

New council sworn in

by BILLY ALLSTETTER

Magistrate Jim Wheeler Thursday swore in six new Ruidoso village council members, who then received a "crash course" into what municipal government is from three members of the New Mexico Municipal League.

The council also elected council member Sherman Atwood as mayor pro tem. Atwood will serve as mayor in the absence of Mayor George White.

After reciting the oath of office, council members Atwood, Ray Dean Carpenter, Jerry Shaw, Bill Karn, John Underwood and Rick Evans listened to a welcoming speech by Mayor White.

"I look forward to the next two years as being real productive for Ruidoso," said White.

He extended a special welcome to Jerry Shaw, the first woman to serve on Ruidoso's council, and complimented all village council candidates for professional campaigns devoid of mudslinging.

He then challenged the council members to remember the trust and faith the electorate had in electing them as their representatives.

"Sometimes I think we forget the people we are representing," warned White.

White also challenged the council members to read and become familiar with the municipal code which contains the village's laws and regulations.

Later in the meeting, Carpenter suggested the council meet with all department heads to learn more about village operations and department goals. The council decided to meet with department heads at 2 p.m., Tuesday, March 13, in the village hall auditorium.

In his opening speech, White recommended the council consider having its meetings in the afternoon and reconsider the former council's policy on consent agendas and pre-meeting workshops. The council will discuss these issues at its Tuesday meeting.

White then introduced the three municipal representatives he invited to Ruidoso to educate the new council about its duties, responsibilities, powers and limitations.

The council is a completely new one, with five of the seven members never having served on the governing body. All former council members except the mayor had to resign after voters passed a referendum increasing the council from five to seven members. Atwood served eight years on the council, from 1974 to 1982.

Robert Jerkins, Sotero Sanchez and Melesia Helberg informed the council about parliamentary procedure, closed meetings ethics, administrative functions, budgeting process, conflict of interest, and bidding procedures.

"Right now, you're on your honeymoon," Helberg told the council. "But I guarantee you it will be over sometime."

She advised council members they will be angry with each other at one time or another and that it will be important how they handle their differences. She advised them to "look at everything with a fair eye" and to deal honestly and openly with each other.

She said clear arguments, backed by facts and good listening, make for efficient government. It is not necessary for council members to agree with or even to like each other, but it is essential that they respect each other, said Helberg.

Sanchez also asked for the council's support of the capital outlay bill to be considered in the special session of the state Legislature that began Friday. Sanchez said individual council members and the council as a whole should tell the local legislators of their support for the bill, which could provide more than $40 million in assistance to cities around the state.

In other business, the council heard White read a letter from Dona Nunnally thanking the village for dedicating the police/courts complex to her late husband.

Approved low bids of $9,162.21 and $22,436 for a four-wheel drive pickup and a dump truck for the water department.

Passed the New Mexico Open Meetings Act, which defines requirements for notification of public meetings and exceptions under which closed meetings may be held.

Mayor sounds positive note

"I love it," said Mayor George White last Tuesday evening after hearing names of the six new council members he will work with during the next two years.

He remains as optimistic, if not more so, after the council's first meeting Thursday.

"I had the gut feeling that we are on our way to better things for the village because of the spirit of cooperation exemplified in the meeting," said White Friday.

Although White originally opposed the expansion of the council to seven members, he said he now sees no reason why seven members cannot work together as well as five members.

White believes the increased council size and the relative inexperience of the new members offers him an opportunity to assume more of a leadership role than in the past. White invited members of the New Mexico Municipal League to Ruidoso to deliver a short seminar on municipal government for the education of the new council.

He said his door would always be open to any of the village council members who wanted to discuss a particular problem or initiate a new idea.

"With a brand-new council, there is a challenge to do things we've been promising for so many years," said White.

White mentioned increased involvement in the fight for a new airport, purchase of water rights, and recreation and convention facilities as primary goals.

"I think they'll sink their teeth into some of those things," said White of the new council.

Gavilan Canyon Road subject of meeting

by DARRELL J. PEHR
News Staff Writer

A meeting Thursday morning between the Lincoln County Board of Commissioners and officials from the Village of Ruidoso and the State Highway Department centered around discussion of Gavilan Canyon Road.

County officials have proposed trading the road with the state in exchange for Devil's Canyon Road, which is State Route 214. The county can no longer afford maintenance on Gavilan Canyon Road, which has become a major bypass around Ruidoso, according to a letter sent by the county to the State Highway Department on October 11, 1983.

According to county commissioner Kenneth Nosker, causes of the rapid deterioration of the road include heavy traffic and high truck usage.

"Big trucks are wiping out that road," Nosker said. "This road is beyond our means."

According to Nosker, the county spent over $38,000 on the Gavilan Canyon Road last year, but the repairs did not hold up to the high traffic on the road.

"We might as well have taken the money and sent someone to Hawaii," Nosker said of the effect of the funds on the condition of the road.

Instead of making a trade between the two roads, State Highway District Engineer Louis Medrano suggested at the meeting that the state, county and Village of Ruidoso all work together on the project.

"I think if we can continue to work jointly on this roadway we have a lot better chance to get it fixed," Medrano said. "If we were to make the exchange, we may lose more ground than we'd gain."

Medrano explained that if the state took over the road, it then would be listed on the state's five-year road development program. He said all roads in the program compete with each other for available funds. Roads are fixed in order of priority statewide, according to Medrano.

Because of the recent setback of the Mechem Drive Highway 37 widening project, Medrano said chances for the Gavilan project to be completed would be slim.

"In my experience with the department, I'm afraid we might lose ground with it," he said.

"I think we need to work with it just a little longer in terms of a cooperative solution. I think that one way or the other, we will come up with some cooperative funds."

According to Medrano, the state's cooperative funding agreement provides 60 percent of the money for roadway projects, with local governmental entities supplying the other 40 percent of the funds.

