Skull finding may open murder investigation

by FRANKIE JARRELL
News Staff Writer

A skull discovered high in the Cedar Creek Canyon Recreation area has been identified as that of Pam Sisk Nolen, missing since October 25, 1978, according to Ruidoso Police Captain Dave Pfeffer.

Hikers made the grisly discovery on February 4, and immediately reported "finding a body" to the U.S. Forest Service at Smokey Bear District Ranger Station, according to Lincoln County Undersheriff Charlie Cox.

Cox said Ray Garner, a Sheriff's Office investigator, and White Mountain Search and Rescue personnel followed up on the report, and found the skull and a few bones at the scene.

Pfeffer, who serves as county medical examiner, was called in and immediately connected the find with a 1981 discovery just 600 feet away where bones, clothing, jewelry and a boot were found buried underneath a campfire.

Cox said his office sent the skull to the state medical examiner, and have not yet received a report.

However, Pfeffer, who has been investigating the Nolen case since the 25-year-old Ruidoso resident left for work and disappeared, learned that the skull was positively identified as that of Nolen.

He said five teeth found in the lower jaw of the skull matched exactly the 1977 dental records he was able to locate through a local dentist.

Upon learning that the medical examiner had confirmed his suspicions on the skull, Pfeffer asked the medical examiner's anthropologist to examine bones from the 1981 find, and said those bones apparently were Nolen's, too.

The discovery was made in the county outside village limits, but Pfeffer said he has worked on the case for so long that he has a personal interest in seeing Nolen's murderer arrested.

He said Wednesday that the skull showed signs of "blunt trauma" either from a blow, or even from a bullet—further proof of his contention that Nolen was murdered.

Pfeffer said he has plans to reopen the homicide investigation.

Cox said his investigation was well under way Wednesday, with Garner and Cleston Fritchett of the Search and Rescue operation continuing the search for clues by taking aerial photos of the area where the skull and bones were discovered.

Sheriff's deputies discovered more bones on Tuesday, said Cox.

According to published reports, Nolen's boyfriend said she left for work the morning she disappeared, but never arrived at her job.

Her pickup truck was found in the Cedar Creek Canyon area, but no fingerprints were recovered from the vehicle.

Pfeffer said clues have always pointed to foul play.

Council talks water in last meeting

by FRANKIE JARRELL
News Staff Writer

The current Ruidoso Village Council, in a meeting of "lasts," met together with Mayor George P. White as presiding officer for the last time Tuesday, and spent much of that meeting in discussions on water projects.

"This is my last regular meeting," said White, who preceded the session by asking "forgiveness of the Almighty" for anything he may have said against any of his "fellow men" during his term of office.

Mayor White accepted a plaque of appreciation for "all his public service" from Village Councillor Jerry Shaw, issued his "last official proclamation" naming Friday, March 14, as Arbor Day and accepted a certificate from State Representative Ben Hall from the 37th Legislature commemorating Ruidoso's 100th birthday celebration in 1986.

During regular business, Jackie Atkins of Atkins-Landfair Engineers, reported that Ruidoso's amended offer of judgment on Eagle Creek water rights is in the hands of Peter Thomas White, chief counsel for the State Engineer.

Atkins said the village should pursue water rights in the Eagle Creek well field since beneficial use is a major consideration of those rights in New Mexico.

He presented an estimated cost of $415,000 on phase two of the well field project, and encouraged the council to continue the well development as proof of Ruidoso's intent to use the water.

Included in phase two, according to Atkins, is 14-inch pipeline to the existing Eagle Creek pipeline (past the creek's diversion point), underground power and 4,000 feet of primitive roadway to take the existing road out of the creekbed.

Although Atkins said the water could be pumped into the creekbed and allowed to freeflow down to the diversion point, he pointed out that process would result in a loss of 25 percent of the water pumped and a "dead loss on power supplied." He added that by pumping the water into a pipeline, it will not need expensive treatment and flocculation, but may be distributed to users after a simple chlorination process.

Twice as much water—six cubic feet per second compared with just three cubic feet per second—can be pumped into the municipal system by way of the pipeline, added Atkins.

"You've never had a permit to pump into the creekbed," noted Atkins, who said the U.S. Forest Service voiced concern last summer when well water flowing down the creek bed caused iron stains on the rocks.

Although Atkins didn't present dollar figures to compare the project with and without the pipeline, Village Councillor Rick Evans estimated that the village would lose about $20,000 a year in pumping costs if the water free flows.

Village assistant manager Frank Potter, estimated that the cost to treat the water, if the Forest Service issues a permit to flow through the creekbed would be over $1 per thousand gallons.

"I thought it was obvious," said

Ben Hall reports on ups and downs of Legislature

by FRANKIE JARRELL
News Staff Writer

Even though State Representative Ben Hall wasn't able to bring home many of his requests for Lincoln County during the recently ended 30-day session of the 37th Legislature, he said the session was basically a good one.

"It's hard to tell until the dust settles," said State Senator James Lee Martin, who agreed that things went well in Santa Fe.

Representative Hall said monies are allocated on a priority basis, but only one Lincoln County request survived the session. Hondo High School will receive $220,000 to drill a well for fire protection, said Hall.

Hall was unsuccessful on requests for $1.5 million for right of way on roads to the Sierra Blanca Regional Airport and $300,000 for bleachers, restrooms and a concession stand for a football stadium at Ruidoso High School.

"The money wasn't allocated properly to some of the higher priorities in the state," noted Hall, who voted to kill the money bill that passed in the final minutes of the Legislature.

He said money was allocated unfairly in that bill, with Santa Fe and McKinley counties receiving more than their shares. Hall said the state should have a limit to the amount of funds one county can receive.

"We did probably pass the biggest tax increase in history," said Hall. "But it was necessary," he added, and Martin agreed.

Hall said major increases in state taxes include:

- 14 percent increase in personal income tax,
- one percent increase in the county gross receipts tax rate (to 4.75%),

- increase excise tax on new automobiles from three percent to four per cent,
- raise car licensing fees using a scale with weight and year model,
- delete some rebates on food, medical expense and prescriptions.

Lawmakers also gave cities back five mills on property taxes and counties three mills on those taxes.

"We tried to spread it around," said Hall, who said new taxing policies will tie the tax base back to the population instead of placing the emphasis on just one source of revenue—like oil and gas.

Hall said he opposed the $2,500 teacher raise proposed early in the session, and supported the early reform bill. The legislation that eventually passed both houses gave teachers a $2,200 a year raise and traded in tenure for an arbitration process.

"If they're going to be treated like professionals as far as the money, they out to be treated like professionals on hiring and firing," remarked Hall.

One reason Hall opposed the original raise proposal was because other state employees were not included. He said all state employees will get raises with the smaller teacher pay increase.

Besides increasing taxes, Hall said lawmakers forced every state agency to cut expenses by five percent. He said the Legislature also cut an additional $28 million from the cost of state government.

"All and all it turned out pretty good," said Hall. "We came out with a balanced budget and passed a workmen's compensation bill that should help businesses," he added.

School board considers bond issue building proposal

At a special meeting of the Ruidoso Board of Education Wednesday, members called for architects to present their final building recommendations for the proposed $2.6 million school bond issue.

Steve Strain, of Alley-Connel-Strain and Associates, the architects and planners advising Ruidoso Municipal Schools (RMS) on construction needs related to the proposed bond issue election on April 8, did make final building recommendations to the board.

However, there was general agreement among board members they needed more time to study

Strain's recommendations, and the board adjourned until noon Monday, March 3.

That meeting of the board will be in the RMS administration building, and is open to the public.

Last Monday the RMS Building Committee, which is made up of school principals and other RMS staff members, met to consider elements of Senate Bill 106 (SB106), the recently passed public school reform and improvements measure.

If signed into law, SB106 would require school districts to have a teacher-pupil ratio of 20-to-one in kindergarten and first-grade classes by the 1987-1988 school year.

RMS would need to hire three more first-grade teachers and a half-time or half-day kindergarten teacher for Nob Hill Elementary if the bill is signed into law, RMS superintendent Sid Miller said.

Nob Hill was scheduled to have two classes added to its facility, but may need four classes if SB106 becomes law.

Last Monday, at the building committee meeting, RMS school principals ranked their campus building needs in order of importance and in light of SB106, according to building committee members.

Miller told board members it was time to look at the bond issue in terms of "district-wide needs rather than school-wide needs."

Board member Don Swalander pressed both Strain and Miller to make their final building recommendations to the board at the Wednesday meeting.

He said he was concerned voters would react negatively at the polls if RMS could not be clear on how bond issue money would be spent.

Board president Stormy Edwards said his first priority was to educate the school children but he realized

Cycle fest site is Carrizo

Connie Brown, president of the Golden Aspen Rally, announced that this year's motorcycle festival will take place "in town" at Carrizo Lodge.

The newly formed Golden Aspen Rally Association will sponsor the yearly event from September 24-27 this year. Brown said the central location will be beneficial to Ruidoso merchants. Last year's festival took place in Glencoe.

Brown said the new group formed this year when former festival leader Gary Boyd moved to Belen. Brown said she was approached by Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce executive director John Jeffers, who did not want to see Ruidoso lose the annual event.

The rally will be part of the autumn Aspen Festival celebration. The event will celebrate the centennial birthday of Ruidoso and of the motorcycle.

The festival will include poker runs, contests and other activities. Prizes include a Harley Davidson FXRT Dresser Motorcycle, sponsored by Sherman Barnett of Harley El Paso and by the Golden Aspen Rally Association. Steve Cox will do pin stripping.

Other prizes include a 1986 Model Design Side Car and a 1986 Eagle II Trailer, both donated by Smitty's Manufacturing of Huxley, Iowa.

The large trade show will feature many vendors and company representatives. Companies include Harley Davidson, American Honda and BMW of North America. For general information on the rally, call Brown at 378-8287.

Golden Aspen Rally Association president Connie Brown (left) hands the contract for the festival location to Fran Nivens (right), manager of Carrizo Lodge. County lodgers' tax group begins regular meetings

by SHARON MAKOKIAN
News Staff Writer

The newly appointed Lincoln County Lodgers' Tax Committee met for the first time Wednesday to elect officers and set regular meeting times.

The five-person committee was formed after a county lodgers' tax went into effect at the beginning of this fiscal year. The original ordinance called for the county group to join the Ruidoso Lodgers' Tax committee, but later was amended to create a separate group.

Richard Seelye, insurance agent with Perrett Parks & Associates, was elected chairman of the group. Robert Boverie, owner of River Ranch KOA Kampground, is the vice-chairman. Kay Dennis, manager of the Wortley Hotel in Lincoln, is the treasurer, and Sterling Badger, general manager of High Country Lodge, is the secretary.

The Lincoln County Board of County Commissioners appointed the committee members. They will have to appoint a replacement for the fifth member, Lydia Krupicka, who was appointed when she owned La Junta Guest Ranch. Krupicka no longer owns the lodging establishment, it was reported.

The committee set 10 a.m. Wednesday, March 12, as the time for a budget hearing that will be at the Lincoln County Sub-office. The group will meet on the second Wednesday of each month, alternating between Ruidoso and Carrizozo locations.

To date, $7,675 has been collected in county lodgers' taxes, reported county manager Suzanne Cox. The county collects the tax from 12 to 15 lodging establishments in all unincorporated county areas, she said.

The group discussed possible ways to use the funds to advertise and promote Lincoln County, Committee members suggested highlighting the various activities and historical sites in the county.

Cox said she received a phone call from "Good Morning America," a national television program. She said the show is considering using Lincoln County in an upcoming segment. Cox suggested the committee act as a go-between on the possible project.

We Pray For Recovery Of Don Edwards

Our prayers go up for E.D. "Don" Edwards, well beloved Ruidoso resident of many years, who was taken to Presbyterian Hospital in Albuquerque February twenty five.

Don is the husband of Carmen Edwards, a long time and outstanding member of the staff of the Ruidoso News as Advertising Manager.

Carmen and their two sons Gregg and Mike are there at the hospital lending fond support to Don in his illness.

Don was for many years an engineer with an oil company, and it was a pleasure to hear him tell of his experiences in South America, Alaska and other far-away places in the world.

A very welcome report was received from Ken Green at noon February twenty six that Don is making a turn for the better.

We are all pulling for our good friend, Don, and are grateful that he is in good hands. Let us all pray that Don will be back home among us soon.

Clara Guthrie Sends Many Thanks To All Our good little next door neighbor, Clara Guthrie began feeling badly on February eighteen and was taken from the Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital to the Hotel Dieu in El Paso by her husband, Buddy.

After several tests, she returned home on the twenty second, greatly relieved to be in good health, and "tickled to death to be home."

Clara said: "I want to thank all the folks in the valley and in Ruidoso and all this wide mountain neighborhood for the wonderful way they showed their true friendship while I was in the hospital."

