Close vote puts McSwane in sheriff's office

Democrats hit snags; voting is heavy

by DORIS CHERRY

Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Election Day 1988 was a sad day for the democrats in Lincoln County as republican candidates swept the county offices.

A total of 77.7 percent of the Lincoln County registered voters cast their ballots Tuesday at the 17 precincts and through absentee ballots.

A major upset was in the Lincoln County sheriff's race, where republican James McSwane, with 51 percent of the votes, defeated democrat Tom Sullivan with 49 percent of the 5,244 votes cast. The sheriff's race received the second highest number of votes behind the presidential candidates.

Sullivan carried the Capitan precinct with 457 votes to McSwane's 266, he tied with McSwane with 54 votes in Nogal, led 88 to 82 in Corona, led 198 to 165 in Angus, led 326 to 303 at the Ruidoso Middle school precinct and he also led in the absentee votes 336 to 285.

Sullivan had hoped to move into the sheriff's office, a position he held for four years until 1986.

But Sullivan's leads were not enough as McSwane won when the final totals showed him 104 votes ahead. McSwane carried both Carrizozo precincts 247 to Sullivan's 93 and 158 to 86. Two Ruidoso precincts, 11 and 13, were carried by McSwane, 343 to 334 and 256 to 238 respectively. Ruidoso Downs, San Patricio and Hondo precincts carried McSwane with 300 to 221, 105 to 52 and 110 to 87 respectively.

Rick Simpson, democrat for County Commissioner District I, was the exception to the republican sweep. He won the position with 40.3 percent of the votes, over republican Kenneth Nosker with 36.7 percent and independent candidate Monroy Montes with 23 percent of the 4,999 total votes cast.

Simpson carried the Capitan precinct with 286 votes to Nosker's 163 and Montes' 239. Simpson also carried Nogal with 41 votes to Nosker's 36 and Montes' 26. Carrizozo carried Simpson in both precincts, 125 to Nosker's 101 and Montes 69, and 81 to Nosker's 64 and Montes 75. Corona carried Simpson with 71 votes, Nosker 46 and Montes 35.

Ruidoso precinct 11 favored Nosker with 311 votes to Simpson's 281 and Montes' 56. Angus went for Nosker with 162 votes to Simpson's 141 and Montes' 42 votes. Precinct 13 (Public Library) in Ruidoso was carried by Simpson with 223 votes

Building inspector case is rehashed Council trims session dramatically Fired building inspector Jimmy Neeley told the Personnel Board Wednesday that he's ready to go back to work.

"I like this new arrangement, but I'm used to working for my money," said Neeley, who has remained on the village payroll since he was fired last June by village manager Frank Potter.

In his second hearing before the volunteer board, Neeley said he is "confused and mystified" by his termination that he said came with no prior oral or written warnings.

Neeley's attorney, Ken Wagner of Albuquerque, faced Roswell attorney Steve Bell who was hired by Risk Management to represent the Village of Ruidoso. The two agreed on procedures that included presentations by Neeley and his attorney, by Potter and Bell and by several witnesses.

But that's where their agreement ended.

Wagner asked the board to reinstate Neeley, adding he believes the group sits as a tribunal, the final authority in such cases.

Bell disagreed, saying the hearing Wednesday was really a "waste of time" since the board can only make recommendations to the Ruidoso Village Council. He said the village cooperated by scheduling the hearing.

The Ruidoso Village Council, in an unprecedented move Tuesday, adjourned after covering only one item on the full agenda.

Councillors agreed to move discussions over a community/events center up to first place and spent about a half hour on that subject before Councillor Jess Stinson offered a motion to adjourn because of Tuesday's election. Councillor Al Junge seconded.

"It can be debated," said Mayor Lloyd L. Davis Jr., but no talk preceded the roll call vote.

Councillors Elmer Pirelli and J.D. James joined Stinson and Junge in favoring the motion and councillors Tom McNeil and Larry Simon opposed closing the meeting before dealing with the seven items of business listed.

Davis, McNeil and Simon, as well as members of village administration, voiced concern over the surprise end to the meeting. About 50 members of the public were on hand for the regular meeting, and Davis speculated they were there for items on the agenda that were never discussed.

Village manager Frank Potter said a special meeting might be needed to take action on some items with upcoming deadlines.

Village attorney John Underwood said a council decision is needed quickly on an item dealing with "leaking credit" at the Grindstone Canyon dam.

Before the meeting was disbanded, an architectural drawing of the proposed community/events center was unveiled. James and Dennis Fisher, who has headed a task force working on plans for the center, displayed the architect's view of the building planned at the old airport land.

Fisher said a new 12,000-square-foot metal building, finished with brick, will sit between the old terminal building and the large hangar. According to the plans, the old hangar and the new building will be joined with the outside finished with brick and trim. The large eaves on the terminal building will overhang the new building with a breezeway adjoining the two.

A new structure on the front of the large rectangular room will house all the mechanical equipment and restrooms for the center.

The Ruidoso Board of Education took action in several areas at a regular meeting, Tuesday night.

The board approved the resolution for the school board election in the spring, discussed a merit program at the Middle School and discussed the possibility of a salary increase for all personnel.

Extra funding because of increased enrollment might make an increase possible.

On Tuesday, February 7, 1989, voters living within the Ruidoso school district will vote for two members of the board of education. The positions of present members Lynn Willard and Rod Adamson will expire at that time and will be open. Eligible candidates for the to Nosker's 189 and Montes' 56. Precinct 14 (Middle School) favored Nosker with 279 votes to Simpson's 265 and Montes' 65. Ruidoso Downs voted for the home-town candidate Simpson with 217 votes to Nosker's 159 and Montes' 133. San Patricio favored Montes with 115 votes to Nosker's 25 and Simpson's 23. Hondo also favored Montes with 114 votes to Nosker's 40 and Simpson's 42. Absentee votes favored Nosker with 260 votes to Simpson's 218 and Montes' 125.

The race for Lincoln County Commissioner District II was won by republican Robert E. Hemphill with 54.8 percent of the votes. Democrat John Allen Hightower received 42.2 percent of the votes and Ernest Joiner, write-in candidate, received 3 percent of the 4,811 total votes cast.

Hightower carried Nogal 46 to Hemphill's 45 and Joiner's 9. He also carried San Patricio with 61 votes to Hemphill's 57 and Joiner's 3.

Joiner received 145 total votes as a write-in candidate.

Karon Z. Petty was unopposed in the County Commissioner District III race. She received 3,207 votes.

Republican Martha Proctor won the clerk's race with 65 percent of the votes to democrat Inez Marrs 35 percent of 4,966 total votes.

Republican Shirley Goodloe was the one of two incumbents to return to office. She won the position overwhelming with 72.4 percent to democrat Virginia Spall's 27.6 percent of the 4,997 votes cast.

Republican Julia Samora ran unopposed as county assessor. She received 3,163 votes.

For probate judge, incumbent republican J. Watt Page won with 60.3 percent over democrat Benny Coker's 39.7 percent of the 4,763 votes cast.

On the legislative amendments, number seven, which gives counties the option of electing a five-member commission passed with 58.7 percent of the 2,055 votes cast.

Lincoln County voters chose to seat newcomers to the all three commission positions, sheriff's, clerk's and assessor's offices. Incumbents Goodloe, treasurer, and Page, probate judge, will return to the offices they held prior to the Current Lincoln County clerk Fran Siddens reported Wednesday that the first votes, the absentee, were totaled by 7:20 p.m. Tuesday.

"It was a smooth election. We have wonderful precinct officers, they were super," said Siddens. "It was gratifying."

Siddens also reported there were no mechanical problems with the machines.

The unofficial canvas of votes from all precincts was complete by 10:15 p.m. Tuesday at the clerk's office in the courthouse in Carriazo.

Candidates had waited through the evening as the news came in: some were elated, and for others there was only disappointment.

ing the hearing at Neeley's request, but insisted the final hearing will be before the council.

Wagner predicted the dispute will end in court.

The board met on July 12, and after hearing evidence and testimony recommended that Neeley be re-instated.

Potter didn't put the village building inspector back to work, and has refused to discuss the case.

Potter said he had complaints about Neeley from the time he was hired in 1984, but "gave Jimmy the benefit of the doubt" since his duties as building inspector and code enforcement officer called for him to give people unpleasant news.

But by 1985, Potter said he noted on Neeley's evaluation that cooperation was a problem.

Neeley said he disagreed with Potter's comment on that job evaluation, but testified to learning later that similar comments were included on most evaluations in 1985. He said in 1986, 1987 and 1988 he was rated as "above average."

Former village engineer Mike Davalos, whose job was abolished as of June 30, was Neeley's supervisor for two years and testified that he was cooperative, knowledgeable and perhaps the best building inspector in the region.

Potter, through sworn statements, told of complaints against Neeley; and both Davalos and Neeley disagreed with the scenarios as described in those documents.

Wagner stressed the close proximity of the work area shared by Davalos, showing how their day-to-day conversations were easily overheard. Bell later questioned Davalos over how much time each man spent in that small office and how they could keep up with each other's various encounters.

Contractor Carl Kelly testified to a job he did, using a sub-contractor, where Neeley conducted inspections that led him to close down the job about six times. He said Neeley's attitude was helpful and professional, noting his knowledge of the building codes and attention to details probably saved him money on the project in the long-run.

"If something slips through then we're all in trouble," said Kelly.

Real estate agent John Hall testified that construction standards have improved for the better since Neeley was hired in 1984. He said the previous inspector would go to a building site and drink coffee with the foreman, but Neeley could be found with a shovel, digging, checking footings and "red tagging" jobs.

"When you have somebody coming out and red tagging your project, he has the attitude problem, you don't," said Hall with a smile. He said Neeley was cooperative and helpful throughout the construction of the Ruidoso Financial Center.

Lee McKenna, chairman of the architectural control committee in Alto, said Neeley has acted as Alto's building inspector since June 1985 and his performance has been "excellent."

"I have never known him to curse," said McKenna, responding to a charge by Potter that Neeley called a customer a name.

