State MainStreet officials help organize local effort

"We know that MainStreet works," said Ursula Boatright Wednesday. State director for the state and national downtown revitalization program, Boatright was in Ruidoso for the first time since this town was selected to participate in the public/private sector partnership project.

Boatright and architect Ed Boles, also of the state office, told more than 30 people at a public meeting Wednesday about what the self-help program entails and what local people can expect Ruidoso and Roswell, both selected earlier this month, join 11 other New Mexico MainStreet communities.

Making their first official visit, Boatright and Boles met with village officials and administration, walked through Midtown, offered training for the Ruidoso MainStreet task force members and conducted Wednesday's public meeting.

"Ruidoso is probably the most unusual community in our program from an architectural standpoint," noted Boles. Both he and Boatright stressed the individual nature of MainStreet's three-year incremental program. As they showed slides of other MainStreet programs they cautioned against comparing this village to other towns. They said it's far too soon to set out specific plans and goals for Ruidoso MainStreet.

"There's a whole lot of consensus building to be done," said Boles. "I think everybody agrees you have a major problem with sidewalks," he added.

Ruidoso, upon acceptance in the MainStreet program, was granted a Community Development Block Grant that will fund $12,000 of the project director's first year salary, as well as provide three-year resource and service contracts with the state office and the National Heritage Trust Resources available vary from videotapes and slides on a variety of subjects to advice from professionals in economics, architecture, marketing and other areas.

During the reconnaissance visit Wednesday and Thursday, Boatright and Boles set task force members on a course that will include hiring a project director and electing a permanent board of directors.

Selected for the interim task force, the group that will aid in the hiring of a project director and the formation of the board, were Margaret McDonald Lahey, Mark Strathmann, Herb Brunell, Ovella Estes, Alden Deyo, Mary Bradley, Ned Agold, Marchand McDougal and Mary and Jeff Maul. Those nine participated in an intensive training session on Thursday.

Boatright said resumes of 75 candidates for the job of project director already have been received as a result of advertisements in regional newspapers. She said the local board will hire a project director by March 15.

The new director will join other state project coordinators and members of the boards in MainStreet communities for a training session April 6-8, in Roswell. Boatright said a resource team, selected with the special needs of this community in mind, will visit Ruidoso in June.

"This is not a hand-out program," said Boatright. "We give technical assistance - we do not give out money."

Lahey said Ruidoso has responded well to the program, making pledges of money and services over the three-year contract. She said pledges of cash and in-kind services amount to about $80,000, including office space, secretarial services and architectural services. Lahey said Conte presented Ruidoso MainStreet with a check for $1,000 on Thursday.

In order to become a voting member of the organization, a pledge must be made for cash or services. The permanent board will be selected during a meeting at 7 p.m. Monday, February 15, in council chambers of Ruidoso Municipal Administrative Center.

Boatright and Boles scheduled a press conference Thursday afternoon at the Timbers Mall, and were the guests of honor at a reception Thursday evening at Nottingham's.

When Senator Pete Domenici talked at Ruidoso High School Thursday, he recalled his days as a teacher, and then heard what's on the minds of Ruidoso seniors.

"I was a good teacher, and I had a good time," said Domenici remembering his one year as an algebra teacher 26 years ago in Albuquerque.

"I regret to tell you, nobody has decided what you are going to do," announced Domenici. "Nobody has decided for you how high you can go to achieve and be," he added.

Domenici said in some countries the government has made those decisions by the time its young people are seniors in high school. He warned of risks that accompany freedom of choice.

"You're not going to make the right decisions all the time," said Domenici, advising the teens not to be embarrassed by wrong choices in majors and careers, but to keep moving ahead.

"In the United States there's just tremendous opportunity that's coupled with this risk."

He advised the students to get a good education.

"Your generation will be an opportunity-filled generation. There are going to be more jobs, more good jobs, in America than people to fill them," predicted Domenici. "That just happens to be a fact of demographics."

Domenici credited the American form of government, not the government, with the unparalleled success of this country up until the past seven or eight years.

"We've taught some countries how to do it and they're doing it better than us," noted Domenici.

"I went into government sort of a skeptic," said Domenici. "After 15 years and seeing a lot of the world I remain far more convinced about

Sen. Domenici visits school, village, airport

"It was a great landing out at the new airport," said Senator Pete Domenici during a breakfast meeting Thursday with the Ruidoso mayor and Village Council and members of the Economic Development Corporation of Lincoln County.

Domenici, on his first visit to Lincoln County since the opening of the Sierra Blanca Regional Airport, joked that his plane had very little trouble with the potholes in the brand new runway on Fort Stanton Mesa. He stopped off in Ruidoso on a five-day tour that focused on the problems of local governments and schools.

After an hour at Ruidoso Municipal Administrative Center, Domenici went on to Ruidoso High School where he spoke to members of the senior class.

"I'm firmly convinced that you all have to take care of most of the problems, in spite of all the chatter about how big Washington is," Domenici told Ruidoso officials. He congratulated area leaders on the speed with which the regional airfield was built once the decision was made and the land was released through an appropriations bill. He also congratulated them on getting state funds for the airport road.

"I understand you need some fire engines up there, and you need them rather quickly," said Domenici. He said federal funding already was authorized, and surplus fire engines might be available. "We'll help you all we can," said Domenici.

He went on to tell the group of

The Ruidoso area woke up to a four-inch blanket of snow today (Monday).

Ski Apache reported six inches of new snowfall since 3 a.m. with snow still falling at 9 a.m. That new snow leaves the ski area with 40 inches midway on the slopes.

Ruidoso Police reported business as usual, with normal patrol schedules. In spite of icy and snowpacked road conditions, just two fender benders had been reported early today.

Area schools responded by delaying schedules and rerouting school buses. Ruidoso and Capitan schools both reported delayed schedules, and buses didn't run from Ruidoso to Mesquite.

Street Department crews reported working regular schedules today, with a few blades on the streets this morning.

Basically, what they're doing is watching intersections, said village manager Frank Potter. He said conditions didn't merit enacting the full snow removal crews.

More snow is expected, according to the National Weather Service.

Students question Domenici: student loans to Star Wars

"We've taught some countries how to do it and they're doing it better than us," noted Domenici.

"I went into government sort of a skeptic," said Domenici. "After 15 years and seeing a lot of the world I remain far more convinced about the absolute majestic qualities of our freedoms and our system," he added.

"It can be made better all the time," said Domenici, encouraging young people to study and learn about the government and the Constitution.

Students had plenty of questions for Domenici. They asked about the Social Security system, student financial aid, the defense budget, the deficit, the new relationship with the Soviet Union and why New Mexico was turned down in its efforts to recruit two new projects into the state.

Senator Domenici assured the students that the Social Security system is strong and is absolutely solvent into the next century without any changes. He said the program will be changed and strengthened.

"I just don't think you ought to worry about it," said Domenici.

When asked about student financial aid, Domenici said there are three major myths circulating about the government, and the main one is that the Congress has curtailed the college assistance program.

If you want to go to school, and you want help, it'll be there," said Domenici, noting there are more student loan programs today than ever before. He advised students to think about working part-time and borrowing less while getting an education.

When asked about the other two myths, the senator said one is that the defense budget caused the deficit and the other is that Congress has dramatically reduced taxes, causing the deficit.

"We have not drastically cut taxes on the average taxpayer," said Domenici.

Questioned over what did cause the deficit, and what can be done

Economic Development Corp. elects board

The Economic Development Corporation of Lincoln County has elected a board of directors, and the new members were announced at Thursday's general membership meeting at Texas-New Mexico Power Company.

Elected as Class B directors were Rod Adamson, Buddy Bundick, Roy Crocker, Dr. William Harrison, Cindy Lynch, Ronnie Paulger, Scott Shafer and Don Shaw.

The board also includes seven Class A members, including the villages of Ruidoso, Ruidoso Downs, Capitan, Lincoln County, the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce, Carrizozo and Corona.