"We can get started on this as soon as cooperative funds become available," Medrano said.

According to State Highway Maintenance Engineer Worth Smelser, all available Highway Department funds for this year have been committed, but funding may be available for the next fiscal year.

"It would be July 1," Smelser said of the availability of the funds.

In addition to seeking cooperative funds from the state, the county commissioners decided to approach the State Highway Commission for funds.

"The way to go is to the Highway Commissioners," Nosker said. "I know that it helps to talk with them. Most of them—they're very understanding New Mexicans."

The county commissioners agreed to request that the county and the Village of Ruidoso be on the next Highway Commission agenda.

It was also suggested during the meeting that the Village of Ruidoso annex the Gavilan Canyon Road right of way. Assistant village manager Frank Potter said he would take that suggestion to the Ruidoso village council for a decision at their next meeting.

Potter added that the village wanted to work with the county on the road project. Potter cited the tripling of traffic in Ruidoso over the past seven years and the uniqueness of Gavilan Canyon Road as a bypass as reasons the village is concerned with the future of the road.

"It's going to be a major carrier," Potter said.

Potter also mentioned during the meeting that Ruidoso will be starting an educational campaign aimed at directing more motorists to use Gavilan Canyon Road as a bypass.

All agreed at the meeting that the road may eventually be taken over by the state. Bringing the road up to the state's specifications if the road is, indeed, taken over by the state was also discussed during the meeting.

"We do need to come to a meeting of minds about what needs to be done to this roadway," Medrano said. "Nothing has been laid out definitely as to what the future development of this road will be."

"We would want a documented roadway," said State Highway Department Right Of Way Director Bill Garner. Garner said questions existed about the actual right of way the county has acquired for the road. In addition, questions arose during the meeting about the roadway's width and encroachments on the right of way by private landowners and utility companies.

"Those will have to be resolved as to who's in the way," Nosker said.

According to Medrano, the state would require approximately 100 feet in width of right of way throughout the length of the road. Medrano said it would be a major project to bring the road to the state's standards.

"We're talking about a much more sophisticated roadway," he said. Officials at the meeting estimated the project would cost at least $250,000.

Garner said he would complete studies on the necessary right of way in the canyon, and relay that information to the county, so acquisition of the needed land for the right of way could begin.

Nosker said he saw the need for haste in the project.

"The longer we put it off, the worse problem we're going to have," he said.

County answers road charges

by DARRELL J. PEHR
News Staff Writer

The condition of subdivision roads in Lincoln County has been a subject of much discussion recently. The conflict between the limited budget of the county Road Department and the wishes of the citizens of Lincoln County who must travel those roads came to a head with a letter an Alto resident sent to the county commissioners recently.

In the letter, dated January 12, 1984, Weldon O. Spencer wrote, "I have noticed, much to my disappointment, that the paved subdivision roads in some areas of Alto Village have continued to deteriorate to the point of becoming almost impassable."

Spencer's letter continued, questioning why an area that is growing as fast as Alto, thus boosting the tax base of the county, would not then benefit in the form of well-maintained roads. Spencer's letter mentioned the abundance of influential residents of Alto, and the level of concern they all share.

The letter continued, "We feel that adequate paving of our roads is essential to maintaining our property values and we will not accept the downgrading of them to gravel or dirt. Neither will we allow our roads to become so dotted with large pot holes that they become almost impassable."

Spencer's letter then mentioned specific avenues of action the concerned Alto residents may take.

"We are all ready to see some action on this issue and if that means campaigning for candidates that are more sympathetic to our problems, then we have the resources and time to do just that. Contrary to popular belief, many of us who live in Alto Village have come from humble beginnings, have fought and worked hard to get here, and know how to protect that which we have earned."

County commissioner Kenneth Nosker said he felt distressed when he received the letter, and he and the other commissioners decided to write to Spencer, explaining the county's position.

In the letter, dated March 7, 1984, Nosker wrote, "We share your concern of the condition of the paved subdivision roads and are trying to find solutions. We have 1,499 miles of County roads and approximately 302 of these miles are in subdivisions. These roads were accepted for maintenance before Lincoln County had regulations that required roads to be built to certain specifications. Consequently, in the past, roads were accepted that were not of good quality."

The letter then explained the method of funding for the county's road maintenance.

"Our source of funds for road maintenance is from a distribution of Motor Vehicle Fees which the Legislature passed in 1955. The amount of our distribution is $241,181.20. The Road Fund does not receive any funds from property taxes.

"The County Commission did pass a road frontage tax which is $.10 per frontage foot. For the 13.83 miles in Alto Village, we collect $7,297.81. This tax was passed in hopes that in time we could re-surface these roads, but the amount received from this tax is not sufficient. It takes approximately $11,000 to gravel one mile of road and $30,000 per mile to put a double penetration chip seal on the roads.

The letter continued, "In the past, we were able to obtain some State Highway Coop Agreement funds to improve our roads, but this past year, these funds were cut. The Legislature did provide funds for the coming year."

The letter concluded with a mention of the ways the county may deal with the problem.

"As a possible solution, we are now looking to convert some of the paved roads to gravel or establishing special assessment paving districts.

"We hope you will have a better understanding of our position and if you have any suggestions, we will greatly appreciate hearing from you."

Nosker said he hoped the letter would help explain the difficult position the commissioners face on the issue of paving in the county subdivisions.

Crime Stoppers plan party for April

by BILLY ALLSTETTER
News Staff Writer

The Ruidoso Crime Stoppers board of directors Thursday made further plans for a fund-raising party in April, and heard positive feedback from the state organization.

The party, which will include dancing and drawings for numerous door prizes, will be Friday, April 27, at the Prime Time Restaurant. Tickets will be available for five dollars, of which $1.50 will go to the local Crime Stoppers organization. A percentage of the bar will also be contributed to the organization.

Funds raised by Crime Stoppers are used to pay rewards for information given to police which leads to Grand Jury indictments or Magistrate Court bindovers of criminals.

