Culprits in skunk stoning incident flee

by MATT BOSISIO
News Staff Writer

Two unknown boys were the apparent cause Friday of injury to a mother skunk, which later had to be killed because of her injuries.

According to Animal Control officer Buddy Dean, witnesses saw two boys stoning the skunk near the intersection of Sudderth Drive and Fern Avenue. Severely injured, the animal became disoriented and began staggering in circles.

Dean said that when he arrived on the scene, the two boys had left. But the skunk was in such poor condition that she had to be shot with a fast-acting tranquilizer.

He said witnesses also noticed that the skunk had two young pups that came out of the brush along Fern looking for their mother. He said they disappeared into a hole beneath an adjacent cabin before he arrived.

Dean also noted that the odor in the area indicated the skunk had attempted to defend herself against the attack.

"My opinion of this is that it's being cruel to an animal," Dean said of the stoning. "Nobody likes skunks but there's a reason for them being here."

Dean said most veterinarians will not attempt to work on skunks, raccoons and other wild animals because they are natural carriers of rabies. He said the only thing that can be done is to put the animal out of its suffering.

Firing a drug-filled dart, Dean puts an injured skunk out of her misery.

As far as the orphaned pups are concerned, Dean said he would set a trap for them and turn them over to someone's care until they are old enough to be released.

Towns look to sales tax boost

Communities around the area are considering increases in their gross receipts taxes.

Last February, the New Mexico Legislature voted to allow cities and villages to increase their tax on sales within their corporate limits by one half of one percent, said Ruidoso village manager Jim Hine.

The half-percent increase would have to be earmarked for roads and other work on the community infrastructure, he noted. If a community's governing body wants the increase, it must be placed before voters, he added.

Ruidoso businesses now collect a gross receipts tax of 5.5 percent. The tax is sent to Santa Fe, where the state government keeps a small portion of it, Hine said. Then the rest is returned to Ruidoso to be spent on various village projects.

In Ruidoso Downs, the board of trustees plans to act tonight (Monday) on a proposal to increase the gross receipts tax.

The tax in the Downs is now 4.5 percent, said village clerk Wilma Webb. The village and the state split the proceeds roughly two thirds to one third, she said.

Council members are considering increasing the tax even more than a half percent. Trustees have suggested an added increase of one quarter of one percent could be used for water projects.

In Carrizozo, the gross receipts tax is 4.5 percent, said town clerk Carol Schlarb. Of that, the town retains only .75 percent.

She said the town is in the process of working on an ordinance proposal that would increase the tax one half of one percent for the general fund and another quarter of one percent for infrastructure improvements.

In Capitan, the gross receipts tax is also 4.5 percent, according to village clerk Virginia Spall. If voters approve two ordinances this fall, the tax would jump to 5.25 percent.

Spall said the extra revenues generated through the first ordinance would be earmarked for the village general fund. The second ordinance would raise monies for sewer line repairs, street work and other infrastructure projects.

Officials around the county emphasized any proposed tax increase would need voter approval before going into effect.

CSB warden addresses Crime Stoppers

by DARRELL J. PEHR
News Staff Writer

"There's nobody in Lincoln County more concerned than I am," said Camp Sierra Blanca warden Bob Marrs of the housing at the camp of violent inmates.

Speaking at the Thursday night meeting of Ruidoso Crime Stoppers, Marrs outlined the policy for housing of prisoners and responded to questions regarding violent prisoners.

According to Crime Stoppers president Richard Sandoval, Marrs was invited to speak to the group. His visit took the place of an earlier decision by the group to send letters to state officials, protesting the housing of violent prisoners.

"We're not against Camp Sierra Blanca, we're against the violence," Sandoval said. "We're still questioning the housing of felons there who have committed violent crimes."

"We don't want those people here in Lincoln County under any circumstances," commented Crime Stoppers member E. J. Fouratt.

Marrs estimated that about 15 of the 68 to 70 inmates incarcerated at the camp are there for crimes "which could be considered violent."

He explained that each prisoner is rated when entering the prison system, then placed according to the score received. Marrs said past record, history of drug and alcohol abuse and number of convictions, among other factors, are taken into consideration when rating a prisoner. Each negative aspect of a prisoner is added to the person's rating in the form of points, he said, with those having minimum amounts of points being sent to minimum security facilities, such as Camp Sierra Blanca.

"We try to get a handle on where the inmate's coming from and where he's been," Marrs said. "If there's a pattern of violence on this, his score's going to go out of sight."

Marrs is notified of who is being sent to the camp beforehand, he said, and he can appeal the transfer of any prisoner to the camp.

Marrs also explained the work release program to the group, saying that an inmate has to be at the camp for 30 days before being considered for the program. The inmate goes before a classification committee, whose members review the inmate's application and the psychological report.

Only inmates with three years or less left in their sentence are allowed to participate in the program.

Inmates are placed in jobs in Ruidoso under the supervision of their employers. Marrs said the inmates are spot-checked for absenteeism and drugs and alcohol use.

Marrs reported that of the 30 inmates who participate in the program each working day, none has so far committed a crime during the 18 months he has been at the prison.

The warden said he would consider a suggestion by Crime Stoppers member Paul Davis that stricter measures be adopted for the dropping off and picking up of prisoners in Ruidoso.

Marrs also reported that no escapes have occurred so far this year. Five escapes took place last year. Marrs said from three to five prison officials are on duty constantly at the camp.

Heavy discussion by the group ensued after Marrs' presentation, with the Crime Stoppers finally deciding to send a letter to top prison officials. The letter will ask for stricter criteria in the classification procedures of prisoners in New Mexico.

Also during the meeting, member Mark Paz reported that the Crime Stoppers law enforcement scholarship program has been approved by consulted attorneys. The group voted to set up a committee composed of Fouratt, Sandoval and Mike Lovelace to determine the specifics of the scholarship program.

In other action, Crime Stoppers heard Sandoval report on the upcoming Crime Stoppers seminar for local chapters, scheduled for July 26 in Albuquerque. Members Fouratt, Sandoval, Lovelace, Paz and Fern Nevins plan to attend the meeting.

The Crime Stoppers voted to pay $200 for information received which led to the arrest of one person for possession of cocaine, and approved the payment of $500 for information received which led to the arrest of two people for trafficking in cocaine.

Locations for the upcoming November Crime Stoppers party also were discussed. Sandoval said about 400 people are expected to attend the party.

Crime Stoppers pays rewards of up to $1,000 for information leading to the arrest and indictment of individuals committing criminal acts. Callers do not have to reveal their identity to collect rewards. The Crime Stoppers number is 257-4545.

Skeen notes shift in NMSU airport stand

by DARRELL J. PEHR
News Staff Writer

The Ruidoso airport situation, the presidency of the United States, and the future were among the topics discussed by U. S. Representative Joe Skeen during a visit to Ruidoso Thursday.

Skeen said he felt that progress was being made on a solution to the airport controversy by the two factions involved—those who support location of a new regional airport at Fort Stanton Mesa Site B, and the New Mexico State University (NMSU) Board of Regents, which supports location of the airport at Fort Stanton Site A and maintains that Site B is unavailable.

The congressman said the regents, who hold a lease-type agreement for use of the Fort Stanton land from the U.S. Department of Interior, may be contemplating a change in their opposition to the airport on Site B.

"We're getting an indication that there may be a shift in New Mexico State University's stand," Skeen said.

He also pointed out that Department of Interior officials are now much more sensitive to the issue. Skeen attributed a large part of the growing sensitivity to the airport problem to the May 4 fatal plane crash in Ruidoso.

"It substantiated what we've been talking about all along," he said of the crash.

Skeen added that an environmental impact statement currently under way by the departments of Transportation and Interior is a step in the right direction in that it indicates willingness of those officials to work on the situation. However, Skeen said he doesn't expect anything new from the study.

