Lincoln County's First Baby for 1988!

Wanda Braniff and Dr. Everett Kennedy introduce Ciara Nichole Braniff, who was born at 1:24 p.m. on January 1 at the Lincoln County Medical Center. Ciara weighed 5 pounds, 15.6 ounces and measured 20 inches at birth. She has two older sisters at home in Cloudcroft.

Police Chief Newman: Service will be stressed

by FRANKIE JARRELL
News Staff Writer

Recently appointed Ruidoso Police Chief William Newman is making some changes.

"I'm not going to try to remake this department in the image of the Dallas Police Department—it's not and it doesn't want to be," said Newman, who retired from that big city agency before accepting his appointment as chief of the Ruidoso Police Department in November. But he added this small department will be just as good as that huge metropolitan police force by this time next year.

"Probably the major change would be a difference in philosophy," said Newman, during an interview Thursday in his new office. "No two people are alike," he added.

Moving the chief's office from the front of the building, across the lobby from the rest of the department, is related to Newman's philosophy. One of his first moves as head of the department was to move the New Mexico State Police to the offices across the lobby, leaving his office lined up with other department offices.

"I'm right in the heart of what's going on," said Newman, leaning back in his chair and lighting his pipe as he talked. "I want to be involved with the day-to-day operations." Newman added the public lobby between that one office, which now houses the State Police, and the department operation offices formed a psychological barrier between the chief and officers.

Newman said he wants to be accessible to police personnel and to members of the public.

In keeping with his philosophy, Newman reworked the department organizational chart. He directly oversees day-to-day operations, with shift and Criminal Investigation Division commanders reporting directly to the chief. Deputy Chief Jim Alston, still second in command, directly supervises support operations.

The re-organized department will be very service-oriented, said Newman. He said when officers are not busy he wants them to be looking for someone to help. That attitude will help portray the image of the village—a friendly, western, mountain image, noted the chief.

"I've parked the motorcycles," said Newman, explaining that move is in keeping with the more "laid back" image. Motorcycle officers will maintain their training so the two-wheelers can be called into service for special events.

The officers also parked their helmets, said Newman, who has opted for a brown, western-style felt hat.

"That's the image I want to portray," said Newman, who was quick to add he doesn't mean his department will be "soft." Newman said his officers will be service-oriented and helpful, while doing a competent and professional job for the village.

Newman's long-range, detailed plans have been influenced by his engineering background.

"We'll be very heavy into training," explained Chief Newman, adding he'll try to bring in instructors to train several officers at a time to make the most of limited training funds. With a department as small as the RPD, Newman said every uniformed officer will be trained in one or more specialties, in addition to normal street patrol duties.

"We're all going to wear two or three hats," said Newman. "We'll have all the capabilities of a big city department."

Patrol officers already have had training in processing the crime scene, and are now doing a supplemental report five days after handling an investigation things that used to be passed on to a detective in the CID.

"We've made investigators out of them rather than just report takers," noted Newman. "They've thoroughly enjoyed it," he added.

"Another philosophy of mine is to direct our activities at the areas where they're needed," said Newman, showing off a map and briefing room that will be located in the office next to his. In that room maps already are posted where officers will plot and post every accident and breaking and entering reported in the village.

"Here's a picture of what's happening," said Newman, pointing to the big wall maps. He said shift commanders, using selective enforcement techniques, will make assignments using information obtained from the maps. For instance, radar won't be used indiscriminately, but might be utilized in an area where a number of accidents involving speed have occurred.

Newman said selective enforcement allows officers to direct activities at where problems are identified, not just scatter gun them.

"We're certainly not going to put radar out where we can write a lot of tickets," said Newman. "I can tell you right now we need to take a look at Gavilan Canyon Road," he added.

The Ruidoso Police Department is down to a bare minimum, and the new chief said he needs a slight increase in the number of patrol officers. He said the need for additional people is not so much volume—but the area the department covers. Newman said the 40-square-mile area covered by Ruidoso is about the size of Baltimore, Maryland.

But Newman said he knows how to make the most of resources available—like having a friend who is an expert in crime analysis reporting offer free training to Ruidoso officers.

SKI REPORT

The skiing conditions at Ski Apache Resort are fair on the upper mountain with some spots poor, and good on the lower mountain where there is a machine-made base.

The undisturbed snow depth midway on the mountain is 27 inches.

The surface conditions are packed and machine-groomed. All lifts are open today, except for Dead End and East of East.

The weather at report time is clear and calm. Chains are not required on the road to the ski area today.

