Village purchasing decisions hit

by FRANKIE JARRELL
Ruidoso News Staff Writer
Ruidoso Village councillors heard complaints Tuesday over two recent purchasing decisions. MCT Industries, Inc., the apparent low bidder on a garbage truck, wants to know why councillors rejected all bids, including theirs. Robert Beavers of Beavers Sand and Gravel protested the village's changing the way it awarded bids on sand and gravel products. The council postponed action on the MCT protest, and voted unanimously to let the bids stand on the sand and gravel contract. Attorney Gary Mitchell, representing Beavers, said the village changed the rules. He said Beavers and Dave Bonnell have been bidding against one another for years, with one getting the bid one year and the other the next, according to which company had the lowest total of unit prices. But this year, despite years of letting the bids on an aggregate basis, the village awarded the bids unit by unit, said Mitchell. He asked the council to rebid, this time making it clear in the specifications how the bid is to be awarded. Mitchell said the bidders, used to the village's customary way of bidding sand and gravel products, may have included some "leader" or very low-priced items to attain the overall low price. To be fair, and to do what's in the best interests of the village, Mitchell asked for a rebid.

But the council, after hearing from Beavers, Dave Bonnell and purchasing agent Fonda Hazel, let the unit bid stand—with Beavers the successful bidder on some items and Bonnell on others. Hazel said the specifications were the same as in years past, with the village having awarded past bids on "all or nothing" basis. "Mr. Bonnell said it had to be unit or he would fight," said Hazel. Winter's breath

Winter paid an early visit to the Ski Apache recreation area this week, leaving some natural snow which added to man-made snow provides a base to build on for the season. Another possible storm was approaching the area today and may drop some moisture on the mountain Friday. See photos on Page 7A. (Photos by Charles Stallings).

Statutes outlined on village procurement

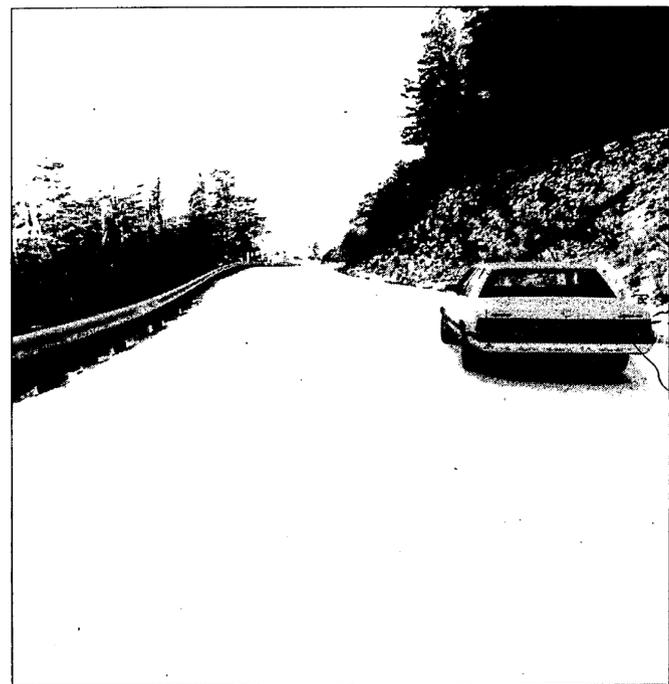

by FRANKIE JARRELL
Ruidoso News Staff Writer
In the wake of several purchasing disputes, village staff and officials spent most of Monday in a workshop over procurement rules, regulations and procedures. Consultants Frank Coppler, Art Blumenfeld and Melesia Heilberg explained how state statutes and municipal regulations affect the way cities and villages buy goods and services. Coppler, an attorney, specializes in municipal government law; Blumenfeld is a professor of public administration at the University of New Mexico and former finance director of the City of Albuquerque, and was deputy director of the state Department of Finance and Administration. Heilberg is a former city clerk and was a member of the New Mexico Municipal League staff for many years. She has a master's degree in public administration. "One real important thing we all learned was what role everybody plays ... the separation of powers," said village manager Frank Potter. Coppler told the group that specifications must be drafted and de- Please see STATUTES, page 2A

Salary increase coming for all school employees

The Ruidoso Board of Education approved a salary increase for all Ruidoso Municipal Schools employees, at a special budget hearing Tuesday morning. Board members Lynn Willard, Mike Morris and Rod Adamson met with superintendent Sid Miller and business officer Caron Snow to discuss the salary increases. A budget increase of $117,000 will allow for the raises. The budget increase was a result of the added enrollment of students at Ruidoso Municipal Schools. Miller had projected the student count to be 1,767, and on the fortieth day the enrollment was 1,815. This enrollment allowed the budget increase. All staff will get a substantial salary increase, Miller said. Teachers will be back on the salary schedule which was adjusted last month by the board. Teachers now will move ahead on the scale, Miller said. All pay increases will become effective after the approval by the New Mexico State Department of Education. If approved on the state level, which Snow said should take under two weeks, the salary increases will be reflected on the December paychecks. Also the board approved hiring two additional teachers: Melinda Valliant as second grade teacher at White Mountain Elementary School and Nancy Schmidt as fifth grade teacher at White Mountain Intermediate School. Salaries for the additional teachers will come from the increased enrollment budget. The board will conduct a public hearing at 7 p.m. Tuesday, November 22, at the Ruidoso Middle School cafeteria, to discuss Indian Education. Tribal parents and other interested persons are invited to attend.

Councillors balking at dissolving SBAC

by FRANKIE JARRELL

Members of the Ruidoso Village Council aren't ready to terminate the joint powers agreement forming the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission. During a special meeting Tuesday over a termination agreement drafted by village attorney John Underwood, councillors learned that the Lincoln County Commission voted Monday to disband. The commission and council had asked Underwood to draft the document on the heels of disagreements over continued funding for the Sierra Blanca Regional Airport. Underwood said "everything is go" on the termination agreement which hands over the land and facilities to the village and puts an end to the relationship between the village and county. "SBAC will no longer exist," said Underwood. But councillors want to "wait and see" what happens when a brand-new county commission takes office on January 1. The SBAC is made up of all three county commissioners and three appointed members from among Ruidoso elected officials. The Ruidoso members have expressed frustration over the county's failure to continue the mill levy funding for airport development, and Mayor Lloyd L. Davis Jr. noted Tuesday the mill levy was even amended so funds could be used for repairing the boiler at the county courthouse.

Attorneys Underwood and Gary Mitchell negotiated over the termination agreement that would transfer all properties, responsibilities and obligations of the multi-million dollar regional air facility to the Village of Ruidoso. Under the present agreement the Ruidoso's meteorologist Bill Hostetter predicts the weather today, (Thursday), November 17, to be fair and warmer. Winds will blow from the southwest, increasing to 15 to 20 miles per hour in the afternoon. Tonight there will be increasing cloudiness and not quite so cold. Winds will be southwesterly to 25 miles per hour. Friday will be considerably cloudy and cooler with a few chances of snow showers. Westerly winds will blow up to 30 miles per hour. Precipitation forecasts are today, 0 percent; tonight, 10 percent; and Friday, 20 percent. The outlook for the weekend shows precipitation ending Saturday. It will be fair Sunday and Monday and warmer on Monday. Ruidoso has recorded snowfall on every November 26 for the last six years, since 1982. The greatest amount was six inches on that day in 1982.

Nature, snow machines finally produce

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Sports Writer
"They've been making snow for 24 consecutive hours," was the good news by Pat Morrison, Ski Apache marketing director. Morrison said the snow machines were turned on Friday night and was supplemented by Mother Nature for another inch and one half. Morrison said Denny Grover was moving the huge snow guns to the Deep Freeze trail for a Wednesday night shoot. "Our snow making capabilities covers one third or the lower end of the mountain. That would take in the Capitan area, Deep Freeze, Chair Three (the beginners area), Chair Five (the teaching area), and Chair Seven (The Sierra Blanca Trail). Then there is Smokey Bear and Snow Park. Those are the areas where we make snow which is basically the same operation as when we started in 1964. "The only thing we need to make snow is the temperatures. Right now, the temperatures are great. "We've been trying to make snow every day since November 1, but we just didn't have the temperatures. All this week has been very conducive to snow-making. "We've got people working all over the mountain at this time," she said. Roy Parker, general manager of Ski Apache, said the recent cold snap was a welcome change from the unseasonably warm dry Fall.

"It looked fairly bleak until two days ago. We've had a crew up here since the first of November without making any snow at all due to the high temperatures. "We can make snow up to 34 degrees. The guns lay out in large drifts, our snow cats move the piles where we want. "We make snow as long as we have water. If it is very cold, we'll use up our pond of water before the night is over. We store quite a bit of water, but on very cold days, we don't store enough to go all night long. "If temperatures stay in the high twenties, we don't use quite as much water. The colder it is, the more water you convert per hour." Ski Apache operates wells to replenish pond depletion. Apache's storage pond can hold over a million gallons of water. In the Spring of the year, the melt-off is returned to the water resources of the mountain. "Weather can be very fickle. More often than not, it will follow through from a wet summer to a wet winter, but when you start predicting the weather, you are going to get into trouble. "We're always looking forward to a big season this time of the year. The weather is not the only area that becomes questionable. We all know that we have been living in a depressed state. This year, with good snow, should be a measure for us. On the positive side, we are getting ready for a big season."

PBS film will tell story of Chiricahua Apaches

Media people will preview a film, "Geronimo and the Apache Resistance" at a press party, Saturday night.

The film is a Public Broadcasting System (PBS) production which documents the life of the Indian warrior, Geronimo, the legendary war Shaman of the Chiricahua Apaches.