"We've had enough studies to know that without question the answer is Site B."

Skeen said the issue is one of primary concern to him and his staff. "It's one of our major efforts," he said. "Every staff person is involved to some degree or the other."

Of the race for the presidency, Skeen said he feels the chances are good for re-election of President Ronald Reagan.

"The indications are very good that he will be re-elected," Skeen said. "I think things look very good, but things can change very fast."

Skeen praised Reagan's economic, domestic and foreign affairs policies. "He's done a superb job. The guy can handle it very well."

Skeen also had words of praise for Congresswoman Geraldine Ferraro, chosen Thursday as the vice presidential running mate for Democratic presidential contender Walter Mondale.

"She's a great lady," Skeen said of Ferraro. He added that he had enjoyed serving with her in the House of Representatives. Mondale's choice of Ferraro is a "progressive step and a very interesting thing," Skeen said.

"I think she may well bring a great deal to the ticket. I don't know. It will be interesting to study the electorate," he said.

However, Skeen reiterated his support for Reagan.

Of his next term in office, if elected, Skeen said the stabilization of New Mexico's water problems and determination of interstate water rights would be his primary concern. Skeen said he would be working on maximizing New Mexico's educational and employment opportunities and encouraging those educated here to remain and put their learning to use in New Mexico.

Of long-term plans, Skeen said, "We'll just see what develops. I intend to stay on this job as long as I can produce something. The longer I can stay in, the more helpful I can be."

Skeen said he enjoyed being a congressman very much.

"I like the challenge," he said. "A great deal of your success depends on how adroitly you can handle people. I enjoy my work and I enjoy the people I work for. I try to keep in mind what is in the best interests of this district and the state of New Mexico as well."

Downs police chief chosen, process questioned

by C.E. REUTTER
News Staff Writer

Mayor J. C. Day may nominate Gordon "Skip" Hazel as his choice to become Ruidoso Downs police chief at a special board of trustees meeting tonight.

Police Chief Charles Robinson resigned recently.

"Skip Hazel is the choice I made because he's got eight years police experience and we can afford him," Day said Sunday.

At least one applicant expressed displeasure with the way Day selected his choice for the chief's position.

Hazel, the man the mayor wants, was a corporal with the Ruidoso Police Department and had worked there about eight years, said Loretta Hazel, his wife.

The mayor interviewed some of the applicants for the position. About seven people applied, said village clerk Wilma Webb. After Day announces his choice, trustees must vote on it, she added.

One of the applicants, Barry Smith, was displeased with the way Day selected Hazel.

"I don't want to hurt Skip's feelings, none of us do, but what Day's done is wrong," Smith said.

"It's very upsetting to all of us. We know only one guy could make it," Smith said. He said it would have been courteous for Day to interview all the applicants.

Salary or place of residence might have been considerations, Smith said.

"Mayor Day said my asking salary was too high." The Ruidoso Downs resident said he had asked for $1,600 per month, but the village had $1,430 in its budget.

Rejected applicants were never asked whether they would move or take less pay to become police chief, Smith charged.

Smith said he had 15 years of experience in police and related work.

Trustee Jake Harris explained the selection process for a new chief. "He (the mayor) nominates him and then the council has to approve him."

Trustee Jackie Branum also said New Mexico Municipal League rules stipulate a new chief is named when a mayor announces a selection and a majority of a community's governing body votes for the choice.

She is satisfied with the way this selection has been conducted in the Downs.

"We were really concerned about getting the best-qualified person," she said.

Salary may have been a reason the seven applicants were all local people, she said.

"We made our budget up and already sent it to Santa Fe," she said. State officials will review it there. "We cannot increase the salary."

She added, "Our salary scale just isn't that high, for a tourist town."

"Another thing is time. People from out of state might not have had time to know about it," she said. The application deadline has passed. When

by MATT BOSISIO
News Staff Writer

"I think it's a job description misunderstanding of what the chamber is going to do," said James Paxton of an identity crisis the Chamber of Commerce feels itself going through.

The president of the chamber board of directors said the chamber has been thrown into a dual role and is now struggling to prove itself with every move it makes.

Paxton and Tommy Morel, vice president of advertising for the chamber, met with The Ruidoso News last week to discuss the situation. The two made it clear that their views were not officially sanctioned by the board.

But Paxton said both men wanted to state the chamber's position as they saw it from their own unique perspectives as board members.

"As far as just my personal insight ... one of the things that maybe the chamber as a board needs to do," said Paxton, "is sit down and say, 'Here is basically what a normal chamber does. Look, we've gotten way far afield here. We're sending out brochures, we're promoting pro ski races, we're going to trade shows, we're trying to have fam tours in here.'"

"These things are normally a completely separate entity than what the chamber is. And I think one of the things that's happened is that we never sat down and said, 'Here's the 15 things that we're going to do that really aren't chamber activities. But we just would like to do them, we'd like to have lodgers' money to do it.'"

Morel said in most towns, the chamber of commerce serves one function and a "convention and visitor bureau" handles another. Chambers usually deal with ribbon-cutting, fund-raisers and welcome wagons, while bureaus promote the town, attract tourists and generally cater to the needs of tourists.

"One of the problems that I see here is this chamber has always chosen to bite off more than it can chew kind of thing," Morel said. "We want to do so much and we want to handle so much when we get so involved, and the conflict arises as to what in people's minds the chamber should be."

That's the crux of it, according to Paxton. Different sets of people expect different performances on the part of the chamber. And when the results are not as anticipated, he said, nobody understands.

"The board has taken a direction saying we want to work on the promotion of the town," said Paxton, "those kind of activities ... that will help promote and give exposure to the town. And maybe that's again where we're wrong. Maybe we should be saying all we need to do is try to go out within the town or whatever, have fund-raising events that will 100 percent fund anything the chamber is doing. I just don't think that you can do both all at the same time."

Paxton said the Ruidoso village council tends to complain that the chamber annually requests an increase in budget for printing and postage.

"Gosh, I'd hope so," he said. "If we're seeing that we're sending out less stuff this year than last, that would be to me the biggest red flag to say, 'You guys aren't doing your job.'"

The way the chamber spends its advertising dollars is another area of contention, according to Morel.

"If business is bad," he said, "it's the advertising committee's or chamber's fault, or the advertising wasn't proper if business is bad. If the business is great, it's because everybody's such good operators."

He said everyone has a different idea on which form of advertising to buy. The current rage is billboards, which to Morel, does not apply to every situation.

"When Ruidoso is such an unknown quantity in a lot of our areas we're trying to get into," he said, "you really can't get the message across in the four seconds that people have to read a billboard. You can't write for information. Nobody driving a car is going to stop and write down a number."

Paxton said the people who complain about the advertising should take the time to show up at meetings and participate in advertising planning.

"None of these people show up when the actual nitty-gritty work is being done in terms of writing the ads, working with the advertising agency, the hours and hours that are spent on making decisions on how the money is going to be spent," he said.

Morel added that no one has given the chamber credit for "the scientific approach" that has been taken to advertising. It included, among other things, heavy market research with the support of New Mexico State University's border research study.

Both men said the advertising budget is insufficient to handle the types of advertising the area needs.

"The reality is that the budget is not very big," said Paxton. "The amount of money we have to advertise and promote this town is not very big."

Morel said the advertising budget, which currently stands at less than $200,000, should be more like $3 million, especially since the gross receipts in Ruidoso are about $80 million.

"It's not a thing of just throwing it on a wall and seeing what sticks," said Paxton. It takes planning and foresight, he contended, and allowing the advertising agency to do its job.

He said he was agreeable to having the village council or the Lodgers' Tax Committee take over the advertising duties from the chamber, along with hiring an advertising agency, developing an advertising committee and applying for matching funds from the state.

Neither man was exactly sure of what could be done to change any misunderstanding surrounding the chamber's responsibilities.

