacted on her teaching and her life.

Her son Sean is 18 and is paying his own way to go to New Mexico Military Institute. Her other son Dusty is 12 and is "into sports and very social," she said.

When she talks about the Apache Indian girl she and her husband adopted, her eyes fill with tenderness and her voice softens. Their daughter Neina is now 22 and they adopted her when she was 11.

She and her husband have a granddaughter now. Linda said she has "a nice rapport with many people in Mesalero."

Skellett wants to treat each student as an individual and integrate her experiences as a foster parent to an Indian child to help relate to the Indian students.

She said there are several subjects she would like to see addressed—one being a working woman and coping with other demands. She talks of writing a book.

Skellett was born in Beverly Hills and received a bachelor of science in elementary education from the University of Southern California in Los Angeles.

Debbie Isaacks

DEBBIE ISAACKS

Debbie Isaacks works as a second-grade aide in lieu of her pursuit as a teacher. She graduated in 1961 with a bachelor of arts degree in elementary education from New Mexico State University in Las Cruces.

Isaacks works with 17 students needing special assistance with phonics and reading. She said her teaching education helps her, and she believes working as an aide will make her a better teacher.

Isaacks lived in New Jersey from the ages of six through 16, but prefers New Mexico. She and her husband Allen have built a house in Ruidoso and intend to make this their home.

She wants to teach students in any of the second through fourth grades. "They are so eager to learn," she said.

Viola Montes

Viola Montes works as an aide to all the second-graders. She helps with everything from grading to artwork. Montes is a very youthful looking mother of four grown children. She said, "I believe I am being rewarded now," when referring to her children being grown.

She is from Roswell originally, and one of the teachers referred to her as a "local valley girl."

Her children are nearby and range in names and ages: Veronica, 21; Corinne, 20; Ray, 19; and Mary, 18.

When asked what life was like with children so close together, she said, "It's much simpler now."

VIOLA MONTES

Roger Sowder

"I just told the administration that as of the end of November, we are already out of control for December," laughed principal Roger Sowder over the telephone.

Sowder is new at being a principal and new at Nob Hill Elementary School; and he said the year is busy and things are going quite well.

He did say he hopes that by the end of the year a parent-teacher organization will be formed. He said he urges parental involvement at all levels.

Sowder said he believes all grades are crucial in needing continuity of curriculum, but second grade is special because students start to show more of their individuality. He noted that math concepts are strengthened.

While at Santa Fe as a teacher, he worked in a physical education setting teaching second grade. He sometimes has worked as a substitute, also.

Sowder said the Ruidoso school district does not demand that a text be used throughout the entire district, and individual teachers are free to use a lot of flexibility in their teaching methods.

This is evident, especially in the second grade at Nob Hill, where each room and teacher is distinctly different.

CHRIS FARRINGTON

Chris Farrington

When the chips are down, things are looking up in second-grade teacher Chris Farrington's class.

Farrington uses a variety of modifications in her classroom. She said she has always used. She believes it is a key to a well-disciplined classroom. She uses poker chips to reward students for completed assignments. Every student automatically gets a chip just for coming to school.

She said children use the chips to go "to the store on Fridays." In the back of her room is a combination of treats and small prizes.

A unique aspect of her classroom is the number of learning centers. When students are not working on regular assignments, they can move along from one center to another. Her emphasis is on creative writing.

Farrington is a bundle of energy who said this is her seventh year of teaching second grade, and she said she still has a commitment to give the students everything she can.

Her husband Galen teaches in the high school. He is from New York City and they met at school in Portales.

Farrington has a bachelor of arts and a master's in elementary education from Eastern New Mexico University in Portales.

NANCY PORTER

Nancy Porter

In the midst of her 28th year of teaching, Nancy Porter remains firm in her commitment.

"People have to really like children and want to be teachers to be effective in education," she said. She said she has been around people who chose education "because they didn't know what they wanted." This ends up being a disservice to everyone, she added.

Porter was born and raised in this immediate area. She began her teaching in Mesalero. The year she graduated from Ruidoso was the first year the school had a graduating class.

She said she taught first grade for so many years that she has been kidded, "You finally passed to second grade."

Porter wants to instill good study habits, and to help students think for themselves and learn self-discipline. "I'm just strictly country," she said. "I live in Ruidoso Downs—Ruidoso is too big for me."

this before passing on to third grade.

Though she may not teach too many more years, Porter does not intend to retire. She intends to work with her husband John in their business, Porter's Tomahawk Nursery in Ruidoso Downs. A son, Matt, lives with them and attends Ruidoso High School.

Porter has two children from a previous marriage who are both in Tucson, Arizona. Two of her four grandchildren are close enough for her to see them.

She received a bachelor of arts in elementary education from Western New Mexico University in Silver City. Though she has several hours toward a master's, Porter does not plan to finish it in the near future.

Nancy has a kind of sincerity typical of the community.

"I'm just strictly country," she said. "I live in Ruidoso Downs—Ruidoso is too big for me."

Ruidoso boy cagers fall twice but show improvement

Warrior girls top Cloudfcroft

If Friday night's season opener against Cloudfcroft is any indication, the Ruidoso High School girls varsity basketball team could have one of their better seasons in recent years. The Warriors rolled over the host Bears 61-43, using a big fourth-quarter effort to gain the victory. Ruidoso entered the final period leading 42-35, but outscored Cloudfcroft 19-8 for the final margin.

"Even though we had some good individual efforts, it was an overall team effort," said Warrior head coach Sergio Castanon. "It was one of the best season openers we've had."

Cloudfcroft started off the contest like it was going to rout the Warriors, taking a 7-0 edge. However, Castanon changed his team's defense and the Warriors took charge. Ruidoso led 18-14 at the first-quarter break and held a 30-27 lead at halftime. The Warriors gradually increased their margin in the third quarter before the final-period explosion.

"We started off the game with a man-to-man zone press," said Castanon. "That's where we switch to a zone as soon as the ball stops. However, that didn't work too well so we went back to our old one-two-one-one defense and that worked better."

The Warriors got a balanced scoring attack out of their lineup. Junior Stacy Ivy led the scoring with 17 points while senior Lillian Lopez added 14 and played fine defensively. Deanna Pese scored 10 points, Diane McClure eight, Mavis Geronimo five, Gia Rose four and Sheila Espinosa three.

