At crosswalk purposes

Traffic slows while a State Highway Department crew installs a crosswalk on Sudderth Drive Thursday. State law says a driver must yield the right of way to anyone using a crosswalk, and that no driver shall overtake a car stopped for a crosswalk. Also, the law says that anyone crossing the street and not using the crosswalk must yield the right of way to traffic.

Amphitheater opposed

by DARRELL J. PEHR
News Staff Writer

A proposed amphitheater for the Ruidoso Summer Festival is in the center of a growing controversy between the Eagle Creek Inter-Community Water Supply Association (ECICWSA) and landowners adjacent to the amphitheater site.

"I can guarantee that nobody wants it up there," real estate agent Rose Peebles said of property owners in the Enchanted Mesa subdivision, which abuts the Eagle Creek land. That land has been suggested as a site for an outdoor amphitheater for the Ruidoso Summer Festival.

Peebles explained that many people had bought lots in Enchanted Mesa because of the seclusion, never suspecting that commercial development would spring up in the area. She also pointed out restrictive covenants of the subdivision that forbid commercial development.

"When I bought the land, I was given to understand that that land was not to be developed," said Lance Kirkegaard, a property owner in Enchanted Mesa, referring to the Eagle Creek land. "I didn't want to be surrounded by development."

Kirkegaard said he was concerned about the situation, and the responsibilities of the ECICWSA board members.

"It seems like their position is to protect the watershed," he said. He added that he felt the encouragement of commercial development may be outside the board's intended jurisdiction.

According to Ruidoso village manager Jim Hine, an ECICWSA board member, the Eagle Creek Association is much like a private corporation. The board is formed of members appointed by the village councils of Ruidoso and Capitan.

Hine said the association was formed when the two villages went together on a purchase of former railroad land. Although the main purpose of the board originally was to provide water for the villages, the board also controls purchases and sales of the 600 acres the association currently owns.

According to Hine, the board functions "for the benefit of the corporation serving public needs."

"It's the feelings of the present board to retain ownership of land so we have control over it," Hine said. He maintained that the board has never made representations that the land would remain undeveloped.

He pointed out that the board recently sold land which is presently being used as a site for condominiums near Eagle Creek Ski Area.

The ECICWSA land is not affected by the restrictive covenants of the surrounding subdivisions, Hine said.

"Nobody else can covenant our property," he said.

According to Leon Eggleston, clerk for the association, the proposed site for the amphitheater is on about 40 acres along Ski Run and Mon Jeau roads. He added that a 20-acre buffer zone of undeveloped Eagle Creek land would separate the amphitheater from Enchanted Mesa.

Jackie Spencer of the Summer Festival board of directors made the original request of the association that the land be leased for the amphitheater site, at an ECICWSA meeting June 20.

According to Peter Strobel, also a member of the festival board, no decision has yet been made by the board to accept the lease drawn up by the association for use of the land.

It's official—Chamber dues up

by MATT BOSISIO
News Staff Writer

The Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce board of directors unanimously approved a flat $40 membership dues increase Friday, then went on to approve the chamber's budget for 1984-85.

Excluding new chamber members, the dues will now be $150 a year for about 75 percent of the membership, more for the larger businesses. The increase is retroactive to July 1.

The meeting was called specifically to review and look at the budget, explained board president James Paxton. He said the budget committee, which met in special session last Monday, had devised a new form for reporting the budget that he felt was now more readable and understandable.

Bill Carrigan presented the new form to members, going over the breakdown of income and expenses, including lodgers' tax funds income and how the funds will be spent.

The bottom line, according to the approved budget proposal, is that incoming and outgoing funds offset each other, leaving the chamber with a balanced budget.

Carrigan said that the budget could go into surplus if all members paid their dues. He said the chamber has an 87 percent collection rate at present, giving it an anticipated dues total of $75,000.

That figure would jump to $90,000, Carrigan said, if the entire membership came through on dues payments.

Budgie Green, who attended the meeting as a chamber member, said last year's $10 dues increase resulted in a 15 percent drop in membership.

He predicted that this year's $40 increase, which represents a jump of 36 percent, will result in a larger number of businesses dropping out of the chamber. He urged the board to delay the increase.

Buddy Bundick responded, "When you go up at all you're going to lose some people." He said he did not think too many members would drop out because of the increase.

Paxton said that the dues increase still will keep chamber members at a dues level lower than or comparable to other chambers of commerce throughout the state.

On a motion from Paul Crown, the board approved the across-the-board increase. A dues increase for associate members also was approved, raising the annual payment from $25 to $35.

Board members also approved the budget with minor wording amendments.

The entry for "Travel and Entertainment" was changed to just "Travel," and "Other Promotions" became "Special Promotions."

A careless Fourth of July celebration fireworks evidence is Ira Caster (left), fire prevention officer for the Ruidoso area, and Andy Hale, foreman.

Fireworks blamed for forest fire

Firefighters of the Smokey Bear Hot Shot Crew and Forest Service personnel responded Thursday to three separate forest fires in Lincoln County, one of which burned about a half-acre just outside the Ruidoso village limits.

According to Ira Caster, fire prevention officer for the Ruidoso area, two of the fires, one in the Capitan mountains and one near Bonito Lake, probably were caused by lightning. The third, just off Gavilan Canyon Road on Forest Road 120, was definitely caused by the illegal use of fireworks on Forest Service land, Caster said.

