A dream come true

Caroline Norton, a 76-year-old Ruidoso resident, zooms down the slide at the Ruidoso Municipal Swimming Pool accompanied by pool manager Ellen Bizzell. Norton said she hadn't been swimming in 40 years, but wanted to try the slide. Norton was laughing when she plunged into the cold water at the end of the curvy slide. Once was enough.

Downs candidates state their views

by DARRELL J. PEHR
News Editor

Ruidoso Downs voters will go to the polls Tuesday, August 25, to select seven candidates to serve as Ruidoso Downs Trustees.

Fourteen Downs residents are seeking election to the seven slots open. They include (in order of ballot appearance) C.L. (Bones) Wright, Eugene M. Hawk Jr., Travis B. Hicks, Wilma L. Webb, Joe P. Blaney, LeVerne Cole, Leonard H. Bergeron, William

The election comes as the result of more than a year of legal skirmishes after the March 1986 election, when Wright first was declared mayor, then was unseated by present Mayor J.C. "Jake" Harris due to a judge's decision that invalidated several votes apparently

Lodgers' Tax Committee unable to make quorum

The meeting of the Lodger's Tax Advisory Committee scheduled for 1 p.m. on Wednesday was cancelled for lack of quorum.

Bill Hirschfeld and Dan Kelley showed up for the scheduled meeting, and members Hank Evaro and Don Parsons did not. A fifth member is yet to be named by Ruidoso Mayor Lloyd L. Davis Jr. This meeting was the first meeting of the present committee, and officers were to be elected.

A special meeting to achieve this goal will be announced.

Former Downs judge, Rairdons named in grand jury indictments

by FRANKIE JARRELL
News Staff Writer

A Lincoln County grand jury returned two indictments Wednesday.

Harry Wilcox Jr., senior trial prosecutor for the 12th Judicial District, said indictments were returned naming Martin Valenzuela, Harold W. Rairdon and Bobbie Sue Rairdon.

The grand jury returned a two-count indictment against the 40-year-old Valenzuela, charging him with criminal sexual contact of a minor, a third degree felony, said Wilcox. The basic sentence is three years in prison and/or a $5,000 fine.

Wilcox said the victim in the first count is 12 years old, and the victim in the second count is 15 years old.

The former Ruidoso Downs municipal judge, Valenzuela is not in custody. Wilcox said an arrest warrant has been issued by District Judge Richard A. Parsons, and information on Valenzuela will be entered into the National Crime Information Computer.

"I have spoken with Sheriff Don Samuels and he is unable to confirm the whereabouts of Martin Valenzuela at this time," said Wilcox. He said the Lincoln County Sheriff's Office is in charge of the investigation.

The initial complaints were given to Ruidoso Downs Police Chief Skip Hazel.

"He asked the Sheriff's Office to assume the investigation due to the close contact his (Hazel's) office would have with Judge Valenzuela's office and the potential conflict," noted Wilcox.

The indictments against the Rair-dons alleged five counts of first degree criminal sexual penetration and one count of kidnapping. Wilcox said he'll ask for an early trial date in the Rairdon case.

The Rairdons, a married couple, were apprehended in El Paso, Texas, on information furnished by Ruidoso Police Detective Lanny Maddox. They pled guilty in El Paso to charges similar to the Lincoln County indictments.

"They will remain in custody pending trial," said Wilcox.

Officials differ on new airport commission's status

by FRANKIE JARRELL
News Staff Writer

Admitting to "lame duck" status, the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission (SBAC) met and took action Wednesday in spite of action by a state agency that may have made the group obsolete.

Ted Apodaca, legal counsel for the Department of Finance and Administration (DFA), confirmed that Secretary Willard Lewis signed a new joint powers agreement Wednesday.

That document reorganizes the airport group from five governmental members (Capitan, Ruidoso, Ruidoso Downs, Lincoln County and the Mescalero Apache Indian Tribe) with one representative each, to two members having three appointed representatives each. The agreement already had been adopted by the five parties to the 1978 agreement it replaced.

"Now with the approval of the secretary the new agreement is effective," said Apodaca in a telephone interview Wednesday. "Once it takes effect they (airport commissioners) are governed by it," added Apodaca.

He said the old commission was dissolved the moment the DFA secretary added his signature to those already on the document.

Ruidoso and Lincoln County are the two members under the new agreement, with each having three elected officials appointed to the commission. According to the agreement the three commissioners will serve along with three elected members of the governing body of the Village of Ruidoso.

Underwood said until the six new members are "duly sworn in" the old group may take action according to the 1978 agreement. He said business conducted by the group Wednesday is "binding, conclusive and effective."

He disputed the term "lame duck," although Commission Chairman Tim Morris answered in the affirmative when Commissioner Benny Coker asked "Is this the lame duck meeting?"

Underwood, quoting from New Mexico Statute 11-1-3, said, "There has not been a state board of finance meeting."

That statute reads in part: "Joint powers agreements approved by the secretary of finance and administration shall be reported to the state board of finance at its next regularly scheduled public meeting."

But Commissioner Bill Karn continued to wonder about the effect of the secretary signing the new agreement.

"Are we legal?" asked Karn after receiving a telephone call from a member of DFA legal staff later in the meeting. He said he learned the minute the document was signed it became effective.

"My opinion still stands," averred Underwood, comparing the current period to that interim between a presidential election and the swearing-in ceremony. Sanders agreed, reiterating that at any level the old official serves until the new is sworn in.

"Were the present set of commissioners sworn in?" asked County Commissioner Ralph Dunlap, a member of the audience.

"Yes," said airport administrator Fred Heckman, who served on the commission until resigning last year to become the paid administrator. He added that only the original commission was sworn in.

"I didn't get sworn in," noted Karn.

Morris said the term "sworn in" was a "slip of the tongue."

Underwood said if it turns out to be "untrue" that the commission can act, and if an Attorney General opinion comes down later, the new commission can simply affirm the action already taken.

Acknowledging Wednesday's meeting could be the last of the commission that functioned over the past 11 years, Underwood said he "relished" the idea of sitting with a group "that has basically taken a dream into a reality."

Underwood predicted Ruidoso's three members will be appointed at the next Village Council meeting. Dunlap noted the three county commissioners will all serve, but Morris disagreed, saying any elected county official may be appointed.

But the agreement specifically names "elected members of the Commission of the County of Lincoln," not simply elected officials.

Commissioners voted unanimously to call for an audit before handing over the reins of the airport advisory group. They agreed to ask Don Wingfield, the county auditor, to conduct the audit.

After discussions of outstanding bills, commissioners agreed to have a special meeting to approve the last of the bills accrued under their leadership. Wednesday they approved paying Steve Sanders' June bill ($8,239.50) and a Contel bill ($284.40).

Before going into executive session to negotiate with the T-hanger developer, the commission heard from engineer Earl Cook that the project is "on target."

In other regular business Wednesday the commission:

—Instructed Cook to negotiate with the electrical contractor on installation of a non-directional beacon, after hearing the equipment is eligible for 100 percent state funding. "We need this instrument capability to be sure that anyone who wants to come in on a scheduled basis be able to come in on a scheduled basis," said Morris.

—Heard Cook describe problems with water from Fort Stanton that delayed the contractor from 10 to 14 days. Sanders reminded the commission that, based on the quantity of Fort Stanton water used, the commission had agreed to help pave the quadrangle at the training school and hospital.

—Heard, during the engineer's report, that the SBAC well was equipped, tested and ready to go.

—Discussed how little local money has gone into the airport project thus far, and hoped the new commission can continue using state and federal funds.

U.S. Congressman Joe Skeen and members of his staff Mary Gayle Wood (center) and Alice Eppers stop by The News Tuesday. Skeen, home from Washington D.C. during a legislative break, was on his way to speak at an ice cream social in Carrizozo sponsored by the Lincoln County Republican Women. "I'm going to tell them what a great Republican year this is going to be," said Skeen. "The state's beginning to perk a little. We've got a Republican governor; he's doing a good job—let's give him a Republican legislature," he added. Earlier Tuesday Skeen visited Cloudcroft and the White Sands Missile Range.

Air Ruidoso has flight cancelled

An Air Ruidoso flight from Ruidoso to El Paso, Texas, was grounded Wednesday.

Ed Collins, director of operations for the Ruidoso-based charter operation, said the plane's pilot discovered a mechanical problem and decided against taking off. Collins said another plane made the flight.

Collins said the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) was at the Ruidoso Municipal Airport doing routine ramp checks, but the flight was scrapped by the pilot, not by federal regulators.

A passenger and an observer both reported that FAA inspectors terminated the flight, but Collins said they were in error.

"We have some people running normal programs and they were in that area (Ruidoso)," said Ruben Gonzalez, FAA operations unit supervisor. He was unable to comment on what might have happened during those operations.

Air Ruidoso president Helene McCoy said her company had "no problems ... no penalty ... no write-up ... no nothing."

Collins said all passengers booked on the mid-morning flight took the trip on the substitute aircraft. Two Air Ruidoso passengers missed airline connections in El Paso because of the delay, but Collins said he was able to reschedule them on flights for arrival at final destinations only about an hour late.

Greg Nickerson of FAA flight standards, in Ruidoso Wednesday, said the pilot grounded the plane himself. Nickerson said a routine check of Air Ruidoso records found the new charter service to be operating according to FAA regulations.

"Everything seems to be in order," said Nickerson.

Over and out

Kenneth Sandefur, 18, gets lots of attention from emergency medical personnel after the 1980 Honda motorcycle he was driving collided with a car and flipped on Mechem Drive near Buckner Drive. He was taken to Lincoln County Medical Center where he was treated and released. Official reports indicate Sandefur and Ann Gaddy, 62, the driver of a 1987 American Motors sedan were southbound on Mechem. According to police reports, Gaddy was stopped for traffic, signalling to turn left when Sandefur's two-wheeler smashed into the right rear of her vehicle. Police said Sandefur was cited for following too closely.

P&Z can't make quorum

With just four of eight members present Monday, the Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission cancelled its regularly scheduled meeting.

Commissioners were scheduled to discuss ordinance regulations on property line setbacks in older subdivisions. No citizen requests were scheduled for review.

Commission vice-chairman Pete Thompson and commissioners Ellen Long, Ken Carr and Eddie Nichols were on hand for the meeting; with Chairman David Smith and commissioners Jess Stinson, John White and Marie Rooney absent.

The nine-member group, formed by state statute, has been one member short since former member J.D. James resigned to accept an appointment to the Ruidoso Village Council on May 24. Members of Planning and Zoning are appointed by the mayor.

"I hope to do that at the next (council) meeting," said Mayor Lloyd L. Davis Jr. in a telephone conversation Tuesday. "I just haven't had a chance to visit with the council," he added.

"I'm not going to submit a name that's going to be turned down," said Davis, noting that would be embarrassing for the person presented for appointment.

Smith Gallery presents 'Visions' show of art

Smith Ltd. Gallery will present "Visions of an Ancient Art" beginning with a public reception from 6-9 p.m. today (Thursday), August 20, and continuing during gallery hours Friday and Saturday, August 21-22.

The gallery is located at 882 Suderth Drive.

The showing of Egyptian weaving, antique Nubian basketry and artifacts and antique Cairene copperware is brought to Ruidoso by Robert Berg.

According to a news release announcing the show, the exhibit will feature weaving from the internationally acclaimed Wassef Art Center at Harraniya Village near Cairo. Wassef Studio was founded in 1951 by an Egyptian architect, Ramses Wassef and his wife, Sophie.

"Mr. Wassef believed that all human beings are born with full artistic capability and that this innate talent is either stifled or left to wilt as each child is socialized," reads the news release. "Operating on the belief that given the means of expression at an early age, in a supportive environment any child can become a fully accomplished artist," continues the announcement.

In one generation a group of unlettered peasant children from Al Harraniya, which had no prior tradition of weaving, have developed into the most renowned group of weaving artists in the world. Exhibitions of work from Harraniya have toured internationally on a yearly basis since the late 1950s. One such tour was sponsored in 1974 by the Smithsonian.

Included in the Smith Ltd. exhibition will be a large body of weaving created by artisans in the Oasis of El Faiyoun and a number of northern Egyptian towns. Antique basketry and other tribal artifacts of Nubian and Bisharin origin, as well as pieces of antique copperware from Cairo, including hand-wrought copper bowls, pitchers and trays, will also be shown.

Paintings of pots ...

... are not the only subjects Gay Stokes creates on canvas. Her show, including paintings of horses, cowboys and other southwestern subjects, will be on display at Carrizo Lodge through this weekend.

Helping hand

Little Lindsey Fuller gets a helping hand from Don Dutton during the Humane Society of Lincoln County Race Tracker's Review Tuesday at Cree Meadows Country Club. Lindsey, the reluctant model, joined a large group of jockeys and their family members who showed off fashions from more than a dozen local stores. A standing-room-only crowd was on hand for the dinner and show that raised funds for the Humane Society.

Fun at the fair!

Vegetables were well-represented at the fair, and this beige pumpkin took a ribbon. Every sort of growing thing was on display, from sunflowers to gourds to green chile to gladiolus.

Handmade quilts, sweaters, afghans and pillows added color to the fair. Fiber arts have been a mainstay of utilitarian self-expression for rural women throughout time. Lincoln County has an abundance of textile artists within its perimeters.

Happy Birthday To Ruth Jenkins

On several happy years in past, Mrs. Ruth Jenkins did not tell her age; but on a visit to her mansion by the riverside in the Upper Canyon on last Monday, August seventeen, she said she would now let us know that she will celebrate her ninety-fifth birthday on August twenty-one. This is a big surprise because Ruth does not appear to be a day over fifty in looks. In her cheerful spirit she is joyfully young in heart.

Ruth was born August twenty-one, 1892, in Waco, Texas, to Joseph Wesley Damson and the former Mary Ellen Wood. After a very happy childhood and youth she married in 1918 to Telfair A. Jenkins in Waco.

In 1934 while in Colorado, Ruth and her husband heard about Ruidoso from a friend, Mr. Kelly of Santa Anna, Texas, who offered them his cabin on the Upper Ruidoso. So down they came, right away they both knew that here was the land that was all that their heart could desire for a mountain home.

From that year on, they came to Ruidoso every summer staying in leased cabins. Soon they bought the ground where Ruth's home now stands majestically by the singing river among the douglas fir and spruce trees from Mr. Ernest McDaniel Sr., who was administrator of the Cree estate.

In 1949 when Mr. Jenkins retired from the Stetson Hat Company, they began building the house.