"I guess maybe that is the ultimate question," Paxton said. "How do we get the average person out there that hears all of these small town rumors, if you will—how the chamber is wasting lodgers' tax money—informed that they can make a credible evaluation of what we are or are not doing."

Maybe, he said, the answer lies in letting another organization handle the duties of advertising and promotion.

Paxton also suggested that village council members strive to attend advertising committee meetings, Lodgers' Tax Committee meetings and chamber board meetings to learn firsthand what is required in handling advertising funds.

"Our goals," he said, "if we're doing the job that we should—the council and the chamber—our goals should be identical."

There shouldn't be misunderstandings and confusion, he said, but rather information flowing between the two groups.

"To me," said Paxton, "there should be cooperation and harmony. And anything that they want us to do we should be willing to do; anything that we think makes sense, if they're getting the same input, should be exactly the same."

Robinson became chief, he came from Michigan.

At a recent Crime Stoppers meeting, Hazel was announced as the choice for Downs police chief.

Harris approves of Hazel "I know him well, know his family well, they're good people. I couldn't hardly vote against him," he said.

Harris was a trustee about two years ago when Day picked Robinson as chief, and he said a similar selection procedure was followed then.

This year, the Ruidoso Downs police department has grown to include a sergeant, three patrolmen and dispatchers.

Applicants were residents of the area. Officers were from the Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs police departments and the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department.

Downs sets special meeting

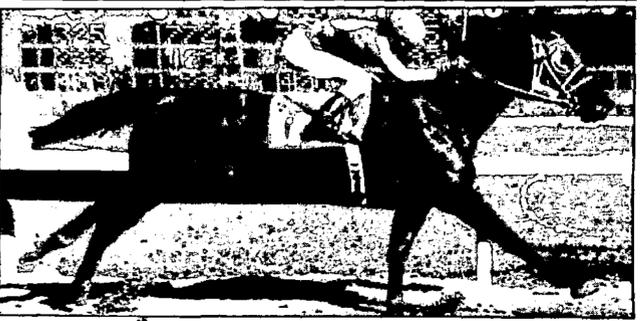

The Ruidoso Downs board of trustees plans a special meeting at 7 p.m. today (Monday) at the municipal building.

The agenda includes consideration of a proposal for a one-half percent gross receipts tax increase. If the board passes the sales tax measure, it will be decided by voters in a referendum.

Village officials also plan a closed-door session to discuss personnel practices.

In addition, Mayor J.C. Day may make a recommendation to the trustees about a new police chief. Chief Charles Robinson has resigned.

Racing wrapup

Fill Mackis Cup sets track record for seven furlongs Sunday with jockey Joe Martinez aboard.

Fill Mackis Cup made a shambles of Sunday's seven-furlong allowance headliner at Ruidoso Downs, encountering little resistance while cruising to a new track record of 1:24.2 seconds.

Two races earlier, another prominent track record fell, this one in the quarter horse category. Mr. Crimson Bug, a three-year-old colt, left his competition struggling in his wake while clocking the 400-yard course in a brilliant 19.63 seconds. There was practically no wind.

That 19.63 time trimmed two hundredths of a second from the track standard which had stood since Mr. Kid Charge's All-American Futurity victory on September 6, 1971.

The 400-yard record at Ruidoso Downs is one of the most coveted track records in the quarter horse world.

Mr. Crimson Bug, owned by Jerry Rheudasil and Wilbur Smith of Lewisville, Texas, ripped up his foes by 2 3/4 lengths as a 4-5 favorite under Alex Baldillez Jr.

Sunday's performance by Mr. Crimson Bug was a dramatic reversal of his previous outing, in which he finished eight lengths behind the winning Meganette in the Rainbow Derby Consolation.

Mr. Crimson Bug's $2,820 share of the ninth race allowance purse ($4,700) lifted his career income to $98,893.

Groton Going, a $10,000 purchase in the 1983 Ruidoso Downs Summer Sale for Selected Thoroughbred Yearlings, hiked his career income up to $62,331 with a crushing conquest of Saturday's Pocket Coin Handicap.

The 5 1/2 furlong sprint for two-year-olds was viewed by an excellent crowd of 6,226, who wagered a hefty $684,978 on the 12-race program.

It was the second-biggest crowd of the season, and the wagering was third-best. (The only bigger handles were the $712,164 on Saturday, July 7, and the $712,733 on Sunday, May 27.)

Groton Going never gave his foes any hope of a chance, taking command at the outset. He reached the backstretch with a 1 1/2-length lead as Black Jack Mack, the second choice at 8-5, and Mac Askus, an 11-1 outsider, were trying to keep within range.

Groton Going, hauling Salustio Burgos in the top load of 121 pounds, turned on a sudden powerburst at the mid-way point of the stretch, and quickly had a six length lead on his adversaries.

The gelding showed no mercy in the stretch, especially with jockey Groton Going responded with another acceleration and reached the wire with a devastating nine-length lead.

Groton Going was clocked in 1:08 flat on a fast track, and collected $5,130 out of the gross purse of $8,550.

Ruidoso fans, impressed with Groton Going's romping conquest of the Riley Allison Futurity Consolation at Sunland Park and his neck win in La Esperanza Futurity at Santa Fe, made him an odds-on choice (4-5) in the Pocket Coin. The payoffs: $3.80, $3 and $2.60.

In three previous tries at racing this summer at Ruidoso Downs, Lous Anniversary carried sky-high odds—ranging from 25-1 to 79-1.

Each of these three outs produced little to brag about.

So Ruidoso fans made Lous Anniversary a 48-1 longshot on Friday's 400-yard feature. Most of the betting money was hogged by Make Mine Cash, who was made a prohibitive 2-5 favorite, largely on the strength of her staggering money line of $1,125,922 (sixth richest in quarter horse history).

But Lous Anniversary, a four-year-old mare owned by Jeanie Bauer Pape of Goliad, Texas, didn't submit meekly this time. The mare broke sharply to engage Make Mine Cash in the early steps of the muddy journey.

Mr. Master Bug, the third-richest quarter horse of all time, steps back into the Ruidoso Downs spotlight on Thursday.

The magnificent colt goes in the fifth race, which is one of four 440-yard trials for the $150,000 (estimated) World's Championship Quarter Horse Classic.

Mr. Master Bug, owned by Marvin Barnes of Ada, Oklahoma, has already stuffed $1,569,761 in his bank account. That puts him within arm's reach of the second-place slot held by Highsteerjet at $1,617,209.

A win in the Classic could put him ahead of Highsteerjet on the all-time list.

Thirty-eight contenders from the three-year-old and up category will be fighting it out in Thursday's trials, and those chalking up the 10 fastest times will advance into the finale carded for Sunday, July 29.

Bonito firefighters set best little open house

"The Best Little Firehouse in Alto" is the theme for the Bonito Volunteer Fire Department (BVFD) Open House from 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday, July 21, at the Sun Valley Station in Alto.

Fire volunteers plan to serve refreshments and distribute gifts. "We want to show off our facility and equipment, particularly our new trucks," said Chief Howard Puckett.

"At the same time," he said, "we want to thank the residents of our fire district who have supported us with their contributions and made most of the new equipment possible."

"We will also distribute Red Dots—window markers to be placed in the bedroom windows of children, invalids or elderly people to warn firemen and rescue personnel of that person's whereabouts."

"These are free," he said. "Also available will be free telephone stickers and emergency lists."

BVFD serves the communities of Alto, Angus and Bonito. It boasts 22 active members who run seven trucks and pumpers, including two new four-wheel-drive units. "These are really necessary in our hills," Puckett said.

Members are contacted via radio pagers from the Lincoln County Sheriff's Office to respond to grass, structure and automobile fires. They also work on other emergency calls.

The BVFD rescue unit carries high-lift jacks, Porta-power tools, air chisels, X-Bar-T rescue tools, winches, floodlights, backboards and a Stokes lifter. Volunteers drive the unit with the Alto ambulance to automobile accidents.