Municipal elections sign-ups are Tuesday

Candidates wishing to run in municipal elections must sign up Tuesday, January 5, in their respective village clerk offices.

Also, candidates should bring their certified voter registration, dated after November 24. If a candidate has not yet had the Lincoln County Clerk certify the registration, it can be done as late as Tuesday.

The March 1 election will fill seats on the Capitan, Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs governing bodies.

Write-in candidates must sign up Tuesday, January 19.

'Pappy' Coons is hospitalized

Ruidoso village manager Frank Potter said he'll meet with Ruidoso Police Chief William Newman today to figure out how to handle animal control with the village animal control officer hospitalized.

Potter said Richard "Pappy" Coons, the only animal control specialist employed by the village, is in Lincoln County Medical Center (LCMC). Since Animal Control is under the Police Department, Potter said he'll discuss a plan with Newman today, but added animal control calls still will be taken at the Police Department, 257-7365, and will be handled.

Coons, a long-time Lincoln County resident, remains in extremely critical condition in LCMC, according to his physician, Paul R. Whitwam. "He has survived two major operations," said Whitwam, who explained that Coons suffered a ruptured abdominal aneurysm.

Whitwam noted that Coons might not have survived had it not been for the "walking blood bank" at LCMC. He said his patient went through 29 units of blood.

College education class starts Jan. 8 in Ruidoso

A graduate class in Research in Curriculum and Instruction will be taught at Ruidoso High School, in the public meeting room, on January 8-9; January 29-30; February 19-20; March 18-19; and April 15-16.

The class is worth three credits, and will be taught by Dr. Robert Wright.

This is an introduction to qualitative and quantitative design for research in curriculum and instruction with emphasis on action research. The course is offered through New Mexico State University.

"There are ways of getting things done," said Newman.

Among Chief Newman's long-range plans, is the formation of a reserve organization similar to the volunteer fire department. He said reserve officers could be trained to answer non-injury accidents during bad weather, help with traffic control and special events. The unarmed reserve officers would work closely with certified officers, said Newman.

"I'll be looking very strongly at a weekend mounted officer in Midtown during daylight hours in the summer," said Newman, adding the officer would help pedestrians and also serve as a public relations tool for the department.

Chief Newman said he has run into no major obstacles as he has rearranged and reorganized the Police Department. He said the village administration, and his own officers have been supportive and cooperative. Newman said former Police Chief Richard Swenor has made the transition "very, very easy."

Newman is particularly happy to be in a department where he has contact with officers on a daily basis, recalling the people he supervised in Dallas were assigned among six stations.

"The thing I've enjoyed most is ... having time to provide a good service," said Newman.

Ruidoso Police Chief William Newman takes time to discuss his philosophies and changes he's making at the Police Department.

Candidate Montoya

Rick Montoya, a Republican candidate for U.S. Senate, was in Ruidoso recently to introduce himself to voters. A businessman in Las Cruces, Montoya has served in many public capacities, including service as Assistant Secretary of the Interior for Territorial and International Affairs. Montoya says he is the most "electable" Republican candidate seeking to unseat incumbent Senator Jeff Bingaman.

The Dreamer

A Bright Beginning
For The New Year

This is being sent to you on January three, and all the mountain world is smiling under a warm sun beaming down through a sky of purest blue cheering all the hills and vales on this happy day in the beginning of the young year. The American Flag out south of the house is waving very gently with its glorious colors flashing in the sun. Beyond the mountain is soft green with the patches of snow sparkling on high. Out in the meadows there are only a few patches of snow here and there, and none at all on the sunny side of the world.

The temperature is almost up to fifty here a little before high noon. There is a little lone snow bird out feeding under the large cedar tree. The rest of his large band have gone up to the high country to be where there is more snow, but this little fellow is staying around to let us know that it is still wintertime.

Now here comes a scrub jay flashing his dark blue colors as he glides in from the hillside. A crow flies very slowly overhead just over the house and sends down his New Year's song, a clear melodious call, echoing a cheerful note throughout the mountain world. Oftentimes when you hear this new year's call of the crow, at first you think it is a human voice. Surely the crow is a messenger of happy days ahead, because his song from the sky is in harmony with a spirit of high hopes and a promise of wonderful days ahead that cheer your heart as you look out upon this bright and shining day in our beloved homeland in the hills.

Let us all draw together in thankfulness for arriving in this brand new year. And let us thank our Good Lord for our many, many blessings.