Castanon was especially pleased with the play of the 5-11 McClure, a junior transfer from Texas.

"I put her in the game about four minutes into the contest," he remarked. "I think she ended up with about 12 blocked shots and was an intimidating force out there. She can be a big help to us this season."

The full-court press was another reason the Warriors took the victory.

"We had it on from the beginning of the game to about two minutes left in the contest," Castanon said. "Cloudfcroft was behind and tried to catch up but couldn't, and we took it to them."

That elusive first victory for the Ruidoso High School boys varsity basketball team keeps getting closer, but it still hasn't arrived.

The Warriors (now 0-3 on the season) lost to visiting Portales 58-35 Thursday night, then gave New Mexico Military Institute (NMMI) a tough battle before losing 49-42 Saturday night in Roswell.

"I think we showed improvement against NMMI," said Warrior head coach Ron Geyer. "They're a well-coached ball club and are well disciplined, so I'd say it was our best game so far."

NMMI came out with a matchup zone in the first quarter and that gave the Warriors problems. The Colts built up a 13-4 first quarter edge before 6-9 center Joe Carpenter got two fouls and spent some time on the bench.

"He kind of intimidated some of our guys at first," Geyer said of Carpenter. "However, in the second half he didn't bother us. Dan (sophomore center Ullmann) out-finessed him and scored 15 of his 17 points in the second half."

The Warriors overcame the NMMI zone in the second quarter and played the Colts evenly the rest of the game. Ruidoso outscored NMMI 11-10 in the second quarter and trailed 23-15 at halftime. The Colts stretched their lead by one point in the third period, holding a 35-26 lead at the quarter break.

The Warriors worked their press well in the final quarter, closing the NMMI gap to six points twice.

But it wasn't quite enough.

Besides Ullmann's 17 points, senior guard Gilbert Rivera tallied 10 points and played a fine all-around game for the Warriors. Junior Tommy Crow also did a good job, scoring seven points.

Marty Cooper led the Colt offense with 20 points. Lance Nation added 12 points and Carpenter tallied 10.

"With their height advantage they probably outrebounded us but not by much," Geyer said.

The game against Portales saw the Warriors come out a bit tight and eventually succumb to the defensive-minded Rams.

The Warriors lead out to a 5-0 edge, but the Rams came back for a 9-7 first-period margin.

Ullmann got in foul trouble with three fouls in the first half and that hurt the Warriors' cause.

Portales took a 17-12 lead into the locker room at halftime.

Portales broke the game open in the third period, forcing numerous Warrior turnovers with the press. The Rams outscored Ruidoso 21-9 for a 38-21 advantage at the end of the quarter.

The teams played fairly evenly in the final period.

"I felt the team was a bit tight because it was our first home game of the season," Geyer remarked. "We started out well and played good defense in the first half before they went ahead."

The Ruidoso junior varsity also lost to Portales and NMMI, but showed improvement over the season-opening loss to Roswell.

The Warriors played tough with NMMI before falling 34-27.

Matt Porter led the Ruidoso scoring with 10 points and Randy Reynolds added six points. Ricardo Garcia tallied five points, Chuck Jarrell four and Trent Tolbert two.

Against Portales, the Warriors lost a 57-30 decision.

Porter again led the scoring with 10 points and Reynolds tanked seven. Jason Bigham added five points.

The Warriors will host Roswell in a return match at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday. Roswell topped the Warriors 78-64 in the opener last week. The junior varsity game will be played first with the varsity tilt following.

Thursday Ruidoso will host Goddard in junior varsity and varsity games.

NOTES: The Warrior freshmen will host the Hondo junior varsity in a 5:30 p.m. game tonight. Ruidoso lost its frosh opener 48-45 to the Carrizozo junior varsity last Wednesday.

Carson, Gregson named to all-district grid first team

Kicker Gary Gregson and offensive guard Craig Carson of the Ruidoso High School varsity football team are both on the All-District 3-AAA first team recently picked by the district coaches.

Both are seniors. Carson is a 5-9, 165-pounder who started in the offensive line since his sophomore season. Gregson didn't go out for football until his senior year. He is also an outstanding soccer player.

Carson was a vital cog in the Warrior offensive line, showing a lot of quickness and strength despite his modest size. Gregson only missed one extra point during the season and also handled the Warriors' kickoff chores.

Junior George Gresham and sophomore Russell Easter were named to the second-team unit.

Gresham made the second-team offense as a running back and the second-team defense as a linebacker. The 6-0, 190-pounder also did a fine job in the offensive line early in the season before being switched to fullback.

The 6-0, 165-pound Easter made the second team defensive unit as a defensive back. He intercepted seven passes on the season and also played a lot at quarterback. He led the Warrior scoring with six touchdowns and also showed promise passing the ball.

Sophomore tight end Bobby Dickinson, sophomore center James Herrera, junior defensive lineman Patric Pearson and senior linebacker Jesse Reynolds were named to the honorable mention unit.

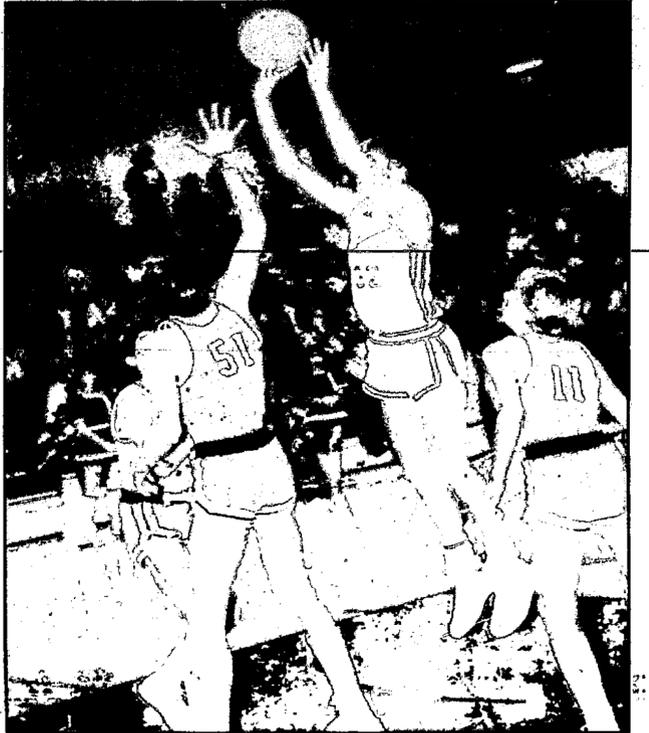

Quarterback Kelly Galloway of Deming was named Player of the Year and George James of Silver City was selected as Coach of the Year.