Caster collected a handful of various rocket and firecracker fireworks at the site of the Gavilan fire while the Hot Shot crew continued the "mop-up" part of the firefighting process.

According to Hot Shot foreman Andy Hale, the fire was first reported by the Mon Jeau lookout at about 10:30 a.m., and the Hot Shot crew had the blaze under control about an hour later. The extensive mop-up procedure, which includes carefully extinguishing all remaining traces of fire throughout a burn area, was expected to continue until late Thursday afternoon.

A rainy month of June helped prevent the fireworks-caused fire from spreading further. Caster said even though notices of the illegality of fireworks on Forest Service land have been posted at the entrance to all forest areas, some careless people continue to ignore the warning.

"One of the reasons we ban fireworks is because even when you think it's wet, it'll burn," Caster said, pointing to the patches of green meadow grass between the burned-out areas.

According to Forest Service employee Randy Herzburg, the penalty for anyone caught discharging or in possession of fireworks on Forest Service land is a $50 fine.

Controlling aircraft approaching and leaving Ruidoso Municipal Airport during the Fourth of July weekend are Patricia Osborn (left) and Robert Watts of the Federal Aviation Administration.

'Controlled' airport means extra eyes out

by DARRELL J. PEHR
News Staff Writer

Pilots flying in to the Ruidoso Municipal Airport had the benefit of two extra pairs of eyes looking out for them during the Fourth of July holiday, with the presence of two Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) air traffic controllers.

Robert Watts and Patricia Osborn braved the shaky control tower to aid the tremendous volume of aircraft using the airport during the holiday. The two controlled the airport from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday.

According to the controllers, pilots using the airport appreciated the controlled situation.

"Everyone I've talked to has been real cooperative," Osborn said.

"They're all glad to have us here," Watts added.

Normally the Ruidoso airport is not controlled. During times when the airport is not controlled, most pilots use the unicom system, a radio frequency for uncontrolled airports. The pilots use the system to obtain weather information and state their position and intentions.

Watts said the pilots who frequent the airport are very good about using their radios when approaching the airport.

The airport is controlled each year during the Fourth of July and Labor Day holidays. When under the supervision of the controllers, pilots are directed in landing and takeoff maneuvers; informed of the altimeter reading (an indication of the current barometric pressure); and given information on the speed and direction of the winds and the location of other planes in the vicinity.

Osborn said the surrounding terrain also comes into play when pilots approach the airport.

"With all the hills around here, it's hard for them to see all the planes coming in. It's kind of like an extra set of eyes for them," she said of the controllers' presence.

Neither controller thought the Ruidoso airport, with its mountainous topography and shifting wind conditions, was extraordinarily dangerous when compared with other airports in the state.

"They've all got drawbacks, advantages and disadvantages," Osborn said of New Mexico airports.

"Weather and terrain are factors in any mountain airport," Watts commented.

The controllers said they observed that most of the pilots coming in for the holiday had flown in to Ruidoso before.

"Most people are definitely familiar with this airport," Osborn said. She noted that only one pilot had informed the controllers that it was her first time in to Ruidoso.

Of the proposed Sierra Blanca Airport, Watts said, "I think it'll probably help ... but you've still got mountain flying."

This was Watts' second time controlling the Ruidoso airport and Osborn's first. The two said they were enjoying their stay in Ruidoso very much, and looked forward to returning August 30 to September 4, when the airport again will have those extra eyes out.

Aircraft of all different kinds line the parking areas at Ruidoso Municipal Airport. Airport manager Tim Morris said the presence of two Federal Aviation Administration controllers greatly helped airport personnel handle the large number of planes using the airport during the Fourth of July holiday.

Controller Robert Watts watches for incoming aircraft from the tower at Ruidoso Municipal Airport. Watts and Patricia Osborn, both of the Federal Aviation Administration, controlled the flow of airplanes into the airport last week Tuesday through Sunday.

Racing wrapup

Annie's Dancer edges Golden Ribet in Saturday's Jockey Club Prep Handicap.

Code's Draconic, looking every bit a beaten horse late in the stretch, rallied for a remarkable nose victory in Sunday's renewal of the six-furlong First Lady Handicap at Ruidoso Downs.

The four-year-old filly literally came out of nowhere to pull out a heart-stopping victory in the distaff sprint which carried a purse of $10,025.

Most of the credit for the win has to go to jockey Betty Harless, who refused to give up when her cause looked hopeless deep in the stretch. Betty managed to get her horse in high gear, then courageously urged her through tight quarters in the final yards.

Somehow, Code's Draconic found daylight in a four-horse jumble fighting for a foothold. The filly suddenly boomed into the lead—with Betty eagerly slinging leather—and out-fought the high-weighted 13-1 longshot, Creme De Cassis.

Annie's Dancer, the gelding who won the recent $35,577 Norgor Derby as an 11-1 outsider, proved he's no fluke by winning Saturday's Jockey Club Prep Handicap at Ruidoso Downs.

This time, he raced as a 6-1 shot and ended the 5 1/2-furlong sprint with a head lead over the oncoming even-money favorite, Golden Ribet.

Annie's Dancer, owned by Bowers Z-B Western Wear of Colorado City, Texas, covered the distance in 1:19 4/5 seconds, which equalled the seasonal record. He also collected $5,730, which boosted his 1984 bankroll up to $24,468.