Ruidoso girl cagers edge Portales; hope to outshoot Rockets Tuesday

by GARY BROWN
Sports Writer

Make no mistake about it. The Ruidoso High School girls varsity basketball team is on a hot streak. Saturday night the Warriors won their third straight game, defeating visiting Portales, 43-39.

Ruidoso is now 5-5 on the season and will travel to Goddard Tuesday, January 5, for varsity and junior varsity games.

Against Portales, the Warriors held off a late Ram rally for the victory.

Ruidoso built up an 11-point lead (32-21) in the second half, but the visitors gradually battled back into the picture.

Norma Murillo made one of two free throws to give Ruidoso a 37-33 advantage with less than four minutes remaining in the contest.

But Portales made a free throw and then the Rams' Kerry Ennis stole the ball and made a layup to cut the Warrior lead to 37-36.

But Murillo was fouled again and made two free throws for a 39-36 Warrior advantage.

Lori Walker made one free throw and Murillo made two more to give Ruidoso a 42-36 lead with just 23 seconds left.

The Rams made a field goal before Tammy Osborne made a free throw to put the game away for the Warriors.

Sophomore guard Tara Miller scored 19 points to lead the Warrior scoring.

Murillo added 11 points and Walker scored five.

Sheila Reid had four points, Jennifer Jimenez had two and Osborne and Ardena Comanche both had one point to round out the Warrior scoring.

The Warrior inside game again stood out as Reid, Murillo and Comanche more than held their own on the boards.

Now the Warriors will play Goddard, a team they've split with this season.

Goddard beat the Warriors, 49-45, in the first round of the Rockets' tournament last month.

But Ruidoso came back to win, 44-40, just before the Christmas holidays break.

The junior varsity game at Goddard will start at 5:30 p.m., with the varsity contest following it.

Ruidoso's Norma Murillo (21 in light jersey) goes for the ball against Portales in a girls varsity basketball game Saturday. Ruidoso's Tammy Osborne is number 12. Ruidoso won, 43-39.

Warrior wrestlers win one of three; will compete in Bowie tourney

by GARY BROWN
Sports Writer

Ruidoso High School's wrestling team took one of three matches in competition at Carlsbad High School Saturday.

The Warriors defeated Burgess High School of El Paso, Texas, 41-24; but lost to Carlsbad, 39-25, and Roswell (a team they had previously defeated), 34-31.

"We just didn't wrestle well," said Warrior head coach Gerald Ames about the loss to Roswell. "But we came back and wrestled well against Burgess. We looked good against them."

"Against Carlsbad, we wrestled the best we ever did against them. So we wrestled the worst we've done all season against Roswell and came back to wrestle the best we've done all season against Burgess and Carlsbad."

Jeff Schmidt at 114 pounds, Peter Gwaltney at 100 pounds, Scott Yeatman at 134 pounds and Matthew Griego at 140 pounds all had 3-0 records in the four-way match.

Ruidoso will compete in the Bowie (El Paso) Tournament Friday and Saturday, January 8-9.

"It should be a good tournament," Ames said. "There'll probably be about 26 teams in the tournament."

Ruidoso's next home match is Tuesday, January 12, against the Goddard Rockets. The Ruidoso Invitational will be Saturday, January 30.

Following are the Warrior individual results from Saturday.

Ruidoso 31, Roswell, 34.

100 pounds Gwaltney took forfeit win; 107 pounds Henry Kayitah was pinned; 114 pounds Schmidt took 14-4 decision win; 121 pounds Eric Collins was pinned; 128 pounds Heath Wood took forfeit win; 134 pounds Yeatman took forfeit win; 140 pounds Griego took 9-6 decision win; 145 pounds David Orasco was pinned; 157 pounds Bubba Lane took pin win; 167 pounds David Stevenson was pinned; 187 pounds Dusty Beavers was pinned; Heavyweight: Roswell took forfeit win.

Ruidoso 41, Burgess 24

100 pounds Gwaltney took 10-2 decision win; 107 pounds Kayitah was pinned; 114 pounds Schmidt took pin win; 121 pounds Collins was pinned; 128 pounds Wood lost 9-0 decision; 134 pounds Yeatman took 11-3 decision win; 140 pounds Griego took pin win; 147 pounds Orasco took forfeit win; 157 pounds Lane took 16-9 decision win; 167 pounds Stevenson was pinned; 187 pounds Beavers took forfeit win; Heavyweight: Burgess took forfeit win.

Ruidoso 25, Carlsbad 39.