Crime Stoppers board members discussed the possibility of auctioning several of the most valuable gifts at the party, and finally decided to auction one large item there.

Local Crime Stoppers president and State Crime Stoppers Commission member Richard Sandoval said he heard very good comments about Ruidoso's program during his first state commission meeting.

"They seem to think ours is one of the best programs in the state," said Sandoval.

Sandoval also reported that he had been elected as vice-chairman of the State Crime Stoppers Commission. The state program paid $1,000 for information leading to the arrest of a suspected major heroin dealer in Albuquerque and $250 for the arrest of an alleged Christmas tree thief.

The Ruidoso board did not pay any money for information this month, but Ruidoso Police Chief Richard Swenor said his department is now following up on one call that appears to have provided valuable information.

Swenor said both the Neighborhood Watch and Crime Stoppers have helped fight crime, especially burglaries.

"Crime Stoppers is a damn good deterrent," said Swenor.

Sandoval also distributed statistics which showed that information provided through Ruidoso Crime Stoppers helped solve 27 criminal cases in 1983. Crime Stoppers tips have also led directly to 14 prosecutions and 12 convictions.

According to the statistics, $40,000 worth of narcotics and stolen property have been recovered with the help of Crime Stoppers information.

The board also decided to have its second annual poker run in early May. Board member Glen Ferguson said he would organize the event with help from Mark Paz, Steven Stillman and Michael Radziewicz.

Radziewicz said he would talk to representatives from public television station KENW about airing dramatic reenactments of the Crime Stoppers Crime of the Week.

The board also discussed the possibility of raising funds by selling swings at a wrecked car with a sledgehammer later in the summer.

Sandoval introduced new board members Bob Dugger, Bill Rawlins and Albert Richardson.

The board then elected Ferguson as chairman of the nominating committee. The board still has two vacant spots, but Crime Stoppers is looking for people truly interested in working for the program, said Sandoval.

RHS track team hot in Carlsbad meet

The Ruidoso High School boys track team picked up four firsts Friday in a practice dual meet with Carlsbad High School.

Cisco Bob won the 1,500-meter and 3,000-meter running events, with times of 4:16 and 9:40. Gabe Tam was second in the 1,500. Tam finished third in the 3,000, behind Bob and teammate Francisco Olvera.

Curt McClellan of the Warriors won the 800-meter run. His time of 2:03:5 was just seven-tenths of a second off his time in the state meet last year, according to Coach Ronny Maskew.

The other first for Ruidoso came in the mile relay, when the team of Steve Snidow, Rodney Rose, Eric Strobel and McClellan put together a 3:40 effort.

Maskew noted that the quartet had not run the event in practice before its winning effort Friday. He was pleased with the finish and the time.

"We felt like everybody that went did a very good job," said Maskew.

The coach pointed out that the times surpassed the state meet qualifying standards. Although actual qualifying does not happen until the final three meets of the season, Maskew is confidently looking ahead.

"If they're doing that well right now, surely they'll be able to (qualify) by then," he said.

The Warriors also took a second (Mark Johnston), a third (Tracy Gann) and a fourth (Russell Easter) in the long jump.

There was no team scoring in the meet.

The Warrior boys travel to Eunice this Saturday for a big invitational. Maskew said 15 to 20 teams are expected.

Machine that grades tests proving teachers' best friend

by C.E. REUTTER
News Staff Writer

The Scan-Tron 888 is faster than a speeding red pencil. It scores dozens of tests in a single hour. Is it a teacher's fantasy? An (unobtainable) bit of Star Wars technology?

No, and it isn't Superman, either. It's a super machine, a test-grading machine about the size of a small office copier.

It has been quite real in Ruidoso schools for about a month. White Mountain Middle School principal Texanita Cole demonstrated it recently.

The Scan-Tron uses fill-in-the-oval test forms familiar to a generation of American students. Some of the forms add a twist, however. They contain blanks for write-in answers or even essay spaces.

"It has freed teachers for a lot more planning and preparation," Cole said of the machine. What once took hours of hand checking now takes a handful of minutes.

"It makes the job of teaching so much better," she added.

The scratching of heavy black pencils on standardized forms can lead quickly to the hum of the machine in operation. It hums when it rejects improperly prepared tests or quizzes. Then teachers find the problem.

Scan-Trons are set up in the district's schools to handle much more, including ballots for class elections or surveys. Forms with bigger letters and ovals are available for the youngest students. The machines can also do classroom-by-classroom analyses of test results. "We're just thrilled at the amount of time this saves teachers," Cole concluded.

Blood brigade

Clellan, freshman Jo Ann Mobley and senior Diane Gonzales. More than 100 adults made appointments to donate blood during the session.

The proposed Commuter Shuttle System 400 miles per hour, according to system designer Jerry Theidt, would move passengers at speeds of up to 400 miles per hour, according to system designer Jerry Theidt.

Monorail system envisioned

by DARRELL J. PEHR
News Staff Writer

A transportation system that would make the trip from the site of the proposed airport on Fort Stanton Mesa to Sierra Blanca Ski Resort in 15 minutes?

"Don't let anyone think it's not possible," said Jerry Theidt, designer of the Commuter Shuttle System (CSS II). Theidt, president of S & J Technologies, said he had spent the past three years researching high-speed mass transit systems.

His company has come up with what they think is a viable form of transportation. Theidt is presently in the process of making presentation of the S & J system to governmental and private investor groups. Theidt said he would be addressing the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce on his proposal for a transportation system up to the ski area.

"It's light duty, it's high tech and it's fast," Theidt said of the CSS II system.

According to Theidt, the transportation vehicle would be built similar to the fuselage of an airplane. A Tay Rolls Royce engine, capable of achieving 24,000 pounds of thrust, would be mounted on each end of the vehicle. The vehicle would run on a single track, and be able to travel in either direction.