James led the Colts to the district title and the second round of the state playoffs.

Brave girls win, boys split

The White Mountain Middle School girls basketball team stayed undefeated with two wins and the boys squad split a pair in action over the weekend.

Last Thursday the Brave boys A team lost a 53-40 decision to Tularosa on the winners' court. White Mountain's girls team took a 28-16 decision. The boys B team won 57-9.

Saturday the White Mountain boys and girls A teams each took victories from visiting Carlsbad.

The boys won easily 53-19 while the girls took a 30-9 win.

Against Tularosa, the Brave A boys were led by Kirk Ryan with 13 points and Clint Bob with 10. Jef Sherwood had 12 points and Cliff Sears eight for the B team.

"The refs let the game get out of control," said Brave boys coach Dean

Hood. "They (Tularosa) have a pretty fair team."

Shannon Lee led the Brave girls scoring against Tularosa with 10 points.

In Saturday's competition, Candice Makowski led a well-balanced girls attack with 10 points.

Ryan again paced the Brave boys with 20 points and Sherwood added eight points.

"We played well against Carlsbad," said Hood. "We dominated the game in every area."

The Braves are now 2-1 in boys A play and 2-0 in B action. The girls are 3-0.

White Mountain will travel to Carrizozo today for A games with the Grizzly boys and girls. The girls game will begin at 4 p.m. with the boys contest following.

Around Sports with Gary Brown

There are just two more weeks to this crazy National Football League (NFL) regular season.

And that means two more weeks for me to try and keep my sanity.

Pro football is the only sport in which I can get pushed to the point of a nervous breakdown on any given Sunday.

I make no bones about being a rabid fan of the San Francisco 49ers. I grew up in a suburb 30 miles east of San Francisco. After the Oakland Raiders were started when I was in grammar school, I became a fan of that squad. However, that team's recent move to Los Angeles and my growing disrespect for the people who operate the Raiders have turned me off on that ball club.

Thus, it's been the 49ers for me the past three or four seasons.

When they won the Super Bowl two years ago, I was excited but not crazed with joy. It seems that only when the team does badly do I really become a "mess of nerves" on fall Sundays.

Last season the 49ers slumped to a 3-6 record and missed the playoffs on the final day of the regular season.

San Francisco is 8-6 so far this season and is tied with the Los Angeles Rams for the National Conference (NFC) Western Division lead. However, the 49ers would appear to be in good shape for the playoffs as they have a big advantage over the other contending NFC teams in the tie-breaker system.

But San Francisco still has to travel to Buffalo next week (with all that ice and snow probably) and host the powerful Dallas Cowboys in the final Monday Night game of the season.

But at least the 49ers came through with a big win Sunday, rolling over Tampa Bay 35-21 in a game that wasn't as close as the final score indicated.

However, I had to watch the Dallas-Seattle game on channel 10 to get occasional flashes of the 49er game.

That made it especially hard on my nerves!

I cheered when 49er leads of 7-0 and 14-0 were flashed on the television screen while the Cowboys were routing the Seahawks.

However, the halftime break show on CBS showed Tampa Bay rallying to close the San Francisco edge to 14-7.

That did it for my nerves.

I turned the Dallas game off and watched some program about music and composers on the educational station from Portales. I don't even remember the name of the historical character the program was about.

I lay back on my couch and took deep breaths to relax, while literally praying to God for the 49ers to hold on and win.

I decided to take a bath to help relax my mental state. When I got out of the bath, I turned the Dallas game back on around 4:30 p.m., with that contest in the early stages of its final quarter.

The bath, deep breaths and prayers helped relax me a bit, but I was still nervous about the final outcome of the San Francisco contest.

I paced the floor of my apartment clad only in my underwear (don't worry, the curtains were pulled down).

Finally, CBS flashed back to its New York headquarters for a game update. It showed the 49ers scoring a touchdown and taking a 35-14 lead in the final period.

"All right," I screamed at the top of my lungs. "We've got it now."

Of course, the final score was 35-21 but at least the 49ers had broken a two-game losing streak and seemed ready for their final two games of the season.

I got to the News office and relaxed, a little happier and content than I've been on four of the previous five Sundays (when the 49ers lost).

Such is the Sunday life of a pro football fan.

Ruidoso matmen learn from tourney

by GARY BROWN
News Sports Writer

Ruidoso High School wrestling coach Gerald Ames saw his team's performance in the Ruidoso Invitational Saturday as a learning experience.

"We didn't do so well but it was good for us. Now we know what to expect and what it takes to win the state championship," Ames said.

The Warriors had varsity and junior varsity teams entered in the tournament.

Eastwood of El Paso, Texas, won the competition with 17 1/2 points. Silver City was second with 125 points, Goddard third with 97, Hot Springs fourth with 88 1/2, Ruidoso's varsity fifth with 76, New Mexico Military Institute sixth with 24, and the Warrior junior varsity had nine points.

Zach Swalander at 138 pounds, Gary Burgess at 185 pounds and Joe Larue at heavyweight each took second places to highlight the Ruidoso performances.

Swalander won his first two matches before losing to Frank Borrago of Silver City in the finals. Burgess had a bye in the first round, won his second match by a pin and lost in the finals to Patrick Marquez of Tucumcarl on a second-period pin.

Larue also won his first two matches, but was pinned in the finals by Eddie Flores of Silver City.

Although Burgess lost to Marquez, it was an impressive performance by the Warrior wrestler because Marquez finished third in the state last season.

Burgess trailed the Rattler wrestler 5-0 before scoring three points on an escape and a takedown. However, the stocky Marquez took the Warrior matman to the mat in the second period for the win.

Several other Ruidoso wrestlers took fourth in the tournament.

Kyle Jameson finished fourth at 132 pounds as did Gervase Pesp at 138 pounds, David Frins at 126 pounds, Jeff Slatton at 119 pounds and Paul Emberlin at 98 pounds.