I received phone calls, get-well cards, plants and other gifts. It was remarkable how quickly the news got around that I was under the weather; and the response of all you people is something I will always treasure in my memory."

Buddy and Clara have always been good neighbors, true friends in need; and now Clara's "bread cast upon the waters has returned many fold. And all of us are happy that Clara is home among us safe and sound in fine health.

Atkins, when asked why the comparison figures weren't provided.

"We strongly recommend that you go to a pipeline to convey that water," said Steve Sams, district ranger for the Smokey Bear District, U.S. Forest Service. He said the creek is a highly used recreational area, and reminded councilors that the Forest Service authorized the drilling with the understanding that water would be pumped through a pipeline system.

"We would be very hard-pressed to allow any long-term flow," said Sams, who warned of "hidden costs in overland flow."

"The cost now is as cheap as it's ever going to be," said Atkins in presenting his recommendation for phase two.

Also Tuesday, councilors awarded the bid on phase one of the Eagle Creek well field to low bidder Richardson and Richardson at $134,007.50.

Village engineer Mike Davalos explained that phase one includes installing two pumps into two wells and piping the water from those two wells to the creek bed. He said portable generators may be installed temporarily this summer to utilize the water from the wells since a permanent power source won't be a part of the project until phase two is completed, and village administrators have predicted that Eagle Creek water will be needed to fill peak water demands.

"That's a source of water that we have to have," said Potter. "It's not like a chocolate cake," he added.

Another water-related project, the intake structure and Upper Canyon diversion project, also got some attention Tuesday, when Virgil and Betty Beagles, owners of Braitt Construction, the project contractors, reported that the project is substantially complete and asked for approval of their last request for payment of $21,000.

The Beagles offered to answer questions on the project and listed problems they've had including "two minor floods and two major floods" and delays by the village in acquiring right of way easements.

Mayor White called a halt to the presentation, and told the contractor to work out details on payment and completion with Boyle Engineering and the village engineer, however Beagles objected to that suggestion.

"Boyle approves and your engineer cuts us," said Beagles, adding that his company has had no payments since November 1985.

After a late-night executive session following the regular meeting, the council instructed village attorney John Underwood to notify Braitt Construction that the project must be completed within 30 days.

Councilors also authorized Underwood to negotiate with Boyle Engineering regarding design standards on the intake structure after discussions in executive session.

In other business Tuesday, the council:

—Approved a vacation of right of way adjacent to lots 1 and 28, Block C, Ruidoso Springs Subdivision and Tract 1, Panorama Lodge Addition for Carrol Collier as approved and recommended by the Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission (P&Z). The council agreed with P&Z's recommendation to charge 75 cents a square foot on the 5,893 square foot tract.

—Heard a report from Fred Heckman, chairman and Ruidoso's representative to the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission. "We are looking at having a summer of airport sometime in the summer of 1987," said Heckman, who said delays in completing an environmental statement and funding delays have caused the schedule modification.

Heckman answered questions from councilors and the audience on funding and requirements for investing the value of the Ruidoso

Municipal Airport into the new airport.

—Heard a letter from Ruidoso Police Chief Richard Swenor on disbanding some areas of the Neighborhood Watch program that have been inactive for some time. Swenor said the program will continue in areas where it has remained active, and the $1,200 in the watch fund will be prorated to those areas. Swenor said burglaries have dropped by 35 percent during the past three years, partially because of Neighborhood Watch.

—Approved resolution 86-2 amending the 1985-86 fiscal year budget.

—Instructed Underwood and Swenor to work with Municipal Judge John Cupp on an amnesty program to help clear 386 open warrants, a total of 10 percent of last year's court docket, from the open files.

—Approved a 50-year lease at $1 a year between the Village of Ruidoso and the Ruidoso Federated Woman's Club for the Woman's Club building.

—Heard Underwood report that Boyle Engineering has agreed to pay for and extend the errors and omissions insurance policy on the design phase of the Grindstone Canyon dam project until September 22. Underwood explained that the discovery period in the policy is set at two years from the expiration date.

—Heard Mayor White announce a special meeting with Lincoln County Commissioners at 2 p.m. Friday, February 28, in council chambers of the village hall, and a meeting to canvass the results of the municipal election at 8 p.m. Tuesday, March 4, in the village clerk's office.

Councilors went into executive session to discuss pending and threatened litigation, and returned to the regular session to return a zoning request (P84-078) back to P&Z.

The outgoing Ruidoso Downs administrator poses for a picture after its meeting Monday. The village board of trustees will meet for an hour at 6 p.m. Monday, March 10, to wrap-up old business before the new administration takes office at 7 p.m. Seated

Trustees may jump itinerant business fees

Ruidoso Downs Trustee Conrad Buchanan proposed an increase in itinerant merchant permit fees from $100 to $1,000 in a discussion of summer peddlers at Monday's meeting of the village trustees.

Buchanan said he wanted the increase to protect the year-round merchants who live and support Ruidoso Downs. He said feed stores are particularly affected by vendors who sell hay from their trucks.

Downs merchant George Moncrief (owner of Country Essence) said the local store owners must pay overhead costs and cannot compete with the street-side vendors.

The council agreed with the need for a higher vendors' fee, and asked village attorney Don Dutton to look into the issue.

"We're not the first small municipality to encounter this," said Dutton, who will research court rulings on the matter.

The board discussed a recent letter from the Environmental Impact Division (EID) which defines regulations on underground storage tanks. Buchanan urged all tank owners to read the requirements and make sure their tanks comply with the safety rules.

In other business, the board: —Approved Earl Allison's request for a propane storage tank.

—Approved Mike Tellez's request to move a building, contingent on his acquiring necessary permits.

—Passed Ordinance 86-1, amending Ordinance 85-2.

—Decided to meet for an hour at 6 p.m. Monday, March 10, to wrap up old business before the new administration has its organizational meeting at 7 p.m.

Downs sticks with animal control law

With summer around the corner, Ruidoso Downs enforcement officials remind Downs residents that village ordinances related to animal control and maintenance will be enforced strictly.

Municipal code officer Mark Milford and animal control officer Mike Willis said they both will enforce the ordinances. Willis said the Downs has a big problem with flies that are attracted to horse manure.

Manure should be stored and removed from the village in tight containers.

Summer dog owners will need to make sure their animals do not roam the streets or violate the leash law.

Milford wrote a letter to village residents which will be sent out with upcoming water bills. The letter includes a copy of the regulations.

many people in town wanted a new football stadium with synthetic turf.

The board will discuss issues related to a new stadium at the meeting Monday, according to some board members.

However, whether the board should spend bond issue money on a new stadium, synthetic turf and various building and equipment needs of RMS campuses, sparked a lot of lively discussion before the board adjourned Wednesday.

If the bond issue passes, the board will sell the bonds at two different times, Miller said.

The first sale of the bonds, "Phase A" of the bond issuance, should be in June or July of this year, Miller said.

After that sale, RMS will use $1.5 million of the total bond issuance for various building projects which the board will discuss Monday.

"Phase B" of the bond issuance will take place after the sale of the remaining $1.1 million in bonds sometime in the spring of 1987 if all goes as planned, Miller said.

Strain made his final building recommendations to the board based on this two-phase program and recommendations of the RMS Building Committee. (See adjacent box which details what board members will consider at the board meeting Monday.)

WHAT THE RUIDOSO BOARD OF EDUCATION WILL CONSIDER AT MONDAY'S MEETING

Steve Strain, of the architectural firm of Alley-Connell-Strain and Associates, made these building recommendations to the Ruidoso Board of Education at their Wednesday meeting.

Strain's recommendations are only tentative proposals that the board must act on.

Following are Strain's recommendations to the board by program phase.

"PHASE A"—$1.6 million
Ruidoso Middle School—$350,000 for: A new wing, remodel existing cafeteria into bandroom, remodel five classrooms, paint all buildings in uniform fashion, bring lighting system in gymnasium to higher safety and overall standards.

Nob Hill Elementary—$500,000
Four new classrooms and restrooms, new library media center, extension of existing cafeteria, windows and panels, installation of heaters, bring existing doors to standards that meet school fire safety codes.

White Mountain Intermediate—$50,000
Blacktop existing playground, acoustical treatment for most of school, remodel existing cafeteria to allow for an additional serving line.

Divide remaining $100,000 among the schools for equipment needs such as furniture and supplies.

"Phase B" of bond issue—spring or summer of 1987
New football stadium at Ruidoso High School—approximately $500,000, synthetic turf for new stadium field—between $400,000 and $500,000.

(Some board members prefer to use part of the money for the stadium, and not the synthetic turf, but more building improvements. This issue will be discussed Monday by the board.)

—Miller told the board SB106 would put a freeze on all administrative salaries at $40,000 and above if passed. Miller said at least six RMS staff members could be effected by this new measure.

—The board was asked to consider specifications for new band uniforms at the high school, and to be prepared to accept bids at a meeting in the future.

—Edwards said people had the idea from a story in the Monday, February 17, issue of The Ruidoso News on the school bond election, that most of the bond money would go to remodel the middle school and not for a new football stadium at Ruidoso High, or other campus projects.

—Miller told the board all schools in the district had shown an enrollment decrease this school year but Nob Hill Elementary.

Hospital board hears money woes

Last Thursday night at a regular meeting of the Ruidoso-Hondo Valley Hospital (RHVH) Board of Trustees, Ken Moore, RHVH administrator, told the board hospitals across the country are facing financial "hardships" for a variety of reasons.

Moore, president of the New Mexico Hospital Association, represented the association and RHVH in recently held conferences on hospital-related matters in Washington D.C.

Moore told the board the Gramm-Rudman Act, proposed budget cuts for certain medical facilities by states and reductions in a patient's average hospital stay have all contributed to warnings of caution by hospital industry experts.

The public, for the most part, has considered hospitals charitable institutions run by "sisters of mercy," Moore said.

But as hospitals become more business oriented just to survive, this perception of hospitals will likely change, Moore said.

Moore told the board Gramm-Rudman budget proposals may effect budgets by state and local governments so dramatically, hospitals like RHVH may only be able to plan for the future in four-year blocks.

Aggressively courting the "over 60" segment of the population will substantial financial resources may be one method hospital will use to solve their economic difficulties in the future, Moore said.

Moore said placing more emphasis on quality birthing facilities and the swing bed program, which enables elderly and other patients to stay in the hospital with reduced care, may help RHVH in the short run.

RHVH patients stay in the hospital an average of only 2.62 days, Moore said.

Though the RHVH staff is proud it is one of the leading hospitals in the nation in terms of an average patient's hospital stay, this level of hospital care has also led to a general loss in revenues, Moore told the board.

In other business the board: —Discussed an 11-percent drop in revenues for this January in comparison to last January, which was generally blamed on the loss of skiers needing outpatient services because of the lack of snow in the area in January.

—Made and passed a motion to amend the by-laws of the RHVH Board of Trustees to include a Mescalero Apache Tribe appointed member.

—Discussed methods to meet the medical needs of area teachers as well as administrative procedures related to teacher's hospitalization insurance plans.

—Discussed accounting procedures by the Carrizozo satellite facility.

—Heard a report from RHVH Auxiliary president Ruth Moore on an Auxiliary treasury balance of over $77,000.

—Thanked Ruth Moore for a Hospital Auxiliary emergency donation of $14,600 to pay for a blood gas analyzer, because hospital physicians could no longer rely on or repair the previous blood gas analyzer.

—Discussed an upcoming meeting on ambulance service at 2 p.m. Friday, February 28, at Ruidoso Village Hall.

—Adjourned privately into executive session to discuss matters related to hospital personnel.

by SHARON MAKOKIAN
News Staff Writer

The Board of Directors of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce voted to form an Economic Development Task Force and learned of a possible budget shortfall at their regular meeting Wednesday.

Ruidoso Village Councillor Rick Evans addressed the board with a proposal for an economic development committee. Evans opined that the "single most important issue the new administration will face" is the use of the existing airport land when the new airport is built. Evans said he felt the land should be retained by the village and used to develop soft industry.

Evans suggested the land be used for a private college and a multi-purpose center (possibly in conjunction with a college). He gave the board information on how Gettysburg College generated $17,000,000 (which reportedly created a $50,000,000 turnover) in the town of Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, during the 1981-1982 school year.

"A school can do as much or more for our community than a new airport," said Evans.

According to Evans, the task force would form subcommittees to work on economic development. He recommended the committee be comprised of representatives from the chamber, service clubs, Spirit of Ruidoso, the village, Ruidoso Board of Realtors, Lincoln County Home Builders and members of the financial and education sectors of the community. He volunteered to chair the committee until it meets and elects a leader.

"I would like the task force to be representative of the entire community," he said.

The board approved the formation of the task force, with Evans to act as the temporary chairman.

Board members Buddy Bundick, Frank Potter and Barbara DiPaolo also will serve on the task force.