New board members also drew for terms of office, with Adamson and Bundick getting one-year terms; Crocker, Harrison and Paulger, two-year terms; and Shaw, Shafer and Lynch, three-year terms.

The directors were elected by a ballot vote of the general membership.

An interim board had been directing the activities of the group, and interim board leader Bundick announced at the beginning of the meeting that a decision had been reached to enlarge the Class A membership to include Corona. As the Class A membership was enlarged, the Class B membership was increased to the present eight-member level.

Ballot Committee chairman Alden Deyo announced that 85 ballots were returned, no tie votes were recorded, and nominees received between 78-29 votes. Members at the meeting voted to accept and certify the election results.

Board members agreed to meet after the general meeting to elect officers and agree on the next meeting date.

Friday, Bundick reported that officers were not elected as all members of the board were not present. The next board meeting will be at Texas-New Mexico Power Company at 7 p.m. Thursday, February 4.

the growing need to diversify the state's economy from the dependence on federal money. He said for all practical purposes this state is number one in the union for getting money back on a per capita basis.

Since the federal government may have to restrain spending on defense, an industry that draws federal money into New Mexico, local and state leaders should get on with capitalizing on the state's strengths, said Domenici. He named tourism and the beauty of the area as two of New Mexico's strong points.

"Clearly you are a mecca, you ought to capitalize on that and diversify in other areas," he said.

"Make sure our state has a good business climate so it will grow and prosper," he advised local leaders.

"We cannot have economic growth and prosperity if the nation isn't growing," said Domenici, noting the nation has had 60 months of growth. He said the nation shouldn't have such a large deficit after those months of growth.

He said this nation must understand we're now part of a world market, and become competitive in that market.

New Mexico has its own regional problems caused by a slump in the oil industry, but Domenici said the state is overcoming that, and its citizens "are beginning to think like New Mexicans."

The state university system will have to be enhanced before this state can reach its maximum potential, said Domenici. He said the governor will present the legislature with educational proposals during the upcoming session.

"If you don't like the governor's package ... be constructive," advised Domenici, stressing the importance of improving the state university, particularly in science and mathematics.

"We no longer can have the luxury of mediocrity in our schools," warned Domenici. He said unemployment won't be a problem in years to come, but the lack of trained people to fill available jobs will be a big problem.

Questioned over the water rights case involving the Mescalero Apache Indian Tribe, the Village of Ruidoso and other water right owners on the Rio Ruidoso, Domenici sympathized, but said he knew of no other way to settle such water disputes. He advised Ruidoso to defend its rights with the best resources available.

"You have as much right to protect your water rights as the Indians have to protect theirs," said Domenici. "It comes down to a battle of the experts," he added.

Domenici explained that the United States government, when it entered into treaties with the Indians, became the tribes' trustee. "As trustees, we are charged with guarding their resources," said Domenici. "We are obligated," he added.

Two hurt in accident Fri.; one hurt in Monday wreck

Two Ruidoso drivers were treated and released at Lincoln County Medical Center after their vehicles collided at 11:30 a.m. Friday at the intersection of Sudderth and Mescalero drives.

Patricia M. Smitherman, 35, was stopped in her 1986 Chevrolet at the Mescalero traffic light when her vehicle was rear-ended by a 1979 Toyota driven by Nancy H. Hernandez, 49, according to Ruidoso Police reports. Both cars were eastbound on Sudderth, said police.

No citations were issued.

An accident with injuries was recorded on Sunday, but the official report hadn't been filed early today (Monday).

A 31-year-old Mescalero woman was treated at Lincoln County Medical Center with injuries she received in a one-car crash last Monday.

Police said the driver's head went through the windshield. No citations were issued.

Rabies vaccination clinic set countywide for Saturday

A rabies vaccination clinic has been scheduled for Saturday, January 23.