Puckett hopes neighbors will want to see the equipment. "We are happy to show it off," he said. People who attend the open house can tour the facilities, inspect the trucks, and even blow the siren, he said.

"If anyone wants to join, we'll sign up new members, too," he added.

For information call Puckett at 336-4518 or the BVFD at 336-4308.

At any time, firetrucks or an ambulance can be summoned by calling the emergency number. It is 258-5607.

Doctors set Inn conference

New medical developments and techniques will be highlights of the 27th Annual Ruidoso Family Practice Seminar Monday, July 16, through Thursday, July 19.

The New Mexico Chapter of the American Academy of Family Physicians is sponsoring the meeting at the Inn of the Mountain Gods. It has drawn approximately 200 physicians from as many as 16 states.

The 17 speakers scheduled include medical teachers from Iowa, Idaho and Ohio. The director of the University Cancer Center in Albuquerque, Dr. Thomas B. Tomasi, also will speak.

Dr. Jeffery W. Bleakly, a resident at the University of New Mexico School of Medicine, plans to present a paper about Alzheimer's disease.

Ugly bartender wants votes

Beverly Cornett wants people to call her ugly this month. She's a bartender at Alto Lakes Golf and Country Club.

Cornett wants them to vote for her as the ugliest bartender in New Mexico. People get one vote for each 25 cents they donate to the Multiple Sclerosis (MS) Society.

Of course, Cornett doesn't refer to physical appearance when she says ugly. She thinks of understanding, generous, lovable you. Ugly is the abbreviation for that in the annual MS fund-raiser.

"I used to do this in El Paso," Cornett says. Her customers there had fun with the ugliest bartender contest, so she participates in this area.

The MS Society says the Ugliest Bartender in New Mexico Contest is a beautiful, zany way to raise funds to be used to fight the disease.

Bartenders can collect the 25-cent votes until August 8. The one with the most votes at the end of the contest wins a trip to Hawaii.

The top winner will come from one of five geographic divisions in New Mexico. Ugliest bartenders from the other divisions will win prizes and be honored at a dinner. Alto is in the southeast division.

Each bartender may designate one campaign worker—either a fellow worker, a customer or a friend—as a campaign worker. The campaign workers also may collect votes.

The MS group encourages in-bar promotions to increase vote totals, such as an ugly feet contest or an ugly car wash.

After all, ugly is as ugly does.

Bass wins senior golf crown

by GARY BROWN
News Sports Writer

Doug Bass is back on his golf game just in time.

The Alto resident shot a 72 to win the overall gross championship at the Cree Meadows Men's Senior Tournament Sunday afternoon at Cree Meadows Country Club.

Bass fired a 34 on the front nine and carded a 38 on the back nine for the victory. He also won the 50-54 age division gross crown.

"I played well today," he admitted after finishing the 18 holes. "I haven't been playing well at all lately. But today I hit the ball a lot better than I've been doing.

"I still didn't putt that well. But I hit the ball better and played consistently. I didn't really get into trouble at any hole."

With the Cree Meadows Member-Guest Tournament scheduled this Tuesday through Thursday and several other tournaments scheduled for July and August, his improvement came at the right time.

Bass also will compete in a pro-am tournament in El Paso, Texas, today.

Tom Beatty won the overall net championship with a 64 and won the 60-64 age division gross title with a 74.

In the 55-59 age division, former Ruidoso High School golf coach Leroy Gooch won the gross crown with a 78 and Charlie Borchardt took the net title with a 69. Borchardt and Howard Hassell tied for second in the 55-59 gross competition.

Ed Roberts won the 60-64 age division net championship with a 68. P. L. Faulk won the 65-69 net title with a 66 and Sunny Edwards captured the gross crown in the same division with a 91.

Floyd Covill took the 70-74 gross championship with an 85 and Guy Warnica captured the net title with a 72.

Now the golfers will turn their attention to the member-guest tournament, one of the biggest on the Cree Meadows schedule.

There will be a scramble Tuesday, followed by the regular competition Wednesday and Thursday. Wednesday's competition will be judged on best-ball scoring and Thursday's on the total score.

Tommy Hornbuckle and Frank Cornelius won the crown last year.

Fishing report

Rio Ruidoso: The fishing is fair. Some trout are being taken on fireballs and worms.

Alto Lake: The fishing is fair. Some trout are being taken on floating cheese bait, fireballs and marshmallows.

Bonito Lake: The fishing is fair to good. Trout are being taken on worms and marshmallows, fishing off the bottom, also on flies in early morning and late afternoon hours.

Learning to swim

learn to swim in the program. The tots program is one of several programs offered at the swimming pool this summer.

Richardson sparks Lakers victory

Bill Richardson scored 19 points to lead the Lakers to a 69-32 victory over White Lightning in an opening-season game of the Ruidoso Summer Basketball League at White Mountain School Thursday night.

Richardson, a former Ruidoso High School standout, led a well-balanced Laker attack in the victory over White Lightning.

Other scores had the Shockers topping the Blue Devils 59-38; Pan-A-Rama Rampage defeating the Gold Fever 60-18; and the Chiefs beating the Orangemen 99-39.

The Blue Devils and Gold Fever are made up of Ruidoso High School boy players, and the Orangemen consist of Capitán High School players. White Lightning has several Ruidoso High School girl players on its squad besides several men.

The Blue Devils are composed mainly of Warrior juniors and seniors. The Gold Fever team is made up mainly of players who will be sophomores in the fall.

New Ruidoso boys varsity coach Gene Segura had mixed feelings about the results.

"They've got a long ways to go but they never quit," he said about the Blue Devils. "Of course, they've been with a different coach before and they've got plenty of time to learn my system."

"The younger kids (Gold Fever) have a lot of raw talent."

In action Tuesday night, the Orangemen will play White Lightning at 6; the Chiefs and Lakers will tangle at 7; the Shockers will play the Gold Fever at 8; and the Blue Devils will take on Pan-A-Rama at 9.

At the conclusion of the season, there will be a double-elimination tournament.

Blues win tournament

The Blues of the Ruidoso Men's Fast-Pitch Softball League won the second annual Firecracker Invitational in Carlsbad over the weekend.

The Blues had a 7-0 record in the C division tournament. They won one game Friday, four Saturday and two Sunday.

Lynn Willard clubbed a grand slam home run to lead the well-balanced Blues attack. The Blues also got excellent pitching from Ray Gann, Mike Turner and Ernest Kadayso.

The Blues lead the Ruidoso fast-pitch league with an 11-5 record. The Cardenales are second with a 10-5 mark.

Golfer Doug Bass has reason to be happy. He won the overall gross title of the Cree Meadows Men's Senior Tournament Sunday, shooting a 72. Bass and other local golfers will compete in the Cree Meadows Member-Guest Tournament Tuesday through Thursday.

Around Sports

with Gary Brown

Imagine 17,000 people watching a high school football game, a high school having 13 coaches on its football staff, or 900 people belonging to a high school booster club.

Seems hard to believe? Well, Permian High School in Odessa, Texas, is proof of the above figures. Permian has been probably the top power in Texas prep football circles in recent years, compiling a record of 239 victories, 52 losses and six ties in its 25-year history.

Permian assistant football coach Bucky Jones paid a visit last Friday to his old college buddy, Ruidoso High School football coach and athletic director Cooper Henderson. The coaches compared notes as both teams run similar defenses.

Thus I had the opportunity to discuss football with the Panther assistant.

"Probably the key to our program has been some great junior high coaches," Jones said. "They run exactly the same plays we do, the same offenses and defense.

"So when the kids get to high school, they know all about our system and can step in."

The Permian varsity has five coaches and the junior varsity has eight. There are three junior high schools which feed the 2,000-plus enrollment high school. The Panthers also have an extensive off-season program that has helped their conditioning greatly.