Saturday's program also included the $8,250 Ruffast Handicap, a 5 1/2-furlong sprint for juvenile fillies. The victory went to Old Broad, an invader from Florida.

Counthin The Cash got away winging in Friday's $10,700 Jet Deck Handicap at Ruidoso Downs and led all the way for a neck win.

The three-year-old gelding fought well in the final stages of the 440 yard dash and beat off a persistent attack from the second favorite, Betts Full Moon.

Aided by a slight tailwind, Counthin The Cash zipped over the distance in a

Ranchmen plan annual camp meeting

The 44th Lincoln County Nopal Mesa Ranchmen's Camp Meeting is planned from Wednesday, July 18, through Sunday, July 22.

The late Ralph Hall, Roger Sherman and Joe Evans started the camp meeting.

Its original aim was furnishing a meeting for cowboys, ranchers and their families to camp together as their ancestors had done during the long wagon train treks to the West.

In 1940, Lincoln County was sparsely populated in most areas. Roads were rough and travel was difficult. Some families had no neighbors or churches close enough to warrant more than a yearly visit.

The first camp meeting gave them four days of sharing meals, friendship and religious fellowship.

Today, living and traveling conditions have changed considerably, but the same spirit of Western Christian hospitality draws people from far places to participate in the gathering.

The 23-acre camp ground on Nopal Mesa in the pine and juniper forest features natural greenery, pure air, sounds of birds and rugged natural beauty. The tabernacle overlooks the expansive Tularosa Basin and mountains beyond.

The people make the encampment special as they dwell close to nature. They forget the pace of the outside world. Cynicism and tensions are dropped for four days of optimism and faith in a better tomorrow.

The encampment is interdenominational. Opening services are planned after the first chuckwagon meal on Wednesday, July 18. They will continue through Sunday evening.

Preachers this year will be the Reverend Randy Steele of Colorado and the Reverend Leon Wyss of Albuquerque. Paul Biggs will be in charge of music again, accompanied by Jane Shafer. The choir will be volunteers.

Those who cannot camp are welcome to attend daily services. Meals are served from cauldrons by the ranchmen from 6 to 8 a.m. and at 12:30 and 6:30 p.m.

Tabernacle services are planned at 11 a.m., 3 p.m. and 8 p.m. Group prayer meetings are scheduled at 5 p.m.

A few rules are posted and a registration booth will be staffed for people with questions.

The camp is financed from donations.

Information may be obtained at United New Mexico Bank in Carrizozo. No reservations are required.

Black Sox win slow-pitch title

It was an all-Roswell show in the finals of the first Ruidoso Men's Slow-Pitch Softball Tournament Sunday at All-American Park Field in Ruidoso Downs.

The Black Sox jumped off to a 15-0 lead and went on to take a 20-6 victory over Capital Cafe for the title.

Capital Cafe advanced to the finals by defeating the Bombers of the Fort Stanton Men's Slow-Pitch Softball League 13-12 earlier Sunday. The Bombers took third and Aspen Pharmacy of Ruidoso finished fourth. Aspen Pharmacy also won the sportsmanship award.

The Incredible with three wins and Perotee Parks with two victories were in excellent contention for top spots until they were eliminated.

Perotee Parks is a top contender in the Ruidoso Men's Slow-Pitch Softball League and The Incredible is one of the better teams in the Fort Stanton league. No other local teams won more than one game.

The Black Sox had an outstanding tournament, winning all five of their games. They topped Alto Construction 7-2 in their first game, belted the Nads 15-4 in their second contest, topped Aspen Pharmacy 9-7 in their third contest and edged the Bombers 7-5 in their fourth tilt.

Mike Sanders of the Black Sox was named the most valuable player. He had five hits in five at-bats in the championship game. Sanders scored four times and drove in three runs against Capital Cafe.

Capital Cafe advanced to the finals by beating the Incredible 10-14, losing to the Bombers 10-7, topping The Incredible again 16-1 and belting Aspen Pharmacy 16-4.

The Bombers were paced by power hitter Terry Cox (he smashed three home runs in one game). Their two losses were by a total of three runs.

Aspen Pharmacy gained the fourth spot by topping Carrizozo Belco 13-8, losing to the Black Sox 9-7, topping Perotee Parks 10-5 and dropping the Sunday game to Capital Cafe.

In action Saturday involving Ruidoso teams, Perotee Parks edged the Nads 14-13 in a see-saw affair.

Perotee Parks scored two runs in the bottom of the seventh to top the Nads. Both teams had well-balanced attacks.

Alto Construction looked impressive in taking a 5-0 decision over Carrizozo Belco. Alto Construction was eliminated Saturday night when it lost to Perotee Parks 6-5. Perotee Parks was eliminated when it fell to Aspen Pharmacy.

Saturday morning The Incredible knocked Gary Boyd Construction out of the race with a 15-13 victory.

In play Friday night, The Incredible topped the Turbos 12-3, the Bombers clubbed Gary Boyd Construction 10-2, the Black Sox defeated Alto Construction 7-2, Carrizozo Belco edged Perotee Parks 11-10 and Capital Cafe beat The Incredible 20-14.

Here are the final records for the tournament:

Black Sox, 5-0; Capital Cafe, 4-2; Bombers, 3-2; Aspen Pharmacy, 2-2; The Incredible, 3-2; Perotee Parks, 2-2; Alto Construction, 1-2; Carrizozo Belco, 1-2; Knights, 1-2; Nads, 0-2; Gary Boyd Construction, 0-2; Turbos, 0-2.