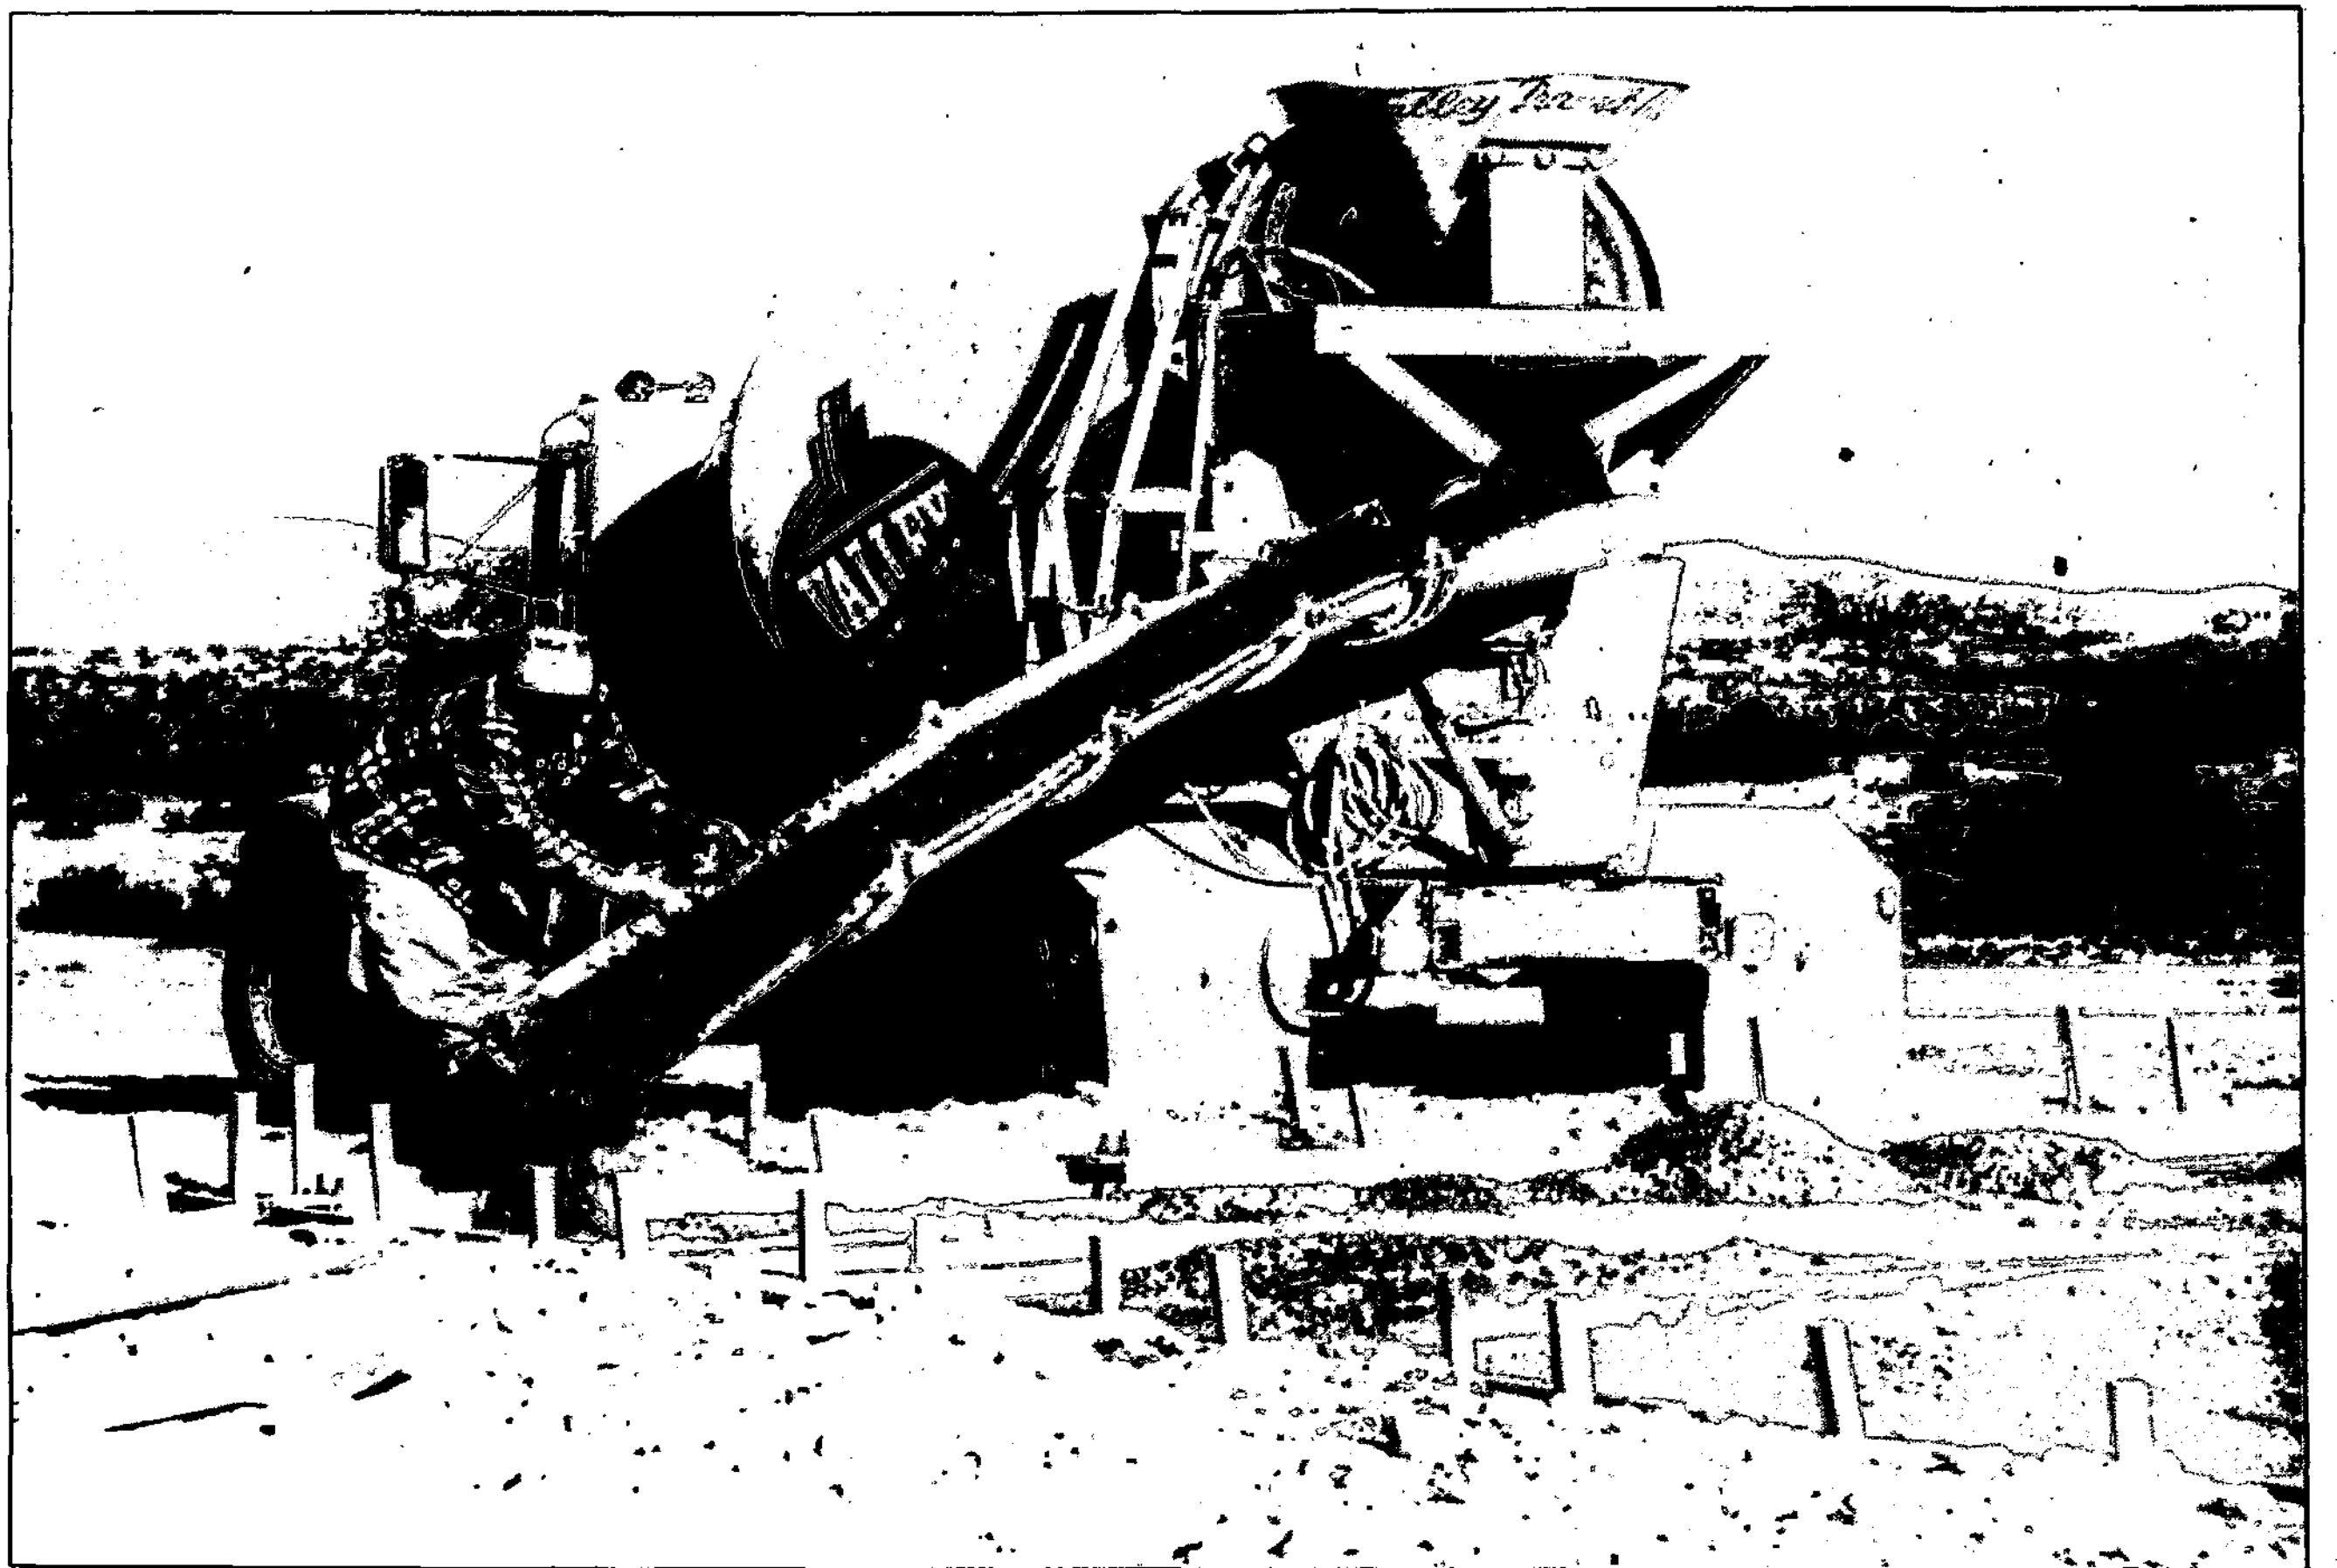

Pet owners may bring animals between 1 and 3 p.m. to both Ruidoso fire stations, Ruidoso Downs fire station, Capitan fire station or the Hondo post office.

Pets may be taken to a clinic near the old courthouse in Lincoln from 10 to 11 a.m. the same day.