"I planned and designed the home myself," Ruth remembers. "We brought two carpenters from Waco, because at that time there were no carpenters in Ruidoso. And my husband helped with the finish work and cabinets. All our love for Ruidoso went into the building of our home. The only problem was how to build the house without taking out the spruce and douglas fir trees which were very tall and beautiful and always sang a pretty wind song in their branches—harmonizing with the river's lullaby. When the bulldozer man began taking down the trees, it was agony for me. He stopped his machine and told me that he would quit for fear I would have a nervous breakdown over the trees. So I told him to go ahead, that I would endure, knowing it was necessary for the building of the home."

Ruth dearly adores the trees which surround the home on every side with sweet evergreen incense in the cool air, and their wind harp songs overhead through the day and night.

A Remembrance From Holy Mount Church

Ruth is brought every year to Ruidoso by her daughter Rosalie Davis and her husband, Bill Davis, who are members of Saint John's Episcopal Church in Waco, and attend Church of the Holy Mount while here.

During the visit last Monday, Rosalie pointed out a large bouquet of daisies and chrysanthemums over near the window.

"Bill brought these from church," said Rosalie. "Marge Garner sent them as a birthday gift for Mother."

The close ties of Texas with Ruidoso are illustrated by the fact that the new chandeliers in Church of the Holy Mount are from Saint John's Episcopal in Waco. Bill Davis arranged for this gift during the reconstruction of the Saint John's Church.

Birth Celebration At Inn Of The Mountain Gods

A celebration is planned for Sunday, August twenty-three, at the Inn of the Mountain Gods, for Ruth's ninety-fifth birthday.

"I have celebrated my birthday in Ruidoso for fifty-three straight years," says Ruth. "And I cannot think of a nicer place to celebrate than the Inn of the Mountain Gods. It is certainly a marvelous feature for the Ruidoso area."

In talking over her youthfulness as she approaches her one hundredth year, Ruth says: "I had a wonderful mother and father and a wonderful husband. My Ruidoso home with all my wild flowers and the birds is like Heaven on earth. And my daughter, Rosalie's devotion to me is a blessing. Bill Davis is everything a loving and faithful son could be. And God has been good to me."

We all wish our beloved friend, Ruth Jenkins, many happy returns of the day and all God's blessings.

AMERICA

When the Grand Convention began its work to "revise" our Articles of Confederation in late May, the Delegates introduced devices which encouraged them to speak their thoughts unbounded. The first of these, called the Committee of the Whole, allowed the Convention to dissolve itself anytime a majority wished to discuss sensitive political issues and take non-binding votes, so that the Gentlemen could gain insight without being bound by sectional politics.

The second device was a self-imposed Secrecy, which the Gentlemen embraced diligently, so that they would not be subject to public scrutiny. (The "Gazette," using its own secret device, has been able to penetrate this Secrecy, but wishes to compliment the Gentlemen on their efforts.)

Last week the Committee of Detail presented a draft constitution to the Delegates. We received intelligence that a proposal to reconstitute the Committee of the Whole to discuss this draft was defeated. We applaud that decision. The Gentlemen must now commit themselves to final arguments and final votes in forming this new constitution.

Learned Reader, we are about to discover whether a Chalice has been molded which will contain and protect our Freedoms, or whether a jail has been built to suppress them! The final work of this Grand Convention is about to begin! Now we will discover whether men who have made themselves Free can contain that Freedom under a rule of Law. Now our Republican Experiment begins to take form!

Our young Republic has floundered long enough! We must take to our hearts an identity which is American through and through. It cannot be a disguise for totalitarian evils which will choke us to death. We must protect ourselves from European devilment: those succubus which wait in the wings, refreshed, and ready to pounce on any revealed weakness in our Character.

Our United States of America must convince a skeptical Europe that this Republic will work, will not falter, and will remain FREE! This can only be done if the Gentlemen mold a constitution of Value, Strength, and Infinite Wisdom, acceptable to our citizenry as a ROCK upon which we all stand, united against Tyranny!

Plautus

Pace of Convention Quickens; Wilson and Randolph Clash!

The Gentlemen in Convention have finished the second week of their discussions of the twenty-three resolutions prepared by the Committee of Detail. A quickening of pace is noticeable as the Convention moves more briskly through its business than it did in May and June. Some delegates have indicated a great desire to return to their own sadly neglected affairs. The feeling that the Convention should move forward was evident on the floor of the State House when Mr. Rutledge of South Carolina complained vigorously of the tedium of debate and urged the Gentlemen not to postpone contentious issues as they often do, but to move on! This impatience is widely felt, especially since many feel that the business of the Convention is almost complete.

It is also true that there is now a great measure of unanimity on the Convention floor. Consider, and Rejoice, Learned Reader, the ease with which the delegations agreed that the new government should be given the POWER TO TAX and THE POWER TO REGULATE COMMERCE! If nothing else is achieved this summer, the granting of these powers to Congress will still be a Mighty Victory for our Country.

Nevertheless, two prominent gentlemen have expressed great disappointment with decisions reached this week. The first is Mr. Wilson of Pennsylvania, and the second is His Excellency, Mr. Edmund Randolph of Virginia.

WILSON WISHES TO SERVE

Mr. Wilson wishes to serve America in the new Congress. Accordingly, he, like many of our foreign-born citizens, wish to be eligible to run for office in the shortest possible time after becoming a citizen. He therefore moved that a person should be eligible to run for office after being a citizen for only four years in the case of the lower house, and seven years in the case of the Senate. He pointed out that during the late struggle for Independence the generals of the Pennsylvania Line had all been foreign and no one had questioned their right to serve. But he ran up against the fears of some delegates that his suggestions would open our legislatures to harmful foreign influences — the merchant houses of Great Britain were given as examples of those influences. The Convention refused to change its earlier decision that a man must be a citizen for seven years to serve in the House of Representatives and for nine years to serve in the upper house.

To salvage Mr. Wilson's pride, Mr. Gouverneur Morris proposed that the rules not apply to those who were already citizens, but even this kindly idea was rejected.

DEFEAT FOR RANDOLPH

Mr. Wilson's concerns affect his own life; Mr. Randolph's defeat has more general significance. Mr. Randolph has been a pillar of the party, which wants a strong central government. As well, he was a party to compromise which ended the conflict between the Large and the Small States. He understood that part of the arrangement was that money bills should originate in the lower house which represents the people directly. He insisted that it be part of the Constitution. Unfortunately, others do not share either his understanding that this was part of the compromise, or that it is even an important part of an effective government. Colonel Mason, his fellow from Virginia, supported the governor. The colonel believes that the people will not be satisfied with the Constitution without this provision. Less temperately, Mr. Randolph attacked in his argument the president as being a monarch and the Senate as being an aristocracy — neither could be entrusted with the power to tax the people. The Convention was not moved by their arguments and refused to pass their motion. General Washington, however, did vote with them. His was a gesture of support, for he does not believe that the governor is right. He hopes that his action will entice others to make compromises when the needs of the Convention seem to demand them. Alas, it is unlikely that such a magnanimous sentiment will influence others who are driven more by pride and the lust for power than our Great Patriot.

News from Europe ...

Death of General Thomas Gage Reported

We have just learned here of the death of a man well known to Americans, General Sir Thomas Gage. His death, on April 2, was reported in a recent issue of the Gentleman's Magazine of London, just arrived in this city. We take the liberty of extracting some of the particulars of the life of a man, reviled in America, whose long career as a soldier may not be well known here.

General Gage, son of the first Viscount Gage in the Irish peerage, was born in 1721, and from the age of twelve pursued a career as a soldier. After Irish and Flemish service in the 1740's, Gage became lieutenant colonel in one of the regiments sent to America under General Edward Braddock. Col. Gage served with gallantry as commander of the advance column in Gen. Braddock's march against Fort Duquesne (now Pitt's Burgh). Later he was employed in the British assault on Canada in the French and Indian War. Appointed governor of Montreal, Gen. Gage displayed a mildness of rule which contrasted sharply with the harsh treatment of Quebec by General Murray.

During his American service, Gen. Gage married Margaret, daughter of Peter Kemball, President of the Council of New Jersey. This marriage produced six sons and five daughters, with several of the sons pursuing careers in the army and navy.

PROMOTION TO MAJOR-GENERAL

Following the close of the French and Indian War, Gage was promoted to major general and, in 1763, appointed commander-in-chief of British forces in North America, with his headquarters at New York City.

As the relationship between England and her American colonies rapidly deteriorated, Gage was returned to America in 1774 as Governor-in-Chief and Captain-general of the province of Massachusetts, replacing Thomas Hutchinson. The situation in Boston, in the aftermath of the infamous Tea Act and the resultant Boston Tea Party of December 1773, was then most unsteady, but Gen. Gage was, at least initially, received cordially as a friend of America. In his post as governor of Massachusetts he found himself beset by difficulties that his wit proved inadequate to surmount. His efforts to bring the colonists into a more submissive attitude toward the British ministry — and especially to enforce the hated Intolerable Acts, by which Parliament had closed the port of Boston and laid the powers of a dictator in the hands of Gen. Gage — proved both unavailing and thankless. As a result, both his popularity and his authority rapidly evaporated.

In the spring of 1775, Gen. Gage began to use force of arms to compel the Americans into obedience. By seizing arms at Cambridge and elsewhere, he convinced the citizens of Massachusetts that Tyranny was to be enforced by direct assaults on their persons. This prophecy came true in the events of April 18, 1775, when a force of 800 soldiers under Col. Francis Smith marched out of Boston to Concord Town to destroy arms being gathered by the colonists and to arrest colonial leaders such as John Hancock and Samuel Adams. This march provided the spark of open war for, as is well known, American patriots opposed the British forces at Lexington and Concord, and thus as blood was shed on both sides, the War of American Independency began.

In June 1775, the first major battle of this War was fought outside Boston, as British forces sent out by Gen. Gage attacked American positions on Breed's Hill and Bunker Hill on Charlestown Heights. Although the British forces compelled the Americans to retreat, the victory came at a cost of over 1000 casualties out of a British force of 2500. Afterward, Gen. Gage received not only the hatred of America, but blame from his own colleagues for his leadership. Lord Germain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, wrote that "General Gage, for all his good qualities, finds himself in a position of too great importance for his talents." He was appointed Commander-in-Chief of all British forces in North America, but he soon resigned the post and left Boston for England in October 1775.

EASY TO CAST BLAME

It would be easy to cast blame upon Thomas Gage for the events in which he played so important a part, but it must be remembered that he was a loyal soldier who served his King as best he could during a very trying time. As time has passed and the passions of the Revolution have cooled somewhat, it might be well to remember Gen. Gage's earlier services to America during the French and Indian war. Nothing can be done to remove altogether the stain of the events of 1774-75 upon his memory, but it should not be forgotten that the blame for these events rests, not with the soldier who followed orders, but with the King and ministers who were the authors of British tyranny over America.

Pestilence in Algiers

A report from a sea captain recently arrived from Gibraltar says that the plague in Algiers has caused a most terrible ravage. One day last month there died in the space of 24 hours, 11 Christians, 27 Jews, and 148 Moors. Since that time the daily mortality has borne much the same proportion. It is computed that the total number of people carried off since the new year was 335 in January, 357 in February, 1534 in March, and 3711 in April. Of the 6137 total, 240 were Christian. To this number must be added those who died in the four months preceding the time in which the pestilence broke out; so that it is not surprising that whole villages and districts are already depopulated.

Dueling: A Nefarious Pursuit!

Dueling is a practice much to be lamented. Recently though, Colo. Alexander Hamilton, a New York delegate to the convention in Philadelphia, set an admirable example against this practice.

Mr. John Auldjo, a partner in a London merchant firm and one of Colo. Hamilton's clients, received a challenge in an affair of honour and asked Colo. Hamilton to be his second. Major William Pierce, a delegate to the convention from Georgia, sent the challenge. Colo. Hamilton was able to negotiate an honourable settlement between the two Gentlemen.

BRITISH AND FRENCH INTRODUCED IT

Colo. Hamilton's patient negotiations to avoid the duel can only add to his distinguished reputation, and it is to be hoped that many will lay his example to heart. It is a notorious scandal that dueling is on the increase in these states. It is a custom neither native to these shores nor proper for the inhabitants of a Republic. It is thought that the practice arrived here during the late War of Independence, when British and French gentlemen first introduced it; We would have thought that the custom would also have departed with these aristocrats, dueling being more proper to a decaying aristocratic society than to an Infant Republic, but such, unfortunately, is not the case. Rather, the practice has been adopted by some of our more distinguished citizens in spite of the similarity between dueling and the brawling common among the rabble.

DUELING COULD SPREAD

What the distinguished citizens who practice and encourage dueling do not seem to consider is that their example will, if unchecked by the example of equally distinguished citizens like Colo. Hamilton and by strong laws prohibiting the practice, continue to spread throughout all the ranks of our society. Colo. Hamilton should receive that appreciation of all those who, in these tumultuous times, value good order in civil government.

This portrait of Mr. Webster will appear in the Authorized printings of his American Spelling Book.

Noah Webster Supports Centralized Government

The Honourable Noah Webster, editor of the American Magazine, and noted lexicographer has recently published a series of editorials supporting the creation of a strong central government with considerable power over states. He has been plagued with the piracy of his works, especially his Grammatical Institute of the English Language, Part 1, which first appeared in 1783. More recently, his American Spelling Book has been subjected to numerous unauthorized reprintings. Although Mr. Webster has been active in getting a New York law enacted which would protect his copyrights, it has had little effect on illicit printings of his work outside New York. He now advocates a national copyright plan which would supercede state laws and hopes the Gentlemen at the Grand Convention will respond with a Government powerful enough to accomplish that objective.

The Learned Noah Webster was born in West Hartford, Connecticut in 1758. He graduated from Yale College in 1778 and was admitted to the bar shortly thereafter. The recent perilous times caused Mr. Webster to become a Schoolteacher in order to sustain himself and it was from that occupation that he became interested in his studies in lexicography. His published works have caused a considerable stir among experts in the field. His unorthodox spellings and grammatical variations have clearly separated the English language spoken in North America from that used in Great Britain. Perhaps Noah Webster's English will do more to unite the Thirteen States than anything else to date.

Pace of Convention Quickens; Wilson and Randolph Clash!

The Gentlemen in Convention have finished the second week of their discussions of the twenty-three resolutions prepared by the Committee of Detail. A quickening of pace is noticeable as the Convention moves more briskly through its business than it did in May and June. Some delegates have indicated a great desire to return to their own sadly neglected affairs. The feeling that the Convention should move forward was evident on the floor of the State House when Mr. Rutledge of South Carolina complained vigorously of the tedium of debate and urged the Gentlemen not to postpone contentious issues as they often do, but to move on! This impatience is widely felt, especially since many feel that the business of the Convention is almost complete.