Board member Charlie Smith gave the financial report for Bill Carrigan (vice president of operations and management) who was absent from the chamber meeting. Smith said the chamber could face a $4,332 shortfall between now and the end of this fiscal year. The estimate, however, does not include three fundraisers planned for April and May.

Before estimating the shortfall, Smith and Carrigan met with chamber president Paul Crown and executive director John Jeffers. At the meeting, they reduced the budget by approximately $8,000, said Jeffers.

"The chamber can take a collective pat on the back at this time," said Jeffers, explaining that last year the chamber had to use $46,000 of borrowed money to survive the fiscal year. Jeffers said this is the first year that the chamber probably will not have to use Art Festival funds to make it through June.

"The chamber has had a turnaround year, even though it is not zeroed-out yet. It may take more than nine months," said Jeffers.

One upcoming fundraiser is the tele-auction scheduled for April 5 and 6. Jeffers reported that KENW, the public television station in Portales, will help with the auction, to be televised over local cable channel 11, Lincoln Cablevision manager Paul Crown said he will sell hot dogs and have beer (available on a donation basis) at the studios to raise additional funds for the chamber during the event.

Jeffers said that similarly styled radio auctions raised from $10,000 to $12,000 in the town of Bentonville, Arkansas, when he was chamber director there. He said he budgeted $3,000 as the projected revenue to be generated from the Ruidoso program. Crown said the chamber needs donations of merchandise and services (such as meals and lodging certificates) to auction.

Other upcoming chamber fundraisers are the out-of-town property owners membership drive and the annual Mother's Day Picnic. James Paxton is in charge of the picnic, which will take place on Sunday, May 11. Crown said that last year's picnic brought in $1,000. He said he hopes to raise $1,500 this year.

Elections for five new board members will take place this spring. A nominating committee, made up of two board members and three chamber members, will compile a list of 15 nominees. Frank Potter and Duane Byars were chosen as the board members on the committee. They will choose the other three chamber members.

In other business: —Potter, vice president of community development, announced that Ruidoso received a centennial proclamation from the state Legislature. The proclamation is part of the centennial celebration.

—Jeffers reported that Bob Bailey has been asked to fill the vacancy created by Sandy Dacy's resignation from the chamber board.

—Jeffers announced that Charlie Smith took over the chairmanship of this year's art festival after Sue Snidow resigned from the position. Smith said that 94 applications have been received from artists who will participate in this year's festival.

—Crown told the board that U.S. Forest Service representatives Steve Sams and Steve Makowski plan to revive the ComFak program in which merchants display red flags on fire-danger days this summer.

—Jeffers reported that the New Mexico Business Journal will do a feature profile on Ruidoso in an upcoming issue of the statewide magazine.

Summer's ad programs are planned

Cool colors and plays on words will accentuate Ruidoso's summer advertising campaign this year. The Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce Advertising and Promotion Committee met Friday to plan the summer program.

Ann Glover, advertising representative with D B G & H, the chamber's advertising company, said the goal is to develop thought patterns that Ruidoso is cool in the summer. Billboards painted in cool greens and blues will be placed on busy streets in the warm Texas cities of Dallas, Austin, Houston and San Antonio.

Each print advertisement and billboard will contain the newly created "Ruidoso Style" logo. Newspaper ads will appear in the same cities as the billboards. The advertisements play on words. One ad depicts a "traffic jam, Ruidoso Style" showing two golf carts whizzing by the ninth hole. Another ad shows a "heat-wave, Ruidoso Style," which is a cool mountain scene.

The campaign will consist of billboards and newspaper advertisements. The emphasis will be in April, May and June, when tourists are needed in Ruidoso.

Three programs will run concurrently, two which use village funds, and one that is funded totally by private enterprise. In addition to the village's advertisements, the Ruidoso Downs Race Track has pooled $20,000 in cooperative funds for a program with the village. The cooperative ads will run in different Sunday issues of Texas newspapers.

The racetrack and the Inn of the Mountain Gods pooled funds for a joint campaign, separate from the village. The two entities will join forces to provide package deals for early season visitors. Although this program will not use village funds, the ads will have the same format and "Ruidoso Style" logo to provide continuity and recognition of the ads.

You can tell it's almost spring. Not just by the fact that the sun is shining outside (as this column is being written) but also because the Ruidoso High School track and tennis teams are getting ready for their seasons.

The Warrior boys and girls track teams have been practicing for a couple of weeks. The boys and girls tennis teams will begin practice Monday, March 3.

Ruidoso's first tennis match is at New Mexico Military Institute (NMMI) in Roswell Saturday, March 22.

The Warrior track team will open the season Friday and Saturday, March 14-15, at the West Texas Relays in Odessa.

Ruidoso's boys track team will be trying to make up for the loss of defending state 3,000-meter and 1,500-meter champion Cisco Bob, an almost impossible task.

But Gabe Tam should be one of the best distance runners in the state, having qualified for the state 3,000 meters last season.

Ruidoso also should be strong in the field events with javelin thrower Jeff Willingham and pole vaulter Verlon Edwards leading the way. Ruidoso also should be tough in the relays.

The Warrior girls will have a large group returning from last season's young team.

Ruidoso's boys tennis team will be led by Zach Swalander, also an outstanding wrestler. Marnie Warlick should be the girls' top singles player, although the Warriors have some transfers who could help the team.

So it won't be long until the Warrior athletes will leave the gymnasiums for the tracks and the tennis courts.

Ruidoso High School senior and Las Piedras Boxing Team (LPBT) member David Ordorica is scheduled to compete in the New Mexico Amateur Boxing Federation championships at Holloman Air Force Base Saturday, March 1.

Ordorica, who has won two National Junior Olympics bronze medals in the past, will compete in the 106-pound open division.

Ordorica will be joined by LPBT teammate Joey Aguilar.

Aguilar will compete in the 143-pound Junior Olympics division. He is a Ruidoso High School freshman.

If Ordorica wins his competition, he will compete in the regional open division next month in Albuquerque.

If Aguilar wins his division, he will compete in the Junior Olympics regionals in April, probably in Albuquerque.

Ordorica has a long record of outstanding amateur boxing. Here's hoping Aguilar can do the same.

Do We Need The New Airport? YES!

Some are using a two year old, inaccurate news story that lacked both truth and substance while ignoring the record of my total support of the new airport.

My ad of January 23 stated:

The new airport is the result of the long and untiring efforts of the entire community. Without your, and Governor Anaya's constant and unwavering support, nothing could have been accomplished in Washington.

For over eight years I, like many of you, attended meetings, signed petitions and made phone calls with the hope of moving the airport.

After being elected to the Council and prior to the last fatal crash, I twice asked for an airport progress report and, receiving none, contacted N.M.S.U. to find a means of compromise.

My question was "How can Ruidoso get its new airport and N.M.S.U. get comparable land?"

From that contact came an invitation to meet on the Mesa with the Board of Regents and State and Federal Officials to discuss their concerns.

At that time, I was not aware that I had been the only representative of the Village to receive this invitation. It said "ten local officials" had been invited and I assumed that included the entire Council.

After that meeting and many subsequent phone conversations with certain Regents and officials, I went to Las Cruces and obtained an official letter from N.M.S.U. covering their preliminary concerns and delimiting possible conditions under which they could move their grass study, and gave a copy to each Councilor.

Sherman Atwood recognized its importance and Mayor White mentioned it in an interview that was never aired.

In Washington, when the Council had received two "NO's" on the Airport relocation, I introduced the letter, which cleared up the misunderstandings.

After reading it, Senator Domenici asked if Ruidoso had ever had an Environmental Impact Statement? The answer was "no", only Environmental "assessments." The Senator then pointed out that no land could be transferred, at that time, without an Environmental Impact STATEMENT. When informed that the Village had no matching funds, Senator Domenici found them for us, and saved the Village thousands of dollars.

I then asked Senator Domenici to help N.M.S.U. find comparable land and funding to move their research.

Since the Washington meeting and the E.I.S. hearings, legislation has been passed that funded the N.M.S.U. relocation and deeded the land to the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission.

It is true that the letter from N.M.S.U. was obtained by personal negotiation, but as one of your elected officials, I acted on your behalf.

I would like to continue to represent you in upcoming negotiations as your mayor.

Girl hoop players shoot smaller ball

by GARY BROWN
Sports Writer

For years, 7-0 high school boy basketball players and 5-2 girl basketball players have been using basketballs of the same size.

But starting this season, that is not the case anymore.

New Mexico high school girl players as well as girl players all over the country are now using a ball about an inch to an inch and a half smaller than their boy counterparts. The girls' ball is 28 1/2 to 29 inches around while the boys' ball is 30 inches around.

And the girls and coaches like the new ball, for the most part.

"It's an advantage for the girls in that their smaller hands can handle the ball a bit better," said Warrior girls head coach James Sanchez.

Sanchez said that the only problem the new balls present is that boys' balls are more accessible. Girls sometimes have to play with boys' basketballs when they practice on their own, and that could prevent them from getting use to the new basketballs.

But as more of the smaller basketballs are produced, more should be available for girls to practice with.

And the girls find the new balls easier to work with.

"Yes, I like it," said Warrior sophomore Amy Osborne. "It's easier to shoot than the old ones."

"Oh definitely," answered sophomore Stacy Gear. "It's (the new ball) lighter and not as heavy."

"I like it better than the old ones," said junior center Katherine Sanchez. "It's easier to handle and it's lighter."

"That makes it easier to shoot and easier to grab on to."

So there is a new deal in New Mexico high school girls basketball. And it is something the girls are getting to like more and more.

Twins Tammy (left) and Amy Osborne hold the boys and girls basketballs that Ruidoso High School uses. Tammy holds the girls basketball and Amy holds the larger boys basketball.

Hoop tournament set for Mescalero

The second annual Mescalero Pee-Wee Basketball Tournament will be Friday and Saturday, February 28-March 1, in Mescalero. A total of 10 teams will be entered in the tournament. They will come from Mescalero, Ruidoso, Hondo, Tularosa, Alamogordo and possibly Capitan.

The tournament will offer trophies for the first through fourth-place teams and the 10 All-Star players.

Warrior wrestlers actually place second; 10 will compete at state championships

by DARRELL J. PEHR
News Editor

Disappointment was in store for Ruidoso High School wrestlers early this week when they learned they had not taken first place in last week's district tournament as first thought, but instead finished second.

According to wrestling coach Gerald Ames, a 105-pound Cobre wrestler mistakenly was not awarded 10 points due him when he reached the semi-finals of his weight class. Addition of those 10 points to his team's total put Cobre in first place with 122½ points.

Ruidoso moved into second place with 116 points and Silver City was bumped to third place with 113½ points. Seven teams competed in the tournament.

But Ames still is enthusiastic about his team's performance in the district tournament.

"We were winners all the way," he said Wednesday. "It was really great. We have real good wrestlers in Ruidoso."

Ames said the enthusiasm of wrestling fans in the village also was a positive point of last week's tournament. He estimated 1,000 people attended parts of the dayriors will travel to Bloomfield Friday and Saturday, February 28-March 1, to compete in state action.

Ames said a 10th Ruidoso wrestler, 112-pound grappler Scott Yeatman, will be going to the tournament as a result of illness of another team's wrestler.

Other wrestlers who will be competing for state honors in Bloomfield include 101-pounder Jeff Schmidt and 167-pound wrestler

James Herrera, both district winners. Mike Valenzuela at 108 pounds, Zach Swalander at 141 pounds, Jason Hill at 188 pounds, Ruben Herrera at 135 pounds, Phillip Herrera at heavyweight, Kerry Jameson at 148 pounds and Cory Garner at 122 pounds also will compete in Bloomfield.

LENGTH OF RUIDOSO RESIDENCY: 13 years full-time; family has owned a Ruidoso home for 31 years
EDUCATION: New Mexico Military Institute; University of Texas at El Paso (Bachelor of Arts Degree)
EXPERIENCE IN GOVERNMENT/POLITICS: Member of the Ruidoso Village Council (1984-present); attended most Council meetings for past six years, attended most Planning and Zoning Commission meetings for past four years; testified before state agencies and committees to gain funds for Ruidoso; lobbied New Mexico Legislature to gain direct appropriation for new bridges; appointed to New Mexico Municipal League Taxation and Revenue Committee and Resolutions committee; obtained letter from New Mexico State University clearing the way for airport land transfer
CIVIC INVOLVEMENT: Rotary Club
FAMILY: Wife, Carol

Karn promises: "I can do a good job of representing the people of Ruidoso."

William L. Karn, elected two years ago to the Ruidoso Village Council, said he chose to seek the mayor's office because he wants to use his experience in representing the village throughout the state.

"The mayor primarily works to get funds and grants and testifies before committees and boards," said Karn, who added that he has already proved his ability in that area.