Cost of the shot is $5, and pet owners are reminded that yearly rabies vaccinations for dogs and cats are required by state law.

Organizers of the clinics remind those attending that it will be safer for everyone if pets are restrained on a leash.

If it is snowing, the clinic will be postponed.

The work goes on Construction crews are shown pouring the foundation for a terminal building, gang hangar and maintenance building at Sierra Blanca Regional Airport. The new facilities will be ready to go by spring, according to airport manager Tim Morris. In the meantime, airport visitors are invited to use the waiting room and restroom facilities in the modular building that also houses the airport administration offices, said Morris. He said the building is open 24 hours a day and the coffeepot is on.

Ruidoso High School seniors listen closely to remarks by Republican Senator Pete Domenici Thursday. Students had lots of questions for Domenici, this state's senior senator.

The seniors questioned Domenici over finance, education and defense.

about it, Domenici recalled two very significant recession years in 1980 and 1982. He said entitlement programs have continued at 1980 levels and are growing; and the administration "had to play catch-up on defense."

"You add all that up and that's what caused the deficit," explained Domenici, adding this country also had had 60 months of inflation and a serious trade imbalance.

Asked if he's optimistic about the new relationship with the Soviet Union, Domenici said he and his advisers asked themselves why the Soviet Union changed, and decided Russian leaders are worried about their economy, which is characterized by super products for the military and almost no products on the domestic side.

"Perhaps the time has come for them that they want to change internally, and have to open up to the world," speculated Domenici.

Responding to a student's question over why New Mexico was recently turned down for two major projects, Domenici said part of the failure was in the university system where math, science and engineering departments are good, but not superb.

Domenici said the state isn't using the national laboratories located here as well as it should.

"We're going to build the universities up ... the governor has some great ideas," said Domenici.

To a question on education, Domenici replied, "I don't think anyone can be critical of a state that spends as much of her resources on education as New Mexico." But he said, "We have to do better."

On the Strategic Defense Initiative, Domenici admitted it can't provide a shield for this whole nation, but said it can form a partial shield and will be effective against nuclear accidents.

"For some reason the Soviet Union is frightened to death of it," noted Domenici.

After his speech at RHS, the senator was off to a meeting with the governor in Hobbs.

Color your Rainbow is the theme for this year's Girl Scout cookie sale that kicks off Friday, January 22, and continues through February 5.

"Calling all cookie monsters" is the cry of the 52 Lincoln County Girl Scouts who will take orders during the sale for cookies to be delivered March 7-15.

"The Girl Scouts will be selling seven different kinds of cookies—some for chocolate lovers, some for peanut butter freaks, even one for people who don't like sweets," reads an announcement of the sale. "So your choice isn't going to be easy."

Girl Scout cookies cost $2 a box, for any of the seven varieties.

"You can buy a box of each, and try them all," encourage sale coordinators.

Sale organizers say the Thin Mints are the traditional best sellers, with Scot-Teas (a Girl Scout-style shortbread) a close second. This year the Jubilee will be available—that's caramel with chocolate stripes. Golden Yangles

(a cheese cracker) are also part of this year's offerings. Other cookies for sale include the Classic Creme, Hoedown and Savannah.

Girl Scout cookies are made with top quality ingredients and without preservatives, according to a news release, which ends, "They're delicious—and they help Girl Scouting in our town."

DECA Ski-a-thon will benefit Muscular Dystrophy Association

Ruidoso High School DECA Chapter is sponsoring a Ski-a-thon to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

DECA sponsor Eddie Parker said the fund drive will be in association with the school ski program, and students will be gathering pledges over the next few weeks. Parker said sponsors will be asked to pledge an amount of their choosing for each hour the student skis.

The ski program is set for six Tuesdays, with students skiing about three hours a week.

All funds raised will go to Muscular Dystrophy, a charity endorsed by National DECA. The money goes to benefit research and muscular dystrophy patients.

Parker said students in the middle and elementary school will be invited to join in the project, and prizes will be awarded for top fundraisers in the different schools. He said the student raising the most money among all the school will receive a grand prize.

Parker said the Muscular Dystrophy Association poster boy was at the national DECA convention last year, prompting Ruidoso students to become interested in helping victims of that debilitating disease.

"He just ripped their hearts out," kids told Parker. "It's good for these kids to do something for somebody else," he added.

Parker encourages everyone contacted to make a pledge, and said checks can be made out to the Muscular Dystrophy Association. For more information, or to make a pledge, call Parker at Ruidoso High School.

Maintenance important for chimneys

It's that time of the year when many area residents will be considering using the services of a chimney sweep.

According to sweep J.R. Atherton, of Atherton Chimney Service, there are a lot of things to know before committing to a chimney service contract.

Atherton points out that sweeps are not licensed, nor is there any certification, examinations, schooling, governing body or code of ethics for sweeps in New Mexico.

"It helps to have a little knowledge of the subject to protect yourself," says Atherton, who, by the way, looks nothing like Dick VanDyke in "Mary Poppins" - the chimney sweep most people think of when they hear the words.

Atherton recommends that people with fireplaces and wood burning stoves read a book called "Wood Heat Safety" by Jay W. Shelton. "A small investment in reading time could save you money, and possibly your home," Atherton says.

According to Atherton, most reputable sweeps will inspect your fireplace or wood burning system at no charge. If there are problems or potential problems, an experienced sweep will take the time to explain what he or she feels is unsafe and what it would take to remedy the situation.

Here are some tips Atherton offers to help you determine the integrity of your sweep:

-Ask who the sweep's liability insurance agent is. If he or she can't tell you, don't hire that person.

-Ask for references, especially if there is to be more than just a simple cleaning involved.

-Ask how he or she will clean your chimney.

-Bear in mind that a fireplace takes at least an hour to clean properly, a wood stove slightly less, and a fireplace insert slightly longer.

-Unless your roof and chimney top is humanly inaccessible, do not accept a cleaning that doesn't include working from the top.

-Ask your sweep to educate you on any points you are unclear about. If it can't be explained why a particular repair should be done, there's a good chance you can't trust him or her.

-If you trust your sweep and have confidence in his or her abilities, don't begrudge the expense, if reasonable. Remember, after the cleaning and repair, your fireplace or stove should be worry-free and safe from hazards.

"If you put some time into making an intelligent decision about hiring a sweep, you will have the assurance and cost effectiveness you want, and you will be able to enjoy your fireplace without fear," Atherton says.

Chicken franchise earns Five Star Award

Joe and Paula Farr, area Kentucky Fried Chicken franchisees, have become three-time winners of the Five Star Award for meeting KFC Corporation's highest standards for restaurant management, operations and customer satisfaction.

The Farris previously received the Five Star Award in 1985 and 1986. They operate five restaurants located in Alamogordo, Carlsbad, Clovis, Hobbs, and Ruidoso.

Each "star" in the Five Star Award represents an area of Kentucky Fried Chicken's highest operating goals including quality in food, facilities and service; sanitation standards; and promotion programs. Franchisees are evaluated annually.

In presenting the award, Bill Evans, KFC Corp.'s senior vice president, franchising and franchise services, said: "The Five Star Award is very difficult to earn, but it's worth the special effort. The Farris and their staff can be extremely proud of this accomplishment."

The Dreamer

by Dan Storm

Winter's Turning Point Draws Ever Nearer

With each passing day—and they are passing at a rapid rate—the sun climbs a little higher in its journey through the sky, warming the world little by little, so that we pass the "Deep of Winter" and begin looking toward spring. The twentieth is generally the winter's turning point.

Right now there is a slight lull in the wind; light clouds are moving in from the west, and there is a flavor of snow in the air.

Let us be thankful to The Lord for the good snow and a mild winter.

CHECK THE CLASSIFIEDS For All Your Needs

"Who Has Seen The Wind?"

Today, January sixteen, the words of a verse of my early childhood goes running through my mind:

"Who has seen the wind?"

