McGuire going back to capital

by TIM PALMER
News Editor

"I'm hoping that there will be a special session which will address the budget and capital outlay and the funding of those two areas at some level a little bit higher than last year's," said State Representative Mickey McGuire Tuesday.

Governor Toney Anaya's call for a special session to begin Friday means McGuire will see at least the first part of his hope fulfilled.

Whether the two houses of the Legislature are able to agree this time on an appropriations bill remains to be seen.

McGuire was asked about the Senate's refusal in the recent 30-day session to approve an appropriations bill that would have necessitated a tax increase. Was there a basic philosophical difference in the two chambers regarding a tax increase?

"I think probably so," said McGuire. He said the majority of members in the House looked at the state programs they deemed necessary and set up a budget on that basis.

What the House came up with, McGuire pointed out, was no longer

Governor Anaya's package it had in a rush of $100 million.

In a much talked about move, the Senate rushed the bill onto the floor and voted it down, bypassing the normal channel through a Senate committee.

This did not sit particularly well with McGuire, who, as a member of the House Appropriation and Finance Committee, had spent three weeks working on the bill.

"I think probably I was more annoyed that it was rejected completely without following the procedures that are normally expected," he said.

He said the Senate's action perhaps had created some animosity that made it harder for the two bodies to compromise. The potential for differences between the Senate and House always exists, McGuire acknowledged, but he said this year it was probably greater than usual.

As things stood at the end of the regular session, no budget had been approved, which meant state government would continue from July with the same funding it had this fiscal year.

Co, which McGuire indicated was of particular concern locally.

"It makes a terrific impact on what happens in the Ruidoso Municipal Schools," he said. The school system is counting on capital outlay funds to help finish the new high school.

Also stalled without a new budget are pay raises for teachers and other state employees. McGuire said he felt this was important to education in New Mexico.

McGuire, a teacher for over 20 years, acknowledged that people would say his was a biased viewpoint. "It could be," he said.

But his concern was for the long term, he went on. Top students, men and women, are not choosing education as a career field because of low salaries, he believes.

McGuire said he welcomed the proposal for a committee to study education and all of state government to determine if there were areas of waste.

Other concerns cited by the legislator in regard to the lack of a new budget were funding for state hospitals, including Fort Stanton and alcoholism treatment centers, along with highway projects.

New council chosen

Ruidoso voters Tuesday elected a completely new village council that includes a woman for the first time in Ruidoso history.

Bill Karn was the most popular candidate, receiving 700 votes from the 1,170 people who cast ballots. Attorney H. John Underwood received 607 votes; Sherman Atwood, 568; Ray Dean Carpenter, 567; Jerry G. Shaw, 431; and Rick Evans, 418 votes. All won council seats.

Incumbent municipal judge John Cupp won by a landslide with 607 votes. His nearest competitor, Otis Spears, received 180 votes.

The new council members drew for terms of office Wednesday at village hall. Karn, Underwood and Evans will serve two-year terms, while Carpenter, Atwood and Shaw will serve for four years.

The terms of office had to be drawn so the completely new council would have normally staggered terms. Voters approved a special referendum in November 1983 to increase the council from four to six members, which also required current members to resign and the election of all council members except the mayor.

"I finally broke the barrier," said Jerry Shaw of her election to the council. "It is quite a thrill to be the first woman elected to the council."

Karn kept quiet and remained in the background at the Ruidoso Public Library after learning of his position as top vote-getter.

"I just thank everybody who voted," said Karn. He also said the new council had lots of work ahead for it and that he thought it would be able to work well together.

"I'm just glad the election is over and I'm ready to go to work," said Carpenter, who waited Tuesday evening at the library with eight other candidates for the election results.

"I love it," said Mayor George White of the new council.

At Jember, the only incumbent council member running for office, received 274 votes and placed 11th in the race.

"I wish them all the best of luck," said Jember.

He predicted that Mayor George White may have a difficult time resigning and the election of all council members except the mayor. Only Sherman Atwood has served on the council before.

Junge said he plans to remain active in village affairs, and indicated his political career may not be over. "See you in two years," said Junge.

Other candidates running for council were Alma O. Russell, who received 369 votes; Milton Alcorn, 363; Clark Carpenter, 361; Elmer Pirelli, 345; Romeo Klein, 273; Jon Denny, 263; JoAnn Farris, 253; Bill Streeter, 237; Michael Callaghan, 192; Michael Radziewicz, 174; John Carver, 112; Terry Coe, 99; Joseph Collier, 19; and Ralph Rush, 15 votes.

Other candidates for municipal judge were Ron Harris, 81 votes; Jack Spall, 76; John Barton, 55; and Larry Don Hendricks, 45.

The 1,170 voters amounted to slightly over a 55 percent voter turnout, estimated village manager Jim Hine. Due to recent registrations, Hine was not sure of the exact number of registered Ruidoso voters, but he estimated it to be 2,100.

Downs returns judge, two trustees

About half the voters in Ruidoso Downs cast ballots in an election Tuesday that returned village officials to their seats.

Paula Smith was the top vote-getter on the ballot. She won an intense contest with Harold Mansell to return as municipal judge. Smith had been appointed to the post last summer.

She polled 115 votes, or 59 percent of the total. Mansell gave up a chance to run for another term as trustee to attempt to unseat her. He received 81 votes, or 41 percent.

LeVerne Cole won a four way contest for a two-year term as trustee, so she will retain her seat. She polled 79 votes. Rick Simpson came in second, with 57 votes; Jerry Smith received 45 votes; and Joe Southard polled 11 votes. Votes cast in the contest totaled 192.

Conrad Buchanan and Jacquelyn Branum won election to be trustees for four years. Between them, they received about half of the 354 ballots. Voters could choose two candidates from the six-person field.

Buchanan will return as a trustee, with 104 votes. Branum, the only new official, received 67 ballots. She edged out Camille Mansell, who got 61 votes.

Other trustee candidates were Lorna Parnell, with 52 votes; Scott Tillman, with 45 votes; and Yolanda Flanagan, with 25 votes.

Six absentee ballots were among 197 cast in the election. The village has about 400 registered voters.

As ballots were counted Tuesday night, Branum said, "I'm surprised we had this many voters."

She and Buchanan, Simpson and Smith ran in a loose-knit coalition. They called registered voters right before the election, she said, to urge them to cast ballots.

Buchanan added he had walked through the village Sunday.

Branum's daughter, Debbie Eyer, said of the coalition, "A bunch of us got together and decided we wanted a change. We didn't care about platforms. We just wanted people who were fair."

Renfro, Beavers, Johnson winners in Capitan

by DARRELL J. PEHR
News Staff Writer

Incumbent Norman Renfro and Kelly Beavers were elected Tuesday to the two four year Capitan trustee posts, and Johnnie Johnson upset incumbent Leroy Montes in the race for municipal judge by only four votes. There was an extremely heavy voter turnout for the election.

According to village clerk Virginia Spall, 302 out of about 380 eligible voters made it to the polls, achieving a 70 percent-plus voter turnout. Renfro took tops in the trustee voting, with 146 votes to Beavers' 134. Other candidates for the positions were Pat Huey, with 115 votes; Larry Caywood, with 113 votes; and William Alford, a write-in candidate, with 18 votes.

Municipal judge-elect Johnnie Johnson received 114 votes to Montes' 110 and candidate Michael Points' 57 votes.

According to Spall, there will be an organizational meeting at 7 p.m. Monday, March 19, in the village hall building for newly elected and former members of the village body.

P&Z denies industrial zoning for proposed old sewer plant compactor site

by BILLY ALLSTETTER
News Staff Writer

Ruidoso's new garbage transfer compactor system still has no home. In a split decision, the Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission (P&Z) Monday refused to zone 40 acres of land, including a proposed site for the system, for industrial use.

Approval of the industrial zoning would have cleared the way for the village to place the transfer/compactor system at the old sewer plant without any further public hearings. The 40 acres in the Hollywood area includes Ruidoso's hot mix plant, storage barn and old sewer plant.

P&Z members Bill Carrigan and Margaret Gaddy voted to deny the industrial zoning request, while Ray Bishop and Martin Rose supported the request. P&Z chairman Greg Masters broke the tie by voting to deny the zoning request. P&Z members Tom Kelham, Jim Paxton and Milt Alcorn were absent.

Masters said Tuesday he voted against the request because of strong opposition by residents of the area and because he thought Ruidoso did not need a 40-acre industrial park in that area.

Masters said Jim Wimberly, J. B. Close, Harlan McCraw and Judy Miller all expressed strong opposition to zoning the 40 acres industrial, especially since it included the proposed site for the transfer/compactor system.

He said he also believed Ruidoso should not have an industrial park next to Gavilan Canyon Road, which will be used more and more as a bypass road.

Bishop said Wednesday much of the Hollywood area land was already used for industrial businesses, including the hot mix plant and storage barn. He said he was not concerned about zoning the whole 40 acres because much of the land is unusable due to steep terrain.

Bishop also said he believed residents' opposition is unfounded because the transfer compactor system will cause no problems.

He visited an operating system in El Paso and came back with favorable reports about cleanliness, odor and safety.

"No one will even know it's there," said Bishop.

The compactor transfer system can still be located at the old sewer plant if P&Z and the village council approve. That will require another public hearing before P&Z.

In other business, P&Z:

-Approved a vacation of road right of way for Fred A. Boyd on Cedar Creek Court, directly across the street from the Cree Meadows Restaurant. The vacation will be contingent upon Boyd having the 9,341 square feet of land appraised.

P&Z enforcement officer Paul Davis said the recommendation will be presented to the village council for information only, and that no action would be taken until an appraiser could be agreed upon and it was clear Boyd was willing to pay the appraised price.

-Approved a sign permit for First Federal Savings Bank of New Mexico that had been previously denied. P&Z members decided the free-standing sign and two directional signs would be allowed if and when a proposed sign ordinance was adopted by the village council.

-Approved a 15-foot one-inch rear lot line variance on Mary Street for Larry Montero. The porch that encroaches into the setback was built in 1976, it was noted.

-Agreed to have attorney Masters write village chairman Lee Huckstep to see if the village could limit use on all land zoned "C" to light commercial or C-1 use. The commission is in the process of rezoning all "C" property to C-1 (light commercial) or C-2 (general commercial).

Lincoln Historical Ordinance: a war of words

by DARRELL J. PEHR
News Staff Writer

THE WIND SOFTLY RUSTLES an American flag, proudly flying over the Lincoln, New Mexico, Post Office building. Heavy wooden shutters thump against the building's outer walls in the wind. Iron sheets sandwiched between the two wood layers of the shutters were installed over 100 years ago—not for support, but for the safety of the building's occupants when bullets began to fly across the streets of Lincoln.

This town has heard the ring of gunshots before, both from the guns of Billy the Kid and from the guns of local townfolk, embroiled in feud during the Lincoln County Wars of the late 1870s.

GUNPLAY IS BUT A PART of the rich heritage of Lincoln. It is a history long and colorful that took place in a valley beside the Rio Bonito, occupied by houses and buildings built with an architectural style all their own.

It is a feeling of that history, supported by the continued presence of many of the buildings from the late 1800s, that has resulted in a subject that nearly everyone in Lincoln feels strongly about. Either for, against, or somewhere in between, all have something to say about the Lincoln Historical Ordinance.

THE ORDINANCE, first written and passed into law in 1972, was created, according to Lincoln residents Walter and Nora Henn, because Lincoln was "such a unique Western town."

"It seemed a shame to lose it," said Nora Henn about the quaintness of Lincoln. She and her husband, Walter, were among the pioneers of the ordinance. They said the ordinance was first drawn up in 1968, and took four years to pass into law.

"We wanted to try to show off the uniqueness of the town," said Nora Henn. "There was such a feeling of a type of living and a way of life there was here years ago that contributed to the way of life here now, that we felt it would be nice to protect it. Lincoln is so small and relatively unspoiled."

THE ORDINANCE BECAME LAW in 1972, and governed the type and amount of construction of new buildings and additions to existing buildings in the actual village area of Lincoln, called zone "A," and in the areas outlying Lincoln to the west and east, designated zone "B."

The ordinance is now in the process of being rewritten by the Lincoln Historical Revision Committee. This is at the request of the Lincoln County Board of Commissioners, and is due to clarity and interpretation problems that recently began to surface.

"The ordinance we had has served its purpose," said Lincoln County Manager Suzanne Cox at a recent meeting of the Revision Committee.

"It's time to revise it."