It is also true that there is now a great measure of unanimity on the Convention floor. Consider, and Rejoice, Learned Reader, the ease with which the delegations agreed that the new government should be given the POWER TO TAX and THE POWER TO REGULATE COMMERCE! If nothing else is achieved this summer, the granting of these powers to Congress will still be a Mighty Victory for our Country.

Nevertheless, two prominent gentlemen have expressed great disappointment with decisions reached this week. The first is Mr. Wilson of Pennsylvania, and the second is His Excellency, Mr. Edmund Randolph of Virginia.

WILSON WISHES TO SERVE

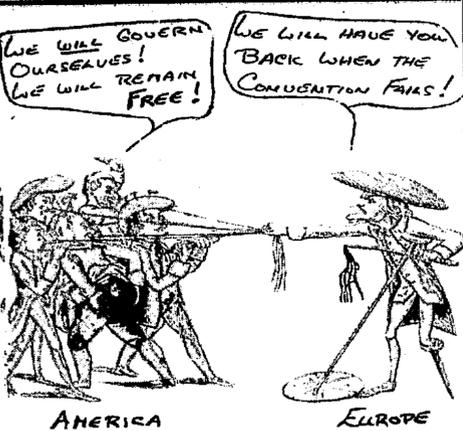

Mr. Wilson wishes to serve America in the new Congress. Accordingly, he, like many of our foreign-born citizens, wish to be eligible to run for office in the shortest possible time after becoming a citizen. He therefore moved that a person should be eligible to run for office after being a citizen for only four years in the case of the lower house; and seven years in the case of the Senate. He pointed out that during the late struggle for Independence the generals of the Pennsylvania Line had all been foreign and no one had questioned their right to serve. But he ran up against the fears of some delegates that his suggestions would open our legislatures to harmful foreign influences -- the merchant houses of Great Britain were given as examples of those influences. The Convention refused to change its earlier decision that a man must be a citizen for seven years to serve in the House of Representatives and for nine years to serve in the upper house.

To salvage Mr. Wilson's pride, Mr. Gouverneur Morris proposed that the rules not apply to those who were already citizens, but even this kindly idea was rejected.

DEFEAT FOR RANDOLPH

Mr. Wilson's concerns affect his own life; Mr. Randolph's defeat has more general significance. Mr. Randolph has been a pillar of the party, which wants a

When the Grand Convention began its work to "revise" our Articles of Confederation in late May, the Delegates introduced devices which encouraged them to speak their thoughts unbounded. The first of these, called the Committee of the Whole, allowed the Convention to dissolve itself anytime a majority wished to discuss sensitive political issues and take non-binding votes, so that the Gentlemen could gain insight without being bound by sectional politics.

The second device was a self-imposed Secrecy, which the Gentlemen embraced diligently, so that they would not be subject to public scrutiny. (The "Gazette," using its own secret device, has been able to penetrate this Secrecy, but wishes to compliment the Gentlemen on their efforts.)

Last week the Committee of Detail presented a draft constitution to the Delegates. We received intelligence that a proposal to reconstitute the Committee of the Whole to discuss this draft was defeated. We applaud that decision. The Gentlemen must now commit themselves to final arguments and final votes in forming this new constitution.

Learned Reader, we are about to discover whether a Chalice has been molded which will contain and protect our Freedoms, or whether a jail has been built to suppress them! The final work of this Grand Convention is about to begin! Now we will discover whether men who have made themselves Free can contain that Freedom under a rule of Law. Now our Republican Experiment begins to take form!

Our young Republic has floundered long enough! We must take to our hearts an identity which is American through and through. It cannot be a disguise for totalitarian evils which will choke us to death. We must protect ourselves from European devilment: those succubus which wait in the wings, refreshed, and ready to pounce on any revealed weakness in our Character.

Our United States of America must convince a skeptical Europe that this Republic will work, will not falter, and will remain FREE! This can only be done if the Gentlemen mold a constitution of Value, Strength, and Infinite Wisdom, acceptable to our citizenry as a ROCK upon which we all stand, united against Tyranny!

News from Europe ...

Death of General Thomas Gage Reported

We have just learned here of the death of a man well known to Americans, General Sir Thomas Gage. His death, on April 2, was reported in a recent issue of the Gentleman's Magazine of London, just arrived in this city. We take the liberty of extracting some of the particulars of the life of a man, reviled in America, whose long career as a soldier may not be well known here.

General Gage, son of the first Viscount Gage in the Irish peerage, was born in 1721, and from the age of twenty pursued a career as a soldier. After Irish and Flemish service in the 1740's, Gage became lieutenant colonel in one of the regiments sent to America under General Edward Braddock. Col. Gage served with gallantry as commander of the advance column in Gen. Braddock's march against Fort Duquesne (now Pitt's Burgh). Later he was employed in the British assault on Canada in the French and Indian War. Appointed governor of Montreal, Gen. Gage displayed a mildness of rule which contrasted sharply with the harsh treatment of Quebec by General Murray.

During his American service, Gen. Gage married Margaret, daughter of Peter Kemball, President of the Council of New Jersey. This marriage produced six sons and five daughters, with several of the sons pursuing careers in the army and navy.

PROMOTION TO MAJOR-GENERAL

Following the close of the French and Indian War, Gage was promoted to major general and, in 1763, appointed commander-in-chief of British forces in North America, with his headquarters at New York City.

As the relationship between England and her American colonies rapidly deteriorated, Gage was returned to America in 1774 as Governor-in-Chief and Captain-general of the province of Massachusetts, replacing Thomas Hutchinson. The situation in Boston, in the aftermath of the infamous Tea Act and the resultant Boston Tea Party of December 1773, was then most unsteady, but Gen. Gage was, at least initially, received cordially as a friend of America. In his post as governor of Massachusetts he found himself beset by difficulties that his wit proved inadequate to surmount. His efforts to bring the colonists into a more submissive attitude toward the British ministry -- and especially to enforce the hated Intolerable Acts, by which Parliament had closed the port of Boston and laid the powers of a dictator in the hands of Gen. Gage -- proved both unavailing and thankless. As a result, both his popularity and his authority rapidly evaporated.

In the spring of 1775, Gen. Gage began to use force of arms to compel the Americans into obedience. By seizing arms at Cambridge and elsewhere, he convinced the citizens of Massachusetts that Tyranny was to be enforced by direct assaults on their persons. This prophecy came true in the events of April 18, 1775, when a force of 800 soldiers under Col. Francis Smith marched out of Boston to Concord Town to destroy arms being gathered by the colonists and to arrest colonial leaders such as John Hancock and Samuel Adams. This march provided the spark of open war for as is well known, American patriots opposed the British forces at Lexington and Concord, and thus as blood was shed on both sides, the War of American Independence began.

In June 1775, the first major battle of this War was fought outside Boston, as British forces sent out by Gen. Gage attacked American positions on Breed's Hill at Bunker Hill on Charleston Heights. Although the British forces compelled the Americans to retreat, the victory came at a cost of over 1000 casualties out of a British force of 2500. Afterward, Gen. Gage received not on the hatred of America, but blame from his own colleagues for his leadership. Lord Germain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, wrote that "General Gage, for his good qualities, finds himself in a position of too great importance for his talents." He was appointed Commander-in-Chief of all British forces in North America, but he soon resigned the post and left Boston for England in October 1775.

EASY TO CAST BLAME

It would be easy to cast blame upon Thomas Gage for the events in which he played so important a part, but must be remembered that he was a loyal soldier who served his King as best he could during a very trying time. As time has passed and the passions of the Revolution have cooled somewhat, it might be well to remember Gen. Gage's earlier services to America during the French and Indian war. Nothing can be done to remove altogether the stain of the events of 1774-75 upon his memory, but it should not be forgotten that to blame for these events rests, not with the soldier who followed orders, but with the King and ministers who were the authors of British tyranny over America.

Pace of Convention Quickens; Wilson and Randolph Clash!

The Gentlemen in Convention have finished the second week of their discussions of the twenty-three resolutions prepared by the Committee of Detail. A quickening of pace is noticeable as the Convention moves more briskly through its business than it did in May and June. Some delegates have indicated a great desire to return to their own sadly neglected affairs. The feeling that the Convention should move forward was evident on the floor of the State House when Mr. Rutledge of South Carolina complained vigorously of the tedium of debate and urged the Gentlemen not to postpone contentious issues as they often do, but to move on! This impatience is widely felt, especially since many feel that the business of the Convention is almost complete.

It is also true that there is now a great measure of unanimity on the Convention floor. Consider, and Rejoice, Learned Reader, the ease with which the delegations agreed that the new government should be given the POWER TO TAX and THE POWER TO REGULATE COMMERCE! If nothing else is achieved this summer, the granting of these powers to Congress will still be a Mighty Victory for our Country.

Nevertheless, two prominent gentlemen have expressed great disappointment with decisions reached this week. The first is Mr. Wilson of Pennsylvania, and the second is His Excellency, Mr. Edmund Randolph of Virginia.

WILSON WISHES TO SERVE

Mr. Wilson wishes to serve America in the new Congress. Accordingly, he, like many of our foreign-born citizens, wish to be eligible to run for office in the shortest possible time after becoming a citizen. He therefore moved that a person should be eligible to run for office after being a citizen for only four years in the case of the lower house, and seven years in the case of the Senate. He pointed out that during the late struggle for Independence the generals of the Pennsylvania Line had all been foreign and no one had questioned their right to serve. But he ran up against the fears of some delegates that his suggestions would open our legislatures to harmful foreign influences — the mercantile houses of Great Britain were given as examples of those influences. The Convention refused to change its earlier decision that a man must be a citizen for seven years to serve in the House of Representatives and for nine years to serve in the upper house.

To salvage Mr. Wilson's pride, Mr. Gouverneur Morris proposed that the rules not apply to those who were already citizens, but even this kindly idea was rejected.

DEFEAT FOR RANDOLPH

Mr. Wilson's concerns affect his own life; Mr. Randolph's defeat has more general significance. Mr. Randolph has been a pillar of the party, which wants a strong central government. As well, he was a party to compromise which ended the conflict between the Large and the Small States. He understood that part of the arrangement was that money bills should originate in the lower house which represents the people directly. He insisted that it be part of the Constitution. Unfortunately, others do not share either his understanding that this was part of the compromise, or that it is even an important part of an effective government. Colonel Mason, his fellow from Virginia, supported the governor. The colonel believes that the people will not be satisfied with the Constitution without this provision. Less temperately, Mr. Randolph attacked in his argument the president as being a monarch and the Senate as being an aristocracy — neither could be entrusted with the power to tax the people. The Convention was not moved by their arguments and refused to pass their motion. General Washington, however, did vote with them. His was a gesture of support, for he does not believe that the governor is right. He hopes that his action will entice others to make compromises when the needs of the Convention seem to demand them. Alas, it is unlikely that such a magnanimous sentiment will influence others who are driven more by pride and the lust for power than our Great Patriot.

News from Europe ...

Death of General Thomas Gage Reported

We have just learned here of the death of a man well known to Americans, General Sir Thomas Gage. His death, on April 2, was reported in a recent issue of the Gentleman's Magazine of London, just arrived in this city. We take the liberty of extracting some of the particulars of the life of a man, reviled in America, whose long career as a soldier may not be well known here.

General Gage, son of the first Viscount Gage in the Irish peerage, was born in 1721, and from the age of twenty pursued a career as a soldier. After Irish and Flemish service in the 1740's, Gage became lieutenant colonel in one of the regiments sent to America under General Edward Braddock. Col. Gage served with gallantry as commander of the advance column in Gen. Braddock's march against Fort Duquesne (now Pitt's Burgh). Later he was employed in the British assault on Canada in the French and Indian War. Appointed governor of Montreal, Gen. Gage displayed a mildness of rule which contrasted sharply with the harsh treatment of Quebec by General Murray.

During his American service, Gen. Gage married Margaret, daughter of Peter Kemball, President of the Council of New Jersey. This marriage produced six sons and five daughters, with several of the sons pursuing careers in the army and navy.

PROMOTION TO MAJOR-GENERAL

Following the close of the French and Indian War, Gage was promoted to major general and, in 1763, appointed commander-in-chief of British forces in North America, with his headquarters at New York City.

As the relationship between England and her American colonies rapidly deteriorated, Gage was returned to America in 1774 as Governor-in-Chief and Captain-general of the province of Massachusetts, replacing Thomas Hutchinson. The situation in Boston, in the aftermath of the infamous Tea Act and the resultant Boston Tea Party of December 1773, was then most unsteady, but Gen. Gage was, at least initially, received cordially as a friend of America. In his post as governor of Massachusetts he found himself beset by difficulties that his wit proved inadequate to surmount. His efforts to bring the colonists into a more submissive attitude toward the British ministry — and especially to enforce the hated Intolerable Acts, by which Parliament had closed the port of Boston and laid the powers of a dictator in the hands of Gen. Gage — proved both unavailing and thankless. As a result, both his popularity and his authority rapidly evaporated.

In the spring of 1775, Gen. Gage began to use force of arms to compel the Americans into obedience. By seizing arms at Cambridge and elsewhere, he convinced the citizens of Massachusetts that Tyranny was to be enforced by direct assaults on their persons. This prophecy came true in the events of April 18, 1775, when a force of 800 soldiers under Col. Francis Smith marched out of Boston to Concord Town to destroy arms being gathered by the colonists and to arrest colonial leaders such as John Hancock and Samuel Adams. This march provided the spark of open war for, as is well known, American patriots opposed the British forces at Lexington and Concord, and thus as blood was shed on both sides, the War of American Independency began.

In June 1775, the first major battle of this War was fought outside Boston, as British forces sent out by Gen. Gage attacked American positions on Breed's Hill and Bunker Hill on Charleston Heights. Although the British forces compelled the Americans to retreat, the victory came at a cost of over 1000 casualties out of a British force of 2500. Afterward, Gen. Gage received not only the hatred of America, but blame from his own colleagues for his leadership. Lord Germain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, wrote that "General Gage, for all his good qualities, finds himself in a position of too great importance for his talents." He was appointed Commander-in-Chief of all British forces in North America, but he soon resigned the post and left Boston for England in October 1775.