Theidt said it would run on a cushion of magnetic repulsion, with magnets of opposing magnetic fields in the rails and the running gear of the vehicle. That way, Theidt said, the vehicle would encounter a minimum of friction.

According to Theidt, the vehicle would be capable of travel at speeds up to 400 miles per hour. He said normal cruise speed would be about 240 miles per hour, and speed up to Sierra Blanca would average about 180 miles per hour.

Theidt said the vehicle would be modular, capable of carrying either 140 or 210 passengers. It would have a pressurized cabin. The vehicle would ride on an elevated aluminum rail, which would be computer-controlled.

The sensitive aluminum rails would be able to tell the vehicle's operator if any obstructions were on the rails, even miles in advance. Theidt said the computer would be able to control the vehicle, which is especially important in emergencies.

Theidt said it was important to have computer control because, when the vehicle is traveling at 400 miles per hour, control reactions must be immediate.

According to Theidt, no such systems have yet been constructed, but the know-how needed to build one already exists.

"All the technology involving this vehicle currently exists," Theidt said. "It is composed of a combination of a multitude of technology that currently exists."

Theidt said he had approached the New Mexico state government on the possibilities of such a system to carry passengers from Las Cruces to Albuquerque. He has also made presentations to state officials in Texas, California and in several Eastern states.

Theidt said one government seriously considering the system is the government of Mexico, for a transportation system in Mexico City.

According to Theidt, whatever community is the first to get with installing a CSS II system will greatly benefit from the decision.

"The community that gobbles this thing up is going to like it," he said. Theidt listed low cost of maintenance, economy of operation and low cost of construction as benefits to the system.

In addition, he said, whichever community first installs the system will benefit because the facility to build other such systems will be located at that community. Theidt said the facility would provide about 15,000 jobs related to the construction of the system.

Theidt said that a cost estimate for such a system was not yet available. He did estimate the system would be millions of dollars cheaper than other similar systems.

"Where they're talking billions of dollars, we're talking hundreds of millions," he said. "We're looking at saving the traveling public hundreds of millions of dollars."

Theidt said he felt it was important that some community start the project soon, because of the threat of foreign competitors.

"What I'm trying to do is get the U.S. to divert their attention away from foreign technologies. This is a very serious thing coming up and the U.S. is going to be left behind."

"I am looking for investors in the project," Theidt said. "I think this thing will be rolling by the end of the year. There's a new kid on the block, it's called hi-tech."

The Dreamer by Dan Storm

A Special Day
At Saint Anne's Chapel
For the first time in the history of the Episcopal Church in Lincoln County, a pastor of the Lutheran Church took part in the Communion Service, when the Reverend David Wendell, Pastor of the Trinity Lutheran Church in Hobbs, delivered the sermon and served as chalice bearer.

This is the result of a meeting held two or three years ago by the Episcopal Church in The United States of America and two branches of the Lutheran church: The Lutheran Church in America and The American Lutheran Church — in which it was sought to establish a dialogue by which both churches might rediscover what they have long had in common, and walk together once more in worship upon the common ground of Christianity.

Members of the two branches of the Lutheran Church mentioned above may now receive communion in The Episcopal Church, and the other way around. It is hoped that this important step will lead to wider practice of communion fellowship among other churches of the Christian family.

The worshippers, who filled Saint Ann Chapel, were inspired by the very fine sermon delivered by the Reverend Mr. Wendell. And in the coffee hour which followed he was made most welcome to the community, and encouraged to return again soon.

Pecos Valley Compost for gardeners

by BILLY ALLSTETTER
News Staff Writer

It's the bacteria that makes the difference, believes Sandy Ochoa. That and the plain plastic bags, the direct contact with the consumer and the price.

Pecos Valley Compost is coming to Ruidoso. It will be available through Danny Allison in 10-pound bags to truckloads, said Ochoa, president of the company.

Although most companies claim they are selling composted steer manure, Ochoa said his product is one of the few that is really processed. This processing makes the manure weedfree, odorless, easy to handle and better for plants, he claims.

The service was under the direction of Father Burdette Stampley, priest of the Episcopal Church in Lincoln County.

All Congratulations To
Catherine and Howard Wolff

Not long ago I received a very classy invitation to the celebration of the golden wedding anniversary of Catherine and Howard Wolff, of Oak Hill, Texas, a suburb of Greater Austin. It was to be held at the Cat Fish Barn, at Oak Hill, from four O'clock on, on Sunday, March eleven.

(As a matter of fact the celebration is going on right now, because I have just telephoned Howard and Catherine. And had trouble hearing them above the joyful voices of the well-wishers—a throng numbering well over one hundred. I am writing this at ten after four Mountain Time, so that you know the festivities are in full swing.)

Howard and the former Catherine Neal were married March eleven, 1934, in Fort Worth, Texas. On the in-itation is a photo of a handsome young fellow and a beautiful young lady that reaches back to 1936. Howard said over the phone that this picture was taken at the Casa Manana, in Fort Worth — the splendid and glamorous floor show put on by Billy Rose, of legendary fame in show business, for the Texas Centennial of 1936.

Catherine and Howard have changed little, and you would recognize them easily from the photo.

We thank Jane and Steve Thompson and Mary Ann and Jim Wagner for arranging this tribute to Howard and Catherine. And we wish Howard and Catherine many happy returns of the Day and all God's Blessings.

Congratulations To
Anita Lynn Armstrong
And Jason Wayne Morris

I have received an invitation to the wedding of Anita Lynn Armstrong and Jason Wayne Morris, both Lincoln County natives, who are to be joined in holy matrimony at the Mesa, Arizona, Temple of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, March thirteenth.

A reception will be held March seventeenth at the first Christian Church at Ruidoso.

We wish this well beloved couple every good fortune and all God's blessings.

March Winds
Late and Gentle

When this reaches you, it will be just one week and one day till the first day of Spring.