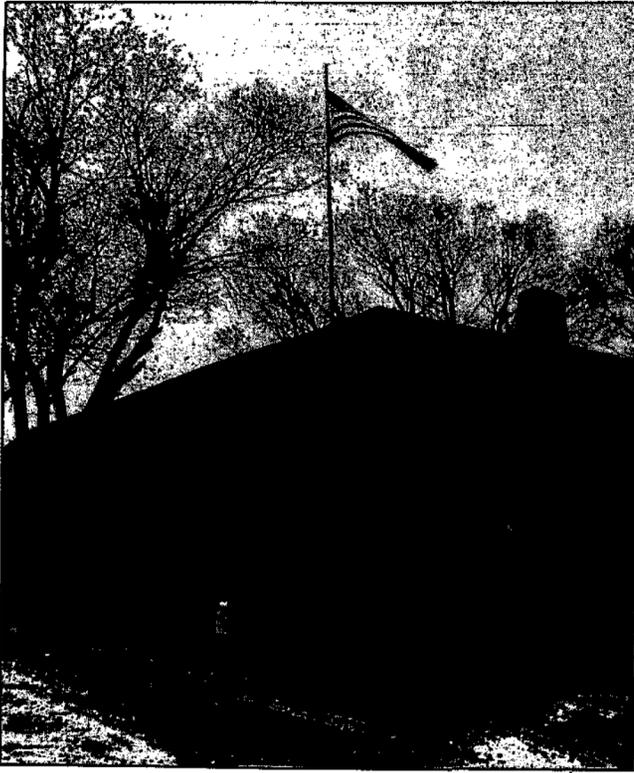

MEMBERS OF THE COMMITTEE have been meeting weekly since November 1983. The committee has studied the ordinances of other communities in New Mexico and around the country, and is "taking the best parts of each," according to Cox, in an effort to rewrite the ordinance.

In addition to looking at other ordinances, Cox said, the committee will consider comments from Lincoln residents generated by a questionnaire distributed by the committee in early January.

The combination of those comments, input from the State Historical Preservation Board, and input from District Attorney Steve Sanders will be compiled into a rough draft of the ordinance.

THAT ROUGH DRAFT will be the subject of public hearings to be conducted by the committee in Lincoln sometime in late March, according to Cox. She said sections of the proposed ordinance will be discussed at several public meetings.

"We're giving consideration to all comments, both for and against," said committee member Mack Bell at a recent meeting of the Revision Committee.

The current U.S. Post Office building, owned by the State of New Mexico, was the location of the Tunstall Store in 1877.

The results of those meetings will go into the final draft of the ordinance. It will then be presented to the county commissioners for their approval or disapproval. If approved, the ordinance will go into effect 30 days later.

"It's not an ordinance until we pass it," county commissioners chairman John Hightower said recently at a joint meeting of the commissioners and the Revision Committee. "Before we pass it, we're going to consider everybody's comments."

According to county commissioner Kenneth Nosker, the decision depends on the people of Lincoln.

"I DO THINK it's up to the people," he said. "The majority of them are for the ordinance itself."

Nosker said questions people are raising about the ordinance deal mostly with the extent the ordinance reaches outside Lincoln.

"I think it's very proper to have an ordinance there in Lincoln proper. Whatever the majority of those folks wanted, I would agree," he said.

County commissioner Bill Elliott also commented on the decision for or against the ordinance.

"I FAVOR WHAT THE MAJORITY of the people there favor. I intend to do what the people want because they are the ones who live there."

The question is, then, what do the people of Lincoln want?

SOME ARE STRONGLY in favor of a historical ordinance in Lincoln.

"Lincoln is special," said Lincoln resident Lynda Sanchez. "It's been a helluva fight to keep it that way. My God, this is something to preserve. We're battling to preserve our historical integrity."

Sanchez said it is mostly the presence of newcomers in Lincoln that has caused the recent controversy.

"THERE ARE SO MANY PLACES people can go where there is either no zoning or very little. That very quality which attracts them to our beautiful valley is what will disappear if we don't maintain and enforce our zoning regulations. If they do not want to adhere to zoning rules, why did they come here?"

John Meigs is the executive director of the Lincoln County Heritage

Trust. The Trust has acquired several properties in Lincoln with the intent of "preservation, restoration and furthering of the continued sustaining of an important slice of history," according to a letter sent by Meigs recently to the Revision Committee.

"ONLY IN RECENT TIMES has an element come to Lincoln which defies the very idea of maintaining the importance of Lincoln and the area as protected historical ground. Claiming 'private property rights,' independence to do as they please in a designated, code-protected historical area, these elements make a mockery of the law and ordinances and threaten the future of Lincoln and its surroundings. This 'anything goes' attitude which would include trailers, unconventional architecture unrelated to existing structures, blatantly exposed solar equipment, TV dishes, incongruous elements small and large and who knows what other modernisms to come, will contribute to another lost heritage ... People who do not approve of a code for a historical ordinance did not have to move into it. There is a lot of New Mexico willing to tolerate trailers, trash and strange structures ..."

Meigs' letter continued, "The very reasons people move to Lincoln because of its special quality should know that the same quality deteriorates as the Code is violated, leaving them wondering 'what happened?' to the very thing that brought them in the first place."

In a recent interview, Meigs said, "If the county commission changes the protected area or rules, then I feel that Lincoln has breathed its last. We just feel that if the ordinance is not sustained and strengthened, particularly as far as the architectural integrity, it will destroy the whole thing."

"SOMEWHERE SOMEONE has to hold the line. It can be dispensed with a show of hands," he said of the coming commissioners' vote.

Another letter sent to the Revision Committee read, "Are we to let private citizens, fortunate enough to live in this town, gradually erode the significance of the town by ignoring the ordinances and demanding special treatment? Are we to fling open the buffer zone on either side of Lincoln, thus letting the area become no different from any other, small valley, with its attendant trailer parks and commercial blot? The answer is an obvious NO."

EL PASO-AUTHOR LEON C. Metz also offered his comments in a letter to the committee. He wrote, "A properly prepared and strictly enforced zoning regulation is all that stands between historic Lincoln and cultural chaos. Once that integrity is breached, Lincoln will be just another town, its significance over."

His letter continues, "I recognize the pressures exerted upon you for the relaxation of zoning in Lincoln. Yet, you have a responsibility to resist. You have an obligation to help perpetuate a world-famous community ... There is only one Lincoln ... Please dig in your heels and fight to preserve it."

Another letter, sent to the committee, contained the following thoughts.

"Our forebearers did not have a past to preserve in Lincoln, and we do. Ordinances which attempt to keep out the modern blight that exists not for the basic needs of the people but for the rapacity of 'land developers,' serve not just the immediate present, as trailer parks, franchise restaurants, and glass and concrete buildings with built-in obsolescence do, but serve the past, the present, and the future. The intentions of historical ordinances is not to serve a privileged few, but to save for the present and the future a sense of the human dignity from the past ... All we want to do is preserve Lincoln's uniqueness. Those who have no regard for the past have no regard for the future."

COMMENTS SENT TO THE COMMITTEE from a Lincoln resident read, "I am strongly in favor of an ordinance for Lincoln which will truly protect and safeguard our historic and cultural heritage. I hope there will be stronger enforcement powers in a revised ordinance. I hope the experiences of the past year when a few selfish individuals have been able to undermine the entire ordinance and the Board will never be allowed to be repeated."

A letter sent to the Revision Committee from a Lincoln family equated the right of freedom with responsibility.

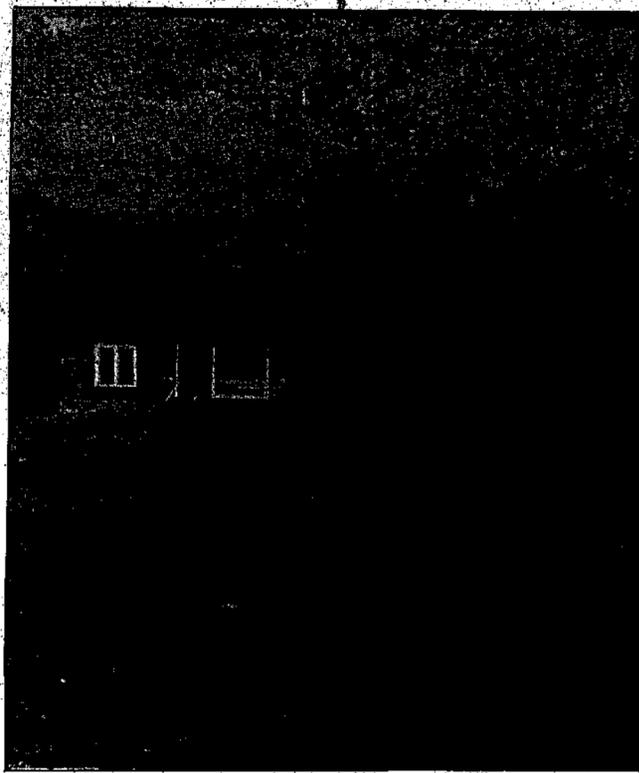

"Preservation is more important than petty, selfish interests. To those who raise the hue-and-cry about interference with their 'rights,' we remind them of the responsibilities that go hand-in-hand with freedom. Freedom is not the right to simply do as one pleases, at the expense of others. Sometimes it means sacrificing for the good of the group," the letter reads.

AS WITH ALL ISSUES defined by two sides, there are those who oppose the ordinance, some very strongly. Letters received by the Committee reflect the ideas of those in opposition, but county manager Cox said many of the letters received in the past were in response to a rough draft the Committee was working on that was accidentally released to the public.

Cox said the draft contained sections that were only ideas being studied by the Committee, and not actual parts of the ordinance. Cox said many of the complaining letters dealt with those portions of the draft.

According to Committee chairman Bill Seelbach, "The rough draft got out and a lot of people got upset. There was a tremendous misunderstanding that we were fixing to cram something down the people's throats."

Cox said after the rough draft was released accidentally, several meetings of the Committee were attended by concerned Lincoln residents. Since Committee members explained the actual meaning of the contents of the rough draft to those concerned parties, the comments the Committee has received have been much more favorable to the ordinance, according to Cox.

The Vorwerk House, restored by the Anderson family, dates back to 1905. It is located just outside Lincoln.

THERE ARE LINCOLN RESIDENTS who maintain their stand against the ordinance, however. Two letters sent to the Committee by Lincoln resident Clark C. Pfingsten argued strongly against adoption of a new ordinance.

"I disagree with the whole concept of a historic ordinance," Pfingsten's letters began. "As written, (the) ordinance (is) impossible, impractical, too restrictive, and unrealistic. Junk cars and other trash as example: I might be saving almost any material, natural or manufactured, as spare parts or new usage. It is an infringement of my privacy to see whether I am digging a posthole, burying a dead cow, excavating a root cellar or any purpose I see fit on my own land."

"Many provisions of (the) zoning code (have been) violated in the fifteen years of its existence. (It) has only further obliterated the shape and exterior of many of the older buildings ... (There have been) many cases of new additions to (the) oldest buildings, being covered in part or completely by very modern exteriors."

"Furthermore, the State of New Mexico as custodian of some of the oldest buildings in this area has failed miserably to do that very same preservation for which it was given the buildings. Can we expect any better treatment in the administration of an ordinance so wide ranging and all-inclusive, that I would need a permit to use my own bathroom?"

"CONSIDER THE COST FACTOR—just who will consider what is suitable in building and restoration? Enforcement? Penalties? All those tasks and more need be done by someone. That costs money. Just who, in his right mind, needs any more taxes, laws, or unnecessary expenses these days? (It is) very, very doubtful that I need any help in spending my own money! Next thing you know there will be a half mile wide strip, fenced off from here to Fort Sumner, to commemorate Billy the Kid's escape from Old Lincoln!"

Pfingsten's letters continue, "As I view the new and rebuilt or remodeled buildings, I see no limiting pattern emerging. (I) am forced to think, 'Just get elected to the board, then build as you please' ... I believe the only remedy, is to take inventory NOW and place signs marking ONLY present buildings of actual historic value. For the rest only preserve the scattered nature of the original village ... Take action to preserve only those buildings that are OLD ... So in conclusion, we do not need any such foolishness as a historic preservation ordinance."

MANY OTHER LINCOLN RESIDENTS who oppose the ordinance suggested in form letters sent to the Committee that properties of the Lincoln County Historical Trust be maintained and managed by the Trust, that properties owned by the State of New Mexico be maintained and managed by the State, and that private properties be maintained and managed by their owners.

The letters continue, "We have found the previous zoning ordinance intolerable and we object to being managed, maneuvered, coerced or harassed into accepting any ordinance that is against our true convictions."