Accomplishments Karn listed include obtaining $250,000 in funds after testifying before the Community Development Block Grant board; gaining $583,500 in direct appropriations through the state Legislature during last year's special session and getting the go-ahead on the Sierra Blanca Regional Airport.

Karn said he was responsible for getting the letter from New Mexico State University that finally turned things around on transferring land for the airport.

He said his talents in negotiation can best be used in the office of the mayor—especially in the months to come as the village is faced with designing a plan for the Ruidoso Municipal Airport land.

One issue Karn said particularly concerns him is water, since he served on the Ruidoso water board and became aware of the relationship between an adequate water supply and continued village growth.

"The village was running out of water," remarked Karn. "That is the reason the Eagle Creek well field is so important for the village for years to come," he added.

As a member of the council that initiated and contracted for the Eagle Creek project, Karn contends that the contract on the water find was not an "open-ended" one as some have claimed.

Karn said councilors were well aware of limiting features on the well pump tests, which included the size and capability of the pumps used and the amount of time allowed for the pump test.

"We got a bargain price for that water," stated Karn. He said the village had no need to hire a hydrologist, as some critics have demanded, because the state engineer had a hydrologist.

Even though the current council basically inherited the Grindstone Canyon dam project, Karn said the voters approved the project, and the village officials have the responsibility to finish the project.

Karn recalled that he asked fellow councilors to reactivate the Grindstone Canyon Dam Oversight Committee, and also suggested regular reviews of invoices on the project. He said his idea wasn't supported on the council.

Another recommendation he recalled making that gained little support from the council, was to add a zoning designation for municipal use to be applied to village parks and open areas. He said he is also concerned that a developer might someday build on Cree Meadows Golf Course since that area is zoned R-1 (single-family residential).

The mayoral candidate favors keeping the Ruidoso Municipal Airport land, and said he wants to negotiate with the Federal Aviation Administration to gain the best deal for the town.

"It's time for the council to get a grip on the funds and plans for the new airport," commented Karn, adding that village officials should be planning for 20 years down the road.

Karn also said the village may have to "tighten up" spending and look for ways to save money to avoid raising taxes or cutting village employees.

"Because of some of the things I managed to lobby for and get passed, I think I can use those experiences to help lead the village into the future," said Karn.

'Save Your Vision' will be in March

Dr. Terry T. Mangum, of Dr. Mangum's Eye Care Center announced his schedule for "Save Your Vision Month" in March.

Mangum will give several free eye screenings and discuss proper eye care with various organizations in Ruidoso.

Mangum said he has recently purchased some state-of-the-art diagnostic equipment that may interest the public.

The following schedule details Mangum's plans for "Save Your Vision Month" late this month and in March:

2 p.m. Tuesday, March 4—Ruidoso Care Center screening and treatment for residents only.

9:30 a.m. Wednesday, March 5—Eye and vision screening of Nob Hill Elementary School, morning kindergarten in the Sierra Professional Center.

Noon Wednesday, March 5—Eye care discussion with the Noon Lions Club.

11:15 a.m. Wednesday, March 12—Eye care discussion on KJZZ Radio Studio table.

1 p.m. Wednesday, March 12—Eye and vision screening of Nob Hill afternoon kindergarten in the Sierra Professional Center.

Noon Wednesday, March 19—Vision screening at Adult Recreation Center for members of the Golden Age Club.

Mayor George White poses as picture of his retina taken by a camera that is part of a new diagnostic method being employed at Dr. T.T. Mangum's Eye Care Center in the Sierra Professional Center.

Handicapped skier events set

The Ski Area Handicapped Skiers Association is sponsoring an instructional Skiing course for handicapped skiers at Nob Hill, Thursday, March 6, at Ski Area, according to Frank Sawyer, of the group. Sponsors are provided right after the race, at about 10 a.m., he said.

A general party and activities will be held on Wednesday, March 5, in the Wendell (Clem) Room at the Inn at the Mountain Club. Skiers, fans of skiers and new skiers will be featured at that party, Sawyer said.

"We have some really nice prizes," he added.

"The Handicapped Skiers Association is totally funded by private donations," said Sawyer. The program, directed by Clara Peterson, serves 40 or more skiers at Ski Area each year.

Sawyer said the skiers who participate in the program, using the special equipment and training provided with contributions, would otherwise be unable to ski.

Although the Special Olympics is a totally separate organization, receiving funds from various other sources, Sawyer said Special Olympics skiers often receive training through the Handicapped Skiers Association.

For more information on the program, contact Peterson at 336-2478.

Four campaign for top post in Ruidoso

Lloyd Davis Jr.

AGE: 54
BUSINESS: General manager, Ruidoso Jockey Club
LENGTH OF RUIDOSO RESIDENCY: 47 years
EDUCATION: New Mexico Military Institute (graduated from senior college in 1955), attended Texas Tech University & University of Texas School of Law
EXPERIENCE IN GOVERNMENT/POLITICS: Ruidoso Mayor (one two-year and two four-year terms), Ruidoso trustee (1960-64), served as director of New Mexico Municipal League
CIVIC INVOLVEMENTS: Rotary Club (1960-68)
FAMILY: Wife, L.B. (Lottie-Beth) Hedgcoxe Davis

Davis promises: "I will come nearer than any other candidate to making the village work the way people say it should be run."

Lloyd L. Davis Jr., a former mayor and village trustee, said he entered the mayoral race because of his concern for the directions the incumbent candidates have taken. With his close ties to the racetrack and the ski area (where his wife works), Davis said he can work for the village in a way that some other mayoral hopefuls can't.

LLOYD DAVIS JR.

"I just can't believe that we have a destiny beyond just getting people to Ruidoso, and opined that the Sierra Blanca Regional Airport is vital to the town's future because it will do just that.

Two things that will start doing to enhance the village economy, according to Davis, are to start offering amenities found in other resort areas, and begin to look farther afield for tourist markets.

"That makes the airport doubly important," he added.

Since "you either move forward or backward," Davis said Ruidoso must use the natural resources available, such as the area's natural beauty, to attract tourists and maintain a growth factor.

Davis, who said he has no plans to "go in and reorganize" village departments, also said he has no "axes to grind" with any village administrators or employees.

"I would like to see a great deal of reorganization, but I would like to see it with the employees that exist," remarked Davis.

He did call for more cooperation between the village council and the Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission, adding that those two bodies should "have a meeting of the minds" and decide together on the direction to follow and establish reasonable policies to lead the village in that direction.

"There's no point in having ordinances that are impractical to enforce," he noted.

The mayoral candidate said he was sometimes misunderstood and even criticized during past service because of his sense of humor. He said "flip-pant" remarks that he made jokingly during council meetings were taken seriously by a few people.

Although many have questioned some decisions of the current council regarding water projects, Davis said after sitting on previous councils he finds it difficult to be very critical of the handling of those complex problems.

In spite of questions, Davis said both the Grindstone Canyon dam and the Eagle Creek well field projects are well on their way.

Even if keeping the Ruidoso Municipal Airport land may not be affordable, Davis said he would oppose selling it as a block to any developer. He said he hopes the village can design some plans for the land and keep at least part of it.

Davis said the village, with positive leadership from the council, should be able to maintain the current level of services even with revenue declines.

As mayor, Davis said he'll challenge the citizens and councillors to pull together.

"We have to, as a community, project friendliness and let tourists know that we're glad they're here," said Davis.

Rick Evans

NAME: Rick Evans
AGE: 38
BUSINESS: President and broker of Century 21 Aspen Real Estate, Inc.
LENGTH OF RUIDOSO RESIDENCY: 15 years
EDUCATION: Texas Tech University (B.B.A. in Financial Administration and Accounting)
EXPERIENCE IN GOVERNMENT/POLITICS: Incumbent Village Councillor (1984-present)
FAMILY: Wife, Ann; children Amy and Eric

Evans promises: "Informed aggressive leadership to help Ruidosans work together to solve the problems facing our community."

Rick Evans, a member of the Ruidoso Village Council, said he chose to run for mayor rather than for another term as councillor because he feels he can be more effective in using his leadership skills as the mayor.

RICK EVANS

Evans said one of his strengths lies in "working within the system and with other people to accomplish goals that are good for everybody." He described the balance of powers within village government, explaining that the council and mayor must share both credit for positive accomplishments and blame for any mistakes.

He cited the Sierra Blanca Regional Airport as an example of a community and elected officials working together for the common good.

"The community caused the airport to happen—no one individual should even attempt to take credit for that accomplishment," noted Evans, recalling the many individuals who have written letters, made telephone calls and been involved in one way or another for the past 20 years.

"I see Ruidoso at a turning point," remarked Evans, naming economic development as the number one priority facing the next governing body.

He lined out a three-step process he advocates for dealing with that issue.

First, Evans said the village should continue to lay the foundation on which to grow—including completing the many projects already in progress, and doing it on-schedule and within budget.

Second, Evans said the village must continue to work with the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission to complete the new airport on schedule.

Evans' third step is to work hard to retain the Ruidoso Municipal Airport and attempt to attract soft industry to locate on that land, the only level land with infrastructure within village limits.

Keeping that land, explained Evans, is an important element of his plan to diversify the local economy and lessen the town's dependence on horse racing and skiing.

"We should seek to locate a privately funded institution of higher education as well as an events center on that land," said Evans. "We're going to have to make it happen," he added.

Evans is proud of the things the present village council has accomplished to solve Ruidoso's water problems.

"History is going to show that the Eagle Creek project was one of the existing body's best accomplishments," said Evans, comparing the $200 per acre-foot paid for those water rights to the thousands spent in years past.

Evans proposes studying expansion of the village tax base by annexing surrounding areas, and said if done properly the village might even lower taxes overall in Ruidoso by such a move.

"Raising taxes can be counterproductive to economic growth and development," noted Evans. He said leaders should work on the revenue side so Ruidoso won't have to raise taxes or cut services.

"I want to serve all the people," said Evans. "We have to make some things happen," he added, calling for total community involvement in leading the village into the future.

J.D. James

NAME: J.D. James
BUSINESS: Retired
EDUCATION: Sun Institute
EXPERIENCE IN GOVERNMENT/POLITICS: Alternate Municipal Judge (resigned to become a candidate for mayor)
CIVIC INVOLVEMENTS: Member VFW & DAV

James promises: "To operate the Village of Ruidoso like a business."

J.D. James, a candidate for village mayor, believes the office of mayor can have a major impact on the village if the mayor will let his feelings be known.

"The mayor should speak up," said James, adding that the lack of a vote on the village council won't keep the mayor from influencing the direction of the town.

James said his 37 years of experience with Sun

Pipeline, 34 years of that as manager of administrative services, have prepared him well to lead the village.

If successful in his bid, James said he has no plans to "clean house," but he said he'll sit down and talk with village administrators rather than listen to rumors about what's happening at village hall.

J.D. JAMES

James, who has been vocal in questioning the current village council and administration on the Eagle Creek well field project, said he has never questioned the village's need for water rights, just the manner in which the Eagle Creek project was administered.

Although James stressed that he isn't accusing councillors of "trying to hoodwink the people," he has called for shutting off the Eagle Creek project until a settlement is reached in a water rights lawsuit between Texas and New Mexico.

He also has asked the village to hire a groundwater hydrologist to confirm the water find.

"If we confirm, fine—if not we should get a refund from Atkins-Landfair (water engineers)," said James.

The mayoral hopeful also has questions on the Grindstone Canyon dam project and the Upper Canyon diversion pipe. He wants to know why engineers misfigured the pipeline, "the easiest part," by 90 percent, causing a huge cost overrun.

"By the way, I don't have any water rights," noted James.

Another issue concerning James is declining village revenues, and if he's elected, he says he'll form an independent board, with no political ties, to work to secure small industry to the area. James said the industries they'll seek must not have an adverse impact on Ruidoso's environment, air or water.

James, calling for a reduction in wastefulness in village government, said he's found instances of costly duplication of services within the city, such as maintaining two automotive garages.

Periodic audits, inventory control, a vendor report and a monthly budget comparison report are a few things James said he thinks a mayor and village council should see.

Cost also will be a consideration on whether or not the village keeps the Ruidoso Municipal Airport land, said James, who added he would like to keep all or a portion of that land if it is affordable.

"I think the voters should vote for me due to my expertise in the different fields that it takes to operate a village like Ruidoso," said James.

Present and past councillors square off for two-year seat

Victor Alonso

NAME: Victor M. Alonso
AGE: 39
BUSINESS: Co-owner with wife, Virginia, of Don Victor's Mexican Food Restaurant
LENGTH OF RUIDOSO RESIDENCY: 10 years
EDUCATION: University of Texas at El Paso (B.S. Degree in Metallurgical Engineering)
EXPERIENCE IN GOVERNMENT/POLITICS: Member Ruidoso Village Council (1985-present)
CIVIC INVOLVEMENTS: Chamber of Commerce, Little League Baseball sponsor, member and lay minister at St. Eleanor's Catholic Church
FAMILY: Wife, Virginia; son, Victor David, 13; daughter, Angela Mari, 10

Alonso promises: "There's a viewpoint not being expressed—the little guy—I know I can express that viewpoint."