Neither you nor I.

But when the trees

Bow down their heads,

The Wind is passing by."

You can feel this was a day in March the way the west wind is flying down the valley; and although you cannot see it, you can see the cedars "bowing down their heads" and the pines and river trees swaying, and thrashing their branches.

Also you can feel the wind, with its unseen power pushing you back as you walk against it. And you can smell the pure life-giving freshness of the snow, carried by the western gale all the way from the White Mountain. Here in the vale almost all the snow has been melted away by the warm western winds of the last week, blowing down the sunny valley.

Going back to our little verse, although you cannot see the wind, you can hear its many songs and wind-hoop tones. It calls, hums, halloo over the roof and under the eaves; it strums a chiming harmony along the power lines; and strikes melodious chords among the branches of the oak and walnut trees.

As the years go by, our friend, the West Wind is more and more welcome as he comes singing and calling down the vale. The wind brings moisture from the east; it helps the trees limber up their bark so that the sap may rise; it spreads the pollen of the children of Mother Earth—and helps Mother Earth in countless ways.

The wind sends us a spiritual message, reminding us of the great power and the blessing of things that we cannot see.

Bre'r Rabbit

Although the temperature is up to fifty-five on a sunny day, the snow birds are out in front of the house feeding, not minding the wind at all, and right now there is a half grown cottontail rabbit nibbling the grass and munching on the bird feed amongst the snow birds.

During the fall there were three or four baby cottontails around the house. The smallest one became very tame, and as the winter snows arrived he stayed under the very low branches of a cedar bush—while the others went away. The snow birds shared their feed with him, and I began giving him some alfalfa hay. Today, a little after high noon, he is resting under his cedar bush, his large round eyes full of good will and contentment—looking out at the windy world.

I call him "Bre'r Rabbit" as I remember in childhood reading the stories of Uncle Remus; and his name in Spanish is "Senor Conejo", who in the Mexican stories outwits his neighbor, "Senor Coyote."

Surely little Peter Rabbit, by being at home among the snow birds, and dwelling happily here in the yard, is sending us a message that we, the people of the world, should look to the day when we learn to live in peace, in brotherhood under the Fatherhood of God.

Hoopsters beat NMMI; lose to Artesia Fri.

The Ruidoso High School varsity basketball team took one win and was defeated once in action last week.

Against Artesia Friday night, the Warriors fell, 76-55, on the winners' court. Lead scorer for the Warriors was Kirk Ryan, who sank 27 for Ruidoso.

The team returned to winning ways Saturday night in the Warrior gym as the Warriors beat New Mexico Military Institute, 64-53. Late in the fourth quarter, NMMI closed the gap to 51-45, but the Warriors held fast, increased their lead, and chalked up a victory.

Against NMMI, Kirk Ryan was the lead scorer, sinking 26 points for Ruidoso. Sigurd Schmitz also scored in double figures with 16.

"It's fun to be back in the win column," said Warrior coach Gene Segura. Now the Warriors will turn their sights to Alamogordo, who they'll play Friday in Alamogordo.

The Warriors are now 5-7 on the season.

Girls drop games to Lovington and Artesia

The Ruidoso High School girls varsity basketball team lost to two tough opponents in action last week.

Thursday night the Warrior girls fell to visiting Artesia, 49-27.

The Warriors again lost Saturday night to a tough Lovington team by a score of 74-46.

Against Artesia, the Warrior girls fell behind, 13-0, early in the first quarter and could never recover.

Artesia led, 17-4, at the end of the first quarter and increased it to 28-13 at halftime.

Tara Miller led the Warrior scoring with nine points.