Permian has won three state championships in the 5A division, Texas' largest. Last season the Panthers won the District 4-5A crown but lost to district rival Lee of Midland in the state semi-finals. Lee fell to a San Antonio school in the state finals.

What makes the Panthers' success all the more remarkable is the fact they usually don't have great size or speed. Permian frequently beats teams which outweigh it by 20 or 30 pounds per man.

"We have great high school players but they're not really good enough to play college ball," Jones said. "Some schools in the inner-city areas may have as many as 12 kids go on to college ball, while we may just have four. We just have great feeder programs, good coaching and great mental approach by our kids to the game."

The support by townspeople is another thing. Jones credits for the Panthers' success.

"We average around 600 to 900 people in our booster clubs," he commented. "Unlike some other areas where just the parents of the kids on the team would be in the booster club, we have people in boosters who don't even have kids on the team."

Contrast the 600 to 900 figure for Permian's booster club with about 30 people in Ruidoso's booster club and you can see just how important high school sports is in a town like Odessa.

"The nearest college team is two and one half hours away from us (Texas Tech University)," said Jones. "The pros are in Dallas and Houston and that's about a six- to eight-hour drive away."

"People really support high school sports in Odessa."

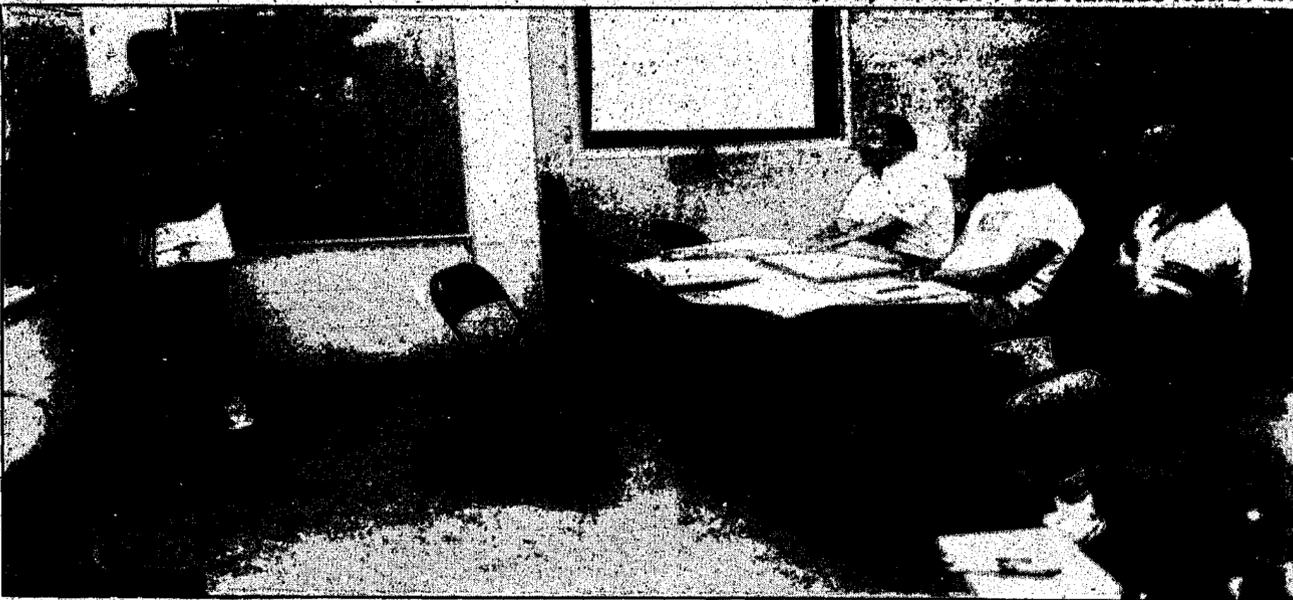

The Panthers' other sports teams also do well, but are not the consistent powerhouses that the football team is. Of course, Permian's sports program is not that common, not even in a hot football state like Texas.

But the excellence that the Panthers show in high school football is something to be admired, particularly when they play teams which have more physical talent than they have.

This kind of athletic excellence is possible in Ruidoso if a strong booster program and a top year-round sports program can come about.

That's not to say people should expect the Warriors eventually to be able to go out and be competitive against Texas 5A schools with over 2,000 students (compared to the Warriors' 450 to 500 students).

But the day may not be that far off when Ruidoso will be able to play consistently against Artesia, Portales, Silver City and other New Mexico AAA powers.

Discussing plays

Henderson and Jones both attended Eastern New Mexico University in Portales.

The St. Anne's Guild at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Mount in Ruidoso is putting finishing touches on its Christmas in July bazaar. Above, Janet LaBrecque (left) and Lynne Sanders stitch fabric blocks behind rows of mushroom jars. Below, bazaar chairman Vicki Conley kneads a mushroom lid while Rebecca Conley watches. While their children watched, volunteers have devoted time each week since February to the bazaar. Right, wreaths hanging in a closet are among the many items ready for sale. The church also plans a Saturday luncheon and car wash.

Members of Saint Anne's Guild of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Mount are preparing Christmas in July.

The bazaar, a tradition that dates back 25 years, will start at 9 a.m. Saturday, July 21.

Baked goods, handmade candy including 100 slabs of toffee, and noodles will be available in the parish hall. Crafts also are being prepared.

A luncheon is scheduled in the old rectory. The menu features New Orleans gumbo, rice, salad, hot bread and chocolate mousse cake. Adults pay $5, children younger than 12 pay $2.50.

Guild members plan chances on a quilted wall-hanging of Sierra Blanca and a hand-painted china doll. The items are on display at The Aspen Tree gift and book shop in Ruidoso. The church youth group plans a new feature this year, a car wash.

Proceeds from all of the projects will go to the church and related groups.

Members have worked in homes and at the church every week since February, said Vicki Conley, bazaar chairman.

For information, call the church at 257-2356. It is south of Sudderth at the Sierra Professional Center turn.

Ernesto Ramirez, who danced with his brother, Salvadore, was dressed in Break Dancing style, Circle K of Ruidoso Doves, which sponsored Saturday's event for muscular dystrophy.

Erskine Jackson boogied to the tunes of "Reckless," from the sound track of Breakin'. The tune was definitely the most popular selection of the contest.

Mike Witmore participated in the Break Dancing contest with "all the right moves". The linoleum floor was donated by Barnett Tiles.

Capitan looks to the future

By MATT BOSISIO
News Staff Writer

Two work sessions of the Economic Development District in Capitan Friday and Saturday yielded good insight to the area's problems, despite a low turnout that made for a lack of input from village residents.

Conducted by Hubert Quintana, executive director of the Southeastern New Mexico Economic Development District, and John Cochran, planning technician, the sessions were intended to pinpoint various problems in the community and suggest appropriate solutions.

Quintana said that, clearly, the most severe situation facing the village is a lack of sufficient and acceptable water.

"The water situation is real, real bad here," he said. "The quality of the water, while it's safe water, is not good because the (Bonito) lake has turned over. So when you hold a glass of water to your nose, it doesn't smell too good."

The village needs to find acceptable water which can serve as a constant supply, Quintana said. Two wells and a 500,000-gallon holding tank would probably do it, he indicated.

Not far behind the water problem, Quintana said, is the existing condition of the streets. Of the 32 miles of village road, only six are paved.

He said the village needs to put in better roads that will withstand the changes of climate and remain dependable under emergency conditions. Each session, with many of the participants attending both sessions, Cochran said the townspeople seemed very excited about the project.

"Someone not living in town is taking some interest in their community," he explained.

But Mayor David Cummins said he was disappointed with the turnout, especially after notices were posted seeking as much local input as possible.

"It's a matter of making people aware of the problems," he said. "Many of them don't seem to care."