The event will be at the Inn of the Mountain Gods, starting with authentic Indian war dances which will precede a dinner and the screening of the movie.

In a release the Inn says, "In the broadcast producer Neil Goodwin, who also narrates the hour-long documentary, refutes the myths which have come to surround the legend of Geronimo and the Apaches — that the Apaches were a single, bloodthirsty nation, and that Geronimo was their chief."

The film shows that there were numerous Apache tribes.

The film focuses on Geronimo and his people and how they were systematically wrenched from their homeland by encroaching Mexican and U. S. forces. The showing documents the track made during the wars which took them through parts of Arizona, New Mexico, Utah, Oklahoma and northern Mexico.

Chiricahua Apaches presently make up approximately one half of the 3,000 Mescalero Apache tribal members.

Direct descendants of Geronimo and Chiricahua prisoners of war live on the Mescalero Apache Reservation, some of whom were born under the status of U. S. POWs.

"Geronimo and the Apache Resistance" closes at the commemoration of the centennial of the surrender of Geronimo and Chiricahua Chief Naiche. Chiricahuas from all over the country gathered on September 5, 1986, to honor the memory of their ancestors at Arizona's Skeleton Canyon, where Geronimo surrendered.

journeyed into the Sierra Madre Mountains in Mexico and encamped at approximate locations where Geronimo and his people stayed over 100 years ago. Through ceremonial Apache War dancers they paid homage to their ancestral homelands and to the lore of the Chiricahua Apaches, according to Deanna Davis, director of marketing for the Inn of the Mountain Gods.

Anyone wishing to see the film can do so by checking local listings on the PBS station. It is scheduled to air Tuesday, November 22.

"Geronimo and the Apache Resistance" is a program in the PBS series "The American Experience," the first regularly scheduled annual television series of programs about America's past. Three of the documentaries are devoted to stories about native Americans.

Purchasing

who then called the State Purchasing Agent for an opinion. She said, according to that office, if it wasn't specified, then the bid had to be awarded by units.

"It seems fair to me," said Bill McCarty, noting Beavers got it last time, Bonnell the year before. "It's Dave's (Bonnell) turn," he added.

Councillor Tom McNeil asked Bonnell if he would object to a rebid.

"I sure would," he responded.

In discussions over all the differing opinions on purchasing, village attorney John Underwood warned the council it can't consider how to please everybody.

"You have to do what you think is right and let the chips fall where they may," he said.

"We did it wrong for nine years in a row—did it right this time and got caught," said Councillor Larry Simon.

Councillors voted unanimously to let the bids stand.

But on the other protest, over bids that were rejected for a garbage truck, councillors voted four to two to postpone action until the next regular meeting.

Councillors recently rejected all bids for a side-loader refuse packer.

An issue in that case is the five percent preference awarded to in-state businesses supplying the number obtained through the State Purchasing Agent. Councillors also were told they didn't give adequate reasons for rejecting all bids.

"It my understanding the city can reject a bid if it's not in your best interests," said State Representative Ben Hall. He said he talked to the Attorney General's office and learned the code also states its intent is to maximize public funds.

Hall said the village is accountable, not to vendors, but to the public that entrusts it with funds. He said the village also has a choice as to whether it utilizes the five percent in-state bidding preference. Hall said that allowance was never meant to be used by one in-state business against another.

Hazel and Underwood disagreed, with Underwood saying the only way the village can ignore that portion of the procurement code is by becoming a "home rule" city and adopting its own code.

"Nowhere in the statutes will you find it mandatory that you write the five percent into the specs," said Hall.

"Eliminate the five percent and you eliminate all these problems," said Junge.

The dispute started when Ruidoso Ford, a new business, submitted what appeared to be the lower bid, but after MCT Industries, Inc. applied the five-percent preference to their bid it was lower. In such cases, the village doesn't save the five percent. It is considered in the bidding process, and the village then pays the original bid amount.

Christopher P. Carusona, the new owner of Ruidoso Ford, appeared at a council workshop last month. He said he didn't have the preference number because he was in the midst of purchasing the business. He was critical of the vehicle offered by his competitor, and asked the council to consider his bid.

Hazel recommended the village award the bid to MCT, the apparent low bidder but councillors, saying they prefer dealing with local business owners, rejected all bids.

Tuesday Ervin Rael, MCT sales representative, was in Ruidoso to protest the council action. He said the MCT bid followed specifications, offered a good quality vehicle with a five-year warranty and should have received the bid. He said the council didn't give adequate reasons for rejecting the bids.

Councillor J.D. James said the local business (Ruidoso Ford) bid $3,000 less than the Albuquerque-based MCT, but wasn't considered the low bidder because of the five percent preference.

"I know what the law says ... but I have a problem with spending $3,000 of village money because he had no number ... when actually he was out there," said James. "I hope the people of Ruidoso realize we had them at heart when we did this," he added.

"We're probably stuck with having to approve this bid," said Councillor Al Junge. He said a letter dated October 21, from MCT president Ted R. Martinez made him "mad."

The letter, to Hazel, lodges MCT's formal protest and informs the village of the company's intent to pursue legal action.

"It is apparent to all involved that select councillors are either ignorant of state law, or consider themselves above it. In either case, this justified their rapid education in this matter or their removal from elected office," says the letter.

Carusona said his concern is over the extra $3,000 it will cost the village to purchase the truck from MCT, simply because he couldn't furnish the preference number. He said he now has that number, too.

"You need to ask yourselves if $3,000 is in the best interests of the Village of Ruidoso," advised Carusona. He said he ran into "roadblocks" at village hall, and said he got "zero help" from Hazel.

It was learned during the meeting that Carusona's bid was actually submitted by Shamaley Ford before he purchased the dealership.

Division director Leon Eggleston said that bid was found to have a "fraudulent" preference number. Hazel said the number didn't look right, she called Santa Fe and learned it was "fraudulent."

"You don't have a valid bid in," said Underwood.

Councillors then voted to act on the bids at the next regular meeting. Simon and James opposed the delay.

Statutes

veloped by the purchasing agent, not the council. He said the council's function is not to decide among various brands and items offered, but to verify and confirm that purchasing procedures were followed.

He said that separation doesn't preclude a councillor from asking the purchasing agent to write specifications so as not to bar one brand or another from being considered.

Coppler stressed the difference in functions between the purchasing agent, who is responsible for writing specifications and dealing with day-to-day buying, and the elected officials who should not get involved in that process.

Coppler told of a Taos County case where an elected official handed a friend's brochure to the purchasing agent and the information in that brochure was used as the published specifications. He said the district attorney got involved in that case, cautioning the Ruidoso Village Council against even the appearance of a "conspiracy."

Since the council "sits as judge" on awarding a bid, then the preliminary process that includes drafting specific information to be published in the advertisement for bids must remain the responsibility of the purchasing agent, said Coppler. The council must make sure the administration follows procedures and shows no favoritism, he added.

A pre-bid conference, with all prospective bidders invited to discuss the upcoming purchase in an informal setting, can eliminate problems over specifications, said Coppler. He recommended the village conduct a pre-bid conference before advertising for bids.

"Sit down around the table ... informally discuss the specifications ... if there's a problem, change them with the potential bidders there ... then advertise," said Coppler.

All agreed that a pre-bid conference would have eliminated problems the council encountered with the garbage truck bids they rejected.

An item of contention in that process was a five percent in-state bidding preference available to businesses with a certification number obtained through the State Purchasing Agent in Santa Fe. Ruidoso Ford, a new, local business, didn't yet have such a number when those bids were opened.

By supplying the preference number, as allowed by state statutes, MCT Industries, Inc. was the low bidder for the side-loader refuse packer, and Hazel recommended the council award that company the bid.

Councillors, stating their preference for doing business with a local firm, rejected all bids, prompting MCT to file a protest (see related story). The local dealer's bid price was lower; however, by applying the five percent, MCT had the lowest price.

Coppler said Monday the only way the village can adopt purchasing procedures different from those in state statutes is by becoming a "home rule" municipality. Under present laws, the five percent preference has to be allowed.

Councillor J.D. James said the preference could be considered a "trade barrier," and Coppler agreed the allowance might not stand up if taken to the Supreme Court. He said the practice is outdated.

"Nobody says this is necessarily good or bad—it's the law," said Blumenfeld.

In discussions over the low bid not always being for the best quality merchandise, Blumenfeld said the law doesn't give the council any leeway.

"You have to take the low bid if it meets specifications," he said, but added the act does include provisions for barring a business from bidding if cause can be shown through a process that includes notice, hearings and council action.

Blumenfeld said the low bid question really is critical and can be addressed through adequate and well-developed specifications.

Councillor Al Junge said the main thing he learned from the workshop was that the council may only reject bids for three reasons. Recently the council did reject all bids for a garbage truck, in spite of the purchasing agent Fonda Hazel's recommendation to accept the low bid.

"We didn't fall under any of the three reasons," said Junge.

Councillor Tom McNeil said the council did learn that bids can be tabled if the group isn't ready to act. He said the workshop was "very informative."

Attorney Frank Coppler, a specialist in municipal government, leads a purchasing workshop Monday.

Commission OKs demise of SBAC

The Board of Lincoln County Commissioners approved the termination of the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission (SBAC), canvassed the general election votes and conducted other business at a special meeting Monday morning in Carrizozo.

Commissioners John Allen Hightower, Ralph Dunlap and Bill Karn approved the termination of SBAC and the transfer of all properties, including Sierra Blanca Regional Airport, and funds to the village of Ruidoso.