Wagner and Neeley wanted to know who the people are who have made complaints against Neeley, asking why they were not present Wednesday. Potter said he discouraged the people he talked with from coming as a courtesy to Neeley.

One complainant, Gloria Payne, reportedly told Potter that Neeley was rude to her in a telephone conversation.

It was learned that Payne threatened to sue the village over a deck she built in 1984.

In a letter to Potter dated May 24, 1988, Payne said the deck and beams underneath the house were not built to code, and she blamed the Village of Ruidoso because the village building inspector inspected the structure.

Payne claimed she didn't take out the permit on the house, but had a contractor do the work.

But Payne's signature appears on the application for a building permit by a homeowner/builder, as well as on the sign-up sheet showing when the construction was inspected.

Potter, questioned about the case Wednesday, said the village, on the recommendation of its attorney, settled the case with Payne by paying her $1,900.

Neeley and his attorney wondered why he wasn't questioned about the case before the village wrote the check to Payne.

"You are responsible for what you built," said Neeley, repeating his claim that he was never rude to Payne. "She did not like what I told her," he added.

Wagner said the Tort Claims Act calls for a 90-day notice and for claims to be filed within two years.

"If she had a beef with the city, she had two years to file ... the city was under no obligation to pay," said Wagner. "I submit the village gave away $1,900 because the statute of limitations had expired," he added.

Bell and Potter disagreed, with Potter saying other inadequacies are being found in buildings now that were built a year ago. He added he had a list of people that wanted to testify against Neeley.

"I told them no need to be down here whipping up on Jimmy Neeley," said Potter.

"Where are these people, where's Mrs. Payne? Is she's so ticked off, why isn't she here?" Wagner asked.

He concluded by saying the evidence is overwhelming that the employee safeguards were circumvented. He said the board needs to send a message to the village that it must abide by the law.

"Whose law is it ... the village's or Mr. Potter's law?" asked Wagner.

"If each community in this state conducted itself the way this has been conducted you might as well take that and throw it away," said Wagner, pointing to the United States flag hanging in council chambers.

Bell concluded by saying Potter was the boss and made his determination based on what he saw. He said procedures haven't been followed because Neeley has been given more, not less, consideration.

He objected to relating the Payne case to the Payne complaint, and told the board they have no power to make determinations over hirings or firings. He said the council has the authority and will make the final decision.

Board chairman Arnold Cantu asked, "can we agree on five days? That's what we'll do ... adjourned."

noise that we've heard and correct those noises," said Fisher, emphasizing the permanent look and the attractive outside appearance of the facility planned.

He said the plans call for a concrete, not a dirt floor; adding the building is a metal building, not a shell.

The plans call for green space and a covered mall outside the 22,200-square-foot facility.

Fisher was bombarded by questions as people sitting at various locations in the council chambers spouted out queries over costs, interior walls, lighting, heating, cooling, acoustics, kitchen facilities, sprinkler system and more. Some questions were deferred for more study, and others Fisher fielded.

He said the building, if constructed by private enterprise, would cost around $270,000; but by using state rules and regulations the center is estimated at $320,000.

Also Tuesday, councillors confirmed receiving copies of a letter signed by a number of people concerned that developing the center is not in the best interests of the village. The letter questions the building as planned, noting other plans for the old airport land should be reviewed before moving ahead.

The group urges the council to reconsider its decision to construct the metal building until a comprehensive study on the use of the airport land is completed.

During Tuesday's work session before the regular meeting, James said the letter he saw had 113 signatures, including 17 from Capitan. Stinson said he saw names of about 20 others who also live outside village limits.

"They don't want to pay taxes here," said Stinson, as the group questioned why citizens of Capitan and other areas should believe they can influence Ruidoso village government.

That issue prompted councillors to talk of enacting an ordinance limiting membership on all village boards, committees and commissions to village residents. Potter said that could be accomplished by amending one ordinance.

"If the mayor appoints this oversight committee in regular session and it's approved by the council, I'm going to put a rider on it that the committee accept the community center already approved by the council," said James during the work session. James said he consulted an attorney and learned that would be possible since the council voted to approve the events center proposal.

"If I have to I can go to the attorney general," said James.

Simon said when the council approved the center it was with the understanding it go through regular channels.

"I'd hate to sit here for the next few months and be known as the council that wouldn't appoint an oversight committee," said Junge.

The appointment of the oversight committee, a bone of contention between the council and the mayor last month, was the first item on Tuesday's agenda, and was scrapped, along with the rest of the agenda when the meeting was called to a halt.

Also during the work session before the regular meeting, councillors questioned Potter over an administrative hearing scheduled by the State Engineer Office on a protest of the village's application to recover credit for water that leaks through the dam.

A hearing is set for December 6, and the State Engineer requires a $300 deposit. Councillors questioned why the notice of the hearing came through Atkins Engineering.

"What are we doing back with Atkins Engineering," asked James, disagreeing with the administration recommendation to authorize Atkins to proceed with the case at a cost of up to $5,000.

"It looks like this thing is just a set-up deal," said Junge.

Councillors wanted to know why Hondo Valley water rights owners are protesting now after an agreement was reached before the dam was built. When asked if he had talked with the protesters, Potter replied that he hasn't since the hearing is set.

Lincoln County voters contribute to Bush's strong election showing Lincoln County voters extended the Republican sweep through national and state races, handing over 66.4 percent of its votes for president to George Bush and Dan Quayle.

The county recorded 3,511 votes for the Bush/Quayle ticket, 1,690, or 32 percent of the votes, for Michael Dukakis and Lloyd Bentsen, and just over one percent for minor party candidates: 43 for Fulani/Mendez; three for Warren/Mickelle; three for Holmes/La Riva; five for Dodge/Ormsby; 32 for Paul/Marrou and one for write-in candidate T. Macaione.

Although the state voted overwhelmingly to return Senator Jeff Bingaman for a second term in the United States Senate, Lincoln County favored Republican challenger Bill Valentine in a 2,740 to 2,407 race.

Congressman Joe Skeen, unopposed in his bid for re-election to the House of Representatives, racked up 3,733 votes.

At press time state figures showed Democrat Louis E. Gallegos leading Republican Jannie A. McDaniel for State Corporation Commission; but Lincoln County voted nearly two to one for McDaniel who garnered 3,021 votes to Gallegos' 1,716.

Joseph F. Baca the Democrat who won the state race for the Supreme Court seat vacated by Mary Walters, trailed in Lincoln County, winning 1,856 votes to Republican Kenneth S. McDaniel's 2,902.

Uncontested races included Senator James Lee Martin and representatives Ben Hall and Richard Knowles, all heading back to the State Legislature. District Attorney Bert Atkins, appointed by the Governor to fulfill James Weldon's term, was unopposed in his bid for that office.

Lincoln County Democrat James Sanchez, incumbent member of the State Board of Education, was unseated by Republican Van Witt. The five-county race showed Witt barely squeaking by in Lincoln County taking 2,383 votes to Sanchez's 2,358.

Republican Paul Harrington won the state house seat vacated by Maurice Hobson who was elected Tuesday to the Senate from District 40. Lincoln County handed Harrington 861 votes to Democrat Ivan Padilla's 402.

New Mexico voters favored six of seven amendments and passed all four property tax bond issues.

Amendment one, establishing retirement benefits for state legislators, was trailing in the state at press time. Lincoln County voters opposed the amendment by 1,249 to 949.

County voters followed state trends on the other six amendments, favoring two through seven: Two, governor appointments—1,234 for and 953 against; Three, increase head of family exemption—1,676 for and 574 against; Four, indebtedness for libraries—1,092 for and 987 against; Five, restrict bail—1,820 for and 447 against; Six, judicial reform—1,080 for and 1,022 against; Seven, option for five-member commissions—1,207 for and 848 against.

Lincoln County voters joined their neighbors in okaying all four bond issues. The votes were: One, 1,035 for and 885 against; Two, 1,061 for and 847 against; Three, 997 for and 959 against; Four, 1,039 for and 940 against.

ARCHITECT'S DRAWING OF THE PROPOSED COMMUNITY/EVENTS CENTER

Ruidoso teens use center heavily

Ruidoso teens are taking advantage of the new teen center in the big yellow hangar at the old Ruidoso airport.

Kiwanis Club purchased the building, and the center, called "The Hangar" is being operated by the teens, according to club members. Adult sponsors are present whenever "The Hangar" is open, but the teens themselves are making decisions about programs and events.

A movie is scheduled on Friday, November 11, and a dance is planned for Saturday, November 12.

Ruidoso High School student Daniel Candelaria was at Kiwanis Club Tuesday to thank the club for providing a place for Ruidoso youth to congregate. He presented the club with a certificate, and said area youth from eighth grade through seniors are enjoying the center.

Candelaria was among a contingent that visited the Ruidoso Village Council when Kiwanis asked for permission to open the center. He said then that teenagers need a place to go, other than the Pinetree Square parking lot. Kiwanians told the council they wanted to bring the young people in out of the cold, and they did. Since the doors of the center opened, the teen center has been frequented by a great number of young people.

"There are a lot of things we're going to need," said Kiwanis member Lydia Newman. Club members pledged 33 chairs to begin furnishing "The Hangar," but Newman and club member Nancy Woody said donations will be accepted to provide furnishings for the facility.

For further information on the center and its needs, or to make a donation, contact Officer Laura Standridge at the Ruidoso Police Department.

Christmas Jubilee Cree extravaganza will open

Ruidoso Valley Greeters present their first Christmas Jubilee shopping extravaganza Friday and Saturday, November 11-12, at Cree Meadows Country Club.

Admission is free for shopping and entertainment from 4-9 p.m. Friday, and from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday.

"This is strictly Ruidoso," said Mildred Crocker, adding that 37 merchants, gift shop owners, jewelers and gallery representatives will represent Ruidoso businesses with booths and displays. She said they will offer a vast array of gifts and collectible items during the two-day shoppers' paradise.

Crocker said this event offers Ruidoso citizens and visitors a chance to shop an assortment of Ruidoso merchants all in one place.