Scott Ciraulo, a state meet veteran at 167 pounds, won his first match but lost his second.

"We had some tough competition today," Ames said. "That should help us later on in the season."

Ruidoso will compete in two tournaments Saturday, December 10. The varsity will travel to Los Lunas and the junior varsity will compete at Deming.

Tigers win cage opener

Despite missing two of their better players, the Capitan Tigers boys varsity basketball team opened the season with a 46-40 decision over visiting Magdalena Saturday night.

Veterans Eddie Davis and Sammy Castillo were not able to play in the contest because they missed school Friday. Coach Kendal Lawless played two freshmen in place of Davis and Castillo.

Capitan led most of the way against the Steers, taking a 10-6 first-quarter advantage.

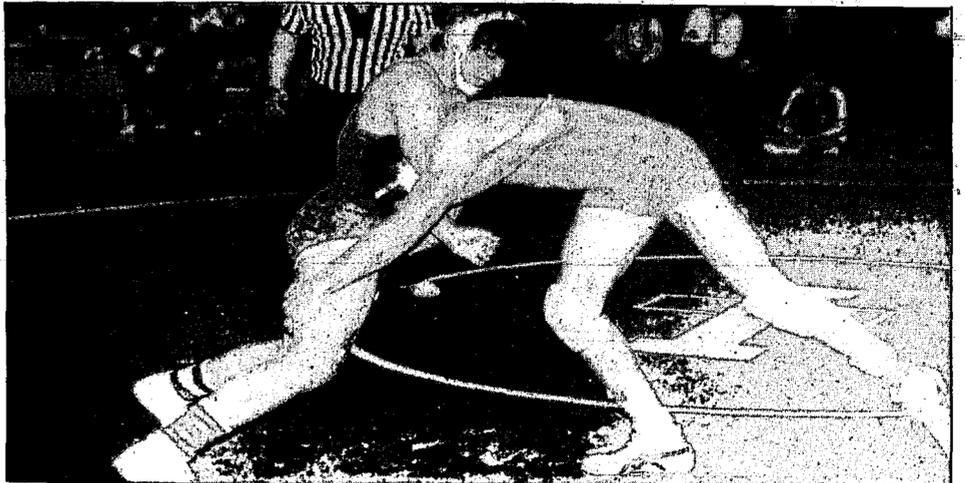

Getting some excellent rebounding from junior Dewey Keller, the Tigers stretched their lead to 26-20 at halftime and 34-26 at the end of the third period.

Keller finished the game with 15 rebounds, 13 of them on the defense backboard. He also scored 11 points.

Danny Cummins led the Capitan scoring with 12 points and Todd Proctor added 11.

"I guess we didn't play bad for a first game," said Tiger head coach Kendal Lawless. "We didn't have many players suited up (nine) so we just rebounded well and took the ball up court."

Capitan will host Carrizozo in a 4:30 p.m. contest Tuesday.

Gary Burgess (right) of the Ruidoso High School wrestling team battles with Patrick Marquez of Tucumcarl in the finals of the 185-pound class in the Ruidoso Invitational Saturday. Burgess, a senior, was pinned in the second period but wrestled well throughout the tourney. It was the season opener.

Capitan girl hoopsters split a pair

The Capitan High School girls varsity basketball team split a couple of non-district games over the weekend to move the Tigers' record to 3-1.

Friday night the Tigers traveled to Hatch and dropped a 43-35 decision. However, Saturday Capitan hosted Magdalena and took an easy 65-25 victory.

"They were a pretty small team," said Tiger coach Darrel Ray about Magdalena. "We played pretty well in all aspects." Capitan jumped off to a 24-10 first-quarter lead and gradually increased its margin from there.

Becky Phillips led the well-balanced Tiger attack with 17 points and Tracy Herd added 15 points.

Shelly Eldridge led the Tiger rebounders with seven. Against Hatch, Phillips led the scoring with 11 points and Eldridge added 10 points. Phillips grabbed 12 rebounds and Shelly Stowe picked off 10 rebounds.

"We didn't play that well against Hatch," said Ray. "It was kind of a long trip and it showed somewhat in our play."

Capitan will host Carrizozo at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday. Both the girls varsity and junior varsity teams will play, along with the boys varsity.

Injured local hunter Caughron needs help

People can also bring the money or check to Susan and Associates

Realtors, and they will deposit the money.

Caughron is an excellent all-around athlete. He is a player for the Nads men's softball team and was a top pole vaulter in college.

LaVerne Cole discusses jobs

by PAMELLA FIELD
News Staff Writer

Ruidoso Downs trustee LeVerne Cole loves business.

"Being a trustee is just like running a business. You have to plan for the future, as well as looking out for today," she said.

Cole agreed to meet for an interview after it was pointed out to her that she is the only female involved in local politics.

This is not exactly a new phenomenon to her as she is also the only female on the executive board of Gibson's chain stores, which is based in Dallas.

Cole manages the local Gibson's and has been involved in it for 25 years.

Her office at Gibson's is large with huge Spanish style windows, a thick shaggy blue rug and several assorted prints and pictures she gathered on a trip around the world.

Much of her life revolves around her work at Gibson's and keeping up with her family. She is leaving this week for Dallas, where she will spend time with two of her four daughters and her new granddaughter.

Cole's term is up in March and she hasn't said yet whether or not she will run in an election.

She said she is hoping low-income housing will be built in Ruidoso Downs.

"School teachers, policemen, nurses and other working people in the area could have a nice place to live and not have to pay these high rents here," she said.

Condo share court trial continues

by DARRELL J. PEHR
News Staff Writer

The District Court Division II trial of the Ruidoso Condo Share Vacation Club, four club officers and Sierra Santa Development Company, Limited, began last Monday with selection of the jury and will continue through this week. District Judge Robert Doughty is presiding over the trial at the courthouse in Carrizozo.

The defendants in the grand jury indictment include Jim Vincent, also known as James Vincent Vultaggio, club manager and chief executive officer; and Pamela Vincent, chief financial and fiscal officer; both named in all 22 counts of fraud, securities fraud, evasion of gross receipts tax, racketeering, conspiracy, embezzlement, criminal solicitation, tampering with evidence, sale of unregistered securities and attempted fraud.