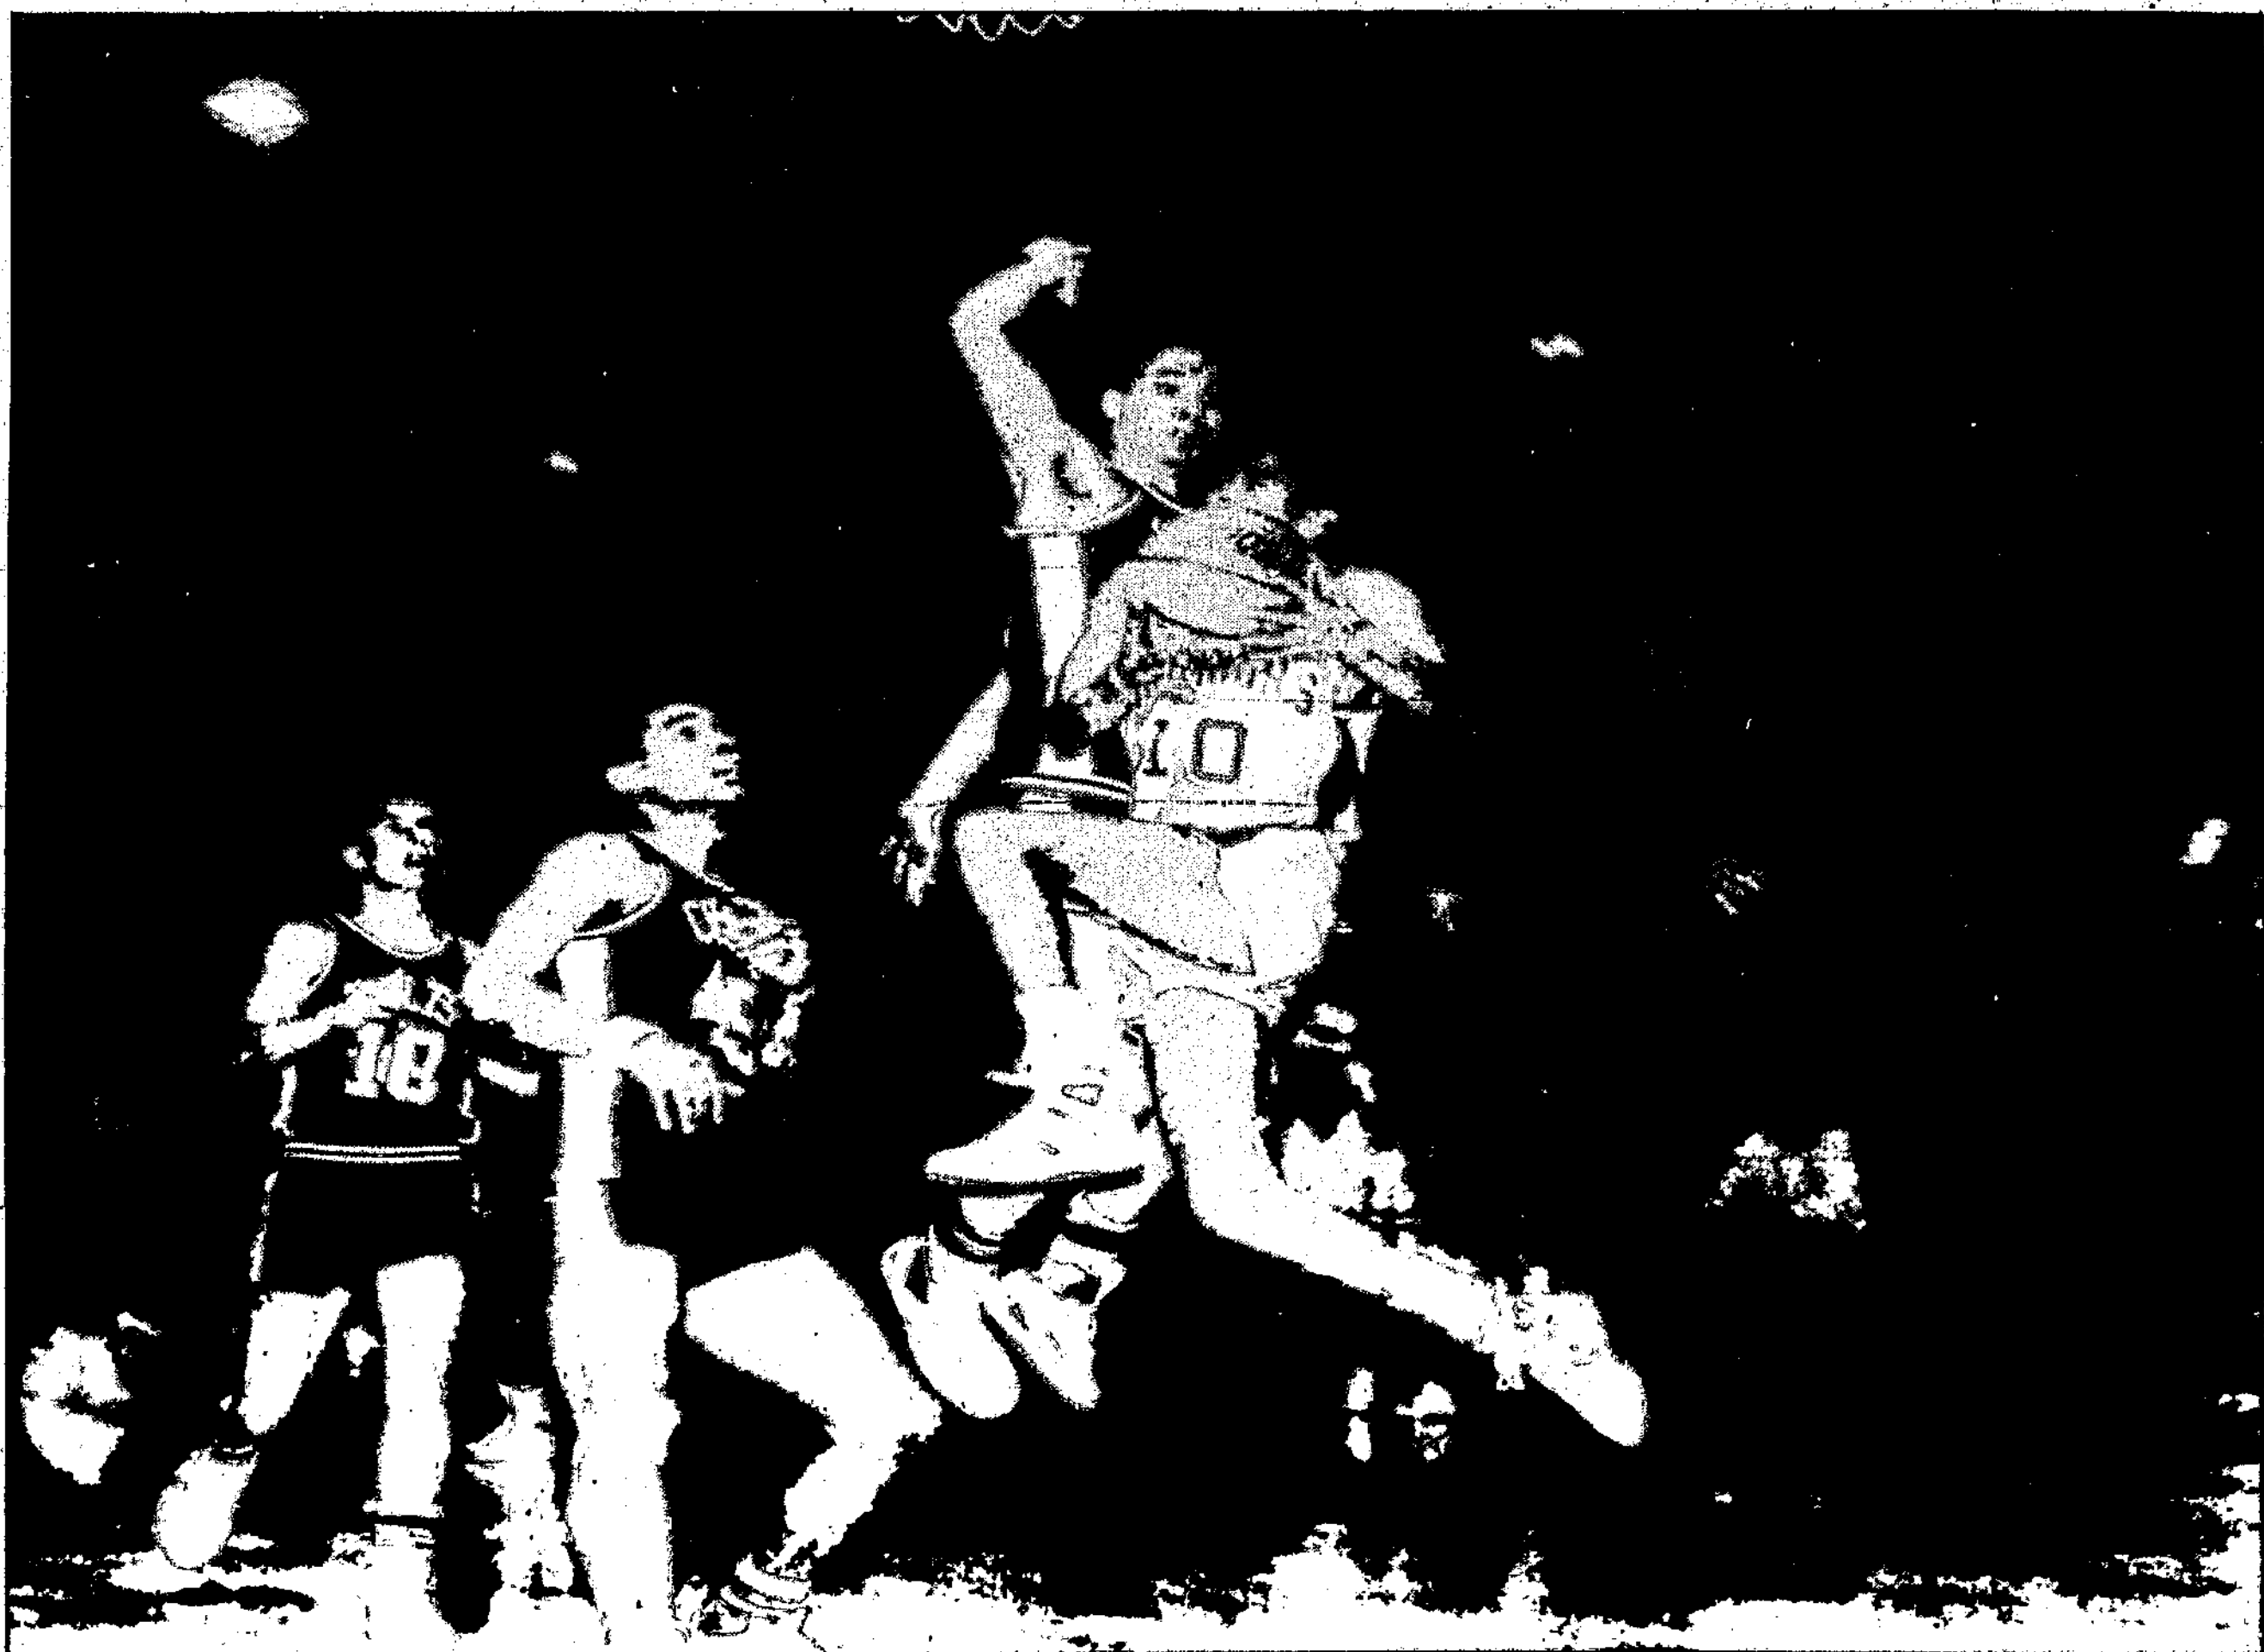

Ruidoso had defeated Artesia by two points in overtime in the season opener, but this game was a different story.

Against Lovington, Tara Miller again was a lead scorer, with 14. Also scoring 14 was Tammy Osborne, and Jennifer Jimenez scored eight.

"They (Lovington) are very big," said Warrior girls varsity basketball Coach Sergio Castanon. He predicted the Wildcats probably will be in the state championships. "We did the best we could."