There was no disagreement and little discussion concerning the termination, said county manager Suzanne Cox.

Commissioners also approved and signed the canvass of the general election votes as presented by Lincoln County Clerk Fran Sidens.

Attending the meeting as observers were commissioners-elect Karen Petty and Rick Simpson.

Also Monday, the commission voted to send a letter to authorize compensation time for the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department employees.

Cox said the department staff has compiled 2,365 hours of "comp" time, which is the equivalent of $28,219.05 in pay. As this will put the sheriff's department far over budget for this fiscal or budgetary year, the commission advised the sheriff's department to take their comp time before the end of the year.

In other business the commissioners:

—Approved the transfer of ownership of Liquor License number 5580 from Robert A. Crenshaw and the White Oaks Exchange Saloon to James Dale Penrod. There were no comments during the public hearing.

—Heard a favorable report on the Emergency Chemical Plan and congratulated coordinator Nancy Guck for her work on the Haz Mat Plan.

—Approved a change order for the Fort Stanton Road (old airport access road) to provide additional drainage culverts.

—Approved a cash transfer from the general fund to the road fund.

—Met in executive session.

village is the operator and the county is responsible for capital improvements.

Underwood said under the present system the Village of Ruidoso has 100 percent budgetary responsibility and 50 percent control of the SBRA.

Councillor Jess Stinson said the timing is wrong, and Davis, vice-chairman of the SBAC, said some of the newly-elected commissioners have indicated an interest in continuing with the joint powers agreement.

Underwood said the group could then enter into a new agreement if the current agreement is terminated.

"It's hard to get married again once you're divorced," said Councillor Al Junge.

Underwood voiced just one concern over the termination agreement, saying he just learned that the court clerk had no record of the over $25,000 deposit that was part of a lawsuit. He said the final judgment called for SBAC to pay Tricon-Kent the $25,000 and almost $10,000 more.

It was later learned later that the $25,000+ is in a special account waiting to be disbursed.

Councillor J.D. James questioned Underwood about the SBAC audit that has been under way for months.

"Don Wingfield is working on it," said Davis, and James said he would have a problem terminating the joint powers until that final audit is complete.

Underwood suggested approving the termination subject to any liabilities of the previous administration.

"They haven't paid us so far, so what makes you think they're going to pay us," said Stinson.

"It's either our money or it's our money," said Underwood, and Junge responded: "as long as we're going to have to pay for it, we might as well be able to run it."

Underwood said the bottom line, "audit or no audit" is that the village has to come up with the money.

"I wouldn't want to buy a business without an audit," said James.

"It's kind of like buying a pig in a poke, Mr. Underwood," said Councillor Tom McNeil.

"But remember we're half the pig and half the poke," retorted Underwood.

The council finally voted four to two in favor of postponing action on the termination agreement. Councillors Simon and James voted "no" with the other four councillors favoring the delay.

SBAC members talks money at session

by FRANKIE JARRELL

Ruidoso News Staff Writer.

The Sierra Blanca Airport Commission met Wednesday, for what half its members thought would be the last time.

The six-member commission—three county commissioners and three village elected officials—had before it a termination agreement to abolish the joint powers agreement and turn the Sierra Blanca Regional Airport over to the Village of Ruidoso.

Commissioners, in a special meeting Monday, approved the termination agreement, and showed up at the SBAC meeting expecting to take final action on the document.

But, members of the Ruidoso

Village Council, in a special meeting Tuesday, refused to approve the agreement drafted at their direction by village attorney John Underwood.

With three new commissioners elected to take office on January 1, the council voted to postpone the termination until the new elected officials take office.

"Maybe the (airport) commission could vote on it and we'd have two out of three," said Underwood. He thanked the county group for calling the special meeting to act on the document.

Also Wednesday, the SBAC discussed funding, and voted to pay an accounts payable totaling more than $10,000 more than the cash on hand. Commissioners prioritized the accounts, placing the engineering bill at the bottom of the list.

A recent court judgment left the commission owing close to $10,000 plus interest to a contractor, and commissioners agreed that should be paid first. They also agreed the engineering firm that was overseeing the contract should take at least partial responsibility for the obligation.

The group voted to ask airport engineer Earl Cook to try to obtain those funds from the Federal Aviation Administration. Division director and airport manager Tim Morris said the expenditures are eligible items under the federal grant, but the problem could be in getting a completed grant reopened.

Village councillors and commissioners continued to disagree over where funds should be obtained.

"Can we move for the (county) commission to pay it?" asked Councillor Jess Stinson, and Underwood suggested that take the funds out of their "boiler budget."

Morris reported progress on getting an instrument approach for the airport, with the 120-day comment period over with no adverse comments.

He said bids are scheduled to be opened today (Thursday) on the security lighting and fencing. He said a special meeting may be needed to act on those bids.

Trustees review village plan

A master plan draft and preliminary engineering information were presented to the Capitan Village trustees at their regular meeting Monday night.

Mark Sawyers of the South-eastern New Mexico Economic Development District office introduced Jim Stogmier and Chuck Easterling from A. Wayne Smith and Associates, and the Capitan Master Plan drafted with a Community Development Block Grant.

Capitan Planning and Zoning (P&Z) requested proposals for the master plan in order to draft a land use ordinance and to apply for capital improvements programs for streets.

The goals for the master plan were to determine physical conditions, develop a general land use plan, develop specific implementation strategies and sample ordinances.

Drawings of the site analysis, proposed land use plan and character sketches were displayed.

Stogmier reviewed some points of the master plan, including the entry statements, trail system and open space. He said the entry statements will tell "travelers they are indeed somewhere special."

New commercial development was limited to Highway 380, which run east to west through the village.

Stogmier said a more specific plan will be drafted after public input is evaluated.

Easterling presented the land use plan for approval. He said he would list long and short term needs for water, sewer and streets after the initial plans were approved. He said the capital needs were not layout or sizing but, general needs in each category.

"The plan is a vehicle to getting grants and funding," Easterling said.

With public input, Easterling said he would "clean up" the administrative side of the plan and would return to the village to present ways to implement the plan early in January.

Sawyers said the current trend is if villages have no plan in hand, there are no dollars available as funding is more competitive than ever.

Further discussion about the master plan included the desirability of the existing trees in the village and the historic buildings. Stogmier said the plan presented flexibility rather than strict guidelines.

In other business the trustees:

—Heard Mayor Benny Coker proclaim November 11-14 as Capitan Lady Tigers Volleyball Week, in tribute to the undefeated team of young people.

—Heard a report from attorney Mike Runnels that the water coming from Bonito Lake was shut off, with no explanation, by the city of Alamogordo which controls the water and the transmission lines. Runnels said he has a meeting with the city of Alamogordo at 9 a.m. Monday to resolve some questions.

"We would have appreciated a call from Alamogordo," Runnels said. "It's not an appropriate way for one municipality to deal with another municipality."

—Heard a favorable report on the village water well test. Recent results of a test conducted by Atkins Engineering, showed the well at the same quality as the prior two tests. The results exceeded minimum standards required for drinking water. Sodium levels were listed as 22 milligrams per liter of water in the well. Acceptable levels are 200 mg/liter.

—Accepted the resignation of Jimmy Wright from P&Z and appointed Dorothy Smith to fill the vacancy.

—Announced the vacancy of the old Co-op building. Proposals from anyone wishing to lease the building will be accepted by the trustees at the next meeting.

—Heard a report that the Highway 48 drainage project will be completed next week.

Workshop examines bylaws

by DORIS CHERRY
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

A workshop to consider the Capitan Volunteer Fire Department (VFD) bylaws Monday ended with members agreeing to meet with the village attorney to finalize the language.

Members of the Capitan VFD met with the Capitan Village Trustees Jack Pogue, Meryl Ray, Norm Renfro and Mayor Benny Coker and representatives from the New Mexico Municipal League and the New Mexico Corporation Commission at a workshop Monday afternoon.

The purpose of the workshop was to determine the language on the proposed VFD bylaws. Controversy has arisen over the wording of the bylaws since the trustees informed the VFD it needed to revise their rules and regulation in May.

Bill Fulginiti, executive director of the New Mexico Municipal League and Luke Otero of the corporation commission directed comment on the wording of the proposed bylaws. Fulginiti said he supported the model written by the league which was originally proposed by the mayor.

He emphasized two points on the VFD proposed bylaws which needed to be addressed: the appointment of VFD chief and the open meetings provision.

VFD objected to the wording in the original proposed bylaws concerning the appointment of the chief. Fulginiti said in his opinion the appointment authority rests with the governing body or the mayor and trustees.

Those VFD officers and members present said the major issue is the election of the chief by the members and appointment and approval by the mayor and the trustees.

VFD members said they want control of who's chief, someone they could feel safe with. The members said the "problem was somebody trying to appoint the chief without knowing about it."

Capitan Village attorney Mike Runnels said the trustees have the authority to turn down a chief's appointment.

VFD secretary Jimmy Wright responded the VFD wanted the right to re-elect another person as chief, rather than having the mayor appoint someone.

Fulginiti said the proposed bylaws need further conditions which state the VFD go back and begin the chief election process again if the trustees reject their first choice. Until a new chief is appointed, the assistant chief will lead the VFD.

In disaster situations, Fulginiti said someone could take charge, then afterwards, the appointment process would be followed.

Capitan village attorney Mike Runnels said the VFD proposed bylaws did not "spell out" the meetings notification, designation of training meetings and practice session and notification of extra meetings.

Wright said the VFD meeting are always on the second and fourth Tuesday of each month.

A question about budget from Fulginiti brought the reply from Wright that the VFD copied the budget from the prior budget projected by the chief.