Besides the merchants' displays and booths, the Greeters will offer tickets on several items, including a 14-inch stained glass, a clown dancer kachina, a smoked turkey, a decorated sweatsuit, and two framed prints.

As if that wasn't enough, Crocker said the Jubilee will feature ongoing entertainment and visits from Santa Claus.

Children are invited to breakfast with Mr. and Mrs. Claus from 8:30-10 a.m. Saturday, November 12. The cost for that breakfast is $2.50 per person.

A holiday luncheon, $6.75 per person, will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Reservations are suggested for the luncheon, which will include a holiday fashion show presented by a dozen Ruidoso merchants.

Entertainers will include Ruidoso High School musicians, a sing-along with Churchill Cooke, pianist Celeste Cox, guitar and vocal duo Brenda Rue and Gaylon Hall Herrera, Helen Kilgore Woodfin and friend, and more.

"Don't miss it," urged Crocker, inviting everyone to be on hand for the "holiday event of the year."

Service Club Council is filled in more concerning Mainstreet Ruidoso

Service Club Council learned more Monday about MainStreet Ruidoso, the revitalization program under way in Midtown.

Genevieve Sewell, chairman of the organizational committee, invited anyone interested in Ruidoso to join the group that has joined in the public/private partnership that forms the MainStreet project.

The Village of Ruidoso is among hundreds of towns participating in the program through a community development block grant. That grant got the village half the cost of a project director salary plus contracts with the National Heritage Trust and the state MainStreet office.

Mary Maul, project director, also was at Monday's council meeting. She was hired recently to lead the local program.

Ruidoso MainStreet members meet at 8:30 a.m. each Wednesday for coffee at various Midtown locations. Next week's get-together will be at the Bear Claw Gallery, 2500 Sudderth Drive.

The weekly coffees are open to the public, and provide a chance for people to meet MainStreet members and learn more about the program.

An upcoming MainStreet project is Ice Mania scheduled December 1-3, in the Ski West parking lot. Local artists will craft an ice sculpture during Ice Mania.

MainStreet also is involved in the Midtown Christmas lighting plans, with the group to help sponsor the Christmas tree lighting event in early December.

For more information on MainStreet, contact Maul at 257-6346. Her office is in an a-frame at Ski West Center.

Also Monday, Service Club Council vice-president Lanny Maddox announced that Santa Cops has been formed to provide needy families with toys and food this Christmas.

To learn more about Santa Cops, or to make a contributions of toys, food or cash, contact Officer Laura Standridge at the Ruidoso Police Department, 257-7365.

Maddox said the teen center, sponsored by Kiwanis Club, is going well with weekly teen events. He said volunteers are needed to act as chaperones and serve soft drinks.

To volunteer to help at the teen center, call Standridge at 257-7365.

Upcoming events on the club calendar distributed Monday include:

—Christmas Jubilee sponsored by the Ruidoso Valley Greeters: 4-9 p.m. Friday, November 11, and 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday, November 12, at Cree Meadows Country Club.

—Community Thanksgiving Service: 7 p.m. Sunday, November 20, at the First Baptist Church in Ruidoso.

Service Club Council meets next at noon Monday, December 5.

Burning will also be utilized to dispose of slash created by fuelwood harvest on the Boundary and Monument areas. These prescribed burns are 90 AND 45 ACRES respectively. They will be conducted during the fall-winter period, depending on weather conditions and availability of personnel.

Hunters asked to be careful with fire

"Fire danger is high," according to Larry Bandy of the New Mexico State Forestry in Capitan. He says, "We are setting records with temperatures that are way above average. High winds these past few days are drying things out, too, increasing the fire danger."

Because of this, hunters are asked to be especially careful this season, Dick McManus, Bureau of Land Management, Carlsbad Resource Area manager, says.

"The BLM will position our fire engines with crews in the high-use hunting areas, in addition to the regularly scheduled hunterpatrols," Manus agreed with Bandy that it is very dry throughout the district. He feels, "I'm positive when people realize the fire danger exists, they will take the extra care needed to prevent any accidents."

"Generally, hunters in this area do put safety first, so with their help we should all have a good season."

Roadside centers planned in hunting areas

Deer hunters arriving in the Lincoln National Forest will get a personal greeting, along with important information on travel in the forest. Starting Friday, forest officials will staff temporary roadside centers on roads leading to popular hunting areas.

The centers will be used to inform hunters that the forest is closed to all off-road travel and provide information on open roads and trails. Copies of the new transportation map will be available for sale. The centers will be open and during all three rifle deer hunts this month.

The restriction on off-road travel became effective after last year's hunting season. The maximum penalty for violating the terms of the closure is a $500 fine and six months in jail.

positions must declare their intent to run for the board between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Tuesday, December 20, in the Lincoln County clerk's office in Carrizozo, said superintendent Sid Miller.

Ruidoso Middle School (RMS) principal and associate superintendent Mike Gladden reviewed the new RMS merit and demerit program. The incentive proposal will cover each nine-week period at RMS and offers a means to deal with student behavior. Gladden told the group of teachers, principals and the four members of the board present at the meeting.

"We want to reward good behavior," Gladden said. The consequences for inappropriate behavior will also be a part of the program.

The program was developed by a volunteer committee of teachers and parents and will be presented to students Monday.

Gladden said he will discuss the program with RMS staff, then he will present it to the students.

Demerits will be given for behavior situations and will be filed daily. An accumulation of over 10 demerits per each nine weeks will result in various restrictions.

Incentives will be given to those students exhibiting appropriate behavior as well as good grades. Students on the honor roll will have a support group of parents called the Academic Booster Club (ABC), Gladden also said.

The program will have flexibility, Gladden said.

Board member Willard questioned the legal standpoint of the demerit program. "Different people think differently about unacceptable behavior," Willard said.

More information about the ABC and merit-demerit program was a special article in Monday's issue of The Ruidoso News.

Miller also announced the need to have a special public hearing to consider the additional funds generated by the increased enrollment for this school year. The board approved meeting at 8 a.m. Tuesday, November 15, to discuss tentative recommendations for the extra funds, including cash balances and reserves.

NEEDS OUTLINED

Miller said the district has needs to address with the funds; especially additional certified teachers in the fifth grade level. Also to be discussed will be the salary schedule for certified and non-certified personnel.

Tuesday night, Miller told the board the state board of education gave verbal approval for the district to hire additional staff members.

In other business the board:

—Approved hiring Melinda Valiant as second grade teacher.

—Approved hiring Pam Hough as half-time clerical aide at the high school.

—Approved hiring Estella Flores as bilingual aide in Nob Hill Elementary school.

—Approved hiring Nancy Schmidt as teacher.

—Approved hiring Cheryl Elder as secretary at White Mountain Elementary School.

—Discussed the ski program, which is scheduled to begin Tuesday, January 25, and will continue on January 31 and the first three Tuesdays in February. Permission letters will be sent with students in January.

Nob Hill principal Roger Sowder contacted Ski Apache manager Roy Parker and said Parker suggested the program last five instead of six days as before. Parker said the sixth day was poorly attended.

SNOW DAYS POLICY

—Discussed school policy on snow days. White Mountain Intermediate School principal Don Weems and bus contractor Rick Simpson check the roads after a snow before 6:30 a.m. If they determine the roads are not fit for travel, they will contact both local radio stations with information concerning either delayed school or cancellation. Delayed classes will begin two hours later than usual.

Gladden said three days were "built-in" this year with the additional minutes students spend at school daily. Teachers are expected to come into their schools on canceled days.

—Adopted the instructional materials selection process policy. Gladden reported there is a Textbook Review Committee comprised of teachers and interested parents. The board has final judgment about any complaints with the selections.

—Heard favorable reports from all schools about the parent teacher conferences.

—Heard about the upcoming New Mexico State Boards Association convention scheduled for December 2 in Albuquerque.

—Heard a report from Miller about letters received from the Special Education Division giving special education accreditation for Ruidoso Schools.

—Announced a special board meeting to discuss the Indian Education program. The board will meet with tribal council and parents at 7 p.m. Tuesday, November 22, in RMS cafeteria.

—Approved a program to screen all students for diabetes, with parent permission, scheduled for December 14.

—Heard a report on buying school materials from the New Mexico Research and Study Council.

—Heard a report from RHS principal Tom Hansen and saw a video tape about the overview process of accreditation for North Central Accreditation. RHS has been accredited since 1968. NCA standards exceed the state's, Hansen said but RHS must go through the process every seven years.

The process includes a "self study" document which explores the schools weaknesses and strengths and a school improvement plan. Hansen will continue to show video tapes about the program at the next board meetings.

Dr. Kirkegaard talks on diabetes

Dr. Lance Kirkegaard was the guest speaker for the November meeting of the Lincoln County Mescalero chapter of the American Diabetes Association.

According to a news release, Dr. Kirkegaard spoke on normal glucose metabolism, different types of diabetes, the short- and long-term affects of high blood sugar, the treatment of diabetes, measuring control and managing other risks.

The group meets the first Tuesday of each month at the Senior Citizens Center behind the Ruidoso Public Library.

A holiday party is planned for the December meeting in the home of Milton Meyer, 203 Keyes Drive.

Lady Tigers win regional

by DORIS CHERRY

Ruidoso News Staff Writer

"We're ready," said Capitan Lady Tigers volleyball coach Pam Allen about the Class 1A state tournament which begins today (Thursday).

"There is no team in any class that can generate offense as we do," Allen continued.

And that offense has been the coin to the Lady Tigers' success all season.

Capitan won their way to the state tournament by ending their regular season undefeated. And they remain undefeated after the district and regional play-offs.

The Lady Tigers won their district crown by defeating Cloudcroft, but not after playing five games for the match. Coach Allen attributed the losses to illness among the players. But, the players were much improved when they again faced two school rivals, Carrizozo and Cloudcroft, last weekend in Capitan.

The Lady Tigers quickly took the match from the Grizzlies: 15-3, 15-6 and 15-10.

Kim Eckland was responsible for eight service points in the first game and six service points in the second game and five in the third.