In addition, residents have sent copies of a letter written by Belle Wilson in 1968, when the first historical ordinance was being proposed. That letter reads, in part, "I am herewith enclosing my ballot to be counted 'NO,' unqualified, claiming the right not to conform, yet remaining at peace with my neighbors ... Those who do not have a deep and abiding love for this valley and its people will not stay. Like those who came before us, we have not yet ruined Lincoln, for to despoil a town is to destroy the will of its people. Those who follow us will do no less. We should not fetter them by denying the fundamental rights of self-determination, self-expression and human dignity. Control is the first step to despotism."

THE COMMITTEE HAS RECEIVED other letters of discord.

"The present ordinance has lowered the value of the property and caused people to laugh and joke about there being another Lincoln County War in Lincoln. This does not encourage people to buy or rent in Lincoln," one letter-writer stated.

"The new 'framework' for a new ordinance for Lincoln is shocking and totally unenforceable as guaranteed in the Constitution of the United States. God bless America where neighbor cannot spy on neighbor and have neighbor jailed because his house has a 'buckle of floor' or 'cracked paint.' Hitler allowed neighbor to 'chop' on neighbor and the undesirables were taken off to 'camps,'" stated another letter-writer.

A letter sent to the Committee said,

"The draft of a new ordinance for Lincoln which I have received is completely unworkable and would result in countless lawsuits if adopted."

A LINCOLN RESIDENT WROTE, "It seems a gross miscarriage of justice to insist that private property owners using private monies should be saddled with rules and regulations that destroy their freedom for themselves, and even more unfair that those choices be made by others who declare they do as 'a public necessity required in the interest of the people.' We are not in need of being saved from ourselves by another board or commission."

The Commission also received a letter that read, in part, "The proposal that FREE landowners in a ten mile stretch of land will voluntarily give up the fight to plan the disposition of their own homes and property, to the decision of a five man board, is unthinkable."

Other letters sent to the Committee suggested various additions, deletions and revisions to the ordinance. Many suggested that the ordinance only cover the village limits area of Lincoln, or the "A" zone, and leave the areas outlying Lincoln, or "B" zone, unaffected by the ordinance.

Many suggested that mobile homes be prohibited, and several suggested provisions be made for modern conveniences and unconventional energy sources, such as television saucer satellite antennas and solar energy systems. Several letters referred to the role of the county commissioners in their enforcement of the proposed ordinance.

"THE ZONING LAWS should be enforced uniformly and promptly in all cases," one Lincoln family's letter read.

"Our elected (by the people) County Commissioners should not and must not shy away from their responsibility in upholding and enforcing any ordinance, be it historic or otherwise," another letter stated.

In all the Commission has received over 60 letters voicing opinion on the issue of the ordinance. More letters and comments are directed to their attention constantly.

THE CONVICTION THAT PRIVATE PROPERTY rights are to be strictly regarded, entitling property owners to do as they will; and the belief that all property owners in an area have a responsibility to collectively preserve the past for present and future generations—these are widely divided by a myriad of stands in the case of the Lincoln Historical Ordinance.

Where the people of Lincoln will eventually make their stand will only be seen at the conclusion of the combined workings of the Lincoln Historical Ordinance Revision Committee, the Lincoln County Board of Commissioners, and the citizens of Lincoln themselves.

And as soft winds constantly shift the position of the red, white and blue flag flying over the Lincoln post office, so shifts the complex issue of the Lincoln Historical Ordinance.

The former Lincoln County Courthouse, from where Billy the Kid escaped in 1878, was first built to house the Murphy

Dolan Store. The familiar Lincoln landmark is now owned by the State of New Mexico.

Boy's friends set account

Michael Mails Jr., five months old, is experiencing severe liver problems. He is being treated by a pediatric specialist in Denver, Colorado.

The doctor performed a liver biopsy on the baby Monday. The boy has already spent three weeks in intensive care units and is once again hospitalized.

Medical personnel have not determined the cause for his liver failure, said Gwen Stone, a family friend. A special account has been opened for the baby at The Bank of Ruidoso. The bank itself donated $200. Family and friends are seeking gifts to help pay medical bills, which are expected to be large.

Michael's parents, Michael and Suzie Mails, have lived in Ruidoso for about seven years. They also have a four-year-old daughter, Erica.

Tigers lose 68-67 heartbreaker

History repeats itself sometimes, and the Capitan High School boys varsity basketball team probably wishes it didn't.

The Tigers lost a heart-breaking decision in the New Mexico A-division tournament for the second straight year Wednesday night. They fell to Cimarron 68-67 at Sandia High School in Albuquerque.

Last year, Capitan lost in the opening round to Melrose by a 56-55 score. This defeat, however, was harder to take.

Capitan led the entire game, before Cimarron's John Casias hit a 15-foot jump shot with five seconds left to play. That gave the Rams the victory.

His shot climaxed a rally by Cimarron, which was trailing by 13 points midway through the third quarter. Capitan still led, 54-45, at the end of the third quarter. However, the Cimarron press was beginning to affect the bigger Tigers.

The Rams closed the gap to 58-51 with just over four minutes remaining. Then Tiger junior Dewey Keller hit a basket to put Capitan ahead by nine, 60-51.

Cimarron came back to decrease the margin to 60-58, with three and a half minutes left in the game. However, Capitan's Eddie Davis hit a basket and Todd Proctor made two free throws to give the Tigers a seemingly safe 64-56 lead.

Then the Cimarron team came to life. It outscored Capitan 10-3 in the next three minutes. The Rams also forced several turnovers.

With fewer than 20 seconds left, the Ram players tried to get into position for a good shot. Casias took a short pass and made the jump shot for the winning basket.

Capitan came down the court quickly after that, but was unable to get off an answering shot.

The Tigers won most of the statistical battles. Capitan out-rebounded Cimarron 49-43. The Tigers also made 50 percent of their field goal attempts, to just 35.2 percent for the Rams.

Turnovers, however, proved to make the difference in the game. Cimarron only committed nine turnovers, while the Tigers made 21. Most of the Capitan turnovers were the results of the Rams' tough press.

Davis led the Tiger scoring with 21 points, Proctor had 17, Keller scored 16 and Danny Cummins added 10.

Billy Coza led Cimarron with 23 points. Pat Casias added 13 points, John Casias scored 11 and Louie Whitten added 10.

Cimarron plays the winner of Wednesday night's Texico-Reserve game today in the semi-finals. The finals will be played Saturday.

The Capitan boys end the basketball year with a 20-9 record.

Ruidoso thinclads meet Cavemen after Artesia meet canceled

The non-scoring track meet between the Ruidoso High School boys track team and host Artesia scheduled for last Tuesday was cancelled because of snowy weather.

However, the Warriors have scheduled a non-scoring meet against Carlsbad at 2 Friday afternoon on the Cavemen's track. Carlsbad is an AAAA division school and should provide strong competition for the Warriors.

Ruidoso's biggest strength should be in the distance races, with Cisco Bob and Curt McClellan leading the way.

Bob finished second in the state AAA division 1,500 meters last season. He is also an excellent 3,000-meter runner.

McClellan was third in the state 800 meters last season and also could be a strong runner on the 1,600-meter relay.

Ruidoso could also do well in the sprints, relays and long jump.

Ruidoso's girls are in their second week of practice and will not compete Friday.

Coaches Sergio Castanon and Pixie Arthur have several returnees from last season's second-place district team.

The Warriors don't have a lot of athletes out, but should be tough in the middle distance races.

Diane McClure should be one of the better shot put and discus throwers in the district, and transfer Kim Daniels could be an excellent sprinter.

However, Gia Rose and Valerie Garcia—two of the Warriors' best runners last season—have both transferred.

The boys and girls teams will have their first official meet at the Eunice Invitational Saturday, March 17.

Local racers compete at Roswell

There will be about 15 drag racers from Ruidoso participating when the District Four season of the Firestone-Centerline Racing Series begins Sunday at the old municipal airport in Roswell.

There will be competition in the pro series and the high school division.

Ruidoso drivers entered in the pro series include Roy Capps, Roy Seay, Don Jones, Rick Armstrong, Kenneth Hazel, Steve Mallet, Philip Ortiz, Bob

Smith and Tony Swafford. There will also be about five or six Ruidoso High School drivers entered.

"This should be a successful series," said Seay. "There's been a lot of interest in the high school division. There were about 35 kids at one meeting recently."

Seay and Jones competed in the Winter Nationals in Tucson, Arizona, January 12-15, and did well.

Seay won the A class of the modified production division and Jones reached the quarter finals of the top comp class of the pro division.

The pro series at Roswell will include competition in the pro driver division, street division, motorcycle division and trophy class division.

The winner in the high school division will get a trophy and a set of mechanic's tools. The second-place finisher in the high school division will get a free ticket to the next race and a Quaker State hat.

There will be competition once each month at Roswell. Usually the competition will be on the second Sunday of each month, but the next day of racing will be Sunday, April 1.

Basketball tournaments set for Mescalero gymnasium

The Mescalero Community Center gymnasium should be filled with the sound of basketballs bouncing for the next month.

An all-Indian women's basketball tournament will take place Friday through Sunday, March 30-April 1, in the gymnasium.

There is a $60 entry fee per team and the deadline is Wednesday, March 28. It will be a 12-team double-elimination bracket tournament.

There will be trophies for the top four teams; a sportsmanship trophy; a most valuable player trophy; and all-tournament trophies.

The third annual Braves Pee Wee

Basketball Tournament will Friday and Saturday, April 13-14, in the Mescalero gymnasium.

Boys nine to 13 years old can compete in the tournament. There is a $30 entry fee, and all teams must be entered by 4:30 Tuesday afternoon, April 10. The first 12 teams will play.

Awards will be given out for the top three teams; consolation; sportsmanship; most valuable player; and all-tournament players. T-shirts will also be given out.

For further information on either tournament, contact Albert Platta at 671-4494 or P.O. Box 262, Mescalero, NM 88340.

Inside the outdoors

INSIDE THE OUTDOORS

By Ben Hanson

The New Mexico Department of Game and Fish has recently been conducting aerial surveys of deer and elk populations throughout the state. These surveys are done each year and yield important information for the management of deer and elk with in the state.

A helicopter is used to conduct the surveys and 16½ hours of flight time was used in the southeastern part of New Mexico. Areas that were surveyed include the Guadalupe Mountains, the Sacramento Mountains, the White Mountains, the Gallina Mountains and McGregor Range. During the flights, observers recorded a total of 2,440 deer and 64 elk. Not only the total number of animals was recorded, each herd was also classified into sex and age groups. For deer, the surveys show 166 bucks, 1462 does and 814 fawns. This means that for each 100 does counted there were 11.9 bucks and 53.7 fawns. For elk, there were 13 bulls, 38 cows, and 15 calves which means that for 100 cows there were 34 bulls and 40 calves.

These surveys do not show the actual number of deer or elk in an area. It would take a tremendous amount of helicopter time, which is expensive, to try to count each individual animal.

The information recorded this year can be compared to data collected in previous years to gain insight into population trends. It can show an increasing or decreasing population, a good or poor fawn survival rate, or an imbalance in the sex ratio. If the comparison turns up a problem then further study may be needed to identify the cause of the problem such as disease, malnutrition, or predation from coyotes and cougar.

Manuel Montano of the Ruidoso High School recent practice. The team will travel to boys track team throws the shot put during a Carlsbad Friday.

Well, an annual ritual in New Mexico high school sports is currently going on in the University of New Mexico (UNM) gymnasium, more popularly known as "The Pit."

It's the state boys basketball championships in four divisions: AAAA, AAA, AA and A. The tournament draws crowds of over 16,000 people to "The Pit" every season, and this year should be no exception.

New Mexico has drawn more people to its state boys basketball tournaments in recent seasons than any other state in the country, except for Kentucky and Indiana.

This year's tournament should be as good or better than last season, with the quality of the teams possibly even better.

A few teams even may have been eliminated by the time people read this column. Pre-tournament games were played in some divisions Wednesday night.

But here's how I see the four divisions and the winners of each of them.

AAAA: Hobbs is the top-ranked team in the state and is the most famous basketball power in New Mexico history.

The Eagles finished third in the state last year and have a veteran team back this season, featuring plenty of speed and jumping ability as usual.

Look for the Eagles to edge Los Alamos in the championship game. Los Alamos has a strong inside game but Hobbs' press should wear the northern school down in the second half.

Sandia, Albuquerque, Clovis and defending champion Eldorado will probably be "dark horse" contenders for the championship.

AAA: Albuquerque Academy and Goddard should be the favorites in this division.

Albuquerque Academy has been the top-ranked team much of the season, but Goddard looked good in its win over defending state champion Lovington in the District 4-AAA finals.