He said the village may someday have to float a bond issue to take on improvement projects. But because there appears to be little interest in what affects the community, he said, people will be in the dark when it comes to voting on crucial issues.

After the meetings, Quintana and Cummins separately addressed the subject of growth in Capitan. They each said the village needs to solve and anticipate problems that may crop up in the next few years.

Quintana noted that while the village almost doubled in population between the years 1970 and 1980, it is still growing and on the verge of even greater growth.

In 1980, Capitan had 762 residents. Two years later the count stood at 836, an increase of 74 people, for a growth factor of almost 10 percent.

Cummins pointed out that in the span of only one year—July 1983 to June 1984—the village installed 73 new water taps. Although some of those were apartment complexes, he said, the phenomenal growth rate is still apparent. "This (village) council has enough motivation to deal with the future," he said. "I think they can see that Capitan is growing, that it's outgrowing itself."

Cummins pointed to the lower cost of housing in Capitan compared to Ruidoso as the single biggest factor in drawing people to the village.

He said working class people are commuting between Capitan and Ruidoso in order to afford housing more comfortably.

Talking about the future of Capitan, Quintana said it was best to identify problems with three-year goals. "And to set objectives," he went on, "that could be measured and give everyone an idea of what to expect."

The district did a similar profile of Capitan in 1975, and examined some of the same problems of today—housing, water, sewer lines, streets, mobile homes.

Quintana said now was the time to update that profile, and attempt to prepare the village for new growth. Possible additional inclusions in the profile will be an examination of the school bus routes and revitalization of parts of the downtown area.

Beyond the profile, Quintana said, he will suggest for the village a master plan of 10 or 20 years that will help the village maintain the system that they establish, "and help put their priorities in order."

He said he expected to return to Capitan within two weeks to begin the profile, which could be ready in the form of a draft by the end of August.

A Great Lady Visits Ruidoso

Jack Fowler, "The Flying Grocer", flew his plane a little over a week ago to Pauls Valley, Oklahoma, and brought back his mother, Mrs. Wauvera Fowler, for a week's visit in Ruidoso.

Mrs. Fowler was born near Meridian, Mississippi, a little over sixty years ago, and as a child moved to Oklahoma where she began teaching school when scarcely more than a girl. Later she attended Mary Harden Baylor College, and began a teaching career which lasted until just recently.

In 1935 she married Ray Fowler, who worked in the oil fields of Oklahoma. And from this union were born three sons: Ed, Jack and Terry. Wauvera is very proud of these sons, which have never given her a moment's trouble from early childhood on.

In her son Jack's store, The Hollywood Food Mart, I noticed a photograph on the wall. It turned out to be Governor of Oklahoma, George Nigh, congratulating Inola Brown and Wauvera for work well done as members of the "Silver Haired Legislator."

With the mention of those last three words, a whole new world was opened up to me.

In twenty three states there are legislatures within the legislature, made up of people who must be over sixty years to run for office, and those who vote for them must also be sixty years or over.

These special lawmakers work with the regular state senators and representatives for laws of special benefit to the elderly, and at the same time to the general population.

Wauvera points out that anything that helps the elderly cannot but help all of us, reminding us that we will all soon be in that bracket, and that there are...

"More and more of us all the time." She went on to say that fifty one percent of all voters in the last election in Oklahoma were over the age of sixty. This special dimension in law making was introduced by Senator Claude Pepper of Florida, and is gaining ground.

Governor Nigh of Oklahoma, in paying tribute to Wauvera Fowler, said that she had done more, single handed, than anyone else to get the bill passed which will try to do away with neglect and abuse of the elderly in Oklahoma.

The surprising thing about this "Silver Haired Legislator" is that she is not silver haired. Her hair is medium blond and she does not look a day older than forty.

Mrs. Wauvera Fowler is a member of a growing group of people very important in the life of our country—those who do not let age stand in the way of their leading a productive and helpful life.

We are thankful to Wauvera Fowler for the inspiration and uplift that she has given us by her good example of a life which is a blessing to all of us.

Remote forest fire controlled Sunday

A small forest fire that may have been eluding detection for days was brought under control after it flared up Sunday evening.

Sixteen members of the Bonito Fire Department responded at 7:30 p.m. to the blaze, on a ridge above north Eagle Creek in the Lincoln National Forest. According to Bonito Fire Chief Howard Puckett, firefighters took about an hour to locate the fire, and only about 30 minutes to contain the flames. Puckett said the remote site of the blaze contributed to the difficulty of finding the fire. He estimated the fire destroyed about a 50-square-yard area of forest.

Firefighters hypothesized that the blaze was lightning-caused, possibly a few days before. Smoke had been sighted in the area earlier Sunday, but not enough to lead firefighters to the source.

According to Steve Makowski of the Forest Service, a Smokey Bear Hot Shot Crew is on the scene today completing the final steps to extinguish any remaining traces of fire.

Puckett said help from the Ruidoso Police dispatcher and the Ruidoso Fire Department lookout tower also greatly aided in the firefighting effort.

Racetrack honors Mai Shanley

An All-American beauty queen visited Ruidoso Downs Race Track Sunday, as Miss USA toured the area.

Mai Shanley was returning home to southern New Mexico for the first time since she won her title May 17 in Lakeland, Florida. She has been living in New York City while touring the country during the early part of her reign.

Shanley visited the track for the ninth race, the 400-yard "Mai Shanley - Miss USA" quarter horse allowance. She also received a congratulations blanket from Mrs. Rick Henson, wife of the general manager at the track.

Administrative assistant Bill Thomas arranged her visit. He was a judge when she won the Miss New Mexico pageant February 25 in Las Cruces.

Before her visit to the track,

Shanley had returned to her parents' home in Alamogordo Saturday.

"I wanted to sleep in my own bed," she said. She plans to remain in Alamogordo for a few days.

Miss USA misses her family, although, "as long as there's a telephone, I'm fine."

Her Irish father, Patrick Shanley, is a chief master sergeant in the United States Air Force. Her mother, Vivian Shanley, is Taiwanese. Their son Sean and daughter Siobhan have Irish names. Siobhan is Gaelic for Joan, Shanley explained.

Although it takes her away from home and college, Miss USA is enjoying the year of travel and appearances that goes with her title.

"Basically what I'm looking for is to see the opportunities presented to me," she said. Shanley sings, and may consider a performing career, but doesn't plan to actively pursue one at the moment.

She does plan to return to New Mexico State University in Las Cruces and study elementary education. Shanley wants to teach in Department of Defense schools overseas. She received some of her education in such schools.

Shanley knows some foreign languages, including Chinese and French, but added that she is most at home with the American language.

Before she ever walks into a classroom, she wants to teach youngsters informally, as a role model.

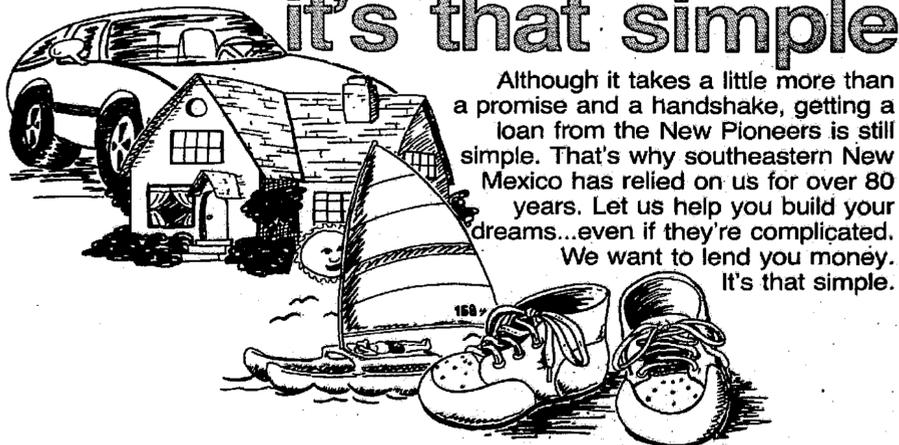

"Hard work and determination pays off," she said. Winning the title of Miss USA shows that, Shanley added.