Other defendants include Donald D. Gardner, club sales manager, named in eight counts including fraud, conspiracy and criminal solicitation; and Dean Shade, also a club sales manager, named in 10 counts including fraud, conspiracy, tampering with evidence and criminal solicitation.

The final defendant named in the indictment is Sierra Santa Development Company, Limited, a limited partnership that funded the club. Pamela Vincent's father, Dr. James Monahan of California, is a partner in the company, according to Ron Harris, the attorney representing Sierra Santa.

Judge Doughty said last week the trial could take as long as two weeks.

Visited your library gallery?

by PAMELLA FIELD
News Staff Writer

There is an art gallery in the Ruidoso Public Library—every month new artists are displayed—and it's free to the public.

"I saw a big empty wall there," laughed Mary Lou Gooch, librarian. Gooch started the gallery last April. Local galleries provide art to the library for a month at a time.

This month Carrizozo Lodge is displaying a collection, which includes work from several national artists who used Ruidoso as a setting for the work displayed.

Both Gooch and Ken Hosmer of Carrizozo Lodge expressed a desire that the community draw on the resources provided by the local art produced and the constant trek of new artists working at Carrizozo Lodge.

Hosmer said the art gallery at Car-rizzo will open soon—target date is around the first of the year. It will be housed in a 2,500 square foot space in the area. He said there will be a "major" art show coming up, but did not want to give out any more information.

Gooch said she hopes to have an art collection that can be checked out in the future. She also would like one wing of the library made into an art museum.

The Dreamer

by Dan Storm

A Touch Of April
In December

Up north in the Rocky Mountain country, and all through the midwest, Jack Frost, and the rest of the weather people up at the North Pole jumped off to an early start in winter weather, late in November, breaking all kinds of records for snow and cold for that time of year.

Down here we got barely just the edge of these blizzards which paralyzed the mid section, and west of our land, stopping travel in its tracks, and causing untold thousands to be glad for a pallet on the floor for the night most anywhere shelter could be found.

This is the old story over and over again — unseasonably warm weather in October and even November, which throws travelers, and even home folks some times, completely off their guard.

And then, Wham! Out of a blue sky the Winter Spirits bring up the artillery and the greater part of a whole continent is snow bound.

Today in late afternoon of December two, out to the south of the house, the world has changed from winter to spring all in one day. We had two light snow storms and a couple of blasts of cold air which put the mercury down to fifteen one early morning, and held the snow tightly in place all on the shady side of the world.

Early this morning there was mist and light rain which kept up all day until here at four o'clock the sun has broken through over the mountain to the west, the temperature is up to fifty, and there is not a sign of snow left all along the hillsides to the south. It was a warm rain, which melted all the snow into the ground, leaving Mother Earth ready for another order of the winter blessing from the sky.

A Great Story Teller
Goes To His Reward

On the first of December I heard over Paul Harvey's radio broadcast that one of the most beloved writers of modern times, Richard Llewellyn, was called home by Our Lord.

Llewellyn's stories were mostly about his native Wales, the most famous being, "How Green Was My Valley," and "The Corn is Green" which were both made into powerful and beautiful motion pictures.

I remember particularly, "The Corn is Green" starring Bette Davis, which I saw years ago with our Mother.

The story is about a boy Welsh coal miner and the school teacher in a pitiful little school house.

The teacher goes down into the mine to talk the boys into going to school, and is impressed by the brilliant mind of one of the lads.

He said that while deep in the earth his thoughts wandered always up where the sun was shining, the air dry and pure and the "Corn is Green."

(Corn is the original word for all grain. Our corn is really, Maiz or Indian Corn).

So the boy was talking about the fields of green waving grain under the sky — which he did not get much chance to see because of his life underground. The young coal miner expressed himself so poetically that the teacher was greatly affected and also recognized that the boy had high intelligence.

The lad showed great promise in school which he attended between his work in the mines. And one day the teacher asked him if he had an ambition — a dream.

He said yes, that he did: "I would like to go to Oxford."

For one like himself on the bottom rung of society and with scarcely any education — this was a dream indeed, very unlikely of fulfillment.

But the teacher by superhuman effort and unflagging devotion, coached him and tutored him, until finally he was allowed to take the entrance examinations to one of the top universities in the world, Oxford.

Surprising everyone but his teacher, the youthful coal miner accomplished a near miracle and passed the examinations with flying colors.

His fellow boy coal miners carried him on their shoulders through the town on a torch light parade, with a great throng of folks from miles around, followed in procession, while the band played "Men of Harlech" the stirring Welsh Battle Hymn.

"Welsh Is Best!"

There can be little doubt but that much of Llewellyn's work is autobiographical; and he was the most modest and humble of men.

Yet, after he became famous he wrote an article about his native land for Fortune Magazine, in which he maintained that in everything that amounted to anything, Wales and the Welsh people are best. The Welsh, he said had stood off the Romans, Saxons, Vikings, Normans and the English; and are still there in their hills and vales.

He said that there are more famous prize-fighters of Welsh descent per population than of any other origin. Also that champagnes, whiskey or beer were not to be mentioned in the same breath with Mead, a Welsh drink made from Apple Blossom honey. Going from one thing to another he revealed a fine-drawn, dry sense of humor;

To show the superiority of his native land and its people he quoted a famous old nonsense jingle:

"Taffy was a Welshman
Taffy was a thief,
Taffy came to my house
And stole a leg of beef.

I went to Taffy's house
Taffy was in bed

I picked up a two-by-four
And hit him o'er the head!"

Llewellyn offered this as proof that the only way to get the best of a Welshman is to catch him asleep.

So now this troubador and spokesman of a great people has gone to his reward in Heaven where the dank and dismal coal mines are no more; and the sun is bright and the air pure; and "The Corn is Green."

Child stable after accident

Rance Rush, 9, of Ruidoso remained in stable condition Monday morning after being hit by a pickup truck on Sudderth Drive Saturday afternoon.

According to police, Zeke A. Duran was driving a 1989 Chevrolet pickup that struck Rush Saturday about 2 p.m., after he had apparently run into traffic near the Wild Snail giftshop.

Ruidoso Police lieutenant Dave Pfeffer said skidmarks indicated that Duran was traveling between 25 and 30 miles per hour. Pfeffer said no citations were issued.