100 pounds Gwaltney took pin win; 107 pounds Kayitah was pinned; 114 pounds Schmidt took pin win; 121 pounds Collins was pinned; 128 pounds Wood lost 9-0 decision; 134 pounds Yeatman took pin win; 140 pounds Griego took forfeit win; 147 pounds Orasco was pinned; 157 pounds Lane lost 8-7 decision; 167 pounds Stevenson was pinned; Beavers tied, 5-5; Heavyweight: Carlsbad took forfeit win.

Boy hoopsters defeated by Roswell; will host Tularosa Wildcats tomorrow

by GARY BROWN
Sports Writer

The Ruidoso High School boys varsity basketball team lost a 53-40 game to host Roswell Saturday night.

Ruidoso, now 3-4 on the season, will host Tularosa Tuesday, January 5. There will be a junior varsity game at 5:30 p.m., followed by the varsity contest.

Against Roswell, the Warriors had poor shooting first and third quarters and that proved to be the difference.

Ruidoso could only score five points in the first quarter and four in the third quarter.

Again, Kirk Ryan led the Warrior scoring.

The senior swingman connected for 21 points, getting four three-point field goals in the process.

Sigurd Schmitz, a 6-7 postman, added nine points and sophomore Kenny Trapp scored eight points for the Warriors.

"They played a zone on us and we tried to bring them out of it to play man, but we couldn't," said Warrior head coach Gene Segura.

Now the Warriors will take on Tularosa, a AA-division school that usually plays the Warriors tough.

"They're young and inexperienced this season. They've got some sophomores and juniors," said Segura of Tularosa. "But they're always up for us. Yeah, it's a big rivalry."

NOTES-It will be a busy week for the Warriors. Ruidoso's boys varsity and junior varsity teams will travel to Lovington Friday, January 8, and host Artesia Saturday, January 9. Ruidoso Middle School's boys and girls A and B teams will travel to Capitan Tuesday. The first game will start at 3 p.m.

Ryan, Moore make all-state grid team

Ruidoso High School's Sean Moore and Kirk Ryan have been named to the Associated Press football AAA-division all-state second team.

Both players are seniors. Moore, who played defensive end for the Warriors, made the team as a defensive down lineman.

Ryan made the team as a defensive back. Both players made the All-District 3-AAA first team this season. Moore made the all-district first team the last two seasons and also is a member of the South All-Star team. He scored three touchdowns in his senior season.

Ryan, better known for his basketball exploits, had not played football since the eighth grade but came out in his senior season and did a great job.

He also was an excellent return man on the Warrior specialty teams.

Artesia running back Michael McPherson was the top vote getter on the team. He was one of the main reasons Artesia tied with Lovington for the state AAA-division championship.

Warrior jr teams lose

Both the Ruidoso High School boys and girls junior varsity basketball teams went down to defeat Saturday night.

The Warrior girls lost a 38-30 game to visiting Portales while the Ruidoso boys fell, 65-26, to host Roswell.

Ruidoso's boys, now 1-6 on the season, got 11 points from Ira Sago. However, the Warriors were hurt by fouls. Ruidoso had three players foul out and finished the game with just four players.

"We just don't have enough players to compete with a team like Roswell," said Warrior junior varsity coach Ridge Bowden.

The Warrior girls were sparked by Joelyn Comanche, who scored 21 points. She also had three three-point field goals.

Enjoying game

Warrior girls varsity basketball coach Sergio Castanon and his daughter, Kara, also watched the game. Wright is a student at New Mexico State University.

Ruidoso, Capitan, Ruidoso Downs mayors note 87's highlights

Airport finish top Ruidoso project

by FRANKIE JARRELL
News Staff Writer

Ruidoso Mayor Lloyd L. Davis Jr. looked forward to a marvelous Christmas season—one he predicted would start the Village of Ruidoso on an economic upswing.

"Maybe we're swinging back up," said Davis last month, noting the boom times of a couple of years ago left the area overbuilt. He hopes the expected recovery won't lead the village back into a boom situation.

But whatever the case, Davis said he and his wife, L.B., are here to stay. Davis has traveled throughout the world, and contends Ruidoso is one of the most beautiful places, with the most marvelous climate in the world. With the area's natural beauty as a drawing card, Mayor Davis said Ruidoso is the most ideal tourist site in the United States.

Davis said the good snow is just what Ruidoso needs to spark an optimistic attitude among its citizens. This past year in Ruidoso wasn't a bad year, stressed Davis. After all, 1987 was the year the village finally replaced its unsafe airport and made big strides toward assuring a plentiful water supply for many years to come.

"We're really glad the airport came in on time," said Davis, recalling a time when some people didn't believe it would ever happen. But Davis, who has served the village as mayor more than once, said he never doubted the area would complete the new regional airport.