Bill Thomas, administrative assistant at Sunday. The track named a race for Miss Ruidoso Downs, welcomes Mai Shanley USA and presented a blanket.

Opinion

Editorial

Congratulations Walter Mondale.

You have ensured yourself and your running mate a place in history.

You will be remembered as the first presidential candidate from a major party to name a woman to share the ticket.

Your running mate, Geraldine Ferraro, will be remembered as that vice-presidential candidate.

The significance of having a woman run for the nation's second highest office has been much ballyhooed, of course.

But Ferraro's expected nomination also should be noted for something else that it marks; the pinnacle of popularity contest politics.

Being a third-term congresswoman from a borough of New York City does not qualify a person to be vice president of the United States. But we are not talking about qualification for office, we are talking about qualification for candidacy—i.e., how much the candidate will help the ticket in the election.

Never mind that the vice president, if elected, would assume the most important office in the world should the president die. That is beside the point until after the election.

At any rate, congratulations are due to Mondale and Ferraro for having assured their places in history.

We trust that the electorate will be astute enough to ensure that Mondale-Ferraro is the losing ticket in the 1984 presidential election.—TP

Inside the Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE—Another dissertation on how our Governor should be doing his job? From this column, that's nothing new.

But stick around for a moment. This one may be different.

Instead of doom and gloom, hellfire and damnation, maybe these words may contain a tiny fire of hope.

Stand back, and let's have a shot at it to see what happens.

There are small signs that, after a year and a half, the Governor is growing into his job. They aren't anything to get carried away about, but they may be indicators of a more hopeful future.

Indicator One: His care in not exaggerating when he reported on his job-finding trip to Israel and Europe.

This could have been a temptation. There were some things to report which sounded more likely to produce at least small payrolls in the state sometime in the foreseeable future than is usual on such occasions.

But the Governor resisted the pull to self-aggrandizement. He didn't boast.

When he talked about that new manufacturing plant which appears to be almost certain, for instance, he went out of his way not to claim that he and he alone had brought this to pass. That was wise. This operation, which will be announced for location in Clovis as soon as all details are complete, was not really the fruit of the economic development tour just completed. It had been in the works for some time, and its completion at just this time was more coincidence than planning.

We're glad to get it, of course, and willing to give credit to anyone who deserves it. But the Governor was wise not to hog the spotlight on this one.

Indicator Two: A certain new calmness, and even a healthy ability to laugh at himself, seems to have crept into his daily performance. That's all to the good; taking himself too seriously, as though he alone were inventing the office of governor for the first time, has been one of his previous errors of judgment.

The man wants to go into the history books as a good governor so badly it has led him to try to do too much, too rapidly, and without sufficient thought.

If he is learning a little bit about picking and choosing his battles, he may have advanced in both wisdom and knowledge.

Maybe those long plane rides give him time to think some about himself and his performance.

One of his major weaknesses in office has proved to be his inability to strategize. If he could free himself up to do that, and not concern himself so totally with the daily routine, which is tactical, he might turn out to be the kind of governor he wants to be.

If he would cut himself loose from all the details, he might have time to think some long thoughts. And if he did that, as there are suggestions he may have lately, that tiny ray of hope might blossom.

Every governor has to learn, after being elected, that techniques you use during campaigns have no relevance once the big job is given you. Most make that transition within the first six to eight months after they are sworn in.

Toney has taken a lot longer. Maybe when he learns the lesson, it will be proportionately deeper.

Nobody hopes so more than this writer, who only wants to see government functioning at its best level, during this and all other administrations.

One thing which caused the Governor, on his first day home, to erupt like a Fourth of July fountain was word that the Corrections Department had even considered entering a contract which provided for secrecy from the media and the citizens.

Those who were there say it is lucky Corrections Secretary Michael Franke was not within reach when Governor Anaya was given word of that little caper.

See how columnists who call attention to such matters can perform a public service?

Letters to the editor

DEAR EDITOR:

In writing this letter, I would like to say primarily that I'm certainly in favor of a new airport for several reasons. First of all to eliminate the tragic accidents, with needless loss of lives. A new facility at the proposed location would provide not only a much safer airport, but make accessible the services of commercial airlines.

With all the retort involved with NMSU, the Federal Government, etc., it will be a time consuming ordeal before final approval is reached to actually begin construction. In the interim, it would be good to focus some attention on a realistic situation that exists, and will until the new airport is completed.

The Federal Aviation Administration has established a very complex system in both academic and practical knowledge required of an individual to become a licensed pilot, although in every written examination I have taken, there was very little in the criteria that dealt with flying in mountain terrain. The point I am trying to convey to my fellow pilots—if you have any apprehension or restraint about flying in mountain terrain or in and out of Ruidoso, for your passengers' safety as well as your own, don't attempt a first time flight into a mountain airport counting on what you have read about it for assistance. Take the time to take a check ride with a competent Flight Instructor experienced in mountain flying. It's a different ball game. Please do not become another statistic while we wait on the new airport.

Sincerely,
LAWRENCE FORD

DEAR EDITOR:

After our many years in Ruidoso Little League Baseball, this was our last year; and since we will not be as active in Little League in the future, we would like to take this opportunity to give special Thanks and Appreciation to all the People, Coaches, Players, Businesses, and Organizations from Ruidoso, Ruidoso Downs, and the surrounding communities for all the help and donations given to the Ruidoso Little League Program. Everyone, with very few exceptions, always came through when something was needed.

We have greatly enjoyed helping with Little League baseball and know the future looks great for its continued success.

Sincerely,
JIM AND LINDA CLEMENTS
PRESIDENT AND
SECRETARY/TREASURER

DEAR EDITOR:

There's nothing that encourages me more to enter a store front than an attractively done window or porch display, but these businesses that tactlessly glop their sales items outside or even on the building turn my stomach. I hate to see Ruidoso become another "South of the Border." Too much turns me away as a potential customer. Such displays raise questions in my mind as to the quality of the merchandise. I can visualize in the not-too-distant future a conglomeration of 50 or 80 billboards from Tularosa on up enticing the tourist to the edge of his car seat with warnings of "The Thing," "The Thing" being these tacky displays that inspire nightmares.

Sincerely,
JULIE YOWELL

DEAR EDITOR:

CHEAP CAN BE EXPENSIVE
I bought five of Mimi Jungbluth's Limited Edition of signed and numbered prints. I was told by a person in Ruidoso not to get them framed where I had bought them, that there was a place that did them cheaper.

I live out of state so I took the advice and left them. When we went back to get them I didn't check them in the light and when we got home and hung them they were dirty and streaked on the inside and were wrinkled and wavy. I called him and he said he would fix them so we took them back to Ruidoso and when we got them home again they were worse than before.

I took the prints to a frame shop in my hometown and they looked at them and said that they would try to save them. Three prints were taped with ATG tape to the mats, two of the prints had been trimmed, one on the top and bottom and the other on the sides. I called the person who framed my prints and asked if he would replace my prints because he had cut them without my permission and had put tape all over them and he said he would not, that I had caused him more trouble and he hung up on me.

On my papers he wrote up on my pictures is a declared value blank and he wrote $100.00. He said they were insured if something happened to them. All I asked was that he replace them.

Besides the money for the Limited Edition and the framing $193.07 and driving over 600 miles, I have learned that cheap usually is cheap and can, like my case, end up very expensive. There will probably be a lot more like me who will never know their prints have been ruined until they are taken apart and by then they will not have a chance to replace them and there may be some who can't afford to replace them.

I would appreciate it if you would please put this in your newspaper so that someone else might not have to go through what I had to.