The third time was the charm for Ruidoso's Laura Trapp.

The recent Ruidoso High School graduate defeated Laura Core of Roswell 6-4, 6-4 Sunday to win the girls 18 and under singles title in the Apache Junior Tennis Tournament at the Inn of the Mountain Gods.

Trapp had lost two previous matches to Core in the spring, when the Roswell athlete took victories in Goddard-Ruidoso dual matches.

But this time was different as Trapp played consistent tennis throughout the tournament.

Still, the former Warrior standout wasn't completely satisfied with her game.

"My backhand was the best part of my game," she said. "That won it for me. But my serving was awful today. I've never served so bad."

Trapp got to the finals by winning impressive decisions in the previous rounds.

She topped Wesley Wellborn in three sets, 5-7, 6-3, 7-6 Saturday. She then defeated S. Issac, 6-7, 6-1, 7-6 to advance to the finals.

Trapp still has plenty of tennis action the rest of the summer before she attends the University of Texas at Austin in the fall.

She and Eric Alwan will compete in the regional Lipton Iced Tea Mixed Doubles Tournament in El Paso, Texas, next weekend.

The Ruidoso athlete will also compete in a Roswell tournament and possibly a Las Cruces tournament before the summer is over.

Trapp and Donna Mobley also participated in the girls 18 and under doubles action, losing to Janet Kalin and Lori Williams 6-2, 7-5 in their first match.

Mobley also competed in the girls 18 and under singles action. However, she dropped a 6-1, 6-1 decision to Yvette Valdez and was eliminated from further play.

In boys action, Ryan Brown of Ruidoso made the quarter-finals of the 18 and under division before being eliminated by eventual champion Gerald Pittinger 6-0, 6-4.

In Brown's third 18 and under match, he beat Warrior teammate Mike Smith 6-1, 6-1.

Brown also took his first two matches in the 18 and under division before losing to Mark Tafoya of Albuquerque 6-0, 6-0.

Mike Smith also competed in the 18 and 16 singles divisions.

He won his first two matches in the 18 and under division before losing to Brown. He also took his first 16 and under match, topping Jay Price in three sets, 6-3, 6-2, 6-2. Smith was then eliminated in the second match, losing in two sets.

Mike's brother Jim also competed in both age groups.

Jim made the third round of the 16 and under division before losing to Dominic Rodriguez 6-2, 6-3.

Earlier Jim beat Trip Bissett and Mark Hodge. Hodge was seeded fourth in the tournament.

In 18 and under action, Smith topped Price 6-3, 6-3 before losing to Jim Pierce 6-0, 6-2.

The Smiths also competed in the 18 and under doubles competition, winning their first match and losing their second.

Rusty Skellett of Ruidoso won his first 14 and under singles match, beating Christopher Erickson 6-2, 6-3. Skellett was eliminated from further competition by losing to Rodriguez, 6-0, 6-0. Rodriguez went on to win the 14 and under division.

Things have been pretty busy at the Inn of the Mountain Gods tennis facilities lately.

Besides this past weekend's Apache Junior Open Tournament, the Inn has had a junior development program going for middle school- and high school-age youths.

"We have 16 youths come out here every Tuesday and Thursday," said Inn tennis pro Dale Light. "It's been real good. The program basically is good for kids who want to play junior high school and high school tennis or who are already playing competitive tennis and want to get better."

The program has been going for two weeks and will continue until school starts. After school begins, the Inn will start a fall program.

Besides the junior development program, the Inn will have several more tennis tournaments this summer.

There probably will be a club tournament later this month, although no exact date has been set yet. The annual Apache Adult Tennis Tournament will be Friday through Sunday, August 17-19.

It's good that the Inn is conducting the junior development program and tournaments. Tennis is gaining popularity all over the country, including Ruidoso.

Ruidoso High School has had a tennis program the past two years, and any kind of youth activity at the Inn will surely help the Warriors.

The Warrior tennis program received a blow last week when the proposed number of courts at the new high school plant was dropped to four from the original six.

However, renewed interest in youth tennis at the Inn or any other local facility would probably help the high school tennis team's cause in the future.

If more kids get interested in tennis, more facilities probably will follow eventually.

Anyone who runs in the fourth annual Smokey Bear Run next Saturday will be contributing to a good cause.

All the proceeds from the race will go to the Kimberly Fuller Fund. Kimberly Fuller is an eight-year-old Elk City, Oklahoma, girl who needs a heart and lung transplant. Kimberly has Desquamative Interstitial Pneumonia, a severe disease that started when she was 18 months old.

The 34-pound youngster can walk only a few steps at a time because she gets out of breath when she does anything.

So anyone who competes in the Smokey Bear Run can have the satisfaction of knowing they're helping a little Oklahoma girl have a better life.

Switching back to a subject I talked about in my last column, a summer basketball league is scheduled to start Tuesday night at the White Mountain Middle School gymnasium.

There probably will be six teams in the league, with four adult squads and two high school-age teams. The games will be played Tuesday and Thursday nights for about a month.

The first game is expected to start at 6:30, with the other contests following.

There should be some excellent action in the league. We have a good number of adult basketball players in Ruidoso, as witness the performances in last winter's Ruidoso Men's Basketball League.