EASY TO CAST BLAME

It would be easy to cast blame upon Thomas Gage for the events in which he played so important a part, but it must be remembered that he was a loyal soldier who served his King as best he could during a very trying time. As time has passed and the passions of the Revolution have cooled somewhat, it might be well to remember Gen. Gage's earlier services to America during the French and Indian war. Nothing can be done to remove altogether the stain of the events of 1774-75 upon his memory, but it should not be forgotten that the blame for these events rests, not with the soldier who followed orders, but with the King and ministers who were the authors of British tyranny over America.

Pestilence in Algiers

A report from a sea captain recently arrived from Gibraltar says that the plague in Algiers has caused a most terrible ravage. One day last month there died in the space of 24 hours, 11 Christians, 27 Jews, and 148 Moors. Since that time the daily mortality has borne much the same proportion. It is computed that the total number of people carried off since the new year was 335 in January, 357 in February, 1534 in March, and 3711 in April. Of the 6137 total, 240 were Christian. To this number must be added those who died in the four months preceding the time in which the pestilence broke out; so that it is not surprising that whole villages and districts are already depopulated.

Dueling: A Nefarious Pursuit!

Dueling is a practice much to be lamented. Recently though, Colo. Alexander Hamilton, a New York delegate to the convention in Philadelphia, set an admirable example against this practice.

Mr. John Auldjo, a partner in a London merchant firm and one of Colo. Hamilton's clients, received a challenge in an affair of honour and asked Colo. Hamilton to be his second. Major William Pitce, a delegate to the convention from Georgia, sent the challenge. Colo. Hamilton was able to negotiate an honourable settlement between the two Gentlemen.

BRITISH AND FRENCH INTRODUCED IT

Colo. Hamilton's patient negotiations to avoid the duel can only add to his distinguished reputation, and it is to be hoped that many will lay his example to heart. It is a notorious scandal that dueling is on the increase in these states. It is a custom neither native to these shores nor proper for the inhabitants of a Republic. It is thought that the practice arrived here during the late War of Independence, when British and French gentlemen first introduced it. We would have thought that the custom would also have departed with these aristocrats, dueling being more proper to a decaying aristocratic society than to an Infant Republic, but such, unfortunately, is not the case. Rather, the practice has been adopted by some of our more distinguished citizens in spite of the similarity between dueling and the brawling common among the rabble.

DUELING COULD SPREAD

What the distinguished citizens who practice and encourage dueling do not seem to consider is that their example will, if unchecked by the example of equally distinguished citizens like Colo. Hamilton and by strong laws prohibiting the practice, continue to spread throughout all the ranks of our society. Colo. Hamilton should receive that appreciation of all those who, in these tumultuous times, value good order in civil government.

This portrait of Mr. Webster will appear in the Authorized printings of his American Spelling Book.

Noah Webster Supports Centralized Government

The Honourable Noah Webster, editor of the American Magazine, and noted lexicographer has recently published a series of editorials supporting the creation of a strong central government with considerable power over states. He has been plagued with the piracy of his works, especially his Grammatical Institute of the English Language, Part 1, which first appeared in 1783. More recently, his American Spelling Book has been subjected to numerous unauthorized reprintings. Although Mr. Webster has been active in getting a New York law enacted which would protect his copyrights, it has had little effect on illicit printings of his work outside New York. He now advocates a national copyright plan which would supersede state laws and hopes the Gentlemen at the Grand Convention will respond with a Government powerful enough to accomplish that objective.

The Learned Noah Webster was born in West Hartford, Connecticut in 1758. He graduated from Yale College in 1778 and was admitted to the bar shortly thereafter. The recent perilous times caused Mr. Webster to become a Schoolteacher in order to sustain himself and it was from that occupation that he became interested in his studies in lexicography. His published works have caused a considerable stir among experts in the field. His unorthodox spellings and grammatical variations have clearly separated the English language spoken in North America from that used in Great Britain. Perhaps Noah Webster's English will do more to unite the Thirteen States than anything else to date.

An apprentice wheelwright named JOHN RUTTER has run away from MR. PHILIP YOST in New Hartover township, Montgomery County. Mr. Yost is offering an $8 REWARD for the return of young Rutter.

Inquire of the Printer

When the Grand Convention began its work to "revise" our Articles of Confederation in late May, the Delegates introduced devices which encouraged them to speak their thoughts unbounded. The first of these, called the Committee of the Whole, allowed the Convention to dissolve itself anytime a majority wished to discuss sensitive political issues and take non-binding votes, so that the Gentlemen could gain insight without being bound by sectional politics.

The second device was a self-imposed Secrecy, which the Gentlemen embraced diligently, so that they would not be subject to public scrutiny. (The "Gazette," using its own secret device, has been able to penetrate this Secrecy, but wishes to compliment the Gentlemen on their efforts.)

Last week the Committee of Detail presented a draft constitution to the Delegates. We received intelligence that a proposal to reconstitute the Committee of the Whole to discuss this draft was defeated. We applaud that decision. The Gentlemen must now commit themselves to final arguments and final votes in forming this new constitution.

Learned Reader, we are about to discover whether a Chalice has been molded which will contain and protect our Freedoms, or whether a jail has been built to suppress them! The final work of this Grand Convention is about to begin! Now we will discover whether men who have made themselves Free can contain that Freedom under a rule of Law. Now our Republican Experiment begins to take form!

Our young Republic has flourished long enough! We must take to our hearts an identity which is American through and through. It cannot be a disguise for totalitarian evils which will choke us to death. We must protect ourselves from European devilment: those succubus which wait in the wings, refreshed, and ready to pounce on any revealed weakness in our Character.

Our United States of America must convince a skeptical Europe that this Republic will work, will not falter, and will remain FREE! This can only be done if the Gentlemen mold a constitution of Value, Strength, and Infinite Wisdom, acceptable to our citizenry as a ROCK upon which we all stand, united against Tyranny!

His published works have caused a considerable stir among experts in the field. His unorthodox spellings and grammatical variations have clearly separated the English language spoken in North America from that used in Great Britain. Perhaps Noah Webster's English will do more to unite the Thirteen States than anything else to date.

Ruidoso varsity scrimmages Hobbs; junior varsity hosts Capitan Tigers.

by GARY BROWN
Sports Writer

Ruidoso High School's varsity and junior varsity football teams will take their final steps before season openers with scrimmages this weekend.

The Warrior varsity will be at Hobbs tonight (Thursday), August 20. The scrimmage will start at 7 p.m.

Saturday, August 22, Ruidoso's junior varsity will host the Capitan varsity at 9 a.m. at W.D. Horton Stadium.

Ruidoso has been bothered by several injuries this week, but head coach Cooper Henderson thinks the team is making progress.

"Other than the injuries, yes, we're on schedule," Henderson remarked. "As far as the scrimmage goes, we're going to make a lot of mistakes, but our goal is to make those mistakes going full steam, and learn from our mistakes."

In the Hobbs scrimmage, both teams probably will play their first-team offense and first-team defense for 15 plays each, followed by 15 plays for both the second-team offense and defense.

The junior varsity scrimmage Saturday will be followed by a varsity scrimmage between AAAA-division powers Carlsbad and Mayfield at 3 p.m.

Ruidoso's junior varsity will be meeting a Capitan team that went 6-5 and made the state A-division playoffs last season.

Capitan has 25 players out for the squad and has good size.

Blane Miller is the new Capitan head coach.

NOTES—There will be a dessert social "Meet the Players Night" at 7 p.m. Tuesday, August 25, in the Warrior cafeteria. It will be sponsored by the Warrior Booster Club. People should bring homemade ice cream or a dessert.

Braves opened practice Monday. Ruidoso Middle School's volleyball team also opened practice Monday.

Warrior spikers have good turnout

by GARY BROWN
News Sports Writer

Ruidoso High School's volleyball team is progressing well toward the season opener against visiting Tularosa Thursday, September 3.

The Warriors have 45 players out for the team, the largest the school has had in recent years.

"I think the reasons we have such a good turnout are because of our success last season (second in district and a state tournament berth) and our eighth-grade program," said Warrior head coach Pixie Arthur.

"The players we have from our eighth-grade program last season are as skilled as our JV players. Some players we have who did not play eighth-grade ball are not as far advanced, but they are improving."

Varsity starters from last season's team include Tara Miller, Kristin Tidmore, Mikki Roller, Shannon Lee and Dari Stierwalt.

A number of last year's junior varsity players and incoming freshmen who also should do well this season.

The players are preparing for a scrimmage Saturday, August 29, in Portales. It will involve both varsity and junior varsity teams.

Team in the scrimmage will include Portales, Ruidoso, Roswell, Melrose and Clovis.

The Best Way To Keep Your House Cool May Be With a Blanket

It seems strange to use a blanket in the middle of summer. But to keep cool air inside your house, you need the blanket effect of proper insulation.

Without proper insulation, your home loses cool air in the summer (and warm air in the winter). Your cooling/heating system must work harder to maintain a comfortable temperature. The proper amount of insulation will make your home more energy efficient and comfortable.

See if your home meets the recommended "R" value for your area by contacting us today for a free booklet on energy efficient homes.

with Gary Brown

Even though the major-league baseball season is beginning its pennant stretch, the National Football League (NFL) season isn't that far off.

Exhibition games have already started and the regular season will begin Sunday, September 13. The first week will have a key early game as the defending Super Bowl champion New York Giants will play the 1986 champion Chicago Bears in the Monday night game.

The two teams could be the strongest in the NFL, again this season. New York seems to have avoided the typical post-Super Bowl hype most recent Super Bowl champions have had.

The Giants are strong at virtually every position and received help in the draft at wide receiver, perhaps their only previous weakness. Chicago's defense should be awesome again, and if quarterback Jim McMahon can be healthy and regain his top form, the Bears could be the team to beat. Running back Walter Payton may be playing his final season and would like to go out in style.

Other teams to be reckoned with in the National Conference are San Francisco, the Los Angeles Rams and the Washington Redskins. The Minnesota Vikings and Atlanta Falcons also could be contenders for playoff berths.

The American Conference has suffered in recent Super Bowls, winning just one of the last six.

But it should be more balanced than the National Conference this season, with no team or pair of teams far ahead of the other contenders.

Defending conference champion Denver should again be tough, but will have its hands full in the Western Division, particularly from Seattle.

Defending Central Division champion Cleveland should be tough again, but the real battle could be in the Eastern Division.

Defending champion New England should edge the New York Jets (another 1986 playoff team), in a close race. Always-tough Miami should rebound from a poor 1986 season.

It's still early, but look for Chicago and Seattle to meet in the Super Bowl this season.

That's assuming McMahon will do well at quarterback for the Bears. If he doesn't do well, look for the Giants to make it back to the Big Game.

The Seahawks finished with a 10-6 record last season, just missing the playoffs.

They defeated Denver easily in the regular-season finale and should be really hungry for a shot at the playoffs and Super Bowl this season. Seattle is solid at most positions.

Long, Robles win titles in Runners' Classic

Scott Long of Alamogordo and Sue Robles of Las Cruces were the male and female overall 10-K winners, respectively, in the Ruidoso Parks & Recreation Runners Classic last Saturday.

Long won the men's title in 33.19 and Robles took the women's title in 48.42. Quinn Smith won the men's 5-K overall title in 17.0 and Kathy Marshall took the overall women's 5-K title in 23.28.

The race started and ended at the Ruidoso Municipal Administrative Center.

Other division winners were male 50 and over 10-K, Bob Clarke (Ruidoso), 47.16; female 50 and over 10-K, Robles; male 40-49, Ron Hamelink; female 40-49 10-K, Joan Blodgett; male 30-39 10-K, Bill Kin-man; female 30-39 10-K, Terri Hemphill; male 20-29 10-K, Long; female 20-29 10-K, Charlotte Enjady; male 14-19 10-K, Tony Hernandez; male 13 and under 10-K, Pascal Enjady; male 50 and over 5-K, Mac McDougal (Ruidoso), 37.05.

Female 50 and over 5-K, June Marshall; male 40-49 5-K, Frank Hopkins; female 30-39 5-K, Kathy Marshall; male 20-29 5-K, Quinn Smith; female 20-29 5-K, Joann Vance; male 14-19 5-K, Rodney Pena; female 14-19 5-K, Evonne Vigil; male 13 and under 5-K, Patrick Brantley; female 13 and under 5-K, Margilyn Yuzos.

A total of 86 runners competed in the event.

Women's tourney is Saturday

The Lincoln County Women's Slo-Pitch Softball League Tournament will be Saturday, August 22, at Eagle Creek Sports Complex.

Competition will start at 9 a.m.

The Flamingo Club is the defending champion and has won the past three tournaments. The Flamingo Club also won this season's regular season title with a 17-1 record and finished second in the state Class D tournament for the second straight year.

The Capitan Fire should be the Flamingo Club's top competition. The Fire took second in last season's tournament and finished second in this year's regular season with a 13-5 record.

The Lady Braves took third with an 11-7 record, the Racettes were 10-8, the Unicorns were 7-11, the Shady Ladies were 6-12 and Bingo finished at 0-18.

Following the tournament, the league All-Star games will be Sunday, August 23. There will be three games with the first one starting around 10 a.m.

Four players will be selected from each team.

Hoofbeats

by MIKE HYMAN

The pulse of the quarter horse industry is beating strong based on the tremendous turnout for Saturday's inaugural Black Type Broodmare Sale at Ruidoso Downs. An estimated crowd of 3,000 bid more than $570,000 on the 60 horses that went through the ring. The average selling price penciled out to more than $14,500.

The art auction by Clark-Wiggins Galleries, Inc., was a welcome complement to the sale, offering works by some of the nation's greatest Western artists.

Sunday's Thoroughbred Derby was a testament to Ruidoso's new 7-furlong course and the national Breeders' Cup program. Captain Codex, the Derby winner piloted by David Lidberg, became one of the first horses at the mountain course to collect first-place money from the Breeders' Cup Awards. The Derby is one of five races at Ruidoso that offers Breeders' Cup bonus money. The award boosted Captain Codex's total paycheck to more than $17,000. It appears that Ruidoso's new 7-mile course and the Breeders' Cup program are attracting quality stock.

The quarter-horse specialist team of Jack Brooks and Jacky Martin qualified nine horses in last week's elimination trials for the $2.5 million All American Futurity. Some of the horses to watch in the upcoming time trials that looked promising are: Spring Action, Shoot Yeah, Dash To A Star and Split Bet. Shoot Yeah ran his first out since winning the Kansas Futurity and looked like the horse to match in the time trials, which are scheduled for Wednesday, Aug. 26. Seventy-two horses will face off in eight divisions that day with only the 10 fastest earning the right to run for a $1 million first-place check in the finals on Labor Day.