Colynn Washburn was responsible for four service points in the second game and six in the third.

During the first game, Eckland served the eight straight points with kills from Lora McKay, Karie Cox and Marnie McDaniel. The eighth point was an ace.

McKay and Washburn continued to kill the ball with additional kills by McDaniel and Sheri Gowen. An ace serve by Gowen was the game point.

In the second game, Eckland aces the first service point, then kills and a dink by McDaniel, and McKay gained the other points.

McKay aces the game point.

Washburn began the third game with a quick tally of six points, including two aces. When Eckland stepped up to serve, she added another three points, which included a kill from Cox.

McKay served the next two points to put the score at 11-0.

But the Grizzlies stalled the Lady Tigers with six straight service points, interrupted with an out-of-bounds serve.

The turn-over was the turning point of the game. Cox served the next two points with kills by Washburn. But four hits for the Lady Tigers gave the ball back to the Grizzlies.

In the next two plays, the Grizzlies scored four more points. The Lady Tigers were at 13 points to the Grizzlies 10. The net serve by McDaniel would not stop them from the match win, as McKay killed the ball to gain possession and Eckland came to the serve line.

The Grizzlies spiked the ball out of bounds to give the Lady Tigers another point. The match point, served by Eckland, came from a kill by Gowen.

With the first round of regional finals belonging to the Lady Tigers, the final match with Cloudcroft was a chance to amend the four out of five games Capitan won the Saturday before.

And the Lady Tigers won in three straight: 15-6, 15-11, and 15-9.

The Lady Tigers served first and scored first. But the Bears gained the ball and scored three points before serving an out-of-bounds ball.

A defensive game kept the scoring to nil until McKay stepped up to the serving line. Cloudcroft was up to six points to Capitan's two.

McKay was the spark plug for the entire match against Cloudcroft and the sparks flew in the first game.

Once she had the ball, McKay was to continue to serve for thirteen straight points, ending the game 15-6. The points included three aces and three kills by Washburn, one kill by Cox and a nice block by Gowen.

Cloudcroft rallied in the second game and took the first three points before the Lady Tigers scored.

Again, the points began to flash on the scoreboard when McKay came up and served four straight points, with a block and dink from Washburn.

The Bears took over the ball after Washburn attempted a dink. But she reached over the net, losing a possible point. Washburn regained the ball for the Lady Tigers with a kill.

Cox served for the next three points, including an ace, with a nice hustle by the Lady Tigers. The score was 7-4.

The Bears gave the Lady Tigers a scare as they served seven points to put the score at 7-11. Again McKay's spark brought the score to an even 11. McKay's serve was lost with a net foul, and the ball went back to Cloudcroft.

Gowen's dink on a Bear serve returned the ball to the Lady Tigers. Gowen served the last two points to win game two: 15-11.

The final game was a seesaw of points between Capitan and Cloudcroft. Gowen's serves were aces twice putting the score at 3-1. But net serves turned the ball over to Cloudcroft at least twice.

Two points were gained by the Bears until a net serve gave it back to the Lady Tigers. Nanette Boyd served for two points, one an ace the other gained with a dink by Washburn.

It was back and forth between the Lady Tigers and the Bears, until the score was tied at 9-9.

When McKay stepped to the serving line, she was responsible for two points, one an ace. A turn-over to the Bears was quickly regained, as nice teamwork brought the ball to the Lady Tigers.

Gowen aces two of her three service points but the ball was lost to an out-of-bounds spike by Washburn.

But the Bears were to gain no more points in the game.

Cox served the final point to take the game, match and the regional tournament crown.

"My feeling about our performance Saturday is that we played extremely well," said Allen. "Those two matches, overall for each person and their skills, were the best we've been all year."

Cox and Eckland had been ill prior to the finals, Allen said considering that, they played "real well," at the final games. "It shows a lot of character on their part."

Gowen, who was scheduled to participate in the National Rodeo finals the same time as the state tournament, will be playing with the Lady Tigers, Allen said.

The Lady Tigers will play Texico in the quarter finals in Roswell Thursday night.

"Texico is a fine defensive team," Allen said.

Capitan played Texico in an early season tournament, winning three out of four games for the match.

The state Class 1A volleyball quarter finals begin today (Thursday). Sandia Prep (18-1) will play Ramah at 6 p.m. at Roswell High School. In the second match, Capitan's Lady Tigers (19-0) will play Texico (17-2) at 7:45 p.m. at Roswell High School.

Also in the quarter finals will be Floyd (16-6) playing Cloudcroft (14-6) at 6 p.m. at Goddard High School. Match four is between Magdalena (18-1) and Cimarron (15-4), also at Goddard.

If the Lady Tigers win their first match, they will advance to the semifinals at 1:30 p.m. Friday, November 11.

The winner of the Sandia Prep and Ramah match will play the winner of the Capitan-Texico match at Goddard High School. And the winner of the Magdalena and Cimarron match will play the winner of the Cloudcroft and Floyd match for the semifinals.

Losers of the semifinal matches on Friday will play for third place Saturday, November 12. The match begins at 1:30 p.m. at Roswell High School.

The final match, to determine state champs, will be between the winners of the semi-final matches on Friday. The final match will begin at 6 p.m. Saturday, November 12, at Roswell High School.

No state playoffs for the Tigers

by DORIS CHERRY

Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The Tatum Coyotes foiled the Capitan Tigers again, for the regional title, the second year in a row.

Coyote team members proved to be tougher than the Tigers anticipated Friday night in Tatum, as they came into the game with a play-off attitude, said Tigers coach Blane Miller.

It was an attitude that shut out the Tigers 10-6.

Two Tiger fumbles and two interceptions by the Coyotes were part of the reason for the loss. The last possible chance for another goal came in the last minute of the game.

Miller said the Tigers were first and ten on the 15-yard line with 23 seconds left, when a Tiger pass for a goal was intercepted by the Coyotes.

Scoring came early in the game. Tatum scored in the first quarter with a touchdown. The Tigers scored in the second quarter, when Martin seized the ball and ran 48 yards for the goal. The kick failed and left the total Tiger game points at six.

Tatum's advantage came with a field goal in the second quarter making the score, Tatum 10 and Capitan 6.

And this was how it remained until the buzzer sounded at the end of the game, putting Capitan out of the state play-offs again. Tatum defeated Capitan 6-3 in overtime for the regional title last year.

"The Tatum loss hurts all of us, but it sure isn't the end of the world," said Miller. "The season was fruitful and I feel fortunate to be a part of this fine group of young men. I am confident that every senior graduating will be able to put in an honest, full day's work and be responsible citizens. That is the ultimate goal of high school athletics."

Martin was the season stand-out as he finished the season with 1257 yards gained. Martin and ten other seniors finished their high school football careers Friday in Tatum.

At the Tatum game, Martin gained 94 yards in 14 plays, Anthony Sanchez gained 54 in 11 plays, Johnny Castillo gained 30 in seven and Tino Gallegos gained 15 in six. The Tigers totaled 193 yards in 38 runs and 50 yards in three passes for a total of 243 yards in 41 plays.

Capitan made 13 first downs.

Tiger Clay Guck made four solo tackles and six assists, Martin made four solos and two assists, Sanchez made one interception, three solo tackles and assisted in two and Gallegos soloed three and assisted with eight.

Lance LaMay made four solo tackles, assisted with six and made one fumble.

Castillo made three solos and assisted with five, Sean LaMay made one solo and assisted with five, and Dallas DeWees assisted with four.

Kent McGinnis made one solo tackle, Fernando Miranda assisted with three, Chuck Cox assisted with one and Luke Hall assisted with one.

And so concludes the Tiger Football season: a season with only two defeats, to Dexter and Tatum.

Now comes Tiger basketball. The first varsity basketball game, against Carrizozo, is scheduled for Friday, December 2, in Capitan.

Henderson is confident of future

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Sports Writer

The Ruidoso quarterback club was all smiles as they savored last week's victory over Cobre and the fruit of that win, the district championship.

A jubilant Warrior head coach Cooper Henderson spoke positively of the new road ahead and how many miles must be covered by the team.

"By activity association rules, anything over 150 miles has to be played on a non-school day," said Henderson, referring to playoff games.

"If we play Kirtland, it will be a coin flip as to whose home field will be used."

Henderson said of this week's Robertson-Kirtland contest that Robertson would be considered the favorite.

Henderson said he and the Robertson coach would consider a neutral field in Albuquerque if the two teams meet. If Kirtland beats Robertson, the probability would be a long road trip if the Warriors lost the coin toss.

Kirtland Central is 223 miles from Ruidoso. By comparison, Silver City is 226 miles away.

Henderson spoke of last week's victory.

"All this business of who is number one during the year is not all that important," he said. "Two of those teams that were number one turned in their equipment Monday. Who is number one in another four weeks is what counts."

"The playoffs are an exciting time. It is a time for balance. You definitely want to perform your best, and you have to keep working to do that. At the same time you want to make it an enjoyable experience and one of the most fun things that a player will go through so they will want to come back. It's good for the younger players to get a taste of the playoffs, something that they will want to do every year."

"With this week off, we will mainly concentrate on ourselves and not be worried about the teams playing this week."

"It's a good time to physically get your body back in shape. We encourage plenty of sleep, and at the same time we will stay in shape with plenty of running, working without pads and a lot of individual teaching. We review the fundamentals."

Henderson said the team would work on offense Wednesday and defense Thursday. Friday will be dedicated to the kicking game.

"Mentally, this time of year, any football team is kidding themselves if they don't think they're a little bit tired. A week like this should give us time to regroup and start getting excited about the upcoming game. The edge in the playoffs belong to the teams that are excited about being there."

Henderson told the club how much he appreciated Ron Wright.

"Ron is like having an assistant coach on the field in addition to being an excellent bus driver," Henderson said. "Whether it's running telephone cables or just helping you look for something, Ron is always there."

Henderson applauded the high school band members who chose to make the long trip to Cobre.

"Their impact lent good support to our fans that made the trip."