We had some March wind back in February, and then Winter weather all through the first ten days of March. Now, on the eleventh, the March West Wind has begun to blow gently down the valley, singing a dreamy lullaby among the cedars, and whistling a peaceful melody through the bare branches of the oak and walnut trees. All to the east and to the west, masses of dark blue and purple clouds hold the wind back at its source and slow it down at the end of its journey out on the plains.

A few patches of snow yet shine on the hillsides to the south, telling us Winter is still here, though the free voices in the wind of March are singing its farewell.

New pastor at First Baptist Church

by C.E. REUTTER
News Staff Writer

Cleve Kerby was born in Texas, raised in Texas, and went to college and seminary in Texas. The pastor of First Baptist Church in Ruidoso isn't sure why he moved to New Mexico. "I never even considered coming here," he said. His move to Ruidoso last December must have been the Lord's will, he believes.

God has been important to Kerby since his high school days in Plains, Texas. He played guard and tackle on the football team there.

"I never was in a church until I was a co-captain on the high school football team," he said. During his senior year, the other co-captains talked him into going to church with them.

After graduating, he earned a two-year degree from South Plains College and a bachelor's degree in Bible and English from Hardin-Simmons University at Abilene. Then he earned a master's degree in divinity from Southwestern Baptist Seminary.

Kerby became pastor of the First Baptist Church of Carrizozo two years ago. "I don't know why Carrizozo attracted me," he said.

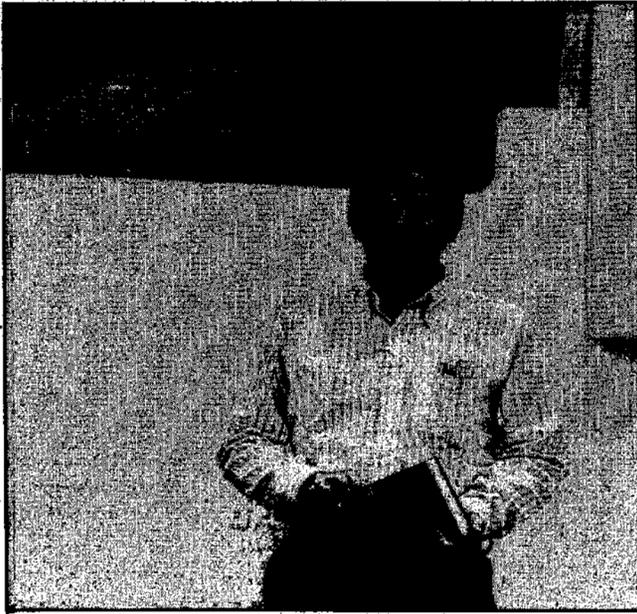

The draw could have been the rich culture and heritage of New Mexicans, he noted. He had visited Lincoln County years ago during family vacations.

Last year, the Ruidoso church members started to talk to him about moving. At first, he didn't consider their proposal.

However, "they kept after me," he said, and after a few months, he and his family decided Ruidoso was the place the Lord wanted them to be.

Kerby has been married to his wife, Sharon, for 10 years. Their children are seven-year-old Chris and three-year-old April.

One of Kerby's goals is increasing the attendance of children at First Baptist, along with young adults. About 111 families now belong to the church.

THE REVEREND CLEVE KERBY

One way to attract people, Kerby notes, is to offer use of the church's rooms and gym to Ruidoso people, even those who do not attend First Baptist.

The church is also increasing evening use of its facilities. Existing in a town with so many two-job couples "makes for having to have an evening-centered program," he said.

In addition to his work in Ruidoso, Kerby is a member of the executive board of the Baptist Convention of New Mexico.

Whatever his reason was for coming to Lincoln County, Kerby plans to stay. He really enjoyed the reactions he got from church members.

If he had to paint a picture of how they would have responded to him, he said, the picture would not look as good as reality does.

He plans to begin working on his divinity doctorate next year, but he can remain in Ruidoso for that work.

Letters to the editor Inside the Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

DEAR EDITOR:
I would like to take the opportunity to thank all the people that voted for me in the Municipal elections. I appreciate all the help and support and faith given to me over the last few weeks. I will continue to work as hard as I can in whatever capacity I am able to help make Ruidoso the finest community in the southwest.

SINCERELY:
BILL STREETER

DEAR EDITOR:
THANK YOU!
I want to make a brief statement thanking those who voted for me in the last election. It is gratifying that there are those who understood what I was trying to accomplish. As a private citizen I will continue along the same lines as I have in the past - so, again, thanks very much.

J.A. "AL" JUNGE
CITIZEN

DEAR EDITOR:
Special thanks are due The Ruidoso News for the excellent news coverage of the Village Election Campaign and for publishing the "1984 Election Special".

Cable Vision and the groups that sponsored public forums are also to be highly commended for their efforts.

In my opinion, all the candidates deserve a "pat on the back" for the excellent attitudes displayed during the campaign.

I would like to encourage a public attitude of patience toward, and tolerance for, our new council members. Let's all support each of them every way we possibly can.

Remember, public in-put is mandatory for effective, efficient government. The new council can help Ruidoso much better if we let them know our ideas and our needs.

THANK YOU,
JON DENNY

DEAR EDITOR:
Dear Poland, I listened this morning to the reports of your Crucifixion Rebellion. I understand that your Communist Masters are removing the Cross from your school classrooms and declaring separation of Church and State laws as their authority. You must obey these orders.

My Christian friends, how I love you and am concerned for your safety. It is a hard fact, but none the less true, that the majority of citizens of any country cannot be allowed to decide their own destiny. The people lack intelligence and wisdom in such heavy issues.

Your youth look to America as a beacon of hope and sanity in a world gone mad. Inspire them with this bit of knowledge. Our masters, (close cousins to your masters), are of the same attitude.