The Twin Trifecta was tapped on Wednesday with 31 ticket holders each collecting $1,374. The following day one lucky railbird won $6,126. Saturday eight fans cashed tickets worth $2,332. On Sunday, the exotic wager eluded more than 4,700 handicappers and will offer a $10,294 carryover when racing resumes on Wednesday.

Ruidoso Downs to simulcast Travers Stakes from Saratoga

Officials of Ruidoso Downs Race Track announced Wednesday that the mountain track has signed an agreement to offer simulcast wagering on Saturday's Travers Stakes from Saratoga Race Course in New York.

The live simulcast of the Travers will share the spotlight with the Ruidoso Sprint Championship Handicap on an expanded 13-race program. The Travers is expected to run at 3:45 (MDT). Saturday's opening post has been set for the usual 1 p.m.

The Travers is carded as Ruidoso's 7th race and will feature win, place, show and exacta betting. The past performances will be printed in the local edition of the Daily Racing Form with the complete field outlined in Ruidoso's official program.

Alysheba, winner of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, is expected to renew his rivalry with Belmont Stakes winner Bet Twice in this year's edition of the Travers - a 1 1/4-mile contest that offers $1 million in added prize money.

The remaining list of nominees for the Travers include Temperate Sil, winner of the Santa Anita Derby and Swaps Stakes at Hollywood Park; recent Whitney Handicap winner Java Gold; Polish Navy, winner of the Jim Dandy Stakes; Florida Derby winner Cryptoclearance; and Fortunate Moment, who is undefeated in six starts including a victory in the American Derby at Arlington Park.

Clarence and Dorothy Schaubauer, the owners of Alysheba, will be sending out their quarter horse Josies Super Sound for Sunday's $250,000 All American Gold Cup at Ruidoso Downs.

Sompinlikaglass upsets Ronas Ryon in All American Derby trials

Sompinlikaglass upset millionaire quarter horse Ronas Ryon to earn the top qualifying spot in Wednesday's trials for the $1.1 million All American Derby at Ruidoso Downs.

Ronas Ryon, winner of the 1986 All American Futurity, suffered his second loss in seven appearances this year when Sompinlikaglass outdueled the rich colt to post a neck verdict in Wednesday's 5th All American Derby division.

The filly's 21.530 clocking stood up as the fastest of the day and pegged her as the horse to beat in the finals of the Derby on Aug. 30. Sompinlikaglass was making her first start for trainer C.W. Cascio since finishing sixth in the West Texas Derby on April 5 at Sunland Park.

Sompinlikaglass faced Ronas Ryon in last year's All American Futurity where regular rider Bruce Pilkenton got the Raise Your Glass filly away from the gates slowly to finish last in the world's richest quarter horse race. She went on to capture the Whataburger Futurity at Bandera Downs before capping her 2-year-old campaign with a fourth-place finish in the Sunland Park Fall Quarter Horse Futurity. Sompinlikaglass is owned by Louisiana Senator J.E. Jumboville, Jr.

Ronas Ryon has added another $81,000 to his $1.3 million bankroll last year by winning the Graham Farms Derby in April and checking in second for this summer's renewal of the Kansas Derby at Ruidoso. He won the consolation of the Rainbow Derby in his last appearance on June 27. The Windy Ryon colt is the property of James Plummer, Benjamin Benham and Willie Dardon of Selma, Ala.

Hooked On Cash sped to the second-fastest qualifying time for the All American Derby by winning the opening trial division by three-quarters of a length in 21.545 seconds. The son of Dash For Cash will be making his first start in a Grade I event this year for owner Louis Howard of Austin, Texas.

Here's the complete field for the 1987 All American Derby in qualifying order: 1-Sompinlikaglass, 21.530; 2-Hooked On Cash, 21.545; 3-Ronas Ryon, 21.575; 4-Irish Moon Lass, 21.635; 5-Jet Go Chick, 21.645; 6-Unies Rocket, 21.670; 7-Maricabo, 21.675; 8-Dashin Linda, 21.695; 9-Some Super Jet, 21.715; and 10-Ruler Oak, 21.725.

A rematch between Ronas Ryon and Little Bit Shiny failed to develop when Lil Bit Shiny captured his division with a time of 21.740, which was only good enough for the No. 4 qualifying spot in the first consolation of the Derby. Trainer Hugh Tucker made the decision to substitute regular rider Jeff Williams with Jacky Williams for Lil Bit Shiny's bid in the Derby trials.

Handle Hotline

The handle at Ruidoso Downs, after 60 race days and 727 races, is $23,817,925. The current daily average is $396,965; the current wagering per race average is $32,762. At the same time last year, after 57 race days and 693 races, the handle was $24,960,925; the daily average was $437,911; and the wagering per race average was $36,019. Overall attendance at the track is down 8.0 percent below that of last year. Average daily attendance is down 12.6 percent below that of last year.

Jockey/Trainer Standings

Trainer Jack Brooks and rider Jacky Martin cornered the weekly honors at Ruidoso Downs dominating elimination trials for the All American Futurity by qualifying 9 horses to the $2.5 million classic. The training fete boosted Brooks to the top of the standings to overtake Fred Danley. Brooks now has 32 wins to Danley's 26. Doyal Roberts checks in third with 24, followed by Hugh Tucker (20), Dwayne Gilbreath (19), Bill Leach (19), Brent Davidson (18), Cliff Lambert Sr. (17), Lewis Germany

Sr. (15) and Jack Dube (13). Martin held on to his third in the jockey standings, but drew within six wins of leading rider Joe Martinez, who has booted in 48 winning mounts this season. Mike Lidberg continues to pressure Martinez with 46 trips to the winner's circle. Glen Murphy is listed fourth with 33 win pictures, followed by Duane Sterling (29), Mike Clark (27), Stuart Dolphus (25), David Lidberg (24), Salustio Burgos (23) and Casey Lambert (23).

Curribot, Big Bold Boz to meet Saturday

Curribot pits his patented stretch kick against the wire-to-wire style of Big Bold Boz when the two horses shoulder high weight in Saturday's $12,000 Sprint Championship Handicap at Ruidoso Downs.

Sharing the spotlight on the expanded 13-race program is the mountain track's live simulcast of the Travers Stakes from Saratoga Race Course in New York. The Travers is carded as the 7th race and is expected to run at about 3:45 p.m. Win, place, show and exacta wagering will be offered on the 1 1/4-mile contest, which hands out $1 million in added prize money. Bet Twice and Alysheba are expected to renew their rivalry in the rich event. Saturday's opening post at Ruidoso Downs is set for the usual 1 p.m.

Curribot and Big Bold Boz last met in the $24,000 Governor's Handicap on July Fourth at Ruidoso Downs. Big Bold Boz turned in a very dull effort under Leroy Coombs to finish last in the seven-horse field, while Curribot flashed his strong stretch drive to earn second-place money in the 7 1/2-furlong stakes with Casey Lambert aboard.

A week later, trainer Brent Davidson was back in the paddock with Big Bold Boz for the $12,000 Jockey Club Handicap. Racing as the even-money favorite, jockey Joe Martinez piloted the Bold Ego son to a half-length winning margin over Tropic Ego to take home his second trophy of the year.

Big Bold Boz will be spotting seven years experience to Curribot in the Sprint Championship, but the gelding's all-out speed will be a tough assignment for Curribot to handle. The New Mexico-bred sophomore will break from the rail post carrying 118 pounds. Davidson did not name a rider at entry. Curribot shoulders 121 pounds loading into the three post with Glen Murphy in the irons.

The Capitan Range

School board questions improvements' progress

by BONNY CHRISTINA CELINE
News Staff Writer

Capitan High School's new football field will be covered with turf fescue instead of bluegrass. The School Board was informed, at their meeting last Thursday, that turf fescue is sort of a cross between bluegrass and common K31 fescue.

"This will run you less money and the root systems really take hold," claimed Ted Conley of Conley's Nurseries of Ruidoso Downs.

The board had planned to sod the field but because of the heavy rains and because construction of the field has been so slow, seed is more feasible, according to Conley.

"As late as we are at getting this going, we may be in trouble if we think about it too long. Let's go for it," said Board President James McDaniels. Other members agreed.

The board seemed dissatisfied with the length of time architect Jim French and his crew have taken to do the renovation to the school building and develop the football field. Preston Stone in particular was unhappy. "I went out and looked at the new curbs you've put in," he told French, "and I think you did a very poor job. We are trying to get the best possible work for our money."

Board members were also unhappy with the leaks in the school roof that was installed by Allen Roofing of Roswell. "Allen Roofing did the Phase 1 work," explained Superintendent Scott Childress. "But the Clovis firm that did Phase 2 stands behind its work."

McDaniels asked Childress to contact the Capitan Schools' lawyer and try to get Allen Roofing to live up to their contractual agreement.

The group had a discussion of rats that have been reported living in the schoolroom ceilings. "There's rats up where you're patching the ceiling," stated Stone to architect French.

"That's not my problem, it's a maintenance problem," stated French. "It needs to be addressed by you people. Rats are not an architecture problem."

"But when you put up the new acoustical tile without taking care of the rats, you're just giving them a softer bed," stated Stone.

Audience member Don Ecklund voiced his opinion that if the rats are poisoned inside the ceilings, things could get smelly.

"That D-Con stuff doesn't smell too bad," French replied.

Superintendent Childress said that he would look into the matter.

Minor policy changes were made to the School Board policy, and changes were also made to the discipline policy. "Cheating will not be tolerated," commented President McDaniels as he read through the changes.

When faced with language indicating that a student had a choice of punishment, the board decided to make it clearer that the administration and parents were in charge of punishment. "The only choice the student has is not to choose the wrong," said Stone.

Nora Silva was awarded the school bus operator's contract. She will get $197,788.05 for the bus fleet and $10,338.43 as her own driver's salary.

Newly hired are Barbara Willard, home economics; Sherry Fredelkind as a special education aide; and Jerry Newsome as Director of Special Education.

Tiger boosters to host potluck

The third annual Meet the Players potluck dinner for Capitan High School athletes will be at 6 p.m. Friday, August 21, in the fairgrounds building.

All are invited to meet players from the 1987-88 Tiger cheerleading squad, football teams, volleyball teams and coaches. The evening will be sponsored by the Tiger Boosters.

Those attending are asked to bring a covered dish and silverware. A new members' drive will be conducted for the boosters group, with the person bringing in the most new members receiving a prize.

A dance will follow the dinner, with music provided by Slick Graham.

Sports fans ready to compete in News football contest

This football season, four members of the community will join sports writer Gary Brown in selecting winners each week in the Ruidoso News football contest.

There will still be a guest picker each week and the four permanent members also will be eligible to win the contest.

Previously, five News staff-members have competed each year in the weekly contest.

Interviews with this year's pickers follow:

MIKE MORRIS is a school board member and owner of Mountain Pest Control. He has been a member of the school board for five years.

He is also manager and a player on the Mountain Pest Control men's slo-pitch softball team.

Mike is a constant spectator at Warrior games and has coached Little League football and baseball.

Morris also has refereed non-varsity high school football games, middle school football games and Little League football games.

Mike participated in football and track at Alamogordo High School and New Mexico Military Institute (junior college).

What does he like about being a picker?

"I think it would be interesting," he said. "I'm anxious to try my skills against others."

SCOTT SCHRADER is the owner of Western Auto.

He is very active in local sports. Schrader is a member of the Merchants men's slo-pitch softball team, officiates at local high school non-varsity and middle school football games, and has coached Little League basketball, baseball and soccer.

He is excited about being a picker for the upcoming season.

"I really like it," he said. "I've officiated in football and stay on top of the game."

He played high school sports at Lovington High School, competing in football, basketball, baseball and track.

Schrader has lived in Ruidoso for 15 years.

PEGGY McCLELLAN is the owner of Ruidoso Office Supplies.

Her late husband was Charles McClellan, a longtime supporter of Warrior sports.

Peggy has been a member of the Booster Club for 22 years and still supports the Warriors.

Her four children all were active in playing or supporting Warrior sports.

Peggy's oldest son, Cem, was manager for the Warrior athletic teams for four years and her daughter, Pam Hough, was a cheerleader at both Ruidoso High School and Ruidoso Middle School for seven years.

Her two younger sons, Kip and Curt, were both active in Warrior sports.

Kip competed in football and track. Curt played football, track and cross-country, being one of the top middle distance runners in the state.

"I love sports," Peggy McClellan said. "I just love the Warriors. I think sports does more for our kids and schools more than any other single activity."

SID MILLER is the Ruidoso Superintendent of Schools and has been so for four years.

While Miller has been superintendent, the Warrior football superintendents have gone way up, with the state championship in 1985 and the state runner-up finish in 1986.

Sid played sports at Forrest High School near Clovis, competing in baseball, basketball and track.

He then played those three sports at Colorado Western.

Miller also likes football. "I'm interested in it and like to follow it," he said. "I like the game."

GARY BROWN is sports writer for The Ruidoso News. He has served in that capacity for six years.

Brown has been a contestant in the News football contest since its beginning two seasons ago.

"I've got a winning record," Brown said, noting his first-place finish in the football contest two years ago and his second-place finish last year.

Brown's football roots run deep. The sportsman first attended a college football game when he was seven years old, and he still remembers the score, a 20-20 tie between the University of California and Washington State.

Brown made a stab at playing the game in high school, but soon found his talents were stronger on the sidelines as a reporter of sports.

"I like football," he said. "But the only sport I lettered in was cross country."

Brown continued his association with the game as a sportswriter, at times covering the Los Angeles (then Oakland) Raiders, University of California and University of Pacific teams.

He has been a professional sportswriter since 1974.

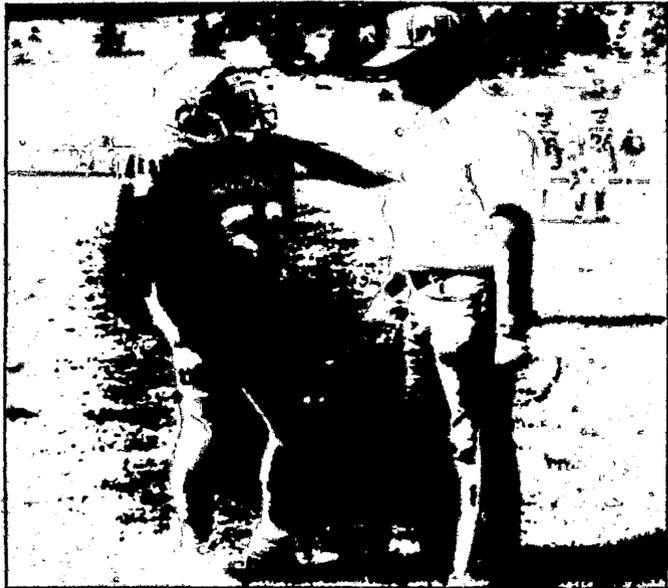

In his team-picking strategy, Brown said he usually shuns emotional picks, but said occasionally he'll pick the San Francisco 49ers just because they're his favorite team.