Fulginiti said the budget should be drawn with public input, as the VFD deals with public funds, for the protection of the VFD.

Runnels suggested the VFD designate training sessions and practice sessions in the bylaws to avoid potential insurance liability problems.

Fulginiti echoed Runnels about lawsuits involving the lack of training by VFD members. He suggested the VFD designate a certain amount of practice sessions in the bylaws to "protect themselves and the village." He added the exact dates of the practice sessions need not be specified in the bylaws.

The retirement age of the fire chief was a matter of conflict for the VFD. Runnels said according to state statutes, the chief is eligible for retirement at 55. Capitan village personnel rules state retirement at 60, but with annual approval by the mayor and trustees, the chief can continue until 70.

"It's perfectly acceptable to examine age and ability in such places as the fire department," Runnels said. "Some are capable at 70."

He said the VFD needs some kind of "mechanism" if the department takes the risk of having someone older in a dangerous situation, such as a fire. He said the proposed VFD bylaws need to reflect a personnel policy on age so no "conflicts" arise over the retirement age.

"Who says too old?" asked VFD chief Virgil Hall Sr.

"The village board of trustees," Runnels replied.

Fulginiti said he would take the matter of retirement to the personnel people in the municipal league to draft a maximum age requirement.

Qualifications of potential VFD members also were discussed. Required physicals to determine possible health problems of members was debated. Otero said the corporation commission is "looking at the long-term liability of this."

Fulginiti suggested the VFD meet as a group to "come up with minimum criteria" about the physical requirements for members who actually respond to fires. He said it was for the department's protection.

Otero said he would report to Standefer, as he was present not to make decisions. However he said, "I feel physicals are good for the village and the fire department."

Runnels suggested the VFD set levels of membership for those who are not physically capable of fire fighting but who act as a "support group."

Funding for the physicals is a problem for the VFD, as no money is in the budget, and potential members would have to pay out of their own pockets.

Training was briefly discussed. Otero said when the new fire school is opened in Socorro, all volunteer fire fighters will be required to attend training sessions. Presently, Wright said the VFD conducts informal training sessions.

Also requested by the VFD was the flexibility in the bylaws language to amend the bylaws as needed.

Village resident Duffy Morton said "these men are volunteering their time, they're doing the village a great service, I'm thankful for them."

"I know the job of the volunteer departments is a tremendous job," Fulginiti said. He also said other communities are having the problem of "mis-communications" between the governing body and volunteer fire departments.

Pogue requested preamble to the bylaws which lists the history of the Capitan VFD, including the "proud name of the Capitan Volunteer Fire Department shall be retained."

"Don't think you're that far apart," Fulginiti said in conclusion to the trustees and VFD.

Runnels will meet with the VFD next Tuesday to rewrite the proposed bylaws.

Warriors are steamed up over big chance to capture crown at Vegas

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Sports Writer

Fan buses, Robertson and old-fashion Warrior spirit were topics touched on by the Wednesday morning quarterback ham and eggers.

Warrior head coach Cooper Henderson said Carol Trapp and others are trying to put a fan bus together to make the trip to Robertson. Lowest tab quoted so far was by Greyhound out of Roswell at $17 per person.

"We've had a good week," said Henderson. "Once you've reached this far, you have no problem getting players up for a game. Everyone is excited, play has picked up in some areas. We're really looking forward to the game."

"In general, we are in pretty good shape, and we will continue to polish up parts of our game."

"I'm pleased that we will be able to take all of our younger players to the playoffs this year. Their chance to experience some of the excitement of a playoff will pay off in benefits not only this year, but down the line."

With a Warrior victory, Ruidoso would play the winner of the St. Pius-Goddard game played Saturday night in Albuquerque.

If Goddard wins, a coin toss will determine home field. If St. Pius wins, the game will be held in Horton Stadium in Ruidoso because the Warriors last game with St. Pius was on their home field.

Coach John Ussery scouted last week's game between Robertson and Kirtland Central.

"Robertson has excellent team speed," said Ussery. "It's hard not to be impressed with a 10-2 ball club."

"Robertson beat Grants three touchdowns. Our district's Silver City had to go into two overtimes to beat Grants."

"Robertson beat Moriarty badly, Portalea slid by Moriarty 12-6."

"Their two losses were very close games at home. Raton upset the Cardinals, 10-8, in a game the Cardinals gave away. I believe they could beat Raton nine out of ten times if they played."

The Ruidoso Warrior seniors will never be Aureliano Montelongo, Derek Moorhead, Dusty Beavers, Michael Swanner, Bubba Lane, Bobby Fowler and Jody Cojo. breaks on the practice field are, from left, (Photo by Charles Stallings).

"The Cardinals other loss was to Lovington. At the time those two played they were both unbeaten at 7-0. The Cardinals had Lovington down 14-0 at the end of the first quarter. Lovington turned the game around and won 28-21."

"Beside speed, Robertson has good team size, but not overwhelming size."

"In the game scouted last week, the Kirtland fullback lost a fumble late in the ball game when they were driving in for the winning score. That probably spelled the difference in the game."

"Two names that you will hear a lot of at Robertson is Eric Moberg, fullback, listed at 195 pounds. Moberg is a very strong runner who also plays middle linebacker."

"Wilton Rodgers is the other back, listed at 180 pounds, is their other outstanding running back."

"Robertson is extremely proud of their defense. They call themselves the Strawberry Crunch and the program stated this is the best defense the school has ever had."

"Robertson does pursue the football very well on defense. They're good hitters."

"The offense has been suspect on occasion. They rock along in an ineffective way, then they'll throw a Hail Mary pass and score. Against Kirtland they scored three times, all on passes."

"Robertson's winning pass was a deflection off of two Kirtland players."

"Every film we have seen on Robertson has had that type of play. It scares you a little, like Somebody is shining down on them. They just seem lucky at everything they do. A couple turns of the ball and they could easily be 12-0."

"They have more team speed than we do."

"Robertson has used two quarterbacks equally in the five films that we have viewed. Their passing doesn't seem to be exceptional, but they get the job done."

"Offensively, their play book is quite varied. They'll run a double twin set, putting two split ends, one on each sideline and two slot backs, one right inside the tight ends and leave a one back offense. They'll throw the fullback right or left or up the middle. They also like to throw to this back in the flats."

"Their other formation is a wishbone, or they'll occasionally break the wishbone and put a back in the slot. What they do on offense is not particularly impressive, but it gets the job done."

"Robertson runs a split defense. Their tackles will be outside our guards, play two linebackers in the middle and occasionally close the middle. They run a three deep secondary which has been vulnerable to the pass for everybody they have played."

JOCK TALK

By Charles Stallings

Before the big Deming game at Horton Stadium earlier this season, Warrior head coach Cooper Henderson said he wanted his team to be up in intensity, so we searched for an intense pep talk and published a somewhat edited version of a speech by "old blood and guts," General George Patton.

This past week, Henderson said the team worked on a back-to-basics approach, stressing fundamentals.

A well known novel about an old warrior fisherman seems to travel down that road. Paraphrased, it reads something like this:

"He was an old warrior that lived by the sea, and he fished 88 days without taking a catch. On the 89th day, he baited his hook. Friends, he caught all kinds of fish."

That old warrior went back to basics. So remember, young Warriors, when you're battling that foe on foreign soil, put a little "worm" in it.

High School sports is such a merry-go-round, why wouldn't any student want to reach for the golden ring if they had the opportunity.

Girls varsity basketball coach Jody Hopkins said students try out for one sport, but shy away from double participation.

Could it be we have lost our heroes or the desire to become a hero? Maybe we haven't established heroes in some of our key sports, players who burn with excitement and the prospect of being the very best.

A petite rock star that undulates his hips and screams in a high pitched voice, "I'm bad!" hardly seems worthy of hero worship, not to mention his message strains credibility.

As an eighth grader, I had my heroes. As an adult, I have even more, like Joe Montana, Bjorn Borg, Muhammad Ali, Notre Dame and the Ruidoso Warriors. Just because a few have faded from the limelight, makes them no less of a hero in a fan's eyes.

Kenny Trapp and Michael Swanner will spur their share of eighth graders to want to be a running back or a quarterback. Some young girl will want to be a cross country runner like Joellyn Comanche. That should make Kenny and Michael and Joellyn burst with pride.

We have potential heroes not trying out for sports in which they excel. That hurts.

It deprives the young of worthy heroes; themselves of challenge; and the old of one of the best bonds in community spirit.

Fans stick together, and their teams are family.

A couple of years ago, living in Florida, I became worried when I couldn't reach my 70-year-old parents in Indiana.

A terrific snow storm had blanketed southern Indiana that night and the storm knocked out the electricity on the farm in the middle of a Hoosier game on television. Turns out mom and dad were huddled out in the car next to the barn in that blizzard listening to Bobby Knight's team on the radio.

If something would have happened to them out in the freezing cold listening to a basketball game, most Hoosiers would have understood. Heroes are that important.

Consensus opinion at the Ruidoso Quarterback Club provided the best route to Highland Stadium in Las Vegas this Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

Warrior fans can travel north through Carrizozo on U.S. Highway 54, continue through Corona and Vaughn to Pastura.

Turn left at Pastura on State Road 219 toward San Ignacio. Cross Interstate 40. Note 219 turns into U.S. Highway 84. Continue through Delia, then turn right at Romeroville on Interstate 25 North for a couple of miles to Las Vegas.

As you enter Las Vegas, a large building, part of Highland University, stands to the left. Take the second exit into town, the fast food exit that is also University Drive. Highland Stadium is just a few blocks away.