Goddard also has the advantage of playing in the state AAAA tournament last season before moving down to the AAA level this year.

Still, Albuquerque Academy should still be the Rockets for the crown. The Albuquerque school has good size, quickness and a home crowd rooting for it.

Lovington and St. Pius probably rate the best chances of upsetting either Goddard or Albuquerque Academy.

District 3-AAA representatives Silver City and Deming should have a very tough time of it. The Colts and Wildcats are the survivors of a well-balanced district race but don't appear to have a chance at the title.

AA: It's pretty wide open. Any of several teams could win it, but I'm going with Pojoaque.

A: Reserve looks like a good bet to unseat Cliff as state champion. Reserve topped Cliff 58-51 in the Region C championship last weekend, and has plenty of size and depth.

Capitan has come on strong in recent weeks and could be the surprise of the A division tournament. However, the Tigers lost to Reserve 53-37 in the finals of the Smokey Bear Classic in January.

That's how I see the division competition. Regardless of who wins the championships, "The Pit" should be shaking with excitement the next three days.

Turning to youth boxing, David Ordorica of the Las Piedras Boxing Team of Ruidoso took the 80-pound senior championship of the Golden Gloves Regional Tournament two weeks ago when he was unopposed.

Ordorica, who won a bronze medal in the National Police Athletic League Tournament last summer, has trouble finding athletes to box him at tournaments now because of his winning reputation.

But when Ordorica does find an opponent to go against, he almost always comes away a winner.

Way to go, David.

Ruidoso coaches optimistic about 84-85

by GARY BROWN
News Sports Writer

Both Ruidoso High School boys basketball coach Ron Geyer and Warrior girls coach Sergio Castanon are hopeful next season will bring better fortunes for their teams.

The two teams have had their problems in recent seasons, not having a winning season in either boys or girls competition since the 1980-81 boys district championship campaign.

The Ruidoso varsity boys had a 4-17 record while the girls were 6-15 this past season. However, both Castanon and Geyer think their teams can be better next season if the players work hard during the off-season.

"I wouldn't call this past season frustrating. I'd call it exciting," Geyer said. "It was the first step in rebuilding the program."

"Last year we didn't have anybody back, and this year we had added experience but were still real young."

Sophomore Dan Ullmann, a 6-5 postman, led the Warriors in scoring, averaging 19 points a game. He was also a standout rebounder and made the all-district first team.

Junior Patric Pearson and sophomore Russell Easter were given honorable mention all-district status, and both of those players should help Ruidoso a lot next season.

Juniors Tommy Crow, Dion Lopez and Tracy Gann also saw a lot of playing time this season. Gann is 6-3 and edging on 6-4. He gives the Warriors added height in the front line.

Freshmen Brian Davis and Jeff Willingham saw a lot of playing time with the junior varsity and should be much improved next season. There are several other junior varsity players who could help also.

The Warrior girls also have a good surplus of talent returning next season, enough to make Castanon hopeful.

"This was a frustrating season for me personally, and I'm sure the girls too felt they could have done better in the win-loss column," he said. "But we've got some solid players returning next year."

Diane McClure, a 5-11 all-district junior, leads the list of Warrior returnees for next season. McClure averaged 11 points a game and picked off 10 rebounds a contest.

"I feel Diane deserved it (the all-district honor)," said Castanon. "She worked hard all season and was one of our top players."

"With a little work during the offseason, she could be one of the top two players in the district next season."

Other returnees from the varsity include 5-5 sophomore Mavis Geronimo, 5-9 junior Stacy Ivy, junior Yelena Seelbach and junior Sheila Espinosa.

Junior Gia Rose, a top playmaker, has moved to Arizona.

"That's one of the problems we've had," said Castanon. "A lot of players move in and out of here. That doesn't give us time to build a team from the time they were freshmen."

But Castanon sees some other bright spots.

"We've got some solid players coming up from the first junior varsity team with a winning season since I've been here," Castanon said. "The middle school also had some good players who could help us."

One of the problems both Warrior teams will be facing next season is that most of the district's schools in the boys and girls divisions will have the majority of their players returning.

In the boys division, district champion Silver City will have several players returning, while runner-up Deming will have most of its players back. Deming, in particular, will have a lot of size with 6-4 all-district star Alpha Adkins leading the way.

Hot Springs, the only district team to lose to the Warriors, will have all-district sophomores Todd Mannon and Chris Harrison returning.

Harrison is 6-3 and Mannon 6-5, so the Tigers figure to give anybody a battle next season.

Only Cobre is losing most of its players, but the Indians usually manage to field a good team.

"That's a problem," admitted Geyer. "Most of the other teams will be stronger next season. But we should be stronger, too, and be more competitive."

Deming is the only team in the girls' division to lose most of its players. The rest of the teams, including district champion Hot Springs, will have a lot of returning letter winners.

What do the Warrior coaches do to make sure their teams will be competitive next season?

"We're going to take a few weeks off and then resume our workouts," answered Geyer.

The two coaches plan to have a tournament this summer. They'll split the revenues from it and send the teams to a summer basketball camp. The boys also will play in a summer league at the high school gymnasium.

"The key to how we'll do next season is how hard we work during the off-season," said Castanon.

Geyer echoes Castanon's feelings.

"Everybody in our district should be improved," he remarked. "In order to beat these guys, we're going to have to work real hard in the off-season."

"We're going to have to work on our strength, like weight training, fundamentals, quickness and vertical jumps, among other things."

Geyer also thinks there should be more coaches for the basketball program.

"We need more coaches for the program," he said. "Most of the other schools in the district have more coaches."

"Cobre, for example, has two coaches for the seventh and eighth grades, a freshman coach, junior varsity coach, varsity coach and a varsity assistant."

Ruidoso's boys program this past season had one varsity coach, one junior varsity coach, a freshman coach and one middle school coach.

Whatever the case, you can be sure Ron Geyer and Sergio Castanon are looking forward to the 1984-85 season with hopes of better things.

Mavis Geronimo (21) of the Ruidoso High School girls basketball team tries to dribble around a Tularosa opponent in a game this past season. Geronimo, a sophomore, should be a key performer for the Warriors next season.

Warrior golfers to compete in Artesia tourney Saturday

The Ruidoso High School golfers will compete in their second tournament of the season when the Warriors go to the Artesia Invitational Saturday.

The competition will start at 9 a.m. Many of the AAA division schools in Southeastern New Mexico will compete in the tournament.

Ruidoso finished 10th in the 11-team Alamogordo Invitational last Friday. However, several of the Warriors' best golfers did not compete in the tournament.

Freshman Jeff Bender had an 84 to lead the young Warriors in the Alamogordo tournament. With a full team at Artesia, Ruidoso should do better this weekend.

Following the Artesia Invitational, the Warriors will compete in the Mayfield Invitational at Las Cruces Friday, March 16.

Softball meetings scheduled

There will be an organizational meeting of the Ruidoso Men's Slow-Pitch Softball League at 7 this Friday night at the Ruidoso Public Library.

The Silver Lining

Loved Ones and Friends Pay Fond Tribute To Mamie Payton

Services were held Tuesday, March six, at the Gateway Church of Christ, for Mamie Lee Payton, one of the most beloved of our long time friends. The Reverend Weldon McKinney of Roswell gave the sermon and Eulogy and the final prayer was offered by the Reverend Carl Parsons, pastor of the Gateway Church of Christ.

The Reverend Mr. McKinney said that Mamie had given us all a good example of the life of a true Christian; and that her reward in Heaven is great.

Junior Winfield led the congregation of friends and loved ones in singing four hymns:

"To Canaan's Land," "In the Land of Fadeless Day," "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," and "I'll Fly Away."

Mamie's grave is in the Hale Cemetery in the Ruidoso Valley.

After the services a reception and dinner was given by Mrs. Alice Allison, longtime close friend of Mamie, in her home in Ruidoso Downs. Here, longtime friends and relatives who had not seen one another in years, went over fond memories of the early days in the Ruidoso Valley, and of Mamie and her husband, Elmer Payton.

Mamie was born in what is now Tucumcari, and at that time only a rural center of a ranching community, to Mark Holland and the former Paralee Watts, on July 13, 1908.

Later on the family moved back to their original home in Oklahoma. Then in 1921 the family came in a covered wagon to New Mexico for Mamie's mother's health, and arrived first in Dexter. Later the family came to Lincoln county and farmed in the Ruidoso Valley one year and then on the Mescalero Indian Reservation for three years.

In 1923 Mamie was married to Elmer Payton, and to this union were born three sons, James, Roy and Rusty; and two daughters, Ethel Cunningham of Fayetteville, Arkansas; and Helen Arnold of Carlsbad.

Mamie was at one time president of the Parent Teachers Association of the Old Stetson School, and was very active in the beginnings of a School Lunch Program. Along with Mrs. Tod Browning, Mayme Perry and others she helped out in cooking beans, and bread. And the neighbors would pitch in with other things such as vegetables and beef—altogether making a very solid and appetizing school lunch menu for the day.

In countless ways Mamie and Elmer helped out in the true pioneer spirit, bringing happiness to all the neighborhood.

Mamie Payton will always hold a very dear spot in our hearts and we rejoice that she has gone on to meet Elmer in Heaven, with Our Lord.

I Meet A Great Friend

I was in Gibson's on the sixth of March talking to that beautiful lady, Jo Leland, when up steps a handsome and distinguished looking fellow and says to Jo,

"When you get through, I want to talk to this fellow."

Jo said something like, "I have been talking to him too long already, and am now late to where I have to go. You can have him."

With that this man said that he was George Hamilton from Austin, Texas, and that he had been reading my columns for years and had written me telling me so.

I remembered the name immediately, and the kind words he had written. It turns out he is a psychologist and a specialist in helping people straighten out their lives; and he looks the part, with high intelligence and deep kindness written upon his features.

Mr. Hamilton said he is going to tour the world beginning with the Hawaiian Islands. He said he would write me from the Islands. I consider it a great honor to meet this friend, and wherever he goes he will cast a great blessing.

Mr. Hamilton said,

"I recognized you from your hat." And so I am grateful to Mark for drawing the sketch of me in the Buckshot Roberts hat, which sometimes appears at the top of "The Silver Lining."

ATTENTION HOME BUYER!

When you come to Ruidoso to buy a home it's hard to tell if you are buying a quality built house. So we have some things you should watch for.

A. Look At The Fireplace

1. It should be a high efficiency unit with glass doors and blower.
2. It should have a big firebox, at least 35" wide and 21 1/2" deep.
3. Don't settle for some small inefficient unit.

B. Inspect The Cabinets

1. They should be oak or comparable.
2. They should have double drawer guides.
3. They should have a top quality finish.
4. They should have wood sided boxes.
5. They should have backs, made of masonite or wood but never press board.

C. Look At The Appliances

1. They should be major lines such as:
 - A. Thermador
 - B. Jenn Air
 - C. Hotpoint
 - D. Roper
 - E. General Electric
 - F. Whirlpool
2. Don't settle for some brand that you might have trouble getting service for later.

Please Watch For Our Products As You Look For Your New Home.

When you find the fireplace is a DF41 MARCO, the cabinets are beautiful oak by PRESTIGE and the appliances are from the major manufacturers you know you are looking at a home that was built by a builder who cares enough to use the very best.

DECISION NOTICE

Western Spruce Budworm Control on the Mesalero Indian Reservation

1. BIA Action: As Area Director of the Albuquerque Area Office of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, I have reviewed and evaluated the proposed action to utilize an integrated pest management approach to spruce budworm control. The prevention alternative (2) will be utilized on all commercial forest lands infested with spruce budworm in the Mesalero Indian Reservation. Alternative (4) would be used on all host-type areas not infested. This integrated pest management approach will be implemented in 1984 and continued in subsequent years if necessary to maintain larval population at acceptable levels. The actual areas to be sprayed will be determined by ground surveys prior to insecticide application. The insecticides Bacillus thuringiensis and carbaryl will be used. My review included both the Environmental Assessment and the Finding of No Significant Impact, and stated concerns of the Mesalero Apache Tribal Council.

2. Background: The western spruce budworm is currently inflicting more than 100,000 acres of the Lincoln National Forest, Mesalero Apache Indian Reservation, and interspersed private lands. This insect outbreak is expected to increase in area and intensity in 1984 and possibly in future years. It infests approximately 60,000 acres of defoliated on the Mesalero Apache Forest.

Alternatives: The alternatives available to the Bureau were (1) no action alternative which would take no action to suppress western spruce budworm outbreaks, (2) aerial application of insecticides to infested areas, (3) protection of high value trees or stands with insecticides, and (4) prevention by implementation of a program of the host-type on all commercial timber lands. This alternative does not appreciably affect the current spruce budworm outbreak, but does provide a long-term management tactic to reduce future susceptibility and vulnerability of forest lands to budworm damage.