"There are some very important future issues," said Victor Alonso recently.

An appointee to the current Ruidoso Village Council, Alonso said he is running for a council seat because he found that his viewpoint represents some otherwise unrepresented citizens—"the guy who doesn't realize he has political power, the disenfranchised."

Alonso said he is particularly concerned with "people's issues, such as village hiring policies."

"I see some problems in the way the city is administered," remarked Alonso. He said the council on which he serves has tried to change some things.

"But in government things don't happen now," he noted.

"I've been on the dissenting side on some water issues," said Alonso. He added that the Eagle Creek well field project "needed to be done and I'm glad we did it."

He said he had some concerns about that contract, as well as about overruns on the Grindstone Canyon dam project. Alonso said councillors are doing everything possible to see that the community has a continuing water supply.

With the new airport as a number one priority, Alonso said he has mixed feelings on the disposition of the old airport land.

"It's got to be affordable," said Alonso, who compared keeping that land with building a new home and retaining the old one, too. Sometimes that just isn't feasible.

The candidate, who said he likes the idea of a college on the airport land, said various possibilities must be explored before a final decision is made.

VICTOR ALONSO

Alonso advocates studying the possibilities for the Ruidoso Municipal Airport land, but cautions against jeopardizing progress toward a new regional airport.

"This is something for the future," he remarked.

As a businessman, Alonso said he recognizes the seriousness of the current economic situation in Ruidoso.

"I live it everyday," he said.

Rather than dwell on economic woes, Alonso said the community must look to the future and concentrate on growing and generating more revenues. With declines in municipal income, Alonso said village leaders must take an aggressive approach and look for ways to "invest in the future."

Alonso said during his first elected term on the council he'll work to improve the village's relationship with the Mescalero Apache Tribe. He said he'll suggest a meeting between village and tribal officials to "sit down and talk ... find the common ground ... how we can work together."

J.A. 'Al' Junge

NAME: J.A. "Al" Junge
BUSINESS: Retired
LENGTH OF RUIDOSO RESIDENCY: 10 years
EDUCATION: College (one year)
EXPERIENCE IN GOVERNMENT/POLITICS: Ruidoso Village Council (1982-84); Treasurer Lincoln County Republican Party; Treasurer, Upper Canyon Association
CIVIC INVOLVEMENTS: Chamber of Commerce, Rotary Club

Junge promises: "I can work well with the other councillors and I will be a good influence on new councillors."

J.A. "Al" Junge talked of accomplishments of his previous term on the Ruidoso Village Council, and said he's ready to put his experience back to work for the village.

Junge, who moved to Ruidoso in 1976 because he wanted to live in a small town, said he has seen Ruidoso move forward and change during his years here.

"The size of the town is getting in the way of its growth," said Junge, who said Ruidoso will continue to grow and boundaries will eventually be extended.

Water, an issue that is closely related to the community's continued growth, has been a matter for disagreement, said Junge, who discussed differences of opinion as to whether the Eagle Creek wells will benefit Ruidoso.

In spite of questions on the contract accepted by the current village council, Junge said any council would have made the decision to drill the wells. He said the contract would have been addressed differently by the council on which he served until 1984.

"I think they'd have given it some thought—they wouldn't have been tied into a contract that would cost a million dollars in addition to hourly fees," said Junge.

Junge recalled that he was in on the other major village water project, Grindstone Canyon dam, from the beginning. He is concerned that the $8 million voters approved for the dam be spent only on the dam—not on any other water projects.

He said controls of Grindstone Canyon dam money spent have been almost non-existent and the council doesn't receive reports on the expenditures.

"The new council suddenly awakened to the fact that additional funds would be needed to complete the project," said Junge, who recalled telling the group that the dam will eventually cost $12 million.

Junge said responsibility for figures that do not fit the project should be the responsibility of the engineers.

The would-be councillor said he would like to keep the Ruidoso Municipal Airport land, but warned that the final cost may be too high. Junge said any future use must be compared to the costs.

Watching costs is something that Junge advocates throughout village government. He explained that as a councillor he was constantly on the lookout for ways to save the village money.

The trash compactor that he studied, proposed and persuaded the village to buy will save the town money, said Junge, who wonders why it isn't operational after all this time.

Another of Junge's cost-saving suggestions was a time clock that was installed in village hall. He said recently that employees are no longer using the clock, even though it was shown when it was purchased that it would save time and money.

"I've always been a person that thought you can do a better job with what you have," said Junge. "You can always do things cheaper, quicker and better," he added.

Junge said he wants to "be sure we're getting our money's worth in village departments." He said he wouldn't favor cutting back on services.

"I've proven over the past several years that I am aggressive, interested in the village, conservative and honest," said Junge, who wants voters to study his past record of accomplishments.

Capitan mayoral race features two present trustees

The Capitan mayoral race will feature two trustees of the Capitan Water Association, Kelly Beavers and Benny Coker. Both candidates have served on the village board of trustees. Beavers served 1982 and Coker served 1983. The following is a summary of their views.

Kelly Beavers

KELLY BEAVERS

Beavers said he will, if elected, continue the work of the U.S. Air Force. He served in both Korea and Vietnam throughout his service career and served as a personal administrator and supervisor. He also had several military assignments in personal assignments.

"I want to see all the people united in an effort to make this village a safe, healthy and progressive place to live," Beavers said, on his first priority.

"I also want the primary source of water from Eagle Creek and Devils Lake to be clean and the second source, the well, brought in line," Beavers added.

He also said he would like to continue to build the village of the state cooperative program that provides 90 percent of the funding. He said the program has problems on improving school bus routes with 100 percent funding from the state.

"I want to see the housing program every grant we can get, at every chance we get," Beavers said.

Beavers said he felt the community growth has been restricted for a long time. He said he wants some type of economic program. He proposed working with the private sector to bring a growth program that would give the village something to do.

Beavers said his position on the water situation is that the village has failed on the Eagle Creek. Devils Lake source since 1977 and the situation will continue "a long time in the future."

He agreed that since the water is unable to drink at times during the year because of the high concentration of nitrate and manganese, which causes the bacteria-causing chlorine, he thinks it is better to have water safe to drink with a new filter.

"I want every man, woman and child to have safe drinking water before we gamble on a well," he said.

His second water priority is the well. Beavers said he feels it is a "personal thing" for people to go to the well and see for what they are getting.

He expressed concern that many people in the village, which has served the 5000 residents of people with a low to moderate income, will find higher taxes a hardship.

"I think we should try anything, such as grants, before we do anything that creates hardship," he said.

"Government ought to consider all the people," Beavers said.

On other issues than water, Beavers said the village could help to plan for a sewer treatment plant, and not "wait till the last minute."

As far as taxes are concerned, he said he would like to "hear with the village."

Beavers especially wants to see a village meeting room constructed by "managing the capital outlay fund" in the village budget.

Beavers wants the Eagle Creek Water Users Association to develop and expand to their water users and all the communities in the area, not just Capitan and Stanton.

"Make it a water-minded place," he said.

He advocates the construction an expansion of more land into Capitan with all the vacant lots in the village have water lines.

And other the village has more water, Beavers said he wants to "make sure we never fall behind to find ourselves where we are today. We should realize that otherwise supply water rights and make any improvements to their improvements."

Beavers said he supports the planning and building departments which have the "discretion" to approve for water users lines. He says about 1000 water users.

Regarding Beavers' view on the well, he said:

"I don't see anything to see so many people are worried now," he said. "I don't see anything to see so many people are worried now."

"I don't see anything to see so many people are worried now," he said. "I don't see anything to see so many people are worried now."

Benny Coker

BENNY COKER

Benny Coker is an 18-year resident who operates a retail liquor business in Capitan. For 30 years prior to coming to Capitan, Coker worked for the Shell Oil Company as a fiscal treasurer.

"I will see, as mayor, that each business—about water, police and town hall—will have a budget and keep within the budget on a basis of the trustees' budget," Coker said. He said he plans to work within his ability and capabilities for village government.

Coker has water as the "main thing" but is "battered" by the lack of communication, especially between the village and the school. He said he feels the school is the largest employer and the "back of the community."

Coker said he wants to have open communication to know the school's needs.

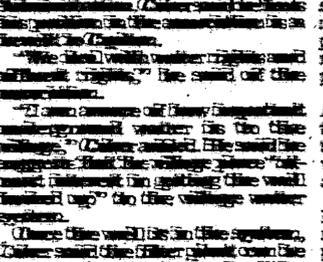

On the water issue, Coker said he is the most qualified person in the village. He said he has worked closely with the water board and the water users' association.

Coker said he would like to see a well that would be clean and safe to drink. He said he would like to see a well that would be clean and safe to drink.

Beck said he has worked for the U.S. Air Force for 10 years. He was a sergeant in the 92nd Air Support Helicopter Squadron.

Space Hall of Fame honors astronauts

A memorial garden commemorating the seven astronauts who died in the explosion of the space shuttle Challenger will be erected on the grounds of the International Space Hall of Fame (ISHF) in Alamogordo.

The New Mexico State Legislature passed a bill providing $3,500 in severance tax bonds for the monument on February 3, coinciding with a Memorial Service held in Santa Fe for the astronauts who died January 28.

Representing the Space Center at the Memorial Service was Gregory P. Kennedy, executive director of the Alamogordo institution. Kennedy outlined his plans for a circular meditative garden, encircled with seven trees to commemorate each of the astronauts.

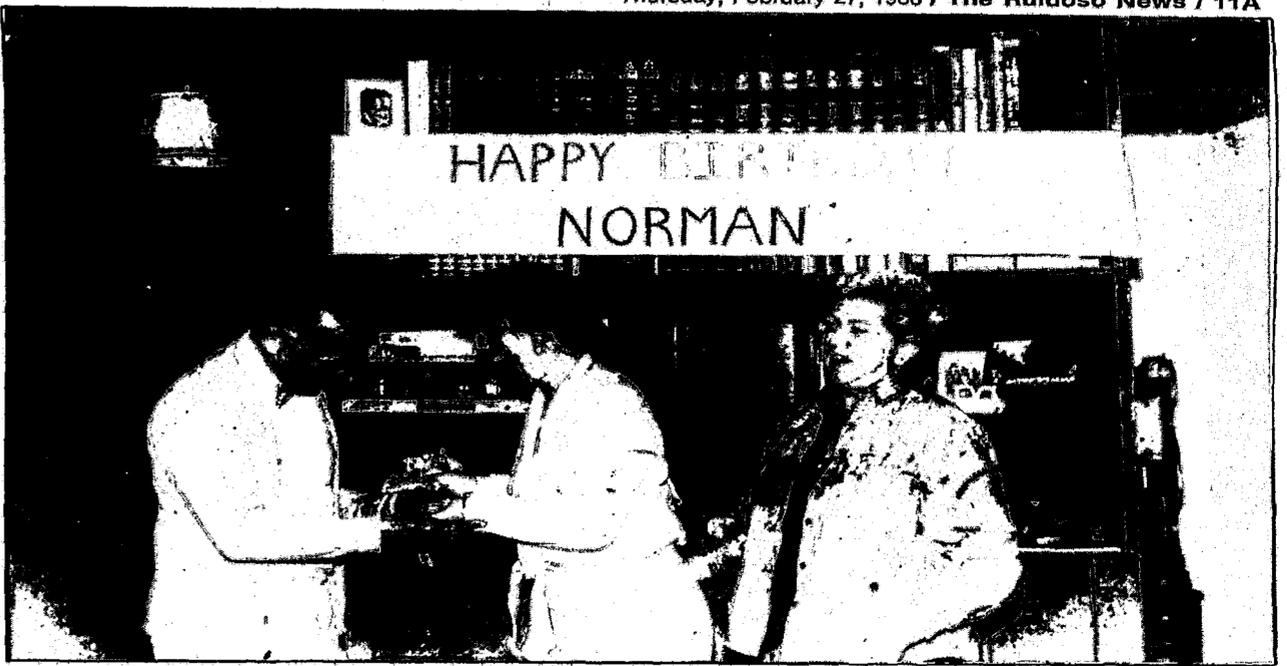

In his address, he cited the purpose of the ISHF, stating that it chronicles "both the triumphs and tragedies of mankind's quest for space, for such is the nature of any pioneering endeavor."

Governor Toney Anaya was present at the Memorial Service, and Bob Barberousse, a member of the ISHF Governor's Commission, served as Master of Ceremonies. Members of the Santa Fe High School ROTC served as Color Guard, and the Sign of the Rainbow Choir of the New Mexico School for the Deaf presented the Lord's Prayer.

Also present for the service were Laura Reeves, Stan Renfro and Jennifer Dotson, the three New Mexico teachers who were finalists in the NASA selection of the first teacher in space.