The Warrior's road to the state finals demand a fresh set of tire tracks that squash the Robertson Cardinals. We're going to wipe that simpy smile off their little beaks.

Go Warriors!

RHS squad is like Cinderella in a way

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Sports Writer

Shunned by the polls most of the year, small in comparison to the enrollment of other 3-A schools, the Ruidoso Warriors should be considered the Cinderella team of this year's State AAA Championship.

Cinderellas are the little guys that beat up on the big guys. The neglected little waif that suddenly gets all the attention.

With a class enrollment of 499 students, Ruidoso is the smallest school in the District 3AAA conference.

Ruidoso's opponent Saturday, Robertson of Las Vegas, has 760 students.

All teams are equal as far as numbers on the starting squad, but it is obvious that a school with twice the enrollment will have twice the students to pick from for any athletic endeavor.

New Mexico Military Institute's student enrollment is only 524 in the high school division with about 20 girls. NMMI has a fine football program, independent of 3-A district play. The girl's athletic programs could be stronger.

To qualify for 4-A, an average enrollment of 1200 students is necessary. According to the Roswell papers, the Goddard school has exceeded that number several times this year, often producing numbers greater than 4-A Roswell High.

High school enrollment is based on average daily attendance for the whole school year. For budgeting purposes, enrollment is based on the first 40 days.

Many schools will try to keep enrollment as high as possible during that 40-day period to justify higher income.

Of the ten-teams involved in this year's playoffs, eight teams had better than a 750 enrollment. Goddard was high with 1186 students, followed by Deming with 1013 students.

Goddard has been teetering on a 1200 student enrollment since the school's doors opened in 1964.

Goddard started as a 4-A school the first year, dropped to 3-A for the next three years, and then returned to 4-A for the next 15 years. Goddard has recently returned to 3-A.

The problem with having two 4-A schools in Roswell is that one always gets bumped off by the other in district play which creates poor community relations.

The growth in Roswell has been toward the north of town which favors a higher Goddard enrollment.

The local newspaper has noted Goddard's student numbers have often exceeded that of Roswell High, but the town appears to be committed to keeping Roswell the 4-A school.

Roswell has a third high school called Alternate High School. Alternate was created several years ago for students with certain difficulties. A student can either choose to go to Alternate or be assigned by the administration of another high school, Roswell or Goddard. Alternate High has no athletic program and room for hundreds of transfers.

You can still cash in on Pigskin Poll bonanza

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Sports Writer

This year's Pigskin Poll is nearing an end. If you are a sports enthusiast and you want to pick up an easy $25, check out the game plan in the papers and enter.

It's been an enlightening year as far as winners and losers are concerned.

Alice Payne, last weeks winner, won with the smallest margin of victory, 13 winners. Alice was a regular who often was close to winning and one time lost in a tiebreaker.

Ronald Services was our expert for the 1988 season, winning three separate contests.

John Ussery and Doyle Howell were our two coaches that brought home winning checks.

Emma Richardson was our only other lady winner beside Alice Payne.

Our two young winners were Jesse Fromknecht and Trevor Cox. There were many ties that were settled by the tiebreaker.

No one was perfect, but Jeff Chapman, Doyle Howell and Ronald Services all submitted entries with 18 wins. All were tied and won on tiebreakers.

Alice Payne and Trevor Cox tied with the lowest number of victories to win a contest, 13. Trevor won in a tiebreaker, Alice won hers outright.

In the 15 weeks of play, nearly 1500 people entered the contests.

The high school teams, by far, were the easiest to pick for our contestants.

Teams most often picked were Dallas, Denver, 49ers and Notre Dame, no matter who they played.

Nearly everyone missed Carlsbad's victory over Clovis.

Phoenix, with all it's wins, still has little respect with the pickers.

In the Pigskin Poll with our regular pickers, Frank Sayner wins going away with 170 victories and 82 defeats.

Chuck Stallings, new to the area, peeked at the rest of the pollsters before he made decisions on the early season high school games so he's been disqualified. That gives Peggy McClellan at 160-92 a slight two game edge over Roy Seay, 158-94, with at least 20 more contests to select. Frank Potter at 131-121 had a winning record.

Next year we will have to keep count of the guest pickers who did an outstanding job. Two guests, Mary Maxwell and Linda Cox, were invaluable in their assistance to keep the winners coming.

Tryouts slated for Ski Apache

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Sports Writer

Tryouts for the Mexican Pan American and Olympic Ski Teams will be held at Ski Apache.

Pat Morrison, market director for Ski Apache, said tryouts and a possible training camp is slated for the Mexican team. The tryouts will be held on December 20 and 27.

"Mexico does not have a ski area," said Morrison. "They are expecting 100 to 125 skiers to participate."

"It is my understanding that Mexico does not have a ski team," said Morrison. "These skiers have probably been skiing and training with and for other countries. If you're going to school in Europe, you would undoubtedly ski with the European teams. We expect some very good skiers."

Morrison said the Third Annual Mexico Cup will be held sometime during the week before Easter.

"Last year we had about 75 entrants," she said. "These are children through adults, family racing. They have a great time."

Raise an Impudent (No. 7) squeezes out a narrow win in the $8,500 Jess Burner Series No. 2, Sunday, at Sunland Park. The winner was ridden by Jerry Rodriguez. No. 2, Just Another Jet, finished second while No. 1A Raise A Roula was third.

SUNLAND PARK -- Raise An Impudent took control of the race at the midway point and went on to notch a narrow win in Sunday's $8,500 Jess Burner Series #2 at Sunland Park.

Ridden by Jerry Rodriguez, Raise an Impudent just beat multiple stakes winner Just Another Jet and his :19.53 timing was one of the fastest logged at the 400 yard distance this season.

Trained by Jim Richardson, Raise An Impudent went off as the favorite in the ten-horse field and paid $5.40, $3.00, $2.40. Just Another Jet was ridden by Fred Watson and finished just a neck behind the winner to pay $5.20, $2.80.

Third in the field was Raise A Roula. With veteran Jerry Nicodemus aboard, the runner paid $2.60 to show.

Raise an Impudent was bred in Kansas by his owner Quinby Demmitt and is by Fol's Native out of the Flaming Jet mare, Flaming Impudent. The four-year-old earned a 103 speed index with the victory and tallied his 11th career win while earning $5,100 of the total purse.

In the first part of the series on October 29th, Raise An Impudent ran fourth, beaten a neck, then ran back on October 29th to win an allowance in :19.52 at the same distance. Because of that excellent prep race, the crowd of 2,576 sent the brown gelding off at $1.70 to one.

Just Another Jet failed in his bid to win his 22nd career race and the $1,870 earned for his Concho Valley Farms owner put his career earnings just shy of $150,000.

Following the first three across the wire were: Charge It To Go, Whata Lucky Jet, Classy Comment, The Red Rocker, Love Me Again, One Fast Look, and Montana Del Rey. Raise A Roula and The Red

Rocker raced coupled for trainer James Gerhards.

The Jess Burner Series was named in memory of the former President of Ruidoso-Sunland Inc. and a prominent Southwestern horseman. Burner's stable included such great runners as Savannah Swinger, third in the All American Futurity, and Bottle A., former track record holder at Sunland.

The third part of the series will be Saturday, December 17th at 440 yards.

Jockey Joe Martinez earned the riding plaudits for the day by bringing in three winners. The veteran shot into first place in the leading rider standings. After 17 days of racing, Martinez has 28 riding wins, just one ahead of Mike Lidberg.

The track's Twin Trifecta wager was not cashed and will have a $12,181 carryover when racing resumes next Wednesday at 1 p.m.

A Bit Of Style out front by half length

SUNLAND PARK -- A Bit Of Style and Blue Hoss closed powerfully in the stretch, but it was A Bit Of Style who surged at the wire to capture a 1/2 length win in Saturday's $9,400 Cutarusty Handicap at Sunland Park.

The chestnut gelding was given highweight of 119 and lived up to his role of pre-race favorite to beat nine other three-year-olds at 6 and 1/2 furlongs.

Owned by El Paso resident Carl Davidson and trained by Doyal Roberts, A Bit Of Style had Mike

Lidberg aboard for the trip and the two covered the distance in 1:18.1.

A Bit Of Style returned $5.40, $3.60, $3.00.

Blue Hoss is owned by Mollie Kelly and Lorann Mattox and was ridden by Richard Bickel to pay $4.60, $3.60. Just a neck farther back was Ellen Hambrick's Princess Telary, $5.60.

A Bit Of Style was named the top three-year-old colt or gelding during the spring meeting at Sunland and earned $5,640 of the total purse.

The rest of the field, in order of finish was: Stormin' Dancer, Avance, Written Right, Doc Posey, Leggy Doctor, Pinquette, and My Turn To Tango.

Also on Saturday, Jockey Pedro Benitez appeared to have recovered fully from a hard spill taken at the recently-concluded New Mexico State Fair meeting as he got back into the winner's circle for the first time since the accident riding Dedicated Dancer to an easy win in the fourth race. Benitez was second leading rider at Sunland last year.

Burglaries figure in arrest

A man accused of burglarizing the Panorama Golf Course and three Ruidoso residences was arrested November 9 in El Paso, Texas.

Kerry Eugene Avery, who police said is also known as John "Bones" Sykes, is in Lincoln County Jail charged with three counts of residential burglary and one count of commercial burglary, according to Ruidoso Police reports.

Detective Lanny Maddox said Avery, who lists his date of birth as July 16, 1959, was arrested by El Paso Detective Ed Camacho on information provided by Ruidoso Police Corporal Robert Achterberg. He was transported to Ruidoso on November 10, where he was interviewed in connection with the various burglaries.