There are also some good high school basketball players entered in the league. All in all, the teams should provide some exciting action for anyone who wants to watch summer basketball.

Ruidoso all-stars open district play next week

The Ruidoso Little League major division all-stars will open the district tournament Monday, July 16, in Roswell.

Ruidoso will play at 5:30 p.m. on the Lions-Hondo field against the winner of Saturday's Artesia-Holloman Air Force Base contest.

Last year Ruidoso won one of three games. The team split four games in 1982. Matt Beatty of The Bank of Ruidoso and Ruidoso State Bank's Chito Montano are the returnees from last season's team.

Coaches Rex Beatty and Steve Dankert are working with the 14 all-stars three hours a night in preparation for the tournament.

"I think we're stronger overall than last year's team," Beatty said. "I think we've got a good defense. We'll have to hit the ball well to win."

Montano and Jesse Guardiola of The Bank of Ruidoso give the Ruidoso all-stars a potent pitching duo.

Smokey Bear Run set Saturday

The Happy Hoofers Running Club will sponsor the fourth annual Smokey Bear Run next Saturday in Capitan.

The competition will begin at 8 a.m. There will be a 10-kilometer run and a two-mile run. Race day registration will be from 6:30 a.m. to 7:30 a.m. in the parking lot by the Capitan branch of Ruidoso State Bank.

Winners will be acknowledged in several age groups. The entry fee is $8 before the day of the race and $7 on race day. If entrants want results mailed to them, it will cost $1 extra.

T-shirts will be given to all entrants. There will be trophies for the first overall finisher for males and females, and for the first, second and third finishers in each age group.

People wanting to pre-register can call Pat Sullivan at 354-2664 or Tom Trost at 354-2211.

Mallett wins pro-comp race

Steve Mallett of Ruidoso took first in the pro-comp division at the monthly Division Four Firestone-Centerline Racing Series Sunday at Roswell Dragway.

He averaged around 140 miles an hour and his time was 9.88 seconds. "It was my best race this year," Mallett said. "I drove consistently."

Mallett praised his wife, Linda, and crew chief Wayne Ward for helping him win the race.

Mallett has been racing for about 20 years and has won 10 races.

Competition also was held in the street and high school divisions. The next Roswell race will be in August.

"Cool Water"
We have had one of the coolest Junes in memory, and here it is July eight, a little after high noon, and the temperature is up to only eighty-six. The only reason it is not ninety-five or one hundred is that the East wind is blowing steadily from off the rain clouds down on the plains.

The hot weather is on its way—depend on that; and people all over the nation will be heading for the water—rivers, creeks, pools, lakes, ponds, swimming pools.

One of the favorite stories of all time is "Kidnapped" by Robert Louis Stevenson.

In this novel the co-hero, Alan Breck Stewart, has certainly the most giant ego in all literature. He wants one and all to know that he comes from a line of the greatest kings in history, that he is the greatest swordsman that ever lived, and that he is the bravest man in the world.

The only reason he believes this is that it is more than likely true.

At one point in the story, he and his young companion, David Balfour, in their escape from the English Red Coats, have to jump from rock to rock across a raging torrent near Glencoe, Scotland.

Shortly afterwards Alan is trying to cheer David up for being afraid to jump.

"Hoots: small blame to ye. To be afeared of a thing and yet to do it, is what makes the prettiest kind of a man. And then there was water there, and water's a thing that dauntons even me."

"Pretty" in the Scotch dialect of the time means, brave, steadfast, courageous, And "dauntons" means frightens.

As one who has nearly drowned twice, and who still bears a scar from diving into too shallow muddy water at Barton Springs, Austin, Texas—water should be a thing that "dauntons" me.

And yet strange to say, I am not the least bit afraid of water, not for myself. But I am deathly afraid of the water for the other person.

I have seen people around lakes and rivers taking chances that make my blood run cold. Generally speaking, people do not "savvy" the water.

A newspaper article the other day was headlined: "Water, Summer's Killer."

Although my mission in life is to cheer folks up, to bring out the positive, the uplifting, the hopeful things of life, yet it is the duty of all of us to sound warnings, to point out dangers ahead. Our brother, Mark, said he might work up a column entitled something like "The Warning Clouds" Or "The Gathering Clouds."

Have A Healthy Respect For All Kinds of Water

It is bone-chilling to realize how suddenly a happy occasion around the water can turn to tragedy before you know what is happening.

In life we make playthings out of things that are no such thing, I can tell you from personal experience—in spite of the fact that swimming is a world wide favorite exercise and enjoyable pastime, and a very vital part of our self-preservation—that water is no plaything.

There is no end to the ways you must be careful around different bodies of water. The main thing is to keep your wits about you; think before you do something; and use common sense.

If you see someone drowning, if you possibly can, grab something that will float and get out there to him. This will perhaps save both of you from going down, unless you are an expert at life saving in the water. (And by the way this is a very worthwhile study—life saving of all kinds.)

Many a time expert swimmers have gone out to the middle of a lake in a light canoe, and decided to dive overboard and swim a while—and then find that the wind has drifted their canoe away and that it is traveling faster that they can swim.

This is just one of the countless ways in which the water can be dangerous.

The most treacherous of all bodies of water is the river—whirlpools, undertows, hidden currents, quicksand, hidden rocks.

I have always loved the water, and many is the happy hour spent swimming.