"Pilots are just now admitting how bad this old airport really was," said Davis. "I guess they didn't want to alarm people," he added. Davis was just back from lunch with one experienced pilot, former astronaut Frank Borman, who recently landed his jet at Sierra Blanca Regional Airport (SBRA). Davis said Borman, who is now a Las Cruces businessman, predicted the regional airfield will do even more than has been predicted for the area economy.

Borman told Davis that high winds the day of his landing at SBRA would have made landing at the old municipal airport far too dangerous, but had little effect at the new facility. Davis added that Mesa Airlines has started picking up passengers at SBRA—people who used to have to travel elsewhere for airline connections.

Davis is also proud of strides made over the past years in securing an adequate water supply for the Village of Ruidoso. With two more years as mayor, Davis expects to see fill operations well on the way at the giant Grindstone Canyon Dam that was completed during his current mayoral term. He disagrees with dam detractors who have said the dam won't hold water.

"If I were betting I think I'd have to bet on the odds that the thing is sound," said Davis. He said the design engineers and the construction company both have national reputations and are respected in their fields. Davis recalled when dam engineers and others from throughout the world, including a group from Japan, visited the huge construction project.

"They (contractors) could ill-afford to building something that wouldn't stand up," noted Davis. He said final negotiations with the State Engineer's Office on when water will be taken and how it will be metered are nearly complete, paving the way for water to begin flowing into the dam.

Davis said proudly that both the dam and the new airport were designed and built, by their separate engineers and contractors, using state-of-the-art techniques.

The mayor stands by decisions he and the Village Council have made over the Eagle Creek wells.

Having served with a great number of village councillors, Davis said he would rate the cur-

Mayor Lloyd L. Davis Jr., in a spoof on a long-standing political tradition, has a kiss for little John Benjamin Petty. The two are shown during a reception sponsored by The Bank of Ruidoso to commemorate the opening of Sierra Blanca Regional Airport.

Although the airport and dam, two multi-million-dollar projects, were completed while he was mayor, Davis doesn't dwell on past accomplishments. He's looking forward to things he wants to see happen. And his major wish for next year?

"I want to see the road to the airport finished," answered Davis firmly.

rent group "very good," noting the members of the council are responsive to the citizenry. Davis praised Councillor Jerry Shaw, noting she may be the most responsive—perhaps leading more citizens to call her with questions and concerns.

"I really give this council very good marks because nobody has started running for office yet," said Davis, referring to March 1988 municipal elections when four council slots will be up for grabs.

With a goal of becoming a world-class tourist spot, Davis would like the Village of Ruidoso to provide adequate facilities for groups that visit. "If we're going to ask people to come here we need to afford them a place to meet," said Davis. He has his eye on a facility adjacent to village land.

The mayor also hopes to see the much-reviewed and discussed comprehensive plan adopted very soon.

Benny Coker, Mayor of Capitan, is shown conducting a Village Trustees meeting. Coker, president of the Rural Water Users Association, got Capitan's new water well going. Coker was born in Oklahoma but has lived in Capitan since 1974. "I think Capitan is on the upswing," Coker said in a 1987 interview. "The quality of life here is improving."

Capitan's improved water system was village's top achievement of '87

by BONNY CHRISTINA CELINE
News Staff Writer

"This has been a very busy year in Capitan, and, I would say, a productive one," summarized Mayor Benny Coker in a year-end interview.

"I was just looking over the budget, and although business trends are down, everything appears to be in pretty good shape," Coker concluded.

One of the most important things to happen to the village of Capitan was the implementing and building of the water well, located east of town. "Now that the well project is completed, and officially on line as of August 17th, we've got clear and clean, beautiful water," said Coker. Prior to the water well, Capitan residents were often surprised by brown or yellow tap water. "Capitan had notoriously terrible water," Coker admitted, "and we had been told we couldn't improve it, because we were in a closed basin. But we did some research and found good well water, built a 500,000 gallon tank, and now everything is flowing right along."

Coker, who has an intense interest in rural water issues, was instrumental in getting Capitan's water cleared up. "Right now, we've got the best water we've ever seen," he says proudly. "We're innovators in this respect. We've come up with something different for our community, something some people said was impossible to do." Coker is president of the Rural Water Users Association. The Mayor of Capitan, along with village clerk Janet Keel, is responsible for a general budget of $192,588, which is raised mainly from gross receipts taxes. The water and sewer expenses come to about $208,284, funded by user taxes. Capitan's public safety budget, which comes from the general fund, is $80,250, which includes operating expenses and personnel services.