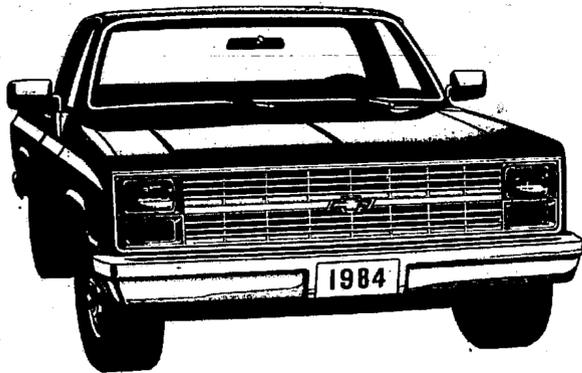

Rance was taken to the Ruidoso-Hondo Valley Hospital where he remained under observation Monday morning.

There will be three Sierra Blanca Handicapped Skiers Association instructors' clinics this week. Lift tickets will be provided to persons participating in the clinics.

Editorial

Do you get tired of us urging you to write letters to elected and appointed officials?

The theme does get redundant. But once in a while, we hear of how an official responds to mail from his constituents by acting. Then the belief that an individual citizen can make a difference is reaffirmed.

A good example was seen recently when Polish emigre Lech Strzyzewski was reunited in America with his wife and two children. Mrs. Strzyzewski was granted permission to leave Poland after U.S. Senator Jeff Bingaman put in a lot of effort on her behalf.

Bingaman's office confirmed that the senator learned of the problem after The Ruidoso News carried a Reporter's Round column detailing Lech's dilemma.

David Sheppard, who wrote the column, suggested that readers clip the column and send it to one of their officials. Scott Alley, Senator Bingaman's administrative assistant, acknowledged that several people did just that, and that it helped.

We understand that Secretary of the Interior William Clark is aware of Ruidoso's need for a new airport. But letters from some of the people here who are very well informed about the issue, and who live with the ever-present dangers of the airport we have, can only help.—TP

SANTA FE—There's a clear effort on to get New Mexico stirred up about education.

Some are pretty cold-blooded about that effort. In the belief that nobody can be against education, they have chosen this topic to be the entering wedge in their wider effort to get more money from the Legislature.

But in their zeal to sell the idea of more support for schools, they may be downgrading the relatively healthy status of such institutions.

There is a plus side to the school picture here, and it should not be forgotten in the heat of argument.

Here are some of the elements New Mexico can well be proud of in education, as presented by Leonard DeLayo, state superintendent of schools:

—Average teacher salaries in our state are already above the national average. We pay the average teacher $20,600 a year, which ranks us as twentieth among the 50 states.

—A national survey says purchasing power for New Mexico teachers increased at the second-highest rate in the nation over the last 10 years.

—Our state is already putting out the fourth highest effort in support of education of any of the states when measured by the portion of our personal income we give to support schools.

—That expenditure per pupil has gone up a rate twice the national average in New Mexico in the last decade.

—In the last ten years the Legislature appropriated over $87 million to build new schools, with much of that money going to cash-short districts with greater needs.

—A companion action from the Legislature put another $80 million into school improvements since 1975.

—Performance by our students is improving. On standardized achievement tests, New Mexico students now score above the national average, especially in math and science.

—Tenth-grade tests of basic skills have shown steady improvement since we began them six years ago.

What's even better, the greatest gains have been made by students whose background is Native American or Hispanic.

—The drop-out rate in schools in our state is below the national average. Ours is 7.1 percent, while the nation as a whole shows a rate of 8.1 percent. If Hispanic students alone are measured, their national drop-out average is 8.4 percent. In New Mexico it is a mere 7.5 percent, and it is declining.

Add to all those facts this thought: No one here can remember a year in which the amount appropriated for the schools has not risen over the year before.

None of this is cited, either by the Superintendent of Schools or by this column, in an effort to suggest that education does not need or deserve increased funding.

It is only mentioned as a counter-balance to those who are over vigorously singing the blues about our schools, for their own purpose.

One interesting sidelight on that figure above for average annual salary to teachers is the effect of supply-and-demand on that total.

Certain New Mexico towns are attractive places in which to live. Year after year, they draw applicants for teaching jobs from all parts of the state and of the country.

Because that is so, school administrators in those areas do not need to pay as much at entry level to attract good teachers.

That helps to keep all teacher salaries in those school districts down, which in turn depresses the statewide average below where it might otherwise be.

An example, the Santa Fe Schools will normally have two to three thousand more applicants than they actually need in any given school year. That allows them to be more selective and to pay a little less.

That's too bad for teachers, but, as the strict believers in laissez faire economics will tell you, "That's the American way."

On the Village Beat

with
Tim Palmer

Part of what makes the Ruidoso of today what it is—a place where we all enjoy living—is the Ruidoso of yesterday. I always enjoy hearing people who have been here a while recall days gone by.

Former mayor Lloyd L. Davis Jr. dropped by the office the other day, and we had a pleasant visit. I had asked Lloyd to tell me about his recently deceased father, Lloyd L. Davis Sr., and he kindly consented.

Lloyd Sr. first moved to Ruidoso from Knox City, Texas, in 1939. He had been an International Harvester dealer in Texas, and at that time a lot of the trade-ins for farm equipment were mules.

While delivering some mules to Fort Bliss for the Army, he overnights at Tularosa. He mentioned to a fellow named Richard Champion that he was interested in an area at a higher elevation, and was told he would like Ruidoso.

So Lloyd Sr. moved here and bought land now occupied by Nottingham's. He opened a bowling alley. Ruidoso already had one bowling alley, Lloyd Jr. recalled, near the intersection of Sudderth and Mechem.

He said bowling was very popular, partly because many visitors did not have it in their home towns in West Texas or wherever. Lloyd thinks there may have been laws against the pastime some places.

"It had the element of risque to it," he said.

In those days, Ruidoso was in three parts that were well delineated. Lloyd told me. Everything from the present Ruidoso News building on down was Skyland. What we call midtown was Central—the Wild Snail building housed the Central Bar.

The third part was Wingfield—the area around the present Pine Tree square where the Wingfield family lived. (Their house was the former Ray Heid Ski Shop, soon to be a catfish restaurant from what I hear.)