Avery is accused in burglaries at 365 River Trail, 358 River Trail and 106 West Street, as well as the burglary at Panorama Golf Course, said Maddox.

The Plant Corner

by Sally Black

Dear Sally: Our second home, for now, is beautiful Ruidoso. We are here about once a month. Help me with plants that could withstand that little care. Thank you, we enjoy your column, Will and Ruth.

Dear Will and Ruth: Thank you for asking. I have been dying to do a table cactus garden.

Check if you have a table by a south or west window. You must leave the window uncovered. Cacti need four to six hours of sun daily.

After selecting the location, next select a container. You will need a container about four to six inches deep and 18 to 24 inches in diameter.

Be sure you have plenty of sharp river sand and potting soil on hand. Also purchase a package of vermiculite. This is a highly water absorbent material that will keep the cactus garden damp for weeks at a time.

Plants suitable for cactus gardens are: Sedum Morganianum, sometimes called burro's tail; Opuntia Microdasys, called bunny ears, Kalanchoe Tomentosa or Panda Plant, Sempervivum Tectorum, nicknamed "hen and chickens" and Peruvian, "Old Man Cactus."

Ask your nurseryman to help you with the list, should you need to make substitutions.

Cacti and succulents may be combined, but plan combinations carefully as not all plants will look right together.

Variety of forms, colors and textures offer many possibilities for handsome combinations, but the line between successful growing and a jumbled mess is thin.

Beware of using too many species in one container. I suggest you purchase a book on cactus and succulents and really do some in-depth study before you purchase your plants.

Many succulents have showy flowers. Try at least one of the following for color in your table cactus garden: aloe, some species of Crassula, Hoya, ice plant, Kalanchoe and Rochea.

Light and temperature: Give plants just enough water to keep them healthy, plump of leaf and attractive. The amount of water needed depends on heat and humidity. They store water in their juicy leaves, stems or roots to enable them to withstand periodic drought. They may live through extended drought but will drop leaves, shrivel or lose color.

The temperature should never drop below 35° or 40°. I am assuming your thermostat is set to protect your water pipes, if so, your cacti also are protected.

Fertilizer: Give a light potash feeding at planting time and again at the start of the growing season. For blooms feed with tomato food, cut to one quarter the package recommended use, about once a month year-round.

When your garden is completed, cover the open area with small pebbles, polished if possible. This added touch looks nice plus helps hold moisture and keep the plants from touching the soil.

Add a couple of candles and use your cactus garden as a centerpiece for party buffets.

You will find many uses for this attractive container garden. This garden can last for years and always be there for a warm "welcome" when you come home.

Ruidoso looks forward to your living here full-time.

Liquor to minors can be costly

by FRANKIE JARRELL
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Ruidoso Police are "cracking down" on adults who provide liquor to underage drinkers.

Magistrate Judge J.R. "Jim" Wheeler assessed fines in two cases Tuesday.

"We catch more fire over this than we do the dope and burglaries," said Judge Wheeler, after hearing a "no contest" plea from a Handi-Hanks employee cited for selling liquor to a minor and a "guilty" plea from a woman charged with selling or giving alcoholic beverages to a minor.

Al W. Bartholmae, accompanied by Handi-Hanks manager, appeared Tuesday in Magistrate Court, and didn't contest the ticket issued by Chief William Newman.

In a separate case, Valli L. Walker pled guilty to charges of allowing minors to drink at her residence. She, too, was cited by Chief Newman, who went to her home during a party.

Newman said over the past year he has heard a number of citizens, particularly parents and teachers, express concern about teen-age drinking.

"These citations are our first efforts in that direction, but it will certainly not be our last," said Newman. "In addition to increased observation of the activities of retailers, we will also be taking strict enforcement action against adults who are buying alcohol and giving it or selling it to minors, and against the minors themselves," he added.

In each case Tuesday, Wheeler assessed fines of $100 plus $30 costs. He suspended Walker's fine and assigned her to 20 hours of community service. Wheeler said the maximum penalty in the two cases is $500 and/or six months in jail.

Judge Wheeler said Bartholmae testified that he believed the minor who purchased liquor from him already had been in the store. He thought he already had checked the person's identification to be sure he was old enough to make the purchase.

Walker, the mother of a teenager, said she didn't buy beer for the young people at her child's party. She said they brought it themselves, and it was "not that much."

"Chief Newman came more or less as a father," said Walker, adding that Newman didn't say he was at her home as a police officer. She said he told her she was doing something illegal, she agreed to "shut it down and send the kids home."

"He never told me he was there busting a party or anything," said Walker. Newman returned to her home the next week to issue the ticket.

Wheeler said police officers are on duty 24 hours a day, and in misdemeanor cases, like the liquor violation, the statute of limitations is a year.

"You violated the law—you allowed them to drink," said Wheeler. "Don't let this happen again—don't let those kids drink at your house," he added.

Handi-Hanks may also face a citation from the Alcohol Beverage Control, but the investigator for that office couldn't be reached for comment Wednesday.

Judge Wheeler said citing violators into court is the best deterrent to the continuing problem of teen-age drinking.

The Silver Lining

Honorary Dinner Held At Holy Mount Church
Last Sunday, November thirteen, a special dinner was given at church of the Holy Mount in honor of The Reverend Ann Gaddy and the Reverend Bob Batton.

The honor was in appreciation of Ann and Bob in serving the Episcopal Church in Lincoln County so faithfully during the time the church was without a regular rector.

At the blessing, the new Rector, Father John W. Penn, prayed,

"Bless oh, Lord these gifts to our use. And make us ever mindful of the needs of others - especially those who are hungry."

Senior Warden David Whatley paid tribute to Ann and Bob, calling to memory how these two had kept the services going throughout the county - how they had been on call at all hours of the day or night ministering to those in trouble, need, sorrow, or any other adversity or emergency, how they had been with the sick, those being born, and those soon to be called Home By Our Lord.

The Reverend Ann Gaddy expressed appreciation for Dave's kind words but also said that it was the people, the congregation, who responded so well that made the difference - that it was they who deserved great credit. The Reverend Bob Batton agreed with The Reverend Ann, addressing the gathering:

"You supported us and the church all the way. We could not have done our work without you, and we thank you."

Father John Penn said that the fond and happy dedication of the people of Lincoln County had uplifted his spirit and made him rejoice at beginning his work for The Episcopal Church in Lincoln County.

Gifts Presented

Vickie Winner, noted wood carver and sculptor, presented Ann and Bob both with Crucifixes made from "Native Lincoln County wood."

Walter and June Rawley presented Ann with an Indian-made cross carved out of turquoise, and to Bob they gave a bronze miniature sculpture done by Walter of one large cross and two small ones on either side. Walter is widely known for his wood carving and sculpture, and has done much of the design of the church in wood and metal.

Ron and Sheila Harris and, son, Neil, made the trip from Albuquerque to be present. Steven and Theresa Spenser came over from Carrizozo. All-in-all the dinner was a great blessing.

First Snow

After many days of Indian Summer extending away up onto the Autumn, suddenly last night (this is being sent to you at noon on November fifteen) at two in the morning, the wind began singing a snow song, harping chords of winter music through the cedar branches just outside the window. Away to the northwest came a long rumbling, reverberating, booming sound of thunder. Lightning flashed outlining the western mountain against a glow of purple red. Then against the windows and the sides of the house, and onto the roof came the pattering tattoo. Outside in the light of the porch light you could see the snowflakes traveling in the wind along with hail, sleet and rain.

I know the mountain should be white with snow, and I will be glad to see it when I travel up the valley in a few minutes to bring you this message. May God bless you, and let us be ever thankful for our blessing.

EDITORIAL

Change is so very much a part of life, but, oh, how we resist it at times.

We suppose it is the fear of the unknown or of not feeling in total control that makes us wary of change.

Some people or organizations, however, can accept change with hardly a ripple of concern.

We're sure that Tracy Brubaker accepted her change in status with glee and delight. One minute she was merely one of 34 or 35 girls competing for the Miss New Mexico USA title at the Inn of the Mountain Gods.

The next minute, she was Miss New Mexico USA and was slated to carry New Mexico's banner to Mobile, Alabama in February.

On another front the Ruidoso Warriors football team one day was struggling to chalk up a decent season. Not too much later, here they are, going to state wearing the district crown.

That change in status may bring some trepidation because the Las Vegas Robertson team comes from a bigger school; how tough is Robertson? Can we perform, team members are asking themselves.

The fears, if real, are groundless. Ruidoso will be behind the team 100 percent regardless of what happens. Go Warriors, go!

The Ruidoso News personnel learned this week that the newspaper was being sold. That's change. The new owner, like the continuing publisher, Ken Green, believes in excellence. There may be more capital available for improvement and expansion. But still, major change is somewhat frightening for many people.

But as long as Traci Brubaker represents New Mexico well, as long as the Warriors put their best foot forward, and as long as The Ruidoso News employees continue to deliver skills and loyalty, God is in his heaven and all is well.

Positive change always is acceptable. Accept it. Any negative change, strive to make it positive. Go Warriors, go!—A.S.

Eye On The Capitol

by Tom Warson, Ph.D.

I hope he wins an award. On Nov. 10, The Albuquerque Journal printed a remarkable photo taken by Jim Johnson. The caption said it all: "Bill Valentine and his daughter, Velvet, console each other after his loss."

Incumbent Democrat Jeff Bingaman beat Valentine 319,969 to 185,550 in the U.S. Senator election. That's a whopping 63%-37% margin.