Of the Ruidoso Warriors' chances this season, Brown said, "I think they'll be a solid, competitive team."

The first football contest will be in the Monday, August 24, edition of The News. The contest offers a $25 prize to the top picker each week.

Sportswriter Gary Brown appears to be doing a bit of homework in preparation for this season's football contest. Brown has been a top contender in the contest the last two years. He said he's been an avid fan of the sport since age 7.

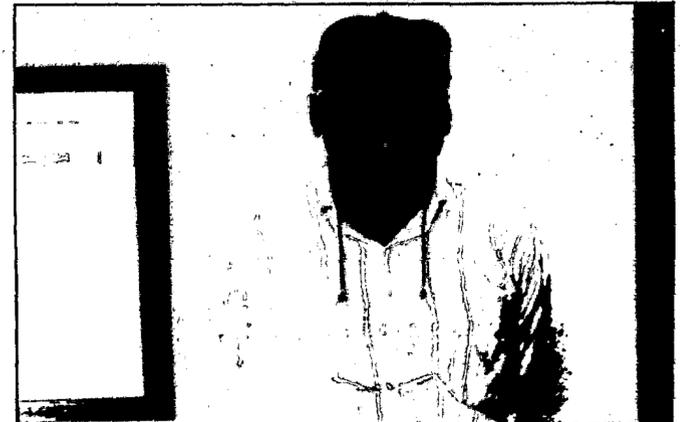

Mike Morris (right) talks to Daniel Candelaria during a recent Warrior practice. Morris is a member of the school board, an active supporter of Warrior athletics and owner of Mountain Pest Control.

Scott Schrader, owner of Western Auto, is involved in community sports programs like men's softball and also coaches and refs athletic events.

Peggy McClellan is owner of Ruidoso Office Supplies and has been a Warrior supporter for 22 years. Her sons and daughter played on or cheered Warrior teams.

Sid Miller has been superintendent of Ruidoso Schools for four years. He likes football and played sports in high school and college.

Conservation groups enact mil levies passed in '85

by BONNY CHRISTINA CELINE
News Staff Writer

Water conservation district members attended the Tuesday meeting of the Lincoln County Commission to announce that they'll enact mill levies passed in 1985.

The Upper Hondo and Carrizozo Soil and Water Conservations Districts, in accordance with New Mexico law, held referendums in 1985 seeking to levy an assessment of up to one mill per dollar of total taxable valuation of real property within the district, except for property in incorporated towns like Ruidoso, Ruidoso Downs, Capitan, Carrizozo and Corona.

The Upper Hondo Valley's referendum was held on February 28, 1985; Carrizozo's on March 6, 1985. Both referendums passed.

Representatives of the districts informed commissioners of the desire to enact the mill levy, and thereby informed the county assessor, Marian Schlarb, of their intent.

Soil and water conservation groups were begun in the 1930s and they have their own power base in New Mexico. "These organizations are separate entities. They can sue and be sued, and they have taxation power," explained county attorney Gary Mitchell. "They do not need approval of the county commissioners in order to collect their mill levy. They are appearing before us today as sort of a courtesy, to inform us of their actions."

Four percent of the monies generated in the mill levy revert back to the county to account for services rendered by the county treasurer.

Regardless of the fact that the conservation groups did not need county action or approval, their issue sparked a half-hour long discussion between conservation members and board members.

"How much money will be generated from this tax? What if you end up with more money than you need? Who benefits from your program?" asked Chairman John Hightower.

Sue Stearns, secretary of the Carrizozo district, stated that she would be willing to show last year's budget to the commission, but that the money was generally used for emergency situations that were not budgeted for a year in advance.

The representatives of the conservation districts told the commissioners that if a person feels as if the district has not in any way helped his or her property, they can appeal to the board of supervisors to have them exempt from taxation. However, it was pointed out, if the district helped shore up your neighbor's land, and therefore water runoff did not spill onto your land, that means you have benefitted from the district and you would not be tax exempt.

"We are working with brush problems and with soil erosion right now," said conservation ranger Howard Harkey. "But the district can't predict expenses."

"This is a very worthwhile organization," said Shirley Goodloe, county treasurer.

"I'm sure it is, but I can't give my approval to a tax when I don't know how much money will come from it, or how many people will be affected," said Chairman Hightower.

"However, I understand that my approval isn't necessary."

In other action, the commissioners voted to take road C004 off the county inventory, but took responsibility for two new roads, road C034, which leads four and a half miles from Highway 54 to the Wright Ranch, and one which runs parallel to the railroad tracks in Carrizozo. This road is used for school buses.

There were no bids received for the sale of a 1979 Chevrolet van that the county has up for sale with a bottom line price of $2,500. It was approved to reopen and ask for bids without a bottom line price.

The county agreed to pay Lincoln Heritage Trust $4,965 for advertisement, publicizing and promotion of the McSween House Site Archaeological Dig in Lincoln. This comes out of the Lodgers' Tax monies.

Commissioner Ralph Dunlap said archaeologist David Kirkpatrick will give a wrap-up accounting of this year's dig at a picnic in Lincoln at 5:30 p.m. on Saturday, August 29, in Lincoln Park.

cast for Wright, a write-in candidate.

Residents' dissatisfaction with the election results led to several petitions, the last of which caused Tuesday's special election. That petition sought to have the size of the board increased to seven members from four.

Interviews with many of the candidates follow. Efforts to reach candidates Blaney, Bergeron and Scrimshire were unsuccessful. Candidates Wright and Joe R. Smith declined to participate in the candidate interviews.

THURMAN D. GARTMAN, 56, is retired, married and has three children. He has not previously held office.

Gartman listed "a cleaner town" when questioned on his view of the future of the village and what he'd like to see changed. He offered no comment on questions of what other experience qualifies him for the position of trustee. Neither did he list suggestions for the economic development/diversification of the village's economy, or an opinion of the current trustees and mayor's handling of the village.

Gartman believes the village does need a full-time manager. He listed 378-9075 as a number voters may call to reach him.

Gartman said he's seeking the position of trustee "to help Ruidoso Downs in any way I can."

J.L. WILSON, 39, is an incumbent. He is a mental health counselor by profession, and has a wife, Irma, and a son, Jason, 9.

Wilson believes his business management skills help qualify him for the position of trustee.

Wilson said the clean-up program should be continued and tourism encouraged in the Downs. He suggests "residents working together to bring additional people into the community" will further economic development/diversification of the village's economy. On his opinion of the current trustees and mayor's handling of the village, Wilson wrote, "They have done a very good job under difficult circumstances."

The candidate believes the Downs does need a full-time manager.

Wilson listed 257-5036 (office) and 378-8568 (home) as numbers voters can call.

Wilson said he's running for trustee "to help improve our community."

JACKIE BRANUM, 57, an incumbent, is a teacher in Ruidoso Schools and has four daughters.

She has served two years on the village planning and zoning commission and four years as trustee.

She would like to see "more clean up of area, sewer and water lines improved and streets paved" as future improvements.

As a suggestion for the economic development/diversification of the village's economy, Branum said, "Make village attractive to new businesses, make contacts to encourage new businesses to locate in Ruidoso Downs (work with Lincoln County EDC (Economic Development Corporation) for example)."

Branum said the "current trustees have tried to get improvements for the village (streets, garbage pickup, water system) without raising taxes." She said the Downs needs a full-time manager "if we could find a qualified person that we could afford."

The candidate listed 378-4364 as a number voters can call.

As reason for running for trustee, Branum commented, "Would like to continue trying to improve the village. Have gotten the garbage situation greatly improved and think we can improve other areas of village service if everyone works together."

FRED A. BERNARD, 48, is an equipment operator. He and his wife, Rose, have a daughter, Lisa, son, Terry, and two grandchildren.

Bernard has held office as municipal judge, and was a lieutenant in the Ruidoso Downs Police Department.

For the future of the Downs, Bernard "would like to see the sewer project completed, and more street paving done."

As a suggestion for the economic development/diversification of the village's economy, Bernard said, "I would like to see that both villages work together on projects that would benefit all."

Bernard wrote "no comment" when questioned of his opinion of the current trustees and mayor's handling of the village.

Bernard believes the village does need a full-time manager.

The candidate listed 378-4132 as a number voters may call.

When questioned why he's seeking the position of trustee, Bernard wrote, "I think I can do a good job for the taxpayers of Ruidoso Downs, and work with the people of Ruidoso."

A photograph of candidate Bernard was unavailable.

BILL SMITH, 55, listed real estate sales as his occupation. He is married and has a married child. He has not previously held elected office, but listed management for 15 years as experience that qualifies him for the position of trustee.

Smith would like to see "more paved streets—clean up of village and private property" in the future of the village.

As a suggestion for economic development/diversification of the village's economy, Smith wrote, "encourage new business—restaurants, grocery stores."

His opinion of the current trustees and mayor's handling of the village is "everything too one-sided." Smith believes the Downs does need a full-time manager.

He listed 378-4579 as a number voters can call.

As reason for seeking the position of trustee, Smith wrote, "Hopefully with new ideas—I would like for the Downs to be nominated for the cleanest city award."

LEVERNE COLE, 71, is an incumbent. She has four daughters, one who lives with her and three who live in Dallas, Texas. Cole listed investments as her business, and ownership of Gibson's Discount for 25 years as experience that qualifies her for the position of trustee.

Cole sees "more pavement and the building of city hall and police station" for the future of the village. As a suggestion for the economic development/diversification of the village's economy, she wrote, "We have joined the economic development (corporation) with Ruidoso and Lincoln County."

She believes the current trustees and mayor's handling of the village has been "excellent," and thinks the village does need a full-time manager.

Cole listed 378-4350 as a number voters can call.

Cole is seeking the position of trustee "to help the progress of the Downs."

WILMA L. WEBB, 53, is the office manager for J.J.'s Companies, Inc. She has six children.

Webb has not previously held elected office, but listed her service as billing clerk and village clerk in the Downs as qualifications for the position of trustee.

As her view of the future of the village, and what she'd like to see changed/added, Webb wrote, "Great—but needs the help of the residents of the village for its continued growth in helping to clean up the village and work together with the council."

As a suggestion for economic development/diversification of the village's economy, Webb commented, "We need to work to get some light industry and more business to get a better tax base and create more jobs for our residents."

On her opinion of the present trustees and mayor's handling of the village, Webb wrote, "I can't truthfully say as I have not attended a council meeting in months."

She said the village does not need a full-time manager, adding, "Does not qualify—has to have population of 3,000."

Webb listed 378-6272 as a number voters can call.

As reason for seeking the position of trustee, Webb noted, "I'm interested in the future of Ruidoso Downs as I own property here, and live here. With my experience as billing clerk and village clerk, I feel I know the needs of the village and residents."

TRAVIS B. HICKS, 66, is retired from the U.S. Navy and Chevron U.S.A. Inc. He is a widower whose daughter, granddaughter, great-grandson, brother and his wife and their sons all live in El Paso, Texas.

Hicks has served as precinct chairman and election judge for 20 years in El Paso as a Democrat. He believes his experience as a master chief petty officer in the Navy and status as a college graduate qualify him for the position he seeks.

Of the future of the village, Hicks wrote, "Clean up/annex additional area to Biscuit Hill area—pave primary streets—get remaining residents on sewer system."

He offered no suggestions for the economic development/diversification of the village's economy. Hicks believes the current mayor and trustees are doing an "excellent job" in handling of the village. He does not believe the Downs needs a full-time manager.

Hicks listed 378-4353 as number voters can call.

Hicks said he is running for the position of trustee because, "I feel that I can augment the present village government by my input and experience gained in past positions."

EUGENE M. HAWK JR., 27, is a waiter. He has a wife, Mary, and a stepson, Michael.

Hawk has not previously held elected office.

As experience that may qualify him for the position of trustee, Hawk wrote, "I live here!"

As his view of the future of the village, Hawk said, "We need a supermarket to provide jobs and increase our tax base, as well as 'widening' the tax base generally."

He offered no suggestions for the economic development/diversification of the village's economy.

Of his opinion of the current trustees and mayor's handling of the village, Hawk wrote, "Good, but more effort should be made to work together." He believes the village does need a full-time manager.

Hawk listed "Prime Time" and "La Lorraine" as phone numbers voters may call.

The candidate offered no comment when questioned why he's running for the position of trustee.

The polls, at Ruidoso Downs Village Hall, will be open to Lincoln County Precinct 15 voters from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Tuesday. Bars and liquor stores in Ruidoso Downs will be closed on election day.

Opinion

Editorial

Ruidoso Downs voters: Take some time Tuesday to have your say in the future of your village.

Polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Tuesday at Ruidoso Downs Village Hall. Voters will choose seven from a field of 14 candidates to serve on the Ruidoso Downs Board of Trustees.

The election came as a result of a petition by residents who sought to have the size of the board increased to seven from four members. That action was the result of a year-long squabble that saw a group of residents, unhappy with election results in March 1986, work to unseat Mayor J.C. "Jake" Harris in favor of runner-up C.L. "Bones" Wright. When that effort failed after numerous court maneuverings, the residents instead pursued increasing the size of the board, apparently to dilute the power of the mayor.

So Tuesday's election is an important step in the village's future, and every Ruidoso Downs voter should come forward and make their voice heard—through their vote.—DJP

Inside the Capitol

by Jay Miller

SANTA FE—In a fit of cynicism a few weeks ago I suggested that legislators were like students who had to write themes about their summer trips. I now discover to my astonishment that apparently a Legislative Council regulation in fact does require legislators to write a trip report whenever they journey out of state.

Some of these reports are truly outstanding, such as those submitted by Sen. Steve Stoddard of Los Alamos. Stoddard's last two trips were to the winter conference of the Southwest Regional Energy Council in Austin, Texas, last November, for which he submitted a seven-page, bound report with numerous appendices, and to the Western Legislative Committee of the Council of State Governments last September in Colorado Springs. That meeting merited a nine-page, bound report with many pages of supplementary materials which the senator deemed pertinent.