Kennedy noted that the memorial garden would tentatively be placed near the entrance of the Space Hall across from the flagpoles. He said plans for the garden would begin as soon as possible.

Electricity is expensive and it's costing more all the time. To generate electricity in most areas, monstrous quantities of fossil fuels burn, and almost 87% of the heat energy is lost forever. For big energy jobs like hot water, heat and cooking, use cost-efficient propane gas.

Bord of Hope

Number five, Bord of Hope, edges out Crusin' Prince (number two) to win the $17,350 Coronado Handicap Sunday afternoon at The Downs in Albuquerque.

Jockey J.P. Maxwell was aboard the 31-1 longshot for the win which netted bettors $1,352.40 on a $2 ticket, a new exacta payoff record at The Downs.

Misty Mama is surprise winner in feature

Misty Mama, the longest shot on the board in the field of six, posted a stunning victory in the featured fifth race Friday afternoon at the Downs in Albuquerque.

With jockey Rick Theford in the irons, Misty Mama was sent to the post at odds of 23-1. The five-year-old mare stalled Fast N' Furious for the first half of the five and one-half furlong race, then took the lead at the top of the line. Hope's Kin backed up with Misty Mama at the eighth pole but could never manage to gain the lead as Misty Mama held on for the neck victory.

The $5 favorite, Stick Hacks, finished third, well behind the top two. At the head of the stretch it appeared that Stick Hacks would blow by the leaders, but when jockey Steve Hesteria asked her to run in the lane she did not respond with any kick.

Trained by Barbara Theford, Misty Mama covered the five and one-half furlongs in 1:47 and returned $17.00, $3.00, and $3.20. Ripa's Kin paid $5.00 and $3.00 while Stick Hacks returned $2.00 for the show. The $2.00 exacta 6-4 was worth $331.20.

Entertainment

Longshot Bord of Hope victorious

Long shots prevailed in the $17,350 Coronado Handicap Sunday afternoon as the 31-1 outsider, Bord of Hope, edged out another longshot, Crusin' Prince, to earn the victory before the largest crowd at the 1986 Downs at Albuquerque meet.

Sunday's record crowd of 5,941 also saw another milestone as the $2.00 exacta combining the first two horses in the Coronado Handicap returned $1,352.40, easily surpassing the old exacta payoff record of $1,155.00 set January 28.

Hidden by jockey J.P. Maxwell, Bord of Hope was just off the pace set by Crusin' Prince in the seven furlong Coronado. At the top of the stretch Bord of Hope and Crusin' Prince hooked up and fought it out the entire length of the stretch. Bord of Hope prevailed by a nose over Crusin' Prince with Accipitrine another two and a quarter lengths back in third. Blue Seas finished fourth with Turbulant World fifth.

The favorites did not fare well in the Coronado. The favorite, Glover D., finished ninth with second choice, Trippy, last in the field of 12.

Trained by Bob Cappellucci, Bord of Hope is used to finding the winner's circle. The five-year-old had won six straight before Hall Eagle handed him a defeat on February 2.

Those wins were all accomplished while facing claimers. In his only test against allowance level runners he was soundly beaten by Hall Eagle.

Owned by Dennis Davis of Borger, Texas, Bord of Hope has improved dramatically from last year's New Mexico State Fair where his win streak began while facing $6,250 claimers.

Davis picked up a check for $10,410 for Bord of Hope's victory.

Bord of Hope covered the seven furlongs 1:24.3 and paid $65.40, $24.40, and $10.20. Crusin' Prince returned $24.20 and $12.40 while Accipitrine paid $5.80 for the show.

Tim's Tune scores easy win at Albuquerque

Tim's Tune, under leading rider O.A. Martinez, drew away from the field in the stretch to score an easy six-length win before a meet high Saturday afternoon crowd at The Downs at Albuquerque.

A Saturday high of 5,227 fans witnessed the easy win by Tim's Tune in the feature race.

Tim's Tune battled head and head with Sailing Master for the first six furlongs in the mile test. Martine then moved the Joe Dodge-trained colt to a clear lead at the head of the stretch and was never challenged while earning the easy win.

The $5 favorite, Handibank, closed for the place spot while Holly Locks finished third in the field of seven.

Tim's Tune has shown his fondness for the mile course in Albuquerque as he won a pair of races at that distance at the State Fair.

For the win, Tim's Tune paid $3.00, $1.00, $3.00 while covering the mile in 1:39.4. Handibank returned $3.00 and $3.20 while Holly Locks paid $4.80 for the show. The $2.00 exacta 2-3 was worth $30.20.

Vallejo takes Dust To Riches over the wire at Sunland

Dust To Riches fought off a late charge by Rawcut in the final 100 yards to take a three-quarter-length win in the featured allowance race on Sunday at Sunland Park Race Track.

Dust To Riches, under jockey Arturo Vallejo, left the gate as the second wagering favorite and steadily gained ground on the favored Candy Store in the first quarter mile of the 5 1/2-furlong race.

He moved into the lead coming out of the turn and led by as much as 1 1/2 lengths before the late charge by Rawcut. Candy Store finished third 3/4 lengths back.

Dust To Riches is trained by Jose

Jairne Fuentes for owner Francisco Gonzalez of El Paso, Texas, who collected a winner's purse of $1,680. The gelding returned mutuels of $5.00, $3.00 and $2.60.

Rawcut was ridden by Mark Hadley for trainer Jess Alley and is owned by Alan Antweil of Hobbs, and paid $3.60 and $2.60. Candy Store, ridden by Salustio Burgos for trainer Fred Darley, is owned by Robert Haynsworth and Edwin Mayer Jr. of San Angelo, Texas. He paid $2.60 to show.

There was one winning ticket in Sunday's Pic-Six wagering and it returned $2,523.20.

Downs judge seat is sought by four candidates

Martin Valenzuela

"I've shown people that law enforcement is not something to be afraid of. I hear both sides of each case," said Martin Valenzuela, incumbent candidate for municipal judge in Ruidoso Downs. Valenzuela has been the municipal judge since November 1984, when he was appointed to replace a judge who resigned. Currently a driver with Stoney's Gas, Valenzuela was a police officer for five years in Texas. He spent two years in uniformed service and three years on a narcotics squad. "I've seen the worst in people," said Valenzuela about some of the police cases he worked.

MARTIN VALENZUELA

In court, Valenzuela said he "gives people a chance to correct their wrongs." He said he often sentences first-offense DWI (driving while intoxicated) cases to DWI school and counseling at Professional Counseling Associates in Ruidoso. He said that counseling usually is better than a $300 fine and nine days in jail.

Valenzuela is in favor of public service as alternative sentencing. He said he has seen it work successfully with some of Municipal Judge John Cupp's cases in Ruidoso.

From his experience as municipal judge in the Downs for the past year, Valenzuela said the biggest problems in the Downs are domestic violence, drunk driving and speeding. He said that most spouses involved in domestic violence cases usually drop the charges by the time of the trial, but that he suggests the family seek counseling.

In a discussion of juvenile crime, the judge emphasized that 18-year-olds are adults under the law. "They think they can get away with everything, but they are adults," he said.

Valenzuela praised the Ruidoso Downs Police Department for its high caliber of professional officers. He said he has made the Downs his home and plans to stay there.

Valenzuela is bilingual, a skill he said has been very helpful in his work as judge in the Downs. He also is available on 24-hour call, and can be reached for emergencies, he said.

"With my background in law enforcement and experience, I'm the best man qualified. My record speaks for itself in the Downs," said Valenzuela. In the future, he would like to be a magistrate judge, he said.

Valenzuela has an associate degree in law enforcement from South Plains College in Levelland, Texas, and three years of study at the University of Texas, Permian Basin.

He is a member of Sertoma Club and First Baptist Church. He and his wife, Karen, have a 13-year-old daughter, Sky Bennett.

Harrold Mansell

"If you commit a crime, you've got to pay," said Harrold Ray Mansell, candidate for municipal judge in Ruidoso Downs.

A contractor and accountant, Mansell said he reads numerous government publications. He opined that the ability to read such documents is necessary for a judge.

"I have the ability to make a decision and to read the law as written. I also have the ability to get along with people," Mansell said. Mansell was a police officer in Duncan, Oklahoma, for two years and also served as a court clerk. He said he felt his college degree and ability to work with people are other qualifications for the job.

Mansell said he considers himself "progressive and on the conservative side." He said he would listen to each case objectively and spend ample time hearing each case. He said he felt he would be "more open-minded" than the present municipal judge.

The judicial candidate said he favors a community service program in which people who are unable to pay their fines could work a certain amount of volunteer hours. Mansell said that approximately $3,500 is outstanding in past due fines owed the Downs. He opined that municipal service could be an ideal way to collect the debts.

HARROLD MANSELL

Mansell served six years as a trustee in the Downs, two of which he was the mayor pro-tem. He said he helped write numerous ordinances in the Downs and has spent time explaining them to people who ask.

As judge, Mansell said he would "listen to the people and help as much as is legal." He said he would have an "open door policy" and would be willing to talk to anyone. He said he is available 99 percent of the time—either at home or work in Alto Village—to issue warrants and act on emergency situations.

Mansell said he would give collected fine money to the village clerk weekly and work within his budget.

Mansell is a member of the Ruidoso Masonic Lodge. He and his wife, Camille, have lived in Ruidoso Downs for 12 years. He has two daughters in Oklahoma—Stephanie and Jennifer.

Larry Norman

"Every village needs a municipal judge to maintain law and order," said Lawrence Guthrie Norman, candidate for municipal judge in Ruidoso Downs.

Norman said he cares about people and would do his "utmost to create a good image as municipal judge."

An 11-year resident of Ruidoso Downs, Norman was the former proprietor of Norman's Pizza (now D-7 Restaurant). He has been a security guard at Ruidoso Downs Race Track and currently works with the U.S. Forest Service.

Norman also has worked as a dispatcher for the Ruidoso Downs Police Department, and said he feels familiar with the town and its police force, which he praised.

"Until I worked as a dispatcher, I didn't realize the crime and characters who come into the Downs as a place of refuge," said Norman.

LARRY NORMAN

Norman said he would handle each case to the fullest possible extent, but would be flexible in fining hardship situations. Norman gave a hypothetical example of loose dog citation issued to a widowed woman with three children and very little money. Norman opined that it would be "unwise to impose a fine" in such a hardship case.

"I have a tendency to say 'don't do it again.' I try to be fair," he said.

A native of Venice, California, Norman came to Ruidoso Downs in 1969. He was president of the Downs planning and zoning commission in the middle 1970s.

Norman is a member of the Masonic Lodge, Order of Eastern Star, Rainbow Girls (as a "Rainbow Dad") and the Shriners. He has served as Shriner president in Ruidoso.

Norman and his wife, Rose, have two daughters—Cathy and Laurie—who are married and employed as school teachers.

George Moncrief

Municipal judge candidate George Moncrief is seeking the office "primarily to see that the laws in Ruidoso Downs are enforced equally to all."

Moncrief said he has seen occasions in which laws in the Downs were not enforced equally, and feels that consistency is an important issue to local law enforcement. Moncrief said he felt government is primarily for law and order, which he said holds society together.

"Without law enforcement and protection, we'd still be out in the wilderness," he said.

Moncrief said laws should be enforced and youth needs to respect the law.

"I see where some adolescents in the community are violating petty issues (such as with motor-cycles). They have no respect for the law," he said. "We must get our youths to where they respect the law, then we'd have a much nicer community," he said.

The judicial candidate emphasized that "laws are the same for everybody." However, he felt that "you can punish different people in different ways and still be just."

Moncrief said he is in favor of public service-type sentences as alternatives to fines, as long as someone is on the scene to supervise the work.

One goal for his term, he said, is to gain the respect of the community for the office of judge. "I have good common sense of justice and fair play. The verdicts will be just," he said.

On the issue of driving while intoxicated (DWI), Moncrief said he will pursue the full force of the law—whatever is possible through the municipal courts. He noted that New Mexico has the highest per capita DWI rate in the nation.

A Downs resident for two and a half years, Moncrief and his wife, Sandra, own Country Essence, a furniture shop. Moncrief makes some of the items at the store. The Moncriefs have seven children.

Moncrief said he is available 24 hours daily for needs of the court.

"I have become a part of the community of Ruidoso Downs. I want to serve it in whatever humble way I may," he said.

A native of East Tennessee, Moncrief said he was involved with local city politics there. He also was a member of the Jaycees, Rotary and Optimist clubs.

Present trustees vie for top spot in Ruidoso Downs

Jackie Branum

"I have a lot of energy to expend. I could come up with innovative ideas to get things accomplished," said Jackie Branum, candidate for mayor of Ruidoso Downs.

Currently a member of the village board of trustees, Branum said she wants to become mayor to see that projects that have been started—such as work on sewer lines, street paving and street lights—are completed.