The loss was no doubt doubly hard for Valentine because of his big win in June, when he took 49% of the vote against three opponents in the Republican primary. Geographically, his support was widespread, losing only 10 out of 33 counties.

What happened last week? Here's The Journal's account: "Polls in early September, showing Bingaman with voter support of about 60 percent, helped to dry up potential contributions for the challenger's campaign, Valentine said. 'Those polls killed the money both here in the state and nationally,' he said."

Indeed, a KOAT/Zia poll aired Sept. 28 showed 67% for Bingaman, 21% for Valentine and 12% undecided.

From those survey findings, Eye argued (Oct. 5) Valentine "must (1) harden up his support in his own base. Right now, he's losing among registered Republicans, 38% to 46%. (2) Hang enough negatives around Bingaman's neck to bring down that 67% figure. Valentine is trying both tactics. But is there enough time left? You have to wonder."

On Nov. 3-7, Zia conducted its final pre-election poll. Our results: 62% for Bingaman, 30% for Valentine and 8% undecided.

Here's what was behind those bottom lines: "Valentine had succeeded in hardening up the Republican base vote. Registered GOPs were backing him over Bingaman, 55% to 35%."

That simply wasn't enough, however. Among Reagan Republicans, the backbone of the Republican Party, Valentine was beating Bingaman by a modest 59%-32% split. Compare that to the top of the ticket, where among Reagan Republicans Bush was crushing Dukakis 90%-8%.

*Valentine had failed to lower Bingaman's support. Among registered Democrats, the majority of the electorate, Bingaman was winning 79%-14%. He was carrying the Democratic base vote, the Mondale Democrats by 92%-3%. Moreover, Bingaman took the Reagan Democrats handily, 67% to 25%. Just as Valentine had enjoyed wide geographical support in the June Republican primary, Bingaman did likewise in last week's general election. Our KOAT/Zia poll had Bingaman ahead in all three congressional districts.

Beyond the numbers, however, lurked deeper problems for Valentine:

A Washington D.C.-based publication, The Political Report, provides weekly, non-partisan analyses of congressional campaigns and elections. In their issue of Sept. 23, the Report said of the Bingaman/Valentine race: "At this point in time... New Mexico sources believe that Valentine is attacking Bingaman without having first established himself with the voters. One state insider told the Report that 'Valentine has not yet answered the essential question of 'Who Are you?' Without that answered, none of the issues Valentine has so far attacked Bingaman on seem symbolically important."

That insider was me. On Oct. 30, 1987, Eye interviewed Valentine. We discussed his 11 years in the New Mexico State Legislature. "The legislation Bill is proudest of: anti-drug laws and senior citizens measures such as in-home care and the 'Meals on Wheels' program." I think Valentine sensed what his problems was, and sought to correct it. "In the upcoming legislative session," Valentine proceeded to tell Eye, "he'll work for welfare reform legislation and a constitutional limit on state government expenditures."

As politicians know, the media love to pin labels on them. It saves journalists from having to expend extra effort in thinking, seeing.

In Valentine's case, the label never changed. It appeared again in The Journal's post-mortem election piece on father and daughter: "Valentine to Return to Dental Practice."

Who is Valentine? A dentist. That clear identity, however, is completely unclear.

Anybody who ever dreamed of losing teeth knows how subliminally loaded, how ambiguous, they are:

On the one hand, the loss of teeth means maturing, becoming responsible, leaving infancy behind.

But on the other, losing teeth refers to old age, the fear of becoming impotent, helpless.

In the end, the dentist may have defeated the politician.

What about Valentine's claim that the poll results dried up the money?

I suspect he's right. However, potential contributors have a right to know "where it's at" just as much as anybody else.

Valentine seemed to be aware early on that money might be a problem. He told The Journal that during the primary, he mortgaged his home and office building to raise $230,000 for his campaign.

Potential senatorial candidates had better look and learn: $230,000 of your own money now won't back it against an incumbent U.S. Senator.

You'd better have half a million at your fingertips.

DEAR EDITOR:

I'd like to take this opportunity to express gratitude to the voters of this county for their support in my bid for membership on the State Board of Education, District 8. As your elected representative to that board, I plan to visit all of the communities and schools in District 8 to assess what we can do, mutually, to resolve the issues and challenges presented by our ever-changing economic and social climate.

Local and state boards can be effective only if the elected representatives and their constituents stay in touch and work together. I look forward to serving District 8 and, again, my thanks for your vote of confidence.

DEAR EDITOR:

This is a fun time of year. The beginning of a festive season. The Kiwanis Club, with the cooperation of the Human Resources Office, is busy preparing the food baskets for the food baskets for area families less fortunate than some of us. Food is coming in to the 12 locations around town that are set up with Kiwanis food bins. But we need more! We want to give them more than just a turkey. Please help us with food or money donations. You can put your food in one of the bins or mail a check to:

We will make the baskets up on Tuesday to be handed out on Wednesday. Thanks. This gesture will make someone's Thanksgiving brighter.

Reporter's Round

By Doris Cherry

Hello winter. The first snow and cold of the season always takes me by surprise.

Gloves, snow boots, coats and scarves always hide on that first really cold morning. Snow tires are in the garage, not on my car where they are really needed.

Tuesday morning was no different.

Leaving with what I thought was plenty of time to get to town, the roads were just slightly wet in Capitan and almost all the way to the Bonito River crossing.

Ferocious winds had blown rain and sleet through the night, coating the ground and in some places the highway pavement with a layer of ice.

Ice was so thick tires did not have traction.

The wind was still blowing Tuesday morning, making travel on the ice-slick pavements even trickier.

But when I saw all those cars parked on the edge of the road, I should have known to turn around while I could. Being stubborn and in a hurry (all a no no when traveling on icy roads) I kept going, sideways.

I didn't go for long, as the totally ice-slick pavement of Angus Hill proved to be impassable. A few cars, those with four-wheel drive, continued up the icy road.

The rest of us were on the side, some of us against the guardrails (thank God for them), others on turnouts. And we waited for the salt trucks.

I guess we get spoiled. The state highway department usually is out before the rest of us, salting roads, preparing them for the rush of early morning commuting traffic. But Tuesday, who knows why, the salt trucks did not start on Angus Hill until after 9 a.m.

One person said he estimated over 200 cars were off the road between Bonito River and Gavilan Canyon.

But thank goodness for the highway department: the salt truck pulled me away from the guard rail to a safe turnout where I waited for a gallon of gas.

Always remember to keep plenty of gasoline in your car during the winter. Lost traction makes for terrible gas mileage.

And take it from someone who knows all about running out of gas on an ice-slicked road: keep the tank full, it's worth the extra few dollars to avoid being stranded in a place where very few travelers can stop to help.

Also thanks to the New Mexico State Police who so graciously called my husband and to all the others who stopped to ask if I needed help.

I guess it's time to get those snow tires ready and the chains handy.

Winter is on its way.

The Ruidoso schools football coaches, players, managers and their fathers were treated to a dinner at the First Baptist Church in Ruidoso this week.

The Brotherhood, a group of men from the church, wanted to express how much they appreciate the football group's winning spirit and good example of sportsmanship shown to other schools.

The football group was treated to a barbecue brisket dinner with all the trimmings. The dinner was served by the Brotherhood.

After the dinner, Reverend Allen Cearley, pastor of First Baptist Church spoke to the young men. He told some of his old football stories of playing on cow pastures after having to run the cows off. Some of the stories seemed like they were taken right out of the history books of football.

He also told how some of the learning experiences from sports had helped him in life as an adult.

The Brotherhood hopes continued success not only for this football season but for the rest of their lives.

Helen Kilgore Woodfin and Aaron E. "Woody" Woodfin

Helen Kilgore, Woody Woodfin marry at First Christian Church in Ruidoso

Helen B. Kilgore of Ruidoso and Aaron E. "Woody" Woodfin of Hobbs were married October 24 at First Christian Church in Ruidoso.

The Reverend Ken Cole officiated for the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Marie Barajas of Roswell and the groom is the son of Mrs. Harry Woodfin of Muleshoe, Texas.

Jimmy Woodfin of Hobbs served as his father's best man, and Theresa K. Porter of Colorado Springs, Colorado, served as her mother's matron of honor.

Bridesmaids were the bride's daughter, Virginia K. O'Connor of Albuquerque, and daughter-in-law, Tonya Kilgore, of Washington D.C. Groomsmen were the bride's sons-in-law, Pat O'Connor of Albuquerque and Bill Porter of Colorado Springs.

The couple's grandchildren, Megan Woodfin, Anne Marie O'Connor, Jordan Woodfin and Joseph Porter, were flower girls and ring bearers.

Janet Goodwin and Churchill Cooke, accompanied by pianist Donna Willard, presented special music. Texas fiddlers Bart and Marilyn Trotter, the bride's niece and nephew, played "Just Loving You."

Ushers for the afternoon ceremony were Johnnie Barajas of Roswell; Von Ray Trotter of Odessa, Texas; and Carrol Kelton and Aaron Kelton, both of Lubbock, Texas. Guests were registered by Judy Henderson of Ruidoso.

The altar was accented with two large baskets of white gladiolas and peach carnations and the pews were decorated with large white satin bows.

The bride, given in marriage by her son, John D. Kilgore of Washington D.C., wore a tea-length gown designed by Gloria Fogerson. The gown, of cream French lace and pearls over peau de soie, featured a fitted bodice with a sweetheart scalloped neckline and elbow-length lace sleeves.

She wore her paternal grandmother's hair comb and gold wedding band, and carried a cascading bouquet of gardenias and stefanotis.