4. Decision: Taking into consideration the Bureau's responsibility for the protection of trust resources and the expressed concerns of the Mesalero Apache Tribal Council, and all practical means to avoid or minimize any adverse impacts the program might have on the human environment; it has concluded that the benefits to be gained by implementation of a program outweigh the adverse effects and as a result of the investigations and evaluations conducted, the Albuquerque Area Office, Bureau of Indian Affairs, in consultation with the Mesalero Apache Indian Reservation, should implement an integrated pest management approach.

5. Conditions: Bacillus thuringiensis will be used in sensitive areas such as areas of human habitation and major water bodies such as streams, lakes, and ponds. Carbaryl will be used in other areas. Should infestation unexpectedly

Emergency personnel wheel Kenneth Clear away from the scene of a head-on accident that broke his arm and knocked out two of his teeth.

Two describe encounter all fear

by BILLY ALLSTETTER
News Staff Writer

"There wasn't anything we could do," said Kenneth Clear as he settled uncomfortably into a chair. "We tried to dodge him."

What had been a routine trip to the grocery store last Wednesday for Joyce and Kenneth Clear turned within a couple of seconds into the nightmare many of us dread.

As the couple drove their 1983 Buick north on Mechem Drive toward the new Safeway, a pickup truck appeared over the hill coming at them on their side of the road.

"What does that guy think he's doing?" Kenneth Clear remembered asking his wife.

Clear said the truck was coming at them two or three feet over the center line. He said he tried to swerve into the borrow ditch, but that the pickup kept moving farther into their lane.

The two vehicles hit head on. Kenneth Clear said he suffered a broken arm that required six days in the hospital, surgery, and four metal plates to repair. Two of his teeth were also knocked out.

Joyce Clear said she suffered a broken nose and bruises all over her body. Both of them moved slowly around the kitchen almost a week after the accident.

They both thanked all the emergency personnel who worked so quickly and efficiently to help them after the accident.

According to Ruidoso police officer Robert Kinney's report, the driver of the other vehicle, Gilbert Vargas Sr., suffered bruises in the chest area.

Kinney also wrote that he smelled alcohol at the scene of the accident. Vargas refused a breath test for blood alcohol content, according to the report. Refusal to take a breath test means an automatic revocation of a driver's license for one year, said Ruidoso police officer Danny Steward.

Vargas, 63, of Clint, Texas, has been charged by Ruidoso police with driving while intoxicated, reckless driving, driving left of center and driving without a driver's license.

Vargas posted a $500 bond and his case is pending in Ruidoso municipal court.

Joyce Clear said she is now very nervous about driving, and had friends drive her to visit her husband at the hospital. Kenneth Clear will not be able to drive for six weeks.

"That's what it bothers, is my nerves," said Joyce.

Both Clears said there was nothing they could have done to avoid the accident. They just asked anybody who has been drinking not to drive on the roads.

County subdivision crackdown announced

by DARRELL J. PEHR
News Staff Writer

A closed door meeting Monday night of the Lincoln County Board of Commissioners and the Lincoln County Planning and Zoning Commission resulted in the reading of a press release by District Attorney Steve Sanders. The release dealt with alleged illegal subdivision activities in the county.

The release stated, "It has come to the attention of the Lincoln County Planning and Zoning Commission and the Lincoln County Board of Commissioners that there have been sales of land in Lincoln County that have not been subdivided in accordance with County or State regulations.

"We do not believe it is fair to require some subdividers to comply with the County rules and not require all subdividers to do so. Therefore, after the entire County is surveyed, we will be sending out letters to each person alleged to have failed to comply with our County's subdivision regulations. The letter will invite that person to appear before the P & Z at a private meeting to allow that person the opportunity to explain his position."

Sanders made no comment after reading the release at the meeting.

Also during the meeting, the commissioners heard a report on the progress of the Lincoln Historical Ordinance Revision Committee from committee chairman Bill Seelbach.

"The people who are on this committee have worked diligently on this," Seelbach said of the rewriting efforts.

"You have the backing of the county commissioners," said commissioners' chairman John Hightower.

Shane Watts qualifies for national competition

Shane Watts, Ruidoso's one-legged ski racer, has qualified for the National Handicapped Ski Championships at Jackson Hole, Wyoming.

Watts, 18, traveled to Breckenridge, Colorado, last weekend for regional qualifications. He qualified for the slalom class A men's competition in Jackson Hole March 25-31. Watts, who has won numerous national titles in junior men's competition, will be racing in the men's category for the first time.

Watts leaves for Breckenridge this weekend, where he will spend the next two weeks training under Chris Christensen, head coach for the Olympic Handicapped team.

Watts is a developmental racer on the National Handicapped Olympic Ski Team, and hopes to compete in the Handicapped Olympics in 1988.

Prime Time Restaurant and Lounge has donated $200 towards Watts' trip to Jackson Hole. He still needs $400 to cover costs of the trip. Anyone wanting to help Watts travel to the National Championships may call Watts or Judy Miller at 378-4833.

Opinion

Editorial

If President Reagan and the senators who support his stand on prayer in the schools really want to do something for schoolchildren, why don't they work on diverting some of the money spent on defense into education, instead of playing politics with prayer?

There has been quite a fuss in the U.S. Senate this week over a proposed constitutional amendment that would allow prayer in public schools.

The Supreme Court has ruled that officially sponsored prayer cannot be allowed in the schools because it would violate the constitutional principle of separation of church and state.

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof ..." reads the First Amendment.

That seems clear enough, and should be left well enough alone. If an individual wants to exercise his religion through prayer, in school or out, he must be permitted to do so, though under necessary restraints against disrupting the classroom or neglecting to participate in learning.

But no individual who does not have or who has a different religious belief should be required to be present while his classmates pray together—or to have time deducted from his school day for that prayer.

But this is an election year, and politicians from the president on down are saying what they think voters want to hear. Pray for wisdom in our elected officials.—TP

Inside the Capitol

SANTA FE—Headline in a daily newspaper: "UNM Officials Fire First Volley in Salary Battle."

First volley? Those guys have been firing volleys for months. Their trouble is that their artillery just isn't very accurate.

The reference is to the fact that university personnel, not just at UNM but all over the state, are still jumpy about whether or not they will get pay raises. In this case, the folks at UNM did some fast footwork with figures to "prove" what a tough life they have. In a piece of puffery, John Perovich, president of that estimable institution, shows how little pay one of his people will have, as he puts it, "after deducting employee increases to the Educational Retirement Program and other mandatory deductions."

What does that mean? After deducting withholding, for instance? Since when have salaries been quoted only AFTER taxes? Don't the rest of us have to pay those same income taxes too? Are we supposed to be sorry for full professors because they have to do that?

And why AFTER Educational Retirement money?

The employee doesn't lose that money. It is held for him or her, and if the person leaves state government can be collected in full. Indeed, it is matched by the state (and thus doubled) so that when retirement time comes, it returns like the bread cast upon the waters.

And here's another question for Perovich: When you compute the hours your teaching staff work to earn their annual pay, do you deduct the equivalent of one day a week they are allowed to work under contract to private firms? Few of us get that privilege. For us, a five-day week means five days, not four. Not so to university professors, apparently, some of whom at least double their base pay (the one the Legislature gets to vote on) by this means.

And one more: What is your university planning to do, with or without a pay raise, to improve the quality of the education it is offering? To those truly motivated, money should not be necessary to drive that impulse. Why has it become the only subject on which your volleys are fired? Simple fact, which every university person understands as well as the rest of us do: More money doesn't make teachers teach better. It just lets them live better.

Come out of your ivory towers, guys. Things have not been sweet for everybody in America in recent days. The automatic raises you think you are entitled to have pretty well ended for the rest of the world. Why must they be continued for you?

Maybe if you'd listen to ordinary citizens instead of to each other, you'd hear things like these:

—You are afraid to ask for tuition increases to help fund your establishment. You say that would drive deserving students out of the classroom. It would also decrease the amount of money the state provides for you, because the funding formula is based on headcount. As long as you have the bodies, you get the money. Isn't that so?

—You have helped to create unnecessary empires of bureaucracy with the branch institutions your university has established. The state is badly "over-universitized," as you well know. When each of you descend on Santa Fe separately to fight your own battle for legislative bucks, the result is chaos. Each establishment strives to take advantage of that situation in an attempt to out-fight all the others.

—History shows that you have been well supported by the taxpaying citizens of New Mexico, going back all the way to the date of the Enabling Act, which set aside land to be used to generate revenue for you. To demand that these people tax themselves more for your benefit should at least create an obligation on you to demonstrate how you plan to improve things with the money.

In short, there is little sympathy out in the real world for the plight of the university people. Most of those who will be taxed to achieve what these folks want are less well treated and live tougher lives than the Peroviches and others who are chiding them.

It's going to take more than impetuous demands and faked-up figures to make the universities' case.

Letters to the editor

DEAR EDITOR:

I am from Syracuse, New York, and am here visiting my parents who live in Glencoe. Today, March 8th, is International Women's Day. At home we have done many things over the years to celebrate this day — hold workshops on women's issues, show women's films, have pancake breakfasts, give dances, create rituals. It is one of the most important days of the year to the women in my community. Originally this day marked a demonstration by New York City women, in 1908, demanding an end to sweatshops and child labor. It now expresses our solidarity and sisterhood with women everywhere. I would like to wish all the women in the Ruidoso community a very happy International Women's Day.

KATE TOMLINSON

DEAR EDITOR

The "Cavemen Band" under my direction was in Ruidoso last week and had the opportunity, the pleasure, of performing for the Student Body of Ruidoso High School.

Our band was very kindly received by the Principal, Mr. Tom Hansen, and by the Band Director, Mr. Danny Flores.

I was a little apprehensive at the idea of performing for High School students, but we were so kindly received that I commended them on their good behavior. Every student in the audience was polite and attentive as we performed.

In this age of criticism of the public schools in our state we hear (and read) much too little good news about the students in our High Schools. The people of Ruidoso should be proud of the way their high school is operated and the way the students behave.

You are also lucky to have people like Tom Hansen and Danny Flores working in your community. The Cavemen Band and I wish to thank them and your high school students for making us feel welcome.

MOST CORDIALLY,
 PATHENRY

Reporter's Round

By Billy Allstetter

As I sat there Sunday night ticket-tacking away on my word processor, I wondered if I was writing the right story.

Jarle Halsnes' and Alain Navillod's victories in the U.S. Open, as well as the whole weekend of ski racing, were a thrill. Halsnes' come-from-behind victory in the final $10,000 race was amazing.

But I think for a lot of people in Ruidoso the real news was that Ruidoso pulled it together enough to put on a real good race and excellent social activities.

It was a rough road leading to the actual events, and I must have written the whole thing off at least two or three times. Even as late as Thursday, I was worried. Not as many skiers showed up as hoped for; there were concerns about power supply to the race site; and the sun was warming the slopes more every day.

But by Saturday night, the first intensive racing day was over and it was clear that Ruidoso was going to pull it off.

As with any first-time event, there were some difficulties, especially behind the scenes. Other than some fencing blown down by the wind, however, it looked fine from the sidelines.

The sun shone warmly, but the course held up very well, thanks to excellent preparation by Ray Heid, Paul Southwick and the Eagle Creek crew. The race progressed smoothly and television crews taped the first of two one-hour shows for USA Network. Locals got a kick out of skiing in the Celebrity Pro Am race, and the whole day seemed like a professional production.

I think the Celebrity Pro-Am awards dinner was more a celebration of a successful race than it was of race winners. Many of the local people who had worked for so many months to produce this race were wandering around Jerry Dale's with somewhat blank, blissful expressions on their faces.

And they had a right to. I mean, who among us did not wonder about holding a world class ski race at Eagle Creek in March? Would the racers have to ski on grass skis? As Paul Southwick himself brought up, would he still even be in business in March? After seeing the race in Winter Park, Colorado, I wondered if Ruidoso would rise to the occasion and produce all the other activities and services to pull off such a big time event.

And it seemed big time. The hill at Eagle Creek looked positively festive with blue and red racing gates winding up the hill bordered by red and orange fencing. I think many locals were even surprised at how big the hill really was.

Television crews lined the course. Television stars mingled in the crowd, and everywhere you could hear people speaking French, German, Norwegian.

By Saturday night, people were already talking about next year's race. Race promoter Paul Carson has already expressed interest in having the race here next year.