And after what I have said about the dangers of the water, you might think it strange that I say everyone should learn to swim and swim well. Learn about the water, so it can be your friend. Do not go beyond your ability as a swimmer. Point out the mistakes of others around the water.

One of these days I will explain my system of teaching people to swim. Until then, be careful in the summer, on the highway, in the traffic of the city, and in swimming and boating, so that then you can enjoy the hot summer and the cool water.

Judge rules ranch road public

The dispute between Lincoln County officials and the operators of the O-Bar-O Ranch near Carrizozo took another turn last Monday, when District Judge Robert Doughty decided in favor of the county in the final ruling of the case after a long series of hearings and trials.

The controversy began three years ago, and centers on whether a five-mile long road running through the ranch is a public or private road. Paul and Robert Lietzmann, operators of the ranch, have contended that the road is private and is not deeded to the county. Doughty found, however, that the road is indeed public, and that the Lietzmanns may not obstruct the road in any way.

Formerly signs claiming the road as a private road had been posted at the entrance of the road at U.S. Highway 380.

Attorney for the O-Bar-O Charles Hawthorne indicated he may appeal the decision.

Tomlinson tops chili cookoff

A rare chili double was scored by Ruidoso's Larry Tomlinson Saturday when his "Ol' Tumbleweed" chili cooking team won the chili and showmanship categories of the Rulon's Chili Cookoff at Roswell.

The cookoff was sanctioned by the Chili Appreciation Society International (CASI).

The Ol' Tumbleweed team consisted of Tomlinson, Gail and Jason Adams of Ruidoso, and Eric and Carma Erickson of Roswell.

Tomlinson was the 1982 New Mexico champion chili cook. He has competed at the world chili championship at Terlingua, Texas.

Mobile home destroyed by fire

Fire destroyed a mobile home on Gavilan Canyon Road near the new Ruidoso High School early Sunday morning. According to the Ruidoso Fire Department, no one was hurt in the incident.

Department reports said the fire was reported at 6:40 a.m. and brought under control soon after. The mobile home was unoccupied at the time. It was reported to be completely destroyed.

According to the department, the home is owned by John McIntyre. The cause of the fire is still under investigation.

Mime and mimics

"All and Everything Theater" mime Jeff Smith enthralled children who imitate his distinctive gestures during a performance at First Christian Church of Ruidoso Thursday. Noon Lions Club sponsored the troupe.

Reporter's Round

by C.E. Reutter

On the north side of the Captains, I came to know beautiful wide-open spaces of New Mexico and warm, friendly faces of New Mexicans.

If I'd left the office five minutes earlier one Saturday in June, I would have missed the chance. During a few moments that day, I almost wished I had.

I picked up the phone when it rang. Cleston Pritchett asked if someone from The Ruidoso News wanted to join a search for a seven-year-old boy. The kid was near Boy Scout Mountain about 15 miles the other side of Capitan, he thought.

When you work in Ruidoso, that's quite a distance to go for something which may be a wild goose chase. I am living in Nogal, however, and that was much closer to home, I rationalized.

My main reason was that it was a pretty evening for a drive.

Pritchett didn't sound as if he was in a huge rush, so I bought a Father's Day card and some groceries on the way.

My mind warned me as I bought the chocolate chips that they might melt into a chocolate lump by the time I got home, but I didn't listen closely enough.

Jane Deyo warned me as I bought the card at The Aspen Tree that her husband, Alden, had searched in that area, and that I should make sure exactly where it was before I left. I didn't listen closely enough to her, either.

I figured I could stop at the Capitan police office and get exact directions.

I figured wrong. Nobody was there. Oh well, I said to myself, I'll just drive about 20 miles up Route 48, and if I don't see anything, I'll give up and come back.

I encountered the first indication of the wide-open spaces when I rounded a bend on the west flank of the Captains and almost sideswiped a calf.

I slowed down. I didn't want one of the beasts which I saw in increasing numbers to run into my truck. (This all happened before my accident wrecked it, of course.)

In the way things usually work, as I drove a few miles more down the Captains road, I saw the first Stock on Highway sign.

What I didn't see were many signs of humans. Then the terrain flattened out and widened out, near mile marker 18.

That's the first spot where I saw the smoke.

I was raised in the big city, so I assumed it came from a chimney. I glanced at it sideways now and then, and watched it spread.

The road took a big bend east, on its way to Roswell. I noticed the smoke again in the side mirror. It looked wider and higher than it had been a few moments earlier.

I've seen enough arson fires to be pretty sure the smoke wasn't coming from one of them. Even city slickers know something as wide as that is probably a grass fire.

Great, I thought. Here I am, possibly the only person for miles, trying to decide whether to ignore a fire and do my job or rush to report the fire.

It wasn't much of a decision. I went for a telephone. I couldn't count on someone else seeing it and reporting it. Besides, if it was really bad, it would cut off my way home.

The photographer in me recognized the possibility for dramatic pictures, too.

Getting to a phone was easier said than done, however. I increased my speed. Yes, I drove faster than 55 miles per hour.

After what seemed like a considerable distance, I spotted a sign that said W. K. Eubank, or something like that.

I hightailed up the dirt road, stirring up billows of dust. When I got to the ranch, a collie, her pup and some goats answered me. Someone was in the barn, so I trotted over to ask to use the phone.