Henderson also noted with appreciation the front page Warrior blue print run by the Ruidoso News in honor of the Warriors district championship.

Coach John Ussery who reviewed film on Kirtland and Robertson gave a preview of each team.

"Kirtland Central is 6-5 over the season, but they are a very good physical football team about the same size as Goddard. They run the wish bone with power. They don't appear to have a great deal of speed."

"Robertson was 7-0 before they met Lovington in a non-district ball game. They had Lovington down 14-0 half way through the first quarter. Eventually, Lovington came back to beat Robertson 28-21."

"That was Robertson's first loss. The next week Raton caught Robertson on the rebound and Raton upset Robertson. It was one of those games where Robertson completely dominated the game statistically, but lost."

PLAYERS OF THE WEEK

Offense, John Winans.
Defense, McCabe Turner.
Golden Helmet Award, Dusty Beavers.
Kicking Team, Pete Baca.
Scout Team, James Atwood.

Warrior Dusty Beavers jumps high enough to get his finger on the ball and that was good enough to make the sensational catch over the undercutting Cobre Indian, Friday. The catch was one of many highlights that paved the path of victory and the the district championship for Ruidoso. (Photo is courtesy of Dean Thompson, Silver City Daily Press.)

JOCK TALK

By Charles Stallings

Our Warriors are district champs! Beaming parents and proud Ruidoso fans have won bragging rights. Three cheers to our boys and girls. Three cheers to Warrior football head coach Cooper Henderson and his staff. Three cheers to Warrior cross country coach Ronnie Maske. In your face, Deming and Silver!

Cobre was a long trip, but the drive is always highly entertaining in this magnificent state. There's not much cotton in my home state of Indiana. So to see all those plants blooming south of Las Cruces last Friday looked like a field full of Q-tips.

It's best to view cotton fields from a distance. You just can't trespass without getting into trouble, like getting your jeans caught when you try to squeeze between two strands of barbed wire, then you feel a sharp pain on your back like a cat landed on it.

If you choose a patch of land 12 miles south of Las Cruces off the interstate your shoes are apt to be covered with mud from recent rains.

Pick one of these wispy balls of fluff and the thorns hidden underneath reach out and stab your fingers so you'll bleed.

People from Indiana should only see a cotton field from the road. Trust me.

The sign read Deming, 20 miles. It occurred to me that Deming and the new Ruidoso Airport have something in common. They both were located to prevent rural encroachment.

Did you know that Cobre is the Indian word for copper. I stopped at the Santa Rita mine before game time and picked up a few samples of the green colored ore. There's a free museum on the edge of the quarter of a mile deep, one and one quarter mile wide pit. It's the second oldest copper mine in the United States and opened in 1917. The oldest is off Lake Superior.

Three cheers for our school's maintenance department. You would never see hundreds of discarded desks stored away under our outside bleachers or open ditches with last year's discarded bottles and wrappers in the parking lot or a football field with huge dark spots from burned out stadium lights. It makes you appreciate how good we have it.

Did I tell you I'm afraid to fly? Well I am. My last white knuckle flight was to New York. Things happened and I never flew again.

Last Friday night, driving back from the Cobre game somewhere around 2 a.m. in the morning, the usual weariness began to cloud my brain.

All my tricks to shake the webs failed. Violently snap your head back and forth like you're cracking a bull whip. Vigorously rub your hair until it rips out in clumps between your fingers. Nothing worked.

Finally I decided to roll down the window and let some cool air drift through this stale attic.

"Flap, flap, flap, flap," my long sleeve shirt shuttered against the 55 m.p.h. wind. Half asleep, it sounded kind of like a helicopter. Since I'm afraid to fly, it kept me awake.

So I decided to leave my arm out the window, listen to the "flap, flap, flap, flap," and pretend I was in a helicopter. Occasionally a DC-7 or semi would honk me back to my flight pattern, but it worked and I didn't doze off, except once when I swear I saw lights from Las Cruces some 1,500 feet below me.

This weekend the Warriors will learn who their next opponent will be, the Kirtland Central Broncos or the Robertson Cardinals. I can envision a mascot horse on the field better than a bunch of red robed men of the cloth standing along the sidelines. Go Kirtland!

Go Warriors!

Soft-spoken coach can become all business

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Sports Writer

Scott McMath wasn't smiling. The Warrior JV team was behind and he wasn't happy. Scott's loud voice barked out commands for the defense, forty yards away near the goal line.

If you've been around McMath for 60 seconds, two observations will leap to your mind. The first observation is that he always smiles. The next thing you notice is his voice is very soft. Now a third observation can be noted. When Scott is involved in competition you can forget the smile and the soft voice. The competitor Scott is all business because Scott wants to win!

McMath was graduated from Estancia high school in 1982 where he played football, basketball and track. In his senior year he was all state cornerback.

Estancia won the state in football. His junior year, the team made it to the quarter finals and Estancia lost in the finals in his senior year.

He then entered the University of Eastern New Mexico in Portales where he majored in physical education and minored in special education.

During his college days, he showed up to play in a co-ed intramural basketball game. A girl named Lisa played on his team. Several passes were made, and two years later they were married.

In his senior year at Eastern, Scott was elected outstanding male undergraduate in physical education.

When Scott graduated from Eastern in December he immediately started work at Clovis where he taught special ed for a half year.

"My wife was teaching at Muleshoe, Texas, during this time," Scott said. "We both wanted to come back to New Mexico to a same school. We looked around and couldn't believe that we found something so perfect as Ruidoso and we were both very impressed with the school's athletic program."

Lisa is now teaching PE and coaching eighth girls in volleyball, basketball and track.

"The teaching was right for both of us," said Scott, "which is very exciting."

"This year in football I was the assistant freshman coach to coach Ussery," McMath said. "I've learned a lot this year. I've learned that I enjoy teaching and coaching. It would be very satisfying if each year could show progress and promise as well as this year."

McMath loves teaching special education.

"When I was going to school at Eastern, I just wanted to teach PE and coach when I was asked to do a practicum, an assignment to be with a teacher at a school for two hours a week."

"I was assigned to a principal at an elementary school. The principal further assigned me to PE classes and one of those classes was a special ed group. I loved it. I felt the patience needed, knew it was within my abilities and knew it was what I really wanted to do."

"Lisa and I both love it here in Ruidoso. This summer we fished and water skied. We bought an old junk heap of a boat and drove to Fort Sumner lake and had a great time."

Scott said that Lisa, as a coach, is very supportive to the time required for coaches to be away from home and on the practice field.

Asked if all the time spent from each other to teach and coach is worth it, Scott said, "I know it is and we both feel that way."

R. Evans shows racketball skill in taking Athletic Club tourney

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Sports Writer

In the fast and furious world of the great indoor-outdoor sport of racquetball, Ruidoso's Rick Evans grabbed top honors in the Men's Class A singles of the Fourth Anniversary Racquetball Tournament sponsored by the Ruidoso Athletic Club.

Forty-six players swatted the ball and battered the wall in the two-week long tournament that stirred local athletes and local interest until it ended last Friday.

Frank Potter was runner-up to Evans in the men's top bracket.

Dave Gurule won the Men's B Class singles with Mark Borge runner-up.

Robert Sandoval finished first in the Men's C Class singles. Angel Chavez held on to the number two spot.

Anne Evans and Frank Potter teamed to win the mixed doubles. Donna Potter and Rick Evans finished in the runner-up slot.

Mike Long from Capitan was the outstanding rookie of the tournament.

Jeanie Whitwam, club pro, said Long started playing racketball six weeks ago.

"Long will be an A player within two months," Whitwam said. "He's got all the natural talents."

Whitwam profiled Ruidoso's leading racquetball players.

"Evans is the most technically perfect racquet ball player that you'll ever meet," she said. "He analyzes his game from the viewpoint that every aspect has to be perfect. He doesn't cut any corners anywhere. He simply does everything right."

"He can also pick out errors of others and immediately recommend changes to correct. He is an excellent teacher and one of the best assets to our club because of his teaching ability."

"Ann, Rick's wife, is a good example of Rick's coaching. Although she is not the natural athlete of her husband, he brought out the best that she could be. Ann is a very smart player."

"Potter has an excellent game, a step away from Evans. Frank's game could be improved if he would eat a few less chocolate chip cookies. Frank is a natural athlete."

"Donna Potter is one of our up and coming players. She's studied three years under the guidance of Evans. Donna's chief asset is her agility. She's very fast and moves well all over the court."

"Gurule just moved to Ruidoso from Albuquerque. Technically, Dave is a very good player that only needs to play more often."

"Borge is primarily a tennis player, but he is very athletic and has no problem in converting his skills to good sound racquetball."

"Sandoval has been playing rac-

Three-time winner

Ronald Servies collects a check for $25 as he wins the Ruidoso News Football Contest for the third time this season. Ron picked 17 winners and missed the tiebreaker by only one point. Servies was one of the few contestants that picked Phoenix over the 49ers. Congratulations Ron!

quetball for three years. He's also very athletic and a good tennis player."

"Chavez is a two year player in racquetball. He has so much natural ability that he is capable of becoming an A player within a year."

"Whitman said tournaments are a way of measuring a persons improvement."

Next week the RAC is sponsoring a ladies tournament with two divisions, advanced and beginners.

"Our outstanding lady player is Betty O'Dell whose been playing the game over eight year," Whitwam said. "She travels the state entering tournaments. She also learned her racquetball from Rick Evans. Betty works for hours to perfect a shop."

"Susan Keeton is Betty's chief competitor. There is always a crowd when those two ladies play, they are so competitive."

"The day has finally come when Anne Evans and Donna Potter have played enough and have reached the level to give O'Dell and Keeton a good game."

The RAC is a comprehensive work out arena for residents who want to keep in shape.

Whitwam said another aspect of their anniversary celebration was an aerobic challenge, a competition provided for ladies who participate in the various aerobic classes.

"We provide a five minute routine that is new to everyone," said Whitwam. "New music, new moves. We have a panel of judges watching the participants who select a winner."