On Monday Mayor George White asked me if I thought the race had been worth the $25,000 Ruidoso put into it. A tough question and very hard to answer, especially in the first year.

The crowds were a little disappointing, but there was some good publicity. The Albuquerque Journal ran two facing pages deep in the sports section Sunday and two stories and a picture on the front of the section Monday. The El Paso Times ran articles on both Sunday and Saturday. I am not sure which papers picked up the AP and UPI stories.

Numerous television stations, including several from our prime market area, West Texas, covered the event. There should be a feature in SKI magazine and possibly some coverage by Powder magazine.

The USA Network coverage is probably the most important coverage. The first one-hour show will have already been aired by the time you read this. The other will be shown locally on cable channel 12 at 6 p.m. Saturday.

It's hard to judge. But I don't think you could have asked for any more. The race came off. There was an incredible volunteer effort by so many people and businesses in Ruidoso.

It can only get better in the future. The race will work smoother and it will gain more prestige and coverage as it grows.

The key in the end will be who wants to put up dollars for the race. Sponsorship came up a little short this year. Carson had to take more money out of racers' checks for promotional fees, which caused some grumbling.

Hopefully national sponsors will contribute more in a non-Olympic year. I would also like to see some of the local real estate firms put up some money towards the race. National exposure could really benefit them.

But whatever does happen in the coming years, it will be hard to top the feeling of success many people felt after pulling it off this year.

To all who contributed, Congratulations! We did it!

The racing bug bites fearful skier in Celebrity Pro Am

by BILLY ALLSTETTER
News Staff Writer

"Just don't embarrass yourself," I thought to myself as I picked up my bib for the Celebrity Pro Am race Saturday afternoon at Eagle Creek.

National television cameras will be focused on you. Don't cross a tip, don't miss a gate and, most of all, don't run into any of the people you will be racing against.

The pro on my team, Steve Bounous, of course had a different plan.

"Go for it! Launch yourself out of those starting gates! Attack the hill!"

Yeah, sure. I, who have run a total of about 30 gates in my life, will tear it up.

Just don't embarrass yourself. Our team first met the night before the race when we stood together on stage as they auctioned our skills to the crowd at Cree Meadows. We didn't fetch a very high price.

We gathered again Saturday around noon at the bottom of the ski area, and headed up the hill to inspect the course and work on our skiing.

Steve skied ahead and watched us as we skied towards him. First run of the day, still sort of frantic from trying to cover the giant slalom race earlier, I tried my most impressive, quickest turns to show him that he had indeed lucked into a fine teammate.

I was lucky I didn't fall.

But Steve was very encouraging. We sideslipped down the course that had been set for the race—substantially easier than the kamikaze run the pros made in their races.

Steve pointed out different aspects of the course to us and advised us how to ski it. There were the two top gates that were almost in a straight line. Don't make big turns there, Steve advised.

Lower in the course was a dropoff with a fairly sharp turn right below it.

Steve showed us how to set up early for the turn, then dive straight down the hill for the last three gates almost in a line to the finish.

It was neat to hear someone analyze the course. When watching other races, I knew there was a real difference in the gates and in strategies for skiing them, but I never really understood it.

Now I had the strategy down. Stay high for the second gate. Start wide and turn early for the gate at the dropoff. Skate when you can, but not too much. Hard on the downhill ski all the time and carve through the middle turns. Go straight at the bottom. Throw your arms out at the start and launch out of the gate.

And remember to remember it all while you are racing against two other advanced skiers.

We stood on one of the pro bumps and watched as all levels of skiers slid through the gates and pros threw snowballs at each other. As each group of three racers set themselves behind the starting gates, friends cheered for their favorites.

Finally, it was my turn, and Ron Anderson's and Jo Cunningham's. People began hooting and hollering as we climbed into the gates. Jo, the fine sport that she is, told me to choke. I told to dream on and hoped her bindings would pre-release.

Just don't embarrass yourself. "Course clear, racers ready." Wham! The gates flew open and we were off.

I don't have a clue if I threw my arms out and launched out of the gate. I don't know if I skated in the first couple of gates. In fact I remember very little about the race itself.

I do know Ron was ahead of me most of the way. No matter how I tried to carve turns and catch up with him, my skis bounced around the turns and he stayed ahead of me. At one point, I just about lost it with one ski rising almost to head level before I pulled it back onto the snow.

I tried to watch the gates in front of me, but couldn't keep from seeing Ron there in front of me. And I couldn't catch up.

But I did remember the advice Steve had given me about the dropoff, and I set up well for the last few gates. After a good turn, I dove down the hill and saw Ron veering off to the left. He disappeared and I crossed the finish line first.

Ron had blew out of the course soon after the dropoff, graciously allowing me to pull ahead. Jo came up right behind me and we hugged each other in the finish area.

We made it. We didn't embarrass ourselves.

Success does funny things to you. "Let's go again! Jarle Haisnes, watch out!"

But our team did not advance. It's probably just as well I did not have to test my luck again. But my one spree through the gates makes me wish I was racing for the finish line at the Cousins' Cup now, instead of racing to the deadline with this story.

Tim Culbertson man of many talents, interests

by C.E. REUTTER
News Staff Writer

Does Tim Culbertson play crooks or does he play cops? Is he a boxing champ or a boa handler?

Yes. The Hollywood-based entertainer is all those things, and more. He came to Ruidoso to participate in the Pro Am Ski Race Saturday, because he strongly backs programs to help handicapped skiers.

His sister-in-law, Jeanne Culbertson, was a strong supporter of Special Olympics at Fort Stanton.

Tim Culbertson demonstrated strength of another kind at the Pick the Winner Party Friday night.

A portion of the bets on the Pro Am racing teams went to the Sierra Blanca Handicapped Skiers Association. He wanted to raise bids on his team, so he lifted two fellow skiers into the air to demonstrate his power.

Culbertson's athletic background made the feat appear easy.

While he was in the U.S. Army in Alaska from 1969 to 1971, he was a boxing champion. Before that, he was a Golden Gloves champ.

In high school he was a wrestler, a gymnast and a swimmer and diver. He also played football, baseball, basketball and tennis.

In college, he played football, baseball, basketball, volleyball and tennis. He was also involved in swimming, diving and track.

As a shortstop and utility outfielder, he was good enough to try out for the Cincinnati Reds and the Washington Senators.

He played professional basketball for Meadowlark Lemon's Bucketeeers. He coached junior high gymnastics and went to the U.S. Olympic trials in track.

Culbertson is a mountain climber and skin diver. He skis on water as well as on snow, and he rides horses and motorcycles.

The list seems endless. A separate interest that carried from his school days into his career is snakes. He is a wild-animal trainer and owner.

His friend discovered a reptile of another sort in the shower at Culbertson's home years ago. The family had forgotten to mention their pet alligator.

Culbertson kept "all kinds of pets" when he was a boy in Florida. His mother was president of the state American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

TIM CULBERTSON

He didn't get serious about snakes until he went to the University of Florida. His fraternity was the Sigma Nu—"the snakes."

"I was the keeper of the mascot," he recalled.

When his family researched their history, they found something smack in the middle of their crest. It was a snake.

"I handle mostly constrictors," including boa constrictors, he said. However, an upcoming project will involve work with rattlesnakes.

He prefers to work with his own animals. "You shouldn't do anything you really don't know how to do," he believes.

Acting is a big part of the wide range of activities he knows.

Culbertson has played roles ranging from bad guys in "Winter Kills" and "Star Trek II" to a good guy as a "Hill Street Blues" cop.

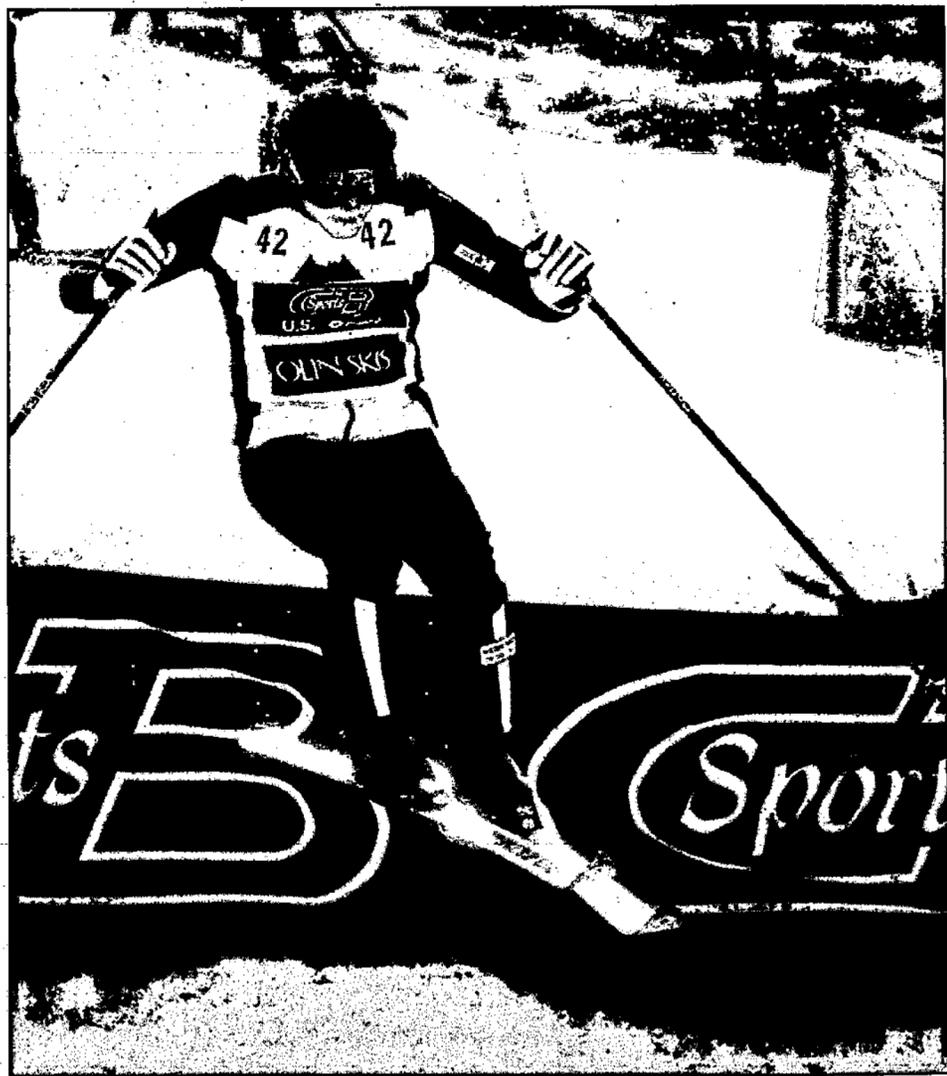

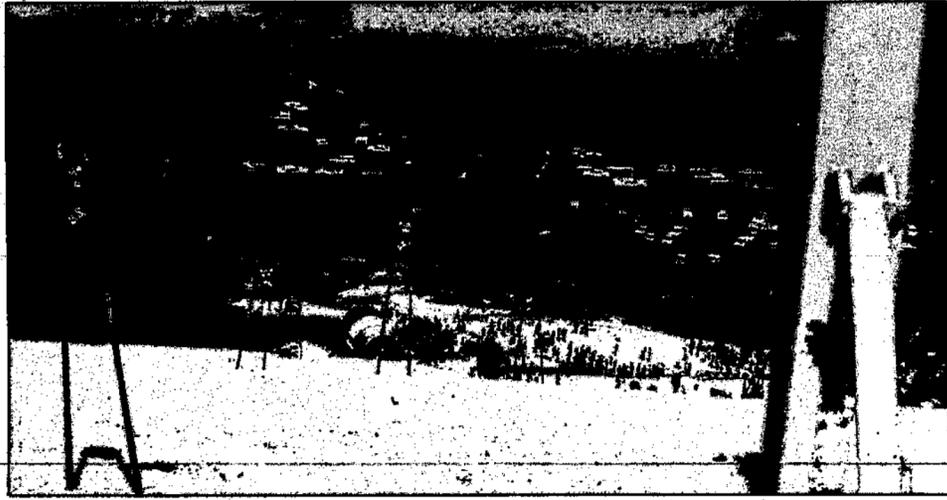

"There aren't too many blond bad guys, so a lot of times I get thrown in to that," he said.

He enjoys acting because "you can be anybody you want to be, any week. I can be a cowboy in the 1800s, then a New York City cop. It's a fun business, if you can get the work."

Culbertson thinks it's important to enjoy what he does to earn money. "If someone told me it was work, I'd quit," he said with his characteristic smile.

When he isn't acting in movies or for television series, he does commercials. He was the Safem man for Salem cigarettes, for instance.