Our country has for years been working on those small injustices that lurk in our society. For example, on page 76 of our High School History Book listen to this deleterious fallacy: "The Puritan leaders believed that people were more likely to become God-fearing and law abiding citizens if they could read the Bible." Wait! Poland. There is more.

This wound is very deep. For over 200 years religion, faith, God, etc. have been an erroneously supposed crucial thread in the fabric of this society.

You would not believe the weight of religious dogma that has to be ejected from our communities and even the Nation. Even the Freedom Documents are full of reference to a higher power.

Gradually our Masters have been working to free us of this burden. They must work surreptitiously to avoid the disruption of an orderly State by the many sick and superstitious members of our communities. They have accomplished much.

The masters secret combination of powers has included pacifying the religious leaders and professed Christians of our Nation with political rhetoric. They also promote the belief that each individual is powerless to alter the inevitable. This has been a successful stratagem. You recall how meek the religious leaders and Christian's were when the Masters threw the Gideons out of town. And last but not least the Masters use greed and avarice of individuals as a passive weapon. The individual will not fight injustice if it costs one thin dime of his precious money.

There is the hint that individuation in this country is stirring from its long repose. This must not be, our State must not allow free thought or expression. The State must remain supreme.

J. ROY PROPSNER

SANTA FE—Some words of praise for the Governor of New Mexico.

He made the right decision about calling a special session, and he made it for good reasons.

He told us there were really three things in his mind as he reached this conclusion:

—Government should act in the open. Yet here he was, dealing with legislators on a one-on-one basis, with the public not privy to what was going on, trying to work out a deal which would then be ratified publicly. Not a healthy way to go.

—All anyone seemed to be considering in those private discussions was politics. But there is more at stake here than that. The good of the state is more important than which party or group triumphs by making the other look bad.

—And finally: Calling the session now was the proper thing to do, everyone knew it was the proper thing to do, so the only thing was to get on with it.

Those are sound reasons, and it's hard to disagree with any of them.

During a time when he has been under a lot of pressure, the Governor managed to back off a bit and get some perspective on his immediate problem. Instead of asking whether legislators would give him what he wants, he started asking what is best for New Mexico.

The answer to that is that it is best if we have in place an appropriations act which sets out how we are to spend money next year. Whether the legislators make the Governor look bad or the Governor wins some momentary triumph over the legislators is not important. Keeping the state properly solvent and properly funded is.

One further thing made it sound as if the Governor may have learned something from his recent experience. He told us he would be content to make his suggestions on what should be done at the beginning of a session and then go away. "If it helps," he said, "I will let the lawmakers strictly along, and will abide by their decisions."

That's not so dumb, of course. That way, whatever they decide is on their heads, and he can't be accused of either cajoling or prodding them to do it.

He further said publicly that he will not retaliate or attempt to punish any legislator who does not see things his way.

That statement may have been made when he was in a fit of fervor, rising above politics, and it may not be operative come primary or general election time. But he did say it—and we heard him with our own ears.

In short, there seems to be a strong effort from Anaya's side to create the kind of atmosphere in which something may be accomplished.

That's all to the good, and we can only hope it lasts. With 112 legislators actually back in town, rehashing old gripes and remembering old favors, things may not be quite so high-toned.

But it has been a pleasure to write some complimentary things about the Governor.

One might almost hesitantly hope that occasion presents itself for more of the same. We could all stand a little dignified activity from both the Governor and the legislators—a little rising above narrow political interests of this very kind.

Wouldn't it be nice to see the job done by Friday and everyone off for home, not to return until 1986?

One hesitation: It may not have yet become clear to the people who dwell on the fourth floor of the capitol how totally opposed to any tax increase most New Mexicans actually are.

They are now saying things like this: "Well, after all, our taxes are not very high compared to most states."

True, but not to the point. Most of our citizens want our state government to operate in a non-wasteful way, which does not require annual upping of the ante.

Let's put it simply: They don't want tax increases of any kind.

Reporter's Round

by C.E. Reutter

Being a reporter in Ruidoso can be mighty exciting.

Where else could you interview entertainer Lyle Waggoner on Wednesday and fire a question or two at Senator Pete Domenici as he rushed to a band fund-raiser on Sunday?

As part of my job, I've shot pictures of actor Robert Walden talking with Governor Toney Anaya during the world's richest ski race. I've also taken pictures at fires and after a gear-up landing at the airport.

For the first time ever, I rode in a fire truck, to get to the scene of a grass fire. The little kid in me loved it.

The serious adult in me thought it was a crying shame. Oh, I enjoyed the ride, but fires seem so senseless. Their consequences can be so serious.

Fires that start in old wiring are bad enough. Fires that start from careless dumping of ashes or coals into dumpsters are worse. Fires that people deliberately set are the worst.

A woman who graduated from my high school died while torching her own house, presumably for insurance money. I still shiver thinking about that.

I learned about her while reading a newspaper, years after I moved away from my hometown.

So the fun stuff of covering the U.S. Open Ski Race and such events balances against the serious stuff we report.

One of those serious things is S.A.D.D., Students Against Driving Drunk. A chapter has started in Ruidoso, and it's an excellent idea.

Parents should consider signing S.A.D.D.'s "Contract for Life" with their kids. The rest of us adults should mentally sign one with ourselves.

The contract is a pledge to avoid driving drunk, and to get a ride from a sober person when needed.

We should all live in the real world, and realize that lots of teenagers drink. They don't care that they're disobeying their parents and the law. That makes it more of a challenge.

After they're drunk, they drive. They trust their quick reflexes to keep them out of trouble. All the teenage boys I've ever known secretly think they're as good as race car drivers, whether they're drunk or sober.

They shouldn't. They shouldn't hesitate to call their moms and dads. However, they're trying to act cool, like us adults. They repeat the risks we took.

I drank alcohol before I reached the legal age. I still enjoy a rum and Coke, or a Tom Collins. My sisters and brothers drank beer at parties when they were in high school.