The Warrior junior varsity lost a 45-23 game to Artesia Thursday afternoon. Joellyn Comanche led the Warriors with four points.

Ruidoso's girls varsity and junior varsity will host Socorro Friday, January 22. The Warriors will be at Coble for the District 3-AAA opener Saturday, January 23.

Ruidoso High School Warrior Ira Sago (No. 10) sails under the net in action Saturday in the Warrior gymnasium. The Ruidoso squad defeated NMMI, 64-53. Warriors next will play Alamogordo in Alamogordo, as district play approaches.

Opinion

Inside the Capitol

by Jay Miller

SANTA FE—With every 30-day session, the Legislature moves a little closer to a 40-day session.

The halls of the state Capitol Building this week looked suspiciously as though the Legislature were already in session.

The House Appropriations and Finance Committee started meetings on the morning of Jan. 11 this year—more than eight days earlier than the Jan. 19 noontime convening of the Legislature.

This is no earlier than the HAFS started meeting two years ago. The difference this year is that the House Education Committee is also already meeting to develop the public school portion of the appropriation bill.

Between the two committees, there are already 34 legislators in the Capitol drawing per diem just like the Legislature was already in session.

The idea of many key legislators arriving early has its merits. They need to start the ball rolling on those items which have to be ready as early in the session as possible.

Instead of a longer session, maybe the Legislature should look at those other items which slow the process of getting the session started at full speed.

A major factor in bringing the Legislature to a complete halt only two days after it convenes is the need to take four days off to print the deluge of bills which are introduced at the beginning of the session.

The solution is what many other states call pre-filing of bills—the ability to drop one's bills in the hopper prior to the beginning of the session so that when everyone arrives, the proposed legislation is already printed and ready to go.

With the deadlock of the Legislative Finance Committee causing that body not to be able to make any formal recommendations, HAFS Chairman Max Coll has devised a novel approach to having LFC recommended figures, anyway.

The LFC staff has been asked to reach consensus on what its members feel should be the recommended figures and list them alongside the administration's recommendations.

LFC staff members insist they are comfortable with the approach but it leaves them inherently vulnerable to attacks from all sides.

Sooner or later, some LFC member is going to charge that the staff consensus is certainly not what the consensus of committee members was before the big stalemate.

Some non-LFC members are already asserting that the LFC always got led around by its staff anyway and that this is merely formalizing the custom.

The absence of LFC recommendations may mean a loss of power for that committee in another way, also.

The Legislative Education Study Committee was created by the Legislature long after the LFC was already the dominant financial force. The LESC was always a stepchild—for many years having its recommendations altered, upstaged, and even sometimes ignored by the LFC.

This year, education committee chairman Sam Vigil has let it be known that his committee is not interested in LFC staff recommendations.

Instead, the education committee will use LESC recommendations. Evidently, the process has already received the agreement of Coll, so the appropriations committee will not consider LFC staff recommendations on public schools either.

This may fulfill a dream that Vigil and previous education committee chairmen have had for years—to be the determining factor in the House's public school appropriation process.

The education committees of both houses for years have been looking for a little respect.

Last year, with no blaring trumpets to announce the major change in procedure, the House Appropriations Committee passed with virtually no changes the education panel's finance package.

Coll and Vigil are close. They have little trouble collaborating on such a major change.

The power structure is completely different in the Senate, however. Jack Morgan and his Senate Finance Committee are going to want to see the LFC staff recommendations. Morgan is the chairman of the LFC.

Morgan and big Bill Vandergriff, the Senate Education Committee chairman, are two of the four Republicans who bolted the party a couple of years ago to oust Sen. Les Houston as their leader. Vandergriff became a Democrat. Morgan was handed the finance committee chairmanship.

Nevertheless, these ties are not strong enough to forge anything similar to the House. Besides, in the unstable Senate it would never work anyway.

EDITORIAL

If our elected officials do not play by the rules in a public meeting, then how do they behave when conducting other, less visible aspects of the public's business?

The question can certainly be asked of the Ruidoso Downs Trustees, who, during their meeting last week, failed to announce any reasons for closing the public meeting and beginning a closed session. In fact, the trustees even failed to call for a vote to close the meeting, which also is required by law.

The trustees have followed proper procedure in closing meetings in the past, so it cannot be said that they are ignorant of the law. In fact, they apparently do not think it's important to follow the law.

And when elected officials begin to ignore laws designed to protect the public's right to know how their business is being handled, something's wrong.

It makes one wonder if this is yet another case of public officials, once elected, suddenly believing that they, and not the public, know what's best for us, conveniently shutting the public out of public affairs.

It's our business, not yours, elected officials. Let's all play by the rules.—DJP

Letters to the editor

DEAR EDITOR:

If we had to rename the county of Lincoln we would probably call it "God's Little County." Never have we been so touched by the selflessness, love, understanding and overwhelming support which we received from our communities, who pulled together like champs. From Pappy's hospitalization where a live-saving blood drive was instantly formed to procure enough blood to get him through a critical heart operation, to his sad departure where you never left our side. We send thanks to all our families, friends and good people for their strong shoulders, and a very special thanks to the Ruidoso Police Department, whose help was greatly appreciated and far beyond the call of duty! If only the world would heed your example ...

The Coons Family

two children for all the love and compassion that has been given to us throughout Thanksgiving and Christmas.

We thank you at Human Services and everyone else involved for your help at Thanksgiving.

We also thank the wonderful people from the Kiwanis Club and Wal-Mart who gave the wonderful party at the Elks Club and made so many children happy.

I'd also like to thank my son's teachers Mrs. Farrington and Mrs. Paxton, The First Christian Church, The Altrusa Club for a most memorable Christmas.