Several other legislators submitted reports in the form of cover letters accompanying briefing books and other conference materials. These included Rep. Richard Knowles of Roswell, Robert Light of Carlsbad and Don Silva of Albuquerque and Sen. Jack Morgan of Farmington.

Sen. Tom Rutherford of Albuquerque is a frequent conference attendee who reportedly always submits a commentary on his experiences. Rutherford attended a National Conference of State Legislators' economic development meeting in Boston last June. He reported that the agenda focused on international trade strategies for states and economic development strategies employed by various states. Instead of submitting his conference materials to the legislative council, Rutherford reported he was providing them to the Department of Economic Development.

Rutherford also attended the recent NCSL annual meeting held in Indianapolis. This meeting deserved only a paragraph at the bottom of his expense reimbursement request stating that he was exposed to a wide array of issues facing legislators including economic development incentives, telecommunications regulatory measures and community development initiatives. He ended by saying that the conference was not as good as usual but still quite useful.

Rutherford's lack of enthusiasm may have been triggered by the meeting location of Indianapolis, Indiana. That city is a downer right off the bat. At least we know Tom's short report was not caused by having spent all his time out seeing the sights when he should have been attending meetings.

Second-term Rep. Pauline Eisenstadt was the one other legislator who attended the Indianapolis meeting who has submitted a report as of this time. Hers was a bit more upbeat possibly because of her shorter tenure as a lawmaker and possibly because of her great personal exuberance. Pauline's two-page report called the conference most informative and useful.

Eisenstadt also reported her election to the executive committee of NCSL and said she intends to try to bring a meeting of that group to New Mexico.

My investigation also reveals that there are evidently some legislators who would be astonished to know there is a rule which requires them to write a report because many don't do it. Those submitting expense vouchers this calendar year who do not have reports on file are Reps. Patricia Dominguez, Ben Lujan, Michael Olguin, Kiki Saavedra, Nick Salazar, Raymond Sanchez and Lucky Varela and Sens. John Pinto and Fernando Macias.

From comments I received while following up on a tip to check the junket reports, I may be the first to have ever read them. This may argue for their discontinuance but the need for government accountability causes this citizen to want to see a regulation requiring some type of a report before an expense check is issued.

Maybe I will be the only one to ever read them but I will report to you on how many red pencil marks this former teacher had to make and which ones deserved a grade of A.

I'll even report on the excuses legislators give for not turning in their papers. My favorites were always, "The dog ate it" and "My little brother spread jelly all over it."

Letters to the editor

DEAR EDITOR:

I would like to express my sincere appreciation to the staff at L.C.M.C. for their kind expressions of sympathy when, while I was a patient there, my beloved mother Georgia King passed away. She had been a patient many times in the last several years and always received loving care also. A special thanks to Dr. James Hopper and the Home Health Service, Verna Adams, Geri Collins and the entire staff have been so very kind and caring. Thank you and God bless all of you.

ing to Florida, with the article about us participating in the Lincoln dig! It was just great - such an ego trip. We'll cherish it forever.

We did so enjoy spending our week at "the dig". We met a lot of lovely people and David Kirkpatrick was not only a thoughtful host but a patient teacher as well. We learned quite a bit. The site came alive - pulsating with the people of the past.

We plan to drive through again a few years hence and although we know the dig will no longer be there - it will be interesting to see what extent other buildings have been reconstructed, if any.
Again, many thanks.

Reporter's Round

By Bonny Christina Celine

I'd heard about the Last Escape of Billy the Kid Pageant for many years but this was the first time I got the chance to participate in the annual festivities, during "the one weekend each year when Lincoln becomes the economic capital of the county."

As a kid historian, I'm probably more critical of books, films and plays about Billy than most people are. I figured the pageant would just take the legend of Billy the Kid and dramatize it, giving the locals a chance to play-act and ride around on horses. I figured it would be corny-but-sincere. In other words, I didn't think I'd enjoy it too much.

At the rehearsal I attended, I was incredulous. I thought: this play is patently bad! There are can-can dancers? Too much! My skepticism turned to a sort of mood of amusement; how quaint, I considered. How small-town. Wait till I tell the folks back in the city about this.

I couldn't make the first pageant showing but I was there on Saturday night, and much to my amazement I became quite captivated with the production. Yes, it takes some liberties with the facts, because there are theatrical restrictions on action. For example, the Kid really didn't jump off the porch of the Old Courthouse after he killed Bell and Olinger. If he had, he would probably have been lying dead right alongside them, because in reality it would have been a remarkably hefty leap. But despite some minor changes, the history was accurate and the action was fun to watch.

It is kind of corny, and it's certainly sincere, but it's also entertaining and definitely something you won't see elsewhere.

The most impressive part of the production to me is the people who take part in it. At least 50 Capitan Range residents (and some from farther away) gather annually to put on this show. There was Dan Storm from Glencoe, who is 77 and who has appeared as Buckshot Roberts 35 times; Ralph and Rosalie Dunlap, who provide voices and moral support; a variety of Schreengosts, who direct, stage-manage and act in various pageant capacities; Nora and Walter Henn, who helped the original script become more accurate to history.

There were Beverly and Sam Hammond, who have participated in the pageant for the past seven years (she does vocals, he does Bob Olinger). "We're part of the community, and it's a fun thing to do," Beverly told me. Tom Billingsley of Hondo and his equestrian friends play "good guys, bad guys, anything you want" annually. Nancy Barone watched her son, Ronnie, play Billy as her other son, Randy, provided voices from the sound-booth. "My husband once played Dick Brewer," Nancy informed me.

That's when I realized how important the pageant is. It's been going on for so long (since 1940) that many of the current cast and crew are playing roles and doing backstage jobs that their parents did before them. It is a real folk pageant, to be sure, and the real folks provide community continuity, civic pride and a sense of local history as seen from a local viewpoint—a rarity in these impersonal modern times.

Ygenio Salazar, for example, was a survivor of the Lincoln County War, shot and left for dead during that battle in 1878, but he managed to crawl to his sister's house and was nursed back to health. Now, his grand-nephew, Joe Salazar, provides guitar music for the pageant.

Yes, I have criticism. Some of the wording in the play is so out-of-date that modern audiences are surely confused by its meaning, no matter how "historically accurate" it may be. And there could be lighting and sound adjustments. There is always room for improvement.

This year, there was some added behind-the-scenes drama. One of the young women in the dance-hall scene, Chrystal Smith, a recent Lincoln resident, lost her mother in a tragic car accident on Saturday morning. Chrystal continued with her role in the production, however, because her mom had been very proud of her participation and would have wanted it that way. "On with the show" is a long tradition in the theater. I really admired Chrystal for her strength.

I sort of kept my eye on her, in fact, and I noticed how supportive and caring her friends in the pageant were. They put their arms around her and made sure she was never alone, that they were there at all times. It was a real caring they showed for her, a real concern and a genuine sharing of her grief. Chrystal has not lived in the area very long but the community accepted her as one of theirs. It's this kind of support that makes a community more than just a place to live. This is the reason people live in small towns and villages. Caring and support is what being neighbors is all about.

The people of the San Patricio-Hondo-Lincoln-Capitan area are neighbors. Lincoln's annual pageant provides a yearly reason for them to gather, work and play and to present something to the larger community of northern Lincoln County and New Mexico. With the pageant, they have the chance to show their history, talents and community unity to the world.

At the beginning of the pageant, anyone dressed in traditional costume can take a place in a procession that represents the church-going community of Lincoln. This procession is strangely touching to the observer, as the elderly, parents, young people and children walk solemnly in line to the "church." Whole families take part in this scene and there is a feeling of respect and living history in this action that transcends theater.

As a resident of Capitan and member of the community, I plan to walk with my neighbors next year.

Jean Stillman introduces the two who were guest speakers Tuesday at Altrusa Club of Ruidoso. Mollard gave her impressions of life in the United States and Stefanie Stillman described her visit to France. The teenagers noted differences in lifestyle, eating habits and architecture; before agreeing that there's no place like home. Mollard returns to France next week and Stillman will enter Ruidoso High School as a freshman. Ruidoso High School French and English teacher Carol Hubbard was a special guest at Tuesday's meeting, and provided French posters and decorations.

It's not too often Ann Buffington's sister, Ellie Ellis, comes to town.

Ann lives in Lincoln. Ellie lives in the Rossendale Valley of Lancashire, England. This is the first time in three years Ellie has visited America, and the first time ever she has performed in New Mexico.

Ellis and her singing partner, Sara Grey, also from England, will be playing at the Silver Dollar Pavilion in Tinnie on Sunday, August 23, beginning at 8 p.m.

Ellis plays guitar and Grey plays banjo, and they will be accompanied by another Brit, Paul Downes, who plays mandocello, guitar and mandolin.

Their material is old-timey, traditional and contemporary, and they have also put some American poets to music.

The trio have toured Belgium, Bermuda, Canada, Cypress, Denmark, France and Holland as well as the British Isles, Canada and the U.S. The two women have recorded eight record albums, performed at more than 30 folk festivals, and have played at more than 150 different folk music clubs.

Ruidoso building permits show resurgence in July

by FRANKIE JARRELL
News Staff Writer

July building permits in Ruidoso topped a million dollars, doubling June's construction value, but leaving year-to-date totals lagging way behind last year's end-of-July figures.

In July the Village of Ruidoso Building Inspection Department issued 36 permits in all categories for a value of $1,279,944 and in June, 34 permits worth $656,639. Those figures are up significantly from May when 28 permits were issued worth just $456,367.

July's hefty increase brought the year-to-date for 1987 to 165 permits with a valuation of $4,590,864, just over half the 1986 end-of-July cumulatives of 193 permits worth $8,522,339.

But the July figures show a healthy increase over July 1986, when construction permits numbered 34 with a value of $606,588—less than half this July's total. In June 1986 the village saw 31 permits issued with a dollar value of $1,582,332.

The two new commercial building permits recorded in July are the first new commercial starts for 1987. A permit to build a new clubhouse at Alto Lakes Golf and Country Club accounts for $453,961 of the $488,026 total in new commercial building permits.

In July 1986 one new commercial building permit was issued with a value of $134,755, but none were issued in that category in either June 1986 or June 1987.

New single family dwelling permits for July numbered nine, worth $606,664, way up from June's four new homes valued at $434,490, as well as May's four permits worth $261,989. Last year, in July 1986, just two new home starts were recorded with a pricetag of only $130,342. In June 1986 the village saw an upsurge in residential building when 13 such permits were issued worth a hefty $1,222,473.

While new home starts remain sluggish, residential remodeling permits continue to increase. In July residential alteration/addition permits were at 22 with a value of $177,161, while in June they were at 26 worth $159,896—up from May's 15 residential redo permits with a valuation of $132,733.

Last year, in July 1986, the village issued 15 residential remodeling permits at $57,148; and in June 1986, 11 at $54,122.

Commercial remodels continue on a roller coaster of ups and downs with one permit valued at $13,000 issued in July and three worth $18,064 in June. May commercial remodels were at eight with a dollar value of $60,235.

Commercial additions and alterations last year totaled 12 at $394,600 in July (1986) and one at $134,755 in June (1986).

One church addition/alteration permit was issued in July with a value of $5,103.

One thousand permit worth $8,000 was issued in July and one worth $44,168 was issued in June.

Permits issued by the Village of Ruidoso during June and July, by subdivision, type of structure and estimated cost of construction were:

News Staff Writer

Superintendent Sid Miller has high hopes for this school year.

"We always look forward to the athletic season," he said. "Football, girls' sports, and basketball. Athletically, this should shape up to be a very good year.

"I hope we can grow in numbers and academics. And I hope we can continue to maintain and motivate the students." The student population of Ruidoso is around 1,800 in all schools.

"Physically, we're in better shape than ever. Real fine. We may have to start the year with some construction going on but the improvements are going to be worth a little hassle.

"I'm especially excited about getting into Nob Hill and the middle school. The new construction, new look should raise the moral and spirit of the students and the faculty alike."

Mike Gladden, associate superintendent, echoed Miller's sentiments.

"Our new personnel is of unusually high quality," Gladden said. "And we chose the best from a really high caliber of applicants. It will be interesting to see their performance. Ruidoso's students will really benefit from the new faculty's expertise."

Bus rules

1. The driver is in full charge of pupils when they are riding the bus. The pupils must obey the driver promptly. Pupils who do not obey rules and regulations may be reported to school officials. Transportation privileges may be revoked by school officials.

2. Pupils should never stand in the traveled portion of the roadway while waiting for the school bus.

3. Pupils who are compelled to walk a distance to meet the bus must walk on the side of the road to their left, facing the traffic, except on divided highways.

4. Pupils are not to carry on unnecessary conversation with the driver while the bus is in motion.

5. The use of tobacco in any form shall not be permitted.

6. Pupils shall not get on or off the bus or move about within the bus while it is in motion.

7. Pupils must occupy the seats assigned them by school officials or the bus driver. Pupils in less desirable seats may move into more desirable ones when the pupils assigned to the latter are not in the bus; any such moving may be done only when the bus is stopped with the driver's approval.

8. Pupils shall not at any time ride on the outside of the school bus.

9. Pupils must not extend their hands, arms, heads, or bodies through bus windows.

10. The pupils must not open or close the bus windows without permission of the driver.

11. Pupils will not be permitted to throw any item inside or outside the bus while riding the bus.

12. Rough or boisterous conduct will not be permitted in the bus. Pupils will be permitted to converse in a normal tone while in the bus.

13. Pupils shall stay out of the driver's seat and shall not tamper with equipment.

14. Any damage to the bus from any cause shall be reported to the driver.

15. Pupils will not be permitted to leave the bus on the way to and from school without the permission of a responsible school administrator in advance.

16. Pupils who must cross the road after alighting from the bus shall pass in front of the bus far enough so that the driver can see them (approximately 10 feet) and not behind the bus. Pupils shall cross the road only when the driver signals all is clear.