"I'll stay a little longer in front of the camera," he said.

The U.S. Open

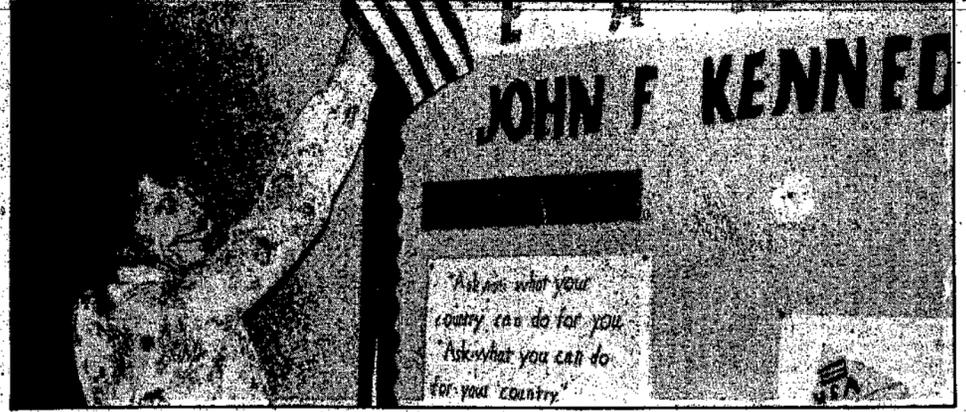

'Thanks for the memories'

The Pro Ski International U.S. Open ski race. Four days of the most intense skiing competition Ruidoso has ever seen.
The event spanned pre-race hill preparations to the color and pageantry of Saturday morning's flag ceremony.
It held those quiet moments of concentration before racers plummeted down a breathtaking course in exciting head-to-head, shoulder-to-shoulder racing, turn after turn.
There were the thrilling times of victory and the exhausted times of unfulfilled dreams.
It was an event that will live in the memories of those of us who saw it for a long time to come.

Third grade teachers bring diversity to class

by C.E. REUTTER
News Staff Writer

The third-graders were the big kids at their school when they were in second grade last year, said Don Weems, White Mountain Elementary School principal.

"This year, the third graders are at the bottom, it's like being freshmen," he said. The 147 students who are new in his building have lots of help. Six teachers and an aide work with the students.

Maybe work isn't the best word. Walk into any of their classrooms, and you don't get a feeling of chores being performed. You get the feeling that students and teachers are having fun.

The teachers are Nancy Anderson, Iva Gurule, Mark Kashmar, Kay Milton, Pat Mulholland and Lee Ann Norton. Kay Snodgrass is the third-grade aide.

About the only generalization you can make about them is that they're different from one another. Anderson, Gurule and Milton are new this year to the White Mountain third grade. Kashmar, on the other hand, is in his seventh year.

The new teachers share that with many of their students. One in five third-graders is new to the Ruidoso Municipal School District this year, Weems said. The district is one of the most mobile in New Mexico.

"It's hard on the students, and hard on the teachers, too," Weems noted. Families that move in and out of the area make contact between parents and teachers especially important, he said.

The third-grade teachers take individual routes to show interest in both new students and long-time residents.

"Teachers need to be diversified. We need to offer different types of teaching," Weems said. They share a set of teaching goals, but methods for reaching those are individual.

They do rely on each other for ideas, although each classroom is unique.

Milton decorated a corner of her classroom as a book locker. Yellow crepe paper sets off shelves of books and the seating area.

Students in Anderson's class read about famous Americans during February, and displayed their results on a bulletin board outside their classroom.

Ask her whether her students have all reached the same level since they started school, when some could read and some couldn't, and she will shake her head.

With fingers extended, she moves her hands away from each other. The levels of the students become more and more diverse, she says. They travel like cars in different lanes, growing farther and farther apart.

Visit Snodgrass' room, and you may see her coaching students by using crossword puzzles to teach words. Talk to Norton and she will describe her many years as a teacher. When she switched to the third grade three years ago, she had been teaching students who were much older.

Kashmar has the most experience with third-graders. He also stands out as a male teacher of a young grade.

He started in Ruidoso teaching fifth grade. He says he enjoys working with the younger children much more than with the older adolescents. Kashmar has younger brothers and sisters, he notes, so he enjoys children.

Weems said, "It's important at this grade level to have male teachers. Kids need a male image." They need to see mother figures and father figures during the day, he said.

The principal is a former second-grade teacher.

All of the third-grade teachers enjoy what they're doing, Weems says, and they let it show. That makes a difference for the students.

Rainbow Center Highway 37

258-3576

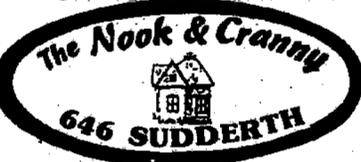

We are offering a special to those who may or may not know about the Pat Walker's Figure Salon Program.

The key to our whole program is circulation. The patron is totally reclined on a unit that is built much like a lounging chair. There is absolutely no effort generated by the patron, therefore the patron is neither stressed nor tired in any fashion.

Let us be quick to say that most of our patrons are here for one purpose—TO LOSE WEIGHT! That is the primary goal for all of our patrons. But we have had many of our patrons tell us of improvements in so many other areas such as arthritis and bursitis; either clearing up or getting noticeably better. These are added benefits to the better circulation and toning/firming of the muscles that the unit treatment provides. The unit also corrects your posture. This works on thin people as well as on men or women.

Because a treatment of this nature is extremely difficult to describe in words, we invite you to come in for two weeks of treatments for only $25.00.

Call now for an appointment. See a noticeable difference in two weeks. You don't have to be overweight to enjoy or need Pat Walker's. Special good thru Mar. 23.

RHS students comment on newspaper

DEAR EDITOR:
The following excerpts were taken from student letters of appreciation for presentations given by Gary Brown, Cathy Reutter, Billy Allstetter, and Tim Palmer to the Freshman English classes last week.

"I enjoyed learning about how to put a sports article in the paper." Scott Pertee

"I enjoyed your talk with our class and would very much like to know a little more about the newspaper now that I understand it a little more." Berdine Smith

"Thank you for spending some time with our class and telling us how a reporter does his work." David Kirgan

"I liked learning about the newspaper because I really didn't know much about it." Sean Parker

"I especially liked the part about the writers using computers instead of typewriters to write their stories." Jody Pellar

"Telling us about the metal sheet and how it prints the paper was most interesting." Brian Davis

"It's really interesting if you plan to get into Journalism." Carolyn Phillips

"I have thought about being a reporter until you told us to really think about it. You don't get paid enough and there's too much hard work for me." Sid Miller

"The most interesting fact that you went over was the inverted pyramid style of writing." Dustin Volquardson

"If I see something interesting, I will call you." Phillip Wright

"I found it interesting when you explained why newspaper reporters dressed grungie in order to get in unusual positions while covering stories." Travano Ash

"I never knew how the newspaper was made until you explained it to the class." Richele Kaydahzine

"Thank you for coming and talking to us about the newspaper and I can't wait until we go down there and see how everything works." Billy Chadwell

"I really enjoyed learning how they used the computer to set-up the newspaper." Chuck Daniels

"I particularly liked learning about what the editors' jobs are." Marcie Mulligan

"I thought the part about the big camera was very interesting." Sandra Baca

"I would like to know more about how the newspaper is printed." Shannon Garrett

"I had no idea that news was this complex." Lana McClure

"I would also like to compliment Mr. Allstetter on the fine job he did of explaining the different sections of a newspaper." Jeff Bender

"I found that searching for information would be an interesting part of being a journalist. The job they do at the newspaper here in Ruidoso is an excellent one." Glenn Westergren

"I learned a lot about the RUIDOSO NEWS and its format." Lori Morrow

"I thought your presentation of the RUIDOSO NEWS was most interesting. With the small regional area, it is hard to believe your staff can find enough news to interest the public. Congratulations on your fine reporting." Billy Harrison

"I would like to learn more about a photographer's position on the newspaper." Shannon Griffin

"I was interested in how the advertisements paid for publishing." Tonya Rodriguez

"You helped us to get a good start on our newspaper unit." Bernadeen Herrera

"I was just wondering why you publish two issues a week. Wouldn't you make more money if it was published more often?" Rodney Wright

"I particularly enjoyed it when you explained the forms of writing and the layout styles." WESLEY CLYBURN

"I found it very interesting and I feel that I learned quite a lot about how a newspaper goes from the reporter's notebook to the printing press." Kerry Gladden

"I learned a lot that will help us when we tour the newspaper's office." Karen Gann

"I particularly enjoyed the photographs which were passed around since I'm interested in photography." Jeremy Lane

"Thank you very much for spending time with us and explaining the newspaper. I really didn't like anything in particular but the presentation was good." Tera Elder

"I would like to add my personal thanks to the NEWS people who came to speak because it shows, once again, that the community is willing and ready to offer its expertise to the school system—all we have to do is ask." GALEN FARRINGTON

DEAR EDITOR:
The following excerpts from student letters are in response to the News facility tour given to the Freshman English class on February 28.

"I had a very good time going to the News office and I thank you for taking the time to show us around." Jake Woodall

"I thought it was very interesting how there was so much machinery to bring out just one issue of a newspaper. It also amazed me how fast you can print 5,000 newspapers." Hillary Held

"Thank you for allowing us to tour the News office and learn about the different types of work you do." Kris Hounshell

"Thank you for the tour of your offices and press. It has been a good experience for the Freshmen class." Katherine Sanchez

"The field trip was an interesting and educational experience." Melissa Allen

"I liked seeing how the plates are made and then watching the press work." Tony Tidwell

"I really enjoyed watching the developing of the silver plate." Mike Keaton

"The darkroom was most interesting to me because I enjoy photography." Keri Pate

"The part I liked best was the door to the darkroom. What I disliked the most was that the tour was too short." Lynell Scott

"The tour gave me a better perspective of what the newspaper is all about." Travano Ash

"The thing I thought was most interesting was the paper roll weight and how you got it on the press." Tim Darden

"The most interesting part was the computers." Dustin Volquardsen

"I think the tour should have been longer and more explanatory." Valerie Vaughan

"I really liked the printing room even though I couldn't hear a thing you said because of the noise of the press." Eric Eastep

"I especially liked the printing press and how it operated." Brian Davis

"I think the tour was a little short and the questions were not answered completely due to lack of time." Carl Bowden

"I found out about many things I did not even know existed." Melissa Henderson

"This was really a different experience for me. I enjoyed the press and the negative making; it was really fascinating." Lana McClure

"I'm sure that I haven't learned everything there is to learn, so I would like to come back to learn more at another time." Shannon Griffin

"Personally, I was most fascinated with the amount of time the newspaper's employees spent on the phone." Billy Harrison

"I really enjoyed myself and I finally realized how much work is put into making a newspaper. Next time I read a paper I will keep in mind all the hard work put into it." Amy Evans

"I would also like to thank Gary Brown, Darrell Pehr, Tim Palmer and Billy Allstetter for taking the time to show the classes how a modern newspaper functions. And finally, I'd like to thank Ken Green for making it all possible." SINCERELY, GALEN FARRINGTON

STARHITCH DEFEATED perhaps the finest field of older handicap thoroughbreds to run this season when he rallied strongly through the stretch to post a half-length win over outsider El Fantastico in Sunday's El Paso Times Handicap. Ridden expertly by Wayne Buehrer, the five-year-old Political Coverup gelding was next-to-last in an eight-horse field for the early going of the mile and one-eighth chase run under handicap conditions. Starhitch began moving around the far turn, drove to the wire on the inside and prevailed going away by almost one length over El Fantastico, a 15-1 outsider ridden by Carlos Rivas. The victory was the second straight win for Starhitch. He used the same stretch method to pull away for a two-length win over Walkin Boss in a mile allowance race on February 11. Before arriving in New Mexico, Starhitch competed at such major eastern race tracks as Aqueduct and Belmont Park near New York City. The race was the third straight disappointment for the brilliant Copper Case. The career-earner of more than $306,000 was last throughout, rallied strongly around the far turn, but didn't have his usual stretch push and finished fifth as the even-money favorite. Starhitch, who ran the distance in 1:53 was a well-regarded 5-2 second-wagering choice and paid $7.00 to win. He's trained by Johnny R. Dennis for the Burleson Race Horse Co. of Truth Or Consequences. El Fantastico finished second while Tang Dynasty, an invader from Turf Paradise in Phoenix, under O.A. Martinez Jr. was third. Fantastico Voyage, the early pacesetter under Salustio Burgos, was fourth.