Good form, alignment in positions, the ability to follow the routine are all judged, technique has to be perfect. The judgement is similar to that of a gymnast. The instructor also gives her input to the judges decision.

This year ten ladies participated and Marilyn Garcia was the winner in that competition.

To complete the anniversary special, the RAC held a bench press competition.

Whitwam said that the RAC offers special privileges for all Warrior students, which includes the use of the weight rooms for a dollar a night.

Didericksen is aboard speediest pair

SUNLAND PARK — Jockey Kip Didericksen was aboard the fastest two qualifiers in Friday's Sunland Park All American Sale Futurity trials as Mr Speculate clocked in :19.50 and Passin The Cash ran the 400 yards in :19.62 to win their respective elimination heats.

Didericksen put himself into the position of having to select which of the two top runners he will ride in the $39,613 final on Sunday, November 20th.

All 20 hopefuls were helped by a stiff tailwind and Mr Speculate flew off to a 1 and 1/2 length win to earn an impressive 104 speed index. Owned by William and Louella Mitchell, Mr Speculate qualified for a Los Alamitos futurity final in September before traveling to Sunland. Mr Speculate is the well-bred son of Easly Smashed, out of the Hempen mare, San Rosa Leah and is trained by Bob Baffert.

Passin The Cash won for the third straight time for the G&S Racing Stables and has now won five of eight starts including the Navajo Country Futurity at Holbrook, Arizona.

Passin The Cash is trained by John Bassett.

The top two will be joined in the gate by Smiling Moon, :19.66; Fantastic Sailor, :19.710; Older Than Dirt, :19.735; Nannikin, :19.820; Honeysuckle Rosebud, :19.890; Scouts Melody, :19.920; Tiffany Ryan, :19.980; Bugington, :20.005.

On Friday Wilma Arnett's Track Ambassador set a new track record of :52.36 at 1,000 yards. It was the second time in two weeks that a new standard for the distance was established.

Lido Lea broke on top and never looked back on her way to an impressive win in Friday's feature thoroughbred race at Sunland.

Ridden by Victor Toquinto, Lido Lea won the 5 and 1/2 furlong dash easily in 1:06.2 and paid $5.80, $3.20, $2.40. Auburn Annie could not get any closer than three lengths to the winner at the wire and returned $2.60, $2.20. Draconic's Dough finished third, $2.80.

Apprentice rider Jim Ray Coates shared the day's riding honors by bringing in two winners, including the day's longshot, Barber's Pride. Barber's Pride paid $56.40 to win the tenth race.

Breeder's Cup simulcast big hit at track

SUNLAND PARK — The seven race Breeder's Cup Series simulcast was one of the highlights of racing at Sunland Park on Saturday as a good crowd put $381,964 through the mutual windows.

The mutual handle increased 4.9 percent above last year's Breeder's Cup Day with 2,645 patrons witnessing the action.

Fans got to see local favorite Alysheba, owned by Pamela and Dorothy Scharbauer of Midland, Texas rally for a big win in the Breeder's Cup Classic and Pass John Henry to become the all-time money earning winner in thoroughbred racing.

Wise Blade accepts challenge, wins

SUNLAND PARK — Wise Blade raced boldly on the outside and withstood the challenge of favored Fly Dragoness to win Sunday's $36,184 Thoroughbred Sale Futurity at Sunland Park.

Jockey Joe Martinez was aboard his fourth winner of the afternoon and the pair covered six furlongs in 1:12 flat to return $8.40, $2.80, $2.40. For his two-length win, the two-year-old son of Poly's Blade - Sure Wise Leslie earned $18,092 for owner Dr. Sue Zarges of El Paso.

Martinez kept Wise Blade a well-placed fourth as the 12-horse field traveled down the backstretch. Then as the pack turned for home, the chestnut-colored colt came on the outside and swept to the front at the furlong pole.

Fly Dragoness, upset in her bid to win her third futurity final this year, settled right behind stablemate Suzy Sundance for most of the race, but her rally in the stretch fell short. She earned $7,960 for second money and paid off $2.40, $2.20 at the windows.

House numbering move is made

by FRANKIE JARRELL
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission (P&Z) met Monday to conduct one public hearing and hear two requests from citizens.

Commissioners unanimously approved a proposal to amend a village ordinance dealing with numbering houses.

The village already has an ordinance calling for all lots, buildings and structures to be numbered, with the planning administrator to keep the official map and number chart. The amendment approved Monday authorizes the village or its agent to place house numbers and assess a penalty if citizens fail to comply.

Cleatus Richards, planning administrator, said the Police Department and the Fire Department both have been pressing for the project.

Richards said Contel has offered to provide numbers and affix them to village properties. He said the telephone company will be the authorized agent.

Commissioner Eddie Nichols, a Contel employee, said the company has budgeted for paying for metal numbers to use in the house numbering project.

"That will work well until the next governor decides to change the names on highways again," noted Mike Runnels, assistant village attorney.

The amendment will be sent to the Ruidoso Village Council with P&Z's recommendation.

In other regular business Monday, the commission:

—Approved a vacation of right of way for Fay Levon Benfield at 108 East Brady Road. P&Z recommended the area on South Road adjoining Lot 1, Block 12, McCarty Subdivision, be vacated at a cost of 50 cents per square foot. Their recommendation will be forwarded to the council.

—Recommended the Grindstone access road be designated Wiggins Way. P&Z already approved a request by the Gymnastics Booster Club to have the street name be the prize in a contest. The club informed P&Z Monday that Lisa Wiggins won the contest and asked to have Wiggins Way approved as the street name. The recommendation will be sent to council.

—Learned that a full-time building inspector still has not been hired. Richards said Junior Behrenger still is working part-time, and two firefighters are designated as code enforcement officers on a part-time over-time basis.

—Authorized Commissioner John White to draft a new complaint lot form after hearing him report that the current form doesn't suit its purpose well.

—Heard Chairman Robert Donaldson question why the council tabled P&Z's recommendations regarding amendments to the Sign Ordinance. Richards said Councilor Elmer Pirelli apparently had problems with the recommendation, but hasn't discussed it with him.

"If it stays on the table it's considered not to be passed," said Runnels, adding any councilor can put the proposal back on the table.

The tabled recommendation calls for eliminating billboards, and deals with off-premise signs.

—Learned during a staff report that the village lost one court case and "won and lost" another last week. He said a district judge found that zoning on a White Mountain tract is commercial, and the municipal judge ruled that the Chavez property (on Carrizo Creek Road) was commercial before the new ordinance was passed.

Richards said the Chavez property can continue the commercial office-type use, but will have to discontinue the heavier commercial use such as outdoor storage.

—Scheduled an annexation workshop for the next regular meeting.

—Discussed scheduling meetings for just once a month, but decided to continue with the current schedule and cancel meetings if there are no citizen requests.

LCHA hears Pitel concerning tourism

by DORIS CHERRY

Ruidoso News Staff Writer

"Make tourism an issue," said Mike Pitel, guest speaker at the Lincoln County Hospitality Association (LCHA) first annual fall banquet and meeting.

Pitel is the travel writer and market analyst for the New Mexico Economic Development and Tourism Department (NMEDTD).

"Find out how your legislators vote on tourism issues," Pitel said.

He also said the hospitality group (lodgers and restaurateurs) is a "powerful group."

Pitel complimented the Ruidoso and Lincoln County lodgers and restaurateurs for their "dovetailing" of interests. "I've seen fragmentation in small towns," he said about lodgers and restaurateurs in general.

He suggested LCHA sponsor a workshop to "pool" restaurant and hotel resources on customer information, then share that information.

He also said LCHA should not spend "a lot on advertising" right away. "It's a lot more cost effective" to use free information available.

Broadening the Ruidoso-Lincoln County area tourist market (beyond the current horse people and Texas groups) as did Santa Fe and Albuquerque, was one of Pitel's suggestions.

LOOK INTO MARKETS

"Go to other cities and states," he said. "Go to the media who address interest groups. Look into those markets, then alter your products and sales pitch."

Statistics show tourism is the nation's third largest industry with an increase of 57 percent in the last 10 years, Pitel said. We are moving toward a service economy with tourism and travel, he continued.

As a global economic impact, "we are seeing the world shrink," he said.

The construction of global airports by 1995 might affect this area. Pitel told of a "global airport" proposed to be built in Denver. He said the Ruidoso area has the advantage of having air accessibility due to the new airport, which brings people into the resort area quickly.

He also urged the hospitality community to "develop an off-slope personality," to provide services for those persons who ski partial days or when bad weather closes the ski runs.

Pitel concluded his discussion with a report about the formation of a "Billy the Kid Country" network between New Mexico communities and historical areas (such as Fort Stanton, Bayard and Sumner) where the outlaw Billy the Kid lived and traveled.

Also discussed by LCHA Sunday was the proposed community civic or events center at the old Ruidoso Airport.

TIME REQUESTED

"Give Hubbard time," said Jim Atwood to the members present.

Atwood, representing Ruidoso area realtors, requested LCHA consider a 60-day "grace period" to allow R.D. Hubbard, new owner of the Ruidoso Downs Race Track, to present tangible plans for the proposed resort complex at the old airport.

Atwood said he wanted to dispel rumors about the lodgers being against the proposed golf course and resort hotel on the old airport land. However, Atwood was concerned the renovation of the old airport facilities into an events center would interfere with the proposed resort complex.

"If we move it (the renovated terminal building complex), it costs more," Atwood continued.

Replies from lodgers about the "waiting period" included "delaying tactic" to "asinine."

In other discussion about the center, Dennis Fisher, who is involved with the plan to renovate the old terminal buildings, said, "An earth floor is not a consideration."

Fisher and J.D. James, representing the Ruidoso Village Economic Development Advisory Board, presented the plans and explained some features. Village councilors will have the opportunity to view the plans at the village meeting Tuesday night.

LCHA president Katherine Finley encouraged all members to attend the village council meeting, to "be informed."

Fisher said the proposed facility will incorporate the existing terminal building and hangars, and a newly constructed structure to tie the two buildings together. Fisher emphasized the 12,000-square-foot building would have a concrete floor and an open-beam interior with wainscoting to about seven feet.