17. Pupils should look both ways before crossing the road.

18. Pupils must cooperate in keeping the bus clean.

19. Pupils should be on time as the bus must run on schedule. The bus will not wait for students.

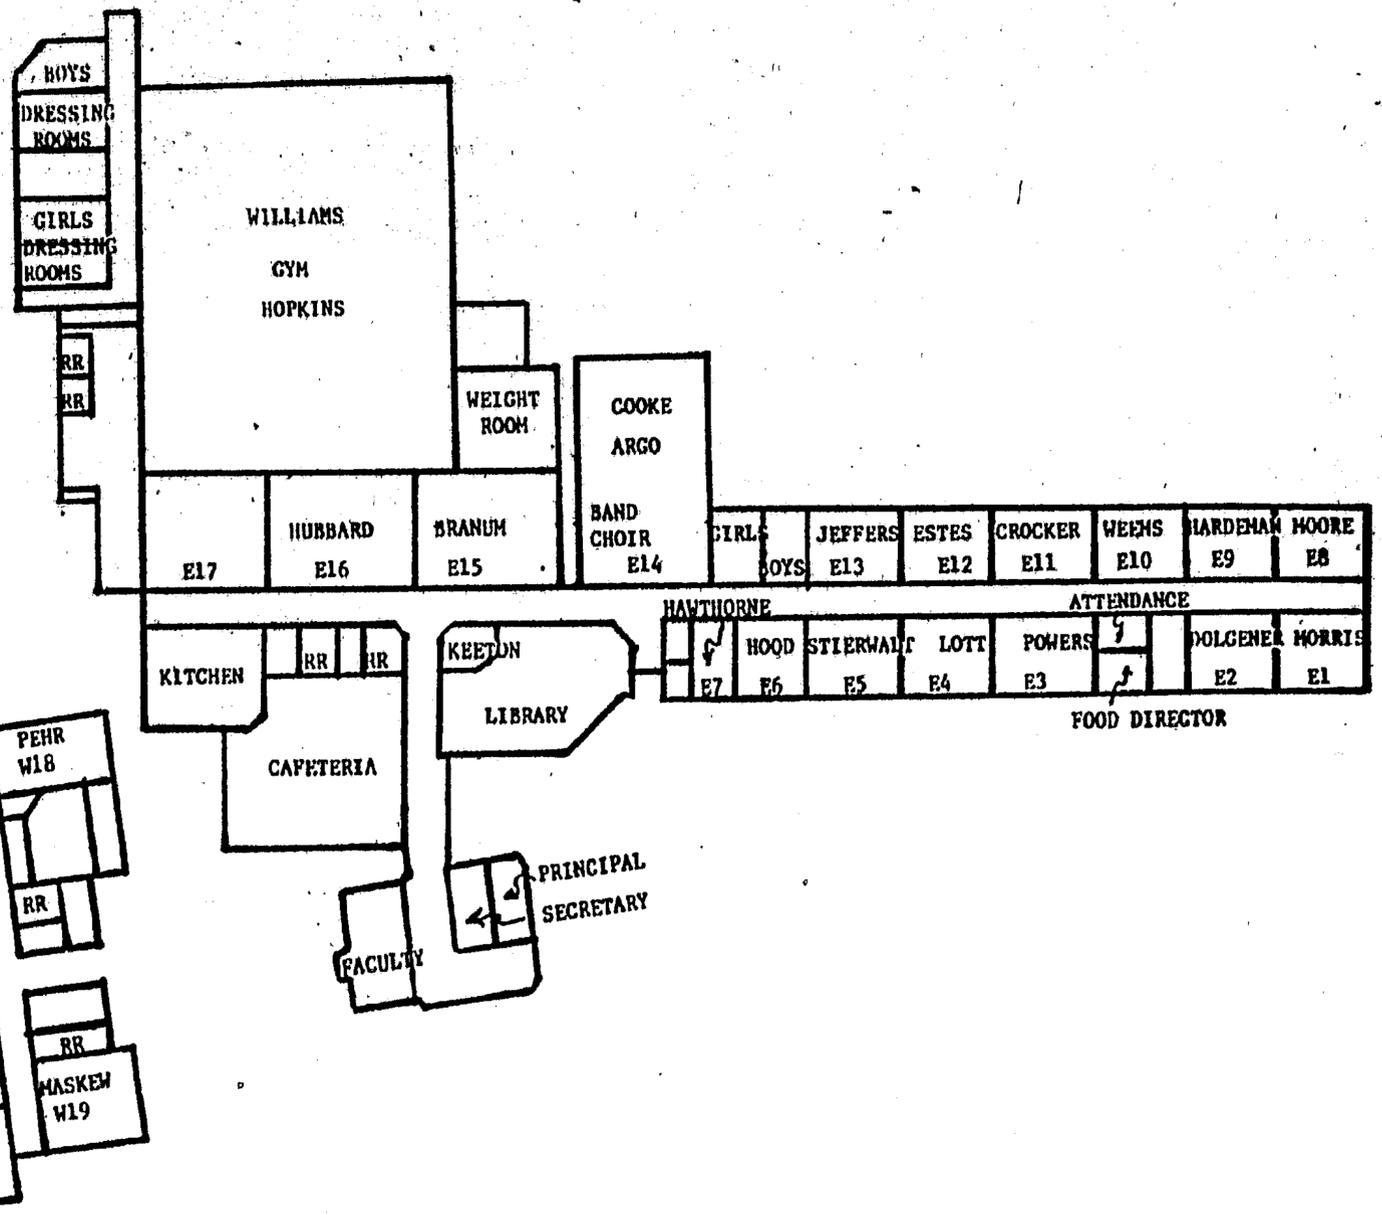

20. Pupils shall be courteous to the drivers, follow rules, and obey the drivers.

21. Pupils shall remember that to be careless or to take a chance not only endangers their own safety but the safety of others as well.

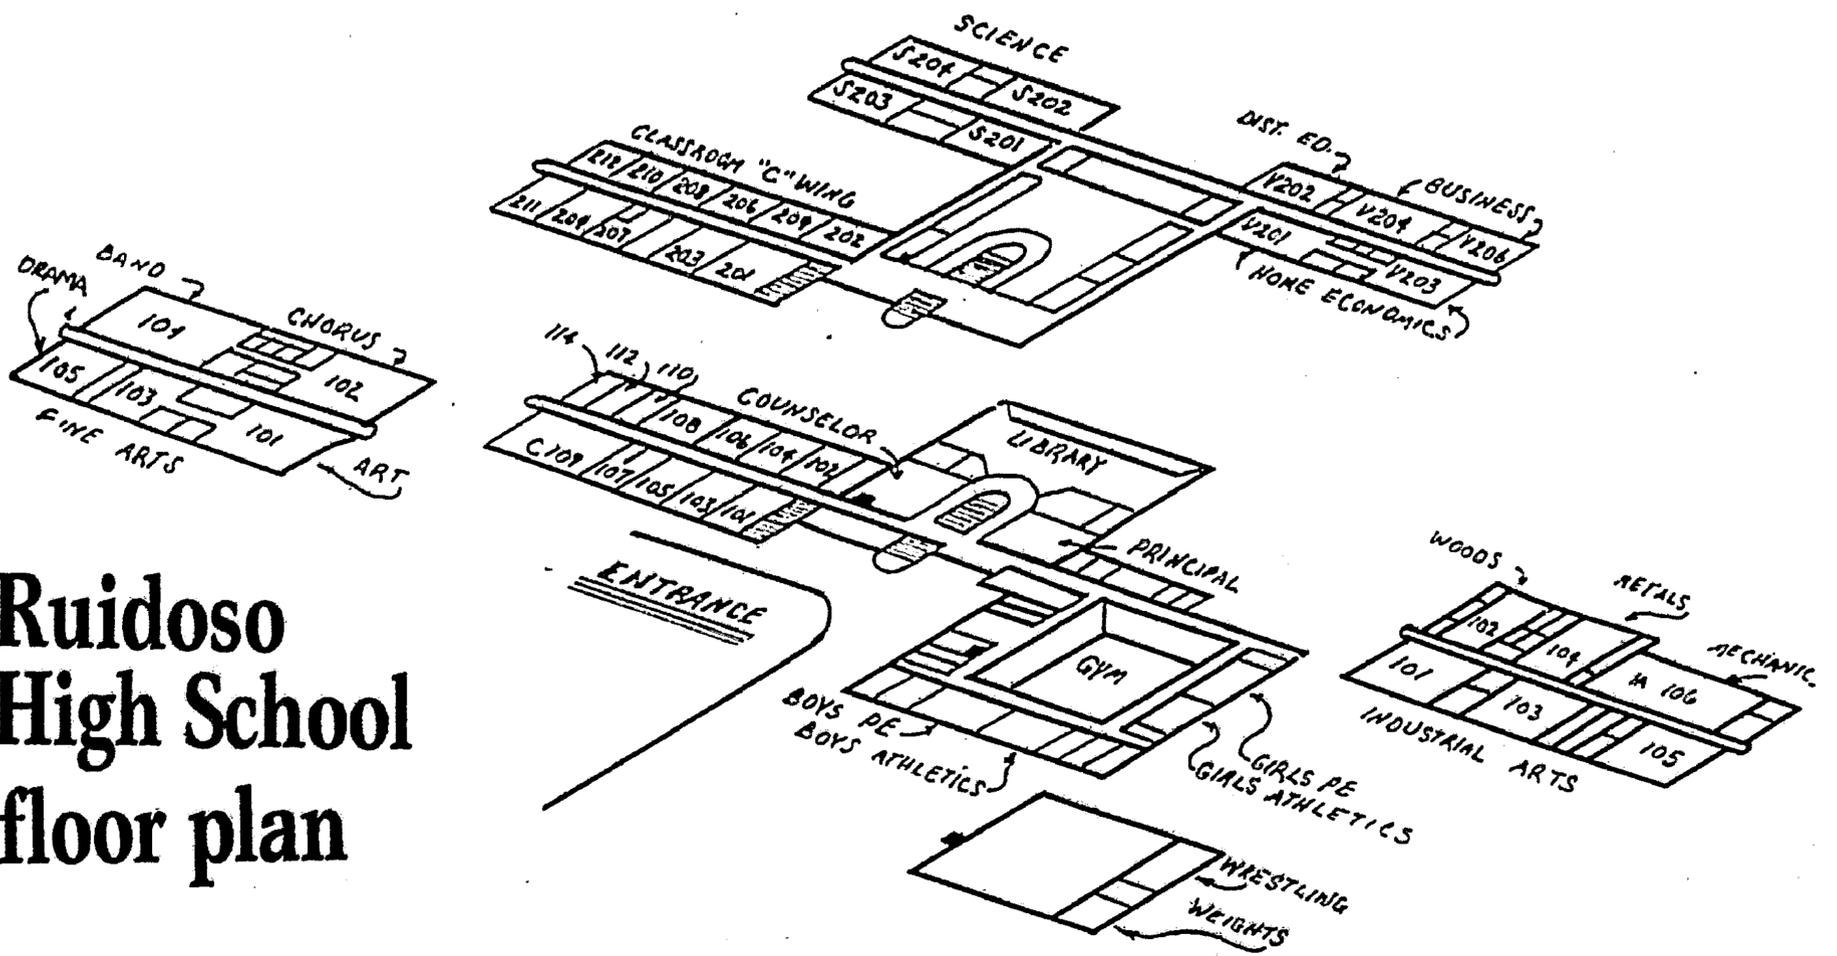

22. Animals, firearms, explosives or other dangerous objects are not permitted on the bus. No item that will block the aisle or that will be tossed around in an accident shall be carried on the bus. Exceptions must be approved by proper school authorities.

23. Pupils shall not be permitted in front of stanchion and guard rail while bus is in motion.

Ruidoso Middle School

Sixth, Seventh and Eighth Grades

Texanita Cole, Principal
Anita Hansen, Secretary

School Hours 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

FIRST DAY OF SCHOOL:

An opening assembly will be in the Middle School Gym at 8:30 a.m. the first day of school. All students will report to the gym when the bell rings. New students who have not previously enrolled will not register until 9:30 a.m.

OPEN HOUSE:

Ruidoso Middle School (RMS) will host an Open House for all parents of sixth, seventh and eighth grade students at 7 p.m. Thursday, September 17, at the RMS gym. After a brief opening, parents will go through their child's daily schedule, meeting each teacher.

Teachers will discuss and answer questions regarding grading, requirements, homework and discipline.

Parents are urged to come to this important meeting. Students should come with their parents to take them to each class.

SUPPLIES:

All students should bring a pencil, pen and notebook paper for the first day of school. Individual teachers will tell students what supplies they will need for each class.

ADVISOR-ADVISEE PARTNERSHIP:

Ruidoso Middle School continues the Advisor-Advisee Partnership (AAP) program for 1986-87 in response to a demonstrated need of easing a child's transition from elementary school through middle school and on to young adulthood.

AAP is designed to help students develop skills in studies as well as in making decisions, formulating values and inter-relating with others. A major AAP goal is to provide an adult advocate for every student.

Students will attend AAP each morning. The program will be based on "Skills for Adolescence," a program designed specifically for students this age in developing skills and self confidence they will need through the teen years. It addresses causes of many adolescent problems and teaches basic life skills necessary in facing problems.

Linda Hawthorne is the AAP coordinator.

CLOSED CAMPUS POLICY:

The Ruidoso School Board passed a closed campus policy for RMS. All students are restricted to campus. No student may leave campus between the time he or she arrives on school grounds and the time he or she leaves by bus or with a parent or guardian.

Any student leaving campus during lunch or during the school day without properly checking out through the office with a parent note will receive an automatic school suspension for three days. Zeroes will be recorded for all grades during the three days.

If a second occasion should occur, the student will be referred to the Juvenile Probation Officer or the Social Services Center plus receive additional suspension.

NEW STUDENT REGISTRATION:

For any new students entering grades 6, 7 or 8, registration and scheduling will be from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday, August 25, at the new Middle School Office. No records from previous schools will be required, but parents or guardians will need to fill out and sign a transcript request form.

Students who were in Ruidoso Schools at the close of last year do not have to register.

ELECTIVE FEE:

Because of rising costs and budget limitations, each student will need to pay $10 for elective fees. This needs to be paid by the end of the second week of each semester. If there is a financial problem, arrangements to pay the fee can be made. Please talk with Mrs. Cole.

Special Education

Special Education classes are offered at all grade levels in Ruidoso schools. Services are intended for those students who cannot function in regular classrooms. Services vary with the level of need, from one-hour-a-day resource rooms to full-day programs for those who require them.

Exceptional children served are:
Behaviorally Disordered
Communication Disordered
Gifted
Hearing Impaired
Learning Disabled
Mentally Handicapped
Multiply Impaired
Physically Impaired
Visually Impaired

Seventeen full-time teachers work in special education programs. Support programs are provided on a contracted-service basis and include language therapy, physical therapy, psychological therapy, occupational therapy and audiology.

Anyone having a legitimate interest in a student may make a referral for screening. This should be done through a principal, who will then refer the child to a screening committee. Formal evaluation will be initiated only with parent permission to do so, and after need has been established.

Karen Tillman is responsible for supervising special education programs in the district. Any questions regarding special services may be directed to her at White Mountain Elementary School, 258-4220.