Lloyd Sr. sold the bowling alley in '46, and in 1949 he bought the Navajo Lodge (at the site of the present Navajo Spirits). That must have been quite a place, to hear people tell about it today.

Lloyd Jr. said it was "a very charming pueblo-style building" of three stories. The forties were the heyday of gambling in Ruidoso, and the Navajo Lodge was one of the establishments that offered it.

"It wasn't legal but we sure had it," remembers Lloyd.

Another establishment with what was called a "club room" was the Davis Bar, built by Lloyd Sr.'s brother, Denny W. Davis, and owned by the two brothers.

"They were all just miniature casinos," Lloyd said. Patrons could play roulette, slot machines, poker, blackjack and craps.

I wondered what the atmosphere in the gambling halls was like—picturing black-suited Bret Maverick types wearing string ties and pearl-handled six-shooters.

But Lloyd said it was more like a forerunner of the way Las Vegas gambling is today.

"It was really done on a very up and up manner," he said. "The dealers were very professional—they knew what they were doing."

The police raided occasionally, chopping up tables and confiscating equipment.

"I guess that would assuage the public," said Lloyd. The gambling came to an end in 1948, when Governor Ed Mechem made good on his campaign promise and shut it down.

"Actually it didn't slow down the tourism—it didn't bother it any," Lloyd added. He noted the racetrack opened about that time.

A few men of that time saw Ruidoso's potential. Lloyd remembers his father as "one of the first and foremost believers in Ruidoso as a resort area," along with Joe Palmer, George McCarty and one Lloyd P. Bloodworth, founder of The Ruidoso News.

"They wanted to tell its story—they really did," he said.

According to Lloyd Jr., those men saw Ruidoso as a major resort back in the late thirties and early forties, and it never occurred to them that most of the world didn't know about it.

Lloyd pointed out that his mother, Daisy, was his father's partner all the way. "It was always a joint venture," he recalls.

Lloyd Sr. never held elective office, but Mrs. Davis, who died several years ago, did. She was on the school board in the early 1940s, and she was also very active in the Ruidoso Woman's Club.

Lloyd Sr. was very community-minded. His son called him a "great booster" of the Chamber of Commerce, and someone who "could not conceive that anyone could not be in favor of a bond issue that would improve community facilities."

Lloyd pointed out that his father insisted on voting for a school bond issue in his middle eighties.

The Davis family deeded the land for the Ruidoso cemetery to the village, as well.

Lloyd Davis Sr. passed away in late October. But obviously he had lived life fully.

"He never was one who was given to talking, but if he decided he wanted to do something, he would just strike off and do it," said Lloyd Jr.

"At 89, he had done just about everything he wanted to do."

FEED HUNGRY ON 7% OF ARMS BUDGET

Scientists from around the world said that withholding just seven percent of global arms spending could resolve the "scandal" of hunger in the world.

"Two-thirds of humanity still live under severe and sometimes intolerable conditions. This scandal is so much the greater given that only 7 percent of the world budget of armaments could probably redress the situation," they said at the end of a three-day seminar on peace.

The scientists from the Pontifical Academy of Sciences, which includes 15 Nobel prize winners, said the publicity surrounding the horrors of nuclear war must not be allowed to obscure those of conventional warfare.—United Press International.

Rocking Horse Toys a toy wonderland

by DARRELL J. PEHR
News Staff Writer

A brightly colored wooden train twists through turns and tunnels, while a foot-long caterpillar with a dozen crooked legs creeps along. Dolls from every country walk and talk, and there are rugged army jeeps with headlights, that bounce over rough terrain. A giant, gentle-expressed rocking horse rests motionless beside a tiny policeman wildly steering his squad car back and forth, flashing his multi-colored lights at any lawbreakers who might step into his jurisdiction.

The squad car and the others rule a world of their own at Rocking Horse Toys and Gifts, 2508 Sudderth Drive. Owners Don and Sheri Samuels have operated the store since June 22.

"Our dream was to retire in the mountains," Don said, "and we're really enjoying it."

The Samuels have two children, Amanda, 13, and Dona, 9. The family moved here from Pampa, Texas, where Don was general manager for an oil industry trucking company, supervising 175 people. One day he decided he had had enough of the business and told Sheri he wanted to go in business for himself.

"I really couldn't imagine myself selling toys, but here I am."

Don is friendly and easy to talk with. He is not tall, but burly and broad-shouldered.

"This sure beats getting shot at," he said, smiling. Don was a state highway patrolman in Texas for 12 years. He stood with his arms folded, holding his wire sunglasses by the temple, and casually mentioned the time he got shot.

"I got shot once," he said. He did not elaborate. He picks up a bottle of ketchup and squeezes it. A long red stream shoots out, but it is only a length of rope.

Don laughs at his joke.

"I sell one of these nearly every time I do that."

He leads the way around the store, stopping here and there pointing out various little treasures.

"Now here's something people don't find every day." He picks up a stuffed chimpanzee.

"This is an Adopt-A-Chimp. You get to name it, give it a birthdate and you can register it with the national company. One day, when we have enough in Ruidoso, we'll have a reunion like this."

He holds up a photo of swarms of people in Lubbock, Texas, each holding his own Adopt-A-Chimp.

He moves to a lavvy stuffed bear. "Isn't this the darndest thing. This is a Rock-A-Bye Bear. It makes the same sounds as a baby bears inside the mother's womb."

Don moves to the other side of the store. He picks up a thick book.

"We are the best seller of these in the world."

He opens the three-leaved Dial-A-Story book. On two leaves, a story is written. On the last leaf is a dial with holes big enough for a child's finger. As the child turns the dial, a voice tells the story.

"We try to have as many educational items as we can. I think we have some unusual things. We have many items that are exclusive to this area," Don said.

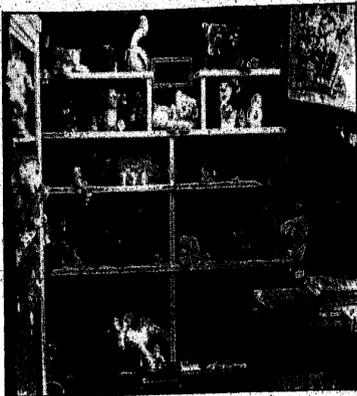

One of the main goals of the store is to attract local business, Don said.