Most of us had reputations as being fairly straight, too. We went to church and did homework. We were even willing to be seen in public with our parents, if it didn't happen too often.

Our mom and dad are known as fairly straight people, too. Are they conservative? Well, is Reagan a Republican? Mom and Dad don't drink much, except on holidays like Easter. They aren't exactly hip to current slang, either.

However, they do live in the real world.

I'm still willing to be seen in public with them, too. I even telephone them. We chatted last week.

My sister Beth is a high school senior, so I asked Mom if she would sign the pledge u Beth brought it to her.

Mom thought for a few moments, then said she would. She phrased the contract as a promise to pick up your kid and not bawl them out on the spot.

Then she added she thought it was a shame that parents and kids had to sign something, rather than just assuming they'd do it.

She's not just talking, either. Dad rolled out of bed after midnight once for my brother Tom. His car had died.

They weren't too amused that time. I'm sure that if my parents picked up a drunk teenager, he or she would hear about it later, too. They always let us know they weren't pleased when we did something illegal or stupid.

Drinking alcohol is legal for me now, but driving after drinking is still stupid. I drive friends home when they've had too much.

That has its disadvantages. I had to clean out my car once after a woman lost it during one trip home.

I'd rather do that than lose a friend. You can't tell a corpse that breaking the law is stupid.

A "Contract for Life" Between Parent and Teenager

The S.A.D.D. Drinking-Driver Contract

Teenager I agree to call you for advice and/or transportation at any hour, from any place if I am ever in a situation where I have had too much to drink or a friend or date who is driving me has had too much to drink.

"The Eyes of the Artist," above, is photographer Mark Bagby's prize-winning portrait of Ruidoso artist Martin Rose. At left, Bagby takes a rare moment to pause in front of more of his portraits at Timber Trall Photography, on Sudderth Drive. He calls himself a "people photographer."

Mark Bagby: from kid with closet darkroom to award winner

by C.E. REUTTER
News Staff Writer

Mark Bagby's photograph, "Eyes of the Artist," won first place in a recent contest.

The title describes his portrait of Ruidoso painter Martin Rose, but it also might describe Bagby.

He has the eyes of an artist, too, as well as the hands. He works with tripods and paper instead of brushes and canvas.

Bagby's most frequent subjects are people, in his work at Timber Trail Photography, 2313 Sudderth Drive. He also was honored recently for a commercial photograph of Ruidoso State Bank's North Branch.

The bank photo was accepted for hanging at the annual convention of Professional Photographers of New Mexico.

Also displayed at the Albuquerque gathering were a color portrait of young Amber Gale of Alto, and a black and white portrait of "Li'l Bill" Myers of Ruidoso.

The Rose portrait won first place in the black and white portrait division in the yearly contest. No other black and white works were honored at the competition, Bagby said.

Black and white prints are one of his strong points. "Just because something's in color doesn't make it look interesting," he said.

Fine art prints are usually in black and white, he said—think of Ansel Adams' work.

In the United States today, amateur photographers tend to use color film. Bagby is hardly an amateur with that medium.

At Timber Trail, "We work primarily in color." That presents some long-range technical problems. The color photographs that hung at Albuquerque are on display at Timber Trail now, but after a few decades they will fade.

In addition to Bagby's honored entries, he submitted three more that narrowly missed qualifying to hang at the convention.

He has been creating photographs for nearly 15 years, and has been honored for his work before. "But nothing has ever compared with this. I'm really thrilled with the award."

In addition to winning first place, Bagby was elected to the board of directors for the state photographers' group.

He didn't plan to become such an accomplished still photographer when he was a boy. "I wanted to be a movie director," Bagby said.

He read books about photography from the public library in McAlester, Oklahoma. He also read magazines, but, "my pictures never looked like "Life," he said.

So he kept at it out of frustration.

His first darkroom was a four-foot-high closet, which was tall enough for him at the time. He used his mother's Pyrex baking dishes for developing trays.

In high school he worked on the yearbook and was a football placekicker. Then he entered the University of Oklahoma as a technical drama major, or scene designer.

"I learned a lot about lighting," he said. Bagby switched into journalism when he decided job possibilities in drama were slim.

"Unemployment in the film industry was 70 percent," he said.

After receiving his journalism bachelor's degree, he moved to New York and taught photography at a summer camp. He wanted to work for Kodak in Rochester, but he didn't get that job.

He went to work at a small daily newspaper in Oklahoma and won photography awards. Then he became sports writer at The Ruidoso News.

In 1981, he started at Timber Trail. Bagby hasn't completely given up his dream of a movie career. "I've worked on a couple of screenplays," he said.

He and his wife, Antoinette, have four children, Gina, Michael, Monica and Ryan. They also own a liver-and-white spaniel named Freelance J. Photog.

At least the dog has a name. Many photographers remain anonymous.

"You can show a photo of Lee Harvey Oswald to people, but can they tell you the photographer's name?" he asked. People usually can't do that, even if they are impressed by the print.

"It bothers me a lot," Bagby admits. Photographs are an art medium along with oil and canvas, he said.

"Photography is kind of a poor man's art," he said. You don't have to be wealthy to own a photographic portrait of yourself.

"When you buy a photo, you're not buying paper," he said, "you're buying an image."

When he creates those images, Bagby isn't making photos or taking photos. "Once in a while I capture a photo," he said.

"A good photo should be a record and tell a story, even a simple one," he said.

"One of the neatest moments" that ever happened to him in photography occurred when a wedding photograph told a story. A mother looked at the bride and realized her little girl wasn't little any more.

profiles. Bagby also uses complimentary techniques.

"I try for a soft look on women, a cute look on children and a strong look on men," Bagby said.

He added, "Children are the best people in the world. I love to photograph them." They aren't as self-conscious as older people, he noted.

"I try to get adults to relax," he said. That could mean working in their homes rather than in the studio. Photos can be like paintings in some ways, but have an advantage over acrylic or pastel portraits.