BOLSTERED BY THE LARGEST trifecta pool since the exotic wager was introduced at Sunland Park, Sunday's crowd of 4,014 wagered $457,665, the best one-day-mutuel-handle this season. The previous best one-day total was $448,231 on Sunday, February 5. The eighth-race trifecta pool reached $66,174. The previous biggest trifecta wagering pool was $59,485 on Sunday's 12th-race trifecta. Combined with Friday's mutuel handle of $286,996 and Saturday's total of $439,504, the three-day weekend produced a total mutuel handle of $1,183,165, a daily average of $394,388.

AQUACONIC CAPTURED the season's first two-year-old race for thoroughbreds when she led practically every jump in Friday's fifth race at four furlongs. The filly is by the popular Southwest stallion Draconic out of a Turn Right mare, Aquanesian. She was bred by V.J. Callaway of Hobbs. She broke alertly under Casey Lambert, took the rail position, shook off challenging Land Mark and then went well to the wire, winning by 3 1/4-lengths. Her time was :47 1-5.

BIRTHDAY CONGRATULATIONS are in order for veteran trainer Jake Cascio, who was 77 years young on Sunday. The well-known Southwest horseman has been at Sunland Park for 24 years and has won almost every major quarter horse event at Sunland

Park, including the West Texas Futurity and the Sun Country Futurity. JOCKEY F.O. MARTINEZ WON two consecutive races on Saturday's program. He started in the eighth race on Instant Glory ($10.80) for trainer Louis F. Schauber, who owns the six-year-old Captain Courageous gelding with E.S. Leon of Sunland Park. He then captured the ninth race with favored Solitario ($5.60) for trainer Phillip J. Clammer and the Buckeye Stables of Albuquerque.

PANORAMA JET TALLIED her third consecutive victory by romping to an easy frontrunning triumph by almost two lengths in Saturday's 10th race. The three-year-old Azure Te filly led throughout in defeating nine foes running 440 yards under allowance conditions. The Oklahoma-bred miss started her streak by winning by almost two lengths against $15,000 claimers at 400 yards on January 27. She then led every jump in taking a half-length verdict against allowance foes at 400 yards on February 5.

DRAGON TRACKS STOPPED Musical King's bid for a fourth straight victory when he scored an upset triumph in Saturday's featured race. The four-year-old Draconic gelding tallied a half-length victory over outsider Turnalane while Little Brent finished third, a nose better than Musical King, who was fourth. Musical King was dismissed as an even-money wagering favorite in the mile chase which lured eight four-year-old and older horses running for a $5,000 claiming price. Dragon Tracks was ridden by Pedro Benitez. He paid $11.20 as a $4.60-1 third-wagering choice of the crowd of 3,292. He's trained by James W. Curry for owner Thomas W. Woolley of Santa Fe.

TWO-YEAR-OLD QUARTER

HORSES will be in the spotlight on Friday when trials for the season's first major two-year-old quarter horses are held. The West Texas Futurity trials will be run at 330 yards. The 10 fastest runners will advance to the finale, set for 330 yards on Sunday, March 25. Easily A Twelve won the 1983 edition of the West Texas Futurity, which had a gross purse of $237,135, the second-richest in the race's 12-year-history at Sunland Park.

LETS GO COMET RECORDED the season's biggest winning margin when he roared home 15 lengths ahead of his six foes in Sunday's fourth race. The three-year-old Class A gelding was ridden by Richard Bickel as he defeated seven three-year-olds running for a $5,000 claiming price. The Texas-bred runner has tallied two seconds and two thirds in his last four races for trainer L. Brant Taylor and owners A. Bennett and Kenneth W. Hefte of Robstown, Texas. As a well-backed 7-5 second-wagering favorite, Lets Go Comet paid $4.80 to win.

CHELMSFORD ROAD PAID one of the highest win prices ever recorded at Sunland Park when she scored a nose triumph over favored Mr. Twice Worthy in Sunday's 10th race. The three-year-old Inverness Drive filly received just $61 of the total win pool of $7,098 and paid $226.00 to win. The highest win price ever paid at Sunland Park was $475.00 on Native Visa on March 22, 1980. Chelmsford Road scored his second win in four lifetime outings with a 1:14 2-5 effort in the six-furlong chase which lured nine three-year-olds running under allowance terms. Ridden by Isaac Flores, Chelmsford Road is trained by Rey M. Marquez for owners Cecilio M. or Danny Mirabal of Grants.

Christian lucks out

Christian Luck grabbed the lead just a stride or two from the wire and pulled out a neck victory in a four-horse finish to Friday's feature race.

The allowance sprint covered six and one-half furlongs for four-year-olds and up, and was timed in a crisp 1:18 3/5 seconds—only a second short of the seasonal mark.

Christian Luck, ridden as the 9-5 second favorite by F.O. Martinez, returned $5.60, $3.40 and $3.20. The four-year-old colt is owned by the Macy Ranch of Post, Texas. Ike Danley is the trainer.

Itsoggy's fault, a 23-1 outsider, ended the sprint with big run to nail down second, returning $11.60 and $5.60. Maljamar, a 24-1 outsider, ended up third for a $5 show return.

The 3-5 favorite, Some Other Brother, was in contention most of the race, but faded just enough at the end to miss getting in the money. It was the colt's first out since August 14 at Ruidoso Downs.

Entertainment

Rick Henson's involvement in racing keeps family tradition

H. Rick Henson, appointed general manager of Ruidoso Downs and Sunland Park in February 1984, was born into a racing family. His father is Harry Henson, the long-time announcer at Hollywood Park, Sunland Park and other tracks.

The younger Henson started his racing career in the fall of 1963, just after completing a two-year tour with the U.S. Naval Air Corps. He settled in El Paso and enrolled at the University of Texas at El Paso.

While attending college, he worked in the admissions department at Sunland Park, and soon took over as Sunland Park supervisor for Criterion Films. In this capacity, he directed the video patrol and photo-finish operations. He remained with Criterion for eight years, and handled similar assignments for that company at Longacres (just south of Seattle, Washington); Yakima Meadows (Yakima, Washington); Playfair (Spokane, Washington) and at the Juarez Race Track. During the period of 1966-68, he supervised the video patrol and photo-finish activities at Ruidoso Downs.

In 1971, Henson took over as track announcer at The Downs at Santa Fe, leaving that post three years later to become assistant racing secretary and track announcer at Delta Downs in Louisiana. From 1974 to 1980, he served as racing secretary at Centennial Race Track (near Denver), and was promoted to assistant general manager during his last year at the Colorado track.

In 1980, Henson returned to Santa

Fe as director of marketing, and contributed to that track's impressive growths and success.

In February, 1982, Henson returned to Ruidoso Downs, this time as manager of the All-American Select Quarter Horse Yearling Sale and the Ruidoso Downs Summer Sale For Selected Thoroughbred Yearlings. Soon after accepting this position, he was also named assistant general manager of both Ruidoso Downs and Sunland Park. He held these assignments until his promotion to the top executive post of the two tracks. He replaces Donald F. Smith, who resigned March 1.

Mr. Henson has his home in Ruidoso. He and his wife, Carolyn, have two children: Garret, 15 and Keith, 10.

Starhitch wins Times Handicap

Starhitch took control in the upper stretch and tenaciously held on for a half-length victory in Sunday's 14th running of the prestigious El Paso Times Handicap at Sunland Park.

The mile-and-a-furlong struggle offered a gross purse of $17,500. It was one of the highest purses for a thoroughbred handicap in Sunland history. Starhitch, owned by Burleson Race Horse Co. of Truth Or Consequences, collected $10,500 and returned mutuel payoffs of $7, $4.60, $3.20.

It was a big afternoon at the races—not only for the Burleson outfit. The Sunland management had much to crow over, since the crowd of 4,014 (a seasonal record) wagered $457,665. The latter was also a seasonal record.

Other mutuel sidelights to Sunday's program was the $66,174 wagered on the eighth race Trifecta and the $226 payoff (for a two-dollar ticket) by Chelmsford Road in the 10th race. Both the trifecta pool and the $2 payoff were seasonal highs.

Starhitch, well ridden by Wayne Buehrer as the 5-2 second favorite in the eight-head field, moved gradually out of seventh place to reach a contending position at the turn for home. Fantastico Voyage, a 9-2 shot, had much early speed, and showed the way until he hit the top of the stretch.

The four-year-old gelding began out of steam, just as Starhitch went rambling into the lead. Tang Dynasty, a 9-1 darkhorse, was in the first flight all the way, and tried gamely to stay in contention in the stretch run. El Fantastico (15-1) made up much ground in the final stages to beat Tang Dynasty out of the runner-up slot. The difference between the two was two and one-fourth lengths. El Fantastico, ridden by Carlos Rivas for Larry Pomeroy and William Sirkel of Albuquerque, collected $3,850 for second and refunded $10.20 and $4.80.

Tang Dynasty earned $2,100 in his Sunland debut and was good for a show payoff of $3.80. O.A. Martinez Jr. was aboard. Tang Dynasty is the property of Louis and Dorothy Widekehr of Albuquerque.

Starhitch, in notching the Times Handicap, swelled his career income up to nearly $100,000. The win was his second straight. He's trained by Johnny R. Dennis. The winning time was 1:53 flat.

Copper Case, the even money favorite owned and trained by Jinx Graham of El Paso, was far out of range in the early going. The gelding made up ground—as he usually does—but ended up a non-threatening fifth.

Ruidoso Downs plans 71-day season

Ruidoso Downs has received approval from the New Mexico State Racing Commission for a 71-day horse race meet this season. "We're pleased the New Mexico State Racing Commission approved our dates," said H. Rick Henson, who is beginning his first full season as Ruidoso Downs general manager. "We hope to be able to offer our loyal patrons, horsemen and employees the best racing in the country." The mountain track schedule will cover 16 weekends, beginning on Friday, May 18, and concluding on Labor Day, Monday, September 3. The basic schedule presents Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday racing each weekend. Special Wednesday programs are set for June 20 and a holiday program on July 4. In addition, racing will be held the first four Wednesdays in August (1, 8, 15 and 22).

There will be two Monday holiday cards. The first will occur the second weekend on May 28 (Memorial Day) and the second will be the meet's final day, Labor Day. By days of the week, there will be 16 Friday, Saturday and Sunday dates. There will be 16 Thursday programs, six on Wednesday and two on Monday. This season, Ruidoso Downs will present one three-day racing weekend (opening weekend May 18-20); seven four-day racing weekends and eight five-day racing weekends. Quarter horse trials are set for opening weekend, which will be two weeks later than in past seasons. Trials for the Kansas Futurity, the first leg of the Triple Crown series for two-year-olds, will be staged on Friday and Saturday. Trial heats for the Kansas Derby the first leg of the Triple Crown series for three-year-olds, are scheduled for opening Sunday, May 20. Post time for each day's program this summer will be 1 p.m. The only possible exceptions will be trial race days and Labor Day. The 71 race days will tie for the third-highest number of programs ever staged at the Lincoln County track. There were 77 days in 1982, 74 in 1983 while 71 programs were held in 1978. The complete schedule for 1984 Ruidoso Downs racing programs: May—18, 19, 20, 24, 25, 28, 27, 28, 31. June—1, 2, 3, 7, 8, 9, 10, 14, 15, 16, 17, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 28, 29, 30. Making tracks

Dragon Tracks is trained by James W. Curry for owner Thomas W. Woolley of Santa Fe. Racing resumes at 1 p.m. Sunday at Sunland Park. Dragon Tracks was piloted by Pedro Benitez.

Dragon Tracks makes mile tracks

Dragon Tracks made a big stretch move and took Saturday's featured mile race at Sunland Park. Ridden by Pedro Benitez, the four-year-old Draconic gelding was third down the backside of the mile chase, which attracted eight four-year-old and older claiming horses running for a $5,000 price. He let pacesetting Turnalane and favored Musical King battle for the lead entering the far turn. Then Benitez asked Dragon Tracks to run and responded beautifully. He took a clear lead into the stretch and then outfinished the tiring Turnalane to win by a half-length in 1:42. Turnalane, a 20-1 outsider under Arturo Vallejo, took second, one length better than Little Brent, a 6-1 risk under David Lidberg. As a $4.60-1 third wagering choice, Dragon Tracks paid $11.20, $6.00 and $4.60. Turnalane returned $12.20 and $6.20 for running second while Little Brent returned $4.40 to show.

Musical King, the even money favorite under O.A. Martinez Jr., who was seeking his fourth straight win, was a nose behind Little Brent in fourth place. Dragon Tracks is trained by James W. Curry for owner Thomas W. Woolley of Santa Fe. Racing resumes at 1 p.m. Sunday at Sunland Park.