A six-year resident of the Downs, Branum has served two years as a trustee and two years as a member of the planning and zoning committee. In her job as trustee, she serves as the sanitation commissioner.

As the sanitation commissioner, Branum devised the poly-cart system that is now in use in the Downs. She also located used dumpsters that the village purchased at "a fraction of the cost" of new ones, she said.

"People were always complaining about garbage—dogs, spillage, etc.," said Branum, about the situation when she took office two years ago. "I looked at other places with poly-carts and they didn't seem to have trash around them," said Branum.

Branum said the village needs more grant funds for improvement projects—grants which must be lobbied for at the state level in Santa Fe. Branum said she would take the time to represent Ruidoso Downs in Santa Fe. She noted the possibility of future appropriation bills and grants for paving roads and upgrading the water and sewer systems.

"I'll do my best to go out and try to get the funds the village needs to keep growing," said Branum.

JACKIE BRANUM

The mayoral candidate said she would like to see a grant made available for a master plan and a design for a new village complex. She also said she would take time to find sources of smaller grants for such projects as acquiring a mini-van for senior citizens.

Branum said that sewer lines should be extended and taps installed (where needed) before the streets are paved. Development of water sources also is important to her.

"I think that water is the biggest problem in the Southwest," opined Branum. "We can't say 'it will take care of itself.'"

Branum supports growth in the village, with preparation, control and planning. She said the village needs to be farsighted as not to be caught unprepared.

Branum represents the Downs as a voting delegate on the New Mexico Municipal League. In the past two years she attended all the meetings and conferences, she said.

A science teacher at Ruidoso Middle School, Branum coordinates the annual math and science competitions at all Ruidoso schools. She also keeps statistics for basketball games.

Before coming to Ruidoso, Branum worked in Albuquerque with state and federal agencies that were involved in coordinating an Indo-Chinese refugee program. She has a master's degree from the University of New Mexico and a bachelor's from the University of Texas at El Paso.

"I have the energy, ambition and know-how to follow through," said Branum of her desire to be mayor of Ruidoso Downs.

Branum has four daughters.

Jake Harris

"I think I can do things for Ruidoso Downs that no one else has done," said mayoral candidate Jake Harris.

A resident of Ruidoso Downs since 1940, Harris has been involved with village government since the Downs was incorporated in 1947. He said the reason the Downs needed to incorporate was to sell bonds for a water system. Harris helped with each water system installed in the Downs, he said.

A charter member of the Ruidoso Downs Volunteer Fire Department, Harris served many years on the squad and as fire chief for six years. Harris also was involved in incorporating the racetrack and surrounding area into the village.

Harris served three terms as trustee and one as mayor. He said he is directly responsible for the current sewer system. When he campaigned for mayor

JAKE HARRIS

(in the early 1970s), he campaigned for a sewer system, which began under his term, he said.

As a trustee, Harris currently serves as the commissioner of water and sewer. He said he pushed for the new water well that has been in use for about a year.

"Water has always been and always will be (the most important issue facing the Downs)," said Harris.

He opined that the Downs is not receiving its share of water from Hale Spring. Harris said a new accumulator system is needed, and considers it a priority of his term, if he is elected. He estimated the Downs loses 25 to 40 gallons of water per minute due to faults in the current system.

Other goals for Harris are extending the sewer lines and paving the streets. He said the Downs has accumulated enough money to begin some projects. He supports making improvements as needed, without raising taxes unless the people ask for it.

Harris said he would be conservative in seeking grant money.

"You can grant yourself out of business," he said, explaining that some grants require matching funds from the village.

"We'll go for what we can afford and use. There's a limit as to what is reasonable," he said.

The mayoral candidate said he is concerned that all businesses are paying the proper amounts of gross receipts taxes. He said he would like to have a check to make sure all merchants are paying their share.

Harris said that the village needs a beautification and clean-up campaign. He also wants to see the building project of a new municipal complex begin as soon as possible.

The long-time resident predicted that the Downs would expand eastward in the years to come and probably extend down to Fox Cave within 20 years. Harris said he'd welcome new businesses or anything else that would raise the tax base in the Downs. He also would like to see a junior college in the area.

"I know I'll bring a friendly atmosphere to city hall," said Harris.

The mayoral candidate has lived in Lincoln County since he was 18 months old. He presently owns Jake's Sand and Gravel. He attended engineering school in California.

Harris is a member of the Masonic Lodge in Carizozo. He recently completed a year as the Master AF-AM. He also is a member of the Seventh Day Adventist Church.

Harris and his wife, Florence, have three children, four grandchildren and one great-grandson.

Aspenfest events set

Members of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce's Aspenfest '86 committee already are planning October's festival.

With the theme "A Century of Fun in Ruidoso" Aspenfest '86 will be part of Ruidoso's centennial celebration. The Aspenfest parade and street festival will take place on Saturday, October 4. A fiddlers' contest will follow on Sunday, October 5. A museum will be open both days.

Also that weekend, the Lincoln County Humane Society will have a dance on Friday, October 3. The Ruidoso Federated Women's Club Mountaineers will sponsor an international volkswalk (long walk) on October 4 and 5.

The Aspenfest committee consists of Nancy Radziewicz, Charlotte Jarratt, Cal Cowden and Barbara Downs. The group is looking for participation and ideas from the public. They also need returnable historical artifacts and information for the museum.

For information or suggestions, call Radziewicz (who is in charge of the street festival) at 257-4031; Downs (fiddlers' contest), 257-9143; Jarratt (museum), 257-5522, or Cowden (parade), 257-4529.

Editorial

An effective way to make a difference in the workings of village government is to express your view by voting Tuesday in your village's election.

In Ruidoso, voting will take place at the Ruidoso Public Library. Ruidoso Downs voters will make their selections for village leaders at the Ruidoso Downs Village Hall. In Capitan, voters will cast their ballots at the fairgrounds.

Voting takes such a short time, but the results of voters' actions go a long way toward shaping a village's future.

In elections at this level, some will be put in office with just a few hundred votes. That makes each individual vote that much more important.

Plan now to set aside a few minutes Tuesday to cast a ballot in your village's election. You could be making a big difference.—DJP

Reporter's Round

By Sharon Makokian

Ifs no secret that times are tight right now, not only in Ruidoso, but all over the country.

In a one-industry (tourism) town such as Ruidoso, everyone needs to rally together to promote what we have and to create more things to offer tourists and prospective investors, as well as full-time residents.

Some people have begun to do this with the formation of such groups as the Spirit of Ruidoso and the Discover Ruidoso Alliance. The former is composed primarily of merchants, the latter is a new group comprised of Ruidoso real estate agents.

The real estate alliance will sponsor a "Val, We're Not" advertising campaign to show how much more we have to offer here, such as the racetrack, new airport, Lincoln National Forest, Smokey the Bear State Park... this list goes on to include regional attractions such as White Sands National Park and the Space Hall of Fame in Alamogordo.

The various promotional groups do a great job, but sometimes, I think they need to all join forces and support each other's events and ideas.

People often comment that Ruidoso needs more events or things to keep tourists here an extra night or two. The longer they stay, the more revenue circulates through the town.

Entertainment is important to locals and tourists alike. I often hear people say "there's nothing to do," yet when events occur, those people usually are not in attendance.

Local events need to be supported by local people for the town to make a go of it. Groups such as the Ruidoso Summer Festival, Incorporated, the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce, Spirit of Ruidoso and Ruidoso Little Theatre (RLT) try to give Ruidosans things to do.

The summer festival board will sponsor a unique piano concert on March 1st at First Christian Church. The tickets are priced reasonably ($5 for adults, $3 for students and senior citizens) for an afternoon's entertainment.

Summer festival board member Mary Margaret Petty said she was concerned about the turnout of an event would have. This is a test run, as the festival board hopes to bring varied entertainment to Ruidoso throughout the year.

Petty emphasized that the musical events are for everybody, not just a select few.

Ruidoso Little Theatre works year-round to produce local entertainment. The group tries to give people something to do in two ways—they offer plays to watch and the chance to participate either on-stage or off.

RLT's current production of "On Golden Pond" opened last weekend with a very disappointing turnout. The title is well known, but apparently not enough to draw Ruidosans to see the show.

As a member of the theater board, I think some people might have a misconception about the organization. I've heard comments that RLT is a closed group that does plays only for themselves.

As someone who is personally involved, I have to say that is far from the truth. As with any other community group, RLT members give hours upon hours of their time to produce something to benefit Ruidoso.

RLT is community theater—by and for the people of Ruidoso. Contrary to some rumors, newcomers are always welcome in any capacity they choose. Plays are not pre-cast with old-time members—usually the opposite is true, as directors go out of their way to include new people.

I've heard people say the RLT does not do plays that Ruidosans want to see. We try to pick popular plays that would appeal to people here, but we can't do it without feedback. If there's a play that Ruidoso wants to see, the only way we'll know is if you tell us. The same with any other group. The only way that Spirit or the chamber knows what to plan is with input from the community.

I've heard it said over and over that in these tight times, the community needs to stick together. That means supporting each other: Spirit members attending chamber events, RLT people going to summer festival programs, real estate agents seeing RLT productions... etc... we're all one town with one goal.

The only way to build a base of successful events in this town is to attend them and suggest improvements or future events.

Letters to the editor

DEAR EDITOR:

The exact date is immaterial, but Texas and New Mexico entered into an agreement years ago, in which it was agreed that the Pecos River was to provide a certain amount of water to Texas, and that New Mexico would not use more than a certain amount of the Pecos River flow in order not to impair this agreement.

The inevitable happened. New Mexico used more water than it intended to. A lot more!

More surface water, and more ground water was used. The small tributaries into the Pecos River either dried up or became trickles. The water table was lowered by pumping well water, and in some cases, dewatered. This dried the springs, which in turn would have contributed to the river flow.

Now at this very moment, the day of reckoning is here. (This is not myth but fact). Texas has sued New Mexico for the shortfall of water to Texas. Texas has won in the lower courts and now the final appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States is completed. The arguments are finished and the Master for the Supreme Court will make his recommendation. In order that New Mexico be able to repay Texas, it is going to require that the entire water table of the Pecos River water shed be raised until out crop springs begin to flow again. This is the only way the Pecos River can achieve the surface flow to repay Texas for the water New Mexico has taken.

Our information states that New Mexico contends that New Mexico owes 145,000 acre-feet of water to Texas. To give you some idea how much water that is, if all the water produced by Ruidoso last year were given to Texas and this amount were continually given, until Texas were repaid, it would take 70 years. The sad part is that Texas does not agree with New Mexico that 145,000 acre-feet is what New Mexico owes. Texas contends that they have been deprived of 450,000 acre-feet of water from the Pecos River.

If this should be reality, then it would take Ruidoso's water for the next 25 years at its present rate of usage.

This is the simple way of illustrating the solution.

Once water has fallen on the land as precipitation, it follows many paths that make up the hydrologic cycle. By far the greatest part is evaporated back to the air directly or by the plants and transpired by them to the atmosphere. A smaller amount follows the path of runoff, the water that flows off the land, and the smallest amount soaks into the ground through infiltration.

The many water rights that have been granted by New Mexico to its farmers, ranchers, towns, golf courses, developments, homes, nursing and etc. since 1947 are termed junior water rights. These are the ones which were non-existent when the Texas-New Mexico Pecos River agreement was made.

For those who are not conversant with what a "water right" is: it is a right to a certain number of acre-feet of water, either from the surface or subsurface if the water is there. A right to water is no guarantee that nature will provide it.

In our area, a farmer's water right entitles him to 3.2 acre-feet of water. But to the Village, it is 2.8 acre-feet of water. (If it is there).

The Eagle Creek water wells will have junior water rights with priority dates of 1961. It will be these kind of junior water rights that will have to be sacrificed first, to repay Texas. All water rights since 1947 are classified as junior water rights and are (not might be) in jeopardy.

You will hear all kinds of rebuttals to this letter. It's immaterial whether you give credence to me or not, so I recommend you talk to Mr. R.B. Collins, District Supervisor for the State Engineer, in Roswell. He is most knowledgeable about the Pecos River water shed. The Pecos River is the reason for the State Engineer's office being there. His experience covers 12 years in that office.

It is pretty certain that the Supreme Court will hand down its ruling before July 1987.

In my estimation the so-called Eagle Creek wells will be worthless at that time.

Sincerely
JOHN C. SCHULLER

DEAR EDITOR:

Paul Crown and Channel 11 TV put on a good show last week with 30 minute segments of the aspirations of the 13 candidates vying for public office in the March 4, 1986, election.

While there was some apparent repetition of questions and answers this was necessary in order to show each candidate in the same atmosphere.

Since the meetings held at the public library were so sparsely attended the TV showing gave the candidates a broad exposure which they had not received thus far and which the public is entitled to.

Thanks—Paul

"The flag is up!"