Unfortunately, he didn't speak English. Also unfortunately, I don't speak Spanish. Through gestures and a few words, we communicated.

I picked up the flame-orange phone in the kitchen and dialed the operator. She couldn't get anyone to answer the Capitan number she had, so she offered to call Carrizozo.

They were too far away, I guessed, and thanked her anyway, trying to shrug off the whole incident.

I thanked the gentleman, forgetting to ask his name. I walked back to my truck and he walked back to work.

I drove more slowly back to the main road, trying to put the fire out of my mind. Maybe someone had reported it already. Maybe it was planned and under control.

My glance kept going back to it, and I couldn't convince myself it was safe. I spotted a sign reading Canning Block Ranch 2 miles. I think the name was Jillson.

I turned onto the road.

You haven't really driven fast until you've jounced along a dirt road in a pickup. The back started fishtailing and the dust hid everything behind me, so I eased up on the gas.

When I got to the ranch buildings, an Anglo woman let me use her telephone.

I still couldn't get an answer in Capitan. She had a little card that said if nobody answered, you should call the Ruidoso fire dispatcher collect.

I did. Now, I've called my grandmother collect, and someone I knew in high school made long distance calls and charged them to the Pittsburgh FBI, but I've never made a collect call to an official. What if she refused the charges?

She didn't. The fire dispatcher got on the line, and told me that she thought a rancher was doing a controlled burn. I was relieved.

Then I asked for directions to the search and rescue, since the milepost on the road was right about where they were supposed to be gathering.

She asked someone in the office, and told me it was at milepost 41.

I was at milepost 25, so my directions were only half wrong.

I thanked the dispatcher, I thanked the woman on the ranch, and I drove more slowly eastward, until I eventually found the search.

After a short time, they found the boy, and I got a good picture. I also got a good feeling about the White Mountain Search and Rescue people and the residents of the area who are so willing to help a stranger.

On the north side of the Captains, it's hard to find telephones in the beautiful wide-open spaces, but it's easy to find friendly faces.

Inside the Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE— Hey, folks. We have got to change our system. The one we have just isn't working.

We have had almost 15 years in which the state's top elected officials have been allowed to serve only a single four-year term. We thought that might be the way to go when we shifted from a two-year term with the right to succeed yourself once. But by now, many New Mexicans doubt that the change improved things.

We were told the old way made it certain that everyone we elected to one of the posts under this rule would immediately begin running for office. The whole two-year period, this theory goes, would be dedicated to that process, leaving little or no time for governing.

Maybe so, but how come that arrangement is okay for members of Congress, for members of our state House of Representatives and for other officeholders? If it is such a bad system, why isn't it bad for all?

The fact is that part of the reason some voted to go to the four-year single term was that we had a succession of one-term governors who didn't get much done during their two years in office.

But is that necessarily bad?

Sure, Johnny Simms only had two years in office before he was succeeded by Ed Mechem, who had only two years in office before he was succeeded by John Burroughs, who had only two years in office before he was succeeded by Ed Mechem. It took Jack Campbell, back in the mid-'60s, to break the two-year pattern. But that was the way the voters wanted it.

Before the four-year term came into being, 19 individuals had served as governor of our state. Ten of those were either turned out by the voters at the end of two years or chose not to run to succeed themselves.

Jerry Apodaca, one of the three men to have served since the new system was adopted, wanted to give those under the present restriction the right to run for re-election. The voters opposed that idea rather sharply.

The feeling here now is that if there is an impetus to change, it is back toward the shorter term, with the power to run for re-election.

That gives the voters a chance to express their opinion of an incumbent's performance at the end of a biennium. If they are satisfied, he or she is welcome to stay on. If not, pack up and get out, as the citizens told those already mentioned who were given two years and no more.

You might say under that system we get a sort of referendum at the end of the second year, in which the voters' voices can be heard.

That is not entirely bad. As it is now, four years can seem awfully long.

Admittedly, much of the talk at the present time may have its root in dissatisfaction with the particular performance of the incumbent governor. (Let's face it. That is the only office under this arrangement anyone cares that much about. It is hard to get up much excitement about who is Secretary of State or Land Commissioner.)

It probably would not be proper to change the Constitution, as would be necessary to alter the present arrangement, just because of what is happening under a single individual. Still, it is that factor which has stirred the most recent discussions.

And the dissatisfaction is very real. It is almost guaranteed to be of such depth that action will be taken by the 1985 Legislature to at least begin consideration of a return to the old method.

For that reason, if for no other, citizens might do well to begin thinking about the two alternatives—and might begin discussing other systems if those seem attractive.

Maybe we could put together a panel of living ex-governors (there are five of them, counting Dave Cargo, who, after leaving office, fled the jurisdiction; and not counting Tom Bolack, who only served a token few weeks) and solicit their views on the subject. They probably have firm—and differing—opinions.

Any change we make would not affect the term of Governor Anaya, but he could go down in history as the major impetus for change, if it comes.

Editorial

The horsemen have a high-priced attorney arguing their case for relaxed drug rules in New Mexico horse racing, and already they have taken their case to the state Supreme Court.

But who speaks for the horses?

Horse racing is a sport with a certain level of attrition. It is not uncommon for race horses to suffer career-ending and even life-ending injuries. Of course, the same holds true for football players.

If there were no horse racing, there would be no race horses. That would mean no horses getting injured or dying because they were raced, but it would deny the function these beautiful animals were bred and born to perform.