"It will be a big arena," Fisher said.

The entrance will feature a brick facade and a mall with trees and other landscaping. All exteriors will be sided with the same material, the terminal building will be re-roofed and all exteriors cleaned and painted.

Funding for the project was discussed. Rick Evans and James both said the money will not come from Lodgers' Tax funds, but a special matching fund established three years ago by the Ruidoso village councilors. The fund takes money from the village general fund to match dollars collected by Lodgers' Tax.

The fund, which has about $300,000, was a compromise between the village and Ruidoso lodgers when the councilors raised Lodgers' Tax to three percent, said lodger Bill Rawlins.

Completion date was not established.

Also announced Sunday was the Christmas Party scheduled for December 11. The party will include open house at Upper Canyon lodges, sleigh or buggy rides, and a caroling session. LCHA members were requested to bring a wrapped child's gift and a recipe for a "favorite, warm-memory, (food) treat."

LCHA board of directors also will meet before the end of the year.

The Silver Lining

by Daniel Agnew Storm

Sundown On An Indian Summer Day

This is being sent to you just at sundown on November seven, and after a day of wind from all directions, blowing light clouds in the sky and Autumn leaves bouncing and swirling over the land, now just as half of the sun appears over the western hill, the wind has stopped, and all the air is still.

The vale is quiet in a reverent hush as Mother Earth says a prayer of thanks to the sun for giving us this Indian Summer day, now drawing to a close.

Now the sun has gone down, and the hillside to the south and east are all in a pink and gold airy mantle where the sunset colors tell you that the sun has not gone — only traveling on bringing day to other lands and reminding you that this golden light of the world will welcome in the new day tomorrow. And with peace in your heart and calm faith in your soul, you are filled with that thankfulness for the day that always comes with the heavenly colors of the sunset and the gloaming.

The strumming of a cricket now signals the approach of the twilight, other of these little troubadours of the night join in — nearby in the grass and in the near distance among the low leaves on the trees. From the hillside a robin sends his melody of the dusk down from the pinon and cedars.

Early night now brings in its veil of soft darkness, and all the children of Mother earth begin their rest, lulled to happy dreams to the lullabies of the cricket serenaders, while the evening star high in the eastern sky smiles twinkling down.

November Morning

Now it is the morning of November eight, and the sun is just rising over sunrise mountain through a veil of light clouds, which spread the sun out into a silvery airy disc many times its size, with rainbow colors radiating up from the horizon and down into the vale.

Now there is a soft singing murmur in the boughs of the Cedar tree in the front yard as the gentle wind moves in from the Southeast, bringing a mild and balmy fragrance of oak brush leaves and evergreens. The American flag ripples its beloved colors against a gray sky touched with light purple. All the little mountain meadow stretching away and up to the foot of the dark green hill, is soft gold in the silvery half light of the early Indian summer morning.

The sun blazes forth over the mountain top now in full light, as the cloud curtain is drawn aside by the wind, and the large Apricot tree in the middle of the meadow shines forth with leaves of flashing lighted gold.

A band of snow birds fly in lighting on the fence wires at the drinking rocks and in the Cedar tree, chirping their little songs of welcome to the other little winged friends of the Fall: the red-tinted House Finch, the red-white-and-blue Western Blue Bird, and the all-blue Mountain blue Bird.

Now the bugle notes of the Pinon Jays flying low overhead are blended with the cheerful little notes of Bluebird and Finch. The crow, floating with still wings in mid air, chimes in with his "all is well" call, harmonizing with the singing voice of the wind as it sings its hymn of thanksgiving and as it sings down the valley and along the hillsides and through the river trees.

Mother Earth is breathing a prayer of thanksgiving here on the morning of this day early in the Thankful Month.

Veterans Day

This will reach you on the eve of Veterans Day. Let us remember our veterans as we count our many blessing during the Thankful Month.

The Plant Corner

by Sally Black

Dear Sally: Please help me with my Asparagus Fern. It was a gift from a friend. When it was given to me it was very full and rich-looking with healthy, long green fronds. The plant is now all brown and the needles continue to drop. There is always a mess under the plant. How can I help the poor plant? Thanks, Helen M.

Dear Helen: The so-called Asparagus Fern is really not a fern at all, but a member of the lily family. Best known and perhaps the most widely grown "fern" of all is the Asparagus Sprengeri, commonly known as simply The Asparagus Fern.

It is an easily grown house plant. Best known for hanging baskets, it has three to six foot-long drooping stems. It has delicate leaves and sometimes produces small white flowers, followed by red berries.

We will start with moisture for your poor fern. This plant thrives in good light, no direct sun, cool and humid. So do not place near hot air outlets or west or south windows.

Your plant was probably "forced" to grow at the nursery. The larger the plant, the more money, and the potting mix has become root-bound and a solid, hard-packed mass.

You must repot immediately. The roots form potato-like roots, like most lily-family plants.

These "potatoes" grow very fast, therefore, you must repot the plant into a two to four inch larger pot every couple of years.

New plants may be made when repotting by slicing, with a sharp knife, through the clump of "potatoes" to make two or three new plants.

Trim all the tired, old fronds to the soil level, leaving only the fresh, new green growth in the new pot.

Be sure to use plastic packing peanuts in the bottom of the new pot.

Soil Mixture: A good basic mix for most ferns is one-third peat moss, one-third river sand or finely ground bark, and one-third packaged potting soil.

Most ferns do best with a Ph of 5.5 to 6.5. This soil mix provides a good chemical balance. It also is a good idea to add a couple of tablespoons of bone meal per gallon of soil mix. Bone meal is a safe source of phosphorus, which helps develop strong root systems.

Fertilizer: After your new, repotted plants are settled in, there is no reason to fertilize them unless they seem off-color (pale green or yellowed), or slow in growth.

Should you decide to add nutrients, do so only twice a year, spring and midsummer, using your home-made liquid organic fertilizer made of fish. Commercial fish fertilizer should be cut to one-quarter the manufacturer's recommended use.

Water: The soil must be moist at all times. Never allow the "potatoes" to dry out or become soggy wet. The plant will thrive with small, frequent waterings.

Water every day in the heat of the summer, unless there is lots of moisture in the air.

Ferns need a "gentle" early morning misting, with warm, distilled water. Especially during dry periods. Ferns have shallow roots and this is why they need more frequent waterings. Otherwise the water goes below the root system and does no good for the plant.

Light and temperature: Ferns need shade but the leaves will yellow in dense shade. They need a bright light but not direct sun.

North or east windows are great. Your plant will tell you it is not getting enough light. Ferns thrive on a constant temperature of 65° to 85° with high humidity.

Pests: The fern's worst enemy is the meal bug, whose sweet secretions attract other insects.

Mealy bugs look like tiny tufts of cotton. The best way to kill them is to dab each bug with a cotton ball soaked with rubbing alcohol. Do not ever use chemical spray on ferns.

Another pest is the aphid. The best way to deal with the aphids on the fern, is to take the plant to the sink, turn up-side-down and spray with a warm, mild solution of "soap" suds.

Be gentle and spray the entire plant. Let it stand a few minutes then rinse with a clear, warm, gentle spray. May be repeated as often as needed.

Check often for pests. Hope I have helped you, thanks for your letter.

Opinion

EDITORIAL

It's great to have a winning team. Ruidoso is feeling mighty good about the Warriors winning district over Cobre to advance to even tougher football competition.

Capitan is feeling fine about the Lady Tiger volleyball team advancing to state competition by winning regional playoffs. We congratulate both teams and commensurate with the Capitan varsity football team which stumbled once after a remarkable season. The Capitan Tigers have nothing to be ashamed of for sure.

In fact, no team should ever feel ashamed of a performance or a season if team members have played their best. Sometimes the chips just fall the wrong way or the breaks are not forthcoming. Or, teams occasionally, we must admit, meet a superior opponent.

High school sports constitutes an important part of the educational process. Sports competition does build character. It teaches boys and girls how to win and how to lose gracefully although nobody really likes to lose.

Politics is a lot like sports—there always are winners and those who are not successful. Let us say here and now we appreciate the people who have the gumption to run for public office and who hopefully have a strong desire to serve others.

We congratulate the winners, whether they be in high school sports or in the political arena. And we thank each and every competitor, victors or not, for being in the thick of competition.

The winners in Tuesday's election now have a tremendous responsibility toward their constituents. May each and every one of them serve honorably and well.

Eye On The Capitol

by Tom Warson, Ph.D.

Hoppin' mad.

The top state official tore into the "media." You would have thought he was Gov. Carruthers, and somebody just plowed into his famous Ford Mustang.

On Oct. 26, Department of Finance and Administration Secretary Willard Lewis gave a presentation on state government revenues to the Legislative Finance Committee. Nobody in the media covered it. Well, almost nobody. "I saw this little bitty thing in an Albuquerque newspaper," the official told me. With thumb and forefinger, he held up a minnow-sized measurement.

The administrator had a right to be burned up. I must admit I didn't attend the LFC meeting. However, my absence wasn't due to laziness and stupidity -- the customary explanations of media inattention. Rather, I knew Secretary Lewis was scheduled to give another presentation on Nov. 1, to the Revenue Stabilization and Tax Policy Review Committee, an interim committee of the state legislature.

I figured the figures couldn't change much in six days. They didn't.

Here, then, are the highlights, and few lowlights, of state government finances as presented last week by Secretary Lewis and Gail Reese, Secretary of Taxation and Revenue.

"We're in good shape. Recurring revenues are projected to grow $60.4 million, or 3.9%, over the last fiscal year (fiscal years run from July 1 - June 30). "Growth in sales and income tax revenues and interest earnings of 5 percent or more is expected to offset declines of 10 to 15 percent or more is expected to offset declines of 10 to 15 percent in energy-related revenues (severance taxes and rents and royalties)," Lewis/Reese said.

"There'll be a surplus. Projected revenues are $58.4 million greater than appropriations for the current fiscal year. At least $20 million must go to keep up current service levels for Medicaid, Corrections, PL-874 and other programs.