Coker heads up the five-person Board of Trustees, who meet on the second Monday of every month at 7 p.m. Two of the trustees' terms will be up for election March 1. V. Kelly Beavers and Norman Renfro's positions will be filled during that election.

Paving, water were Downs' successes

by DARRELL J. PEHR
News Editor

Improvements in the water supply system and the most extensive paving project ever seen in the village were the highlights of 1987 for Ruidoso Downs, according to Mayor J.C. "Jake" Harris.

"I think we've gained," said Harris. The village water system was joined to make a loop, he explained. A 500,000-gallon storage tank was added to the system.

The two improvements will go a long way toward ensuring the village has an adequate and readily obtainable water supply. The loop enables water crews to shut off only the problem areas when they occur. Previously, the entire system had to be shut off when a leak was discovered, Harris said.

The storage tank will guarantee a backup of water during times of drought, security not heretofore known in the village.

Also not previously found in the village were any paved roads to speak of. But an aggressive effort by Downs personnel and the New Mexico State Highway Department resulted in more than three miles of paving in the village. The project was sparked by the department's desire to have paved some of the roads that rise steeply from Highway 70, which frequently would spew gravel onto the highway during heavy rains.

The paving project began in 1986 and was just concluded. Cost of the effort approached $500,000, part state and part village funds, according to Harris.

Harris hopes to see the village provide even more services for people in the area, specifically to residents along Highway 70 immediately east of the Downs. That area, Harris believes, should be incorporated into Ruidoso Downs.

"It would be a benefit to everybody," said Harris, pointing out that the people there would benefit by receiving increased village services, like fire and police protection, and, Harris hopes, village water and sewer hookups, too. The village would benefit by getting an increased tax base.

Sewer and water are vital to the area, Harris indicated. With the regional sewer plant just across the highway, it makes good sense to extend a line to the south side of the highway where many potential users live. Harris said those potential village residents now are using septic tanks, and groundwater in the area is being fouled, further reason to see the area connected to sewer.

While physical changes, like the water and paving projects, were changing the outward appearance of the Downs, political and personnel changes, too, were having re-sounding effects on the village.

"Since I have been in here, we've changed mayor, clerk, judge and trustees," Harris recalled. "Every change has been for the better."

Changes began in the spring of 1986 after municipal elections, when Harris and fellow mayoral candidate C.L. "Bones" Wright took turns being named winner of the bout. A district judge's ruling finally put Harris in the mayor's seat for good, but some residents still were displeased. Recall efforts were unsuccessful until the final set of petitions resulted in an election for a larger board of trustees (replacing the previous board), which took place in August. Wright was among those elected.

Former Downs village clerk Joann Jenkins and administrator

Charles Robinson left the village in mid 1987, apparently without notice nor word of future plans. Also leaving in 1987, and not heard of since, was former Municipal Judge Martin Valenzuela.

Jenkins was replaced with clerk Jean Stillman, a successor to Robinson was not named, and Harold Mansell was appointed as judge.

"We've gained a little every time, I think," said Harris.

"I've always said, all we need is some good, honest people in here who will work for the village, and not their own interests, and this town will go forward," Harris noted.

While Harris believes the August increase in the size of the board of trustees was unnecessary, he has no problem with the new trustees.

"I think the village gained by it," he said of the election.

Harris, who has lived in Lincoln County since boyhood and has served the Downs as an elected official off and on for the last 30 years, seems well pleased by the successes of 1987, and is optimistic for 1988.

"I'm looking forward to it."

Ruidoso Downs Mayor J.C. "Jake" Harris points to water improvements and a completed paving project as highlights of 1987 for the Village of Ruidoso Downs.

Opinion

Editorial

Photographs and memories—this issue of The Ruidoso News features scenes of 1987 revisited through selected photographs taken by News staff members, and discussions with area mayors on the accomplishments of the year 1987.

Photographs, of Apache maidens and racing mules, gun-slinging lawmen of a hundred years ago and a 20th century boy and his dog, fill pages 8A and 9A of today's issue.

Mayor Davys of Ruidoso, Coker of Capitan and Harris of Ruidoso Downs recall the achievements of 1987 in those villages. Interviews and photos will be found on page 7A.

The year 1987 was one of many accomplishments, and a year that is well remembered by the images it produced. Enjoy the photographs and memories of 1987.—DJP

Reporter's Round

By Bonny Christina Celine

Nobody likes to make mistakes. But we all do. Unfortunately, reporters make mistakes in print ensuring that thousands of people know they are only human.