Bridal attendants wore identical tea-length gowns of teal blue taffeta featuring scooped necklines accented with shoulder bows. They wore peach silk flowers in their hair and carried bouquets of peach tiger lilies trimmed with peach and teal blue ribbons.

A reception and dance was immediately following the ceremony at Cree Meadows Country Club. The three-tiered wedding cake was decorated with peach roses and topped with white satin wedding bells.

The cake was served by the bride's sisters, Judy Willingham and Terri Trotter.

Following a Caribbean cruise, the couple is residing in Hobbs and Ruidoso.

Lovanne and Paul Lane of Dallas. Assisting will be their other daughter Ricki and her husband John Lucas of Tularosa and their son Steve and his wife Glynda Wood of Nashville, Tennessee.

Maryunita McLenny and Lonnie L. Wood were married November

12, 1938 in Claredon, Texas. They are members of the Church of Christ in Lake Worth, Texas, where the couple now lives.

Lady Tigers are Class A Champions

Final against Floyd a 'war'

by DORIS CHERRY
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Capitan Lady Tigers fans packed the south side of Roswell High School gym Saturday night, their chant T-I-G-E-R-S echoing from the walls as the team won their way to the state championship title.

The fans jumped to their feet, the first game against Floyd in the final match for the championship title belonged to the Lady Tigers: 15-13. The game was won with teamwork and courage, especially after senior Colynn Washburn injured her ankle during a block about midway through the first game.

Even with the injury, Washburn, who returned to the game with her ankle taped, was responsible for six service points.

Floyd began the match by scoring the first points, leading the Lady Tigers by 7-3 before the Washburn stepped to the serving line. She was the spark the Lady Tigers needed as they soon caught up with the Lady Broncos to tie the score at 8-8. A side-out ball turned it back to the Lady Broncos.

Frequent turnovers brought the score to 9-9. Kim Eckland served the ball for the ninth point, an ace.

The scoring continued to seesaw until Floyd's thirteenth point. A replay ended their scoring, even though the Lady Tigers turned the ball back to Floyd two more times.

Game two of the match belonged to the Lady Tigers from the beginning. Three straight points were scored by Nanette Boyd. Marnie McDaniel served the next five points, including an ace. Lora McKay served four points and Sherry Gowen served the final three, including game point.

Fatigue was a major factor in the loss of the third game. Floyd served first and moved ahead quickly. The Lady Broncos Jessica Dahlstrom and Tracy Lee shared the most service points.

Gowen served three of the six points scored by the Lady Tigers in the third game.

Lady Tiger Washburn, anxious to play could sit on the bench no longer and returned to the match in the fourth and final game. The Lady Tigers served first and scored. But the tension was intense and the ball was spiked out too often.

Capitan scored three points before

Floyd could score. When the score came to 3-2, the Lady Broncos' Lee took the ball and served four straight points to put Floyd ahead 6-3.

The fans were on the edge of their bleachers, the chants stronger and more in unison.

Six turnovers occurred before the next points were scored. Lady Tiger McDaniel served in three straight points before the ball was lost to Floyd.

The game was important to Capitan, it would be the match win.

Floyd stayed ahead until Eckland served. With McKay's spikes the score edged past Floyd's.

From that point the score seesawed from Capitan to Floyd. Net balls and game errors kept the ball turning over from Capitan to Floyd.

The play was intense, every ounce of skill was called upon by both teams. McKay served the fifteenth point, but the one point lead was not enough to win the game.

Before the Lady Tigers could score again, the Lady Broncos tied the score at 15-15. Gowen served, Washburn spiked the ball for point 16. A net serve by Gowen turned the ball back to Floyd. But Washburn saved the game with her smashing return to regain the ball.

Karie Cox served the final ball. The fans jumped to their feet and when the suspense almost becomes too much to bear, the Lady Tigers smash the ball into the Floyd Lady Broncos' court, just inside the line for the match point and the Class A Championship Title with a final score of 17-15.

A title well-deserved as the Lady Tigers completed a season with no defeats in any contest, including scrimmages with Class AAA schools and regular matches with Class AA schools.

The Lady Tigers played their way to the title by defeating Texico Thursday night at Goddard High School gym with three of four wins: 15-13, 15-3, 13-15 and 15-11. In the semi-finals, Capitan defeated Sandia Prep at Roswell High School gym Friday afternoon in three straight games: 15-9, 15-9 and 15-12.

"The best players in New Mexico were in our gym as a group," said Lady Tigers Coach Pam Allen about her undefeated volleyball team.

"I felt that our match with Sandia Prep was an excellent volleyball match, played by two great teams," said Lady Tigers Coach Pam Allen. "I'm very proud of our girls' performance in that match."

"In the final against Floyd we played very, off and on. The best way to describe that match is a war."

The fatigue factor took its toll with those players who were recovering from illness with the two setters, Allen continued.

"I was most impressed with our undying confidence, concentration, courage and fight. The girls were never concerned they were in danger of getting beat," Allen said.

"I can't say enough about what an outstanding group this is, their intelligence and most of all their teammanship."

"No one cared who got the glory, we just wanted to win. With that attitude we realized our goal to be state champions," Allen said.

Last year, the Lady Tigers finished their season fourth in the state contests.

"Some of the team never got to play a lot, but it took the effort of the entire group to develop as a team. They had each other to go against. Gina Griego and Vickie Sedillo were there continuously with courage and confidence in their belief in their teammates."

"Aside from the experience in realizing their goal, the biggest thrills were the community support. There was not a more vocal group at the state tournament than the Capitan group. That's neat. I'm hopeful this will begin some tradition and pride at sports events."

Allen praised Washburn for her courage when she returned to the match. She also praised the group offensively: Washburn, McDaniel, McKay and Gowen. Setters Cox and Eckland made excellent decisions, Allen said.

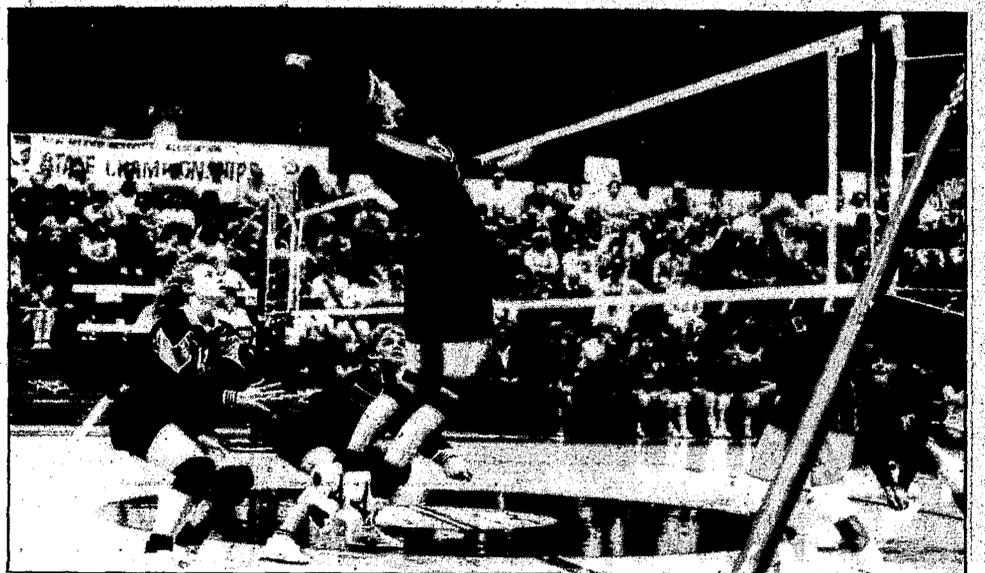

Younger Lady Tigers Leslie LaRue blocked well against Floyd and Nanette Boyd had some good shots.

The title was Allen's fourth in her volleyball coaching career and her first for Capitan High School.

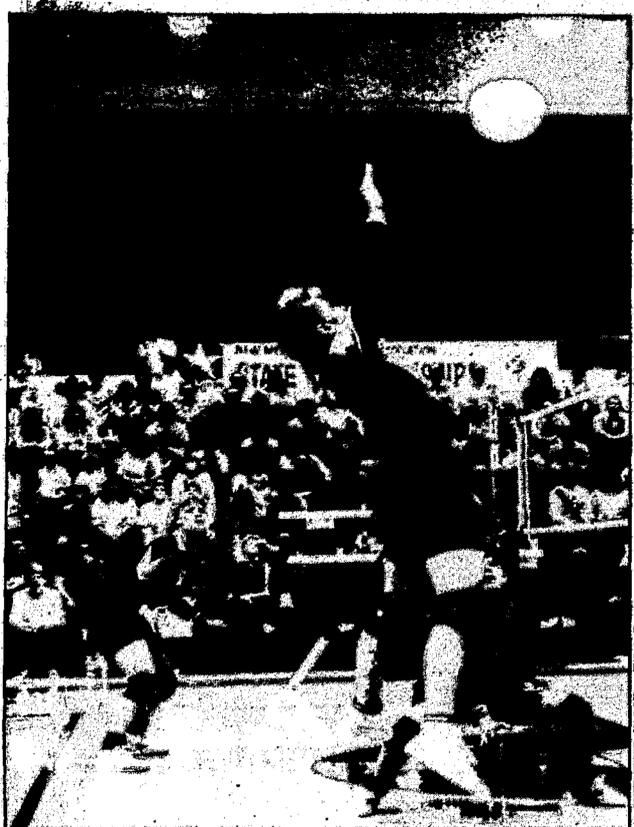

Congratulations Lady Tigers!