"When the legislature meets in January, they'll appropriate money for the 78th fiscal year (July 1989 - June 1990). For that year, the revenue estimate is from $1,670 billion. "This figure is $93.9 million, or 6.0 percent, greater than recurring appropriations for the current fiscal year."

What are state government's basic assumptions about the future of the economy, nationally and statewide?

The current forecast is somewhat more optimistic than the November 1987 forecast," Lewis/Reese declared, "because forecasters feared the stock market crash was a harbinger of an economic slowdown."

What that current forecast is: Nationally, real GNP growth "should average 4.0 percent in 1988, 2.7 percent in 1989, and 2.0 percent in 1990." Inflation "should grow at average rates of 4.7 and 5.1 percent in the [current and next] fiscal years, respectively."

In New Mexico, employment "is expected to grow by 1.6 percent in the [current] fiscal year... Employment in extractive industries is also expected to remain essentially unchanged. On the positive side, manufacturing employment is expected to increase at rates of 2.3 and 2.6 percent during the [present and next] fiscal years, respectively. The manufacturing figures exceed national projections and reflect expected strength in the electronic and transportation industries."

Also in New Mexico, "Total government employment is forecasted to grow in the 1.5 percent range during the next fiscal year" -- less than wages and salaries generally, which are expected to grow at about 5 percent during each of the next two fiscal years.

The oil price outlook "has shifted from a $15-$20/bbl world to $10-$20/bbl world." As for natural gas, the "price forecast is $1.65/mcf this year and ranges from $1.65 to $1.85/mcf next year."

The punchline: not bad. Naturally, there are always dark spots:

"Regardless of who occupies the next White House or Congress," the Federal Reserve will have "to fine tune the economy to avoid either a recession or higher inflation. The Fed has...frequently stepped on the monetary brakes too hard and too late."

Lewis/Reese also warned, "If the next U.S. president fails to reduce the federal deficit...large numbers of foreign investors might decide to abandon the dollar. The resulting dollar devaluation would probable generate increased inflation and interest rates, reduce confidence in the U.S. economy, and possibly even cause a recession."

It's not Christmas yet. Nevertheless, the $93-million "extra" revenues for 1989-1990, already has visions of sugar plums dancing in the heads of legislators.

DFA technicians are quick to point out these facts:

First, the calculation assumes the midpoint figure of $1,670.4 turns out to be the real one for 1989-90. Keep in mind that $1,632.4 was at the low end of the revenue spectrum. If we have a recession, the bottom figure could be the more accurate one.

And second, as noted above, about $20 million must come out of the present year's surplus for Medicaid, etc. The technicians say to plan on the same amount for 1989-1990. So, subtract another $20 million.

Their conclusion: about $53 million will be in the pot for legislators and the governor to fight over in January.

Teachers want a pay hike, lawmakers want public works projects -- the list goes on and on.

The only thing they'll end up agreeing on: $53 million isn't what it used to be.

Reporter's Round

By Frankie Jarrell

Win a few ... lose a few.

Que será será.

If what will be, will really be, then why do we all invest so much energy in the election process. Sometimes I wonder.

I've probably done more than my share of campaigning over the years. My first big loss was in the third grade.

For weeks I told my friends, and probably my teachers, what a great guy Adlai Stevenson was. After all, my parents told me he would be the next president of the United States. My parents couldn't have picked a loser ... or could they?

Imagine my surprise when Dwight David Eisenhower was elected president.

It was pretty humiliating, facing all those kids.

And, to add insult to injury, my mother, the same woman who had said for weeks that Adlai Stevenson would be the best president, said, "Now Ike is our president, we all have to support him."

She was serious, though; and her philosophy helped me bear the embarrassment a little better.

You see, when I really believe something; I really, really believe it. So, I have a hard time when I'm in the minority.

The year I was among the vocal, but apparently small, minority campaigning for McGovern for president, I pulled my poor children right into that political web.

I shouldn't confess to what some of you will believe is child abuse, but that year I made my youngsters hand out McGovern literature to the houses where they went "trick or treating" on Halloween.

"When they give you candy, then you hand them this," I said to Catherine and Chuck. "And, ask them to be sure and read it," I added seriously.

What could the poor little spooks do?

The day after that election could have been hard on those little campaigners, but I repeated what my mother said to me: "Richard Nixon is our president now, we will support him."

And so it has been, winning a few, and losing a few.

The year Jimmy Carter was elected, the Jarrell children wore "the grin will win" T-shirts, and I wore a gold peanut on a gold chain. We were prepared for defeat that year, since we were about the only people in Lubbock, Texas, voting for the Georgia peanut farmer.

But that year I got to put a bowl of peanuts on my desk the day after the election, smile sweetly and act like the good sport that I am.

Moving to New Mexico tempered my politics a bit, and I must confess I'm no longer your "yellow-dog Democrat." I even pulled a Republican lever or two this year.

I also did my share of politicking; and of course, I made Bethany deliver literature to her civics teacher.

Maybe what will be, will be, but I guess I'll never give up.

But, this morning, I can just hear my mom saying, "George Bush is our president now, we have to support him."

Girl Scouts adopt homeless animals

Ruidoso Girl Scout Cadet Troop No. 9 decided on a different kind of project this year: to sponsor a cat and dog at the Humane Society.

The troop visited the Humane Society animal shelter and selected the animals to sponsor. The kitten was named Miss America for Columbus Day. The dog, a beagle, was named Gertrude.

Troop leader Irene Naron said the beagle attracted the girls with her friendly and loving nature. As Gertrude was an older dog, the troop decided to provide food and other needs until she could be adopted, hopefully to a family with kids.

Randy Basch, of the humane society, said the kitten was adopted since the troop began sponsorship. Now, Gertrude is looking for a home.

Until then, Gertrude is Troop No. 9's favorite beagle.

KARLA AND TY PERRY

Karla Sears marries Ty Perry

Karla Beth Sears of Las Cruces and Ty Powell Perry of El Paso, Texas were married October 22.

The ceremony for Sears, daughter of John and Libby Sears of Ruidoso and Perry, son of Sharon Perry of Ruidoso, was performed by Reverend Ken Cole at the Sears home in Ruidoso.

The bride wore a gown of ivory peau de soie and a wreath of Baby's Breath in her hair. Her flowers were white orchids surrounded by baby white orchids.

The matron of honor, Sears' sister, was Karri Howard of Cloudcroft. She wore a periwinkle blue dress and carried an orchid with pink center.

Perry wore a navy blue suit. His best man and friend was Ronnie Lawing of Ruidoso. He wore a gray suit.

The home of Ronnie and Myra Taylor was the location of the reception.

The bride was a Ruidoso High School graduate. She also graduated from the Colorado Institute of Art. She currently works for Taylor Newman Advertising Agency.

Perry is a graduate of Kettle Falls High School in Kettle Falls, Washington. He attended Spokane Community College and Eastern New Mexico University. He currently works for the Archer Building Company.

The couple honeymooned in El Paso, Texas and plan to make that city their home.

RLT announces Betty Awards December 3 at Cree Meadows

Ruidoso Little Theatre will give itself a pat on the back during Betty Awards on December 3, at Cree Meadows Country Club.

Winners will be honored for acting and production during the annual ceremony. The best play also will be announced during the dinner dance.

Betty Award winners are selected by voters who have seen all three of the season's productions and have worked in some area on at least one of the plays. This year RLT has presented "Critic's Choice," "Deathtrap," and "West of Pecos."

The People's Choice awards are selected by fans who have seen two out of the three plays. To vote for People's Choice one need not have worked in the community theater productions.

Ballots, available by calling Karen W. Barrow at 257-7777, must be postmarked by November 16, to be counted. The official ballots will be sent to Dick Mound, C.P.A., who will tally the votes and keep them secret until the Betty Awards.

RLT board members also will be elected at this year's Betty Awards.

Parents ask: 'Is there life after children?'

"Is there life after children?" will be the topic for discussion during the first meeting of a parenting group being formed in Ruidoso.

The group of parents of young children will hear Dr. Birgit LaMothe speak at 7 p.m. Tuesday, November 15, at Dr. Arlene Brown's office in Sierra Professional Building.

Children are welcome at the meetings.

According to a meeting announcement, Dr. LaMothe, a mental health therapist, will deal with concerns over the quality of marriage and family life after the birth of a child.

"Our expectations are so high, and then the reality of the responsibilities and daily chores sets in," said LaMothe, who has taught parenting classes for 15 years. She said the lack of extended family help, two-income families and single parenthood all increase the stress.

The parents group will continue to meet at 7 p.m. every other Tuesday at Dr. Brown's office to share information and meet people with similar interests.

"Only people with young children want to discuss things like teething and toilet training," said Carol Kasl, now of the group's organizers.

Future topics may include babysitters and day-care, family nutrition, exercises with children, massage for youngsters, breast-feeding and working with the child's doctor.

"We are open to ideas for topics and meeting times," said Kasl, noting the group intend to respond to the interests and needs of its members.

Sally Canning, a certified child-birth educator, said the group may work on community service projects to benefit parents and children.

For more information, call Kasl at 257-3049, Canning at 653-4041, Renee Rubin at 257-4498 or Cinda Griffin at 257-6363.

Kiwanis seeks food donations

Ruidoso Kiwanis Club and the First Baptist Church want to be sure every Ruidoso family has a Thanksgiving dinner this year.

They'll be providing Thanksgiving baskets for 65 to 70 families, but members say it will take the help of the community to make that possible.

Kiwanis already has purchased 65 turkeys, and collection bins are set up to gather "all the trimmings" for traditional Thanksgiving meals. Donations of non-perishable foods may be dropped into bins at the schools, the post office, both Safeway stores, Bennett's Shur-Sav and at the Ruidoso Public Library.

With Thanksgiving just two weeks away, members of Kiwanis encourage people to make contributions soon.

Cash donations also will be accepted at Lincoln Cablevision, the Byrd's Nest in Sierra Mall, T-Bird and at First National Bank.