At the end of a year it is not unusual to make resolutions for personal improvement, declarations of hopeful future perfection and the downright refusal to make the same errors in the New Year that one made in the Old Year.

"In 1988," I vowed recently, "I am not going to make any more mistakes." And I mean it, this time, too.

A problem with reporters is that they are also writers. Writers tend to be right-brained (i.e., creative); reporters should be left-brained (i.e., precise.) I'm not making excuses here, I'm explaining.

An error I made caught me today and embarrassed me. Recently we printed a photo of a bank director handing over a big prop check to social services personnel for $3,047.00, made out to the Children of Lincoln County. The money came from county residents who contributed cash to the fund for the needy. Contributions resulted in lights being added to the bank's Christmas trees, adding a symbolic gesture to cold cash.

I took the picture and wrote down some information while people around me were munching cookies and enjoying hot drinks. Even as I was writing, more money was coming in to the fund—a woman presented $5 while I stood there taking notes.

I asked a woman at the bank desk what the total was, and she added it up and said, "it looks like $3,052.02, with this new contribution."

I kidded her about the two cents, and she said: "Somebody added two cents to their total, I don't know why, and it, too, will go to the needy." That made me happy, to know that every penny would go to help people out. I wrote down the information. Took a picture. Went back to work.

I developed the photo, gave it to the editor, and later sat down to write the "story" or outline. I did not have the photo in front of me; it was somewhere in the back shop being screened for publication. All I had were my notes, and my notes said that the total donated was $3,052.02.

Because I cover the county, and this is a misconception on my part, I tend to think of county-related business as being conducted outside of Ruidoso; and that things going on it town are mostly concerned with the village. So when I wrote the outline, I said: The money went to buy diapers, food, clothing and toys and "paid some bills for needy Ruidosoans." I didn't mean specifically that it went only to people within the village of Ruidoso; I used the term to mean

"community."

But, technically, I was wrong and I illustrated my own mistake with the photograph in which a prop check, as large as a bathtowel, was clearly made out to THE CHILDREN OF LINCOLN COUNTY for $3,047.00. Though my figure in the outline was correct, it did not match up to what the reader saw in the photo. Unfortunately I learned about these errors when I saw the picture, and the text, in print.

I also listed the presenter as a "bank officer" when he is really on the Board of Directors. It said "officer" in my notes; and the honest-to-God-right-brained truth is that, to me, an Officer and a Director are the same. They are people in authority. Someone told me that the man was an officer, and it didn't occur to me that, in truth, he had a different-designated and titled position in the bank.

This is the same sort of reasoning that people use when they tell me: "I liked your editorial in Thursday's paper." Actually, I have never written an editorial in The Ruidoso News.

An editorial is, by Webster's definition: "A newspaper or magazine article that gives the opinions of the editors or publishers." It is that little block in the upper right-hand corner of the editorial page.

In most cases, the editorial is written by The News editor, Darrell J. Pehr. Occasionally it is written by Frankie Jarrell. The initials of the writer appear at the bottom of the editorial. My initials have never appeared in that space.

What I do write, and what appear on the editorial page, are "columns." A column, like the one that you are reading now, is a personal opinion of the author and not necessarily the viewpoint of the editor or publisher. So, in that respect, a column is exactly the opposite of an editorial.

Readers, however, see columns on the editorial page and assume that the columns are, therefore, editorials, even though to us newspaper people, that assumption is wrong. When I correct a reader, saying, "Oh, that wasn't an 'editorial,' it was a 'column,'" the reader is often taken aback at the correction. "Well, whatever," is the standard reply.

Calling a "column" an "editorial" is about the same, to me, as calling a "director" an "officer."

The major difference is that I have an obligation to be correct. I shouldn't let Christmas lights and laughing crowds and harried spokespeople distract me from checking out the truth. I should have printed the photo, taken the photo to my desk and copied what I saw in front of me instead of relying on other information, or my memory.

In the routine of putting out a paper, it's easy to separate all the components that all come together in the end. A photo accompanies a news story, article or feature in the finished product, but in the actual preparation for publication these things do not accompany each other at all; the photo is a separate process, involving a different production department, from a story. Sometimes I will take a photo on Monday, write the story on Wednesday and not see either again until they appear in print the next Monday. That's how things are, and how things have to be, in a process that involves many other people besides yourself.

As long as mere mortals are producing a newspaper, there will be little errors. Some are typos. Reporters type their stories into computers, which dump the information onto disks, and occasionally a finger will stray, making a figure 39 instead of 30, or sometimes when a reporter/typist is working on a half-dozen stories at once, "city" will replace "county," "of" can be typed as "on," or Tuesday will come out Thursday.