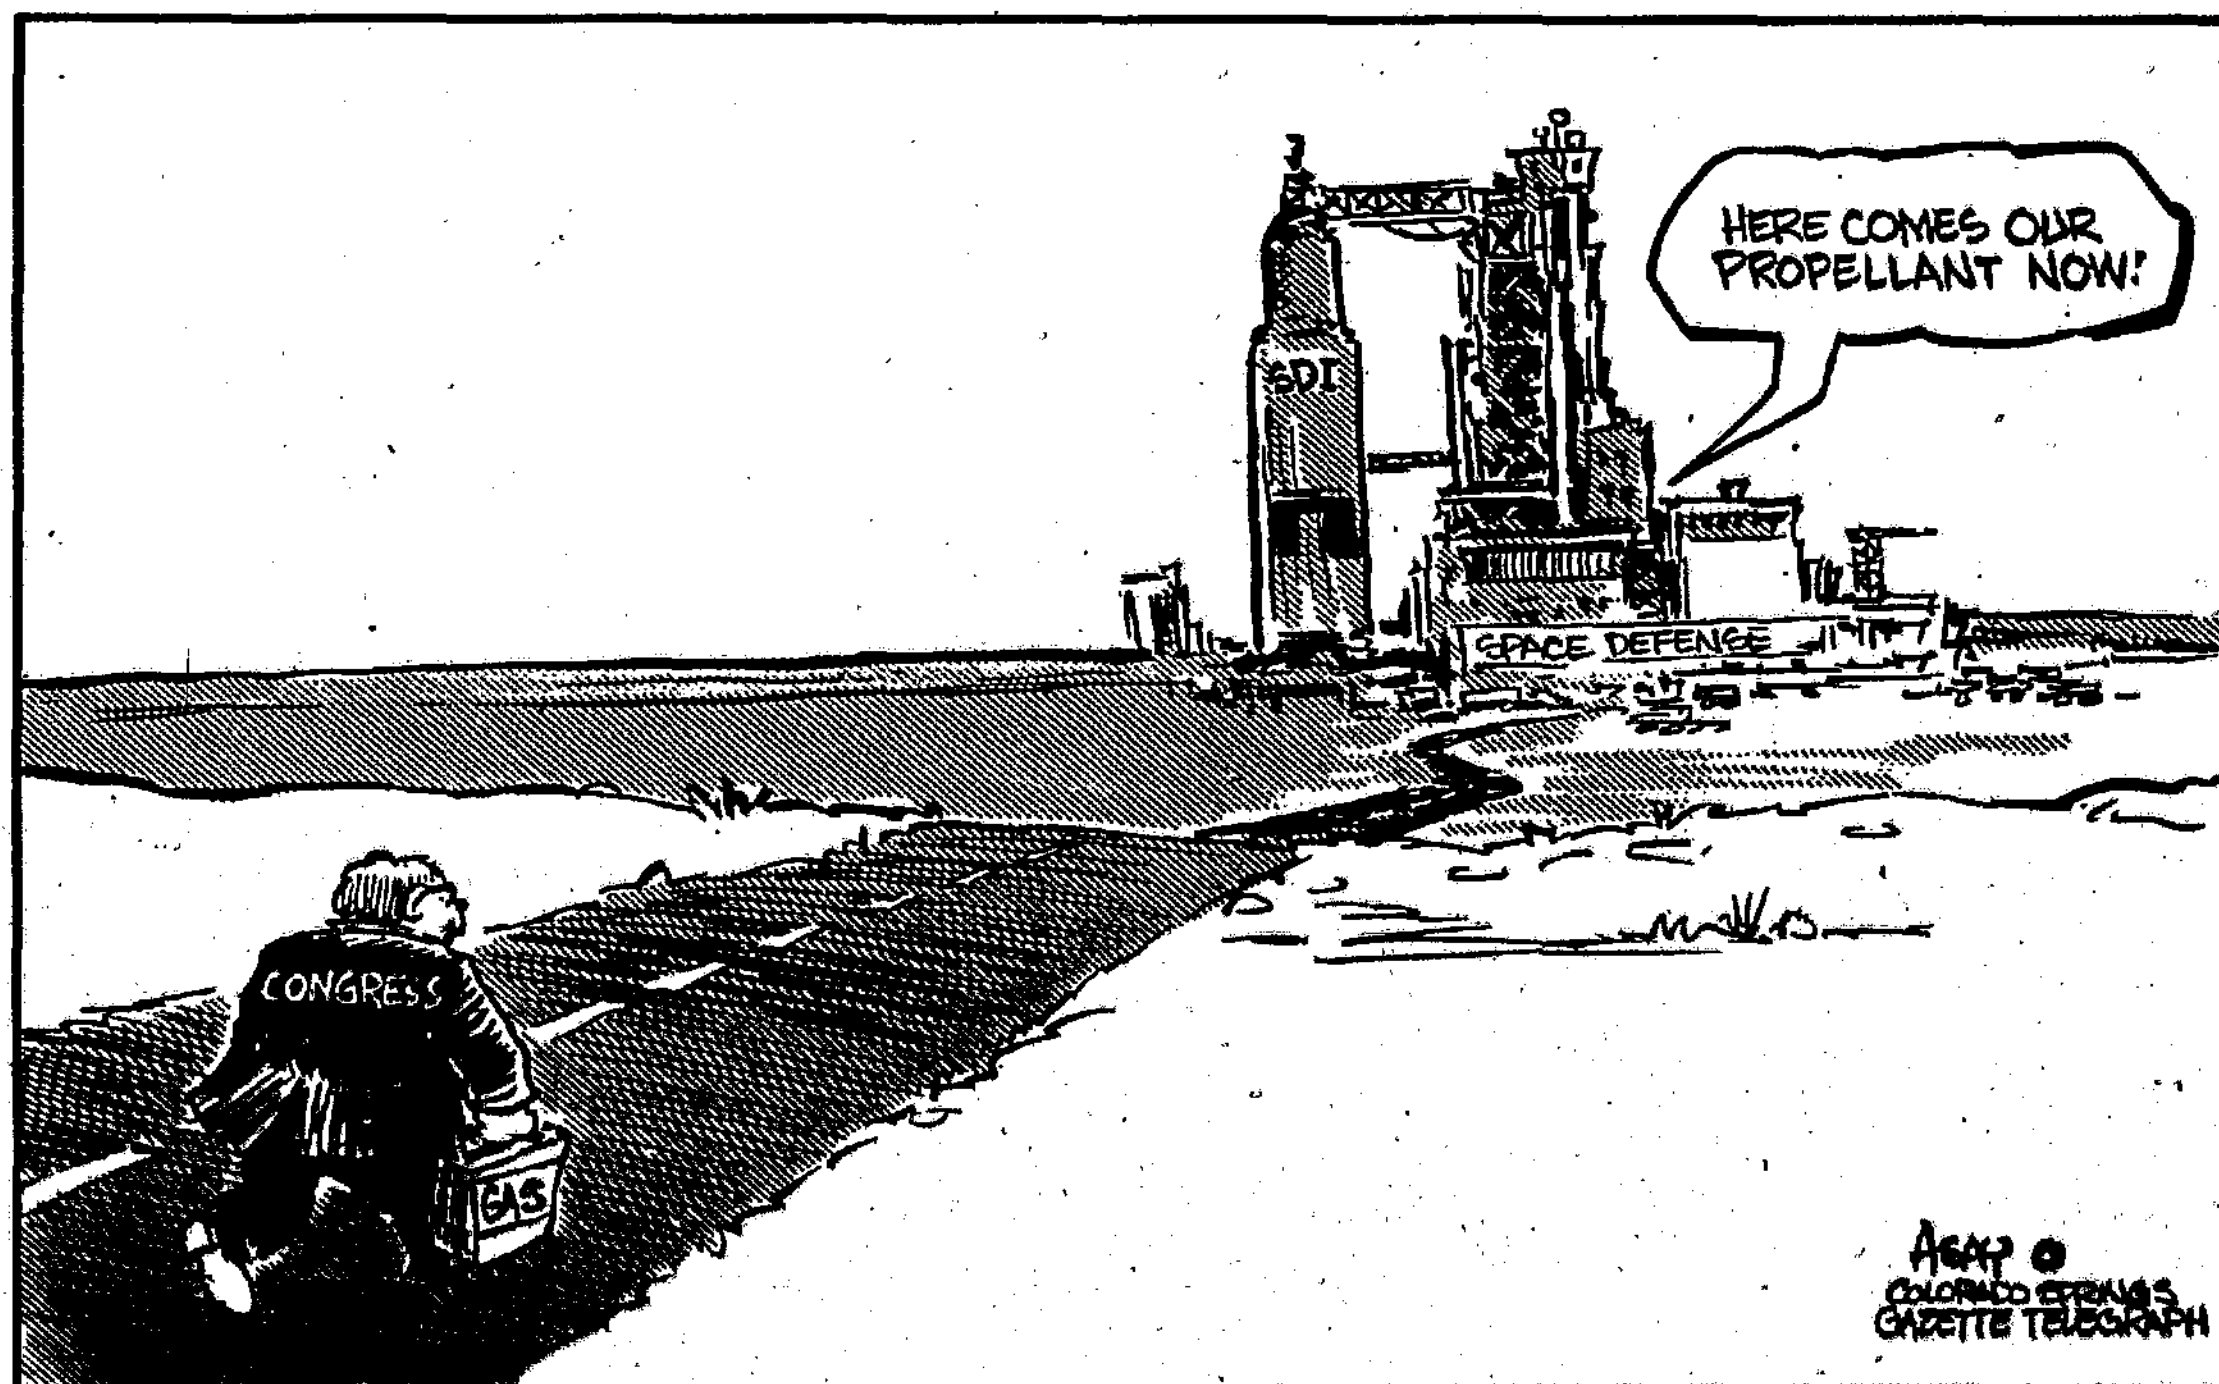

Ruidoso is not only a beautiful place to live but we have such beautiful people.

On behalf of myself and my children we are so fortunate to be able to live here and share.