May is on the way and the colors will soon be wrapped around the quarter horses at Ruidoso Downs.

I can't wait. Trifectas (pick the first three horses in the correct order of finish) hold the secrets to life.

I know most of the village people are still promoting skiing, and I like skiing.

But I have a bit of a vision problem. I can hardly see with or without my glasses, and everytime I get in high places with snow my glasses get foggy or icy.

My glasses are so thick snow spiders need snow chains to get good traction on my lenses when I fall face-down on the slopes.

The last time I went skiing my friends sent the ski patrol after me.

The patrol found me far from the runs asking a small pine to meet me later for drinks. I still wonder how far I would have gotten if the ski patrol had not interrupted.

I thought the pine was beginning to respond a little.

So, even if I can't, maybe you can see the problem.

That's why—when I get a free weekend—I break for Sunland Park, and do business with the wonderful people who also run Ruidoso Downs.

My parents' house is only about six-and-one-half furlongs from Sunland Park. One of my best friends only lives about 400 yards away from the track!

It's nothing for me to get in my little Japanese thoroughbred, prance and gallop around Sunland Drive, break for the gate (pay my dollar for parking), round all the turns, put my quarter in the turn-style, and let it all out on the steep incline to the ticket windows.

If I don't have a heart attack once I'm inside the building, I begin a series of moves that mark the truly sophisticated gambler.

I place my lucky pen in my right pocket, say each horse's number during every pre-race parade and just before the race begins I have to touch three consecutive rows of benches in exactly the same spot.

I've been known to win a few quinielas and trifectas in my time, so I'll be giving more of my sure-bet tips as the racing season nears.

I know some people don't approve of gambling, and I actually do like to see the jockeys push the fillies to their limits.

You know as the jockeys work their quick-second strategies as they round the turns, those majestic horses must be saying, "When do we eat, or, when the ground is going by fast!"

Of course my mother never really liked my gambling habit very much.

When I was just a teenager in El Paso she joined this gambling support group called MOB (Mothers-Of-Bettors).

Those MOBsters, as they like to call themselves, use to do a lot of good, but I guess some people you can't help.

Sometimes I do all right at the windows, but most of the time those unmarked IRS guys feel so sorry for me they go in with me on a $2 quiniela bet, or buy back my program at full value. (Just kidding IRS.)

But there is one part of going to Sunland I don't like, and that's going through the Border Patrol check stations on my way back to Ruidoso.

Come on, are Texas and New Mexico in the United States or not!

Let's have the answer before Ruidoso Downs opens.

Hey, I have nothing to hide, believe me, just a bunch of racing tickets I can't cash.

Like I said I have one of those little Japanese jobs, how many illegal aliens or how much dope can I smuggle back to Ruidoso.

Here are some of my favorite responses to Border Patrol questions.

"Are you a citizen of the United States and what are you carrying?" they ask.

"Well I have E.T. and most of Mexico, Guatemala and Costa Rica in my back seat." (My back seat barely has room for seat belts.)

Or... "I'd like you to meet most of the major government heads of Mexico and Colombia. We're inspecting some of the more rural airstrips in New Mexico."

Come on—is the Southwest part of America or not? Are there any border patrol check stations in Idaho?

I have some real red-neck cousins in Ohio, and I can't imagine them being asked to prove their citizenship on their way to Pennsylvania.

These people are super-patriots. They think Ronald Reagan is an illegal alien because he comes from California.

They think eating rice is an act of treason.

They once got arrested for pouring vodka in the Cuyahoga River in Ohio, and it was Canadian-made vodka.

I just can't imagine them going through a Border Patrol check point in Ohio and being asked if they are citizens of the United States.

I'm sure it would mean a major change in their lifestyle.

I once read about a group of Texas and New Mexico Congresspeople who wanted to end the Border Patrol checks—but nothing has come of it yet.

I'd say I'd be betting on a long shot if I thought the checks would be ended.

And that's why I have trouble skiing.

Group works to keep Ruidoso beautiful

Dusty Roadrunner, New Mexico's official clean-up symbol, will be incorporated into Ruidoso's clean-up and beautification campaign.

Barbara Downs, member of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce Cleanup and Beautification Committee, discussed some of the group's plans and goals with The News recently. Downs said the Ruidoso group joined the Keep New Mexico Beautiful program. Through the statewide organization, Ruidoso may obtain literature, program ideas and personal appearances by Dusty Roadrunner.

Downs said the committee's objectives are to reduce litter in the area and change people's attitudes and behaviors about littering. The group hopes to develop programs that involve all segments of the community and stimulate the community's desire to do positive things to improve Ruidoso's appearance.

Other goals include raising people's awareness of pertinent ordinances and encouraging enforcement officials to get tough. Downs said a chart will be formulated which shows each village and county agency and tells which one has the jurisdiction to enforce each law. Downs said the committee will focus on results and acknowledge those who do a good job.

Projects are under way with the schools and community groups to promote the clean-up effort. A school poster and essay contest will take place in the spring. A community clean-up campaign will take place from April 25 through May 4.

The committee will encourage merchants to improve the appearance of their businesses. Downs said the committee will work with the community service program offered through the Ruidoso Municipal Court, offering businesses eight hours of community service workers for beautification projects that could include painting buildings or signs, removing weeds, planting flowers or trees and washing windows.

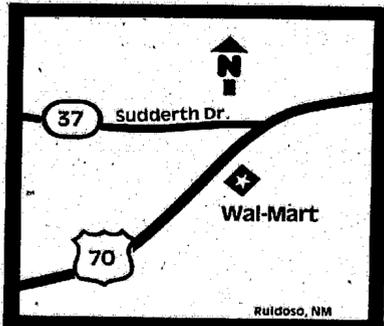

Downs said the committee hopes to work with local service clubs to complete some projects. The committee seeks ideas on how to Keep Ruidoso Beautiful and suggestions for projects. Interested persons may call the chamber, 237-7335, or write to: Keep Ruidoso Beautiful, P.O. Box 2744, Ruidoso, New Mexico, 88345.

Republicans meet

Lincoln County Republicans met Sunday, February 16, in spite of the absence of U.S. Senator Pete Domenici, who was unable to land at the Ruidoso airport because of high winds and low visibility, according to Daisy Meacham, Lincoln County Republican spokeswoman.

Jack Page, acting chairperson of the county party, introduced Republican candidates for state offices and the state chairman of the party, Ed Lujan.

Lujan said candidates for office on the Republican ticket are "the best group of candidates I've ever seen."

Mary Helen Skeen, representing her husband, U.S. Congressman Joe Skeen, said of her husband, "He appreciates all you have done for our country, without a country there's no state and certainly no party."

Candidates present at the meeting were Harris Hartz, candidate for justice of the state supreme court, Jannie McDaniel, secretary of state candidate, Paul Donisthorpe, candidate for the state treasurer post and Marjorie Bell Chambers, candidate for lieutenant governor.

Business license fees are due

Businesses operating within the Village of Ruidoso are required to have a yearly business license, according to Laurie Durham, deputy village clerk.

Durham said renewal applications have been sent to businesses with 1985 licenses, and most be filled out and returned to Village Hall to renew the certificates. Cost of the license is $25, said Durham.

"The response has not been as good as I'd like," said Durham, adding that business owners have until March 15 to obtain a 1986 business license.

The village has an ordinance providing for a fine for any business operating without a current license.

Durham encourages business owners and operators to comply with the village ordinance by making application for a business license or renewing last year's license.

Annual Ruidoso Science Fair draws big crowd

Middle school eighth-grade student Rusty Smith (left) is awarded the Superintendent's Trophy from Ruidoso Municipal Schools superintendent Sid Miller. Smith was chosen for this award because of all the projects in the science fair, his (on the effects of drugs) showed the greatest "contribution to mankind (and demonstrated) the most originality and scientific thought."

Hamilton Carter (left) is presented the Principal's Trophy by Ruidoso High School principal Tom Hansen for his science fair project on the methods involved in designing a cyclotron. A cyclotron accelerates particles at a high speed by alternating electric fields.

One of the largest crowds in the history of Ruidoso Municipal Schools (RMS) science fairs packed the Ruidoso Middle School gymnasium at the RMS Science Fair Awards Banquet last Friday night. Frank Cannella, RMS science fair coordinator, said he and school officials estimated the audience at over 800 people.

Cannella said it was not only the size of the crowd that made the science fair this year a success. Over 300 students entered a project in the science fair, Cannella said.

"The projects this year were excellent, they showed a lot of care and interest by both the students and the parents. Many of the projects compared to those of many regional science fairs I've seen," Cannella said.

One-sixth of the total student body of RMS entered projects in the science fair this year, Cannella said.

The Ruidoso Christian School also had several entries in this year's edition of the RMS Science Fair.

CREAM OF BROCCOLI SOUP
(serves 4)

1 single large stalk of broccoli
2 chopped scallions
2 cups water
2 Tbsp. flour
½ tsp. salt
1/8 tsp. pepper
½ cup half and half

Wash broccoli and cut broccoli stem and flower into medium sized pieces. Combine broccoli, chopped scallions and water in a medium saucepan and cook over medium heat until broccoli is tender. Remove from heat and puree vegetables in a blender or food processor. It will be necessary to utilize some of the vegetable broth in the pureeing process. In a small bowl add a small amount of water to 2 Tbsp. of flour stirring until a smooth and thick but pourable mixture has been formed. Add flour mixture to puree in blender or processor and blend for a few seconds until combined. Return puree to saucepan. Add salt and pepper and simmer for 10 minutes. Add ½ cup half and half. Do not let mixture boil again. Serve immediately. Note!...cream soups can be ruined by boiling so be sure to heat just to the boiling point after adding the cream.

Healthful Hint
Many cream soups utilize a significant amount of butter and call for heavy cream. This recipe does not, and is flavorful while keeping a rein on the calories!

LEGAL NOTICE

TWELFTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT COURT STATE OF NEW MEXICO INDIANAPOLIS LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, Plaintiff, vs. BILL ACKERMAN, Defendant.

AMENDED NOTICE OF PETITION: STATE OF NEW MEXICO TO: BILL ACKERMAN, upon whom constructive service of process is hereby sought by publication. YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED that Indianapolis Life Insurance Company, Plaintiff, has filed Civil Action No. CV-84-177, Division I, in the District Court of Lincoln County, New Mexico, against you as a Defendant. This is an action to collect monies due under a Franchise Note.

Attorney for Plaintiff is Albert L. Pitts of Hinkle, Cox, Eaton, Coffield and Hensley, 400 North Pennsylvania, Suite 700, P.O. Box 10, Roswell, New Mexico 88441.

UNLESS you file with the Court a responsive pleading by April 11, 1986, judgment by default will be rendered against you and said cause in conformity with the allegations in Plaintiff's Complaint. /s/ MARGOE LINDSAY District Court Clerk

TWELFTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT COURT STATE OF NEW MEXICO INDIANAPOLIS LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, Plaintiff, vs. BILL ACKERMAN, Defendant.

AFFIDAVIT OF ALBERT L. PITTS: I, Albert L. Pitts, being duly sworn upon oath docket and say the following:

1. I am an attorney with the law firm of Hinkle, Cox, Eaton, Coffield & Hensley, and licensed in the State of New Mexico. The firm of Hinkle, Cox, Eaton, Coffield & Hensley, by the Lincoln County Sheriff filed a writ of Habeas Corpus in the District Court of Lincoln County, New Mexico, against you on or about February 18, 1986.

2. At the request of one of our former attorneys, David L. Spodee, from June 13, 1984, through June 15, 1984, the Lincoln County Sheriff's Office attempted to locate the Defendant, Bill Ackerman, and serve Defendant with a copy of the Complaint and Summons at 419 Mechem Drive, Ruidoso, New Mexico. The attempt was not successful.

3. At Mr. Spodee's request, another attempt to locate and accomplish service on Defendant, Bill Ackerman, was made at Eagle Creek Road, Ruidoso, New Mexico, by the Lincoln County Sheriff from December 3, 1984 through December 19, 1984. Again, the attempt to locate Defendant was not successful; however, it was believed the Defendant could not be located in El Paso, Texas.

4. An unsuccessful attempt to locate and serve Defendant was made in El Paso, Texas, on or about February 18, 1986.

5. Another attempt was made by the Lincoln County Sheriff from May 1985 through May 1985 to serve the defendant in Ruidoso, New Mexico to no avail.

6. It is my belief that the Defendant, Bill Ackerman, is so evasive that he should be served upon him within the State of New Mexico.

7. It is further my belief that Defendant, Bill Ackerman, is a resident of New Mexico, and by deliberately concealing his whereabouts in order to avoid service, he has effectively evaded service as provided in Rule 4 (E) of the New Mexico Rules of Civil Procedure.

FURTHER Affiant sayeth not. /s/ Albert L. Pitts Notary Public

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 14th day of February, 1986. /s/ LAURIE D. TICE Notary Public