"Photography, by its very nature, allows you to work rapidly," he said. A photographer can create a certain pose, then change a subject's clothes, position or background. A painter can't do that.

Also, just as some people are better painters than others, some photographers are better.

"Talent's kind of like a really dull knife," he said. "You have to keep slamming it against a hone." That keeps it sharpened. Some knives are sharper than others from the start, he added.

Those who have talent for creating images can be commercial photographers of things and scenes, or they can be "people photographers."

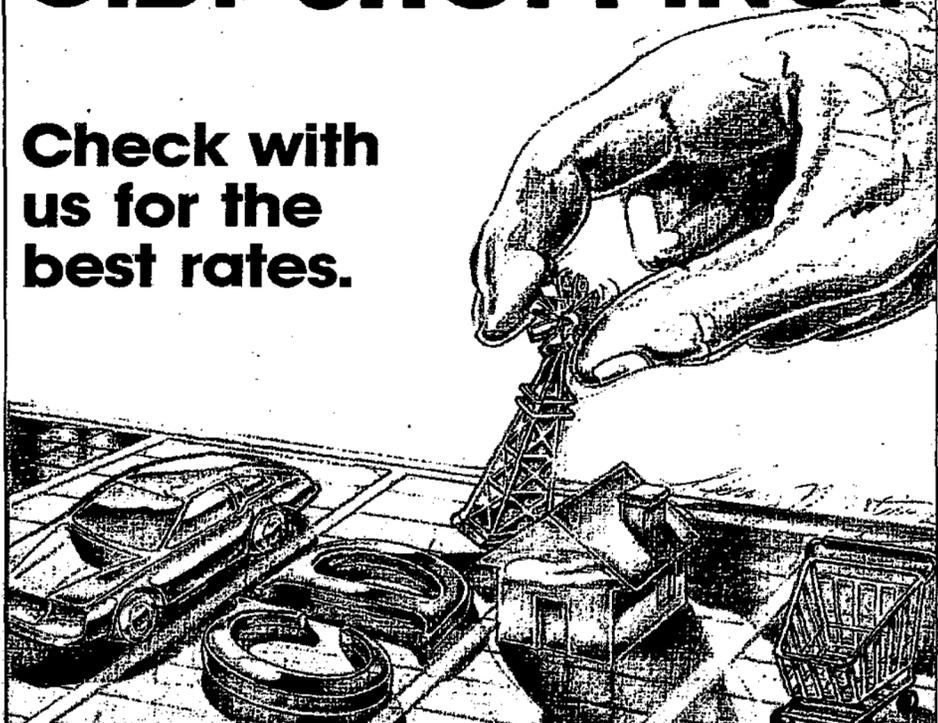

"If I had my druthers, I'd be a commercial photographer," Bagby said, noting the financial rewards associated with advertising work. For personal satisfaction, however, he prefers his work with people.

A portrait in black and white titled "Li'l Bill" won accolades of New Mexico photographers. Subject of the portrait is Bill Myers of Ruidoso.

The wide variety of gifts available at EGM includes kitchen utensils, oven mitts, mugs and baskets of every description.

EGM offers gifts, atmosphere

by DARRELL J. PEHR
News Staff Writer

"It's unique, it has character and it's beautiful," said Katherine Finley, manager of the newly remodeled EGM Fine Goods. "It looks totally different."

The shop, located in the Adobe Plaza shopping center, has been in operation for two years, and recently underwent a major remodeling. The shop now offers French linens and lace, crystal, pottery, silk flowers, bone china, and French and German collector's dolls, in addition to books ranging in topic "from art to cooking to philosophy and poetry," according to Finley.

"We wanted to have an atmosphere that is conducive and stimulating to conversation and relaxed shopping," said store owner Gail McIntosh. McIntosh said to achieve that atmosphere required remodeling of the shop.

Walls were torn down and moved, merchandise was redistributed, and the entire interior of the shop was redecorated. The addition of soft, comfortable furniture and good books completed the job, according to Finley. Assisting in the remodeling was Linda Woods, who helped a great deal, McIntosh said.

In addition to the remodeling, the shop has acquired several new services. A meeting room set up in the back area of the shop is perfect for a bridge foursome, according to Finley. "We welcome, at no charge, small local meetings, bridge foursomes, or other groups of people to come and hold their meetings here," Finley said. All interested groups need to do, according to Finley, is call for reservations to use the room.

"We would love to share our location with the community," McIntosh said.

EGM also will offer bridge lessons, needlepoint lessons, complimentary coffee, tea and hot chocolate, and monthly book reviews and book workshops. The workshops will be conducted by Finley, who is a retired English professor. She said workshops will be centered around books she reviews, and some workshops will be conducted by other area book reviewers.

The first workshop will be on Wednesday, March 28, and will deal with the book, "The One Minute Manager," by Kenneth Blanchard, Ph.D. and Spencer Johnson, M.D.

The shop will have a grand-reopening ceremony on Friday, March 16. According to Finley, an open house will be held from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Coffee and pastries will be served in the morning and wine and cheese will be served in the afternoon.

"We really want to invite everybody," McIntosh said.

The shop is open daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and is closed Sunday. In addition to Finley, the shop employs Kyta Najera. EGM also offers free delivery of items purchased there.

A varied selection of gifts is available at EGM Fine Goods, including French linens and lace, crystal, pottery, silk flowers, bone china, paperback and hard cover books, and French and German collector's dolls.

EGM owner Gail McIntosh (left) and employee Kyta Najera enjoy the soft furniture that helps create an atmosphere of comfort at EGM Fine Goods.

Located in the Adobe Plaza shopping center every day from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. except Sunday, EGM Fine Goods is open on Mechem Drive, when it is closed.

EGM Fine Goods offers visitors to the shop complimentary coffee, tea and hot chocolate, according to store manager Katherine Finley.