It also would deny those who appreciate the sport and those who make their livelihood from it.

The question is, should the horsemen's privilege to run their horses extend to administering drugs in quantities that make it easier to run injured horses?

We think not.

A human athlete who takes a shot of cortisone for a sore elbow or who takes steroids or amphetamines to try to improve his performance does so of his own free will and with knowledge of the possible consequences.

A horse has no free will in the matter, and must rely on the humans who make the rules. The rules setting limits on bute and Lasix use were made for good reasons, and we see no reason for relaxing those rules.—TP

Keeping an eye out

Bravo the police dog watches for trouble as handler Ron Hart takes a break. The canine is used to patrol commercial and residential areas, and is usually the first to enter buildings where burglary is suspected.

The College of Santa Fe Mobile Theatre Company performed "Packard" in School House Park Tuesday night. Although the play was temporarily interrupted by a quick move indoors, the audience enjoyed the professional production.

Hentges home seeing double now

Ron Hentges gently picked up a baby and talked about his daughters. "They've got different personalities already," he said. "Amber's the active one."

Amber, Lee and Ashley Ann Hentges are twins. Their birth July 2 made them a rarity at Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital.

The last set of twins was born there nearly a year ago, in August 1983. Only two pairs of twins were born in the hospital last year.

Bonnie Hentges wasn't surprised by the double birth. "I kind of felt all along I was going to have twins," she said.

The twins are big babies, with Amber weighing more than five pounds, eight ounces when she was born at 7:59 p.m. one week ago. One minute later, Ashley was born, weighing just short of five pounds, 12 ounces.

Just days later, they slept in hospital cribs labeled "A" and "B." Both have blue eyes, but they do not look completely alike. The girls are fraternal rather than identical twins. The differences start with their blonde and brunette hair.

The twins aren't the first in Bonnie's family. Her grandmother also had twins.

Amber and Ashley were born a few weeks early, since they were expected July 21. They have an older sister, five-year-old Dawn Michelle.

Ron Hentges took a few days away from his job to be with his wife and daughters. He works for Texas-New Mexico Power Company.

Bonnie and Ron Hentges are the parents of newborn twins Amber and Ashley and of Dawn (right), who is five years old.

"I got transferred with a line crew to Texas City, Texas," he said. He spent seven months there. "I got back about three weeks ago."

Bonnie Hentges said he returned just in time. She wanted to have the babies in Ruidoso. Their doctor, William Harrison, and the entire hospital staff couldn't be better, Ron Hentges said.

Family members are busy readjusting their Ruidoso home to accommodate the twins. They have enough bedrooms, but have just one baby bed so far, Ron said.

Amber and Ashley probably won't mind.

The comfy restaurant at 104 Vine Street features homemade delectables, including quiche, daily specials and garden-fresh salads.

The inviting interior of the renovated house is decorated with a eye for detail. Linen table cloths and fresh flowers, gentle background music and tasteful artwork complement the dining experience at Jeremiah Moon's.

Earthy atmosphere at Jeremiah Moon's

by LOIS JEAN GRUSHKA
News Staff Writer

With a dream in their hearts, and the energy to back them up, Ron and Cay Dowell are serving up a very special menu at Jeremiah Moon's.

Off the beaten path of Sudderth Drive, this delightful restaurant sparkles with attention. What used to be a neighborhood home now houses hand-made tables with linen tablecloths, peach-colored walls to soothe daily jitters, and frightfully addictive homemade chocolate chip cookies.

The Dowells offer a cornucopia of healthful fare. The seasonal menu now offers quiche du jour ($3.75), full meal salads ($2.75), fruit and cheese plate ($3.45) and sandwich choices from pimiento cheese ($2.25) to breast of chicken salad ($3.75).

Originally from Dallas, the Dowells selected Ruidoso for their restaurant after a winter spent in Cloudercroft. During that time, Ron was writing a novel, using the nom de plume of Jeremiah Moon.

"The timing was perfect for this location," said Cay of their Vine Street renovated restaurant. "We like being away from the hustle of main street. People seek out delicious food wherever you are."

The large two-room dwelling is separated into smoking and non-smoking sections, which is appreciated by many patrons. Special ventilation and open windows allow summer breezes to keep the atmosphere fresh and airy.

Ron and Cay, along with employees Blue and Anita Hopkins, seek out daily special creations. Ron said his 10 cookbooks in the kitchen are continuously leafed through.

"I learned to cook out of necessity. And then I learned I have a flair for it," he said of his culinary talents. Almost every day, Ron whips up batches of his yearned-for cookies and buttermilk pie.

The Dowells have not been resting on their laurels since the March opening. Formerly housed in a teeny-tiny shop in Ski West Center, Jeremiah Moon's continues to expand in the dreams of the Dowells.

"We would like to turn the patio into a greenhouse dining area... add on a health food store... replace the chain-link fence with an adobe wall..." Cay commented on the future.

Upon entering, most guests comment on the comfortable surroundings, and the feeling of having been to a place "sort of like this" somewhere. Cay said it comes from cooking with love.

Jeremiah Moon's is located at 104 Vine, just off Sudderth in midtown Ruidoso. It is open from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday for lunch, and 5:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday for dinner.

Cookie, cookie, who's got the cookie? For 25 cents and a reach into the jar, homebaked chocolate chip cookies are always available at Jeremiah Moon's.