Reporters used to type up their stories and then give them to a typesetter, who would interpret the typing. Nowadays, reporters are their own typesetters, requiring us to be perfect typists as well as doing our reporting job.

If it's not caught by the editor or the proofreader—who often have no cause to doubt the information before them—an error comes out in the paper. And then, the phone starts to ring.

"Clarifications," or corrections, are an important part of a human-run system and are just as valid and important as the original story. We do not have the last word necessarily. A story is not finished when it is run once, if there's more information to be given.

It is my personal New Year's resolution to check my sources and double-check the obvious in 1988, hopefully resulting in less follow-up clarifications.

I would appreciate, very much, if the people I deal with stress to me details concerning their particular line of work or pertaining exclusively to a story I am working on. If it doesn't occur to me to question something that seems simple, to me, I might miss a fact.

This will probably cause many to laugh, but, to overstate the obvious: reporters do not know everything there is to know. We try to represent the average citizen. We are not experts in every field, do not have a grasp of the way every organization is set up, the way hierarchy runs in each individual case.

For example, I have never worked in a bank and do not know what is obvious to those who do—rank and duties of all employees included. As a reporter, I have been trained as an eyewitness, but I don't always realize intricate details of every story I cover.

At The News, reporter duties are varied and constantly changing. I might cover an accident, talk to a principal, report on a meeting, take a picture of the Greeters, go to hear a luncheon speaker, study a budget, take a picture of Good Citizens and write a column all in one day. I may be concentrating on one of these events more than the others—but all of them will appear in the paper.

We are not investigative reporters here. We do not spend two weeks working on one story. We are mainly eyewitnesses at The News, and we try to be objective and to report what happens. There is not the space nor the time to reiterate every detail leading up to what happens. Sometimes we don't have the room to do so, sometimes it doesn't seem to us that more explanation is needed.

This is unfortunate in a sense; people these days tend to expect the equivalent of New York Times in their local paper. I think that with an editorial staff of three people, we do very good coverage. The News does not rely on canned features or wire stories to fill space; every news story in the paper is locally written, and written by very few individuals.

Locally written newspapers are becoming rarer and rarer as locally owned publishers are forced out by USA Today and People-type publications. I believe that Lincoln County is lucky to have The News. It may not be all-conclusive but we give you details of what is happening in the community, as professionally and thoroughly as we can.

I will try harder to get all the details in 1988. Will you help me?

Phoning in orders, taking calls from customers and providing service is all part of the job of owning and running an office supply store. "Service is the best product we have to offer," says McClellan. As well as office supplies, the store offers a gift section.

Peggy McClellan, owner of Ruidoso Office Supplies, inspects the new construction on her used office furniture addition. Doing the work is her brother-in-law, John Sigler. "We're all family here," McClellan quipped.

Some people love office supplies. These are the same people who, as children, looked forward to school starting each year just so they could buy new pencils, rulers and notebooks.

Peggy McClellan has run Ruidoso Office Supply, 1605 Sudderth, for the past six years. Until her husband, Charles', death in 1983, the couple ran the store and Ruidoso Printing Company. Now, Peggy runs the store by herself—"with the invaluable help of the greatest group of employees in the world."

The shop carries a world of what McClellan calls "office organization items." There are typing supplies, desk calendars, clocks, picture frames, pens, Xacto knives, stickers, Post-Its in every color, erasers, dozens of different kinds of writing and typing paper, ledger books, Day Glo markers, pencil cups, paper clips and colorful plastic desk implements—and more.

"We're expanding to carry a line of used office furniture, and I've already put in a new gift section, which I'm very proud of," says McClellan.

Peggy McNatt McClellan has lived in Ruidoso for 41 years, and graduated from Ruidoso High School. Her mother, Margaret Whiteley, and daughter Pam Hough own Trolley Burgers. She has three other children; Cem is an antique dealer in Fort Worth, Kip lives in Bakersfield, California, and Curt is a student at Abilene Christian University in Texas. All graduated from Ruidoso High School.

"We are a full-service retail store," says McClellan, which means that she orders the supplies, helps unload them, stocks shelves, works the register, does the payroll, makes photocopies and oversees the service aspect of the shop.

"Service is the best product we have to offer," she says proudly.

McClellan writes up a sales slip for a customer. Beside her is just one aisle filled with office supplies of every size, color and use. The store, at 1605 Sudderth, is open from 8 to 5 Monday through Friday.