Thank you for your time,
MRS. OREN PEDEN
LEVELLAND, TEXAS

DEAR EDITOR:

Over the past few months the people of this area, are in a mood of know it alls. We have people who are experts on every subject. From what medicines to give race horses, to what a person should do with his or her own business.

You know, here in America, we have all kinds of rights, and every one of these rights was won, at the cost of human lives, some our friends and relatives. These people have given us the freedom to choose what we want to do.

The horse industry is a business, like any other business. People are a part of it, to make a living. These people should be able to decide, how to best run their business. Here lately we are endowed, with so many experts on the subject of horse racing. Most of these people can't ride a stick horse, know how to get on a stick horse, or even take care of a stick horse. It is surprising that these people should say anything at all.

This is not a feeling, restricted to the horse business. It should be true of all business, before running some other person's business.

It seems that this kind of thinking is everywhere. From people complaining about Michael Jackson's Victory Tour, to how much money a professional athlete makes. So what...That's their business.

ROLLAND A. RAMOS

Reporter's Round

by Lois Grushka

After spending last year as a theatre critic for my college paper in Tucson, Arizona, the last thing I expected to rave about was a little known mobile theatre company from Santa Fe.

A weather-threatening summer evening, a small park in midtown, and 20 or so folding chairs greeted the arriving troupe. In half an hour, busy hands unloaded the moving van-sized truck and transformed the library parking lot into an outdoor theatre.

The audience filled up quickly enough with local patrons of the arts. A usual gathering of Ruidosoans produced friendly greetings and familiar faces in almost every seat. The kids looked happy, ready to watch.

"Packard," the story of a mining town, was introduced with a casual flair, by a handsome actor. Unfortunately, no programs were supplied, so the company went unnamed.

Appalachian music filled the valley, and a procession of characters danced upon the imagination of the audience.

A wacky preacher preached, a woman with holes in her shoes shared the dream of making it to Nashville with her off-key rendition of "You Are My Sunshine." Compassion was wrung out of a young school teacher, juveniles practiced cussing and everyone tried to make a living.

The town was happy, peaceful in its protected nest, away from harsh realities. They didn't want to tell really, but there was one little girl the townspeople didn't like so well. She was odd, and her mammy didn't appear to like her neither. On Christmas Day, at the tender age of eight, she took her own life.

The young actors shared an interesting story, with grace and professionalism. During one particularly intense scene, roaring thunder and lightning necessitated a move indoors. Actors, props, audience and chairs quickly made the transition, and barely a beat was missed.

The children were fascinated by the strange folks, as they perched on chairs and parents' laps. Adults were absorbed by the vastness of portrayed personalities, condensed by the limitations of time.

The final emotional scene left people (at least one) misty eyed, but fulfilled. It was a good play, a good performance.

Actors and guests afterwards converged on the home of Ann Cunningham, who provided an impressive spread of delectable foods for a gala cast party. Many members of the Ruidoso Little Theatre, the Ruidoso Department of Parks and Recreation, and theater supporters in general enjoyed conversation with the talented group.

"This is definitely one of the best audiences we've had," said one animated actress. She was amazed by the encouraging reception.

Ruidoso, as the Southwest year-round playground, does not strive to be "Joe Theater." Nor should it. But don't you think the time is near for community members to make an effort in providing adequate housing for live arts?

The Ruidoso Little Theatre, started some years ago by Betty Bennett, constantly struggles for a place to call home. Producing plays from Neil Simon to Agatha Christie, this dedicated playhouse is filled with a menagerie of interesting personalities, with an assortment of commitment levels.

There are of course, plans, plans, plans. But right now, what this courageous troupe of anti-like workers needs is help, help, help. Take time to invest in this future, if only to offer to pound a nail, or make a suggestion.

Athena, Greek goddess of wisdom, and patroness of arts and crafts, would be happy for the opportunity to visit Ruidoso more often.

Ruidoso all-stars ready for district tourney

The 1984 Ruidoso Little League baseball all-stars are ready for the district tournament!

Ruidoso will play its first game at 5:30 this evening on the Lions-Hondo Field in Roswell, facing the winner of Saturday's Artesia-Holloman contest. Artesia is the defending district champion.

The tournament is a double-elimination affair. Most of the teams began play Saturday, but Ruidoso had a bye.

What about Ruidoso's chances?

"We're going to have to hit," said coach Rex Beatty. "All the teams there are going to hit."

Who will be the team to beat?

"I hear Roswell' Noon-Optimist is the best team," answered Beatty. "They're the team to beat, but Artesia has won the title the past two years."

Beatty and coach Steve Dankert have been working with the team for two weeks. Last Monday the team practiced in Roswell to get a good idea of the playing field.

Chito Montano will probably get the call as the starting pitcher tonight. He was a consistent hurrier for Ruidoso State Bank during the regular season.

Jesse Guardiola is the other pitcher, and he will go at third base. Montano will play at third base when Guardiola is pitching.

Other members of the team are Pete Baca, Jimmy Sewell, Mashon Swenor, Rod Bundick and Matt Belin.

Last year Ruidoso won one game, and the year before the team took two victories. Before 1982, Ruidoso had never won a game in district play.

With the steady improvement Ruidoso has shown over the past two years, 1984 could be the year the local team goes all the way.

Tangled Mane cares for hair

by LOIS JEAN GRUSHKA
News Staff Writer

With her own new shop and 15 years of experience as a professional hair stylist, Diane Finch is well equipped to service a variety of hair care needs.

The Tangled Mane opened for business a few months ago. According to Finch, business is hopping. Located in The Paddock on Highway 37, this beauty salon offers comfortable surroundings, friendly service and a full line of Matrix and Redkin beauty supplies.

After working a few years at Millie's, in Merle Norman Cosmetics, Finch was ready to hang her license in her own shop.

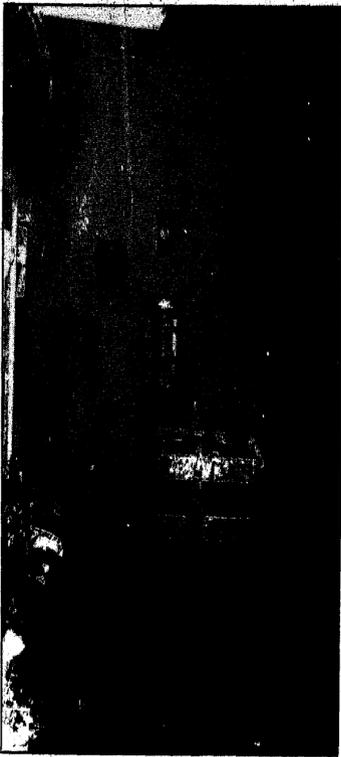

"I knew the timing was right. I felt I had been in Ruidoso long enough that I could make it through a winter," Finch said.

Perms, frosting, French braiding and manicures are regular activities at The Tangled Mane. Creative hairstyling is one of her specialties.

Whether snipping away or checking rollers, Finch obviously enjoys her work. Friendly chatter with customers, coffee and doughnuts, and the jingle of the phone add to the experience of a new hair-do, or a wash and set.

With employee Bonnie Moore, Finch works to lift her customers' spirits, to add a new twist or take one away. Meanwhile soft music soothes tired nerves.

Go ahead, the staff at Tangled Mane suggests, isn't it time to treat yourself? Open Tuesday through Friday 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturday 8 a.m. to 2 p.m., for walk-ins or by appointment.

Creative hairstyling is one of Diane Finch's specialties. Haircuts, including blow dry, run about $20. For that special event, The Tangled Mane will braid your hair into a fancy hair-do of French braids for $15.

Diane Finch has a busy appointment book for The Tangled Mane, but walk-ins are welcomed. The salon on Highway 37 is open four days a week from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturdays from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. The shop is closed Sundays.

Manicures for $8.50 are available. A multitude of nail colors to select from is half the fun.