"We really want to get the locals in here. If they would just come in, I think they would be happy."

Friday, the day after Thanksgiving, was the store's busiest day so far, he said.

"Two-thirds of our business was from locals."

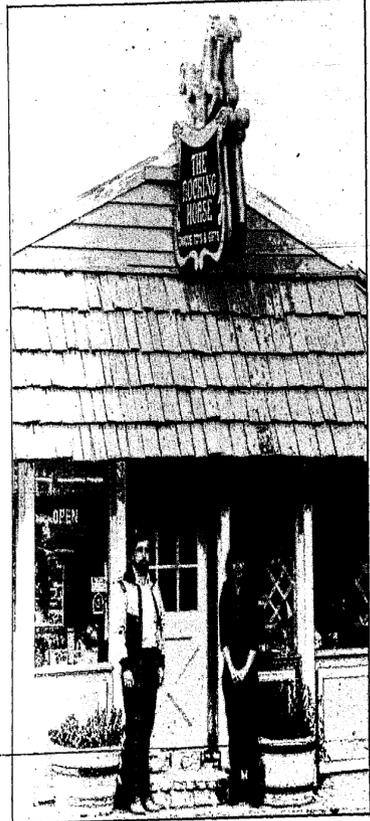

The Rocking Horse is open every day from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., except Sundays when it is open from noon to 6 p.m. They will be open until 9 p.m. on Thursday nights during the Christmas season, Don said. The phone number is 257-4560.

Shelves are lined with stuffed animals of every imaginable type at Rocking Horse Toys and Gifts. The store handles rare Smokey Bear stuffed bears.

"I really couldn't imagine myself selling toys," says Don Samuels, owner of Rocking Horse Toys and Gifts. Samuels is a former Texas highway patrolman.

Standing in front of Rocking Horse Toys and Gifts are Don and Sheri Samuels, owners and operators of the shop. The shop is located at 2508 Sudderth Drive.

Canned gifts are available at Rocking Horse Toys and Gifts.

HISTORY
IN THE OLD WEST

All around the western part of our country are interesting places to see, all the better for telling us of some interesting, or amusing, facts about pioneer America. Here are a few:

Jerome, Arizona is possibly the country's most popular ghost town. It clings precipitously to the sides of the Verde Valley. The sign marking the entrance to town shows the decline of the population, with the original number of 15,000 crossed out and reduced several times to the present "0."

Benicia, California was an important army barracks, first in the West, prior to the Civil War. Generals Grant and Sherman, among others, were stationed here before their rise to eminence. Benicia also marks the end of the army's famous "camel experiment" (the attempt to use camels in the West as steeds for the cavalry); after an ignominious crossing from Texas, the project was given up and the camels auctioned off here.

Wherever you're headed, however you go, stop first to visit your travel specialist at Ruidoso Travel.

Bono's astro-Que
By Lillian Bono

ARIES (March 21-April 20) Career opportunities may arise suddenly via a surprise letter or telephone call from someone who lives far away.

TAURUS (April 21-May 21) Negotiations between business partners could break down abruptly by putting you in the middle to try picking up the pieces.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21) Educational pursuits net your interest and stimulate you to think about possible paths to follow. Use tact and diplomacy to help settle an argument between close friends that doesn't really concern you.

CANCER (June 22-July 23) The emphasis in your life right now is on relationships with others in all areas. It is through your contacts that you'll receive the support you need emotionally and be in a position to advance yourself professionally.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23) A travel excursion puts you in a cheerful frame of mind and provides you with the opportunity to forget about the day-to-day grind for a while.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23) Putting off chores for a later date is not a sensible idea. You'll find yourself inundated with work at a time when you need peace and quiet.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23) An ambitious acquaintance could be pumping you for information in order to achieve questionable goals. Keep your ideas to yourself for the time being.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Social celebrations put you and loved ones in a mood of festive merriment. This is a good time to get closer to relatives you don't see.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Stand up to a powerful associate who thinks you can be pushed around. Speaking your peace is the only way to win this person's respect.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 20) A shopping spree is in order so rustle up extra cash and go out to your favorite stores. Inexpensive means of entertainment seem to charm you the most so try to find activities that fit the bill.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19) Athletic activities should be curtailed if you are not feeling in tip-top condition or you could do yourself bodily harm.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone you have not taken a fancy to could unexpectedly wind up as your new love interest. This turn of affairs will take others by surprise.

SOUND COUNTRY
By Doug Davis

Karen Taylor-Good's first album for Mesa Records will contain all five of her charted singles, plus several new cuts, including a single, "Handsome Man." It's set for release this month.

Karen recently received the 1983 Vista Award presented by SESAC to new and upcoming songwriters in recognition for outstanding activity and achievement during the previous 12 months.

Atlanta's first two hit singles, "Atlanta Burned Again Last Night" and "Dixie Dreaming," will be included in "Pictures," their first LP for MDJ Records.

The new album will be recorded in an upcoming live concert performance and will be released sometime in January.

The nine-member group has finished taping a soundtrack with Charley Pride for an upcoming film "Ellie," which will be released in 1984.

The group backed Pride on three songs on the soundtrack and soloed on two of their own. The film stars Shelley Winters, George Gobel, Edward Albert and Pat Paulsen.

ROCK ON

Paul Simon

Trio — "Trio and Error" (Mercury) — The German threesome (Stephen Remier, Peter Behrens and Kralle Krawinkle) scored a dance club hit last year with "Da Da Da," which reappears on this album. All of these spunky tunes are danceable but, more than that, they are fun. Trio takes an askance view of rock 'n' roll — possibly due to the international perspective — and comes up with a cockeyed gem.

Paul Simon — "Hearts and Bones" (Warner Brothers) — This was going to be a Simon and Garfunkel album, but the duo had a falling out at the last moment and Garfunkel's vocals were stripped off the tape.

Parts of the LP cry out for Art's pure voice. The title cut, an aching beautiful melody, would be so enhanced by that sweetness. But most of the record stands up — and stands up proudly — on its own. Simon is still one of our most personal, intimate songwriters; his lyrics touch the soul and his melodies haunt the mind. If "The Late Great Johnny Ace" doesn't move you, you're a rock.
